Spring Settles work on hold; lack of support cited

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Restoration of the Hotel Settles has been placed on hold because the project "lacks necessary com-munity support," developer Gil Cuadra of San Antonio said in a telephone interview Thursday

"We're not making a tremendous effort to restore the building by a specific date," Cuadra said. Earlier, he had said the project was to be completed by midsummer of next year.

He said his management company would continue to pay back taxes owed on the hotel, but would not apply for a building permit in the foreseeable future.

"I'm going to sit on my investment in Big Spring," he said. Cuadra's source of displeasure, he said, lies with "in-fighting," between different political and in-terest groups in Big Spring.

"There's such a tremendous desire to see you fail," Cuadra said about community feedback to his proposals. He cited a local radio station

"crucifying us" in its news reports about his management group.
"There are interests in Big Spring that don't want to see the town advance. They want to see the town for what it is today, and not evolve," he said.

"Unless there is some coordination, the city is not going to expand," Cuadra said. "It will not attract developers."

Cuadra said he has several other investment projects going in Big Spring. His MPG Management Inc. recently finished water and sewer plans for the Crestwood housing project, he said, and next week the company will start accepting bids for the plans.

Cuadra said his company has invested more than $100,000 so far in the Hotel Settles project alone, and finding a financial lender to continue feeding funds into the project was a problem.

"In order to get a lender, (the lender) has to feel Big Spring has a viable future in order to take a risk on investment. We have not had community support and city planning to make it viable," he said. Cuadra said the city's failure to send a representative to a Texas Downtown Revitalization Conference in Austin earlier this month convinced him that the necessary interest was lacking. The only Big Spring representative was Ralph Kelley, an employee of Cuadra's, who attended the conference on his own.

Cuadra also said the downtown steering committee established by the Chamber of Commerce was 'not effective.'

The steering committee failed to hire a consultant who attended a recent meeting and offered his services to help coordinate revitalization efforts for downtown, Cuadra

"We have assets," he said about his management's role in redeveloping the downtown area, 'but we don't have enough resources to meet the goal. We expect to see the community hire personnel to put resources into place and work to see the city expand."

Cuadra cited cities such as Georgetown, Fredricksburg and Kerrville that made downtown renovation a top priority. He said the effort resulted in creating "3,000 jobs."

"You have to induce businesses to come in and develop. There has to be a fundamental belief that this can be accomplished. You have to create an image that Big Spring is moving ahead," Cuadra said.

Hospital volunteers lauded for services

By CAROL BALDWIN Lifestyle Editor

Frank Melton, board member for the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation, told Big Spring State Hospital volunteers and employees that "our business is quality care for clients.'

Melton, immediate past chairman of the Volunteer Services State Council, was keynote speaker during the annual fall volunteer luncheon on the hospital grounds Thursday. He was appointed to the Mental Health and Mental Retardation board in September by Gov. Mark White.

The Tyler resident credited volunteers throughout the state with significant contributions to the system. "Volunteers contribute more than $9 million a year" in services, Melton said.

Statewide, more than 12,000 people work as volunteers in mental health facilities. Volunteers, working with men-tal health professionals, are striving to improve the quality of care in the state, Melton said.

Looking at volunteers in the local area, Melton said the Big Spring State Hospital benefitted from the help of 321 people last year who donated 20,000 hours of service to the hospital during a one-year period.

Local volunteers have collected funds for a chapel, a swimming pool, shower and dressing facilities, and curtains for the auditorium.

"This is one of the best councils in the state of Texas,' Melton said.

Plan aimed at farmers

Harte-Hanks News Service Attracting young adults to farming and ranching was in state Rep. L.P. "Pete" Patterson's mind when he proposed legislation that authorizes the sale of bonds to create a loan program to purchase farm and ranch land.

Patterson, himself a Lamar County farmer, said he wanted to "try and help some of our young agricultural producers own some of the land that they're farming."

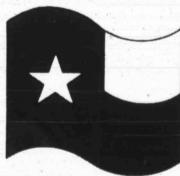

Proposition 10 on the Nov. 5 ballots would allow the Legislature to sell up to $500 million in general obligation bonds It also would authorize the Veterans' Land Board to loan up to $100,000 to a farmer or rancher whose net worth is less than $250,000. The loans would be for those persons with a minimum of 50 acres who could prove at least 35° percent of their income was derived from agriculture for the past three years.

Currently, Patterson said, with high land prices, many producers are leasing property. When that occurs, a farmer or rancher seeking a loan for equipment and supplies may not be able to secure financing through a lending institution.

"If they could own and we give them the ability to buy part of the land that they're farming, I think this is the key to this program. My idea behind it is that it will give that person the opportunity to own that home-base operation," Patterson said.

There apparently is no organized opposition to the bond proposal. But during debate before the Texas Legislature last spring, some urban legislators questioned whether the program wouldn't attract persons who dabble in farming, those known as weekend farmers.

According to the House Study Group, which prepared an impartial analysis of this and other amendments to be voted on, opponents say the problem is not land but a lack of money to service debts on production and operating costs. And the program will not help new farmers because new family operations cannot make money, they add. According to the study group report, opponents say the loan program is likely to become either a $500 million windfall for "hobby" farmers or it will not work. They cite the 1979 Family Farm and Ranch Security Program, which guarantees 90 percent of eligible farmers' and ranchers' first mortgages, but has done little to reverse the trend away from family farming. Opponents ask, "Why can't they go to lending institutions and get the loan?" The answer, Patterson said, is that a commercial lending instution would require a sizeable down payment on a $100,000 loan, a down payment many do not have.

Young people need to be drawn to the field, he said, particularly when "the average age of farmer is almost 60."

Of weekend farmers, he said: "We already have people who moonlight at farming. Maybe this could be a vehicle we can use to encourage some of these weekend farmers to get into agriculture on a permanent basis.

If Proposition 10 passes, each Texas county judge would appoint a three-person committee to review applications submitted to the state. The committee would be composed of two persons from the PROPOSAL page 2-A

Texans, Australians kick off sesquicentennials

MARSHALL (AP) — Despite a stomach virus, bladder infection and freezing temperatures that at times made sleep impossible, Vickie Ives Speir still was able to smile about her 600-mile horseback ride across South Australia.

Speir, a Marshall esquestrian, accompanied South Australians Peter Knudsen and Mickey McKeown on a 600-mile journey across the deserts of South Australia. They completed their trip Oct. 1. This week in San Antonio they started a similar journey across West Texas, accompanied by Leana Rideout of Marshall.

The two trips were planned to celebrate the 150th birthdays of South Australia and Texas, states which Speir says share a common heritage "of hoof and horn."

Speir missed a day and a half in the saddle because of her illnesses. She contracted the stomach virus after the trio had ridden some 200 miles. Later, after 400 miles had been completed, she missed another half-day because of the bladder infection. She thanked the Australian people who treated her.

"The whole trip, we could not have been treated with more kindness," she said. "The highlight of night. the trip was meeting the people at different stations (ranches). When we got anywhere near a station, people had barbecues for us. The people over there absolutely love Texas. The people surpassed anything I could have imagined." There were physical hardships from a financial institution. "They could require anything from that applicant that pertains to financial ability to repay the loan," Patterson explained. "We feel like local input into this program is very necessary in order to protect the interest of the state." If the loan is approved, the state will purchase the property and enter into a contract with the applicant. Once that contract is fulfilled over the period of time, up to 40 years, the state will issue the deed.

If the proposition passes, Patterson said, the money will most likely be available in September at 9.97 percent interest.

Land Commissioner Garry Mauro, whose office administers the Veterans' Land Board, said the program would "be run cost consciously, efficiently and effectively and it won't cost the taxpayer a penny. Most Texans, myself included, are committed to the concept of the family farmer and preserving the integrity of the family farmer."

NEW YORK — Bruce Springsteen, Bob Dylan, Miles Davis and more than 50 other musicians have proclaimed their opposition to apartheid with the single "Sun City," a song that rips the South African government and the Reagan Administration.

ANC sympathizer hanged in S. Africa

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — Despite worldwide appeals for clemency, authorities today hanged Benjamin Moloise, a black man convicted of assassinating a police officer on orders from an outlawed guerrilla group.

Moloise, a 30-year-old upholsterer, was executed at 7 a.m. (1 a.m. EDT) at Pretoria Central Prison.

His mother, 53-year-old Mamike, said she was refused entrance to the prison at 6 a.m., but about an hour later she marched past the prison gates saying, "I am prepared to be arrested because that is my son." Guards then allowed her in, but Moloise had already been executed. Mrs. Moloise said she was not allowed to see her son, only his closed coffin.

"I did not expect this government to be so cruel," said Mrs. Moloise. When she was barred from entering the prison, "I begged, I said, 'it's the last time, that's my son." Moloise's execution was the fifth of a sympathizer or member of the outlawed African National Congress, the main guerrilla group fighting the South Africa's regime.

Mrs. Moloise, her husband, Robert, and three other

Mrs. Moloise, her husband, Robert, and three other relatives emerged from the prison singing a protest hymn, with fists raised. Several dozen police, with snapping dogs and rifles, kept reporters back and guarded against possible demonstrations. No protests developed.

Mrs. Moloise slumped on the shoulder of her lawyer,

Priscilla Jana, and was embraced by Winnie Mandela, wife of jailed ANC leader Nelson Mandela. On Thursday, Mrs. Moloise said her son had told her that on his way to the gallows he would sing a hymn praising anti-apartheid guerrillas.

There were fears that the execution would set off

There were fears that the execution would set off more violence against apartheid, the system of race laws that guarantee privilege for South Africa's 5 million whites and deny rights to its 24 million blacks.

More than 750 people have already died in 14 months of unrest, most of them blacks.

A black reporter in Soweto, the township outside Johannesburg and Moloise's hometown, said police today mounted one of their largest security operations since the unrest began in August 1984.

He said dozens of armored police vehicles cruised the streets and stood parked at intersections. Soweto was relatively quiet but extremely tense, the reporter

Mrs. Moloise said police fired tear gas to disperse 200 to 300 mourners at an all-night vigil at her home in Soweto.

Mrs. Moloise met with her son for the last time Thursday night. She said after the 20-minute visit: "I found him stronger than ever ... ready to die."

Moloise was convicted of killing a black policeman, Warrant Officer Philipis Selepe, who was cut down by automatic weapons fire outside his home in Pretoria in 1982. Moloise admitted helping plan the killing and being in the area but claimed he merely accompanied the killers to counter their suspicions that he was a police agent.

The ANC, which has its headquarters in Lusaka, Zambia, says it ordered Selepe slain for his role in arresting guerrilla saboteurs, but that Maloise was not the killer.

The ANC, in a statement issued today from Lusaka, made a promise to Moloise: "Your martydom will not be in vain, it will inspire us all."

The government dismissed pleas for a new trial and rejected calls from abroad to spare the life of Moloise. Appeals for clemency came from the governments of the United States, France and West Germany, and from the Common Market, the 49-nation Commonwealth of Britain, and the United Nations.

Mudslide toll put at 150

PONCE, Puerto Rico — The death toll from the mudslide that buried a hillside shantytown in this Puerto Rican city is likely to be about 150, not the 500 that officials had once feared, city officials said.

The hillside shantytown of Mameyes was buried under tons of mud that was loosened Oct. 7 by a 30-hour tropical deluge. There was widespread flooding across the island, especially near Ponce and the rest of the southern coast, on the Caribbean.

U.K. Sanctions unlikely

NASSAU, Bahamas — Aides to Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher of Britain said she is not likely to endorse sanctions against South Africa at the Commonwealth summit, despite warnings that the existence of the 49-nation organization may be at stake.

Thatcher was among at least 12 heads of government who were scheduled to speak in Nassau during today's closed-door session of the Commonwealth, which consists of Britain and its former colonies. The summit began Thursday and ends Oct. 22.

Pravda blames Reagan

MOSCOW — A commentary in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda today blamed the United States for the collapse of the Italian government and charged the Reagan administration with holding its European ally "hostage" to American policies.

Premier Bettino Craxi resigned Thursday following the withdrawal of a member of his five-party coalition. Republican Party leader Giovanni Spadolini, who had been defense minister, accused Craxi of failing to consult his partners over the release of a PLO official accused by U.S. officials of directing the hijacking of the cruise ship Achille Lauro.

Envoy exchange soon

JERUSALEM — Israel and Poland will exchange diplomats within a few weeks in the biggest step toward improving relations since Poland severed ties in 1967, an Israeli official said.

Diplomats will serve as "interest officers"

— an unofficial ambassador without full diplomatic status, the official said Thursday.

The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the step was agreed upon when foreign ministers from the two countries met at the U.N. General Assembly in New York earlier this month.

Wine dealer convicted

KREMS, Austria — The first of at least 60 defendants charged with using an antifreeze ingredient to sweeten wine was convicted of fraud and violating a wine purity law, and given a 15-month suspended jail sentence.

Wine dealer Otto Hotzy, 25, pleaded guilty in District Court of adding the chemical diethylene glycol to 10,400 gallons of white wine and 1,820 gallons of red wine.

Athletes hurdle no-pass, no-play

West Texans can be proud of their athletes. The first test of no-pass, no-play in the football season turned up a failure rate of 15 percent across the state. That is, varsity high school football teams in Texas will work the next six weeks with only 85 percent of their squads.

Not so in Big Spring. Not one varsity player was knocked out of competition for failure to pass all his classwork.

Not so around District 4-AAAAA. Permian didn't lose a man. Neither did San Angelo Central. Midland Lee lost only one player. Odessa High, Abilene High and Abilene Cooper lost two each.

Better it wouldn't have been any. But this district fared well on the academic playing field.

Quinn Eudy, who coaches the Big Spring football team, put weekly grade checks into effect this semester. He identified trouble spots early and that helped the student-athlete to know if he needed tutorial help to keep grades up. Ultimately, both athletics and academics probably were helped by House Bill 72, which brought no-pass, no-play to the

It may be too much of a good thing, though.

The tough rule barring failing students from extracurricular activities has drawn the ire of many coaches and activities directors. Six weeks is just too long to punish the student who slips below 70 grade point average in just one course, they contend. There's merit to that complaint.

As one coach said, "You can go steal hubcaps and get 30 days. You don't punish a kid six weeks for one mistake." If the idea is to prohibit a student from wasting study time on athletics or other extracurricular activities until the grades are back above passing, then six weeks indeed may be unreasonable. If the grades are improved in a week, why add five weeks punishment?

If the idea is to discourage extracurricular activities for marginal students, then six weeks may not be long enough. Maybe we should just put in grade requirements for participation in extracurricular activities. No one plays football or performs in band who doesn't maintain a "C" average or some such. It doesn't seem like a tough restriction such as that would really serve the student, though.

Sen. Hatch questions FBI revelations on Donovan

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA WASHINGTON — Either the FBI lied to Congress about its 1981 background investigation of Raymond Donovan, or the bureau should be sued for malpractice.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, chairman of the Labor Committee, is once again questioning whether the Gmen deliberately with held damaging information from the committee when it was considering Donovan's nomination as Labor secretary. Hatch has been a slow-burning fuse on this matter, and the fuse is now close to the explosive charge. In 1982, his committee issued a highly critical report on the FBI's behavior, but stopped short of charging that the bureau had deliberately misled the senators about Donovan's relationship to an alleged underworld figure, William Masselli

Now, however, in two recent letters to FBI Director William Webster, Hatch has expressed doubts about the FBI's claims of simple human error in the 1981 investigation. Donovan, Masselli and eight others have been indicted for fraud and conspiracy. based in substantial part on information known to the FBI when it was doing the background check on Donovan.

The material raises "concern about the integrity" of bureau officials' past testimony to the Senate committee, Hatch wrote. He said the belated revelations being made in the criminal case against Donovan raise "serious implications regarding the possible withholding of information" from the committee in 1981 and 1982.

An FBI spokesman told our associate Tony Capaccio that the senator "could write to us" if he's dissatisfied with the bureau's responses to his previous letters. "We're not in the habit of corresponding to him through Jack Anderson's column," the spokesman said.

The FBI did go through the Justice Department to respond to Hatch. On Aug. 28, replying to Hatch's letter of July 30, the bureau insisted that not only had Hatch been shown summaries of all relevant informant accusations against Donovan, but that during his 1982 review the senator "did examine ... and discussed" the contents of a crucial 11-page FBI teletype dated Jan. 10, 1981.

The teletype, from the bureau's New York office to Washington, noted at one point that a review of clandestinely recorded conversations "revealed that Masselli maintained a very close personal relationship with (Donovan's) Schiavone Construction and its upper management."

At first, Hatch said he didn't recall the teletype, "but could have seen it," though he doubted "that I wouldn't remember it." But the senator denied ever having seen a subsequent passage in the teletype that stated: "This relationship included social engagements and frequent business contacts. Business agreements included preferential treatment on subcontracting projects, financing equipment to Masselli to lease back to Schiavone, and numerous, possbily fraudulent, schemes to raise federally required minority participation levels."

"I don't remember seeing that," Hatch said. "I would have raised hell about it." The Hatch staff attorney on the case, John P. Flannery, said he, too, had not seen the teletype until recently Two other internal documents are also embarrassing to the FBI, since they show that bureau officials were aware of the allegations that later led to Donovan's indictment - but kept the information from the Senate committee.

One of the FBI documents, prepared for Webster and dated May 4, 1982, stated that its purpose was "to reinforce the need for non-disclosure of the tape recordings to the Senate Labor Committee." One of the "myriad of criminal violations" mentioned on the tapes was the illegal use of construction comcontracts.

The other document, dated March 22, 1979, contains a section titled "Fraud Against the Government." It describes the Masseill-Schiavone relationship and summarizes conversations about the purchase of six Mack trucks "illicitly financed by Schiavone Construction.'

UNDER THE DOME: Rep. Richard Gephardt is a Democrat from Missouri, but when he hosted a recent party in Washington for the Effective Government Committee, which he heads, the most generous contributors were from Texas. The fund-raiser brought in +$19,500 for an investment of $1,121.90 in food and drink. Donations ranged from $250 to $5,000, and a big chunk came from a group of Dallas insurance and real estate executives. The committee director, William Romjue, explained that Gephardt. is so "widely accepted" that his support transcends state lines.

PENTAGON WATCH: The Air Force may be practicing false economy as it tries to trim its budget. The brass has taken aim on fighter-plane ammunition, of all things. Though the cost of ammo amounts to only about 4 percent of the Air Force budget, it is being made to absorb 22 percent of the service's budget cut. "Smart bombs" - the Maverick and AMRAAM missiles - won't be affected, but the stockpile of other missiles will be cut drastically. Result: The Air Force could run out of those missiles in a matter of days in an emergency.

When my dad began dating her, his competition was a member of the Washington Redskins who threatened to knock my Dad's head off one night when he saw the two of them together.

Dad's best friend then was Bill Osmanski, a fullback for the Bears who attended dental school during the off season. Osmanski was the fellow who galloped over 70 yards for a touchdown on the game's first play in the 1940 NFL Championship game between Chicago and Washington.

The Monsters of the Midway mauled the Redskins and Sammy Baugh, 73-0. What happened to that Redskin?

Whenever my dad talks about that period of his life in Chicago and the days courting my mom, I get strange notions of a forgotteh and unrecognized flapper era in the Windy City.

You have to remember World War II was whistling in the air.

Carl Sandburg used adjectives like "wicked," "crooked," and 'brutal" when he described the city in his classic poem, "Chicago."

DEAR ABBY: A question of ethics with regard to abortion: To whom is the family physician more responsible, the parents or the teen-ager?

We sent our 16-year-old daughter to our trusted family physician for a complete physical. DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Will you explain how a person who doesn't smoke gets emphysema? My doctor told me I had emphysema and ordered me to stop smoking, which I never had done. Tests did show low blood levels of a substance, antitrypsin. Please comment. - C.M.

Alpha-1-antitrypsin is an en-zyme, one of a number of substances controlling various processes to keep our bodies perking. If you don't mind a bit of oversimplification, think of it as a foreman of the lung's sanitation department.

The lungs are constantly exposed to a vast array of noxious substances - germs, fumes, etc. Keeping lungs clean is a job the lungs take care of on their own, filtering and disposing of all this foreign material. It's a great It's important now for your fami-sanitation crew, but it is ly members to be checked for ts en-it's told to stop and take a break, the crew just keeps on sweeping and scrubbing. If it doesn't stop it will even start removing part of the lung's tissue.

This doesn't happen very often because of alpha-1-pantitrypsin. It comes along and tells the crew to stop. But if a person has a deficiency of this enzyme the signal to stop isn't given and destruction begins to occur. It's a rare form of emphysema, and apparently the kind you have. The level of this enzyme can be measured by blood testing.

Treatments are available, but I prefer not to go into them. Many are experimental and some are of uneven value at best. Your doctor will explain the ones he wants to try for your situation. I'd rather not inject confusion.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband keeps complaining of double vision. One doctor put him on a drug called Mestinon. Is there any other treatment for this eye problem? - A.P.

There are many causes of diplopia (double vision). When you see double it means something is wrong in the pathway between the eye and the brain, where the image from each eye is fused into one. Eye muscle paralysis can do it. So can a growth on the eye. It can happen with multiple sclerosis.

I am sure that the doctor has his suspicions and will pursue things further. Since you did mention the drug, Mestinon, I cannot resist a bit of second-guessing. The medicine is often used in myasthenia gravis, a neuro-muscular problem. That leads to muscle weakness.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The economy, after six months of disappointing growth, picked up steam during the summer, but the pace still remained below the rebound predicted by the Reagan administration, the government

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the dest measure of economic health, grew at a 3.3 percent annual rate from July through September.

This represented a three-fold increase over the anemic 1.1 percent growth rate turned in during the first six months of the year.

Adding to the pessimism, the government also announced today that new housing construction fell 9.3 percent in September, the biggest drop since May.

Citywide Cleanup delayed

The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce's CLEAN committee campaign, scheduled to begin Satur-day, has been postponed because of rain, said a city spokeswoman.

A new date for pickup in Area 1, which includes the Kentwood addition, will be announced later. Next Saturday's pickup will be in Area 2 as planned, she said.

The CLEAN campaign will last throughout November.

Crews will collect trash items such as tree branches, furniture pieces and appliances that are too large to place in trash cans or dumpsters. Items to be discarded should be placed at the curb in front of residences and not in alleys, said LeRoy Tillery, chamber executive vice president.

The citywide cleanup is done in coordination with the city of Big Spring. The schedule for trash pick-up is:

 Area 1 — Kentwood, north FM 700, south city limits, West Virginia and east/central Grafa, date to be

United Way grosses $3,053 from cookoff

The United Way fund drive collected $3,053 gross from the Chicken-Fried Steak World Championship, said Sherrie Bordofske, executive director of Big Spring-Howard County United Way.

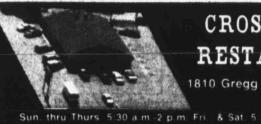

Net proceeds from the cookoff, booths and armadillo races, sponsored by the Highland Mall, should be at least $2,700 and probably more.

In addition, the United Way received $600 from the barbecue at the Country Affair, Bordofske said. Added to the other donations, the fund-raising drive has of the $210,000 goal this year, she

"A lot more is coming in gradually," Bordofske said.
"It's looking very well. I think we'll be able to meet our goal easily."

Cutoff date on the fundraising drive is Oct. 31.

Donors can mail their contributions to United Way at P.O. Box 24, Big Spring, Texas 79720. If they don't want to send donations through the mail, people can call the office at 267-5201, and a volunteer will pick up the donation, she said.

Big Spring (1-5) at Lee (4-2)

The Steers will be traveling to hostile territory at Midland's Memorial Stadium tonight, facing a Lee squad that is plenty angry after fumbling away their prime time opportunity against Permian last week. Add some Homecoming incentive for the Rebels and things look at little scary for the Steers.

But the Big Spring offense with Carl Speck's passing and Phillip Matthews running is a force to reckoned with. If the Steers can exorcise their fumble demons the chances of an upset will increase dramatically.

Look for lots of yardage from Lee's vaunted Wishbone attack and the Steers' big play offense in what could turn into a statisticians Midland Lee 28, Big Spring 21

The Buffaloes seem to get tougher and tougher each week, just ask the Garden City Bearkats. Meanwhile Sands has a good team, it proved so last week by playing even-up with Roscoe in the statistical battle. Cut down on the turnovers and you have a close game.

Even if the Mustangs play error-free football, they still don't have the horses to run with Forsan. Expect a good game from Sands but the Buffaloes will prevail.

Klondike (0-6) at Ropes (0-6)

This is a very big game for these young, inexperienced squads. They say that all good things are worth waiting for and the Klondike Cougars will find that out tonight. With all their adversity and hard luck so far, the Cougars will get a chance to taste a win.

The Cougars don't have that much size or talent, but they have a lot of heart. That's why they'll win this one in the Upset Special of the

Garden City (2-4) at Roby (1-5)

The Garden City is plenty mad over their embarrassing loss to Forsan last week. It's an understatement to say they'll venture into Roby's Lion Stadium in a nasty mood.

The Bearkat defense has something to prove, the offense must stay away from turnovers. Running backs Trey Willey and Abby Madrid are both proven commodities and will have a field day.

Look for the Bearkats to howl long and hard tonight.

Defensively the Wildcats must play heads up ball if they are to stop the potent McCaulley Spread offense. Offensively, Luis Gonzales and Terry Deatherage must connect by air, while Michael Mitchell and Arnold Valasco will have to do it on the ground.

Crane (5-1) at Coahoma (2-4)

Coahoma is in dire straights at the quarterback position this week. Team leader Brian Calaway is doubtful and second string QB Danny Gamble is out with a knee injury. The Bulldogs will have to establish a running game if they are to compete against a tough Crane squad. The Golden Cranes are looking for a playoff spot this year and have the back (Gerald Mitchell) and receiver (Kenny Walker) capable of dominating any game.

Coahoma is fighting for their 7-3A lives and they'll play inspired ball in front of the home folks. But the odds are against an upset. Crane 28, Coahoma 14

Borden County (1-5) at Ira (3-3)

The Coyotes are having their problems this year, compounded this week by the loss of three players to House Bill 72. Ira is not as strong as people predicted they would be this year but they do have talent. Chris Cooley has proven indefatigable as Borden's lone offensive threat, but he cannot carry the team.

Fortunately, Ira does not run a spread offense, so the Coyotes won't give up the big play as easily this week. Borden County needs this win desperately to stay in the District 4 South Zone race but Ira won't be a generous host tonight.

Greenwood (5-1) at Stanton (3-3)

Stanton is fired up following their fine 14-6 victory over Eldorado and they'll need to retain the momentum if they are to unseat district favorite Greenwood.

Battle of Missouri on tap

KANSAS CITY, Mo. - It will be good starting pitching against good starting pitching. Speed and defense versus even more speed and even more defense.

And most of all, the 1985 World Series will be Missouri against Missouri.

Game 1 will be Saturday night in Kansas City, where the surprising Royals will play host to the St.

Louis Cardinals Both teams enter the Show-Me Showdown on hot streaks.

Kansas City, which looked pitiful in falling behind Toronto 3-1 in the American League playoffs, did a complete turnaround in rallying to win the last three games to take the best-of-7 series.

St. Louis lost the first two games of the National League playoffs, but then came back to win four straight against Los Angeles.

The Royals caught the Blue Jays with their pitching, often a determining factor in postseason play. Kansas City used five different starters, and used some of them in

The Cardinals will continue to rely on its big three of John Tudor, Joaquin Andujar and Danny Cox, plus its highly successful "bullpenby-committee.

St. Louis has a much more potent lineup than Kansas City.

The Cardinals have more speed and better hitters throughout their order. The Royals hit more home runs, but St. Louis does not count

Also hurting Kansas City is the loss of its designated hitter in the Series, which happens during the odd years.

Hal McRae took over the DH spot full-time for the Royals in midseason and was a major factor in their stretch drive as the team's cleanup hitter. McRae does not play the field and figures to be a pinch-hitter in the Series.

The Cardinals also boast switchhitters in Willie McGee, Tommy Herr, Vince Coleman, Ozzie Smith and Terry Pendleton, while the major offensive weapon Kansas City has is George Brett. He was the most valuable player in the AL playoffs and once again carried the Royals with his bat and glove, the same way he did in the final week of the regular season. This will be the second allartificial turf World Series - Kansas City and Philadelphia in 1980 was the other — and that should put more emphasis on speed and defense. The Cardinals' overall

Jim Sundberg will have as much pressure on him as any Kansas City player in the World Series. It will be up to him to help shut down the Cardinals' running game.

Sundberg hit .245 during the regular season, but was a major factor in the evolution of the Royals'

Cox pitched well in the regular season and good enough to win his one playoff start. Andujar, a 20-game winner for the second straight year, was inconsistent during the last half-of-the year and was hit hard in his two playoff starts.

Kansas City has a lot of starters, and Howser uses them well—if not a bit oddly in the playoffs. Danny Jackson, Charlie Leibrandt and Bud Black are pretty good left-handers who will force St. Louis switch-hitters to bat from the weaker right side. Bret Saberhagen, a 20-game winner, was hurt by a liner in Game 7, but should be ready to pitch. So should Game 6 winner Mark Gubicza, if Howser-chooses to start him.

St. Louis uses its "bullpen-by-committee," featuring Ken Dayley, Jeff Lahti, Todd Worrell and Bill Campbell. Those guys got the job done during the season, and Dayley sparkled in the playoffs with six shutout innings.

Dan Quisenberry remains the main man in Kansas City's bullpen. He gave up two gamewinning hits in his first two appearances of the playoffs, but was fine in his other two outings. He has led the league in saves for four straight years, but his postseason record is just 2-4.

Steve Farr pitched well in middle relief, as did Leibrandt and Black when called on in the playoffs.

Youth Football League going strong

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Writer

The Big Spring Youth Football is alive and kicking in its 13th season here in the Spring City.

Though there are not as many players as in the first season, the league has been a constant suc-cess, according to Youth Football League President Leo Williams. 'There's not as many teams or kids as there used to be because of the economy and drop in population, "said Williams. "Back in '73 were 11 teams and about 250 kids. Each school had a team." Today's present league is composed of six teams, which have about 20 players per team. The teams are divided into four different sections of Big Spring. Coahoma, who got into league play in '77, and Forsan ('80) also have

The League has seen good and bad times, according to Williams, who has been League President for the past eight seasons.

The first two seasons the league was sponsored by the City of Big Spring. But the City dropped it sponsorship after losing money. So in '75 the league took donations from the community; this in return kept it going

In '77 the league started its current procedure of getting sponsors for each team. This has been very successful. "We've had some good sponsors since this started," said Williams. "We ask each sponsor to pay the entry fee for a team. The entry fee goes for trophies and any uniforms and equipment that they can afford."

This year's teams sponsors include the Big Spring Optimist Club, Fina Oil and Chemical Company and First National Bank. Rounding out the list is Harding Well Service and Downtown Lions Club. Williams said the league makes a special effort in trying to find the right personnel to run the organizake coaches for ex 'We try to hand-pick coaches for the teams. We try to find a person who has a strong football background because the kids need to be taught good habits from the start.

Williams says the parent participation and crowds have been good. "We don't have many problems finding parents who are willing to help out. The Coahoma and Forsan fans probably follow their teams more regularly than the others.

Williams knows that having a good coach is an must; he has been one since '74. He coached the Dolphins for two years and has been coaching the Cowboys; the current league leaders for the past 10 seasons.

His Cowboys have the perennial power with Williams at the helm. They have won six league championships and compilied an impressive 36-11-1 record. "The credit doesn't all go to me," he quickly objects. "It goes to the fine players and coaches I've had on my side." And how much does Youth

TCU players keep scholarships

FORT WORTH (AP) - Four former Texas Christian University football players will remain on full scholarship through an agreement reached between their lawyer and a university lawyer, the lawyers say.

The former players, Egypt Allen,
Marvin Foster, Gary Spann and Gearld Taylor, were among seven suspended in September by TCU Coach Jim Wacker for receiving cash payments from boosters.

The university has requested that the National Collegiate Athletic Association investigate the situation.

"This agreement is good until they get their degrees," attorney Spencer Kopf said. "The scholarships are good through the spring of 1986, and funds will be made available as if they are on scholarship thereafter."

The players also had asked to be reinstated to the football team, but they were turned down.

A source told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that the players would cooperate with the NCAA investigation as part of the scholarship agreement, which was reached Thursday by Kopf and university counsel Marcus Ginsburg. "We requested that the players talk to the NCAA," Ginsburg said. "We don't know that they will."

"TCU was very honorable and because of that the players are willing to cooperate," Kopf said. 'We got the protection we needed. Mr. Ginsburg was extremely understanding of the players' anxieties.'

The players originally were told in a Sept. 24 letter from vice chancellor Dr. William Koehler that they could apply for financial aid and work study. The players hired Kopf, who notified TCU Chancellor William Tucker of their desire to be reinstated in a letter

The players also requested Thursday that a fifth suspended player - Darron Turner - be given the same scholarship considerations, even though he wasn't part of their group. Ginsburg indicated that request would be considered.

The Cardinals traded for Jack Clark in the offseason to be their cleanup hitter, and he filled the spot perfectly. He hit 22 homers, drove in 87 runs and batted 281.

Clark, in his first postseason series, hit .381 and his three-run homer with two outs in the ninth inning of Game 6 sent St. Louis to the World Series.
Steve Balboni of Kansas City is a classic sligger. He hits for power — a team record 36 homeruns — along with low average (.243) and a lot of strikeouts (186). In the playoffs, he went just 3-for-25 with seven strikeouts and had-two errors.
Royals Manager Dick Howser likes to bat Balboni in the sixth spot, realizing his potential and his liability. But with McRae out, Balboni may have to bat fourth.
Big edge to St. Louis

Second Base

Tommy Herr had an incredible year for St.

Louis and far surpassed anything he had done before. He hit. 302 with eight homers and 110 RBI, and became the first player since George Kell in 1960 to have 100 RBI and less than 10 home runs.
In the playoffs, he batted. 333 and drove in six runs. Herr runs well and fields well.

Frank White, a four-time All-Star, has slowed down a little at age 35 and hit just 249. But he has compensated by adding more power and had a career-high 22 homers with 69 RBI. He is still a fine fielder.

What more can anyone say about Ozzie Smith?
Well, he hit a career-high .276 during the regular season, and capped that by batting .35 with several key hits in the playoffs. That, along with usual fielding ability, made him the MVP of the NI playoffs.

usual fielding ability, made him the MVP of the NL playoffs. Kansas City's Buddy Biancalana batted only 188 during the regular season, and his fielding is average. But, he surprised everyone with a boom-ing, RBI double in the playoffs. Still, . . . Big edge to St. Louis

But just before the season started other league officials came to him for aide, hoping that he would retain his position as League coordinator another year. "I couldn't turn them down," he chuckled. "I've been doing it so long, it was really no problem." He also took up assistant coaching duties with - you guessed it - the Cowboys.

This Saturday will wrap up the final week for Youth Football League play. If the Cowboys can defeat the Packers, Williams will have his seventh league championship. Then there's always next vear.

Thinking ahead, Williams plans on being right there next season. "The bottom line is I want to see the program keep going, so I'll be here as long as my health holds up. My big payoff is seeing the players grow up to be juniors and seniors and play for the Big Spring Steers.

Sounds like a man who wants to keep a successful program on the winning track.

Wilt says there

NEW YORK (AP) - Wilt Chamberlain admits he was paid to play basketball at the University of Kansas and calls for a revamping of NCAA rules to eliminate such illegal payments. Noting allegations that Kenneth Davis was paid $38,000 to play football for Texas Christian Universi-Chamberlain said Thursday that he got "one-tenth of that" at Kansas. The amount "would make it look like I was not worth very much" compared with the underthe-table payments to today's college athletes, Chamberlain added.

Chamberlain, who was recruited by Kansas in 1955, was an All-American in 1957 and 1958 and was inducted into pro basketball's Hall of Fame following his retirement from the National Basketball

ST. ANDREW'S, Scotland (AP) The United Sates, which has suffered some confidence-puncturing setbacks in golf this season, barged unscathed into the second round of the inaugural $1.2 million Dunhill Cup team tournament. The top-seeded American team of Ray Floyd, Curtis Strange and Mark O'Meara cruised by France 3-0 on Wednesday, setting up today's clash with New Zealand, which beat Canada 2-1.

Floyd and Strange each found themselves two strokes down in their matches against Frenchmen Michel Tapia and Gery Watine, respectively, but each rallied for two-shot victories after posting 71s.

O'Meara had no such trouble, routing Bernard Pascassio by six strokes after a round of 6-under-

Floyd said he enjoyed the tournament's unique format, a matchplay formula but with scoring by stroke instead of by hole.

"If you're three (strokes) down with two to play, you're still in the competition," Floyd said. "I like " The United States' grip on golf the concept."

He said he became "parconscious" after opening a twostroke lead over Tapia at the turn. "Instead of playing aggressively, I just concentrated on keeping the ball on the fairway.'

In other matches involving seeded teams, No. 2 Australia edged Hong Kong 2-1, No. 3 Spain crushed Nigeria 3-0 as its ace, Severiano Ballesteros, posted a 15-stroke victory, and No. 4 Scotland overcame a loss by British Open champion Sandy Lyle to beat Brazil 2-1.

In other matches, Japan routed The Philippines 3-0, England downed Ireland 2-1 and Wales beat Chinese Taipei 2-1.

The balance of today's schedule had Australia against England. Spain against Wales and Scotland supremacy was loosened this year when West Germany's Bernhard Langer won the Masters, Lyle the British Open, Team Europe the Ryder Cup team trophy for the first time in 28 years and Ballesteros the World Match Play Championship.

Off the course, Dunhills managing director Tony Greener announced that the tournament would remain in Britain, probably at St. Andrew's, for another year before moving to other sites around the world. And Mark McCormack, whose International Management Group organized the event, said the response from other players has been favorable.

Barry McGuigan fighting for Irish peace

BELFAST, Northern Ireland situation here. It goes back too (AP) - American boxer Bernard far." Taylor says there is nothing peaceful about Barry McGuigan in the ring, except for the white dove emblazoned on his trunks. And watching the 24-year-old World Boxing Association featherweight champion pound his opponents gives no clue he believes his exploits can help soothe the troubles of a divided community. McGuigan boxes out of the strife-torn city of Belfast in British-ruled Northern Ireland, where the Protestant majority want to remain the Protestant side and supprters governed by London and Roman Catholics would prefer to fly the flag of the Republic of Ireland.

When McGuigan fights, he has warring Catholics and Protestants they jupt roll out the red carpet for behind him and Britain and Ireland me. There's no trouble whatsoever celebrate his triumphs. But their and I'm really proud of this." peaceful unity lasts all of one day fight day.

Paul Maguire, a Protestant, has followed McGuigan's fight career closely and regards the peace campaign as pure hype

"It's wrong to look on McGuigan as a peacemaker. Of course, he never can be," he said. "Anyone who comes here can see it will take a lot more than one person to bring peace to Northern Ireland."

Anthony Gallagher, a Catholic, said: "He's a great boxer and a super little fellow. But he would be But the boxer with the damaging left hook and right uppercut would dearly love to see the violence end. "Myself and my manager, Mr.

(Barney) Eastwood, have helped to bridge the divide between Catholics and Protestants in the north of Ireland. We are probably the only ones who are able to do that," McGuigan said on telewision two days after he beat Taylor in eight zounds in Belfast.

We have got supporters from from the Cat'olic side. I can go up the (Catholic) Falls Road or go up the (Protestant) Shankill Road and I'm accepted in both parts. And

A Catholic with a Protestant wife, McGuigan already feels he has crossed the divide.

"I love my wife very much and it has never mattered to me what she is," he has said. "I only wish to God everybody else thought the same and there would be no more trouble in this country.

"We got married in a Protestant church and decided we were going to bring the kids up as Catholics. But it's really unimportant to me, what religion to bring them up as, wrong to think he can change the as long as they believe in God."

McGuigan, despite the cheers from both religious factions, has made enemies among his countrymen.

A threat was made on his life onweeks before his fight against Taylor and McGuigan reportedly carried a gun for protection. His enemies, said to be extremists associated with the outlawed Irish Republican Army, accused him of turning his back on his native Ireland by becoming a British citizen. Because there is no organized professional boxing in the Republic of Ireland, the nation is not recognized by the sport's authorities. To attain world recognition, McGuigan needed a title acknowledged by international boxing authorities and he decided to obtain British citizenship. In his 15th fight as a professional McGuigan won the British featherweight title in April 1983 and went on to add the European championship seven months later. After being carefully schooled by manager Barney Eastwood, he captured the world title by beating defending champion Eusebio Pedroza of Panama in June. The fight against Taylor was his first defense, and in gratitude to his loyal Belfast fans, he turned down

College Baptist becoming debt free

Bill Draper, H.C. Blackshear and Cecil Suttles burn the note for the College Baptist Church auditorium. They are three of the five original signers of the note taken out in 1965. The Rev. Bobby Fuller, pastor, stands in the background.

Religion Editor

College Baptist Church is trying to become a debt free church. In February Bobby Fuller, pastor, challenged the church congregation to raise $65,000 by Oct. 5. The fund raising campaign known as "65 by October 5" ended with victory. The congregation did more than just meet the goal. The congregation paid the $65,000 left on the auditorium note and raised an extra $3,500, according to Fuller, bringing the total to approximately $68,000.

The original note of $213,000 for the auditorium, which includes the pastor's house, was taken out in 1965. The church paid it off 41/2 years early.

The extra $3,500 is being used to pay off the note on another house owned by the church for a staff member. "We have plans to burn that note on Christmas Day,' Fuller said. "And when that note is burned we'll have one more note." The church owes $50,000 on the activity building. "Our vision is to see that paid off by July (1986)," he said. "That would leave us completely debt free."

The church's goal is "to be able to take the money usually paid on the activity building to pay a youth and music minister," Fuller said. He hopes to have a person in that position by the first of the year. "When I came here two years ago, we owed $160,000. Our congregation was small; we were struggling," Fuller said. "I watched $2,700 a month go to the finance companies." The total debt is now approximately $54,000.

"We don't plan to curtail our spending," said Fuller. "We want to rechannel it."

The church averages 150 persons in attendance in Sunday School. 'That's where the bulk of our money comes in from," Fuller

"We didn't have any one to come in and pay a majority of the debt,' Fuller said. "Everyone was involved." The largest gift from an individual was approximately $4,000.

The congregation didn't "want to stop with this first note. They wanted to continue on and clear all of them," said Fuller.

Michigan is the first between the nation's top two ranked teams since Jan. 1, 1983, when No. 2 Penn State defeated No. 1 Georgia 27-23 in the Sugar Bowl. The last such regular-season matchup was in 1981, when No. 1 Southern California beat No. 2 Oklahoma 28-24.

The Wolverines, coming off a disappointing 6-6 season in 1984, were rated no better than fourth in the Big Ten prior to this season. "I don't think the experts figured Big Ten thought we would," said Schembechler. "In my opinion, they miscalculated. "I said going into the season that thought that we'd be a better team than we were a year ago, and I think we proved that." In addition to victories over Michigan State and Wisconsin, the Wolverines have beaten Notre Dame, Maryland and South Carolina - all in the Top 20 when the games were played. Meanwhile, Oklahoma, which has been winning with its strong defense - the Sooners limited Texas to 70 total yards last week, including 17 rushing on 35 carries — will be facing a high-powered Miami offense. The Hurricanes have averaged about 300 yards passing and 36 points per game in compiling a 4-1 record.

Texas' offense, which had gained 433 yards against Missouri, 527 against Stanford and 454 against Rice before being stymied by Oklahoma, will try to regroup against Arkansas.

Arkansas, 5-0, favored for only the third time against Texas in 25 years, will have an extra incentive. It will be the Razorbacks' first game in their expanded stadium, which has been increased by 10,000 seats, to 52,055.
