Local woman dies in accident

A Big Spring woman died early Sunday from injuries received in a one-vehicle accident on Interstate 20, five miles east of Big Spring, according to reports filed by the Department of Public Safety.

Justice of the Peace China Long pronounced Sherry Nancy Bishop, 26, of 1200 Douglas dead on arrival at Malone-Hogan Hospital at 3:51 a.m., according to a DPS report from the Midland regional office.

Bishop was traveling alone in the westbound lane of I-20 as she attempted to pass an 18-wheeler, according to the report.

Trooper James Lasater who investigated the accident said she "lost control of her car and ran off of the road." According to the Midland DPS report, she veered toward the median while attempting to pass the truck, attempted to overcorrect her position, crossed the outside lanes and plunged 40 feet down onto a concrete embankment over Moss Creek exit before coming to rest on the North Service Road.

Lasater said, "She passed an 18-wheeler, lost control of her car and ran off of the road."

She was pronounced dead at the hospital, one hour after the accident occurred.

Services are pending with Harris

Funeral Home in Geraldine, Ala. Local arrangements were made by Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home.

Bishop was born Jan. 30, 1959, in Marshall County, Ala. She grew up in DeKalb County, Ala. She graduated from Crossville High

Los Ybanez wants industry

LOS YBANEZ (AP) — You won't find this West Texas hamlet on a state map. But then five years ago, you wouldn't even have found the town. It didn't exist.

In 1980, what now is the namesake of Israel Ybanez was a cluster of small houses set back about a mile from Highway 87 south of Lamesa, the remnants of a migrant workers' camp that in 1940 served as a Civilian Conservation Corps camp.

Today, Los Ybanez is a bona fide town, and Ybanez is its founder, father and owner.

The 51-year-old car salesman owns everything: the town's 84 1/2 acres, approximately 100 residences, electrical, natural gas and water lines, and its only business — a small take-out beer store.

Ybanez' wife, Mary, is the town mayor, and "a good many" of the community's 300 residents are his relatives.

But, according to Ybanez, "It's just like any other town. It may be an itty-bitty town, but it's just like any other town."

A native of Jim Wells County in the southern part of the state who moved to West Texas in 1950, Ybanez said he and his wife originally bought the land from the federal government as an investment.

Before moving to the town they acquired, Ybanez said they lived on a seven-acre tract eight miles south of Lamesa, where he works.

"When we got the establishment, it was sort of more or less like an Army establishment," he said. "The homes were there, but they didn't have much in them so we went to work on them."

He presented the idea of incorporation to the community's families, who voted in April 1983 to turn the small establishment into Los Ybanez.

Many of the residents, most of whom are farm workers, had lived there for more than 20 years, Ybanez said.

"Turning it into a working town gave them something to be proud of," he said. "They needed to be educated in how things were done. They were proud that it was left up to them (in an election) whether to become a town."

And now, Ybanez said, Los Ybanez' residents work together to ensure their town survives.

"The town is brand new. It's just like a baby," he said. "It's beginning to grow. It takes a lot of nurturing."

The tiny town has its own police chief, but fire services are provided by the county.

tend school in Lamesa, but Ybanez said he hopes to one day build a preschool in his own community.

Ybanez also said he would like to attract a small industry to Los Ybanez.

"A lot of people here are low-income," he said.

"A lot of the residents are surviving because of the low rent," he said, explaining that the most any of his tenants pay in monthly rent is $200.

"We have a lot of available labor, and we have about 35 acres that could be used for some kind of industry," he said. "We're looking for some kind of industry to keep our town alive."

But, he said, the town has turned down at least two offers from businesses wishing to locate in Los Ybanez.

"We had the chance for a restaurant and a convenience store, but said 'no,'" he said. "We don't want to give Lamesa any competition."

Lamesa, a town of about 12,000, is a mile north of Los Ybanez and about 60 miles south of Lubbock.

Centerpoint voting site in question

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Commissioners today debated whether they could use the Centerpoint School Building as a voting site for the Nov. 5 state amendment elections.

The item was placed on this morning's meeting agenda Friday at the request of Commissioner David Barr of Precinct 4 who noticed vandalism at the site Friday.

"I called Crockett (Don Crockett, assistant superintendent of the Big Spring Independent School District) and he doesn't want us to use it," said County Judge Milton Kirby.

"they're fixing to move a bunch of hogs out there."

Barr said Centerpoint School grounds serve as a voting site in his precinct since the recent consolidation of other polling boxes.

"We're going to have to use it on Nov. 5," Barr said.

Kirby said the county would maintain Centerpoint School as a voting box, "even if we have to pull a trailer out there."

The question during this morning's meeting was deciding who was responsible for the upkeep of the building.

"Do we have to clean it up?"

Crocker asked Barr.

Barr, who made a phone call to school board chairperson Jimmy Anderson during the discussion, said the court in conjunction with the school board would have to decide on upkeep for the facility for one more voting use and what to do for future elections.

Barr said the county had to submit any change of voting block to the state justice department, 90 days before an election for approval.

Barr told other commissioners the county had recently been losing voting boxes throughout its precincts.

"We already lost our box at Luther and we thought we were going to lose the old fire station," Barr said.

Commissioners took action on the following agenda items:

• Voted unanimously on a request to purchase four computer terminals for the county attorney's and county auditor's offices. County auditor Jackie Olson said the terminals would cost approximately $1,000 apiece and would be hooked in with the county's central computer located in the county tax assessor's office. Olson said the county attorney's office would utilize three of the terminals and her office would utilize one.

• Increased insurance coverage with E.P. Driver Insurance Agency for county volunteer firemen. The current annual policy is $1,046. The new insurance coverage is increased to $1,582 with premiums of $20,000 for accidental death, $10,000 for accidental medical care, $200 per week for 104 weeks maximum for benefits, a $10,000 principal sum and $10,000 for heart treatment.

Howard County received a payment at this time last year of $100,704, according to comptroller's figures. 1985 payments to date total $1,286,718, slightly

A breakdown shows Big Spring received a payment of $77,859. Coahoma received $1,650 and Forsan, $1,419.

Boy gets a special grasp on life

DALLAS (AP) — Darren Brown slurps the last of his chocolate milkshake and rushes outside to the playground at the McDonald's restaurant in Plano. He pushes the plastic hamburger-go-round and jumps inside to ride it for a couple of revolutions.

Then he realizes that his arm is in the way. He runs over to the table where his mother, Linda, is sitting. While other children on the playground watch open-mouthed, he pulls off his arm and hands it to her.

"Take 'Jaws,' " the 6-year-old says, "while I go play."

Darren, who was born with no left forearm or hand, has been wearing the mechanical, myoelectric ("myo" means muscle) arm since he was 4, making him one of the youngest — if not the youngest — person in Texas to wear such a sophisticated prosthesis.

"We call him the bionic kid," says his father, Rick.

But to Darren, a dark-haired little boy with freckles across the bridge of his nose, Jaws is — just Jaws. Something that gets in the way when he plays soccer or video games... that lets him pick thorny plants without getting pricked... that is an instant show-and-tell for curious classmates.

In the first week of school this year, Darren's kindergarten teacher, Cindy Brisko, gathered her 21 students together to talk about the arm. She started by saying that different people use different "helpers." Her contact lenses help her see, she told them. Crutches help crippled children walk, she explained. And Darren's arm helps him do things other kids do.

Then, she says, Darren just took over. He told the kids about his arm

DARREN BROWN, age 6, is fitted with a mechanical myoelectric arm when he was four years old. The device, nicknamed "jaws," replaces the forearm and hand Darren was born without.

and showed them how it worked. To operate Jaws, Darren inserts his arm into it and uses muscle signals to open and close the thumb strong grip.

"Somebody born without a hand or wrist doesn't have the same muscle attachments as someone with a sound arm," says Donna Jackson, a prosthetist at Texas Scottish Rite Hospital for Crippled Children who has worked with Darren. "For a person to get it to move takes a lot of concentration. Darren had never flexed a wrist or opened an arm. We found different spots on his body that put out the most power."

The Dallas chapter of the charity group, the Variety Club, raised $5,000 to buy the arm for Darren. "We'd been wanting to try one on a younger person," says Ms. Jackson. "We chose him because he had good muscle tone, a good forearm and he is a bright little boy."

The arm operates on a six-volt battery. Every night, Darren takes it off and plugs it into an outlet on the kitchen counter to be recharged.

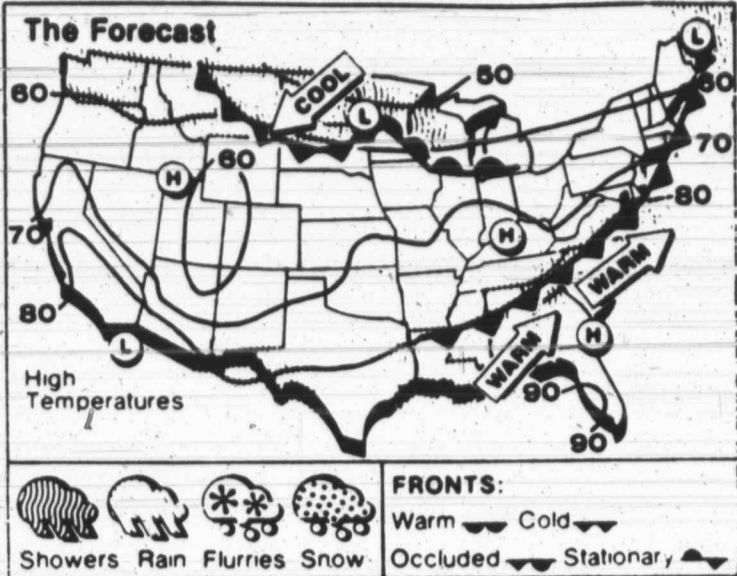

Jaws looks like a real arm. It's soft and flesh-colored and the hand even has tiny realistic lines around the fingers.

Jaws is actually Darren's third arm. By the time he was 6 months old, he was already wearing a mitt — just to get him used to wearing something on the end of his arm.

"At first," Linda says, "I was crying and upset. Then I saw him. He was such a beautiful little baby. He was like a bird with a broken wing. He had the biggest round face — so pretty."

The Browns are a close-knit family. Rick, 36, works for General Electric. Linda, 35, works part-time as a flight attendant for Delta Airlines. They have another son, Ryan, who is 3 years old.

Rain skips across county

Howard County escaped most of the heavy rain, thunderstorms and tornado warning that plagued the Midland-Odessa area Sunday night.

The tornado warning was based on a radar sighting in Ector County. However, the sighting was never confirmed.

A steady rain, however, fell for about 30 minutes early this morning in Big Spring, coating the streets with a slick coat of water. No official rainfall count was available today because the U.S.-Big Spring Experiment Station was closed for Columbus Day.

Coahoma farmer Travis Reid said he received .2 of an inch of rain since last night. However, most of the rest of the county stayed dry.

Cindy Hopper in Knott and Neil Fryar in Lomax both said they did not have any rain today or last night. Luther received a light dusting of rain today and none during the weekend, according to the Haney's.

Los Ybanez

"After the town was incorporated, we got benefits," he said. "And one of the town's benefits is elections. So we had a wet-dry election and voted to have a 'beer to go' store."

Several Dawson County residents who do not live in Los Ybanez criticized Ybanez when he suggested a take-out beer store, charging he only wanted to incorporate the community for the purpose of having it become wet.

Ybanez strongly denied the claims. "We didn't have that in mind when we bought the property," he said. "We didn't even have a town in mind then. It all just grew out of it."

"And, we've taken steps to see that the alcohol isn't abused." Large signs that warn against drinking and driving and that detail the amount of alcohol in beverages are posted in front of Ybanez' store.

The business also only sells canned beer "so we can keep bottles from rolling around our roads and county," he said.

"People said (the store) was going to bring a lot of trouble to the county," Ybanez said. "They said, 'there's going to be lines there 24 hours a day, seven days a week.' They said that a big monster was going to be awakened. But since we opened, there's not been one accident, not one disturbance."

The business, which is operated by Ybanez' two stepsons, has been open since May 1984, he said.

"And, we do foresee other businesses in the future," he said. "We're not just living here to have a beer store."

One reason Ybanez does live in the tiny town, he said, is because it allows him to have his family living with him.

About 22 of his relatives live in Los Ybanez, he said, adding, "more are expected."

"It's nice to have everyone close," he said. "Some of the other families in town are the same way — lots of relatives with them."

Ybanez said that by bringing in other businesses and possibly an industry, "maybe we could keep this young crop of kids that's coming up there in the town."

The town father also dreams of having Los Ybanez' dirt roads paved, its clapboard houses bricked and its dusty grounds landscaped.

Lately, however, smaller goals have taken precedence. Ybanez recently succeeded in getting the state to post a sign with the name of his town on Highway 87.

Next, he said, he hopes to convince the state to place the town's name on state maps.

"It might take a little time," he said. "But I think we'll get on the map."

Sheriff's Log

Boy hurls brick hurting girl

An 11-year-old girl suffered swelling, cuts, dizziness and severe pain from a brick that struck her in the forehead, Sunday afternoon at Route 3 Box 69, said Howard County sheriff's deputy George Quintero.

The brick was thrown by a 9-year old boy and the girl was taken to Malone Hogan Hospital emergency room where she was treated and released, Quintero said.

"We can't refer the case to juvenile authorities because the boy is not of juvenile age according to the state statute," Quintero said.

He said deputies contacted the parents of the involved parties and instructed them "to get together on the matter."

Prison school useful

SPRINGFIELD, S.D. — All 200 students at this century-old campus in Springfield have full scholarships, security fences and guards to make sure they don't cut class or drop out.

The University of South Dakota branch campus closed last year and was converted into a medium security prison to ease overcrowding in the prison system and to teach inmates welding, carpentry, office management and other trades.

The prison school opened only 10 months ago, but officials are confident its 12 vocational programs will give the inmates skills they need to succeed in the outside world.

Rainbow at the end

NEW YORK — She shuttled between Venezuela and France until her movie finally was made. And after all the hustle and bustle, Fina Torres has emerged as one of the hottest directors in the New York Film Festival with her "Oriane."

"The first movie is the most difficult because they all shut their doors in your face," Torres said in an interview. "Nobody believes in you."

Earlier this year, "Oriane" won the coveted Golden Camera prize for best first feature at the Cannes Film Festival. It also won best film and best script awards at the Cartagena (Colombia) Festival.

Quickened recovery

SAN FRANCISCO — Using heated, humidified anesthetic gases in outpatient surgery reduces the amount of recovery time by nearly a third, according to a report to the American Society of Anesthesiologists.

Dr. Thomas J. Conahan III said in the report that a major factor in recovery time after surgery is the sensation of cold felt by patients.

Heating the air breathed by patients during surgery "decreased the loss of body heat and allowed patients to be ready for discharge home almost an hour earlier," Conahan said.

Lottery is big draw

BOSTON — A $20 million prize is expected to pit nearly 90 percent of Massachusetts' adults against the 1.9 million-to-one odds against winning the biggest lottery jackpot in state history, a lottery spokesman says.

There hasn't been a winner in the semi-weekly Megabucks drawing since Oct. 2 and the money from drawings without winners was rolled over to the next drawing, David Ellis, spokesman for the Massachusetts Lottery Commission, said Sunday.

Saturday's jackpot was worth $13,944,640, but no one picked the winning combination of 5-14-26-28-29-30, he said.

JOSEPH GOLDSTEIN, left, and Michael Brown toast each other Monday morning in a Cambridge, Mass., hotel after it was announced that they had won the 1985 Nobel Prize in medicine. The pair, members of the staff at the University of Texas in Dallas, was cited for research into the regulation of cholesterol metabolism.

Nobel Prize

Two UT geneticists win medicine award

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — The 1985 Nobel Prize in medicine was awarded today to Americans Michael S. Brown and Joseph L. Goldstein for discoveries the Nobel Institute said had "revolutionized our knowledge" about cholesterol metabolism and treatment of cholesterol-related diseases.

The Nobel Institute said the discoveries of the two could lead to new treatment of cholesterol-related high blood pressure, arteriosclerosis, heart attacks and strokes, which claim hundreds of thousands of lives each year.

"It may one day be possible for many people to have their steak and eat it too," the Nobel citation said.

Brown, 44, and Goldstein, 45, are molecular geneticists at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas.

Goldstein, reached by The Associated Press in Cambridge, Mass., where he is attending a conference, said: "I was awakened by the telephone and sort of overwhelmed by it. It's obviously thrilling and exciting."

Brown, also attending the conference, said, "It's quite a shock."

"I really can only say it's a moment of great surprise and I really haven't had time to collect my thoughts. You can imagine I'm a little overwhelmed right now."

The Nobel Institute said the discoveries of the two Americans had "revolutionized our knowledge about the regulation of cholesterol metabolism and the treatment of diseases caused by abnormally elevated cholesterol levels in the blood."

Nobel officials said Brown and Goldstein found that cells of the human body have receptors on their surfaces which affect the intake of cholesterol-containing particles called low-density lipoprotein (LDL) which circulate in the bloodstream.

The receptors discovered by the two researchers regulate the amount of cholesterol in the blood. A person with many receptors can eat more cholesterol-rich food, such as eggs and red meat, with less risk of ill effects.

The receptors, on the surface of cells, pick up "packets" containing cholesterol, absorb them and break them up. All cells have receptors but the liver is especially important, Nobel officials said.

The two Americans were credited with research showing that lack of functional receptors figured in cholesterol-related illness, including familial hypercholesterolemia, an inherited form of high cholesterol levels which cause high blood pressure and which can cause heart attacks even in children.

Reduced numbers of receptors, they found, can lead to increased levels of cholesterol in the blood, which subsequently can accumulate in the body's arteries and cause heart attacks or strokes.

"The discovery of the LDL receptor has broadened our understanding of cholesterol metabolism considerably and explained the mechanism behind familial hypercholesterolemia," the Nobel citation said.

"The discoveries made by Brown and Goldstein have drastically widened our understanding of the cholesterol metabolism and increased our possibilities to prevent and treat arteriosclerosis and heart attacks," the citation said.

Britain cancels meeting

LONDON — The government today canceled a meeting with two PLO representatives after they refused to endorse a statement recognizing Israel's right to exist, Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe said.

The cancellation appeared to come at the last minute. The Foreign Office faced condemnation from the press and a Jewish group for agreeing to meet with Palestine Liberation Organization representatives following the hijacking of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro.

Belgium coalition wins

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Prime Minister Wilfried Martens resigned his government today after his center-right coalition won a victory in parliamentary elections.

The resignation paves the way for the formation of a new government, which observers said would likely be another center-right formation.

Projections by the Interior Ministry showed the main opposition Socialists and Ecologists also gained in Sunday's elections.

Quake strikes Russia

MOSCOW — An earthquake struck the Soviet Central Asian republic of Tadzhikistan, leveling factories and office buildings and causing "loss of life," the official news agency Tass reported today.

Tass did not say how many people were killed or injured, or give an assessment of the damage. But the Sunday quake was described as "strong," and the report of deaths indicated that the casualty toll may be heavy.

Pirates rob tankers

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Pirates attacked 19 ships between Indonesia and Singapore in the first seven months of this year, the independent daily Merdeka said today.

The newspaper said the pirates mainly robbed tankers and merchant vessels passing through the Philips Straits.

Merdeka quoted the Riau province police chief, Brig. Gen. S.B. Simatupang, as saying most of the attacks were launched at daybreak when the sea is still dark and ships must sail slowly through the narrow, shallow waterway.

Israel convicts Arabs

HAIFA, Israel — Five Arab construction workers were sentenced to life in prison today after being convicted of strangling a Jewish teenager, sexually molesting his body and then hiding it in a cave.

A three-judge panel at the district court in the northern port city of Haifa found the five guilty of premeditated murder and then immediately handed down the sentence.

Foreign trade imbalance gives business biggest jitters

HOT SPRINGS, Va. (AP) — Many of the nation's business chiefs say they are extremely nervous about the economy and consider the enormous U.S. trade deficit the single biggest reason for those jitters.

"It cuts right across all industries and all products," says Ruben Mettler, chairman of TRW, Inc. "When we compete with exports, business is weak; when we compete directly with imports, it is extremely difficult."

Mettler also heads the U.S. Business Council, which met here this past weekend to discuss the business climate with leaders of government and industry.

In its fall assessment of the economy, the council forecast another 15 months of slow growth without a recession.

But the chief topic of conversation was clearly the nation's trade imbalance — which the council's economic advisers say will reach $133 billion this year and $141 billion in 1986. And that's in spite of actions by the Reagan administration and Congress to try to equalize the trade imbalance and to nudge down the value of the U.S. dollar.

When Deputy Treasury Secretary Richard G. Darman came to discuss President Reagan's tax overhaul bill — a measure that affects U.S. business directly — many corporate officers suggested they were more interested in talking about trade than taxes.

"The value of the dollar and the trade deficit is a bigger issue by far," Mettler told reporters after the session with Darman.

James Robinson III, chairman of the American Express Corp. said the trade imbalance has had a "tremendous drag" throughout the economy — pulling down economic growth by at least two full percentage points.

After booming along at a growth rate of 6.8 percent in 1984, growth was expected to be down to 2.1 percent for all of 1985, then improve only slightly, to 2.5 percent, for 1986, according to the Business Council's economic forecast.

Robinson said that his own credit card business is probably less affected by the trade deficit than most — after all, buying goods overseas is still a good bargain for U.S. tourists because of the still-strong dollar. He said sales charged on American Express cards increased by 15-17 percent this year. Still, he said the "use of our card has slowed down."

Harry J. Gray, chairman of United Technologies Corp., said his firm's semiconductor division is reeling under competition from low-cost computer chips, mostly from Japan. "We're limiting ourselves in that area. We just don't see a way to compete too effectively," he said.

Business leaders attending the weekend conference seemed to hold out little optimism that the trade situation would improve anytime soon.

They cited a tight linkage between the trade imbalance and high government budget deficits, high interest rates in this country and generally poor U.S. performance in manufacturing — and said improvements in these areas would have to come first before any marked improvement in the trade balance could be achieved.

But, most of all, the business leaders agreed the strong U.S. dollar abroad is taking the largest toll — and they voiced skepticism that government intervention in currency markets alone would do much to speed the dollar's fall.

"The dollar is still killing us. We have large operations abroad," said Edmund T. Pratt Jr., chairman of Pfizer Inc., a chemical and drug manufacturing firm. The strong dollar makes U.S. products expensive abroad and imports relatively cheap in this country.

More access to tax data sought

NEW YORK (AP) — The Reagan administration is seeking to expand the government's use of tax data and give federal agencies access to confidential information about citizens, a published report said today.

Under the proposal, the tax information would be used to determine the eligibility of people applying for federal programs such as guaranteed student loans and veterans insurance, the New York Times reported.

If approved by Congress, federal agencies would be allowed to look at anyone's tax data to make sure they were not eligible for privately financed insurance benefits before paying benefits under government programs like Medicare, the Times said.

The government currently does not have authority to use such information. Congress ruled that tax information should be kept confidential in 1976 after congressional investigators learned President Richard Nixon and others had improperly used individuals' tax returns.

Ferraro memoir is best forgotten

Geraldine Ferraro, who boasts one of the most sensitive sexism-detectors around, nonetheless writes that her campaign for vice president proved "that women can run for high political office. We have proved we have the stamina to get through a campaign, to stand up for our beliefs in a national televised debate, to articulate the issues. And we have certainly proved that women are able to stand up under pressure."

Actually, the campaign proved nothing about "women," whatever it may have revealed about this particular woman. Some of us, unlike Ferraro, never doubted the congenial ability of female politicians to meet the same demands as males.

In an excerpt from her forthcoming book, Ferraro: My Story, published in Newsweek, Walter Mondale's running mate indulges in self-glorification and, more often, self-pity. "As the mother of Laura and Donna Zaccaro, my candidacy had been well worth it, expanding their life options a thousandfold," she writes. But she couldn't imagine "the bigotry and sexism my candidacy would unleash."

Her unreasoned bitterness colors every paragraph. Ferraro resented being told what to do by Mondale's staff, as if she were the first running mate to be treated that way. She resented being compared to San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein, the other female Mondale considered for the second spot, forgetting that neither would have been considered had they been men. She even resented "the incongruity" of toasting an English muffin for the Mondale aide who had come to her house early one morning before the convention. Was her guest supposed to do it himself?

Here is the grating paradox of Ferraro's memoir: She catalogues every slight that could possibly be motivated by prejudice against women, but she never considers whether she would have gotten the opportunity she did except for the accident of her sex. Would Water Mondale have put an unknown New York congressman on a national ticket? Would Bantam Books have paid a losing candidate for vice president $1 million for his story?

Nothing else about the excerpt justifies the attention. It offers no serious reflection on the sources of Ronald Reagan's landslide victory. Ferraro even has the chutzpah to insist that "the people were with us on the issues." She has nothing interesting to say about those issues. Nor does her ghost-written account show any literary bent. Peppered with clichés, it sounds as if it had been not written but spoken into a tape recorder.

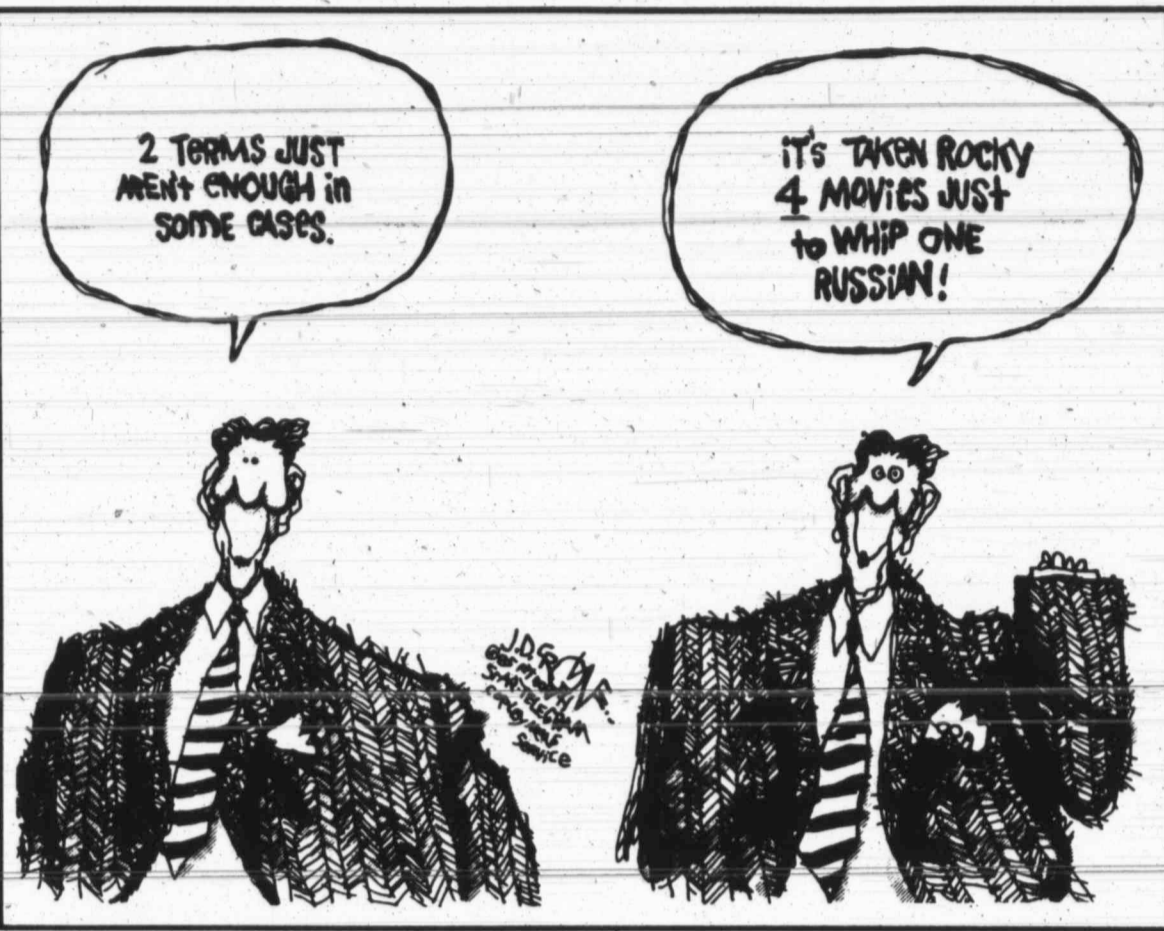

As ever, Ferraro is unfailingly nifty. She still pretends there was nothing wrong with refusing to report her husband's income on her congressional ethics form, ignoring the finding of the House Ethics Committee that she "improperly claimed" the spousal exemption. She excuses him from borrowing funds from an incapacitated elderly widow whose estate he administered, insisting that he was the innocent victim of bad advice and noting that he paid it back with more interest than it had earned in a money market account.

She is equally obtuse on the subject of abortion. "As a Catholic, I have always accepted the premise that a fertilized ovum is life," she writes. "But others do not always agree. Why should my Catholic belief override theirs? The separation of church and state is one of the founding principles of our Constitution."

To pretend that killing what Ferraro admits is a human being should be a mere matter of personal choice is idiotic. And to suggest that Catholic opposition to legal abortion violates the First Amendment (this woman graduated from law school?) is not only idiotic but hypocritical. Did she ever criticize the American Catholic bishops for presuming to issue a pastoral letter on nuclear weapons, or Martin Luther King Jr. for using his pulpit to advance civil rights? Ferraro's vapid protests reveal her to be either dumb or dishonest.

At one time, political memoirs were a species of literature and a contribution to history. Few of them are now. Judging from this excerpt, if Ferraro hadn't been written, it wouldn't have been missed.

Jack Anderson

Hussein courts U.S. favor

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Jordan's King Hussein had two targets in mind on his recent visit to the United States: the Reagan administration and the American people.

More than the military and economic aid he was hoping Congress will approve, the diminutive monarch wanted to gain stature among both politicians and public as the indispensable leader who will, with White House encouragement, be the peacemaker for the chaotic Middle East region. Considering that his rival power brokers include Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini and Syrian President Hafez Assad, this is a tall order indeed for the Jordanian king.

Specifically, what Hussein wants the Reagan administration to do — and he deserves high marks for audacity, if nothing else — is to sit down and negotiate face-to-face with the Palestine Liberation Organization. In this admittedly faint hope, he has the enthusiastic backing of so-called "Arabists" in the State Department, though not of Secretary of State George Shultz or anyone else in the Reagan administration who worries about the political repercussions of upsetting Israel's friends in this country.

Our associate Lucette Lagnado has talked with State Department insiders on both sides of the issue, and here's how they view the situation and Hussein's latest initiative:

• The PLO's presence in Jordan, just 15 years after Hussein unceremoniously booted them out during Black September, has been little short of amazing. PLO leader Yasir Arafat is a welcome visitor to the royal palace in Amman. There are several PLO offices operating openly in the capital.

Although, as one intelligence analyst observed dryly, "You don't hug a bear," Hussein evidently has assessed the risk posed by Arafat and decided to embrace him. For all his humiliation in Lebanon three years ago, Arafat still has influence in the Arab world, and Hussein can benefit from this.

• If Hussein can indeed persuade the White House to negotiate with the PLO, he will become a hero to other Arab leaders. Within the State Department, our sources say, Hussein's pitch is being promoted most fervently by Richard Murphy, assistant secretary for the Near East. So far he hasn't dented Shultz's reluctance to deal with the PLO, but Murphy keeps trying.

• Hussein has poured on the charm in his dealings with U.S. officials, trying to project an image as a rational man who is daring but moderate, a flexible leader who can see both sides to a question. He even hints that he would be willing to sit down with the Israelis — once they have shown an equal inclination to sweet reasonableness.

• Hussein is playing a dangerous game by befriending the PLO. Terrorist incidents on the West Bank have increased recently, and Israel has warned Jordan that it will be held accountable if it encourages the terrorists. Hussein has taken the warnings seriously, and Jordanian intelligence is monitoring the border closely to prevent a major incident that could provoke Israeli retaliation.

FUDDLE FACTORY: A concerned employee of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office suspects that the $700 million Congress appropriated to automate the patent-search system has brought dubious results. Specifically, the employee charged that many of the 1,300 desk-top computer terminals that have been ordered will be unusable — because the building they're going in doesn't have enough electrical power to run them, let alone provide the cooling capacity to keep them from breaking down.

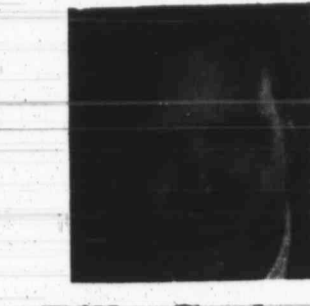

A patent official admitted that "some modifications will be necessary" on the electrical system by 1990, but said no cost estimate can be made before a design study is completed.

There's another problem. Patent examiners without terminals will be competing with each other, private attorneys, professional searchers and the general public for access to 300 additional computer terminals being installed in the public search room. But because patent applications are not public records, the examiners won't be allowed to take applications into the public search room. This inconvenience will be "only temporary," the official said.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Like other communist countries, Poland has a press that is little more than an official mouthpiece for the government. But our sources inside the country say that Poland is "awash with samizdats" — the Polish (and Russian) word for "self-published." In the Soviet Union, samizdats are mostly book manuscripts that have been refused by government publishers and are laboriously copied and circulated underground.

CORRECTION: We recently described how asbestos removal programs have come to a screeching halt in the United States because insurance companies are refusing to extend coverage to the firms which perform this dangerous task. In that story, we gave an incorrect name for one asbestos removal company which had taken its protest directly to the White House. The correct name of the firm is ACMAT Corp., and it is located at 141 Prestige Park Rd., East Hartford, CTG 06108.

Boyfriend isn't a churchgoer

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My boyfriend and I are talking about marriage. The only thing that worries me is that he doesn't seem to be interested in going to church with me. Otherwise, we are compatible in every way. Should I worry about this? — B.H.

DEAR B.H.: Yes, you most certainly should be concerned about it, because it indicates clearly that he has little interest in spiritual truth or in getting to know God personally. The Bible makes it clear that a good marriage in God's eyes is one in which both the husband and wife are seeking to honor God and follow His will in their lives. This is not possible, however, when one partner has no spiritual interest.

This is one reason the Bible bluntly says, "Do not be yoked together with unbelievers. For what do righteousness and wickedness have in common? ... What does a believer have in common with an unbeliever?" (2 Corinthians 6:14, 15).

I know these may sound like harsh words — but every day my mail brings unhappy letters from those who married a partner who had no spiritual interest and discovered just how essential this ingredient is. Pray that God will give you the courage to do what is right and break off this relationship if he continues to show no interest in following Christ.

Your letter, however, suggests you have not put Christ first in your life, either. Yes, you want to follow Christ, but you also want to do what you think is best for your life. The Bible warns, "No man can serve two masters" (Matthew 6:24 KJV). Don't be misled into thinking your way is better than Christ's. God loves you, and you can commit your future to Him without fear. Seek God's choice for your life's partner, for only in that way will you know true joy in your marriage.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Today is Monday, October 14, the 287th day of 1985. There are 78 days left in the year. This is the Columbus Day holiday, as well as Thanksgiving Day in Canada.

Today's highlight in history:
Twenty-five years ago — October 14, 1960 — the idea of a Peace Corps was first suggested by Democratic presidential candidate John F. Kennedy, before an audience of students at the University of Michigan. In the years that followed, more than 120,000 Americans have answered the call to go overseas to help underdeveloped nations.

On this date:
In 1066, Normans under William the Conqueror defeated the English at the Battle of Hastings.

In 1586, Mary, Queen of Scots, went on trial in England. She was beheaded the following February.
In 1890, the 34th President of the United States, Dwight D. Eisenhower, was born in Denison, Texas.

In 1912, Theodore Roosevelt, campaigning for the presidency on the Bull Moose ticket, was shot in the chest in Milwaukee. Although wounded, he went ahead with a scheduled speech.

In 1944, during World War II, German field marshal Erwin Rommel committed suicide rather than face trial and execution as a traitor to the Nazi regime.

In 1947, U.S. Air Force Captain Charles E. Yeager became the first person to fly faster than the speed of sound as he tested a rocket-powered research plane in California.

In 1964, civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was named winner of the Nobel Peace Prize.

In 1968, the first live telecast from a manned U.S. spacecraft was transmitted from Apollo Seven.

Sparks moves up through ranks

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer
Cheri Sparks has moved up through the ranks of the Howard College staff.

Once a student at the college, Sparks, 31, is now vice president for student life for the Howard County Junior College District. She has worked at six different jobs in the past nine years before attaining that position.

Sparks started working at the school in the adult and continuing education area and worked her way up to coordinator of the Adult Education Program at the Big Spring State Hospital for one year. She then became assistant director of adult education for 1½ years. She was director of the adult education program for 1½ years before becoming Dean of Students for one year. Sparks then became associate vice president for student life for one year. She is in her fourth year as vice president for student life.

"My position is to coordinate all those activities that are within the student life area," Sparks said. "I have the responsibility of the administration of our programs."

Sparks enjoys "the involvement with the students and the fact that I have such a great staff," she said.

"Working with the students directly, you have the opportunity to help people directly reach their personal goals. It is

4-Her presents program about trip to Japan

Denette Dick presented a program about Japan to the 1941 Study Club of Coahoma at a meeting Oct. 7 at the home of Mrs. Rod Tiller.

During the summer of 1984, Denette, a Coahoma High School junior, visited Japan as a part of the 4-H program. She told of her experiences while spending a month in the country.

In Japan, 4-H is known as Labo and their main emphasis is to learn another language, Denette said. They meet with an adult leader called a tutor.

She showed slides of the trip and explained her souvenirs.

Thymus removal

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please tell us about myasthenia gravis. Would an operation on the thymus gland cure a severe case, like one involving a paralyzed throat? Would having to remove the gland cause serious problems? Thank you. — K.K.V.

First let me give a rundown on MG, then relate the strange thymus-gland connection.

Myasthenia gravis is a neuromuscular problem having to do with faulty reception of nerve signals. At the very end of the nerve network leading to muscles are receptors. The end of the nerve releases a chemical which lands on the receptors; that has to happen for the muscle to move.

In myasthenia gravis there aren't sufficient receptors. This results in weak muscle action. Any muscle may be involved, those of the eyes and many others, including the swallowing muscles.

The muscles symptoms are variable. For example, weakness increases with muscle use and subsides with rest. Fortunately, today we have drugs to help myasthenics manage quite well.

Now, the thymus-gland connection. This little gland is located in the upper chest, near the thyroid.

After puberty it begins to shrink, so losing it is not a big deal.

Its relationship to myasthenia gravis is little understood. In 1939 a doctor was treating an MG patient who, coincidentally, had a lump on this gland. The doctor, fearing a tumor that might invade the thymus, decided to remove the gland. To his great surprise, the patient's MG improved greatly.

What does that mean for MG patients today? One out of 10 such patients has a thymus tumor. That, of course, calls for removal. But what if there is no tumor? Here, there is controversy. And some have noted MG improvement even with removal of a non-tumorous gland.

Today, the usual thinking is to leave the gland alone if the illness is not severe or if medicine is keeping things in control. If medicines no longer work, then the cooperation might be suggested.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is there any particular time of pregnancy when women should not fly? — V.M.W.

Flying is OK except when women get close to the due date. Airlines, quite naturally, don't like to assume responsibility for an in-flight delivery, and I can't blame them.

Dear Abby

Witness search stalls charity

DEAR ABBY: I sent for a donor form from the Living Bank because I wanted to donate my organs after my death. I received the form, but I can't get my witnesses to sign it.

My husband said, "You can't imagine how hard it would be for me to agree to something like that."

The rest of my family refused because they are afraid some doctors might get "scapel happy" and start removing the organs they need before I'm dead.

I took the form to church five Sundays in a row trying to get two witnesses for my signature, but nobody would sign it. They said I might need all my parts at the Resurrection, and they didn't want to be responsible for my being resurrected without a badly needed organ.

The only person who was willing to sign is my son, and he's only 17. What else can I do, short of standing on a street corner soliciting signatures from total strangers?

KATHERINE IN GEORGETOWN, TEXAS

DEAR KATHERINE: Your husband needs to understand that will-ing one's organs after death in order to improve the quality of life for the living is one of the most noble and generous acts a person can perform. Besides, you own your body — your husband doesn't.

The possibility that some "scapel-happy" surgeon might "murder" a patient for his parts is unrealistic, as a patient must be pronounced dead by two doctors before a death certificate is signed.

And as for "needing" all your organs for the Resurrection, the benevolent act of willing one's organs after death has been approved by most religions, so should you return to live again in the body of your previous life, trust the good Lord to miraculously restore or replace the missing parts.

Please give my regards to your 17-year-old son, who apparently inherited his mother's generosity and compassion.

Dallas Cowboy tailback TONY DORSETT, takes off on his record setting run putting him over the 10,000-yard mark for career rushing in the Cowboy's victory over Pittsburgh Sunday at Texas Stadium in Irving.

'Pokes, Dorsett pound Pitt

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tony Dorsett rated only two things better than making the elite 10,000-yard rushing club against the Pittsburgh Steelers: winning the Heisman Trophy and owning a Super Bowl ring.

The Dallas Cowboys' running back said that becoming the National Football League's sixth 10,000 yard rusher Sunday was made even sweeter by a 27-3 victory over the Steelers, a team he idolized as a kid.

"This was one of the biggest highlights," said Dorsett. "I was the skinny little kid from Aliquippa, Pa., who they said would never make a running back."

"Some said I'd never last. But here I am, little ol' me, passing 10,000 yards against a team I've always admired."

Dorsett had his first 100-yard rushing day against the Steelers in five tries and was on a winning team against them for the first time. It was Dallas' first victory over Pittsburgh since 1972, when Nixon was President, and it snapped a five-game losing streak.

"Getting 100 yards (113) is just icing on the cake, especially with my mother sitting home in her living room watching" in Pennsylvania, Dorsett said. "It still doesn't take the place of a world championship or a Heisman Trophy."

Dorsett, who won the Heisman at the University of Pittsburgh, caught a 56-yard touchdown pass from Danny White and scored on a 35-yard run.

His golden moment came on a 19-yard run in the third period.

"I had my doubts whether I was going to get the 31 yards I needed today," said Dorsett, who only had 3 yards at halftime. "But anything good is worth waiting for."

Dorsett handed the ball to Coach Tom Landry after the historic run that put Dorsett in the same club with Walter Payton, Jim Brown, Franco Harris, O.J. Simpson and John Riggins.

"I knew Tom Landry wasn't going to throw this ball away," Dorsett quipped.

Dorsett now has 10,082 career yards. Going into Sunday, the all-time leaders were Payton with 13,599, Jim Brown with 12,312, Harris with 12,120, Simpson with 11,236 and Riggins with 10,967.

Dorsett capped the day with a 35-yard scoring run in which he reversed his field.

"It was a patented Dorsett move," Dorsett said. "They tried to cut me off, so I just cut back across the field. Even Danny White threw a block."

Dorsett said, "It's a thrill to reach 10,000 yards, particularly against the Steelers. I followed the black and gold when I was young and if I had to write a script, I would write it getting the mark against them."

Landry said, "It was just a tremendous accomplishment. I was glad to see him do it in the fashion he did it."

"He made some amazing plays out there. And he made a great catch on the touchdown pass from Danny. Nobody seems to know he is also a good receiver."

Dorsett called his 56-yard touchdown pass reception from White "my secret weapon. Coach Landry told me to go deep and not hook back like I usually do on that play. It worked."

Overlooked in the Dorsett hoopla was the fact the victory gave Dallas a two-game lead in the National Conference East with a 5-1 record. The Steelers dropped to 2-4 in the American Conference Central.

"Dorsett got off to a slow start but finished strong," said Steeler linebacker Mike Merriweather. "That's a great achievement."

Undefeated Bears blast 49ers, 26-10

By BARRY WILNER
AP Sports Writer

The Chicago Bears handed the San Francisco 49ers a line or two and the National Football League champions had no responses ready.

The Bears, behind superlative efforts by both their offensive and defensive lines, remained unbeaten Sunday with a convincing 26-10 decision over the 49ers. Chicago, 6-0, avenged a 23-0 loss to San Francisco in the NFC title game last season by sacking 49ers QB Joe Montana seven times.

Walter Payton had a pair of touchdown runs and Kevin Butler booted four field goals.

"I give our offensive and defensive lines all the credit," said Bears quarterback Jim McMahon, agreeing with Coach Mike Ditka's decision to give both lines game balls. "We controlled the line of scrimmage."

Elsewhere Sunday, the Los Angeles Rams also remained unbeaten with a comeback 31-27 victory over winless Tampa Bay.

Tony Dorsett and John Riggins ran into the record books, Dorsett hurdling the 10,000-yard plateau by rushing for 121 yards as Dallas beat Pittsburgh 27-13, and Riggins scoring his 100th rushing TD in Washington's 24-3 win over Detroit.

Bears 26, 49ers 10

Chicago moved to a 16-0 lead and never was challenged by San Francisco's anemic offense. Montana passed for only 160 yards on 17 completions in 29 attempts, and the 49ers' runners managed only 67 yards. The Bears' offensive line opened massive holes for Payton while the defense continually pressured Montana.

"When the 49ers beat us last year, they didn't show much courtesy or dignity," Payton said. "They said negative things about our offense after shutting us out. We thought about that all during the offseason and the preseason."

And they did something about it Sunday, dropping the champs to 3-3.

"We were beaten about as badly as we ever have been," said 49ers Coach Bill Walsh. "There isn't any way you can be a Cinderella team forever. We're now in a position in which we must be considered as a very average football team."

Rams 31, Buccaneers 27

Tampa Bay threw a scare into the Rams but fell victim to a pair of touchdowns on interceptions of Steve DeBerg passes. LeRoy Irvin and Carl Ekern returned second-half pickoffs for scores, Irvin's for 34 yards and Ekern's for 33 yards.

Redskins 24, Lions 3

It's easy to admire the durable Riggins, at 36 still a force at fullback. He joined Jim Brown as the only backs to rush for 100 touchdowns in a career when he scored three times and ran for 114 yards. Riggins scored on runs of one, five and 25 yards and moved within three of Brown's 106 rushing TDs.

Bengals 35, Giants 30

Despite the second most prolific passing game in league history, Phil Simms could not bring New York a victory. Simms set three team marks as he completed 40 of 62 passes for an astounding 513 yards. Only Norm Van Brocklin, with 554 yards for the Rams in 1951, had more.

But Simms was intercepted for a third-quarter touchdown by James Griffin, then fumbled away the ball two plays later at the Giants 1. The Bengals also sacked Simms seven times for 70 yards in losses.

Chargers 31, Chiefs 20

Mark Herrmann might not make the San Diego fans forget the injured Dan Fouts, but he's certainly easing the pain of Fouts' absence. The backup quarterback threw two touchdown passes and went 6-for-6 in an 80-yard drive to the go-ahead score. He finished with 26-for-36 for 320 yards.

It was San Diego's first divisional win in 12 games, dating back to the Chargers' triumph over Kansas City on Dec. 11, 1983.

Seahawks 30, Falcons 26

Seattle fell behind winless Atlanta but rallied on Dave Krieg's fourth TD pass, a 12-yarder to Paul Skansi. Krieg took the Seahawks 86 yards in 16 plays to Skansi's touchdown and wound up hitting 33 of 51 passes for 405 yards.

There were four touchdowns, a field goal and a safety in the final quarter.

Chicago Bear quarterback JIM MCMAHON, who is sporting a pseudomohawk this season, takes a water break during his team's 26-10 victory over the defending Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers Sunday at Candlestick Park.

Patriots 14, Bills 3

Steve Grogan, who hadn't played quarterback for more than a year, replaced injured Tony Eason (separated left shoulder) and gave the Patriots a 7-3 lead with a 16-yard TD toss to Irving Fryar in the third period. He finished with 15 completions in 19 attempts for 282 yards, dropping Buffalo to 0-6.

Browns 7, Oilers 6

Clarence Weathers' deceptive quickness helped him gain 146 yards on three passes from rookie Bernie Kosar, who was making his first start at quarterback. Weathers scored on a 68-yard pass play, while Cleveland's defense sacked Oilers quarterbacks Warren Moon and Mike Moroski seven times for 41 yards in losses.

Broncos 15, Colts 10

John Elway hit 17 of 36 passes for 239 yards and set up a Denver touchdown with a 45-yard pass completion. He also rushed for 49 yards, keeping drives alive with scampers of 22 and 15 yards in the third quarter.

Packers 20, Vikings 17

Last week, Minnesota Coach Bud

Grant gambled and lost on a fourth-down play at the Rams 1. This week, he went for a tying field goal with 1:24 remaining. Jan Stenerud's 18-yarder made it 17-17, but Green Bay then marched 66 yards for the winning kick, a 22-yard field goal by Al Del Greco with seven seconds left.

Eagles 30, Cardinals 7

Philadelphia's anemic offense, which had scored only 46 points in its previous five games, broke out as QB Ron Jaworski, starting for the first time since being benched for rookie Randall Cunningham after a debacle on opening day, threw three touchdown passes. Jaworski completed 18 of 28 passes for 243 yards, and Paul McFadden kicked field goals of 39, 21 and 52 yards.

Raiders 23, Saints 13

Marcus Allen ran for two touchdowns in a span of 3:33, scoring from the 11 and the 8.

The Saints turned the ball over four times. The Raiders needed to move only 40, 26 and 43 yards on its three touchdown drives.

St. Louis, KC tighten playoff series

Cards drub LA, 12-5 Jackson hurls shutout

ST. LOUIS (AP) — After basking in the playoff limelight for the second time in three years, Tito Landrum labeled it deja vu with a twist.

"I would have to say that tonight will be indelible, but they're two different things," the St. Louis outfielder said following his record-tying, four-hit performance in the Cardinals' 12-2 triumph Sunday night over the Los Angeles Dodgers in Game 4 of the National League playoffs. "Tonight, being thrown in there at the last moment might have been the best thing. I sure didn't have time to worry."

Like his teammates, the 30-year-old Landrum arrived at Busch Stadium expecting Vince Coleman to start in left field.

Two hours before game time, a near-disaster drastically shifted that plan. Coleman was caught in a 1,200-pound motorized tarpaulin that was being rolled onto the field after batting practice.

"I was getting ready to walk down the stairs, and I heard the screams. I saw Vince lying on the ground," Landrum said. "My first reaction was I hope he didn't break his ankle or his leg. I realized that I would be inserted in the lineup."

Once in Manager Whitey Herzog's revised lineup, Coleman's replacement wasted little time in making his presence felt.

His RBI single started the Cardinals' nine-run second inning, the biggest uprising in playoff history. Before the inning ended, Landrum had singled again to tie another standard set earlier in the frame by the Cards' Jack Clark.

Landrum also singled in the fourth and eighth innings and drove in three runs.

"I'm not going to change my format now," said Landrum, admittedly a free swinger at the plate. "I've been successful at it too long. I see the ball, and I hit it. I try to react. Too many times I've hurt myself by thinking too long."

Landrum's first brush with the limelight came in 1983 when, as a Baltimore Oriole, he hit a 10th-inning home run to defeat the Chicago White Sox in the deciding game of the American League playoffs.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Something the Kansas City Royals joked about all season has turned into reality. They seem to play their best only in times of greatest stress.

Leading the American League West by 1½ games, Kansas City lost three straight to Minnesota and dropped into second with a week to go. Only then did the Royals turn it around, taking three of four from front-running California in a pressure-packed showdown to capture the title.

On Sunday, down three games to one in the best-of-seven American League playoffs, the Royals came up with a 2-0 victory on Danny Jackson's eight-hit, six-strikeout pitching.

Now it's back to Toronto, where right-hander Mark Gubicza duels Blue Jay right-hander Doyle Alexander Tuesday night in Game Six. Game Seven, if necessary, will unfold in Toronto Wednesday night.

But the Royals came out smoking. Lonnie Smith, breaking out of a series-long slump, doubled off starter Jimmy Key and stole third. Then George Brett, who would be held hitless, grounded to short to bring in the run.

Frank White bunted perfectly leading off the second and wheeled into third on a single by Steve Balboni. Darryl Motley's sacrifice fly scored White with what turned out to be the final run in another pitching gem.

Jackson, a 23-year-old left-hander who throws a heartless slider, struggled only in the middle innings.

Dane Iorg opened the fifth with a bloop single and sped to third when Ernie Whitt doubled into the right-field corner. Next up was Tony Fernandez.

Fernandez made contact, but hit a bouncer straight to Brett at third. Brett stared the runner back to the bag and threw to first for the out. Iorg remained helplessly at third when Damaso Garcia popped to White in shallow center. Then Lloyd Moseby, who doubled home the tying run Saturday night, grounded out in what Jackson said was "a big relief."

The prospect of returning to their own fans brightened the Blue Jays.

Wadkins takes Disney Classic

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins equaled the course record of 9-under-par 63 Sunday to overcome a 5-stroke deficit and win the $400,000 Walt Disney World-Oldsmobile Classic golf tournament by two shots.

Wadkins, who finished the 72-hole event at 21-under-par 267 to earn the $72,000 first prize, matched the best round over the Magnolia course since Hubert Green carded a 63 in 1973.

Third-round leader Scott Hoch, who started the day five strokes up on Wadkins, saw his lead melt despite shooting a 3-under 69.

Czechs lead Federation Cup

TOYOTA, Japan (AP) — The top-seeded Czechoslovakian women's tennis team won one singles match from the United States and took the lead in the other singles Sunday before rain halted the Federation Cup finals.

Czechoslovakia's Hana Mandlikova was leading 7-5, 3-0 when rain forced a halt in the second set of her match with American Kathy Jordan. The match will be resumed on Monday.

One doubles match also remains, but defending champion Czechoslovakia could clinch the title with a victory by Mandlikova. In September, she became the first foreign citizen to win the U.S. Open women's singles title in 12 years.

Sherr takes wrestling gold

BUDAPEST, Hungary (AP) — Bill Sherr won the second American gold medal at the World Freestyle Wrestling Championships Sunday, beating Hassan Mohebbi of Iran 7-4 in the final of the 198-pound division.

But Raul Cascaret of Cuba upset American Olympic champion Dave Shultz in the final of the 163-pound division. The American had been favored to win.

Saturday's finals saw Shultz's brother Mark, another Olympic champion, win the gold in the 180½-pound weight category.

Al Unser, Sr. wins Phoenix 150

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Al Unser Sr. sped off Sunday and left the fastest field in the history of Phoenix International Raceway in winning the Dana 150 Indy-car race and moving past his son into the season point lead.

The elder Unser, 46, dominated the 150-lap race, beating second-place Al Unser Jr. by more than a lap on the one-mile Phoenix oval. Mario Andretti was third, followed by Danny Sullivan, Michael Andretti and Bobby Rahal, all one lap behind the winner.

Quinn's Corner

Big Spring lost a tough 27-15 decision to Abilene Cooper in their third 4-5A contest of the season. Steer head coach Quinn Eudy had these comments about the game.

OFFENSE

"We were pleased the way offense moved the ball. We had over 400 yards total offense for the game, but it's the same old story with turnovers. The two turnovers we had in the first half when we were driving down in Cooper territory really hurt. You have to capitalize on scoring opportunity's like that if your'e going to win ball games."

DEFENSE

"Our defense played a real fine first half (held Cooper to 80 yards total offense). If they hadn't been on the field 10 of 12 minutes in the third quarter and fell asleep on a couple of passes, I'd say it was one of the better defensive games of the year. We just can't give people that many opportunities to score and expect the defense to keep'em out of the end zone."

TURNING POINT

"Obviously, it was the two turnovers in the third quarter. (Jimmy) Rogers makes a great run for a first down and then fumbles the ball on the 19. The fumble on the kickoff was just a bad break. (Hilarlo) Torres has been on the kickoff team the whole year and works on it every day."

Cardinal's Coleman run over by tarp in freak accident

By PAUL LeBAR
AP Sports Writer
ST. LOUIS (AP) — Only later could Vince Coleman, the fastest man in the St. Louis Cardinals' stable of base-stealing rabbits, laugh about being run down by a piece of machinery lumbering along at a few yards a minute.
"I just don't want to be charged with a caught-stealing because of this," Coleman said. "I'm OK, and I'll be playing soon."
Coleman, who set a rookie record by stealing 110 bases this season, was getting ready for Sunday night's fourth game of the National League playoffs when the mishap occurred.

A light rain was falling as Coleman and his teammates completed fielding practice. As he was trotting off the field, he wheeled and tossed his glove to a Cardinal coach. Coleman didn't see an unidentified member of the Busch Stadium grounds crew push the button unleashing a 1,200-pound automatic tarpaulin.
A 3-foot-wide, 180-foot-long section of the stadium floor opened up and the motorized tarp rose up and began moving across the field.

Coleman didn't see it until it was too late.
"He was standing, facing the stands. It hit his left toe," said Dodgers batboy Howard Hughett, 18, who had been watching in fascination because he'd never seen an automatic tarp before.
"He stepped back with his right foot, trying to pull it out," Hughett said. "It kept going. When it hit his ankle, he went down. It went up over his knee. He screamed. He was in extreme pain. It must have been three seconds when a bunch of Cardinal players got there and lifted it off him."

"I was just turning around and I heard this scream and the thing swallowed him up," third baseman Terry Pendleton said.
"I don't think (the grounds crew) was able to hear because of all the screaming," added utility player Mike Jorgensen.
Ken Ragan, chief of the crew, said there was no operator in the area when the accident took place, but insisted it wasn't a mechanical or operator failure.

Cards Manager Whitey Herzog said he once heard that a member of the Kansas City grounds crew was injured by a rolling tarp, but "this is the first I've ever heard of a player getting hurt."
"He has no swelling, he has a gash on the knee," Herzog said. "I doubt we'll be able to use Coleman (on Monday). From what the doctor said, he won't be ready, but will probably be ready by Wednesday."

Doctors X-rayed the leg and determined the extent of injury as a severe bruise from ankle to mid-thigh.
"I would compare it to a wringer injury, the type of injury people sustain when they get their hand caught in a wringer," said Dr. Stan London, the St. Louis team physician.
"He told us to forget about him, that he'd be OK. Once we knew he wasn't as seriously hurt as everybody first thought, it was kind of a relief."
