Spring Texas drilling costs show drop

By WILLIAM GARLAND

Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau WASHINGTON - Drilling for oil and gas has become less costly nationally because of a declining demand for drilling rigs, but the sharpest drop compared to last year has been in West and North Texas, according to an Energy Department report.

Average 1985 drilling costs have been lower than 1984 for all types of wells - oil wells, gas wells and dry holes - and for drilling to all depths, according to the report titled "Indexes and Estimates of Domestic Well Drilling Costs - 1984 and

The decline in drilling costs was uniform throughout the country, and especially in Texas, except for "small regional variations," said the report, which was released this week. Slightly higher costs for drilling were reported in states in the Southeast.

Oil well drilling costs in North Texas have declined about 12.2 percent compared to 1984 for wells drilled to a depth of 7,500 feet, the report said. Gas well drilling costs to a depth of 5,000 feet in North Texas also were estimated at 12.2 percent lower than

Estimated dry hole drilling costs in West Texas for 1985 have declined about 11.6 percent from 1984 for a well drilled to 5,000

Total drilling costs for individual wells in the report fanged from a low of $11,000 to a highest cost of $4.1 million.

Sunday

Average drilling costs also declined in South Texas, although not quite as much as North and West Texas, the report said.

The slightest decrease in South Texas drilling was for wells that went only to 1,250 feet. The cost for those wells declined 2.8 percent since 1983, while the average cost for a South Texas well drilled to a depth of 12,500 feet went down about 7.7 percent, the report said.

Farm woes

Deficit plan could cut funds for farmers

By WILLIAM GARLAND Harte-Hanks Bureau

WASHINGTON - The Reagan administration could have a free hand in slashing direct federal payments to farmers if the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction plan clears Congress, according to a staff memo to House Agriculture Committee Chairman E.

The confidential memo to de la Garza said the Gramm-Rudman amendment could let the administration virtually "rewrite" the crucial 1985 farm

The memo cited several administration options for slicing the Agriculture Department's budget if, under Gramm-Rudman's guidelines, acrossthe-board reductions in federal spending are required. Those options would include directly reducing price support

Bush promises nothing to farm groups

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) -Vice President George Bush met Saturday with leaders of 17 farm groups, saying he hoped to convince them the administration is aware of their "real agony" although he brought no new proposals.

"It's a listening thing. I don't come out here with a lot of new programs or new ideas," Bush said. "If that's not enough, I'm After meeting with Bush for more than an hour behind closed doors, the farm leaders said the vice president listened, but did little more than that.

"He promised us nothing," said the Rev. David Ostendorf of the rural advocacy group Prairiefire. "We didn't come out of it with anything more than we went into it with. Frankly, that's not enough."

Gov. Terry Branstad said the farm leaders unanimously demanded more stable farm policies and a bailout of the Farm Credit System that helps farmers as well as bankers. "Right now, there's such great uncertainty and fear," the governor said. "The vice president clearly got that message." Asked if Bush had made any commitments to help farmers, Branstad said, "No. He listened. He did not promise."

"The vice president demonstrated he's genuinely concerned," said Malcom McGregor, president of the Iowa Cattlemen's Association.

Brian Rasmus, biology instructor at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, is creating sign language words to correspond with scientific terms, a communication sorely lacking in deaf education, he says.

Instructor developing sign language system for scientific terms

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

Teaching advanced biology to deaf students can be difficult because many scientific words have no corresponding sign in American Sign Language, says

He plans to remedy that problem. The SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf instructor received a total of $13,600 in grants to work on inventing hand signs for scientific terms.

biology instructor Brian Rasmus.

Long technical words like 'photosynthesis" currently have to be spelled letter-by-letter with the sign language alphabet each time they are used, he said. This is difficult for the instructor or interpreter to communicate and difficult for the deaf student to read. "It's a real problem in the deaf community, not having the language to teach science,' especially for advanced courses,

"At the advanced level, it's very technical. There's a tendency to finger-spell instead of signing," he said. Because few universities offer advanced study for the deaf, most students must rely on interpreters to translate what the instructor says into sign language, he Finger-spelling the scientific terms "lessens the concept of development" for the deaf student, Rasmus said.

The system of signs would eliminate this problem because signs describe the object they name, thus giving a better picture of the word, Rasmus said. For example, the sign for the process by which cells divide is both hands

Asian elephant is at home on Northeast Texas farm

YANTIS, Texas - Cows are not an unusual sight in Northeast Texas - that is, unless you are driving on Farm to Market Road 2946 near Yantis where you'll see a 4,000 pound, solid-gray cow quietly Her name is Dolly, and she's an

Asian elephant from Sri Lanka. Dolly is owned by Steve Gandy, a Dallasite who moved to the Yantis Gandy and Dolly live on 40 acres of pasture, complete with a house for Gandy and several ponds for Dolly. Their home is located north of Hogansville in both Wood and Rains counties.

area about seven months ago.

"She's in elephant heaven here. The place is ideal," Gandy said. Gandy purchased the elephant from the Ford Brothers Circus in Conroe last April, shortly after he moved to the area.

"My partner, Doug Cook, called me up and asked if I would be interested in buying an elephant," he

"Any trained or broken Asian elephant will usually sell for about $50,000, and a baby would probably run $30,000," Gandy said. Dolly is enclosed in a pasture surrounded by a barbed wire fence. "She's never even gone near any of the barbed wire. She could push a tree over if she wanted to, but she stays in her own area and doesn't wander off," Gandy said.

Dolly is "only" 23 years old, he said. Elephants can live from 70 to 80 years in captivity.

But Dolly is especially valuable to Gandy in that she is one of an endangered species, he said. Asian elephants are no longer allowed admittance into the United States, he said.

"No one in the U.S. has a baby Asian elephant.'

Elephants do not reach breeding age until about 25. Gandy has arranged to breed Dolly with one of the male Asian elephants at the Fort Worth Zoo in a few years.

However, he plans to keep Dolly at home during her two-year gestation period, "working, but being real careful," he added.

At about 8 feet in height, Dolly is "very small for an elephant. A good-sized Asian elephant will weigh about 8,000 pounds and will stand 9 to 10 feet tall," Gandy said. Elephants will usually have one last period of growth at about Dolly's age, Gandy says, and he expects Dolly to grow more soon. At her present size she eats five pounds of mule feed and 150 pounds of hay each day.

"She loves watermelons, cantaloupe and all kinds of fruits, too. And she'll kill for peanuts," he said, telling the story of how Dolly once found bags of peanuts in the garage and "spilled them all over Dolly already knew many tricks from her circus life. But by using peanuts as rewards, Gandy taught Dolly a few tricks of his own, including playing the harmonica.

"Once they learn the tricks, they never forget them. They learn very quickly, and they have an incredible memory," he said. Dolly and Gandy usually work on the weekends and rest during the week at home. Dolly does mostly promotional work by appearing at various events, making television commercials and posing for print advertisements in both action and still shootings.

"Dolly will wear any kind of costume. She has worn several different outfits in the past," he said. Gandy is notified of jobs for Dolly through her agent, Shere Hickock of Animal Trackers in Dallas. 'The animal agency handles the busines end. I don't do much in that area," Gandy said. The agency asks $350 an hour for Dolly's services with a two-hour minimum, or $1,000 a day.

"Of course, these rates are negotiable. It's so expensive to transport her that we have to charge a pretty good amount," he Gandy said he loads Dolly in the back of a bob-tail truck, or a six-ton van, when they have to travel. Dolly does not mind traveling; she just has to be walked periodically if she is riding more than eight hours, Gandy said.

Gandy admits that some of the neighbors and area residents were "skeptical" about Dolly. But the reception has overall been favorable, he said.

"A lot of people stop to look at her, and I'll sometimes go out and introduce her to them. Gandy said some passers-by take pictures of Dolly. He said he has even seen people drive into the ditches because they were apparently watching Dolly instead of the road. Gandy's family loves Dolly.

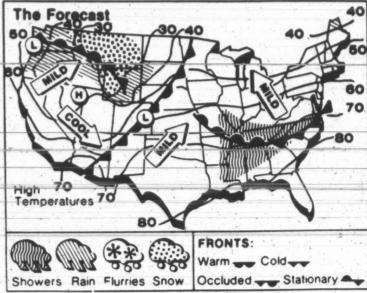

'They come out all the time. All the nieces and nephews come over and ride her; they like to feed her fruit and stuff. She is very gentle, and she loves kids," he said

But Gandy said that some people are afraid of elephants, even though elephants usually mean no harm to people.

"They're (elephants) more afraid of hurting themselves than they are of people. Elephants are strange in that they become very attached to their trainer, and if the trainer is not around, they can become very frightened," possibly resulting in a dangerous situation,

One of Gandy's responsibilities as Dolly's guardian involves her cleanliness and attractiveness:

Continued from page 1-A serious consideration this year in Congress, both the loan levels and the target price support levels would have been dramatically reduced.

The memo to de la Garza last month said the administation could cut the Agriculture Department budget to comply with Gramm-Rudman by:

 Lowering both the loan rate and target price levels for commodities, in effect setting a lower domestic price for a crop while also reducing the federal deficiency price support payment to the farmer.

 Decreasing acreage reduction requirements for commodities, thus increasing the supply of a commodity and forcing a reduction in the loan and target price levels.

 Reducing the direct payment cap to farmers from the current level of $50,000 per year. "Exactly how these reductions would be achieved is not clear," said the memo. "The administration, armed with OMB (Office of Management and Budget) budget estimates, could rewrite the farm bill adopted by Congress to meet the uniform reductions."

continue.

Individual farmers currently can receive no more than $50,000 per year in direct price support payments from the Agriculture Department. The administration's proposal for the farm bill would immediately have reduced the cap to $20,000 per year and lowered it to $10,000 per year by 1988.

Howard "Chip" Conley, an Agriculture Committee economist who helped draft the memo, said he would not predict which of the options for deficit reduction the administration would take for agriculture. The administration has been "very unpredictable" on farm policy, he said.

Bush

Continued from page 1-A But Bush said he would not denounce President Reagan's farm policies in order to distance himself from the president before any bid for the 1988 GOP presidential nomination.

"I'm not going to do it," Bush said. "It would be hypocritical of me to do it. I can't turn my back on him. That's the price I pay, being vice president.'

At a press conference before the meeting, Bush said the administration has not ruled out a federal bailout of the financially pressed Farm Credit System.

But he refused to endorse such a solution and said he can't offer firm figures on how much the government should spend.

"The president and I both recognize that the availability of the credit the Farm Credit System provides farmers is absolutely vital and that the federal government cannot simply stand by and watch this system collapse," he said.

Killers of whites more likely to get death

DALLAS (AP) - People who murder whites are prosecuted more frequently and are being put to death at 11 times the rate of those who kill blacks, the Dallas Times Herald reported in its Sunday editions

Even though the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1972 that the death penalty was unconstitutionally arbitrary, a national survey focusing on victims' race indicates that nine years after re-enactment of capital punishment, it still appears to be randomly enforced, the Times Herald said in copyright stories.

In Maryland, for example, the killer of a white person is eight times more likely to get the death penalty than the killer of a black person. In Arkansas, the likelihood is six times greater, and in Texas, it's five

"The pattern is well-documented, statistically and anecdotally," said Julian Epstein, an aide to Michigan Rep. John Conyers, an ardent capital punishment foe. "It has always been discriminatory, always been arbitrary. Last October, a black man was executed in Louisiana for murdering a white store owner (during a robbery)," he said. "About the same time, in the same parish, three white men were given 75-year sentences for the rape and dismemberment of a black teen-ager," Epstein told the Times Herald. "If there's any pattern in the process, race is the only pattern that can be Nationally, experience shows that the killer of a white is nearly three times more likely to be sentenced to death than the killer of a black in the 32 states where the death penalty has been imposed, the Times Herald

A comparison of capital murders committed in those states and the sentencing patterns reveals that the killer of a white has an 11.1 percent chance of reaching death row. For the killer of a black, the chance is 4.5

New state laws were enacted after the 1972 Supreme Court decision that struck down capital punishment laws in 42 states as arbitrary and discriminatory partly because they were used disproportionately against black defendants.

Those laws greatly restricted the application of the death penalty but did not remove a racial bias that can be statistically detected, the Times Herald said. It reported that statistics also suggest that throughout the judicial system, there is greater public horror when the murder victim is white. Of the capital murders identified during an eightyear period, 30 percent involved black victims and 14.4

percent of the death row inmates were killers of blacks. Seventy percent were white-victim murders, but 85.6 percent of the inmates were killers of whites. Therefore, the newspaper noted, killers of blacks are punished at less than half the rate at which black-victim crimes occur, while the killers of whites are punished at a rate that is 15 percentage points above the white-victim crime rate. "What we've got to do is re-challenge the issue of capriciousness and discrimination," Convers said. The '72 decision, in which the Supreme Court struck down capital punishment as arbitrary, really hasn't changed anything. There has just been a fast shuffle in the law. The same terrible things are still happening.

Pollution by city should be halted

City of Big Spring should work to shed the dubious distinc-tion of making Texas Water Commission's "rest-of-the-worst"

Big Spring was among the cities named Friday, not among the worst violators, but to a secondary list of chronic polluters. Second worst is still too bad. This is the kind of skirting of pollution regulations you expect to find in an industry willing to risk long-term integrity for short-term financial gain.

The city is setting aside money from big water/sewer rate and price increases for revamping of the treatment plant. It was our understanding that the modernization was designed to automate the system, thus freeing personnel, rather than correct defects.

If pollution control is part of the work being planned, however, then the sooner it is accomplished the better. If not, we should look to the cause of our habitual pollution and take quick steps to correct it, even if we must redirect tax money to accomplish the goal. A new debate is brewing over what word best describes that varied segment of the U.S. population that is of Spanish descent.

The debate - whether "Latino" should replace the now widely used "Hispanic" - seems silly, except that from it springs a much deeper question: Will Americans of Spanish descent ever be just Americans

By editorializing that Hispanic is an ugly and imprecise word, the Los Angeles Times revived a debate—that is not new to the Southwest. For years, Mexican-Americans have struggled with what term they should use to describe themselves.

Implicit in this has always been the feeling that Mexican-Americans were different from the mainstream "Anglo" population. And that precisely is what is important about the drive to replace Hispanic with Latino: Either word accomplishes what it sets out to do, setting apart a group of people from the remainder of the general population.

Why the need exists to differentiate between groups or why members of groups feel bound to differentiate themselves from other groups is as old as mankind

In Texas and the Southwest, however, the roots of ethnic definition are traceable to a more recent history, to events which forced those kinds of cultural and ethnic definitions upon the course of our political development. The clash of cultures in the Southwest cast its history in the context of a struggle between the Anglo and the Spanish cultures whose consequences can still be seen today.

From that history lies the reason for ethnic categorization in the Southwest today. It is not unlike the history of the divisions between North and South that led to givil war, whose effects were slow to disappear, nor unlike the divisions between black and white that re-

Unsinkable Johnnie Lou

I get tired just reading Johnnie Lou Avery's schedule. The woman confirms the law of inertia. Matter at rest, scientists tell us, tends to stay at rest. Matter in motion tends to stay in motion. Avery is in motion.

After three years of cranking out a timeconsuming column for this newspaper — the last few months at a pace of two a week - Avery has called it quits. There just aren't enough hours in a day. I hate

The last paragraph of each gave notice that this was the final column. The schedule looked like a course description for the Boston marathon. I'm surprised Avery can keep both her schedule and her sanity. It seems like one would have to go.

It was so apt that she felt apologetic for simply acknowledging a small limitation like being over-booked. Johnnie Lou Avery typically seems unbound by temporal restraints; she also seems immune to the shackles of negativism which so often hinder other mortals.

I've been here two years. The first time I met her she whooshed through the newsroom in a bustle of smiling busyness. She was recruiting judges for the Miss Merry Christmas contest. Within a minute she and radio news reporters to day. Suddenly we were waltzing off to spend two hours judging a contest, and feeling happy to do it. I'll admit this unflagging optimism initially aroused my skeptical side. No way, I thought, can any human being be this genuinely happy.

So, I was wary. I waited for a lapse. Something that would clue me to an ulterior motive. I couldn't understand anyone being capable of this kind of unadulterated good spiritedness.

There was no lapse. Eventually I began to accept Avery at face value. And, ultimately, her high spirits began to rub off on me.

Johnnie Lou doesn't have many detractors. There were some who criticized the newspaper for printing her column. "Free publicity" for her business, they

But before it was over, newspaper critics were pointing to Avery's column as an example of positive news from which the newspaper could take a lesson or two. I didn't bother to point out the obvious: the newspaper was where readers were finding this upbeat column.

Eventually the column was such a success that I urged Avery to write two a week. And local radio was vying for the right to broadcast her newspaper material. Maybe my urging expansion led to the column's downfall - the proverbial straw that broke....

There is no catch. Johnnie Lou has an indomitable spirit. She is a real-life unsinkable Molly Brown. I'm sorry that she won't be able to keep writing her col umn. Maybe her schedule will change and she can resume it. I'm happy, though, that she cared enough to write it and was able to keep it going as long as she

The Rim Make a friend of a mesquite

By ROBIN WARD

Poor mesquite tree. For decades it was maligned by ranchers throughout the Southwest as a pesky tree that stole precious water from the grasslands they used to feed their cattle. Welladapted to the climate of the prairie, it developed a hardy system of roots that sapped every drop of water available from the parched earth. And it hung tenaciously to life, making it difficult to eradicate from the range.

But at last the oft-cursed tree has some enthusiastic followers. A relatively new group called Los Amigos Del Mesquite, or "the friends of the mesquite," whose members are interested in anything that would promote the misunderstood tree, has gathered this weekend for its fourth annual convention and trade show.

And what better place to meet than Mesquite, Texas, a city of the same name located just east of

The Amigos point out numerous uses for the mesquite tree: the wood, they say, can make excellent fuel for flavorful cooking, and because of its unique grain, it is being used for everything from furniture to sculptures.

Members of the organization say city folks are even using the tree as new dimension in landscape design.

The tree wasn't totally without friends before the formation of the Amigos, though. It had one good friend about 15 years ago.

Uncle Sammy, one of my mother's brothers, was a naturelover like no nature lover I've ever known. He spent hours watching spiders and catching bugs and eating as strange a variety of wild plants as Euell Gibbons.

One summer Sammy came to visit us and came up with the idea of making mesquite bean jelly. We took off for the city park and harvested a nice batch of the dry, yellowish mesquite beans that had fallen to the ground. Sammy and my dad spent the next several. hours in the kitchen, boiling, straining and adding ingredients, as we kids watched with awe.

The result was several jars of a pale yellow, smooth-textured substance. The flavor, as I recall. was unusual - not bad - just unusual. I wonder if the Amigos have tried using mesquite trees as a source of food

Summit: 'Without illusion, with hope'

WASHINGTON - President

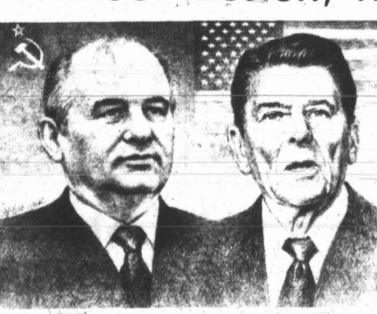

Reagan's proposal to resume and expand U.S.-Soviet exchange programs suspended after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan is an implicit recognition that such penalties don't necessarily survive the misbehavior that prompted And his announcement in a nationally televised address Thursday that an exchange agreement is near as he heads for his first superpower summit trumpeted one positive development when, as he acknowledged, there are scant prospects for an early end to the nuclear arms race and other disputes

"It would be naive to think a single summit can establish a permanent peace," Reagan said, but he added he goes to Geneva confident that he can at least begin to talk about peace.

'The history of American-Soviet relations, however, does not augur well for euphoria," the president

The exchange programs Reagan seeks to re-establish with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev were suspended by President Jimmy Carter after the Soviet military drive into Afghanistan at the end of 1979. That was only six months after Carter and Soviet President Leonid Brezhnev met in Vienna to sign the SALT II treaty and several other less momentous agreements. Asked after Reagan's speech

The official, speaking on condition he not be identified, pointed out Reagan proposed in his address to the United Nations last month that the United States and Soviet Union work together to resolve regional disputes, including that in Afghanistan, which threaten to inflame superpower tensions.

"At the resume educational and cultural same time, the president feels exchanges while 100,000 Soviet strongly there is a crying need for troops remain in Afghanistan, a enhanced communication between White House official said, "We our two societies as part of the overall effort to reduce mistrust."

That official and others who have sought to resolve a number of longstanding disputes with the Soviets before the opening of the summit on Tuesday said most sanctions are useful for only a limited time anyway, and they often tend to hurt the United States as much as they do the Soviet Union.

Reagan's own celebration of the "The point has come to deal with all-but-certain signing of new exchange agreements in Geneva made that point as well.

"If Soviet youth could attend American schools and universities, they could learn first-hand what spirit of freedom rules our land and that we do not wish the Soviet peo-ple any harm," he said. "If American youth could do likewise, they could talk about their interests and values and hopes for the future with their Soviet friends.

"They would get first-hand knowledge of life in the U.S.S.R., but most important, they would learn that we are all God's children with much in common.'

And some would suggest the United States stands to gain even more than the Soviets from Reagan's proposed exchange of the Bolshoi Ballet for the Beach Boys. "We go without illusion, but with hope," Reagan said, "hope that progress can be made on our entire But the president and his advisers have made clear that the differences still separating the two sides on such fundamental issues as arms control, human rights and the occupation of Afghanistan remain deep and quite likely beyond repair at Geneva.

Nonetheless, Reagan said, the summit's success "should not be measured by any short-term agreements that may be signed. Only the passage of time will tell us whether we constructed a durable bridge to a safer world."

tures of the wily coyote. What we're talking about here is a rural slice of Americana and 915 largely contented folks who enjoy what they've got and don't much miss whatever it is they don't have. And they see no compelling reason to change.

"We've got a good county and a good town and a lot of good people and we're proud of it," said Carolyn Brewer, a mother of four, a deputy tax collector and Sheriff Poke Brown's secretary.

She said only rarely is a major crime committed in Sterling City but that stray dogs and missing children and speeding motorists keep things hopping.

'Mercy, yes, we have enough to keep the sheriff and two deputies busy," she laughed one recent evening while reciting for a visitor the charms of Sterling City and Sterling County.

Not all those charms are visible to the naked eye, but there was a certain appeal to a sign outside the Old Landmark Cafe promising "All you can eat shrimp - $5.95."

What makes Sterling City special is its people and its personality, although it probably doesn't hurt to have all those pumping oil wells.

Unlike many small towns, Sterling City is not much interested in wooing new industry and new people and wouldn't know where to put them if they showed up.

"There's just no land and few houses for sale at any price," said County Clerk Sandra Peel. "Buying small 10 or 12-acre tracts is almost unheard of here.

HOUSE CALLS

Recently it was brought to my attention the need to help an invalid lady with her vision problem. She could no longer come into town for an eye examination, yet her primary sources of entertainment (reading, sewing and television) were becoming very difficult due to her poor vision. The problem was 1 easily solved after an eye examination right there in her home. Proper glasses were prescribed and delivered, and she was able to resume her hobbies. This incident made me realize that others could be in the same boat, not enjoying their potential to the fullest because of unattended vision problems. So, I just wanted to announce that "house calls" do still exist. A much better eye examination can be done in my office, but when necessity dictates a house call, just let me know.

"Most of the land is renchland. and nobody wants to sell. It's been handed down from generation to generation. This has been going on for four or five generations that I know of, and I'm sure they'll continue to do so - unless they quit reproducing."

Ranching was, is and probably always will be the major industry in Sterling County, but oil and gas is its lifeblood.

"We're very fortunate to have the oil and gas business because it's a tremendous help to the county finances, and it helped the ranchers through the drought," said Sandra Peel.

For a county with only one town and a total population of 1,206, those petro dollars go a long way in easing the burden on taxpayers.

"We're not in debt," said Treasurer Kilpatrick.

Not by a long shot. According to 1981 census bureau figures, the per capita income in Sterling County was $8,492, which is more than twice as much as some Texas counties and only slightly less than such populous and prosperous counties as Tarrant (Fort Worth) and Travis (Austin)

"Just about everything we need is right here in Sterling City.' And while most like it like it is, Kirk Hopkins, executive vice president of the First National Bank, believes the town could stand a little progress "Everything depends upon ran-ching and oil here," he told Texas Scenes magazine recently. "The only farming is a few fields along the streams where ranchers grow small grain pastures for livestock.

"The town's businesses have been slowly fading away. We lost the drug store, a clothing store, the best little cafe in West Texas and two new car agencies.'

Douthit said an oil boom and a bank robbery were about the biggest stories he's dealt with in his four decades in Sterling City, adding: "Nothing big, really, but I've had a lot of fun living here and raising my family.

Plan for speedway complex near Big Spring is unveiled

Staff Writer

A development plan for a multi-speedway complex to be built south of Big Spring off Garden City Highway has reached "a critical stage," said Bruce Hogenmiller, manager of Big Spring Savings Association.

The plan, originally conceived by James and Dorothy Leffler of Big Spring, is now being evaluated in terms of how many persons here would invest in such a venture

The proposal, which was revealed in a press conference at the Lefflers' home Saturday morning, calls for construction of a water track for speed boats, a drag strip and oval track for motor vehicles, and a truck and "We have no firm commitments so far. We're looking for people to invest," said Hogenmiller, who is acting as financial consultant in the venture

He estimated that $2 million to $3 million could be generated through investments by persons in Big Spring alone. The total cost for the plan is projected at $8 million, said Mrs. Leffler.

Hogenmiller said initial investments would be used to hire an architect who would design specifications for potential bids.

The complex would be located on 648 acres of what is now a cotton field, said Mrs. Leffler,

She said she and her husband have placed an option to buy

"We have enough support from sanctioning bodies to make this a viable project," said Leffler.

He said officials from the National Hot Rod Association, United States Auto Club, National Tractor Pull Association and Southwest Drag Boat Association, who sanction races for national competition, told them they would schedule races at the complex if the strips meet the length and width standards.

Leffler said the strips would be designed to meet those standards.

Seating capacity of grandstands surrounding the events would be 60,000, he said.

Sam Gladden was the major award winner at the annual Big Spring High School band banquet Thursday night at First Methodist Church's Garrett Hall.

The banquet is sponsored by the Steer Band and the Big Spring Band Boosters.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. L.K. Gladden, Sam was named one of the 10 best marchers and was awarded the Best Marching Spirit award and the Zane Donald award. Sam is band captain and a French horn player in the honor band. The Zane Donald Award, in memory of a former qualities of high moral standards, high scholastic aptitude, a winning attitude and quality musicianship.

The band director's award, for the senior who has worked hardest with the least amount of "hoopla" and recognizion, went to Tim Carroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wes Carroll. Tim is rifle captain and first chair alto saxophonist in the honor band.

Other students taking home best marcher awards were Pat Collins, Larry Garcia, Eric Kinman, Delia Leal, Mike Ramey, Vince Robledo, Greg Salisbury, Rachel Tedesco and Gregg Williamson.

Rabbis using comics to teach young Jews

HALLANALE, Fla. (AP) - If God is everywhere, why can't he be in comic books? A group of rabbis who wanted to reach young Jews who don't go to synagogue didn't see why he couldn't be. "We're mixing worldly humor with Torah education," said Rabbi Raphael Tennenhaus. "Our philosophy is that God is everywhere, and now he's in a comic book.

"Mendy and Golem" comics, filled with lessons from the Torah, put a premium on puns. In one episode, Sholem the Golem (named for animated clay statues said to have guarded Jewish communities in the 16th century) fights an evil robot named Oy Vader in Yankel down the East Coast.

Stadium

The series starts with Mendel "Mendy" Klein, a rabbi's son, finding Sholem in a storage room at his synagogue. Mendy brings the Golem home in a U-Schlepp (schlepp means "to drag along" in Yiddish) van.

Between adventures, Sholem sleeps in Mendy's garage between adventures and springs into action when he hears the magic words, "Let us do a mitzvah!

"Our goal is to teach, but who says you can't have fun, too?" Tennenhaus said. About 50,000 comics are sold each year by subscription, and more on newsstands up and

Parents's group picks best gift choices

BOSTON (AP) — The key to choosing toys, books, computer 12 and 15 awards each in the programs, video cassettes and other Christmas gifts for children is to look for "food for the imagination," says a group that promotes learning and literacy.

Among the gifts recommended by Parents Choice are a cuddly doll for boys, a Charlie Brown computer program that teaches counting and a Bill Cosby video cassette that helps preschoolers learn shapes and sizes.

We want to offer something that really has some food for the imagination and creates a kind of sociability in children," said Diana Huss Green, a grandmother who founded Parents Choice in 1978. "We try to avoid shoddiness (and) any product that is aimed exclusively at making money."

The organization gave between categories of children's books, illustrated books, video cassettes, toys, computer software and recordings.

Books that earn the group's favor include "Leonardo Da Vinci" by Alice and Martin Provensen, published by Viking Press, and 'King Bidgood's In The Bathtub," by Audrey Wood, illustrated by Don Wood and published by Harcourt, Brace Jovanovich. And when the kids aren't playing Parker Brothers' VCR Clue, a video version of the old-favorite board game, Parents Choice won't object if you let them watch a little Charles Dickens.

Queens third in Classic

By CHARLIE ALCORN Sports Writer

The Howard College Hawk Queen's used patient offense and aggresive defense to defeat the South Plains Lady Texans, 61-54, in one of the Queen's most consistent performances of the year Saturday night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Queen's took third place in the Howard College Hawk Queen Classic tournament with the victory and raised their record to 3-6 on the year.

The Queen's worked the ball around well on offense in the during the game, setting up open shots with crisp passing against the Lady Texans manto-man defense.

Howard took the early lead behind the shooting of leading scorer Lorri French, who finished with 16 points. Freshman Terri Powell chipped in 12 points. Queen point guard Pam Franklin also had an outstanding night, hitting for 10 points and dishing out a game-high seven assists.

South Plains rallied midway through the first half, to tie the score 10-10, but that was as close as they would come to the Queen's the remainder of the game.

The Lady Texan rally was augmented by a couple of Howard turnovers when South Plains put in a full court press. But the press was not effective very long, as Queen's began to score regularly on the fast toll on the South Plains shooters, as they hit a miserable cold streak in the late part of the first half. The visitors ended up hitting only 7 of their 26 first half shots.

French hit three straight buckets, late in half and the Queens built a 23-15 lead with HOWARD (61) — Owens, 0-1-1; 3:17 left in the period. The Franklin, 3-4-10; Powell, 6-0-12; sophomore guard ended with 11 French, 7-2-16; Wise, 0-2-2; McCullin, sophomore guard ended with 11 first half points helping the Queens take a healthy 27-21 lead into the locker room at

The Queens came out attacking in their second half, scoring four unanswered points to build the lead to 32-23 with 17:47 left in the game. Howard post Carolyn Willandt picked up a quick fourth foul, but her replacement, freshman six-footer Sophia Ish, came in and did an outstanding job in the paint.

Ish picked up her last two fouls just as South Plains was making another run.

Wisconsin stuns Ohio State

By RUSTY MILLER

AP Sports Writer COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) -Marvin Artley scored the goahead touchdown late in the third period on a 1-yard run, and Wisconsin stopped Ohio State twice deep in Badgers terroritory late in the fourth quarter to upset the thirdranked Buckeyes 12-7 Saturday in a Big Ten Conference football game. The victory was the fourth in the last five years for the Badgers over the Buckeyes.

Ohio State had two chances late in the game to go ahead, but the Buckeyes were stopped on 4th-and-2 at the 10 and fumbled the ball away on 2ndand-goal at the 3.

The victory moved Wisconsin to 5-5 on the year and 2-5 in the Big Ten, while Ohio State fell to 8-2 and 5-2. The Buckeyes, who needed wins in their final two games in order to earn a berth in the Rose Bowl, dropped to third in the conference with the Ohio State, which led the nation in turnover margin going into the game, lost three fumbles in the game.

Wisconsin scored what proved to be the winning touchdown as a result of a Buckeye fumble at the Ohio State 22 midway through the third period.

After Buckeyes quarterback Jim Karsatos fumbled the snap and it was recovered at the 4:38 three Ohio State fumbles Wisconsin needed just four plays to score the backbreaker.

Artley's 1-yard plunge with 3:25 left in the third period erased a 7-6 Ohio State edge. The Wisconsin defense, led by linebackers Russ Fields and Craig Raddatz, stopped Ohio State on fourth-and-2 at the Wisconsin 10 on the second play of the fourth period.

After Wisconsin was forced to punt, Ohio State moved quickly from its own 41 to a first-and-goal at the Wisconsin On first down, John Wooldridge gained 5 yards to the 3, but then backup tailback Roman Bates fumbled a handoff from Karsatos and Reid recovered with 9:45 left.

Ohio State moved to the Wisconsin 42 in the waning moments, but two Karsatos passes for Cris Carter were broken up and Wisconsin had its upset.

Wisconsin thoroughly outplayed Ohio State for most of the first half, outgaining the Buckeyes by a 3-1 margin in racking up a 6-0 lead on a pair of field goals by Todd Gregoire. Wisconsin held a 139-50 advantage in total offense heading into the Buckeyes' last possession of the half.

But Ohio State awakened after taking over at its own 14 with 2:57 left in the second quarter.

Karsatos completed five of his next six passes for 81 yards on the drive, including a 37-yard scoring pass to Carter with 1:05 remaining before the half. Rich Spangler's extrapoint made it 7-6.

Chicago, Dallas rivalry has three-ring circus variety

IRVING, Texas (AP) - The Chicago-Dallas National Football League joust on Sunday has enough sideshows for a circus of the threering variety: the teacher-student confrontation, the amazing feats of the refrigerator man and the blood

The unblemished Bears will be trying to clinch the National Conference Central Division title and become the first NFC team since the 1970 merger to win their first 11 games of the season.

The 7-3 Cowboys will be hoping to at least stay tied with the New York Giants atop the NFC East.

Those are the stakes on the line under the Texas Stadium big top before a sellout crowd of 65,000. However, the sideshows almost overshadow the game. There's former Cowboys' assistant Mike Ditka trying to whip his old Dallas boss Tom Landry for the first time. Ditka lost to him last year 23-19 and went on one of his famed temper tantrums.

There's 302-pound William "The Regrigerator" Perry, a touchdown threat on offense and a sacker of quarterbacks on defense. Will the Fridge pass for a touchdown? Step right up with your $18 for a peek under the tent.

There's bad blood. Ten players on each side were fined by the NFL after an August exhibition game that resembled a full contact karate scrimmage. Retribution has been promised by the Bears.

Chicago hasn't beaten Dallas since 1971 and has lost six straight games to the Cowboys. "I spent 13 of the best years of my life in Dallas but I'd like to beat 'em," said Ditka. "I know how tough it can be. There's no players on this team who have ever beaten Dallas.'

Ditka admitted, "I was upset last year and it was my fault how bad we played. I was upset but I made a promise to never let personal things get involved again.

Landry said Ditka "tried to hard to beat me last year. That was understandable.

Aggies 10 Hogs 6

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas A&M's Domingo Bryant recovered two fumbles, accounting for two of four Arkansas turnovers, and Kevin Murray hit Roger Vick with an 18-yard touchdown pass to lead the Aggies to a 10-6 Southwest Conference victory over the No. 9 Razorbacks Saturday night.

The Aggies had to hold off a late Arkansas charge after Rickey Williams blocked an A&M punt and Kevin Anderson recovered it in the end zone for a touchdown with 3:03

Arkansas' bid for a two-point conversion failed.

The victory boosted the Aggies' chances of earning their first Cotton Bowl berth since 1968 with a 7-2 season record and 5-1 SWC play. The Razorbacks dropped to 8-2 on the season and 4-2 in the league.

The Aggie defense clogged the strong Arkansas running attack en route to a 3-0 first-half lead, and Murray capitalized on Bryant's second fumble recovery with his TD shot to Vick early in the third quarter.

The Aggies drove to the Arkansas 23-yard line on their second possession of the game and Eric Franklin kicked a 32-vard field goal that stood up for a 3-0 halftime

Arkansas quarterback Greg Thomas suffered two first-half interceptions, including one by A&M's Kip Corrington in the Aggie end zone in the final seconds of the

The two teams traded interceptions in the second quarter.

A&M's Darrell Austin picked off the first interception thrown by Thomas this season but on the next play, Arkansas' Nathaniel White picked off a Murray pass intended for Shay Walker.

Bryant was not the only Aggie big-play artist. Austin intercepted one pass and knocked Bobby Joe Edmonds loose from the ball in the third quarter, allowing Bryant to recover and set up Vick's touchdown catch.

Franklin missed field goals of 40 and 38 yards. His 38-yard miss came with 9:51 to play.

The balanced Aggie offensive attack finally wore down the Arkansas defense as Murray hit 18 of 28 passes for 181 yards.

Thomas and backup quarterback Mark Calcagni completed only three of nine passes for 47 yards. The Aggies rushed for 110 yards, led by Anthony Toney with 64 yards on 19 carries, and Vick with 53 yards on 15 carries. The Razorbacks suffered a blow in the third quarter when a 40-yard pass from Thomas to Theo Young was nullified by a penalty. The penalty came moments after Vick's touchdown catch and the Razorbacks eventually were forced to punt. Thomas fumbled early in the second quarter after Arkansas had driven to the A&M 29-yard line.

Bryant charged into the Hog backfield, deflected a pitchout by Thomas and recovered it at the Arkansas 49.

The Aggies failed to capitalize on the chance, however. A&M reached the Hog 17 and Murray was sacked back to the 23 before Franklin missed a 40-vard field goal try

Bears 34 Rice 10

WACO, Texas (AP) - Baylor senior quarterback Tom Muecke said good-bye to Baylor Stadium in style Saturday.

Muecke passed for 306 yards and hit three touchdowns in the 17thranked Bears' 34-10 Southwest Conference victory over the Rice Owls. The win kept the Bears in contention for the host-team berth in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day. "I really enjoyed it because it had been a while since I was in there that long," said Muecke, who normally alternates at quarter-back with junior Cody Carlson. "We really didn't know who would play prior to the game," Muecke said. "Cody had hurt his back in practice Thursday and Coach (Grant) Teaff just decided to go with me. It was a good way to

The Bears' 6-1 conference record assures them of being at least tied for the SWC lead for another week. They are 8-2 overall.

Baylor Coach Teaff said, "Muecke really had a good game in his final appearance at home. He's been just a great quarterback for us and showed it today.

Muecke responded to Teaff's confidence with a 12-yard touchdown pass to Ben Baker, a 28-yard scoring toss to Horace Ates and a 52-yard touchdown bomb to Glenn Pruitt.

The Owls, 2-5 in the SWC and 3-7 overall, surprised Baylor early with a no-huddle offense. James Hamrick kicked a 34-yard field goal to give Rice a 3-0 lead.

Muecke then threw his first touchdown pass and Terry Syler kicked a 28-yard field goal to give Baylor a 10-3 lead.

Rice's Quentis Roper tied it with a 4-yard touchdown pass to Darrick Wells, but Muecke's second touchdown pass and Ralph Stockemer's 16-yard run put the Syler kicked a 32-yard field goal and Muecke hit Pruitt with a 52-yard scoring bomb before Teaff took Muecke out with 5:13 to play.

Scouts from the Blue Bonnet and Sun bowls watched along with the 32,500 fans as Baylor increased its all time record over Rice to 36-27-2. The Owls almost scored late in the game as they marched to the Baylor 16, but a Roper pass was in-tercepted in the end zone by Baylor's Renya Thompson. The Owls operated most of the day without a huddle, but the Bears quickly adjusted an it gave them little trouble in the second half. Rice struck for its only touchdown with 1:38 to play in the first half to tie the game after a 54-yard drive following Steve Kidd's interception. It appeared the Owls would go into the halftime lockeroom tied at But the stunned Bears charged 76 yards in eight plays and Muecke completed an 18-yard scoring pass to Ates with 15 seconds left to play. Baylor took the second-half kickoff and went 80 yards for a touchdown as the undermanned Owls began to wear down. Twice on only 4:58 left in the game, coach Bobby Collins went with his gut feeling.

Collins rejected a punt or a desperation pass and put his team's hopes in the foot of Brandy Brownlee, a sophomore kicker who was 2-for-4 in his earlier field goal attempts Saturday.

Brownlee responded with a school-record 57-yard field goal, and the Mustangs escaped with a 9-7 victory over the upset-conscious Red Raiders in a Southwest Conference football game.

"Sometimes in a situation like this, you are best to go with your gut feeling, and I felt like Brandy had already missed his field goal for the day," Collins said.

Brownlee's field goal, his third of the day, broke the SMU record of 53 yards set by Eddie Garcia in 1980 against Texas A&M.

A 5-3, 128-pound freshman, Texas Tech receiver Tyrone Thurman, was responsible for SMU's uncomfortable dilemma. Thurman raced 49 yards with an SMU punt to set up Tech's short 25-yard fourth-quarter touchdown drive, which stirred victory hopes for the 16-point underdogs

"I caught the ball and saw a big opening up the middle. It was so big a truck could have gone through it," said the pint-sized Thurman.

Six plays later, another Tech freshman, quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver, scrambled four yards around right end for a touchdown that gave the Raiders a 7-6 lead with 7:49 left in the game.

But SMU took over at its 20 after the kickoff and tailback Reggie Dupard broke for a 26-yard gain around left end to start the Mustangs on a drive that moved to the Red Raider 33 in just five plays.

Apparent tragedy then struck, when quarterback Don King and Dupard collided in the backfield and the ball popped onto the turf.

Dupard recovered, but there was a loss of 8 on the play, and when King's third-and-17 pass was incomplete, the Mustangs had to rely on Brownlee. His kick sailed through the uprights with feet to BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Louisiana State University Athletic Director Bob Brodhead said he didn't read anything new in the 16-page cover report about him and the rest of his department in the most recent Sports Illustrated.

Basketball Coach Dale Brown said he read and liked the article about himself, but had no other comment. He was interested only in coaching the team, he said.

"It's going to take a lot of effor on the part of the university and especially my part to turn that thing around," said Chancellor James Wharton.

Brodhead found no argument on the LSU Board of Supervisors when he said it doesn't help the school or its athletic program when national attention is focused on controversies like those which have roiled the Baton Rouge campus.

"It's very difficult to measure the damage, but no one can tell you that it's good for us," board member Sheldon Beychock said after a Friday committee meeting.

Brodhead showed up to plug his $25-million plan to renovate Tiger Stadium and build a new athletic complex. He said those involved with LSU must "stick out our chin" and work harder to prove LSU has a quality athletic program.

The cover of the Nov. 18 issue features a photograph of Basket ball Coach Dale Brown and the headline, "Crazy Days at LSU." The three-story "Special Report" is led off by an article about 7-foot basketball recruit Tito Horford's signing and hasty exit from LSU and the FBI's confiscation of electronic listening devices from Brodhead's office.

Next comes a 10-page feature titled, "Hello, Trouble, I'm Dale Brown.

A story titled "Hold that Tiger" is about Sam Rothe, who was involved in the recruitment of LSU sophomore forward John Williams, and takes up three-quarters of a

That story says Rothe carries five aliases and served time in the California Institution for Men for receiving about $20,000 in stolen property. Rothe was convicted in 1962 and also later served time for several parole violations.

Brodhead said he once saw Rothe at a basketball game.

The athletic director has said that he bugged his own office to track down whoever was leaking confidential information about department plans and problems.

He told Sports Illustrated that he "had a mandate to find out from all my superiors."

'There was certainly no mandate to use that approach," said

The FBI removed listening devices from Brodhead's office Oct. 27. less than 12 hours after they had been installed by Brodhead and an FBI informant.

Board of Supervisors member Charles Cusimano said he wasn't take a stand against Brodhead's bugging.

The silence of both administrators and board "was deafening - like an atom bomb," he said.

The Times-Picayune and The States-Item said that Brodhead reportedly wanted the eavesdropping equipment to record conversations of NCAA investigators. The LSU football and basketball programs have been under NCAA preliminary inquiry for more than two years, and NCAA investigator Doug Johnson was on campus two days after the equipment was removed from Brodhead's office. Brodhead said he will make a long statement when a federal grand jury finishes its investigation of the bugging incident.

Had Brodhead caught the NCAA in wrongdoing, Brown told Sports Illustrated, he should have received the "J. Edgar Hoover award."

The article about Brown describes his childhood as a boy without a father and often getting by on welfare in Minot, N.D. and paints him as a man driven by that past to succeed.

It quoted him as saying, "If the NCAA tries to nail me, I'll blow allowed to ask the board Friday to away the top 10 programs in the country. I could give them enough information to keep them busy for the next 21/2 millennia."

And, about scouting and signing athletes: "Where else does a 50-year-old man chase a 17-yearold athlete? That's called pimpin' and hookin'. I hate it.

When Rothe's rap sheet was read to Brown, the article said, the coach's comments were: "Ohhh no... ohhh, my God ... noooo ... Such a fine man" and more moans.

Spinks, Cooney set to fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Agreement has been reached for a fight between Michael Spinks, the International Boxing Federation heavyweight champion, and Gerry Cooney for March, The Associated Press learned Saturday.

Contracts have not been signed, a source told the AP. But they are expected to be finalized upon the return of promoter Butch Lewis from Europe next week. Lewis promotes Spinks' fights and is the champion's adviser.

No specific date has yet been set for the fight, and five sites are being considered.

Tern of the known, but Lewis recently complained that Dennis Rappoport, "noney's might ger, was purse parity.

IBF President Robert Lee has said that Spinks would be stripped of his crown if he fights an unranked opponent. Cooney is not ranked at this time.

In fact, Cooney has fought only twice since being stopped in the 13th round by Larry Holmes in a bid for the World Boxing Council title June 11, 1982 at Las Vegas, Nev., and last August Cooney announced his retirement. He has said several times recently that he would come out of retirement only for a fight against Spinks.

Spinks became the first light heavyweight champion to win a heavyweight title when he upset Unlines on a close but unanimous pt. .. a

Spinks, who has a 28-0 record with 19 knockouts, was the undisputed light heavyweight champion at the time he beat Holmes. The WBC then withdrew light heavweight title recognition, and Spinks relinquished the World Boxing Association and IBF titles.

Cooney's only defeat in 28 fights was against Holmes. Since then, Cooney, who has scored 23 knockouts, knocked out Philip Brown in the fourth round Sept. 29, 1984 at Anchorage, Alaska, and stopped George Chaplin in the second round Dec. 8, 1984 at Phoenix.

John Shaffer threw a touchdown pass and ran for another score, and Massimo Manca kicked five field goals, including his second 50-yarder of the season, as undefeated Penn State protected its top ranking by clobbering Notre Dame. Penn State, 10-0, took over the No. 1 ranking in The Associated Press poll this week. Tailback D.J. Dozier also rushed for 75 yards and scored a touchdown, while the Penn State defense intercepted three passes, recovered two fumbles, blocked a punt and almost totally stopped Notre Dame.

The Penn State victory avenged a 44-7 loss at South Bend, Ind., last year and ended a four-game Notre Dame winning streak.

Nebraska rolled up 639 yards total offense in crushing Kansas in the Big Eight. Keith Jones returned a kickoff 98 yards for a score, and Von Sheppard scored on an 82-yard pass play as Nebraska ran its record to 9-1, 6-0 in the conference. The Cornhuskers, who lead the nation in rushing, got 498 yards on the ground, including 159 yards in nine carries by fullback Tom Rathman. I-back Doug DuBose added 109 yards rushing, including one touchdown.

Robbie Bosco threw a 69-yard touchdown bomb to Vai Sikahema with 5:41 left, rallying BYU over previously unbeaten Air Force. BYU, 9-2 and 5-1 in the Western Athletic Conference, threw three first-half interceptions, two that were returned for touchdowns, as Air Force took a 21-7 lead. But Sikahema scored on a 72-yard punt return early in the third quarter, and the Cougars tied the score on a 25-yard TD pass from Bosco to Mark Bellini. Air Force is 10-1 and 6-1 in the WAC.

Oklahoma over Colorado in the fell to 7-2-1 and 3-2-1 as its eight-Big Eight Conference. The shutout was the first for Oklahoma, which leads the nation in total defense, since 1981. Holieway scored on runs of 2 yards in the second quarter and 20 yards in the third as Oklahoma improved to 7-1, 5-0 in the conference. The Sooners finished with 360 yards on the ground.

Jim Harbaugh threw three touchdown passes to lead Michigan, 8-1-1 and 5-1-1 in the Big Ten, over Minnesota. Michigan's top-ranked defense didn't allow a point until late in the fourth quarter. Harbaugh complete 13 of 18 passes for 243 yards, and Gerald White ran for 92 yards.

Oklahoma State scored three quick touchdowns late in the first half, capped by Harry Roberts' 35-yard interception return, erased a 10-0 Missouri lead and improved the Cowbovs' record to 8-1, 4-1 in the Big Eight. The Cowboys led 21-10 before Tom Whelihan kicked a school-record 54-yard field goal late in the second period, and the Tigers closed to 21-19 with two more field goals by Whelihan, who had four in the game.

Jeff Dawson's third field goal of the game, a 19-yarder with 20 seconds to play, lifted Florida over Kentucky in a Southeastern Conference game. Dawson also had field goals of 34 and 22 yards, and Kerwin Bell threw a 45-yard touchdown pass to Frankie Neal to give Florida a 8-1-1 record, 5-1 in the SEC. Florida is ineligible to win the conference title because of NCAA probation.

UCLA, 8-1-1 and 6-1 in the Pac 10, turned a 10-0 lead into a 34-0 advantage with 24 points in the third period. The Bruins need a victory over crosstown rival Southern Cal next week to clinch the Pac 10 title.

Muecke threw three touchdown tended its home unbeaten streak passes to boost Baylor over Rice to 12 games over two seasons. in the SWC. Baylor, 8-2 and 6-1 in conference, still is in the running for a Cotton Bowl berth, tied with Arkansas atop the SWC. Muecke threw scoring passes of 12, 28 and 52 yards - the longest connection with Glenn Pruitt.

Tennessee kept alive its hopes of winning the SEC by beating Mississippi behind the running of Sam Henderson, who had two touchdowns. Henderson, a 250-pound fullback moved to tailback in Tennessee's injurydepleted backfield, ran for TD's of 1 and 2 yards. They were his first scores since injuring a knee in 1983. Daryl Dickey hit 11 of 17 passes for 203 vards for Tennessee, 6-1-2 and 3-1 in the SEC.

Mike Shula threw two touchdown passes, and Alabama rallied in the fourth quarter to beat Southern Mississippi in a nonconference game. Alabama, 7-2-1, trailed 13-10 going into the quarter until Shula threw a 4-yard touchdown pass to Angelo Stafford. Later in the quarter, Gene Jelks ran 4 yards for another Crimson Tide touchdown.

By KIM KIRKHAM

Lifestyle Writer Fitness. A lot of people think about it. Few people work at it.

The Fitness Task Force of Big Spring is trying to help local youth think about their health and start working on ways to improve their Craig Brace, chairman of the one-year-old non-profit organization, gave fitness tests last week to first graders at Washington Elementary School and ninth and 10th graders at Big Spring High School.

About 350 high school students and 70 elementary students were

Brenda Carr, physical education instuctor, assisted Brace at Washington, and Jo Ann Ritchey was the coordinator at the high school

The tests measure body fat, flexibility, abdominal strength and endurance, and cardio-vascular strength. The results are compared and ranked with national averages of other youth.

To get the national normal average, 12,000 students from 13 states were tested, said Brace.

The percentage body fat measurement is done using a tonglike caliber. Skin on the forearm and thigh is pulled out, separating the fat from the muscle, and measured with the tongs. The two measurements are then averaged.

Ritchey hopes that the test will help some of her students who are overweight realize how much excess body fat they have and how harmful it is for their general

A sit and reach test is given to measure flexibility in the lower back and hip region. It "measures the range of motion, extendability, how flexible the students are in that area," Brace said.

The test is done by a student sitting flat on the ground, legs extended in front of him with feet flat against a box. A yardstick is placed on top of the box and the student stretches forward over the yardstick as far as he can.

Brace said it's important to idenfy flexibility pro person is young. "If we can help them become more flexible, we'll probably see a decrease of back trouble when they get out of school," he said. The third test is an abdominal strength and endurance measurement. The student does as many modified situps (arms folded across chest instead of behind the head) as he can in a minute.

The fourth test is a cardiovascular strength test, measuring the strengths of the heart and lungs. The student runs four laps or a mile around the track as fast as Cardio-vascular strength is the most important because "what keeps us alive is our heart and lungs," said Brace. Carr, Ritchey and Brace find the tests to be motivational, educational and diagnostic.

"It lets them know how they rank nationally with people of their same age and sex," said Brace. "It helps identify problem areas" so that teachers can design programs to help get the students into better shape, he said.

A student doesn't necessarily have to be slim and trim to do good on the fitness tests, said Brace. A person who has always been large, not necessarily overweight, and has been the victim of ridicule by his peers may find that he is in better shape than some of his smaller

'Hopefully we'll see some people coming out of there feeling good about themselves," Brace said.

After Brace has finished calculating the results of the students' tests, he and the physical education instructors will tell the students of their weaknesses, how to overcome them and why it's important for them to be in shape.

The students will be retested in the spring and results from the two testings will be compared to see if any improvements have been made in both physical fitness and attitudes towards fitness. "I see a big possibility in doing this again next year," Brace said. 'It's an eye opener to make them see some of the problems they have now and how it's gonna' affect them 15 years from now," Ritchey

Brace hopes to "motivate them to start moving towards personal levels of wellness." In general, "adolescent fitness level is low compared to where they need to be at," said Brace. "On the average, I think our students are below the national norm," said Ritchey "Attitude has so much to do with it." She said the attitude is: "It's not that I can't; I just don't want to.'

"If we don't get them healthy now, we're gonna have some people in really bad shape," said Carr.

Brace, Ritchey and Carr all agree that lifestyle contributes to poor physical fitness: people would rather watch TV, play video games

Lifestyle Editor Tucked away between worn out washers and refrigerators in a classroom at Big Spring High School are a few reminders that Christmas is just around the corner. The reminders, large Christmas decorations which will later hang on light poles around the city, are currently being spruced up by students in home appliance repair classes at Big Spring High Scool. Thanks to these students the holidays may be a little brighter this season. Frank Ortega, instructor of the classes, said students have been busy recently rewiring and repairing the city's Christmas decorations. Once completed, city crews will hang the decorations around town. The Christmas trees and other decorations will go on Third and Fourth streets, in local shopping malls and along Gregg Street.

Students, many of whom are members of the Vocational Opportunities Clubs of Texas, have been learning as well as helping the community,

"This is our yearly project," Ortega said. "We've been doing it for eight years."

Although students normally replace bulbs and spruce up the decorations, this year "we stripped the garland down to the bare metal. We're rewiring the whole fixture and replacing all the sockets, testing for shorts and bad connections."

Once students "know all the bulbs light, then we'll start wrapping them with the garland," Ortega said.

The students began the project about three weeks ago and should be finished by Thanksgiving break. The city will hang the decorations early in December.

Ortega said the city delivers the decorations to the high school each year and then picks them up when repairs are completed.

Ortega said he got students involved in the project eight years ago "because I was looking for something to get the students involved in a community project."

The project was a good choice because the decorations "have to be worked on every year. They are hanging up a long time and the wind and rain whips them around and can create shorts." The project not only saves the city money, but it gives students in the classes a good opportunity to gain experience on a worthwhile project. Working on the decorations "gives the students a chance to work on circuits and to learn how to wire sockets and mount fuses," Ortega said. "It's Ortega said everyone in the classes participates, although some students donate a little extra time to make the decorations more

Students who participate are: Jimmy Ramirez Michael Thompson, Jerry Hulet, Anthony Del Bosque, Marcus Hall, Andy Chavarria, Angie Gonzales and Robert Martinez.

Also Tony Spears, Tommy Rodriguez, Joe Trevino, Salvador Aguilar, Richard Parnell and Gilbert Aguilar.

Home appliance repair classes at Big Spring High School are a place where students "learn the rules and regulations of electricity," Ortega said. Students interested in electrical repair work come to class for two periods every day. They must pass a safety test before being allowed to stay in class and begin working on projects.

"We study the theory of electricity for several weeks, then we start on appliances," Ortega said. "Students must learn about tools and their

Freshmen and sophomores take the two-year preparation in electrical appliance before going on "to any other program for two more years" in vocational education, Ortega said.

Dr. Donohue

Drug can prevent mountain sickness

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is there a particular medicine you recommend to prevent mountain sickness? I always get ill from high altitudes and our group is going to the mountains out west for a skiing excursion next month. — L.S.

You can ask your doctor to prescribe some acetazolamide for you. It is effective for preventing altitude illness.

But there are other things you can do to minimize the effects of altitude. Perhaps you won't need the medicine.

It's usually above 8,090 feet where we run into trouble. A toorapid ascent by an untrained person can add to the problem. Go slowly and, if possible, stop at lower levels for a day. Drink lots of fluids. If you are extra sensitive to high altitudes, a portable oxygen supply will help get you acclimated.

If you already have problems at modest levels, an ascent to 12,000 feet can be disastrous, perhaps even leading to a filling of the lungs with fluid. For such an ascent you may have to stay at a lower level for longer than a day, perhaps two.

If it is a large group that's taking this excursion, chances are there'll be others who will also experience illness from altitude. If so, you may or two, thus making things more pleasant for all concerned.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is the difference between carbohydrate loading and glycogen loading? - N.L.

None; they're the same thing. Glycogen is the stored form of carbohydrate. When you carbohydrate-load you load up the liver and muscles with glycogen for readily accessible energy.

Did you know that 80 percent of stroke victims resume to some degree their former lives? The booklet "Stroke Recovery - Hope and Help" describes the causes and treatment of stroke. College kicks off celebration

By CAROL BALDWIN Lifestyle Editor

Howard College will kick off a year-long 40th anniversary celebration tomorrow with special ceremonies at the former Big Spring Bombadier School, the site of the original campus.

The old campus was located near where the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf is located today. Following the ceremonies, a motorcade will travel to the campus on Birdwell Lane, and refreshments will be served at the Dora Roberts Student Union Building.

Howard College has also planned special ceremony at 2:30 p.m. today for major benefactors of the college.

The Hall of Honor reception will include an induction ceremony into the Coliseum Hall of Honor.

Ceremonies will be held inside the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

"POINT OF USE" STORAGE

Proper storage is part of the essential fiber of any room. The best time to plan storage needs is during the renovation of a current home of when moving into a newly purchased home. In a well-planned interior, every room should contain some kind of storage. This approach distributes storage throughout the house. It thus utilizes space in every room. More importantly, it increases the possibility of having exactly the items needed in the room where they are likely to be used. In the kitchen, this means planning for storage at the "point of use." It means that knife drawers get placed under chopping boards. Pots get stored next to the cook top. Foodstuffs are housed immediately near the food preparation area. An efficient kitchen, with wellplaced storage, can save time in cooking and clean-up. For help with kitchen design call BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK. We can design, build, and install your new kitchen from floor to custom cabinets. Our skilled craftspeople can handle any home renovation job. Come to Bldg. 613 in the Industrial Park, or call 267-5811. Open M-F, 8-12, 1-5 or by appt.

- HINT -If deep cabinets are planned for storing pots and pans, consider sliding shelves.

Flea market has little bit of everything

LUMBERTON (AP) — Beneath the tin roof of a weathered wooden overhang, Earl Leyendecker adjusts a large flowered hat atop a mannequin who fans herself with a bright pink featherlaster.

"Sometimes you just need something to attract people's attention," he chuckles, throwing a glance at the U.S. 96 traffic rushing past the building.

Strolling through a maze of treasures from brass bird cages and antique bathtubs to black velvet paintings, it's easy to believe the businessman when he says, "I've got a little bit of everything out here. Sooner or later, people find just about anything they're looking for.

From within a homemade building resting at the outskirts of Lumberton, the Corsicana native has operated "Leyendecker's Flea Market" for the past

"Buy, sell and trade anything that's new, used and abused that's my business," he says, displaying a laugh that would soften even the toughest customer. "Swappin' and tradin' - it just gets in your blood." While a daily flow of people curiously poke through merchandise ranging from boxes of romance novels to piles of wooden bed frames, Leyendecker says most customers are surprised at the store's vast

"People drive by here every day and don't stop," the former steel welder says, scanning a showroom of wooden sofas that line one section of the two-room building. "But when they do, they act like they're surprised at what they see."

Beneath a huge oak tree growing in front of the store, two white metal bird cages swing slowly in a soft breeze that jingles the metal chimes of a large steel wind chime. Surveying a variety of merchan-dise organized in an order only a caretaker could conceive, Leyendecker says his wife, Marie, manages the sales, "while I'm the handyman around

As a pair of curious shoppers survey a collection of clay pots arranged near a rusted wheelbarrow, Leyendecker explains how he obtains merchandise from sales and auctions "everywhere from Houston to Alabama," and from an occasional sale or trade from an area resident.

"If they got something they want to sell or trade, they need money for something, I'm happy to oblige," he says, raising the back of his red T-shirt to grab a packet of chewing tobacco from a back pocket of his blue jeans. "I'll sell anything I can get my
