How's that?

Quake relief

Q. How much money has the Red Cross raised for earthquake relief funds in Mexico?

A. The American Red Cross has raised $2 million nationwide as of last week for the Mexican Red Cross' efforts. That money includes $5,500 collected from Big Spring donors. The money will be used to build 12 Red Cross emergency shelters, estimated to cost $50,000 each. The Mexican Red Cross also is trying to build 500 homes for displaced people, said Marianne Brown, director for the Big Spring Red Cross.

For sale

Children's librarian Donna Jackson sorts through some of the offerings of the Friends of the Library semi-annual book sale scheduled Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Included in the sale will be fiction and non-fiction books in a diverse area of interest for adults and children, she said. Most books will sell for 25 cents an inch, paperbacks at 10 and 25 cents, National Geographics at five cents and Readers Digest Condensed Books at 10 cents. The Howard County Library is at Fourth and Scurry streets.

Tuition hike taxes college grant fund

Staff and wire reports

Students struggling to pay increased college tuitions this fall may not find financial relief in the grant money set aside to offset the hikes, financial aid directors say.

Howard College, however, has not experienced a shortage in funds caused by tuition increases this year, said Financial Aid Director Ann Duncan.

"Our funds have been adequate so far. We have seen a tremendous increase in the number of applicants this year," Duncan said. "We feel like we are covering our students' needs so far."

Tuition to state universities and colleges was tripled, effective with the start of the fall semester.

The University of Texas at Austin, however, is out of grant money derived from in-state tuition payments, "and students are still coming in to apply for aid," said financial aid director Michael Novak.

At the University of Texas at El Paso, where the tuition boost was cited as a factor in a loss of 1,200 students including one-third of its students from Mexico, a shortage of grant funds is also reported.

Officials at the University of Houston and Pan American University said last week that they had run out of grant money or were running out. Texas A&M University reported no significant problem in meeting student needs.

Still, all the schools said the full effect of the tuition increase is not yet known.

The Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System is surveying all state schools and hopes to have a report on the tuition boost and financial aid in a few weeks, said Mack Adams, assistant commissioner for student affairs.

The Legislature, faced last spring with a projected state budget shortage, tripled tuition for Texans from $4 per semester hour to $12, and for non-residents from $40 to $120. More increases are scheduled in coming years.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — Cleared of wrongdoing last month by a grand jury, State Sen. Carl Parker still says he's careful to lock his favorite pickup truck.

"There are people who would have no qualms about planting something on me," he said.

After more than a year with Parker under indictment for charges of dealing in cocaine, prostitution and pornography, a Jefferson County grand jury last month declined to indict the Port Arthur Democrat.

"I think that concludes the investigation of Sen. Parker in every way," District Attorney James McGrath said at the time.

Parker says he isn't so sure. His troubles began in April 1984 when Port Arthur police raided Happy Times Video, an X-rated video store operating in a house half-owned by Parker. Parker said he owned the house only as an investment and knew nothing of what went on there.

Jefferson County grand juries indicted Parker twice, but each time the indictments were thrown out by a district judge because of irregularities in the grand jury proceedings.

A third grand jury, this time working with the Texas attorney general's office, reviewed the evidence and declined to indict

Defaults force tighter control on farm loans

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — A faltering farm economy and rash of loan defaults by farmers nationwide have spurred the federal government to tighten loan requirements for those who want to use their crops as collateral.

The government now requires a lien search on all requests for Commodity Credit Corp. loans — a change from the random checks previously run on only about 15 percent of the applications.

The policy is intended to "protect the security interest" on loan money funded by taxpayers, Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service officials at the county, state and national level say.

Officials said the policy is indicative of extremely low commodity prices and the uncertainty over whether farm credit will be available at the start of 1986.

Commodity Credit loans are issued through ASCS offices to farmers who use their crop as collateral. The farmer may either repay the loan with interest or let the government take possession of the commodity on which the loan was made.

"The money we spend (on the loans) is taxpayer money and we are obligated to get a clear title," said ASCS administrator Everett "Bud" Rank of Washington, D.C. "We are making more loans than ever in history and we are more subject to losses."

Virtually all of the 1985 crop production will enter the loan because prices are hovering at or below the loan rate established by the government, ASCS officials said.

The loan rate for the quality of cotton predominantly harvested on the High Plains is 47.05 cents per pound, for example. If predictions are correct that buyers will not be offering that much money for the 1985 crop, High Plains farmers could opt to store the crop under the Commodity Credit loan provisions rather than accept the lower price.

Prior to the new rule, ASCS officials issued loan checks to farmer-applicants and only randomly searched for liens, checking about 15 percent of the requests, said Lubbock County ASCS executive director Alan Mackey.

Unless a lien search was made and a lien holder found, the loan check was made payable only to the farmer-applicant.

If a lien holder does not get paid, the Commodity Credit Corp. has to reimburse that person, in effect, paying for the Commodity Credit-held commodity twice, Mackey said.

Wayne Mayfield of College Station, Texas ASCS executive director, said the new policy is a preventative measure rather than one resulting from losses.

"I can't quote any cases last year that we lost," Mayfield said. "If there were any losses in Texas, they were very minor."

"Other states probably had more problems with (loan) losses," Mayfield said, and that, coupled with the potential for losses this year in Texas and other states, prompted the nationwide decisions.

"The situation is much more critical this year," he said.

Off-amended constitution goes to electorate again

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Writers of the Texas Constitution wanted everything spelled out when they drafted a new version in 1875.

That effort to recover from the state's Reconstruction era and so-called Radical Republican rule may be a major reason why people statewide will be asked to vote Nov. 5 on several mundane amendments.

The much-amended constitution spells out the powers and duties of local, county and state government in far more detail than most state constitutions. That means every time a detail is changed, a constitutional amendment is needed, which leads to some really dull constitutional amendment elections.

In all, the document has been amended 269 times since 1875. And it could be changed 14 more times in 1985 and three more times in 1986.

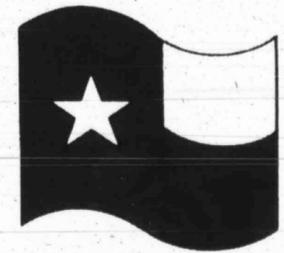

Three of the real yawners this year, if approved, would:

— Allow cities to extend credit to property owners for relocation or replacement of water lines to private residences. Cities now have that right with sewer line relocations or replacements, thanks to approval of an amendment in 1983. Amendment 3 on the ballot.

— Abolish the county treasurer's office in Andrews and El Paso counties, and the office of county surveyor in Denton, Randall, Collin, Dallas, El Paso and Henderson counties. Amendment 14 on the ballot.

— Allow Chambers County on the coast to keep a sixth office of justice of the peace in order to handle the high volume of traffic of fenses generated in the tourist area.

This is one in a series on the proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution that will be on the ballot in the Nov. 5 statewide election.

On the so-called water lateral amendment, property owners would reimburse the city for the cost of a water line over five years.

Supporters say the amendment is needed because the state constitution normally prohibits a city or county from granting credit to private individuals. They say that most people, especially those on fixed incomes, cannot afford in one payment the $1,000 to $3,000 needed for a water line hookup. An installment payment plan, they say, would not cost the city and certainly would benefit homeowners facing an unexpected expense.

Although no organized opposition exists, according to a detailed report by the House Study Group, critics say that such detailed government financing schemes have no place in a state constitution, and, in any case, a five-year payback period will still be too burdensome for those with limited incomes.

In abolishing the offices of county treasurer and county surveyor, supporters note that the change will make county governments in the affected counties more efficient and will save taxpayers money.

Others argue, according to the House Study Group, that to abolish an elective office simply to turn the duties over to an appointed county auditor is not good policy, especially since the auditors handling the money will be dependent on the county judge to keep their jobs rather than the voters, or, at least, all of the commissioners.

As for the extra JP court for Chambers County, supporters say it is not a speed trap. However, with as many as 50,000 nonresidents passing through the county daily, the number of traffic violations alone is enough to keep all six of its JP courts busy. In 1984 alone, the courts processed 12,899 traffic cases.

Under a 1983 constitutional amendment, the county is authorized to have only five JP courts.

Critics say the amendment only clutters the constitution more and creates a limit of six JP courts on the county when population growth may soon prompt a call for even more.

State senator cites pettiness for lawsuit

Parker on Sept. 27. Parker calls it all a case of "petty, small-town bull that reached tragic proportions."

"I'd like to say it was a KGB plot sponsored by the Republicans to spoil my opportunity to become president," he told the Dallas Morning News. "But I really believe it was just grounded in ignorance, pettiness, jealousy and ego."

Specifically, Parker blames the indictments on a "small clique" of law enforcement officers who hold a grudge against him.

Jefferson County Sheriff R.E. Culbertson and Port Arthur Police Chief Jimmy Newsome said there was no vendetta against Parker.

"This was a normal investigation of alleged wrongdoings," Culbertson said. "We were not picking on him. There was no picking on anyone. If enforcing the law is wrong, then we're wrong."

Parker said fighting the charges cost him more than $300,000 in legal fees and related expenses, and took a chunk out of his law practice.

"It's been like trying to practice law with leprosy," he said. "I don't think people stayed away because they thought I was guilty. You just don't hire a guy who is busy taking care of his own problems."

Parker is now pushing for statewide reform of the grand jury system, including possibly abolishing it. He said grand juries fall too much under the control of prosecutors and police officers.

"Only 20 states in the union have grand juries," he said. "It was done away with in England years ago."

Parker is confident voters will return him to the Senate when his term expires in 1988. But he said his chances for statewide office have been hurt by the controversy.

"I had harbored hopes of running for lieutenant governor or attorney general one day," he said. "Unless there is a total uncovering of the wheres and hows of my getting indicted, the chances of statewide office are slim."

State Fair ends 3-week run, clouded by violence, storms

DALLAS (AP) — The 1985 State Fair of Texas ended under rainy skies and a cloud of violence, including 22 reported assaults and two murders — the first homicides at the fair in 12 years.

Despite the well-publicized crime wave, officials called the fair "very successful" and reported about 2.8 million attendance at the 18-day annual event.

"We'll do better this year in total attendance," Wayne Gallagher, state fair executive vice president and general manager, said Sunday.

Although 2.9 million people attended the rain-plagued 1984 fair, it ran for 24 days, Gallagher explained.

Heavy showers also hit this year, particularly on key days for attendance, he said. Rainshowers on Oct. 14 and 18 — days marked for students — hurt the numbers and a parade of champions expected to bring 37 school bands to the fair was canceled Oct. 19 because of rain.

But the real threat to success seemed to be reports of increasing violent attacks on fairgoers and workers.

Just days after the fair opened, Donovan Goodman, 19, of Grand Prairie was fatally stabbed. The Oct. 6 slaying was the first homicide at the fairgrounds in 12 years.

Violence continued on the last weekend of the fair when a ride operator was fatally shot during an argument with a man who wanted a free ride, police said.

Keyna Johnson, 8, and La Marce Skinner, 2, both of Dallas, take a ride on the Carousel at the State Fair of Texas midway. The fair, which ended Sunday, was plagued with violence this year.

Kim Lloyd Johnson, 28, of Brunswick, Maine, was shot in the chest late Saturday at the Looping Star ride, police said. A South Texas man was being held today in connection with the slaying, but no charges had been filed.

A rash of assaults were also reported early, including the rape of a 10-year-old boy at a livestock barn.

By Sunday evening shortly before closing, one fair employee had been gunned down, three people raped and 22 assaulted, according to police reports.

Several robberies, thefts and muggings also had been reported.

"Overall, there were (some) serious problems, but the police said they were a little less than the norm," Gallagher said. "I don't know what it is about society or people who want to carry a gun to a place that is meant for fun."

Ex-guard's trial set to start

ABILENE — Testimony was delayed until 2 p.m. this afternoon in the trial of Eddie Joe Roybal, a former Big Spring Federal Prison Camp guard who faces two charges of accepting gratuities and two charges of delivering a controlled substance while employed at the camp last May.

Jurors were initially asked to report in Judge Hal Woodward's court this morning at 10 a.m., but testimony was delayed because Woodward is presiding over jury selection for another federal trial.

The case was originally docketed for Judge David O. Belew's court, but Woodward was needed to substitute for the Fort Worth judge who underwent major surgery last week.

Jimmy Tallant of the U.S. Attorney's office in Fort Worth is prosecuting the case. Roybal is represented by attorney Frank Gaston of Plainview.

The eight-man, four-woman jury was selected last Friday.

Council to mull building leases

Big Spring city councilmen will consider waiving the first year's rent on a building at the Big Spring Airpark under lease to the Industrial Foundation.

The council meets at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the council chambers on the second floor of City Hall.

As part of the foundation's sublease with Ron Osborne, the foundation agreed to remodel the building, formerly leased by Ozarka Water. Because the foundation spent $42,400 in remodeling costs, it is asking the city to waive its first year's rent. The sub-contract includes five one-year renewal options.

Council members also will consider a request by Northside Community Center director Marianne Brown to renew the lease for the center on N.E. Eighth and N. Main.

Also on the agenda is a request for the city to increase its participation in the Firemen's Relief and Retirement Fund from 6 to 9 percent. The fund members voted Oct. 7 to increase the firemen's contributions by 3 percent to 9 percent. Under state law, the city is required to match salary deductions of its employees as long as the payments do not exceed 9 percent.

In addition, the council will consider five bids on employee uniforms and the specifications for employee health and life insurance.

Sheriff's Log

Car windshield damaged

Mrs. Everett Dobbs of Andrews told Howard County sheriff's deputies something hit her windshield Saturday night while she was traveling in the westbound lane of Interstate 20.

According to a sheriff's report, Dobbs did not know what kind of object struck her windshield. Damage was estimated at $200.

The incident occurred at 7:10 p.m., the report stated.

Big Spring Police transferred Richard Morrison Riggs Jr., 27, of 1206 Dixie to county jail Monday morning following his arrest for driving while license suspended and a second offense of failure to maintain financial responsibility.

He also was arrested on a warrant from Atascosa County on a theft by check charge and Bexar County for a bond forfeiture charge.

He was released on bonds totaling $4,800, sheriff's records show.

Deputies arrested Nancy Lea Dyson, 30, of Colorado City on a Brown County warrant charging her with theft by check.

She later was released on $1,000 bond set by Brown County.

Police transferred Debra Ann Ruth, 28, of Colorado City to county jail after she was arrested on suspicion of theft over $20 and under $200. She was released on $500 bond.

Deputies arrested Rory Jay Lawson, 22, of 3500 West Highway 80 on suspicion of driving while intoxicated after Lawson's bondsmen went off his bond. He was later released on a new $1,000 bond set by county court.

Police transferred Sammy Muniz, 20, of 600 E. 12th to county jail after he was arrested for suspicion of DWI and DWLS. He was released on bonds totalling $1,500.

Deputies confined Jessie Clyde Elliott, 23, of Sterling City Route to one day in county jail for a DWI judgment he previously received. He was jailed at 8 a.m. Sunday and released at 5 p.m. the same day.

Police transferred Peggy M. Coleman, 49, of 504 Donley to county jail after she was arrested on suspicion of DWI. She was released on $1,000 bond.

A Texas Department of Public Safety trooper arrested James Troy Daniel, 33, of Idabel, Okla., on a charge of DWLS. He was released on $500 bond.

Police transferred Roberto Perez, 22, of 201 N.E. Sixth to county jail after he was arrested on suspicion of DWI. He was released on $1,000 bond.

Police transferred William Leslie Hess, 39, of 2900 Hunters Glen to county jail following his arrest for suspicion of DWI. He was released on $1,000 bond.

the farmer would be refinanced the following year," said Mackey. "This year we don't know who'll still be around to start the 1986 crop and what type of financing there will be."

The lien search will look at a farmer's records from the past six years, Mackey said. The search will include records at county courthouses and the secretary of state's office in Austin.

Mackey said one agency employee will stay at the courthouse as needed during the upcoming heavy harvest period. He also said that county ASCS offices will be able to phone requests for information to the Travis County ASCS office, which has computer connections with the secretary of state's office.

Still, ASCS officials agree that it will take more time to process loans under lien searches.

Farmers can ease the process by getting lien waivers from their lending institutions, Mackey said.

"We are not a collection agency. And we want to work with the producer and lien holder," Mackey said. "But we also want to make sure that we distribute the proceeds according to all the legal documents."

Blaze causes $1,000 damage

at Senior Citizens Center

Firemen answered a fire alarm at the Senior Citizens Center at the Big Spring Airpark at 8:08 a.m. to find the blaze already out, according to reports.

Cause of the fire is still under investigation. A break-in at the center also occurred, the department report stated.

Damage, caused mostly by smoke, was estimated at $1,000, the report stated.

Police Beat

Burglars pick BBQ clean

Burglars broke into Johnny Green's Country Kitchen and Barbecue at 710 Lamesa Highway between Saturday night and Sunday, according to police reports.

More than $770 in goods were taken from the restaurant between 9 p.m. Saturday and 11 p.m. Sunday. The burglars damaged the jukebox and the cigarette machines, stealing $50 in change from the two machines, the police report stated.

Also taken were: 48 packages of cigarettes, valued at $50; three fans, valued at $70; a desk radio, valued at $20; a set of 10 commercial knives, valued at $400; soft drinks, valued at $50; a clock, value unknown; six pounds of hamburger meat, valued at $6; 14 pairs of salt and pepper shakers, valued at $25; eight ash trays, valued at $8; a paper towel rack, valued at $15; a seven-inch circular saw, valued at $50; toothpick holders, valued at $15; and assorted hot sauce and bread, $4.

Janie Jackson of Andrews told police someone Sunday broke the rear windshield and damaged the frame and paint on a 1985 red Mercury Cougar. Damage is estimated at $650.

Don Riley of 3606 Parkway told police someone damaged his rear tail light assembly on a silver 1976 Toyota by pushing a dumpster into the car. Damage is estimated at $300.

Darice Bauer of 2515 Ent told police someone stole two car stereo speakers from a 1979 brown Chevrolet and replaced them with another brand of speakers between noon Friday and 2 p.m. Sunday. The missing speakers are valued at $175, the report stated.

Zeke Valles of 1410 Bluebird told police someone stole a gray 12-speed, 26-inch bicycle valued at $180 from his front yard.

Lupe Ramos of 1204 Nolan told police someone damaged the windshield of his blue 1975 Buick and assaulted him at 5 p.m. Saturday, during an argument. Damage to the car is estimated at $150.

Richard Haro of 808 Bell told police someone he knows threatened him because he is a prospective witness in a trial.

Burglars stole a single-shot 12-gauge shotgun with an 18 1/2-inch barrel and a nylon ammunition belt loaded with shotgun shells from 1501 State between 6 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday, Bobby Roy told police. The burglars entered by kicking in the side door, the police report stated.

The shotgun and ammunition is valued at $70.

Vandals damaged four windows at two elementary schools this weekend, according to police reports. Two windows were broken at Marcy Elementary School and two at Washington Elementary School.

Police early this morning arrested William Leslie Hess, 39, of 2900 Hunter's Glen in the 2400 block of Goliad on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Police Saturday night arrested Roberto Perez, 22, of 201 N.E. Sixth in the 2300 block of Scurry on suspicion of DWI.

Police early Sunday morning arrested Henry Thiessen, 23, of 2101 Main at the intersection of Highway 350 and Interstate 20 on suspicion of DWI.

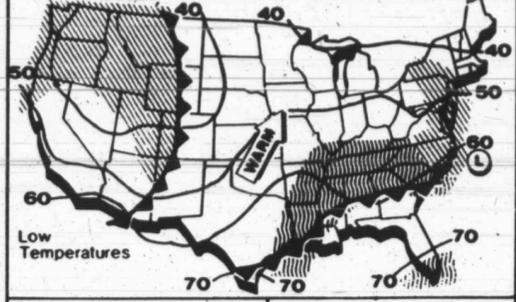

Police also Sunday morning arrested Peggy Mathis Coleman, 49, of 504 Donley in the 1100 block of Goliad on suspicion of DWI.

Police Saturday night arrested Sammy Muniz, 20, of 600 E. 12th at 1201 Lamar on suspicion of DWI and driving while license suspended.

Police also Saturday evening arrested Debra Ann Ruth, 28, of Colorado City at the TG&Y store at 501 Birdwell on suspicion of theft of more than $20 and less than $200. According to police reports, store employees said a woman tried to leave the store with $40 of goods, including cosmetics, cigarettes and cassette tapes.

Fundraiser collects $31,000

The Monte Carlo Casino Night raised more than $31,000 Saturday night for the March of Dimes, said Donna Parker, director of the March of Dimes.

Patrons, sponsors and friends of the March of Dimes gathered at the Dora Roberts Community Center for an evening of games, food and an auction.

A cruise ship theme was used with Gary Don Carey, coordinator of the festivities, as the ship's captain.

Sixty percent of the money left after expenses will be used for national research and education about birth defects, Parker said. The local chapter's board of directors will decide how to use the remaining 40 percent profit.

A mink coat was won by Jo Ann Loudamy. Bob and Angela Parks and Travis and Millie Hunter had the highest bids on the two trips to Las Vegas. Highest bidder on the craps table was Bob Wash. Chris Christopher had the highest bids on the personal spa and satellite.

The turnout "could have been better," Parker said. "But everybody had a good time. I feel like next year it may be better."

Deaths

Mrs. John Cox

GARDEN CITY — Services for Mrs. John H. (Eva) Cox, 85, will be 3 p.m. Tuesday at Nalley-Pickle and Welch Rosewood Chapel, with the Rev. Herbert Wood, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Garden City, officiating.

Burial will be in the Garden City Cemetery. She died Sunday evening at Shannon Hospital in San Angelo following a brief illness.

She was born Oct. 20, 1900, in Garden City. She married John H. Cox Oct. 24, 1920, in Garden City. She had lived in Garden City all her life and was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Garden City. She and her husband were Glasscock County ranchers for 63 years.

Survivors include her husband, John H. Cox of Garden City; two sons, Ray Cox of Abilene and Don Cox of Lamesa; two daughters, Frances Mills of Midland and Mary Jo Cope of Hobbs, N.M.; 13 grandchildren; and six great-grandchildren.

Her son, John Belton Cox, died in the Philippine Islands during World War II.

Pallbearers will be John Ray Cox, John Mills Jr., Steve Mills, Steve Cox, John W. Cox, Brian Cope and Scott Cope.

The family suggests memorials to a favorite charity.

M.A. Parsons

WACO — Funeral services for M.A. "Tony" Parsons, 67, of Garden City will be 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in Wilkerson-Hatch Chapel here. The Rev. Don Long will officiate.

Burial will follow in Chapel Hill Memorial Park.

He died Sunday morning in a Temple hospital. He was born in Falls County and educated in Waco. He was a World War II Army veteran. He married Virginia Wagner in 1949 in Waco. He was a member of the Anson No. 1272 Masonic Lodge, the Garden City Masonic Lodge No. 971, the Eastern Star No. 147 in Garden City and First Baptist Church of Garden City. He lived in West Texas 30 years.

Survivors include his wife of Garden City; one daughter, Barbara Copeland of China Spring; one son, Stanley Parsons of San Antonio; two sisters, Orpha Thompson of Waco and Bessie Joe Hutton of Cedar Hill; four brothers, J.C. Parsons of Waco, Sam Parsons of Bruceville, Frank Parsons of China Spring, A.C. Parsons of Clifton; and four grandchildren.

Nellie Beckmeyer

LAMESA — Funeral services for Mrs. A.J. (Nellie) Beckmeyer, 80, formerly of Ackerly, were scheduled for 4 p.m. Monday at Branon Funeral Home Chapel here. The Rev. Roy Havens of Nolan, Texas, will officiate.

Burial will be in Lamesa Memorial Park. She died at 10 p.m. Friday at Medical Center Hospital in Conroe after a short illness.

She was born April 26, 1905 in Bell County. She was a retired teacher. She married Dutch Beckmeyer on June 18, 1924 in Hillsboro. He preceded her in death in 1974. She came to Ackerly in 1924 and lived there until 1981.

Survivors include one son, Craig Beckmeyer of Conroe; one sister, Bula Haynes of Killeen; three grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Nancy sings on stage

NEW YORK — First Lady Nancy Reagan made a brief return to Broadway, singing on stage with longtime friend Mary Martin at the end of a celebrity-filled tribute to the actress.

"Sitting up there in that box and watching all these professional singers doesn't make this easy," Mrs. Reagan said Sunday night before joining Miss Martin in a number from "Lute Song," a Broadway musical in which they performed together in 1946.

The first lady's appearance at the Shubert Theatre was the finale of a benefit for the Theater Collection of the Museum of the City of New York.

Fires under control

LOS ANGELES — Firefighters Sunday controlled a blaze in the Los Padres National Forest, the last of a string of at least 20 brushfires that destroyed more than 100,000 acres of brush and 21 homes in and around Los Angeles County.

Crews finished cutting a line of barren ground around the Los Padres fire's active area about 6 p.m., said U.S. Forest Service spokesman Carl Summerfield.

The blaze 60 miles northwest of Los Angeles started Oct. 14 and burned 45,710 acres of brush, eight homes, 21 outbuildings and 20 vehicles.

Crackdown defended

UNITED NATIONS — President Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua, while declaring that victory over U.S.-backed rebels is within reach, says civil liberties will remain suspended until the United States accepts the legitimacy of the Sandinista revolution.

During an hour-long interview with a small group of reporters Sunday, Ortega said last week's internal crackdown was needed to guarantee final victory over the resistance forces, known as Contras.

Expense paid luxury

WASHINGTON — A State Department official and his family, returning to Argentina from home leave in this country, took a 25-day South American cruise at taxpayer expense, a new congressional study has found.

The voyage between Cartagena, Colombia, and Buenos Aires cost $18,156 — more than five times the $3,360 a flight between the two cities would have cost, according to the General Accounting Office, the investigative wing of Congress.

Hudson remembered

LOS ANGELES — About 150 stars, including Elizabeth Taylor and Glenn Ford, turned out for a weekend memorial at the hillside home of Rock Hudson, who died after a yearlong battle with AIDS.

"He was a very special human being," said actress Jane Withers, who appeared with Hudson and Miss Taylor in the 1956 film epic "Giant." "He was one of the nicest people God ever created."

DEMONSTRATORS ATTACK a government-owned passenger bus during a clash with riot police in Manila's main street Monday. At least one man was killed when police opened fire to disperse 3,000 demonstrators marching from the U.S. Embassy to a city square for another rally. The demonstrators were protesting the government's economic policies and the U.S. support for President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Protest march

Melee marks demonstration in Manila

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Police today fired on protesters marching from the U.S. Embassy who had countered efforts to disperse them by hurling rocks and beating police with placard sticks, witnesses said. Hospital officials reported one man shot dead.

The official Philippines News Agency said 27 people were injured, including 12 policemen, in the melee that broke out at a crowded intersection in downtown Manila. Hundreds of commuters jumped out of buses and passenger jeeps in panic as the gunfire began.

The 3,000 demonstrators were marching from their peaceful rally against U.S. aid to President Ferdinand E. Marcos' government when a police van drove through their ranks in an apparent attempt to disperse them.

However, witnesses said that instead of dispersing, the demonstrators mobbed the van, pelting policemen with stones or beating them with sticks. Police then opened fire, witnesses said, and some said the officers fired down into the protesters from a truck.

Some demonstrators smashed windows in a bus and a police car, and one of them grabbed a policeman's shield.

Hospital authorities said a man died of a gunshot wound in the back of his head and eight others were hospitalized with gunshot wounds at Philippines General Hospital.

Another woman was listed as being in shock, and a man in another hospital had been hit by a rock. A third person was also reported hospitalized with unspecified injuries.

Demonstrators also were seen by photographers beating up a man they said was a police agent, who was not reported among those hospitalized.

"The police started it," charged Mar Santa Ana, 23, a fish vendor hospitalized with a hip wound. "They cut our group in half," he said.

He said he saw police fire pistols into the air and some demonstrators try to calm others who were throwing stones before he was hit.

"I suddenly fell and did not realize I was wounded until I saw blood on my hip," Santa Ana said.

The official Philippines News Agency quoted Manila Police Chief Gen. Narciso Cabrera as saying several shots were fired, but that it could not be determined who among police and demonstrators fired them. It said one officer lost his revolver when demonstrators mauled him.

In a radio interview, Cabrera said: "What happened today is really regrettable, but if there is anyone to blame, it is the ranks of the demonstrators. They're the ones who started it."

But opposition leader Salvador H. Laurel also condemned the police, calling it part of a pattern of intimidation by Marcos' "evil regime." He said it was designed to cow opponents of Marcos into submission.

The clash occurred a few minutes after the demonstrators left the U.S. Embassy. The protesters, mostly from farm groups, had protested low prices for their rice, alleged military abuses and U.S. backing for Marcos' government.

The demonstrators blocked traffic for an hour. About 250 riot police kept them several yards from the embassy, which remained open.

Scores of applicants for visas to the United States milled between the police line and the demonstrators.

The demonstrators also were protesting the killing of at least 21 people last month when police fired into a crowd of protesters in the Negros Island town of Escalante.

Protest groups claim up to 27 people died, all of them farmers.

Copter crashes at sea

SUBIC NAVAL BASE, Philippines — A U.S. Navy helicopter from the aircraft carrier Kitty Hawk crashed in the Arabian Sea but all five crewmen were rescued unharmed, a base spokesman said today.

U.S. Navy Petty Officer John Bacher of the 7th Fleet Information Office told The Associated Press that an investigation was under way to determine the cause of the crash of the SH-3H "Sea King," which he said took place during "routine operations" Saturday.

Inmates escape

HONIARA, Solomon Islands — All 109 inmates in a Guadalcanal prison strolled through the gates to freedom today after guards walked off the job to protest disciplinary action being taken against two senior officers.

The two officers appeared in court earlier in the day, charged with assaulting an inmate at Honiara Central Prison.

In jolly good mood

LONDON — Joking and smiling, Prince Charles and Princess Diana calmly steamrolled the steady buildup of gossip that has accumulated around their marriage.

In a 45-minute interview with Independent Television News seen Sunday night by an estimated 20 million viewers, the couple did what British royalty does best — apply the common touch while maintaining their regal aplomb.

Sanctions accepted

NASSAU, Bahamas — The 49-nation Commonwealth nudged a reluctant Britain into accepting a package of limited economic sanctions against South Africa, and threatened to impose more unless the white minority government dismantles apartheid.

Members of the Commonwealth, consisting of Britain and its former colonies, averted an open split in a last-minute compromise Sunday. They also agreed to send high-level emissaries to South Africa to press the government to free jailed black leaders, end the policy of racial segregation, and negotiate a "non-racial, representative government."

Canadian plants reopen

TORONTO — A tentative contract that gives Chrysler's 10,000 striking Canadian workers wage parity with Ford and GM could light a fire under talks to end a six-day walkout by 70,000 employees in the United States, company and union officials said.

The company said it planned to reopen its four Canadian plants for today's afternoon shift, but cut back to four-hour shifts until the U.S. strike is settled. If the walkout continues next week, Chrysler officials say they will have to lay off the Canadian workers.

Craxi may form cabinet

ROME (AP) — President Francesco Cossiga today asked Bettino Craxi to form a new government to replace his coalition that fell apart over his handling of the Achille Lauro hijacking crisis.

Cossiga's decision had been expected following three days of consultations with leaders of the five political parties of Craxi's old cabinet.

Politicians predicted that Craxi, a Socialist, would try to put together a government with the same parties — the Christian Democrats, Socialists, Republicans, Social Democrats and Liberals.

Craxi was expected to begin sounding out the former coalition partners immediately.

Under fire from Washington and a coalition partner for his role in the aftermath of the cruise ship hijacking, Craxi resigned as premier last Thursday, bringing down Italy's 44th postwar government.

The Republican Party split from Craxi's center-left coalition over the government decision to release PLO official Mohammed Abbas, accused by the United States of masterminding the Oct. 7 seizure of the Achille Lauro cruise ship. An American passenger was killed during the two-day hijacking.

Abbas and the four hijackers were on an Egyptian plane that was intercepted by U.S. warplanes and forced to land in Sicily. The four hijackers, now jailed in Spoleto, are charged with seizing the ship and slaying Leon Klinghoffer, 69, of New York City.

Italian public opinion polls showed general approval of the government's handling of the affair.

Giovanni Spadolini, the defense minister who resigned along with two other Republican ministers to provoke the government's fall, said Sunday his party would rejoin the coalition only if its members accepted three conditions:

- Redefinition of foreign policy toward Europe, America and the Middle East.
- Creation of a mechanism to ensure greater governmental consultation during crises.
- Formation of a common strategy against international terrorism.

At a news conference in Milan, Spadolini said he wanted "equidistance" in Italy's relations with the Middle East.

"I refuse any pro-Israel or pro-Arab label," he said.

Spadolini said his principal disagreement with Craxi was over the handling of the affair, not over the fact that Abbas was allowed to leave Italy.

He objected to being left out of the decision and said the Palestine Liberation Organization official should have been questioned by Italian judicial authorities before being allowed to fly to Yugoslavia

Oct. 12.

Spadolini said he agreed with Craxi's actions during the crisis until the Abbas affair, and was critical of what he called "cowboy attitudes by the White House." He did not elaborate.

Washington had asked Italian authorities to detain Abbas, but Craxi said Italian magistrates found insufficient cause and that Abbas was carrying an Iraqi passport giving him diplomatic status.

Rome's decision to release Abbas sparked angry reaction from the United States, and countercharges from Italians that Washington was treating its NATO ally like a "banana republic."

On Saturday, U.S. Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead met with Craxi to smooth over relations, and handed him a letter from President Reagan praising Italy's "fundamental commitment" to fighting terrorism.

In his letter that began, "Dear Bettino," Reagan told Craxi: "I profoundly value the advice you have provided me in the past," and said he was "anxious" to see him in New York next Thursday for a meeting of Western leaders called to discuss Reagan's Nov. 19-20 summit with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

EGYPTIAN PRESIDENT Hosni Mubarak, left, met for almost two hours Monday with U.S. troubleshooter John C. Whitehead to iron out differences between the two countries caused by the U.S. interception of an Egyptian airliner carrying four ship hijackers. Whitehead, deputy U.S. secretary of state, said the meeting was "a good first step" toward resuming "vital and close and important" relations between Egypt and the United States.

Emissary meets Mubarak in a bid to ease tensions

CAIRO, Egypt — A U.S. envoy today delivered a letter from President Reagan to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, and said the message expressed Reagan's desire to surmount strains caused by the Achille Lauro crisis.

Mubarak has accused the United States of delivering a "stab in the back" to Egypt by intercepting an Egyptian jetliner carrying the four hijackers of the Italian cruise ship, an act he also referred to as "piracy."

U.S. Deputy Secretary of State John C. Whitehead met for almost two hours today with Mubarak, and said he handed the Egyptian head of state a letter from Reagan that "expressed his continued commitment to close U.S.-Egyptian relations and his hope that we can now put our recent differences behind us."

In his prepared statement, the American envoy described the two countries' relations as "close and vital and important," and said, "Today's meeting was a good first step toward furthering this relationship."

There was no immediate comment from Egyptian officials.

In his statement, Whitehead said Mubarak reviewed steps Egypt had taken in the Achille Lauro affair, "and we now have a better understanding of each other's point of view."

The U.S. envoy thanked Egypt for its efforts in negotiating an end to the two-day hijacking without "more tragic results." One American passenger aboard the liner, 69-year-old Leon Klinghoffer of New York City, was killed during the ordeal.

Whitehead said the United States regretted the interception of the Egyptian jet had harmed U.S.-Egyptian relations, and said, "Our only object was to bring to justice criminals who had hijacked the ship, terrorized its passengers and murdered an American, a cripple in a wheelchair."

Whitehead, dispatched to Egypt and Italy in one what one U.S. official called a fence-mending mission, met Saturday in Rome with Bettino Craxi, who resigned as Italy's premier after his governing coalition broke up in disagreement over decisions made in the Achille Lauro crisis.

Whitehead then flew to Cairo, and met Sunday with Egypt's foreign minister, Esmat Abdel-Meguid.

Mubarak, in an interview broadcast Sunday on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes," said he felt he was doing the United States and Italy a favor by asking Tunisia to allow the entry of the hijackers.

Mubarak charged that Tunisia checked with the United States before deciding what to do. "The Americans told them to give permission," Mubarak said in the interview taped Saturday. "At that time, you decided to take the decision for the interception."

"To make people feel at ease again will take a very long time," the Egyptian president was quoted as saying.

Aid forced Ortega's action

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — When the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua suspended personal freedoms under a renewed state of emergency last week, it left unanswered two questions: Why, and why now?

President Daniel Ortega decreed Oct. 15 that it was necessary to suspend civil rights to prevent "political destabilization by the government of the United States."

On Sunday, Ortega told reporters in New York where he is attending the United Nations General Assembly 40th anniversary celebrations, that the emergency declaration was aimed at anti-Sandinista guerrillas, known as Contras, and against those "who wage a campaign against obligatory military service."

However, the accusations are not new and there is little to indicate what prompted Ortega to suspend again the rights to freedom from arbitrary arrest, free speech, assembly, travel, privacy of the home, and the right to strike.

Some diplomats and observers, who spoke on condition they not be identified, pointed to renewed U.S. aid to the Contras, who have begun receiving $27 million in "humanitarian aid" — clothing, medicine, food and other non-lethal supplies — approved by U.S. Congress last summer.

Others cited internal problems — the worsening economy, signs of growing popular and labor unrest and the popularity of the Catholic Church — as possible reasons for the emergency declaration.

"But then you have to say to yourself, these things aren't particularly new," said one diplomat. "So what was the catalyst? Was it one new thing, or was it the sum of all these things?"

Only days before the emergency declaration, the Sandinista government was crowing that it had the Contras on the run — a claim the Contras tacitly admitted.

In early August, the Contras briefly overran and occupied La Trinidad, a town of 15,000 people in northwestern Nicaragua. But they were surprised by the swiftness of the Sandinista counterattack, which employed for the first time a fleet of Soviet MI-24 helicopters.

Meese-stepping on Miranda rule

Both critics and supporters of U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III are stunned by his recent comments to the editors of U.S. News & World Report.

Mr. Meese was asked about his reservations on the Miranda warning, a U.S. Supreme Court ruling that gives arrested suspects the right to remain silent and warns that anything they say "can and will be used against them in a court of law." The Miranda ruling is familiar to many Americans — reading someone his rights is the stuff of countless television police shows.

"Shouldn't people," asked the editors, "who may be innocent, have such protection?"

Mr. Meese replied, "Suspects who are innocent of a crime should. But the thing is, you don't have many suspects who are innocent of a crime. That's contradictory. If a person is innocent of a crime, then he is not a suspect."

Granted, an interview can yield a misspoken word or an out-of-context phrase. Yet, Mr. Meese's remarkable answer is complete and direct. It is also an affront to the American justice system. Because, in effect, Mr. Meese is saying that a suspect is guilty until proved innocent. One need not possess a legal background to conclude that this contradicts a basic tenet of American justice — that a person who is a suspect is presumed to be innocent until proved guilty.

There is no question that technical court decisions on Miranda have liberated numerous criminals and long frustrated law enforcement officials. That's what the Attorney General was trying to say according to a Justice Department spokesman — that "Miranda is used in a way as to release (criminals) ... on a technicality."

But that's not what the nation's top law enforcement officer said.

Deregulation: mind over matter

The "Reagan revolution" against expansive government has been mostly a matter of rhetoric. Federal spending has risen despite White House lobbying to reduce non-defense costs. Taxes have been cut only slightly. The decentralization effort known as the "new federalism" failed. What little has been achieved may not last.

Still, there has been a revolution in recent years: deregulation of several industries, notably airlines, trucking and telecommunications. Reagan had little to do with this drastic reduction in federal power, much of which occurred thanks to Jimmy Carter. But apparently deregulation is here to stay.

No one could have predicted the reversal. In each case, regulation was entrenched and, to the average American, uncontroversial. What's more, these industries were classic cases of how regulators, instead of serving the public interest, are "captured" by the firms they regulate.

The reason was simple. Airlines had a huge stake in how they were regulated, so they spent a lot of time and money trying to influence the Civil Aeronautics Board.

Hence, the CAB occupied itself with the health of airlines rather than the pocketbooks of their customers — holding up fares, indirectly subsidizing unprofitable service, stifling competition. The Interstate Commerce Commission filled a similar role for trucking firms, as did the Federal Communications Commission for Ma Bell.

In all three cases, the status quo, which had reigned unchallenged for decades, crumbled practically overnight. How did it happen? That is the question posed in a new Brookings Institution book, The Politics of Deregulation, by two political scientists, Martha Derthick and Paul Quirk. Their answers are heartening to anyone who thinks government policies should be more than the sum of the pressures exerted by the affected interests.

Surprisingly, the change wasn't brought about by competing interests. No important group had a major financial interest in deregulation. The biggest factor was the emergence of a consensus among experts that the regulation was fundamentally malignant. Deregulation, they concluded, would reduce costs to consumers and boost efficiency. Through economists and lawyers inside the government, the critique gained the attention of elected officials.

It wasn't enough that economists universally rejected existing policy. The same, after all, is true of the minimum wage and trade barriers, both of which endure. Fortunately, Derthick and Quirk note, deregulation served the ends of politicians of assorted stripes. For conservatives, it affirmed "the traditional values of competition, free enterprise and limited government." Liberals saw it as a way to uphold the interests of consumers against business.

Equally important was the effect academic opinion had on the agencies. Dissidents at the CAB, the ICC and the FCC used scholarly work to discredit the agency's policies. Buttressed by support from Presidents Carter and Ford, the dissidents pushed the agencies to experiment with deregulation. (In the case of telecommunications, they had the help of court rulings eroding AT&T's monopoly.)

Each step in that direction gave the process added momentum, while dividing and confusing the interest groups accustomed to the old regime. In each case, buoyed by favorable publicity, the once-captive agencies soon grew committed to deregulation. Faced with the accomplished facts, Congress largely went along.

Derthick and Quirk conclude that mass communications and the growing influence of expert analysis within the federal government have altered the regulatory environment: "This creates an unprecedented potential for linking the forces of expert analysis and mass sentiment as the basis for action — and political leaders who by luck or skill manage to achieve that union have a good chance of defeating narrow, particularistic interests." The greatest achievement of deregulation may be not to foster a freer and more productive economy, but to reaffirm the power of ideas.

Secrets are worth billions

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — How much does it cost the United States to buy or steal a secret from a foreign country? $10? $10,000? $1 million?

It's one of the best-kept secrets in Washington, for unlike most other entities of the federal bureaucracy, the hydra-headed intelligence community gets to keep its budget confidential. And no one in Congress seems to worry whether the spy agencies are cost-effective in what they do.

It may seem a hopeless quest, but let's see if we can't do a pioneer accounting of U.S. intelligence gathering, and get an idea of what it costs the taxpayers for the secrets the various agencies pry out of our adversaries.

How much do we pay for the spy satellites, the human agents, the analysts who weigh the information and the computers that collate it all? And what do we get in return? Except for the CIA and a couple of obscure military units, which devote some money and manpower to covert action, the dozen-plus federal intelligence bodies exist primarily to collect and analyze information. So their entire budgets should be counted on the cost side of the ledger.

Easier said than done, of course, but from sources familiar with the budget process and from other information we've gathered, we can make an educated guess.

The CIA's annual budget is close to $1 billion. The code-breaking National Security Agency's is much higher, about $10 billion a year. The little-known National Reconnaissance Office, whose very existence in the Pentagon is classified, spends at least $2 billion and possibly as much as $4 billion a year on spy satellites.

Then add at least another $2 billion for the Defense Intelligence Agency and the intelligence-gathering arms of the four individual military services and the departments of State, Treasury and Energy.

A significant expense, but impossible to calculate, is the man-hours spent by ambassadors and Foreign Service personnel, gathering information that is passed along to the intelligence services.

Adding it all up, a plausible estimate is that the government spends roughly $18 billion a year to collect foreign secrets.

Now how do we figure out the number of secrets this $18 billion buys? No one can say for sure, but as luck would have it, there is an obscure agency that provides the material necessary for a reasonable guess. The Information Security Oversight Office makes an annual count of all government agencies' classification decisions — how many documents they stamp confidential, secret and top secret. Its latest report puts the number of these "original classification decisions" at 881,943 last year.

The problem with this figure is that the great bulk of it refers to made-in-U.S.A. secrets the agencies want to protect, not secrets coming from overseas. Domestic secrets are usually classified confidential or secret, and these levels comprise 98 percent of the classification decisions, according to the oversight office's report. The remaining 2 percent — or 17,789 — were classified top secret.

Even making the unlikely assumption that all 881,943 decisions involved foreign secrets, it would factor out to $20,409.48 per secret, according to our calculator.

But if we rate intelligence-gathering agencies only by the hottest stuff they get — the top secrets — the cost works out to a little more than a million bucks for each one.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: As part of the national atonement for Nazi aggression, the West German government has made it a strict policy not to allow arms sales to countries in a state of war. It includes Saudi Arabia in this category, since the Saudis have been technically at war with Israel since 1948. Recently, the Saudis have made a major effort to talk West Germany out of its arms embargo so they can buy state-of-the-art German technology. If Bonn agreed, of course, it would evoke odious memories of Hitler's Holocaust. So far, the West Germans have resisted the Saudis' blandishments.

TASTE IN THE PENTAGON: Assistant Defense Secretary Richard Perle is nobody's fool. When he filled out the routine "trivia questionnaire" for newsworthy officials, he evidently wanted to discourage reporters from inviting him out for a burger and a beer. He listed his favorite food as "fresh beluga caviar," his favorite wine as "Romanee Conti" and his entree of choice as "grilled breast of duck." In the same sly vein, Perle listed his favorite game as "politics" and his favorite saying as, "We hold these truths to be self evident (and so on)."

GOP '86: semi-cautious, semi-tough

AUSTIN — Texas Republican leaders may have dark circles under their eyes these days from lying awake nights asking over and over: Should we or shouldn't we?

The question concerns the Republicans' approach to next year's election. They want to avoid repeating the disaster of 1982 without being so cautious about 1986 that new opportunities are lost.

Republicans have come a long way in Texas. A recent Texas Poll showed 30 percent of Texans identifying with the GOP, compared with 22 percent in December 1983.

Democrats, on the other hand, have been losing ground in terms of party identification in the state. The Texas Poll showed 33 percent of Texans identifying with them, compared with 38 percent in the 1983 survey.

These changes should make the Republican leadership cocky and confident, particularly when the successes of 1984 are considered.

Last year, President Ronald Reagan scored a tremendous victory in Texas. Even more important, GOP candidates rode Reagan's coattails to capture a record number of political offices, ranging from Congress and the Texas Legislature to many county courthouses.

It would seem that the GOP leadership would be encouraged to push to make Texas a true two-party state, with a large number of Republican candidates for offices at all levels of government.

But the memory of 1982 makes them cautious.

That year, Bill Clements was seeking his second term as governor, the first Republican in that job in more than a century. Early in his re-election campaign he was cautious about encouraging Republicans to seek other state offices.

But then he grew confident as three Democratic gubernatorial candidates cut up each other in their party's 1982 primary and candidates identified as liberal emerged as winners for several other top state offices.

Clements directed an operation that picked new GOP candidates for state treasurer and state agriculture commissioner after more liberal candidates emerged as victors over conservative incumbents in the Democratic primary.

Clements then ran as the head of a Republican ticket for top state offices. The only problem with that strategy was that it was a disaster. The Democratic candidates used their campaign organizations to turn out Democratic voters in the November election, and every top GOP candidate lost, including Clements.

Possibly, Clements would have lost even if he had been alone on the GOP ticket. But he would have had a better chance with a shorter ballot and smaller voter turnout.

The lesson of that defeat says the Republicans would be wise to narrow their aim in the 1986 election and concentrate on recapturing the Governor's Mansion.

That seems particularly obvious since incumbent Democrats such as Treasurer Ann Richards and Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower seem unbeatable according to recent polls. Even the controversial Attorney General Jim Mattox is doing well in the polls.

But that 1984 election continues to cloud the planning picture for the GOP. A record number of Texans turned out to vote not only for Reagan but for many other Republican candidates. Many voted a straight GOP ticket.

If those same voters can be convinced to return to the polls next year, the Republicans could have a good chance of capturing the top state jobs with a slate of top-quality, well-financed candidates.

If the Republicans are overly cautious and don't offer the voters a true alternative in the top races, they may look back on 1986 as a great lost opportunity.

They face a tough decision. My guess would be that they will take a semi-cautious approach: The concentration of money and effort will be on the governor's race. But token candidates will be run in the other slots, ready to move if any of the incumbents appears vulnerable but not enough of a threat to really stir up the competition.

Permian isn't prime TV fare

By KEELY COGHLAN
"Permian!"
"Lee!"
"Panthers!"
"Rebels!"

"Annoying!" That's the least of how I felt about the oft-repeated commercial promoting the first televising of the duel between a couple of high school football teams.

I shut the volume off on this repetitious commercial several times; it came in second only to this same station's pitiful, obnoxious "Hey, what's the deal?" promotional ad as the best soundalike to fingernails scratching a chalkboard.

But the absolute worst was when this self-same station, whose sports director made four major errors in one 10 p.m. broadcast, decided to pre-empt a Championship Series baseball game to show a bunch of high school kids playing football.

Now, I went to high school in Texas and to college in West Texas. High school football is big here. I understand this. At any other time, I would have said "only in West Texas" and not given it another thought.

The Permian-Lee bloopers, however, were not more important than the baseball playoffs, especially if you live in Big Spring, Monahans or the other poor towns stuck with the current NBC affiliate in Midland-Odessa.

Who would you rather watch? A) George Brett slamming a home run over the wall. B) Pitching by Joaquin Andujar, Dave Stieb or Bret Saberhagen. C) Everybody on the Cardinals' team, including Willie McGee, in the act of stealing second. D) The Permian Panthers fumble the football.

If you picked D because you hate the Permian Panthers because they always slaughtered your high school team, it doesn't count.

The sad thing was that cable companies couldn't pick up an Abilene, San Angelo or Lubbock station that carried the game.

Channel 13's action was of the same magnitude as not showing the Cowboys in the NFC Championship Title game because Midland and Lee were playing basketball.

"Hey, what's the deal?"

Jason D. Campbell models a dracula costume complete with makeup, cape and bow tie. He and his father own Stagecoach Gifts near Coahoma.

Costumes can be simple or elaborate

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

You could go as a cat or a devil or a ghost. Or wear a Richard Nixon mask and walk around giving folks the "peace" sign. And then there's always the old stand by — a clown.

There are many Halloween costumes on the market these days and all kinds of accessories to complete the look, according to Jason D. Campbell. He and his father W.R. "Rick" Campbell own Stagecoach Gifts at Moss Lake Road and I-20.

"Every year people go to at least two or three different parties" for Halloween, said Campbell. Costumes can be made, bought or rented, he said.

Although he currently does not rent costumes, Campbell said that if there is a demand in the future, he may purchase costumes to rent.

"If people are willing to take the time, you can get just elaborate as you want" with a Halloween costume, Campbell said. "You can make stuff look real, real good if you take time with the makeup."

To dress as a werewolf, "it doesn't cost very much, but it's one of the most difficult," Campbell said. A person could use brown and black makeup on the face to make shadows and outlines. Hair can be applied to the face and hands, and plastic vampire teeth complete the look.

Dressing as a hobo is one of the simplest costumes, Campbell said. A person could make their face up like a clown and wear old, baggy clothes and maybe a hat.

But "bunnies and cats and devils year in and year out seem to be the best stuff," he said.

Accessories include a variety of makeup in different colors and even in glitter, hair glitter, and fingernail polish that is of glitter or glows in the dark. There are cat tails, whiskers and ears; capes; vampire teeth; fake blood; clown noses; and more.

Campbell carries theatrical costumes including a granny or gramps, India lady, cowgirl, bride and prisoner.

Masks include dracula, devils, Ronald and Nancy Reagan, Frankenstein monster and an executioner.

Campbell grew up in Big Spring and graduated from Big Spring High School in 1973. He attended Howard College and graduated from Texas Tech in Lubbock with a degree in public administration.

He worked in retail for Coach House Gifts for six years, living in the Houston and Dallas areas and Louisiana.

Dr. Donohue

Amyloidosis a tissue problem

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: During a routine eye exam the doctor found amyloid on my lower eyelids. A biopsy was done. He had never heard of the disease and looked it up in the medical book. I talked to my gynecologist about it and he didn't seem to know too much, but he thought if you had it one place you usually had it someplace else. I was told that it can attack organs. I'd like to know more. — L.D.

Amyloidosis is something you learn about in medical school, but never expect to see. Then someone turns up in your office and there it is.

Amyloid is a gelatinous ooze of protein material that seeps into tissue. Viewed through a microscope, it resembles lava flowing down a volcano.

It's an important finding, for many illnesses cause it — bone infection, rheumatoid arthritis, and multiple myeloma, to mention just three. The list isn't important to you. What is important is that a search be undertaken to see if you have such an illness.

If a causative illness is found, then the rest is simple — treatment.

Sometimes, amyloidosis develops as an entity all by itself. Then you have to study every organ and tissue type known to harbor the amyloid deposition to see if they are healthy. They include the liver, nerves, heart, kidneys and gastro-intestinal tract. Amyloid can be deposited locally in one area and be of no serious consequence. I hope that is the case with yours.

I hate to drop the subject in your lap at this point, but there's little more I can say. Without the testing I mentioned no statements can be made about treatment and prognosis. You would be wise, however, to follow up on the finding.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I would like to know more about leukoplakia. My doctor says mostly smokers have it. I do not smoke. — F.J.

Leukoplakia (LUKE-oh-PLAY-kee-uh) is development of white patches in the mouth. Irritation from smoking is the No. 1 cause, but any trauma can cause it — chronic irritation from a jagged tooth, for example. Biopsy of the patch is done to rule out any precancerous changes, and the patch must be seen again from time to time for the same reason. The only treatment is removal of any known irritant and oral hygiene.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Finally I'm writing! My doctor has prescribed a drug called Tolectin for my arthritis. Could you tell me what this drug is and if there are any after effects? — G.A.

Tolectin is a non-steroid, anti-inflammatory drug. It quiets the inflammation in your joints without having the sometimes serious side effects of the steroids.

Can it have undesired side effects? Sure. It can cause stomach pain and nausea, make you bleed more easily and cause fluid retention. I could go on and scare you to death with all the possible side effects. I could do the same with aspirin, which I'm sure you have used throughout your life without so much as a thought.

Most people take this drug without having any trouble. You should take it as prescribed and report any peculiar symptoms if they appear.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Isn't duodenal ulcer more a man's disease than a woman's? — A.P.

In 1958 ulcers were twice as common in men as in women. Today they occur with about the same frequency in both sexes. The explanation is unclear, but I'm sure you can find those who will say it is one of the prices of equality. I'm not saying that, mind you.

Dear Abby

Children shouldn't be seen, heard

DEAR ABBY: A group of us women were discussing the letter from "Timid in Louisiana." "Timid" (a housewife) hired a contractor to install a swimming pool. The contractor brought his son and very young grandson along on the job, causing "Timid" problems. Almost every woman in the group had a similar story to tell.

One said she hired two men to build a patio. They showed up lugging a suitcase-sized radio, already tuned to a rock station, and without asking if it would disturb anyone, they turned the volume up full blast. It blared away all day until quitting time. She said she was too intimidated to complain.

Another woman said three roofers brought a radio to keep them entertained while they worked on her roof. Her phone rang all day long with calls from angry neighbors asking her to turn down her stereo; the sound had carried to the next street and down the block! She also said nothing, because good roofers were hard to get.

SYRACUSE HOUSEWIFE
DEAR HOUSEWIFE: Read on for the flip side of that story:
DEAR ABBY: I just finished reading the letter from "Timid" complaining to you about the self-employed contractor who brought a small child along on the job. I have the opposite problem. I am a self-employed contractor who has worked at houses where the lady of the house will put her kids down for a nap, run out the door and say, "I have to go to the store for a few minutes; please watch the kids." Then she's gone all day.

There are also women who send their children out to play while we try to work on her house. The kids take our tools, unplug our drills, pound nails in our boards and crawl up ladders. We have to watch them every minute.

We are hired to do a job, not to be baby sitters.

FED UP IN THE
TWIN CITIES

DEAR FED UP: Speaking of baby sitters, let's hear it from a pro:

DEAR ABBY: I am director of a child care center with 12 years experience in child care. My reply to the woman who complained about the workmen who brought a small boy along on their job would have been as follows:

Woman of the house: "Oh, I see you have brought your child with you. I'm sure my homeowner's insurance will not cover a lawsuit if he gets hurt on the premises, so I will baby-sit for you while you are working. By the way, I charge $10 per hour for baby-sitting, which I will be glad to deduct from your bill."

She then could have turned to the child and said, "Come on in and have a glass of juice, and we'll find something fun to do while your daddy works!"

I read your column daily. Keep up the good work!

NANCY GOLDSMITH, M.ED.,

Duncan presents program to woman's forum

Gene Duncan gave a program on gerontology to the Modern Woman's Forum at a meeting Oct. 11 at the home of Ruth Sweat.

Duncan described the process of growing old as beginning at birth and progressing at about 2 percent a year after the age of 35.

The heart rate may decrease while the fat rate may increase. Mental faculties are less alert, she said. One should accept changes and determine his limitations at work, play or exercise.

Nutrition plays an important part in aging, Duncan said. Plenty of fruit, vegetables and bulk should be supplied. To reduce fat, one should cut down on proteins and sweets. Fats should be reduced to 30 percent, protein 12½ percent, and carbohydrates 60 percent.

Several signs of aging are wrinkles, grey hair, loss of hearing, slow movements, less activity and slow thinking, she said.

Everyone should strive to stay healthy, have a good attitude, exercise and help slow the process of aging, said Duncan.

Correspondence was read from the Salvation Army and the Big Spring State Hospital. Members brought cookies to be taken to the State Hospital.

The next meeting will be Oct. 25 at the home of Norma Murdock. Lois Singleton will give a program on "100 Women of the Century."

Auxiliary to attend Veterans Day celebration

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of World War I Barrack #1474 met Oct. 12 at 10 a.m. at the Kentwood Older Adult Center.

Retired congressman George McMahon of Colorado City will speaking at the Veterans Day celebration at 11 a.m. Nov. 11 at the Veterans Administration Medical Center. The hospital will be observing its 35th anniversary. Members were asked to attend.

Cake and coffee was served to patients at the VAMC Sept. 23 by Bessie Suggs and Myrtle Keele.

The 19th District Convention will be at 10:30 a.m. Nov. 9 at the Kentwood Center.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, OCT. 22, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime finds you able to add charm and beauty to your surroundings and to do whatever will bring you advancement in interests connected with your desire for pleasure.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Get together with friends who have similar artistic and creative interests as you and enjoy them. Use good judgment.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Seek out those persons who can assist you in becoming more successful by using more modern methods.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) One of different background to your own has the best ideas for your advancement at this time, so listen closely.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Do whatever will bring pleasure to loved ones during the day, then tonight be with a good pal for fun.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Be charming with a partner and you can come to a far better understanding. Straighten out financial affairs with family.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Become more efficient at your work and it becomes more profitable, then you can later be with good friends.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Showing more affection for your mate and your friends is important today, and tonight. Get your finest talents working like a charm.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get something new for the home that will please your family before you go out for amusement with your friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Seek the data you need to operate on a more modern vein in your daily activities. Gain the approval of one in position.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Become better aware of modern trends so that you can become far more prosperous in the future.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be more dramatic and gain your finest goals, and tonight do what will please your mate the most.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You have ideas that are progressive, but they should be studied further before putting them in motion.

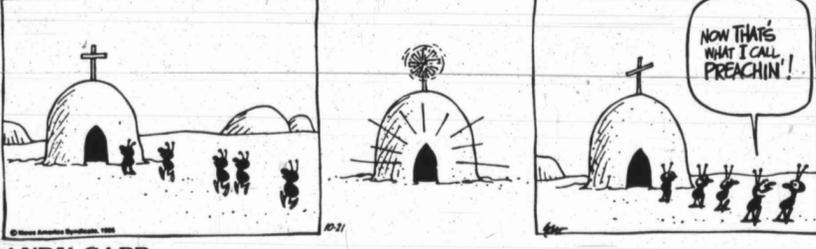

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she can easily fit into Jet Age circles, whether in career or social life and will understand all that is modern in its nature. Be sure to send to the right schools, and your progeny can be most successful in whatever field is chosen. Be careful of the diet early.

Last inning rally sinks Royals, 4-2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The bedsheet banner read: "Charlie, pitch another Rembrandt."

It lay crumpled in the debris at Royals Stadium — quite possibly along with Charlie Leibrandt's confidence and the Kansas City Royals' World Series hopes.

Leibrandt, the Kansas City savior in the American League playoffs, ran out of miracles Sunday night, three outs shy of a two-hit masterpiece that would have beaten the Cardinals 2-0 and sent the best-of-seven Series back to St. Louis deadlocked at one game apiece.

Instead, the Cardinals were 4-2 winners, all four runs coming in the top of the ninth inning — three on Terry Pendleton's two-out double down the left field line.

And the Cardinals crossed the plains of Missouri today with a two-game lead, the next three scheduled in their own Busch Memorial Stadium — and the knowledge that no team has lost a World Series after winning the first two games on the road.

The Royals had been down 2-0 to Toronto in the playoffs before winning that best-of-seven series, Leibrandt getting the victory in the clincher.

A leadoff single by Pendleton in the third inning and Jack Clark's two-out walk and Tito Landrum's single in the fourth had been the only blemishes. From then until the ninth, he had retired 13 consecutive batters.

And the Royals, bunching three of their nine hits in the bottom of the fourth, had given him two runs to work with — Willie Wilson's single followed by RBI doubles by George Brett and Frank White off Danny Cox.

In the top of the ninth, though, the fabric began to unravel, almost imperceptibly at first.

Willie McGee hit a foul ball toward the Kansas City dugout along the first-base line. Steve Balboni, the Royals' first baseman, sprinted to the edge of the dugout and stuck out his glove. Given a second chance, McGee doubled over third base, past the diving Brett.

Relief pitcher Dan Quisenberry began warming up for Kansas City. He would come in one pitch too late.

With the crowd chanting "Charlie, Charlie!" on every pitch, Ozzie Smith hit a bouncer to Brett, who looked McGee back to second and threw to first for the out. Tommy Herr flew to Pat Sheridan in right, McGee again holding second.

That brought up Clark, whose three-run homer in the ninth inning of Game 6 of the National League playoffs had beaten the Los Angeles Dodgers and vaulted the Cardinals into the World Series.

On a 3-0 pitch, Clark reached out and singled to left, McGee scored and the Royals' lead was 2-1.

Next up was Tito Landrum, who had kept the game from getting out of hand half an inning before. After Buddy Biancalana had drawn a one-out walk and had been bunted to second by Leibrandt, Landrum had taken Lonnie Smith's single to left and launched a rocket to the plate, catcher Darrell Porter tagging the sliding Biancalana for the third out.

Now Landrum was at the plate. Like Clark, Landrum reached out and got the end of the bat on the ball. His double went to right, and Clark went to third.

The tying and lead runs were now in scoring position — and Cesar Cedeño was up. The same Cedeño who had batted .434 for the Cardinals in the pennant drive after they picked him up from Cincinnati.

The Royals walked him intentionally.

Kansas City Royals runner BUDDY BIANCALANA and Royals on deck hitter WILLIE WILSON look to umpire BILLY WILLIAMS for the decision as St. Louis Cardinals catcher DARRELL PORTER rolls away in seventh inning action. The runner was out trying to score from second base.

The bases were loaded.

Pendleton batted from the right side and tore Leibrandt's 2-1 pitch down the left field line.

Clark scored.

Landrum scored.

Cedeño scored.

Quisenberry came out of the bullpen.

Quisenberry walked Porter intentionally and got Andy Van Slyke, batting for winning pitcher Ken Dayley, on a fly ball to center field.

In the anticlimactic bottom of the ninth, Jeff Lahti got Jim Sundberg on a fly ball to center field and, after Balboni beat out a 40-foot roller down the third-base line, pinch-hitter Jorge Orta grounded into a game-ending double play.

As they did so often in the pennant race and the playoffs, the Cards had come back.

"It's just like we knew it was in the cards," Landrum said. And the Royals were flushed with frustration.

Eagles K-O Pokes

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wes Hopkins said the Philadelphia Eagles' 16-14 victory over the Dallas Cowboys was an exercise in gaining respect.

"This was the game that opened people's eyes," said Hopkins, a free safety who stopped Dallas drives with two pass interceptions and a recovered fumble. "People will now look up at the Eagles as contenders."

Hopkins, a second round draft choice out of Southern Methodist in 1983, had six tackles Sunday and leads the Eagles with 70 this season.

Hopkins, who joined the Eagles a year after their last victory over Dallas, in 1982, said the triumph was "a dream come true."

"I've been waiting each year to beat Dallas. I was ready to play the game on Wednesday. I wanted to play my best game of the season against the Cowboys."

The Eagles' defense gave up 310 total yards, 147 rushing and 163 passing, and Hopkins said "we could have played better."

"But when it came down to the nitty gritty, in the 20-yard line area when we needed a big play, the defense was there to make the big play," he said.

Coach Marion Campbell declared, "if he (Hopkins) isn't All-Pro it doesn't mean anything."

Hopkins intercepted his first pass with Dallas on the move at the Eagle 9-yard line and his second frustrated the Cowboys at the Philadelphia 20. He pounced on a Tony Dorsett fumble at the Eagles' 23, shortly after Philadelphia assumed its 16-14 lead.

Meanwhile, quarterback Ron Jaworski was having one of the best days of his 13-year career as the Eagles boosted their record to 3-4 and snapped a four-game Dallas winning streak. Dallas is 5-2.

Jaworski was benched after the season opener and didn't regain his starting job until last week, a 30-7 victory over St. Louis.

He completed 22 of 35 passes for 380 yards, bettering his career high of 371 yards against Washington in 1982. A 36-yard fourth quarter pass was tipped into the hands of wide receiver Kenny Jackson for the Cowboys page 9

Houston Oilers fullback STAN EDWARDS (32) pushes over his right tackle slot for a four yard gain in the Oilers-Bengals contest yesterday.

Oilers bomb Bengals

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oiler quarterback Warren Moon could watch the Oilers' defensive pursuit of Cincinnati quarterback Boomer Esiason Sunday and feel sympathetic.

He's been there. "Boomer was having to throw on every down and that's tough. I know how he feels," said Moon, who was the quarterback with a clean jersey for a change.

While Esiason was being sacked four times and harassed into throwing three interceptions, Moon completed 20 of 31 passes for 266 yards and two touchdowns to help the Oilers end a five-game losing streak with a 44-27 victory.

Moon was sacked a National Football League, record-tying 12 times in one game this season, but in Sunday's game he escaped unscathed.

"I got hit a few times but there were no sacks," Moon said. "We were charged up and ready to play today."

The Oilers took a 17-3 lead on runs of six yards by Larry Moriaty and three yards by Mike Rozier and the first of three field goals by Tony Zendejas, a 34-yarder.

Cincinnati, 2-5, narrowed the gap to 17-13 at the half on field goals of 47 and 22 yards by Jim Breech and a 20-yard pass from Esiason to rookie Eddie Brown.

But the Oilers, 2-5, blew the game open in the second half on five unanswered scores.

Stan Edwards had a one-yard touchdown dive, Zendejas kicked field goals of 28 and 32 yards and Moon tossed touchdown passes of 34 yards to Drew Hill and 24 yards to Mike McCloskey.

Esiason came back in the fourth quarter with touchdown passes of 23 yards to James Brooks and nine yards to Stan Jennings.

"We were not ready to play this game," Cincinnati Coach Sam Wyche said. "This is a team that is good enough to beat you when they play good and they beat us. We thought we could beat them on a good day but we didn't have a good day."

Esiason said the Bengals took the Oilers lightly.

Rozier had his best day in his first season as an NFL player with 75 rushing yards on 17 carries and two receptions for 56 yards.

Raiders nip Browns; Giants scalp Redskins

By The Associated Press

Raiders 21, Browns 20
The Raiders, who won for the fourth straight week, led most of the game before falling behind 20-14 on a 7-yard touchdown pass from Browns rookie quarterback Bernie Kosar to Kevin Mack with 7:07 to play.

Four minutes later, Los Angeles took a punt at its own 40 and drove for the winning TD as Wilson completed passes of 12 and 9 yards to Jessie Hester, a 9-yarder to Christensen and a 17-yarder to Dokie Williams. A holding penalty on Cleveland cornerback Hanford Dixon kept the Los Angeles drive alive at the Cleveland 8.

The victory left the Raiders, 5-2, in a first-place tie with Denver in the AFC West, while Cleveland, 4-3, holds a one-game lead over Pittsburgh in the AFC Central. The Raiders hold a 9-1 series edge over Cleveland.

NFL Roundup

Lions 23, 49ers 21

Fullback James Jones rushed for a career-high 116 yards and a touchdown and Eddie Murray kicked three field goals as Detroit sent Super Bowl champion San Francisco to a 3-4 record and its second straight setback.

Jones, who carried the ball 30 times as the Lions gained 162 yards, scored from two yards out early in the second quarter. Detroit had gained just 84 yards rushing in its last two games, which it lost by a combined 54 points.

Murray kicked field goals of 24, 41 and 45 yards as Detroit built a 23-14 lead. Murray's 11 points in the game gave him a career total of 530 to pass Doak Walker for second place on the club list. Errol Mann leads with 636.

San Francisco pulled to within 23-21 early in the fourth quarter when Roger Craig scampered 11 yards to cap a 10-play, 95-yard drive.

Steelers 23, Cardinals 10
Mark Malone fired a 45-yard touchdown pass to Louis Lipps and Frank Pollard scored on a 14-yard run in a three-minute span of the first quarter as the Pittsburgh ran its record to 20-4 against the NFC since moving to Three Rivers Stadium in 1971.

Gary Anderson kicked three field goals as the Steelers, 3-4, ended a three-game losing streak by turning three Cardinal turnovers into scores.

Rams 16, Chiefs 0
Los Angeles improved its record to 7-0 as Mike Lansford kicked three field goals and Eric Dickerson scored from the 1. In seven games this season the Rams have allowed an average of 13 points per game. The Rams' last shutout was a 24-0 victory over Seattle in the 10th game of the 1979 season.

Every member of the Rams' starting secondary had either an interception or a fumble recovery. The Chiefs, 3-4, suffered their third straight loss.

Giants 17, Redskins 3
Phil Simms threw a 29-yard touchdown pass to rookie tight end

Quinn's Quarter

Steers head coach Quinn Eudy has the comments on Big Spring's 46-27 loss to Midland Lee last Friday.

"First of all let me say I'm proud of the way the team pulled together, they didn't quit and the effort was there. We had another good game offensively, we made something like 430 yards total offense."

"At halftime I felt like if we would run our offense we could get it in. We were in pretty good shape because our defense was playing well. When we scored right before halftime, it was a real pump up. We were very excited."

"The turning point in the game came in the third quarter. We had two fumbles and they got easy touchdowns. Plus there was two scoring chances that we didn't take advantage of. The turnovers have been in all phases of our game. It's a matter of concentration."

"It seems like we always have problems in the third quarter. It happened against Cooper and it happened last Friday."

"Odessa High (next opponent) is a good offensive team. They have some great backs. This could be another high-scoring game. One thing is for sure, we must tackle well on defense."

Aldine keeps rolling in Class 5-A

By The Associated Press
Earl Williams contributed an 89-yard scoring run in the first quarter and rushed for 139 yards on nine carries as Aldine blasted Houston Eisenhower 24-3 in schoolboy football play.

Aldine, ranked No. 2 in The Associated Press Schoolboy Football Poll, remained unbeaten in District 21-5A after Saturday's victory.

In Friday's action, top-ranked Houston Yates crushed Houston Sterling for its 44th consecutive football victory in district play.

Lions quarterback Charles Price passed for 142 yards and two touchdowns in a 48-6 victory over Sterling. Zeno Alexander caught five of the passes for 101 yards and a touchdown.

Defensive ends Larry Gill and James Goode and tackle Maurice Hobson led the Yates defense, sacking Raiders quarterback Anthony Hemmit nine times for 86 yards in losses.

The Lions, 7-0 and 3-0 in District 20-5A play, forced Sterling to punt from deep in its own end of the field twice in the first quarter. Yates took over at the 2 and scored both times.

A long-awaited Class 3A shootout gave second-ranked Navasota a 28-12 winner over No. 1 Hempstead. Three other top-ranked teams in each classification kept the winning edge. Tomball of Class 4A blitzed A&M Consolidated 45-0 in a game played at Texas A&M's Kyle Field. Electra of Class 2A rolled by Olney 48-6, and defending Class 1A state champion Munday knocked off Throckmorton 41-0 for its 22nd straight triumph.

Odessa Permian, No. 3 in 5A, pulverized Abilene Cooper 52-0. Greg Anderson played part of the game at quarterback, where he completed one of four passes for 25 yards. He also caught four passes for 48 yards, including touchdown catches of 22 and 13 yards.

The all-state wide receiver returned the first of Cooper's 11 punts for 61 yards and a touchdown. Permian's Woody Bryant carried six times for 120 yards, including touchdown receptions of 5 and 83 yards, and added a 35-yard field goal and six extra points.

Third-ranked Goldthwaite ran its 1A record to 7-0 with a 54-8 victory over Rochelle. Goldthwaite hadn't been scored on since the first half of its first game of 1985, but a 90-yard kickoff return by Rochelle in the second half ended the string of shutouts.

Hallettsville's Jerome McAfee rushed for 332 yards and three touchdowns in a 28-26 victory in District 26-3A over Edna.

Mark Bavaro and George Adams, another rookie, scored on a 2-yard run as New York snapped a two-game losing streak.

The game was billed as a showcase for the two statistical leaders among NFL defenses. The Giants entered the game No. 1 in defense, yielding 256.2 yards per game, while Washington was No. 2 at 270 yards per game.

The Giants defense intercepted Joe Theismann three times and sacked him seven times for 65 yards in losses.

Giants linebacker Lawrence Taylor, slumping of late was back in form. "It just happened that I decided to go back and be my old self," said Taylor. "I woke up a little bit this week. My wife and best friend told me I was not playing like I used to play and that got to me."

Jess Atkinson added a 47-yard field goal for New York and Mark Moseley booted a 47-yard field goal with 4:30 remaining.

Bills 21, Colts 9

Greg Bell rushed for two first-half touchdowns as Buffalo snapped an eight-game losing streak. The last victory for the Bills, who had lost 25 of their last 30 games going into Sunday, came Dec. 2, 1984 against the Colts.

The game also marked the return of Joe Cribbs, the former Bills star who re-signed with Buffalo Oct. 11 after two seasons in the United States Football League. Cribbs rushed for 41 yards and delivered the key blocks on both of Bell's touchdowns.

Falcons 31, Saints 24

Rookie Mike Gann returned a fumble 42 yards for one touchdown and Cliff Austin ran back a kickoff 94 yards for another as Atlanta snapped a six-game losing streak.

The Saints, 3-4, after their second straight defeat, also had two crucial interceptions - one leading to an Atlanta touchdown and the other stopping a scoring threat after reaching the Falcons 1. It was only Atlanta's second victory in its last 17 and left the Falcons 1-6 for the year. Quarterback Dave Archer won in his second NFL start.

Mick Luckhurst drilled a 31-yard field goal with 6:08 left in the game, his 16th in a row, including 13 this season.

Vikings 21, Chargers 17

Tommy Kramer's first completion to a wide receiver in the game, a 26-yarder to Leo Lewis with 19 seconds to play, gave Minnesota the victory.

Kramer completed 31 of 46 passes for 311 yards. An interception by Linden King with about 11 minutes to play had set up San Diego's go-ahead touchdown, a 1-yard dive by Tim Spencer with 6:13 remaining.

San Diego's last scoring drive was directed by Dan Fouts, who replaced an ineffective Mark Herrmann in the fourth quarter. Fouts missed most of the last two games with a knee injury.

The victory gave the Vikings a 4-3 record, while San Diego fell to 3-4.

Broncos 13, Seahawks 10, OT

Rookie defensive back Daniel Hunter returned an interception 20 yards to set up Rich Karlis' 24-yard field goal 9:19 into overtime and lift the Broncos.

The Broncos defense sacked Seattle quarterback Dave Krieg three times in the overtime period, including the two plays immediately preceding Hunter's interception. Krieg, sprinting out to his left, overthrew Steve Largent along the sideline. Hunter picked off the errant aerial at the 35, returning it to the 15.

Karlis, who earlier in the game missed three field-goal attempts,

Big Spring (Texas) Herald, Monday, October 21, 1985

Hilton stops Antuofermo

MONTREAL (AP) - In his many years in the ring, veteran referee Guy Jutras says he has never seen anything like the cut Matthew Hilton opened up on Vito Antuofermo.

The punch that split Antuofermo's lip and knocked out a tooth came near the end of the fourth round of their scheduled 10-round junior middleweight fight Sunday and prevented the New York-based boxer from continuing.

"That's the worst cut I have ever seen," said Jutras.

After the bell sounded to end the fourth round, Jutras picked up Antuofermo's tooth and his mouthpiece and returned them to the boxer.

When the bell for the start of the fifth round sounded, Antuofermo, 50-7-2, sat quietly on his stool and refused to answer the call, giving Hilton a technical knockout in what probably was his most important professional fight to date.

With Carl King, son of boxing promoter Don King, looking on, Hilton - fighting before a hometown crowd for the first time in almost a year - put on an impressive display of boxing and was never challenged by his American opponent.

King had promised the winner a title fight and said Hilton has definitely earned one, predicting it will be held in Montreal early next year.

Cowboys

winning touchdown.

Jaworski, 34, said, "more people are playing well around me. I don't want to put the knock on anybody but I think I see a renewed enthusiasm on the part of the offense. People in there know I'm going to be reading defenses quicker and reacting quicker."

He was referring to Campbell's experiment of replacing him with rookie Randall Cunningham for 3 1/2 games.

Jaworski said the defense had played "super" all year, special teams for the most part had been outstanding and the offense had picked up its game in the last few weeks.

"We're for real," he said. "This win has to be tremendously uplifting, especially since we've battled back from 1-4."

The Cowboys took a 7-0 first period lead on a 12-play, 95-yard drive, capped by quarterback Gary Hogeboom's 7-yard touchdown pass to Dorsett.

The Eagles made it 7-3 in the second quarter following Ray Ellis' fumble recovery. They moved to the Dallas 5, and when two sacks pushed them back, Paul McFadden hit a 39-yard field goal, his first of three. Philadelphia made it 7-6 in the third period on an 83-yard drive that also was blunted by a sack, and wound up with a 33-yarder by McFadden.

Dallas boosted its lead to 14-6 on a seven-play, 66-yard drive that ended with Dorsett running 10 yards for a touchdown.

The Eagles made it 14-9 just 1:41 into the fourth period on McFadden's 36-yard field goal.

The Jaworski-Jackson touchdown came with 10:07 remaining, set up by Herman Hunter's receptions of 38 and 11 yards.

Dallas coach Tom Landry said the Eagles took advantage of every break the Cowboys gave them.
