Long distance calling

A federal court mandate requiring telephone companies to convert their carrier stations into equal access channels for competing long-distance companies has momentarily bypassed Big Spring.

According to the ruling, local operating companies such as Southwestern Bell had to convert one-third of their facilities to provide equal access to competing long-distance companies by Sept. 1. Remaining stations are required to convert at a later date.

"Big Spring has non-conforming equipment and does not fall under the ruling," said Darlene Gifford, a community relations manager with Southwestern Bell. "We (Southwestern Bell) have 76 percent of our offices completed to provide equal access. We more than meet the one-third requirement at this point."

Equal access provides a long-distance user the convenience of direct dialing. Current long-distance companies servicing Big Spring require extra access codes or limited speed-dialing options that have to be programmed.

The equal access mandate stemmed from divestiture rulings, which were part of a 1982 federal court decision that "broke the monopoly" AT&T had established over the service industry, said a spokesman with the Federal Communications Commission in Washington.

Among other things resulting from the ruling was that Bell telephone companies no longer are allowed to act as subsidiaries of AT&T, the spokesman said.

Gifford said Big Spring's central office is classified as "non-conforming," which means it does not contain the sophisticated carrier equipment to make electronic switching financially feasible.

Kevin Sullivan, a spokesman for the anti-trust division of the Justice Communication and Finance Section in Washington, said non-conforming stations do not have to convert their equipment to meet equal access need unless "a bona fide request is made from another company for equal access."

A station would then have a two-year time period to convert the equipment, he said.

Sullivan said the ruling contains provisions to protect Bell Co. stations that would spend a great deal of money for conversion and would have difficulty

Persons who rely heavily on long-distance telephone calls to satisfy personal or business needs have a variety of options from which to choose.

"Most companies that service out of Big Spring are going to be honest with you up front," says Gary Wallace, president of NTS Communications long-distance service of Lubbock. "They're not out to dupe the public."

NTS is one of many companies that have entered the long-distance telephone service marketplace because of a federal court ruling in January 1982 designed to break up AT&T's monopoly on long-distance service.

"What this means to the customer is they have a choice in selecting companies," said public information officer Maria Baker of the Texas Public Utilities Commission. "Previous to the ruling, we picked up the telephone and were automatically billed for long-distance service by AT&T."

OPEC may abandon price-fixing system

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A two-day OPEC conference broke up in disarray Friday with Ecuador considering dropping out and Saudi Arabia formally surrendering its role as mainstay of the group's price structure.

There were strong signs that the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries was seriously thinking of abandoning its price-fixing system.

But analysts said OPEC's inconclusive meeting should have no immediate impact on oil markets, where prices have been rising because of a seasonal increase in demand at a time when oil supplies have tightened up a bit. Analysts and oil ministers think, however, that the upward trend is only temporary and that prices will begin falling in the spring.

In oil markets, traders ignored OPEC once it became clear that no decisions had been reached. Analysts attributed a sharp drop in crude oil prices and slight declines by heating oil and leaded gasoline on the New York Mercantile Exchange to a technical pause in the current rally as some traders sold petroleum to cash in on recent big gains.

With Ecuador walking out of the conference after the opening session on Thursday, the remaining 12 OPEC ministers put off further talks on crucial issues until a December meeting in Geneva.

The oil ministers failed to resolve an internal dispute over whether to grant requests by Ecuador and five other members for bigger shares of OPEC oil production. None of the seven other members were willing to give up part of their production to accommodate the proposed increases, officials said, and the battle triggered Ecuador's defection.

In Quito, Energy Minister Javier Espinosa said Friday that Ecuador would remain in OPEC, denying the country would quit the producers' group. But another energy ministry official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said Ecuador had put off a decision on withdrawing to see how OPEC would respond to its request at its next meeting.

The group's current system of pricing and production is to remain in effect, at least until it is reviewed in December, said Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Ahmed Zaki Yamani.

Yamani reiterated that his country — the world's leading oil exporter — had abandoned OPEC's traditional system of charging a fixed price for crude oil, opting instead for a more flexible system that allows the price to move up and down with market trends.

"The last member country who was following the OPEC pricing system — Saudi Arabia — is changing, following the others" in discounting its price from the official levels set by OPEC accords, Yamani told reporters.

Yamani said Saudi Arabia had adopted a "netback" system of pricing, meaning the price is linked to the value of the products refined from the oil. This is a concession to oil buyers, since it protects them from losses in processing the oil into gasoline and other products.

Industry sources familiar with the Saudi arrangements said the first cargoes of Arabian Light crude oil were tentatively priced at around $26 a barrel, or $2 below OPEC's official price.

Other OPEC leaders noted during the conference that open-market oil prices had been rising recently.

State joblessness tops 7.1 percent

DALLAS (AP) — Unemployment in Texas topped 7.1 percent in September, reflecting a period of slow economic growth throughout the state, federal officials said Friday.

Texas kept pace with the national unemployment figure of 7.1 percent in September, said Nic Santangelo, chief of economic analysis and information for the Bureau of Labor and Statistics.

September's state unemployment rate was the same as August's, while the jobless rate for the third quarter is 7.2 percent.

"It's obvious the Texas economy is experiencing a period of especially slow growth," Santangelo said Friday.

Nationwide, industries are growing at a faster rate than they are in Texas, he said.

Employment, unemployment, and the labor force during the third quarter rose, indicating that some Texans found work, while others remained unemployed, he said.

But in September, there were slight declines reported in the labor work force, the number employed and the number unemployed, he said.

"Typically, however, much of the labor movement during this period involves teen-agers and youths moving in and out of school," he said.

Compared to a year ago, the employment rate for September increased 1.5 percent, from 5.6 to 7.1 percent. The number of jobless people increased by 121,000 from September 1984 to September 1985, Santangelo said.

Industry employment grew 2 percent from August 1984 to August 1985, compared to a 2.5 percent growth rate from July 1984 to July 1985.

Employment in mining and manufacturing continued to decline, although defense-related industries continued to show strong job growth in the state, Santangelo said.

Nationally, Texas stayed in midstream among the most populous states.

Tax for Superfund proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republican leaders want to pay for Superfund, the nation's hazardous waste cleanup program, with a "broader-based" tax that would ease the burden on the petrochemical industry, Texas Rep. Joe Barton said Friday.

The Reagan administration has said it opposes any broad-based tax, and proposes to expand Superfund by adding on a "waste-end" tax that would be paid when chemical waste is deposited at dumps.

Barton, a freshman Republican from Ennis, said the House Republican Research Committee, whose report he released at a news conference, endorses the concept of a broader tax but not a specific proposal.

"I can't speak for the individual positions of any of the Republican leadership. ... The general conclusion (in the report) that we should Fouls of a feather ...

California chicks born without feathers genetic rarity

PETALUMA, Calif. (AP) — What do you say to a naked chicken? Jane Gianini says she was speechless when she first spotted her two featherless fowl.

"I thought, 'Oh, my God, they don't have any feathers,'" she said. "They sure are ugly, aren't they?" The chickens, a male and a female, were hatched 15 weeks ago.

Such creatures are pretty rare, according to Ed Keys, assistant manager of H&N Hatchery and a 23-year veteran of the chicken business.

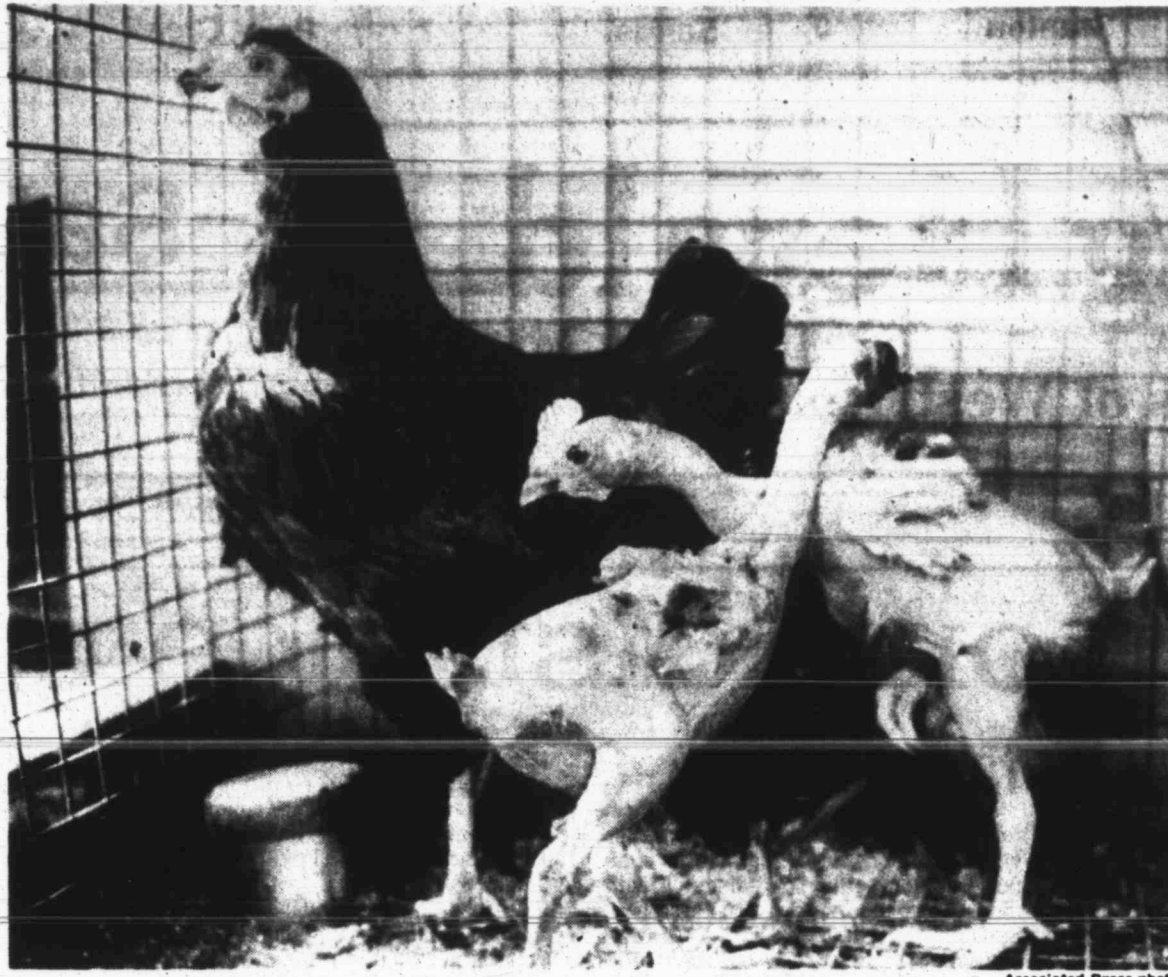

"I've only seen one before," he said.

The pair will be kept for breeding, although they are quite delicate because of their lack of feathery protection. Artificial insemination may have to be used because of the danger of scratches if the chickens were allowed to do what comes naturally.

"Their skin is very fragile," said Ms. Gianini, who was considering whipping up some little coats for her charges. "They sunburn easily."

Francine Bradley, Northern California poultry advisor at the University of California-Davis, made a special trip to see the chickens. She told Ms. Gianini the mutation was quite rare and that, if bred, the pair should produce featherless offspring.

She also told Ms. Gianini that the birds have little value as far as supermarket sales are concerned. The skin of such birds is so

Chief deputy Bill Shankles announces he will retire

A nine-year veteran of the Howard County Sheriff's Department announced his retirement from the force Friday afternoon.

Chief Deputy Bill Shankles turned to members of the department in the sheriff's office at 5 p.m. when the bells from First United Methodist Church began ringing and announced he was retiring, said Deputy Barney Edens.

The 49-year-old officer had been in law enforcement for the past 26 years, Edens said.

Previous to working here, Shankles was a law enforcement officer in Dawson County and in Oklahoma, where he was originally from. Edens said Shankles was instrumental in linking certain county murder cases to suspected serial killer Henry Lee Lucas. He and Texas Ranger Charles Brune also solved several oil field thefts, Edens said.

"The way he could talk to someone, he could spontaneously induce a confession," Edens said.

No announcements have come from the sheriff's department regarding a replacement for the former chief deputy of the criminal division.

"He's going to be highly missed in this department," Edens said.

Long distance

Another means allowing non-conforming stations to protect their status, Sullivan said, would be to obtain a court waiver.

Gifford said Southwestern Bell would incur an expense of $7,000 to $10,000 to install electronic switching equipment that would allow for equal access.

"It's not an expense we would want until growth in the area warranted it," she said.

Southwestern Bell's central office in Big Spring has lost customers since 1982 because of the Permian Basin recession, Gifford said.

As a result, she said, the main station is not working at full capacity, but Southwestern Bell has been testing and considering installing new equipment for long-distance carrier service.

"If there is a demand for long-distance in this area, that demand would help defray the cost of new equipment, and it would not be passed to local customers," Gifford said.

Long-distance service companies would pay extra to subscribe to the equal access carrier, in this case Southwestern Bell, she said.

Sullivan said most long-distance companies would not object to paying higher fees to use the equal access equipment because of better "servicing in general."

Equal access would improve the quality of the call and provide simplified direct dialing similar to AT&T's service, he said.

Companies

Continued from page 1-A representative Laurie Johnson said the company uses an electronic switchboard system that can provide the customer with direct dialing. The long-distance service has acquired speed-dialing options from Southwestern Bell and programmed them into memory options for the customer, she said.

Microwave Corporations Inc. (MCI) of St. Louis. A company spokesman said MCI was one of two companies besides AT&T that own their own network. He said other long-distance companies pay for use of network lines. MCI can provide up to 35 percent savings from AT&T rates depending on time of day the call is placed, the amount of time and mileage involved, he said.

NTS of Lubbock. Wallace said NTS offers varied discounts and uses incremental and voice sensitive timing measurements for a more precise customer billing.

TransAmerica Telecommunications Incorporated (TTI) of Midland. General manager Marty Hearne said TTI maintains a 20 percent minimal discount from AT&T's going rate at the time of the call. TTI charges no sign-up fee, and there is no minimal monthly charge. The company uses AT&T and Southwestern Bell equipment to transport calls. "The quality of the call we espouse to be as good as AT&T," Hearne said.

Value Line of Midland. A company representative said Value Line has no monthly minimal charge and no minimal calling charge, and offers a 20 percent discount from AT&T's going rate in addition to offering higher discount rates for large volume users.

Econoline of Midland. A company representative said Econoline offers special itemized accounting in its monthly bill in addition to a 20 percent discount from AT&T's going rate "at whatever time you call."

Superfund

The petrochemical industry has been paying a "feedstock" tax on its chemicals to pay for the program, which will cost about $900 million this fiscal year and is estimated to have an eventual price tag of $10 billion. The first five years of Superfund expired on Sept. 5 and measures to continue it for another five years are pending before Congress.

The report, which Barton said was intended to be informational, included such alternative taxes as the disposal tax; a corporate receipts tax; and the "Superfund excise tax" included in the Senate bill.

The "SET," which was proposed by Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a Democrat, would be levied on transactions by manufacturing companies that have over $5 million in annual sales. That would include about 30,000 companies.

The Reagan administration supports the disposal tax in addition to the tax on the petrochemical companies. But opposes the SET, which it says would be a "new" tax.

Barton said a 500 percent increase is needed to pay for the next five years of the program, and if the increase were borne by the petrochemical companies, the tax would exceed their profit margins.

House suffers smoke damage

No injuries were reported, but $150 in damages resulted from a smoke scare at 700 S. Bell Thursday morning.

Firemen responded to the call at 10:53 a.m.

According to a fire department report, the smoke was caused by a short circuit in the panel box containing an extension cord used to provide electricity in the house.

The house filled with smoke from the burnt wire insulator and breakers.

Texas Electric Service Company has since removed the meter, the report stated.

The house was currently occupied by Pete Selestino and owned by Janice Crawford of 2502 Broadway, according to the report.

Crash tied to drugs

ATLANTA — A parachutist who fell to his death last month in Tennessee with $20 million in cocaine strapped to his waist may have been part of a drug smuggling conspiracy involving parachutists in Georgia, sources said Friday.

And a plane crash Sunday that killed 17 people was caused by sabotage that was revenge for a cocaine theft, a newspaper reported.

Sources, who spoke only on the condition they not be identified, said the Georgia Bureau of Investigation was already looking into the use of parachutists to smuggle cocaine when Andrew C. Thornton II fell to his death in a suburb of Knoxville, Tenn., last month.

4 sentenced in plots

CHICAGO — Three suspected members of the Puerto Rican nationalist group FALN were sentenced Friday to 35-year prison terms for plotting Fourth of July bombings of two military installations in 1983.

A fourth defendant received a suspended sentence and five years' probation.

All four — Alejandrina Torres, Edwin Cortes, Alberto Rodriguez and Jose Luis Rodriguez — were convicted Aug. 5 of seditious conspiracy.

Federal prosecutors charged they had planned to bomb a Marine training center and an Army Reserve center, both in Chicago. Neither installation was bombed.

Septuplet goes home

ORANGE, Calif. — Stephen Earl Frustaci on Friday became the last of three surviving septuplets to leave the hospital where he was born in May, 12 weeks premature and weighing less than two pounds.

"It is a very special day because all the babies are going home, and that's where babies belong," said Dr. Carrie Worcester, head of the four-doctor team that cared for the babies at Children's Hospital of Orange.

Patti and Samuel Frustaci were escorted by smiling relatives and staff from the hospital with their 5-pound, 12-ounce son.

Monroe segment cut

NEW YORK — The author of a book on Marilyn Monroe charged Friday that ABC-TV bowed to pressure from the Kennedy family in canceling a "20-20" segment linking John and Robert Kennedy to organized crime through the actress.

Roone Arledge, president of ABC News and Sports, said his friendship with Ethel Kennedy had nothing to do with the decision not to air the piece Thursday night.

Anthony Summers, author of "Goddess: The Secret Lives of Marilyn Monroe," charged that the cancellation "was a result of biased news management and political pressure."

State trooper stops runaway train dragging car

DETROIT (AP) — A state trooper leaped aboard two runaway boxcars that were speeding by at up to 40 mph and brought them to a halt in an effort to save an elderly couple trapped inside an automobile being dragged along the tracks.

Trooper David Haire, 38, managed to set the brakes and stop the boxcars after the crushed car had been dragged about a mile. One of the crash victims later died.

"I saw them coming at me but it was hard to say how fast," Haire said after Thursday's accident in the Detroit suburb of Northville. "And I saw the man waving at me out of his window and he seemed to be shouting, but I couldn't hear what."

"I ran up as fast as I could and at the right moment I reached out and leaped for the ladder on the lead car. 'I don't remember if it hurt or not but when I grabbed it, it just seemed to pull me right aboard.'"

Haire said he found a wheel that looked like it might work the brakes, and began turning it.

"It took a while, but we started slowing down and coming to a halt," he said.

The boxcars, belonging to Chessie Railroad, apparently broke away at a railyard in Novi west of Detroit and rolled downhill about five miles before being stopped. Investigators estimated the cars reached 30-40 mph as they rolled through several crossings.

The freight cars rumbled through a busy crossing at Seven Mile Road and slammed into two cars, knocking one aside but dragging along one belonging to George Yokich and his wife Calene, both 68, said Trooper David O'Dell.

Mrs. Yokich died after being cut from the crushed car. Her husband was in stable condition Friday at St. Mary's Hospital in Livonia, hospital spokesman Audrey McConachie said. She said Yokich was being treated for contusions and tested in case of more serious injury.

The driver of the car that was pushed aside at the crossing was treated and released, O'Dell said.

Haire said he was in his patrol car when he spotted the runaway cars dragging the Detroit couple's vehicle.

30 die in Peruvian prison rebellion

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Many of the 500 inmates in Lima's Lurigancho Prison rebelled Friday against a surprise search, and 30 perished when they barricaded themselves in their cells and set mattresses afire, an official reported.

Manuel Aquezolo, director of the National Penitentiaries Institute, said police used explosives to blow down a blocked door on the first floor of the two-story building and found 30 charred bodies in two rooms on the second floor.

However, a spokesman for the Republican Guard, Lt. Jose Olivares Gonzales, put the death toll at 15 to 20.

Aguezolo said about 20 prisoners were injured, suffering from burns or bullet or knife wounds, and 16 members of the Republican Guard and three prison officials also were injured.

He said some of the Republican Guard police officers, including a colonel, were wounded by arrows fired by the inmates from the windows of the section of the prison known as the British Pavilion.

There were reports that some of the bodies had bullet wounds, but Olivares said all those who perished had burned to death or suffocated.

Aguezolo did not elaborate on his statement that some of the injured inmates had bullet wounds.

At a news conference broadcast by radio stations, he said the revolt began when Republican Guard police arrived at 3 p.m. to conduct a search for guns and other contraband.

Army head not in coup

BANGKOK, Thailand — The army issued a glossy booklet Friday that says its commander ordered the suppression of the attempted coup last month, and denounces rumors that he was involved in the insurrection.

Gen. Arthit Kamlang-ek, also armed forces commander, was visiting Sweden during the Sept. 9 takeover bid, and the booklet says he issued the order from there.

It accuses unidentified individuals "both in and outside Thailand" of "seizing the opportunity to defame various institutions in the country, especially the military, by spreading rumors in various forms with the intention of twisting the truth."

Labor Party changes

BOURNEMOUTH, England — Spelling out a stark choice between moderation and permanent powerlessness, opposition leader Neil Kinnock this week cracked down on his socialist Labor Party with a force that could transform its electoral fortunes.

Enraged radicals booed and jeered the Welsh miners' son at the opposition Labor Party's annual convention, and called him a traitor to the working class.

But euphoric moderates saw Kinnock's do-it-my-way message as a watershed, ending years of leftward drift and finally setting the socialists on course to oust Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's troubled Conservative administration.

The party, however, has a platform that is still the farthest left-leaning of its 85-year history.

Riots continue

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Riot patrols shot and killed two blacks in separate clashes, and the homes of three white families were damaged in gasoline bomb attacks, police said today.

Black unions and community action groups called off a month-old boycott of white retailers in Natal province Thursday, saying it threatened to divide opponents of apartheid. However, a boycott that has closed some white businesses continued in other parts of South Africa.

New probe opened

ROME (AP) — Magistrates have opened another investigation into the shooting of Pope John Paul II because trial testimony implicated several Turks who have not been indicted, a judicial source said Friday.

Three investigating judges have been assigned to the case, said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

One of the three judges is Ilario Martella, who conducted a three-year investigation and indicted the three Bulgarians and four Turks now on trial for complicity in the May 13, 1981 attack on the pontiff by Mehmet Ali Agca.

Reagan refuses to kill 'Star Wars' plans

PARSIPPANY, N.J. (AP) — In the face of opposition from both friend and foe, President Reagan held firmly Friday to his strategic shield popularly labeled "Star Wars," saying he "ain't gonna" kill the program to develop a defense against nuclear attack.

And in a speech to New Jersey Republicans, the president credited the GOP with sticking by his program as well.

Arriving at Newark International Airport on a quick political fund-raising trip to suburban Parsippany, Reagan was told by reporters both visiting Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev and French President Francois Mitterrand had said in Paris that the United States should abandon its Star Wars research.

"They can go on saying it," he responded cheerfully. "I ain't gonna do it."

Later, at a $250-a-plate fund-raising luncheon for state Republican candidates, the president departed from his prepared text to refer to his scheduled summit meeting with Gorbachev Nov. 19 and 20 in Geneva.

Without naming the Communist Party chief, Reagan said: "I see where he made a statement in a recent interview where he said that he did not believe that the God above would have done something that would prevent the people of the world from doing something for themselves.

"I have to believe if he's talking to God, we ought to be able to get along, because so am I."

To his enthusiastic audience of several hundred Republicans, Reagan boasted that the GOP "has finally put an end to the tax enslavement of the middle class in America," has worked to reduce federal spending and helped the poor "get a piece of the pie."

And, he said, "it is the Republican Party that has stood up, with the help of many Democrats, for SDI, the strategic space shield."

SDI is the abbreviation for the program's formal name, the Strategic Defense Initiative.

Echoing remarks he made earlier to a group of lawmakers hastily summoned to the White House before he left for New Jersey, Reagan said he had just announced "an historic agreement to put our nation on the road to a balanced budget."

He joined the Senate leadership in support of legislation designed to force elimination of the budget deficit, which has ballooned to more than $200 billion a year during his presidency.

"This is a measure that will lock us into spending reductions and lead us to a balanced budget by 1990," the president said.

The architects of the measure fast gaining strength in Congress, Sens. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Warren Rudman, R-N.H., have proposed gradually cutting deficits until they are eliminated in fiscal 1991. More than three dozen senators — including some Democrats — have co-sponsored the proposal.

"One of the reasons I like this Gramm-Rudman bill is because it attacks budgets the right way — not by raising taxes, but by restraining spending," Reagan said in announcing his support for the plan.

Actually, the measure does not rule out tax increases, although its authors say they hope to avoid it.

The legislation calls on the president and the Congress to approve spending cuts or new taxes, or a combination of both, to meet specific deficit targets. If not, the government would withhold enough spending across-the-board to make up the difference.

The measure would require gradually smaller deficits each year, starting with $180 billion in the current fiscal year. The limit would drop to $144 billion in fiscal 1987, $108 billion in 1988, $72 billion in 1989, $36 billion in 1990 and zero by 1991.

The measure is being offered as an amendment to a bill raising the national debt above $2 trillion — a change needed to accommodate another year of $200 million in red ink.

Seeking to grab some of the credit for the amendment, Reagan told his audience that he and his aides had been talking about a similar plan for several days when they discovered two of their allies in the Senate had come up with their own version. He called it "extraneous perception."

The president first mentioned a budget-balancing plan in Cincinnati on Thursday without specifically endorsing the Senate proposal. His endorsement came at the White House on Friday morning.

How sweet it is Candymaker's dream house a confectioner's delight

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

It is every child's fantasy. The tiny house glistens white in the sunlight and cheery-striped candy canes dance across a small red sign in front proclaiming "George's Candy Land."

Inside, chocolates and brittles rest alluringly in their dishes behind the glass counter. A man stands in the spotless white kitchen, cutting a big slab of chocolate fudge.

George Williams, owner of the little shop, makes all the candy himself, with the help of his wife Doris. His repertoire includes fudge, toffee, divinity, chocolates and brittles. He makes them all with a tiny, old-fashioned gas stove, a big copper kettle and simple chocolate-melting and creme center-making machines. The shop, located at 1711 Benton, opened Tuesday and is open from 1:30 to 5:30 p.m. weekdays.

Williams said his greatest trouble operating the shop is time and production. Creme-filled chocolates take the longest time to make, he said, and he hopes to be able to make only one type of candy per day from now on. He and his wife worked full-time for a week to make enough candy to open the shop, he said.

Williams said the shop is

mainly an experiment. He said he'll wait until Christmas, and if the shop pays off, he'll keep it. If it doesn't, he'll just sell the house.

Candy-making has been a hobby for him, he said, since his aunt taught him to make brittle about 1948 in Monahans.

"It was the best stuff I ever ate," he said, adding that he uses the same recipe now. He began making candy for his family and friends, and the word began to spread. He retired in 1981 and decided to open a candy shop in Big Spring.

Williams' candy was a big hit at the county fair. People bought it faster than he could make it, he said. Peanut patties are his best sellers, he said, with the brittle second. His toasted almond fudge won a blue ribbon at the fair this year.

Customers may drop by the shop or call in orders, and Williams will deliver, he said.

'Small is beautiful'

If one is running an $8-billion company, $5 million may seem just a drop in the bucket. But not at 3M, where sector executive Robert Adams often talks about "big ends from small beginnings." Indeed, many of 3M's eventual product winners, such as the ubiquitous Post-It Notes, were seen to have only modest market potential of a few million dollars when given the green light by senior management.

Though Motorola is a multi-billion-dollar corporation, Chairman Robert Galvin recently commented that its big winners of the future were just as likely to come from the $25,000 research projects as from the hundred-million-dollar ones.

And though giant PepsiCo is engaged in a bloody, expensive price war with The Coca Cola Company, its executives take at least as much interest in building its recently acquired La Petite Boulangerie bakery chain. PepsiCo has expanded the three bakery shops it acquired in 1982 to 120 and sees no limit to market size. "The world is our crissant," a PepsiCo spokesperson has stated.

The Limited makes room for tiny Victoria's Secret in its multi-billion dollar, multi-thousand-store portfolio of specialty women's apparel stores. Victoria's Secret, a chain of women's lingerie shops, consisted of only four stores when The Limited acquired the company in 1982; it is now made up of 50 stores, is going strong and sports a burgeoning catalog business as well.

Unfortunately, these examples of giant companies placing small bets are rare exceptions. A recent Business Week article described BMW's surprising assault on the reputedly impenetrable Japanese auto market: "Who would spend big bucks to try to expand car exports to Japan? Certainly not Detroit. Citing market barriers, U.S. automakers have virtually given up, selling only 1,100 cars in Japan so far this year. To succeed in Japan, German producers (such as BMW) are doing many things their American counterparts have refused to do. They are adapting models for the Japanese market, investing in distribution and service facilities (such as a $6 million warehouse near Tokyo that controls parts inventory and guarantees delivery within 24 hours), and putting staff and engineers in Tokyo to supervise operations."

According to Business Week, BMW sales to Japan have increased by one-third, to 5,600 units, despite the fact that the average BMW "costs 40 percent more than comparable Toyota, Nissan, and Honda models."

It is indeed tough, when one is too big, to think small. How much easier it is to dream of a megamerger which will solve all growth/technology problems in one fell swoop, like Exxon's more than $1-billion acquisition of Reliance Electric in 1979 (on which Exxon has since taken a $600-million loss). Sadly, the giant mergers rarely solve such problems: A mating of dinosaurs rarely produces much in the way of tiny, sparkling offspring.

Open for business

Developer invests because of expected growth

In a recent communication to local businesspeople, Gil Cuadra answered the question, "Why did you decide to make as many investments as you have in Big Spring, including the Settles Hotel?"

He said it was simply a matter of economics based on the best projected facts he could obtain. Citing a series of studies by the Department of Commerce and projections made by Woods and Poole Economics Inc., his company came to the conclusion that Howard County can offer an attractive risk/return trade-off. In other words, he is willing to risk the investment now because his facts tell him the return will be good — and that's what our free enterprise system is all about.

Here are the statistical highlights taken from the sources listed above:

- Between 1970-80, Howard County lost 5,000 people ranking it as having the largest outflow in Texas. This was caused by the shutdown of the Air Force Base ... but in 1980-2005 Howard County is projected to be the 45th fastest-growing county in Texas with population expected to grow by 35,300 new residents. Some of this will come from births to existing households and the balance from immigration of new people.
- The active, affluent market segment of people between the ages of 35-54 will increase from 8.04 percent of the population in 1985 to 19.88 percent in year 2005.
- The number of retirees in Big Spring will triple by the year 2005.
- Total employment will increase from 18,310 jobs in 1985 to 25,780 jobs in 1995 and 31,920 jobs in 2005.

• Manufacturing employment will triple by the year 2005. Retail trade employment will triple as will white collar employment.

• Largest decreases in employment will come from agriculture, mining and government.

• Big Spring is reflective of national economic growth trends. The future growth of Big Spring will come from entrepreneurs (small business people) and the economic expansion that growth in population brings.

• Personal income in Big Spring will increase from $171.37 million dollars in 1980 to $534.35 million dollars in 2005.

For the sake of your heart

The leading cause of death in both the United States and Texas today is diseases of the heart and blood vessels. For each person who dies, 11 others are chronically ill, and many of them are afflicted in their most productive years. Nearly one-fourth the adult population already has or is likely to develop heart disease.

Some defects of the heart or blood vessels may be present at birth, or scarring and narrowing of valves may be acquired as a result of rheumatic fever, but 90 percent of all diseases is due to arteriosclerosis and hypertension or high blood pressure.

- Risks factors include:
- a. heredity
 - b. high blood pressure
 - c. high cholesterol in blood
 - d. overweight
 - e. excessive eating
 - f. too little exercise
 - g. diabetes
 - h. cigarette smoking
 - i. tensions

American Heart Association recommendations to reduce the risk of heart attack include:

- Eat fewer saturated (animal) fats, getting a larger portion of your fat requirements from polyunsaturated (vegetable) fats.
- Don't smoke cigarettes. Men who are heavy cigarette smokers have over twice the risk of nonsmokers of suffering a heart attack. Women also have a higher risk.
- Maintain normal weight. Middle-aged men who are grossly overweight run a substantially greater risk of fatal heart attack than middle-aged men of normal weight.
- Adopt a program of regular exercise that is compatible with your age and physical condition.
- See your doctor regularly for a physical check-up, enabling him to begin prompt treatment if high blood pressure or diabetes is present.

Personal awareness: KNOW THE SIGNS
Delay spells danger. When you suffer a heart attack or stroke, minutes — especially the first few minutes — count. The time to act is before catastrophe strikes.

- The warning signs of stroke:
- Sudden, temporary weakness or numbness of the face, arm or leg
 - Temporary difficulty or loss of speech, or trouble understanding speech
 - Temporary dimness or loss of vision, particularly in one eye
 - An episode of double vision
 - Unexplained dizziness or unsteadiness
 - Change in personality, mental ability or the pattern of your headaches may also occur.

ACT IMMEDIATELY — Sometimes these symptoms subside, then return. When you experience one or more warning signs, call your doctor and describe these symptoms in detail. If he's not immediately available, get to a hospital emergency room at once. Be prepared to act. Instruct others to act if you cannot. Keep a list of numbers — doctor, hospital, ambulance or other emergency services and police — next to your telephone, and in a prominent place in your pocket, wallet or purse.

Have regular physical check-ups and follow your doctor's orders for treatment. If you have high blood pressure and are supposed to take medicine be sure you take it every day as prescribed.

During Oct. 1 I am presenting a program on Cardiovascular Disease to each Extension Homemakers Club in the county. For your gardens

Time to plant bulbs

New shipments of spring flowering bulbs have arrived at most Texas garden centers. Although many of the species sold bloom only one year in our relatively mild climates, bulbs are a popular source of spring color.

Purchases should be made as soon as possible to take advantage of good selections. Plant immediately or place in cold storage depending upon the species. Tulips and hyacinths require five to six weeks of "chilling" to compensate for the shortness of our winters. This can be successfully done by placing the bulbs in a paper (not plastic) container in the lower part of the refrigerator.

After the 5 to 6 week chilling period, the bulbs may be placed in prepared beds or pots where they will be exposed to the weather. In most parts of the state little watering will be necessary since natural rainfall coupled with the relatively low moisture requirement of the bulbs is quite sufficient.

Daffodils and narcissus are probably the most popular spring flowering bulbs in Texas. In North and East Texas many varieties will naturalize and return each year but only the paper white narcissus and a few of the trumpet daffodils are perennials in South Texas and Gulf Coast areas.

Daffodils are actually members of the narcissus genus and can be correctly called narcissus. The trumpet-type flowers are usually called daffodils and the small, many flowered types narcissus.

All narcissus like a well drained soil with full or partial sun exposure. Bone meal or small amounts of a balanced fertilizer well worked into the soil help insure success and naturalizing of the bulbs.

Dutch iris are also popular for spring color. They do not normally require extra chilling and are of easy culture. Requirements are similar to narcissus. Wedgewood, blue ribbon and other blue selections are most common but white, yellow and bronze varieties are also available.

Minor bulbs such as grape hyacinths, Ipheion (Spring Star flower), ixias and crocus will naturalize in many parts of the state and can make a significant contribution to the landscape.

Use bulbs in containers, masses or "drifts" to provide early spring color. Their fragrance, brightness and early season bloom make them perennial favorites for Texas landscapes.

PECANS NEED A DRINK

The 1985 Texas pecan crop, both commercial and back yard is excellent. However, if rains or irrigation do not come soon much of the crop can be lost. Pecans are falling in every area of the state because of water shortage. The bearing trees should be receiving up to two inches of water each week from now until mid-October. Shallow soils add to the problem because they do not have a high water holding capacity and many roots die during water shortages. Therefore, weekly irrigation is extremely important for pecan trees planted on these soils. The extra heavy crop also puts added stress on the tree and increases the water requirement. Use a deep soak type irrigation. Frequent sprinkling is not effective. Large pecan trees can require 150 gallons of water per day. The new drip irrigation or microsprinkler irrigation technique helps prevent runoff, but it does not reduce the water requirement. Pecans need one to two inches of water each week.

Don't forget our county Pecan Show the first week of December. With the good pecan crop prospects we have we should have a good show. Pecan shows are a lot of fun and educational too so plan now to place an entry in our show this year. We have some nice awards and promise you a good time. Also this year we will be hosting the Western Regional Pecan Show in Big Spring. It will be the second week of December.

More information on both these shows at a later date.

Permian steamrolls the Steers, 49-15

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

ODESSA — If the Odessa Permian Panthers were thinking that big numbers would put them back in the good graces of the state's pollsters, they couldn't have asked for a better game than their 49-15 victory Friday night over Big Spring at Ratliff Stadium.

The mighty Mojo offensive machine rolled up more than 500 yards of total offense against the out-manned Big Spring defense. Junior tailback Woody Bryant led a balanced Permian rushing attack with 132 yards, including a 57-yard touchdown run.

All 12 Panther runners piled up 407 yards against the Big Spring defense that was plagued by bad tackling all night.

The Steer offense had some impressive numbers of its own, led by the passing of quarterback Carl Speck, who completed 15 of 34 passes for a season high 199 yards.

Big Spring's 15 points were the most given up by Permian this year, but the turnover bug kept the Steers from ever threatening the Panthers seriously. For the night, the Steers lost 4 of 7 fumbles and had one interception.

The Panthers got on the board first with 9:43 left in the first period when Marcus Lott scored on a 32-yard run to give Permian a 7-0 lead.

Permian scored on its next possession, driving the ball from its own 38-yard line and scoring on a 16-yard pass from quarterback

Jason Harrington to split end Robert Williams at the 4:38 mark of the first period. Woody Bryant's PAT was good, making the score 14-0.

After forcing a Brian Mayfield punt, the Permian offense rolled again for its third touchdown of the evening. Wingback Scott Erwin took a beautifully executed reverse 12 yards for the score, bringing the score to 21-0 with 10:21 left in the half.

Permian would put 7 more points on the board on another Harrington-to-Williams connection for a 12-yard touchdown pass to give the Panthers a comfortable 28-0 lead.

The Big Spring defense stiffened late in the second quarter, forcing one of only two Permian punts of the game, giving the Steers good field position for the first time at their own 40-yard line.

The Steer's offense racked up three straight first downs, highlighted by a 36-yard pass from Speck to tight end David Shortes to put the ball at the Permian 16-yard line.

On the next play, Steer tailback Danny Williams took a Speck pitch around the right end 16 yards for the Steers' first score of the evening. Collin Carroll's PAT left the score 28-7 at halftime.

Permian received the second-half kickoff and needed but three plays to score from its own 27-yard line. Woody Bryant had the big play of the drive, scoring on a 57-yard run to bring the score to 35-7 with 10:37 left in the third period.

The Steer defense held tight through the remainder of the third quarter until the 2:49 mark when Permian took over at the Big Spring 44. Front there, the Panthers needed but one first down and a big pass completion from quarterback Albert Jordan to wingback Mike Adams that put the ball first and goal at the Steer 1-yard line. Panther Fullback Mark Seider, who had 99 yards rushing on the ninth, scored on a one-yard run to give Mojo a comfortable 42-7 lead at the third period ended.

Big Spring had its best drive of the night following Permian's final touchdown of the evening, taking the ball from their own 22-yard line and driving down the field with four first downs, several on third down and long situations.

The Steers kept the drive alive on a fourth down and 10 from the 50 with a 13-yard completion from Speck to Shortes, putting the ball at the Permian 37-yard line. The Permian defense looked as if they would hold the Steers out of the end zone, but on a fourth down in 10 situation, Speck found Matthews all alone in the left flat and junior tailback scooted untouched into the end zone for a 37-yard touchdown.

On the ensuing 2-point conversion attempt, Speck rolled left and cut up sharply behind his line, diving over the line for the two point conversion that left the final score 49-15. Permian raised its record to 4-0-1 on the year, and Big Spring fell to 1-4.

Eagles ruin Buffaloes homecoming party, 37-0

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

STANTON — The Stanton Buffaloes ran into running back Russell Jones and a stingy Seagraves Eagle defense last night in Class AA non-district action. It was enough to ruin the Buffaloes' homecoming as the Eagles streaked to a convincing 37-0 win in Buffalo Stadium.

The speedy Jones, a senior transfer from Hobbs, N.M., made life miserable for the Stanton defense with his running and specialty teams play. He ended the night with two touchdowns on rushing plays, 101 yards rushing in only 8 carries, more than enough as far as Stanton was concerned. But the 160-pound speedster didn't stop there. He also returned two punts for 105 yards and a TD.

What pain Jones didn't cause the Buffaloes, the Seagraves defense, led by noseguard Ralph Lovington, did. The Eagle defense held the Buffs to 26 yards on the ground and 65 in the air.

Lovington was all over the field and was one of the main reasons Stanton quarterback Skip Hopkins lost so many yards trying to pass. Lovington collected three of the Eagles' seven quarterback sacks as Hopkins was dropped for 55 yards in losses.

Two of the few things the homecoming crowd had to cheer about were the crowning of Leann Tom as the Stanton homecoming queen and the many yellow flags the visitors were whistled for. In all, the Eagles were penalized for 110 yards.

By looking at the play sheet in the first half, it would be hard to tell that Seagraves held a 12-0 lead. It was a half in which the Buffalo offense had the ball for 40 plays, compared to only 9 for the Eagles.

But there's one big factor that stood out in the half — Jones.

He touched the ball 5 times, which resulted in two scores. The first came on a 38-yard run around the end with 11:05 left in the half. The PAT attempt was blocked.

The second score came on a 65-yard punt return. He took the ball headed down the sidelines and cut back across the middle of the field, easily outrunning the Stanton punt team. His score with 4:12 left in the half gave the team its 12-0 halftime lead.

Jones almost bagged three TDs running, but was tackled by the last defender at the end of a 40-yard punt return.

The first half was definitely Stanton's best. Behind the running of fullback Michael Holt and the passing combination of Hopkins to wingback Derick Sorley, the Buffs moved the ball.

The 200-pound Holt rambled for 57 yards in 15 carries in the half. Unfortunately, he didn't carry the ball in the second half. Sorley, all All-Crossroads Country selection, was Stanton's leading receiver with four catches for 53 yards.

Stanton's first possession of the game was their best; they had the ball for 8 minutes in the one drive alone. The Buffs started at their own 35-yard line and moved to the Seagraves 28 before the drive was killed by an Eagle interception of a James Vidal halfback pass.

Seagraves completely dominated second-half action, both offensively and defensively. The Buffalo offense failed to cross the midfield mark and the Eagles' offense scored on four of its five possessions in the final 24 minutes of play.

The Eagles started it off with a 66-yard, 12-play drive. Reserve Tracey Draughton went up the middle 26 yards for the score to make the score 18-0 with 6:07 left.

Following a Stanton fumble, the Eagles moved in for their fourth score of the night. This time it took them six plays to march 41 yards. Quarterback Greg Hart found wide receiver Steve McKenzie behind the Buffalo secondary for a 26-yard score. This made the score 24-0 with 2:42 left in the third quarter. The next Seagraves TD came following another Stanton fumble. This time the Eagles had to drive only 29 yards; it took them two plays. The ever-present Jones got his third TD of the night as he scooted for a 28-yard run. McKenzie added the point-after-touchdown, giving the victors a 31-0 lead with 11:07 left in the contest. The final Seagraves score came on a 67-yard, nine-play drive. The big gainer was a 43-yard run by reserve QB Vince Sines. Ray Garza got the score on a three-yard plunge with 4:40 remaining, giving the Eagles, now 4-1, their final margin of victory.

The loss drops Stanton to 2-3 in non-district play. They open up

District 8-2A play next week versus Eldorado.

Cards down Cubs, 4-2; clinch tie in NL East pennant race

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals clinched a tie for the National League East championship Friday night as Bob Forsch pitched a five-hitter through eight innings and Andy Van Slyke belted his 13th home run in a 4-2 triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

Ozzie Smith smashed an RBI triple and Forsch also had a run-scoring double in St. Louis' major league-leading 100th victory of the year. The Cardinals need to win one of their final two games this season with the Cubs to eliminate the second-place New York Mets and secure their second East flag — they won the World Series in 1982.

New York remained alive with a 9-4 win over Montreal.

Forsch, 35, who retired 13 straight batters at one point, improved his record to 9-6, but needed ninth-inning relief from Todd Worrell after yielding a pair of singles. Ryne Sandberg's RBI double and a sacrifice fly by Keith Moreland knocked in the Cubs' runs in the ninth.

Forsch struck out four and walked none. It was Forsch's 129th career triumph, making him sixth on the Cardinals' all-time list.

Dennis Eckersley, 11-7, was the loser.

St. Louis scored in the opening inning. Vince Coleman grounded a double into shallow right field off Cubs first baseman Leon Durham's glove. Coleman moved up on a groundout and easily scored when Tommy Herr drove a sacrifice fly to center field.

Eckersley picked Coleman off second base in the third inning after the rookie stole his 110th base. But in the fourth, Van Slyke hit his first home since Sept. 3, a drive down the right field foul line.

Darrell Porter's leadoff double followed by Smith's triple and Forsch's double chased Eckersley in the seventh as the Cards beat Chicago for the 13th time in 16 tries.

TORONTO (AP) — Butch Wynegar hit a stunning two-out home run in the ninth inning that tied the score, and Bobby Meacham then raced home from second base when Toronto center fielder Lloyd Moseby dropped a routine fly ball, rallying the New York Yankees to a 4-3 victory that kept them alive in the American League East.

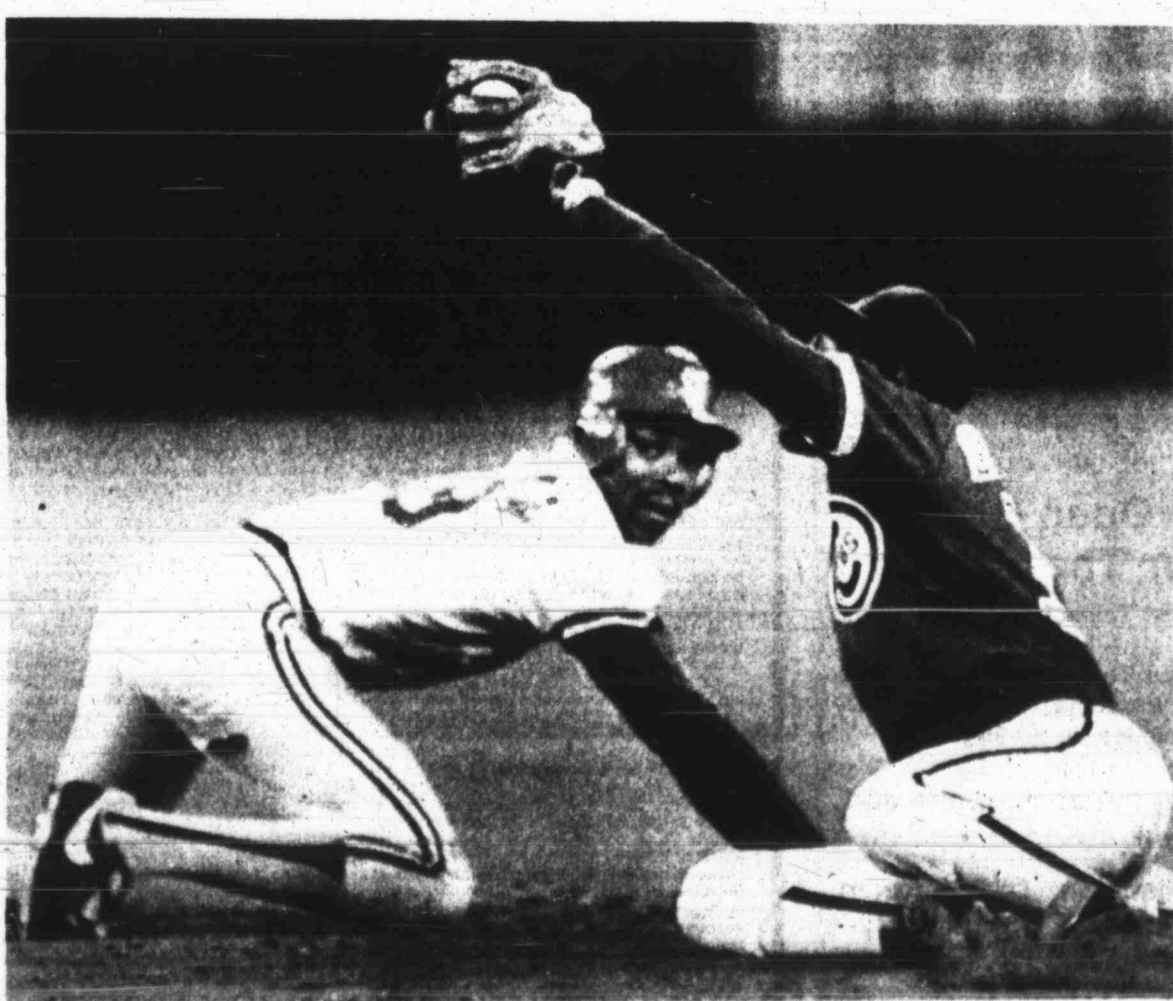

The Blue Jays, who were within two strikes of clinching their first-ever division title, suddenly collapsed under the charge of the Yankees.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett's fourth home run in five days powered Kansas City past Oakland 4-2 Friday night and clinched a tie for the American League West title for the Royals.

The win, coupled with Texas' 6-0 shutout of second-place California, gave the Royals, who are gunning for their sixth title in 10 years, a two-game lead in the division. Kansas City has two games remaining with the A's and the Angels will play two more at Texas.

ARLINGTON (AP) — Dave Schmidt scattered seven hits for the first shutout of his major-league career and Steve Buechele hit a two-run homer as the Texas Rangers damaged the California Angels' pennant hopes with a 6-0 victory Friday night.

The Angels started the game with a one-game deficit behind first-place Kansas City, which played host to Oakland. Both clubs have games left after Friday night.

Forsan Buffs trample Eagles, 10-0

O'DONNELL — The Forsan Buffaloes continued their winning record when they trampled the O'Donnell Eagles, 10-0, Friday night at O'Donnell's homecoming. The game puts Forsan at 5-0 and O'Donnell at 3-2.

The game was mainly a defensive battle for Forsan, who held the Eagles on their side of the field throughout the game.

Forsan halfback Bruce

Strickland scored the first touchdown on a five-yard run with 1:29 left in the first quarter. Strickland's PAT kick scored an additional point to give the Buffaloes seven points at the end of the first quarter.

With one second left in the first half, Strickland kicked a 25-yard field goal, earning the team an extra three points.

Grady mauls Pirates, 67-21

GRADY — "It was an all out team effort," said Grady coach Currie McWilliams following the Wildcats 67-21 victory over Paint Creek in six-man football action.

The 4-A south zone Wildcats gained their first victory of the season against four losses. Paint Creek of the 4-A north zone dropped to 2-3 overall.

Grady's Micheal Mitchell, who gained 172 yards on the evening, opened the scoring with 5:59 remaining in the first quarter with a 43-yard touchdown run. The two-point extra conversion kick was no good.

Mitchell scored again on Grady's next possession when he galloped 77 yards to paydirt. The conversion kick, however, sailed wide of its mark.

The Wildcats tacked one more score on the board before the quarter ended with a 6-yard pass from quarterback Luis Gonzales to Joe Valle. The kick was good by Gonzales.

Paint Creek's initial points came with 9:18 remaining in the first half when quarterback Mikeal Gonzales tossed a 5-yard pass to Danny Letterman. The conversion kick was no good.

Grady came back on the subsequent possession and scored on a 35-yard pass play from Gonzales to Terry Deatherage who snared 4 passes for 116 yards on the evening. The conversion kick was no good.

Grady added two more scores before Paint Creek found the endzone again. The first came on a 12-yard run by Mitchell and the other came on a 17-yard run by Velasco.

Paint Creek scored with 57 seconds remaining in the half on an 8-yard run by Kenneth Jeffcoat.

The Wildcats struck paydirt with 27 seconds remaining in the quarter when Keith Medford threw
