Handshakes, secrecy set summit's tone

GENEVA (AP) — President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, retreating behind a tight news blackout, met today for the first superpower summit in six years and agreed that the outcome depends on mutual willingness to reconcile differences.

"We must achieve decisions together," Gorbachev said as he sat down with Reagan in the front room of a 19th century mansion on Lake Geneva. "If someone will insist only on his own (views) I am not convinced it will look like a decision. We are very much interdependent."

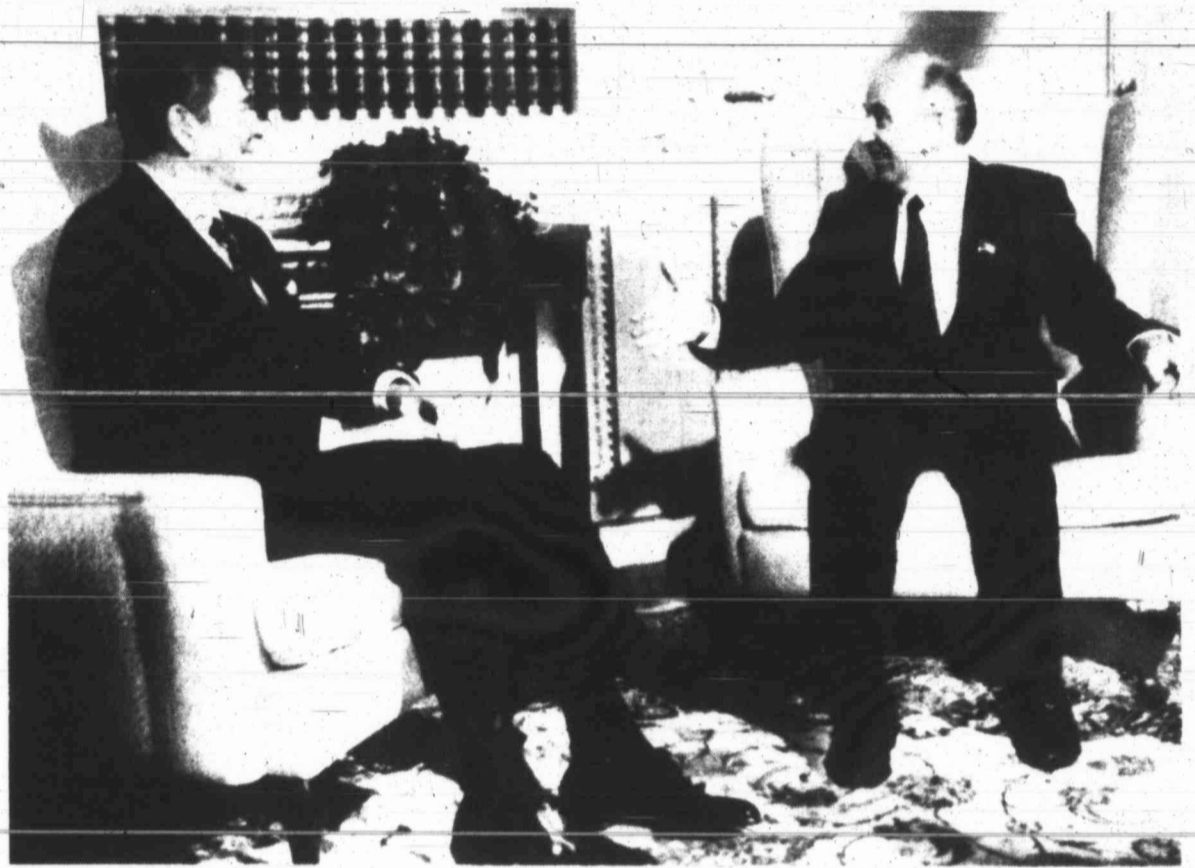

When the remark was translated into English for Reagan, he said, "I agree."

The two leaders, both smiling, shook hands outside the villa and then conferred in a one-on-one session that lasted an hour — four times longer than was scheduled. Asked if that were a good sign, Gorbachev said, "I would think so." Reagan said enough time had not been allotted.

By mutual agreement, both sides imposed a news blackout on summit developments. Secretary of State George Shultz and other senior officials accompanying Reagan canceled news briefings and television appearances.

Reagan described the initial meeting as "very businesslike." Asked if they had settled anything, the president replied, "We left that to the table" — the eight hours of formal talks over two days.

Murder trial delayed

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

District Judge James Gregg this morning ordered the murder trial of two Big Spring men recessed until 1 p.m. for discussions between prosecution and defense lawyers "that do not involve a jury," the judge said.

Jorge Loy Chavana, 21, of 817 W. Eighth and Angel Martinez, 22, of 808 Magnolia were scheduled to go on trial at 9 a.m. in 118th District Court for the beating death of an 81-year-old woman last March.

Gregg told the six-man, six-woman jury that this morning's discussions could shorten the trial. The judge instructed jurors not to discuss the case with anyone during the recess.

District Attorney Rick Hamby, who is prosecuting the case, said this morning's recess was requested so "unexpected procedural matters" could be dealt with. Neither he nor Gregg would speculate on how the trial might be shortened by the discussions.

Chavana and Martinez were indicted by Howard County grand jurors last April for murdering Maurine Terrell of 1400 Scurry. She was assaulted in home March 5 and died three days later in Lubbock General Hospital from head injuries.

Hamby said this morning's discussions did not concern motions requested by the defendants. A motion for separate trials was denied by Gregg last week.

The judge said Monday afternoon he would rule during the course of the trial on a second motion to suppress statements defendants gave to Big Spring police after they were arrested.

Chavana is being represented by attorneys Tony Chavez and Robert Garcia Jr. of Odessa. Martinez is being represented by attorney Javier Alvarez of Lubbock.

Polluter tag irks official

By KEELY COGHLAN Staff Writer

The city's wastewater treatment plant has been operating within its state permits since the beginning of November, Public Works Director Tom Decell said today.

The plant was cited Friday by the Texas Water Commission as a consistent polluter and was included on a "rest-of-the-worst" list of state polluters.

"We are very obviously concerned that we are the 'rest of the worst,'" said Decell, who said he did not know what criteria the commission used in drawing up its list.

"We'd like to be on the 'best of best' list. Our goal is to get off this list, and onto (that list)," he said.

"It upsets me, the situation we've got here."

Decell said the plant had been discharging effluent in excess of levels permitted by the state since June 1984 until this month.

Higher-than-permissible levels of total suspended solids and other matter was being discharged into Beall's Creek after chlorination. The water then emptied into the Red Draw diversion dam, where it was held and settled, Decell said.

"There's not a large health hazard being created by the pollution," he said.

The state permits set the plant's discharge limits at 20 parts-per-million each of total suspended solids and biochemical oxygen demand. At the most, the city has discharged 40 ppm of each, he said.

Problems with discharges trace back to the day the plant, upgraded with $1.95 million of modifications, went into operation in November 1981. The plant's designers, GSW of Dallas, were called in during July 1981; the plant began operating within the permit in December 1982, Decell said.

From that time to June 1984, the plant operated mainly within the parameters; however, its discharge sometimes exceeded limits, according to a release from Decell.

Florida braces for storm

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Kate churned across Cuba's northern coast toward the capital of Havana today as gales lashed the Florida Keys and residents there were warned to brace for the approach of the storm's 110 mph winds.

Hurricane warnings, which had been in effect throughout southern Florida, were lifted for all but the central and lower Keys at 8 a.m. EST, but a state of emergency remained in effect for all of southern Florida and public schools and many private offices were closed.

Thousands of people streamed out of the Keys late Monday on U.S. 1, the lone overland route to the mainland. There was little traffic today as long-time residents waited inside battened-down homes.

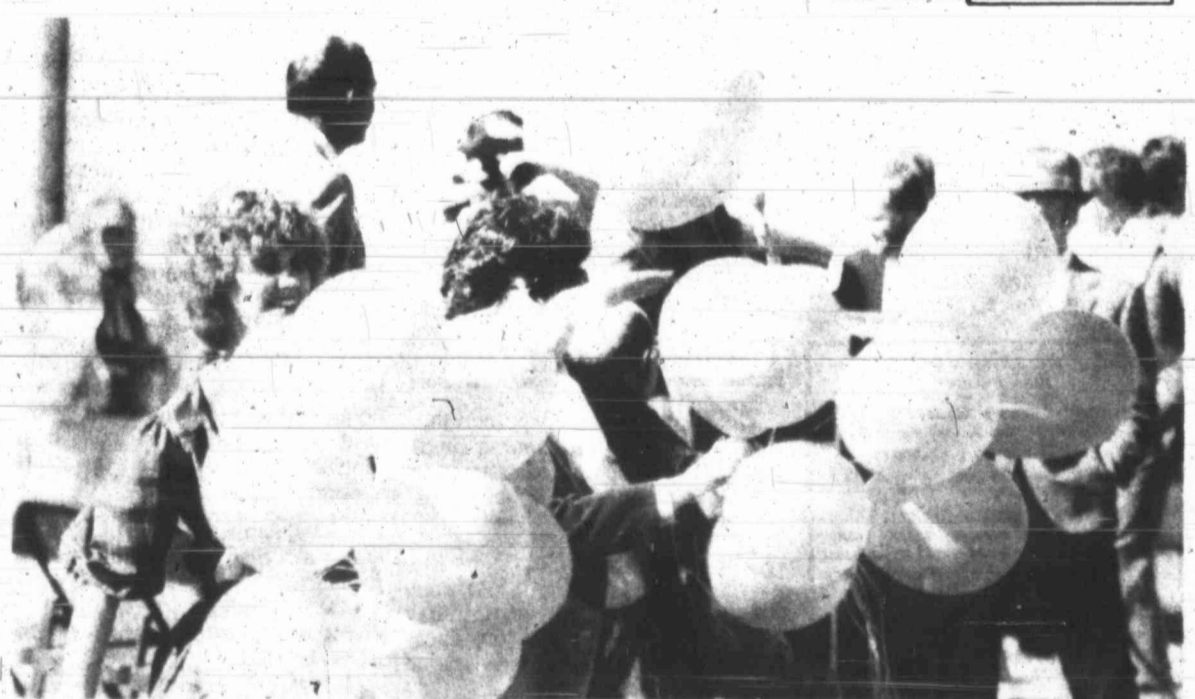

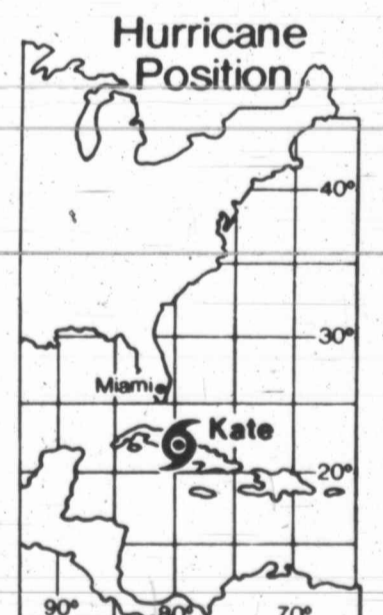

At 10 a.m. EST, Kate was centered near latitude 22.9 north and longitude 81.2 west over Cuba's northern coast about 120 miles south-southeast of Key West. It was moving westward at 20 mph with highest sustained winds of 110 mph.

Neil Frank, director of the National Hurricane Center in Coral Gables, said Kate "is not a super storm, but people should take it seriously. People can get killed in a storm like this."

"Officials at the center have indicated to me they are relatively certain the storm will continue on its present westward course until it reaches the Gulf of Mexico," Gov. Bob Graham said this morning, in announcing the revised hurricane warnings.

The hurricane moved along Cuba's coast across Varadero Beach, the communist-governed island's major resort area, and toward Havana.

Two Howard College employees prepare to release a bunch of balloons during a ceremony Monday at the original Howard College site near the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf. The ceremony marked the beginning of the school's 40th anniversary celebration.

Homecoming

Reunion at cancer center gives hope to patients

Irene Aquilar sits with her 3-year-old son Martin at the Harrington Cancer Center in Amarillo, where former and present patients gathered recently for a homecoming.

AMARILLO (AP) — It was a day for rejoice and smiles, not needles and radiation at Harrington Cancer Center.

Former and present cancer patients from the center gathered recently for a homecoming filled with worship and singing.

"We give thanks this day," the crowd of about 100 people boomed during the litany at the "Rejoicing in Life" service.

Patients ranged in age from 3 to 80 and had come from as far away as Hooker, Okla., and as near Amarillo.

"The homecoming shows people are going on," said 62-year-old Bill Kennedy of Amarillo, who was diagnosed with cancer in 1984.

He has completed his radiation treatments and now volunteers at Harrington Cancer Center.

"Cancer patients need lots and lots of support," Kennedy said.

The doctors and nurses at the center are special, he said, and they know all about cancer, except that they haven't had it. That's where he comes in.

"They don't know how it affects you emotionally," Kennedy said.

"Devastating" is the only word, he says, to describe that feeling when someone learns he has cancer.

Some people give up, and that's not what to do, Kennedy said.

"I look on the bright side of everything," he said. "Cancer is a terrible disease, but we are making strides."

Kennedy says the reunion reflects this.

One can look around the room at people who were diagnosed with cancer over 10 years ago and are still doing fine, he said.

"Just 'cause you have cancer, it doesn't mean you're going to die right away," Kennedy said.

Enjoyment is not something he equates with his volunteer work. But he describes it as rewarding.

When someone says to him "Thanks a lot for talking to me today" he says he gets his reward.

For him, cancer wasn't the end of the world, and he tries to convey this to other people, Kennedy said.

And Kennedy pointed to one particular cancer patient as an inspiration to all the patients who go to the center, 3-year-old Martin Aquilar.

Martin won the distinction Friday of being the youngest cancer patient at the homecoming.

Martin has had Ewing's sarcoma, a bone cancer, since he was about 6 months old, his mother, Irene, said.

For her, the reunion represented something extra special. Martin finished his last treatment last month, she said.

"We can come here, and he's not sick," Mrs. Aquilar said.

"At times, I feel like we're all alone, but (at the reunion) I can see how they (other cancer patients) have progressed, and it gives you hope," she said.

Martin had become kind of a pet at the Cancer Center since the Aquilars moved to Amarillo five months ago. And he has a special routine to receive his chemotherapy.

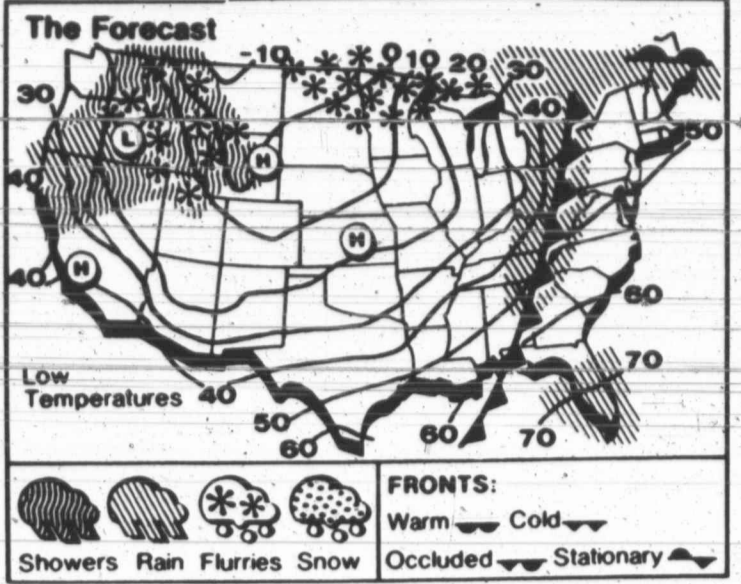

He is hooked up to the intravenous chemotherapy, but he doesn't have to keep his active, 3-year-old body still. He hops on the movable IV and is pushed all around the Cancer Center.

"It makes the day go faster," his mother said.

And Harrington Cancer Center gave Martin a birthday party when he had to spend his birthday in the hospital.

"They spoil him, but it's a very special place," Mrs. Aquilar said with a grin.

Deputies arrest Knott man in shooting death of wife

A Knott man suspected of shooting his estranged wife to death Saturday night was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Howard County sheriff's deputies.

Feliciano Lara Zamora, 37, of Knott was arrested in the 300 block of Rannels after he arrived in Big Spring by bus, said Sheriff A.N. Standard.

Zamora is suspected of shooting his estranged wife Saturday night during an argument at the Latin Quarter Lounge on Highway 350 north of Big Spring, Standard said.

The search for and arrest of Zamora was conducted by the Department of Public Safety, the U.S. Immigration Service office and the sheriff's department, Standard said.

The sheriff said Zamora was traveling back to Big Spring by bus Monday afternoon after two deputies dressed in civilian clothes boarded the bus in Sterling City. He did not know where Zamora originally boarded the bus.

The arrest was made when the bus arrived at the Big Spring bus station, Standard said.

Zamora was being detained in the county jail this morning in lieu of $75,000 bond set by Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin.

According to sheriff's reports, he had $81 in Mexican currency and was unarmed at the time of his arrest.

Two given ag extension service awards

COLLEGE STATION — A Garden City man and a former Big Spring woman received Texas Superior Service Awards last week from the state agriculture extension service in College Station.

Receiving the awards were Norman Kohls, Glasscock County agriculture extension agent, and Mary K. "Mickey" Sweeten, daughter of the late Lem Kinney and Grace Kinney of Big Spring.

Sweeten, a nutrition specialist, is a member of a team of four nutrition specialists and a health education specialist cited for its work in developing a nutrition and health education program.

Kohls was recognized for exceptional dedication, initiative and commitment to agriculture in Glasscock County, particularly on the development of a high quality commercial and 4-H swine production program," according to an extension service news release.

Kohls' swine program reflects the high standards expected in a quality education program, said Zerle Carpenter, state agriculture extension service director.

He has served as the Glasscock County agriculture extension agent since 1977. Earlier, he served two years as the agriculture service agent in Gonzales County and three years as the agent in Guadalupe County.

Kohls' leadership in the development of a high quality commercial and 4-H swine production program has had "high impact on the economic survival of agriculture in the county," the release states. Kohls was instrumental in organizing the county's Swine Breeders Association and reorganized the county's Livestock Marketing Association.

He also helped design an open-fronted portable farrowing house and initiated a county swine directory and sale catalog among other projects, the release states.

Kohls, who has a bachelor of science degree from Texas A&M University, received an appreciation award from the Ector County Fair in 1984 for organizing a swine show for the Permian Basin Fair. He also received an award as coach of the winning livestock judging team in 1983.

Sweeten's group was cited for the development and introduction of "Fit for Life," a comprehensive 12-week nutrition and health education program in 1984-85, and the development of pilot 4-H health-related projects.

Sweeten's team also developed "Super Snacker," a statewide educational program to improve nutritional quality of snacks for youth.

Sweeten received her bachelor of sciences degree from the University of Texas in Austin and her master of sciences degree from Oklahoma State University.

Police Beat

Man reports stolen revolver

A thief this weekend took a .357-caliber Smith and Wesson revolver from the MacAir building at the Big Spring Airpark, according to police reports.

The blue-steel revolver has a 3-inch barrel and is valued at $260. In addition, a brown leather shoulder holster without straps, valued at $47, was taken, reports state.

The theft occurred between 5 p.m. Friday and 4:40 p.m. Monday, James Cheek told police.

• Suzie Hinklin of 1515B Sycamore told police someone stole $50 cash and a Polaroid camera in a burglary between 3:45 p.m. Monday and 1 a.m. Tuesday at 1515B Wood.

• Peggy Soldan of 2304 Morrison told police someone backed another woman's car over her front yard at 5 a.m. Monday, leaving two 20-foot long, 3-inch deep wheel tracks. The car also left a hole 18 inches deep and 6 inches wide.

• Margie Rivas of 1408 Bluebird told police someone tried to enter her house between 9 a.m. and 2 p.m. Monday through her kitchen window.

• Police Monday afternoon arrested Ricky Lin Wallace, 20, of 1001 E. 13th in the 400 block of Birdwell on a warrant for assault.

• Police arrested Ruben Vidalez, 23, of Ackerly Monday afternoon on a warrant for theft.

• Police Monday night arrested Nathan Henry Baker, 31, of 401 Donnelly in the 500 block of W. Third on suspicion of driving while license suspended.

• Police Monday morning arrested David A. Galindo, 25, of Carlsbad, N.M., at the intersection of Highway 350 and Interstate 20 on suspicion of driving while license suspended.

• Police Monday night arrested Cindy Dianne Hart, 24, of 502 Washington on W. I-20 on a warrant for failure to carry liability insurance and failure to appear in court.

• Shannon Clint, a clerk at the 7-Eleven store at 1801 Gregg, told police someone took $25 of unleaded gasoline from the store without paying.

Deaf theater production set

The SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf Creative Theater Ensemble will present "War No More Forever" at 8 p.m. Saturday at St. Mary's Episcopal School, said Liz Wolter, drama instructor.

The production will consist of students' improvised scenes, poetry, excerpts from famous historical speeches and selections from books. Each will revolve around the themes of prejudice, war, peace and cooperation, Wolter said.

St. Mary's School is located at 118 Cedar. Tickets are $1 for students with an ID and $2 for all others. Fifteen students are participating, and the production will be voice interpreted.

Sewer

Decell said.

That problem has increased drastically with the illegal dumping of an inorganic acid and other pollutants by unknown people or industries into the system from July to September, killing biological growth, Decell said. Apparently the dumping has occurred for several years, he said.

As a result, major systems and components have had to be replaced or repaired, as the metal has been corroded, he said. Major repairs still scheduled include the primary clarifier unit, inner laundry weirs on the primary digester and the sludge thickener at an estimated cost of $75,000.

Decell said he has not been able to locate where the pollutants are being dumped into the system, and said his department has been monitoring and sampling the entire system.

Heavy rains in April and June this year also contributed to the problem, Decell said. The rains flooded the plant and washed the biological growth from all the units, he said.

Repairs to a line and manhole that contributed to the plant flooding have been completed, Decell said.

Personnel problems, including high turnover in operators and supervisors at the plant, also have contributed to the problem, Decell said.

Also, he said problems cannot be corrected immediately.

"Whenever you make adjustments to a plant, it takes a long period of time to impact. You have to wait and see how the plant adjusts. Unless you have a definitive problem you can pinpoint and correct, then you have to be careful or you can make matters worse instead of better," he said.

Decell said he and the city have been working closely with officials from the Dallas office of the Environmental Protection Agency.

If the pollution is caused accidentally by a local industry, Decell said the city "wants to work with the industry and keep the discharge within permit levels. But if it's deliberate, that's a different matter."

City ordinances would make the industrial polluter or illegal discharger responsible for the cost of clean up and $1,000 daily fine, Decell said. The EPA and water quality commission have their own rules and regulations that could impose additional penalties.

Decell said he expects to receive an administrative order from the EPA giving deadlines for compliance or repairs.

Sheriff's Log

Warrant issued for hot check

Howard County sheriff's deputies arrested Riley McMillan, 26, of 1808 Mittle Monday morning after a warrant for his arrest was issued for writing a bad check.

He was released on $500 bond.

• Police transferred David Aldas Galindo, 25, of Carlsbad, N.M., to county jail Monday morning after he was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and driving while license suspended.

He was released on bonds totaling $2,000.

• Police transferred Johnny DeLeon Mendez, 19, of 1311 1/2 Elm to county jail Monday afternoon after he was arrested for possession of less than two ounces of marijuana. He was released on $1,500 bond.

• United States Border Patrol agents early Tuesday morning arrested five persons who are suspected of entering the United States illegally.

• Police transferred Nathan Henry Baker, 31, of 407 Donley to county jail Tuesday morning after he was arrested for driving while license suspended. He was released on $500 bond.

Deaths

Maria Zamora

For the record

The Salvation Army is continuing to receive and disburse funds for families needing assistance in paying their utility bills, said Capt. Carroll Braun.

The Big Spring Herald in Friday's edition quoted Marianne Brown, Northside Community Center director, saying the agencies that provide utility assistance were out of funds.

Braun said the Salvation Army did not have a lot of money for the project, but was not out of funds.

Kins of seamen agree

HOUSTON — Families of some crew members aboard an oil exploration ship that sank during a typhoon in 1983 have agreed to a $51 million out-of-court settlement with the ship's owner and operators, attorneys said.

About 100 relatives of 35 men who died on the Glomar Java Sea will receive varying amounts from $125,000 to $5 million, attorneys Fred Hagans and John O'Quinn said Monday.

The 400-foot Glomar Java Sea sank Oct. 25, 1983 about 60 miles south of China's Hainan Island during Typhoon Lex.

Film unit formed

AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White, who last week appeared on the "Dallas" television show, says film making is an industry on the move in Texas.

Announcing the formation of the Motion Picture Producers of Texas, White said Monday that the state's film industry is a vigorous part of the economy.

Demotion recommended

WASHINGTON — A top Immigration and Naturalization Service official is recommending that two Border Patrol agents be demoted and suspended without pay for their handling of an apparent would-be Soviet defector.

More than three weeks after Miroslav Medvid was prematurely returned to his ship in the Mississippi River near New Orleans, the INS also announced Monday a "management review" to determine whether political asylum cases should be handled differently.

Cancer deaths reduced

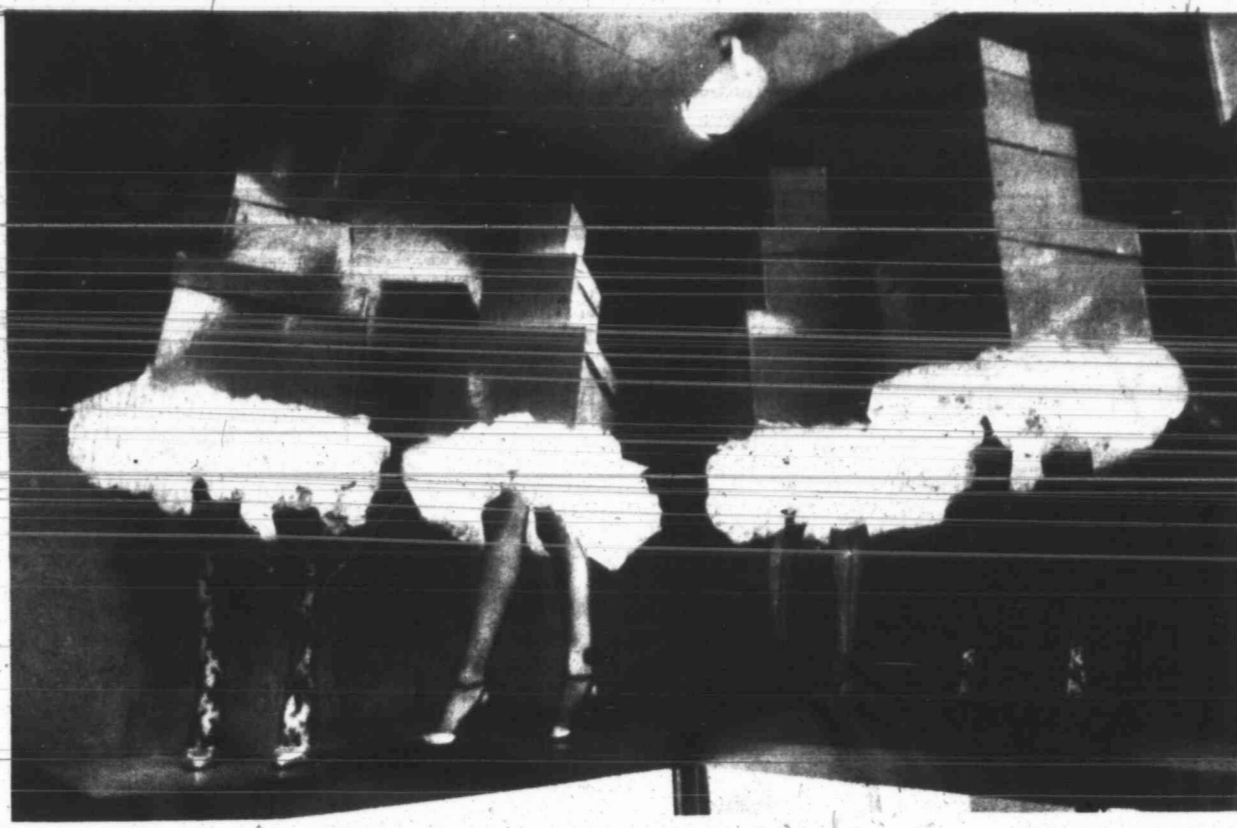

CHICAGO — A long-term study of 162,000 Swedish women indicates there were 31 percent fewer deaths among women ages 40 and up who underwent routine breast X-rays than among those in a control group that were not X-rayed.

Dr. Laszlo Tabar, who conducted the study, said that by reducing the number of years between the five-minute X-rays, "I am convinced that future researchers can reduce mortality to an even higher extent."

Charged with murder

NEW YORK — A woman who claimed she was cheated made several visits to the nation's largest non-bank currency dealer and "knew what she was after" when she stormed in and shot to death the chairman and a receptionist, police said.

Lois Lang, 44, was charged with two counts of second-degree murder in the slayings of Nicholas Deak, 80, chairman of Deak-Perera, and Frances Lauder, 44, and faced arraignment today.

Macy's department store in New York is preparing for the fast-approaching Christmas season with fancy wrapped stockings on display Monday. Retailers are stepping up promotions to lure shoppers before the season formally starts the day after Thanksgiving.

Shopping season

Retailers view with 'cautious optimism'

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year's boom, six fewer shopping days this year and recent heavy sales of such big ticket items as cars could mean a modest Christmas for the nation's retailers, industry watchers say.

But stores are stepping up promotions before the Christmas shopping season formally starts the day after Thanksgiving, Nov. 28. And despite a heavy debt load, customers will pull out their credit cards to buy gifts, analysts say.

"I believe the consumer, who is overextended, will leverage himself more," said Walter Loeb, a retail analyst with the investment firm of Morgan Stanley & Co. "The American consumer is a sentimentalist. At Christmastime he wants to give gifts and he wants to extend warm wishes to his fellow man."

The traditional Christmas shopping season after Thanksgiving is shorter this year because both holidays fall in midweek, reducing the number of days that stores can open.

Retail sales so far this fall have been lackluster, although they picked up a bit in October, according to the retailers' most recent monthly reports.

"Consumers, after having retrenched and saved more in October and November, I think will come back to the stores for a reasonably good Christmas, but late," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the investment firm Shearson Lehman-American Express, inc.

But he added that "this year is not likely to be as good as last," when sales gained almost 10 percent over the preceding Christmas.

Susan Duchak, a spokeswoman for Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest retailer, said, "We're cautiously optimistic about the fourth quarter and the Christmas selling season."

The Chicago-based company is forecasting an industrywide sales gain of 6 percent.

Robert Brewer, senior vice president of second-ranked K mart Corp. of Troy, Mich., said: "It will be up modestly from last year, but last year was such a booming period. We have a very high hurdle to compare against."

K mart, like other retailers, used drastic markdowns in 1984 to get rid of its bloated inventories. As a result, the company recorded brisk sales gains, but profits suffered.

Brewer said 1985 sales for retailers in general should gain 5 percent.

Duncan Muir, a spokesman for third-ranked J.C. Penney Co., said: "We're generally optimistic. We expect a better Christmas for J.C. Penney. Basically, we feel we have a better mix of merchandise for gift items."

Penney, based in New York, is forecasting a 6 percent sales increase for retailers.

Search for MIAs on

YEN THUONG, Vietnam — U.S. and Vietnamese workers began an unprecedented joint search today for remains of four American MIAs, and detected some metal in a village garden where the Vietnamese say a B-52 bomber crashed 13 years ago.

The search began in the garden of a woman who said her husband and 12-year-old son were killed when the bomber slammed into their house on Dec. 20, 1972. The Vietnamese say the B-52 was shot down by missiles.

Protestants unhappy

LONDON — Angry leaders of Northern Ireland's Protestant majority say they will go to court in an attempt to nullify the new agreement on their strife-torn province between Britain and the Irish Republic.

The pact signed Friday gives the overwhelmingly Roman Catholic republic a formal consultative role in running the British-ruled province for the first time since Ireland was partitioned in 1921.

Envoy heads back

PARIS — The archbishop of Canterbury's special envoy, Terry Waite, hurriedly left for Beirut today saying he must reestablish contacts with the kidnapers of American hostages after consultations with U.S. and British officials in London.

The Middle East Airlines plane taking Waite back to Lebanon left Paris' Orly Airport at 11:20 a.m. (5:20 EST), more than an hour behind schedule because of a technical problem, the airline said.

Rescue continues

ARMERO, Colombia — Weary rescuers who pressed on with their search despite a government official's doubts that anyone remained alive pulled 22 survivors from the sea of volcanic mud that buried this Andean farming town, a radio station reported.

Meanwhile, the mayor of a nearby town said soldiers were ordered to shoot "filthy looters" who stepped on trapped survivors as they hurried to rob the dead. Health officials, citing two cases of typhoid fever among survivors, said they planned to fumigate the area where an estimated 25,000 people were dead or missing.

Syrian jets shot down

TEL AVIV, Israel — Israeli warplanes flying a routine patrol over eastern Lebanon today shot down two Syrian MiG fighters that tried to intercept them, the Israeli military command announced.

Opinion

Mistake denies sailor sanctuary

The two Border Patrol agents who sent a defecting Soviet seaman back to his ship are to be disciplined, and well they should be.

Commissioner Alan Nelson of the Immigration and Naturalization Service said the two acted hastily and violated INS regulations when they forced seaman Miroslav Medvid to return to the Russian grain ship Marshal Koniev, which was anchored in the Mississippi River north of New Orleans Oct. 24.

Irene Padoch, an interpreter, spoke to Medvid on the telephone after he had jumped ship and swam ashore. She insists she then told the agents that Medvid was pleading for political asylum. But the agents say they believed Medvid was a stowaway who did not want asylum.

They turned him over to a shipping agent who sent him back to the grain vessel. While returning, Medvid once again jumped into the Mississippi and swam ashore. Soviet seamen came ashore to take Medvid physically in charge.

Later the State Department arranged for the sailor to be taken aboard a Coast Guard cutter for questioning. Medvid, obviously frightened by his Soviet superiors, said repeatedly that he wanted to go back to the Soviet Union. The Soviet vessel finally left American waters, with Medvid aboard.

The two Border Patrol agents made an incredible blunder. They failed to follow regulations which require them to notify their superiors in such cases.

It is the policy of the United States to take in the politically oppressed. Obviously we didn't in the case of Miroslav Medvid.

Confusion drove Yurchenko back

The spook community in Washington is talking of nothing else but the turnabout of Soviet spy Vitaly Yurchenko. Only a few months ago he was the CIA's prize Soviet canary. Then, without warning, he turned up at the Russian Embassy and announced he was going home.

Forget his story about being drugged and kidnapped. The truth is that Yurchenko was not tortured but was badly handled by the CIA. It was not Vitaly's love for the motherland that drove him back to Moscow, but rather his disenchantment with the American way of life.

This is what happened. Yurchenko, while in Rome, was persuaded to defect by a CIA agent who offered the KGB officer wine, woman and song, not necessarily in that order.

"Sing to us, dear Yurchenko," the CIA man said, "and we promise you riches beyond your dreams: a safe house, $1 million in cash, a gold American Express card and a free trip to Hawaii for two, ground transportation and gratuities not included."

Yurchenko, who always wanted to see Hawaii, accepted the offer. He was immediately flown to Langley, Va., to be debriefed and tested for AIDS. As for his million dollars, the CIA people said they would invest it for him in a good tax shelter.

Then the counterespionage boys went to work. "Sing to us, Vitaly, sing to us the names of moles and double agents and spies who are still out in the cold." Yurchenko started to sing in a beautiful baritone that only great Soviet defectors possess.

All went well until Yurchenko demanded the safe house he was promised.

A CIA real estate agent took him out to the Virginia countryside. They drove up to a dirty, gray, weather-beaten cabin with broken windows, rotting stairs and a large hole in the roof.

"What's safe about this house?" Yurchenko said.

"The KGB would never think of looking for you here. We'll let you buy it for $500,000."

"Why should I pay for a house?"

"We always make our defectors pay for their safe houses. The CIA is not in business for its health," replied the agent. "Look, we're not taking advantage of you because you're a dirty commie traitor. Every house in Virginia sells for $500,000."

Yurchenko bought the shack from the CIA and received an advance of $150,000 to fix it up.

Unfortunately just when he got the house the way he wanted it the KGB found out where he lived and burned it down on Halloween. Yurchenko escaped out the back window and three hours later arrived at CIA headquarters shaking. He demanded his money be returned since the house wasn't safe at all. The matter went as high as the director of the Covert Real Estate Division, who told him that the Central Intelligence Agency had a firm policy. As long as the house was safe when the CIA sold it to be a defector, the agency was not responsible for the KGB burning it later on.

Yurchenko was hurt and confused.

The CIA put him up in a Holiday Inn and said, "Sing, Yurchenko, and you'll find a BMW in front of your door and a girl like the one in the Calvin Klein ads."

So Yurchenko sang some more. He would still be singing today if the CIA had not made one tremendous blunder. They had invested the rest of Vitaly's money in a Maryland savings and loan. When Yurchenko went to make a withdrawal the cashier told him they had run out of money and slammed down the window in his face.

Enraged, the spy returned to Langley and confronted Bill Casey. The director said there was nothing he could do. "The CIA has no intelligence as to which savings and loan banks are solvent and which ones aren't. If you had come to me earlier I would have tipped you off on some good stocks."

That did it for Yurchenko. Since he was wiped out he decided to return to Moscow and face the music. His last words as he boarded the plane were, "I don't want to live in a country where your savings aren't insured by the FDIC."

Veterans have long wait before receiving medals

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — Sam Sortland isn't bitter; that's not his style. But the blind World War II veteran would like one thing from his country: a Purple Heart for the wartime injuries that robbed him of his sight.

To anyone outside a Pentagon swivel chair, his request would seem reasonable. Sortland, 71, who lives in Ambrose, N.D., a small town near the Canadian border, emerged unscathed from the five-month siege of Corregidor, the island fortress in Manila Bay. But during nearly three years as a prisoner-of-war, he was systematically tortured, beaten and starved by his Japanese captors.

On Feb. 4, 1945, Sortland and a handful of his surviving buddies were rescued by U.S. Rangers from their Manila prison. He weighed 70 pounds and had lost all his teeth. And he was permanently blinded from the effects of starvation.

But when Rep. Byron Dorgan, D-N.D., tried to get a Purple Heart for Sortland recently, he got this reply from Air Force Lt. Col. John J. Weaver: "An analysis of these cases showed that many prisoners of war had been awarded Purple Hearts on what would have been insufficient evidence to support the award to a soldier who was engaged in actual combat on the field of battle. It would be extremely difficult to define brutality, starvation or malnutrition for the purposes of award of the Purple Heart."

The Pentagon explained that Sortland would have rated a Purple Heart if he had been wounded while being captured, when trying to escape or during bombardment of the prison.

The distinction is understandably lost on Sortland. "Whether you got blind fighting or blind in prison camp doesn't matter," he said. "You're just as blind either way."

As a sort of consolation prize, thanks to Dorgan's efforts, Sortland will be awarded a Bronze Star in a ceremony at a North Dakota air base next month. "People like Sam haven't asked for much," Dorgan told our reporter Jenny Cunningham. "The little things are important. They demonstrate that this country doesn't forget."

This cheery view might be disputed by some veterans. Rep. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif., asked for a General Accounting Office investigation when she learned that a constituent had been waiting 40 years to receive the 14 medals he had earned in World War II.

The GAO reported that a surge of requests following publication of two magazine articles had resulted in a backlog of 114,000 applications for medals in 1983.

Although the GAO found that the distribution program had improved significantly since then, it warned that a change recently proposed could create another big backlog.

As things stand now, the Army processes requests from its own veterans, while those who served in the Air Force, Navy, Marine Corps and Coast Guard are handled by the records center of the National Archives. Acting archivist Frank Burke said the records center wants to hand the responsibility back to the military services.

"We were wondering, as archivists, what we are doing in medals, anyway," Burke said. He added that Archives has taken a lot of heat from veterans and their families because of delays that he said aren't the records center's fault.

The Navy has agreed to begin processing medal requests for itself, the Marine Corps and Coast Guard by Dec. 1. The Air Force is thinking it over.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: Iraq was once regarded by the State Department as rabidly anti-Western and pro-Soviet, radical in its politics and supportive of terrorism. But — wonder of wonders — Iraq is rapidly rehabilitating itself. It has exchanged ambassadors with the United States. Its trade with France, Britain, West Germany and Japan is booming. Iraq is even lending tentative support to the Jordanian-Israeli peace feelers. Why the great about-face? Iraq needs help if it's to continue its stalemated war with Iran. Our sources voice one cautionary note about the new goodwill: The Soviets are still Iraq's main military backer.

WATCH ON THE PENTAGON: Detroit's car makers are outraged at the Pentagon's decision to allow service personnel being transferred to Japan to buy Japanese-made cars along the way in Guam and have them shipped free to Tokyo. Traditionally, U.S. automakers complain, the Pentagon will only ship American-made cars free. They claim the Guam exception meant the loss of 1,300 auto sales to Japan last year. The Pentagon says the setup is necessary because Japan bars many American-made cars that don't meet its standards. Incidentally, it cost $2 million last year to ship military personnel's cars here and there around the world.

MINI-EDITORIAL: William Clinkscales, the marvelously sharp-fanged "junkyard dog" at the General Services Administration, was summarily bounced last week. The veteran waste and fraud fighter's job was abolished and he was transferred to Philadelphia. By all reports, Clinkscales isn't the easiest guy to work with — but that's the point about junkyard dogs. They're mean but effective. Clinkscales was canned once before, by Jimmy Carter, and President Reagan reinstated him with much fanfare. Last week, the president was overruled by GSA chief Terence Golden. Reagan should show Golden who's boss. May we suggest a transfer to Nome?

Billy Graham

Older person wants Heaven

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I feel completely useless after many years of active service in my church. Now that I am older I am getting blind, and there isn't anything worthwhile I can do for others. Is it wrong for me to wish God would just take me home to Heaven? — Mrs. G.L.

DEAR MRS. G.L.: It is not wrong for us to long for Heaven, because if we belong to Jesus Christ we know that Heaven — and not this earth — is our true and final home. Because of what Christ has done for us, we have "an inheritance that can never perish, spoil or fade — kept in heaven for you" (1 Peter 1:4).

But for as long as we are here, God has a purpose for our lives. Do you remember the Apostle Paul? He was once put in a Roman jail for a long time because of his faith. During his incarceration, he wrote to his Christian friends: "I desire to depart and be with Christ, which is better by far; but it is more necessary for you that I remain in the body" (Philippians 1:23-24).

Yes, he looked forward to going to Heaven, but he realized that God wasn't finished with him, that He still wanted to use Paul to help others find Christ. As a result, even some of his prison guards were able to hear the Gospel.

You may not be able to do some of the things you once could, but you are not useless to God — far from it! Undoubtedly, He has some new ways to use you to touch others for Christ.

No work of God gets done in this world apart from prayer, and without the prayers of God's people, missionaries, evangelists, pastors and others will never be fruitful for Christ.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Tuesday, Nov. 19, the 323rd day of 1985. There are 42 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 19, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg Address as he dedicated a national cemetery at the site of the Civil War battlefield in Pennsylvania. "We here highly resolve," said Lincoln, "that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the Earth."

On this date: In 1794, the United States and Britain signed the Jay Treaty, which resolved some of the issues left over from the Revolutionary War.

In 1831, the 20th president of the United States, James Garfield, was born in Orange, Ohio.

In 1917, the late Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi was born.

In 1919, the U.S. Senate rejected the Treaty of Versailles by a vote of 55-39.

In 1942, during World War II, Russian forces launched their winter offensive against the Germans along the Don front.

In 1959, the Ford Motor Company announced it was halting production of the Edsel.

In 1969, Apollo XII astronauts Charles Conrad and Alan Bean made man's second landing on the moon.

In 1977, Egyptian President Anwar Sadat arrived in Israel on a mission of peace.

In 1978, first word began to reach the outside world of the Jonestown mass murder-suicide in Guyana, in which more than 900 members of the Peoples Temple died.

Ten years ago: The judge in the Sacramento, Calif., trial of Lynette Fromme, the woman accused of trying to assassinate President Gerald R. Ford, rejected a defense request for a mistrial.

Five years ago: At a news conference in Algiers, the speaker of Iran's parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani, called on the United States to carry out his country's conditions for release of the American hostages.

One year ago: Nearly 500 people died in a firestorm set off by a series of explosions at a petroleum storage plant on the edge of Mexico City.

Dear Abby

Pregnant wife has questions

DEAR ABBY: I am going through a divorce that will not be final until February 1986. Meanwhile, I have been living with a person I'll call Ben. I care about Ben, but I see no marriage in sight for us. I am also pregnant with Ben's baby, which I am very happy about because I have wanted a baby for the last four years. I am 29 and this is my first child.

Here's the situation: Ben's mother wants to give me a baby shower. She comes from a big family — about 50 women on one side only, just the aunts and cousins. I hardly know any of them. This will be her first grandchild and she is very excited, but, Abby, I am still married, and will not be divorced when the baby gets here. Even after that, Ben and I don't have any plans to get married. I just can't see accepting gifts from these people with things so up in the air.

Also, since I will still be married when my baby is born, whose last name should I give the baby — my present husband's? Or Ben's? If I don't use Ben's last name, will he still have to pay child support? He is the baby's father for sure and wants to pay.

My husband says I can use his last name as long as I want to because after all this is over, we might even get back together again.

EXPECTING AND THRILLED

DEAR THRILLED: Handle one crisis at a time. Don't allow Ben's mother to give you a baby shower under these circumstances. See a lawyer about which name your baby should have, as well as who is legally obligated to pay child support. Please consider counseling before you make any decisions. If there's a chance that you will get back together with your husband, and since there's nothing definite with Ben, why go through with the divorce?

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your readers that they should never pet a guide dog when he is on duty.

Being a guide dog user myself for the last 16 years, I have been amazed and appalled when people have petted my guide dog when I'm crossing a busy street like Michigan Avenue. Even when my guide dog is sitting quietly in a store, on a public conveyance or lying peacefully under the table in a restaurant, people want to play with him.

Most people are not aware that guide dogs are trained to protect their masters and to guide them, and when they are treated like pets when they are on duty, it ruins their prior training, which costs $3,000 to acquire.

Please help me, Abby. I am tired of sounding like a broken record!

STUCK IN CHICAGO

DEAR STUCK: I'll try. Readers: Please resist the urge to "congratulate" a guide dog by petting him, and telling him what a "good dog" he is. If you feel compelled to comment on the dog's efficiency, please address your remarks to the blind handler, but leave the dog alone.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter about the 96-year-old woman who didn't want to miss out on all the fun her friends and relatives would enjoy at her wake, so she invited them all to a party while she was alive and able to share in the fun.

My dear departed mother felt the same way, so she decided to hold a "wake" while she was still around to enjoy it. Mother contacted all her relatives and told them she was having her "wake" early, and if they came to this one, they could skip the real one.

The whole family showed up, and it was the best wake I ever attended. My mother also had the time of her life (at the first one, that is).

WARREN PERINE,
NORTHPORT, N.Y.

Dr. Donohue

Drugs lower risk of disease

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What can you tell me about bronchiectasis? Is it a form of plain old bronchitis? Can you recommend a medical center that specializes in treating it? I sometimes have blood-tinged sputum and I have to take time off from work because of it. What causes it? — E.H.

Bronchitis is inflammation of the breathing tubes, those arrangements of tree-branch-like networks whose ends permit passage of oxygen to the lungs. Bronchiectasis involves the same structures, but in a different way. In bronchitis, the entire length of the tubes is involved, whereas in bronchiectasis only sections of them are, and in a very special way.

Sections of tubes have become stretched, permitting the pooling of mucus. Most often this process begins with an infection, like pneumonia. In fact, bronchiectasis is much less prevalent today because of medicine like penicillin, which can intercept an infection of that kind before it can do too much damage.

I'm sure there are medical centers that specialize in such diseases, but you don't need to go much farther than the nearest hospital. Most doctors on staff will be capable of providing good treatment for your condition. If you are having purulent sputum you may have to take antibiotics right away. And if you continue coughing, another hallmark of your problem, you may have to continue with lower dosages indefinitely. You may also need medicine to keep your lung secretions loose and watery. The blood appearance is evidence that the stretched sections are causing nearby blood vessel damage.

Your treatment will also include lessons on postural drainage, ways of getting your upper body into positions that allow gravity to work in getting some of those secretions up.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you recommend the best powder to keep athlete's foot under control? Is Desenex good? Or can't you mention brand names? — Mrs. K.A.

Desenex contains the active anti-fungal ingredient, undecylenic acid. It's a tried-and-true remedy and has been for years. I've used it myself. And another one is Micatin, which contains miconazole as its ingredient.

Which is better? Whichever one works best for you. And if those don't help enough, there are others. There are so many containing the same basic substances that you can even shop around for one with the lowest price tag.

As for your bunions (another part of your edited letter), it sounds as though you have a real problem. And I can't say from this distance whether it is an inherited irregularity in foot bone structure or the result of foot abuse. Let me suggest you set up an appointment with a doctor, who can evaluate things. Much can be done for bunions these days, and it doesn't always mean surgery. You might want to look through the booklet "Relief and Care of Your Feet." Write me in care of the Big Spring Herald and ask for it by name. Please don't forget to include a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00 for printing and handling.

Emphysema can be controlled. To learn how to live with this serious lung problem, write to Dr. Donohue for a copy of his new booklet, "Emphysema-Bronchitis: The Twin Problems," P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, send a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.00.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Matrons' review highlights

The Past Matron's Club of Big Spring, chapter 67, Order of the Eastern Star, held a dinner meeting recently and reviewed highlights of the club.

Ruby Mason Haynes, past matron of Odell Chapter No. 592, was introduced. Ina Richardson gave the program "Praying Hands" and gave highlights of the club.

The club was organized in 1938 with 28 members who have served as the worthy matron of Big Spring chapter No. 67. Brownie Dunning was the first presiding officer.

Richardson showed pictures of Vera Gross, Dorothy Driver Neel, Thelma Helton, Ina Richardson, Pylie Bradshaw and Bernice Davis with their chapter officers. The women served in succession from 1950 through 1956.

Bradshaw recently presented a star wreath to Janet Smith to be used in the slumber chamber of deceased members at the funeral home. This enables the chapter and club to give memorial gifts to the favorite charity of a deceased member's family.

Candy Andrews, president, gave a report on the "Pearls in the Sand" meeting held Nov. 6 and 7 at Seminole. Several Eastern Star dignitaries were there.

Grand officers attending from Big Spring were: Grace Kinney, time and talent; Alfred Tidwell, history and heritage; Candy Andrews, membership concern; and Anna Steen, Founder's Day committee.

"A" certificates of proficiency were issued to: Janet Smith, Eugene Smith, Eunice Thixton, Raymond Andrews, Marvin Watson, Gladys Fiveash, Marzee Wright, Marvin Steen, Lavera Mitchell, E.A. Fiveash, Irene Smith and Richard Mitchell.

Colonial Dames to co-host state meeting in Abilene

The Richard Hubbell Chapter of the Colonial Dames of the 17th Century will co-host the state meeting in Abilene Feb. 16-18, it was announced recently.

The group met at the Big Spring Country Club Nov. 9 for a lunch and business meeting. Mrs. Jack Lipscombe presided.

Mrs. John Cobean, reported on national defense.

Members learned that a wreath will be placed in the Heritage Museum during the museum's pre-Christmas display.

Mrs. C.G. Barnett told of her recent genealogical trip to England with a group of descendants of the Puritans on the "Mary and John" ship, a ship in the Winthrop Fleet.

Puritan is a name given to that section of the Church of England that desired a more thorough reformation of the church than was offered under Queen Elizabeth the First.

The ship sailed from Plymouth, England, on March 20, 1630 for America. The passengers became the founders of the New England states.

The tour covered more than 1,300 miles in Southwest England. The group visited villages and churches where their ancestors lived and worshipped.

During her visit to Lyme Regis, England, Mrs. Barnett visited the Mayor's office. On the wall was a plaque which listed the name of the Mayors of Lyme Regis. It included the name of her grandfather, James Hill, who served in 1603. His son, William, was a passenger on the "Mary and John." Other relatives were William Gaylord of Exeter, Devonshire, and George Hull of Crewkern, Somerset. George Hull's daughter married Richard Hubbell, for whom the local chapter is named.

Art show winners announced

The annual fall membership show of the Big Spring Art Association was held Nov. 8-9 at Malone-Hogan Hospital. Twenty members of the association participated in the event, submitting 64 entries for judging.

Judith Tereletsky, art instructor at Goliad Middle School, judged the show.

Best of Show went to Alice A. Webb for her Indian baskets worked in pastels.

Other winners were: oils — first place Alice Webb, second place Roberts Ross, third place Oma Anderson, and honorable mention Arlys Scott; watercolor — first place Madeen Blair, second place Arlys Scott, third place Madeen Blair, and honorable mention Adele Fleming and Betty Conley; pastels — first place Doris Vieregge and Alice A. Webb, second place Jean Money, third place

Jean Money and Roberta Ross, and honorable mention Johnny Zitterkopf.

More winners were: acrylics — first place Madeen Blair, second place Christine Carter and third place Christine Carter; graphics — first place Doris Vieregge and second place Johnny Zitterkopf; woodcarving — first place Robert Traylor; second place Robert Traylor, third place Jean Baker, and honorable mention Robert Taylor; sculpture — third place Jean Baker and Johnny Zitterkopf; novice — first place Letha Lewis, second place Wilson Money, third place and honorable mention Letha Lewis; crafts — third place Linda Rupard.

The next meeting will be Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. in the art department of Howard College. The art show critiques will be discussed. Plans will be made for the Christmas party in December.

New Chinese oil frontier lures Texas firms to hunt for fortune

DALLAS (AP) — Communist China is one of the world's newest oil frontiers, and Texans who have helped develop oil fields across the world are now headed for the Orient in search of new fortunes, officials say.

The Chinese produced 834.5 million barrels of oil last year, 70 million fewer than Texas. But geologists believe reserves could be significant enough to double current Chinese production of about 2.4 million barrels per day by the year 2000.

In Canton, a Chinese city 80 miles northwest of Hong Kong, it is "sort of the Houston of China," said Michael D. Cannon, a Houston accountant who has worked in China for U.S. companies.

"You go to the bar at the White Swan Hotel or the China Hotel in Canton and sometimes you'd swear you're in Houston," he told The Dallas Morning News. "People wear cowboy boots and talk with Texas accents."

Canton is the big city nearest to foreign oil work in the South China Sea, and it's where Texas-based efforts are concentrated.

"The weather is just like here," Cannon said. "I'm sure the people from Houston feel right at home."

In Houston last February, officials of M.W. Kellogg Co. of Houston signed contracts to do business with China Petrochemical International Corp.

It was the latest of several China deals for Kellogg, one of the first American companies to enter China after then-President Nixon ended 24 years of hostility by reestablishing formal diplomatic relations on Jan. 1, 1979.

And Kellogg is far from alone.

Other Houston companies that have done business in China include oil firms such as Shell U.S.A. and Pennzoil, construction company Raymond International, the engineering company CRS-Sirrine, drilling vessel operator Global Marine and oil-field supplier National Supply.

The Chinese, in turn, are venturing to Houston.

In 1979, the People's Republic of China opened a consulate in Houston, one of four in the United States. The others are in New York, San Francisco and Chicago.

"In China, the oil industry is developing very fast and... even though oil prices are going down, Houston is still important," said Houston Consul General Tang Zing Bo. "Mutually, we can benefit. We need equipment. Here equipment is lying idle. We are buying a lot of equipment."

Consulate officials estimate that China spent $300 million over the last two years in the U.S. Southwest on oil-field equipment and supplies and feed stocks for "Chinese petrochemical plants."

And in 1984, China was the 11th-ranked country in total trade through the Port of Houston.

About 200 groups of Chinese, or more than 1,000 people, visited Houston for business reasons in 1984. Of that number, 70 percent were related to oil, a consulate spokesman said.

In October, Port of Houston officials formalized a "sister port" agreement with Dalian, China's second-busiest port behind Shanghai.

Cash-strapped airlines cut corners, not safety

DALLAS (AP) — Airlines are relying more on older, used aircraft, and more planes are involved in accidents attributed to structural or mechanical failure, but industry and regulatory officials say there is no evidence that older jets can't be flown safely.

The problem stems from stiff competition and price wars following deregulation of the industry in 1979, according to a copyright story in Sunday's Dallas Morning News, which reviewed National Transportation Safety Board records from 1974 to 1983.

Because the competition is squeezing commercial airlines' budgets, more and more carriers have begun flying older, used aircraft amid growing government concerns about safety.

Carriers that didn't exist five years ago — such as People Express and Midwest Express — are competing with established airlines for the older aircraft, the Morning News said.

The newspaper quoted aviation experts as saying the older planes require additional maintenance at a time when economic pressures have forced some deregulated, cash-strapped airlines to cut corners.

But that doesn't mean older aircraft aren't safe, they say.

A new inspection program for older jets, which became mandatory for some airlines last month, requires operators of some older aircraft to perform special supplemental inspections for age-related cracks and corrosion.

In 1971, the average age of a passenger jet was five years; this year, the average age is almost 10 years, and more than one-third of the fleet is 15 years old or older, the newspaper said.

"The fact is that with deregulation, industry competition is a bigger item," said Jim Hart, who oversees a new Federal Aviation Administration inspection program in Seattle for older jets.

Warrens repair windshield damage using Novus Method

Pat and Sue Warren use the patented Novus Method to repair windshield damage at a fraction of the cost of windshield replacement.

It is no longer necessary to replace many damaged windshields, says Mrs. Warren. The Novus Method can restore and repair them, both structurally and optically. Eighty to 90 percent of windshield damage can be repaired successfully, she says.

"Every break is different and responds differently to our method, the Warrens say.

It's important to have the damage repaired immediately before it spreads.

The repair is done by forcing optically-matched liquid resin through the break. The resin cures with high-bonding strength, for permanent, optically-clear results. It becomes as impact resistant as the original glass.

The Warrens have a mobile repair unit they can bring to homes or businesses to repair windshields on the spot. Car owners also can bring their vehicles to 301 Willard, off of Highway 87 South.

The service is available seven days a week. For information or service, call Pat or Sue Warren at 267-1264.

WINDSHIELD REPAIR — It's no longer necessary to go to the expense of replacing a damaged windshield, say Sue and Pat Warren, above. They use the patented Novus Method to make repairs and have a mobile unit they can bring to your home or office.

Schroeder lifts 'Skins

WASHINGTON (AP) — He was Frank Merriwell playing his heart out to win it for the kid in the hospital. He was the White Knight, rescuing the good guys in the hour of their greatest need.

He was Jay Schroeder, coming off the bench when Joe Theismann's right leg was shattered, beating the New York Giants 23-21 Monday night and injecting new life into the Washington Redskins' hopes of making the National Football League playoffs for the fifth straight season.

"Jay Schroeder was GREAT," said Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs after his backup quarterback, who hasn't played a full game since high school, completed 13 of 20 passes for 221 yards against a defense ranked No. 1 in the NFL entering the game. He threw just one touchdown pass, but that was a 14-yarder to Clint Didier with 7:21 left that provided the winning two-point margin.

It was an exciting game, a brutal game at times, a game won on emotion and a bizarre game in which 20 of the Redskins' 23 points followed two successful onside kicks and a fourth-down pass completion off a fake punt.

It also improved Washington's record to 6-5 the same as Philadelphia's and just a game behind Dallas and the Giants, who lost a chance to take over first place alone in the NFC East and had a four-game winning streak snapped.

"Just the chain of events and the way things happened out there, it was unreal," said Gibbs, whose team dedicated the game to its fallen quarterback.

The most unerving thing, and the centerpiece of the game, of course, was the injury to Theismann, who suffered a compound fracture of the lower right leg.

It came on the second play of the second quarter with the game tied 7-7. The scores came on Theismann's 9-yard touchdown toss to Don Warren at the end of a drive that featured an 11-yard fourth-down pass from punter Steve Cox to Raphael Cherry and Joe Morris' answering 56-yard TD run for New York.

Theismann handed off to John Riggins, who pitched it right back to the 36-year-old quarterback. Theismann ducked under Harry Carson, but was grabbed by All-Pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor and his right leg twisted underneath him like a pretzel as Gary Reasons crashed over the top.

"I heard something go snap," said Taylor, who immediately jumped up and gestured to the sidelines for help. "I thought two helmets had hit each other. Then I heard him yelling. I looked down and the bone was sticking right through his leg. It was an ugly sight."

"When I went out to see him, I said 'it's a fine mess you've gotten us in,'" Gibbs said of his quarterback. "He had tears in his eyes and he said 'I'm sorry.'"

Enter the blond-haired Schroeder, who played just one year at UCLA as an alternate with Tom Ramsey, then embarked on a minor-league baseball career that ended when he struck out 172 times in one season in the Class A Carolina League. "One of the guys who convinced me to try football was (New York Mets pitcher) Dwight Gooden," he said. "In that league, you couldn't even see his fastball."

Schroeder's first pass Monday night was a 44-yard bomb to Art Monk that put the ball at the New York 13. But John Riggins' fumble at the two four plays later killed the drive.

With the game still tied 7-7, Cox opened the second half by tapping the ball just 10 yards forward and falling on it himself. On the next play, Schroeder connected with Monk for 50 yards to the Giant four and two plays later, Riggins bulled in from the one to give Washington a 14-7 lead.

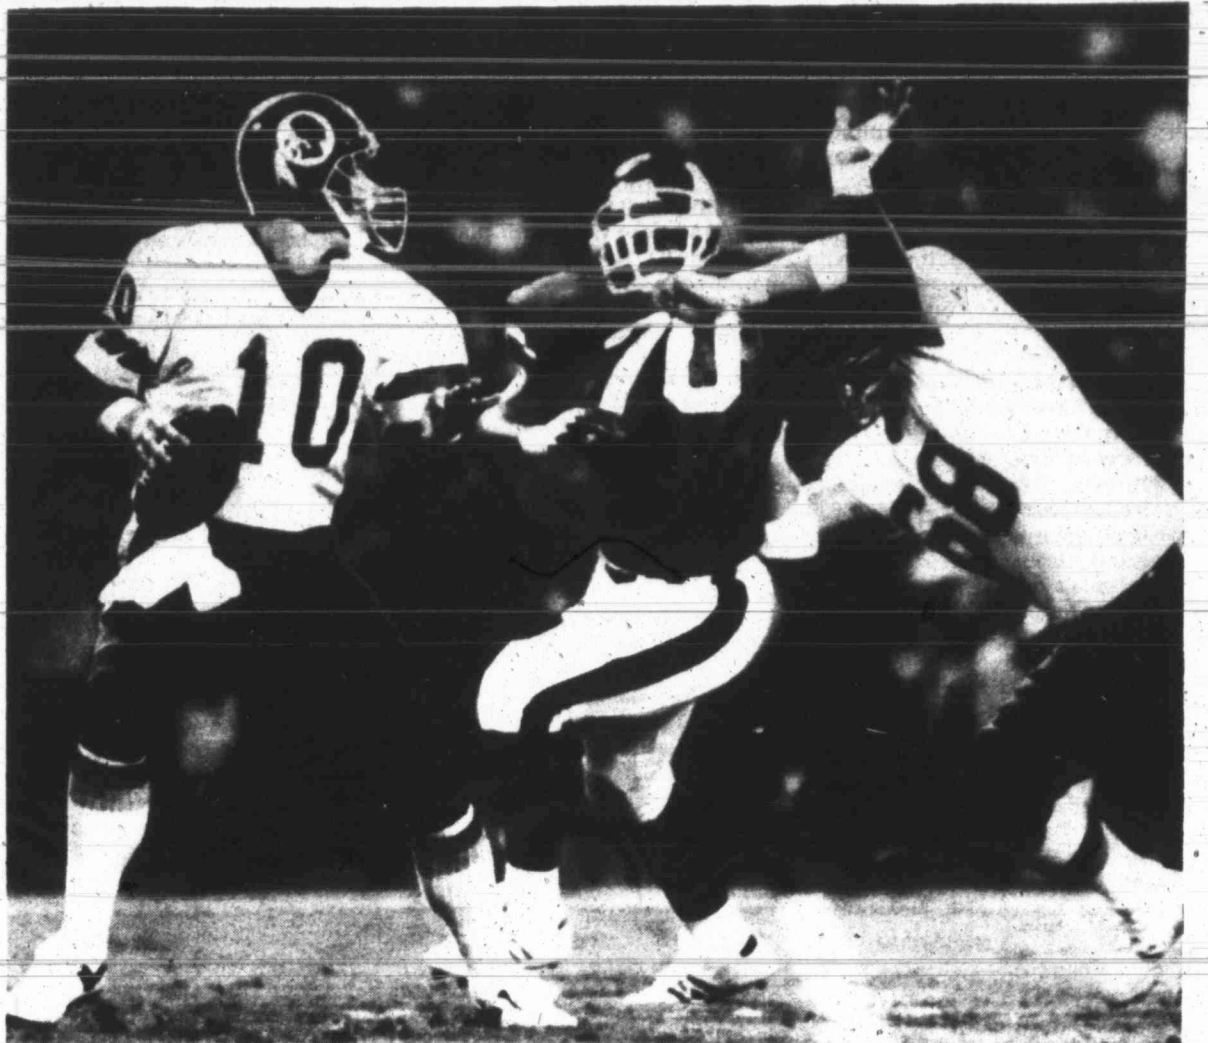

It didn't last long. New York went 80 yards in five plays on the next series to tie it, with Morris, who finished the night with 118 yards and three TDs, breaking a 41-yard touchdown run. Later in the period, Perry Williams recovered a George Rogers fumble at the 24, setting up an 8-yard TD run by Morris, who bettered Bill Paschal's 43-year-old Giant record with his 11th rushing touchdown of the season.

Mark Moseley's 28-yard field goal 3:35 into the final period cut the margin to 21-17, then Cox struck again, squibbing another onside kick past New York's Andy Headen. Greg Williams recovered the ball, which was supposed to have been squibbed to the 25, at the New York 47.

Five plays later, Schroeder hit Didier over Elvis Patterson for the winning touchdown.

The Giants' hopes died when Vernon Dean picked off a Phil Simms pass in the final minute. Simms was only able to complete 9 of 18 for 138 yards.

"Every week, you always think, 'It's going to come now, it's going to come now,'" said Schroeder, whose eight passes (four completions) this season comprised the total of his professional work before Monday night.

"You never want it to come this way, with someone getting hurt, but you're always ready."

"We didn't know much about

Schroeder but I commend him for being prepared to play in the game," said New York Coach Bill Parcells, who kept his team in the zone defense designed for Theismann against the harder-throwing Schroeder. "That's what a backup is supposed to do. He's supposed to be able to come in and help and he did a good job."

"When it happened, we felt a little stunned," Riggins said of the Theismann injury. "When you lose your quarterback, you're not supposed to win. But Jay came out and helped us overcome it."

Astros hire Berra; fill coaching spot

HOUSTON (AP) — Yogi Berra's famous expression "It ain't over 'til it's over" may now be applied to his managerial ambitions.

"I don't think I'll do that again," Berra said Monday after the Houston Astros announced that Berra had joined Manager Hal Lanier's staff as a coach.

Berra, 60, is a former Hall of Famer who skipped both the New York Yankees and New York Mets to the World Series.

He is also a neighbor in Montclair, N.J., of Astros owner John McMullen.

"I enjoy being around the players more," Berra said by telephone from his home. "That's why I took this job down there. John and I have been friends for about 15 years. He's trying to get a winner over there and thought maybe I could help. I don't know."

Berra doesn't think the sight of him in a rainbow-colored Astros uniform instead of his familiar New York Yankee pinstripes will boost Astros attendance.

"If you don't win the games, you don't bring them in," said Berra, who became an Astros coach Monday, filling the final spot on Lanier's staff. "But I do know a lot of people in Houston and I'm looking forward to seeing them."

The Astros' attendance dipped last season along with the team's playoff hopes, leading McMullen to fire Bob Lillis and replace him with Lanier on Nov. 5.

Berra was fired as Yankees manager after 16 games last season and took a long overdue vacation, playing golf and traveling.

"I didn't want to do anything this summer," Berra said. "This is the first time I've been off in 43 years. It was kind of fun but I missed it."

Berra said he probably would not receive his assignment until he meets with Lanier at the baseball winter meetings.

"What I do is up to Hal," Berra said. "I don't do what I want to do, I'll just do whatever the manager wants me to do. If he wants me to work the some guys, I'll do it. If he wants me to coach first, I'll do it."

Lanier had already announced he was trying to hire Berra.

"He'll be a big asset to our club," said Lanier. "Yogi has been exposed to every aspect of the game. He has coached first and third base as well as managed."

Berra led the 1964 Yankees and the 1973 New York Mets to the World Series, making him one of five managers to represent both leagues in the championship series.

Berra started last season as manager of the Yankees but was relieved with a 6-10 record and replaced by Billy Martin.

The 1986 season will mark his 16th year as a big league coach, having served the Mets from 1965 through 1971 and the Yankees from 1976 to 1983.

"Yogi is a proven winner and an outstanding baseball person," Astros General Manager Dick Wagner said. "His addition gives the Astros one of the best coaching staffs in all of baseball."

CISCO — The Howard College Hawks will try to get back on the winning track when they take on Cisco Junior College tonight at 8 p.m. in a non-conference tilt.
The Hawks are coming off a pair of tough losses in the Garden City, Kansas tournament last weekend, that lowered their record to 2-5 on the year.
The Hawks will return home Friday night to host the Big Spring Classic, Friday and Saturday, November 22 and 23.
- Lady Steers open season
The Big Spring Lady Steers basketball team will open the 1985-86 season tonight at 8 p.m. against Brownfield in Wildcat Gymnasium.
Eli Carmichael will be making his debut as head coach of the Lady Steers varsity.
The Lady Steers return Friday night (8 p.m.) for their home-opener against Lubbock Coronado.
- BSHS Fall Sports Banquet
Big Spring High School will honor their football, volleyball and cross-country athletes with a banquet Monday, December 2 (8 p.m.) at the high school cafeteria.
Tickets can be purchased at the high school or at the door for $8. Big Spring native and Washington Redskins cornerback, Ken Coffey, will be the guest speaker. The banquet is sponsored by the Big Spring Booster Club.
- Abilene lose school officials
ABILENE — W.D. "Shorty" Lawson has announced plans to retire at the end of the 1985-86 school year from his 11-year career as the Abilene Independent School District athletic director.
Don Cumpton, Abilene High School's head coach, resigned his post to take over Lawson's job.
Lawson, in his 41st year with the AISD, served as assistant athletic director, physical education and health director, teacher and coach before taking over as athletic director.
"It's been a real joy for me...I enjoyed every day of it," he said. "I couldn't ask for anything more. I've worn out eight superintendents and I finally found one I couldn't wear out."
Also announcing his resignation was Abilene Cooper head Coach Mike Garrison. Garrison said he was leaving after two years in the job because he felt the Cooper program would benefit from someone new.

Cardinals McGee voted league MVP

ST. LOUIS (AP) — After learning that he had been named the National League's Most Valuable Player, St. Louis Cardinals center fielder Willie McGee was talking about his desire to improve his game.

"I'm going to come out next year and just try to do better," the soft-spoken McGee said Monday after he became the 17th Cardinal to win the award. "Hopefully, I'm not going to let it affect my life."

McGee, the NL batting champion with a .353 average, was named on 14 first-place ballots in a poll of 24 writers (two from each NL city) from the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

Although word had leaked out at the World Series that he would win the award, McGee said "it was kind of unexpected. I knew I had a good enough year. Still, you never think it's you."

But he added, "The award shows that I put everything together. Everything I did worked."

Cardinals Manager Whitey Herzog described McGee, equally talented as a fielder, as one of the hardest workers he has ever coached.

"He keeps working at it. He's never satisfied," he said. "He's a very humble young man and he wants to do better."

"With the type of year he had," Herzog said, "Willie should have been a unanimous choice for MVP."

McGee received 280 points in the balloting to 220 for Dave Parker of the Cincinnati Reds, who got six first place votes after leading the league with 125 runs batted in. Pedro Guerrero of the NL West champion Los Angeles Dodgers was third with three firsts and 208 points. New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden, who won the Cy Young Award last week, finished fourth with one first and 162 points.

Tommy Herr of St. Louis, Gary Carter of New York, Dale Murphy of Atlanta, Keith Hernandez of New York, John Tudor of St. Louis and Jack Clark of St. Louis completed the top 10.

The American League MVP award will be announced Wednesday night.

"I feel I'm still young and I still have some things to learn," the 27-year-old McGee said in a conference call from his family's home in Richmond, Calif. "This has been a special season for me. I'm most proud of the Cardinals as a team and an organization."

Coming into the season, McGee said, "I thought I had to improve my batting right-handed and I felt I had to be more disciplined at the plate. I'd rather be known as an all-around ballplayer able to help the team win in different ways."

McGee is the St. Louis club's first MVP since Keith Hernandez shared the award with Pittsburgh's Willie Stargell in 1979. McGee is only the fourth NL switch-hitter to win the award, following Pete Rose, Maury Wills and Frankie Frisch.

McGee's average was the highest ever by a National League switch-hitter, eclipsing the .348 marks of Rose and Frisch.

Big Spring opens basketball season tonight against Seminole

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

Big Spring head coach Mike Randle is expecting good things from his Steer basketball squad this year. The third year coach welcomes back three starters and six returning letterman when the Steers open the season tonight (8 p.m.) in Steer Gymnasium.

"In the nine years that I've been coaching in Big Spring, I've never seen better overall talent than this year. "We've got speed, quickness, jumping ability and size inside that will make up for our lack of height."

The size Randle refers to is Big Spring's version of the "Bruise Brothers" — 6' 2", 212-pound senior swingman Billy Cole and junior Sidney Parker, who packs 216 pounds on a 6'2½ frame. Add 6'5" Brian Mayfield, a starter from last year, and the Steers have the makings of a powerful and experienced front line.

Parker and Mayfield looked particularly impressive in the Steer's last pre-season scrimmage win over Levelland last Saturday.

Mayfield pulled down 16 rebounds for the game, while Parker was credited with 15 boards against a Levelland front line that stood 6-5, 6-6, 6-7.

"Out strength will be rebounding this year," explained Randle. "Our big men aren't that tall, but they hit the boards, and particularly the offensive boards, very aggressively."

Though last year's leading scorer, Benard Williams, transferred to Andrews, Randle feels that his backcourt duo of junior Charles Young and senior Alex Minter will provide a more balanced offense this year for the Steers.

"Young is as good an outside shot as Williams, but his greatest asset is ball-handling. I think we'll get much more movement on offense with Charles and Alex in the backcourt."

The Steers are apt to fast break often and well with a team full of speedsters. "Every one of our starters can run the floor," said Randle. "It will be to our advantage to fast break as much as possible, but we can set up and run plays if the defense dictates it."

On defense, the Steers will use a full court press and switch from man defense to zone as game situations develop.

The Steers will have better depth on the bench this year than in past. Sixth man Colin Carroll is a proven veteran who will spell Parker and

... backcourt letterman

BRIAN MAYFIELD

COLIN CARROLL
... versatile 6th man

Sophomore Shawn Shellman and senior letterman Dwayne Sherman will relieve in the backcourt, while junior Cedric Banks and senior Kevin McKeown will serve as defensive specialists.

"We can substitute any one person in the lineup with no let down at all and our backcourt personnel is solid all the way down. The only problem we'll have is if I have to pull two of the big men out. But none of the three (Parker, Cole, and Mayfield) have ever had a history of foul problems."

The most important factor in the success of the 1985 Steers basketball team may be an intangible one — experience. Something the Steers have lacked sorely in previous Randle campaigns.

"It seems like every year I tell people we're rebuilding, but when you're starting a freshman and two sophomores, (as was the case in 1984) there's not much else you can call it. This year we've got four starters with experience returning who've been there before. I think our experience will really help the team when district comes around."

Penn St. remains No. 1

By The Associated Press
Penn State and Nebraska remained 1-2 in The Associated Press college football poll today, setting up a possible national championship showdown in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Night.

First, however, No. 1 Penn State has to defeat Pitt on Saturday in its regular-season windup while No. 2 Nebraska must beat No. 5 Oklahoma.

Penn State overcame the jinx that knocked Iowa and Florida from the No. 1 perch the previous two weeks. The Nittany Lions ran their record to 10-0 by pounding Notre Dame 36-6 and received 46 of 60 first-place votes and 1,180 of a possible 1,200 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters.

Nebraska walloped Kansas 56-6 and received 12 first-place votes and 1,122 points.

Ohio State and Air Force, which had been third and fourth last week, both lost and dropped out of the Top Ten. Ohio State fell to Wisconsin 12-7 and skidded to 12th place while Air Force bowed to Brigham Young 28-21 and slipped to 13th.

Meanwhile, Iowa outlasted Purdue 27-24 and jumped from fifth place to third with 1,020 points followed by Miami, which was idle but went from sixth to fourth with 1,011 points.

The other two first-place ballots went to Oklahoma, which blanked Colorado 31-0 and vaulted from seventh place to fifth with 992 points. Michigan swamped Minnesota 48-7 and moved up from eighth to sixth with 923 points. Oklahoma State held off Missouri 21-19 and rose from 10th place to seventh with 769 points while UCLA hammered Oregon State 41-0 and shot from 13th to eighth with 720 points.

Arkansas' 10-6 loss to Texas A&M dropped the Razorbacks from ninth place to 18th and also enabled the Aggies to crack the Top Twenty for the first time since the 1979 preseason poll.

Florida, a 15-13 winner over Kentucky, climbed from 11th to ninth with 700 points and Auburn, a 24-10 winner over Georgia, went from 14th to 10th with 646 points.

The Second Ten consists of Brigham Young, Ohio State, Air Force, Florida State, Baylor, Tennessee, LSU, Arkansas, Texas A&M and Georgia.

Last week, it was Florida, Georgia, UCLA, Auburn, Florida State, BYU, Baylor, Tennessee, LSU and Alabama.

Texas A&M's triumph over Arkansas raised the Aggies' record to 7-2 and lifted them into the Top Twenty. Alabama dropped out after a shaky 24-13 victory over Southern Mississippi.

Pokes still have hopes for title

IRVING (AP) — After they suffered the worst defeat in franchise history against the Chicago Bears, there is still hope for a division title for the Dallas Cowboys.

At 7-4 following Sunday's loss to Chicago, Dallas is now tied with the New York Giants for first-place tie in the National Conference East after the Washington Redskins edged the Giants 23-21 in a Monday night game.

The Redskins, 6-5, pulled back into contention in the division race.

Dallas hosts Philadelphia Sunday then entertains St. Louis four days later on Thanksgiving in back-to-back NFC East games.

Bears' Coach Mike Ditka, architect of the slaughter on Sunday, was a tight end for the Cowboys the last time they were shut out, 218 games ago in a 38-0 Monday night loss to St. Louis in 1970. He later spent nine years as an assistant coach under Dallas Coach Tom Landry.

"I played for them and we went on to win the Super Bowl that year," said Ditka. "You can regroup and make things work. A loss like this can be very advantageous to them."

Ditka apologized for two Chicago fourth-quarter touchdowns that made it appear the unbeaten Bears were running up the score on Landry and the Cowboys.

TOM LANDRY
...preps his team for Eagles

"I'm sorry the end of it happened like that," said Ditka. "We ran straight zone plays on both of the last series. Calvin Thomas ran over somebody for a touchdown and Dennis Gentry made a heckuva run for a touchdown."

"You don't expect those things to happen. It's got nothing to do with rubbing it in," Ditka said.

out. "We got an old fashioned country licking and now the job, my job in this case, is to bounce back next week," said Landry. Dallas linebacker Eugene Lockhart said, "The season isn't over for us. It has only just begun."

Safety Dennis Thurman agreed with Ditka that the humiliation might make Dallas a better team.

"When you have been embarrassed like we have been embarrassed I don't think it should be too hard to come back," he said. Landry said the Dallas offense which suffered four interceptions and six sacks "couldn't be any worse than it was."

"It will take a lot of hard work to bounce back," he said. "I would hope we could. We'll find out real quick. We've got two big games in the next two weeks."

Dallas quarterback Danny White took a physical beating in the game, twice being knocked out by linebacker Otis Wilson. White's status for the Eagles' game was doubtful.

"I'm sore from the waist up," said White. "It doesn't look good."

Landry said it appeared that Hogeboom, who was the losing quarterback in an earlier game with Philadelphia, will start.

NBA rookies earn big bucks

NEW YORK (AP) — Compensation for first-round draft choices during the 1985-86 National Basketball Association season ranges from a potential $1.2 million for Patrick Ewing of the New York Knicks to $75,000 for A.C. Green of the Los Angeles Lakers, according to material obtained by The Associated Press.

Ewing was the No. 1 pick in the June 1985 draft, while Green was the 24th and last pick of the first round.

"The first five players drafted had an average increase of 25 percent compared to last year," said Charles Grantham, executive vice president of the NBA Players Association. "After the first five picks, the salaries fall down to an average of 10-15 percent throughout the rest of the first round."

The AP learned that Ewing could earn up to $1.2 million this season in salary, bonuses and incentives. Ewing reportedly has a 10-year contract worth $31.2 million, with the first six years and $17 million guaranteed.

Joe Kleine, the No. 6 pick of the Sacramento Kings, potentially has the second-highest rookie salary this season, $1.062 million, followed by the second draft choice, Wayman Tisdale of the Indiana Pacers, $987,500.

According to Players Association figures, the average base salary for the 1985-86 first-rounders is $291,000.

The players union averages do not include No. 7 pick Chris Mullin of the Golden State Warriors, who signed on Nov. 6, about 10 days after the season started. Mullin reportedly is being paid $500,000 this year, and if that figure was included in the league-wide norm, the average salary for the rookie class would be $300,000.

"Everyone got a guaranteed contract for the first year and there was very little deferred money," Grantham said. "Only three rookies got deferred compensation, which we regard basically as a good thing. Our advice generally is for a player to take cash and the responsibility for investing your own money."

Grantham said 10 first-rounders got signing bonuses and three got incentive bonuses. These and miscellaneous bonuses raise the potential average salary level slightly.

After Tisdale, the top rookie salaries belong to No. 3 pick Benoit Benjamin of the Los Angeles Clippers, $575,000; No. 4 Xavier McDaniel of the Seattle SuperSonics, $525,000; Mullin; No. 5 Jon Koncak of the Atlanta Hawks, $475,000; No. 10 Ed Pinckney of the Phoenix Suns, $300,000.

Big Ten is back in bowl picture

By JOE MOOSHL
AP Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP) — The Big Ten is back!

Once in sad decline, this year's Big Ten Conference served its Midwestern fans a dazzling brand of college football that barely resembled its former "three yards and a cloud of dust" approach.

With three teams ranked in the Top Twenty, record-breaking crowds packing huge stadiums, and splendid television ratings, the Big Ten's pride is perking at an all-time high.

"All we have to do now is win the big ones," Big Ten Commissioner Wayne Duke said.

The "big ones" are the bowl games, which the Big Ten had been losing with alarming consistency in recent years, especially the Rose Bowl.

But the new Big Ten, marked by a balance of blended offenses and directed by crafty coaches, may be able to reverse that trend behind No. 3 Iowa, No. 6 Michigan and No. 12 Ohio State.

There was a time when the conference was in total command of the Rose Bowl, winning 12 of 13 games from 1947, when the Big Ten and the Pacific Coast Conference hooked up in a lucrative and exclusive contract.

In those days, the Big Ten had a rule that a team could not make a repeat trip to the Rose Bowl the following year. There were times when the Big Ten runnerup went West and won, heaping additional embarrassment upon their rivals.

The Big Ten, however, has had only two victories in the last 16 Rose Bowl games, with Ohio State winning in 1974 and Michigan in 1981. The last time the conference produced a national champion was 1968, when Ohio State reigned.

The Big Ten's big overhaul really began with the coaches. Before leaving for the National Football League's Detroit Lions, Darryl Rogers drilled his passing concepts into players at Michigan State.

Mike White turned the program around at Illinois, where crowds had drastically dwindled, but now pack the stands.

And out of Texas came Hayden Fry to rescue the program at Iowa. An immediate Hawkeye hit with his homespun philosophy and humor, Fry turned a losing team into a national power.

He also had a formidable weapon in quarterback Chuck Long, a product of Wheaton, Ill., whom Fry recruited and once said was "destined for greatness."

Long isn't the only experienced quarterback working in the Big Ten this season. Nearly every school had one, including stars such as Jack Trudeau at Illinois, Jim Everett at Purdue, Jim Harbaugh at Michigan, Jim Karsatos at Ohio State and Steve Bradley at Indiana.

To get into such an enviable position, changes had to be made years ago and they seem to be finally producing results.

It wasn't until 1975 that the Big Ten decided to allow its teams to play in postseason games other than the Rose Bowl. Several years later, the NCAA adopted the 95-scholarship limit under which the Big Ten had been operating, eliminating an advantage enjoyed by other conferences.

Those changes and others have helped recruiting and during the past year alone, Big Ten schools have invested $25 million from football revenues on new facilities.

Still, it took time for the Big Ten to shake the stodgy image imposed by Ohio State and Michigan, which dominated the league with their old-fashioned but successful ground offenses.

While at Ohio State, Woody Hayes shunned the passing game. "Protect your flanks and don't forget your fullback," the coach would say in elevating football to the level of war.

At Michigan, Coach Bo Schembechler would wink and say, "There are three things that can happen when you pass the football and two of them are bad."

That was great for Ohio State and Michigan, which took turns winning the conference championship in the days of the Big Two and Little Eight. But the one big game a year between Ohio State and Michigan didn't fill the bill for television, ever-hungry for bigger and more exciting games.

Meanwhile, enlivened Big Ten teams averaged more than 69,000 fans a game this season, prompting the commissioner to call college football "the single most popular spectator sport in the country."

The Big Ten is also a big hit on TV.

Every week at least one Big Ten game is televised and on most Saturdays the Big Ten has two games on different networks.

Now it's time for postseason bowl shopping, a time when Duke shines in getting his teams placed in various markets.

He has selling points. More than 25 percent of the nation's TV sets are located in the populous Big Ten area.

That same area is usually blanketed with snow come bowl time — December and New Year's Day — and fans are willing to follow their teams to warmer climates to spend the holidays and their money.

Last year, the Big Ten sent six teams to various bowls. Result: one victory, five defeats and $8.5 million for the conference. The previous year, four Big Ten teams went to bowls. Result: one victory, three defeats and $8.9 million.

This year could provide the biggest payoff.

If Iowa beats Minnesota on Saturday, it would go to the Rose Bowl. If the Hawkeyes lose to Minnesota, they go to the Cotton Bowl.

Michigan could still wind up in the Rose Bowl, but only if it beats Ohio State on Saturday and Iowa loses to Minnesota. At worst, Michigan could wind up in the Fiesta Bowl.

Ohio State will go to the Rose Bowl only if it beats Michigan and Iowa loses.

Michigan State reportedly was set to meet Georgia Tech in the All-American Bowl, Illinois was matched against Army in the Peach Bowl, and Minnesota was bound for the Independence Bowl.

Longhorns must win last two SWC games

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas

faces Baylor and Texas A&M within six days, possibly for the Southwest Conference football championship, and Texas coach Fred Akers admits it's a double-tough task.

"We've got our work cut out for us, and we're going to go at it as hard as we know how.

We'll try our best to win them both although it's a chore. But a lot of people would love to have that chore," Akers told his weekly news conference Monday.

Baylor, seeking its first victory in Memorial Stadium since 1951, comes to town Saturday, and a sellout crowd of close to 80,000 is expected for the 12:05 p.m., CST, kickoff.

A victory for Baylor, 8-2, would put the Bears in the Cotton Bowl. If Texas should win, the Longhorns still would have to beat A&M at College Station on Thanksgiving to go to the Cotton Bowl.

Last year Baylor upset Texas at Waco 24-10, which started a three-game losing slide for Texas.

Akers, whose Texas teams have a 2-6 losing record in bowl games, also said he disagrees with Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds' comment that the Longhorns should stay at home this season unless it wins one of the final two games.

Dodds said Sunday that "We want to be at least 8-3 before we can go to a bowl. We haven't ruled out any bowls. But we want to find a bowl that is willing to work out a deal to wait."

Texas has been to a bowl game eight straight years since Akers became coach in 1977, but won only in the Sun Bowl against Maryland in 1978 and the Cotton Bowl against Alabama in 1982. Losses in the 1978 Cotton Bowl to Maryland and the 1983 Cotton Bowl to Georgia cost the Longhorns national championships.

Last year, Texas was mauled in the first Freedom Bowl by Iowa, 55-17, which resulted in strong criticism that the team never should have accepted the invitation.

Asked to compare his team's attitude this week with last year before the Baylor game, Akers said, "It's much more upbeat. First of all, Baylor's in a different position. What were they this time last year, 4-6 or so? The stakes are different. The difference is we're younger, we're improving... (and) we're less injured now than we were this time a year ago."

Injuries, however, could sideline No. 1 quarterback Bret Stafford, who suffered a dislocated left shoulder in Texas' 20-0 victory over Texas Christian last Saturday, and tailback-punt returner Eric Metcalf, who has a "moderate to severe" strained ligament in his right ankle.

Stafford's arm is in a sling and he will not practice this week, Akers said. Metcalf, who had a 71-yard scoring run against TCU, is on crutches. "Right now, there's no way I can plan on them playing, either of them," Akers said. Senior Todd Dodge would replace Stafford, and Tony Tillmon, who has a thigh bruise, would replace Metcalf returning punts.

Akers said Baylor and A&M "have excellent football teams. But we've played excellent football teams already this year and won most of them."

"From here on out we're going to have to be improved in every thing we do," Akers said.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, NOV. 20, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Your best means for getting ahead today is to charm all with whom you come in contact and to overcome the temptation to feel you are not getting the right deal from others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Don't worry over some anxiety that you can do nothing about, otherwise you get very little else done that is constructive.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't air your personal anxieties to friends who are hardly in the mood to listen to them today.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be painstaking in handling your duties, but don't expect everything to go very smoothly for you.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You do not want to make some change that would be detrimental to your progress, so do something about it.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Postpone that discussion with the one you love until you have all of your facts straight. Don't get involved in a business venture.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Not a good day to take a partner to task for something you feel is not being handled properly.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't make any changes in your environment even though you are tempted to do so; you may be upsetting an already good set-up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may find it difficult to have the good time you had planned, so keep busy at constructive activities.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get something pleasant going at home to offset conditions you do not like there.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Control your temper no matter what may arise today which could be disturbing to you. Be most careful if you take a trip.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan how to keep your property up without incurring added expenses. Not a good day to take risks, especially involving money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Try not to be too demanding with those who are important in your life today. Not a good day or evening for social gatherings.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be born with many advantages that others will not have, but this won't last too many years, so be sure to give a good education in business so that your progeny will be able to make a success of life. One who will be highly sensitive to others.
