How's that? Insurance

Q. Why won't insurance companies pay for hospitalization due to Alzheimer's disease?

A. A spokesman for the State Insurance Board in Austin said he knows of no companies that wouldn't, unless the patient had the disease before he bought the insurance. If you are having trouble, he suggested you write the board and include the company's name, your account number and the patient's name. The board can contact the insurance company and find out the problem.

Calendar

Farm loans

TODAY

State Land Commissioner Garry Mauro will be at the county courtroom in the Howard County Courthouse at 3 p.m. Mauro will discuss Proposition 10, a constitutional amendment that would start a loan program for farmers buying land.

Trash-hauling charges for Coahoma are half the regular monthly charge this month, because haulers didn't start collecting until the month was half over. Trash hauling is on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

THURSDAY

The Medicine Shoppe will have a free blood pressure check from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

The Humane Society will meet at 7 p.m. at the West Side Community Center.

Girls and parents interested in Girl Scouting can attend a meeting at 7 p.m. in the Marcy Elementary School cafeteria.

LULAC will meet at 7 p.m. at the courthouse.

FRIDAY

The Chicano Golf Association Friday couples will have an important meeting about the tournament after golfing at the Comanche Trail golf course. If it rains, the meeting will be postponed until 6 p.m.

The senior citizens dance will be at 8 p.m. in Industrial Park Building 487. It's birthday night, and refreshments will be served. The Country Jammers Band will play. Guests are welcome.

Friday hours at the Howard County Library have been changed to 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Hours on Monday through Thursday are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Saturday hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Fall's in town

Fall officially began Sunday, and cool weather hit Howard County Monday after a series of thunderstorms gave the area a drenching last week.

The cool weather should continue throughout the week, with partly cloudy skies, mild days and cool nights. The lows will be in the lower 50s and the highs in the lower 80s. There is a slight chance of thunderstorms Saturday and Sunday.

Local unemployment drops

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Howard County's unemployment rate decreased slightly in the month of August, the second month in a row for a decrease.

According to statistics released by the Texas Employment Commission office, the unemployment rate was 5.7 percent for August, compared to 6.5 percent in July.

Joe Wallis of the TEC said the main factor in the drop was "students going back to school." This causes a decrease in the total labor force, which affects the unemployment rate, he said.

Wallis said the unemployment rate's steady decrease can be attributed to several new businesses opening in Big Spring recently. Among these are Seawings and Wendy's restaurants.

He said the planned opening of The Box, a discount food and merchandise store in the old Gibsons building on N. Scurry, would contribute to the decrease in unemployment. Wallis said he understood the store was due to open sometime in early October.

"Other than that, there are no significant changes," Wallis said.

The county had 16,683 persons in the total labor force in August. July's figure registered 16,954. A year ago at the end of August, 16,714 persons composed the total work force.

Total persons employed at the end of August numbered 15,739. This compares to 15,860 last month and 15,953 a year ago.

August figures, according to the TEC, reveal 944 persons unemployed. This compares to 1,094 last month and 761 a year ago.

Playwrights get rare chance

Audience will critique work

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

Local playwrights will have an opportunity to hear their works read and get audience feedback in a new theater series, presented by Howard College.

"Domino," the first play in the series, will be performed at 8 p.m. Thursday in the college auditorium. Tickets may be reserved by calling the college at 267-6311. Cost is $1.50, and refreshments will be provided.

The forum will be a staged reading of the production and audience discussion afterward, said drama instructor Tim Haynes, who wrote the play several years ago.

"I'm trying to develop a new type of production that involves original, unproduced literary or musical compositions," he said.

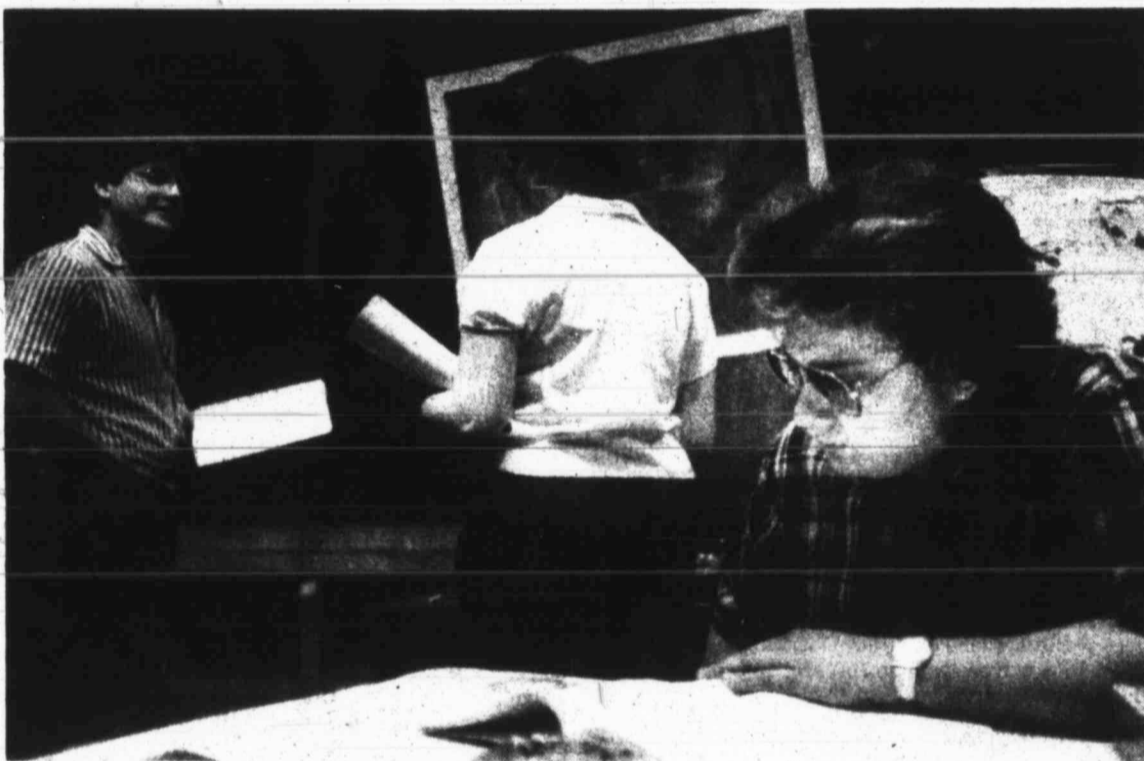

"It's a forum or showcase geared for the writer to hear his work read.

"Domino" is about a homecoming queen contest and the politics of a small West Texas town, he said.

Bob Lewis, also known as radio personality "Tumbleweed Smith" is the director, and District Attorney Rick Hamby will be host and moderator.

The new series is "one step in the evolution of a creative work few people have the opportunity to experience and learn from," Haynes said. "It's of vital importance so the writer can move onto the next step, a rewrite and possible production."

Haynes said shyness of having one's works critiqued by others is a problem. "Because we're

HOWARD COLLEGE students rehearse "Domino," the story of a homecoming queen contest and the politics of a small West Texas town. From left are Lanton Hamby, Denia Pope and John Woodall. The play will be presented Thursday at 8 p.m.

Haynes said he is looking for unpublished works to produce in this manner, and he hopes this will be the first in a series of productions by local writers.

"It's very open right now, because I have no other prospects we're considering with any specifics. I'd like to have about four a year," he said.

"I know a lot of people do some writing," he said, adding that poems, short stories and other literary works could be included in addition to plays.

Haynes said shyness of having one's works critiqued by others is a problem. "Because we're out in West Texas we sometimes hide. I know students with a lot of potential. It's just never been tapped into," he said.

(Shyness) is a problem for me," he said, adding that Tuesday night at rehearsal was the first time he had heard "Domino" read.

"I was a nervous wreck," he said. "But it's exciting to see the characters come alive. When the mood hits you, I say go. Your own inner creativity should say 'let me out.'"

Haynes said he, Smith and Hamby got the idea last Christmas. "We thought it would be fun and give us a chance to move into some new areas we have never touched on before," he said.

He said this type of production is done regularly in some large cities, usually called "dark night readings." The production cost is virtually nothing, he said, because costumes, scenery, props, sound and movement are minimal.

"It's a good opportunity for our performing arts students to work with a production series that they are probably going to run across in the future," he said.

Council approves benefits

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

Councilmen voted 6-1 Tuesday night to implement state civil service for firefighters, but controversy remains on at least one point of the city's interpretation of state rules.

Councilman Gary Don Carey opposed the motion, which also included the extension of additional sick leave and vacation benefits to other city employees.

Carey, questioned after the council meeting, said he did not oppose state civil service and had openly supported the firemen's campaign.

"I believe that firefighters are a separate entity. I believe that the fire department, the police department, the water department and (other) city employees are all part of the city but all are separate entities. They don't all have to be given the same benefits," Carey said.

"I'm not saying it's fair or unfair. It's just not necessary," he said.

During his election campaign, Carey had said he did not favor extending the benefits mandatory for firemen under the state law to other employees.

Although no firemen spoke at the meeting, the president of the firefighters' union said afterward the union differed with the city interpretation of when paid sick leave on termination should start being accumulated.

Under the ordinance passed Tuesday, firemen would still be able to use their old sick leave totals for sick days, but firemen could not count days accumulated before Oct. 1 when being paid on termination.

United States hopeful Soviets will break arms talks impasse

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Reagan administration officials are welcoming indications that the Soviet Union is about to unveil new arms control proposals in Geneva, but Moscow is keeping the administration guessing on whether it has such a plan.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz hoped to learn more at a four-hour meeting today with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze at the Soviet U.N. mission here.

U.S. officials were hopeful the Soviet minister would unveil a proposal to break the current impasse at the arms control talks in Geneva and they seized on a statement by Shevardnadze in his U.N. address Tuesday as confirmation he would do so.

"We welcome Mr. Shevardnadze's indication that the Soviet Union will bring new proposals to the Geneva talks," said Charles Redman, the State Department spokesman, speaking for the administration.

He referred to Shevardnadze's statement that "The Soviet delegation has brought to the current round of the negotiations substantial, large-scale and far-reaching proposals."

But a Soviet spokesman, Vladimir Lomeiko, told reporters that Shevardnadze was speaking about the proposals Moscow has already made, which Washington has deemed insufficient.

Redman acknowledged that he didn't know anything more than what was in Shevardnadze's speech and that the administration has heard nothing new so far.

It appeared that if the Soviet Union had a new proposal, they were going to unveil it at a time and place of their own choosing.

Reports persisted Tuesday that Shevardnadze was about to propose a 40 percent cutback in offensive nuclear warheads — in exchange for curbs on Reagan's "Star Wars" plan, known as the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The Soviet foreign minister planned to confer with Reagan at the White House on Friday. If he has a new plan, he probably would reveal it then.

U.S. officials say the Soviets have to budge from their current stand if the Nov. 19-20 summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva is to be successful.

Reagan appeared caught off-guard when asked about the reports the Soviets would propose a major percent reduction in nuclear weapons.

He first said he hoped the Soviets would propose more than 40 percent. Later, he said the United States would take what it could get, adding that in his initial response, "I was not turning down any offer. We've received no offer."

Shevardnadze was uncompromising in his U.N. address, saying the Reagan's Star Wars plan posed the chief stumbling block to an arms control agreement and warning it could set in motion an "uncontrollable and irreversible" global arms race.

"In the final analysis, this is a road leading to a nuclear catastrophe," he said.

It was Shevardnadze's first address to the United Nations after being named earlier this year to succeed Andrei Gromyko as Soviet foreign minister.

SOVIET FOREIGN Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze makes his maiden speech to the United Nations General Assembly's general debate on Tuesday morning.

Police Beat

Woman suffers stab wound

A Big Spring woman was hospitalized following a Tuesday night stabbing in the parking lot of the Whataburger Restaurant at 1110 Gregg.

Stephanie Fanner, 20, of 205 N.W. Third was in stable condition at Hall-Bennett Hospital early today, a hospital spokeswoman said. "She's doing fine. She's ready to be dismissed this morning," the spokeswoman said.

Fanner suffered a stab wound in her lower left back following an argument with another woman at Whataburger, where she works, according to police reports.

The stabbing occurred about 7:30 p.m., according to the police report.

Police last night arrested Vanessa Fleming Lunsford, 32, of 308 W. 20th at her home on suspicion of aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

Sgt. Pam Jordan said Fanner was stabbed with a steak knife. Police are not sure what the argument was about, she said.

Police have not made any arrests in the armed robbery at the Western Sizzlin' Steak House, Jordan said.

The suspect, a white male, was described as being between 5'-6" and 5'-9", had a thin mustache, dark hair and dark sunglasses. The gun he had was blue, and had at least an eight-inch barrel, Jordan said.

West Texas law enforcement agents have nearly cracked a forgery ring operating in Midland, Odessa, Stanton, Crane, Andrews, Monahans, Big Spring and other West Texas towns, said Sgt. Avery Falkner.

Midland police arrested three people last night, bringing to a total of four the number of suspects arrested in the cases. Falkner said members of the ring were stealing checks from companies and then forging and cashing the checks in different towns.

Peace bond warrant issued

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Jerry Lynn Myrick, 41, of 1703 Jennings, Monday afternoon, on a peace bond warrant issued from the office of Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin. He was later released on $1,000 bond.

Deputies released Thomas Lujan Jr., 23, of Box 231 after a $5,000 bond was posted for his release from county jail. He has been charged with carrying a prohibitive weapon and was arrested in the sheriff's office last Monday.

Big Spring police transferred Benny Lee Coleman, 21, of 509 Donley to county jail after he was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. He has also been charged with violating the terms of his probation from a prior DWI judgment.

The group had cashed six checks in Big Spring, all at the two Safeway stores, using false identification, Avery said. The checks were made out for an average of $300, he said.

Midland police are sending him mug shots of the latest three suspects to see if local clerks can identify them. A search warrant on the house of the first subject, arrested a week ago, netted two typewriters and a check validator used in the ring, Avery said.

Law enforcement agents had met Monday in Midland-Odessa to trade information on discuss suspects, he said.

Police Tuesday night arrested Kenneth Ross Stacy Jr., 22, of Lubbock in the 1200 block of Mount Vernon on suspicion of driving while intoxicated, driving while license suspended, failure to identify as a witness and evading arrest.

Patrolman Bruce Morgan had stopped Stacy at 608 Washington on suspicion of a traffic violation. Stacy ran away and had to be tackled, according to the report. He also gave police a false name and address, police reported.

Police Tuesday afternoon arrested Sue Ellen Dinsdale, 32, of One Courtney Place in the 800 block of West Fourth on suspicion of DWI and resisting arrest.

Denise Heffington of 200 Circle told police someone stole a 4-horsepower, two-cylinder outboard motor, valued at $350 and two lifejacket vests, valued at $50. The theft occurred between Sunday and 8 a.m. Tuesday.

Norra Ruiz of 1506 W. First told police someone slashed two tires on her green and white Ford pickup truck between 2 a.m. Monday and 11:30 a.m. Tuesday. Damage was estimated at $150.

Kenneth Walker of 204 Settles told police someone stole a 16-foot extension ladder Monday from 1107 E. Third.

Peace bond warrant issued

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby asked today that his position on reducing personnel in the county tax appraisal district office be clarified.

He says that employees there could be moved to other offices, rather than be fired. His comments on personnel reduction in the appraisal office came as he discussed ways to save money during a joint meeting of governmental bodies Monday afternoon.

Police transferred Kenneth Ross Stacy, Jr., 20, of 1218 E. 15th after he was arrested for suspicion of DWI and resisting arrest. She was released on bonds totaling $3,000.

Probe targets wrong man, police say

Police have dismissed a charge of telephone harassment against Fred Munoz, 33, of 1610 E. Sixth, Capt. Roy Lee Osborne said today.

Munoz was arrested Sept. 17 at the police station on a warrant for telephone harassment, Osborne said. The charge was dismissed because of evidence that Munoz did not make the phone calls, he said.

Police monitored the phone of someone reporting harassing phone calls and learned the calls were being made from Munoz' house, Osborne said. But the detective handling the case, Steve Fleckenstein, did not investigate who in the house might have made the calls and instead got a warrant for the homeowner, Osborne said.

"He didn't do anything wrong. He just didn't go far enough," said Osborne. The case is under further investigation by another officer, he said.

Fleckenstein has transferred in to the patrol division in an unrelated move, Osborne said.

4x4 Cleanup readies arsenal of trash takers

The Chamber of Commerce is looking for volunteers to help in the semi-annual 4x4 Cleanup campaign Oct. 12 from 8 a.m. to noon.

Volunteers may call the chamber for assignments or to organize a team.

Third, Fourth and Gregg streets are targets of the cleanup.

Seven team captains have been assigned a particular section of a main street. Crew leaders will be under each captain with four members to each crew.

Crew members will remove weeds, glass, cans and trash within a 10-foot area of the curb. They should bring tools, gloves and a box of large trash bags.

After the cleanup, each team captain will submit a list of follow-up projects, such as cars needing to be removed, hazards, buildings needing demolition and weedy lots.

The city will provide dump trucks, front end loaders and bush-hogs to remove all weeds and trash to the dump.

Johnny Rutherford, city councilman and chamber cleanup coordinator, said the chamber is winterizing the community. "If we don't clean up that's the way it'll look all winter," he said.

Man gets 6-year term

Judge James Gregg sentenced a 35-year-old Jeffersonville, Ind., man to six years in the Texas Department of Corrections for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle charge.

Probation, which had been granted last December, was revoked by the court.

Stephen J. Zultz was found guilty of violating six rules of his probation term and is also suspected of committing perjury during yesterday's probation hearing in 118th District Court.

He was placed on a six-year probation sentence by Gregg last December following a guilty plea to the charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle. Zultz testified yesterday that he "was guilty for not being responsible for my actions to take care of business that should have been done."

He asked another chance to fulfill the terms of his probation sentence.

Christina Castillo, 21, of 120 Airbase pleaded guilty to a driving while intoxicated charge in county court Tuesday morning. She was stopped on Sept. 1 at 1:30 a.m. near the Andrews Highway Exit off Interstate 20.

County Judge Milton Kirby fined her $400, $106 court costs and placed her on a 60-day sentence probation for two years.

"If it's always been done this way, it's time to seek out a new supplier," Rutherford said.

Miller asked the staff to check the prices neighboring cities pay for their chemicals. They also wanted to know if, of the 13 companies the city sent prospectuses to, any others besides Dixie produced chlorine.

"It doesn't do us any good to send prospectuses to companies that don't produce a chemical," Rutherford said.

The city awarded a bid to Taylor Petroleum Co. of Amarillo, the low bidder. Taylor bid 91 cents a gallon for regular gasoline, 94 cents a gallon for unleaded gasoline and 77.55 cents a gallon for diesel fuel.

Councilmen also agreed to advertise for bids for phase II of the improvements at the airport, which would include overlaying of Taxiway B, the taxiway in front of the new hangars, and construction and placement of signs for taxiways.

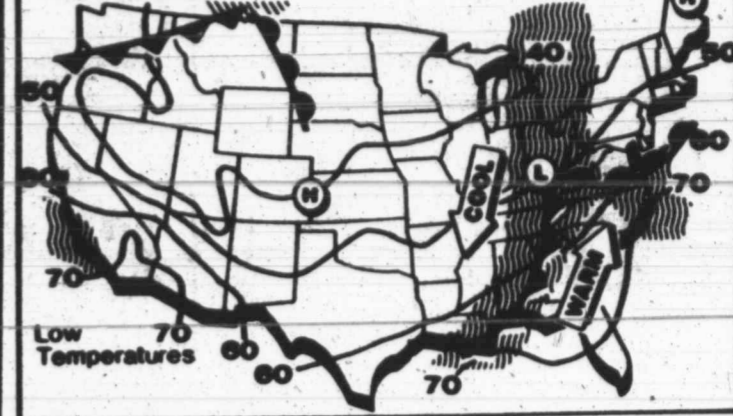

In other action, they approved an ordinance that would exempt the city from garnishment suits.

They also agreed to advertise for oil and gas leases on city property at the wastewater treatment plant, the Comanche Trail Golf Course, an area west of Driver Road, Powell, Lake, Moss Lake, and the 40-acre tract donated by Ted Groeb, which was designated as the new softball field.

The council also agreed to table appointments to city boards. Terms usually expire in October.

News in brief

Youth volunteers aid agency

Fourteen Howard County youngsters, ages 10-12, volunteered 593 hours this summer to help the Department of Human Services.

The youths helped mainly with clerical work, said Paula Talbot, financial aid division supervisor.

Volunteers were Joseph Rogers, Stacy Rash, Sarah Ziebell, Tammy Mason, Sherida Householder, Nikki Rodriguez, Kevin Billings, Cody Wells, Sharla Rash, Melinda Riley, Brandon Bayes, Ricky Rodriguez, Linda Mendoza and Terry Munoz.

Talbot said the kids "did a real good job." They learned a lot about the working world, she said, and they all asked to return next summer.

The Department of Human Services is responsible for food stamps, medical programs, child abuse and nursing home care, foster home placement and other services.

Register to vote by Oct. 5

Voter registration deadline is Oct. 5 for residents to be eligible to vote in the Nov. 5 election. New voters or those who moved here from another county must register at the Howard County courthouse. Voters who moved within the county may register by mailing in the blue voter card.

On the ballot in November are constitutional amendments, including Propositions one and two, which are commonly known as the statewide water plan.

Blast kills 4 in Fla.

AVIE, Fla. — Damage was "well over $1 million" in a blast that leveled a muffler shop, killing four employees and damaging all 34 stores in a shipping center across the street, officials say.

The blast at 7:45 a.m. Tuesday reduced the Midas Muffler & Brake shop to smoking rubble, leaving only an American flag intact. Eight people were hurt, and one remained hospitalized today with head injuries.

Four bodies were found in and around the rubble, said Davie Police Lt. Tim Hill.

Pilot error suspected

WEYERS CAVE, Va. — The pilot of a commuter airplane that smashed into the side of a mountain, killing all 14 people aboard, may have crashed after making a wrong turn on an aborted landing attempt, federal officials said.

Investigators have not pinpointed what caused the crash, but some officials said the position of the wreckage indicated pilot error.

The location of the crash site indicated the pilot may have made a failed landing and then mistakenly turned right and hit the mountain-side, an official said.

Safety concern grows

WASHINGTON — The near-collision of an Eastern jetliner and a private helicopter at Washington's National Airport highlights a growing concern among aviation safety experts over a rising number of hazardous incidents at busy airports.

Within hours of the incident Tuesday, investigators for the National Transportation Safety Board were making arrangements to impound tapes of conversations between the airport tower and both the jetliner and the helicopter to determine what happened.

Miller faces hitch

WASHINGTON — Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., is threatening to hold up a Senate vote on the nomination of James C. Miller III to be budget director in a dispute over a controversial Reagan administration proposal to do away with minority hiring goals for government contractors.

Eagleton, senior Democrat on the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, told Miller he was unsatisfied with the nominee's refusal to take a stand on the Justice Department proposal.

AIDS check imminent

WASHINGTON — Pentagon officials will almost certainly accept a recommendation that all active duty personnel heading to overseas posts undergo blood tests for an antibody associated with the disease AIDS, sources say.

Cribs save babies trapped in wreckage

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rescuers saved two small babies trapped for more than five days in a hospital ruined by two major earthquakes, and President Miguel de la Madrid pledged that rescue efforts would go slowly to protect others who still may be alive.

Mayor Ramon Aguirre's office said late Tuesday that the death toll had reached 3,500 from the quakes last Thursday and Friday. The federal Health Department reported 11,000 injuries.

The mayor's office reported 1,700 earthquake victims hospitalized — 1,100 more than the Mexican government listed a day earlier.

Relief workers pulled the two crying babies from metal cribs in a smashed hospital Tuesday. One was a boy born the day before the quake, and the other was a 2-month-old girl, said the Red Cross workers who found them said.

Miguel Gonzalez Juarez, one of the rescuers, said the babies, whose faces were covered by stones and dirt, were in "terrific" shape considering their ordeal.

The workers said the babies were in a small pocket of air in the wreckage of the Juarez Hospital, and that the sturdy metal frames of their cribs apparently had saved them.

Workers listened intently with ultra sound equipment, and specially trained dogs sniffed and pawed in a desperate effort to find the estimated 1,500 people still trapped.

"The priority is rescuing lives and because of that we have to take our time because a precipitous action might provoke the death of trapped people," the president said. He spoke to reporters after touring some of the harder hit areas of the city of 18 million.

"We have to work with prudence, so as not to put at risk the volunteer groups," he added.

There had been some speculation among rescue workers that officials would soon start demolishing the more seriously damaged buildings and leveling the mounds of rubble that dot the city.

A top government official speaking on condition he not be identified told The Associated Press that Mexico is grateful for the relief aid pouring in from around the world, but said some of it may not be useful.

"We do not need blankets. We do need money to rebuild the city, to rebuild the schools. Tell them that," said the official.

The government has established a disaster fund to accept contributions.

President de la Madrid said the earthquake would "complicate the management of our economic crisis" and asked that the international community "have an understanding of our problems and that our financial relationship might be carried out in such a way that they might help us absorb the economic impact of this tragedy."

The International Monetary Fund said in a statement issued last Friday that Mexico's failure to meet economic austerity targets put it in jeopardy of having the final $900 million installment of a $3.4 billion loan withheld.

However, the IMF denied it had made a final decision to hold back the funds, and financial experts predicted the organization would be lenient with Mexico, struggling with a $96 million foreign debt.

U.S. Ambassador John Gavin met Tuesday night with Aguirre at the mayor's request and said afterward that he had been trying to determine what Mexico expects from the United States.

The American Embassy announced that the United States is sending 800 3,000-gallon water storage tanks, some smaller water tanks and water purification kits.

Diana Rienstra, spokesman for the Canadian Air Line Flight Attendants' Association, said Tuesday that the agreement is subject to a back-to-work protocol and ratification by the flight attendants, who went on strike Aug. 19.

Israeli hostages killed

LARNACA, Cyprus — Three Palestinian gunmen shot and killed an Israeli woman and two Israeli male hostages today in a yacht in the Larnaca marina before surrendering to authorities, police said.

The attackers were demanding the release of Palestinians detained by Israel in recent weeks aboard vessels traveling between Cyprus and Lebanon, said Interior Minister Constantinos Michaelides, who was negotiating with the Palestinians.

Bomb hits airline office

ROME — A bomb exploded outside the British Airways office in downtown Rome today, shattering windows and injuring as many as 10 people, police said.

Police said they had captured a suspect who allegedly threw three explosive devices at the airline office. Two of the explosives apparently did not detonate.

It was the second explosion in eight days to rock the Via Veneto area, center of Rome's night life. A grenade blew up on Sept. 17 at the Cafe de Paris, causing 30 injuries.

Boat mishap kills 40

NEW DELHI, India — A ferry boat capsized in a rain-swollen river in Rajasthan state, and 40 people drowned, a news agency said.

The United News of India quoted police Tuesday as saying the boat turned over in the turbulent Kalasingh River, which had spilled over its banks and flooded low-lying areas.

About 70 people were aboard the boat when the accident occurred, the news agency said.

China accuses Vietnam

PEKING — China accused Vietnam today of firing more than 2,000 shells a day into southwest Yunnan province since mid-September, and sending armed men across the border to harass peasants.

The official Xinhua news agency said frontier patrols annihilated a platoon of Vietnamese who crossed the border Monday near Laoshan, but did not give a casualty figure.

Jet aborts takeoff to avoid mishap

WASHINGTON (AP) — Investigators are listening to cockpit and air traffic control tapes as they try to determine why a crowded Eastern Airlines jetliner had to abort takeoff to avoid a helicopter, skidding to a safe stop just shy of the Potomac River.

Eastern's 5 p.m. flight from National Airport to New York, a Boeing 727 with 175 passengers and a crew of seven, came to rest on ground that had been a river inlet before being filled in only last year. The plane stopped about 130 feet from the river on a runway safety extension.

One person sustained minor injuries, and neither aircraft was believed damaged in the Tuesday incident. "A helicopter crossed in front of him," Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Bob Buckhorn said of the jetliner. "The captain aborted the takeoff."

"The (airline) pilot was just about at top speed," witness Andy Sawicki said. "I thought he was going into the water. He zig-zagged when he left the runway. I guess he was trying to stay on land as long as he could."

Buckhorn said the near-collision came when Eastern's Flight 1500 made its takeoff roll and a Bell Jet Ranger helicopter lifted off from the airport's general aviation area west of the main north-south runway 36.

The helicopter pilot was cleared for departure to the northwest, heading away from runway 36, but instead went east and into the path of the jetliner, Buckhorn said.

However, WJLA-TV said the helicopter pilot, Jesse Hadaway, told the station he had been cleared to take off along the same flight path as the plane.

"When I saw him (the plane), I did a climbing left turn to avoid his flight path at which time he aborted his takeoff and pulled to a stop," said Hadaway, who was bound for Greenbelt, Md.

It was not immediately known how close the aircraft came to each other.

Subsidized mail drains taxpayer

If Congress wants suggestions on where to cut the national budget, we propose that it restrict the postal subsidies, which cost taxpayers almost $1 billion a year.

Subsidized postage is used to lower mail rates in ways that Congress never intended. For instance:

- Universities get an "educational rate" for third parties to sell insurance to alumni or to solicit alumni for holiday cruises.
- Magazines save millions of dollars by using a subsidized mail rate originally intended for rural newspapers.
- Political, religious and other special-interest groups get a subsidized rate to solicit funds for lobbying activities.
- Non-profit groups — and there are 870,000 of them — have no limits on using subsidized mail and often send out several mailings in a fund-raising campaign or for product promotion.

If postal subsidies were wiped out, householders would be relieved of much of the junk mail that arrives each day. Unfortunately, the Postal Department and the postal workers are in favor of the subsidies. They ensure thousands of tons of mail, which requires thousands of workers.

In his proposed budget for fiscal 1986, President Reagan has asked that preferential mail rates be stopped. Congress has paid little heed to his request. A good way for the president to demonstrate that he is serious would be to veto the postal subsidy handout measure when it hits his desk — and send Congress back to the drawing board.

Art Buchwald Travel pamphlet falls by wayside

(Whilst Art Buchwald is on vacation we reprint some columns from the past.)

Traveling is a pleasure instead of an ordeal when you go by air with baby or junior. It is wise to notify your airline ahead of time, however, so they will have certain things aboard for baby's comfort.

If he is a little older, make a game out of acquainting him with the objects around him. By the time he leaves the ground he will feel quite at home. You might take along a favorite toy to keep him busy and add to his feeling of security.

Children love to fly. They enjoy the excitement of boarding the big plane and watching the clouds go by the window. It is an experience they'll remember always and cherish. And so will Mother, because of the time and effort it has saved her in traveling with small fry.

From a pamphlet distributed by the Air Transport Association.

I was reading this pamphlet on a flight across the Atlantic Ocean recently. Standing next to me on the seat, reading over my shoulder, was a 2½-year-old boy who happens to be related to me.

There are certain things I would like to call to the attention of the Air Transport Association at this time. I followed their instructions to a T and it's apparent that the person who wrote the pamphlet has never flown higher than a 30-inch desk.

In the first place, it's not as easy to take along a child's favorite toy as the article would imply. In my case X Jr.'s favorite toy happened to be a three-and-a-half-foot red and yellow stuffed teddy bear. Although Pan Am wanted my child to feel secure they pointed out that all stuffed teddy bears three feet or over took up as much space as a 2½-year-old child and were subject to the same fare. We had to leave the bear at home. As soon as he boarded the plane, X Jr.'s insecurity was apparent.

He refused to buckle his safety belt and tripped the stewardess as she was explaining how to use a life jacket properly. As an afterthought he howled through the whole demonstration and I'm quite sure that if the emergency ever arose there were very few people on the plane who would know what to do.

Once the plane was safely in the air and out of danger, X Jr. decided to fasten his seat belt. It took his mother and his father and a stewardess to get it unfastened.

Children are usually fed first on a plane. In theory this is a good idea, but in practice it works like this. The child, having finished his meal and noticing other passengers are just starting theirs, will wander down the aisle staring at the people while they eat. Few people can stare down a child, and before I got wind of what was happening X Jr. had managed to procure three pieces of cake, a lamb chop and a cup of salad dressing.

Following the article's suggestion, I made a game out of acquainting X Jr. with objects around him. If he pushed the light switch he got one point. If he pushed the buzzer for the stewardess he got three points. If he pulled out the ash tray he got five points, and if he hit the person in front of him he got 15 points. When he received a total of 50 points, he got the spanking of his life.

When a child gets bored with "watching the clouds go by the window" (it usually takes about 30 seconds) he will head for the water fountain. The water fountain to a child is by far the most interesting part of an airplane. Aeronautical engineers, realizing this, have designed the fountains so that the water buttons are out of reach of tiny hands. Few children are daunted by this measure. In X Jr.'s case he stole a woman's movie camera and a copy of "Andersonville." By piling them up he not only managed to reach the water button, but was also successful in destroying a month's supply of Pan American's paper cups.

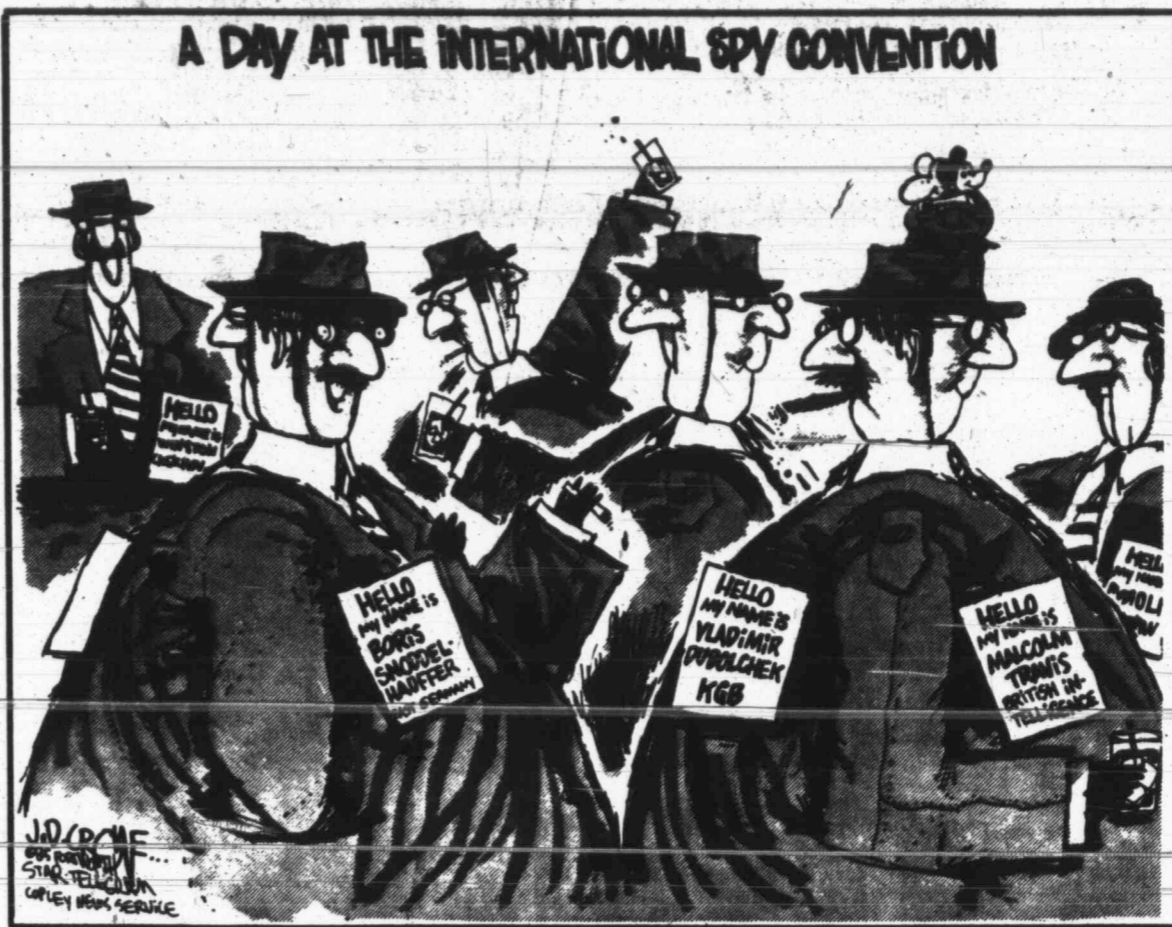

The question whether a parent should let his child wander up and down the aisle during the night or keep him in his seat is something each person must work out in his own conscience.

If you let the child wander you can probably get some sleep — but nobody else on the plane can. At 3 o'clock in the morning X Jr. was serving Life Savers and chewing gum to the other passengers, or so I was told the next morning by several bloodshot-eyed people.

There is no doubt that traveling with a child is a memorable experience that everyone would like to forget.

Lindbergh had the right idea. He flew the Atlantic alone.

Jack Anderson Poll says senate ready to let the cameras roll

WASHINGTON — A mighty television battle is building — but it's not among the networks over the new season's ratings. The arena is the U.S. Senate, whose members like to think of themselves as the world's greatest deliberative body.

What the senators are mulling over, for the fifth time in recent years, is whether to allow live television coverage of Senate proceedings, as the House has done for the past six years. Proponents of TV coverage have gained support since their last defeat, and think they may have a chance to win this time.

In fact, a recent poll by C-SPAN (Cable Satellite Public Affairs Network), which sends the House debates to client stations around the country, found that 62 senators would support TV coverage in some form, while 18 would vote against it no matter what. The rest, as senators are wont to do, hedged.

One of the fiercest opponents of Senate TV coverage, Sen. Russell Long, D-La., is retiring, but will still be around to vote against the idea one last time. His opposition is unflattering to his colleagues.

"Every senator with an inflated ego or higher political aspirations would always be tempted to take the floor and make eloquent speeches," Long has predicted, adding that most Senate floor speeches are "uninspired" to begin with. He presumably doesn't want to demean an institution he loves by displaying its shortcomings to a nationwide TV audience.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., doesn't necessarily disagree with Long's prediction, but he doesn't agree that changed behavior by senators would be a bad thing. As a representative, Gore supported the House's decision to allow TV coverage.

In a survey taken shortly after the House allowed the cameras in, 77 percent of the members thought colleagues were making speeches they wouldn't have made without TV, while only 10 percent admitted making such speeches themselves.

Gore not only believes the 10 percent figure is more accurate, he feels the Senate, by refusing to appear live on the tube, has sacrificed prestige to the House and the president.

"In a democracy, perception affects political power," he explained to our reporter Diane Jacobs. Gore thinks that changes in senatorial behavior caused by "concern about what the American people think" would be all to the good.

But many senators are wary of letting their chamber fall into the partisan mudslinging that characterized the snarling match between Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., and New Right Republicans such as Reps. Newt Gingrich, Ga., and Robert Walker, Pa. Nettled by their late-session harangues, O'Neill had the cameras pull back to show that the speeches were being made to an almost empty chamber.

House TV coverage is still tightly controlled by the speaker, through his designated surrogate, Rep. Charlie Rose, D-N.C. The Senate will have to decide, if it chooses to allow TV coverage, whether it will work out a similar system of control, or abdicate its authority to the networks.

One thing seems reasonably certain: If the Senate does decide after all these years to let the television cameras roll, the House will be miffed. As one House staffer confided, the members have grown to like being TV stars, and they have no desire to share the limelight with 100 silver-tongued senators. Can you imagine what one good Senate filibuster could do to the House's ratings?

INTERESTING BATTLE: Should interest rates be held down or pushed up? This question has provoked a backstage battle between Treasury Secretary James Baker and Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker. Low interest encourages people to borrow, which stimulates the economy. But low rates can also fuel inflation, which cheapens the value of the dollar. Both Baker and Volcker are shrewd political operators. Baker will try to keep interest rates low enough to loosen the money supply. The battle is on.

Drug export issue hits a moral chord

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM
WASHINGTON — President Reagan's proposal to allow the export of drugs not approved for use in this country promises to reopen a heated debate over the morality of selling foreign consumers medicines that Americans don't trust enough to use themselves.

Opponents say the proposal would make guinea pigs of sick people overseas. Proponents say the United States shouldn't refuse to allow another country to buy drugs it believes will help its citizens.

The president proposed Monday that Congress repeal a ban on exports of pharmaceutical products that have not been determined to be safe and effective by the Food and Drug Administration.

The proposal is part of a refurbished administration trade policy that focuses on opening foreign markets to American goods rather than protecting domestic industries.

A spokeswoman for Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, who has championed the cause of drug exports in Congress, said after Reagan's speech that Hatch would introduce legislation early next week implementing the president's plan. Similar bills by Hatch have failed in the past.

The legislation will face determined opposition from those who contend it is immoral.

"The United States of America has the finest and most stringent drug approval process in the world," the American Public Health Association said in opposing a similar Hatch bill last year. "We must not fail to extend the same protections we provide Americans to international consumers. To do otherwise would be morally wrong and would be bad international policy."

The export ban has been in federal law since 1938. Repeated attempts to repeal it have been unsuccessful, although Hatch and other opponents contend it got into the law through a drafting error, not deliberate policy.

The ban forbids exports of new drugs unless they have been approved by the FDA, even if they are legal in the receiving country.

Hatch, chairman of the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee, says the restriction is unique in the world. The United Nations has adopted a policy of leaving such restrictions up to the importing nation, not the exporter, he says. The ban also is unique to drugs; even in the case of hazardous chemicals, he says, the importing nation makes the decision.

Proponents say the U.S. policy is inappropriately paternalistic. FDA Commissioner Frank D. Young says the United States should respect the right of sovereign nations to choose what medicines should be made available within their borders.

"Each sovereign government has the chief responsibility for determining the types of drugs that can be imported from abroad," Young said earlier this year.

Irene Forde-Howard, a spokeswoman for Hatch, said that while some details of Hatch's new bill remain unresolved, it will be similar to a bill last year that the senator said would avoid abuses feared by opponents.

Hatch's 1984 bill, endorsed by the FDA and the pharmaceutical industry, would ease restrictions on exports by recognizing drug approvals of other countries that are determined by FDA to have adequate drug testing procedures.

Such legislation is endorsed by the World Health Organization, among others. But it is bitterly opposed by the American Public Health Association, the Associated Pharmacologists and Toxicologists, the Consumer Federation of America and consumer groups in Australia, Belgium, Japan and India.

They argue that such exports turn the rest of the world's population into human guinea pigs for drug experimentation, while Americans remain protected by the strict approval requirements set by FDA.

And the interest of drug manufacturers in exporting such drugs, they argue, is in the profits to be made, not the diseases to be cured.

The American Public Health Association, in its critique of Hatch's bill last year, said the measure "could result in the export of possibly dangerous drugs as well as those withdrawn from sales or from the application process because of serious problems."

Dr. Sidney M. Wolfe of the Public Citizen Health Research Group testified before Congress earlier this year that repeal of the ban "establishes a double standard which violates our basic belief that the health and safety of international consumers is no less important than that of American consumers."

"To the extent that U.S. drug approval takes longer because our laws impose higher standards, delays in approval must be accepted," said Wolfe. "The enactment of a double standard of protection — one rule applicable to us, and one applicable to everyone else — is clearly not the proper response."

Wolfe predicted major problems if the bill were approved, arguing that despite Hatch's restrictions, drug companies would rush to dump their more dangerous drugs in Third World countries that do not have the scientific capability to properly evaluate the hazards.

He said it also would run counter to an international trend toward tightening controls over the export of drugs and other hazardous products. Such actions have been taken or are being considered by the European Parliament, the Organization of American States, the United Nations and other international groups, Wolfe said.

Clay tablets in triplicate

By SPENCER SANDOW
It seems modern bureaucrats aren't the only ones who record in triplicate everything they do. The ancient Sumerians too were fond of red tape, archaeologists have discovered.

Inhabitants of the great Sumerian cities, which flourished between the Tigris and Euphrates rivers from 3,000 to 2,000 B.C., apparently kept extensive records of things they bought and sold and of just about everything else they did, according to a recent scientific report.

The Sumerian records were kept on clay tablets, using cuneiform, the first system of writing. One million tablets have been excavated so far, and as many as 100 million still wait underground. Between 90 and 95 percent of the tablets are day-to-day business receipts, scientists say. They would sure be prepared in case of a tax audit!

Although such records could tell us a lot about the Sumerian society, they hardly make interesting reading to the average layman.

The Sumerian dictionary is so long, it will fill 18 volumes, scholars say. The language is so complex, it took the scholars nine years to finish only the first volume, which they did in 1984. (And scholars say English is a difficult language to learn.)

Imagine the chagrin of an archaeologist who has made the find of the century — ancient Sumerian writings, including all things about their society, like religious books and literature. The scientist spends a long time and a lot of money uncovering the tablets. He waits years for the new Sumerian cuneiform dictionary to be completed so he can translate the information, only to discover that Apollo sold 8 bushels of wheat for three shekels on Tuesday.

But while their records are around for posterity, their garbage has returned to the earth. For us, however, the future may find our records have turned to dust, but our un-biodegradable garbage — plastics and the like — will be around to haunt.

The Sumerians wasted their time and resources on red tape, as we do. But at least they had the sense to get rid of most of their garbage, rather than leaving it around for future generations to discover.

Dear Abby

Mother's apron strings too strong for son to snip

DEAR ABBY: I am an attractive, single, career woman, 32 years old. For the last three years I've been in love with a kind, successful, gentle man who is 48. We share common interests, he treats me very well and he says he loves me. We've talked extensively about marriage. (He brought the subject up initially.)

The problem: At 48 he still lives with his 79-year-old ailing mother. He never married. As much as he cares for me, and I do believe he loves me, he can't bring himself to leave his mother. I've tried patience, persuasion, confrontation and ultimatums, but he can't deal with the idea of leaving his mother. I'm frustrated, jealous and angry. My friends tell me I'm wasting my time. I've tried to break off with him, but I was miserable!

We've been to two different family counselors without success. He won't return to either one because they both told him his mother is the root of his problem. Now he refuses to see another counselor.

Have you any suggestions, Abby? I don't want to be his "girlfriend" until his mother dies.

TIRED OF WAITING

DEAR TIRED: I suspect a symbiotic relationship between mother and son. (He needs her as much as she needs him. Possibly more.)

Frankly, I think he's using his mother to avoid marriage. Further, a man who ducks counseling because he doesn't want to know the truth is just putting his problems on hold. Don't fight too hard for this prize. You might get him.

DEAR ABBY: The next time the subject of pedestrians or joggers comes up in your column, please mention the old rule that anyone on foot, regardless of rate of speed, should always walk facing the oncoming traffic.

I've seen people in some very hazardous situations because they're walking with the traffic instead of against it.

KATHRYN IN ROCK CITY, ILL.

DEAR KATHRYN: Why wait for it to come up? It's worth bringing up. And in case pedestrians don't know it, they should always walk on the left side of the road.

DEAR ABBY: Please help settle a family dispute. Do you or don't you peel a banana from the stem? GOING BANANAS IN SEATTLE

DEAR GOING: To my knowledge, there is no "correct" way to peel a banana, but I peel mine from the stem.

Dr. Donohue

Get advice

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband suffered a heart attack six months ago. We have not yet resumed sex out of fear that it will strain his heart. We're somewhat embarrassed to talk to his doctor about this. Will you give us some advice? — Mrs. K.O.N.

You certainly need advice, but not the kind I can dispense from this distance, even though half a year has passed since your husband's infarction. You just have to let your hair down and talk to his doctor about this.

The reason I say that is because he is the one who knows the seriousness or lack of seriousness of the heart attack and how your husband is progressing in his recovery.

Normally, and I stress the word normally, a person can resume sexual activity six weeks after an attack. But rather than use these kinds of time rules, it's best to have an image in your mind as to the actual stress involved in typical intercourse.

You have heard the famous comparison to climbing a flight or two of stairs. Others would equate it to walking a mile in 15 minutes. A golfing doctor might prefer to compare it to the strain involved in playing that game — perhaps a bit more strenuous than that, actually.

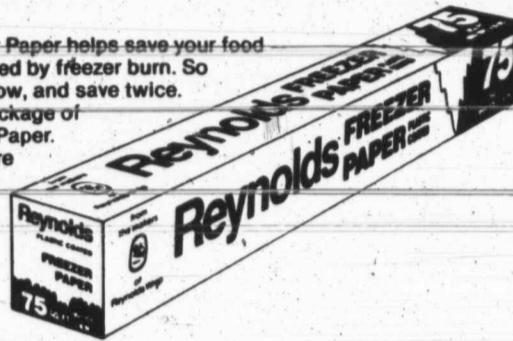

Or we can view it from the standpoint of heartbeat. During sexual relations the heart speeds up to about 117 beats a minute. That's really not very fast. Most post-infarction patients can return to that kind of activity within a couple of months.

Don't feel the slightest twinge of embarrassment. The question you have are ones the doctor hears often. If he has not mentioned the matter to your husband it is probably because he forgot to, not that he is offended by the subject.

We're leading off this week's recipes with another recipe from one of the good cooks featured in the Howard County Fair cookbook which was sold during the fair last week.

Zula Rhodes shared her recipe for Corn-Pone Casserole with the Recipe Exchange.

Today's page also includes a number of recipes high in calcium. Calcium is vital to good health and these recipes are a good-tasting way to increase one's calcium intake.

CORN-PONE CASSEROLE

by Zula Rhodes

1 lb. lean ground beef
1 medium onion, diced
4 tps. chili powder
1 28-oz. can of tomatoes with juice
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1 1/2 tps. sugar
1/4 tsp. black pepper
1 16 to 20 oz. can red kidney beans, drained
1 pkg. corn muffin mix
In a 4 quart saucepan over high heat, cook beef and onion until all pan juices evaporate and meat is brown. Stir in chili powder and cook 1 minute on high. Stir in tomatoes and their liquid, sugar and salt and pepper. Over high heat, stirring constantly, let mixture come to a boil. Now reduce heat to low, cover and let simmer 20 minutes. Stir in beans.
Spoon mixture into a deep casserole, at least 12 by 8 inches.
Prepare corn muffin mix according to directions. Spread batter over top of meat-bean mixture. Smooth out with the back of a spoon. Bake casserole, uncovered, 10 to 15 minutes or until corn bread is done. Makes 6 big servings.

SPINACH LOAF

1 Tbsp. butter
1/2 cup chopped onion
4 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup skim milk
1 Tbsp. Dijon-style prepared mustard
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. Italian seasoning
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 pkgs. (10 ounces each) frozen chopped spinach, thawed and well drained
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
1/2 cup seasoned dry bread crumbs
1 hard-cooked egg, peeled and sliced
SAUCE:
2 Tbsps. butter
2 Tbsps. flour
1/4 tsp. salt
2/3 tsp. pepper
1 cup skim milk
1/2 tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. For loaf, saute onion in butter until tender, about 3 minutes; set aside. Combine eggs, milk and seasonings in large mixing bowl. Stir in spinach, cheese, bread crumbs and onion. Spoon mixture into well-buttered 9 by 5 inch loaf pan. Place loaf pan in shallow baking pan on oven rack. Pour 2 inches hot water into shallow pan. Bake about 1 hour or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Remove from larger pan and let stand 15 minutes. Unmold onto serving plate. Meanwhile, for sauce, melt butter in small sauce pan. Stir in flour and seasonings until smooth. Remove from heat. Gradually stir in milk and Worcestershire sauce. Bring to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil and stir 1 minute. Remove from heat and stir in cheese until melted. To serve, garnish top of loaf with sliced egg. Spoon sauce over loaf.

ITALIAN VEGETABLE FILLED SHELLS

12 uncooked jumbo pasta shells
2 pkgs. (10 ounces each) frozen seasoned Italian-style vegetables
1 1/2 cups (6 ounces) shredded Provolone cheese
1/2 cup tomato puree
Cook shells according to package directions; drain. Place in cold water until ready to use. Cook vegetables according to package directions. Stir in 1 cup cheese and tomato puree. Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Drain shells. Fill with vegetable-cheese mixture. Bake 15 minutes to 20 minutes or until filling is hot and bubbly. Remove from oven. Sprinkle with remaining 1/2 cup cheese. Return to oven 2 to 3 minutes or until cheese is melted. Serve immediately.

FISH

PEASANT STYLE

1 can (16 ounces) tomatoes
1/4 cup tomato paste
1/4 cup chopped celery
1 clove garlic, crushed
1 tsp. fennel seed, crushed
1/2 tsp. crushed basil
1/2 tsp. crushed oregano
1 1/2 pounds fresh or frozen fish fillets (Perch, Halibut, Sole or Orange Roughy)
1 Tbsp. fresh lemon juice
Salt
Pepper
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
Parsley
Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. Combine tomatoes with liquid, tomato paste, celery, garlic, fennel, basil and oregano; simmer, uncovered 20 minutes. For fresh fish, arrange fillets in shallow buttered 2-quart baking dish. Sprinkle with lemon juice; season with salt and pepper. Pour sauce over fish. Bake, uncovered, 20 to 25 minutes or until fish flakes easily. Remove from oven; sprinkle with cheese. Return to oven for 2 minutes. Sprinkle with chopped parsley.

NOTE: When using frozen fish, thaw completely; drain on paper towels. Place in baking dish; cover with foil, bake at 350 degrees F. for 10 minutes. Drain off any liquid. Cover with sauce; bake, uncovered 10 minutes. Add cheese; bake 2 minutes.

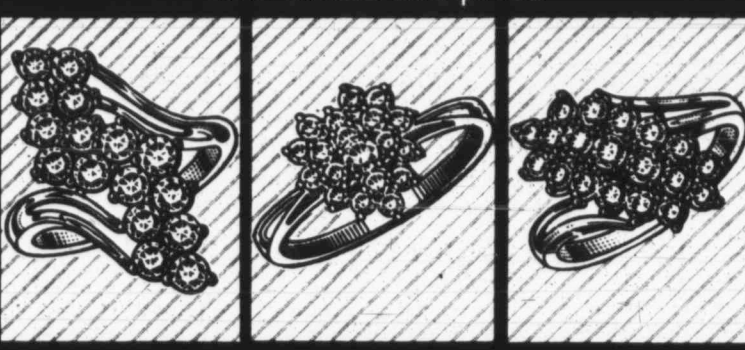

CHEDDAR OMELET

3 eggs
3 Tbsps. water
1/2 cup (2 ounces) shredded Cheddar or Monterey Jack cheese
Dash of pepper
1 Tbsp. butter
Mix eggs, water, 1/4 cup of the cheese and pepper thoroughly with a fork. Heat butter in 8-inch omelet pan or skillet until hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in egg mixture. It should begin to cook at edges immediately. Draw the cooked portions with a spatula or fork toward the center so that the uncooked portions flow to the bottom and outer edge. Keep mixture as level as possible. Shake skillet frequently to keep omelet from sticking. When eggs no longer flow and surface is still moist, increase heat to brown bottom quickly. If necessary, loosen edge. Shake skillet again to be certain omelet is not sticking at any point. Sprinkle with remaining 1/4 cup of cheese. Fold in half. Total cooking time is about 1 1/2 minutes.

You gotta have heart

How 'bout those Big Spring Steers? Their 35-0 whipping of Lubbock Monterey was pretty neat, huh? Kind of impressive wouldn't you say?

Personally, I knew the Steers would put a good game together and it wouldn't be a fluke. Fluke wins don't turn in to 35 point routs.

A betting man wouldn't pick the Steers 35 points over anybody. After all this team hasn't won a district game in two years. Who would pick them to drum another 5A opponent?

Only someone who has spent some time with the players. Who actually wears the Black and Gold. Someone who knows they have something you don't measure on computer printouts.

Heart! That's just what the Steers have.

You know, the kind of motivation that comes from a team known as easy pickings in 4-5A for so many years, even though they try their level-headed best. It's easy to give up and say what the heck, somethings never change.

But instead of letting the ship sink; they pick themselves up, stand firmly on both feet and get ready to throw down with the next chump who thinks the Steers are prime meat.

That's what I like I about this year's Steers. Instead of getting down on themselves and falling back into that losing syndrome, they came back fighting and scratching. There wasn't a doubt in any of their minds they weren't going to win that game, just like there's no doubt they'll beat Midland High.

There are critics out there who will say, "So what? That's just one win over a team that hasn't won a game." But I add that Plainview, ranked 42nd in the state, only beat Monterey by three TD's. And their game wasn't as one-sided as the Steers victory.

But a win is a win, and let's face it, Big Spring needs all the wins it can get. It not only builds up the morale of the team, coaches and the entire student body, it also builds up the morale of the community.

Makes you feel good to break out those Black and Gold colors after your team has won by five touchdowns the week before.

And so it will go on like this the rest of the season. The Steers will have to prove every Friday to every foe who thinks they are in for a easy time; just how much heart the boys from the Spring City have.

Like I said, they don't measure it with computers.

Ueberroth vows to stop drugs

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said today he plans to move ahead with his attempt to eliminate drugs from baseball, even if the union rejects his appeal to the players for voluntary drug testing.

"The commissioner is going to have to do many things next," Ueberroth said on NBC's Today Show, "and I'm not going to say what they are now. I've got to stay with an attack on drugs, not players. ... If this doesn't work, there will be something else."

"Baseball has a responsibility. We're the national pastime. Millions of kids idolize ballplayers. We have a responsibility to get drugs out of this game, and I'm not going to stop until we get it done," Ueberroth said.

Players generally are reacting favorably to his plea for voluntary drug testing, provided he can work out details with the players' union — but the union has called Ueberroth's actions potentially illegal, inappropriate and apparently designed only "to make news."

On Tuesday, Ueberroth told a news conference that he had sent a letter to all major-league players, through a designated representative on each team, asking them to submit voluntarily to urinalyses three times a year, beginning in 1986. Players were asked to respond, yes or no, by Friday.

Alluding to the federal drug trial in Pittsburgh at which seven players testified, Ueberroth said that "baseball has been on trial and has suffered public humiliation." He added that a failure to institute testing would mean "the start of a decade in which baseball is synonymous with drugs."

It was the first time Ueberroth had commented publicly on the testimony in Pittsburgh.

"Baseball is in trouble," Ueberroth's letter said. "The shadow that drugs have cast is growing larger and darker by the day. It threatens you, your families and all of us who make our living from and take pride in the game."

"Baseball's reputation is at stake," it continued, "and it is our responsibility, both yours and mine, to stop this menace before more damage is done."

Don Fehr, acting executive director of the Major League Players Association, called the commissioner's act "an attempt to bypass the union," and Fehr said he was leaning personally toward recommending that players ignore the commissioner's request.

The union has a Joint Drug Agreement with baseball which does not provide for testing. There is a provision, however, that allows for new discussion on testing if one side feels it is necessary.

"If they want us to consider this again, make a proposal," Fehr said. "Reopen the agreement. We'll honor our commitment, we'll do that."

Don Baylor of the New York Yankees, the union's American League player representative, said the Yankees had "voted 100 percent not to vote."

"We're going to leave it in the hands of the players association," Baylor said. "Nothing is going to be done by us until then. We're not going to ratify anything."

The New York Mets voted on the proposal immediately, Manager Dave Johnson said, and the players "came out 100 percent in favor of voluntary testing." That approval, however, was conditional on Ueberroth working out details with the union.

"I believe that something should be done," Mets catcher Gary Carter said before Tuesday night's game at Philadelphia. "It should be addressed to the players association and go from there. The players association should handle the whole thing. Something should be worked out, and we'd be more than obliging. We'd like to see baseball clean as well."

The Mets' Keith Hernandez was one of the seven current or former players who testified in the Pittsburgh trial. The others were Lonnie Smith of Kansas City, Dale Berra of the New York Yankees, Enos Cabell of Los Angeles, Dave Parker of Cincinnati, Jeff Leonard of San Francisco and John Milner, a former Met and Pirate who is now retired.

Baseball Commissioner PETER UEBERROTH speaks at a news conference in New York Tuesday. UEBERROTH said he would ask all major league players to submit to voluntary drug testing, while adding that he would postpone any action against seven players who testified in a federal drug case in Pittsburgh.

While making his announcement, Ueberroth said he had put off a decision whether to punish those players and others whose names came out during the trial.

"There's been a lot of demand for me to take action against the seven players ... and the many others who were mentioned in those court proceedings," Ueberroth said. "From my own personal view, such action would have been appropriate, but baseball's reputation is more important."

While many details remained to be worked out, Ueberroth said testing would not include "amphetamines or other prescription drugs, or alcohol." He said the tests, done at random, would be conducted by a medical team in the players' clubhouses. He said there would be no penalties levied against players whose tests were positive.

"Anyone with a positive test would receive immediate and continued testing and treatment, counseling and help appropriate to that individual," Ueberroth said.

Asked why he had made an end-run around the union, Ueberroth said: "I don't want a confrontation. As I have said, this is not an owners' program or a union program. It's between me and the players."

Fehr's response was one word: "Nonsense."

Mojo retains top rank

Odessa Permian in Class 5A and Munday in Class 4A once again were the top vote-getters in retaining their No. 1 rankings in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll.

Permian received 24 of the 26 first place votes cast and Munday, the defending A state champion, got 25 first place votes from The AP's panel of Texas sports writers and sportscasters.

Tomball in 4A, Hempstead in 3A and Electra in 2A also maintained leads in their classifications.

Permian defeated Fort Worth Eastern Hills 41-7 and held a 258-204 point margin over the new No. 2-ranked team, Houston Yates.

Yates, third last week, moved ahead of Conroe, which lost to No. 4 Houston Aldine and dropped to No. 9.

Aldine jumped from sixth to fourth in the new listing and Temple, 2-1, dropped from eighth to 10th despite a 45-14 victory over Abilene Cooper.

West Orange Stark moved from ninth to seventh after a 38-6 victory over Texarkana High and Sugar Land Willowridge moved to eighth with a 26-0 shut out of LaMarque.

Tomball received 18 first place votes and a 248-234 margin over runnerup Denison in Class 4A.

Sixth-ranked Wichita Falls Hirschi dropped out of the rankings after a 48-6 loss to Denison and No. 8 Brownwood fell to No. 10 after a 7-0 loss to Class 5A Killeen.

Brownwood's loss kept veteran coach Gordon Wood from securing his 400th coaching victory.

Hempstead blasted Somerville 63-0 and easily held its 3A lead over No. 2 Navasota by a 249-223 point margin. The two schools from District 24-3A are headed for a showdown at Navasota Oct. 18.

Defending 3A state champion Medina Valley lost its second game of the season and dropped from No. 10 out of the poll.

Lady Steer Profile

Tabitha Green is a second-year starter on the Lady Steers volleyball team. Last year she proved her worth as she was named Sophomore of the Year in District 4-5A.

The 5-7 junior spiker is the daughter of Gerald and Carol Green.

"I feel that volleyball teaches an athlete to cooperate with others," said said. "I play the sport because I love the competition."

Green credits Lady Steers coach Susan Sharp as being the most influential person pertaining to volleyball. "Coach Sharp has given me a great amount of support and self confidence."

Green's favorite is swimming. She is also a member of the Student

After graduation she plans to attend Baylor University and earn a law degree.

Lady Steers defeat Cooper in 4-5A match

ABILENE — The Big Spring Lady Steers remained in first place in the District 4-5A volleyball race as they took a 8-15, 15-12, 15-10 volleyball win over Abilene Cooper last night.

This pushes the Lady Steers district mark to 3-0, tied with San Angelo Central for the top spot.

Due to a scheduling mixup the game started late and so did the Lady Steers, as Cooper easily won the first game. "We started late," echoed coach Susan Sharp. "You can't blame it on the conditions because sometime you have to play like that. It seems we weren't physically or mentally prepared."

Big Spring warmed up in the next two games though. "Sheri Myrick served a couple of aces and that got us fired up. Katrina Thompson came on and played her best game of the season," Sharp said.

Myrick and Tammi Green led all Lady Steer servers with 10 points each. Lisa Hale added 7 points.

Big Spring's season record is now 14-7.

JV'S MAKE IT A SWEEP
Coach Elaine Stone's JV spikers pushed their district record to 2-1 as they downed Cooper 15-11, 15-9.

Sonya Evans led the scoring in the first game with 6 service points. Nicky Rodriguez and Michelle LaGrande served 5 points each in the second game.

The JV's season record is now 13-6.

Coolley, Wright head third week Crossroads Honor Roll

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

As in the previous two weeks, there were some superb performances by Crossroads Country gridders in last Friday's stormy weather football action.

Consistent performers like Colorado City's Sammy Rivera, Borden County's Brice Key and Coahoma's Brian Calaway keep turning in top performances each week.

This week's top performances were turned in by a couple of players who have already made their presence known on the Crossroads Country Honor Roll.

Borden County running back Chris Cooley and Forsan linebacker Wayne Wright both turned in stellar performances to earn the honors of Offensive and Defensive Players of the Week.

Cooley, a 5-9, 160-pound senior, turned in his third consecutive 200-yard game playing for the Six-Man Coyotes. While leading his team to a 34-6 win over Wellman, the speedster dashed for 207 yards in 25 carries and four touchdowns. He also ran in a couple of conversions. This brings his total to 625 yards for the season.

Wright, a 6-1, 185-pound linebacker, is one of the mainstays on the Buffaloes' defense which has a string on nine consecutive scoreless quarters. He was a big reason Forsan limited a good

Robert Lee offense to a mere 100 yards total offense.

He ended the contest with 10 tackles, one interception and two fumble recoveries.

Wright also gets mention for his offensive performance in Forsan: 40-0 romp. The big fullback carried the ball 15 times for 127 yards and two TD's. He also found time to catch a 35-yard pass.

Forsan quarterbacks Brant Nichols and Duane Box also did bang-up jobs against Robert Lee. Nichols was 5 of 7 for 68 yards and one TD while Box was 2 of 2 for 64 yards and one TD.

The men in the "trenches" also catch the spotlight this week on the Honor Roll.

Garden City guards Bobby Medrano and Juan Salazar were two of the determining factors in the Bearkats 12-0 win over Grandfalls. Both paved the way on a muddy field for fullback Trey Willey to rush for a career-high 121 yards in 21 carries. Willey scored one TD and gained 111 yards in the second half alone.

Coahoma center Barry Stafford was also a force in leading the way to a 20-14 Bulldogs win over Tahoka. Quarterback Calaway benefited from from Stafford's blocking by completing 5-8 passes for 44 yards, picking up 45 yards in 14 carries and scoring one TD.

Grady's Joe Valle put in a good night's work from his receiver position in a losing effort against Christoval. He snagged 3 passes for 96 yards and two touchdowns. He also carried the ball 4 times for 15 yards. Grady quarterback Luis Gonzales also had a productive night, hitting 9 of 16 passes for 132 yards.

Defensively, Borden County linebackers Key and Mickey Burkett turned in strong performances in their team's first win over the season. Key collected 19 tackles while Burkett was in on 16 stops.

Colorado City middle linebacker Albert Rivera was all over the field against a fiery Denver City offense. The 145-pounder was credited with 18 stops.

Another top performance came from a linebacker who is just getting his first taste of varsity football. Coahoma sophomore Anthony Hernandez, filling in for injured Luke Yarbar, was in on 14 tackles in only his second varsity start.

Garden City defensive end Ricky Halfmann turned in a good performance against Grandfalls. He pressured the quarterback all game long, was in on 7 tackles and collected 2 quarterback traps. He's was a big reason Grandfalls gained only two yards in the second half.

Other top performances were turned in Stanton linebacker James Vidal, who made 12 tackles and Stanton defensive tackle Gary Montez, who made eight tackles.

SKIN CANCER
Skin cancer is common among people over the age of 40. Skin cancer usually does not spread to other systems of the body if diagnosed and treated early. Exposure to the sun is a prime factor that promotes skin cancer. It is very important for one to use sun block agents preferably number 15 to screen out the sun's harmful rays and reduce the risk of skin cancer. Prolonged exposure to the sun also causes rough dry scaly areas that are pre-cancerous. If these areas are left untreated they may develop into cancer. Any spot that scabs over, scales, bleeds, grows larger, or does not heal within a few weeks may signal a problem. If an existing mole enlarges suddenly, changes color, bleeds or has an irregular border can be a sign of transformation to skin cancer. If you have any of these warning signals see your dermatologist at once.

Delight Meal Deal

Taco Salad & Diet Drink $2.99

We start with a crispy, golden tortilla shell, fried up fresh. Then we fill it with fresh lettuce, spicy taco beef, chopped tomato and shredded cheese. Top it with tangy sour cream and tender black olives. Serve it with picante sauce. And add your favorite diet soft drink. All for only $2.99.

The new Delight Meal Deal. Every bite is pure delight!

BUFFALOES 14, VIKINGS 0
The Forsan Little Buffaloes scored on their first two possessions of the game and went on to down the Big Spring Vikings 14-0.

The first Buffaloes touchdown came on a 44-yard sweep by Danny Box with Matt Coats leading the way with his downfield blocking. The extra point attempt failed.

On their next possession the Buffaloes struck paydirt again as Micah Eppley scored on a 36-yard run.

COWBOYS 38, DOLPHINS 0
Patrick Chavarrie scored three touchdowns and the Cowboys soundly defeated the Dolphins 38-0.

Chavarrie scored on runs of 28 and 34 yards and recovered a blocked punt for his third TD. He led his team to a big 169-12 total yardage advantage.

The other two Cowboys touchdowns came on a 27-yard run by Maurice Evans and a 23-yard dash by Gerald Cobos.

PACKERS 20, BULLDOGS 0
The Packers dominated the Coahoma Little Bulldogs in a game that saw the Bulldogs turn ball over four times.

Cort Peterson was the offensive leader for the Packers as he scored two TD's. The Packers outgained the Little Bulldogs 149-16 total yards.

Prices in effect Wednesday, September 25 through Saturday, September 28

Freshour brings it on

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

Call Jerry Freshour an opportunist player.

At the start of last week Freshour was a second string defensive tackle for the Big Spring Steers. But starting tackle Luis Puga injured his knee, thus putting Freshour on line for the first starting assignment of his varsity career.

The 6-2, 192-pound senior made the most of the opportunity, with a team high eight tackles in Big Spring's 35-0 whitewash of Lubbock Monterey.

Now there is a strong possibility that Freshour will become a permanent fixture in the Steer defense.

"I was nervous when I first learned that I would be starting," admitted Freshour. "But when I got in the game, all that went away. I was just out there having fun," he said as a smile crept across his face.

"I didn't think I would get very many chances, so I figured I'd better make the most of it."

Freshour admitted there wasn't very many surprises in last week's start. "Monterey's blocking schemes were pretty basic. They did a lot of base blocks and I got a few double teams from the tight end. I just got my reads and played technique football. Overall, we played fired-up football. Everyone was around the ball and we gang-tackled."

This week Freshour and his defensive mates will go against a different attack from the previous three opponents. The Midland High Bulldogs will put the ball in the air. Freshour and the Steers are excited about the challenge.

"It will be different but we're looking forward to it," he said of the Steers opening district opponent. "The best unit on Midland's team is their offensive line. The thing we must do is put pressure on the quarterback. Hopefully we'll force some interceptions like in the Monterey game."

The game will be especially challenging for Freshour since he thinks he's stronger against the run. "It's going to be a big test for me. I play the run better but we've been working a lot lately on our pass rush. This game I'll get to see just how good I can rush the passer."

Freshour said the win worked wonders for the team's spirit. "We're pretty fired up. We've been talking about how good it felt after we won Friday night. Then we remember how bad it felt to lose. We don't want to have to experience that feeling again."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, SEPT. 26, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Making changes in the manner in which you reduce your aims and ambitions to a workable success now needs to be done if you are to have conditions as you have planned.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't jeopardize some good relationship by acting hastily in the morning, so keep calm, cool and collected.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) In trying to wiggle out of some unfortunate situation, you could cause a good friend some trouble. Find the right solution.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Steer clear of that annoying friend if you want to get your business handled wisely and properly. Attend to personal affairs later.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You may be so busy at your work, you fail to take advantage of a new opportunity to advance that presents itself.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Study well your promises to others and carry through with them instead of running off to new appeals.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't get so bogged down with the details of an enterprise that you fail to talk over affairs with a partner.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't get so tied up with partners that you fail to make your surroundings more smooth-running and attractive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may not be able to get your work done until the afternoon because of sudden events that will require your time earlier.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Early get out into the world of business and forget the situation at home; but tonight all will be righted.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may have problems connected with your home today so clear them up quickly, and tonight you can enjoy friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Take care you do not berate some person during the daytime or there can be trouble. Handle finances in the evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Take care you do not overspend and avoid monetary demands made upon you in the morning. Not a day for change.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be both a pioneer and a traditional type of person, so it is important that parents will find the right courses of study that can best fit your rather extraordinary progeny. Give as fine an education as possible.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

TCU recruiting scandal involves 29 players

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas Christian University football coach Jim Wacker says as many as 29 TCU football players may have been receiving illegal payments from alumni before he took over as head coach in 1983, payments that one booster says went as high as $25,000.

Former TCU coach F.A. Dry made the statement Tuesday at a meeting of the Frog Club, an organization of TCU sports boosters. Later, Wacker announced that Ron Zell Brewer, a senior on the team, was suspended Tuesday after he said he had been receiving cash payments in violation of NCAA rules.

Wacker first set the number receiving cash payments at 29, but backtracked a little. "I don't know if I'm right (about the number). I'm not sure, but I think that is the number I heard from somewhere," Wacker said. "When we came in, the boosters evidently cut that list to nine and made a decision not to let me or anybody know that," Wacker added.

Cash payments by boosters to TCU football players were common knowledge among team members under Dry, according to former TCU quarterback Anthony Guiley. Another player said the payments were widespread. "A majority of those who came in my year (fall of 1981) were aware of what was going on," Guiley told the Dallas Morning News. "It (payments) wasn't any big secret. All the guys recruited by coach Dry knew what was happening."

Dick Lowe, a Fort Worth oil man who has revealed that he and other alumni helped to subsidize seven players currently under suspension by TCU, said in a report in Wednesday's New York Times that he cannot remember the precise amounts athletes at the school received to play football over the last five years.

But according to Lowe, a top-notch running back would bring $10,000 to $25,000 in cash, plus an automobile and $1,000 a month in spending money. The payoffs, which Lowe maintains are commonplace in big-time college football programs across the nation, require the willing participation of the coaches, alumni and the players themselves. The practice of recruiting players with cash and other inducements ended at TCU in 1982, he said.

These guys are deft negotiators," Lowe said, referring to the student athletes. "The first thing, if you're going to recruit a kid, is someone has to find out if he's on the take with his hand out and wants to be bought. "There are a lot of honest kids out there who don't want anything like that, and if you offer them something, you know you're going to lose them immediately. So you don't just go out and wave dollar bilis in their face." However, Lowe said, once visited by a wealthy alumnus and a coach, "usually candidates for payoffs willing let you know pretty quick."

"They say things like, if you're driving down the street and you pass a sports car, it's 'hmm, I'd do anything for one of those XZs.' That sort of thing will come from a kid."

Lowe, a former player at TCU and a driving force in the school's athletic program, resigned Monday as a member of the board of trustees there. He said he had decided to come forward with the recruiting information in hopes that it would put a stop to the payoffs at TCU and at other schools where similar abuses run rampant. "For God's sake," Lowe said, "let's all get together and try to stop this madness before it destroys college athletics." Dry, now an assistant coach at Baylor, has denied any knowledge of illegal payments, calling statements by TCU boosters linking him to the violations "fabrications."

TCU officials called for an investigation Thursday after Wacker dismissed six players from the squad, including star running back Kenneth Davis, for taking illegal cash payments from boosters.

Others suspended last Thursday were Egypt Allen, Gary Spann, Gerald Taylor, Darron Turner and Marvin Foster.

The six met with Wacker Tuesday afternoon and learned of Brewer's suspension.

The meeting ended when all, led by Davis, stored out of the office. Wacker would not say what was discussed at the meeting.

"I had a meeting with them. Everything else is privileged information," he told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.
