Ship reported off Syria coast

Passenger reported killed

Tourists who left the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro just before it was hijacked off Port Said wait in a hotel lobby on Tuesday for word on what will happen to them next. The ship's owners said they will send the 637 people who disembarked in Alexandria before Monday's piracy to their homes as soon as possible.

By The Associated Press
A hijacked Italian cruise liner with 413 people aboard was reported off the coast of Syria today. The Palestinian pirates were threatening to kill passengers unless their demands were met for the release of 50 prisoners held in Israel, according to reports from Italy, Israel and Egypt.

Sixty-seven American passengers who had been aboard the ship earlier, but who got off in Alexandria, Egypt, said that by their count, 11 Americans still were on the ship. Other reports of Americans aboard ranged from two to 28.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes in Washington said there probably were about a dozen Americans, and "less than 20, for sure."

Israel radio, quoting unidentified radio monitors, said one person may have been killed by the hijackers, but that the situation on the ship was not clear.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon radio in Beirut also reported that a monitored radio exchange between the hijackers and Syrian maritime authorities indicated an unidentified passenger had been killed.

The 23,629-ton Italian liner Achille Lauro was hijacked off Egypt late Monday. The hijackers said they were from the Palestine Liberation Front, a dissident group of the PLO.

Italian news agencies quoted the Italian Foreign Ministry as saying the hijackers were armed and had a large supply of explosives.

Syrian officials in their capital, Damascus, said the liner was reported 12 miles off the Syrian coast and was in contact with officials in the port of Tartus, 90 miles northwest of Damascus.

Radio reports earlier said the hijackers were forcing the captain, Gerardo de Rosa, to head for Beirut.

The Christian Voice of Lebanon said the hijackers threatened to blow up the vessel if any boats carrying armed men approached.

The station said a boat with envoys of the Palestine Liberation Organization was approaching the ship.

Cable decision expected in 2 weeks

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Texas Community Antenna, Big Spring Cable TV's home office, will decide on a replacement for WFAA-TV within two weeks, said company president Fred Nichols of Tyler.

Cable officials had expected a larger voter turnout and a more decisive vote in choosing the replacement channel for WFAA, said local systems manager Paul Thoman.

Ballots were published in the Herald asking subscribers to help choose a replacement for the Dallas channel. Only about 2 percent of the customers voted, Thoman said.

The vote count was: 165 for KTVT, 159 for WGN, 159 for TBN, 66 for CWTW, 56 for Arts and Entertainment, and about a dozen for "other," he said.

Nichols said the home office wants to collect more information before making a decision.

"We don't have enough information to justify the decision," he said.

The company president said he would consider all the options.

"It's the hardest decision to make," he said. "We feel like what we've got now is the best."

Cable TV rates will play a part in the decision, Nichols said. "We want our rates to be as low as possible." Two stations on the list, WGN and KTVT, would require a 50-cent per month increase.

Big Spring Cable rates have not been increased in about two years, he said, even though costs have increased.

Times Mirror Microwave, also known as West Texas Microwave, quadrupled TCA's microwave rates two years ago, Nichols said. The cable company used to take more channels from the microwave company, but Times Mirror discontinued some channels, cutting back the number available to West Texas to two, he said.

When WFAA is discontinued, the rates will not be cut in half, but will be reduced by only 15 percent, even though only one station will be available, Nichols said.

Nichols said he thinks Times Mirror is trying to decrease its cable customers so it can increase its long-distance telephone services over the microwave system. The company can make more money that way, he said.

Times Mirror at first said it would drop KERA, the public television channel, in addition to WFAA, but decided to continue broadcasting because no other public television was available to West Texas, Nichols said.

Nichols said his company has spoken with KERA about the possibility broadcasting the channel by satellite rather than microwave. "It's an 'iffy' kind of thing," he said.

DWI plea entered in wreck

Staff and wire reports

AUSTIN — A 49-year-old Round Mountain has pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated and causing a Christmas-holiday traffic accident here that left a former Big Spring man in a coma, probably for the rest of his life.

Lloyd Allen Huggins, 49, of Round Mountain pleaded guilty to DWI in the wreck injuring four members of Gordon Grinnan family. Huggins had been released from Travis County Jail on a DWI charge eight hours before his car crashed head-on into a car driven by Gordon Grinnan on Dec. 26, 1984.

Grinnan, a 31-year-old husband and father, whose brain was damaged when he was struck in the head by flying debris, remains in a coma.

Grinnan's family said they discontinued his medication after doctors told them he will not recover.

His wife, Mary, and three young sons have recovered from the accident. She suffered severe internal injuries, a broken back, broken wrist and broken nose and underwent reconstructive surgery on her face.

The couple's 5-year-old son, Brian, broke both legs and had to be freed from the car by the "Jaws of Life." A second son, DWI page 2-A

Students give thoughts on freedom

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Three Big Spring elementary students are among 10 students from the 17th Congressional District to be named winners in the "Thoughts on Freedom" essay contest sponsored by Congressman Charles Stenholm's office.

Winners from the Big Spring area and their teachers at the time of the contest are: Stefan Balderach of Karen Adams' class at College Heights Elementary, Lee Patterson of Darrell Baggett's class at Forsan Elementary, and Eric Allen Thurman of Ruelene Freeze's class at Kentwood Elementary.

The contest, sponsored last spring at no government expense, was held in conjunction with the Young Presidents' Organization. It was designed to foster ideas among fifth and sixth-graders on the subjects of "freedom" and "free enterprise." Students were asked to submit essays, poems or drawings based on the theme "Freedom provides the greatest of all opportunities."

"These children did a wonderful job in expressing their thoughts on freedom," said Stenholm. "It reassures and makes you proud to see that today's students have a good understanding of our country's basic ideals."

Judges for the essay competition were Ann Ramage of Clyde, Linnie Whitefill of Decatur, Charles Shewmake of Weatherford and Karen Sublett of Gordon. All four served as interns in the Washington, D.C. office this summer.

Guidelines for the 1986 contest will be sent to schools next spring. For more information contact Mary Gren at Stenholm's office.

WHAT FREEDOM MEANS By Eric Allen Thurman

FREEDOM IN THE UNITED STATES By Lee Patterson

Freedom is the right to choose. It gives the right to do law abiding things.

Many people believe religious freedom is the most important right we have guaranteed to us as United States citizens. Even though the largest group in our country is Christian, all other religious groups have equal rights under the law.

Freedom of speech is still another right we have. It grants the right for a fifth grader to write an essay or even gives President Reagan the right to give a speech.

Not only can we say what we want, we can also publish what we want. That is called freedom of the press.

These rights give us as United States citizens the freedom to worship, to speak, to write, and to publish as we choose. What is the price of this freedom — nothing, yet everything!

Hijack

In Tunis, Tunisia, the PLO, earlier today "vigorously condemned and denounced" the hijacking, and demanded that the hostages be freed.

Various sources reported that those aboard included three Spaniards, possibly six or seven British women among the ship's crew, two Israelis, and perhaps four French citizens. Most of the rest of those aboard, consisting mainly of a crew of about 350, were Italian.

Israel radio said earlier the ship was heading northeast, apparently toward Beirut. A maritime radio station in San Sebastian, Spain, also reported that the captain of the cruise ship told a nearby warship it was heading for Beirut.

A Palestinian terror squad leader named Samir al-Kountar headed the list of prisoners whose freedom from Israeli prisons was demanded by the hijackers in exchange for the ship and passengers, Israeli officials reported.

The officials said al-Kountar was captured after a 1979 raid on the Israeli coast in which two Israeli hostages, a man and his 5-year-old daughter, were killed. The man's widow said in Israel that the publicity arising from the raid made al-Kountar a symbol and that was why the hijackers sought his release.

The owners of the ship said there were 413 people aboard, but did not have a list of the nationalities. There were conflicting reports about the number of passengers on board.

A State Department task force was set up in Washington to watch the situation and the Israeli Cabinet met in Jerusalem to discuss the hijacking.

The flagship of the U.S. 6th Fleet, the Coronado, today left its base in Gaeta, north of Naples, according to navy spokeswoman Chief Patricia Hooks. She said the departure had been scheduled but could not give its destination.

Italy's state-run radio reported Italian warships and reconnaissance planes took off from Sicily and several ships were diverted from the Ionian Sea off the southern tip of Italy to head for the Egyptian coastal area. There was no official confirmation of the report.

The Italian military was reported placed on alert.

The ship docked Monday at Alexandria and hundreds of passengers got off to tour Egypt, planning to rejoin the ship later in Port Said. The ship embarked for Port Said and was seized at sea.

The Spanish station Onnda Pesquera, monitoring maritime radio messages, said the captain reported he could not answer radio messages from other ships in the area because he was under the orders from the hijackers. The radio station quoted the captain as saying the passengers and crew were calm and in good condition.

Israel radio, quoting a ship-to-shore conversation in Arabic between the hijackers and maritime officials at Port Said, said the hijackers threatened to begin killing their hostages unless Egyptian radio broadcast their demands. That threat was made shortly after the ship was hijacked Monday night, Israel radio said.

Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres said today in Jerusalem that no government has asked Israel to release any Palestinian prisoners.

"We did not get any demands. We do not have to answer," he said.

U.S. Navy spokesman Cmdr. Kendall Peas said in Washington that the United States has military ships in the eastern Mediterranean, but that he did not know the cruise ship's exact location, and did not know if any American ships were nearby. He would not comment on whether any American ships were ordered moved because of the hijacking.

Egyptian officials said they learned of the hijacking about 30 miles west of Port Said in a radio report by the hijackers' commander, who identified himself only as Omar.

An official at the Italian crisis command in Rome said: "We don't know how it happened. The crew apparently was disabled, but we don't know if the hijackers boarded in Alexandria or from the sea."

The New York Times today quoted a senior aide to PLO chief Yasser Arafat as saying the hijackers belonged to a new, small Palestinian group composed of residents of the Sabra and Chatilla refugee camps in Beirut.

Weather

State

By The Associated Press

A low-pressure trough brought showers from the South Plains through the Texas Panhandle and into Southwestern Oklahoma early today, and forecasters predicted more scattered thundershowers later.

The frontal system, extending from the Trans-Pecos through West Texas, pumped moist air and south winds of 15 to 25 mph into the region, said the National Weather Service.

Low cloudiness extended from the middle Gulf Coast through the Brazos Valley to the Red River.

Winds were light and skies were clear with cooler temperatures east of a warm front in the Piney Woods and Golden Triangle.

Low temperatures were in the lower 60s in East and Southeast Texas to lower 70s in central sections. Extremes were 51 degrees in Marfa and 79 at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station. It was 61 in Longview and Lufkin.

Winds were south and gusty to near 30 mph in Central Texas. Over the High Plains, showers were scattered in an area 70 miles wide from about 30 miles southeast of Amarillo westward into eastern New Mexico, with the heaviest activity near Littlefield.

Sheriff's Log

Man to be transferred

Tarrant County sheriff's deputies were expected to arrive at the Howard County sheriff's department Tuesday to transport a Big Spring man to Tarrant County where he faces charges of being delinquent on child support payments.

Deputies arrested Sylvester McKnight, 36, of 2906 E. Cherokee after receiving a teletype message from Tarrant County law authorities.

Deputies arrested Roberto Hernandez, 25, of Del Rio on a warrant charging him with violating the terms of his probation received from a driving while intoxicated judgment.

He was released on $1,000 bond set by County Judge Milton Kirby.

Police Beat

Three-wheel vehicle stolen

Thieves stole a red 1982 Honda three wheeler this weekend, Lee Hancock of 2301 Alabama told police.

The three wheeler, which had a black frame and black wheels, was taken between 7 p.m. Friday and 6:30 p.m. Monday from Hancock's backyard. The vehicle is valued at $700, according to police reports.

Burglars broke into Robey's Guns at 1701 Gregg and stole a blue steel .357-caliber Magnum between 7 p.m. Sunday and 8:30 a.m. Monday.

The gun, which had a 3 1/2-inch barrel, is valued at $500. The burglar also caused $50 damage to a display case in which the gun was contained.

Stella Howard of 2621 Langley told police someone stole two boys' bikes at noon Sunday.

Stolen were a BMX chrome-frame bike with wire-spoke wheels and blue pedals, grips, pads and breaks, valued at $250; and a BMX chrome-frame bike with black and white-checked pads, black seats, mag wheels and handlebars, valued at $150.

Patty Morton of 1708 Donley told police a person she knows pointed a firearm at her at 10:45 p.m. Monday.

Frank Robertson of 804 N.W. Fourth told police he found a male juvenile inside the building at 403 Trades at 7:45 a.m. Monday. The juvenile was arrested on suspicion of burglary of a building, the police report stated.

Mary Green of 3219 Auburn told police someone broke into her blue 1980 Chevrolet at 6:45 p.m. at Hall-Bennett Hospital at 411 E. Ninth. Taken was a light brown cassette case and four cassettes, valued at $30.

A juvenile was seen entering and leaving the car, according to the police report.

Joe Earhart of 902 Douglas told police someone damaged five window screens at his house between 4:30 p.m. Friday and 6:40 p.m. Monday.

Police Monday evening arrested Holston Banks Jr., 20, of 1106 N.W. Seventh in the 300 block of Gregg on warrants from the Midland Department of Public Safety and the Midland police department.

Fire does damage

A trash fire Monday evening caused an estimated $250 damage to a building formerly occupied by Oilfield Industrial Lines Inc. in the Big Spring Airpark, according to a fire department report.

Four firefighters in two engines responded to the alarm at 6:59 p.m., the report stated.

Firemen found trash burning on a rear patio. The flames also damaged the storm door and frame of a vacant building at the site, according to the department report.

Michael, 3, suffered internal injuries. Only their youngest son, Andy Paul, then a 2-month-old infant, escaped injury.

The family had moved to Austin from Big Spring about two months before the accident. Huggins has not been sentenced yet. Prosecutors said they will recommend Huggins — who has four DWI arrests and two previous convictions — be given the maximum prison sentence of two years. He is serving an 18-month sentence for an earlier DWI conviction, and prosecutors say they will ask that the two-year sentence be added on to the previous penalty.

Pilots sue Continental

HOUSTON (AP) — A federal racketeering lawsuit filed by the Air Line Pilots Association alleges Continental Airlines improperly trained and certified new pilots to take advantage of striking pilots.

The lawsuit filed Monday accuses Houston-based Continental of administering improper, shortened "refresher" and requalification training to pilots who were hired or promoted to replace striking pilots. The replacement pilots, according to the suit, were required by law to receive more comprehensive training.

ALPA alleges that Continental allowed inadequately trained and fraudulently certified reviewing pilots to certify the competency of replacement pilots.

The union also alleges that Continental improperly trained and certified new pilots "to gain an unfair and fraudulent bargaining advantage" against striking pilots.

Continental spokesman Mike Cinelli, when asked about the lawsuit, said, "Pardon my laughter, but it's obvious that ALPA has more lawyers than they have sense."

"This suit will undoubtedly make the most entertaining reading yet of any legal document they filed," Cinelli said.

Woman hurt in 1-car wreck

A 22-year old Big Spring woman was treated for injuries at Malone-Hogan Hospital following a single vehicle accident on Interstate 20 Monday evening.

An emergency room spokeswoman said Tuesday morning that Kimberly Dawn Ferrell of 709 E. 16th was treated and released.

According to a Texas Department of Public Safety report, Lisa Michele Thompson, 19, of Route 3 also suffered injuries but was not treated at Malone-Hogan. She was a passenger in the 1982 Honda Prelude driven by Ferrell.

The car was traveling in the east-bound lane before it began to drift off the right side of the road, according to the report. Ferrell overcorrected the vehicle's position causing it to skid over the eastbound lanes into the median. The car overturned one-half time and slid across the westbound lanes onto the shoulder.

A contributing factor cited in the accident was driver inattention, according to the report. The accident occurred 7 1/2 miles west of Big Spring at 6:50 p.m.

DPS troopers investigated another major accident that occurred on U.S. Highway 87, south of Big Spring. According to the sheriff's log, the accident was reported to have occurred at 5:17 p.m. and an ambulance was requested at the scene. Accident details from the DPS office were not available this morning.

Seminar date is delayed

The first session of the Chamber of Commerce customer relations workshop has been postponed due to low response, according to a press release from the Chamber.

The workshop will instead start Oct. 16 if enough people respond. Reservations should be made by Monday, Oct. 14 by calling the chamber at 263-7641.

The fee is $60, or $50 for chamber members. The program is described as one that teaches employees how to make customers happy. It offers a structured, programmed approach to providing effective service, according to the release. Dr. Clyde Smith of Avery and Associates will instruct.

Stacy bids to open Tuesday

Officials of the Colorado River Municipal Water District will open bids at 11 a.m. next Tuesday for $5.59 million in district revenue bonds to finance construction of Stacy Dam.

First Southwest of Dallas, the district's fiscal agent for the bonds, has completed official statements for use of bidders on the 30-year issue, according to a district spokesman.

Cost of the project is estimated at $68.15 million. The district will be required to post $2.95 million on a reserve fund plus $303,000 for the cost of issuing the bonds, increasing the total outlay to $71.4 million.

To offset the costs, the district will use the $53.59 million from the sale of bonds and $17.81 million in interest built up during planning and construction.

Before the bids will be opened, the district's board of directors will meet at 10 a.m. to consider adoption of an operating budget for its fiscal year, which begins Jan. 1.

District directors also will consider purchasing a tractor truck, relining a one million-gallon storage tank in the Ward County field and other operational items.

The budget and personnel committees will meet at 9 a.m.

Senate deadlocked

WASHINGTON — Despite warnings that Uncle Sam's checks would soon start to bounce, the Senate was deadlocked over whether to attach a budget-balancing amendment to a bill needed to renew the government's borrowing authority.

"I assume we'll be under even more pressure tomorrow," Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole said Monday after another day of failure to clear the amendment he supports.

The government has reached its legal debt limit of $1.824 trillion and, without new borrowing, will begin falling about $20 billion a month behind in its payments.

Hit-and-run blamed

SAN ANTONIO, Texas — A hit-and-run driver is being blamed for an accident that demolished a tractor-trailer truck loaded with 165 head of cattle and left nearly half of the animals dead.

The early morning accident forced officials to close the westbound lanes of Interstate 410 for eight hours Monday.

The driver of the tractor-trailer, Joseph Pantaloni, 22, told police he was traveling west when another truck coming the wrong way on the highway struck his truck and caused it to overturn.

Diet report put off

WASHINGTON — The National Academy of Sciences has decided against issuing a new report on recommended dietary nutrients because of an "impasse" over interpreting scientific data from a five-year study.

The academy announced Monday that the expected report on recommended dietary allowances, or RDAs, of vitamins and minerals would be delayed until it formed a new committee to study the issue.

Mudslides, floods kill 60 in Puerto Rico

PONCE, Puerto Rico (AP) — Workers dug through the mud and debris of devastated shantytowns early today, seeking more victims of the mudslides and floods that killed at least 60 people and left entire towns cut off.

A major storm passed over the island Monday, dumping as much as seven inches of rain in some places within a 10-hour period. Most major highways were flooded, dozens of bridges were washed out, thousands of people were left homeless and telephone service was disrupted.

There were reports that entire families had died, and officials expected the death toll to rise as communications were restored with isolated towns.

Officials said damage would be in the millions of dollars, calling it Puerto Rico's worst disaster since Hurricane Donna killed 107 people in 1960.

"The number of deaths is large. It is very sad and tragic," said Gov. Rafael Hernandez Colon, who toured the island by helicopter and visited the worst-hit areas in this Caribbean coastal city late Monday. He declared a state of emergency.

Hernandez Colon said he saw six bodies pulled from a river below a collapsed bridge between the southern cities of Santa Isabel and Coamo. Police said three police officers drowned when their car plunged into the river as they went to rescue three other people.

The governor also visited the Mamayes shantytown, where police spokesman Luis Martinez estimated at least 30 people died. Eighteen bodies had been recovered this morning from the one-square-mile shantytown, one of several hillside communities of wood-and-tin shacks in this industrial city of about 190,000 people.

Hernandez Colon said the U.S. Army had sent heavy equipment from Fort Buchanan in central Puerto Rico to help dig out bodies and survivors.

"Many people were apparently buried as they slept," police officer Jose Santiago said.

Martinez said up to 400 homes in Mamayes were buried by the mudslide. Police said initially that as many as 200 people were killed, but municipal officials said later that most people apparently fled before the mudslide.

Two die in violence

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police reported that two blacks died in anti-apartheid violence, and the government announced it would begin allowing South Africans of all races into some movie theaters previously reserved for whites.

The body of a young black woman was found Monday under a heap of burning tires in Motherwell, in eastern Cape Province, police said. No other details were available, but that method often has been used by black crowds to kill suspected informers.

Truce ends fighting

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Police said today that a truce ended heavy fighting between Shiite Moslem militiamen and Palestinian guerrillas near a west Beirut refugee camp that killed seven people and wounded 28.

In Tripoli, Syria completed deployment of 1,000 troops and disarmed rival militias in an attempt to keep the peace there after three weeks of fighting.

Tories begin meeting

BLACKPOOL, England — The Conservative Party opened its annual conference today heavily guarded against IRA terrorist attacks, and fearing that dismal poll ratings indicate Britons have tired of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's tough policies.

The 5,000 delegates gave Thatcher a loud ovation as she arrived in a Victorian conference hall emblazoned with the slogan "Serving The Nation" — an effort by the Tories to soften her image.

U.S. clarifies stand

WASHINGTON — The United States, which is being sued in the World Court over its support for Nicaraguan rebel groups, says it will not fully recognize the jurisdiction of the international tribunal because the court's decisions could damage vital U.S. interests.

The action, announced Monday at the State Department, stems from Nicaragua's charges before the court that the United States was illegally supporting the Contra rebels who want to overthrow Nicaragua's Sandinista government.

Baker asks banks to raise loans to developing nations

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — The Reagan administration today asked private and development banks to come up with $29 billion in additional loans over the next three years to help developing countries improve their living standards.

U.S. Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III unveiled the proposal at a news conference before the opening of the joint International Monetary Fund and World Bank conference in Seoul.

To get the money, developing countries will have to adopt new policies "to promote growth and balance of payments adjustment and to reduce inflation," he said. At the end of last year developing countries were in arrears on $43 billion of their overall debt, which is expected to total $1 trillion by the end of 1985.

Baker said, "Like a chain, a strategy is as strong as the weakest link. All parties must fulfill their responsibilities to achieve the growth that will benefit each of them."

A prominent U.S. banker, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said cooperation would also be needed from banks in Britain, France, West Germany and other major financial nations. The World Bank provides long-term loans for development projects, while the IMF provides short-term loans to help countries with credit problems and helps them arrange loans with commercial banks by setting conditions for economic reform. They both have the same 149 member governments.

The United States is the major contributor to both international organizations, and U.S. agreement is needed for any major changes in functions or financing.

A senior British official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said, "It would certainly be good to see banks increase their lending, but it's a decision they will have to take themselves based on their perception of risks."

Many developing countries are in financial trouble, and are having difficulty making payments on their current debts.

Gerhard Stoltenberg, the West German finance minister, said Baker's proposal goes in the right direction, but that it is still important to reduce the value of the dollar and the high interest rates it supports, and to stop governments from raising protectionist barriers against imports.

Baker's plan calls for commercial banks to increase their lending to poor nations by $20 billion, or about 2.5 percent over present loans. Development banks would increase their lending by roughly 50 percent, or $9 billion.

The president of the World Bank — the largest of the development banks — announced today that he will quit when his five-year term expires next June. He is A. W. Clausen, formerly head of the Bank of America.

Bomb-sniffing dogs and armed combat troops protected the session and especially South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan, who delivered the opening speech. The South Koreans mobilized a security force of 100,000 for the four-day meeting.

Chun attacked governments that protect their own industry at the expense of other countries, but mentioned no country by name.

"I wish to ask all nations to join forces in transforming the danger of economic warfare into cooperation through fair competition..." he said.

GAO reports labor law violations

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of America's lowest-paid workers are being cheated out of overtime pay and minimum wages because the federal government isn't enforcing an important labor law, the General Accounting Office says.

The congressional watchdog agency said in a report to a House labor subcommittee that the Justice and Labor departments often ignore violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act because penalties are light and investigators feel their time is better spent on other projects.

"The maximum penalty for a first conviction — a fine of up to $10,000 — is not considered to be severe by Department of Justice officials, and because of higher priority work, Justice is unlikely to prosecute FLSA violations," said the study, released last week to the subcommittee on labor standards.

"Based on the low priority given by Justice officials to FLSA violations, Labor's position of focusing on civil rather than criminal remedies appears reasonable," it concluded.

The report surveyed Labor

Department records in Washington as well as field offices in Boston, Chicago, Dallas, Atlanta, Kansas City, and San Francisco.

Most of the affected workers do piecework in the apparel industry or are employed in light manufacturing.

The study, requested by subcommittee chairman Austin Murphy, D-Pa., followed up on a 1981 investigation that reported non-compliance with FLSA's minimum wage, overtime and record-keeping provisions was a "serious and continuing problem."

That previous investigation also reported that employers who violated the labor law often went unpunished and that the Labor Department frequently failed to seek maximum compensation for employees who were due back wages. The new report concluded that little has changed in four years.

"Our current review showed that most investigations were not updated before settlement and firms who previously violated FLSA were usually not being monitored and re-investigated," the report said. To help correct the problem, the GAO recommended that government prosecutors routinely seek heavy damage payments in addition to back wages from employers who break the law.

Murphy, who is still studying the report, had no comment.

Assistant Attorney General Lawrence Wallace responded to the report in a letter, saying that stiffer penalties might induce federal prosecutors to more actively pursue FLSA violations.

"GAO may wish to recommend in its report to Congress an amendment to the FLSA allowing a term of imprisonment for convictions when a repeat offender has been subject to a prior civil judgment" under the act, Wallace wrote.

As the law is now written, imprisonment is an option only after an employer's second conviction. The maximum sentence is six months.

Labor Department spokesman Vernon Louviere said Monday night his agency would have no immediate comment.

Airline scrimping is false economy

It is difficult to imagine a more false economy than that of a commercial airline scrimping on maintenance. After all, whatever might be saved by postponing repairs, delaying scheduled overhauls, and using substandard parts would be the merest trifle compared with the disaster risked whenever aviation safety is compromised.

Yet, the Federal Aviation Administration was so certain that American Airlines did all of the above that the agency has fined the airline $1.5 million — the largest penalty ever assessed by the FAA against a commercial air carrier. American Airlines, while not agreeing with all of the FAA's findings, paid the fine rather than formally contest the matter. That may not amount to a legal admission of guilt but it certainly suggests that federal inspectors found more than a few deficiencies in American Airlines' maintenance practices.

And, indeed, it was not the first time that the FAA faulted maintenance at American Airlines. The previous high for an FAA fine was the $500,000 assessed against American in 1979 for maintenance errors that contributed to the crash of a DC-10 — an accident that killed 273 persons.

There is no evidence to date that improper maintenance was involved in any of the crashes of commercial airliners in 1985, the worst year in the history of civil aviation. What is more, the FAA says its inspectors have detected no significant increase in maintenance deficiencies this year, or in any year since airlines began to experience competitive pressures following deregulation of the industry in 1978.

Even so, the corner cutting at American Airlines shows that airlines under pressure — American was financing a major expansion when it allowed maintenance to slip — may be tempted to risk foolish, and dangerous, economies. All the more reason, then, for the FAA's 500 maintenance inspectors to be looking more closely than ever, and for Congress to approve the agency's proposed 50 percent increase in inspectors during the next three years.

Advance proof is required

An esteemed doctor friend of mine told me the other day that he needed $50,000 for a research project.

I was honest and told him I didn't have it. "Why don't you go to a foundation?" I said.

"That's why I need the money," he replied, "to prove to the foundation that my research is worthy of getting a grant."

"That's stupid," I said. "You think that because you don't have to deal with the foundation. Originally, the purpose of foundations was to give money for projects which might or might not work. But now the people handing out grants have to prove to their boards they are giving money to successful, as opposed to unsuccessful, research. No foundation wants to be associated with experiments that don't pan out."

"Wait a minute, I thought that was what research was all about. If it was guaranteed to work, it couldn't be called research."

"That's the way people treated research in the past," my doctor friend said, "but this country is now very performance-oriented. It wants winners from the start. Even the government won't give you research funds unless you can prove the results will be positive."

"Give me an example," I said, still not believing him.

"Let us say I have a theory that the lack of a protein in a cell causes the cell to feed off the proteins in other cells. It's a theory, it has a basis in fact. While studying cells, we discovered weak ones were cannibalizing healthy ones."

"Since it's only a theory, we must devise an experiment to see if it can be proven or not. Last week I went to a foundation and asked for a grant to do this. The man in charge replied, 'How do you propose to prove it?'"

"I told him I honestly had no idea. I would have to start from scratch."

"I'll bet he didn't like that," I said.

"You bet he didn't," my doctor friend told me. "He said, 'What kind of foundation do you think this is to give you money to experiment on a project that you have no idea how to attack?'"

"I told him, 'If I knew how to attack the problem I wouldn't need the money from the grant.' And he said, 'You're going to have to do better than that. Suppose your theory about the cells doesn't fly? How do I explain that to the board?'"

The doctor continued. "I said, 'Not all experiments come out the way you want them to. The only ones that do are on television or in the movies. I have a team ready to risk three years of their lives on this, win or lose. If we're wrong, it could be just as important to science as if we're right.'"

"The foundation man said, 'It may be important to science to be wrong, but my foundation people would rather have something with more Nobel Prize potential. Now if you get the seed money to prove to us your theory has a 9-to-1 chance of holding up, we'll give you the grant money. But we're not going to throw away our dollars if we can't see a light at the end of the tunnel.'"

"No," the doctor replied, "I've been through it before. Even the government wants results before they'll give you grant money to study something. I know one doctor at the National Institutes of Health who was cut off because, by eliminating one problem, he created three others. He was told that government scientists could no longer create new problems in research. While there was still money for old problems, the word is out that if they lead to new problems, NIH doesn't want to hear about them."

"Do you believe," I asked my friend, "that with $50,000 you can prove your theory?'"

"It's hard to say. Why do you ask?'"

"Well, how can I ask my friends for seed money for you if what you're trying to do turns out to be a flop?'"

"I'll bet he didn't like that," I said.

"You bet he didn't," my doctor friend told me. "He said, 'What kind of foundation do you think this

High times on the high seas

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — Some luxury-loving State Department and U.S. Information Agency employees have been taking advantage of permissive travel regulations to book passage on posh cruise ships when they take their families on home leave between assignments.

The taxpayers foot the bill for these vacations, which cost several times what the airfare would be. Travel records of the two agencies show that in fiscal years 1982 to 1984, a total of 260 employees and dependents elected to travel by sea, as the rules allow. The cost was $556,232 — more than $400,000 higher than airline tickets would have been.

The public first heard about this abuse of federal trade regulations last year, when the General Accounting Office reported to Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas, that one USIA employee being transferred to Washington from Uruguay included a $14,400 ride up the Mississippi on the riverboat Delta Queen as part of his family's travel arrangements.

Brooks was so outraged that he asked the auditors to do some more research. They found that the Delta Queen wasn't the only floating royalty favored by Foreign Service and USIA employees. Out of the 260 seafaring travelers, 120 chose to go — first-class all the way — on the pride of the British passenger fleet, the Queen Elizabeth II.

The total cost for the QEII trips was $289,305. Airfare would have been roughly $81,000.

Our associate Tony Capaccio found these examples among the records of the Queen's travelers:

- One State Department employee with six dependents flew from India to Spokane, Wash., for home leave. Then the family completed their circumnavigation of the globe by flying to New York, taking the QEII to Southampton and continuing on to India by air. The five-day cruise across the Atlantic cost the taxpayers $18,407; airfare from New York to London would have been $4,732.

- A State Department employee and his wife headed home to Los Angeles from Pakistan by flying to Bangkok and embarking on a 19-day cruise aboard the Queen Elizabeth to Hawaii, where they took a plane the rest of the way home. The cruise aboard the luxury liner alone set the taxpayers back $15,050; the couple could have flown from Pakistan to Los Angeles for less than $3,000.

- A State Department employee going on home leave from Bombay took his three dependents to London by air. They caught the QEII at Southampton, arriving five days later in New York. The Atlantic crossing cost the taxpayers $10,718, instead of the $2,704 it would have cost to fly.

- A group of six USIA employees and dependents being transferred to Washington from posts in Pakistan and India sailed on the Queen Elizabeth for $16,576, or $12,520 more than airfare would have cost.

The official Foreign Affairs Manual encourages employees to take the most direct and economical routes to and from their foreign posts. But the regulations don't prohibit traveling by sea, and many employees evidently assume that a leisurely cruise on a luxury liner is just one of the perquisites of serving abroad. While USIA employees may go by ship only one way, the State Department lets its people travel by sea both homeward and outward bound.

State Department Comptroller Roger Feldman did not return our calls. A USIA spokesman declined comment on grounds that a legal case on the matter is pending.

KREMLIN WATCH: When the German magazine Stern asked Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle why he thought the Soviets boycotted the Olympic games in Los Angeles last year, Perle suggested it was because the Kremlin couldn't be sure how many Soviet athletes would defect. "It's not for nothing," he added, "that a joke in the Soviet Union is: 'What is a Soviet string quartet?' Answer: A Soviet symphony orchestra after a concert in the United States."

SCANDAL OF THE WEEK: Since 1975 it has been illegal to sell turtles under 4 inches long in this country. The reason is that they are prone to carry disease when they're that small. But the Food and Drug Administration can do little to stop the sale of undersize turtles to Japan, the United Kingdom, Yugoslavia, Guam and Puerto Rico. An American Medical Association survey found salmonella in 89 percent of the little turtles shipped to Puerto Rico, and one child was infected with salmonella for every 1,000 turtles sold there. The AMA wants the export of tiny turtles from the United States prohibited.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Where are the expressions of outrage? The French government recently made an astounding admission: Its agents were sent to New Zealand with orders to blow up the vessel Rainbow Warrior, which was going to lead a protest flotilla to France's nuclear testing area. One man was killed in this act of state-sponsored terrorism. Where, we wonder, are the expressions of moral indignation from France's allies — especially the United States? The reaction seems to be that the French were merely protecting their interests. But this is an unacceptable position. It sounds disturbingly like the apologists for the Soviet Union when it shot down the Korean airliner two years ago.

Drugs at work pose problem

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I recently realized that one of my friends at work has gotten into cocaine and other drugs pretty heavily. It is beginning to affect his job, although I have quietly covered up for him so that the boss wouldn't find out. Am I right to keep doing this? — J.S.

DEAR J.S.: I know it is tempting to do what seems easiest and least offensive to someone we have to deal with every day. But that is a wrong policy to have, especially in this case.

The question you must ask is this: "What does God want me to do in this situation?" On the basis of the Bible, the answer is clear: You should do what is in your friend's best interests. Is it in his best interests to continue getting deeper into drugs? Is it in his best interests for you to allow him to eventually destroy himself? Of course not! If his dependence on drugs is not reversed, he will not only lose his job (the matter how much you cover up for him), but he will end up destroying himself.

Your friend needs help, and in the long run, you will not be doing him a favor by helping him avoid it. Go to him privately, and let him know that you not only know of his problem but you want to point him to the help he needs. If that does not work, you have little choice but to alert his boss. Many companies now have regular programs for employees who have drug or alcohol problems.

More than that, your friend needs Christ. Only Christ can give him a lasting purpose for living, and only Christ can give him the strength he needs to fight the grip of drugs. And if you do not know Christ yourself, invite Him into your heart by faith. Seeing Christ's power at work in your life could make a real difference in your friend's life.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Oct. 8, the 281st day of 1985. There are 84 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Oct. 8, 1871, the Great Chicago Fire began in Mrs. O'Leary's barn. However, the popular story that a cow had kicked over a lantern was untrue. By the time it was over, the fire had claimed more than 200 lives and burned more than 2,100 acres.

On this date: In 1869, the 14th President of the United States, Franklin Pierce, died at the age of 64, 12 years after leaving the White House.

In 1918, Sergeant Alvin C. York almost single-handedly killed 25 German soldiers and captured 132 in the Argonne Forest in France.

In 1934, Bruno Hauptmann was indicted for murder in the death of the infant son of Charles A. Lindbergh.

In 1945, President Harry S. Truman announced that the secret of the atomic bomb would be shared only with Britain and Canada.

In 1956, Don Larsen pitched the only perfect game ever in a World Series as the New York Yankees beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, 2-0.

In 1970, exiled Soviet author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature.

Ten years ago: Heavy fighting in Beirut and northern Lebanon shattered a truce between warring Christian and Moslem factions.

Five years ago: Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev signed a 20-year cooperation treaty with Syria. At a Moscow dinner for Syrian President Hafez Assad, Brezhnev warned the West to stay out of the Iran-Iraq war.

Three years ago, the Polish parliament banned all labor organizations in Poland, including Solidarity.

One year ago: In an address to the United Nations General Assembly, the President of El Salvador, Jose Napoleon Duarte, unexpectedly offered to hold peace talks with leftist guerrillas.

Gluch to move to Michigan

John Gluch, superintendent of the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp, will be transferred to another prison in late November or early December, he said Monday. He will be replaced by Anthony L. Belaski of Ashland, Ky. Gluch said he will be transferred to United States Federal Correctional Institution in Milan, Mich. That institution is classified as Level Three Administrative, meaning "it can hold middle to maximum security," he said. Big Spring Federal Camp is classified as Level One, meaning it necessitates minimal security, Gluch said. An exact date for the transfer has not been announced, he said. Gluch was informed of the transfer from a federal prison board director last Thursday, he said. Since his arrival at Big Spring Federal Camp in June 1984 from the Philadelphia northeast regional office, Gluch has seen the inmate population double from 300 to more than 600 inmates. During that time, he said, the authorized 106-member federal camp staff did not increase. "That's one of the most significant notes I remember," Gluch said. The highlight of his tenure in Big Spring was the camp's accreditation by the American Correctional Association last June, he said. "It was a huge effort from our inmates and staff," Gluch said. Belaski is currently an associate warden at the Federal Corrections Institute in Ashland, Ky., Gluch said. That prison is classified as Level Three, or "a medium security facility," Gluch said.

Twelve students qualify for all-district choir

Twelve members of the Big Spring High School choir qualified for All-District choir during auditions Saturday at Odessa High School. The students are Dana Anderson, Nicole Bash, Bryan Bailey, Sharla Bailey, Shelly Brasel, Mike Carroll, Kathryn Dawes, Malinda Ellison, Joanna Hamilton, Dianna LeFevre, Rockie Sharpnack and Rebecca Thompson. The students will participate in a one-day clinic and concert Oct. 26 at Permian High School.

The clinician will be Dr. Donald Bailey, Texas Tech choral director. To qualify for the All-District choir, the students performed excerpts from four compositions selected by the 1986 All-State Choir clinician, Donald Nueen. In the auditions, the students must exhibit knowledge of the musical language, facility in vocal technique and flexibility in performing various musical styles, according to a news release.

Streets to close

The city Public Works Department will close two streets to through traffic today and Wednesday for priming, a process that readies streets for paving. Closed will be State Street from Fifth Street to Ridge Road and Sixth Street from Settles to Donley streets.

Residents on those blocks will have access, said a department spokeswoman. However, the department suggests residents not drive their cars on those roads as they will be oily and could mess up cars.

Midway Plumbing can help customers cut energy bills

Midway Plumbing can help you cut your heating and cooling bills with their energy management systems and devices. In addition to its line of water heaters, Midway also carries tankless water heaters. These devices can save up to 50 percent of your water heating costs by instantly heating water with a hot coil when the faucet is turned on. The coil turns off when the faucet is turned off. The only time it uses electricity to heat water is when the faucet is on. For the working family, Midway Plumbing can install an energy-saving thermostat. This timing device automatically sets the temperature back while you are away or asleep at night and returns it to a more comfortable temperature a few minutes prior to your return. Every degree a thermostat is set back, says Gary Belew, you can knock three to six percent savings off of your heating and cooling bills. The thermostat also is backed by a manufacturer's guarantee of 25 percent savings off utility bills. In conjunction with the thermostat, the use of a device that attaches to your air conditioner/heater unit can save you 40 percent on your utility bills, Belew said. This item keeps the unit's fan operating little longer after the unit cuts off in order to purge the ducts of trapped heated or cooled air. Midway also carries solar heating units for your home and swimming pool. Belew suggests that home owners take advantage of the 40 percent federal solar tax credit while it's available. For any solar heating package you purchase, the government will give a 40 percent tax credit of the total cost of the package. It's available until Dec. 31, 1985. Midway's service people can install all these energy-saving devices into your home. Call today for an in-home energy survey appointment. The firm can help you decide what methods can help reduce your home energy bills. Come see Midway's solar heated showroom, and call them at 267-2586 for all your plumbing, solar and energy management needs.

A special photographic exhibition goes on free-admission display Monday in the Howard College Library. Entitled "Songs of Glory," the 20-panel show includes more than 70 full-color close-up studies of unique artworks that were crafted by unknown men and women between the years 900 and 1500 A.D.

The photo exhibit highlights secular as well as religious art of the era in a series of images on the theme of Courtly Love and a selection of works produced for private ownership.

Accompanying the exhibition is a short audio/slide presentation, which will be shown by appointment throughout the three-week period. Screenings will be held in the library or a special presentation can be made by contacting Howard College.

Based on an exhibition of artifacts organized by the Oklahoma Museum of Art early in 1985, this photographic version was researched and organized by Dr. Susan Caldwell of the University of Oklahoma.

Production and travel have been handled by the Texas Humanities Resource Center of the University of Texas at Arlington Library under a major grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities.

To many viewers, the artworks may seem odd and misshapen, even unartistic, for the centuries have not been kind, especially to sculpted heads that once adorned cathedrals and chapels.

One of the great buildings of the era, the Abbey Church of St. Denis, was destroyed during the French Revolution, while others were heavily damaged by bombs during World War II. Thus, it may be miraculous that these sculpted heads, with their broken noses and ears, exist at all.

Even in their damaged state, they are powerful pieces, reminders of a period when angels, saints and spirits were very real to the people.

For more information about the exhibition and the media program, contact Linda Woodley at 267-6311, ext. 229. Guided tours for groups may be arranged through the Community Relations office.

Hall-Bennett names outstanding employee

Becky Gonzales is the Outstanding Employee of the Quarter for October through December at Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital, according to hospital officials.

When told by Charles Weeg, hospital administrator, that she had won the award, Gonzales said, "I can't believe that the hospital I was born in in 1955 has honored me with this award."

She has worked at Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital since 1976 as a medical transcriptionist. Gonzales must know the doctors and be aware of their dictating habits, hospital officials said.

Wanda Arencebia, director of medical records, said, "She has proven to be a most valuable and conscientious employee who combines dexterity and proficiency that can be rivaled by very few."

Gonzales graduated from Big Spring High School in 1974. She has an associate of arts degree from Howard College.

BECKY GONZALES
She and her husband, Amador Jr., and son Amador, reside at 1008 S. Goliad. They are members of St. Thomas Catholic Church. Her husband is assistant foreman for the Missouri Pacific Railroad. Hobbies include bowling, golfing and aerobics.

Dear Abby

Tall tales make teen feel short-changed

DEAR ABBY: I am a male freshman at the University of Michigan. I am 5 feet 10 inches tall, but when I arrived at school, I found I was one of the shortest guys here. Back home in New York, I am considered average height.

I just spoke to my 6-foot-2 roommate who tells me that I am "short." Abby, in New York, 5 feet 10 inches is not considered short.

Am I crazy, or are the guys in the Midwest taller than the guys in the East? Also, what is the average height for men in the United States? I thought it was 5 feet 10 inches.

FEELING SHORT FROM NYC
DEAR FEELING: You are not short; you are taller than the average. According to the National Center for Health Statistics, the average height for an American male is 5 feet 7 inches.

Regional statistics are not available, so I can't tell you if men grow taller in the Midwest than they do in the East, but off the top of my head I'd guess that the average Swede in Minneapolis is taller than the average Irishman in Boston.

DEAR ABBY: I am dismayed when I see my smart, handsome college-age grandsons remain slouched in their chairs when they are introduced to older people.

College fraternities used to polish up the manners of their pledges in a hurry if their parents had not taught them basic etiquette.

These grandsons are my sons' children, and I've considered giving each one some private instruction. (Their manners are atrocious.)

What else should I tell them besides, "Always stand when a lady or older person enters the room. Also, hold the door open for women, hold their coats and seat them at the dinner table?"

My grandsons jump into an automobile, taking the best seats for themselves while I scramble for myself.

The father of the two grandsons who are most in need of lessons in manners is divorced, so I don't want to confront him with this problem. Can you help me?

OHIO GRANDMOTHER

DEAR GRANDMOTHER: First, have a private talk with your grandsons to find out if they're interested in improving their manners. The rules you mentioned are elementary, but more will come to mind as the boys interact in a social setting.

And grandmother, divorced fathers are not exempt from teaching their children consideration for others, which is really what basic good manners is all about.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 17-year-old high school senior with a problem I can't talk to anybody about. I think I have some kind of venereal disease. Please don't tell me to talk to my parents or a teacher at school or a clergyman. I just can't. Can you send me a list of symptoms? I need to know as soon as possible. Thank you.

ANONYMOUS IN SANTA ANA, CALIF.

DEAR ANONYMOUS: There is a national, toll-free VD Hotline you can call. The number is 1-800-227-8922. In California, it's 1-800-982-5883. Trained operators will answer all your questions relating to VD — and your call will be absolutely confidential regardless of your age. Please call immediately. The hours, Monday through Friday, are: 11 a.m.-11 p.m. Eastern time; 10 a.m.-10 p.m. Central time; 9 a.m.-9 p.m. Mountain time; 8 a.m.-8 p.m. Pacific time.

Dr. Donohue

Extra red blood cells bring symptoms

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm a female in my 70s. I've never read anything about a person having too many red blood cells. That is what my doctor claims I have. It's making my blood too thick. Could this be making me tired all the time? Can it lead to dizziness, which I also have at times? — Mrs. M.

You'll have to get a more specific name for what's ailing you. There are different causes of polycythemia, the general name for an overabundance of red cells.

In one form, the red cell problem occurs with too many white cells and too many blood platelets (the clotting cells). That can lead to clots inside vessels. And, paradoxically, even though there are more than enough of the clotting cells, bleeding can also be a problem.

Your dizziness and fatigue are part of the picture, reflecting a sluggish circulation.

What I have described is true polycythemia. In this kind, the skin takes on a reddish tinge. And that gives it its longer name, polycythemia rubra (for red) vera. We're not sure why this happens to some people.

There is a form of polycythemia where we can pinpoint a cause of the hyped red blood cell production. An example is the kind heavy smokers may develop. Because the smoking reduces the oxygen in their blood, the body, sensing this, tries to make up by producing more red cells in hopes of grabbing all the oxygen it can.

It behooves you to pursue this matter. If you have the true polycythemia you may require periodic blood removal. And you may also need medicine to cut back a bit on red blood cells production.

Right now, you've got me hanging in suspense.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have prostate cancer. I am a prime candidate for implantation of radioactive iodine "seeds." My doctor did say that I had other options, but didn't say what they were. Your comment on the seed idea please.

You are lucky that your cancer is at a stage that permits the luxury of options.

The seed implantation alternative is a good one, if it can be used. Some prostate cancers can be treated by implanting small pellets of radioactive material into the gland. The material gets to the actual site of the problem without having to go through normal tissue to work, as would be the case if radiation had to be applied from the outside. And with this treatment you get the radiation dose all at once; you don't have to keep going back in for treatment. The radiation seeds work by killing the cells at the tumor center.

Seed implantation has been in use for many years now. Options in such cancer treatment usually depend on various factors, such as age, general health and tumor size and degree of spread. I'm happy to hear your cancer can be treated this way.

Were I offered this option to conventional radiation or surgery, I would not hesitate to accept it. You'll find your other prostate questions answered in the booklet I am sending, "The Pesky Prostate." Other readers may obtain it by writing me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Lusk gives program on 'Spirit — Visions of Spring'

The Big Spring Garden Club met Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Ross Boykin with Mrs. John Hogan as co-hostess.

Mrs. Clyde Angel presided. Debra Lusk of Green Acres Nursery spoke on "Spirit — Visions of Spring." She discussed what to plant now and how to prepare for next spring.

She said pansies are appropriate now and will show their colors through cold weather. Other flowering plants to consider planting now are chrysanthemums, calendulas, violas (Johnny Jump-ups), carnations, dianthas and Shasta lilies.

October is the month to plant bulbs, tulips, daffodils, jonquils, crocus and hyacinths. Lusk said to select the biggest bulbs for large bloom in the season.

She also said King Alfred daffodils are best for this area. Charts were passed out for planting. Bulbs are best almost anywhere in well-drained soil along fences, walks, driveways or terraces.

Lusk said for best effects, plant tulips, daffodils and hyacinths of the same variety in groups of ten or more. Put bone meal in holes for tulips and treat with super phosphate.

Lusk said iris rizons, both bearded and Dutch, should be planted now. Dig and divide older plants and plant new ones now.

Club members were reminded of the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs luncheon Oct. 12 at noon at Garrett Hall of First United Methodist Church. Proceeds for the luncheon go to provide the Johnny Johansen Scholarship Fund at Howard College.

The District I meeting of the Texas Garden Clubs Inc. will be held Nov. 14 in Kermit at the Methodist Church. Several local members will attend.

The next meeting is Nov. 6 in the home of Mrs. D.O. Gray, 102 Washington Blvd.

Crossroads Chalk Talk

It was a long week for Crossroads Country area teams. Only two managed wins as nearly everyone ran into some stiff competition during the 5th week of football action.

Forsan continued to prove it's one of the top Class A teams in the state, whitewashing a fine O'Donnell squad, 10-0. After a long wait, the Grady Wildcats finally won their first game of the season. The Wildcats did it in style, with a 67-21 drubbing of Paint Creek.

But after that, it was all downhill for area squads. District 7-3A teams Colorado City and Coahoma took their lumps this week. The Colorado City Wolves dropped its third consecutive game, losing a 18-7 decision to Clyde. Coahoma got its homecoming ruined by Abilene Wylie, 34-0.

District 8-2A team Stanton also got a bad reception from Seagraves on the Buffaloes homecoming. The Eagles flew to a 37-0 win over Stanton.

Borden County and Garden City both lost heartbreakers in the waning minutes of the game. Rule scored last to nip Borden County 28-24 while Presidio scored twice in the final four minutes to down Garden City 23-19.

The Sands Mustangs lost their second consecutive game as they were beaten by Wilson 36-7. The Klondike Cougars were defeated 58-0 by Iraan, one of the top Class A teams in the state.

Here is what Crossroads coaches had to say about last Friday's games and this week's opponents.

DUKE FRISBEE, BORDEN COUNTY — On last week's close loss to Rule.

"I think we pretty much outplayed them but turnovers hurt us. We fumbled once at their 15-yardline and once at their 20. It's really frustrating when you get down to it. We felt like we should have won."

"We've played a tough non-district game and it has helped us. Although we don't always win, we feel like it helps because we know we've played the best."

"McCaulley (next opponent) is a run-oriented team. We'll have to shut that down. District is starting and we're starting all over, it's a new season."

DUKE FRISBEE

TONY STRICKLIN

TONY STRICKLIN, GARDEN CITY — On Presidio's come-from-behind victory.

"A game like that leaves you very flat. It hurts when you lose like that. We had some costly breakdowns at the last. But kids recover faster than coaches and parents, so they'll bounce back."

"Forsan (next opponent) is a better team than last year. They have a tough defense, excellent backs and good receivers. They line up and come right at you, I don't suspect they'll do anything different against us. They are number eight (Harris) in the state, there is no pressure on us, we have everything to gain."

DALE RUTH, STANTON — On trying to contain Seagraves' speed.

"They just had too much speed for us. They had the one back (Russell Jones) that broke the long runs, plus they were so quick we had trouble picking up their defensive stunts."

"Eldorado (first district game) is a new start for us. We'll have Kevin (Glaspie, QB) and Mark (Gonzales, WR) back so our passing game will pick up. In non-district we've found what we need to improve on, now we must do it."

"The key to stopping Elorado is shutting down their tailback Jay O'Hara."

DANNY WILHELM, SANDS — On playing powerful Roscoe on homecoming night. — "Don't ask me why we're playing one of the state's top ranked team on homecoming. Roscoe is a very good football team. They have a super quarterback in Matt Denman. He's been running the Veer since his freshmen year. He's really the key to their offense."

"Last week turnovers hurt us. You can't fumble three times against a good football team. There were some bright spots though. Our passing game and secondary looked good."

TOM RAMSEY, COLORADO CITY — On Wolves third consecutive loss. — "It was a tough loss. The stats indicate we outplayed Clyde. We spotted them three touchdowns in the first quarter and shut them down after that. Four interceptions hurt us along with three penetrations in which we didn't score."

"Whenever Coahoma (next opponent) and Colorado City play it's like Texas-Oklahoma week. Although it's a good friendly rivalry, it will be 48 minutes of warfare Friday. I expect a good game from both teams. Coahoma will get after you."

JAN EAST, FORSAN — After getting past a tough O'Donnell squad. — "After defeating Rankin and O'Donnell we feel like we've got a pretty good football team. I was real pleased with our defense. We held them without scoring three times inside our 20. As far as we are concerned, the defense won the game for us."

"Garden City (next opponent) has always been a good grudge match because we're only 20 miles apart. They always get after you. We're not looking past them."

JAN EAST

TOM HAM

TOM HAM, KLONDIKE — On losing to powerful Iraan — "Iraan is by far the best team we've played. They are ranked number two in the Harris Poll. They are fundamentally sound and don't make mistakes. They completely dominated us in the first half, in the second half we moved the ball better but we shot ourself in the foot with three turnovers."

"The kids are taking their lumps right now, but they are hanging in there. They never did quit, they have a super attitude."

CURRIE McWILLIAMS, GRADY — Concerning his team's first win. — "It was nice, but to tell you the truth, they were a little weaker than we expected them to be. It's a great confidence builder for the kids. When you play teams like Dawson, Christoval and Jayton, all ranked in the top 10, you tend to get down because you lose."

"Paint Creek was a good team so we know we can play. We just played some very good teams. Our defense was great, it controlled the tempo. This team (Paint Creek) scored 59 points on Ira the week before. The player most responsible for our win was the play of defensive end Wade Miller. Anytime you make 15 solo tackles, then you've played a great game."

"Smyer (next opponent) is playing its first year of Six-Man football, but they are improving. They have one tailback that is very quick. The key is stopping him."

KC, Toronto open playoffs

TORONTO (AP) — Can the Toronto Blue Jays find a way to solve those pesky Kansas City lefties that have plagued them all season?

That answer, and the key to the American League playoffs, could come tonight when the teams meet in Game 1.

Royals Manager Dick Howser plans a parade of three left-handers in the first four games of the best-of-seven matchup.

"I had to choose from five starters, and hated to have to do it," Howser. "The left-handed thing wasn't the only reason we did what we did."

But, look at what Howser's left-handers did against Toronto in 1985.

Charlie Leibrandt, who will start the opener, was 2-0 and had a 1.72 earned run average against Toronto.

Bud Black, who will start Game 2 Wednesday, was 10-15 overall but 2-0 with a 2.28 ERA against the Blue Jays.

Danny Jackson, 1-0 with a 1.99 ERA in three starts, will pitch the fourth game.

Howser will have Bret Saberhagen, 20-6, pitch the third game and will use Mark Gubicza, 14-10, in long relief.

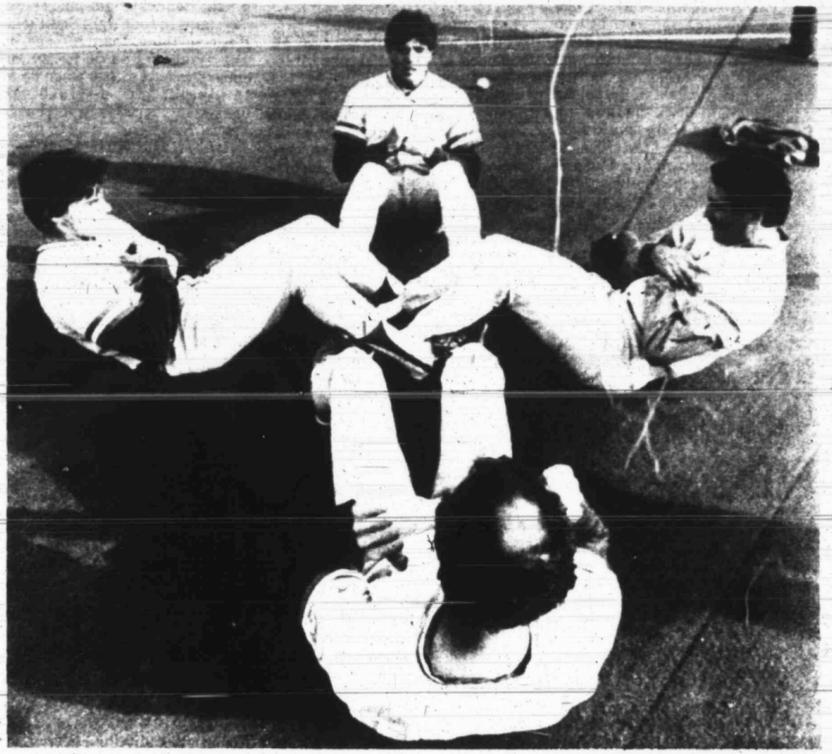

"We'll do OK," countered Jesse Barfield, who hit 27 home runs for Toronto. "We've done some things to improve in that area. I don't want to give away what we've done."

The Blue Jays won 99 games in taking their first-ever AL East championship, but were just 24-26 against left-handers.

Runs may be hard to come by in this series. Toronto led the league in team pitching and the Royals were second, and most of the games between the teams this year were low-scoring. Kansas City won the series 7-5.

Dave Stieb, who led the league with a 2.48 ERA but finished with just a 14-13 record, will start tonight for the Blue Jays. Leibrandt, 17-9, was second in the AL with a 2.69 ERA.

"The runs haven't coincided with my games," Stieb said. "We've had that happen to a pitcher every year. It happened to me this year. I started off the season giving up two runs a game and getting no decisions. Then, I'd pitch a shutout and win 8-0."

Stieb will face a Kansas City lineup led by an even hotter than usual George Brett.

Brett, after slumping for the first part of September, hit five key home runs in the last week of the season to help the Royals overtake California in the AL West. Brett finished with a .335 average, second to Wade Boggs' .368.

Stieb, a power pitcher, has had trouble with the Royals' top power hitter, Steve Balboni.

Balboni was third in the league with 36 home runs. He hit three against Toronto, including two off Stieb.

"He's a mistake hitter," Stieb said simply. "The key is not to make any mistakes."

Balboni, who struck out 166 times, said Stieb "doesn't make many mistakes. If he does and you miss it, you're in bad shape."

Tonight's game gave both the Blue Jays and Royals something extra to attain.

Toronto, one of the best teams in baseball for the past three years, has not yet gotten the recognition it should have received.

"You ask anyone who is the center fielder for the Blue Jays and he couldn't say," said Toronto center fielder Lloyd Moseby, who hit 18 homers, stole 37 bases and has one of the best arms in the game. "They might say Willie Mays, for all they know."

The Royals, meanwhile, can help boost the image of both Howser and the Western Division.

Howser, considered one of the better managers in the majors, is 0-9 in postseason games.

"I'm sure I'll hear a lot about that," he said with a shrug of the shoulders.

The AL West also has fared poorly in the postseason. The Royals, who beat New York in the 1980 playoffs, are the only Western team to have won the league pennant since 1974.

"I think this is a pretty even series," said Howser, whose team is rated a slight underdog.

Rejuvenated 'Skins blast Cards, 27-10

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hold the flowers. Cancel the obituary notice. The Washington Redskins live.

Faced with what Coach Joe Gibbs called "as much a must-win as I've been a part of" after losing three of their first four games, the Redskins got back into the race for the NFC East they've won three straight times by beating the St. Louis Cardinals 27-10 Monday night.

Washington won the National Football League game with dominating performances from its offense, defense and special teams.

The ground-oriented offense got 104 yards from George Rogers and 103 from John Riggins and the defense picked off five passes and registered four sacks, three by Charles Mann. And the maligned special teams, blamed for a 45-10 loss in Chicago last week, didn't allow the Cardinals to start a series beyond their own 26 until the fourth quarter.

"We needed to win and we needed to play well more than at any time in the last five years," an ebullient Gibbs said. "I felt we played as well as we can play."

"If you put the emotion of this football team on a scale of 1 to 10, we were 11 tonight," said quarterback Joe Theismann, who completed 11 of 20 passes for 83 yards and two touchdowns and bootlegged 14 yards for a third score.

The emotion was there from the start for the Redskins.

After St. Louis went 1-2-3-punt from their own 16 following the opening kickoff, Ken Jenkins returned Carl Birdsong's punt to the Cardinal 49 — only the second time in five games that the Redskins had started on an opponent's side of midfield.

Six plays later, on fourth-and-one at the 14, Theismann faked to Riggins, stuck the ball on his hip and rolled in for the first score while 11 Cardinals chased after Riggins.

On the next series, Mel Kaufman recovered a Roy Green fumble on the St. Louis 25, leading to Mark Moseley's 33-yard field goal and a 10-0 lead.

The Cards never really got back in the game.

Neil O'Donoghue kicked a 22-yard field goal early in the second quarter to cut it to 10-3, but the Redskins countered with a 56-yard drive consisting of eight runs and a 10-yard TD pass to Gary Clark and it was 17-3 at halftime.

Moseley kicked a 29-yarder in the third quarter.

Big Spring set for Central showdown

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The biggest game for Big Spring volleyball in the '80's will take place tonight at 7:30 p.m. when the Big Spring Lady Steers battle the San Angelo Central Bobcats at Bobcat Gym.

The tilt, being billed as "Showdown No. 1," will decide who will take over first place in the District 4-5A volleyball race. Although Central did defeat Big Spring 15-6, 15-4 earlier at the San Angelo Invitational Tournament. Both teams come into the contest undefeated, with 6-0 district records. This is the final game of the first round of play. The loser of the game will start the second round of play Saturday with sole possession of second place; on the right road to a playoff berth.

Coach Susan Sharp's Lady Steers, who have a 17-7 overall record, are playing some of their best ball of the season, according to their coach. "We're more consistent right now," said Sharp. At the start of the season we had maybe one or two people per game who played consistent. Now the whole team plays that way."

"Overall, Central is not as strong as they were last season. They don't have the balance they have last year. They don't have as many dominating players."

Sharp knows that it will take a good, consistent game to beat the Bobcats, last year's runner-up at the state tourney.

Under the direction of new coach Cynthia Williams, the Bobcats, 17-5, have three returning starters from that squad. They are led by All-

State spiker Anita Allgood, a player Sharp says is in her class by herself. "Anita Allgood is just a superb player. Lord knows what her vertical jump is. She is a real powerful spiker."

Other Central returners include setter Judy Fillpot and spiker Kathy Klepac. Rounding out the lineup is Pam Rose, who saw considerable action last year, Lisa Davis and Lisa Uzzolino.

Sharp will counter with setter Lisa Hale, middle blocker Sheri Myrick and spikers Monique Jones, Tab Green, Tammi Green and Katrina Thompson.

The Big Spring coach insists her team won't do anything different to contain Allgood. "We're not going to worry about it, we'll just go out there and play our game. If we play well, we can beat them."

Spinks looking for contender

By the Associated Press
Promoter Don King is tied to most of the leading heavyweights, including two champions, but promoter Butch Lewis has THE heavyweight — the third champion, Michael Spinks.

Spinks became the first light heavyweight champion to become a heavyweight champ when he won the International Boxing Federation title from Larry Holmes, who generally was regarded as the premier heavyweight in the world.

Spinks might share the title with Pinklon Thomas of the World Boxing Council and Tony Tubbs of the World Boxing Association, but he is the hot property in what has become a lukewarm division.

Lewis is getting calls.

One of them came from the connections of Frank Bruno of Britain, who last week knocked out Anders Eklund of Sweden for the European heavyweight championship, a title that doesn't necessarily denote fighting ability. Bruno helped get James "Boncrusher" Smith a title fight against Holmes by getting knocked out after winning the first nine rounds in a 1984 fight.

Since then, Bruno hasn't fought anybody with a reputation of knowing how to fight.

The British press reportedly is pushing Bruno as the first opponent for Spinks, who will relinquish the undisputed light heavyweight title.

"It's not true," Lewis said. "At this point, Bruno doesn't fit our plans."

Lewis' plans for Spinks' first defense, which will be "in all likelihood in early February," include two fighters.

"There is the possibility of a Holmes rematch or a fight with Gerry Cooney," Lewis said.

Cooney, who announced his retirement recently, has said he would like to fight Spinks in March.

"If I'm successful in the fight, I would love to give Larry Holmes the opportunity he never gave me in a rematch, and I would love to get back in and face him again," Cooney said Sunday on ABC-TV.

But if actions speak louder than words, Cooney has been virtually speechless since he was stopped by Holmes June 11, 1982. He's had two fights since then.

"I've not talked to Cooney or (manager Dennis) Rappaport," Lewis said. "But Cooney would bring big dollars to the table for Michael."

On their track records, Rappaport and Cooney also would bring outrageous demands.

Lewis admitted that he felt a rematch with Holmes was most likely for Spinks' first defense. It is a fight Holmes might take.

"That's the one fight that I'd take if I do anything," said Holmes, who was attempting to tie Rocky Marciano's record of 49-0 when he lost to Spinks on a close, but unanimous, decision Sept. 21 at Las Vegas, Nev.

Holmes, who will be 36 on Nov. 3, said he has been given the green light by doctors after "being checked from my head down to my toes."

Holmes, who was a champion more than seven years, said a neck problem that had bothered him had been diagnosed as a muscle spasm.

Another fight people would like to see would be Spinks against either Thomas or Tubbs — or both — to unify the title. Lewis would like to see that, too, but on his terms.

"Let Tubbs and Thomas fight, and we'd be willing to fight the winner," Lewis said.

BRAD HANLON ... tops on special teams

STACEY KILGORE ... 1st interception

CARL SPECK ... good night passing

PAUL DECKER ... open field tackler

JAY BURCHAM ... tough in trenches

PAUL SOTELLO ... O-Line standout

Burcham, Decker share top honors

Steers defensive players Jay Burcham and Paul Decker received the top honors in last Friday's loss to Odessa Permian.

Burcham, a 6-2, 215-pound junior tackle, turned in one of his finest performances against Mojo. He tied with Decker for the team lead in unassisted tackles with 7. In all he totaled 11 tackles for the game.

Decker, a 5-10, 170-pound junior safety, also turned in a good performance. He had 4 assists to go along with his 7 solo stops. He also made several good open-field tackles against shifty Permian runners.

The top offensive back honors went to senior quarterback Carl Speck. He directed the Steer offense to over 300 yards, against a defense that was allowing 218 yards per contest. Speck completed 15 of 34 passes for 199 yards and one TD. He added 14 extra yards on the ground. He has now passed for 672 yards for the season.

Much of Speck's success can be attributed to the fine offensive line play of guard Paul Sotello, who was named top offensive linemen.

The special team award went to Brad Hanlon who made three tackles during the game. Reserve cornerback Stacey Kilgore was named top defensive back. Kilgore did a good job of forcing the sweep, made three tackles and intercepted a pass.

NBC excited over Olympic plans

NEW YORK (AP) — Ever since their planned coverage of the 1980 Moscow Olympics was shattered by the United States-led boycott of those Games, NBC has been itching for the chance to show what it can do. The network is going to get the chance and Mike Weisman, its executive producer for sports, can't wait.

"This will be a tremendous challenge, one we've been looking forward to getting since 1980," Weisman said on Monday.

NBC will pay between a minimum of $300 million and a maximum of $500 million for the rights to the 1988 Seoul Olympics. The network negotiated a unique risk-sharing contract with the International Olympic Committee and the Seoul organizers, giving the network another opportunity to telecast its first Summer Olympics. NBC last did the Winter Games in 1972.

NBC lost approximately $34 million on the 1980 Olympics.

"NBC Sports has done many major events — Super Bowls, World Series — and we've excelled doing it," said Weisman. "And we've done just about every Olympic sport. We've covered the World Championships in track, done boxing, soccer, gymnastics."

"Our approach to the Olympics will be same as for all major events."

Weisman was set to produce the opening ceremonies and track and field competition from Moscow before NBC pulled the plug, severely limiting its coverage of those Olympics when the United States and many Western allies staged their boycott.

Weisman will be running things in Seoul for NBC, which he estimated would use "about 500 people" to cover the '88 Games.

"I expect we'll have with us many people who worked for ABC in Los Angeles," he said, referring to last year's Summer Olympics, which were a huge profit-maker for ABC. "And we have a strong nucleus from those who were going to work in Moscow."

ABC paid $309 million for the rights to the Winter Olympics in Calgary, which means that for the first time, the Summer Games did not draw as high a guaranteed price as did the Winter Games. But ABC will be able to show live virtually all of the glamor events from Calgary, and TV advertising revenues for sports have declined recently, which drove down the price for Seoul.

"When we left Lausanne without an agreement," said Arthur Watson, president of NBC Sports, "we appeared to be miles apart. As far back as a year ago, it was very apparent to us that their (the IOC and SLOOC) expectations were substantially higher than what we felt the market would bear."

"We had to make them understand the marketplace was much different from what they were told. We were very concerned with the risk if we tried to reach their goal (of $500 million).

"But we were able to find a way to reach it through this risk-sharing contract."

In essence, NBC has put up $300 million — its total costs, including production expenses and various fees to affiliates and advertising agencies could reach more than $400 million — but could pay as much as $500 million if advertising rates soar. That, however, is unlikely.

Watson said the IOC's willingness to alter the schedule of events in Seoul sealed the contract.

"The main reason for the delay (in an agreement) was the schedule," said Watson. "All three of the networks wanted the schedule that would meet the needs of the American public and the IOC and SLOOC did yeoman work to arrange it."

"The finals of many of the major sports, the most attractive sports to the American audience, have been scheduled to be shown live in the U.S."

Watson maintains that about 80 percent of NBC's 180 or so hours of coverage will be live, including virtually all of prime time in the Eastern time zone. With Seoul 14 hours ahead of the American East Coast, the organizers have agreed to run many finals in the morning to coincide with prime time here.

"There may even be more changes of a positive nature for us," he added. "The IOC is negotiating with the international sports federations for further improvements."

Astros shuffle 'nice guy' Lillis

HOUSTON (AP) — When the Houston Astros tried to reassign former coach Don Leppert earlier this season, he balked and called the Astros "too nice," a team more interested in decorum than winning.

New Astros General Manager Dick Wagner must agree.

Wagner, in the midst of a housecleaning, swept aside the No. 1 nice guy Monday by firing Manager Bob Lillis and offering him a front office job.

On a team filled with nice guys, Lillis may have been too nice for his own good.

"You can't blame a guy if he can't change his personality," Astros outfielder Kevin Bass said. "When Flea (Lillis) went out to argue with an umpire, it was from the heart. But to be a manager, you've got to have a little Billy Martin in you to get the respect of the umpires."

Wagner said the change was a necessity.

"I don't want to be critical of Bob, but the fact that Houston played at the .500 level over three years was a big part of it," said Wagner, who took over Sept. 14 as general manager. "We've got to look for a team that is more aggressive on the field."

The Astros have often been criticized as a team too passive to get tough in crucial situations. Leppert, in his departing blast, said the Astros were more interested in looking good in a hotel lobby than playing tough baseball.

"I wouldn't say the makeup of this team is timid or mild. We've just got a lot of nice people here," catcher Alan Ashby said. "Sometimes it's necessary to have someone light a fire under all of these nice people and get them to be a little more aggressive and mean."

Wagner offered Lillis a job as head of baseball operations, which he described as "a behind-the-scenes job, one of substance and importance to the Astros."

He gave Lillis a week to consider the offer while rumors started about Lillis' replacement.

Chuck Tanner, fired as Pittsburgh manager Monday, reportedly is among those being considered for the job.

Lillis, 55, took charge of the Astros Aug. 10, 1982 when Astros owner John McMullen fired Bill Virdon. Lillis led the Astros to a 28-23 record the rest of the season.

Houston finished third with an 85-77 record in 1983, second at 80-82 last season and tied for third this season with an 83-79 record.

Lillis has been with the Astros organization since its inception. He was chosen in the 1961 expansion draft and played six seasons for the Astros.

He spent five seasons in various capacities in the minor leagues before becoming an Astro coach in 1973.

"Bob Lillis is a fine man," Ashby said. "I feel bad for him. He did all he could do to make us a winner. He did a lot of good things but unfortunately the performance of some of the players cost him his job."

Astros pitcher Bob Knepper isn't sure the Astros need a fire-breathing manager to whip them to a pennant.

"You could say he should have come down on us when we were going bad in July," Knepper said. "But we are professionals and should go out and do our jobs."

Bass said he agreed with Wagner's goal of increasing the Astros' aggressiveness.

"I think we were conservative on the bases this season," Bass said. "We didn't have the freedom. You'd get a hit and we'd be tied or behind and we never ran."

Iowa remains on top of AP poll

By the Associated Press
Iowa and Oklahoma remained 1-2 today in the Associated Press college football poll while Michigan continued its steady climb toward the top, moving into third place.

Although this week's 20 ranked teams are the same as last week's, there was considerable shuffling, notably Southern Methodist's fall from third to 16th, Ohio State's drop from fifth to 15th and LSU's skid from eighth to 20th.

Iowa celebrated last week's No. 1 ranking, its first in 24 years, by waiting until the final 27 seconds to defeat Michigan State 35-31 on a 2-yard touchdown run by Chuck Long, who also passed for four touchdowns and 380 yards.

The Hawkeyes received 34 of 59 first-place votes and 1,137 of a possible 1,180 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Oklahoma, a 41-6 winner over Kansas State, was runner-up for the fifth week in a row. The Sooners received 14 first-place votes and 1,106 points.

However, SMU's 28-6 loss to Arizona knocked the Mustangs out of the Top Ten. Michigan jumped from seventh to third with seven first-place votes and 1,037 points by trouncing Wisconsin 33-6. The Wolverines, who were not ranked in the first three polls, have been 19th, 12th, seventh and third in the last four weeks.

Florida State, which was idle, held onto fourth place with three first-place votes and 993 points, while Oklahoma State climbed from sixth to fifth with the remaining first-place ballot and 896 points by defeating Tulsa 25-13.

Arkansas vaulted from 10th to sixth with 806 points by drubbing Texas Christian 41-0. Florida blanked LSU 20-0 and shot from 11th to seventh, idle Penn State moved up from ninth to eighth with 745 points. Nebraska rose from 12th to ninth with 656 points by trimming New Mexico 38-7, and idle Alabama went from 12th to 10th with 650 points. Alabama visits Penn State this Saturday.

The Second Ten consists of Brigham Young, Auburn, Air Force, Tennessee, Ohio State, SMU, Texas, Georgia, Baylor and LSU.

Last week, it was Florida, Alabama, Nebraska, Auburn, BYU, Tennessee, Air Force, Georgia, Baylor and Texas.

Ohio State suffered its first loss of the season, bowing to Illinois 31-28.

Trotters get first female

BURBANK, Calif. (A) — Lynette Woodard, the captain of the United States gold medal-winning 1984 Olympic basketball team, was selected Monday to be the first woman ever to play for the Harlem Globetrotters.
 Woodard, 26, is a 5-foot-11 guard from Lawrence, Kan., who attended the University of Kansas and is the top career scorer in the history of the school, men or women.
 Among those who attended Kansas is Wilt Chamberlain, who toured with the Globetrotters in 1959 before beginning his outstanding National Basketball Association career.

 Woodard beat out nine other women who have been trying out for the Globetrotters, a touring exhibition team whose athletes provide comedy on the court as well as exceptional play.
 The Globetrotters have been in existence since 1927 and have appeared live before more than 100 million people in 101 countries and before millions more on television.

They open their 60th season Oct. 17 in Brisbane, Australia.
 The Globetrotters, whose past stars included Marques Haynes, Goose Tatum and Meadlowlark Lemon, have won about 16,000 games and lost less than 400, playing mostly for laughs against their foils, the Washington Generals.
 Their last loss was Jan. 5, 1971 at Martin, Tenn., 100-99 to the Generals.
 The Globies played before the largest crowd in basketball history, 75,000, on Aug. 22, 1951, at Berlin's Olympic Stadium.

 Also selected as a Globetrotter rookie Monday was 22-year-old Ernest Augburns, a 6-8 center-forward from the Bronx, N.Y., who attended Tulane University.
 Other women who tried out for the Globetrotters in Charlotte, N.C. this summer, were twins Pam and Paula McGee, both of whom attended Southern California; Cheryl Cook, University of Cincinnati.

Drug problem causes pitcher to miss chance at World Series

By BRUCE LOWITT
 AP Sports Writer
 There are no more cheers for Steve Howe, only the silence of memories punctuated by the sounds of a distant playoff game he might have been in.
 He could have been sitting in the Dodgers' bullpen Wednesday night in Los Angeles, hoping to get into the World Series. Instead, he sits in St. Mary's Rehabilitation Center in Minneapolis, hoping to get away from cocaine.
 He had his chances. With the Dodgers. With the Minnesota Twins. He used them up one at a time, like a relief pitcher grooving one fastball after another, watching them explode at the plate until he has nothing left save a trip to the showers, the minors or oblivion.
 Once he had it all — all-state in high school, All-Big Ten twice, the winningest pitcher in University of Michigan history, National League Rookie of the Year for the Dodgers in 1980, world champion in 1981.
 And in 1985, at age 27, when he should be reaching his professional peak, he is looking instead for a way out of a white-powdered valley.
 Cocaine, he said on ABC's "Nightline" program last Sept. 12, was not the problem in his life. It was life itself.
 "Life in general and people and places and things and success a lot of times are people's problems," he said. "At least it was for me."
 The day after appearing on the television program, Howe disappeared.

STEVE HOWE
 ...ex-Dodger hurler

Three days later, he reappeared, met with Twins officials, asked for and was given his release and entered St. Mary's.
 "It's bad to have memories dragged up, except by a professional counselor," Jim Hawkins, Howe's lawyer and close friend, said from his office in Westlake Village, Calif., near Los Angeles. "They recall not only what you saw and heard but what you felt. In his case, they can be extremely negative emotions. Maybe it was bringing up those emotions on the TV program that led to this relapse."
 "My sole existence of what I did in life was what I did on the ballfield," Howe said on Nightline. "When nothing else matters and you don't feel that you're going to be able to perform up to your capabilities and someone gives you an avenue to deaden that pain ... you're going to do what you can do so that people are going to like you and accept you."
 Howe and his wife, Cyndy, declined to be interviewed. So did Dr. George Mann, the director of the Twins' employee assistance program and medical director at St. Mary's.
 Mann also refused to disclose whether Howe is a patient at St. Mary's. Howard Fox, the Twins' president, and Howe's parents said he is.

His father, Virgil, was once a pretty good sandlot pitcher. Now he and his wife, Barbara, live in the Detroit suburb of Clarkston and work for General Motors.
 "Steven just played ball for so long in his life that — and I'm not saying this is the reason he did what he did with drugs — that there never seemed to be enough time for Steven to do what Steven wanted to do," Virgil said. "He started playing ball when he was 9 years old. That's all he's ever done."
 Chris Howe, 24, one of Steve's three younger brothers (he also has a younger sister) and a law student at Michigan's Flint campus, said that as a teenager Steve showed the frustrations of a youngster who believed he had to perform up to someone else's standards.
 "I don't think it's accurate to say my father was trying to make Steve into something Dad couldn't be," Chris said, "but that's not to say Steve didn't try too hard to please him. He tried to please my father more than anyone else."
 "Oh, it's easy to place blame where there is no blame," Barbara, his mother, said. "We have five children and we have one cocaine addict. I would die for my kids. But I will not take the blame for his addiction, any more than his father should. Steven did this all by himself. He chose to do it."
 No one is really sure what went wrong with the young left-hander who mastered control of a baseball but not his life.
 "When he was a kid, he just said what he was going to do and it came easy," Barbara Howe said. "Everything was easy for him and once he got it, it was, 'It's not what I really want.' Personally, if he never plays baseball again, I don't really care, as long as he's OK and can function. But that's up to him. I can't live his life for him. I can't tell him what to do anymore."

Oilers setting wrong kind of records

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers' record-setting pace in their first five National Football League games has head coach Hugh Campbell worried.
 They're the wrong kind of records.
 In Sunday's 31-20 loss to Denver, the Oilers were penalized 15 times for a club record 188 yards and allowed a National Football League record 11 first downs by penalties.
 Two weeks ago, the Dallas Cowboys sacked Oiler quarterback Warren Moon an NFL record-tying 12 times.
 The penalty-filled loss to Denver was traced partly to the Oilers' young defense, which has prided itself on being aggressive. It became too aggressive in the second half, defensive coordinator Jerry Glanville said.
 "You've got to be aggressive, but you've got to be smart too," Glanville said. "We weren't. We played dumb. They weren't good enough to move the football on us today, but we let them because we did dumb things."
 Campbell said the Oilers needed to avoid foolish penalties and he had examples.
 Linebacker Robert Lyles drew a penalty after his out-of-bounds hit on Denver running back Sammy Winder, who already had been stopped by Jesse Baker.
 Defensive back Allen Lyday slammed his helmet to the turf for another penalty and Bo Eason kicked one of the penalty flags.
 "That type of thing, I'd like to be able to back off from," Campbell said. "Some of the other penalties weren't related to our aggressive type of play."
 The Oilers have been outscored 54-0 in the first quarter through five games this season and the Broncos continued that trend with a 10-0 first quarter lead and a 17-3 halftime advantage.
 Campbell said the defense's youthful exuberance turned into a loss of composure in the second half.

Baseball attendance up
 NEW YORK (AP) — Attendance at major-league baseball games was a record 46 million in 1985, according to figures released by the commissioner's office.
 Baseball's 26 teams drew 46,838,819, an increase of about 1.3 million over the 1983 record of 45,540,338, and more than 2 million ahead of last year's figure.
 Both the National and American leagues set attendance records, and the major-league average of 22,848 per game was also a record.
Umpires will be on duty
 NEW YORK (AP) — The baseball playoffs, threatened by a boycott by major-league umpires, will begin Tuesday in Toronto with regular officials on duty.
 However, Richie Phillips, attorney for the union, said weekend negotiations with league presidents Bobby Brown and Chuck Feeney made no progress, and that it was uncertain whether the umpires would work the rest of the playoffs.
Gooden receives Seagram's honor
 NEW YORK (AP) — Pitcher Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets received the Seagrams' Baseball Player of the Year. The hard-throwing right-hander finished with an 89.8 computer ranking compiled by the Elias Sports Bureau.
 First baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees came in second with 75.93 points, third baseman George Brett of Kansas City wound up third with 75.73, and outfielder Rickey Henderson of the Yankees was fourth with 72.94.
Pirates ax Tanner
 PITTSBURGH (AP) — Chuck Tanner, the ever-optimistic manager who guided the Pittsburgh Pirates to a world championship and three second-place finishes in nine years, was fired as part of a shakeup that will put a local public-private partnership in control of the team.
 Tanner said the decision was "mutual," but made it clear he was ousted not by current club President Dan Galbreath, but by the new ownership group.
Casale wins in Virginia Slims
 INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — No. 3 seed Pam Casale, of Fairfield, N.J., coasted to a straight-set victory over Lea Antonopolis, of Glendora, Calif., 6-3, 6-4, in the $75,000 Virginia Slims of Indianapolis women's tennis tournament.
