Cold weather sweeps state

The first cold snap of the season Sunday forced residents to turn on their heaters and break out coats, sweaters and blankets in an effort to try and stay warm.

In Big Spring and around the Permian Basin, temperatures started out warm enough early Sunday morning, but the mercury began plunging after 8 a.m., when it registered the high of the day at 62 degrees Fahrenheit, according to the U.S.-Big Spring Field Station.

By the end of the day, temperatures had fallen to a chilly 41 degrees, only four degrees higher than the record low for the date, 37 degrees, set in 1936.

Saturday, the high was 84 degrees; the low, a relatively mild 59 degrees, according to station records.

The cold front, which dropped in on its way south from Canada, warmed up slightly when it hit the area, bearing cold rains and winds Saturday night. On its way down to the Big Spring area, the front had dusted Colorado, the Oklahoma panhandle and the northern Texas panhandle with snow flurries.

The field station reported receiving 1.02 inches Saturday and Sunday, bringing the monthly total to 4.06 inches. The year-to-date rainfall total is 19.8 inches, almost five inches above the normal total of 15 inches at this time.

Inside the city limits, residents reported receiving close to an inch of rain Saturday night. Red Thomas, who lives near downtown Big Spring, reported 1.1 inch of rain from Saturday, while B.G. Barber of 1409 Settles said he received one inch of rain, bringing his monthly total to 7.8 inches in September.

Although the rain hit most areas of the county, farmers said they didn't think the cotton grade would be lowered too much.

Larry Shaw of Knott, who said he received one-half inch of rain Saturday, said the cotton already had been rained on. "It's already had a rain on it; that took the brightness out. I don't think it hurt it all that much; I feel it could have hurt it more," Shaw said.

"The cotton that's already defoliated looks dirty," said Mrs. Leland Wallace, who lives about five miles northeast of Big Spring on Snyder Highway. "The winds brought in some dirt. But if it turns hot and sunny, it'll bleach out. (The rain) didn't beat any cotton out on to the ground."

Mrs. Wallace said she received one inch of rain at the house, and

1.2 inches in the pasture.

Keith Nichols of Ackerly said he received seven-tenths of an inch at his home there. Shaw also said a farmer at Flower Grove had told him he also received one-half inch of rain Saturday.

Temporary bleachers lie collapsed around a bull ring in Tecate, Mexico, where at least 50 people were injured when the bleachers collapsed during a bullfight Sunday.

120 injured when stands collapse before bullfight

TECATE, Mexico (AP) — At least 120 people waiting to see American matadora Ráquel Martínez were injured when temporary bleachers of a bullfight ring collapsed "like a deck of cards," authorities said.

Tecate Fire Chief Luis Villa Vicencio said there were no deaths in the collapse at 5:15 p.m. Sunday of stands erected two days earlier for the city's seventh annual Pamplonada festival. He said up to 150 people may have been hurt.

"There was only a warning of seconds," said Bill Robinson, the matadora's husband and a San Diego police spokesman. "I felt my seat begin to sway, and then I heard this cracking sound. I looked up and I saw the stands beginning to tumble like a deck of cards."

Witnesses said those not hurt went immediately to the aid of the injured, using the fallen bleachers as makeshift stretchers to carry victims out of the rubble.

The most seriously injured had broken bones and were taken to Tecate's three hospitals or evacuated to hospitals in Tijuana, about 50 miles west. Others were airlifted to hospitals in the United States, officials said.

Officials first reported that about 200 people were injured. The Los Angeles Times reported in today's editions that about 120 people were hurt.

Economy shows signs of growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main gauge of future economic activity rose a solid 0.7 percent in August, giving further evidence that the economy is at long last rebounding from a year-long slump.

The Commerce Department said the advance in its Index of Leading Indicators matched a revised 0.7 increase in July. Both months showed the strongest gains since a 0.8 percent February advance.

The July gain had originally been reported as a much weaker 0.4 percent increase.

Thus economists were heartened not only by the August gain, which was in line with expectations, but also with July's upward revision.

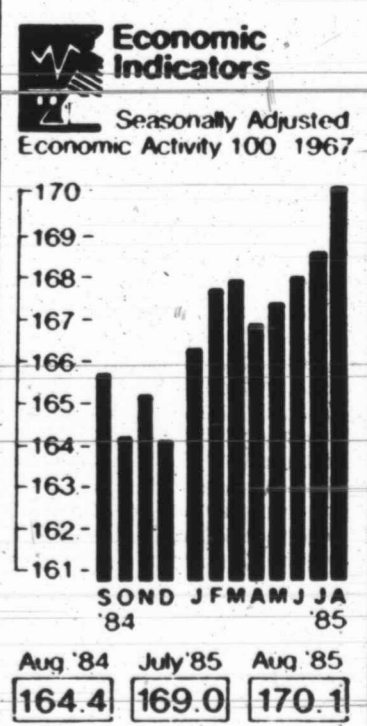

Many analysts believe the index is correctly forecasting that the economy will show growing strength in coming months.

The Reagan administration is forecasting that the economy will rebound sharply in the second half of the year, rousing itself from a prolonged period in which a soaring trade deficit severely depressed activity in the U.S. industrial sector.

To support that view, administration economists point to a variety of statistics that showed strength in August.

Civilian unemployment, stuck at the same level for six months, dropped to 7 percent in August while consumer spending, housing construction and industrial production all posted solid gains.

However, the broadest measure of economic health, the gross national product, is advancing at a modest 2.8 percent rate in the July-September quarter, the government has estimated.

While a substantial improvement over the anemic 1.1 percent annual rate turned in during the first six months of the year, this pace is far below the 5 percent growth rate being forecast by the administration. Some economists expect that the preliminary GNP report, issued before the quarter is even over, will be revised upward in coming months.

Michael Evans, head of Evans Economics, a Washington forecasting firm, predicted GNP growth of 4 percent in the third quarter.

Caller says time running out for hostages

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A telephone caller claiming to speak for the Shiite Moslem kidnappers of six missing Americans has warned that time is running out for the U.S. government to meet the abductors' demands.

The anonymous caller, who spoke Sunday to a Western news agency in Beirut, also said some of the missing Americans would be shown to journalists in what would be their first public appearance since the abductions began in March 1984.

The caller said that after the news conference, the U.S. government "will assume full responsibility for the lives of the hostages." He did not elaborate.

There was no way to authenticate the call from a purported representative of Jihad Islami, or Islamic Holy War, a shadowy Shiite extremist group believed to hold the six Americans. There were no signs today that a news conference with the hostages was imminent.

Secretary of State George Shultz said Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press" that there had been no diplomatic exchanges involving reports of a news conference.

"We welcome seeing them (the hostages) if they are to appear alive," Shultz said. "We welcome any release, but we want all of the hostages back."

The Beirut caller said the captives "will address messages to American public opinion, the American government and American personalities and their families."

He did not say where or when the news conference might be held or specify how many hostages might be produced.

Jihad Islami repeatedly has said in statements that it wants the release of 17 comrades held in Kuwait. Kuwait has refused.

The 17 were convicted of a series of bombings in December 1983, including attacks on the U.S. and French embassies in Kuwait.

Shultz, asked on "Meet the Press" if the United States would negotiate for the American hostages' release, said:

"I'm not going to discuss that question. We don't think it is wise to pressure the release of people who are being held for, in effect, blowing up things in Kuwait and killing people there in exchange for the hostages All that kind of thing does is invite people to take other hostages."

The American hostages are Terry Anderson, 37, The Associated Press' Chief Middle East correspondent; William Buckley, 57, a U.S. Embassy political officer; Peter Kilburn, 60, a librarian at the American University of Beirut; David Jacobsen, 54, director of the

Mom finds hidden art talent in class

MIDLAND (AP) — Eight years ago, Mary Nichols decided her oldest son, Daniel, needed to take art lessons.

"It was a mistake. I enrolled him in a class that was teaching wax pencil art and he didn't want to go," she said. "So I decided to go and became intrigued from the very beginning."

Today, the walls of the Nichols' west Midland home are adorned with the fruits of her short-lived but productive lessons. The pictures, mostly portraits of Southwest Indians and carefully reproduced pencil drawings from antique photographs, have not remained hidden but are displayed about the house.

On one wall of Nichols' eclectic studio are a rainbow of ribbons and medals attesting to her specialized talents.

"I won three medals in one show," she said. She added that she entered five pictures. Nichols' originals have sold for more than $1,000.

One of her pictures was chosen by the "Art in the Embassy" program for display in a U.S. ambassador's residence — in Lesotho.

"In the program, the ambassadors can select any art work for their residence," she said.

Nichols, however, does not need to go to Africa to sell her artwork. A twenty-year resident of El Paso before her husband, Al, a Southwestern Bell employee, was transferred to Midland last year, she regularly participated in art shows and produced limited edition prints which sold widely in El Paso.

Her pictures speak for themselves.

A Sioux Indian brave, his long black hair blowing in the wind, looks outward with expectation and wondering clearly showing in his eyes.

"I call it 'Waiting,'" said Nichols. "Waiting" is typical of her art, which recalls another era with sensitivity and compassion. Her drawing of a Tarahumara Indian, from "a primitive people who live in caves," reflects the subject's harsh life.

Deep furrowed lines in the face are meant to show an unforgiving climate.

Her subjects are always real people.

"I asked myself what is different about my pictures," she said. "I prayed and asked God to make a difference in my art."

The difference is clearly in the eyes. Her subjects are not passive decoration. They are seemingly breathing reminders of a vanishing people — the eyes of another era.

For Nichols, the accidental discovery of her latent artistic talents has been a godsend.

"When everything is going crazy, it really is my salvation at times," she said.

Closely intertwined with her mastery of the wax pencil, a subtle medium that requires great care since mistakes are not easily fixed, is her love of antiques.

"I actually began collecting antiques before I ever took an art lesson," she said.

Her fondness of portraying Southwest Indians from old photographs led to a steady commission of other subjects, such as photos brought in by patrons wanting portraits in wax pencil. With painstaking care, "sometimes taking a year" but usually averaging 50 to 60 hours per commission, Mrs. Nichols produces a work of art from a yellowed photograph.

Nichols has won awards at art shows in Odessa and Andrews, and was approached by officials from a local bank who asked if they could hang her pictures in their lobby.

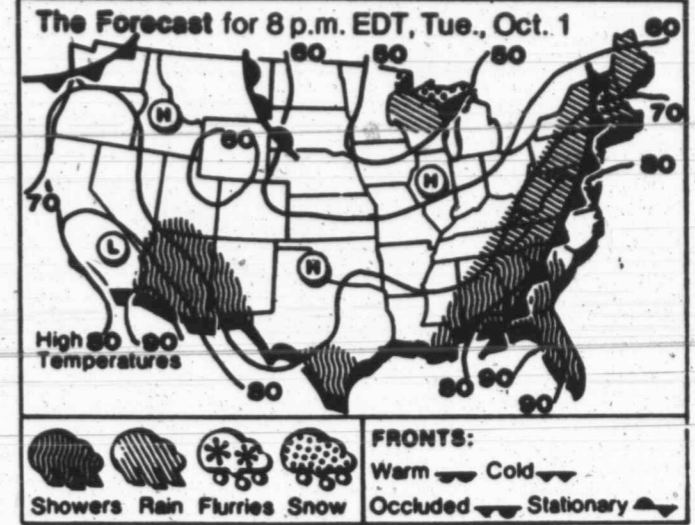

She also has students.

"I don't advertise," she said. "I was doing a show at Midland Park Mall in March and put out a sign that lessons were available." She currently has 10 students who meet for a three-hour lesson, once a week for eight weeks.

"I take them all ages, sizes, shapes and forms," she said.

"When people say 'I can't draw a straight line,' I say, 'Who wants to draw a straight line?' A crooked line is much better."

His car, a 1975 yellow Ford Mustang, collided with a 1976 tan Oldsmobile Cutlass driven by Richard Lee-Marcon, 20, of P.O. Box 3141. Marcon had been driving north in the 600 block of Lancaster.

Firemen find blaze out on arrival

Firemen responded to a report of a car fire Sunday to find the blaze out on arrival, according to the departmental report.

Two firefighters arrived at 1:29 a.m. at the 7-Eleven parking lot at 11th and Settles to find the reported fire in a 1969 Ford pickup truck already out, the report stated.

Someone had used a dry powder to extinguish the flames. Most of the damage, estimated at $300, was around the distributor and spark plug wires, the report stated. The truck is owned by Heith Roby of Route 3.

Weather

"I don't believe it's hurt us any," said Travis Reid of Coahoma. He said he received an inch of rain, while some neighbors said they got up to 1 1/2 inches of rain.

Drenching rains and heavy thunderstorms and unseasonably cold weather also plagued the rest of the state, according to the National Weather Service.

The calendar said September, but it felt like December stopped in three months early to pay a surprise visit. Readings dropped at dawn into the 30s across the High Plains, the 40s in North Central Texas and the 50s in Central Texas. Only South Texas escaped the winter-like temperature readings as the mercury stayed in the lower 70s.

Some snow was reported in the Texas Panhandle Sunday. And forecasters warn that some frost is possible by dawn Tuesday across central and western portions of North Texas when readings drop into the mid 30s.

Winds from the north at 15 to 20 mph compounded the chilly temperatures early today.

Forecasts called for cloudy skies over most of the state today. Showers and thunderstorms are forecast for South Texas with some heavy rain expected along the coast and in Southeast Texas where a flash flood watch was posted by the National Weather Service.

Lows tonight will be in the 30s and 40s over northern and western sections of the state and in the 60s and 70s elsewhere. Highs Tuesday will be mostly in the 60s and 70s.

Heavy thunderstorms were reported over portions of South Texas early today. Some areas of South Texas have had between five and 10 inches of rainfall since Saturday. A heavy thunderstorm dumped about four inches of rainfall at Fallsburg in South Texas Sunday night.

Early morning temperature readings ranged from 34 at Amarillo to 71 at Brownsville.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 44 at Wichita Falls and Fort Worth, 49 at Waco, 54 at Lubbock, 53 at Austin, 50 at San Antonio, 59 at Houston, 61 at Corpus Christi, 46 at San Angelo, 37 at Lubbock, 44 at Midland and 50 at El Paso.

Shaw receives Sierra Club award

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — State Rep. Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring, will receive an award from the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club to recognize his work for proper management of low-level radioactive waste.

The chapter announced its 1985 Legislative-Service Awards Monday, saying they recognize legislators "who made special contributions to environmental protection and wise management of natural resources through their work in the regular session of the 69th Legislature."

Shaw received the award in the area of environmental health. Ken Kramer, spokesman for the Lone Star Chapter, said Shaw was "the most active and dedicated legislator on the issue of proper management of low-level radioactive waste."

"He sponsored the strongest legislative proposal on this topic during the 69th Texas Legislature, and several of the concepts in his bill were eventually incorporated into the legislation enacted. Rep. Shaw was also a strong supporter of many other legislative proposals for the protection of citizens from improper hazardous waste disposal and other threats to public health and the environment," Kramer said.

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, who represents Howard County, was a 1983 recipient of an award and under the club's rules cannot receive an award two legislative sessions in a row.

Shaw and the other five recipients will be presented the awards at a dinner to be held in Austin on Nov. 16.

Red Cross not affiliated with project

An organization soliciting funds for the African famine relief project has been using the American Red Cross emblem without the authorization of the Red Cross, according to Marianne Brown, local director.

The organization, "Students for Starving Children," has sent 85,000 brochures using the American Red Cross emblem to schools around the nation, seeking funds for famine relief. The brochures are advertising a poster contest to raise money for African relief.

"The American Red Cross neither endorses nor is associated with the Students for Starving Children fundraising project," Brown said. "Although we encourage aid for African relief, the American Red Cross has no involvement with this project," she said.

Anyone receiving a brochure from this organization may contact Brown at 267-3992.

university's hospital; Thomas Sutherland, 53, acting dean of agriculture at the university; and the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, 50, a Roman Catholic priest.

A seventh hostage, the Rev. Benjamin Weir, 61, a Presbyterian minister, was freed Sept. 14.

The caller said Sunday this was done "to give the American government an opportunity which has been extended. We are waiting for this opportunity to expire, after which our attitude will be decisive."

He did not give any deadline.

Weir, a Presbyterian minister, was freed under mysterious circumstances after a man claiming to represent Jihad Islami called the same Western news agency to announce the release. The agency has asked that it not be identified.

Weir later said the kidnapers warned they will kidnap more Americans and start executing the hostages if their demands are not met.

Other groups are holding a British journalist, two British women and an Italian businessman.

quarter and an even stronger 5 percent rate in the final three months of the year.

However, other analysts maintained the current rebound will be more modest as the domestic economy is still held back by foreign competition.

Nariman Behravesh, economist at Wharton Econometrics, another forecasting firm, predicted growth of 3.1 percent in the third quarter and only a slightly better 3.4 percent rate in the fourth quarter, far below the administration's 5 percent projection.

"The economy did turn up in August, but the administration is far too optimistic," he said. "We are looking for fairly modest growth in coming months."

The August advance for the leading indicators put the overall index at 170.1 percent of its 1967 base, up from a revised 169 percent in July.

The August advance was powered by positive contributions from six of the 11 available indicators.

The biggest contribution came from an increase in the money supply followed by gains in building permits, the length of the average work week, the number of new businesses, new orders for consumer goods and a dip in the number of weekly unemployment claims.

Houstonians don't like 'love bugs'

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston area is plagued this year by a bumper crop of "love bugs," tiny insects that fly linked in pairs and pose a particular annoyance to motorists, entomologists say.

The bugs — known by the scientific name Plecia nearectica — typically descend upon Houston and surrounding communities in May and September.

The bugs have been known to clog and overheat.

Recession looms

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy, despite the predictions of the Reagan administration, will rebound only modestly in coming months with a recession looming as a definite risk next year, business economists predicted today.

The National Association of Business Economists said its most recent survey of members found 52 percent expected the country would be in a recession by the end of 1986.

Contract signed

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two U.S. corporations have signed a $500 million contract with China to build a distribution network for South China Sea natural gas, a spokesman said.

Agreements for development of the Yacheng natural gas field south of China's Hianan Island were signed in Peking by ARCO-China Inc., Santa Fe Minerals (Asia) Inc., and the China National Offshore Oil Corp., the spokesman added.

Fails to amaze

NEW YORK — The first episode of Steven Spielberg's "Amazing Stories" ends with the line, "Honey, who's our insurance agent?" NBC, hoping to unseat CBS as No. 1 this season, had counted on Spielberg as its prime-time insurance. Now the network can't be so sure.

The debut Sunday night of Spielberg's first TV series proved disappointing, partially because the enormous build-up had created enormous expectations and partially because the opening story was far from amazing.

Rustling on the rise

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. — Ranchers and law enforcement officers say cattle rustling, 20th century style, is becoming a serious problem on the ranges east and south of San Francisco Bay.

Investigators say that some of the rustling is done by professional cowboys who drive trucks to corrals and quickly transport the cattle out of the state but that much is done by suburbanites living on the edge of the ranchlands.

$5 million raised

LOS ANGELES — Some of the Hispanic celebrities who helped raise more than $5.2 million for earthquake-devastated Mexico had difficulty keeping their minds on their work during a 12-hour benefit telethon: They were thinking of loved ones still missing in the disaster.

But the show went on and stars including Ricardo Montalban, Julio Iglesias and Vikki Carr were joined by satellite with celebrities from Latin America. They raised $5.29 million in United States alone by the time the telethon ended at 10 p.m. PDT.

DEPUTY SHERIFF Fred Waddell of the Butt County Sheriff's Department inspects the twisted wreckage of the Cessna 208 which crashed near Jenkinsburg Sunday, killing 16 skydivers and the pilot.

Unairworthy

Crashed plane grounded two days earlier

JENKINSBURG, Ga. (AP) — A single-engine plane packed with 16 parachutists that crashed shortly after takeoff killing the pilot and all of the passengers had been grounded two days earlier by federal inspectors because of contaminated fuel, officials said.

It was not known if the problem had been corrected before Sunday's fatal flight or if it could have caused the crash, a Federal Aviation Administration spokesman said.

The single-engine Cessna 208 Caravan made a normal takeoff from the grass airstrip owned by the West Wind Sport Parachute Center, then crashed about 12:30 p.m. in a pasture less than a mile away.

The plane "was apparently climbing out after taking off and a witness stated that the engine stalled," said Preston Hicks, a National Transportation Safety Board investigator.

The crash scene "just didn't look real — bodies on top of bodies," said David Aukerman, owner of the horse farm 50 miles south of Atlanta where the plane went down.

"It looked really like mannequins. When we walked up, we just knew there wasn't anybody alive."

The contamination was found in a pre-flight inspection Friday by a FAA inspector at Atlanta's DeKalb-Peachtree Airport, where the plane was based, said FAA spokesman Roger Myers.

"They all agreed — the chief mechanic, the owner-operator (of the plane) and the FAA inspector — that the plane was unairworthy," Myers said. A sign was put on the plane indicating it had been grounded, he said.

But Myers said it was not known if anything was done to correct the problem before Sunday's flight. Myers said the fuel problem would be checked as a possible cause of the crash, but refused to say if fuel contamination could have caused the plane's engine to stall.

Names of the dead had not been released early today, pending notification of relatives.

Most of the victims were believed to be from the Atlanta area. Their bodies were taken to a temporary morgue at the National Guard Armory in nearby Jackson.

Bill Scott, safety and training adviser for the center, said skydivers had made several jumps in other airplanes earlier Sunday, but the Cessna was making its first trip from the field when it crashed.

The plane was to climb to 12,000 feet and position itself so the parachutists, all experienced jumpers, could jump in formation and land in a large field in front of the center, Scott said.

The year-old plane was certified to carry 16 skydivers and a pilot, although in normal passenger service it would be certified to hold only 10 passengers, he said.

The Caravan is a large single-engine aircraft introduced by Cessna in 1982 and marketed as a cargo or passenger aircraft, Myers said.

Armed patrols debated

LONDON — Britons are debating whether their police officers should carry guns routinely because of several recent shooting incidents, including the wounding of a black woman that set off the worst rioting in London in four years.

It is almost unheard of for British citizens to own guns for anything other than sport, and armed patrols are confined to Northern Ireland. Many believe issuing firearms to police as a standard procedure would taint the peace-loving image of the British public.

Quebec has new premier

MONTREAL — The Parti Quebecois chose Pierre Marc Johnson to replace Rene Levesque as premier of Quebec and party chief, sealing the party's shift away from the quest for independence for the province.

Johnson, justice minister in the Parti Quebecois government, trounced five opponents in the party election Sunday in Quebec, a predominantly French-speaking province of about 6 million people.

Black burned to death

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — A crowd of blacks burned one black man to death and seriously injured his companion in an extension of clashes between zulus and a multiracial anti-apartheid group near Durban, police said.

Police also said Sunday that they shot and killed a black man who was throwing a gasoline bomb in Dordecht in eastern Cape Province, and that a crowd of blacks attacked a car, injuring two white men who escaped to the bush.

Leader steps down

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Roberto d'Aubuisson, the leader the arch-conservative opposition party ARENA, has stepped down in an apparent effort to prevent his growing unpopularity from hurting the party, officials said.

A convention of about 800 members of the Republican National Alliance, or ARENA, on Sunday replaced d'Aubuisson with Alfredo Cristiani, a little-known coffee grower said to be about 40 years old.

Rescuers told to search

MEXICO CITY — President Miguel de la Madrid forebade clean-up crews to blow up buildings damaged beyond repair in two major earthquakes that struck a week and a half ago, and instead called on rescuers to continue looking for survivors.

De la Madrid's statement, issued late Sunday by the presidential press office, apparently was intended to calm families of about 1,000 people who still are regarded as missing in the Sept. 19 quake.

Removal of oil slick will take several months

CLAYMONT, Del. (AP) — A spill of more than 400,000 gallons from a Panamanian tanker was one of the largest spills ever on the Delaware River and will take several months to clean up, officials said.

The oil slick, which stretches 15 miles from where the 761-foot Grand Eagle ran aground late Saturday near Claymont, on the Pennsylvania border, was expected to reach the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal, 17 miles away, by tonight, said U.S. Coast Guard Capt. Edward Roe, captain of the Philadelphia port.

Roe, who oversees operations on the Delaware River and Bay, said that by early Sunday afternoon only 3,000 gallons of oil had been removed from the river and some oil had washed ashore.

"It's going to be a long process," he said. "It will take several months."

Coast Guard Lt. Robert Mitchell said the ship lost about 435,000 gallons of oil, or about 10,400 barrels, after it ran aground about 11:30 p.m. Saturday. He said a spill of more than 100,000 was considered a major accident.

Federal officials said the oil could move south at a rate of between eight and 10 miles a day and could reach Delaware's environmentally sensitive wetlands within three days of efforts to contain the oil spill.

Patricia Orris, a spokeswoman for the rescue concern, said Tri-State expected to begin receiving injured birds today as teams from Delaware, New Jersey and federal wildlife officials began to gather them from the river.

She said each bird would be given a checkup and fed before being washed in detergent.

Latest health fear has unusual source

Now and then a cynical old joke makes the rounds again: "A hospital is no place to be if you're sick." Now Discover magazine reports that some 2 million patients a year are contracting dangerous infections in U.S. hospitals, billing medical costs by $2 billion a year, and accounting for 15 percent of hospital costs nationally.

The diseases often are related to infections spread through the hospital, and often they complicate the patient's condition, along with adding an average of four days and at least $800 to his hospital bill.

One cause of the problem may be the reduction in infection control personnel as hospitals try to cut costs, and another may be reuse of equipment that was meant to be discarded after one use, the article said.

"As many as 300,000 patients die each year from these infections, which, if they were reported accurately, would make them the 10th leading cause of death in this country," Discovery said.

It seems that the quality of infection control varies from hospital to hospital and city to city, and that the problem is more acute in major metropolitan areas where facilities are most crowded and the work is most hectic.

Pointing out the existence of such hazards, even though it adds to the always-growing host of troubles that worry modern man, is the first step toward bringing them under control.

Venus probe finds no life on Earth

(Editor's Note: Art Buchwald became ill while on vacation. He is recovering and expects to resume his column soon. Meanwhile, we continue with "Best of Buchwald.")

There was great excitement on the planet of Venus this week. For the first time Venusian scientists managed to land an unmanned space craft on the planet Earth, and it has been sending back signals, as well as photographs, ever since.

The craft was directed into an area known as Manhattan (named after the great Venusian astronomer Professor Manhattan, who first discovered it with his telescope 200,000 light-years ago).

Because of excellent weather conditions and extremely strong signals, Venusian scientists were able to get valuable information on the feasibility of a manned flying saucer's landing on Earth. A press conference was held at the Venus Institute of Technology.

"We have come to the conclusion, based on last week's landing," Professor Zog said, "that there is no life on Earth."

"How do you know this?" the science reporter of the Venus Evening Star asked.

"For one thing, Earth's surface in the area of Manhattan is composed of solid concrete, and nothing can grow there. For another, the atmosphere is filled with carbon monoxide and other deadly gases, and nobody could possibly breathe this air and survive."

"What does this mean as far as our flying saucer program is concerned?"

"We shall have to take our own oxygen with us, which means a much heavier flying saucer than we originally planned."

"Are there any other hazards that you discovered in your studies?"

"Take a look at this photo. You see this dark black cloud hovering over the surface of Earth? We call this the Consolidated Edison Belt. We don't know what it is made of, but it could give us a lot of trouble, and we shall have to make further tests before we send a Venus being there."

"Over here you will notice what seems to be a river, but our findings indicate it is polluted, and the water is unfit to drink. This means we shall have to carry our own water, which will add even greater weight to the saucer."

"Sir, what are all those tiny black spots on the photographs?"

"We're not certain. They seem to be metal particles that move along certain paths. They emit gases, make noise, and keep crashing into each other. There are so many of these paths and so many metal particles that it is impossible to land a flying saucer without being smashed by one."

"What are those stalagmite projections sticking up?"

"They're some type of granite formation that gives off light at night. Professor Glom has named them skyscrapers since they seem to be scraping the skies."

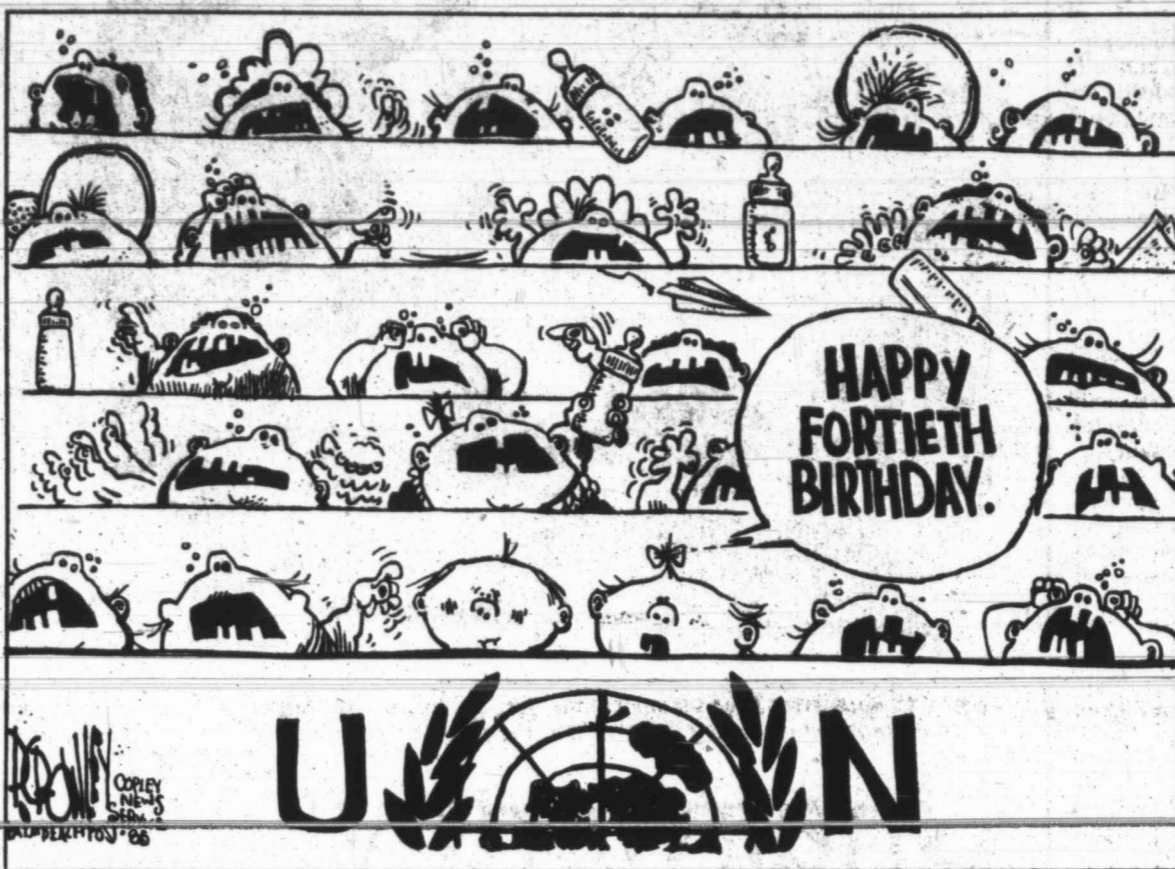

"If all you say is true, won't this set back the flying saucer program several years?"

"Yes, but we shall proceed as soon as the Grubstart gives us the added funds."

"Professor Zog, why are we spending billions and billions of zilches to land a flying saucer on Earth when there is no life there?"

"Because if we Venusians can learn to breathe in an Earth atmosphere, then we can live anywhere."

Pakistan has 'the bomb'

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — If Pakistan's dictator, Gen. Mohammad Zia ul-Haq, decides tomorrow that he wants to explode a nuclear device, it will be only "a matter of weeks" before he can do it.

This is the secret assessment of a top CIA official. In fact, the only reason Zia has not taken the final few steps and started producing the long-dreaded "Islamic bomb" is his desire to keep U.S. military aid flowing in, suggested the high-level CIA source. Zia knows that planes and other sophisticated American weapons would be cut off if he tested a nuclear device.

A candid private letter from President Reagan last September made this clear to Zia, warning that the nuclear weapons issue "could undermine all that we are trying to achieve." The president urged Zia to limit the uranium enrichment being done at the Pakistanis' heavily guarded plant at Kahuta to the 5 percent of U-235 necessary for reactor fuel.

This would be well below the percentage needed for weapons. Last November, the Pakistani foreign minister visited Washington and assured Reagan that the enrichment lid was being kept on as he had urged.

Our intelligence sources confirm that the Pakistani nuclear program has slowed down since Reagan's letter. The key to the situation is the activity of Dr. Abdul Qadar Khan, the Western-trained Pakistani who allegedly stole nuclear secrets from the Dutch in the 1970s and who now heads the nuclear bomb development program at Kahuta.

In the past year, Khan has diversified his military work to include such secret projects as development of a Chinese-style hand-held anti-aircraft missile. He still spends "a great deal of time" on the nuclear bomb program, however.

From highly sensitive intelligence documents and other sources, we've pieced together this discouraging picture of the Pakistani nuclear weapon effort:

- Technology exchange with China since at least 1960 has brought Pakistan to the point where it could have a small nuclear arsenal in less than two years. Chinese scientists have been to Kahuta to study the centrifuge technique that Pakistan stole from the Europeans a decade ago. And there is evidence that China gave Pakistan information about the actual design of a Hiroshima-sized bomb that the Chinese have successfully tested.

- What makes this particularly alarming is that the bomb would be ideal for delivery by F-16s — 40 of which Pakistan is buying from the United States.

- The Pakistanis' own nuclear bomb is described as crude but effective. It consists of a sphere of enriched uranium about 6 inches in diameter, suspended within a steel sphere about 13 inches in diameter. This in turn is surrounded by more than 100 pounds of conventional "shaped charges," and the whole disaster is encased in curved metal plates to form a 21-inch sphere.

The shaped charges implode, compressing the uranium core until it reaches a critical density and blows up.

- Pakistan's bomb builders have tried to modernize their weapon through the illegal acquisition of Western materials. They succeeded in buying a high-speed Swedish X-ray machine that is crucial to the implosion technique they're using. But the acquisition was discovered in time to stop delivery of the operating manual and the dispatch to Islamabad of a Swedish expert who was supposed to help them use the machine.

- A related deal was scotched earlier this year when the United States learned that two Pakistanis coming to be trained in the use of an X-ray machine to calibrate artillery were not army gunners but nuclear scientists.

- Perhaps most scary of all is Libya's involvement in the Pakistani bomb. Libya's petrodollars have helped finance the effort, and the CIA is afraid Pakistan would be obliged to share its nuclear technology with Libya as compensation.

WATCH ON WASTE: This is the tale of the one that almost got away: After four years of trying, the Harry Diamonds Labs, an Army research agency, won a court decision giving it possession of an older model optical-pattern generator it had bought from the manufacturer for a trifling $58,000. The ultra-sophisticated generator had been illegally diverted by foreign agents, but was caught by alert Customs Service personnel at JFK Airport — and impounded while the situation was being investigated. The Army finally got delivery just a week after its old generator had conked out. A first-year saving of $400,000 is anticipated.

POLITICAL POTPURRI: Some Mondale-Ferraro campaign contributors got fancy invitations to the opening of Bob Beckel's Washington lobbying firm, and began to wonder: Did Beckel, who was Walter Mondale's campaign manager, bring the list of contributors with him? "Absolutely not," said Beckel.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Special-interest lobbyists are determinedly hammering nails into the coffin of tax reform. One truly heartbreaking complaint about the plan has come from horse breeders. "It appears," the neigh-sayers protest, "that the horse industry and horse owners and breeders have been singled out as ineligible for capital gains consideration while other investment-type assets, such as stocks and bonds, would remain eligible..." Difference of opinion, they say, is what makes a horse race, and in our humble opinion the people who breed nags aren't entitled to tax breaks any more than the eternal optimists who bet on them.

Job interview forces family's decision

By ED GRAHAM
(Second in a series of five)

The Sunday morning sunrise was magnificently vast as we came into Big Spring for the first time. We had driven overnight from Austin, eager to get to know this city.

Mary, my wife, had an interview the next day for a job at the Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf (SWCID), so today we would be asking ourselves, "Do we want to live in Big Spring?"

The first person we met here compared her home town, Big Spring, to Austin: "We're slower here — so we have more time to be friendly."

She was right. The people we met that day, without exception, treated us with an easygoing kindness.

Another sign to us of the friendliness of the city was that the Big Spring Herald announced newcomers, giving a paragraph to each. We felt we would be welcomed here.

We toured the city in our car. Howard College, the State Hospital, SWCID, the Federal Prison Camp, the VA Hospital — quite an array of institutions for a city this size! Given our personal and professional interests in human services, Mary and I were happy to find this concentration of resources and opportunities.

A good playground was high on our list of requirements for a new place in which to settle. We wanted our young son to have his share of challenges and fun. After traveling for 2 months on what we jokingly called our "Tour of U.S. Playgrounds," we were in a position to rate what we saw in Comanche Trail Park. It was among the best.

Comanche Trail Park also had other drawing cards: a jogging and exercise course that looked especially attractive, a large swimming pool, an amphitheater, a golf course, and scenic places to walk.

Like any place, Big Spring had its drawbacks.

The city had apparently suffered some losses in population, and we were disappointed to see big department stores abandoned, a drive-in and other movie theaters closed, and short hours at the city's swimming pool.

Our biggest disappointment, though, was with the water. We had not imagined that this city named after a historic spring would have such unpleasant tasting (and, we suspected, unhealthy) water.

But the pros far outweighed the cons. In general, Big Spring had the advantage and feel of a small town, with the opportunities and resources of a substantial city.

That evening we sat on top of "the mountain" (the bluff of Big Spring State Park), enjoying a spectacular sunset. Like the sky, we too were glowing, for we had answered the question of the day. "Do we want to live in Big Spring?"

Ed Graham of 2829 Langley Drive moved his family to Big Spring in August.

Dear Abby

Updating tornado safety tips

DEAR ABBY: I am a regular reader of your column in the Cape Girardeau (Mo.) Bulletin Journal, in which I read a letter from a Texan asking about tornado information. Your advice to open two windows is no longer correct, according to Robert Hamilton, meteorologist-in-charge, National Weather Service Forecast Office in St. Charles, Mo.

For many years, we also advised people that in the event of a tornado warning, to open a window (or windows), on the side of the structure away from the approaching storm.

However, in the last few years, we instruct people to stay away from windows, and immediately seek shelter in the basement, in a closet under a stairway or in any strong supporting structure.

Abby, also tell your readers never to try to ride out a tornado in a mobile home or vehicle. There is much more safety under a substantial structure, or in a ditch or culvert. Two-thirds of the persons killed in the Wichita Falls, Texas, tornado of '79 were trying to escape the storm in their cars.

BRIAN MILLER, COORDINATOR, OFFICE OF EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS, JACKSON, MO.

DEAR BRIAN: Thank you for updating my information. And a standing ovation to all of the weather spotters who volunteer long hours, day and night, on some stormy hilltop, watching for approaching storms. It's a miserable and dangerous job, and you weather spotters deserve all the praise and recognition you can get.

DEAR ABBY: I've been a faithful reader of your column for many years and now I have a big favor to ask of you.

Will you please send me a copy of a letter you printed many years ago? It was about a wife whose husband had joined the Masonic lodge and she kept nagging him, wanting him to know all the secret goings-on, etc. You told her to quite nagging him or she would lose her husband by degrees. Thank you.
—INDIANA MASON

DEAR MASON: I'm glad that you wrote because it gives me an opportunity to tell you and others who request a copy of a specific item that unless you are able to pinpoint the date (the year and the month), I am unable to accommodate you. Also, when requesting a favor, please include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Donohue

Polio syndrome

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 43-year-old woman who had polio as a child, before they came out with the preventive vaccine. I had a rather mild case, and have managed well with a slight limp. You hardly notice it. More recently, the limp has become more noticeable and I have begun using a cane to get around. I understand there is a thing called the post-polio syndrome and wonder if this is it? What's the problem? — Mrs. K.N.

Since the late 1950s poliomyelitis, the viral disease that attacks nerve cells, has become such a rare disease that physicians of my generation seldom see or have much to do with it except providing the childhood vaccinations. I put your letter aside. Then I got another letter from another post-polio patient with a similar history and complaint.

I finally was referred to Dr. Frederick Maynard of the University of Michigan Medical School, who is an authority on the syndrome called "post-polio progressive muscular atrophy." The following is what I learned from our conversation.

There are, indeed, a growing number of pre-vaccine era polio victims who have in recent years noted gradually decreasing strength in muscles that previously had served them adequately. They have reported pain as well, and fatigue from activity they had been able to perform with relative ease. This is the post-polio progressive muscular atrophy syndrome.

It isn't entirely clear why it occurs. It may be that nerve cells adjacent to those originally attacked by the virus are showing this delayed effect. Or perhaps nerve fibers that took over muscle function from those nerves originally affected are now showing signs of exhaustion from their double duty of many years.

Treatment is to rest the muscles with frequent breaks. Physical therapy will help preserve muscle function, and pain medications may be needed. I wish I had more information for you. I understand that a conference will be held in October in Michigan for physicians and interested patients in that area. Details are available at local chapters of the Michigan March of Dimes.

Dallas Cowboys running back TONY DORSETT slides to the one yard line in the fourth quarter to set up the winning touchdown against Houston Sunday at the Astrodome. The Oiler's KEITH BOSTIC (25) put the stop on DORSETT after a 31 yard gain.

'Pokes sack Oilers, 17-10

HOUSTON (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys' defense sacked Houston quarterback Warren Moon a National Football League record-tying 12 times, intercepted four of his passes and recovered one of his fumbles.

Still, it took a 75-yard drive in the final two minutes, leading to a one-yard touchdown pass from Danny White to tight end Fred Cornwell, for the Cowboys to pull out a 17-10 victory Sunday.

Before improving their record to 3-1, the Cowboys had to overcome four missed field goals by Rafael Septien to score the winning touchdown with 1:47 left in the game.

"When you get the opportunities like we had today, you've got to cash in if you want to win," said Cowboy running back Tony Dorsett, who set up the winning touchdown with a 31-yard run to the Oiler one-yard line.

"Our backs were to the wall. Someone had to come to the front and do something. Fortunately, it was me."

Dorsett rushed 23 times for 159 yards, going over 100 yards for the first time this season. White completed two touchdown passes — the one to Cornwell and another a seven-yard score to Timmy Newsome.

But it was the Cowboys' relentless pursuit of Moon, including two interceptions by Ron Fellows and two sacks each by Victor Scott and Randy White, that provided the difference.

"This isn't the kind of team we had in 1981 and 1982," Danny White said. "That team depended on its offense. Now it's just the opposite. It's frustrating to see just 17 points on the scoreboard. We've got to rebuild our offense."

While the Dallas quarterback was worrying about points, Houston's Moon was more concerned about survival.

Only three other NFL games since 1966 have registered 12 sacks, and Moon said there was no question the continual pursuit affected his performance.

"You get more worried about where the rush is coming from and you lose your rhythm," Moon said. "The pressure certainly did bother me today. I can't say it didn't."

Newsome's touchdown catch held up for a 7-0 Cowboy halftime lead. After misses of 47, 33 and 36, Septien gave the Cowboys a 10-0 lead in the third quarter with a 35-yard field goal.

Houston, 1-3, came back with a 57-yard touchdown bomb from Moon to Drew Hill and Tony Zendejas' 33-yard field goal in the third quarter for a 10-10 deadlock. Moon finished with 11 completions on 26 attempts for 215 yards.

"He took some shots and a few times he should have swallowed the ball," Dallas defensive end Ed "Too Tall" Jones said. "We showed them a lot of different looks and kept them guessing."

Moon had been decked seven times by halftime. He got a break from the banging with no sacks in the third quarter but the charge returned in the final period.

"We had to make a lot of adjustments," Moon said. "They had guys going through the gaps all the time. We did a better job in the second half."

Moon's sacks were for losses totaling 82 yards.

"I don't mind if I'm on the ground as long as I'm going forward," Moon said.

Oiler offensive tackle Harvey Salem said the game qualified as a nightmare.

"Their defense takes a lot of chances and four-fifths of them seemed to pay off today," Oiler offensive tackle Harvey Salem said. "Yes, 12 sacks counts as a nightmare."

Dallas Coach Tom Landry watched the scoring chances fade away and feared the worst.

"You usually lose games like this," Landry said. "When you miss scoring opportunities consistently, you'll usually lose the game."

New Orleans stuns San Francisco, 20-17

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

A guy named Wilson and a no-name offensive line made forgettables of the powerful San Francisco 49ers for a day.

"It's not bad for a makeshift line," said tackle Ralph Williams, one of the key players for the New Orleans Saints in Sunday's upset 20-17 victory over the defending Super Bowl champion 49ers. "It's an awfully sweet victory."

The Saints lost three offensive line starters with injuries a week earlier. Their starters Sunday included left guard Pete Perot, signed last Monday as a free agent.

"I can't give them enough credit for the job they did," said quarterback Dave Wilson after outperforming his more heralded opposite number, San Francisco's Joe Montana, who was sacked six times and had two passes intercepted.

San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh: "We certainly felt we could deal with their line. We did, after a fashion, but not to the extent we normally would."

In other National Football League games Sunday, it was Miami 30, Denver 26; Chicago 45, Washington 10; Los Angeles Rams 17, Atlanta 6; Cleveland 21, San Diego 7; Kansas City 28, Seattle 7; Detroit 30, Tampa Bay 9; New York Giants 16, Philadelphia 10; Minnesota 27, Buffalo 20; Los Angeles Raiders 35, New England 20; New York Jets 25, Indianapolis 20; and St. Louis 43, Green Bay 28.

In action tonight, Cincinnati plays at Pittsburgh.

The Saints, who last beat the 49ers in 1982, recorded their winning TD when Wilson threw a 43-yard touchdown pass to Eugene Goodlow early in the fourth quarter.

A 79-yard San Francisco drive, ending with Roger Craig's two-yard touchdown run, gave the 49ers a 17-13 lead two minutes into the fourth period. But three minutes later, the Saints got the ball and scored on a three-play, 83-yard drive which began with Wayne Wilson's 38-yard run and ended with the TD pass to Goodlow.

Both teams came out of the game with 2-2 records. The 49ers lost only one game last season, going 15-1 in the regular season and 18-1 overall for an NFL record for wins.

"Nothing seemed to be working," said Montana, who completed only 12 of 26 passes for 120 yards. "It seemed like every defense they were in was just the right one."

Dolphins 30, Broncos 26
Miami's Dan Marino won his much-awaited duel with Denver's John Elway, passing for 390 yards and three touchdowns to lead the Dolphins, 3-1, over the Broncos, 2-2.

Marino, despite the loss of his twin receiving threats — Mark Clayton and Mark Duper — to injury, temperatures hovering around the 30-degree mark, and 73,614 bellowing Bronco fans, completed 25 of 43 passes and repeatedly kept the Denver defense off-balance, making full use of his available receivers.

Elway performed capably, helping maneuver the Broncos into position for a pair of scoring runs by Sammy Winder and one by Gene Lang. He completed 18 of 37 passes for 250 yards.

Bears 45, Redskins 10
Chicago, one of only two undefeated teams at 4-0, piled up a club-record 31 points in the second quarter en route to a surprisingly easy victory over Washington, 1-3.

Rams 17, Falcons 6
Dieter Brock, a 34-year-old NFL rookie, completed 16 of 20 passes for 215 yards and two touchdowns as the Rams also remained unbeaten at 4-0, whipping the winless Falcons, 0-4.

Browns 21, Chargers 7
Kevin Mack ran for one score and caught one of Gary Danielson's two TD passes to lead the Browns over the Chargers, who lost starting quarterback Dan Fouts to injury. The Chargers couldn't get their act together behind Mark Herrmann, who replaced Fouts midway through the first period after the five-time Pro-Bowler tore ligaments in his right knee.

Chiefs 28, Seahawks 7
Bill Kenney tossed two TD passes to Stephone Paige and Deron Cherry tied an NFL record with four interceptions in leading Kansas City, 3-1, to a waterlogged victory over the fumble-plagued Seahawks.

Lions 30, Bucs 9
Wide receiver Mark Nichols, who hadn't caught a pass all season, caught two for touchdowns as Detroit, 3-1, beat Tampa Bay and kept the Bucs winless in four games.

Giants 16, Eagles 10
Cornerback Elvis Patterson returned an intercepted pass 29 yards for a touchdown 55 seconds into overtime to lift the Giants over Philadelphia.

Patterson grabbed a pass thrown by Eagles quarterback Ron Jaworski and raced into the end zone behind a host of blockers to give the Giants their third victory of the season.

Vikings 27, Bills 20
Ted Brown's 22-yard TD run with just under three minutes to play led Minnesota over the Bills, 0-4. The Vikings drove 80 yards for the winning score.

Raiders 35, Patriots 20
Lyle Alzado scored on a fumble recovery in the end zone and Lester Hayes and Sam Seale returned interceptions for touchdowns as Los Angeles' defense made up for a sputtering offense and led the Raiders, 2-2, over New England, 2-2.

The Raiders broke a two-game losing streak despite playing nearly half the game with third-string quarterback Rusty Hilger, a rookie. Jim Plunkett missed the game with a shoulder injury and Marc Wilson sat out the rest of the contest after hurting his right ankle in the third quarter.

Jets 25, Colts 20
Pat Leahy kicked four field goals and the Jets made a crucial goal-line stand to hold off Indianapolis. The Jets built a 25-17 lead after three periods on the strength of Leahy's field goals from 22, 35, 48 and 45 yards before holding off the Colts in the fourth.

Cardinals 43, Packers 28
Leonard Smith set up 10 second-quarter points with a blocked punt and an interception and Neil Lomax passed for three touchdowns in the third and fourth quarters, helping St. Louis roll past Green Bay.

San Francisco quarterback JOE MONTANA walks toward the bench after getting sacked in the fourth quarter against New Orleans. The Saints upset the 49ers for their first win of the season.

Quinn's Corner

Big Spring lost their opening 4-5A district ball game 35-13 to a tough Midland High squad that surprised the Steers with a fine running game that blended well with the already established passing of Matt Markum.

The Steers opened the game with two fine scoring drives but could not sustain the momentum past the first quarter.

Coach Quinn Eudy had these comments about the game.

OFFENSE

"The offense performed as well in the first quarter as any time this year. Our biggest problem was not scoring the two times we got inside their ten in the second half. You have to score in those situations to win ball games."

"Our line did an outstanding job coming off the ball and (Phillip) Matthews and especially (James) Harlin did a good job running the ball. Carl Speck had one of his best games running the option. He just keeps getting better every week."

"After the first half, field position dictated our game plan more than we liked. We had to be more conservative, not throw the ball as much in our end of the field and I think that hurt us. We don't have the type of backs that can overpower a defense or the speed at wide receiver to threaten deep. For our offense to be successful, you have to mix up the running and passing to keep them off balance."

DEFENSE

"We didn't think they would run the ball as successfully as they did. They came out with some new plays, including the quick pitch that hurt us in the first quarter. We adjusted to it late in the first half and it never was a factor after that. They had a good game plan."

"There wasn't really one area in our defense that broke down consistently. But the boys didn't seem to be playing cohesively. When Midland broke big plays, it seemed that three parts of the defense was reacting but somebody was out of position. We need to work on getting everybody in their lanes on every play. We are getting good individual effort, we just need play better as a unit."

TURNING POINT

"The turning point of the game definitely came on the blocked punt in the third quarter. On the film, it clearly showed that our man got a piece of that punt. But instead of getting the ball on the Midland 45 and a chance to tie the game, they get a first down and score to go ahead 28-13."

Edburg wins in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Stefan Edburg's whipping backhand returns and nearly flawless serve-and-volley game Sunday carried him past scrappy Johan Kriek 6-4, 6-2 in the finals of the $277,000 Transamerica Open tennis tournament.

Edburg, who earned $42,000 for winning, boosted his prize money this year to $271,155.

Verplank wins Collegiate Golf

LINVILLE, N.C. (AP) — Scott Verplank shot out of trouble on the final hole to win individual honors at the Grandfather Collegiate Invitation Golf Tournament Sunday, but his disastrous 16th hole gave Wake Forest the team championship.

Verplank's Oklahoma State team held the lead over Wake Forest going into the 16th hole on the 6,850-yard Grandfather Golf and Country Club course.

Royals, Mets chasing

By the Associated Press
The California Angels are back in first place. The Kansas City Royals are back home. They're both in place for their American League West showdown.

Tonight, the Angels take a one-game lead into Kansas City for the start of a four-game series that should help decide the division winner.

California broke a first-place tie with Kansas City on Sunday by defeating Cleveland 9-3 while the Royals were losing 6-3 in Minnesota.

"What we need to do is win one in a row," Royals Manager Dick Howser said after his team suffered a three-game sweep. "That's where we have to start and it helps to be going home."

The Angels did not look like world-beaters during the weekend as they lost two out of three in Cleveland. The Indians have lost 100 games this season.

The Toronto Blue Jays, meanwhile, continue to move toward their first-ever AL East title.

Toronto reduced its magic number for clinching the division to three by clubbing Milwaukee 13-5. Second-place New York, which trails by 5½ games, swept a doubleheader from Baltimore, 4-0 and 9-2.

The New York Mets have only one way now to stay alive in the National League East: win their three games at St. Louis this week. Lose two and it's all over.

The Mets pulled within three games Sunday when Gary Carter hit a two-run homer in the 10th inning to boost New York to a 9-7 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates while the first-place Cardinals, whose magic number is four, went down 7-5 in Montreal.

"It was so important to go into St. Louis and be no more than three out," Carter said. "It's up to us to prove we can beat them. We basically have to beat them all three games."

"We have to play our best baseball of the season in these next three."

With attention focused on the NL East, the Los Angeles Dodgers maintained their 5½-game lead in the West with a 7-2 victory over the San Francisco Giants and reduced their "magic number" for clinching the division title to three over the Cincinnati Reds, who kept pace by beating Houston 5-0 on Sunday.

In other National League action Sunday, the Atlanta Braves beat the San Diego Padres 3-2 and the Chicago Cubs were 6-2 winners over the Philadelphia Phillies.
