Young arsonists pose threat

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Major fires ignited in Big Spring elementary schools this summer have exposed the community to a costly and confusing social problem.

The problem is juveniles who commit arson. Reasons vary as to why youngsters commit the crime, experts say, and no clear trend has emerged, but statistics show an increase locally since 1980.

The Big Spring Independent School District paid $10,000 in total deductibles to Aetna Insurance Company to help cover fire damage incurred at the Washington Elementary School on June 30 and the Airport Elementary School on Aug. 5.

An investigation by local law enforcers into the Airport Elementary School fire, which resulted in $58,737 damage, led to the apprehension of four juveniles.

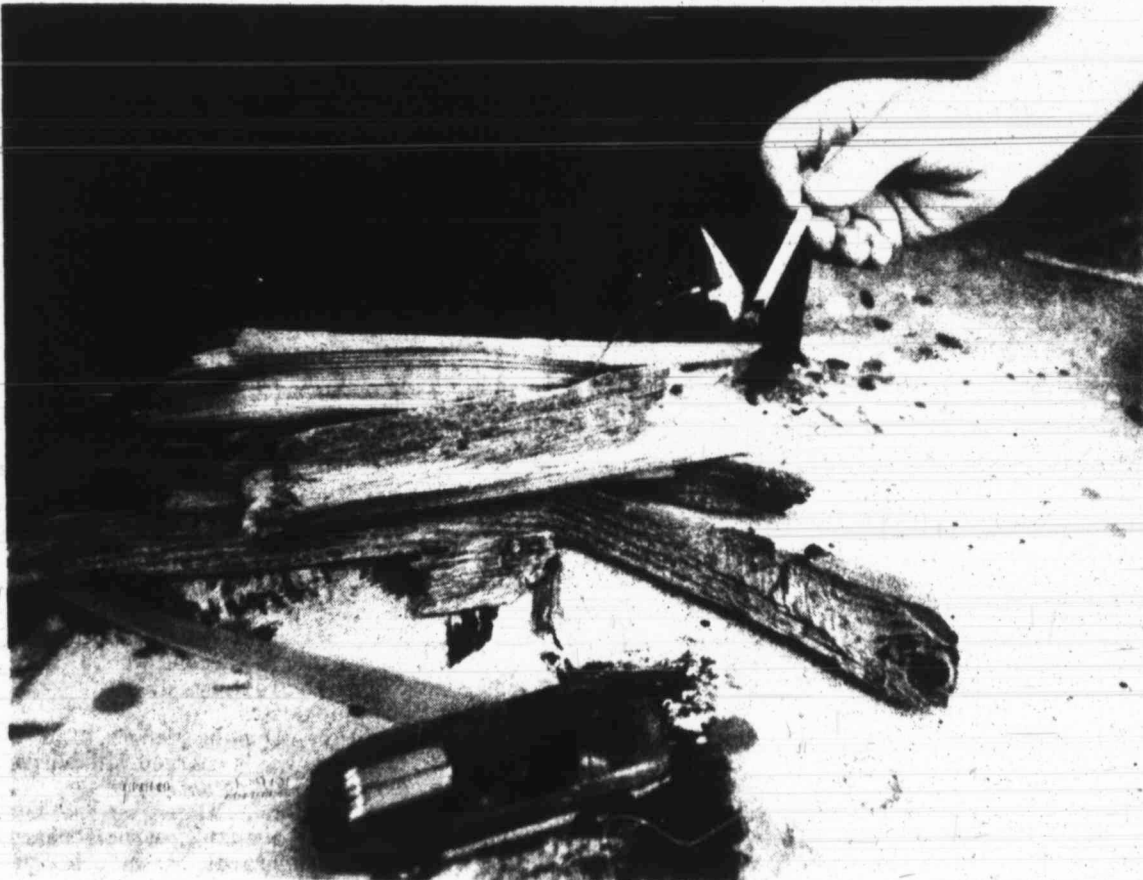

Howard County Judge Milton Kirby sentenced two male offenders to the Texas Youth Commission and placed two female offenders under strict supervision.

The Washington school fire, which resulted in $21,963 damage, is "an on-going investigation," said Burr Lea Settles, arson investigator with the Big Spring Fire Department.

No suspects have been apprehended, but Settles said shortly after the fire that juveniles were suspected because the fire was ignited in the teacher's lounge.

Don Crockett, assistant school superintendent of the Big Spring Independent School District, said the district has been reviewing "all preventative measures we can think of" to protect school facilities from arsonists. This includes studying different forms of security.

"We want to put them (security measures) into being in a measurable amount of time and establish better conditions than we had in the past," Crockett said.

Juveniles should be supervised when allowed to work with fires, says Big Spring arson investigator Burr Lea Settles.

Bob Logan, a public information officer with the Texas Juvenile Probation Commission in Austin, said a person who studies statewide juvenile arson statistics has to question whether each case "is more of an isolated incident or part of an actual trend that is surfacing out there."

According to statistics released from the Uniform Crime Reporting Bureau of the Department of Public Safety in Austin, juvenile arson cases the last five years average 636.6 per year statewide. The figure does not vary more or less than 15 percent from year to year.

Statistics the bureau received from the Big Spring Police Department show an increase locally. Three cases of juvenile arson were filed in both 1980 and 1981; seven cases were filed in both 1982 and 1983; 11 cases were filed in 1984; and four cases were filed during the first six months of this year.

Margy Thompson, chief juvenile probation officer of the 118th District Court, said the felony is rather uncommon and that during her career in working with juveniles both here and in El Paso County, she specifically remembers only five cases that involved juvenile arsonists.

Thompson said one of the boys sentenced to TYC for the Airport School fire told her after the hearing he involved himself in the act because he thought the other boy would accidentally burn himself.

The other boy, she said, "wanted to burn all the schools down and if he had dynamite —

Doctors face new demands

By KEELY COGHLIN
Staff Writer

Rising patient costs, rising malpractice insurance costs and the rapidly increasing number of doctors are the major problem facing doctors, said Lincoln Williston, executive director of the Texas Medical Association.

Williston was in Big Spring to address the Howard County Medical Association at a dinner Tuesday night.

Doctors are trying to contain the costs of medical bills, Williston said. For many years, patients were admitted to the hospital over the weekend when surgery wasn't scheduled until Monday. Now, doctors pay attention to when a patient is admitted, he said.

The TMA has a 22-point list of guidelines for doctors. A doctor who follows the list will recommend lab tests only if they are really needed and will admit patients closer to surgery and discharge them earlier than in the past, Williston said.

Peer reviews also have been set up to examine the length of patients' stays and their treatment, he said.

"Unfortunately, sometimes doctors practice defensive medicine. Sometimes patients are discharged too soon or patients are not given a test or two that may very be needed," Williston said.

The public also is more educated about medicine and asks for more second opinions, especially on elective surgery, Williston said.

Some of the long hospital stays in the past were not justified, though, Williston said. "Many times elderly patients stayed longer because they had no place to go, no one to care for them or their families were working and wanted them to stay in the hospital for a few more days until the weekend," he said.

Klinghoffer's body flown to Rome

LEON KLINGHOFFER
...body identified

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — A U.S. Embassy spokesman said today there appeared to be two gunshot wounds in the body of Leon Klinghoffer, the American passenger who died aboard the hijacked Italian cruise liner.

The body that washed ashore in Syria was put aboard a special Alitalia flight for Rome, where U.S. officials and Italian authorities are to conduct an autopsy to determine how Klinghoffer died.

"We have confirmed that the body is that of Leon Klinghoffer," U.S. Embassy spokesman John Burgess told reporters. "There apparently were two gunshot wounds in the corpse."

Syrian pathologists, a medical examiner retained by the embassy and an FBI agent who arrived in Damascus on Tuesday night identified the body "based on dental X-rays, fingerprints and physical characteristics," Burgess said.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Joe Reap said this morning, "We have positive identification." He said the body had "two apparent gunshot wounds," but said he could not elaborate and had no information on a CBS News report that the body had been mutilated.

Klinghoffer apparently received one gunshot wound in the head and one in the back," said Daniel Lawler, another State Department spokesman. The Syrian death certificate will state the cause of death as unknown because no autopsy was performed, he said.

The body arrived at the airport in a wooden coffin draped in the U.S. flag. It was escorted by U.S. Ambassador William Eagleton and Syrian military police. Reporters and photographers were not allowed near the plane.

The four Palestinians who hijacked the Achille Lauro Oct. 7 have been charged by Italian officials with murdering the partially paralyzed 69-year-old man from New York, but judicial sources have quoted them as denying the charge.

Burgess stressed that "there still has been no autopsy to determine the cause of death," noting that Klinghoffer could have died before he was shot.

The Palestine Liberation Front, to which the hijackers claimed to belong, has said Klinghoffer, who was confined to a wheelchair, could have died of a heart attack.

The body was brought to Damascus from Tartus on Tuesday and Western diplomatic sources and a physician said it appeared to have been in the sea for at least a week before washing ashore Monday.

No-pass rule will hurt Steers marching band

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The Big Spring Steers marching band will be hard hit this six weeks by the no-pass no-play rule.

Grade reports were filed last Friday, and reports cards should go out sometime this week, said high school Principal Murray Murphy. Preliminary reports show that 31 band members, or about 21 percent of the band, will be disqualified from performing at football games for the next six weeks, said band director Ricky Mitchell.

See related story, page 1B

The rule, which went into effect last spring, disqualifies any student who is failing at least one class from participation in extracurricular activities during that six-week period.

Losing the students will cause some last-minute reorganization of the band's halftime show. "I'm in the process of updating the show," Mitchell said.

However, the 31 students should be able to play for the upcoming fall concert, because the concert is considered class time, Mitchell said.

The next major event is the Christmas parade and concert. The students will have a chance to raise their grade before that event takes place, he said.

The band director said most of the band members failing classes are freshmen and sophomores. About 60 to 70 percent are freshmen who aren't used to the high school routine and "to being so harshly graded and punished for failing," he said.

Mitchell said the students who were left out of band activities at the end of last year when the rule was enforced are not the same ones failing now.

Regional chambers approve state water plan

AUSTIN (AP) — The statewide water plan on the Nov. 5 ballot has been endorsed by Texas' four regional chambers of commerce, which represent 250,000 business firms and individuals.

"This is the first time we have ever got together on a water plan," said Tom Champion of Brownsville, head of the Rio Grande Valley Chamber of Commerce and the Texas State Chambers of Commerce that includes all four.

Absentee voting for the general election began this morning in the Howard County Clerk's office and will continue through Nov. 1. Registered voters who are 65 years of age or older, physically unable or expected to be absent on election day may vote absentee, said county clerk Margaret Ray.

The county clerk's office is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

"The water issue has often divided us but it brings us together this time," said Nancy Speck of Nacogdoches, president-elect of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, at a Tuesday news conference.

"This is the first time we have ever agreed on a water plan," said

Steve Stevens of San Angelo, president-elect of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. "This is representative of the broad areas of the state."

"We feel that South Texas and all of Texas is very dependent on having water," said E.W. "Bubba" Wehman Jr. of Pleasanton, president of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Wehman said he believed the four chambers "finally realized this is a statewide program, not a regional one."

"We also feel that we are much closer to a real water emergency this time," said Ms. Speck.

The Boating Trades Association of Texas also announced Tuesday that it would support the statewide water plan.

Navy man's new career

Texan trades swabbing decks for sweeping chimneys

Walter Cochran of Port Arthur cleans a chimney from his roof top perch. Cochran retired from the Navy and took on a new uniform, the traditional garb of a chimney sweep.

PORT ARTHUR (AP) — Dressed like a character out of Oliver Twist, a retired Navy man has started a new career dispersing dust, trivia and safety information as a full-time chimney sweep.

Walter Cochran, 40, of Port Arthur, said when he's working, he always wears his top hat, coat with tails, black turtle neck, pants and red suspenders. The costume makes most of his customers want to have their picture taken with him.

"Whenever I go into a Wal-Mart or someplace, it isn't long before someone is looking at me," Cochran said.

Such chimney sweep fashion dates back to the 1700s when sweeps, as they're called, wore the clothing discarded by professional mourners, people who would dress up and mourn for money at funerals, weeping for dollars.

"They tell me no sweep has fallen off a roof while he was wearing his top hat," Cochran said.

But chimney sweep fashion trivia and dust aren't the only stuff Cochran disperses. He also spreads the word on fireplace safety and maintenance.

"A dirty fireplace is a dangerous fireplace," he said. Creosote, a flammable material that comes from wood tar, condenses in the chimney flue and can ignite if the fire in the chimney gets hot enough, causing "a chimney fire" which can turn into a house fire.

Chimney fires often start around the holidays when families are unwrapping presents and burning the wrapping in a fire place where creosote has built up, Cochran said.

Though sweeps can't guarantee that having a chimney cleaned will prevent chimney fires, it will diminish the possibility of such a fire.

The temperature of a chimney fire can exceed 2,000 degrees, enough to melt the mortar in a brick fireplace.

"Educating someone to the fact that their chimney needs to be cleaned has to be one of our biggest goals."

Cochran and other chimney sweeps discourage burning small smoky fires in large fireplaces because that cause the creosote to build up faster. It's also wise to avoid burning trash, especially plastics, in prefabricated fireplaces, ones made out of metal, because the smoke that's created is corrosive to the fireplace.

Paper logs sold in stores are best avoided, he said, because they are made of paper and paraffin which can burn unevenly and pop, causing furniture or carpeting to ignite. Similar problems can arise for the same reasons from the use of pine wood for fireplace fuel.

No-pass

couldn't go on tour (last year) made sure they had their grades up this time," he said.

Most other non-athletic areas of participation won't be affected this six weeks, say activity sponsors.

Chuck Steadman, drama and speech coach, said few of his students will be affected because it has long been his policy to audition only passing students.

"All people in the play rehearsal are passing, because I select people who are passing," he said. "I'm not going to lose anyone I was counting on."

Terry Denton, in charge of the Future Farmers of America chapter, said his students won't be affected this six weeks because competition doesn't start until later in the year.

"We won't be affected until the county show in January, two grading periods from now," he said. "Most of our activities are in the spring."

Murphy said he doesn't know the total number of high school students who will be eliminated from participation in extracurricular activities this six weeks. District-wide figures are not available yet, he said.

"The majority of the kids have passed and will continue to participate," Murphy said. "We may have 5 to 10 percent of the kids that don't participate because of the grades."

Doctors

One reason for the rapid rise of medical costs is the skyrocketing cost of liability insurance for doctors, Williston said.

More people are filing lawsuits in every field and court awards are increasing, Williston said. In New York, some doctors are paying $100,000 a year for malpractice insurance.

"We do recognize that there is some malpractice, and those who are involved should be compensated," he said. At the same time, however, "people in this country are looking for an easy financial reward so they don't have to work anymore."

"A lot of suits are not meritorious. More than 75 percent of the cases filed are dismissed or settled without any judgment or financial payment," Williston said.

One reason for the increase in malpractice suits is the advanced state of medical treatment in the United States, Williston said. "The expectations of the public are understandably great. We have made great strides in medicine. People think they should be able to be cured or back on their feet (after a visit to a doctor), and that's not always possible," he said.

The effects of the high cost of malpractice insurance premiums could cause more doctors to steer away from the primary medicine specialties or anesthesiology, he said.

The elimination of joint and several liability, or the "big pocket" attack could ease this problem, Williston said. Under this, a doctor could be sued, although he himself did nothing to incur liability, because he is partners with the liable doctor and he has higher insurance coverage.

Williston also faulted contingency fees — when lawyers set their fees on a percentage of the settlement if they win a case — and long-term periodic payments in settlements. "Quite frequently, the individual doesn't need that. He's healed or cured but he gets a lifetime of compensation," Williston said.

One fairly bright area is that of medical manpower, Williston said. In the last 30 years, the state population has doubled, but the number of physicians has more than tripled, he said.

In addition, the state now has seven medical schools, more than double the three operating when Williston first became TMA executive director 31 years ago.

In some places — West Texas, rural areas and "poverty pockets" in metropolitan areas — there still is a shortage of primary care physicians, Williston said.

"We are rapidly overcoming the problems in the past. But it does indicate an oversupply of doctors in some specialties," he said.

"If there is a problem, it is the number of foreign medical graduates. If an individual is qualified or well-trained, no matter where he comes from, he should be licensed to practice in Texas," Williston said. Nineteen percent of the doctors licensed in the state graduated from a foreign medical school, he said.

"In all candor, some medical schools — particularly in the Caribbean — are done by entrepreneurs for financial gain. They don't have high requirements." He referred to the type of schools spoofed in the cartoon Doonesbury, in which the "Baby Doc Medical School" is run by people not knowledgeable in medicine.

Grand jury convenes

Evidence gathered for 28 cases was submitted to the Howard Grand Jury, which convened at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday morning.

Robert Morris, Howard County Assistant District Attorney, said results probably would be available Thursday afternoon.

Cases that grand jurors will decide on are:

• Douglas Bailey Jr., 17, of 1508 Bluebird who is charged with a July 8 sexual assault incident.

• Martin Bejarano, age and address not available, who is charged with burglary of a motor vehicle that occurred in June 1985.

• Roy Broadwell, age and address not available, who is charged with burglary of a building that occurred on July 7, 1983.

• An investigation into indecency with a child that occurred on March 3.

• Anthony Bullard, 31, of 4203 Walnut for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle that occurred on July 20.

• Jimmy Carruthers, 20, of West of Midway Plumbing, Midway, for burglary of a vehicle that occurred in June 1985.

• An investigation into aggravated assault that occurred on July 9.

• Steve T. Christian, 22, of 1107 S. Goliad for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle that occurred on Sept. 7.

• Charles Deford, no age or address available, who is charged with burglary of a building on July 21.

• Jessie Hernandez, 24, of 3608 Mobile who is charged with aggravated assault with serious bodily injury on Sept. 15.

• Maximo Hernandez, no age or address available, who is charged with aggravated assault with serious bodily injury on Sept. 15.

• Wilford Houdeshell, no age or address available, who is charged with aggravated robbery on Sept. 12.

• Barbara Kinard, 26, of Gail Route Box 443 who is charged with aggravated assault with a child on Sept. 6.

• Shane Kreager, no age or address available, who is charged with burglary of a building on July 21.

• Rory Jay Lawson, 22, no age or address available, who is charged with unlawfully carrying a weapon on a licensed premises on Aug. 2.

• James Willard Matthews, 53, of 1311 W. Second who is charged with felony driving while intoxicated.

• Augustine Mendez, 21, of 1311 Elm who is charged with burglary of a building on July 16.

• Calvin Miller, no age or address available, who is charged with aggravated assault on July 27.

• Ronnie Moncada, no age or address available, who is charged with burglary of a vehicle on July 22.

• Eusebio Morales, 36, of Coahoma who is charged with a DWI felony on Sept. 21.

• Mark Murphree, 22, of Route 3 Box 89 who is charged with burglary of a building on July 29.

• Mike McDaniel, 30, of 1425 E. Sixth who is charged with aggravated assault with serious bodily injury on Aug. 31.

• Terry Glen Reddin, 25, of 1502 B Virginia who is charged with burglary of a building on July 29.

• An investigation into indecency with a child in August.

• Henry Rodriguez, no age or address available, who is charged with burglary of a building in June.

• Chuck Rosenbaum, 19, of Sterling City Route Box 112 who is charged with unauthorized use of a motor vehicle on July 14.

• Jamie Hernandez, 18, of 3608 Dixon who is charged with theft over $750 on July 27.

• Marie Salazar, 40, of 703 Douglas who is charged with aggravated assault on July 15.

The case list does not include an Indiana man who recently was suspected of committing perjury during a probation hearing before Judge James Gregg.

Gregg sentenced Stephen J. Zult, 35, of Jeffersonville to six years at the Texas Department of Corrections on Sept. 24, and at that time requested District Attorney Rick Hamby to bring a perjury charge of the convict before this grand jury.

Arsonists

he wanted to dynamite them too.

The two juvenile girls involved with the arson remained hidden at the scene and eventually joined curious onlookers to watch Big Spring firemen battle the blaze, Thompson said.

Dr. Harry Davis, chief psychologist at Big Spring State Hospital, said those afflicted with pyromania, an overwhelming compulsion to start fires and watch them burn, "always have to get their kicks by watching it burn."

He said theories currently used to explain why some juveniles become arsonists include Freudian and anti-authoritarian assumptions.

The Freudian theory assumes a young person who has passed puberty gets sexual excitement from watching flames, Davis said.

Anti-authoritarian types may try to strike back at authority by setting fires, Davis said.

Big Spring Fire Chief Carl Dorton and Settles said most of the juvenile arson cases they have worked or investigated have been grass fires in rural areas of the county that resulted from kids playing with matches.

If fire investigators notice something out of the ordinary with the child, Settles said, "we'll talk to the parents and let them know to keep an eye on them."

Settles said the problem of juvenile arsonists could be stemmed by breaking at a young age the habit of playing with matches.

Police Beat

Possible child abuse probed

Police are investigating a case of possible child abuse, according to department records.

Tracy Van Ness of Garden City Highway filed a complaint of injury to a child with the department Tuesday. The incident occurred at 5 p.m. Friday at 2907 Navajo, according to the report.

The complaint stemmed from a spanking by a babysitter in which the child suffered immediate bruises, said Sgt. Pam Jordan. The spanking "was not that severe ... the child was not treated at the hospital," she said.

The child's parents already have notified the Department of Human Resources of the incident, Jordan said.

No arrests have been made in the case.

• Jerry Foresyth of 2909 MacAuslan told police Tuesday that someone stole a briefcase containing jewelry and other items in the last week of August from near the old gym at Howard College.

Taken were a gold nugget bracelet, valued at $600; a brown leather briefcase, valued at $75; a calculator with a printout, valued at $50; a pen and pencil set, with Foresyth's name engraved, valued at $40; and business records and a blank check.

The report stated that Foresyth filed the report after someone forged and cashed the check.

• Kay Moser of the Safeway store at College Park Shopping Center told police a check for $125 was returned to the store, marked "stop payment."

• Jose Louis Ontiveros of 711 N.W. Eighth told police someone he knows has been cashing his paychecks while he was out of town. The incidents occurred in September.

• Pamela Roberts of 1022 Nolan told police someone damaged her front door between midnight and 10 a.m. Tuesday. The damage is estimated at $50.

• Police early today arrested Betty Hamilton, no age listed, of 1405 State in the 1300 block of Mount Vernon on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

• Police arrested Pam Sherman, 22, of 810 N.W. Third in the 200 block of N.W. 11th on suspicion of having no driver's license.

Sheriff's Log

Trailer reported burglarized

Charles Sandford of Gail Route Box 12 told sheriff's deputies Tuesday night his trailer had been broken into and $125 was missing from his dresser drawer.

The burglary was reported to have occurred between Sunday and Tuesday, and entry was gained by breaking a lock on a trailer door, according to sheriff's reports.

The incident is being investigated by the sheriff's department.

• Deputies arrested Donna Byrley, 21, of Sterling City Route Box 27 on a warrant charging her with issuing a bad check. She was released on $500 bond set by Justice of the Peace China Long.

• Deputies arrested Tony Martinez, 22, of 106A E. 15th on a district court warrant charging him with violating his probation received for a burglary judgment. He is being held in county jail in lieu of bond.

• Police transferred Betty E. Hamilton, 46, of 1405 State after she was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated. She was released on $1,000 bond.

Local civil suits claim negligence in injuries

Civil suits filed recently in the Howard County District Clerk's office asks the court to award money to alleged victims who suffered injuries as the result of falls.

Thomas H. Parras of Big Spring is suing Denny's Restaurants for injuries he received last February while performing a job at Denny's on 1710 E. First, according to a suit filed Monday.

The suit states that Parras, an employee of Culligan Water Conditioning Co., was working from a ladder on a water softener at the restaurant last Feb. 7 when he was shocked on an open electrical light switch box while descending the ladder.

As a result of the shock, Parras was "knocked off the ladder and fell on his back, causing serious personal injuries to him and his back," the document states.

The suit claims Denny's was negligent in failing to inspect, cover and warn about the uncovered light switch.

Parras sustained herniated disc injuries from the fall, the suit contends, and exact damages were requested to be pleaded at trial time.

A civil suit filed last Thursday says similar negligence was responsible for a woman who fell in an aisle at TG&Y last December.

Nora Ford of Big Spring says in the suit she suffered serious and permanent injuries as a direct result of tripping over a display rack situated on a lower shelf along a store aisle.

The store and its employees are negligent, the suit contends, in placing the racks in a precarious position and failing to warn store patrons.

The suit requests the court to award Ford a damage amount in excess of $150,000 and "further relief to plaintiff may be justly entitled."

Deaths

Raymond Pineda

Services for Raymond Pineda, 41, of Big Spring will be at 4:30 p.m. Thursday at St. John Neumann Catholic Church in Lubbock with Monsignor Joseph James officiating. Burial will be at Peaceful Gardens Memorial Park, directed by Rix Funeral Home in Lubbock.

Pineda died Tuesday morning at Highland Hospital in Lubbock after a sudden illness. He was born Feb. 22, 1944, in Big Spring and married Mary Sosa Aug. 21, 1963.

He is survived by his wife Mary of the home; three sons, Michael, Scott and Jeffrey Pineda of the home; his mother, Rosenda Pineda of Odessa; three brothers, Ramon Nunez, Lorenzo Pineda and Tony Perez, all of Odessa; a sister, Manuela Jaquez of Odessa; a half-sister, Gloria Chaidex of Odessa; and half-brothers Raymon Pineda and Lorenzo Pineda of Odessa.

Cruz Puga

Rosery for Cruz O. Puga, 64, will be at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Nalley-Pickle and Welch Rosewood Chapel. Funeral Mass will be at 4 p.m. Thursday at St. Thomas Catholic Church with the Rev. Michael Moore, pastor, officiating. Burial will be at Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Puga died Tuesday afternoon at Malone-Hogan Hospital after a brief illness.

He was born May 3, 1921, in Big Spring. He married Lupe Sosa in 1947 in El Paso. He was a member of the Sacred Heart Catholic Church and a veteran of World War II, having served in the Army. He had lived most of his life in Big Spring and was a heavy equipment operator for the city of Big Spring for 27 years.

Survivors include his wife, Lupe; three sons, Gilbert Puga, Cruz Puga Jr., and Mark Puga, all of Big Spring; a brother, Johnny Puga of Big Spring; four sisters, Mrs. Sam (Eva) Chavarria of Odessa, and Mrs. Raymond (Andria) Munez, Mrs. Jesus (Mary) Sotelo and Adelia Gutierrez, all of Big Spring.

Palbearers will be Gary Fugua, Elzie Browne, Eraul Padilla, Jessie Alvarez, Juan Garcia, Benito Rubio, Henry Salazar and Raymond Gonzales.

Clarence Airhart

Services for Clarence E. Airhart, 67, of Hermleigh will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at Nalley Pickle and Welch Rosewood Chapel with the Rev. R.C. Nixon, retired Methodist minister of Hermleigh, officiating. Burial will be at Mount Olive Memorial Park.

Airhart died Tuesday morning at the Rolling Plains Hospital in Sweetwater after a two-year illness.

He was born Nov. 27, 1918, in Dickens County and married Nina Cox on March 2, 1965, in Big Spring. He was a Protestant. He was a veteran of World War II, having served in the Army. He had lived in Martin County for 12 years before moving to Hermleigh eight years ago. He was a farmer and rancher before retiring due to ill health.

Survivors include his wife of Hermleigh; a son, Ronnie Neal Airhart of Crane; a daughter, Lana Kay Airhart of Blackwell; two stepdaughters, Tina Terry and Janet Albritton, both of Palestine; his mother, Mrs. E.C. Airhart of Abilene; and two brothers, J.E. Airhart of Spang and Bobbie Airhart of Winters. He also is survived by five grandchildren.

Killer electrocuted

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind. — Five jolts of electricity instead of the prescribed two were needed today to execute William E. Vandiver, convicted of stabbing his father-in-law to death, then cutting up his body with a hacksaw.

A prison doctor said Vandiver, 37, was still breathing after the first round of 2,300 volts and a second of 500 volts were applied at 12:03 a.m. Three more blasts of current were applied before he was pronounced dead 17 minutes later.

Pay cuts approved

PITTSBURGH — United Steelworkers negotiators have approved pay cuts of at least 11 percent at Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., asking striking workers to swallow a "bitter pill" to save the company and their jobs.

The 87-day-old walkout by 8,200 union members at the company's nine plants in Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia is the nation's longest steel shutdown in 26 years.

Marines killed in crash

JACKSONVILLE, N.C. — A team of divers hovering overhead was able to "immediately" reach a helicopter that crashed into the ocean after taking off from a ship, but 15 Marines aboard died in the corps' second worst aircraft accident, officials say.

Four others were rescued Tuesday when their twin-rotor, Marine CH-46D "Sea Knight" helicopter, with 19 people aboard, crashed and sank on takeoff from the USS Guadalcanal.

Bank pleads guilty

BOSTON — Boston's financial establishment has been shaken again with the indictment of Bank of New England, the region's No. 2 bank, on federal charges it covered up $817,200 in cash withdrawals by a suspected gambler.

Tuesday's 43-count indictment comes eight months after New England's largest bank, Bank of Boston, pleaded guilty to reporting violations.

Reagan makes a point

MILWAUKEE — President Reagan claims the Chinese government acquiesced to his "Star Wars" missile defense plan after being persuaded of its merits by U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations Vernon Walters.

Departing from his text Tuesday at a fundraising dinner for Sen. Robert Kasten, R-Wis., Reagan was about to conclude his speech when he digressed to illustrate a point about the controversial high-tech defense system he is seeking to develop.

WILLIAM H. WEBSTER, right, Director of the FBI, chats with Edwin Meese 111, Attorney General of the United States, Tuesday as the two prepared to address the International Association of Chiefs of Police in Houston. Meese and Webster talked to the chiefs about the prosecution and combating terrorists.

Terrorism

Webster says Americans are main targets

HOUSTON (AP) — Terrorism in the United States has steadily declined in recent years, but Americans have become the principal target of international violence, FBI Director William Webster says.

"Estimates show that over 40 percent of the terrorist acts in the last 10 years have been directed at U.S. citizens, institutions or property," Webster said Tuesday in a speech to the International Association of Chiefs of Police meeting in Houston.

Attorney General Edwin Meese told the conference that federal authority would be used to prevent violence and to bring terrorists to justice.

"Terrorism is a crime and a terrorist is a criminal — just like any murderer, kidnapper or burglar," Meese said.

Statistics show terrorist acts within the United States have steadily dropped since 1977, when 112 incidents were reported, Webster said. The number fell to 51 in 1982, then to 13 last year, he said.

Only four incidents have been reported this year, although last week's bombing of the Arab Anti-Defamation League in California and the murder of a director "probably will be No. 5," Webster said.

Twenty-three incidents have been prevented this year, he said.

"We've made tremendous progress here at home. Working with law enforcement agencies around the world, we can, we must come to grip with this international crime," the director said.

Webster cited the hijacking of an Italian cruise ship and the murder of Leon Klinghoffer, 69, of New York City, who was killed during the ordeal.

The 5,000 conference delegates adopted a resolution praising the capture of the hijackers of the cruise ship Achille Lauro and urging "swift and sure response to every international criminal ... to encourage a return to sanity and a rule of law."

Chrysler workers go on strike

HIGHLAND PARK, Mich. (AP) — Eighty thousand U.S. and Canadian autoworkers went on strike today at Chrysler Corp. plants and parts depots after the collapse of the first labor talks in a decade with a healthy Chrysler.

The separate negotiations ended just before the midnight expiration of contracts in both countries.

and after thousands of workers at three U.S. Chrysler plants already had walked off the job.

The autoworkers, many of whom once granted substantial wage and benefit concessions during Chrysler's struggle to avoid bankruptcy, prepared for picket duty today against their recovered employer.

Roof collapse kills 71

DHAKA, Bangladesh — The roof of a university dormitory collapsed on about 500 students under torrential rain from a storm roaring inland from the Bay of Bengal. Hospital sources said today at least 71 people died and rescuers expected the toll to increase.

The storm came ashore from the Bay of Bengal this morning, lashing Bangladesh and southeastern India with winds of up to 93 mph.

Ortega suspends rights

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — The leftist government suspended the right to free expression, public assembly, strikes, and the privacy of the home because of what it called "brutal aggression" by the United States and the government's opponents.

President Daniel Ortega read a decree suspending the rights Tuesday night over national radio and television.

Iraqi clergyman flees

NICOSIA, Cyprus — The archbishop of the Eastern Assyrian Church of Iraq has fled to Iran and asked for political asylum, according to Iran's official news media.

Tehran Radio said Tuesday that Archbishop Zaid Debatu, the highest ranking Christian clergyman in Iraq, crossed the border into Iran in the northwestern region, arriving in the country "after long hardship."

Uganda on the brink

KAMPALA, Uganda — The government has almost depleted its foreign exchange reserves, and because rebels have kept much of the nation's coffee crop from market, Uganda may soon be broke, a newspaper said Tuesday.

The independent weekly Focus quoted unidentified officials of the Central Bank of Uganda on as saying Uganda may soon be unable to pay its monthly bill for oil and other imports.

Seaway closure costly

THOROLD, Ontario — Costs to shippers are mounting and notices of impending layoffs have been sent along the immobilized St. Lawrence Seaway as officials estimate it will be several weeks before a collapsed Welland Canal lock wall is repaired and traffic can resume.

"It's going to mean billions of dollars overall," said Fleet Captain Winfield Longe of ULS International Inc., a Toronto-based shipping company with 21 vessels in operation.

Swiss help put sexism to rest

Switzerland's reputation as a bastion of male supremacy may at last have been delivered a mortal blow, at least officially. After the all-male electorate extended the vote on federal matters to women in 1971, Swiss voters of both sexes approved an equal rights amendment in 1981. And last year, Parliament cleaned up some unfinished business by adapting the country's family law to conform with the constitution. Previously, married women legally could not take a job, obtain credit, open a bank account or even choose their children's school without the husband's permission, although as often as not it didn't work out that way in practice.

Some Swiss, including a few women, objected to such a change, arguing that it would reduce marriage to a "mere partnership." They exercise their right, in a country that takes direct democracy seriously, by collecting enough signatures to challenge the law in a popular referendum. The Swiss affirmed the law in September, albeit by the relatively modest margin of 55 percent to 45 percent, so that, from now on, married women no longer will be merely "keeper of the keys," as the legal code put it. They will have the right, among others, to have their income taxed as their own, not just as supplements to their husband's income. (One rural canton still denies the vote on local issues to women.)

Much of the credit for this turn of events belongs to Elisabeth Kopp, lawyer, legislator, first-ever woman member of the Federal Executive Council and tireless campaigner for equal rights. Kopp also is married. Fortunately for the cause she fought so hard for, her lawyer husband didn't try to prevent her from running for Parliament or becoming the country's attorney general (the post she now holds). Now even if he wanted to, he could not prevent her from assuming the presidency of the republic when her turn in that rotating position comes in a couple of years.

Middle East peace did have a prayer

The term "Middle East peace process" is normally a self-contradiction. If there was some small hope that the initiative launched by King Hussein and Yasser Arafat would change that fact, it was probably dashed by the Israeli air strike against Palestine Liberation Organization offices in Tunisia. This outcome was probably foreordained, but it is no less regrettable for its inevitability.

No one disputes Israel's right to defend itself against terrorism. But its motives, its method and its timing in this attack all are, at the very least, highly suspect.

Jerusalem claimed to be retaliating for the killing of three Israelis in Cyprus, even though the PLO had plausibly denied any role, and for three foiled attacks by seaborne PLO guerrillas. But not every terrorist attack warrants a military response. The real danger to Israeli security from the PLO threat is not great, however aggravating it may be.

Given the steps taken by Hussein, Israel could have held its fire for the time being without risking anything. One point of peace talks, after all, is to undercut the appeal of violence. The Israelis have seen that military responses don't stamp out terrorism. A negotiated settlement might. As the Israeli newspaper Ha'aretz editorialized, "Planes can punish our enemies by bombing, killing and destroying. But planes are incapable of solving the problem."

This raid didn't exact a mere eye for an eye. Tunisia said 73 people, including 12 Tunisians, were killed. In the last year, terrorist acts have claimed 16 Israeli lives. A military with the fabled prowess of the Israeli Defense Forces ought to be able to find ways to strike against its enemies without using military jets against populated areas.

The timing of the attack betrays its purpose. The Israeli fighters carried out their mission even as Hussein was calling on congressmen in Washington. It occurred just days after the King took a step that should have been welcome in Jerusalem: declaring at the United Nations that he is ready to negotiate "promptly and directly" with Israel.

The point is clear. Hussein had to be embarrassed because he has had the nerve to try to bring the hated Arafat into peace talks. To sanction the King's effort is to grant tacit recognition to the PLO, to do that means contemplating the legitimacy of Palestinian demands for a homeland. The Israeli government finds the idea unthinkable. Any effort to make it thinkable, even by a peaceable Arab leader like Hussein, has to be scuttled.

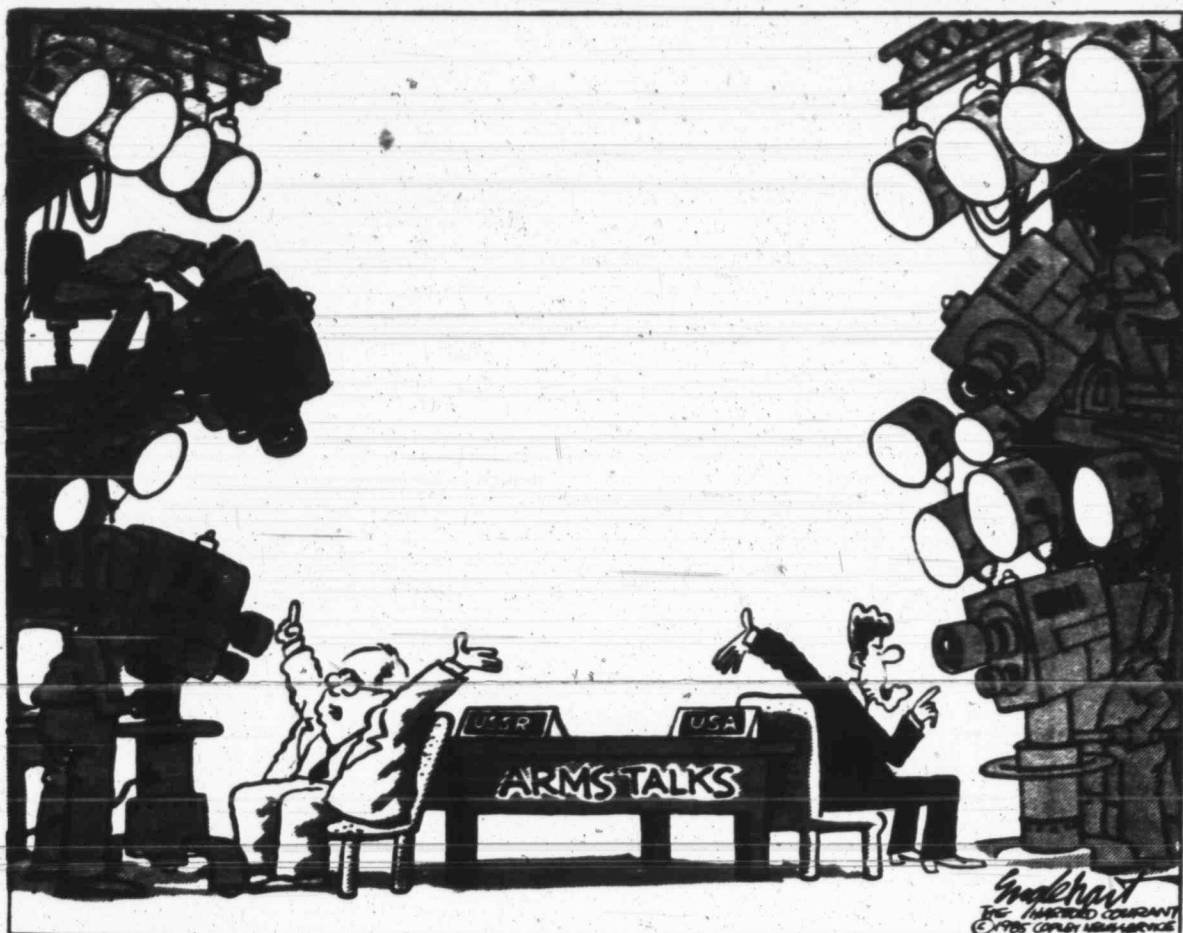

There is unquestionable great resistance among the Arab states to conciliation with the Jewish state. But it is easy to forget how far Hussein and Arafat have come. In their February agreement, they accepted the principle of "land for peace" reflected in UN Resolution 242. They also endorsed a Palestinian entity on the West Bank and the Gaza Strip, confederated with Jordan — as envisioned in President Reagan's own peace proposal. Arafat has indicated his willingness to negotiate with Israel.

Israel, however, won't bend. Whatever Jerusalem's professed reverence for Resolution 242, it refuses to consider a return to anything remotely resembling the pre-1967 borders. The Reagan plan was rejected by Prime Minister Begin as soon as it was offered. Any dealing with the PLO is likewise spurned. Israel says it wants negotiations, but only on the terms and subjects it dictates.

That is a recipe for stalemate, or worse. The only hope for breaking it lies in a U.S. willingness to take a leading role, pushing both sides to compromise — as it did in brokering the Camp David treaty. Unfortunately, the Reagan administration apparently prefers the risks of the status quo to the risks of new forays into the Middle East.

Given that, the peace process had effectively ended before it started. The raid of Tunisia was just a punctuation mark.

India can detonate bomb

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — India, which exploded a nuclear bomb 11 years ago, can set off a second one within two months of a decision to do so, and is already storing enough material to build an entire nuclear arsenal.

In addition, the Indians appear to be mastering the more sophisticated technique of building a hydrogen bomb.

This is the latest information we've gathered from CIA sources and a recent trip to India. It adds fresh cause for concern to our recent report that Pakistan could also produce a nuclear bomb within a matter of weeks. Our sources say there's no question that India is far ahead of its neighbor and potential adversary.

India's 1974 device, which had about the power of the bomb dropped on Hiroshima, was essentially a plutonium-fission device. Since then, the CIA has received reports — still highly classified — that India was about to detonate another bomb. In early 1976, for example, President Ford was alerted to a report by a "reliable clandestine source" that India would complete its second nuclear bomb within three or four weeks, and would test it underground. But the test was never made.

Although his late mother, Indira, pushed the nuclear program when she governed India, Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi was thought unlikely to follow her lead in this area. But he changed his mind earlier this year when he became alarmed at the progress Pakistan was making in nuclear weapons development. On May 4, he stated publicly that Pakistan's "persistent efforts" to join the nuclear club had compelled India to review its nuclear policy.

So far, however, the CIA has had difficulty learning many details of the Indian nuclear program. "Indian security is extremely tight on any aspect of its program relating to nuclear explosives," lamented one top-secret CIA report we've seen. To make matters worse, good satellite photography of India's possible A-test areas has been hampered by poor weather, the report adds.

"September and October of each year are good months climatically for tests in the western desert regions of India," the CIA reported stated, adding: "Weather is not a controlling factor in scheduling a test, but the Indians have indicated that they regard it as important."

Although the CIA believes that "worry about potential reactions of other nations" has caused India to hold off on a second test, the top-secret report notes that "in fact, the world response to the first test was less severe than India expected, particularly from Western aid donors."

According to CIA sources, India is simultaneously going ahead with work on a hydrogen bomb. Unlike the crude atomic bomb it detonated in 1974, a hydrogen bomb is a fusion device triggered by an A-bomb, and thus far more complex to develop.

The H-bomb is being built at the Bhabha nuclear research center near Bombay. About three dozen scientists there are trying to refine a process called "inertial confinement fusion." The CIA acknowledges that this process can be used for peaceful purposes, but the expense and concentration of scientists on this project suggest that if it is not already a weapons program it could easily and quickly be converted into one.

Meanwhile, at a reprocessing plant less than a mile from its U.S.-built Tarapur atomic power plant, India since 1983 has been stockpiling separated plutonium that is ideal for weapons. At full capacity, the plant can reprocess 100 tons of spent fuel a year, separating out as much as 150 kilograms of weapons-grade plutonium. Six to 8 kilos are enough for a nuclear bomb.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: "Baksheesh" is the time-honored way of doing business in the Persian Gulf; the necessity of bribing government officials has irritated and sometimes impoverished American businessmen trying to make a buck in the region. Now there are signs that the gulf nations, faced with tighter budgets as a result of the drastic drop in oil revenues, are taking belated steps to crack down on official corruption. In Abu Dhabi, for example, the government has set up an "autonomous auditing authority" to oversee the operations of government departments and companies in which the state has an interest. Old hands are still betting on baksheesh, though.

BYE-BYE BRASS?: The Pentagon, whose occupants regularly warn that the sky is falling, is itself sinking slowly into the Potomac mud. The fill dirt brought in when the huge building was built during World War II has become saturated, and some basement corridors have sunk 4 inches under the weight of all that brass and paper. Repairmen are pumping in concrete and more fill dirt to keep the building from sinking out of sight.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Another "near-miss" at Washington's National Airport a couple of weeks ago demonstrated for the nation what everyone who lives here knows as inescapable truth: This government-owned facility on the banks of the Potomac is horribly overused and downright dangerous. And there is one primary reason: The congressmen who regulate it find it just too handy. Not for them the 40-minute trip to Dulles, the underused airport in the Virginia countryside, which could handle the traffic shunted from National. Putting it bluntly: The legislators are gambling with our lives for their convenience.

Billy Graham Commit your life to Jesus

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I have a hard time believing that some parts of the Bible have relevance to us today. For example, I know a lot of passages in the Old Testament talk about idolatry, but that certainly isn't a problem in our modern society. — A.A.W.

DEAR A.A.W.: You're right in that we may not encounter idolatry in our society in the same way the ancient Israelites did. In those days, many nations (sometimes including the Israelites, when they turned their backs on God) made idols out of wood or stone and worshipped them as gods. There are still some religions in the world that practices idol worship, but, as you say, very few people in modern day America bow down to stone or wooden images.

However, in reality, our society is filled with idols — perhaps just as much as any ancient or modern pagan culture. After all, what is an idol? It is anything that people put in place of the one true living God. For some, sex or money has become their idol — that is, their lives are controlled by it and they worship it. For others, it may be social position or power. However, the Bible commands us, "You shall have no other gods before me. You shall not make for yourself an idol in the form of anything in heaven above or on the earth" (Exodus 20:3-4). That is a clear warning to us against putting anything or any person before our allegiance to God.

Your letter suggests that you have never thought much about the place God should have in your life. But God created you, and Christ died on the cross to give you eternal life. What "idols" are keeping you from committing your life to Jesus Christ? Be honest about them and confess them to God, and then commit your life to Christ. When you do, the Bible (which is God's Word) will take on a new meaning for you, and you will want to serve Christ and do His will above all else.

Billy Graham's religious columns are distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, October 16, the 289th day of 1985. There are 76 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On October 16, 1978, Polish Cardinal Karol Wojtyla was elected supreme pontiff of the Roman Catholic Church. The new Pope took the name John Paul the Second.

On this date:
In 1793, Queen Marie Antoinette of France was beheaded.

In 1846, dentist William T. Morton demonstrated the effectiveness of ether as an anesthetic by administering it to a patient undergoing jaw surgery before an audience of doctors in Boston.

In 1859, abolitionist John Brown led a group of about 20 men in a raid on Harper's Ferry, Va.

In 1916, Margaret Sanger opened the first birth control clinic, in New York City.

In 1946, ten Nazi war criminals condemned during the Nuremberg trials were hanged.

In 1957, Britain's Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip arrived in Virginia to begin a tour of the U.S.

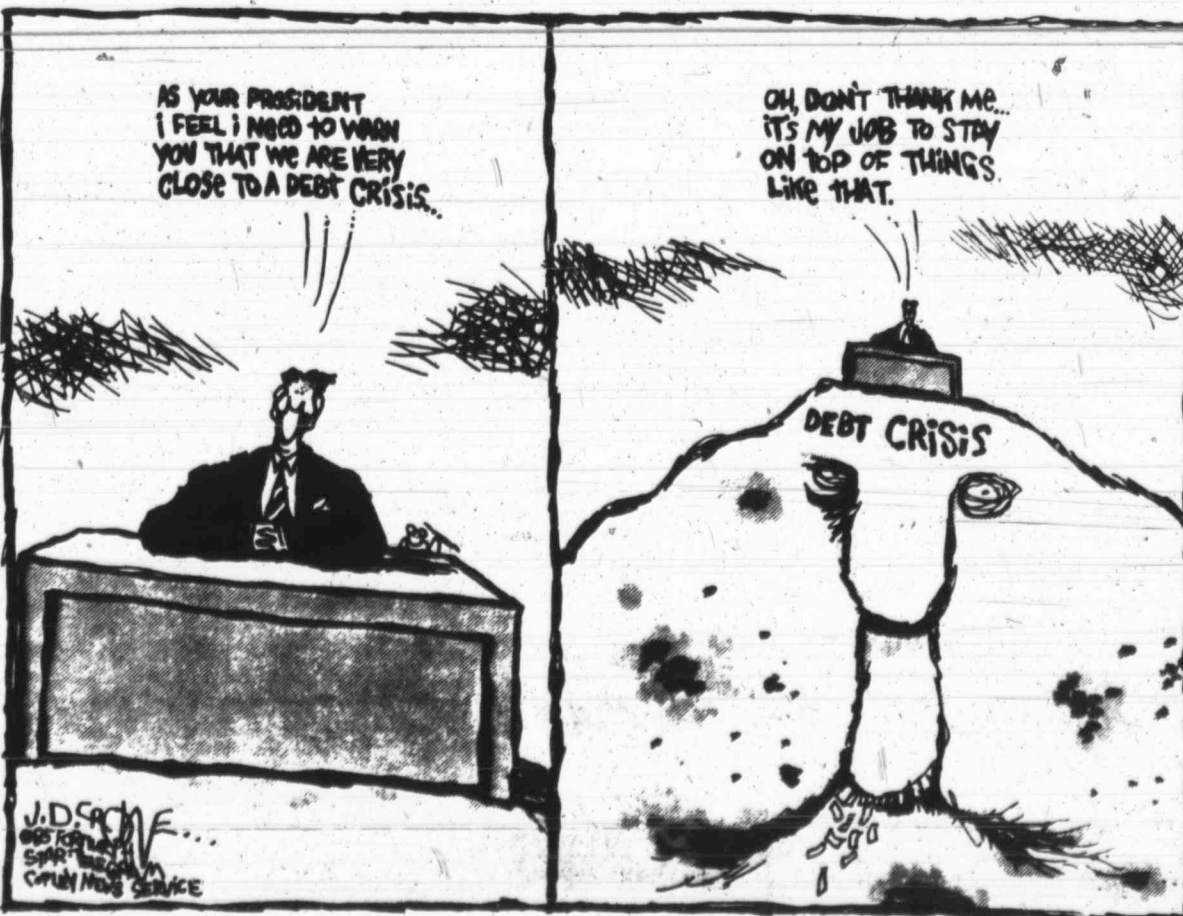

In 1962, President John F. Kennedy was informed by his aides that reconnaissance photographs of Cuba had revealed the presence of missile bases.

In 1964, China became the world's fifth nuclear power as it detonated its first atomic bomb.

In 1970, Anwar Sadat was elected president of Egypt, succeeding the late Gamal Abdel Nasser.

Ten years ago: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger apologized to former President Richard M. Nixon for remarks he had made at a party in Ottawa, Canada. In a conversation picked up by a radio reporter, Kissinger had described Nixon as "very odd," "unpleasant" and "artificial."

Five years ago: With the Iran hostage crisis continuing, President Jimmy Carter expressed willingness to meet with Iranian Prime Minister Mohammed Ali Rajai, who was traveling to New York to speak before the United Nations.

CHICAGO (AP) — For the Perez family, it was a unlikely place to spend a summer vacation — a hospital room in the maternity ward of Lying-in Hospital at the University of Chicago, where Betty Perez gave birth to twins.

By the time Mrs. Perez gave birth Sept. 1, the decor of Room 355 — nicknamed Twin City — had been transformed into a home by her husband, Hector, their children, Luke, 13, Ronica, 10, and Milisa, 8, and a host of honorary aunts and uncles from the hospital staff.

The family had a party every Thursday, but the reason for the celebrations was very serious — to mark a week's progress through Mrs. Perez' high-risk pregnancy complicated by diabetes and the threat of premature birth.

The family moved in and stayed with Mrs. Perez from July until she gave birth to healthy twins, Danica and Daniel.

The hospital room, filled with the most advanced medical equipment, also was cluttered with the equipment Perez uses in his video production business, with books, crayons and clothes; one wall was covered with drawings by the kids.

"We had never really allowed children to stay overnight," said Dr. Atef Moawad, co-director of the hospital's perinatal center. "It wasn't necessarily against our policy. It was just that we hadn't had a case like this.

"It was a very unusual situation with a high degree of risk, but we also realized that one of the challenges was to reduce the stress for Mrs. Perez by making her stay as comfortable and routine as possible."

Mrs. Perez was apprehensive about the hospital because of its size and reputation as a great research center.

"I was afraid I'd just be a specimen to them," she said. "I found that the hospital was the opposite of what I had expected."

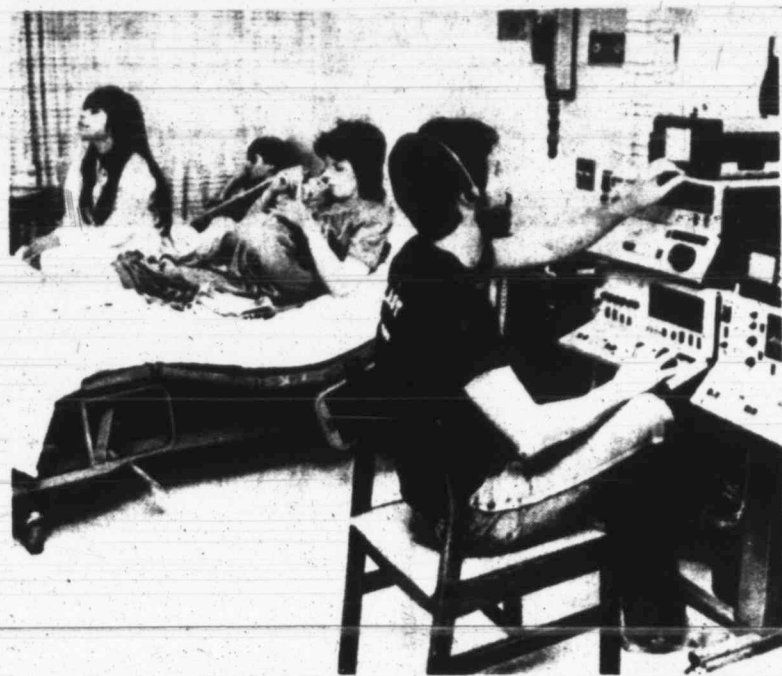

"There was somebody stopping in every half-hour, giving me pep talks and getting to know me. They made it clear they really cared about me."

The whole family talked about the situation before they moved into the hospital, Perez said. "The kids wanted to be with their mother. They wanted to be part of the birth."

When the time came for Mrs. Perez to deliver, just a week or so early, Perez had to be paged at a fast-food restaurant where he had taken the kids for breakfast. They rushed back to the hospital and Perez videotaped the births.

Five days later, Mrs. Perez left the hospital.

"I cried when I left," she said. "I hope that my experience will be a comfort to other women who may have high-risk pregnancies. If you have the kind of spirit and support we had, it can be wonderful."

WHEN HECTOR PEREZ, right, learned that a complex pregnancy would force his wife, Betty, into the hospital for two months last summer, he moved the equipment for his video production company into the maternity ward of the University of Chicago's Lying-in Hospital along with his three other children, two of whom sit with Mrs. Perez while Perez works on his equipment. Expecting twins and suffering from diabetes forced the extended stay in the hospital for the Chicago woman.

Study shows teaching is unattractive

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — A Carnegie Foundation survey of college faculty found that almost two in five say they are thinking of leaving the profession.

And 21 percent said they would not choose teaching if they were starting their careers over.

Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, said Monday the survey indicated that many faculty "feel locked in and filled with doubt about their capacity to ascend the academic ladder."

He said the survey of 5,000 teachers found many anxious not only about their job security and salaries, but also about the quality of the students they are teaching.

Thirty-eight percent said they may quit teaching within five years, and 40 percent said morale is worse in their academic department now than it was five years ago.

The foundation, which has its headquarters on the campus of Princeton University, conducted the survey in 1984 for a study Boyer will publish next year on the quality of undergraduate education.

A third of the faculty said they believed abolishing tenure would improve higher education. Two-thirds said it is harder to get tenure on their campuses today than five years ago.

Boyer said, "A decade or two ago faculty could go from campus to campus, pushing for visibility and professional advancement." Now many no longer have that mobility.

Sixty percent believed their salaries are either fair or poor, and three-quarters believed their pay has not kept pace with inflation.

About 40 percent said their salaries were good or excellent. And more than half — 52 percent — said they would consider another academic job.

According to the American Association of University Professors, the average salaries in 1984-85 were: $39,870 for a full professor; $29,910 for an associate professor; $24,610 for an assistant professor; $19,150 for instructors and $22,020 for lecturers.

Boyer said faculty are also worried about conflicting priorities of research, teaching, administrative chores and counseling students.

The foundation published the survey results in the September-October issue of Change magazine.

Shrimpers saved

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Two shrimpers were rescued after drifting 33 hours on a raft in the Gulf of Mexico, but a third man disappeared and is believed dead, authorities said.

A U.S. Coast Guard crew found two of the shrimpers uninjured on a raft 16 miles south of Galveston about 8:17 a.m. Monday, said Petty Officer Madison Thompson.

The men, spotted by an offshore oil service helicopter, were identified as the vessel's captain, Garland Woodard, 40, of Brazoria, and Ezell Minton, 40, of Freeport, authorities said.

Woodard, Minton and another crewman — Donald Brown, 30, of New York state — left the shrimper on which they worked after a fire broke out in the engine room about 11 p.m. Saturday.

Finally. Some good news from the Third World.

Dear Abby

Son's pessimism makes mother literally sick

DEAR ABBY: Here's a problem I'm sure you have never had before. I am allergic to my son. Howard is an intelligent, good-looking senior in college. He and I have never had a very good relationship because our philosophies differ. I am an optimist who is willing to take responsibility for my actions. Howard is a pessimist who blames others for his problems. When he is around, his negative gloom-and-doom attitude irritates me and I break out in hives. I know that he is the cause of my hives because they disappear when he goes back to college. (This has been happening for four years.)

He will graduate soon, and plans to come back home to live. The thought of it makes me literally ill.

Don't tell me to see a counselor. I'm a psychologist, and know all the book answers. Howard tried two counselors, but he insisted he didn't have a problem even after both counselors identified the problem, so now what do we do?

MOM

DEAR MOM: You may know all the book answers, but the doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient.

If you let Howard come home, knowing he makes you sick, you need to see a psychiatrist about your masochistic behavior. Howard also needs help, but not as much as you. He gives hives, you get them. So, I advise you to scratch Howard, not hives.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 36-year-old divorced woman with two children last nine years, I have been living with a man I love very much. He's 46 and says he loves me. Last year we purchased a beautiful house in both our names.

My problem is that he has asked me not to work for the last nine years because he wants me "at home." He's an excellent provider, and we lack for nothing. He has told me that I am the beneficiary on all his insurance policies, and I am the main beneficiary in his will.

My concern is his 22-year-old daughter from a previous marriage. What are my legal rights if she contests the will? Could I lose my inheritance fighting the daughter for what is rightfully mine? If he left her a token inheritance, could she still protest?

I love him very much and don't want to leave him, but I need to know that my future will be secure. We've been arguing about this lately because he thinks I'm trying to pressure him into marriage. I would love to be married to him, but could continue to live as we are, as long as I knew his daughter wouldn't take from me what he and I have put together.

Please answer in your column, as I'm sure other women have these questions.

NEEDS SECURITY

DEAR NEEDS: Much will depend on whether you are living in a state that recognizes common-law marriage. Please see a lawyer.

If your gentleman friend is on the level, he will not object to showing you the documentation (will and insurance policy) you need to feel secure.

Coats are versatile, integral part of any winter wardrobe

NEW YORK — Each new season brings on an array of new fashion choices as designers tempt shoppers with the latest styles. For most women, deciding what to add to an existing wardrobe is a question of economics, as well as fashion.

This winter, the coat can become as versatile and integral a part of a wardrobe as the gray flannel suit, according to Lynn Scott, fashion advisor of The Wool Bureau. "It can be the one great addition to your wardrobe."

According to Scott, the same criteria used for selecting other wardrobe items, such as sweaters or dresses, is often used as the basis for selecting a coat. This, she says, is where many women make their first mistake.

"A coat shouldn't be an impulsive purchase: it requires more thought because it costs more and is usually worn for more than one season," Scott says. Careful attention, she adds, should be given to details, such as fabric and construction, as well as style and the climate you live in. "The coat you wear should make a statement about you."

Scott recommends selecting a classic style that can be worn for several seasons without looking dated. "Even if a woman can afford to buy a coat every year, I would still recommend buying a classic coat to be worn in addition to the trendier styles," she adds.

"Classic lines are also more adaptable for the wide range of activities that encompass today's lifestyles," she said. "A basic, quality coat will wear well for work, for an evening on the town and for leisure time."

The coat fabric must also be considered carefully. The natural qualities of wool make it the ideal — and most popular — fabric for winter coats for most climates, Scott says.

A versatile wool coat is a good addition to a winter wardrobe. Above, the classic trench style is 100 percent cavalry twill wool and is light in weight.

"The major purpose of a coat is to provide warmth and protection, and wool provides more warmth inch for inch with less weight than any other fabric," Scott says. "Wool fibers breathe, to keep warmth in and cold out, or cold in and heat out, so you'll be comfortable regardless of temperature fluctuations."

Wool melton has, over the years, been the most popular fabric in women's coats. But this year, Scott says, more and more designers are adding new worsted fabrics, traditionally used in menswear, to their coat lines, including Anne Klein and Christian Dior.

These fabrics, such as cavalry twill, make the perfect all-weather coat, according to Scott. The tight weave of the fabric makes it light in weight but resistant to the elements.

"If you wear a coat like this every day, you're prepared for the sudden weather changes of winter — rain, snow or sleet, Scott says.

Concerned Women for America discuss Washington briefing

Mrs. Louis Stallings was the featured speaker at a meeting of Concerned Women for America. The group met at the Golden Corral Thursday to kick off a campaign to "make our community a better place to live," according to reporter Mrs. Carl Powers.

Stallings reported on material she received during a White House briefing held in Washington, D.C. recently. She quoted Robert Reilly, special assistant to the President. Reilly said that the U.S. is more vulnerable to attack now than in December of 1941. He also warned that the U.S. should aid the Contras in Nicaragua in their fight against the Sandanistas.

The women also heard reports on the ABM treaty, which guarantees that the U.S. will not defend herself against attack. A recommendation was made that the treaty should be scrapped.

The Strategic Defense Initiative, a national defense system, was also discussed.

Other speakers during the evening included Louise Pauger, who discussed pornography. Mrs. Richard Cauley discussed "Sav-A-Life," a pregnancy crisis center in Dallas. Cauley said that the center is an alternative for women who want to have their babies.

Mrs. Carl Powers discussed rock music. She borrowed material from Senate Hearings in Washington, D.C., presented by Tipper Gore.

Concerned Women for America is forming prayer chains for leaders in government. "This is to be a major emphasis with this group," said Powers.

Stallings urged everyone to attend a seminar in Dallas Oct. 26 at the Sheraton Park Hotel. The seminar will provide information on the new trend of education based on the results of the March 1984 hearings conducted by the U.S. Department of Education. Phyllis Schafly will be the keynote speaker. For more information, call 263-3558.

Dene Sheppard gives program on color awareness at club meeting

Dene Sheppard presented a program on color awareness to the Mary Jane Club at a meeting Oct. 10 at the home of Mrs. Ronnie Wood. She is the director for Mary Kay Cosmetics.

Sheppard stated that every woman can wear some hue of almost any color. She explained the difference between warm colors with a yellow undertone and cool colors having a blue undertone.

Model Bobbie Nix demonstrated the difference with cosmetics, making up one side of her face with warm colors and the other with cool colors.

An important need in today's market place is a common sense approach to color, using the apparel that you have, but adding scarves or other accessories to achieve the most becoming color, Sheppard said.

Three things are important in achieving the glamour look in colors, she said. They are skin tone, intuition and wardrobe. There are no limits to the effects that can be achieved.

Guests were Mrs. Guy White Jr., Mrs. Dusty Choate, Mrs. Marty Brooks, Stella Brooks, Mrs. Joe Fowler and her daughter K'Ja Leigh Fowler. New member is Mrs. Sonny Hart.

K'Ja Leigh, 19 months, modeled for the group. She holds several titles in the Camelot Emerald Pageant.

Members and guests answered roll call with their best color choice in clothing.

The next meeting will be Nov. 14 at the home of Mrs. Horace Nash.

Society purchases new books for library

The Genealogical Society of the Big Spring met Thursday. Members were told that several books have been added to the genealogical section of the Howard County Library.

Books that have been added include:

"A Roll Call of Officers in the Virginia Line of the Revolutionary Army;" "Our Town, Windom;"

"Black Courage;" and "The Cherokee Indian Rolls."

Dues are $10 per month and are now payable, members were told. Dues may be mailed to Margaret Barnett, 1801 State. The fund is used to buy books and film strips for the genealogical section of the library.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leek and Richard Reagan were visitors. The next meeting will be Nov. 7 at 7 p.m. at the Howard County Library.

Faith Wick of Cohasset, Minn., works at her kitchen table, where she molds white clay into dolls. She took up the craft of designing dolls nearly 12 years ago following a teaching career.

Small dolls are big business for woman

COHASSET, Minn. (AP) — Sitting at the long table in her sunny kitchen, wrapped in a vinyl apron, Faith Wick molds and strokes firm, white clay into wise faces, slender fingers and dimpled babies' feet.

Her tools are her fingers and a small jar of toothpicks.

"What's cooking?" asks the apron she wears. Wick answers herself: "I bake kids, not food."

Wick, 54, is a designer of dolls — dolls that are sculpted of clay, poured of porcelain, dressed in detailed costumes and sold in nationally known stores. In the 12 years since she began designing the elegant, collectable dolls, her business has grown steadily. But Wick wasn't always an artist. Her first career was teaching, which lasted 20 years. It was then she discovered her artistic talent.

"I made a lot of teaching aids (puppets, posters, etc), not thinking it was any different from what anybody else did," she said. "I haven't had any art lessons."

When she and her husband, Melvin, bought the former Fairyland Park near Marble 25 years ago, it fell to her to repair and replace the life-sized statues that lined the walkways. "The only thing I knew (to sculpt) was clay from kindergarten," she said. "My first statue was President Kenedy. He was recognizable. That's all I can say."

After the Wicks sold Fairyland, Wick continued to sculpt smaller figures and began traveling to doll shows. Her first dolls were fairly crude, but "they sold very easily," she said. "They were so different — so weird. There wasn't any particular beauty in them. They had strange little faces."

As her business grew, she hired artisans to make wigs, costumes, bodies and molds for the dolls she continues to design.

"There's a lot of skills you need to make a complete doll," she said. "There aren't that many good dolls out there. There's always something wrong. It's a lifetime of learning."

But after a few years, the cottage industry grew too big — and soon Wick had to keep track of 80 employees scattered all over the country.

She works for three large companies. "I design the entire doll. I present a prototype to the manufacturer," who recreates it either in vinyl or porcelain. "Most of my work goes to art collectors — mostly men — who are buying for investment."

Her dolls sell for between $1,000 and $5,000.

Dr. Donohue

Antibiotics

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had an artificial knee joint put in last year. Now I'm getting conflicting advice about what to do when I have to go in for dental work. My internist (family doctor) and the surgeon who did the knee job can't agree. One tells me I should get antibiotics before the dental work and the other says I shouldn't. What should I do? — W.F.

At issue here is prevention of infection in the artificial joint. And it's one of those areas where even the experts don't agree. About all I can do is to illuminate the impasse a bit.

Whenever dental procedures are done there is always the chance that some bacteria will be released into the bloodstream. Or it can happen when your digestive or urinary tracts need work.

The advocates of antibiotics for prevention of such infections point out the example of the patient who has an artificial heart valve in place. It is standard practice to provide antibiotics before dental work is done to guard against potential infection of such a valve. There is no difference of opinion here.

However, even though infection of a joint would be serious, it would not be quite so life-threatening as the heart-valve problem. The majority opinion argues against use of antibiotics for those with the prosthetic joint and would consider its use indiscriminate and unjustified. In addition, they would note that reaction to such drugs is always possible, even for a patient who might never have experienced one.

The minority opinion dismisses these arguments and insists it is safer to give the antibiotics.

My personal feeling is with the majority, in short that there presently is insufficient evidence from years of experience to recommend antibiotics to prevent joint infections in these circumstances. If there were special circumstances, such as an existing heart-valve disease, I would switch and provide the antibiotics, of course.

It's unsettling, I know, to find yourself in the center of this kind of disagreement. For your peace of mind you are at liberty to ask another doctor what he thinks.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Grandfather's doctor says that the fluid in his brain is being hindered in its flow. Is this Alzheimer disease? — P.C.

No. My guess is that the doctor is referring to a condition called normal pressure hydrocephalus. Fluid pressure builds and interferes with normal, efficient flow in the brain. This can be treated. Alzheimer's disease is entirely different. We're not entirely sure why Alzheimer's happens, but it is a problem of brain chemistry gone awry.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have many articles about adding salt to food. I do not recall one about adding salt to children's food. My daughter and her husband have three children under 7. They salt their own food heavily and are coaxing the children to eat more food by salting it. I am worried as to whether this habit is harmful to their health. — S.B.

I'm sure there are many articles on this subject. If not, let me be the first to write one.

Children's food should not be made salty. We're not born with the desire for oversalted food, it's acquired. In most cases our conception of what constitutes even moderate salting is distorted. So parents are wise not to teach the salt habit. If the idea is to make the children's food more palatable so they'll eat more of it, there are many non-sodium condiments and spices to use.

The ritual shake of the salt dispenser over our plates has added a great deal to our present hypertension problems as a society.

Caramel apples

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

When the night air adds a crispness and the scents of fall return, farm stands and super-market produce sections abound with fresh, juicy apples peaking in flavor.

For many, the advent of the apple season triggers fond memories of a tart, juicy apple tucked inside some chewy caramel.

Not too many years ago, making caramel apples from fruit picked in the family orchard was an annual ritual looked forward to by everyone.

Although times have changed — today, family orchards are few and far between — making caramel apples is still an activity family, friends and especially the kids will find fun. Whether you begin in the orchard or at the produce department of your favorite super-market, now is a good time to celebrate the caramel apple season.

Possibilities for homemade caramel apples are nearly limitless.

Here's several hints for a perfect caramel apple:

1. Wash and dry the apples before dipping to remove their natural waxy coating and to ensure that the caramel will stick.

2. If the apples are extra juicy, be sure to dry them again after inserting the sticks.

3. When preparing the caramel or fudgy based sauce, be sure to measure the liquid exactly with a measuring spoon.

4. Sweet treats may scorch easily. When melting caramels, be sure to use a heavy saucepan over low heat.

5. Once the caramels begin to melt, stir them gently with a wooden spoon to prevent scorching and air bubbles from forming.

6. Allow about 20 minutes to melt caramels in a heavy 1½-quart saucepan on a conventional range-top.

7. Tilt the pan to evenly coat the apples. If necessary, spoon the caramel sauce to completely cover the last apple.

8. After dipping each apple the excess caramel should be scrapped off the bottom with a spatula before setting on the wax paper.

9. Be sure to store your apples in the refrigerator to prevent the caramel from slipping off.

10. After storing caramels in the refrigerator let them stand at room temperature 15 minutes before serving to allow the caramel to soften.

HOMEMADE CAMEL APPLES

1 14-oz. bag caramels
2 Tbsps. water
4 or 5 medium size apples
Wooden sticks

Unwrap caramels. Place caramels and water in heavy 1½-quart saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring frequently until caramels are melted and sauce is smooth.

Place sheet of wax paper on cookie sheet. Lightly grease wax paper with margarine. Wash and dry apples. Insert a wooden stick into stem end of each apple.

Holding stick, dip apples, one at a time, into hot caramel sauce, tilting sauce pan and turning until well coated. Scrape off extra sauce from bottom of apple with spatula. Place apples on greased wax paper. Store in refrigerator. Let stand at room temperature 15 minutes before serving to allow caramel to soften.

CHOCOLATE FUDGIE APPLES

1 14-oz. bag chocolate fudgies
1 Tbsp. milk
4 or 5 medium size apples
Wooden sticks
Chocolate shots

Melt fudgies with milk in heavy 1½-quart saucepan over low heat, stirring frequently until smooth. Wash and dry apples; insert stick into stem end of each apple. Dip into hot fudge sauce; turn until coated. Scrape off excess sauce from bottom of apples; dip in chocolate shots. Place on greased wax paper. Store in refrigerator. Let stand at room temperature 15 minutes before serving to allow caramel to soften.

Variation: Mocha: Dissolve 2 teaspoons instant coffee granules in 1 tablespoon hot water. Substitute for milk. Continue as directed above.

PEANUT BUTTER CAMEL APPLES

1 14-oz. bag caramels
2 Tbsps. creamy peanut butter
2 Tbsps. water
4 or 5 medium size apples
Wooden sticks
Chopped peanuts

Melt caramels, peanut butter and water in heavy 1½-quart saucepan over low heat, stirring frequently until smooth. Wash and dry apples; insert stick into stem end of each apple. Dip into hot caramel sauce; turn until coated. Scrape off excess sauce from bottom of apples. Dip in nuts. Place on greased wax paper. Store in refrigerator. Let stand at room temperature 15 minutes before serving to allow caramel to soften.

CINNAMON CAMEL APPLES

¼ cup cinnamon candies
3 Tbsps. water
1 14-oz. bag caramels
4 or 5 medium size apples
Wooden sticks

Melt cinnamon candies with 1 tablespoon water in heavy 1½-quart saucepan over low heat, stirring frequently until melted. Add remaining water and caramels, stirring frequently until smooth. Stir in few drops of red food coloring. Wash and dry apples; insert stick into stem end of each apple. Dip into hot cinnamon caramel sauce; turn until coated. Scrape off excess sauce from bottom of apples. Place on greased wax paper. Store in refrigerator. Let stand at room temperature 15 minutes before serving to allow caramel to soften.

SPIKED CAMEL APPLES

1 14-oz. bag caramels
2 Tbsps. orange or almond flavor liqueur
4 or 5 medium size apples
Wooden sticks

Melt caramels with liqueur in heavy 1½-quart saucepan over low heat, stirring frequently until smooth. Wash and dry apples; insert stick into stem end of each apple. Dip into hot caramel sauce; turn until coated. Scrape off excess sauce from bottom of apples. Place on greased wax paper. Store in refrigerator. Let stand at room temperature 15 minutes before serving to allow caramel to soften.

Project grant approved

City officials have received approval of a $300,000 grant request for public works improvements in the Banks-Rosemont Additions, said administrative assistant Pat Hardy.

In addition to the grant money, the city will contribute $440,000 to the project, which should begin next year, Hardy said.

"It's the largest match the city has ever had," she said.

The project will include work on the sewer and water lines, installation of water hydrants and street reconstruction in the additions, located in the northwest part of town, near Lakeview School.

Hardy said the project drew the largest response at a public hearing ever conducted on a public works issue. More than 50 people crowded the hearing room at the Lakeview School in the spring.

Residents then complained of low water pressure, "rusty" or "dirty" water, few fire hydrants and unpaved roads that became impassable in the rain.

sent The Cap Rock Collections with John Stiles and the high school students who worked on the project.

Lunch will be served for $4.25 per person. Reservations must be made by Nov. 1 by writing Ruby Payne, director of the Martin County Historical Museum, P.O. Box 929, Stanton, Texas 79782.

Demolition to be studied

The Big Spring Board of Adjustments and Appeals will meet at 5:15 p.m. Oct. 23 at City Hall to consider the demolition of a house at 1506 Main.

The board is considering demolition of the building because a deadline for the owners to take care of the structure had passed. The board had granted an extension of time on the building at a meeting on Dec. 5.

Man hijacks San Antonio bus

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A 23-year-old man commandeered a city bus early today, leading police on a chase that ended in a three-vehicle crash, a police spokesman said.

Police from suburban Balcones Heights gave chase, Buske said.

The bus traveled about five miles east before it was involved in a crash with two other vehicles.

One of the vehicles was a small car with two adults and a child, Buske said.

Insurance bid accepted

The Howard County Junior College District board of trustees voted Tuesday to accept a bid from E.P. Driver Insurance Agency to provide Howard College with auto liability insurance for $5,320.

Only two insurance companies bid for the job out of "about six" companies that were solicited, said business manager Terry Hanson.

"It's becoming apparent we may have to bring our coverage together into one carrier" to make the deal more attractive to insurance companies, he said.

Insurance companies like to have a package deal, Hanson said, because if they have to pay liability on one policy, they can still make money on the others.

In other business, the board agreed to spend $6,000 on a car kit for the auto technology class. The class will build a Jaguar from the kit by the British Motor Car company.

The board also approved an $8,173.80 bid from Taylor Publishing Co. to print the 1985-86 yearbooks. Taylor printed the yearbooks two years ago.

Brodhead-Garrett company will supply 10 workbenches for the auto workshop at a cost of $3,584.30. Thermal Piping System will provide pipes to fix the defunct heating and cooling system at Howard College.

The board also accepted the resignation of Howard College cosmetology director Fay Damron, who moved to Dallas. It hired as replacement Judi Smidt and hired math teacher Larry Boyd, who will begin teaching at SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in January.

In other action, the board approved "that something be done" about a defective scoreboard in the old gymnasium. The board will look into either replacing or repairing the damaged board.

The college also will need to renovate the dormitory bathrooms, Howard College President Riley said. The board will discuss the subject at its next meeting after bids are solicited.

College history to be topic

A paper on the early history of Howard College by Lorene Barbee of Big Spring will be presented at the Permian Historical Society fall meeting Nov. 9.

The meeting will begin at 10 a.m. at the Cap Rock Electric Company Auditorium in Stanton.

Also at the meeting, a paper on teaching school in oil boom town by Dr. Diana Davids Olien of Midlands will be presented. Frances Tate will share brief recollections of life in Martin County, and June Reid will pre-

Nobel Prize awarded to savings theory pioneer

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Franco Modigliani of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who is credited with pioneering theories of personal finance, including how people save for old age, today was awarded the 1985 Nobel Prize in Economics.

Modigliani's work "explains what we see and helps us understand the world," Prof. Assar Lindbeck, a member of the prize committee, said after the award was announced.

The Royal Swedish Academy of Sciences, which made the award, said Modigliani, 67, had developed a life-cycle hypothesis of household saving and formulated theorems used to determine the market values of firms and capital costs.

"I obviously am very pleased," Modigliani said this morning by telephone from his Belmont, Mass., home. "It's always nice to hear that the work I've done is appreciated and regarded as important."

Modigliani was born in Italy and is now an American citizen.

His savings theories, worked out in the 1950s with a student, the late Richard Brumberg, helped demonstrate how people reduced their efforts to save for their old age when able to count on improved pensions.

The academy said the life-cycle hypothesis had proved to be "an ideal tool for analyses of the effects of different pension systems."

Most such analyses, it said, "have indicated that the introduction of a general pension system leads to a decline in private saving, a conclusion in full agreement with the Modigliani-Brumberg hypothesis."

"These achievements are important contributions to economic science," the academy said.

Theories Modigliani developed in cooperation with colleague Merton Miller, also in the 1950s, dealt more with corporate finance. The academy said they have had important implications for the theory of investment decisions.

They "represent a decisive breakthrough for the theory of corporate finance," the academy said.

Lindbeck said the Modigliani-Miller theory showed that "a company manager should not maximize annual profits but maximize the value of shares on the stock market."

The announcement marked the 13th time in 17 years that an American has won or shared the prize.

Modigliani said he learned he had won the prize at about 7 a.m. in a telephone call from Sweden.

Asked if he was surprised by winning the prize, Modigliani said, "Well, yes, in a sense. It was not something that was completely inconceivable, but you never know."

American theorists have dominated the economics prize, known as the Alfred Nobel Memorial Prize in Economics, ever since it was started in 1969 by Sweden's central bank, the Riksbank.

Among previous American winners were Milton Friedman in 1976 and Paul Samuelson in 1970, two of the United States' most influential postwar economists.

Modigliani was born in Rome in 1918. He received a doctorate in jurisprudence from the University of Rome in 1939 and a doctorate in social science from the New School for Social Research in New York in 1944 and holds a half-dozen honorary degrees.

He said he came to the United States in 1939 with his wife after fleeing the fascist regime of Benito Mussolini.

FRANCO MODIGLIANI, the 1985 Nobel Prize winner in economics, hugs his wife Serena outside their Belmont, Mass., home Tuesday morning. Modigliani, a Rome, Italy, native and currently a professor at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was cited for two lines of research: studies on savings, and corporate finance.

Plan to tax benefits termed contradictory

NEW YORK (AP) — Stress puts a terrible strain on political philosophies, including the notion that the private sector is more able than government to take care of its own financial affairs.

It was this thinking, for example, that inspired Individual Retirement Accounts, under which individuals could save money tax-free for their retirements — the better to take pressure of Social Security.

In a broader sense, it was cousin to the idea that public works, such as trash collection, record-keeping, teaching and more, could be contracted to the public sector at big savings.

It was related also to the idea that government is more efficient the closer it is to the people, and therefore it was wise for Washington to return funds and authority to states and municipalities.

But employee benefits consultants now see a major contradiction of that philosophy in the president's proposal to tax certain employee benefits, especially retirement programs sponsored by employers.

The specific threat involves 401(k) plans — named for the section of the tax code in which they are described — that allows employees to save tax-free for their retirements by having funds deducted from their paychecks.

Under existing law, the funds invested in a 401(k) plan, and the interest that accrues, are not taxed until they are withdrawn, which theoretically occurs at retirement.

Disallowing such plans "would blatantly contradict the president's long-standing objective of promoting individual retirement savings," says Philip Alden, Jr., of Towers, Perrin, Forster & Crosby.

Already straining under the burden of health insurance costs, employers are striving to cut rather than add to health plans.

Gripe and complaint day

I've been working as a sports writer for the past three years. I chose this to be my profession because it's a job I like doing.

Covering sports gives me a chance to be easy-going and carefree. There's not much pressure involved, with the exception of making deadlines; which can be a real doozy on weekends.

But most of all, the job affords me the opportunity to relate to the public what I view at a particular sporting event, or my own personal feelings on different matters. Much like today's column, concerning my gripes and complaints as a sports writer.

I know you readers have your own pet peeves because you let us know every day. I think that's great because it shows you're interested in what's going on in your community and it shows you've taken the time to sit down and read our publication.

Now sit back and let me dish out a few bellyaches to the complaint desk.

1) Number one on the list is parents who want to be coaches.

Sometimes I think it would be better if the University Interscholastic League would ban all parents from the games and let the kids play at an empty stadium. That way the parents couldn't second guess the coach's decision or question why Junior doesn't start at halfback.

These coaches went to school to get their job. Better yet, most were accomplished athletes in the discipline they teach. I guess that qualifies them as people more capable to instruct our young men and women than most of the arm-chair quarterbacks.

Besides, it's hard for Junior to play halfback when his best time in the 40-yard-dash is a 5.6.

2) Parents that want to be sports writers runs a close second to coaching parents.

Believe it or not, we sports writers have had training for our jobs, and just like coaches we've played a lot of the sports ourselves. So please don't call us up and demand that your son or daughter be put in a game write-up. If they've done something newsworthy, we will put them in the news.

And please don't call us up and ask why the Big Spring Steers are on the front page every football Friday. This newspaper is published in Big Spring. We publish as much news about Colorado City or Forsan or the other cities in our five-county circulation area as we can.

3) The third beef is at the coaches. You guys didn't think I would leave you out did you?

I love the way some call in the game results when they win, but try tracking them down when they lose. Nowhere to be found.

Then there's the coach who doesn't care enough to call; win, lose or draw. Maybe we should give their numbers to those irate parents who want to know why Junior's team never gets in the paper.

4) The fourth and final grouse is readers who look at the paper. Notice I said look, not read.

I mean it makes you wonder when one of the so-called readers calls up and asks you the details of an event that ran front and center in yesterday's sports page.

Even worse, some of them want you to read it to them over the phone. Gimmie a break.

So there you have the gripes and complaints from a young, aspiring sports writer. Hopefully someone will think about this column before you chew out another coach or curse another writer.

Gee, now I feel 10 pounds lighter.

Steers dodge no-pass bullet

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

All but a handful of Big Spring High School's varsity athletes escaped the wrath of House Bill 72, but some of the sub-varsity teams were severely depleted after the first six week's academic reporting period, coaches said today.

None of the Steers 37 varsity football players were affected by House Bill 72, that stipulates no student can participate in extra-curricular activities for six weeks if his grade point average drops below a 70 in any class. This was the first time no-pass/no-play, adopted last year, affected the sport of football.

Steer head coach Quinn Eudy instituted weekly grade reports for the varsity and was obviously pleased with his players' academic performance. "It's really unbelievable that we didn't have a single player put out. It's a credit to the kids and the teachers. We've emphasized studying and the teachers have really been cooperative with extra tutoring."

Eudy said other schools in district 4-5A weathered the first six weeks well also, with two players being the most lost to any one school.

The majority of students grounded by the new rule were freshmen and sophomores. The Steer junior varsity lost two players and the sophomore team's ranks were depleted with the loss of 14 players, six of them starters.

"I think the rule is elitist," said Eudy of the underclassmen casualties. "How can you demand the same out of a 13-year-old as a 18-year-old. You can't possibly get the same results. The six-week penalty is too harsh, particularly for the 7th, 8th and 9th graders."

The Steer swim team lost two girls off the varsity, one freshman and one sophomore, who was a returning letterwoman.

Head swimming coach Harlan Smith said that his team would not be hurt too badly by the losses. "It could have been a lot worse, but because we work out during school hours, the girls can still practice."

HB 72 also stipulates that an ineligible player cannot practice after school hours and cannot participate in any competitions during the following six week period.

The Steers volleyball squad didn't lose a player off the varsity or junior varsity teams. Out of the 50 players involved in the volleyball program, all but two freshmen retained their eligibility. "I was never worried about the varsity. They're all good students," head volleyball coach Susan Sharpe said. "We had a couple of borderline cases on the JV, but they came through."

Coaches for cross-country track and tennis were unavailable this morning for information on how their squads fared.

Royals take series to seven games

TORONTO (AP) — George Brett did what he's been doing. Dan Quisenberry did what he hasn't done.

And once again, the Kansas City Royals won a struggle of survival in the American League playoffs.

Brett hit a tie-breaking home run and Quisenberry got the final out with the potential winning run at the plate in Game 6 Tuesday night, giving the Royals a 5-3 triumph over the Toronto Blue Jays that forced a decisive seventh game.

The Royals, who trailed the series 3-1 at one point, will send Bret Saberhagen against Blue Jays ace Dave Stieb Wednesday night after once again frustrating Toronto to hopes of bringing the first World Series to Canada.

"I don't know what to expect," Kansas City Manager Dick Howser said. "They've got their No. 1 pitcher and we've got a 20-game winner. That's exactly what you'd want in a Game 7."

Brett's solo blast in the fifth inning gave the Royals a 3-2 lead and was his record ninth career playoff home run. Steve Garvey's old mark went by the board when Brett hit his third homer of this series, all off Blue Jays starter Doyle Alexander.

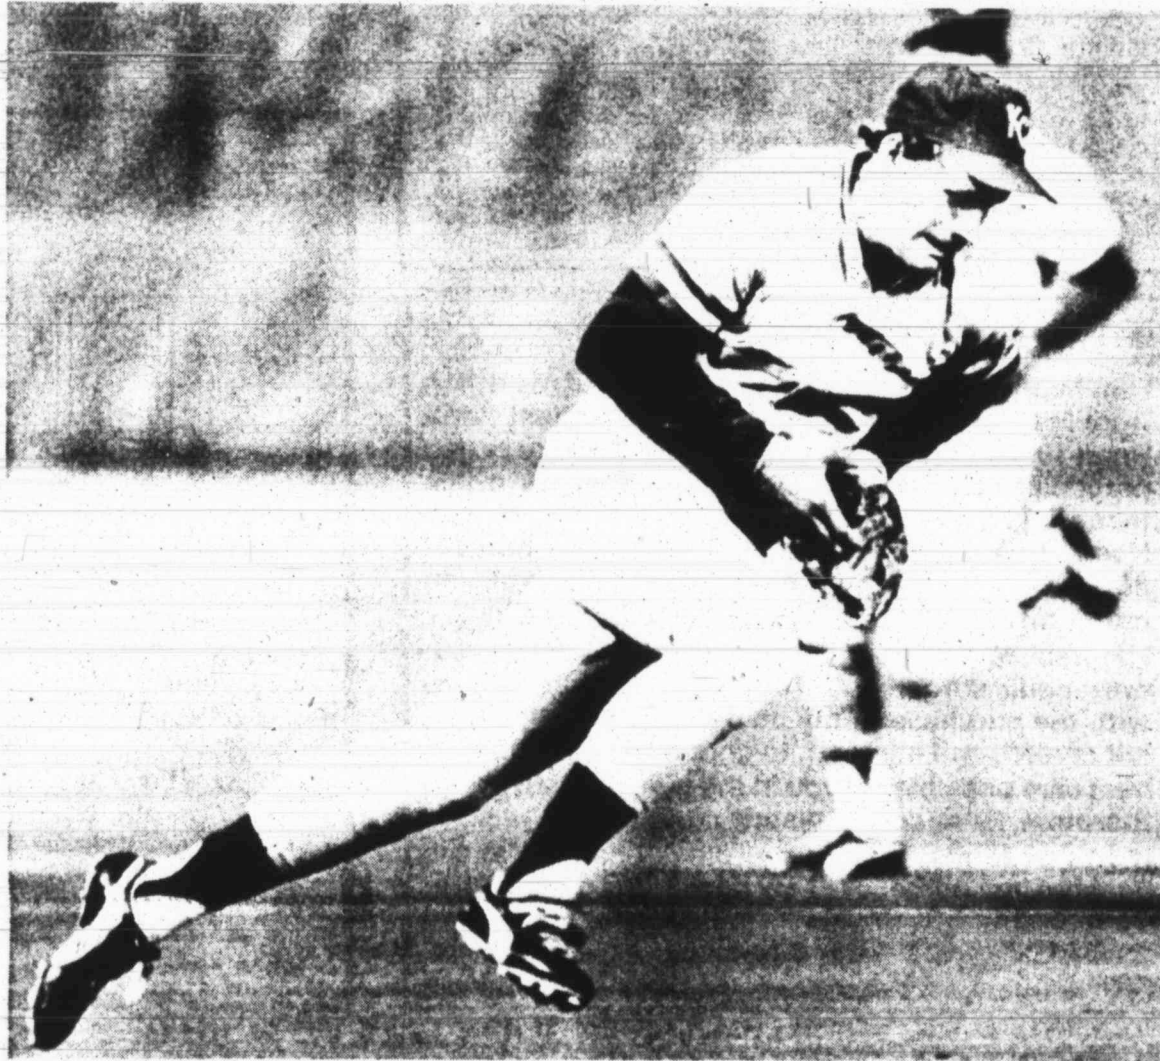

Brett again gave Kansas City the spark it needed, and once again his victim was Blue Jays starter Doyle Alexander. In Game 3, Brett homered twice and doubled off Alexander during a 4-for-4 night that enabled the Royals to win their first game of this series and end a 10-game postseason losing streak.

Quisenberry, who gave up two game-winning hits earlier in the series, came into the game with two outs in the ninth and runners at first and second. Facing the potential winning run, he struck out Garth Iorg.

"You can't think about previous things," Quisenberry said. "You have to work those things out of your system. If you don't, you can't get the job done."

Veteran Hal McRae, playing in his 44th postseason game, singled home Kansas City's first run in the first inning, and doubled home the second run in the third. McRae followed Brett's homer with a single for his third hit of the game, but was left stranded.

Buddy Biancalana and Lonnie

Kansas City Royals' third baseman GEORGE BRETT has a hard time handling a grounder hit by Toronto's JESSE BARFIELD in the seventh inning of the American League playoff game in Toronto Tuesday night. BRETT came through with his third home run in the series to lead the Royals to a 5-3 victory and force the series into a deciding seventh game.

Smith delivered RBI doubles in the sixth that increased the lead to 5-2.

Biancalana, just 1-for-10 in the playoffs before a single in the second inning, doubled home Jim Sundberg, who led off the sixth with a walk and was sacrificed to second.

The hit finished Alexander, and Smith greeted Dennis Lamp with a check-swing, opposite-field double down the right-field line that scored Biancalana.

Mark Gubicza, forced into a starting role for the Royals, kept Kansas City on even terms through five innings, getting the victory with help from Bud Black, who pitched 3 1-3 innings before giving way to Quisenberry.

Trailing 5-2, the Blue Jays tried to rally against Gubicza in the sixth. Lloyd Moseby led off with a single and Willie Upshaw drew a one-out walk, which prompted many fans among the crowd of 37,557 to wave large Canadian flags.

Howser then brought in Black, who yielded a run-scoring single to pinch-hitter Cliff Johnson that made it 5-3.

Black ran into further problems when he threw a wild pitch that put a runner at third and the potential tying run at second, but shut down Toronto by retiring George Bell and Ernie Whitt on foul outs.

In the seventh, Brett made an error on Jesse Barfield's leadoff grounder, but Tony Fernandez hit into a double play. Black then walked Damaso Garcia and Moseby, but pinch-hitter Iorg hit a hard comebacker to the mound that Black fielded and threw to first.

Brett and the Royals put Alexander in trouble quickly with a run in the first.

Gonzales, Strickland head Crossroads Honor Roll picks

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

Offense was the name of the game during the sixth week of Crossroads Country football and nobody was more offensive than Grady's Luis Gonzales, who threw only nine passes, but completed seven for 270 yards and phenomenal six touchdowns in a 69-42 victory against Smyer. Gonzales' efforts earned him Offensive Player of the Week for the second week in a row.

The Forsan Buffaloes nearly matched Grady's scoring output, with 60 points against Garden City, but the Bearkats didn't reach paydirt due to the stellar performance of Buffalo linebacker Bruce Strickland and his defensive mates. Strickland recorded a team high 18 tackles to earn Defensive Player of the Week honors.

Strickland also had a good night scoring for the Buffaloes. He kicked five of five extra points and added a 34-yard touchdown run highlighting his all-around play.

Other individual standouts for the Buffaloes included quarterback Brant Nichols, who completed three passes for 129 yards and three touchdowns, and Wayne Wright, who had touchdown runs of 57 and 61 yards against the Bearkats.

Defensive standouts for the Buffaloes, include linebackers Wright, with 17 tackles, Jason Donaghe with 10 tackles, and defensive back Brandy Bryan, who had an interception and a fumble recovery.

Joining Gonzales on the offensive Honor Roll for Grady were running back Michael Mitchell, who had nine carries for 182 yards and three touchdowns, flanker Wade Miller with three catches for 139 yards and two touchdowns and tight end Terry Deatrage with two catches for 74 yards and two touchdowns.

Grady defensive Honor Roll candidates included linebacker Arnold Valasco with 13 tackles, 10 solo and Tommy Perraz with 12 tackles, 10 solo.

Coahoma defensive tackle Scott Warnacke was a bright spot in the Bulldog's 20-0 loss to Colorado City, with 14 tackles on the night.

Warnacke was busy trying to corral C-City's Sammy Rivera, who had his sixth straight 100-yard game with 114 yards on 16 carries and two touchdowns. Rivera's quarterback, Mike Ligon also had a fine night running, collecting 103 yards on 16 carries.

C-City linebackers Albert and Ruben Rivera also had outstanding defensive performances against Stanton.

Stanton's Kevin Glaspie, made an auspicious return from the injured reserve, completing 15 passes for 229 yards and both Buff touchdowns in a tough 14-6 victory over Eldorado. Glaspie's favorite receiver was senior Mark Gonzales, who hauled in five passes for 115 yards.

Defensive back Timmy Rose preserved the win for Stanton with a last second interception in the end zone. Derek Sorley, Robert Tello and Greg Barnhill also earned kudos for their defensive work against Eldorado.

Borden County's Chris Cooley, continued his impressive running exploits with 178 yards on 30 carries in the Coyotes 48-26 loss to McCauley. Coyote defensive end Rocky Harbor was the team's leading tackler with seven stops.

Klondike got its passing game in gear in a loss to Rankin.

Quarterback Brian Kirkland completed 12 of 25 passes for 125 yards for his best game of the year. Cougar split end Weslie O'Brien had his second straight good game, catching seven passes for 80 yards. Flanker John Matthews had four receptions for 44 yards against the Red Devils.

Sands fullback Lee Young bulldozed his way for 65 tough yards against Roscoe and freshman Damian Zarate, who was pressed into duty for the injured Jay Fryar, rushed for 47 yards.

Mustang defensive back Ricky Ferguson and nose guard Mark Rogers also earned praise for their defensive efforts.

David Shortes: Steers jack-of-all-trades

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

Every high school football team usually has one guy who can do it all. A jack-of-all positions. Not necessarily a spectacular athlete, but one you can count on to get the job done, whatever it happens to be.

For the Big Spring Steers, David Shortes has filled this versatile mold with ease.

When the Steers coaches found themselves without a legitimate tight end returning this year, they looked through the returning lettermen and decided to give Shortes a shot at the position in spring practice. A wise decision indeed.

Through five games, Shortes was the third leading receiver in 4-5A with 14 catches for 222 yards and two touchdowns. He has become quarterback Carl Speck's favorite receiver, using him on a variety of patterns with one end result; a completed pass.

"David is the best receiver we've had around in years," commented assistant coach Allan Bollig. "We had receivers in the past who had great speed but they couldn't catch. David has good hands and he knows what to do with it after he catches it."

Another fact that makes Shortes' success even more impressive is his ability to take a vicious hit and remain glued to the ball.

"We run a lot of quick patterns across the middle and you know your'e going to get mashed," noted Shortes. "I don't think about getting hit when I'm running a pattern. I just try to concentrate on the ball."

Perhaps it makes 6-2, 180-pounder feel better knowing that he's going to be able to give some licks of his own when he lines up as the Steers left defensive end.

In an era of dwindling two-way starters, Shortes has excelled in his double duty.

"I don't have any problem with the transition from offense to defense. You just have to get a lot meaner when your'e playing defense," explained Shortes.

So far this season, Shortes has been plenty mean on opposing ball carriers, collecting 30 tackles and constantly pressuring the quarterback in passing situations.

Shortes finds himself winded at times during a game but credits the Steers improved spring training for his increased stamina.

"Sometimes, usually on defense, I get tired because of all the persuing. But I'm in better shape than last year and our spring training and pre-season workouts had a lot to do with it."

Shortes set an All-District selection as his pre-season goal. One that might have seemed like wishful thinking being relatively new at defensive end and a true novice at tight end. But his protean performances may very well earn him the recognition he desires.

"Right now I'm ahead of my

Lady Steer Profile

Sheri Myrick is in her first varsity season for the Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team. The 6-1 junior center spikerblocker has been playing competitive volleyball since her seventh grade year.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Myrick says that her dad has been the most influential person pertaining to her volleyball career. "He has given me a lot of support since my seventh grade year," said Myrick. "Volleyball is an action-packed sport with lots of competition. I play for the enjoyment and competition that comes along with it."

In addition to athletics, she is also a member of Fellowship of

SHERI MYRICK

Christian Athletes. Myrick's hobbies include swimming, water skiing and fishing.

Her future plans are to attend Texas Tech University, play college ball and someday be a successful basketball coach.

Permian hands spikers first loss

ODESSA — The Big Spring Lady Steers had some bad luck and good luck last night in District 5-4A volleyball.

The bad luck is that the Odessa Permian Panthers knocked the Lady Steers from the unbeaten ranks with a 15-2, 11-15, 15-13 match win. The good news is that Odessa High upset second place San Angelo Central, thus keeping coach Susan Sharp's spikers in first place.

The win, coupled with Central's loss, keeps Big Spring in first with a 8-1 record. Central is now 7-2 in district play.

The Lady Steers played the entire first game with center blocker Sheri Myrick on the bench, due to back spasms. Myrick did play in the second and third matches, but her movement was limited, according to Sharp. "I kept out of the first match hoping we wouldn't need her," explained Sharp. "She hurt it in last Saturday's game and we've been giving her treatment. Hopefully she'll be back at full strength before too long."

After getting blown out in the first match, Big Spring rallied to win the second match 15-11. It looked like it might take the third match as the Lady Steers jumped out to a 9-5 lead, only to see it fall by the wayside.

"Permian played well, they have improved a lot. They were up for the game and we weren't. But the girls will bounce back."

The Lady Steers' overall record is now 19-8. The loss broke a eight game winning streak.

PERMIAN TOPS JV

Permian made it a sweep as they downed the Lady Steers 15-9, 8-15, 11-15.

The loss drops coach Elaine Stone's troops to 5-4 in district play and 16-9 overall.

To my Patients,

I am happy to announce the relocation of my office from Malone and Hogan Clinic to 1700 West Farm Road 700 — the same building in which I first began practicing in Big Spring, in 1981. My new office faces FM 700, and is directly behind Malone-Hogan Hospital. You may reach me at my new number 267-1607, effective October 15. Until then, you can reach me at 263-1211, Malone-Hogan Hospital.

I appreciate your confidence in choosing me as your orthopedic surgeon. As I commit myself to the area with the purchase of my own building, I also commit myself, and my staff, to continue to provide the best care possible for you in the most effective, and therefore least costly manner.

If you need me in any way, please call me at the hospital, my home, or at my new office on and after October 15.

Sincerely,
R. K. Reddy, M.D.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGNER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, OCT. 17, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A curious and dramatic day. There is a great tendency to see things through rose-colored glasses so make a point to get all facts straight in your dealings.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You have fine ideas for advancing, but they need to be studied further for hidden factors. Ponder the matter for a while.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be objective in handling promises you have made, otherwise you could make serious errors.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A partner could be blunt in the morning, and you could react in a manner that is similar and cause a severance of connections.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You do not understand the tasks ahead of you today and could make serious errors, so study them well first.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't try to change your mode of amusement or you could get into hot water you know nothing about.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Be observing, but quiet, at home, and avoid a battle erupting there. Don't invite anyone into your home who is rambunctious.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be sure to go to right sources for the information you need, otherwise you could run around higher and you and gain nothing.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You want to get into some big monetary affair today, but this could cost you a bundle, so postpone for the time being.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Be careful you are not blunt with anyone today or you could get into serious trouble.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have private worries that need time to work themselves out, so relax and let this happen.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Not a good day to be gregarious since others are in a mood to blame others for their own mistakes.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan just how to improve your career image instead of blaming others for your own inadequacies.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be interested in outlets far different from those of parents or others around, and should have the benefit of a fine education that includes foreign languages. Teach to think before speaking so that others will not be alienated over some careless remark.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

McDONALD REALTY

263-7615 611 Rannels
 Big Spring's Oldest Real Estate Firm

YOU DON'T FIND MANY - This nice - even in today's market. Shows like a model from large family room & cozy brick corner fireplace to kitchen bar & dominating colonial vent hood. Lately built, modern insulation, storm window, you'll absolutely save on utility bills. Patio, fenced yard. 3 br, 2 bath, central air, SFifties - College Park.
PRESTIGE & POSITION - $42,500 - A top home in a top neighborhood - best part of Kentwood. 3 br, 2 bath, gleaming fresh neat & clean. Pretty dining view through large covered 30 ft. patio into shady green yard. Super nice executive home.
COUNTRY ELEGANCE - Relaxing executive home - beautiful shade trees, 2 acres, water well (plus city water) 3 br, 2 bath, dbl garage, large workshop & much more. Coahoma School.
DAYDREAMER'S DELIGHT - Is this home charming - absolutely!!!! The cutest home we've seen this year. From the patio, or separate dining, new kitchen, or glass alcove surrounded master bedroom - this home has class. So pleasant, comfortable - even excelling in its superb decor. Handy to every convenience - school, shopping, college, park. Low 28thirties - 2 (or 3 bdrm), 1 bath.
SWAP YOUR LABOR - For money. We asked owner to delay painting & decorating & give someone an excellent opportunity to obtain this nice home, good neighborhood by swapping your labor for down payment & closing costs. 2 br, 1 bath, garage. $22,500.
4 BEDROOMS - 4 bedroom, 2 bath homes aren't very plentiful - especially one offering all these features for a low 5thirties price. Corner lot, fenced yard, grape arbor, 20 ft. master bedroom, central heat, new roof, paint free siding & more.
JUST A LIL' BIT COUNTRY - Large, spacious 3 br, 1 bath, with 25 ft. den. Beautiful overlook of Big Spring. City water. SForties.
