Pear trees

Q. Is it unusual for a pear tree to bloom at this time of year?

A. With all the rain we've been getting, if there's fertilizer around the tree, it might bloom a little, said Francis Armstrong of Johansen's nursery. Don't fertilize the tree now, he said, because a freeze could kill the fruit.

City solicits new prison

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Big Spring has taken a "very positive step" in its efforts to locate a medium-security federal prison here, said a Bureau of Prisons official Wednesday night.

"It's very positive to come into a community with an attitude this positive and a concerned group of citizens who have done their homework," said Jim Jones, site selection director for the federal prison system.

Jones was invited by city officials to examine Big Spring as a possible location for a medium-security prison.

However, he said another prison in this area is not in any current plans for the Bureau of Prisons.

Jones examined three possible sites for a prison during his stay here Wednesday and Thursday. They are a 145-acre tract at the old Webb Air Force Base golf course, a tract adjoining the golf course and a site at the Howard County Industrial Park.

He met Wednesday night with about 100 elected officials and community leaders for a dinner at the Country Club to discuss the selection process and the chances of a prison being located here. Bill Garretson, the assistant south central region director, joined Jones on his visit.

Present construction plans, which stretch into the 1990s, do not include the location of any prisons in the bureau's south central region, in which Texas is located, Jones said.

Instead, the bureau is planning to build prisons in its northeast and southeast regions, where overcrowding at its correctional institutions are greatest, he said.

The system is 41 percent overcrowded, however, and current trends show that the number of federal inmates will continue to increase, Jones said. "Big Spring and the South Central Region are not in that plan. But we also revise plans," he said.

Community attitudes about the location of a prison are important, Jones said. "While it does happen from time to time, we're not exactly overrun with offers," he said.

Because the minimum-security camp already exists here, many services would be combined, making the site more attractive because of its cost-efficiency, Jones said. Ten other communities have two federal prisons, he said.

For example, Howard College already provides educational programs for the inmates at the prison camp. These could be modified and expanded for a medium-security prison, Howard College President Bob Riley said.

The attitude and the relationship with the community and the prison camp might compensate for the distance from a metropolitan area. The bureau prefers to locate prisons near those areas to keep transportation costs down, Jones said.

Big Spring leaders — including the city council, the county commissioners, the Chamber of Commerce and the Industrial Foundation — are trying to interest the federal government in locating a new prison here.

Because the bureau is not actively soliciting a site in the area, there is no prescribed procedure to lobby for a prison, Jones said.

Once it is determined a site is needed in the south central region, Jones would look at several possible sites. An environmental impact statement — a six-month study of the effects of the prison on the community — would be conducted.

Congress would then have to budget and appropriate funds for the prison site, Jones said.

Dale King, an aide for Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, said Stenholm did not anticipate any problems in winning approval for a prison in Big Spring from Congress. King and Bill Longley,

Jurors convict ex-guard

Staff and wire reports

ABILENE — Jurors deliberated about three hours before convicting former Big Spring federal prison guard Eddie Joe Roybal of accepting a gratuity from convicted drug kingpin Rex Cauble.

Roybal, 33, also was found guilty Wednesday of one count of accepting a gratuity from other inmates, one count of smuggling a controlled substance into the prison camp and one count of smuggling contraband into the facility.

"It's always a terrible situation when you have a dirty officer. It's a black mark on everyone," said John Gluch, Big Spring Federal Prison Camp Superintendent, after the verdict Wednesday. "When you do find them, you want to deal with them quickly and make sure you bring it to everyone's attention."

Gluch testified for the prosecution in the trial.

"As long as I'm here, we'll do everything to prosecute a dirty officer. I've worked too hard out there to have someone mess it up," Gluch said.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward will sentence Roybal at a later date. Meanwhile, Roybal, who now lives in Weatherford, remains free on a personal recognizance bond.

On Tuesday, Roybal denied doing any favors for Cauble in exchange for a $11,550 loan from Cauble's sister, Thelda Cauble Harris of Denton. The defendant also denied doing any special favors for inmate Gary Marcus Gunter in return for money.

Bonfire highlights homecoming tonight

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Big Spring High's homecoming will kick off at 8 tonight with a community pep rally and bonfire at Howard College on the vacant lot south of the fieldhouse and tennis courts.

Those attending are asked to park in the stadium parking lot. Yesterday, winners were selected in the Big Spring Boosters community decorating contest.

First place in the home decorating contest went to Debbie and Guy Burrow of 211 Circle, said contest judge Marae Brooks. The Burrows had Broncho uniforms strewn about their yard with a sign saying, "We looked and looked, but this was all that was left of the Odessa Bronchos after the game."

Second place was awarded to Don and Roxie Belew of 1418 Tuscon.

In the business contest, first place was awarded to Parks Agency Inc. at 900 Main. They "showed a lot of spirit," Brooks said, by displaying the Steers' numbers.

Second place went to Blum's Jewelry at 222 Main, and honorable mention was given to Spring City Uniforms at Highland Mall.

Homecoming activities will continue Friday at 4:30 p.m. with the homecoming parade. With the theme "Great Events in History," the parade will begin at 10th and Main Streets, and will travel to Second Street, then to Scurry and back to 10th.

Also Friday, the band will serve a spaghetti supper from 5-8 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. Cost is $4, and children under 6 may eat free.

The homecoming football game against the Odessa High Bronchos will begin at 8 p.m. Friday at Memorial Stadium. Parents of varsity football players will be presented at 7:30 p.m. at the stadium, and parade winners will be announced during pre-game activities.

The homecoming queen will be crowned at halftime. The Big Spring Sports Boosters will give away balloons during the game.

The Hall of Fame induction will be Saturday at 2 p.m. in the high school cafeteria. The induction will focus on the vocational department, which is celebrating its 50th anniversary. State and national vocational contest winners will be inducted into the Hall of Fame, and the 1935-37 pep squad, also celebrating its 50th anniversary, will be recognized at the ceremony.

The student homecoming dance will be at 8 p.m. Saturday in the high school cafeteria, featuring ATB Musicvision of Abilene.

another Stenholm aide from Stamford, were in town for Jones' visit.

The proposed prison would house non-violent offenders, who on the average would be 30 years old and serving sentences for auto theft, drug-related crimes and robbery, Jones said.

"Most crimes of violence are state offenses. Murder is the one everyone thinks of. Murder is only a federal offense if it's committed on a federal reservation or the high seas," Jones said.

The unit would house about 500 inmates in a campus-like environment on a 50- or 60-acre inner complex. The rest of the 200- or 300-acre tract would remain undeveloped as a buffer zone, Jones said.

Newer federal prisons are constructed so that the interior space is freer and less confined than old-style prisons, while the perimeter would be monitored heavily by patrolling guards in vehicles. A double fence and razor-sharp ribbon wire also would form a barrier to the prison, he said.

Big Spring Airpark manager Hal Boyd, center, points out available sites for a medium-security federal prison at a map before a dinner with federal Bureau of Prisons officials and civic leaders. Watching Boyd are, counterclockwise: Troy Fraser, Industrial Foundation board member; Tom Decell, city public works director; Hooper Sanders, chairman of the Industrial Foundation board; and Leroy Tillery, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce manager.

"We don't have tension, anxiety or violence in our system because of the way we design our prisons," over-crowding."

The prison would employ 250

Jones said, referring to state systems often plagued with violence. "We've never released anyone from our prisons because of staff members, of which about 55 to 60 percent would be hired locally. The others — about 100 people — would be transferred from other locations in the prison system, he said.

Dial defends right for fair trial

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

Criminal defendants are entitled to a speedy, fair trial, but not necessarily a perfect trial, says Preston Dial of San Antonio, who was in Big Spring Wednesday on his campaign tour for election to the state Criminal Court of Appeals.

Dial, who passed out bars of Dial brand deodorant soap with his picture on the label, is an associate judge on the Fourth Court of Appeals and is a Democratic candidate.

Dial said he encourages Texans to vote for Proposition 11 on the Nov. 5 ballot. The proposition would eliminate technical errors in indictments as prison escape clauses.

"A lot of time and expense goes into a trial, and to have it all come to naught" is undesirable, he said.

He said he objects to decisions reversing convictions for reasons having nothing to do with the fairness of the trial or the guilt of the defendant.

PRESTON DIAL ...supports amendment

"In the situation now if there's something wrong with the indictment, the defendant waits until the trial is over to object," causing a retrial, he said.

The proposition would give the trial court the power to change the indictment before or during the trial if necessary, Dial said.

"It's fairer to the defendant," he said. "It allows the opportunity to make the indictment more particular."

The current trend in the courts is "if you make a mistake not harmful to the defendant" the case need not be retried, he said. "It's a stricter, more liberal interpretation of an existing law."

Opponents of the proposition say it could promote sloppiness in preparing indictments, but Dial disagrees. "It's designed for the end product, to satisfy both the state and the defendant," he said. "This is a way to correct (sloppiness); it's not going to bring it about."

But Dial supports the exclusionary rule, which bars illegally gathered evidence from being used in a trial. "The police have learned to respect the rights of the defendant by gathering evidence in a legal way," he said.

Dial has been a judge for almost 15 years. He was elected to the Fourth Court of Appeals in 1982, after serving 11 1/2 years as a 175th District Court judge in San Antonio. Before then, he served 11 years as a state and federal prosecutor, including four years as the first assistant district attorney for Bexar County.

Dial also has served as a juvenile judge, as a briefing attorney for the Supreme Court of Texas and on the faculty at St. Mary's Law School in San Antonio and the National Judicial College.

He serves on the State Bar committee on court costs, efficiency and delay.

He attended San Antonio College and received a bachelor of arts and law degree from the University of Texas at Austin. He served in the Air Force during the Korean War, received a Legion of Merit award and retired as a colonel in the U.S. Air Force Reserve.

Jurors

Continued from page 1-A Gunter was cooperating with prison officials and FBI agents when he arranged $1,000 in marked bills to be mailed to Roybal.

Roybal said he thought the money was part of $10,000 that some friends of Gunter's in Dallas were going to loan him. He said he expected to repay the loan to Cauble's sister, the loan from Gunter's friends, and several thousand dollars in other debts.

Roybal said that he didn't do anything special for Cauble when he arranged for a hospital bed in Cauble's cell.

"Did you at any time do anything for Mr. Cauble that you had not done for other inmates?" Tallant asked him.

"No, I didn't," Roybal responded.

But the jury heard a tape-recording in which Roybal is heard boasting about persuading another corrections officer to bring Cauble a hospital bed.

Testimony that Roybal procured the bed for Cauble "made a difference to the jury," Superintendent Gluch said. "He got someone a bed. It shows he had the predisposition for it (to grant favors)."

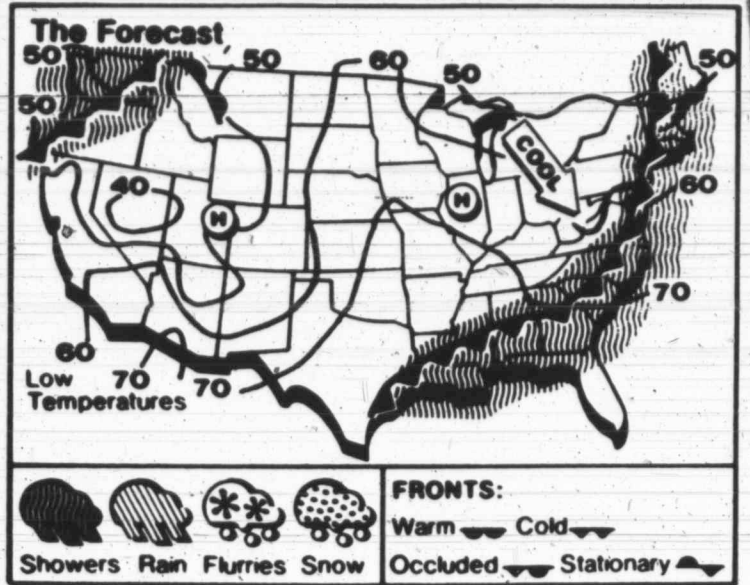

Gunter, 31, who admitted to a lengthy criminal record, said he was present during conversations between Cauble and Roybal that led to the $11,550 loan from Mrs. Harris.

Witnesses testified that Roybal made installment payments, paid some debts and bought a $2,100 boat with the money from Mrs. Harris.

Mrs. Harris testified Tuesday morning that she made the May 28 loan at her brother's request and that she expected to be repaid.

She said Cauble told her the loan was to cover Roybal's living expenses during what Roybal had hoped would be 10 months of training to become a deputy U.S. marshal.

Forecast

WEST TEXAS: Clear tonight. Sunny Friday, except for some low cloudiness east of the mountains. Highs Friday mid 70s Panhandle to near 90 along the Big Bend. Lows tonight mostly upper 40s and 50s.

State

While patches of dense morning fog obscured parts of the coastal, East and Central Texas, a cold front bearing dry air brought clear skies and cooler temperatures to West Texas Thursday. The National Weather Service blamed the fog on low-level moisture and said it was so thick in some areas along the middle coast that travelers advisories were issued.

While the weak Pacific front that bisected the state Thursday morning dropped temperatures into the upper 40s across extreme northwest and West Texas, the rest of the state had evening morning temperatures in the 60s.

The weather service said that North Texas could expect increasingly cloudy weather through Friday with lows tonight ranging from 50 to 65 and highs Friday near 80.

Polygraph bill approved

WASHINGTON — A bill that would prohibit most companies from forcing employees or job applicants to take polygraph tests has been approved by the House Education and Labor Committee.

The measure, endorsed by the panel Wednesday, would not apply to defense industries or to drug companies investigating the theft or diversion of controlled drugs. Neither would it apply to any state, federal or local governments.

Arms sale put on hold

WASHINGTON — The Republican controlled Senate, with President Reagan's reluctant permission, is ready to shelve the controversial $1.9 billion arms sale to Jordan until March 1 unless Jordan and Israel open meaningful peace talks before then.

With at least 73 of 100 senators publicly committed against the sale in the absence of such talks, and with the Republican leadership telling Reagan defeat was inevitable, the president agreed Tuesday to the 120-day delay, Senate sources said.

Chemical has promise

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Department scientists say an experimental chemical shows promise of boosting the yields and the protein content of farm crops, theoretically paving the way for hungry nations to increase food production simply by spraying their fields.

The department's Agricultural Research Service said Wednesday in a report that the research was led by Dr. Henry Yokoyama, a chemist who works at the agency's fruit and vegetable chemistry laboratory in Pasadena, Calif.

Real peace

Reagan proposes regional initiatives

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — President Reagan, offering a "fresh start" in troubled U.S.-Soviet relations, today proposed the superpowers undertake a regional peace process in five war-torn countries.

"We must begin somewhere," Reagan declared in an address to the U.N. General Assembly, "so let us begin where there is great need and great hope."

In all five countries — Afghanistan, Cambodia, Ethiopia, Angola and Nicaragua — the president said, Marxism-Leninism is at "war with the people."

"Lives are being lost each day" because of Soviet expansion in those countries, Reagan charged. And, in each instance, he said, the conflict has spilled over into "war with their neighbors."

Reagan said the United States seeks "real peace" and, to pursue it, he intends to make the resolution of regional conflicts in Africa, Asia and Central America a "central issue" at his summit meeting Nov. 19-20 with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva, Switzerland.

The proposed regional peace talks would be initiated by the warring parties, the president said.

Once such talks would "take hold," he said, the United States and the Soviet Union would together seek lasting solutions, including a halt to foreign military intervention, curbs on the flow of arms from outside and free elections.

In Afghanistan, where the Soviets have more than 100,000 troops sustaining a pro-Moscow government, Reagan said the Soviet Union must be included in the negotiations from the start in order to achieve an end to the four-year-old civil war.

His speech, marking the 40th anniversary of the founding of the United Nations, recalled that the world organization was intended to be a "guiding star" to freedom. "Dreams of trust are worthy," the president said, "but in these 40 years, too many dreams have been shattered, too many promises have been broken, too many lives have been lost."

Turning to U.S.-Soviet relations, Reagan said that when he meets with Gorbachev he will try to lower the current level of mistrust.

The president said Americans do not accept that any government has the right to "command and order the lives of its people," and that this belief was "at the core of our deep and abiding differences with the Soviet Union, differences that put us into natural conflict...."

And yet, Reagan said, "we must begin somewhere, so let us begin where there is great need and great hope" by trying to help the people in the five countries he listed "choose their future more freely."

China confirms report

PEKING — China today confirmed that it is cooperating with Pakistan and other nations in the field of nuclear energy, but asserted that the program is for peaceful purposes only.

Reacting to charges by U.S. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and congressional specialists that China might be helping other countries, including Iran, to acquire nuclear weapons capability, a Foreign Ministry statement said:

"This is groundless. The Chinese government has repeatedly stated that China does not advocate or practice nuclear proliferation, nor does it help other countries develop nuclear weapons."

Coup insurance sought

BANGKOK, Thailand — Authorities said today that two insurance companies are seeking government approval to cover casualties from coups, revolutions, and other social upheavals.

Thailand has had 19 coups or attempted coups in the last 53 years, including a failed attempted Sept. 9 that left five people dead and 60 wounded.

Drought poses problem

LAUSANNE Switzerland — The newspaper Le Matin says it would take two solid months of rain to make up for a prolonged dry spell that has created a severe water shortage in western Switzerland.

The newspaper said Wednesday that the dry spell posed a potential threat to harvests, and had cut the output of hydroelectric power, forcing electricity imports from neighboring countries.

East bloc meet ends

SOFIA, Bulgaria — Leaders of the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact, meeting four weeks before the superpower summit, have called for a ban on the testing and development of "strike" space weapons, including anti-satellite arms.

In a statement issued Wednesday at the close of the two-day meeting of the Warsaw Pact, the East bloc's military alliance, the leaders also said they were ready to eliminate any weapon now in their possession if the West would do the same.

Pledges at the U.N.

UNITED NATIONS — Japan's prime minister apologized for the suffering his country caused by its role in World War II, and the leaders of India and Pakistan discussed ending the distrust between their countries that has led to three wars since 1947.

The Asian leaders, along with President Reagan and other heads of government and state, were in New York on Wednesday for ceremonies marking the 40th anniversary of the United Nations.

City is agreeable to possible prison

Does Big Spring want a federal prison? About 150 community leaders made it clear that we do. A similar forum for the general public would probably bear out the sentiments of the select crowd that filled a meeting room at the Country Club Wednesday night.

The question more properly should be phrased: Does the U.S. prison system want a new medium security facility in this part of the country?

At first glance, the answer would seem to be that the south-central region is down the priority list. Overcrowding in the northeast and southeast is much more severe than here, although the inmate population in this region is overcrowded also.

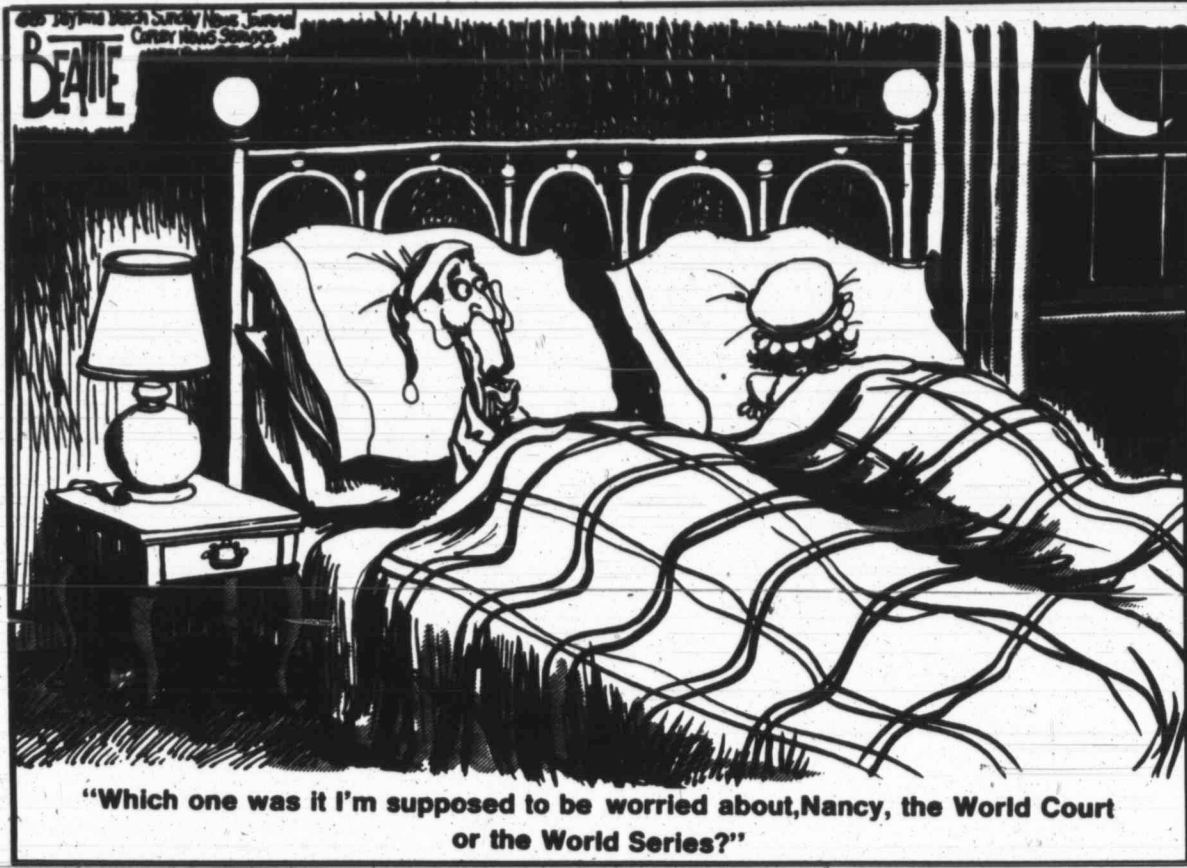

Jim Jones, site selection director for the prison system, said Wednesday that this region is not included in priority planning for a new prison. More pressing needs are elsewhere, he said.

He also said, however, that plans can be changed. And he made it clear that the solicitation by Big Spring could be an important factor in siting a prison here.

Key ingredients in this equation are a desire by the community that the prison locate there and willingness of community leaders to do "the homework," as Jones put it, to make it easy to do so. Both ingredients are present here.

Working for us also is the fact that residents' experience with the minimum security prison camp here has been textbook good. It would be hard to ask for a better community neighbor than the prison camp.

It's pretty clear, and will become clearer, that Big Spring wants the prison. It is our hope that the prison system will decide it wants and needs us.

Embassy security leaves too much to be desired

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — The frightening increase in terrorist actions against Americans overseas in recent years doesn't seem to have jarred the State Department out of its bureaucratic lethargy.

Four months ago, we reported the department's inexplicable indifference to the Beirut embassy's plea for a modest $130,000 to beef up protection for beleaguered U.S. personnel there. The bureaucrats' response was a stern lecture on budget restraint, a piteous complaint about the problems in Washington, and an admonition to go through the proper paperwork process when asking for security money.

Now we've learned that the Beirut embassy is not alone in its security problems. Foreign Service duty in Khartoum, the capital of Sudan, is every bit as nerve-racking — and apparently is evoking just as little sympathy from Washington.

Sudan, we might note, is close to the top of the list of lousy assignments for our diplomats abroad. The climate is grim in the best of times, and recent years have hardly been the best. Drought, famine, economic collapse, refugees from neighboring nations — all this would be bad enough. But Sudanese politics has been chaotic for nearly two decades, culminating in a coup last April. The adoption of a strict Islamic code two years ago made life even grimmer for Americans stationed in Khartoum.

Under the circumstances, you might think the State Department would take diligent care of the security of Americans based there. But an expert hired by a U.S. government contractor told our associate Donald Goldberg that the security arrangements in Khartoum are outrageous. We've confirmed the details of his story through State Department sources.

As in other embassies, the main job of protecting the compound is entrusted to U.S. Marines. There are nine on duty in Khartoum.

To make up for the lack of Marines, the State Department has hired Service and Supply International, a small firm with headquarters in Athens. For roughly $1.4 million, some 700 Sudanese guards were hired as "watchmen" to protect the embassy and American personnel's private residences. The expert discovered that the guards were untrained in security operations. But some of them had received other training — at a terrorist camp in Libya. At least one of these terrorism school graduates was on duty at the embassy itself.

State Department officials pointed out that the Sudanese guards carry no weapons — which was evidently supposed to be reassuring.

But the expert is still concerned about security in Khartoum. While he was there, he learned that several individuals known to be Libyan soldiers arrived at the Khartoum airport carrying Soviet-made AK-47 automatic rifles and ammunition. The weapons and ammo were confiscated by Sudanese officials, but the Libyans were allowed to enter.

WATCH ON WASTE: A workin' on the levee along the Mississippi, Army Engineers might get the idea they're toiling on the ole plantation. The Corps of Engineers just bought an elegant river-front home for its Lower Mississippi Valley Division commander. A corps spokesman would not describe the home as a mansion, but he acknowledged that "in some opinions, it might be." The $200,000 spread covers 4 acres on the Mississippi side of the great river (guaranteeing spectacular sunsets), and the first floor alone contains 3,300 square feet. The purchase required a special amendment waiving military housing rules.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., seems to think that his narrow victory in North Carolina's senatorial election last year gave him a national mandate to dictate who should represent other states in that august body. He has launched a nationwide fund-raising drive to rid the Senate of several "liberals" who have the temerity to disagree with him on occasion. Among his targets is Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif. As far as we're concerned, Helms is going too far with this one. Alan Cranston is an honorable man and a fine senator. In any case, it's for the people of California to decide — without interference from Jesse Helms.

Dress codes aren't needed

By SPENCER SANDOW
Women's Lib is passe and "feminist" has become almost an insult, but inequality problems remain. And perhaps one of the most common but also most subtle is the matter of women's office attire.

Aside from jeans, most women's clothes are impractical. Business dress codes, official or just implied, require women to wear these clothes because they supposedly look good. If a woman (or a man, for that matter) bucks the trend and wears something practical to work like jeans or tennis shoes, she may be reprimanded by her boss, passed over for promotion, or just plain looked down on.

But the dress codes are not conducive to getting more work done. For one thing, the shoes women are expected to wear are useless.

Most women's dress shoes are little more than leather (or more often, imitation leather) boxes. Just walking from your car to the office in high heels makes your feet ache, and low heeled shoes are little better.

Complicating the matter are the hosiery women are expected to wear with their shoes. The hose are cold in the winter and hot in the summer. They don't absorb perspiration, so your feet remain wet and uncomfortable if you sweat, as normal people do. And if your feet get wet in the rain, forget it!

Dresses also are often hot in the summer and cold in the winter, due to the design and the fabric used. Many of them are uncomfortable because they bind, as do slacks, except for the most casual.

Such attire is designed to either attract men or impress other women, objectives which should take a back seat in business. The custom may also be a subtle method of relegating women to second place in the business world. Everyone knows you can't do as good a job if your feet hurt, and people tend not to take you seriously if your clothes are designed to merely attract.

It's time to make a change, for men as well as women, and make practical attire the norm for office wear. If everyone wore jeans and tennis shoes to work they would be much more comfortable in addition to getting a lot more done.

Charisma war has two sure winners

The White House has been stewing over the successful public relations campaign of Mikhail Gorbachev.

U.S. Soviet specialists were called in last week to deal with what has become known in diplomatic circles as the "Commie Charm Factor."

"Gentlemen, we're faced with something far more dangerous than Soviet missiles. The Russians are making an all out effort to win over Europe through charisma."

"You exaggerate."

"Then why is Gorbachev getting a better press than Princess Di?"

"Everyone gets a better press than Princess Di."

"Nevertheless, Gorbachev has made a remarkable impression on the media. This proves what Mike Deaver has been saying for some time — it takes to be the leader of a superpower is a smile on your face, a shine on your shoes and a good tailor to make sure your pants have a crease in them."

"There's more to it than that. The reason Gorbachev has been so successful is that he is a new act, and everyone wants to read about him. And why shouldn't they? He's the only Kremlin boss in 20 years who won't fall over while he's giving a speech. But the thing that makes him dangerous, gentlemen, is that he's the first Soviet head of state who talks to the media, and they believe everything he tells them."

"It can't last. Everyone knows the more you make yourself available to the media the quicker they turn on you. I give him six months before the press starts kicking him around."

"We can't wait. Reagan and Gorbachev are going to meet in November and the big thing people will be watching is their charisma. And once they observe the two side-by-side the world will decide who is really the true Communicator. I don't think I have to tell you, the American President cannot afford to come in second."

"Ronnie had charisma before Mikhail was born."

"Yes, but Gorbachev has iron will behind his charisma."

"It doesn't matter. Mikhail is a very shifty guy who knows how to make a lot of points with people in Western Europe. He's playing the media like a balalaika."

"Gorbachev may have a certain Bolshie charm but he can't tell stories like the President."

"Don't be too sure. I understand Gorbachev has been collecting Polish stories for the past three months."

"What would be wrong if the President just grabbed a microphone and said, 'It's my mike and I paid for it.'"

"That works in New Hampshire but not in Geneva."

"What about Mrs. Gorbachev?"

"We don't have to worry. Nancy has ordered a whole new outfit for the summit. It's no contest."

"Mrs. Gorbachev is not our problem. Mikhail is the issue. We've never dealt with a Commie who looks like the chairman of an American oil company."

"What do we do?"

"Let Reagan be Reagan, and Gorbachev be Gorbachev. I'll put my money on the President's tailor any day of the week."

Smiles melted man's criticism

To the editor:

About two weeks ago, in two weeks, I failed to get my paper four times. I wanted to get to the head of the matter so I went to the Herald office full of "criticism."

I went straight to the circulation desk, and a young man came up and asked what he could do for me. He was neatly attired and smiling, I looked around the office and many ladies were at their desks, all smiling and seemed very pleasant. All the "cutting" remarks and critical thoughts simply had disappeared from my mind.

I explained the situation and he made notes. He (said he) would have the paper placed near my door.

I thought — if everyone would act like the other party was a "brother" how sweet and pleasant the world would be. Let's try it.

Some Reagan gaffes force clarification

By MICHAEL PUTZEL

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan has stumbled over his own words lately when asked to deal unrehearsed with sensitive issues ranging from arms control to apartheid.

Whether attributable to fatigue, carelessness or just inattention to detail, the president's statements have prompted enough concern that he himself has felt compelled to try to clarify them. And his aides, who long ago stopped trying to correct factual errors in Reagan's impromptu remarks, have more than once been left without an explanation of what the president was talking about.

During Reagan's 1980 presidential campaign and early in his first term, Democratic opponents and many news reports challenged Reagan's use of supposed facts that just didn't check out. Assigning "truth squads" to search for information supporting or contradicting Reagan quotes was for a time a standard practice after the president's news conferences.

The White House eventually stopped responding to suggestions Reagan had made a mistake on this or that, and after a while the verbal missteps stopped making news.

In recent weeks, however, Reagan has made some gaffes even he felt compelled to correct. Two weeks ago, he told an interviewer in August that South Africans "have eliminated the segregation that we once had in our own country," he publicly apologized, saying he "carelessly gave the impression" that he believed segregation had been eliminated in the white-ruled nation.

He insisted nonetheless that there had been "great improvement over what has ever existed before," a statement unsupported by his own State Department.

A few days later, Reagan invoked a package of sanctions against the Pretoria regime demanding an end to the government's racial policies and not citing any of the improvements he had mentioned before.

At a news conference 10 days later, Reagan said that, "in spite of some of the misinformation that has been spread around, the United States is still well behind the Soviet Union in literally every kind of offensive weapon — both conventional and in the strategic weapons."

Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia, an influential Democrat on the Senate Armed Services Committee who usually supports the administration on defense issues, said that claim of total Soviet military superiority was "not right (and) hasn't been right ever."

Nunn suggested the president's military advisers tell him "something about our advantages in tactical air; our advantages with submarines, which are better, which are quieter; our advantages with aircraft carriers; our advantages with cruise missiles; our advantages with stealth technology.

"He needs to be much better briefed" before facing Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev at the Geneva summit in November, Nunn said.

Just a few days later, during a trip to Tennessee to promote an overhaul of the income tax system, Reagan was asked about reports the Soviets were proposing a 40-percent reduction in nuclear weapons and replied he'd like to see a plan for even larger cuts than that.

Upon leaving Knoxville, he stopped to tell reporters he "was misunderstood in trying to call an answer" to them earlier in the day.

The Soviets, he said, had made no arms reduction proposal and he "was not turning down any offer."

"We have received no proposal officially of a 40-percent cut, as I was asked about," Reagan explained, "and when I made a remark that I wish it were more ... I was doing that in the context of the fact that both Mr. Gorbachev and myself said that we would both like to see the missiles done away with entirely."

It was in a similar question-and-answer exchange on the run in Chicago on Oct. 10, when said he would be willing for the Palestine Liberation Organization to try the pirates who murdered American tourist Leon Klinghoffer.

Again, he reappeared later to tell reporters he had not meant to say that; he should have said they could only be brought to justice by the authorities of a sovereign nation.

Reagan almost always speaks from a prepared text when appearing before an outside group, even in private. When saying a few words to a crowd of well-wishers at an airport in Boise, Idaho, last week, he stood on the running board of his limousine, a typewritten script placed on the car's roof in front of him.

But when he gets tired, Reagan may stray from his text, as he did on the last leg of his 13-hour, 4,200-mile trip that day.

Just launching into the last paragraph of his text at an otherwise routine fund-raising event in Milwaukee, the president abruptly altered course to tell a story about his ambassador to the United Nations, Vernon Walters, and how the envoy supposedly had persuaded Chinese leaders to abandon their opposition to his "Star Wars" nuclear defense plan.

For three consecutive days afterward, Reagan's spokesmen were asked whether the event Reagan described was true and whether the Chinese had, indeed, dropped their opposition to Stars Wars. And for three days, the spokesmen had no reply.

Amendment

Electorate will get opportunity to revamp the state court system

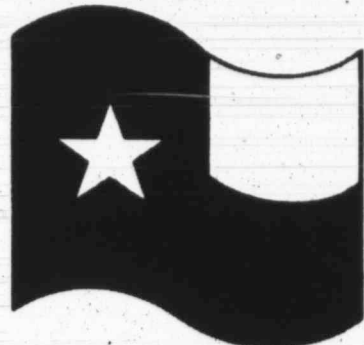

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Texas voters will have a chance in Nov. 5 election to modify their state court system, which has remained structurally unchanged for more than a century.

But Amendment 13, involving court redistricting and reapportionment, and another court-related item on the November ballot, Amendment 12, are drawing little interest outside the legal profession. Amendment 12 would allow the Texas Supreme Court and the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals to answer questions of state law for federal appeals courts.

If passed, Amendment 13 would significantly alter the state's courts in two ways.

First, it would set up a Judicial Districts Board to recommend how to redraw district court boundaries based on U.S. Census figures. The 13-member board would include the chief justice of the Texas Supreme Court, the presiding judge of the Court of Criminal Appeals, the presiding judges of each of the nine administrative judicial districts, the president of the Texas Judicial Council and one person licensed to practice law who would be appointed by the governor for a four-year term. The board would redraw judicial districts unless the Legislature already had enacted a statewide plan. To take effect, any redistricting plan would require a majority vote in each house of the Legislature.

On the ballot

This is one in a series of the proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution that will be on the ballot in the Nov. 5 statewide election.

Second, the amendment would restructure the court system. The district courts' jurisdiction would be broadened to include anything that was not specifically granted to county courts and county courts-at-law. Several constitutional requirements for district and county courts also would be repealed.

"This is something that's been in the works for at least two or three decades," said Mel Hazlewood, staff director of the Select Committee on the Judiciary which recommended revamping the court system.

"We haven't changed the basic system. We've just added more districts. Now, we have too many judges, mostly in the rural counties... and a disparity in workloads" between crowded urban courts and rural courts which handle fewer cases, Hazlewood said.

"There will be some courts that would be abolished — six or seven immediately," he said. But "the Legislature does need to provide a judicial presence in all the rural areas."

Supporters, such as the State Bar of Texas, hail the proposal as a means to streamline a system that dates back to when Ulysses S. Grant was president of the United States.

But some representatives from high-growth suburban areas argue that just the opposite will happen.

"We have district courts that unquestionably are overloaded," said Rep. Richard Williamson, D-Weatherford, whose district includes the booming area west of Fort Worth. "The urban approach is — 'Let's divide up the population equally among the existing district courts.'"

"But that presupposes that population will remain constant. And it won't," he said.

Williamson said in Parker County, which he represents, the number of people in that court's district would zoom from 61,000 to 97,000.

Although state leaders, particularly Gov. Mark White, took a hard line against creating more district courts, Williamson said that is the only solution. "Everyone is concerned about the cost, but what's the cost of justice? The answer is not to restructure the system, but to add more courts... and more judges."

Another court-related proposal, Amendment 12, which would let Texas' top civil and criminal courts answer federal court questions about state law, is supported by Chief Justice John Hill of the Texas Supreme Court, Chief Justice John F. O'Neil Jr. of the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals and the State Bar of Texas.

They contend federal appeals court judges often have to apply state law in deciding cases and need direction from the state courts. The procedure, which already has been adopted by 25 other states, reinforces the status of state courts as the ultimate interpreters of state law, the supporters say.

There is no organized opposition to Amendment 12, but when it was proposed in the 1985 legislative session some lawmakers questioned whether the procedure would increase the workload of the state's top courts.

Chief Justice O'Neil said in an interview recently that he doesn't anticipate any additional workload problems if the amendment is adopted. "These questions would be accepted under our own rules," he said. "If we set up the rules, I don't see any problem."

In an analysis prepared by the state bar, opponents also were quoted as saying that federal judges are capable of interpreting state law and that allowing state courts to participate in federal cases undermines litigants' rights to sue in federal rather than state courts.

Nursing home gets superior TDH rating

Golden Plains Care Center, a local nursing home, was given a superior facility rating last month by the Texas Department of Health.

The rating was based on how well it provides care and services for its residents as required by state and federal regulations, said administrator Vicky Griffin.

"We have really worked hard to provide quality patient care," she said.

The rating resulted from a survey conducted by TDH officials in June. Nursing homes are inspected and licensed annually, she said.

Griffin said the survey evaluated areas of dietary services, nursing, administration, activity, consultation, physical environment, life safety, laundry service, housekeeping and maintenance.

According to health department regulations, Griffin said, nursing homes are required to provide at least one licensed vocational nurse per 30 patients.

She said the 200-bed facility is "overstaffed" as far as licensed personnel are concerned, and the center has its own house doctor, Dr. R.S. Griffin, who makes daily visits.

She said the number of federal standards exceed state standards, and beginning in 1986 nursing homes will be mandated to make public all survey reports conducted by department of health officials.

Dear Abby

Symptoms are cause for concern

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for devoting an entire column to AIDS. I learned a lot from your article, but you failed to list the symptoms. Please do. It would be helpful to a great number of your readers, including...

ME IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ME: Many of the AIDS symptoms are subtle and may only indicate simple, everyday ailments; therefore, you should be alerted but not alarmed if you have one or more of the following symptoms:

- Weight loss of more than 10 pounds during a period of less than two months, not related to diet or increased activity; prolonged loss of appetite.
 - Unexplained, persistent or recurrent fevers or drenching night sweats.
 - Swollen glands (lymph nodes found in the neck, armpits or groin) that persist and are unexplained by other illness.
 - Profound fatigue that persists and is not explainable by physical activity, substance abuse or a psychological disorder.
 - Persistent and unexplained diarrhea or bloody stools.
 - A persistent, whitish coating (or spotting) on the tongue or in the throat, which may be accompanied by soreness or difficulty in swallowing.
 - A heavy, persistent, dry cough that is not due to smoking and has lasted too long to be explained by a cold or flu (especially with shortness of breath).
 - Easy bruising or unexplained bleeding from any orifice.
 - Skin rashes or discolorations of the skin.
 - Blurred vision and/or persistent, severe headaches.
- It must be emphasized that each of these symptoms may appear in diseases that are not caused by or associated with AIDS. When not easily or otherwise explained, the persistence of one or more of these symptoms should be discussed with a health care provider who is familiar with AIDS.

A national hotline with an informative recording can be reached by calling 1-800-342-AIDS. Many cities have a local AIDS information hotline. Your telephone operator can advise you.

DEAR ABBY: I need your advice. I am a 39-year-old divorced man with two teen-aged children. I'm in love with a beautiful 36-year-old divorcee with children about the ages of mine.

We have been in love for 20 years, but fought our feelings because we thought they were wrong. Abby, we can no longer stay away from each other. Now for the bad news: We are first cousins and live in a state that forbids first cousins to marry.

We can go to another state where first cousins may marry, and we probably will, but we don't know which states permit it.

I am a born-again Christian and can find nothing in God's word to forbid our union. Can you give us a clue? We'll go anywhere.

IN LOVE

DEAR IN: Go west, young man. And keep going until you reach the state whose capital is Sacramento.

CONFIDENTIAL TO T.L. IN BERKELEY: Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The end of the human race will be that it will eventually die of civilization." Emerson must have had a crystal ball.

Dr. Donohue

When is eye pressure too high?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When a doctor measures the fluid pressure inside the eyes, what is the danger number? — A.W.

The average pressure in the eye, as measured with the tonometer, is around 15. But that can be misleading. The pressure can be higher than that and not signify glaucoma. Glaucoma can be realistically defined as pressure so high that it is damaging the optic nerve, the nerve of vision.

If the eye pressure is greater than 24, the doctor suspects the nerve is being threatened. He can then view it with another instrument, the ophthalmoscope, the little flashlight-like instrument that provides a closeup view of the nerve at the back of the eyeball.

If the intraocular pressure is less than 24, the doctor will ask you to come back on a regular basis for rechecks of pressure to make sure it isn't getting out of hand. If the pressure is as high as 30, treatment to lower it is usually started whether or not there is sign of nerve damage. If it is somewhere between 25 and 30 the need for treatment depends on various other factors, such as diabetes or a family history of glaucoma.

As always, though, nothing in medicine is quite as cut and dried as this. This is just one set of guidelines, but one which many doctors use in making a decision.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My daughter has gone through menopause (last year) and her doctor put her on two different hormones to prevent osteoporosis. She has now started to menstruate again. Is this normal procedure? Is it safe for her to continue with the hormones? — Mrs. A.A.

Sure, it's safe to continue with the hormones, so long as she's under her doctor's care and he has determined that she is a candidate for this therapy.

Let me try to explain the rationale behind the use of the two different hormones — estrogen and progesterin. In post-menopausal use the doctor prescribes them to act in the same way they act when being produced by the normal pre-menopausal woman. The estrogen predominates in the early parts of the cycle and influences the growth of the uterine lining. Later in the cycle the progesterin signals the start of its shedding (menstruation).

The combination of the two hormones in the post-menopausal women mimics this process, with the estrogen taken during the early part of the cycle and the progesterin in the latter part. Your daughter has received specific instructions as to the timing of each pill.

By mimicking what occurs in a normal cycle, we can prevent undue proliferation of the uterus lining, which might occur with estrogen alone. That lessens the chances of uterine cancer stimulation. Other menopause-related questions are answered in the booklet "Make Menopause Easier." Readers may obtain a copy by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: We've always been told that a fat baby is not necessarily a healthy baby. We were told they become fat adults. All of my babies were fatties, but they are all now nicely-proportioned adults. Do you think fat babies grow into fat adults? — Mrs. E.L.

The thinking has changed about this. Now, we believe that the fatness of a baby may be only temporary and that the baby more or less subconsciously controls its future caloric intake and rapidly mobilizes its fat stores for energy. Excess birthweight is quickly lost.

And the theory that large numbers of fat cells in infancy portend adult obesity has not washed well over the years. If the baby does not have any glandular or other problems that contribute to fatness it is thought to stand as good a chance as any other baby of growing up to healthful adulthood.

Rosebud Garden Club members discuss projects around Big Spring

Mrs. Odell Womack, reporting for the Big Spring Council of Garden Clubs, told the Rosebud Garden Club members at their meeting recently that the council will plant 50 pecan trees at the fairgrounds.

The council has also ordered three oak trees and will plant these at the courthouse. Other plans include planting trees in Comanche Trail Park and planting bluebonnet seeds at various locations.

The Rosebud Garden Club met in the home of Mrs. Clyde Thomas. Mrs. Gordon Cavnar presided. Mrs. Travis Denton and Mrs. W.A. Riley were welcomed as new members. Cavnar said the Southern Zone meeting will be held Nov. 14 in Kermit.

Mrs. W.H. Christensen, finance chairman, made ceramic Christmas bells and chimes to be sold by the Rosebud Garden Club in order to finance civic beautification projects.

Thomas reported that several members participated in the recent work day at the Comanche Trail Park rose garden.

Pat Hardy, administrative assistant for the city, spoke on "How, Where and What We Need for Our City Beautification."

Hardy said his office has been working on a multisport complex; a cost efficiency plan for city maintenance vehicles; and the Main Street renovation program.

He said the city is facing problems getting lot owners to clean up vacant lots. By law, owners must be notified before city clean-up crews begin cleaning up. This involved searching city records to find out who owns the property and then notifying the owners who often live outside the city.

When asked what could be done to stop people from throwing bottles and trash out of cars, Hardy said citizens may take the license plate number of anyone seen littering and initiate a complaint at the police station.

The Nov. 19 meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Cleo Carlile.

Felecia Ford to appear in 'Magic Flute'

LUBBOCK — Felecia Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V.P. Dunbar, will appear in "The Magic Flute" at Texas Tech this weekend.

The play by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart will be performed by the Texas Tech University Music Theater in the University Center's Allen Theatre. Performances are at 8:15 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Ford will be in Saturday's performance. Each night will feature a different cast, according to Mrs. Dunbar.

Tickets are $12 for the public and $8 for Tech students and are on sale at the Tech University Center ticket booth.

Guest artist Marcus Haddock, a tenor who studied with Tech's Music Theater, will sing the lead role of Tamino. According to Mrs. Dunbar, Felecia will have one of the two female roles in the musical.

For more information, contact the theater at 806-742-2294, or the University Center at 806-742-3610.

The Big Spring High School Sports Booster Club is sponsoring two buses to Abilene for the Lady Steers volleyball game against Abilene High on Tuesday, October 29 and Friday, November 1 for the Steers final football game versus Abilene High.

The bus on Tuesday will leave at 4:30 p.m. The bus on Friday will leave at 5:30 p.m.

Interested people should sign up at the Big Spring High School front office. The cost is $2 for students and $3 for adults.

The OktoberFest Junior Tennis Tournament will be held Saturday, October 26 at the Figure 7 Tennis Center.

Competition will be in singles, doubles and mixed doubles for 10, 12, 14 and 16 year old boys and girls.

Deadline for entry is Friday, Oct. 25 at noon at the figure 7 Tennis Center. For more information call 267-7777.

Big Spring cowboy Wacey Cathey is continuing to have the best year of his career on the ProRodeo circuit. The bull rider has earned $49,852 through October 15 and is currently ranked third behind leader Tuff Hedeman of El Paso and Ted Nuce of Manteca, California in the unofficial Bull Riding standings.

Cathey is about $15,000 behind Hedeman, but lacks only $1,339 of catching Nuce with over a month and a half left on the tour.

Former Big Spring softball player Richard Townsend has taken his pastime to the land of fruits and nuts and is reportedly doing quite well. Townsend's Class C fastpitch softball team Aquachlor Black Machine recently won a national title at the National Men's Class C championship in Reno, Nevada.

Townsend was named to the all-tournament team after batting a team-high .600 with a home run.

I bet Cotton Mize would like bring that boy back home!

This last week of Youth Football League action saw had some rough and tumble action. Highlighting the competition was the Packers-Cowboys game.

The Cowboys went into the game with a undefeated record and the Packers were one game behind. The Packers soundly defeated the Cowboys 36-14, thus creating a three-way-tie for the league championship between the Packers, Cowboys and Buffaloes. All teams finished the season with a 4-1 record.

Check this out for parity. The Buffaloes defeated the Packers 12-0 and the Cowboys defeated the Buffaloes 14-12. I think it would take more than a coin flip to decide the winners of this league.

Congrats to all three teams on a fine season.

Cardinals one game away

ST. LOUIS (AP) — John Tudor pitched a five-hitter and the St. Louis Cardinals showed unusual power, defeating the Kansas City Royals 3-0 Wednesday night to move within one victory of their second World Series championship in four years.

The Cardinals, with an offense built on speed and line drives, scored two of their runs on solo homers by Tito Landrum, the substitute who is hitting .400 for the Series, and Willie McGee, the National League batting champion at .353. Their third run was a more typical St. Louis effort, scoring on a triple by Terry Pendleton and a full-count suicide squeeze bunt by Tom Nieto.

The victory gave the Cardinals a 3-1 advantage in the best-of-seven Series and left the Royals in a hole from which only five other teams have recovered, the last being the 1979 Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Cardinals can wrap it up Thursday night, when they will send right-hander Bob Forsch, 9-6, a two-time loser in St. Louis' seven-game Series victory over Milwaukee in 1982, against Royals left-hander Danny Jackson, 14-12, and the loser of Game 1.

The left-handed Tudor, 21-8 during the season and 3-1 in the postseason, was virtually untouchable in his best postseason outing of the year. He struck out eight, walked one and allowed four singles and a double.

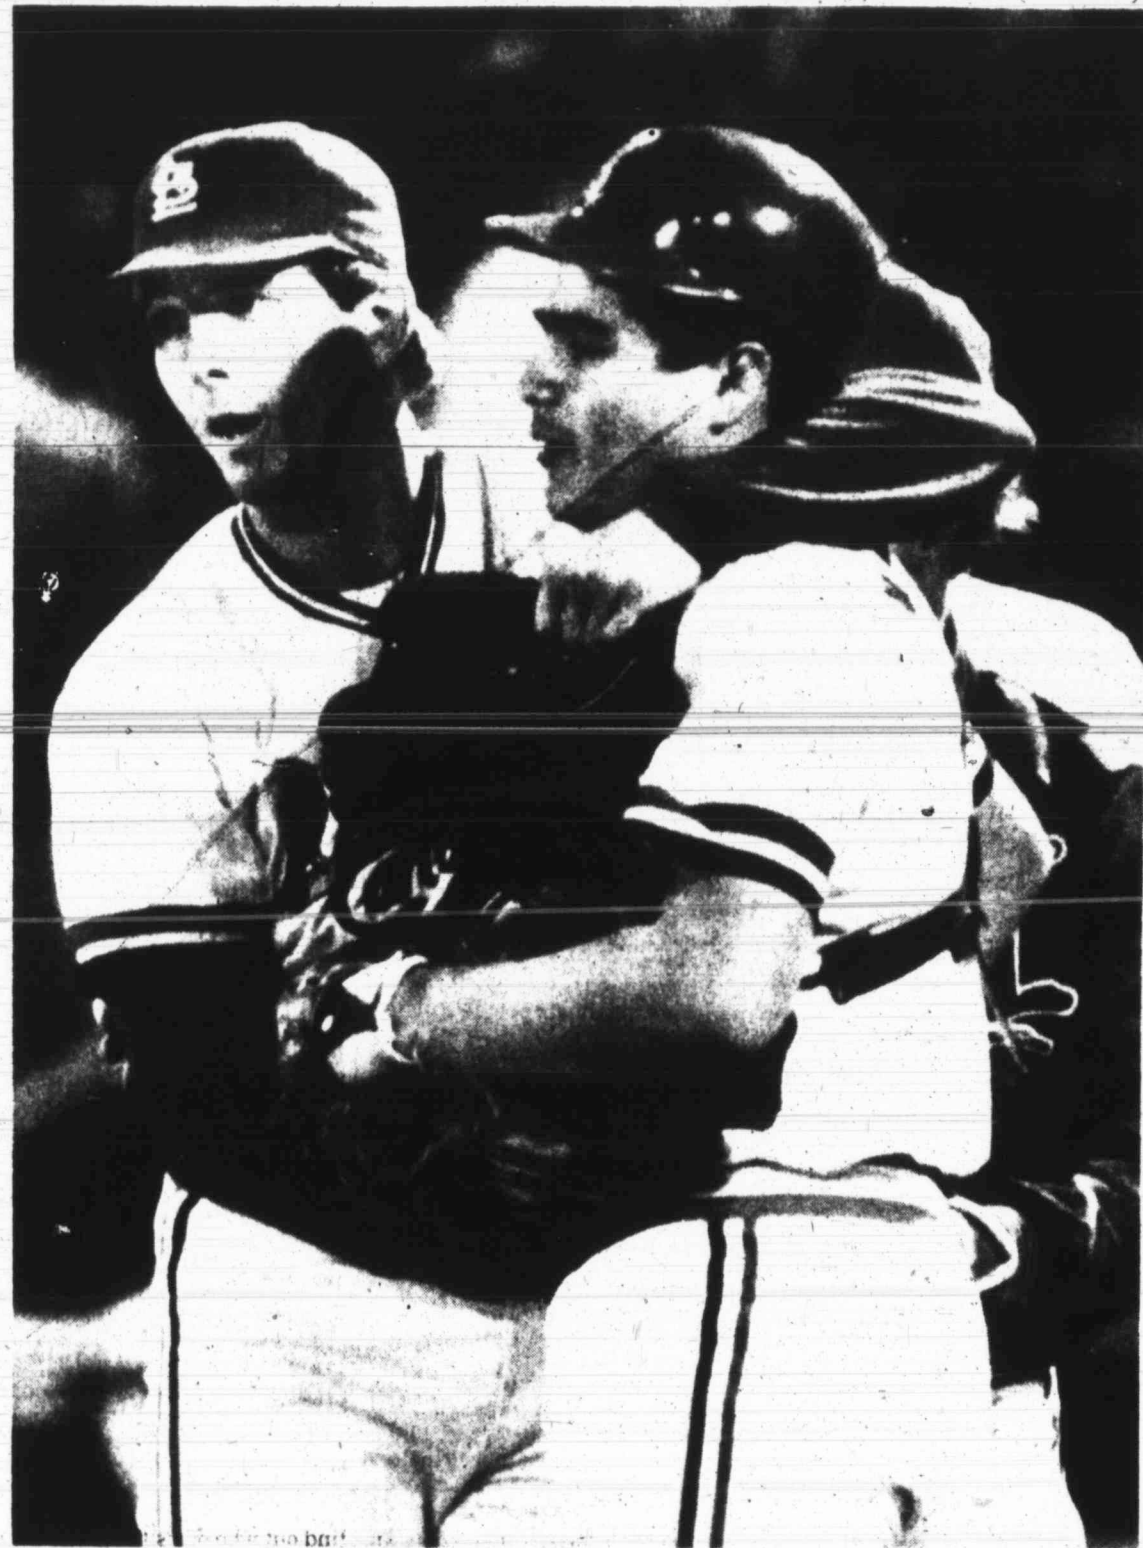

He never really was in trouble until the seventh when the Royals loaded the bases with two out on a pair of singles and a walk. But Tudor got out of it when pinch-hitter Hal McRae swung on a pitch low and away and grounded into a forceout at third. Tudor had the first World Series shutout since Scott McGregor of Baltimore beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-0 in Game 5 of the 1983 classic.

While the Cardinals' offensive effort resembled something less than all-out warfare, it was a marked contrast to the first three games, in which they batted .198 as a team with little run-scoring efficiency. The entire Series, in fact, had been marked by a decided lack of power, with the Royals' Frank White hitting the first homer in Game 3 Tuesday night.

Landrum, filling in for injured rookie base-stealing star Vince Coleman, homered off Royals left-hander Bud Black in the second inning. McGee hit one off Black in the third, and the surprise squeeze came in the fifth as the Cardinals made the most of their opportunities.

If the Cardinals should go on to win the Series in five games, they would be the third consecutive team to do so. The Orioles won in five over Philadelphia in 1983, and Detroit did it to San Diego last year.

For the first time in this Series, the Cardinals broke on top, on Landrum's one-out, full-count homer in the second inning into the standing-room-only level below the first deck in right field. It was fair by about 20 feet and easily out of the park.

St. Louis Cardinals JOHN TUDOR hugs catcher TOM NIETO after shutting out Kansas City Royals 3-0 in Wednesday night's World Series game in St. Louis.

Landrum, who has played the last seven postseason games in place of Coleman, came out of the dugout for a curtain call as the 53,634 at Busch Stadium, most of them dressed in Cardinal red, erupted in support of a newfound hero. Fireworks lit up the sky.

The home run, the second of Landrum's postseason career, was the first off Royals' pitching in 68 innings, dating back to Game 3 of the American League playoffs against Toronto. Landrum had four homers in 161 at-bats during the season.

With Baltimore in 1983, Landrum broke up a scoreless game with a 10th inning homer to beat the Chicago White Sox and move the Orioles into the World Series.

The fireworks boomed again with two out in the third inning, this time for McGee. After taking a ball and two strikes from Black, McGee launched a line drive off one of the advertising boards in left field and the score, very quickly, was 2-0.

McGee, who had 10 homers this year for a club that was next-to-last in the NL in that category, now has three in World Series play. He hit two homers in one game of the 1982 Series.

Black had worked 11 previous innings in postseason, including one-third inning of relief in the Series opener, with an ERA of 1.64, despite struggling through a 10-15 season that saw him lose seven in a row in one stretch. But this was not to be his night as he lasted only five innings.

Instead, the night belonged to Series page 2-B

Steers out to break bone; ailing Grady faces Ira

• Cinderella Bronchos come to town

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

This will mark the second consecutive week the Big Spring Steers will face a Wishbone offensive attack. Steer head coach Quinn Eudy thinks this will be a positive note for his team when they face the Odessa High Bronchos in Memorial Stadium Friday night at 8 p.m. The game will also be homecoming and Parent's Night.

Just like Midland Lee last week, Coach Jerry Millsaps Bronchos feature a high-powered attack, led by a host of talented running backs. "I think it's a plus that they run the Wishbone," said Eudy. "We worked on it last week and this week we seem to be reading it better."

Eudy also knows the pain a good Wishbone can cause his defense. The Steers felt the effect last week against Lee. The Rebels rolled up over 500 yards total offense against Big Spring.

It remains to be seen if Odessa High can roll with the authority Lee did. But Eudy admits the Bronchos' Wishbone is a force to be dealt with. "As far as running backs go, they probably have the best talent in the district. They have some speed and a couple that can go all they way," said Eudy.

The Bronchos, who are 6-1 overall and 3-1 in district play, bring an offense that averages 351 yards per game, including over 300 on the ground. Their host of talented running backs include Tracy Blaylock, who threw a 62 yard halfback to fellow running back Garry Powell for the winning TD in last week's 10-7 win over Abilene High.

CARL SPECK
...Steers offensive leader

KIM ANDING
...one of Steers top receivers

Powell and Blaylock are OHS' leading rushers with 500 and 450 yards respectively.

"I expect them to line up and run the ball," said Eudy. "They're an option team that takes care of the ball. They only pass when they have to."

Taking care of the ball is something the Steers haven't done lately. They lead the district in turnovers with 31. In their last two games Big Spring has turned the ball over a horrendous nine times.

But if the Steers can hold on to the football, it might be a trying night for the OHS defense. Big Spring has moved the ball well against all its district opponents. In fact, they gained more total yards on Permian and Lee than any other team this season.

This week a tough OHS secondary will test Big Spring signal-caller Carl Speck's throwing expertise. "I think one of the strongest points of their defense is their secondary. They probably have the best in the district," said Eudy.

It will have to be at its best if it's going to contain the likes of Speck, who ripped Lee for 312 yards last week, and his host of receivers led by David Shortes, Kim Anding and Randy Hayworth. The trio has combined for 32 receptions.

Big Spring's offense has Odessa coach Millsaps worried.

"From what I've seen of them they are a fine offensive team," said Millsaps. "I'm very impressed with their passing game. Carl Speck is one of the better quarterbacks in the district. They have good skill people and Speck executes the Veer well. They are a well-coached team." Defensively, Millsaps said he impressed with

• Possible zone championship on line

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

The Herald's Area Game of the Week features a pair of Six-Man teams who are on the move. Both Grady and Ira have put on their finest phoenix imitations of late, rising from the ashes of a loss ridden early season, for a Friday night showdown for probable zone championship.

Nobody would have picked either of these two to be at the top of District 4's South Zone after Grady started off the season losing four straight and Ira went a miserable 1-4. But with both teams undefeated in zone play (Grady, 1-0; Ira 2-0) and looking tougher by the week, the old saying "it's a new season when district starts" certainly rings true for the Wildcats and Bulldogs.

Coach Mitch Lee's Ira team began the season by losing an all-state player (Bruce Strickland of Forsan) who transferred and four starters on the bench with injuries suffered during summer workouts.

"The injuries put us in a real bind from the start and you can't lose a player like Strickland and not be affected, particularly in Six-Man ball," explained Lee. "But since district the kids have really turned things around. Our seniors have picked up the leadership and are playing up to their ability."

It was the same story in Grady during the first half of the season which saw the Wildcats lose to four of the state's top-ranked teams. Despite the losses, Grady head coach Currie McWilliams remained positive.

"The kids kept telling me they

...offensive threat

were going to turn it around if they could make it through the first part of the season, and sure enough it's happened," said McWilliams.

Grady has been buoyed by a potent offensive attack led by the passing of quarterback Luis Gonzales, who has thrown for 1,452 yards and 24 touchdowns for the year. Add a reliable running attack led by tailbacks Michael Mitchell and Arnold Valasco and the Wildcats are not a team to be taken lightly despite their 2-4 record.

Coach Lee is also well aware of Grady's offensive prowess. "We don't feel like we can shut down their passing game totally. We've been working on a zone pass defense this week and if we get good rotation from our secondary maybe we'll keep 'em out of the end zone."

Fortunately for Ira, key injuries may keep the Grady attack on the sidelines. Five Wildcat starters; leading receiver Terry Deathrage (separated shoulder), tailback Mitchell (hip pointer, bruised ribs), fullback Valasco (leg injury), end Wade Miller (broken big toe) and defensive end Tommy Parraz (sprained ankle) sustained injuries in a wild 65-52 victory over McCaulley last Friday. All but Mitchell are probable for Ira but the injuries could change their offensive game plan.

"I hope we don't have to pass any more than we want to," said McWilliams. "But we may not be able to sustain a drive with everybody hurt. Fortunately we've had the kids practicing at quite a few positions in case we did get injured."

Ira will counter Grady's fancy passing with a ball-control offense

Big Ten showdowns head college games

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Football Writer

Northwestern, Indiana and Minnesota, three veteran Big Ten dormats who are trying to shed their status as also-rans, have a chance to do some serious damage this weekend against three members of the Associated Press Top Ten.

Northwestern and Indiana are 24-point underdogs against No. 1 Iowa and No. 4 Michigan, respectively. Minnesota, however, is in the rankings itself (at No. 20) for the first time since 1982 and is only a 6½-point underdog against No. 9 Ohio State.

"You never know in this league," says Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler, whose team is the only one of the big three to play at home.

Northwestern, one of college football's more notable losers over the years, is a stunning 3-3 following last week's 17-14 upset of Wisconsin and Coach Dennis Green, an Iowa grad, would like nothing better than to knock his alma mater from its No. 1 perch.

The Wildcats catch the Hawkeyes between Michigan (a last-second 12-10 victory) and Ohio State, but Green says, "I don't think you'll find them looking ahead (to the Buckeyes)."

Right on, agrees Iowa's Hayden Fry.

"Maybe the best thing that happened to us was to have Northwestern beat Wisconsin," Fry says. "It was eye-catching to our players and coaches. Northwestern is no longer a sure win."

But not the Upset Special of the Week, either. . . Iowa 38-17.

Last week's prediction record was 36 right — including the Upset Special, Miami over Oklahoma — 14 wrong and two ties for a percentage of .720; for the year, 250-99-9—.716. Against the point spread, last week's score was 24-14-1—.632; for the year, 120-132-5—.476.

Indiana at No. 4 Michigan (favored by 24): Ohio State beat the Hoosiers 48-7 and Schembechler probably wants to approach that. . . Michigan 35-7.

No. 9 Ohio State (by 6½) at No. 20 Minnesota: "It'll take a lot of hard work in that dome," says OSU's Earle Bruce. Upset Special of the Week. . . Minnesota 24-21.

Virginia Tech at No. 2 Florida (by 17½): A non-league opponent for the Gators and a chance to celebrate their highest ranking ever before next week's Southeastern Conference war with Auburn. . . Florida 28-7.

West Virginia at No. 3 Penn State (by 7): The Nittany Lions have won six games by a total of 24 points and their "blowouts" were 17-10 victories over East Carolina and Rutgers. . . Penn State 24-14.

Colorado at No. 5 Nebraska (by 21): The Buffs are a surprising 5-1 and, says Cornhusker Coach Tom Osborne, "I think we have the attention of our players this week." . . Nebraska 42-17.

Mississippi State at No. 6 Auburn (by 17): Despite Emory Bellard's preseason prediction, the MSU Bulldogs aren't going to win the SEC title, but they could throw a roadblock into other people's plans. . . Auburn 38-14.

No. 7 Brigham Young at Texas-El Paso (by 41): BYU is the defending national champion; UTEP is 14-107 over the last 11 years. . . BYU 56-7.

Clark wins Golden Spikes award

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Will Clark, a member of the 1984 U.S. Olympic baseball team and a record-setting hitter for the Mississippi State Bulldogs this year, has been named the winner of the Golden Spikes Award.

The award, emblematic of the nation's top amateur player, is selected by a U.S. Baseball Federation 41-man panel.

The 21-year-old Clark, a first baseman, was made the No. 2 pick in the entire free-agent draft by the San Francisco Giants after batting .391 with 25 home runs and 77 RBIs in 65 games for MSU.

Hagler-Mugabi fight may be off

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Promoters hope to know by Friday whether a lower-back strain suffered by Marvelous Marvin Hagler will force the postponement of a Nov. 14 boxing card featuring Hagler's middleweight title defense against John Mugabi.

The card, which also features Thomas Hearns in a 12-round bout against No. 1-ranked middleweight James Shuler, could lead to a rematch of last April's spectacular battle between Hearns and Hagler, providing both fighters win.

Jaworski earned offensive honors for his finest day as a pro, 22 completions in 35 attempts, including a 36-yard fourth-quarter pass to Kenney Jackson for the winning touchdown.

Cowboy quarterback loves Falcon games

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Atlanta Falcons have inspired Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Danny White into Roger Staubach-style performances.

The low-flying Falcons, who defeated New Orleans for their first victory of the season last week, flutter into Texas Stadium at noon Sunday with White eagerly waiting like a duck hunter on opening day.

"I've had some big days against Atlanta," said White, who is expected to start after missing last week's 16-14 loss to Philadelphia because of a torn rib cartilage. "I had several confidence builders against them that I really needed early in my career."

White came off the bench in a 1978 divisional playoff game when Staubach was injured and the Cowboys were trailing 20-13. He rallied them to a 27-20 victory.

In 1980, White threw two touchdown passes in the final 3:40 for a 30-27 playoff victory.

"I guess I could have 20 games like that and I'd never make the fans forget Roger," said White.

Indeed, Staubach will be performing at halftime when former Cowboys' players compete in a flag football game. Staubach will receive his Hall of Fame ring in pregame ceremonies.

The 13-point favorite Cowboys own a 7-1 series lead over Atlanta, the Falcons winning 17-10 in a 1976 regular season game.

Dallas is 5-2 with a game lead in the National Conference Eastern Division while the Falcons are 1-6.

Atlanta will start free agent quarterback Dave Archer for the third consecutive week. Archer completed 20 of 30 passes for 250 yards but had three interceptions in Atlanta's 31-24 victory over the Saints.

Archer, who took over for Steve Bartkowski, also has proved to be a running threat, scoring twice.

"He doesn't have as good an arm as Steve but not many people do," said Atlanta Coach Dan Henning. "However, Dave is much more mobile. He lacks experience but is capable of making the big play. He makes some errors but still allows us to do some things that we haven't been able to do in the past."

Archer's quickness has cut the quarterback sacks allowed by Atlanta from 25 during the first five weeks to only three in the last two games.

Archer completed 11 passes to Billy "White Shoes" Johnson for 153 yards against the Saints.

The Cowboys were burned for a career high 380 yards passing by Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski last week.

"We've got to stop the big play," said Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "That has been hurting us and we can't keep going on like that from week to week."

Victor Scott is expected to replace the injured Ron Fells at right cornerback for the Cowboys.

White replaced Gary Hogeboom who floundered against the Eagles as a four-game Cowboys' winning streak went down the drain.

"I think I can get back into the swing of things pretty well," said White. "It's this team got going offensively."

White doesn't want to miss his date with the Falcons, who so far have been his favorite clay pigeons.

El Paso schoolboy rushes into 5A state record books

By MICHAEL A. LUTZ
AP Sports Writer

Football opponents of El Paso Austin High haven't been able to keep Steven Lee from singing, whistling or running.

Lee says he sings and whistles to himself to forget a short gain or a hard tackle by the opposition.

He didn't do much singing or whistling last Friday night.

Lee ran his way into the state schoolboy record book with 419 yards rushing on 22 carries and touchdown runs of 53, 70, 10, 56, 39, 63 and three yards.

Lee's feat, the ninth 400-yard plus rushing performance in Texas schoolboy history, earned the 5-11, 175 speedster a spot on The Associated Press Schoolboy Honor Roll.

"The other teams are really looking for him," Lowenberg said. "They say things to him to try to get him mad, but he just comes back to the huddle whistling and keeps on running."

Lowenberg says Lee's balance is a key to his running ability.

"He got knocked in the air and did kind of a cartwheel, landed on one hand and foot and kept going on one of his runs," Lowenberg said. "I've never been around a kid like this as far as running backs are concerned."

Lee had 280 rushing yards at halftime and quickly reached 399 early in the third quarter. "I told him he could have one more run to get over 400 and that's what he finished with," Lowenberg said.

Most of Lee's big gains come on sweeps led by a pair of pulling guards and 230-pound fullback Karl Gray.

Lee's 419 yards ranks seventh on the all-time single game rushing list behind Houston Marion's Rudy Rudison, the all time leader with 599 yards against Memorial Hall in 1978.

Lee's performance is a Class 5A record, surpassing the former record of 356 yards by Odessa's Ken White in a game against Borger in 1955.

The 20-year old 5A record fell twice last week because San Antonio Highland's running back Bob Barnes rushed 364 yards on 21 carries in a 60-16 victory over San Antonio Lanier. Barnes scored touchdowns on runs of 79, 79, 15, 51 and one yard.

Hallettsville's Jerome McAfee rushed 332 yards on 29 carries and had three touchdown runs in a 27-24 victory over Edna.

In other outstanding performances:

-Diboll running back Rodney Grant rushed only eight times but scored four touchdowns and gained 263 yards rushing in a 53-0 victory over Huntington. His touchdown runs went 63, 50, 75 and 46 yards.

-Stamford's Tim Delce rushed 22 times for 112 yards and touchdowns of six and 28 yards and returned punts 71 and 70 yards for touchdowns in a 42-6 victory over Anson. Delce has returned four punts and three kickoffs for touchdowns this season.

-Port Arthur Lincoln quarterback Charles McElroy completed 12 of 19 passes for 279 yards, including 73 and seven yard touchdowns in a 19-10 victory over Lumberton. Austin's Todd Vaught caught five passes for 131 yards, including a 7-yard touchdown.

-Tulia nipped Littlefield 15-14 on the passing of quarterback Todd Lacey, who hit 13 of 32 passes for 268 yards, and receiver Lance Grantham, who caught eight passes for 133 yards. Lacey piled up 221 yards and a 15-0 lead at the half.

-Valley quarterback Kirk Saul had a five-touchdown performance in a 43-13 victory over Knox City.

Saul completed 15 of 34 passes for 260 yards and touchdowns of 47, 21, 15 and 11 yards and ran one yard for another touchdown.

-Valley wide receiver Matt Barrett caught all four of Saul's touchdown passes and finished with eight catches for 198 yards.

-Wharton's Anthony Ray rushed 35 times for 275 yards and touchdowns of 86, 19, 56 and 24 yards in a 43-28 victory over Friendswood.

-Port Arthur Jefferson's Aaron Prater contributed three touchdowns to a 41-14 victory over Beaumont West Brook. Prater rushed 174 yards on 21 carries and scored on runs of 67 and 46 yards. He caught two passes for 34 yards, including a 31-yard touchdown.

-Hamshire-Fannett quarterback Rick Bayse completed 12 of 20 passes for 200 yards, including eight for 140 yards to Blaine Shellhammer, in a 21-12 victory over Hardin-Jefferson. Fannett's Anthony James scored on runs of one, seven and one and rushed for 162 yards on 29 carries.

-Perryton's Mike McKinley rushed 267 yards on 25 carries and had touchdown runs of 75, 61 and 10 yards in a 36-22 victory over Childress.

-Temple's Stacy Davis rushed 205 yards on 20 carries and scored on runs of 70 and 21 yards in a 31-18 victory over Round Rock Westwood.

-Davis' rushing overcame the passing of Westwood's Mark Muddock, who hit 26 of 47 passes for 362 yards and touchdown passes of 32 and 74 yards.

-Beeville's Matt McCullough rushed 226 yards on 24 carries and scored on a 59 yard touchdown run in a 35-35 tie with Gregory-Portland. McCullough gained another 100 yards in kickoff returns.

-Thorndale quarterback Steve Mitchell rushed 17 times for 161 yards and touchdowns of two and one yards and completed a 54 yard touchdown pass in a 36-7 victory over Thrall.

Tudor, who blossomed into one of the National League's top starters this year.

Tudor had the sort of command that had allowed him to lead the league with 10 shutouts and string together 31 consecutive scoreless innings over one stretch.

He allowed a one-out bloop single to center field by Willie Wilson in the first inning, then retired 13 in a row, including three straight on strikes in the third inning. Steve Balboni broke the string with a two-out single in the fifth.

Cards right-fielder Cesar Cedeno made a shoe-top catch of a sinking line drive by Jim Sundberg to get the first out of the fifth inning and defuse a potential scoring situation against Tudor, who has started four of the Cardinals' 10 post-season games and who worked 6 2-3 innings for the victory in last Saturday's Series opener.

With Todd Worrell warming up in the St. Louis bullpen, Tudor extinguished the threat when McRae grounded sharply to Pendleton, who stepped on the third-base bag to force Sundberg.

St. Louis manufactured its third run in the fifth inning on the full-count suicide squeeze bunt by catcher Nieto, who was playing his first World Series game in place of Darrell Porter. Porter was just 1-for-9 in the first three games.

Pendleton started the inning with a one-out triple that eluded Wilson in center and rolled to the wall.

Nieto tried a squeeze bunt on the first pitch from Black, but it rolled just foul down the first-base line. After the count reached 3-2, Nieto.

This time, the bunt was right in front of the plate. Black fielded the ball and threw toward home plate. The throw was wide to Sundberg's left and rolled to the backstop. Pendleton probably would have scored anyway, so Nieto got the RBI. But an error was charged on the throw as Nieto went to second. It was the Royals' first error of the Series.

got the sign again from the Cardinal dugout.

The Cardinals lost a play at the plate in the eighth inning.

McGee singled to left leading off and was sacrificed to second on a bunt by Smith. Herr was walked intentionally. A 1-2 pitch from Royals relief ace Dan Quisenberry to Clark bounced in front of the plate and rolled to the backstop.

McGee reached third and, never breaking stride, headed for home. Sundberg's throw to Quisenberry was in plenty of time.

that stays on the ground as much as possible. The Bulldog rushing attack is led by senior halfback Steve Benson and quarterback Jay Clark, who has developed into a fine blocker on sweeps, and can pass when necessary.

"We run a basic offense," explained Lee. "It's simple ball control, block and execute, and we pass the ball fairly well if we need to."

McWilliams is expecting a low scoring game, one that will come down to the team that makes the least mistakes. "We just cannot afford to make mistakes against a ball-control team like Ira. I think the team who has one less turnover will win the game."

the play of Steer noseguard Todd Coker, Big Spring's leading tackler.

After going 3-7 last year, the Bronchos could be hailed as the "Cinderella Team" of 4-5A.

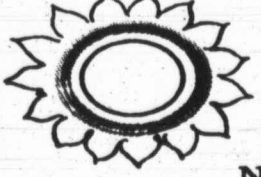

"Last season we had a much better team than our record indicated," said Millsaps. "We had too many injuries, by the end of the season we had nine starters out. In essence a lot of players who normally wouldn't play got valuable playing experience. This year it's paying off."

Is there a possibility the Bronchos might be looking ahead to their battle with Lee next week? "The coaches aren't and I hope the players aren't," said Millsaps. "Big Spring always plays us tough."

"I hope they come in here overlooking us," said Eudy. "It will work to our advantage. Even if they don't, we're all excited about playing them. We're looking forward to a real good game."

Maybe this time around the bone will be easier to break.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, OCT. 25, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until midafternoon, confusion and deception can be in effect unless you are watchful, so double-check everything. After that, you have a fresh, new attitude.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Do some tall thinking before you commence on that new course of action that has you excited.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have to study that problem you have from a new angle if you are to resolve it properly.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Remove the stumbling blocks from the path of your progress and then full speed ahead. Tonight is fine for romance with your mate.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Do not get into any arguments in the business world or there can be serious repercussions.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Be more observant and will you know how to uncover the outlets best suited to your talents.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Keep promises made in the morning, and then off to more interesting enterprises that are profitable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't let a dynamic partner disturb you during the day, but in the evening, your mate can be most solicitous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may feel you are not getting ahead at your job, but don't make this evident. Be kind with co-workers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Plans for amusements are not working out just right, but later you can enjoy other activities tremendously.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get an early start at your job and accomplish a good deal, then you can be off to recreational activities.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Keep your attention focused on your home and forget about shopping around and spending money foolishly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Not a good day to commit yourself monetarily in any big matters. An expert could be stingy with information.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she is apt to jump into everything without forethought, so be sure you teach to think first and then to act cautiously. There is a good mind here that will easily get at the truth of things upon second thought. One who will do quite well in the field of business and banking.

The Stars impel; they do not compel. What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Gervin on trade block

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A trade that would send the San Antonio Spurs' George Gervin to the Chicago for Bulls forward David Greenwood has hit some snags, Gervin's agent and a Bulls official said.

Agent Pat Healy told the San Antonio Express-News Wednesday that the incentives in Gervin's contract are a problem. And Bulls vice president of operations Jerry Krause said Wednesday that he couldn't tell if the deal would go through.

"I really can't give an accurate assessment because there are some things holding it up," Krause told the San Antonio Light.

The Express-News also quoted unnamed sources in Chicago as saying concerns in San Antonio over Greenwood's health have stalled the deal. Greenwood, 28, missed 11 games last season with tendonitis in both heels and underwent surgery on his heels in the off season.

Healy said the Bulls want Gervin to waive all of the incentives in his contract, which could earn Gervin $300,000 in addition to his base salary of $780,000.

"Obviously, if the Bulls live up to the contract as written, there is nothing for George to decide. The trade would go through," Healy said.

But remember, George wants to remain a San Antonio Spur. He wants to stay at almost any cost. The trade was initiated by the Spurs. It's their decision to get rid of him."

Spurs owner Angelo Drossos refused to discuss the trade, other than to say "there is a small possibility" Gervin could still be playing for the Spurs Saturday when they open the regular season against the Los Angeles Lakers.

He also said the team won't "tolerate" Gervin missing practices.

Coahoma DWI suspect surrenders

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
 Staff Writer

A Coahoma man indicted last week on a count of felony driving while intoxicated turned himself in to the Howard County sheriff's department Thursday morning, said Sheriff A.N. Standard.

Eusebio Morales, 36, of Coahoma was arrested for violating the terms of probation for a DWI judgment in November 1983. He remains in county jail in lieu of bond.

Morales previously was convicted of manslaughter in the August 1975 death of a Department of Public Safety patrolman.

The third-offense DWI case against Morales is being "vigorously pursued" by the Howard County district attorney's office, said Assistant DA Robert Morris.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said the adult probation office filed a motion with the district court Tuesday morning to revoke a five-year probated sentence for Morales on a previous DWI judgment using the grand jury indictment.

Morales was arrested Sept. 21 by DPS Trooper Billy Cooper at the intersection of Interstate 20 and the south service road east of Big Spring.

According to records from the district attorney's office, Morales was convicted on two DWI incidents before the grand jury indictment. The first DWI conviction was in Jones County in March 1973.

Morales was arrested for his second DWI offense on Nov. 5, 1983, after a high-speed car chase with Big Spring police that ended south of town.

Prior to the two DWI incidents, Morales was convicted of involuntary manslaughter in the death of DPS patrolman Jimmie W. Parks of Big Spring. The jury trial was in April 1976. He received a 10-year sentence and was released on parole from the Texas Department of Corrections in March 1980. He was discharged from parole in July 1982, according to records from the district attorney's office.

According to a DPS report on the Aug. 10, 1975, accident in which Parks was killed, Morales was speeding the wrong way down an eastbound lane of I-20 when he struck a Ford van, Parks and Parks' patrol car.

Parks had pulled a Ford van with California license plates over onto the shoulder of the eastbound roadway and was in the process of making a traffic check when the accident occurred, according to an Aug. 11, 1975, story in the Big Spring Herald.

Morales was arrested after the incident and charged with DWI and involuntary manslaughter.

Man found mentally incompetent

A Big Spring man found mentally incompetent to stand trial by a district court jury Wednesday afternoon was transferred to Rusk State Hospital early Thursday morning by a Howard County sheriff's deputy.

Ricky Dale Payne, 22, of 509 S. Johnson is charged with burglary of a habitation with intent to commit sexual assault, burglary of a habitation with intent to commit retaliation and a separate charge of retaliation occurring on Aug. 1.

He was indicted on all three charges by a county grand jury in August.

Prosecutor Rick Hamby and Wayne Basden, Payne's court-appointed counsel, asked jurors during their closing arguments to find Payne mentally incompetent to stand trial. The verdict also requires Payne to undergo another mental competency hearing after treatment at Rusk.

Diet Pill Sweeping U.S. New Super "Dream Pill" Lose Weight As You Sleep!

No Dieting — Eat All You Want

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. — An amazing new super "dream pill" has recently been developed and perfected that reportedly "guarantees" that you will easily lose up to 10 pounds in 10 days. Best of all, it allows you to "eat as much as you want of your favorite foods and still lose a pound a day or more starting from the very first day until you achieve your ideal weight and figure."

This remarkable new diet pill combines two natural substances which cause adults to lose weight fast by "tricking" the body into acting like a teenager. These nutritional substances, called L-arginine and L-ornithine, stimulate the body's production of growth hormone. Dr. Robert Harris, a specialist in nutritional medicine in Stafford Springs, Connecticut, was recently quoted as explaining: "Growth Hormone may be what's responsible for allowing teenagers to down thousands of calories in hamburgers and other foods and still be thin as a rail."

"Growth Hormone is present in people up through the teenage years, then slowly diminishes with age. But L-arginine and L-ornithine make the body 'think' it belongs to a teenager again, allowing adults to eat as much as they want — and still be thin and wiry."

"Pill Does All The Work"

According to the manufacturer, "the pill itself does all the work while you quickly lose weight with NO starvation 'diet menus' to follow, NO calorie counting, NO exercise and NO hunger pangs." The pill is not a drug! It is 100% safe consisting of natural amino acids just like those found in the foods you eat everyday.

Life Extension Authors Confirm Results

Durk Pearson and Sandy Shaw, graduates of MIT and UCLA respectively, introduced these miracle substances to the public in their runaway best selling book, Life Extension. They discovered the weight-loss effects by accident.
