Q. Are cable TV rate increases subject to city council approval?
A. No. The Federal Cable Act of 1984 took away rate control from the cities, said Big Spring Cable systems manager Paul Thoman. There was an agreement, however, in 1983 between the city and the cable company to the effect that cable rates would not be raised until December of 1985, he said.

Volcano erupts in Colombia

Thousands feared dead as mud buries villages

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A volcano in western Colombia erupted before dawn today and sent torrents of mud and water crashing into a river that buried a sleeping town and three villages. Officials feared tens of thousands were killed.

"Rescue workers are talking about 20,000 dead," said Red Cross director Artemo Franco in an interview with the Bogota radio chain Caracol. "It is an immense tragedy."

"Eighty-five percent of the town (Almero) is destroyed, and we estimate there are 15,000 deaths," Gov. Eduardo Alzate, of the state of Tolima, said in a live broadcast interview with Caracol.

Officials said Armero, a farming town in the state of Tolima of about 30 miles from the volcano and 105 miles northwest of Bogota, was inundated by mud that swept down to the Lagunilla River after the eruption of the volcano, Nevado del Ruiz (Snowpeak of Ruiz.)

The volcano, which has been spewing smoke, ashes and gases since Oct. 19, 1974, apparently melted snow around its cone, creating tons of mud that went crashing down Lagunilla River.

Sgt. Ruben Garcia, the fire chief of Chinchina which sits on a hill 750 feet above the river, said 14 people were killed in an area of about 200 houses along the river.

Almero, in the coffee-growing state of Tolima, is about 30 miles southeast of the city of Manizales and 30 miles north of the city of Ibaque.

Caracol reported that heavy rains also started at about dawn when the 15,500-foot high volcano erupted, contributing to the flooding, Caracol reported.

Fernando Rivera, a crop-dusting pilot who flew over the devastated area, said the avalanche of mud also destroyed the villages of Santuario, Carmelo and Pindalito, which have total of about 20,000 people.

Rivera said in a live interview with the Caracol that the mud also buried farmhouses along the river for 25 miles.

"Some survivors were clinging to trees they had climbed, some were on roofs that weren't reached by the mud, and even some (were) in a cemetery that had a cement

This 1964 file photo of Armero, Colombia, shows a town recently populated by about 50,000 people which was inundated by mud that was swept down the Lagunilla river following the eruption of the volcano, Nevado del Ruiz, on Wednesday night. The town is located about 80 miles northwest of Bogota. The long dormant volcano erupted melting its snow cap and triggering torrents of rushing mud and water and thousands may have been killed, officials and radio stations reported.

Law voids action on firemen's pay

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer
President Reagan on Wednesday signed into law a bill that apparently would nullify Big Spring city councilmen's action Tuesday to reduce firefighters' base pay.

The law overturns a Supreme Court ruling that required cities to pay overtime and outlawed compensatory time off. Cities would not have to pay overtime until April 15, 1986, and employees could take compensatory time off.

The new law also prohibits discrimination against employees by state and city governments who reduce basic salaries to evade paying the time-and-a-half overtime rate under the federal Fair Labor Standards Act.

In effect, the bill overturns the Big Spring City Council's emergency action at Tuesday's meeting to reduce the basic rate of pay for firefighters.

Under the city policy, firefighters' base salaries would be cut to compensate for three hours overtime pay. Firefighter would make the same amount as last year.

Firemen normally are scheduled to work 56 hours a week. The Fair Labor Standards Act requires a city to pay overtime to firefighters who work more than 53 hours a week.

According to an explanatory statement from the bill's conference committee, "A unilateral reduction of regular pay or fringe benefits that is intended to nullify this legislative application of overtime compensation to state and local government employees is unlawful..."

"In what we view as analogous circumstances, (Department of Labor) regulations explicitly condemn employer efforts to adjust or recalculate regular rates of pay so as to evade the overtime requirements of the act," the statement continues.

The discrimination provision protects employees on or after Feb. 19, 1985.

Big Spring firefighters today said they were happy Reagan signed the law, saying it prevents the city from adjusting their wages downward as planned.

"They sharpened their pencils and put their pencils to it for naught," said firefighter Nolan Beall. "If they had been watching it (the bill's progress) on a daily basis, they wouldn't have had to write their policy."

Firefighter John Branham, president of the Big Spring Professional Fire Fighters Association Local 2922, during the Tuesday night council meeting had protested the passage of the city's new policy on emergency reading because the law was on the president's desk.

City Manager Don Davis had told the council the bill had not passed both houses of Congress.

Beall said he could understand the city's action if councilmen thought the illegality of reducing salaries "was something firemen pulled out of their hats," said Beall. "But the federal government forced the issue. Whether we

Drop in borrowing forces banks to trim expenses

DALLAS (AP) — Tough times in the Texas banking industry have forced InterFirst Corp. to begin eliminating jobs and MCorp to start offering early retirement to 400 employees who will be at least 55 years old by year's end.

The Dallas-based firms' actions are two examples of how Texas bank holding companies are cutting costs in anticipation of continued weak loan demand in 1986.

Analysts say the companies will have to turn to consumer lending and middle-market business — aimed at smaller enterprises — to pick up the slack left from weakening energy and real estate sectors.

"Inflation covered up a lot of sins in energy and real estate," said Ronald G. Steinhart, InterFirst president and chief operating officer. "Until 1983, running a bank in Texas was described as easy as running a candy store. It was easy to show profits."

Wednesday's disclosure by MCorp, which has assets of about $21 billion, is the second in as many days. InterFirst, the state's second-largest bank holding company with assets of $21.4 billion,

Sweetwater rejects WFAA-TV contract

United Cable Television of Sweetwater has decided not to accept the contract with Times Mirror Microwave for WFAA as it is written, general manager Wayne Jamar said Wednesday. Jamar said company officials are trying to set up a meeting with Times Mirror officials to discuss the matter.

Times Mirror officials have said that unless all four cable companies in question — Big Spring, Sweetwater, Snyder and Colorado City — accept the deal, WFAA will not be broadcast to any of them.

Big Spring and Snyder cable companies have agreed to the contract, spokesmen from both cable and microwave com-

Congress passes stop-gap debt limit bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today approved and sent to President Reagan a bill temporarily refilling the Treasury's empty coffers with borrowed money, apparently averting a government financial crisis tomorrow.

The House, by voice vote and without debate, accepted the Senate's version of a short-term increase in the government's debt limit.

The bill would avoid potential embarrassment for the president as he leaves for his summit with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Reagan has indicated through a spokesman he will sign the legislation.

The White House warned Wednesday that unless the Treasury has the power to borrow more money, the government will stop paying its bills on Friday.

"We are not going to issue checks that will bounce," said presidential spokesman Larry Speakes.

The administration supports permanent legislation raising the national debt ceiling to $2.078 trillion — more than twice the red ink of when Reagan took office in 1981 and enough to last through another $200 billion deficit year.

Still, the president was ready to sign a short-term debt hike.

"The president accepts the obvious sentiment of both houses of Congress," White House spokesman Edward Djerejian said Wednesday night. "But he will continue to urge Congress to deal with our federal deficit once and for all."

The Republican-led Senate, with White House support, has refused to raise the debt ceiling above the $2 trillion threshold without attaching a plan to gradually end the annual deficits.

JAMES BAKER
...line of credit

To keep up the pressure for the balanced-budget plan, the Senate Wednesday night approved extending the debt ceiling only until Dec. 6, rejecting the Dec. 13 date passed earlier in the day by the House. Both houses passed $80 billion in new borrowing, but by cutting off that authority earlier, the Senate bill brings about the next crisis sooner.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said today Democrats accepted the Senate date, although he said the Republicans were the ones who originally proposed the House-passed version.

Senate Majority Leader Robert

Dole, R-Kan., said today the Senate date would actually keep the government afloat until Dec. 12, and the House version until Dec. 19. He said he liked the earlier date to avoid "us being Scrooge here and bringing the government to a halt on Christmas eve."

The Senate had been resisting a short-term bill altogether, but the opposition melted for fear of embarrassing the president on the eve of the summit in Geneva with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. Reagan leaves on Saturday, the day after the money crunch would have hit the federal bureaucracy.

"We believe that we can't have a cloud of fiscal collapse hanging over the president's head as he goes to Geneva," said Sen. Phil Gramm, co-sponsor of the balanced-budget plan.

 wall around it and that the mud did not knock down," Rivera said.
 Civil defense workers had recovered 52 bodies this morning, the Bogota radio chain IRCN said. Thirty-eight bodies were found in the adjacent town of Mariquita and 14 others in the nearby town of Chinchina.

"They have to send in helicopters to save these people because everything is surrounded by mud and there is no other way to get to them," Rivera said.
 The Colombian Civil Aeronautics Administration prohibited all private and commercial flights from flying into the area because of poor visibility due to ash still in the air, said a CAA captain who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Ambulances and rescue workers were having difficulty getting to Almero because the mud had destroyed the highway, and five bridges leading into the town were destroyed by the mud wall, Caracol quoted civil defense workers as saying.
 There were reports the volcano started spewing ash and smoke at 10:30 p.m. Wednesday, and about three hours later the mud and water hit Armero.

Armero's tallest building is the Catholic cathedral, with a steeple of about three stories. The buildings are mostly one story, a few two-stories high, and virtually all built of concrete.

 There were other towns along the river closer to the volcano, but they apparently were spared because they sat on hills. The town of Chinchina, with about 70,000 people, is only six miles from the base of the volcano.

Raul Ramirez, a reporter for the radio chain Todelar, was one of the first people at Armero. He said 90 percent of Armero was destroyed.
 "The mass of mud is up to five yards high in some areas," he said. "Some people were able to escape and climb over walls that weren't covered by the avalanche and were rescued with the help of ropes and horses."

Dr. Darrell Herd, deputy chief of the U.S. Geological Survey's Office of Earthquakes, Volcanoes and Engineering in Reston, Va., said he has been working with Colombians to prepare volcano hazard plan for Nevado del Ruiz.

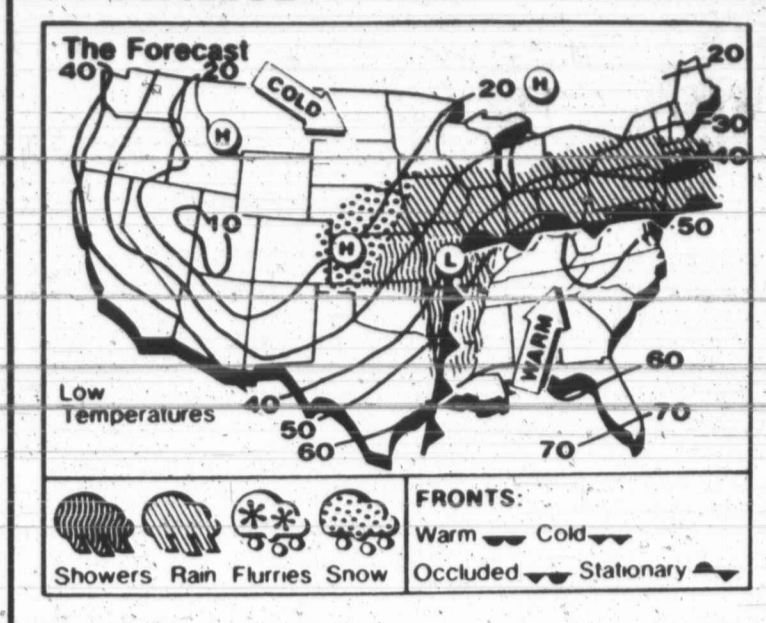

Herd said he was at the mountain most recently in the last week of September to help Colombians organize their response to possible catastrophic eruption of volcano.

He said the latest eruption, before today, was at 1:30 p.m. local time on Sept. 11. Herd said it continued strongly for a day and left a small coating of ash on nearby cities of Manizales and Chinchina.

This cutaway map illustrates how the Nevado del Ruiz volcano erupted. Colombian radio stations reported early Thursday morning the volcano melted snow on its peak and sent a mudslide onto about 90 percent of the town of Armero.

 An instamatic camera, valued at $75, and a brown leather wallet were taken between 8 p.m. Tuesday and 6 a.m. Wednesday from a car in the Motel 6 parking lot, police reports state.
 The burglar used a coat hangar to open the door.

Winter may be in the air tonight

Howard County may get a taste of winter early this year if Wednesday night showers turn into Thursday night snow.
 Light showers hit the area last night, and the forecast calls for a 20 percent chance of showers tonight that may turn into snow. Also, temperatures are expected to drop into the 50's this afternoon after a high in the 60's this morning. The low tonight should be in the 30's.
 The Big Spring field station reported .09 inches of rain Wednesday night, bringing the yearly total to 22.7 inches. The normal-to-date is 17.43. Red Thomas of 107 E. 13th reported .15 inch. Neil Fryar of Lomax reported .1 inch, and Boyce Hale of Sterling City Route reported .23 inch.

 Showers and thunderstorms were being reported over sections of Texas early today. Most of the rainfall was located along and north of a cold front that extended from east of Wichita Falls to near Abilene to north of Midland at dawn.
 Scattered showers and thunderstorms in the the Panhandle southward early today were expected to gradually change to mixed rain and snow and freezing rain and eventually snow late tonight and Friday.

 A winter storm watch has been issued for extreme northern sections of the Texas Panhandle for late tonight and Friday.
 Forecasters say there may be as much as 2 to 4 inches of snow in northern sections of the Panhandle by late Friday and snow may fall as far south as the Midland-Odessa area during the night and early Friday. But they say there will be no accumulation in that area of the South Plains.

 Forecasters say cold moist air associated with a low aloft that was over northern Arizona early today is expected to move eastward through Friday crossing the watch area.
 A low pressure system in southeast New Mexico will continue to draw colder air in from the north and moist and relatively warm air in from the southeast.
 It was possible a winter storm warning may have to be issued for the area later today, forecasters said.

JP's secretary arrested after theft indictment

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
 Staff Writer
 A former secretary for Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin, whose indictment on a theft charge last May was annulled, was rearrested Wednesday night by Texas Ranger Charles Brune on the same charge.
 Lee Winchester, 44, of 538 Westover Road was re-indicted in October by Howard County grand jurors for theft over $750 and under $20,000. A warrant for her arrest was issued Wednesday afternoon.
 She was released Wednesday on a $7,500 bond set by Justice of the Peace China Long.
 According to district clerk files, Winchester's initial indictment last May was challenged by a motion "to sever and to quash the indictment" due to wording that did not conform to criminal procedure.
 District Judge James Gregg said he granted the motion to sever and quash the initial indictment because "it was no good."

 District attorney investigator Buster McCartney said grand jurors returned a sealed indictment last October on the same charge.
 According to district clerk files, the indictment was filed Tuesday.
 The current indictment contains 21 counts charging Winchester with holding monies "as a fiduciary but not as a commercial bailee," and "in a manner that involved substantial risk of loss to those persons for whose benefit the property was held." The charge involves thefts against seven persons for a total of $1,240.10.
 Winchester's initial indictment in May resulted from an investigation conducted by Brune at the request of Heflin in October 1984.
 Heflin was notified by County Auditor Jackie Olson of discrepancies in his office's financial report.

Water district gains in income

The Colorado River Municipal Water District is $619,100 ahead of budget projections in net income for the first 10 months of 1985.
 The difference between budgeted and actual expenses is lower than expected utility bills, which are $759,892, or 17.45 percent less than budgeted, according to a district news release.
 Most of the overestimate was caused because expected utility rate increases were not as high as predicted. The district also pumped less water than predicted because of the rains, the release stated.
 Total income through October was $10,608,947, or 3.27 percent less than estimated. Total operating expenses were $5,940,885, or 13.28 percent less than estimated. The district spent 75.29 percent on energy costs, the release stated.

 At the end of October, Lake E.V. Spence contained 208,600 acre-feet of water, 42.66 percent of capacity. Lake Thomas had 33,170 acre-feet, 16.25 percent of its capacity. Together the lakes measured at 34.89 percent of their capacity, the release stated.
 In October, the lakes had a net gain of 12,918 acre-feet of water, mostly in Lake Thomas. It had a net gain of 3.68 vertical feet, the release stated.

 like it or they like it or neither of us like it, it's law."
 City Manager Don Davis could not be reached for comment today. His secretary said he was out of town.
 City Attorney Doyle Curtis said today, "I can't comment on the law until I've had a chance to review it and the staff has a chance to talk it over."
 Councilman Russ McEwen today said the council would not violate a federal law. "It's law. We certainly aren't going to violate a law," he said.
 In response to a question about apparent misinformation the council received on the bill's progress, McEwen replied, "We follow laws all the time. In my business, we have to follow tax legislation. There is speculation on a daily basis on law and when it will go into effect."
 "So many times in past, we've seen laws we felt would go a certain way when they have not in fact done that. We can only go on current legislation," McEwen said.
 He said he did not know whether the city would have to rescind its policy. "So many times a policy comes into effect, on first blush we think this is what it means. Later interpretations indicate it means something else."
 "I don't know whether we'll have to rescind it or not. I can't comment because I haven't seen the law or an interpretation thereof," he said.

 Fire Lt. Rodney Phillips called the law fair. "This part of it is going to be fair to both firefighters and local governments," he said.
 "The issue got confused when it was very plain, cut and dried," Phillips said. "I want to know why they (councilmen) passed it on emergency reading. Are they trying to make people believe firemen are always raising hell?"
 "They keep implying we're trying to cram this down their throat," he said. "We didn't."
 The legislation was enacted after city and state officials, worried about huge overtime costs, imposed Congress for relief.
 The Supreme Court decision was handed down last February in the case known as Garcia vs. San Antonio Metropolitan Transit Authority. The court ruled that public employees were covered by the Fair Labor Standards Act, requiring employers to pay overtime to employees who work more than 40 hours a week.
 The measure will take effect next April 15.
 But in a concession to labor unions, the bill requires local and state governments to provide time and a half off as compensatory time.
 The measure limits compensatory time to 240 hours except for police, firefighters, emergency workers and seasonal employees, who could accumulate 480 hours.

 said Tuesday it was cutting jobs.
 InterFirst spokesman Joe Bowles said Wednesday he doesn't know how many jobs will be cut in attempts to streamline operations. Local news reports have put the figure as high as 10 percent of InterFirst's more than 10,000 employees.
 MCorp's Voluntary Incentive Plan, meanwhile, was started Nov. 1 and is aimed at reducing costs at the company that employees 12,000 people statewide at its 63 banks.
 "It is a voluntary plan," MCorp spokeswoman Kim Palmer said. "It is something we believe is very positive."
 Employees meeting age requirements with at least 10 years of service with MCorp and its predecessors — Mercantile Texas Corp. and Southwest Bancshares Inc. of Houston, which merged in October 1984 — are eligible, she said.

 The company has not determined what it will save through the retirement plan, Ms. Palmer said, but The Dallas Morning News quoted a source today as saying MCorp hopes to save more than $10 million.
 Most major Texas companies have indicated they are tightening their belts. Allied Bancshares Inc. of Houston announced in May plans for a 10 percent cost reduction, but finally settled for an 8.6 percent cut.
 Historically, banking employment has grown annually in Texas by more than 5 percent.

Insurance hits doctors

WASHINGTON — Malpractice insurance premiums for obstetricians have risen an average of $9,871 over the last two years, prompting a growing number of physicians to leave the field or limit their practices, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists said today.

The professional organization, releasing the results of a survey of some 1,400 obstetricians-gynecologists, said the rising malpractice insurance fees threaten to limit women's access to quality care.

Laser test successful

WASHINGTON — Pentagon researchers, in the first successful test of its kind, have managed to transmit messages to a submarine cruising at "operational depths" using a laser aboard a high-flying airplane.

The experiment, conducted a year ago off the coast of California, was disclosed in an article written by a high-ranking officer with the Space and Naval Warfare Command.

Cough cases double

WASHINGTON — Whooping cough cases among American youngsters, some of them fatal, have nearly doubled over the last three years as parents wary of possible side effects of the vaccine apparently have chosen not to immunize their children, medical experts say.

Romanian defects

HOUSTON — A 44-year-old Romanian seaman has jumped ship and asked for political asylum in the United States, saying he decided to defect to a place "where freedom is respected."

Paul Firica walked off the Romanian vessel Zalau on Tuesday night while the ship was docked in the Port of Houston and on Wednesday went to the Immigration and Naturalization Service office here.

AIDS drug tested

BOSTON — Scientists searching for the Achilles' heel of the AIDS virus believe they have found a promising new strategy — a drug that wrecks the crucial outer coat of the lethal microbe.

The medicine has not been tested on victims of acquired immune deficiency syndrome. But in the test tube, at least, it appears to be a powerful weapon that destroys the germ's ability to cause an infection.

Plant startup delayed

AUSTIN — Builders of the South Texas Project nuclear power plant announced a delay of six more months in the project, but say they are still budgeting the long-delayed plant at $5.5 billion.

The latest delay means that Unit 1 of the project will not have its fuel loaded until mid-1987 rather than December 1986, managing partner Houston Lighting & Power said in a statement Wednesday. The delay puts the start up date for the plant to December 1987 at the earliest, a San Antonio City Public Service spokesman said.

Terry Waite, the Archbishop of Canterbury's special envoy, is flanked by Shiite Moslem Amal militiamen as he arrives in Beirut Wednesday. Waite will try to negotiate the release of the Americans still being held by Moslem fundamentalists.

Special mission

Envoy says contact made with kidnappers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The archbishop of Canterbury's special envoy said today he had made contact with kidnappers of missing Americans and that his efforts to free the hostages had "reached a critical and dangerous point."

The envoy, Terry Waite, told an impromptu news conference in the lobby of the Commodore Hotel in west Beirut, "Progress is being made and we're moving forward."

He declined to say how he made contact with the kidnappers for security reasons, but he said contacts had been established in several different ways.

His only demand is that he meet the captors face-to-face, but there also is a chance he will be allowed to visit the American hostages, Waite said.

"We have reached a very critical point and a very dangerous and difficult point. We have procedures being worked out now and I think we shall have those worked out in the course of the day," he said.

Waite flew from London on Wednesday and was driven by armed militiamen to a west Beirut hotel. He left three hours later and was driven to an undisclosed destination in the Moslem sector of the Lebanese capital.

Waite, a 46-year-old layman, walked today into the Commodore, base for foreign journalists in Beirut, and talked to reporters as he sipped coffee. He declined to say where he was staying.

His surprise appearance apparently came after he spotted reporters and photographers near where he was staying and feared they would jeopardize his mission.

Waite came to Beirut after four of the six missing

Americans sent a letter to the archbishop of Canterbury in London last week. Waite launched his mission after he was in contact with an unidentified intermediary in Beirut.

Also today, the Christian Voice of Lebanon radio quoted the Rev. Jesse Jackson as appealing to the kidnappers for a meeting to negotiate the release of the hostages. An envoy sent by U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar also arrived to seek the release of the Americans, a Briton and four Frenchmen.

Islamic Jihad, a Shiite Moslem group believed loyal to Iran's revolutionary patriarch, the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, has claimed it kidnapped the missing Americans and Frenchmen and said Oct. 4 it killed one American, diplomat William Buckley.

It released blurred photographs purported to be of Buckley's body, but U.S. officials say there is no proof Buckley died.

Four other hostages signed letters to President Reagan and Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie delivered last week to the Beirut bureau of The Associated Press. They are: Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent of the AP; the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest; David Jacobsen, director of the American University Hospital in Beirut; and Thomas Sutherland, the university's dean of agriculture.

There has been no word lately on the sixth hostage, university librarian Peter Kilburn.

Waite reiterated to reporters today his plea to "give me some space" to conduct the delicate negotiations with the kidnappers.

Accord looks imminent

DUBLIN, Ireland — An agreement giving the Irish Republic a consultative role in running predominantly Protestant Northern Ireland appears imminent, and preparations are under way for the British and Irish prime ministers to sign it, newspapers said.

The British and Irish governments said their cabinets were scheduled to meet today, and the newspapers said they were expected to approve an accord.

Peres pledges action

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister Shimon Peres pledged today to do all he could to prevent his shaky coalition government from collapsing, but did not retract his threat to fire Cabinet member Ariel Sharon for attacking his peace overtures toward Jordan.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who heads the coalition's Likud bloc, said earlier that if Peres fires Sharon, the prime minister must resign and bring down the government.

Jackson plea to captors

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A Christian radio station today quoted the Rev. Jesse Jackson as appealing to the kidnappers of Americans for a meeting to negotiate the hostages' release.

"I am ready to go to Lebanon or Syria or anywhere else to meet the kidnappers and appeal for the freedom of the hostages on moral and humanitarian grounds," Aziz Raad, Washington correspondent for the Voice of Lebanon radio station, quoted Jackson as saying in a telephone interview.

Defector talks of ordeal

MOSCOW — Vitaly Yurchenko, the reputed KGB defector who returned to the Soviet Union, told a news conference today that CIA doctors subjected him to a regimen of pills and drug injections in an attempt to break his will.

Yurchenko claimed the drugs were intended to condition him to the idea that he would die if he were deprived of them.

Speaking to a packed auditorium at the Soviet Foreign Ministry's press center, Yurchenko repeated assertions he made in Washington at a news conference at the Soviet Embassy, in which he claimed he had been kidnapped, drugged and held captive by the CIA before managing to escape.

UN approval helpful

UNITED NATIONS — A Pakistani diplomat says the General Assembly's overwhelming approval of a resolution demanding Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan will help President Reagan at next week's summit meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The assembly Wednesday voted 122-19 for the resolution, the largest margin on the issue in its six years before the world body.

Joint search for MIAs

BANGKO, Thailand — U.S. specialists will comb what Vietnamese officials say is the site of a B-52 crash near Hanoi in the first joint search by the two former foes for the remains of Americans missing in the Vietnam War, both sides said today.

Politicians' dodge is tax-subsidized

In the old days, a politician puffed up with presidential ambition hit the road to make speeches and shake hands. Today, he starts a tax-exempt charitable foundation to promote human knowledge.

From the looks of things, not since Thomas Jefferson have the nation's politicians so vigorously set out in the pursuit of truth. There's the Center for a New Democracy, created by Sen. Gary Hart "to develop new solutions to an America undergoing a profound transformation as it enters an increasing post-industrial, interdependent, multipolar and nuclear world." There's American Horizons, a foundation set up by Gov. Bruce Babbitt of Arizona, the Social Awareness Fund established by Teddy Kennedy, and television evangelist Pat Robertson's Freedom Council.

None of these institutions, alas, is ever likely to rival the University of Virginia, Jefferson's contribution to learning. As former Sen. Howard Baker has complained to the Federal Election Commission, all are thinly disguised efforts to promote the presidential campaigns of the sponsors and evade the election laws.

The appeal of these hothouse think tanks is obvious. Contributors to foundations receive tax exemptions; contributors to presidential exploratory committees do not. Foundations can raise large amounts from a small number of contributors, send candidates around the country and the world, stage events — excuse us, seminars and conferences — where their patrons can, well, make speeches and shake hands.

Baker is right when he cries, "Foul." FEC regulations require presidential candidates testing the waters to set up exploratory committees and follow the contributions limits placed on them by law, as Baker himself has done. The new-ideas boys should join him in heeding it. But please, not until 1987.

Trading treasures with British elite

Years ago when Jackie Onassis was the first lady of our land, she conducted a TV tour of the White House. My sister was so inspired by the event that she gave me a tour of her three-room apartment in Queens, New York.

I was under the impression she had retired from the stately home business until I received a call from her the other day. "The British have sent their greatest art treasures to the National Gallery in Washington this month," she said. "What are we sending them in return?"

"Nothing special that I know of," I said.

"That's what I thought. My girlfriends and I have a great idea. In exchange for the English lending us their heirlooms we would like to ship them treasures from the homes of Flushing, New York."

"You told me the people of Flushing would never let their heirlooms out of their houses."

"We're now willing to do it provided they are insured by Lloyds of London."

"Who is we?"

"A few homeowners in my neighborhood. We call ourselves the 'Magnificent Six.' We would have been the 'Magnificent Seven' except Martha Bordinsky's slipcovers won't be ready for months. The thought we had is that if the British are willing to display what they have in their stately homes we should give them some idea of what we have in ours."

"What art treasures are you prepared to send to them?"

"I'm willing to lend 'The Blue Boy' — the one I bought in a garage sale in Astoria last year."

"Did you ever find out if it's the original 'Blue Boy' or not?"

"The man who sold it to me said if it wasn't the original it came awfully close. I'm not the only one willing to part with treasures. Doris Dembow wants to send a needlepoint sampler which she made herself, titled 'God Bless Our Home.'"

"That's classy. The only place I've ever seen anything like it was in a Hallmark greeting card shop."

"Barbar Lupin has offered to part with a color photo of her grandchild. She says it has never been shown in public before. But she won't lend it unless a guard is stationed in front of it day and night."

"The Tate Gallery has plenty of guards. What other treasures would you like to send to London?"

"Laura Brown has a pair of Ron and Nancy Toby mugs which she purchased in Atlantic City. They were crafted by skilled artisans in Hong Kong, and the shopkeeper told Laura that they were already collector's items."

"I may be wrong, but I don't believe the British have ever seen a Hong Kong Toby mug before."

"What we're trying to do is organize our treasures so that it gives the English some idea of how the bluebloods live in Flushing. We have Myra Stieglitz nearby talked into parting with her queen-size sleeper sofa. It's an heirloom because it has been used by three generations in her family."

"What is so special about it?"

"In the daytime it can seat three people and at night all you have to do is remove the cushions and it turns into a bed."

"Why is Myra hesitating?"

"She is afraid if the Tate Gallery borrows it, her kids' friends won't have any place to sleep when they come home on school vacation."

"You seem to have everything under control. Why did you call me?"

"The girls wondered if you would contact Prince Charles and Princess Di and ask them to stop by to preview our art treasures on their way to Kennedy airport."

"I would be happy to. One more thing, I'm curious about how you selected the masterpieces for the exhibit."

"We all closed our eyes and thought of England."

Mengele probe continues

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — Josef Mengele may be dead, but the Justice Department is still trying to determine whether he cheated the hangman with the help of U.S. authorities. The notorious "Angel of Death" sent hundreds of thousands to the gas chambers in the Nazi death camp at Auschwitz.

"We are combing archives around the world, talking to people in every continent, trying to put the puzzle together and figure out whether Mengele received any help or protection from the U.S. government which enabled him to hide," Neal Sher, director of the Office of Special Investigations, told our associate Lucette Lagnado.

Sher characterized the investigation as "extraordinarily complex." In terms of hard documentary evidence, he said, it is far more difficult than the case of Klaus Barbie, the SS "Butcher of Lyon," who was found to have worked for U.S. military intelligence after World War II and whose escape to South America was arranged by American authorities.

It is already clear beyond any doubt that Mengele got substantial help over the years from his family, which owns the biggest farm machinery firm in West Germany. Their help is understandable, but what bothers American Nazi-hunters is that the protection given to the war criminal is not punishable under West German law. Indeed, to this day the Mengele family cannot be forced to cooperate with investigating authorities.

Here's what our associate learned about the Mengeles from sources in Germany and this country:

- In the immediate aftermath of World War II, Mengele's father believed that his son was dead. The young SS doctor's wife, Irene, dressed in mourning clothes and had a hometown priest say a funeral mass for him. But the family soon learned that Mengele was alive and well. He returned and lived under an assumed name in a nearby village for several years.
- Justice Department sources say there is considerable evidence that, once U.S. occupation forces learned of Mengele's crimes, the family helped Mengele evade capture by pretending he was dead. U.S. government documents of that time reveal that Mengele was listed officially as having died in 1946, and thus was not brought to trial with other death camp doctors at Nuremberg.
- By 1949, renewed interest in Mengele prompted him to flee Germany. According to his own personal papers, the Mengele family provided the money for his escape to Argentina.
- Before he left Germany, Mengele signed legal documents "disassociating" himself from the family firm, according to the Simon Wiesenthal Center, which investigates Nazi war crimes.

This disassociation was to prevent the authorities from seizing the Mengele company's assets, as was done with property of major war criminals.

- Despite the technical breach, Mengele continued to get money from his family. The fugitive's personal papers suggest that a Mengele company executive, Hans Sedlmeir, served as a go-between.
- In the 1950s, according to the Wiesenthal Center, Mengele's father went to Argentina and gave the fugitive 1 million marks to invest in a pharmaceutical company.
- In the 1960s, according to the testimony of people who sheltered him, when Mengele moved to Brazil, money from the family enabled him to buy a house for himself and a farm for one of the couples who helped him.
- Throughout the years, the Mengele family refused to cooperate with German authorities; under German law they were not obliged to. Nor did the family report his death by drowning in 1979.

INANITY OF THE WEEK — In a memo that suggests federal banking supervisors don't have the brains they were born with, dead-serious instructions have been issued for the proper behavior following a nuclear attack. The first rule is: "Bank examination will be suspended immediately, and bank examination personnel ... will take such actions as may be necessary or prudent for their personal safety."

BYZANTIUM REVISITED — Oil-rich Middle Eastern playboys have found a new place to squander their petrobucks: Turkey. It may not be the French Riviera, but the fleshpots of Istanbul must offer a certain satisfaction for Arabs whose ancestors languished under the heel of Turkish sultans in the pre-petroleum days. The Turks, of course, are delighted at the influx of free-spending sheikhs. Though a devoutly secular state, Turkey has even put together "Islamic tours" for its wealthy Moslem guests, who included 400,000 from Saudi Arabia alone in the past year.

MINI-EDITORIAL — Accuracy in Academia — a staunchly conservative group which has appointed itself as a watchdog to chew on the ankles of politically suspect professors — recently announced the appointment of former Rep. John LeBoutillier, R-N.Y., as its new president. LeBoutillier, you may recall, is the youthful, shoot-from-the-lip New Right ideologue who served one term before being retired by the voters in 1982. In 1981, we rated him as one of the "least popular" legislators on Capitol Hill. Since we are hoping that Accuracy in Academia will prove to be one of the least popular groups around, we are happy that it and the former congressman found each other.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Thursday, Nov. 14, the 318th day of 1985. There are 47 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 14, 1889, New York World reporter Nellie Bly (Elizabeth Cochrane) began her attempt to top the fictitious voyage of Jules Verne's Phileas Fogg by traveling around the world in less than 80 days. She would succeed, finishing the trip in 72 days.

On this date: In 1832, the first streetcar, a horse-drawn vehicle called the John Mason, made its debut in New York City.

In 1851, Herman Melville's novel "Moby Dick" was first published in the United States.

In 1881, Charles J. Guiteau went on trial for the assassination of President James Garfield. Guiteau was convicted and hanged the following year.

In 1922, the British Broadcasting Corp. began its domestic radio service.

In 1935, President Franklin D. Roosevelt proclaimed the Philippine Islands a free commonwealth.

In 1940, German planes destroyed most of the English town of Coventry.

In 1972, on Wall Street, the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed above 1,000 for the first time, ending the day at 1,003.16.

In 1973, Britain's Princess Anne was married to a commoner, Captain Mark Phillips, in a ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

Ten years ago: President Gerald R. Ford's videotaped deposition was played at the trial of Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, who was charged with trying to kill him. Ford said he had no recollection of hearing a gun click when Fromme allegedly pointed a pistol at him.

Around The Rim German Jews fight back

By SPENCER SANDOW
Jews in Germany are fighting back against the forces of hate and prejudice which killed six million of them during World War II, and they are winning.

On Oct. 31, for the third time since it was written in 1975, an anti-Semitic play due to appear in Frankfurt, West Germany, was cancelled due to vigorous protest by that nation's Jewish community.

Twenty-five Jews climbed onto the stage and blocked the play's premiere in Frankfurt's Kammertheater Oct. 31. The premiere was rescheduled for last week, but Jewish groups said they would attempt to block all future performances.

The play "Der Muell, Die Stadt und der Tod" ("Garbage, The City and Death") was sold out. Ironically, it was to be staged the very week of the 47th anniversary of the infamous Night of Broken Glass, in which gangs of Nazi thugs staged a modern-day pogrom, vandalizing and looting synagogues and Jewish-owned stores.

The play is about a Jew who buys old residential housing in Frankfurt, tears it down and sells the property at a profit to developers who build high-rise buildings.

According to an Associated Press story, a low-income man affected by the buyouts says in the play, "He sucks us dry, the Jew. He drinks our blood. ... If he had stayed where he came from, or if we had gassed him, I could sleep better today."

The episode highlights problems existing in a nation still haunted by the Holocaust. Many Jews of the community are survivors of the terrible event and, no doubt, many Germans in Frankfurt were loyal followers of the Nazi government when it was in power. History shows that the general populace went out of its way to help the government exterminate the Jews.

Jews are right to protest the insult. They don't want another era of hate and brutality against them to begin, as it easily could. Prejudice is usually hard to stamp out, as the history of our own country and many others shows. Anti-Semites, still seemingly plentiful in Germany a generation after the Holocaust, don't appear to be dying out.

It will take efforts on both sides, Jewish and gentile, to settle the question and live in harmony.

Billy Graham You can't face eternity alone

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I admit I have problems like everybody else, but I think religion is just for weak people. We ought to stand on our own two feet and solve our problems ourselves, instead of looking to God (who may or may not care enough about us to help us). — H.W.

DEAR H.W.: Whenever I get a letter like yours, I always ask myself, "What is this person's real problem? What is his real reason for deciding he does not want God in his life?" After all, I know God cares for you and wants to help you if you will ask Him. The problem is not with God, but with you. But what is at the root of your attitude?

Only you can answer that, of course — and I encourage you to examine your real motives. But from what you say I suspect your difficulty with God can be summarized in one word: pride. You consider it a sign of weakness to ask for help, and your pride will not let you do that. Instead, it flatters your ego to think you are strong enough to get along in life without help from anyone — especially God.

But pride is a very dangerous thing. The Bible warns, "Pride goes before destruction, a haughty spirit before a fall" (Proverbs 16:18).

Dear Abby

Readers offer endings for story of sibling rivalry

DEAR READERS: First this appeared in my column:

"DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of four lovely daughters. The eldest is 11. I'll call her Agnes. When Agnes was 3, her father died. Two years later, I remarried. Every summer, the parents of my first husband take Agnes for a month. Their son was their only child, and Agnes is their only grandchild. So far Agnes has been to Disneyland, Hawaii, Mexico and Europe. My husband and I cannot afford to take our other three children on trips like that, and they are understandably envious and resentful. I'm sure with all the divorces, deaths and remarriages, this is a common problem. If you or any of your readers have a solution, I'd appreciate knowing it.

TORN: What are your alternatives? To deny Agnes those exotic trips with her grandparents in order to avoid being envied by her half-sisters? Not fair to Agnes. To ask the grandparents to take one of the half-sisters along every year in the interest of family unity? Rather presumptuous. It would be very generous if they were to offer, but that idea would have to originate with them. Readers?"

Did I get letters!

DEAR ABBY: Your answer to "Torn" was appalling! How can you be so insensitive to the feelings of the younger siblings? Look ahead: Agnes will grow up to be a snob, thinking she is better than her sisters, who will surely grow to hate her. It's just human nature.

"Torn" should not permit those grandparents to take Agnes anywhere unless the sisters are included. Admit you were wrong,

Abby.

LOS ANGELES

DEAR ABBY: The solution to "Torn's" problem is so simple, I'm surprised you didn't see it. While Agnes is off with her grandparents, the parents should treat the other girls to picnics, visits to the children's museum, the amusement park, the zoo, an overnight camping trip or a fun weekend staying at a motel.

It would be as thrilling for them as a trip to Disneyland. And that way the sisters at home wouldn't feel so left out.

J.J., ROCHESTER, N.Y.

DEAR ABBY: "Torn" could be expressing her own feelings of anger and resentment rather than that of her three younger children. Their ages must be anywhere from infancy to 6 years old — too young to have formed their own feelings of envy and resentment. Instead of harboring such feelings, "Torn" should rejoice in the knowledge that her 11-year-old has loving grandparents who can afford to take their only grandchild on exotic trips.

MICHIGAN SOCIAL WORKER

DEAR ABBY: "Torn" should use this opportunity to teach her children two valuable lessons: (1) Learn to accept the things you cannot change. (2) Life is not always fair. The earlier they learn these lessons, the stronger they will be. I think we parents try too hard to protect our children from "bumps" and bruises, so their childhood will be as painless and smooth as possible. This is doing them no favors. They need to be equipped to live in the "real" world where they will be dealt more serious bumps.

Dr. Donohue

Ideal weight good medicine for diabetic

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When I was about 40 I had a blood sugar problem — too high. Fortunately, I had a wonderful doctor who treated me. He got me to come down to my ideal weight and I was able to go off the diabetes medicine, and have been in pretty good control since — except for once or twice when I started putting on weight.

I wish all diabetics knew the importance of keeping precisely down to their ideal weight. My doctor gave me a formula for ideal weight and calories. It's been so long, that I now keep both in control on my own. But do you know the formula? — Mrs. P.E.

It's wonderful that you were able to simplify your sugar control with such good effect. And you are correct. It is surprising what weight control can do for diabetes, and here we are speaking of the kind of diabetes that does not require insulin injections.

There's one weight and calorie formula I know of, and it may be the one you used.

First you find the ideal weight for your height, build and sex. With that you can figure your daily calorie needs. Just to keep body machinery going, you need 10 calories for every pound of the ideal weight figure. If you are essentially sedentary you add three calories more for each of those pounds. If you are moderately active, you add five more calories per pound to support that activity. If you are strenuously active you have to figure on an additional 10 calories for every pound of ideal weight.

According to this formula, a moderately-active woman whose ideal weight is 120 pounds would need a total of 1,800 calories daily to support her ideal weight and help keep sugar in control.

In addition, she has to divide the total calories into ideal carbohydrate, protein, and fat "mix." That simply means that 50-60 percent of total calories should be carbohydrate, 10-30 percent protein, and 20-30 percent fats. Most people will need professional help to help convert those calories into proper good constituents of a total diet. See the booklet "Diabetes — The Sneaky Disease." Readers may order by writing me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

Thursday Notes

By Charlie Alcorn

We start off the Notes this week with some District 4-5A football statistics.

Big Spring quarterback Carl Speck was the most prolific passer in 4-5A, completing 102 of 224 passes for 1496 yards and eight touchdowns. Speck also won the individual total offense title with a 155.3 yards per game average. Those are the kind of numbers that should earn Carl plenty of post-season honors.

Speck's favorite wide receiver, tight end David Shortes finished third in 4-5A's receiving race behind Permian all-stater Greg Anderson and Midland High's David DeLaGarza. Shortes hauled in 33 passes for 459 yards, far and away the best numbers for a tight end in the district. Teammate Randy Hayworth wound up fifth in receiving with 21 catches for 308 yards.

Steer tailback Phillip Matthews finished seventh in the league in rushing with 669 yards on the year. Central's Don Hall beat out teammate C.L. Bowman for the loop rushing crown by one yard; 989 to 988.

Matthews was also among the leading scorers in the district, compiling 72 points on 12 touchdowns. Permian tailback/kicker Woody Bryant took the scoring crown with an even 100 points.

As a team, the Steers finished with the fourth-rated offense averaging 327.9 yards a game. Permian led the district at 351.4 yards per game. The Steers finished seventh defensively, giving up 344.8 yards a game. Permian led again, giving up a paltry 174.2 yards a game.

Here's some news about area athletes abroad.

Shawn Justiss of Coahoma and Jay Pirkle of Big Spring are ending up their freshmen seasons for the Eastern New Mexico Greyhounds. Justiss played defensive tackle and Pirkle at linebacker and special teams. Neither saw any starting duty this year, but the future looks bright for increased playing time next year.

Big Spring basketball standout Elise Wheat is a returning starter for the Angelo State Rambelles. The 5-10 senior forward averaged 6.9 and 3.5 rebounds a game last year and is being counted on to lead her team through the tough Lone Star Conference schedule.

The Big Spring 9th grade football team won their final game of the season 13-12, over Sweetwater. Dennis Hartfield scored on a 55-yard run and Kurt Henry's winning touchdown run was set up by Rodney Brown's 53-yard dash.

Late registration and tryouts for the Coahoma Youth Basketball Association will be held Saturday, November 16 at the Coahoma High School gym. The league is open to boys and girls age 9-11 before September 1. The league is open to Coahoma school district children only.

For more information contact David Elmore at 394-4759.

Grady cross-country sensation Shanna Hale competed in the Class 2A Cross-Country state championships in Georgetown last Saturday and came home with a second place silver medal. Though Hale attends a Class A school, she had to move up a class to be eligible for the state championships. Hale was beaten by rival Cindy Harper of Woodson in the two-mile race.

This won't be the last you'll hear of Miss Hale. She is also a state-ranked 1600 and 3200 meter track runner.

Congratulations Shanna on this fine performance!

The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring the First Annual Turkey Trot, Saturday, Nov. 16 at the Comanche Trail Park at 8 a.m.

It will be a 10K (6.2 miles) and one mile fun run for males and females in the following divisions: 12 and under, 13-19, 20-29, 30-39, 40-49 and 50 and over.

Registration fee is $5 per runner and it must be in by Nov. 13. Day of the race registration (7-7:45 a.m.) will cost $8. The first 100 to enter will receive a free T-shirt.

For more information call Craig Brace at 263-1211.

The YMCA is taking applications for its Youth Basketball League.

There will be three leagues for boys and girls. Instructional League is for boys and girls ages 6-8. Junior League is for boys and girls ages 9-10 while there will be a separate league for boys in grades 5-6 and girls in grades 5-6.

Entry fee is $17.50 for YMCA members and $22.50 for non-members.

For more information call the YMCA at 267-8234.

This last Note really breaks my heart.

The final tabulations have been made, all games are in, and staff writer Keely Coghlan has won the Herald Pigskin Prediction contest. Another male chauvinist bastion bites the dust!

Coghlan took a slim one game lead over Don Stevens, Tim Yeats and myself into the final week of picks. All felt sure that the pressure would finally take its toll on our methodical investigative reporter. But no!

Like a true champion, Coghlan saved her best for last, finishing 13-2 for the week, snuffing out any hopes of a chauvinist comeback. Here's a look at the sad truth.

Gooden takes NL Cy Young

NEW YORK (AP) — There were still three days left before Dwight Gooden would turn 21 years old, and already he had added the National League's Cy Young award to his list of birthday presents.

"I guess things have moved along pretty rapidly in my career," Gooden said Wednesday from the dais, a birthday cake with 21 candles on it in front of him.

At the tender age of 20, Gooden had been voted unanimously as the best pitcher in the league, one year after he had been recognized as the league's best rookie.

"Last year, I won the rookie award, and that was special because you only have one chance," Gooden said. "And the Cy Young is a great honor after finishing second last year."

With his birthday coming on Saturday, Gooden became baseball's youngest Cy Young winner ever and also the first player to win the rookie and Cy Young awards in successive years. The right-hander had a record of 24-4 and led the National League in earned run average, strikeouts, complete games and innings pitched in 1985.

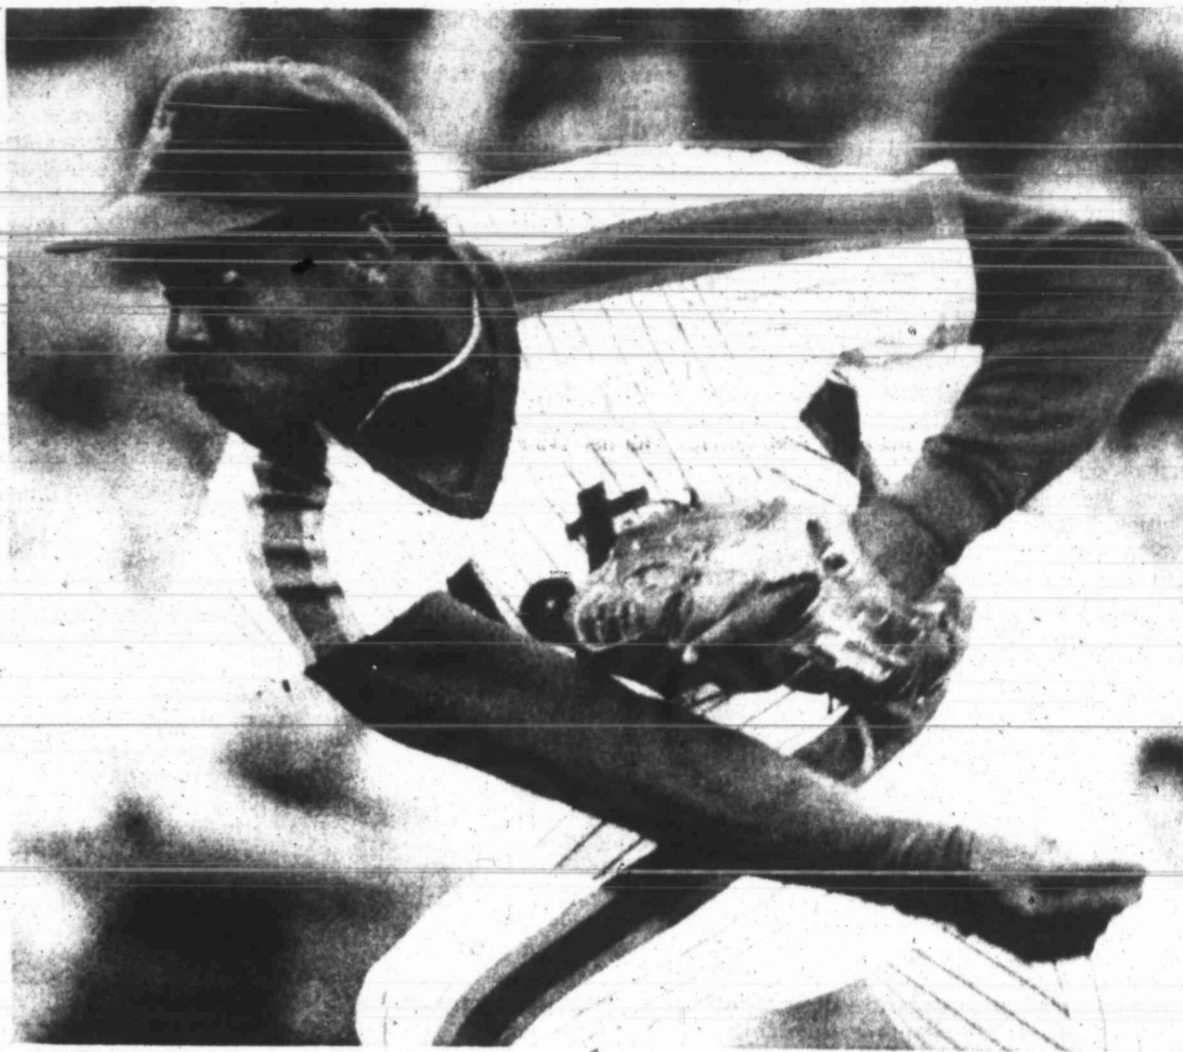

Gooden received 120 points, including all 24 of the first-place votes cast by the Baseball Writers' Association of America. He thus became the seventh pitcher to receive the award unanimously.

John Tudor of St. Louis, 21-8 during the season, was second with 65 points, followed by Orel Hershiser of Los Angeles with 17, Joaquin Andujar of St. Louis with 6, Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles with 4, Tom Browning of Cincinnati with 3 and Jeff Reardon of Montreal with 1. Tudor was listed second on 21 ballots, with the other second-place votes going to Hershiser, Andujar and Valenzuela.

The other unanimous Cy Young winners were Sandy Koufax in 1963, 1965 and 1966 — years when the Cy Young voting covered both leagues — Denny McLain in 1968; Bob Gibson in 1968; Steve Gariton in 1972 and 1977; Ron Guidry in 1978, and Rick Sutcliffe in 1984.

Votes are cast by two members of the BBWAA from each National League city with a first-place vote counting five points, second three points and third one.

Gooden was 13 days younger

New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden, who will turn 21 this week, fires one of his 268 strikeouts of the year to the plate. Gooden went 24-4 in 1985 and was the unanimous choice by the Baseball Writers of America for the NL Cy Young award.

than Valenzuela when the Dodgers lefty won the award on Nov. 11, 1981 — 10 days after turning 21. And although Valenzuela is the only pitcher ever to win the Cy Young and rookie awards in the same year, Gooden was the first pitcher to win the awards in successive seasons.

In fact, only four players other than Gooden have won both awards — Valenzuela, Sutcliffe, Tom Seaver and Don Newcombe.

Soft-spoken and not given to hyperbole, Gooden said he had not yet felt the full impact of his accomplishments.

"I don't really feel special now, but everything that I've done really hasn't sunk in yet," he said, admitting some surprise that he had done so much so quickly "because last year I didn't even know if I would make the team."

The day after winning the award proved a busy one for Gooden, who scampered to the network news programs this morning.

On NBC's "Today Show" Gooden said he thought about the possibility of winning the NL Most Valuable Player award, which will be announced next Monday.

"I've been thinking about it and looking forward to it. If I win it, it would be a great honor and the icing on the cake. I think I got a shot at it."

In 1984, when he won the NL

rookie award, Gooden had a record of 17-9, giving him a two-year total of 41-13. This year, he had an ERA of 1.53, a team record, and a major league-leading 268 strikeouts. He also led the league with 276 2-3 innings pitched and 16 complete games, and his eight shutouts were two short of Tudor's league-leading 10.

In a four-man, rather than five-man, rotation, Gooden feels he could possibly win 30 games some season.

"Hopefully, I'll do it one day before my career is over," Gooden said. He said a shorter rotation would be "a good challenge. It

Lynette Woodward, the Harlem Globetrotter's first female member, breaks to the basket during her first game with the team in Spokane, Washington.

Woodard makes hoop history with 'Trotters

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Lynette Woodard, the first woman to play on the Harlem Globetrotters, showed her prowess for magic Wednesday night when she made her U.S. debut with basketball's Clown Princes.

"It was fun," said the 26-year-old Woodard, who scored seven points while playing about 1½ quarters.

"This is an opportunity of the century," Woodard added after the Globetrotters beat the Washington Generals 81-65 in the Spokane Coliseum.

A less-than-capacity crowd of 3,250 turned out for the game. The Globetrotters warmed up for their American tour by taking a 26-0 record on an Australian swing.

Woodard, the most prolific scorer in women's collegiate basketball when she played at the University of Kansas, is ready for a new role with the Globetrotters.

"It's not about scoring; it's a show. We all have a role to play. I will do more as time goes by, but I'm a rookie," said the captain of the 1984 Olympic gold medal-women's basketball team.

"This is the first time in history," she added. "There is nothing I'd rather be doing. It was just nice to have this first one down, and now it's all uphill from here."

Woodard said she'd be coaching if she wasn't playing. Woodard was a full-time assistant coach last year at Kansas.

She first saw the Globetrotters about 16 years ago. She got a personal view of the team from her cousin, Reese Ausbie, one of the club's all-time favorite clowns who just retired.

"That made them even more special to me," she said. "He's always encouraged me."

The Wichita, Kan., native knows she's a gate attraction because of her sex. Her act isn't polished yet and she's still learning her role, but, she says, her teammates treat her warmly.

Woodard has the credentials. She scored 3,649 points in 139 games from 1978-81 at Kansas, winning the prestigious Wade Award in 1981.

Grady to battle top-ranked Jayton

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

The Grady Wildcats will get their fourth chance in two years to unseat defending Six-Man state champion Jayton when the two meet in a Bi-District playoff game Friday night (7:30 p.m.) at the Borden County High School field in Gail.

Coach Currie McWilliams Wildcats will definitely have their work cut out for them if they are to upset the powerful Jaybirds, who are 9-0 and have not played a full game this year. Six-Man games are stopped if a team takes a 45 point or over lead in the second half.

Grady has the offensive firepower to give the Jaybirds a game, led by quarterback Luis Gonzales, who has thrown for 2,014 yards and 31 touchdowns this year. The Grady running attack is headed by versatile tailback Arnold Valasco, who has rushed for 963 yards and caught 29 passes for 561 yards.

The Wildcats passed effectively against Jayton in an early regular season loss, but McWilliams plans to take a different approach this time around. "It might not be the smartest thing to do, but we're going to try to run right at them. They've lost two defensive ends for this game and we feel that Arnold can attack that weakness. He's (Valasco) has been itching to carry the ball 30 times a game this season. I think he'll get the chance Friday."

ARNOLD VALASCO

McWilliams has made some changes in his offensive lineup to accommodate the new emphasis on running. Joe Valle will start in place of regular tailback Michael Mitchell, and Tommy Peras will replace tight end Terry Deathrage on running downs.

"These two kids (Valle and Peras) are better blockers than Mitchell and Deathrage, and we're going to need all the help we can get against Jayton's defense," explained McWilliams.

Jayton head coach Phil Mitchell is also leary of the Wildcats high-powered offense. "This will be the fourth time we've played them lately and sooner or later they'll find a way to beat us. They've got a fine offensive football team. I expect it to be a very high scoring game."

In contrast to Grady, Jayton mainly stays on the ground. All-state running back Trey Richey is the Jaybird's workhorse, piling up over 1100 yards rushing and scoring approximately every fourth time he touches the ball. "He is without a doubt, the finest back in the state," concluded McWilliams.

Richey gets plenty of blocking from fullback Billy Scogins, a 170-pound ball of muscle, and quarterback Ricky Martinez. The Jaybird running attack is so successful, that they throw fewer than five times a game, an unusual statistic in the wide-open Six-Man game.

According to McWilliams, the only way the Wildcats can stay in the game is to keep the ball out of the Jaybirds hands. "I'd like to handle the ball three times a quarter and have some long, sustained drives. We will have a chance to win a relatively low scoring game. It's now or never, and I think we can beat Jayton if the kids play every down until the whistle blows."

Celts win sans Bird scoring

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
AP Basketball Writer

One reason the Boston Celtics have been in the National Basketball Association finals for two consecutive years is that they can play well even when Larry Bird isn't.

Bird, the NBA's Most Valuable Player the last two seasons, led Boston with 15 rebounds and seven assists Wednesday night, but shot a dismal 6-for-21 from the floor and finished with 18 points.

Nevertheless, Dennis Johnson compensated for Bird's "off-night" with 30 points, his high since joining the team in 1983, as the Celtics defeated Indiana 118-114 for their seventh consecutive victory after a season-opening loss to New Jersey.

"Larry has been shooting bricks out there and D.J. has been picking up the slack," Celtics Coach K.C. Jones said. "Dennis is pumped up on both ends and is doing the job."

Johnson scored 11 points in both the third and fourth periods as Boston broke away from a 58-58 halftime tie.

In other NBA games, it was Philadelphia 110, Chicago 106; Atlanta 108, Phoenix 101; Milwaukee 137, Detroit 118; Dallas 115, Utah 100; and Seattle 93, Los Angeles Clippers 89.

Johnson's 11 points in the third quarter helped Boston take an 88-81 lead after the halftime deadlock. Then, after sitting on the bench while Indiana rallied for a 91-91 tie early in the fourth quarter, he scored nine of his 11 fourth-quarter points in a two-minute span as the Celtics pulled away again.

"I can't explain why I had that stretch in the fourth quarter," Johnson said. "If I could, I'd bottle it and save it for the next game. Those things just happen."

"He hurt us when we did not sign him as a free agent and he hurt us tonight," said Pacers Coach George Irvine, referring to the off-season offer sheet Johnson signed with Indiana that was matched by Boston. "He had a great game and did it basically against a tough defense."

"D.J. made some real tough shots," Indiana's Terence Stansbury said. "We played good defense on him, but he made the big shots. They weren't easy shots he got. All you can do when a player is going like that is to keep playing him tight and hope he misses the next one."

The Pacers were led by Herb Williams with 27 points, Verri Fleming with 22, and Clark Kellogg with 21, while Robert Parish contributed 23 for the Celtics.

NBA Roundup

Mavericks 115, Jazz 100
Dallas, struggling with a 3-6 record after being touted as one of the best teams in the Western Conference, got 37 points from Rolando Blackman to win on the road against Utah.

"I tried everything on Blackman," Jazz Coach Frank Layden said. "I almost put Barbara (Layden's wife) on him at him at one point. This is the real Dallas team. The Mavericks are a polished team, much better than their record indicates."

Blackman, who played only 11 minutes in Dallas' loss to Seattle on Tuesday after dislocating a finger in practice Monday, made 17 of his 23 field-goal attempts and scored 16 points in the third quarter as the Mavericks pulled away to a 90-70 lead after three periods.

The Mavericks led 30-18 after one period as Utah shot only 30 percent from the field. Adrian Dantley led the Jazz with 17 points, 14 under his average.

Bucks 137, Pistons 118
Milwaukee moved into first place ahead of Detroit in the Central Division as Ricky Pierce and Alton Lister both scored 22 points.

The Bucks scored 11 straight points to grab a 36-22 lead late in the first quarter, and the Pistons moved no closer than eight points the rest of the game.

Pierce hit 10 of 13 field-goal attempts for Milwaukee, while Lister was 9-for-13 and added 12 rebounds. Terry Cummings scored 21 points for the Bucks, who had seven players in double figures.

76ers 110, Bulls 106
Philadelphia got 21 points and 13 rebounds from Moses Malone and outscored Chicago 30-18 in the second quarter to build a 17-point halftime lead, then held on to hand the Bulls their sixth loss in their last seven games.

The Bulls, who got 32 points from Orlando Woolridge and 25 from George Gervin, trailed 77-59 midway through the third period before scoring 10 consecutive points to get back in contention. Chicago cut the deficit to 84-78 on a layup by Gene Banks with 15 seconds left.

But seven straight Philadelphia points, four of them by Julius Erving, rebuilt the 76ers' advantage to 102-90, and the Bulls got no closer than four points.

Sonics 93, Clippers 89
Jack Sikma scored 13 of his season-high 20 points in the fourth quarter to keep Seattle ahead of Los Angeles.

Sikma and reserve guard Ricky Sobers combined to score 11 of the first 13 points of the final period as the SuperSonics, who trailed by 13 points in the first half, built a 79-69 lead.

But Derek Smith, who led the Clippers with 26 points, led a 15-8 spurt that cut the deficit to 87-84, but Los Angeles could get no closer.

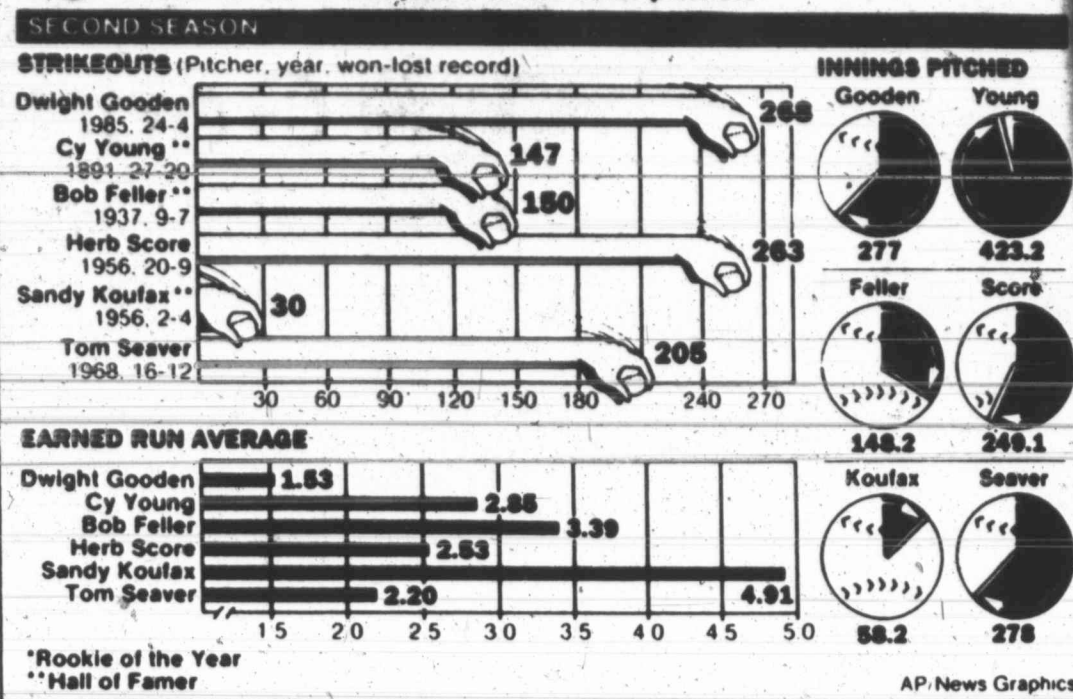

The Clippers had only nine players in uniform because of injuries this week to forwards Marques Johnson, Cedric Maxwell and Jamaal Wilkes. Smith left the game with 3:05 left after suffering a knee injury.

Hawks 108, Suns 101
Cliff Levingston scored 23 points and Atlanta withstood a late three-point shooting display by Walter Davis to beat winless Phoenix.

The Suns, 0-9, trailed 104-90 with 2:18 left in the game, but Davis hit three consecutive three-pointers to cut the margin to five with 1:24 to go. But two free throws by Eddie Johnson and a basket by Levingston clinched the victory for the Hawks.

HOW GOOD IS GOODEN?

Dwight Gooden's record compared to five other pitchers

Gooden

would probably take a couple of starts to get used to it, but I think I could do it.

"I came into this season shooting for 20 victories," he said. "I accomplished that, but I didn't think I would lose only four games."

When Gooden won his 20th game of the season on Aug. 25, he became the youngest pitcher to accomplish that feat. He was 20 years 9 months 9 days old, compared with the 20 years 10 months 5 days of Bob Feller when he won 20 in 1939 with the Cleveland Indians.

And, by leading the league in the triple crown categories of victories, ERA and strikeouts, he became only the seventh pitcher to do so and the first since Koufax in 1966. Besides Koufax, who turned the triple three times, the others were Walter Johnson, Grover Cleveland Alexander, Dazzy Vance, Lefty Grove and Hal Newhouser. Of those, only Newhouser failed to make the Hall of Fame.

Gooden's winning percentage of .857 was the highest for a 20-game winner in the National League since Preacher Roe went 22-3 for an .880 percentage in 1951. Gooden and Herb Score are the only players to strike out 200 or more batters in each of their first two seasons.

"The most remarkable thing about Dwight is that he seems to come up with something new every start," Mets Manager Davey Johnson said. "Just when you think you might have seen it all, he amazes you again."

Gooden came into the league in 1984 with a 95 mph fastball and parabolic curveball. This season, he added a changeup, which he used sparingly. He says his changeup and his pickoff move to first base are the two things he would most like to improve. As for goals? "This, of course, is a goal of every pitcher," Gooden said of the Young.

ALLEGIANCE TO TRUTH A sacred regard for the authority of God, the authority of Jesus Christ, and the Bible truth ought to lead us to reject any error in religion, however old or new, sanctioned by whatever other authority or however generally practiced. The only sound reason to speak or write in favor of, or to defend any religious doctrine, or to encourage anyone to accept a religious doctrine or practice is because that doctrine is truth, truth as far as God is concerned as revealed in the Word of God. If that doctrine, practice, is based upon God's truth revealed in scripture, then in addition to sincerity, there must be the desire for truth, a desire strong enough to compel belief and practice to change wherever one's belief and practice is found to be false or in error whenever those beliefs and practices are compared to the Word of God, the Bible. Truth challenges investigation. And any person whose beliefs and convictions are founded upon Bible truth correctly understood, does not fear having their convictions and beliefs investigated as to its truth, it only increases confidence. The constitution, laws, and work of the church of the Lord Jesus Christ is found plainly declared in the New Testament.

Ex-police dispatcher arrested on warrant for child solicitation

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

A former Big Spring Police Department employee was arrested Wednesday on a warrant for solicitation of a child.

Arrested at his home was Charles Crockett Hudson, 18, of 711 E. 15th, a former police dispatcher. He was transferred to the sheriff's office and released on $1,000 bond.

Police Chief Rick Turner fired Hudson Nov. 7 from his job as a dispatcher after Hudson made a statement to police regarding several incidents of child solicitation, Turner said last week.

Solicitation of a child is a Class A misdemeanor and carries a penalty of up to a year in jail and/or a $2,000 fine.

Hudson is a suspect in an incident that occurred between 3 and 5 p.m. Nov. 7, in which a man approached a boy and a girl on the east side of town. Lt. Jerry Edwards said today.

Last week, Turner said Hudson also was a suspect in a case in which a man tried to talk to two 8-year-old girls into having sex with him. The man used graphic language to describe his intentions, Turner said.

That incident also occurred on the east side of town between 3 and 5 p.m., police said.

Other reported incidents of child solicitation are not being "actively investigated," Edwards said.

Last week, he said police were investigating cases of child solicitation involving children between 8 and 12 years old. The children were approached in pairs or threes, he said.

However, descriptions of suspects and their vehicles were vague and sometimes contradictory, Edwards said.

In those cases, no physical contact between the solicitor and the children occurred, he said. Typically, the solicitor approached children in a neighborhood from his car, Edwards said.

Car fire causes $500 damage

Firefighters doused a car fire Wednesday afternoon in the 1800 block of Gregg Street, according to department reports.

The blaze caused $500 damage to a 1980 Pontiac owned by Ricky Wallace of 1001 E. 13th, the report stated.

Firemen arrived at the scene at 3:40 p.m., where they found the car still smoking from a fire inside. A fire extinguisher had been used on the motor, where the fire started, but had not completely doused the flames, the report stated.

Firefighters used 20 gallons of water to put out the fire, according to the report. Wallace had been working on the carburetor when the fire started, the report said.

Colorado City awards water line bid

COLORADO CITY — The City Council here awarded a bid for a new water line on Cyprus Street to the low bidder, Mitchell County Utilities.

Council members awarded the bid after listening to several plans to alleviate water pressure problems in the north section of the city.

Mitchell County Utilities submitted a bid for $23,354.98 for construction and $10,872 for labor.

Council members also accepted a proposal by the Masonic Lodge on a cornerstone for the new fire station.

The 2-foot square stone will carry an inscription stating the role the lodge played in the construction of the building.

A private citizen, Marion Bassham of Colorado City, donated half the construction funds for the new fire station to the city.

Councilmen denied a request by J.O. Dockrey to construct a private landing strip within city limits. Councilmen said they would need approval for the airstrip from the Federal Aviation Administration. The airstrip also would necessitate a zoning change.

The city is doing well financially, said city manager Brenda Tarter. She told councilmen the city received $63,811 in tax money in October.

"It's nice to find we are almost $100,000 under the (budgeted) average monthly expenditure," Tarter said.

Mitchell County adopts juvenile housing plan

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County Commissioners agreed Tuesday to house juvenile offenders at the Taylor County Juvenile Detention Center in Abilene.

The Mitchell County juvenile detention center cannot house juveniles for more than 24 hours because of a new state law prohibiting the location of juvenile detention centers in jail facilities.

As an alternative, commissioners approved a contract with the Taylor County center to house

Mitchell County juvenile offenders at a rate of $50 a day per inmate.

Commissioners also granted permission to Lazy E Productions to film on location at the Mitchell County Cemetery for three days at the end of November. However, commissioners required the movie production company to consult the Rev. John Busch of St. Ann's Catholic Church because he supervises cemetery care.

In other action, commissioners elected Ronnie Feaster as county representative on the Mitchell County Tax Appraisal Board.
