WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans doing chores or driving in the evening will be in the dark starting today, with the switch back to standard time.

Officially, clocks in most of the country were shifted back one hour at 2 a.m., effectively moving an hour of light from the evening to the morning.
 The change gives back an hour of sleep lost in April, when daylight time came into use.

Loeffler hits campaign trail

Tom Loeffler

By KEELY COGHLAN
 Staff Writer
 Gubernatorial hopeful Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, bills himself as the Republican "who can beat Mark White."
 Loeffler, speaking Saturday morning to about 15 people at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, cited his experience working with "boll-weevil" conservative Democrats as the chief Republican party whip for his claim.
 He also worked to garner votes from the same coalition as a legislative aide for former President Gerald Ford, Loeffler said.
 "I had to reach across the aisle to conservative Democrats and independents," he said.

 Loeffler, who represents the 21st Congressional District, which stretches from Presidio to San Antonio to San Angelo and Del Rio, said he is proud of being the first Republican congressman elected in the district. Embattled the first few years, he won re-election in 1982 with an 80 percent victory margin.
 "My record is one of consistency. I've worked for Ronald Reagan, George Bush and Phil Gramm," Loeffler said, when asked about the differences between himself and former Rep. Kent Hance of Lubbock. "I haven't moved from one position to another as a matter of political expediency."

 Hance, who also is running for the GOP gubernatorial nod, recently switched parties after a failed run for the Democratic Senate nomination in 1984.
 Besides referring to his record of "consistency," Loeffler made few references to Hance and former Gov. Bill Clements, who is running again.
 Instead, Loeffler emphasized his rise to a leadership position in the House in his second term, a virtually unheard-of thing at the time, and his stints as a legislative aide to President Gerald Ford and as chief of staff for former Sen. John Tower.
 Mudslinging, he said, would be no part of his campaign.

 "I won't attack anyone personally," Loeffler said. "I believe in a positive approach . . . A candidate's personal life or personal problems should have nothing to do with whether he's elected."
 Mudslinging, Loeffler said, "turns people off. It makes people think politics is what they always thought it was — dirty and no good."
 "Politics is important . . . Facts are facts. I'm going to run on my public record," Loeffler said.
 On the topic of current Gov. Mark White, a Democrat, LOEFFLER, page 2A

Reagan presses Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, asserting that his arms control efforts are "on the right track," challenged the Soviets on Saturday to do more than just talk about peace before next month's superpower summit.

"Talking about a safer world is not good enough. We must make it happen," Reagan said in his weekly radio address, delivered from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.
 In his first remarks to the nation since returning from three days of diplomacy at the 40th anniversary of the United Nations in New York, Reagan spoke of his talks with top U.S. allies, as well as Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.
 "Our conversations convinced me more than ever that we are on the right track," Reagan said. "We are negotiating hard with the Soviet Union on reducing offensive nuclear weapons."
 The president said the United States has "proposals on the table for deep reductions, and (we) are examining their counter-proposals."
 But he added that the United States is determined to move forward with research and testing for the Strategic Defense Initiative, the space-based missile defense known as "Star Wars," which the Soviets charge is a major stumbling block to an arms control agreement.
 Picking up on a Soviet invitation, the president is dispatching Secretary of State George Shultz to meet with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Moscow to resolve major differences between the two superpowers before the summit.
 Shultz, after announcing his trip, virtually ruled out the possibility that Reagan and Gorbachev would conclude an arms control agreement at their Nov. 19-20 meeting in Geneva, Switzerland.
 As he did in his address to the U.N. General Assembly, Reagan used the radio address to lash out REAGAN, page 2A

Thomas Doan escorts his children, Jeremy, 2, and Nicki, 5, through the March of Dimes Rotary Club spook house while a ghostly "friend" follows. The spook house will be open Tuesday through Thursday from 6-9 p.m. at Big Spring Mall. More pictures, page 5.

Upgrading defense ranks high

By WILLIAM GARLAND
 Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau
 WASHINGTON — Upgrading the nation's strategic weapons systems ranks at the top of the Pentagon's ladder of priorities, according to high-level Pentagon officials.
 Research for a defense against incoming nuclear warheads, called the "Strategic Defense Initiative" by President Reagan, is the other key objective, said Dov S. Zakheim, assistant under secretary of defense for policy and resources.
 "In terms of priorities, the strategic modernization program and SDI, those two are tops. And in terms of strategic versus conventional, the president has given priority to strategic (weapons)," said Zakheim in his Pentagon office.
 He said those weapons include

"the whole panoply" of strategic arms. "It means the MX (nuclear missile), the B-1 bomber, the D-5 Trident missile, the Trident submarine. It includes the new E-6A airplane, it includes many low-frequency communications."
 "That is our number one priority, and the president's number one priority, to modernize and strengthen our strategic deterrent," agreed Thomas E. Cooper, assistant secretary of the Air Force for research, development and logistics. "The thing that we can least afford to happen is to have a nuclear war break out," he said.
 The assistant secretary noted that objectives of the Air Force are somewhat more complicated to define than those of the Navy, for example, which is in the process of building a 600-ship fleet.

The Navy's top priorities, however, include the homeporting of such vessels as the Battleship Wisconsin, scheduled to go to the new Navy facility in Corpus Christi in the late 1980s, said a Navy official.
 Cooper listed strategic modernization as the highest goal of the Air Force, followed by keeping the Air Force at a high level of readiness, improving the Air Force's mobility for airlifting forces and modernizing and expanding tactical forces such as fighter aircraft.
 He named five key areas as the focus for the military's strategic modernization: improvement of command, control and communications capability, upgrading the bomber force and upgrading the inter-continental ballistic missile force. He also listed modernization of the sea-launched ballistic missile force and improving "our ability to defend the continental United States against (missile) attack." Most of those areas, except for sea-launched missiles, fall under the broad umbrella of the Air Force.

 Cooper said the strategic priority within the Air Force also includes space-based operations outside the area of research for space defense. "We've got some key efforts ongoing in space that will expand and improve our strategic capability," said Cooper.
 "Our nuclear deterrence posture really consists of what we call a Triad of nuclear forces," Cooper noted. The Triad is made up of the bomber force, the land-based ballistic missile force and the sea-based ballistic DEFENSE, page 2A

Tina Walker, 16, of Pine Bluff, Ark., who was sentenced to 18 months in prison for hitting her math teacher, listens to questions Saturday after she is released from the Women's Unit of the State Correction Department. Miss Walker was freed on a $10,000 appeal bond.

Teen free after 2 days in jail

PINE BLUFF, Ark. (AP) — A 16-year-old girl convicted of hitting her math teacher said Saturday that her two-day prison stay was not as bad as she thought it would be, but that she regretted attacking the teacher.
 "I'm sorry it ever happened. I was angry that day; I don't know, I was upset," said Tina Walker after she was released from the Women's Unit of the state Correction Department on a $10,000 appeal bond. "It's nothing to be proud of."
 Miss Walker was convicted Oct. 9 of second-degree battery and sentenced to three years in prison for striking eighth-grade Carlisle, Ark., math teacher Pam Berry, 37, with her fists as students looked on. The girl had spent nearly three months in the Speno County Jail in Lonoke, Ark., before being transferred to the state prison Thursday.
 Walker was one of the first people convicted under a 1981 law which made it a felony to injure teachers or school officials on school property or during school-related activities. The maximum sentence is six years.

 At an impromptu news conference outside the gates of the Women's Unit, Miss Walker said the first thing she wanted to do was spend time with her mother, Hazel Walker, in Hazen and friends.
 She asked if she learned anything from her ordeal, the 5-foot-2, freckled girl said. "Yes ma'am. I'd like everybody not to hit a teacher in school."
 Miss Walker, who was flanked by her mother and her attorney, W.C. "Dub" Bentley, dug her hands into the pockets of her jeans and looked at the ground during much of the news conference.
 She said she wants to continue her education, but didn't know whether she would go back to school at Carlisle.

 The teen-ager said she was kept in the infirmary of the Women's Unit and that everyone was nice and helpful. "You get fed three times a day and sit in a room with a gown on," she said.
 She had had a bad relationship with Ms. Berry before she struck the teacher, Miss Walker said, and that the attack was provoked. Bentley gestured to her not to elaborate.
 She said she did not know what the punishment should be for hitting a teacher but that the offense was not "bad enough to go to the pen."
 Mrs. Walker said the penalty was much too stiff and that the attack on Ms. Berry could have been prevented if school officials had heeded the mother's pleas.
 She said Tina to be removed from the unit and they refused to comment further.

Doug Parish stands among some of the windmills his company makes near Earth, Texas. Parish windmills are turning in 35 to 40 states around the country.

Man's business born on the wind

EARTH (AP) — The wind blows, the wheel turns and Doug Parish smiles. Parish makes windmills. He's the only man in Texas who does. "As long as there are ranches, they'll have to have windmills for pumping," the Earth native says. "There will always be a need for windmills." And the Parish Windmill, he is quick to add, is the finest windmill made. "The big thing that is better about ours is the chain-sprocket drive and sealed bearing" as opposed to gearbox-type windmills, he explains. All parts are easily repaired or replaced and require little maintenance, he adds. "Our theory when we started was that if we went out of business in 20 or 30 years, you could still get parts for this windmill," says Parish. That theory was the driving force behind "Poppa Gus," Parish's decision to start the business 15 years ago.

"Dad got into it because he was afraid there wouldn't be any mills for ranchers. Everybody was going out of business," Parish says. "A lot of your old mills that were popular had gone out of business and you couldn't get parts. He wanted to make mills that you could get parts for very easily." "It took hold very fast." "Poppa Gus," who died in 1981, was an inventor. He moved to the South Plains from Llano in 1921, began farming, established a hardware store and "did a lot of mechanical work," says Parish. One of his greatest successes was the development of a special windmill tail that acts as a governor for controlling wheel revolutions and pump rod strokes, says his son. The tail is hinged in a way that controls the position of the wheel in the wind in order to maintain regular strokes in high winds. The Parish windmill also operates in less wind than other mills and features flat, heavier gauge wheel blades that can easily be repaired as opposed to the curved blades on other types of windmills, he says. Parish Windmills are pumping water in 35 to 40 states, says Parish. Several thousand have been sold from Mexico to Montana. The factory, which normally employs about 12 people, can produce up to 10 windmills a day. A Parish Windmill sells for between $4,000 and $5,000. Manufacturing and assembly is all done in Earth. The company is one of only four in the nation still producing windmills. At one time there were probably 20 windmill companies in the United States, producing about 15,000 mills a year, Parish estimates. Parish, who produces about 300 windmills a year, says his business has been hurt by the slump in the cattle industry. "In the '70s, the windmill business got better and better every year. In the '80s, it began to dip back down," he says. "It has been slow the last couple of years because of marketing conditions. We're probably 50 percent to what we normally run. "A lot of your older mills that should be replaced have been patched up," he explains. "I think as soon they can get back on a profit basis with the cattle herds, you should see the windmill business pickup." In the meantime, Parish has begun manufacturing a drag-type grader that has been successful, he says. The implement is pulled behind a motorized grader or tractor and costs about a tenth of what a motorized grader sells for, Parish adds. But Parish's business was born on the wind and that's where his heart lies. "You get a satisfaction out of building something that is part of the past. It is something that is unique in itself," he says. "Eventually the old mills will have to be replaced. We'll be there when they are."

Teen

ed." Ms. Walker said. "Tina was never a problem child at home with me." Ms. Berry was the only teacher her daughter had trouble getting along with, Ms. Walker said. Bond was posted for Miss Walker after Jeanette Colberg of Jacksonville opened a bank account to collect donations. Ms. Colberg, 40, who did not know the Walkers, said she believed the girl had been unjustly treated. Bentley tried to post bond Thursday, but Sheriff J.O. Isaac of Lonoke County refused to accept it, saying that the girl was no longer his responsibility because she had been transferred to the Women's Unit that morning. Circuit Judge Jim Burnett was out of town and told Bentley the matter would have to wait until he returned. Bentley filed an appeal notice and a motion for a new trial Friday. The motion said that the state law under which Miss Walker was convicted is unconstitutional; that the jury's verdict was contrary to the law and the evidence presented; and that the girl's rights were prejudiced because evidence favorable to her was not presented. Bentley said Saturday that the law was unconstitutional because if Miss Walker's case applied to a situation that did not involve a teacher, the attacker would be convicted of a misdemeanor.

missile force. He identified three goals for the important bomber modernization program. "We're modifying the B-52 force so that its useful life extends to sometime in the 1990s, because that's the bomber that currently forms that portion of the Triad," he said. "And specifically, we're taking the G version and the H version of the B-52 and modifying those so they'll be capable of carrying cruise missiles. The B-1B bomber, now being deployed at Dyess Air Force Base in Abilene, is the second step and development of the advanced technology bomber is the third, he said. He said the advanced bomber will be deployed along with the B-1B. "My view of the B-1 and the ATB (advanced technology bomber) is maybe something like having a very fast halfback in your backfield along with a good fullback. "That's as far as we look right now," said Cooper. "Those two (bombers) will take us well into the next century."

at the Soviet Union for attempting to impose "repressive dictatorship" in such nations as Afghanistan, Cambodia, Angola, Ethiopia and Nicaragua. He called such actions "a fundamental source of tension" in many regions of the world, and vowed that U.S. support for resistance forces "shall not cease." "Does the Soviet Union share our conviction that true peace must rest on the right of all peoples to choose their destiny to grow and develop free from coercion and fear?" the president asked. "We shall see in Geneva."

Loeffler

however, Loeffler minced no words. He accused White failing to provide the Legislature with leadership, attacked White's inaction on the prison system issue, and said White "sat on the bench" during efforts to smooth out last session's education reform bill. "Mark White has terrorized Texans by giving convicted criminals early release from prison," Loeffler said. "I guess he hopes convicted felons will walk the streets and sell Girl Scout cookies." White's inaction as the state attorney general on the prison conditions lawsuit was a "travesty," Loeffler said. As attorney general, White "did nothing to represent the state on the federal prison problem." As governor, he didn't ask for enough money to meet the spacing requirements in the court settlement, Loeffler charged. Loeffler said the state should have the necessary space to confine its convicted felons, but said

Bush shares concern

WASHINGTON Vice President George Bush has joined those in the U.S. government expressing concern about the threat of a communist takeover in the Philippines. But Bush said in an interview with The Associated Press on Friday he can't be sure President Ferdinand Marcos would adopt the political and economic reforms Washington is urging on him. "We are concerned," Bush said in the interview. "I can't quantify that concern, but I think that all the leaders of the . . . Pacific rim countries have common ground on this."

Tests changes viewed

NEW YORK When future schoolchildren take tests, they might not be graded, they'll use computers rather than No. 2 pencils, and some who pass certain exams might even be allowed to graduate from high school as young as 12 years old.

Those and other future prospects in educational testing were discussed Saturday by leading educators at the Educational Testing Service's Invitational Conference on "The Redesign of Testing for the 21st Century."

To bring some of those visions to reality, ETS President Gregory R. Anrig announced that the Princeton, N.J.-based testmaker was creating a $30 million fund to develop a new generation of tests by the year 2000.

U.S. interested in sailor

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — State Department officials on Saturday negotiated with the captain of a Soviet ship anchored in the Mississippi River to interview a sailor who jumped from the vessel but was inadvertently returned to it.

"We have reason to believe that a sailor on the Soviet vessel the Marshall Konyev may not wish to depart with his ship," State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Saturday. "We are now seeking to determine his intentions."

The unidentified seaman jumped into the river Friday while the ship was under way and swam ashore in an attempt to defect, but was inadvertently returned to the boat by Border Patrol agents who could not communicate with him and thought he was a stowaway, said David H. Lambert, district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service.

44 exposed to AIDS

WASHINGTON — During three months of screening military blood donors this summer, the Pentagon discovered 44 people who had been exposed to the virus suspected of causing AIDS, according to a confidential internal report.

A real macaw

Four-week family stakeout nets rare bird

MASSAPEQUA PARK, N.Y. (AP) Alex is quite the bird, a real macaw. Just ask his owners and their neighbors who trailed him for four weeks, tried to coax him from trees, fretted while the tropical bird rode out a hurricane and wept when he finally came home.

The 6-year-old South American macaw with red body feathers and blue, green and purple wings returned last week, a month after he flew the coop when 13-year-old Dean Cassis accidentally left a door open.

"We just cried, we beat the odds, we persevered and we caught him. It became such a special time for us," said Dean's mother, Pat Cassis. "There was this special bond between us, this bond between man and animal."

The bond was such that George Cassis, who bought the macaw for $800 in Florida, took to sleeping out in his car wherever Alex spent his nights. Cassis, 41, is a self-employed real estate broker who virtually gave up work while he trailed the bird trying to bring it back home.

"George would pull up in his car and sometimes fall asleep leaning back looking up in the tree for Alex," Mrs. Cassis said.

The bird's distinctive cry helped track him down.

"He makes a real lot of noise, so we were able to keep up with him for a couple days," Mrs. Cassis said.

Alex, with a 4-foot wingspan, was sighted in the neighboring communities of Bellmore and Massapequa; he also roosted for two weeks in a Wantagh hickory tree. The large, white-beaked bird kept his own schedule, stopping to eat pears, apples and acorns from trees.

When Alex was in sight, he was out of reach in trees, ignoring repeated pleas to come down. The family even brought along Alex's cage to entice him, but he refused to fly into it.

Sightings were reported more frequently after the family ran newspaper ads, put up posters and canvassed neighborhoods in a six-mile radius.

Meanwhile, nature intervened Sept. 27 in the form of Hurricane Gloria with winds of up to 100 mph. But Alex weathered the storm.

On Oct. 7, he seemed to take up permanent roost in one tree, then took off before Cassis could enlist game and fire officials to bring him down. Later, Cassis tried climbing another tree to retrieve Alex, but the bird flew away.

On Oct. 17, Alex appeared in a neighborhood tree, wounded and apparently unable to fly.

Cassis rescued him and whisked him to the veterinarian's office, where the doctor discovered the bird had been shot in the chest with a BB pellet.

Homemade bomb hurts student

PROVO, Utah (AP) — A homemade bomb exploded on the campus of Brigham Young University in a "deadly prank" that injured a student who was trying to stamp out the device's fuse, police said.

Thella May Hall, 28, Salt Lake City, happened to see the burning fuse Wednesday night before the device went off, burning her and rupturing her ear-drums, authorities said.

Police said they were looking for three men who were seen carrying the bomb and laughing after the explosion.

He said there was no link between the bombing and three blasts that killed two people and injured another in Salt Lake City this month.

Britons protest arms

LONDON (AP) — Up to 110,000 people marched peacefully past the U.S. and Soviet embassies Saturday in a demonstration designed to pressure the superpowers into ending their arms race.

Participants waved banners reading, "Human Race or Nuclear Race."

The rally, organized by the Campaign for Nuclear Disarmament, Britain's leading peace movement, was much smaller than a 1983 demonstration by the same group that drew 250,000 people. Police estimated that 80,000 demonstrators took part Saturday, but the rally organizers put the number at 110,000.

Australia returns rock

AYERS ROCK, Australia (AP) — The government Saturday gave back Ayers Rock, the world's largest monolith and one of Australia's biggest tourist attractions, to aborigines who consider caves at its base to be sacred.

About 3,000 people, including many aborigines who traveled thousands of miles, attended a title transfer ceremony at the four-mile-long, 1,143-foot-high rock in Australia's Northern Territory.

Judge frees 2 militants

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — A day after declaring a state of siege to ensure the detention of 12 militant rightists, President Raul Alfonsin faced a new legal challenge Saturday when a judge freed two of the prisoners for lack of evidence.

Judge Luis Velazco ordered that army Col. Pascual Guerrieri and journalist Daniel Rodriguez be released because authorities had failed to present any evidence against them.

Guerrieri and Rodriguez were among six current and former army officers and six civilians ordered arrested by Alfonsin for alleged involvement in a series of bombings and threats against his 21-month-old elected government.

Test-tube births

LONDON (AP) — An Australian study published Saturday suggests that nearly half of all women who are impregnated through the test-tube baby technique fail to give birth and about 20 percent of the remainder have twins or triplets.

The study published in the British Medical Journal, official publication of the British Medical Association, also found that women undergoing the treatment are about three times more likely than other mothers to give birth prematurely. Because of the greater number of premature and multiple births, the rate of low birthweight also is higher among test-tube babies.

Past flops dog foreign policy

Instead of pursuing the president's goals, U.S. foreign policy often is manipulated to fit the purposes of high-level State Department holdovers from previous administrations.

That is the view of Evan G. Galbraith, former U.S. ambassador to France. He is in a position to know what he is talking about.

Much of the confusion of current and recent foreign policy may be traceable to the tug-of-war that comes from conflicting purposes. The spread of Soviet-Cuban subversion and influence in Central America and Africa was abetted by U.S. policy under President Jimmy Carter and also, unfortunately, under his predecessors who were knocked off guard by the turbulence of Watergate.

Massive destabilization of the Middle East and the proliferation of terrorist organizations, trained by the USSR and PLO and financed by Iran and Libya, occurred during the same period.

No doubt the decimation of U.S. counterintelligence and covert action capacity during the 1970s, when powerful factions in both the executive and legislative branches of government appeared determined to cripple U.S. ability to cope with growing terrorist threats, had much to do with present U.S. weakness in this dangerous sector.

If upper echelons of the State Department still contain individuals dedicated to assisting the spread of "progressive" — that is, Soviet aligned or radical Islamic anti-U.S. and anti-Western regimes — this could explain current and recent failures of U.S. policy in the Middle East and Africa.

Almost any attempt by the Reagan administration to conduct a coherent foreign policy, designed to protect and further the interests and security of the United States and its allies, faces a heavy risk of failure if hostile State Department holdovers are in a position to sabotage it.

The Reagan administration's foreign policy, like a fleet crossing mine-laden waters, will remain at the mercy of its internal foes until it roots the spoilers out.

No-play may mean showers for White

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White has thrown a touchdown every time he has touched the ball in the game of politics, but some spectators are wondering whether his current "Hail Mary" pass won't play into his opponents' hands.

White has been backed deep into his own territory by the controversy over the no-pass, no-play rule. That's the prohibition against public school students participating in extracurricular activities if they flunk any courses.

The rule came out of the 1984 special legislative session on school reform and has been in effect almost a year. It caused some problems with high school baseball playoffs, choir performances and other extracurricular activities last spring. Irate parents filed suits and others threatened to do so. But the controversy didn't really boil until this fall's football season was affected.

Messing around with high school football in Texas is serious business. Newspaper editors know they can misspell the mayor's name on the front page and hardly anyone will notice. But if they misprint the score of a local high school football game, well, they had better leave town for a while.

White, who has used his feel for the public pulse to win upset victories for attorney general in 1978 and governor in 1982, must recognize the danger in fooling around with Texas football fans. He must know a lot of people are upset because some of their teams' best players were benched by the rule after the first six-weeks grading period.

His strategy so far has been to assume that the best defense is a good offense. Months ago, the governor began a campaign to convince Texas voters that the state must bite the bullet in the name of quality education.

Maybe you've seen White in television spots with "Mean Joe" Greene telling kids that it's important to succeed in the classroom as well as on the playing field.

The controversy over the football season even brought national media attention, with White pointing out in numerous interviews that 85 percent of the football players passed all their courses thanks to the new stress on academics.

Our incumbent governor, who faces a re-election fight next year, is banking on the voters' support for tougher standards in public education. And normally that's a safe stand. Just about everyone is for quality education.

The problem is that not everyone agrees how to acquire that quality education and at what cost. And that disagreement leaves a lot of room for political maneuvering.

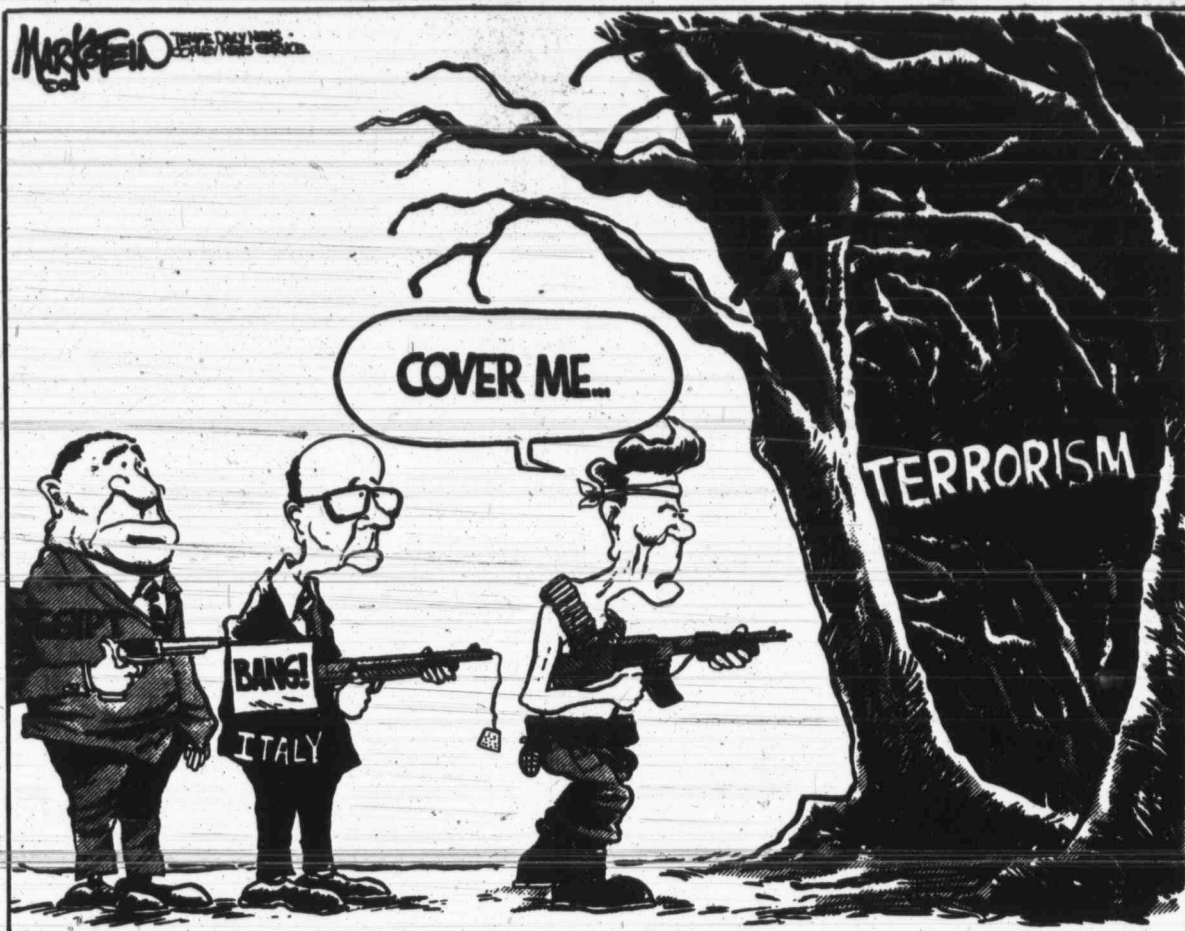

Bill Clements, the incumbent governor defeated by White in 1982, appears to be setting himself up to reap the benefits of the no-pass, no-play discontent.

Now running in the Republican primary for the right to challenge White next year, Clements says he supports the tougher standards of the school reform movement but questions whether the required six-week suspension for even one failure is too punitive.

It wouldn't be surprising to see Clements' current chief GOP opponents, former U.S. Rep. Kent Hance and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler, also finding ways in the coming months to prick White on the school reform issue.

By the time the November 1986 election showdown rolls around, school reform likely will be a hot campaign issue. And, remember, the election will come near the end of the 1986 high school football season and shortly after the school year's first grading period.

It's time for teacher quality

By JESSE TREVINO
The latest ruling by U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice regarding Texas education offers Mexican-American legislators, public interest groups and other Hispanic spokesmen an opportunity to improve the future of the community they represent.

But, to take advantage of the opportunity, the action necessary must be bold and imaginative — for it breaks the traditionally liberal mold in which Mexican-Americans have patterned their political behavior in Texas.

Judge Justice has suspended the use of the test colleges utilize to determine if a college student can be admitted into a teacher training program.

The test, Judge Justice says, is potentially discriminatory.

On many occasions and for many years, Judge Justice and the Mexican-American Legal Defense and Education Fund — which brought a complaint to Justice's courtroom that the test is discriminatory — have been synonymous with the progress Mexican-Americans have made in Texas in the last 20 years. Together, Justice and MALDEF have busted barriers and removed obstacles which stood in the way of the Mexican-American community.

But on this issue they are plainly wrong.

Yes, it is impossible to deny that large numbers of Mexican-American college students (about 70 percent) are failing the test. Almost as certain, however, is the arguable fact that it is the Texas public education system which is the culprit behind the present malaise of educating Mexican-American — or Anglos or blacks, for that matter.

The true transgression against Texas' Mexican-American students is committed not after they leave high school but long before, perhaps as far back as the first or second grade, when they get off on the wrong foot from the very start. That misfortune is compounded throughout their educational career — until they can't pass a teacher training test.

Instead of being an albatross around the neck of the Mexican-American community, the teacher training test may be the greatest boon since the poll tax was struck down.

What, then, is the answer? The educational reforms passed by the Legislature will take time — as long as a decade — to revolutionize the education Mexican-Americans receive.

What can be done now is to make certain that teachers who are not equipped to teach are not allowed to step inside a classroom.

The cycle of disappointment Texas schools represent for many Mexican-Americans must be broken.

That can be done by aggressive leadership by Mexican-American legislators who must stick to their guns concerning the test and then seek legislation providing required additional schooling for students who do not pass the test.

A college student's career and hopes cannot be short-circuited. It is not their fault that the public schools failed them. But neither can they be allowed to teach. This is precisely why Mexican-American lawmakers and organizations such as MALDEF have a special responsibility to both the college students who are failing the test and the Mexican-American students who will be entering college tomorrow.

The extra educational help now available to students failing the test is not the confidence builder the Texas educational system should aspire to today. The idea would not be to get students to pass the test as quickly as possible. The idea should be to equip them with tools that will make them good teachers.

That is why a full semester of basic skills education should be offered to every entering college freshman. If he or she opts not to take the courses, they should do so with the knowledge that they would be limited to only two opportunities to pass the test, not the unlimited number as it is now.

The problem we have today is a price we as a society and as taxpayers must pay for allowing our school systems to fester; it is the price Mexican-American college students must pay because they were the victims of unkind circumstance; and it is the price those who purport to lead the Mexican-American community must bear because it is their job.

The solution to the problem this time does not lie in the form of an easy answer from an old judicial ally. Mexican-Americans, having broken free of many obstacles with Justice's help in the past, must now break free from the crutch of stopping at the courtroom door and instead seek new, sometimes painful but positive steps to solve this problem.

There is no easy way out.

Billy Graham

Christianity is different

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am not a Christian because I come from a country where everyone belongs to a different religion. As far as I am concerned, every religion has its own ideas about truth and one is as good as another. Recently, however, one of my friends who is a Christian said this is wrong. What do you think? — F.P.

DEAR F.P.: If the Christian faith was simply based on the ideas of various men about God, then it would be just like any other religion. But the Christian faith makes a startling claim. It says that we do not need to guess and grope around in the dark trying to imagine what God is like.

Instead, it tells us that God has revealed Himself to us. Therefore, we can know what God is like because He has shown us.

How did He do this? By coming down from Heaven and walking on this earth in the Person of Jesus Christ. The Bible says "No one has ever seen God, but God the only Son, who is at the Father's side, has made Him known" (John 1:18).

But the Bible says more than this. It tells us that God loves us and wants us to become His children. The only way this can happen, however, is for us to be cleansed of our sins and reconciled to God — and He made this possible through Jesus Christ, who died as a sacrifice for our sins.

Jesus proved He is able to save us by rising from the dead. When we come to Christ by faith and commit our lives to Him, we are forgiven and become part of God's family forever.

Many Christian religious columns are distributed by Christian Services.

Education issues deserve attention

To the editor:

This letter is to commend you and the staff of the Herald for selecting and printing articles from the news services such as the one in the October 16th issue entitled "Study Shows Teaching Is Unattractive." Such information is specifically of interest to us who are in education, but since Texas and other states are currently involved in school reform, such information must also be of interest to the general public.

I am disappointed, however, that the Herald did not mention the trial last week (Oct. 15 and 16) of Dr. Jay Dee Martin in Midland federal court. Martin, an economics instructor at Midland College for eight years, was fired in June, 1984, allegedly for using profanity in the classroom. The jury found in Martin's favor and awarded him damages equal to his salary during the time he was unemployed. District Judge Lucius Burton still has to rule on the constitutionality of key issues including freedom of speech in the classroom, before giving final judgment in the case.

Since cases such as this one will likely develop precedence in school law and because they (for example, the Texas State Teachers Association suit against the Texas Association of School Boards) are of interest to large numbers of school employees, I am requesting that the Herald staff include more information in the newspaper about school litigation and the activities of the major teachers' organizations in Texas.

WFAA isn't worth additional cost

To the editor:

Before a petition is signed by the folks for continued coverage in the Big Spring area for WFAA-TV and KERA-TV, a few facts better be brought to light.

One radio station said that the increase to Big Spring will be to $3,000 for WFAA and $2,000 for KERA. Now, for both stations, it costs $2,600 a year. I don't think they are worth all this increase, and this so-called "Country Music" station that alternates with Ch. 8 — don't you get tired with all the same videos played over and over again? I do.

TI news shocks workers

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A shocked silence greeted news that Texas Instruments Inc.'s plan to weather a sharply depressed semiconductor industry did not include its College Station plant.

"It was a shock when someone tells you your job is going away," site manager Ed Kuehn said after TI announced Friday it was closing two plants, laying off 2,200 more employees and rearranging its operations.

"It was traumatic ... some cried," he said.

TI's College Station plant, which employs about 250 people, will be shut down along with the firm's 900-person operation in El Salvador, company spokesman Jim Bradbury said from TI's Dallas headquarters Friday.

In addition, the wafer-production facility at TI's Northwest Houston plant will close and be consolidated in Temple as the company tries to shave more than $70 million from its operating costs, Bradbury said.

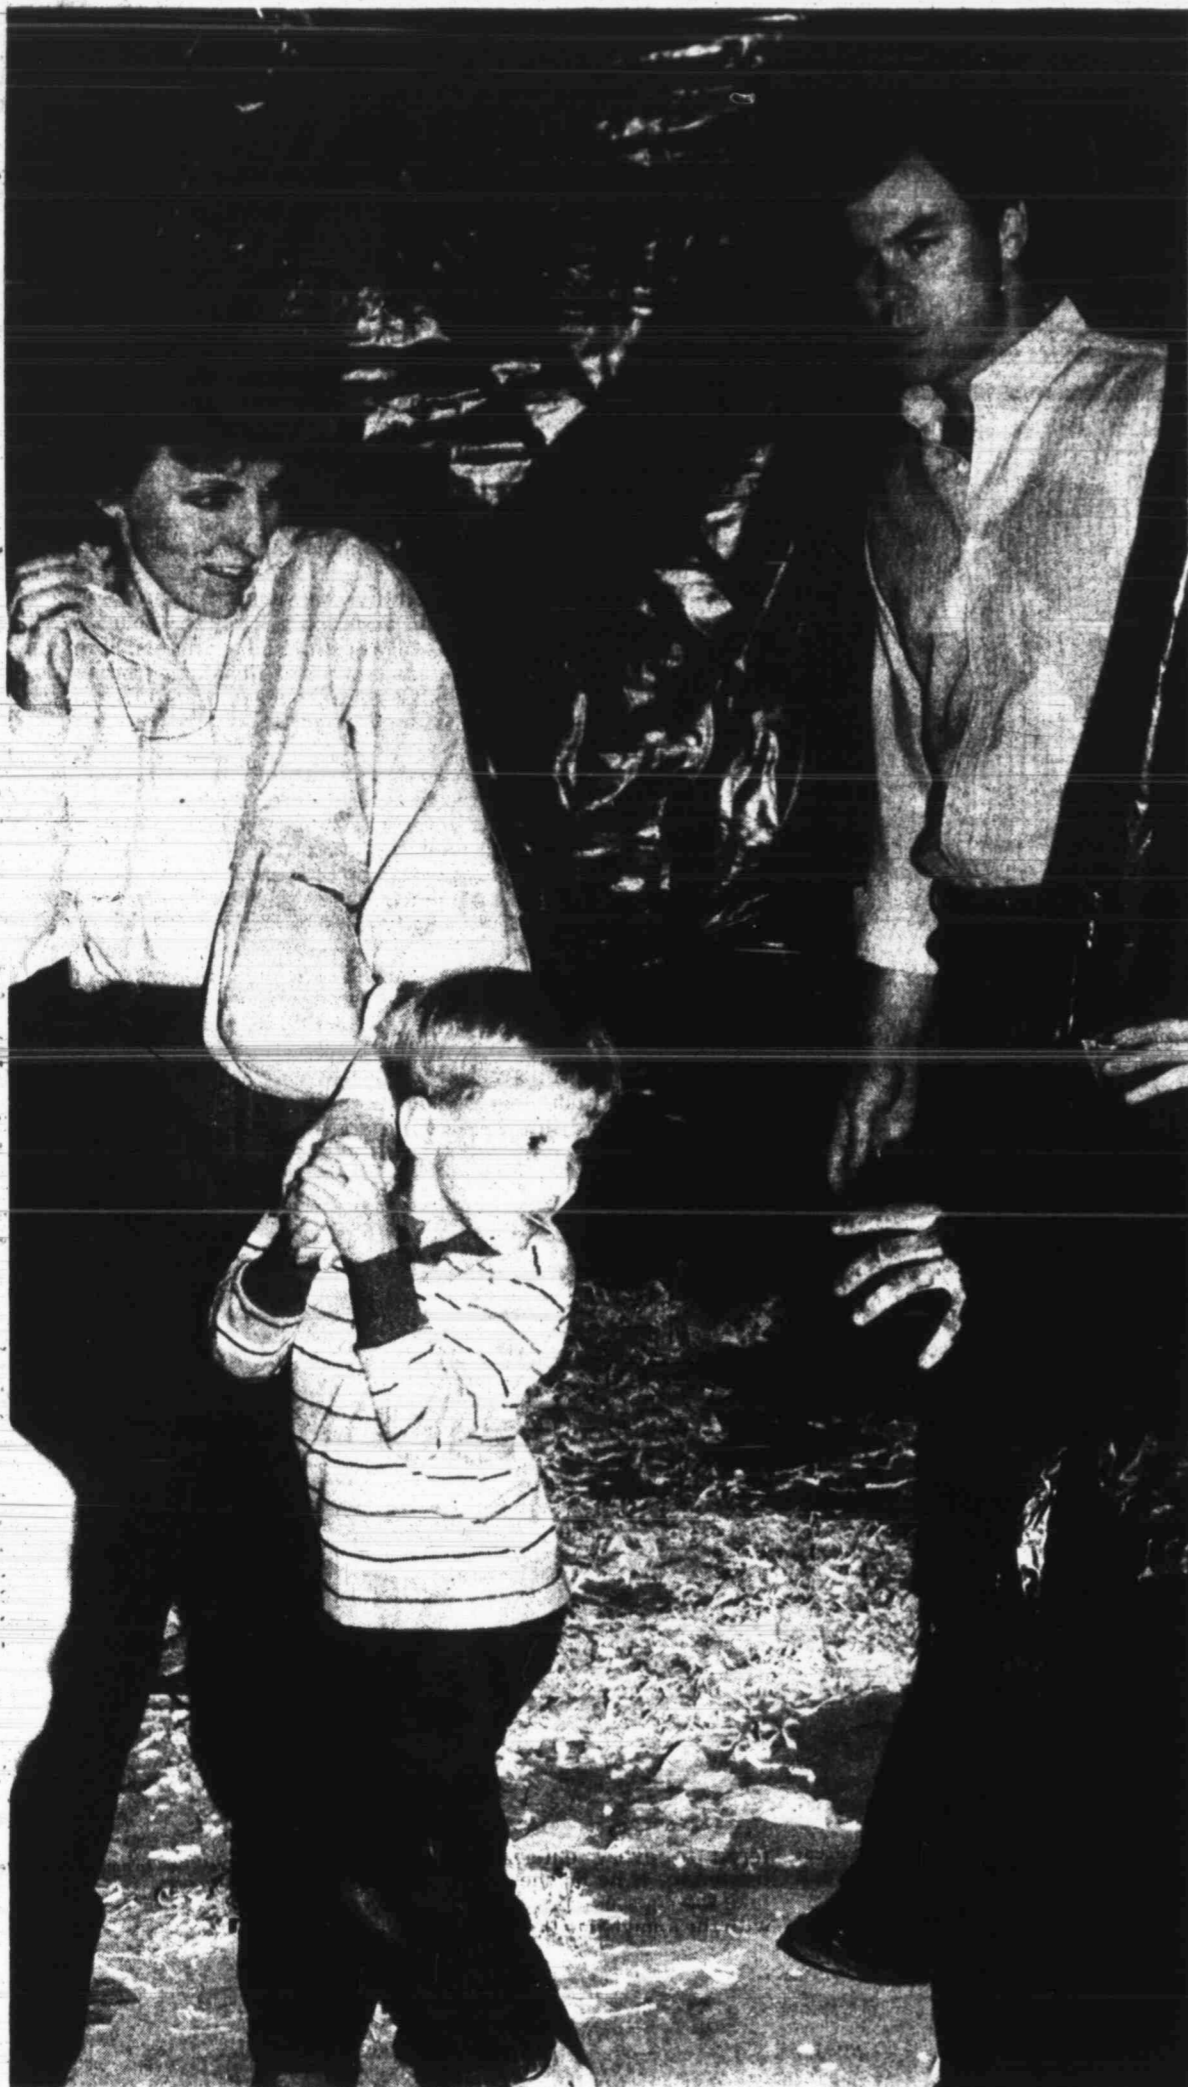

The job cuts bring to 7,000 the number of layoffs the company has been forced to make since the year began, he said. After the latest round, TI will employ about 80,000 people.

"I can't speculate on whether there will be further cuts in personnel," Bradbury said. "What we really need is an improvement in the semiconductor industry."

The layoff news followed another quarter of depressed earnings for the Dallas-based electronics firm.

Knott man witnesses attempted burglary

KNOTT — A Knott man told sheriff's deputies he witnessed an attempted burglary early Saturday morning at Bill Adam's trailer and cafe beside the Co-op Gin in Knott.

The man, whose name was withheld, said he heard what sounded like a door being kicked in and saw a light on in the trailer across from his own, according to sheriff's reports. When he went to investigate, the man said he saw someone stacking a stereo and television by the living room door of Adam's trailer.

When asked what he was doing, the burglar said he was helping the occupants move, the witness told deputies. The witness told the burglar "he knew better," and the subject ran out the front door, the report stated.

The witness said he saw a second subject in the cafe.

The two subjects drove off in a maroon Pontiac Grand Prix with a gray top, the witness said. He gave a possible license number, but that number was registered to an Oldsmobile, a deputy said.

Deputies found the television and stereo by the living room door and the door locked. The residents of the trailer were out of town, the report stated.

The front door of the trailer had pry marks on it, and a back window of the cafe had been forced open, the report said.

One of the burglars was described as a clean-shaven hispanic male, 20 to 25 years old, 5'8" tall, 160 to 180 pounds, with long hair. The witness said he didn't get a good look at the second subject.

Man hit by own truck

A man was treated at Malone-Hogan Hospital for injuries he suffered when he was run over by his own truck Saturday.

The truck rolled over Pablo Fierro Jara of 502 Willa when he failed to secure it after parking it, police reports stated.

Jara was treated and released from Malone-Hogan, a hospital spokesman said.

After running over Jara, the truck hit a fence at 1001 N.W. Main, according to police reports. The accident occurred at 4:59 a.m., police said.

Man ordered to pay $5,200

A San Angelo man must pay restitution fees of $5,200 and was placed on a five-year probated sentence after he pleaded no contest to a charge of theft over $750 but less than $20,000 in 118th District Court on Oct. 16.

Roger Blough of San Angelo was indicted by a Howard County grand jury of the charge in January. According to court records from the district clerk's office, Blough was charged with stealing communication equipment from David Murphy.

He is required to pay the restitution fees to Pro-Communications, Inc. of Big Spring and must also pay court costs of $102.

Juvenile jailing on agenda

A discussion about Howard county's compliance with the Federal Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act will highlight the commissioners court meeting at 9 a.m. Monday in the county courthouse.

The act requires counties to deinstitutionalize juvenile status offenders, separate juveniles from the sight and sound of adult jail detainees and, after Dec. 8, remove juveniles from adult jails and lockups.

DO A 1985 TAX ESTIMATE NOW

Doing an estimate of your 1985 income taxes will help you determine whether you have met the requirements for prepaying your taxes through withholding and estimated tax payments. You are required to have paid in at least 80% of the tax liability shown on your 1985 tax return or 100% of the tax shown on your 1984 return. The penalty for having paid in too little is currently 11% per annum. It is assessed on the difference between what you should have paid and what you actually paid.

If your income tax estimate shows your prepayments to be short, there is a solution to the problem if you pay your taxes through withholding as well as estimated payments. Simply have your employer increase your tax withholding from your wages. File a new Form W-4 claiming fewer exemptions and, if necessary, asking that even larger amounts of income tax be withheld.

Withholdings are treated as though they have been paid in equally throughout the year. Therefore, an increase in your withholding, even as late as from your December paycheck, will be treated along with your other withholdings as if it had been received evenly throughout the year. This is not true of your estimated tax payments. These quarterly payments are clearly marked as having been paid in on specific dates. If you try to eliminate penalties by boosting your fourth quarter estimated tax payment, you will be wiping out penalties for the fourth quarter only but retroactively for the first three quarters of the year. The 11% penalty will still be assessed for shortages in the first three quarters.

This illustration is just one area where you can save yourself money by doing a year-end tax estimate and then making indicated adjustments to minimize your tax liability or eliminate penalties that might otherwise be assessed.

Game pokes fun at yuppies

BOSTON (AP) — Don't ever say that yuppies have it easy. A perfectly ripe slab of Brie can be hard to find. A superlative Saab mechanic is rare. Spring skiing conditions can be so unpredictable.

And now yuppies have one more burden: a new board game that pokes fun at all those things they hold sacred, from gourmet mushrooms to $500 Persian kilts.

The Yuppie Game, which hits the shelves of toy stores nationwide this week, was invented by two Boston entrepreneurs who admit they are yuppies themselves.

"I've got a fast-track job and I'm a gourmet cook," said one of the inventors, Robin Landerman, a TV producer. "Some of my best friends are investment bankers. I have many characteristics of a young urban professional, but I like to think of myself as a yuppie with a conscience."

Landerman and artist Ann Benson, who drives a Volvo station wagon and lives in a renovated Victorian house, said their game is a tongue-in-cheek parody of the excesses of yuppie life.

"We're making fun of the pretentiousness, the $800 soup pot, the $5,000 imported dog," said Landerman, 28.

The $19.95 game is relatively simple to understand: Each player starts with $50,000 and a "Yuppie Express" card and travels around the board collecting dividends, paying tuitions, buying cars and meeting potential "marriage partners."

The game requires no skill.

just luck. A player rolls the dice, lands on a space and must follow the directions of a card drawn from one of five stacks: lifestyle, investments, possessions, "yupheavals" or family and career.

The game is won by the player who first achieves the seven yuppie goals: $150,000 in clear cash assets, a spouse, a fast-track career with a minimum salary of $40,000, at least one child, a private school for the "yupling," a home that could appear on the cover of Architectural Digest magazine and one turbo-charged automobile.

"Before you play, you need a bottle of white wine, Brie, some kiwi fruits and you have to be wearing Calvin Klein clothes," Benson joked.

Benson and Landerman said they spent 400 hours coming up with the 300 playing cards.

Says one: "After several Kir Royales at Sunday brunch, you accidentally use the word 'groovy.' Lose turn."

"Invest in a monogram removal business for recently yuppified preppies. Your initial profit is a letter-perfect $15K," says another.

"You are audited by the taxman. In the future, please try to refrain from deducting the cost of Perrier as prescription medicine. Pay bank $3,000."

"Divorce! Community property and yuplings are retained. Legal fees, additional therapy and video dating service total $5,000. Pay bank."

"Your triplets Sara, Kara and Tara have been chosen for a national TV commercial for all-natural yogurt. Annual residuals $15K."

Landerman and Benson said they realize their game is bound to offend some yuppies, but they don't expect yuppies to buy it anyway.

"We believe that the prime characteristic of being a yuppie is denying you're a yuppie," said Landerman.

This Transplant Blooms in Big Spring!

Donna Blackwell is a newcomer who has made Big Spring a nicer place to live! She came here with husband Jim who manages Sea Wings and fell in love with the people and the scenery. They fell at home almost upon arrival. After growing up in Tyler she attended Tyler Jr. College and U.T. Tyler majoring in Library Science and Business. Donna managed a bookstore there for 3½ years after she and Jim married.

The transition from East to West Texas was made easier because Donna's parents, Bruce and Margie Hogenmiller live here and had grown to truly love the community. Donna and Jim now try to make all the football games. They are very impressed with the Steer band and enjoy watching them perform. To keep active and alert, they are currently enrolled in Tae Kwon Do lessons!

Margie needed help running Spring City Uniforms and Donna wanted to meet people so she switched from books to uniforms and is truly a natural. The store moved to Highland Mall in July of '85 and they know immediately that it was a very good thing to do. The business is expanding into work garments of all types. Research, oilfield and business uniforms are also carried in the store. They stock men's shoes and uniforms for male nurses, restaurant garments, aprons, tunics and chefs hats.

As the needs of Big Spring have warranted, Spring City Uniforms has responded with professional jewelry, totebags, jackets and sweaters. Aprons, tunics and coveralls are also available in a wide variety of colors. Scrubs or "Dr. Shirts" have become very popular with the younger crowd. Spring City Uniforms is a part of the friendly home town merchant family of Highland Mall. Be sure to go by and meet Donna, she'll make you glad you live here too! # Humphrey the whale goes home

RIO VISTA, Calif. (AP) — Accompanied by cheers, flares and an armada of scientists, a 45-ton humpback whale finally headed for his ocean home Saturday, two weeks to the day after the confused mammal wandered into the fresh water of California's interior.

Officials had hoped to stay with the wandering whale, nicknamed Humphrey and E.T., but they lost him as darkness fell over the Sacramento River delta Friday.

"We very much expect he may not be trouble at all to find," Sheridan Stone of the National Marine Fisheries Service said Saturday. Humphrey is the size of a bus.

Aerial flares and spotlights glared over the moonlit river delta Friday night as a dozen boats searched fruitlessly for the whale, which slipped from sight after moving seaward for more than three hours.

Friday afternoon, he finally was coaxed under the narrow Liberty Island bridge, which had kept him trapped in Shag Slough, 20 miles southeast of Sacramento, for several days. The whale swam under the bridge on his way inland, but biologists said they thought he was too scared of the vibrations from traffic on it to attempt to go back.

The 40-foot-long whale, grunting and whistling and followed by the cheers of spectators, moved into the main body of the river less than three hours after he was coaxed under the bridge.

Hundreds of spectators lined the banks to catch a glimpse of the confused humpback. But most had to settle instead for watching the man-made spectacle that had evolved along the Sacramento River, about 55 miles from San Francisco Bay.

Humphrey became trapped in the river two weeks ago after making a wrong-way turn into San Francisco Bay on his migration south down the Pacific coast from Alaska to Mexico.

Whales need salt water to thrive, and biologists say the extended stay in fresh water has hurt Humphrey's health, causing problems with his eyes, skin and respiratory system.

After a period of leaving the whale alone, expecting that he might find his own way back to the safety of the Pacific Ocean, marine biologists decided to take drastic steps to ease his way home.

Experts were using submerged sounds from metal pipes and electronic "pingers" that emit random, high-frequency sounds to persuade him to swim down river. The pingers are special transmitters that send periodic beeps, similar to the sounds of chimers.

"The way the whale is being moved involves a little irritation, by design," said Ken Norris, a marine biologist.

"The trick is to keep a little pressure on him so he'll go in the right direction. There was irritation when he blew water into the air, too, but it's either that (irritate the whale) or let him die."

Striking fluid-filled pipes with mallets is a process that has been used by Japanese fishermen to drive dolphins away from their catch. But it has never been employed on large whales, said biologist Stone.

Car crash kills 3 teens

TUSCOLA (AP) Three teenagers were killed and two seriously injured after their car crashed head-on into a bus south of this West Texas community, authorities said.

Six of 18 people aboard the Sunset Stages bus, which was making a run from San Angelo to Abilene, were also injured, one of them seriously.

Tim Dean, the bus driver, said he was driving north on U.S. Highway 83 shortly after 7 p.m. Friday with 17 passengers aboard when the southbound car "just drifted" into the northbound lanes.

Dean said he swerved to avoid the car, but couldn't.

Trooper Bobby Shea said those killed in the car included the driver, Robert Green, 17; Joe Cavazos, 18; and John Key, 17; all of Winters.

Two other people in Green's car Chance Blackwood, 18, and Tony Terrel, 15, both of Winters were injured. Blackwood was in critical condition and Terrel was in stable condition Saturday at Abilene's Humana Hospital, a hospital spokeswoman said.

One of the bus passengers, Martha Barham, who asked that her hometown and age not be released, was in stable condition at Humana, the spokeswoman said.

Nelda Hancock, 56, of Clyde, also was in stable condition and four other passengers were treated for minor injuries Friday, Shea said.

Sunset Stages is an Abilene-based bus line with regular runs to many West Texas cities.

Trick-or-treating bad for kids, says expert

DALLAS (AP) — Child development expert James Campbell feels a little like the Grinch that stole Halloween.

He thinks scary things are bad for little kids, trick-or-treating is a perilous affair and Halloween masks can be dangerous.

"I hate to be the bearer of bad tidings," the North Texas State University professor said affably as he dispensed some pointers for a safe Halloween.

Campbell is going against the grain of traditions that have their roots in ancient pagan festivals of harvest and death.

After 2,000 years, the symbols and mythology of the autumnal holiday have lost their power over most adults.

But for little children, who Campbell said see reality and process information differently than adults, Halloween can be genuinely frightening.

It can trigger deep, basic fears of the unknown or of abandonment, he said.

"You see a lot of post-Halloween nightmares," he said. The witches, goblins, ghosts, skeletons and monsters that dominate Halloween paraphernalia can be taken literally by preschool children, Campbell said.

Masks and costumes can transform a familiar person into an unfamiliar object of true terror. They can also make children feel and act differently.

"When they put costumes on, they become that persona," he explained.

Campbell suggests non-threatening costumes.

"People should choose friendly masks and costumes," he said. "Pumpkins and puppy dogs."

He also worries about masks, which can obscure vision and make it hard for little children to breathe. Instead, he suggests face painting.

Campbell said the holiday is further complicated by the dangers of sending children out into the uncertain streets of modern America.

Every year, there are reports of poisoned or spiked treats, traffic accidents, or worse.

"We don't live in a society anymore where children can be free to roam through the neighborhoods," Campbell said.

Trick-or-treating also can confuse small children by suggesting that it is all right to knock on strangers' doors, Campbell said.

"This may be practice for something that's not appropriate," he said. "It's difficult for them to understand there's only one night out the year when you can knock on strangers' doors."

Instead, Campbell recommends parties at home or carefully arranged trick-or-treating with close friends.

Law enforcement officials also discourage trick-or-treating, said Dallas Police Department spokesman Ed Spencer.

The practice is on the decline, he said, but "knowing full well that some people will do it anyway," police have issued guidelines.

They say children should stick to their immediate neighborhood, accept only factory-sealed treats and examine them before eating, call only at homes with porch lights, wear bright costumes easily seen by motorists and makeup instead of masks.

"Parents and kids alike should exercise extreme caution," Spencer said.

Campbell would like parents to downplay the frightening aspect of Halloween and focus on the positive side.

"The message we should offer to kids, is that this is a time when people should be together to celebrate the changing of the seasons," he said. "It can help attune little children to the environment."

Campbell favors party activities like bobbing for apples.

CHILD DEVELOPMENT expert James Campbell from North Texas State University adjusts the costume of his 20-month-old son, Trevor. Campbell says things scary things are bad for little kids and suggests that the message offered to children be that Halloween is a time for people to celebrate the changing of the seasons.

Bentsen requests blueprint for more trade with Mexico

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen Saturday said he is requesting the International Trade Commission to develop a new blueprint for increased trade between Mexico and the United States.

Bentsen, D-Texas, said creation of "free trade zones" designed to ease tariff restrictions on imports is not enough to spark a sagging border economy still reeling from two Mexican peso devaluations.

"What they're doing is increasing the imports from Mexico but not really increasing exports to Mexico," said Bentsen, a member of the Senate Finance Committee, which has jurisdiction over trade.

Selling goods to Mexico requires a license agreement, which is difficult to obtain, Bentsen explained. Thus, he said free trade zones actually hamper U.S. trade to Mexico.

Sen. Robert Packwood, an Oregon Republican who chairs the Senate Finance Committee, has agreed to request the study from the ITC on behalf of the panel, Bentsen said.

Cardiac Kansas City forces 7th Series game

Kansas City second baseman FRANK WHITE makes the pivot on a double play over sliding St. Louis catcher DARRYL PORTER in the sixth game of the World Series in Kansas City Saturday night.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A dream came true for Dane Iorg Saturday night and moved the Kansas City Royals within one step of the ultimate comeback in a season of dreamlike comebacks.

Iorg drove in two runs with a one-out, pinch single in the bottom of the ninth inning to rally the Royals to a 2-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals and force a deciding seventh game in the World Series.

"How many kids get the opportunity to hit in that situation?" Iorg asked. "I've dreamed about it all my life. It's certainly a thrill."

The dream of winning a 10th world championship on this night turned into a nightmare for the Cardinals, who had gone ahead in the eighth inning with a pinch RBI single of their own by Brian Harper.

"We had the World Series won tonight," Cards Manager Whitey Herzog said. "I still think it's a last."

Harper's go-ahead single for the Cardinals came off Royals left-hander Charlie Leibrandt, who lost Game 2 of the Series after taking a two-hit shutout into the ninth inning and who appeared headed for another heart-breaker until the ninth. He retired the first 15 batters he faced and set down the Cardinals in order six of the first seven innings but stood to be the loser again.

Iorg's hit came off Todd Worrell, who had tied a World Series record by striking out 13 batters, a botched sacrifice bunt attempt, a passed ball and an intentional walk.

"I wasn't nervous," Iorg said. "I have to concentrate on other things. I've pinch hit in other situations. I knew this was the most important."

Now, with Game 7 scheduled for Sunday night, the Royals face the last hurdle in their comeback of comebacks. And they must do it against the ace of St. Louis' staff, John Tudor, who will face the Royals' ace, Bret Saberhagen, in the first seventh-game matchup of 20-game winners since 1962.

Tudor already has won twice in the Series and Saberhagen once. The Royals came back from one game behind California in the final week of the season to win the American League West, then rallied from 2-0 and 3-1 deficits to beat Toronto in the AL playoffs.

They lost the first two games to the Cardinals here, a situation from which no World Series team has ever recovered, then they fell behind 3-1, a deficit from which only five teams have recovered.

"It started in Toronto," Royals Manager Dick Howser said. "We've had a lot of big ballgames and a lot of big losses. And we're looking at John Tudor tomorrow, so there's no need to get too excited yet. But we've got our best guy going, too."

The winning rally saved Howser from more second-guessing. He stayed with Leibrandt one batter too long in Game 2, despite having bullpen stopper Dan Quisenberry warming up. And Saturday night, he passed up the chance to pinch hit for Leibrandt with two on, two out and no score in the seventh.

Jorge Orta started the rally with an infield single to first base. Jack Clark fielded the ball and threw to Worrell covering, but first base umpire Don Denkinger ruled that Orta beat Worrell to the bag.

The Cardinals argued briefly that Orta had missed the bag, but he remained there as Steve Balboni came to bat. Balboni fouled the first pitch high in the air and it dropped untouched in front of the Royals' dugout as Clark and catcher Darrell Porter converged on it.

Balboni, the home run hitter who has yet to get an extra-base hit in the postseason, fouled off another pitch, then lined a single through the left side that sent Orta to second.

After taking two balls and then fouling off two bunt attempts, Jim Sundberg laid down a bunt that Worrell fielded toward the third-base side. The Cardinals' pitcher threw to third to force Orta for the first out.

Onix Concepcion ran for Balboni, who had taken second on the play, and a passed ball by Porter allowed both runners to advance one base. Pinch-hitter Hal McRae was walked intentionally after the passed ball and Iorg came up.

Iorg took one pitch out of the strike zone before lining a single into right field that scored both Concepcion and Sundberg, who just beat the throw from Andy Van Slyke.

That bailed out Howser, who until had lost his battle of pinch-hitting strategy to Herzog.

Herzog had pinch hit for his starting pitcher, Danny Cox, and it paid off with Harper's soft, sailing bloop into shallow center field that scored Terry Pendleton in the top of the eighth.

Cox, who beat Leibrandt with the help of four ninth-inning runs in Game 2, allowed seven hits in seven innings in a duel of differing demeanors.

He pitched in and out of trouble as the Royals stranded leadoff runners three times. Cox, 18-9 during the season, struck out eight and didn't walk a batter until the seventh inning.

More importantly, the Cardinals held Royals star George Brett hitless in four at-bats.

Big Spring one away from volleyball title

By CHARLIE ALCORN Sports Writer

In a weekend full of nice surprises for the Big Spring athletic teams, Lady Steer volleyball coach Susan Sharpe held the best for last.

She kept quietly to herself as the Lady Steers polished off a tenacious Odessa High squad 15-13, 15-9 before a full Steer Gymnasium Saturday afternoon. After the victory, she announced that Big Spring had broken into the Texas Coaches Association 5A top 10 at the eighth position.

Not a bad way to end an auspicious weekend of Steer sports.

The Lady Steers certainly looked like a top 10 team this afternoon led by the spiking of Monique Jones and hustling defense in the backcourt. The win put Big Spring one victory away from the 4-5A district title with an 11-1 loop record. They can clinch the championship with a victory over Abilene High next Tuesday in Abilene.

In the first game, Big Spring and Odessa traded points at 5-5 when OHS netter Risa King went to the service line and recorded six straight points. The Lady Bronchos benefited from five unforced errors by the Lady Steers and a service winner to open a commanding 11-3 lead.

This outburst woke Big Spring up, and quick. Following a Jones spike ending the OHS rally, Sheri Myrick took the service and reeled off nine straight points to put the Lady Steers back in front 14-11. In the rally, Katrina Thompson and Jones each had two winners while OHS suffered four unforced errors.

Shundra Williams brought the Lady Bronchos to within a point of catching the Lady Steers at 14-13, but Jones killed the threat again with a fierce spike from the left corner.

On the next service, Tammi Green's kill gave Big Spring the first game victory, 15-13.

The second game turned into a marathon as neither team could sustain a rally of more than three points. There were 43 service exchanges in the game that lasted over 30 minutes.

The lead switched back and forth in the early going. OHS's tall front line girls, Connie Kruse, Brana Haggard and King gave the Lady Steers problems throughout the game with excellent blocking and spiking.

OHS held a slim 4-2 lead when Jones served the first of seven service points in the game. Her two aces and a Thompson kill got the Lady Steers back on top 5-4.

The service went around again before Jones took to the line for an identical three point burst. Her two aces and an unforced OHS error gave the Lady Steers a 10-7 lead they would never surrender.

Lisa Hale came through with a pair of crucial spikes and then served for two points late in the game to extend Big Spring's lead to 13-8.

Myrick served an ace to make the score 14-9 before Tab Green finished off the Lady Bronchos with a soft tip over the OHS line.

KATRINA THOMPSON sends the ball back over the net on one her fine defensive plays of the match against the Odessa High Lady Bronchos Saturday afternoon at Steer Gym.

SA Central captures 4-5A X-Country titles

San Angelo Central proved to be the 4-5A Cross Country kingpins as they swept both boys and girls team events at the 4-5A District Cross Country championships Saturday morning at the old Webb Air Base golf course.

It was not an easy sweep for the Bobcat girls, who needed a tiebreaking 14th place finish by Gabrielle Rocap to beat Abilene High after the two team's first five runners had tied with a low score of 31.

According to UIL rules, if two teams are tied after tallying the five top finishers, the runner with the best sixth place finish serves as the tiebreaker.

The girls varsity event, a two mile run, was won by Central's Cindy McClure with a time of 12:42. Abilene High grabbed the next three places, while Central placed 8th, 9th and 10th to force the 31-31 tie.

The highest finish for a Big Spring runner was 21st place by Helga Lysaght with a time of 17:20.

The Lady Steers finished fourth as a team with a total of 102 points.

Big Spring runner Julie Byrd placed fourth in the JV race with a time of 17:45. There was no girls junior varsity team competition.

Other Big Spring runners included Maria Sanchez, 27th, with a time of 18:42, and Lisa Hain, 30th, with a time of 19:23.

In the boys competition, Central easily outdistanced second place Midland High by the score of 36 to 50. Midland Lee was third with 75 points, Odessa Permian fourth with 98, Abilene Cooper fifth with 108 and Odessa High sixth with 137. Big Spring did not have enough runners to compete in the team event.

Midland Lee harrier Mike Garza won the boys three mile event with a time of 16:22. Hill Garren of Central was second at 16:30 and Ruiz Valdemar of Midland High was third at 16:36.

Big Spring runner Roland Montana had a fine sixth place performance, finishing just 25 seconds off the winning pace at 16:47.

Other Big Spring finishers included Juan Baldwin, 28th, with a time of 18:50, Dax McCracken, 32nd, with a time of 19:24, and Calvin Harrison, 38th, with a time of 20:25.

San Angelo Central also won the boys junior varsity team title.

Central and Midland High's boys teams, and the girls teams from Central and Abilene High qualified for next Saturday's 5A Regional competition in Lubbock by virtue of their first and second places finishes. The top five individual finishers also qualified for the Regional meet being run in Lubbock's Mae Simmons Park.

19,000 expected to run in record New York Marathon

NEW YORK (AP) — A record assault by Ahmed Saleh, a 29-year-old soldier from Djibouti, and a shot at a seventh victory by Grete Waitz, a 32-year-old former schoolteacher from Norway, feature the 16th New York City Marathon today.

The race has attracted more than 19,000 runners, a record.

Saleh, winner of the 1985 World Cup Marathon at Hiroshima, Japan, last April in 2 hours, 8 minutes, 9 seconds, the fifth-fastest clocking in history, thinks he can beat the world-best of 2:07:12, set in April by Olympic gold medalist Carlos Lopes of Portugal.

"I try every time to break the world record," said Saleh, a hero in his native country, which is about the size of New Hampshire and has a population of about 320,000, smaller than New Hampshire.

Before getting his first look at the course, which winds through New York's five boroughs and ends in Central Park, Saleh said that if it was not hilly, "I think of a time of 2:07." The course is relatively flat.

"If I don't break the world record in New York, I will break it next year," said Saleh, a winner of two marathons and a second-place finisher twice in seven marathons. "I want to be the best marathoner. I will not be the best until then. I am confident I can break the world record."

Waitz, winner of the New York City Marathon six of the past seven years, has no such illusions of running faster than the women's world best of 2:21:06, held by her countrywoman, Ingrid Kristiansen. But she is intent on winning the 26-mile, 385-yard race for the seventh time.

Another victory would enable Waitz to equal the record for the second-most successes in one marathon event, held by Clarence DeMar, winner of the Boston Marathon seven times between 1911-1930. The record is eight marathon victories, by John J. Kelley, winner of the Yonkers (N.Y.) Marathon from 1956-63.

"I would like to do it, win seven times, as the first woman," said Waitz, winner of the New York City race from 1978-80 and 1982-84.

Waitz's fastest marathon time is 2:25:29, at London in 1983. She said that with favorable conditions today she could go under that clocking. However, her physical condition has been sub-par. Waitz has been suffering from a cold since she left Oslo last week and has lost some valuable training time.

"I can't see any reason why I can't get a personal record," said Waitz. "My first goal is to win, my next to run faster than my record. I will be concentrating on my goal, winning the New York City Marathon."

Challenging Saleh in the men's field will be a mixed bag of veteran and first-time marathoners.

The experienced runners include Bill Rodgers, winner of the New York and Boston marathons four times each; Frank Shorter, the 1972-Olympic gold medalist and 1978 silver medalist; Britain's Geoff Smith, winner of the last two Boston marathons and the New York runner-up in 1983; Italy's Orlando Pizzolato, the defending New York champion and winner of the 1985 World University Games marathon; Gerard Nijboer of the Netherlands, the 1980 Olympic silver medalist; Ron Tabb, the 1983 Boston runner-up and third in New York that year; Tanzania's Gidamis Shahanga, the 1978 Commonwealth Games champion, and his countryman, Zakariah Barie, the world's top-ranked road racer last year.

The first-time marathoners who have distinguished themselves in long-distance races on the track or on the roads include Kenyans Ibrahim Hussein and Joseph Kipsang, Britons Julian Goater, Tony Staynings and Colin Moore, Tanzania's Suleiman Nyambui, and Dan Aldridge of the United States.

The woman's field also has several notable entries. In addition to Waitz, there are six runners who have broken 2:30 — American Julie Brown, Lisa Martin of Australia, Lorraine Moller of New Zealand, Laura Fogli of Italy, Jacqueline Gareau of Canada and 41-year-old Priscilla Welsh of Britain.

Also entered are two former owners of the world best — Christa Vahlensieck of West Germany and Chantal Langlade of France — along with Marianne Dickerson of the United States, the silver medalist in the 1983 World Championships.

The race, which begins at 9:45 a.m. CST, will be telecast live for three hours by ABC, with air time at 9:30.

Rams, Bears look to remain spotless

The Associated Press
The Chicago Bears overpower people. The Los Angeles Rams just win. Together, they'll be trying today to do something that hasn't been done in the National Football League for 51 years. Not since 1934, when the Bears and Detroit Lions did it, have two NFL teams started the season with eight straight wins. It will happen again if the Rams beat the San Francisco 49ers and the Bears beat the Minnesota Vikings, and it will also mean that two division races are effectively over at the midway point of the NFL season.

The game in Anaheim is the latest in a series that could also be called "The 49ers' Last Stand." The defending Super Bowl champions, 18-1 last year, have lost two straight to fall to 3-4. They could drop five games behind the Rams in the NFC West and would then be in trouble, even for a wild-card playoff berth. The Rams, meanwhile, can afford a loss. But they'd like to win this one to quiet the critics who contend their 7-0 record is built on lucky wins over second-rate teams. The Rams' latest win was a 16-0 decision over Kansas City last Sunday in which their offense, now ranked 25th in the 28-team league, accounted for just 184 yards, while the defense intercepted six passes and forced a fumble. The Bears, on the other hand, do overwhelm people. Most recently, it was the Green Bay Packers, 23-7 Monday night, in a game highlighted by the use of 325-pound defensive tackle William Perry at fullback in goal-line situations. Perry ran for one touchdown and cleared the way for Walter Payton on two others.

Chicago leads the league in points scored — 212, or an average of 30 a game. The Bears have allowed just 105 points, fourth best in the league. And they've made offbeat and trick plays — like the Perry switch — a regular part of their repertoire. The Vikings, meanwhile, qualify as the NFL's comeback team of the year. At 4-3, they already have one more victory than they had all of last season, and beating the Bears would give them a clear shot at a wild card — with the easier half of their schedule coming up.

Houston linebacker GARY McGUIRE stops Arkansas quarterback MARK CALCAGNI as he dives for extra yardage Saturday in Little Rock.

SWC Roundup SMU routs 'Horns

IRVING (AP) — Not only will Southern Methodist's 44-14 strapping of the Texas Longhorns Saturday count in the Southwest Conference standings it will be a historic flogging they should never forget. "Who would have thought it would come out like this?" said SMU Coach Bobby Collins after the Mustangs' biggest victory over the Longhorns in the history of the series.

"I'd say we are mighty pleased," said Collins. "We got some turnovers coming our way and cashed in on them."

Texas Coach Fred Akers had raised the Mustangs' hackles by saying SMU's games shouldn't count in the SWC standings.

"Sure our games should count," said Collins. "The league already decided that. We have to play everybody, you know. We are just as proud as we can be."

Akers said the loss "was really disappointing. We had seven turnovers. We kept giving it to them enough that they finally realized they could win."

"We had a day like this in 1981 when Arkansas beat us 42-11. We just can't afford to get down."

Reggie Dupard scored four touchdowns and linebacker Kit Case intercepted two passes in the rout.

It was Texas' worst loss to SMU in the 69-year history of the series and was the Mustangs' first victory against the 'Horns in Texas Stadium. Texas' previous worst loss to SMU was 20-0 in 1935 and no Longhorn team had ever yielded so many points to the Mustangs. SMU, which is on probation and not eligible to win the SWC title, is now 4-2 overall and 3-1 in conference games. Texas dropped to 4-2 overall and 2-1 in SWC play because SMU's games count in the standings for the Mustangs' opponents.

A&M 43, Rice 28
HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M's Anthony Toney and Roger Vick each ran for two touchdowns and safety Domingo Bryant intercepted three passes, one a 49-yard touchdown return, to lead the Aggies to a 43-28 Southwest Conference victory over Rice Saturday.

The Aggies, 5-2 for the season and 3-1 in SWC games, ended Rice's winning streak at two games. The Owls dropped to 3-4 for the season and 2-2 in the SWC. Toney's touchdown runs of five and two yards, Vick's 1-yard dive and quarterback Kevin Murray's 11-yard touchdown pass to Shea Walker rallied the Aggies to a 29-19 halftime lead.

The Owls took a 12-7 first-quarter lead on runs of two yards by Wayland Mason and three yards by Antonio Brinkley.

Rice freshman quarterback Quentis Roper hit a 67-yard touchdown bomb to Darrick Wells in the second quarter.

Bryant returned a third-quarter pass by Roper 49 yards for a touchdown and Vick's 46-yard touchdown run opened up a 43-22 lead.

Bryant also had a second-quarter interception that set up Walker's 11-yard touchdown catch and picked off his third pass in the fourth quarter at his own 10-yard line.

Bears 45, TCU 0

WACO (AP) — Three Baylor players — flankers Horace Ates and Darnell Chase and running back Charles Perry — scored their first touchdowns of the season Saturday as the No. 13 Bears crushed Texas Christian 45-0 in Southwest Conference football.

Perry, a 188-pound freshman, followed his 7-yard scoring run in the first half with a 55-yard touchdown dash in the fourth quarter.

Baylor, the SWC leader with a 5-0 conference record, celebrated its homecoming before 42,500 fans with a 28-point second-quarter explosion and 31-0 halftime lead.

Terry Syler started Baylor's scoring in the first quarter with a 40-yard field goal after Jack Hurd intercepted a pass by Texas Christian freshman quarterback David Rascoe.

Ates capped a 20-yard drive by scoring from the TCU 3 after Rascoe fumbled a center snap.

A 45-yard pass from quarterback Tom Muecke to Chase, a redshirt freshman, built the Baylor lead to 17-0, and Perry's 7-yard run raised the margin to 24-0.

Hogs 57, Cougars 27

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Backup quarterback Mark Calcagni completed five of his first eight passes for 166 yards and two touchdowns and guided 14th-ranked Arkansas to five straight scores in a 57-27 victory over Houston in a Southwest Conference football game Saturday.

Starting quarterback and former San Angelo Central star Greg Thomas suffered a hyperextended knee on the second play of the game.

Time after time, as Arkansas built a 31-13 halftime lead, the Razorbacks receivers got behind a Houston secondary fooled by play fakes.

Calcagni, a fifth-year senior, took Arkansas 80 yards in 12 plays, 71 yards in six plays, 77 yards in three plays and 80 yards in eight plays for second-quarter touchdowns.

The last two drives ended with passes of 51 yards to Bobby Joe Edmonds and 32 yards to James Shibest. Nobody was close to either one of them.

The first drive included a 37-yard pass to Donnie Centers and the second drive featured a 36-yard pass to Shibest.

Arkansas made 316 yards in the first half against a Houston defense that had given up 80 points in its last two games and at least 24 points to each of its six previous opponents. Arkansas topped 50 points against a SWC opponent for the first time.

Arkansas, a week after a two-point loss to Texas, upped its record to 6-1 and 3-1 in the SWC. Houston is 1-6 and 0-4.

Houston quarterback Gerald Landry, third in the SWC in total offense, had 194 yards in the first half but threw two interceptions. He did throw a 2-yard scoring pass to Anthony Ketchum with 15 seconds left in the half, the Cougars' first touchdown against Arkansas since 1981.

Puppy Love

D.T. marches up the hospital steps. Her mission: to perk up the patients.

She's a veteran at this. It's her sixth trip. The mechanical doors open. She struts her stuff, head held high as she leads the way to the elevator. She knows where she's going, what her duty is.

She and other homeless hounds make trips to the Veterans Administration Medical Center twice a month with members of the Big Spring Humane Society at the other end of their leashes.

The pet therapy program using Humane Society animals was implemented in July.

"It's an excellent program," said Adrian Bankowski, recreation therapist at the V.A. Hospitals and nursing homes across the nation have caught on to the treatment, he said. The Humane Society will soon be taking pets to the Big Spring State Hospital twice a month, said Ronda Doe, a member of the Humane Society.

"Most people have had pets in their life; so, most people are receptive to pets," said Bankowski. "A bond between animals and people is one of the closest we could have."

Bringing pets to the hospital for visits "allows the residents to care for something," he said.

"When we come, a lot of them really seem happy," said Doe about the patients. "They start telling you about a dog they once had."

"It makes one feel good to see them happy, because I know they don't get out much," she said.

At first, both the pets and the patients kept their distance, Bankowski said. The patients "really didn't understand what we were there for," said Doe. "The first couple of times they weren't as warm as they are now."

While working at a nursing home in Minneapolis, Bankowski started a pet therapy program with a house dog. Some residents at the home also had parakeets. He incorporated a pet therapy program at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Sioux Falls, S.D.

"Our ultimate goal would be like to have some gerbils, parakeets and maybe a house dog, if that's possible," Bankowski said. Because the nursing home unit is on the sixth floor, is would be difficult to care for the pet.

Fish aquariums have been placed in the nursing home and intermediate care units.

Pet therapy is "very popular now," said Bankowski. Veterans hospitals in the southwest region including Phoenix, Ariz., Los Angeles, Calif. and Big Spring had a teleconference on the therapy recently.

"We exchanged ideas — what programs were working, not working, some of the advantages of pet therapy, some of the disadvantages," he said.

It was concluded that pet therapy lowers blood pressure and heart rate, increase self worth and self esteem, said Bankowski, who participated in the conference.

A disadvantage discussed in the conference was the negative attitude of the staff.

The most important part of a pet therapy program is "cooperation with the staff and the administration," Bankowski said. "You need that support, and we're getting that."

"People are really reluctant to change," Bankowski said. "So, anything new like a pet therapy program, they just kind of wait and see," he said.

Bankowski is asking members of the V.A. staff to bring their pets to the hospital for a day to visit with the patients.

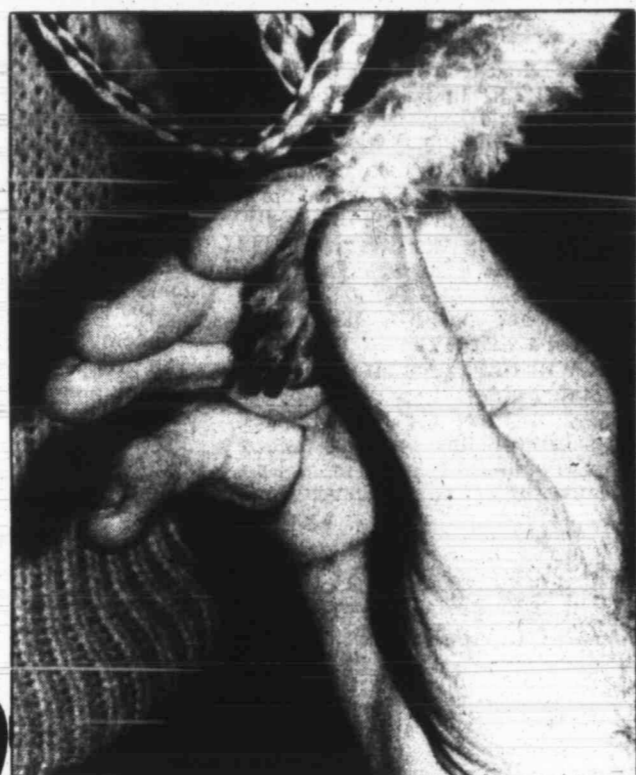

Who's responsible for the care and upkeep of the pet is important and can sometimes be a problem, he said. But "the advantages definitely outweigh the disadvantages."

"We want to continue the program," Bankowski said. "It's really worth while."

High school exes in town for special weekend

By CAROL BALDWIN Lifestyle Editor

It's Homecoming weekend in Big Spring, and that means a number of folks are in town catching up on old times and visiting friends and family.

The Class of 1975 observed its 10th reunion with parties, a barbecue and a dance.

Some folks traveled a long way to get here, according to LEANN BRAZEL MATTHEWS, one of the organizers of the event.

LINDA LITTLE and DICK EARHART traveled from California, while ANN WORTHY came from Michigan. From Colorado was BRUCE CHRISTICH, and from Missouri was SHARON JENKINS ROBB. Coming from West Virginia was Dr. CLIFF THOMAS, and from New Mexico was RICHARD CRANDALL. In from Oklahoma were DR. MARK MORGAN, KEVIN REYNOLDS and ANN SHARP

MURPHY, NANCY CURRINGTON TOMS was here from Arizona.

Others drove in from points around the state, including JOE PUGA of Houston, son of Mr. and Mrs. MARCOS LERMA, and Dr. BRIAN MARTINEZ, also of Houston. Others from Houston were ROBERT BRADBURY and RHONDA RILEY.

From the Dallas area were JANE STOKER PAN-NELL, BARRY CANNING, GREG HORTON, KATHY PERRY FOSTER, KAREN JENKINS HOGAN, MARIDENE MARGOLIS, TAB MORGAN, LAWRENCE BYRD and MELODIE RAY KING, JAMES and JOYCE HUGHES.

Others included GEORGE GILLESPIE from Deer Park, DANNY FERRELL from San Angelo, WARREN JONES, CASEY LOVELACE, MARK TAYLOR and GRACE HOLLINGSWORTH THOMAS from Austin, and DANNY FERRELL from San Angelo.

Coming from San Antonio were JOHN and CINDY CHEATHAM MILLER, and from San Marcos was VICKY MURPHY REHER. In from Killen was PATTI MYERS HUTTE.

Homecoming wasn't everything in the news this week, however. FELECIA FORD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V.P. DUNBAR, was recently named dorm sweetheart of Wall Dorm at Texas Tech University. Felecia later went on to win the Miss Residence Hall Association title. She is also a homecoming queen finalist.

RONNIE, DONNIE and NORMA WHEELER recently returned from a visit to Dallas. There they visited with MARK WHEELER and his family and toured the Dallas State Fair.

PHYLLIS HART, daughter of MR. and MRS. TOMMY HART, is in town this weekend visiting family and friends. Phyllis is a resident of Fort Worth and a graduate student at the University of Texas at Arlington.

CATHY MAYS HARPER and DOUG MAYS were in Big Spring last weekend visiting their parents, FLOYD and POLLY MAYS. Cathy is now a resident of Midland and she works as an accountant for Texaco. Doug is working as a landscape architect for Jones Nursery in Arlington.

DENISE CRENWELGE and her mother, ELIZABETH CRENWELGE, traveled to San Antonio last weekend to visit Denise's brother BRET CRENWELGE. Bret is a member of the Air Force Academy's Cadet Catholic Choir, which is on tour. The group was performing at several locations in San Antonio and family members here decided to drive down and catch a performance.

Dr. Donohue

What are the ways to measure fitness?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have been in a fitness program for a full year now. Most of it has involved jogging. I haven't been too technical about it, so far as pulse-taking, etc. is concerned. After all this time, how can I tell just how fit I am? I think I've just about reached the limit of my exercise endurance, and all I want to do is stay where I am, continuing at my present exercise level. But how can I tell what level of fitness I have achieved? — J.O.

I understand what you're asking. One way to determine your level of fitness right now involves the recovery heart rate.

Immediately after you stop jogging, count your pulse for five seconds. Multiply that by 12. Jot down the number. Exactly one minute later, count your pulse again, for five seconds. Multiply the result by 12. Write down that number. Now subtract the second number from the first. If you get a result greater than 30, you're well-trained.

Maybe I'd better walk you through it: You've stopped running. Measure your pulse for five full seconds. Say you get a number of 13 beats for that five seconds. Multiplying that 13 by 12 you get 156. Next you wait the minute before taking another five-second pulse count. Let's say now it comes up to 10 beats for the five seconds. You multiply the 10 by 12 and come up with 120. Subtracting 120 from 156 gives you 36. That's well above the 30. So you're in pretty good shape.

The fitness measurement here is based on how quickly and how much your heart slows to a normal rhythm after exercising. The better it does that, the stronger your heart is.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am trying to lose weight through running. Is it best to do two short runs with breaks or one long run. Which burns more calories? — O.R.

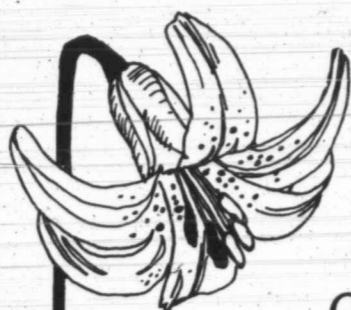

If your goal is calorie-burning as opposed to heart training, then you will benefit more by running as fast as you can for as long as you can. And you can break up those runs as many times as you wish.

But if your goal is heart conditioning, then you would have to run continuously for at least 15 minutes steady at whatever pace you can safely endure. Breaking up runs is not good heart training. My newest reader information publication is the booklet "Introduction to Fitness," which presents the whole matter of aerobics in simple terms and concepts. Interested readers may obtain a copy by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.50.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

THE MAZE OF BUILDING CODES
 Different codes and regulations sometimes apply to different types of structures. For instance, if a guest house is called a studio, it may not have to have a bath and kitchen. If it is called an agricultural building, it may not have to comply with the codes at all. In addition, the tax base may be lower. If upstairs rooms or lofts are called storage areas instead of bedrooms, ladders may be used instead of full stairs and the ceiling may be lower. A smaller septic system may be able to be installed since it is usually based on the number of bedrooms and bathrooms. Before labeling, check the local codes.
 Your contractor is your best source of advice on what can be done within the limits of the building code. We have the experience to help you plan your project properly. At BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK, we do all kinds of remodeling and rebuilding including room additions and enlargements, carports, decks, and sun porches. We can cover or enclose your patio. Come to 613 N. Warehouse Road in the Industrial Park. Tel. 267-5811. Open M-F 8-12, 1-5 or by appt.
HINT
 The Uniform Building Code states that one must begin work within nine months of receiving a permit.

This Transplant Blooms in Big Spring!

Donna Blackwell is a newcomer who has made Big Spring a nicer place to live! She came here with husband Jim who manages Sea Wings and fell in love with the people and the scenery. They felt at home almost upon arrival. After growing up in Tyler she attended Tyler Jr. College and U.T. Tyler majoring in Library Science and Business. Donna managed a bookstore there for 3½ years after she and Jim married.
 The transition from East to West Texas was made easier because Donna's parents, Bruce and Margie Hogenmiller live here and had grown to truly love the community. Donna and Jim now try to make all the football games. They are very impressed with the Steer band and enjoy watching them perform. To keep active and alert, they are currently enrolled in Tae Kwon Do lessons!
 Margie pedded help running Spring City Uniforms and Donna wanted to meet people so she switched from books to uniforms and is truly a natural. The store moved to Highland Mall in July of '85 and they knew immediately that it was a very good thing to do. The business is expanding into work garments of all types. Research, oilfield and business uniforms are also carried in the store. They stock men's shoes and uniforms for male nurses, restaurant garments, aprons, tunics and chefs hats.
 As the needs of Big Spring have warranted, Spring City Uniforms has responded with professional jewelry, totebags, jackets and sweaters. Aprons, tunics and coveralls are also available in a wide variety of colors. Scrubs or "Dr. Shirts" have become very popular with the younger crowd. Spring City Uniforms is a part of the friendly home town merchant family of Highland Mall. Be sure to go by and meet Donna, she'll make you glad you live here too! Highland Mall, It's in the middle of all the action .... FM 700 & South Hwy. 87.

Now's a chance to tour the fascinating Ranching Heritage Center, part of the Texas Tech museum in Lubbock. Friday, Nov. 1, at 7:30 a.m.; a UTPB van will leave and return at 6:30 p.m. The $20 fee includes transportation and lunch at the beautiful University City Club.

The story of Panhandle ranching is told in 30 authentic structures moved to the 12-acre museum site; bunkhouses, barns, dugouts, windmills, school and ranch homes from 19th and 29th centuries have been restored and furnished.

The museum houses exhibits covering the broad range of arts, humanities, social sciences and natural sciences with emphasis on the study of arid and semiarid lands.

Plan to wear comfortable clothes. Call Betty Mallonee at UTPB or me.

Dear Abby

Mr. Right doesn't measure up to standards

DEAR ABBY: I have never written to you before, but I have a problem I haven't discussed with anyone because I know I will get a lot of flak.

I've been dating a wonderful man whose company I really enjoy. He's intelligent, sensitive, caring and kind, has a great sense of humor, and a bright professional future. We're both in our 30s and have a lot in common. My problem is that I am 5 foot 8 and he is 5 foot 6 1/2. I feel very comfortable with him — except when we walk together in a shopping mall, movie, restaurant or anywhere that requires us to stand next to each other.

In my heart I know what a good person he is, but in my mind I can't forget that I am taller. I suppose I am nuts to let this bother me, but it does. Please don't tell me to see someone about this because I am too embarrassed. I can't even tell my best friend or anyone in the family how I feel. Please help.

TIRED OF FLATS
DEAR TIRED: You are not nuts, and I won't tell you to see someone. The problem is your value system. The sum total of all his attributes is not as important to you as how you think other people perceive you as a couple. (As though they give a hoot or even notice that you are 11/2 inches taller than he.)

Retire your flats, put on your heels and start looking for a taller man. This "wonderful, intelligent, sensitive, caring and kind" man deserves a woman who will love him just the way he is.

DEAR ABBY: How does a mother get her able-bodied 28-year-old son to go out and get a job and start living his own life? I am getting too old and tired to support him. He has not worked steady since he graduated from high school 10 years ago. He hasn't worked a day in the last three years! He doesn't even try to find a job. He eats and sleeps and watches TV. I've tried to talk to him, but he just goes into his room and slams the door.

My daughter, who lives in another state, says, "Throw the bum out!" How do I go about doing that? He's too big!

Could you ask your readers who may have had some experience with this kind of problem how to handle it? I'm not financially able to support him forever.

DESPERATE WIDOW
DEAR DESPERATE: You don't have to physically throw him out. Give him a time limit to move his belongings, and if he isn't out by then, lock him out. And be sure to change the locks on your doors.

DEAR ABBY: We live in an old-folks home in Oregon. Our ages range from 55 to 99 years old. We would like to know how women like us can find men to socialize with.

Men are scarce here, and we can't get out to meet any. When we mention it to anyone on the staff, we're told we are too old to think about things like that. I don't think people ever get too old to desire companionship with the opposite sex, do you?

Don't suggest that we look over the men in this home. There are three women for every man here, and most of the men are in worse shape than we are.

OLD BUT NOT DEAD
DEAR OLD: You're absolutely right. You're never too old to desire companionship with the opposite sex.

You don't say where in Oregon you are, but I'll bet some public-spirited local service club would be willing to arrange transportation from the home to a senior citizens' mixer for a little recreational "fishing" expedition.

Q.: Should a person buy a new house before selling the present one, or sell before buying?

A.: That situation is quite common and the answer isn't easy since there are disadvantages both ways. If you choose to list your house before you buy, write "negotiable" under the closing date. You may be able to demand more of the buyer who wants quick possession, or lower the price to convince a prospective buyer to accept a more advantageous date. Looking for a new house after finding a buyer for your present home does have one distinct advantage: You'll know exactly how much you have to invest in the new home. Failure to find a new home, after closing the old one, may result in temporary quarters and storage of possessions.

To my Patients,

I am happy to announce the relocation of my office from Malone and Hogan Clinic to 1700 West Farm Road 700 — the same building in which I first began practicing in Big Spring, in 1981. My new office faces FM 700, and is directly behind Malone-Hogan Hospital. You may reach me at my new number 267-1607, effective October 15. Until then, you can reach me at 263-1211, Malone-Hogan Hospital.

I appreciate your confidence in choosing me as your orthopedic surgeon. As I commit myself to the area with the purchase of my own building, I also commit myself, and my staff, to continue to provide the best care possible for you in the most effective, and therefore least costly manner.

If you need me in any way, please call me at the hospital, my home, or at my new office on and after October 15.

Sincerely,
R. K. Reddy, M.D.
