Hijacker of jet claims 4 killed

Radio monitors say Americans aboard liner are target

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — Terrorists seized an Egyptian jetliner carrying more than 100 people Saturday and forced it to land here where a man identifying himself as one of the hijackers said by radio that four people had been killed. "I am going to look for another American passport," said the man in English, according to reporters at the Valletta airport monitoring radio conversations between the Boeing 737 and the control tower.

The man then said "four bodies are under the plane and a fifth will follow" if the plane was not refueled, the reporters said.

They said another man then came on the radio, told the tower he was the plane's captain and said of the hijacker who had been speaking, "He is very serious."

In Washington, Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., said late Saturday that the State Department told him the four dead were a hijacker, an Egyptian security guard and two passengers whose nationalities had not been determined. Torricelli, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he had no further details.

Earlier, a State Department spokesman, Dan Lawler, said there were "an undetermined number" of Americans aboard the jetliner that was hijacked en route from Athens, Greece, to Cairo, Egypt.

"There are an unknown number of casualties on board the flight," he added. "We don't know the nationalities of the casualties, with the exception of one injured American who has been taken to a local hospital. And that's basically all I have."

A later State Department report said the injured American was in good condition at a hospital, but it gave no further information. Lawler said a State Department task force had been assembled.

The task force said late Saturday it had received a report that 11 women passengers — seven from the Philippines and four Egyptians — were released and left the plane.

The reporters monitoring the radio conversations said the man who identified himself as the captain was heard saying, "Another passenger is being prepared for execution. I demand fuel. I do not

Ye olde almanac

Pages are sprinkled with sage advice

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

From the shivers of winter blizzards to sweaty summers, farmer's almanacs cover it all — with a few extras thrown in. Grabbing your eyes at first glance are the ads, strange enough to make you wonder if they share salesmen with the National Enquirer.

Mixed among the mail order items touting vitamins, tractors and seeds are ads for: "Amazing 100-year-old Gypsy Bait Oil Makes Fish Bite or No Cost"; "Super Sex Alert High Potency Tablets (does an alarm go off or what?)" ; a "One-Man Sawmill"; "Voodoo Dolls from Haiti"; and "color bags" guaranteeing money, jobs and love. I'm holding out for the magic ring handed down from the Brothers Grimm. "Money Power! Solid sterling silver and set with highly magnetic lodestones and "goldstones," this ring can plug you into the universal money flow. Comes with the Basic Laws of Prosperity."

My check's in the mail. But almanacs do have a purpose. Although they may share the same ads, publications like Reader's Digest and the National Enquirer don't give the best times for planting by the moon. All serious gardeners know you wean animals and plant when the moon is in Pisces, and kill weeds when it's in Aries.

Both Blum's Farmer's and Planter's Almanac and the Old Farmer's Almanac contain bushels of information on weather and planting.

The Old Farmer's Almanac also enjoys a reputation for unerring accuracy. Legend says an almanac writer, bored, wrote down snow for his Fourth of July prediction. People laughed but had to wear parkas to watch the fireworks: It snowed four inches.

With this in mind, the 1986 almanacs say Texans will find this late fall and winter warmer and drier than normal, but November and December will be wet and chilly.

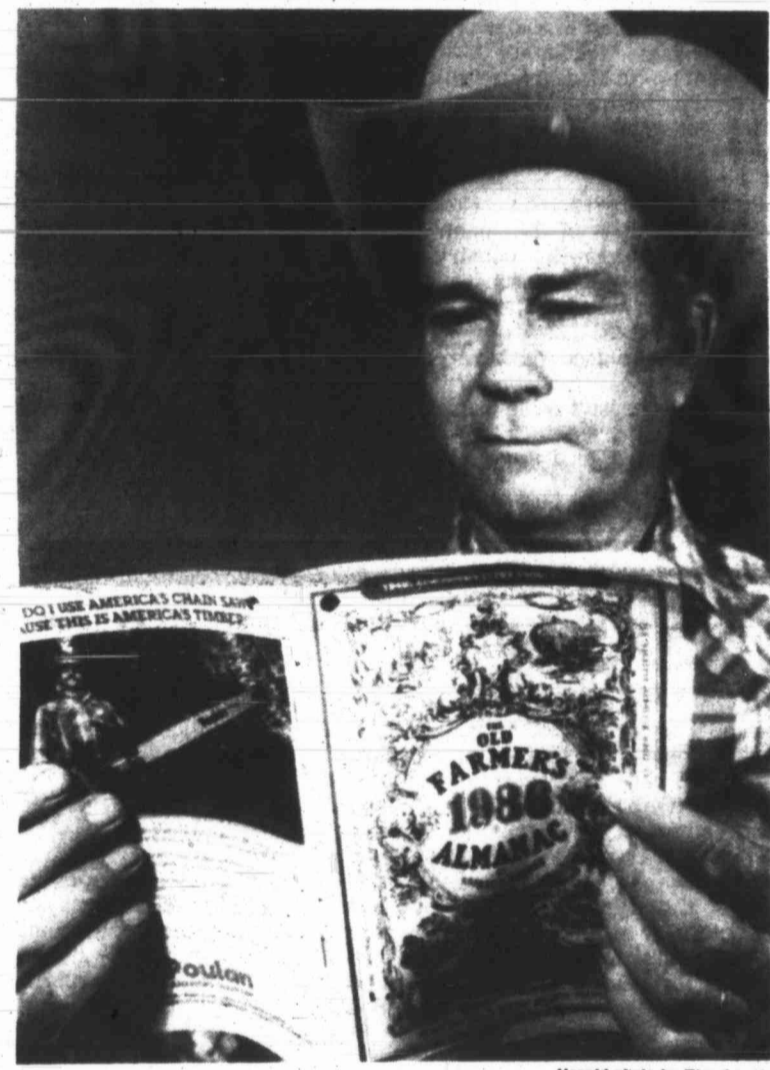

Blum's predicts numerous snow and rain storms, followed by cold spells. The Old Farmer's Almanac also predicts a heavy snow at the end of the year, with near blizzard conditions in the Panhandle. January will bring severe cold waves that stretch into the Gulf, it says.

But on to the reason I really read almanacs: features like Heroic Animal Stories, found in the Old Farmer's Almanac.

The roll call includes "Blackie, the Heroic Border Collie," who bites recoiling rattlesnakes in half; a talking ewe; Rags, the farm dog who ran to get help for his badly burned master who didn't realize he was injured; and a host of others, including a swimming pig.

Priscilla the porker sounds like the coolest of the lot. I don't know why, but the picture of a young, drowning child hanging onto a paddlin' pig in a pond etches itself forever in my mind. I

Senate finally passes compromise farm bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed a 1985 farm bill Saturday after farm-state Democrats reached agreement with Senate Republican leaders on provisions to soften future cuts in income subsidies by giving farmers government surplus commodities.

The 61-28 vote culminated more than a month of acrimonious on-again, off-again debate, including five days of marathon sessions and dozens of back-room meetings to work out deals between competing farm commodity interests.

"It's not a good farm bill, but it's one-third better than the Republican bill they tried to shove down our throats yesterday," said

Sen. J. James Exon, D-Neb., one of a group of Democrats who had threatened to filibuster the bill if GOP leaders did not make concessions.

"This has some policy and some features that are good. It also has some that aren't so good," said Agriculture Secretary John Block, who was present at many of the negotiating sessions but declined to specifically endorse the measure.

The bill now must go to a House-Senate negotiating conference after Congress returns from its Thanksgiving-week break, to work out differences between the two versions. The House passed its version of the bill Oct. 8.

When the Senate first began work on the bill, it contained a four-year freeze on income subsidies for grain, cotton and rice farmers that had been worked out mostly by agriculture committee Democrats. Those Democrats grew resentful this week after Senate Republican Leader Robert Dole of Kansas split their party's ranks by luring votes with "sweeteners," mostly for Southern states.

The compromise worked out Saturday was based on the one-year freeze favored by Republicans, but added government-owned surplus commodities to the checks received by farmers in 1987 and 1988.

Partner defaults on Comanche Peak

WACO (AP) — One of the minority partners in the Comanche Peak nuclear power plant has refused to make any more payments on the increasingly costly project, utility officials said.

The action by Brazos Electric Power Cooperative of Waco, which had a 3.8 percent interest in the plant, was taken even before the latest price hike of $900 million was announced this week.

It marks the second time a partner in the plant has failed to make its payments, said Dick Ramsey, a spokesman for Texas Utilities Generating Co., which is building the plant. He said the Tex-La Electric Cooperative of Nacogdoches began to miss payments several months ago because it was having trouble raising money.

Ramsey said the Brazos co-op is $9.8 million behind and is in default. Ramsey said the co-op missed its first payment in May.

According to Ramsey, the co-op's 3.8 percent interest will be adjusted to reflect the amount it eventually contributes to the plant's cost.

Jim Shannon, a spokesman for Brazos, said the agency stopped making payments because it wanted to reassess the cost of the Comanche Peak project. He said Brazos and Texas Utilities are negotiating the issue.

The cost of Comanche Peak was originally estimated in 1972 at $779 million. By January, that had risen to $4.56 billion. Just this week, Texas Utilities announced a $900 million increase, boosting the current estimated cost to $5.46 billion.

In addition, the operational date for the first unit of the twin-generator plant was moved 18 months to mid-1987, and the second unit to late 1987.

Family hopes to cash in its chips

TYLER (AP) — Dana Boles watches with a keen eye the process that he hopes will grow from small potatoes to big potatoes in the chips industry.

And that's no small hurdle for the Tyler resident.

With four family members running the company with him, Boles has manufactured homemade potato chips for Tyler, Longview and Dallas grocery chains about six months.

And during a trial period for the chips in most of the grocery chains, every Boles Old-Fashioned Potato Chip is carefully made.

"We're new in the business, you know, so we want to get the best out," says Boles, a former Robert E. Lee High School and Tyler Junior College student.

"These potatoes are right out of the field, right off the truck," he says, pointing to spuds on a conveyor. The conveyor carries 20,000 pounds of potatoes daily on their first step to becoming Boles Old-Fashioned Potato Chips.

Handmade. Family-made. Boles may have several reasons to smile these days.

The 29-year-old began his own potato chip business with an agreement with Brookshire's 10 Tyler stores to get shelf space for the Tyler-made product.

Using fast-talking, elbow-rubbing and plain, old-fashioned salesmanship, Boles has secured a spot for his product in most Tyler grocery stores.

Talk now is not of beating the competition. Instead, it focuses on when the old-fashioned, handmade potato chip will grip Tyler.

Boles knows the signs to look for, thanks to a stint at an eastern firm using the same technique.

"I went up (to Massachusetts) to learn the business," he says. "They got so big, so fast, that two months later, they found they needed 18 cookers."

Boles currently has one cooker. "In other parts of the country, it's the fastest growing industry," he says. "The only reason we're here in Tyler was because I was brought up here."

Tyler also is a good market area, he says. Boles says he isn't going to lower the $1.39 a bag price.

"We think it's good if we maintain our sales," he says. "Somebody always has potato chips on sale. We don't. It's a specialty product and costs more to make it."

Michael Phillips loads potatoes into a cooker at the family potato chip company in Tyler. Boles Old-Fashioned Potato Chips are being sold in area stores in the hopes of finding their market niche.

tain our sales," he says. "Somebody always has potato chips on sale. We don't. It's a specialty product and costs more to make it."

maybe to increase 1 to 2 percent each week," Boles says. The potato chip manufacturer currently is testing the market in Dallas, Longview and Tyler, serving 35-40 stores. But the chips haven't yet convinced grocery chains to stock them in all stores. The only chain allowing Boles chips in an entire market is Brookshire's.

"But overnight, it could all explode," Boles says smiling, calculating the number of cooks per new cooker.

If one of the chains gives him permission for sales, it will mean, at best, hiring 25 employees working on two shifts.

"If we just got one account every two or three months, it would be tremendous," he says. "And we built this building with the capability of having four of those cookers." The size of the East Tyler building also could be tripled if circumstances warrant.

But it might take more than a red and yellow "Made In Tyler" sign on potato chip stands to convince grocery chains that Boles is the chip for them.

"You've got to prove you can sell more than (the competition) before they kick someone off the shelf who's been there 15 years," he says.

"Sales are increasing, and that's what they want," Boles adds. "We have to at least match them before they'll take shelf space away."

But sales aren't everything. There's also family.

And with Boles, the two serve as close companions. His wife, Carol, does all billing and paperwork for the company, while his mother, Loraine; father, Ray; and nephew, Michael Phillips, help produce the chips.

While Boles' nephew is not one of the five company stock holders, a cousin is.

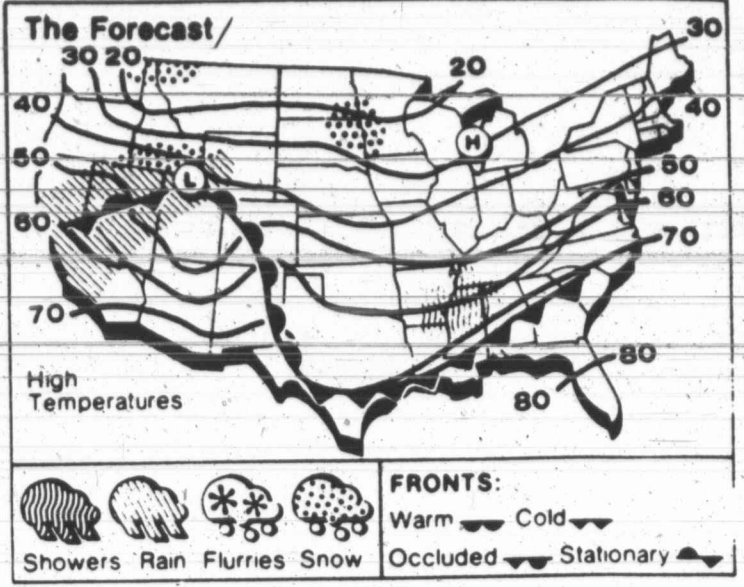

"It's a family business," says Mrs. Boles, who also graduated from Lee High School. "With husband and wife together, we can build this place."

Boles left Tyler after marrying Carol right out of high school and attending Tyler Junior College, eventually working as service engineer for various companies nationwide — including potato chip companies.

With Boles' experience in machinery installation, and Mrs. Boles' handling the financial end, creating their own potato chip company seemed only logical.

Now they're just waiting for the homemade potato chip boom.

want any more bloodshed. I am responsible for the safety of passengers and crew."

No demands have been made public, but an airport source said the hijackers had threatened to kill a passenger every hour if their demands were not met.

Egyptian aviation authorities said the plane was seized by terrorists of the "Egypt Revolutionaries" organization, but they did not know many hijackers there were or how they were armed.

The Athens airport also was where two armed Lebanese terrorists boarded a Trans World Airways Boeing 727 on June 14 and hijacked it on the flight from Athens to Rome with 153 people aboard. They forced it back and forth between Beirut, Lebanon, and Algiers, Algeria, during which they released most of the hostages and killed a U.S. Navy diver in civilian clothes.

The jetliner landed in Beirut for the third time with 39 hostages, all Americans, still on board. The hijackers demanded Israel release all Palestinian prisoners in its jails. On June 30, after Syria intervened, the terrorists freed the remaining hostages, who were taken to Damascus and then home via Germany.

Reporters were kept far away from the Egyptian plane, but they could not see any refueling activity.

Prime Minister Carmelo Mifsud Bonnici, Foreign Minister Alex Scceberras Trigona and Health Minister Vincent Moran were at Valletta's Luqa airport talking by radio with the hijackers, according to state-run Maltese television.

The Egyptian aviation authorities in Cairo said the plane carried 120 passengers. Cairo's Middle East News agency said there were 97 passengers, but it gave no figure for the number of crew members.

The Egyptian authorities said the plane landed at the Valetta airport at 11:16 p.m. local time (4:16 p.m. EST).

Almanacs

thought only Bobby Riggs could properly be called "Superpig."

Another burning topic addressed is "How to Find Your Perfect Mate," easily the most-read feature in the book. The advice ranges from "Kiss as many people as possible," to "Swallow the heart of a wild duck."

Among the more esoteric methods:
• Place a snail in a pan of cornmeal; its tracks will spell your true love's initials.

• Stand on your head, chew a piece of beef gristle and swallow it.

• A fictional character offers her advice if passion is not returned: "If you can kiss your love while concealing a raw turtle dove's heart in your mouth, he or she will be yours forever." If the other party consents to this, they deserve to be stuck to you forever.

• Cook a silent supper in the dark, but do each act backwards. You'll see the face of your true love before you. (How do you crack eggs?)

• Walk around the block with your mouth full of water; if you don't swallow it, you'll be married within the year.

• Cry, sweat and drink lots of fluid. They produce a substance believed to be a human pheromone, or chemical sex attractant. Stay away from pigs, however. While studies showing the substance works are disputed, androstenol has proven successful in inducing female pigs to assume a mating stance.

If, however, you can touch your little finger and your forefinger behind your two other fingers, ignore the above advice: you can have any sweetheart you want.

Other important facts, like career aptitudes, can be gleaned from almanac horoscopes. One almanac includes a list of which Zodiac signs are best suited for various activities. For example, Pisces; Capricorn and Scorpio are best for breeding and setting hens, baking and slaughtering.

Free medical advice? The Old Farmer's Almanac dispenses that, too, especially for those concerned with getting rabies. California has the most rabid wild animals — I guess they roam the wilds of L.A. freeways — but, according to this edition, human bites pose a greater danger because bacteria is more readily transferable from humans than dogs and cats.

When and where should you be on the alert for human bites, say, as opposed to vampire bites? Beware of warm Saturday afternoons between 3 p.m. and 5 p.m. during fights or political meetings. If you're bitten at midnight, however, get the garlic out.

Last in a list of odd but certainly useful hints is a "Good Harmless Way to Remove Tar" after being run out of town. This would be an excellent remedy for those who try kissing with raw turtle dove hearts.

Police Beat

DPS warrants lead to arrest

Police arrested Johnnie Ray Jones, 26, of 1110 Aylford on Taylor County Department of Public Safety warrants for driving with expired license plates, failure to provide proof of insurance and failure to appear in court, according to police reports. He was arrested at 1000 San Antonio at 11:31 p.m. Friday.

• Police arrested Frank David Timmins, 23, of 1403 Opal on suspicion of possessing under two ounces of marijuana and drug paraphernalia, according to police reports. He was arrested at 1:43 a.m. Saturday at 3202 E. I-20.

• Police arrested Ricky Mansfield, 31, of 2609 Wason at the College Park Revco at 3:48 p.m. Friday on suspicion of theft between $20 and $200, according to police reports.

• Jerry Bullard, 31, of Gail Route was arrested at 4:15 p.m. Friday at 1705 Marcy on warrants for speeding and failure to appear in court, according to police reports.

• Police arrested Daniel Fuller, 29, of 102 Carey at 3:48 p.m. on a warrant for assault, police reports stated.

• Louise Moten, 51, of 104 N.E. Ninth was arrested at 7:16 p.m. Friday at the College Park Revco on suspicion of theft between $20 and $200, according to police reports.

• Steve Gray of Howard College told police Friday that someone stole $340 of miscellaneous auto parts between Friday and Sunday from the floorboard of a 1976 Ford pickup parked outside the Howard College auto shop.

Abortion foes plan fight

WASHINGTON — Pro-life groups, after failing to convince a House committee to eliminate federal funding for family planning, said they will take their anti-abortion battle to the full House.

Kay James, public affairs director for the National Right to Life Committee, said some members of the House Appropriations Committee may have misunderstood the potential effect of a family planning amendment they passed Thursday.

But she said there would be no such confusion on the House floor if the measure is offered for further amendment.

"The full House is much more pro-life than the committee," she said Friday.

VA gearing up for AIDS

WASHINGTON — At least 700 AIDS victims have turned to the Veterans Administration for treatment, and the agency is bracing for an even larger number as the Pentagon begins screening active duty military personnel for signs of the deadly disease.

Patients with acquired immune deficiency syndrome are being treated at many of the 172 VA medical centers around the country, and the agency is planning to establish major AIDS units at its hospitals in New York City, San Francisco, Miami and possibly two or three others, an official said.

Planes have close calls

CHICAGO — Air traffic controllers for O'Hare International Airport allowed jetliners to fly closer than regulations allow five times last week, but the Federal Aviation Administration said the incidents were minor.

FAA spokesman Mort Edelman said Friday jetliners are required to maintain five miles of lateral space from one another.

In the incidents Tuesday and Wednesday, however, the planes were more than four miles but less than five miles apart, said Edelman, who called the errors minor.

"About 400 feet would be major," he said, but added, "four in one evening is quite a large amount."

Gorbachev on petition

STANFORD, Calif. — Petitions signed by 500 Stanford University students in the 1986 graduating class say they want Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev to deliver their commencement speech.

The petitions delivered to the school president Friday represent about a third of the members of the class. Petitions will be circulated through Thanksgiving.

Normal university procedures call for a list of recommended commencement speakers to be submitted by a nominating committee of students, faculty and administrators to President Donald Kennedy in early December.

Optimism over artificial heart program fades

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's artificial-heart program was energized a year ago by a heroic operation that implanted the world's second permanent artificial heart in the chest of William Schroeder.

Following the apparently successful surgery, other transplant centers rushed to begin artificial heart programs. Seven other implants took place this last year, but that burst of optimism has faded as rapidly as William Schroeder's health.

Schroeder was re-admitted this month to Humana Hospital Audubon in Louisville, Ky., following his third stroke, possibly caused by the artificial heart. He has difficulties speaking and has lost some memory. Except for a few brief excursions, he has remained in the hospital or an adjacent apartment the entire year.

Troubled recoveries are now considered routine. Murray Haydon, who became Humana's second artificial heart recipient Feb. 17, has never left the hospital. Jack Burcham, the third, died 10 days after his April 14 surgery. Leif Stenberg, who received his Jarvik-7 heart in Sweden on April 7, died Nov. 21.

Humana has not done another implant, although it maintains it is ready to proceed at any time.

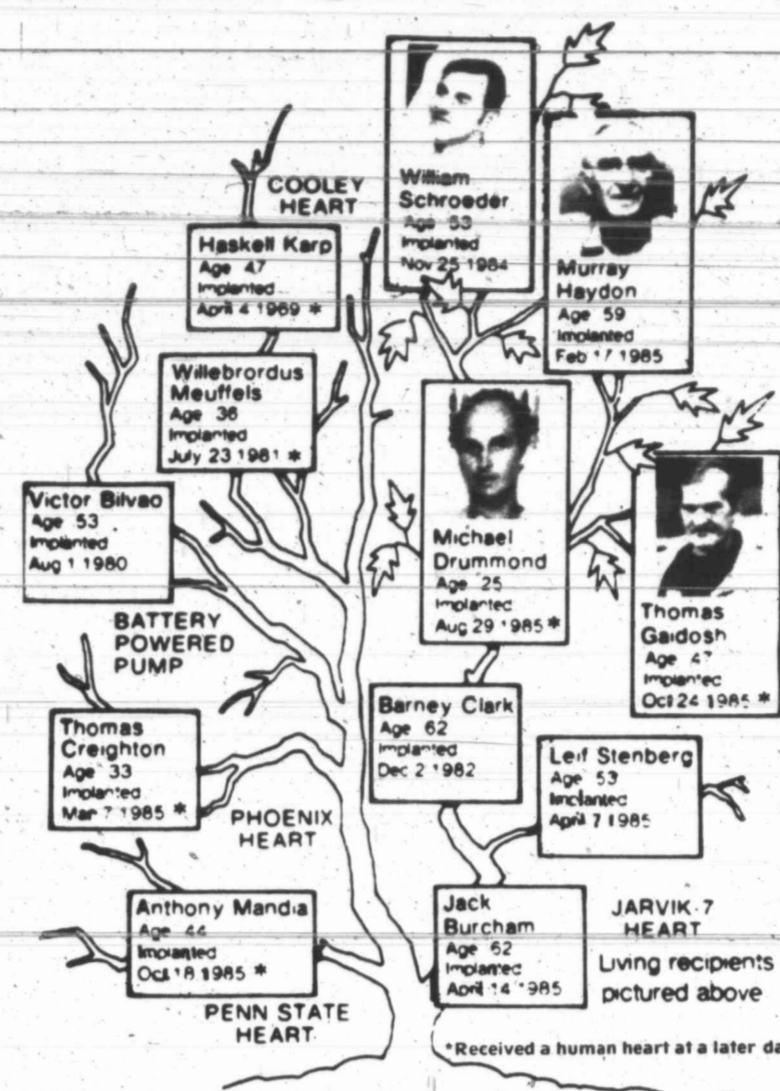

In view of the difficulties experienced by Schroeder and those who followed, proponents of the artificial heart are muting their praise.

"We never believed the artificial heart could have been achieved in one device," Robert Jarvik, inventor of the Jarvik-7 heart, said last month in Washington. Four of the seven patients to receive the Jarvik-7 heart have had strokes, including the first recipient, dentist Barney Clark, and "we are presuming the heart is the most likely cause," he said.

Schroeder's operation on Nov. 25, 1984, opened the floodgates of artificial heart surgery. Of the 12 artificial heart implants that have been done worldwide since 1969, eight were done in the last year.

By the time Humana had done its three artificial heart implants, Swedish surgeons had implanted another Jarvik-7 into the 53-year-old Stenberg.

The University of Arizona leaped unexpectedly into the artificial heart business on March 7 with the unauthorized use of the so-called Phoenix Heart. The patient lived just 11 hours. In August, the university temporarily implanted a Jarvik-7 into Michael Drummond, who received a human heart nine days later and was released from the hospital in November.

The Hershey Medical Center in Hershey, Pa., implanted its Penn State heart in a patient for the first time in October. The recipient died 2½ weeks later. Presbyterian University Hospital in Pittsburgh joined the club Oct. 24, implanting a Jarvik-7 heart in a 47-year-old man who later received a human heart.

Hershey's and Humana's implants were part of federally approved experiments intended to find out whether artificial hearts can work.

Some of the other implants arose haphazardly, as dedicated heart surgeons, struggled to save their patients' lives, but without any clear idea of whether artificial hearts would really help.

"We've all been observers of the experiment at Humana," said Dr. Jack Copeland, the surgeon who performed the two artificial heart implants at the University of Arizona. "I think people on the street would be afraid of the (permanent) artificial heart right now."

Copeland believes the artificial heart should be used only as a temporary device until a human heart transplant can be done. He thinks not as an experimenter, he said, but as a surgeon with patients to care for.

"The wise approach for anyone involved in surgery is to always put the patient's well-being at the top of the priority list," he said in a telephone interview.

Mandela back in prison

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — Authorities moved Nelson Mandela from his hospital bed back into prison Saturday, ending speculation the black leader would be freed as a gesture to help end 15 months of anti-apartheid violence.

Hostilities flared in 20 communities around South Africa's major cities Saturday and police said three black men were killed.

Their deaths brought to 33 the number killed since Sunday in one of the bloodiest surges of violence since anti-apartheid riots began in September 1984.

Dispute mars election

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — Hondurans choose a president Sunday in an election marred by a dispute over how the winner will be determined to succeed President Roberto Suazo Cordova, whose term expires in January.

Diplomatic observers said the dispute could create a crisis, force new elections and keep Suazo Cordova in power beyond his term. Suazo Cordova has made little secret of his desire to remain in office, despite a constitutional ban on re-election.

Irish Protestants protest

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — More than 50,000 Protestants thronged Northern Ireland's capital Saturday and pledged to oppose the British-Irish accord that gives the Catholic Irish Republic a role in governing the province.

In one of the largest demonstrations ever in Northern Ireland, the crowd roared approval as one of their leaders, the Rev. Ian Paisley, ripped to pieces a letter from Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher that sought to calm their fears.

Iranians pick successor

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Ayatollah Hussein Ali Montazeri has been chosen as the future leader of Iran in the event of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's death, Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported Saturday.

Montazeri, 63, a prominent theologian, holds no official position in the current Islamic regime in Tehran. He has always been considered the heir-apparent to the ailing, 86-year-old Khomeini.

Hijack probe continues

ROME — As the Italian investigation of the Achille Lauro hijacking unfolded over six weeks, so has evidence of careful planning and a broad conspiracy purportedly reaching to the top level of a PLO faction.

Mohammed Abbas, head of the PLO's Palestine Liberation Front, is now wanted in Italy for allegedly masterminding the Oct. 7-9 ordeal.

Yurchenko fits Hollywood plot

If Hollywood is searching for another international spy comedy to film, it shouldn't go out and pay a lot of money for a script. Real life is better.

Take the case of the romantic Vitaly Yurchenko, a Soviet superspy with a handlebar moustache. Yurchenko is perfect for Hollywood. At the very least he could go on TV, with Maxwell Smart playing the role of CIA director William Casey.

Yurchenko "went over the wall" and defected from the KGB to join the CIA in the USA. Now the question is: Was the defection for real or a KGB ploy to make the CIA look like the Keystone Kops?

If it was a setup, the CIA swallowed the bait — and the bait bucket, too. But if Yurchenko defected in earnest, the stumbling of the CIA must have convinced him he'd be better off back in Russia.

While Yurchenko was in custody, the CIA took him to Ottawa, where he could meet his lover — the wife of a Soviet diplomat — and attempt to convince her to defect, too. She turned him down.

Now back in Moscow, Yurchenko held a press conference to offer his version of the whole episode. He said his escape from the CIA was the easy part. When taken on a shopping tour, Yurchenko browsed about on his own and bought a hat, umbrella and overcoat. He even had time to telephone the Soviet Embassy in Washington and discuss escape plans.

Then, when a CIA agent took him to dinner in a Georgetown restaurant, Yurchenko waited until the check was being paid, walked outside, pulled his hat down low, used the umbrella to hide his moustache, and strode past CIA guards.

Yurchenko said the CIA offered him a $1 million bonus, an annual income of $62,500 and a chance to meet President Reagan.

The spy, it seems, has turned it all down. OK, Yurchenko, it's too late for a deal now, but the CIA didn't even get a chance to tell you about the money to be made in light beer commercials.

Readers rate-a-newspaper

The Big Spring Herald's appearance, headline-writing and ethical standards got high marks in an informal survey of the Friends of the Newspaper membership. Writing and reporting that is "clear, accurate, complete and interesting" fared best, as did use of color on page one, and use of charts and maps to illustrate stories.

Survey results prompted the kind of lively discussion I had hoped for when I began regular meetings of the reader advisory committee in October. Wednesday night, at the group's second formal meeting, we reviewed the standardized questionnaire developed by Harte-Hanks Communications' Editorial Council.

Twelve members of the committee rated 53 areas of the newspaper on a scale of 1 to 5, with 5 being the highest or strongest rating. Here are some of the higher ratings (4.0 or above):

Page one layout, 4.3; overall layout, 4.1; accurate and clear headlines, 4.1; use of daily letters to the editor, 4.1.

We fared well in ethical areas. The committee gave us a 4.3 rating on "vigilance against interference with the people's right to know the public's business, and for the Constitutional right to freedom of the press."

We rated a 4.0 on "independence from influence of or on advertisers, political or community organizations, or other outside pressures. Avoidance of conflict of interest, real or perceived."

And I was particularly pleased that we scored a 4.4 on something simple but important: "good manners and common courtesy in person and on the phone."

We rated low on the survey (below a 3) on use of page one spot or full color, 2.8; daily entertainment, arts and leisure news, 2.8; clear, accurate, complete, interesting writing and reporting, 2.9; use of charts and maps to help tell a story, 2.8.

Committee members told me they liked the presentation of news on page three, which uses briefs to capsule the daily news, as well as providing an "anchor" position for a non-local story and photograph. They like the "look" of the paper. It's attractive and easy to read, one member said.

There was a lot of discussion about what the priorities for news should be. Among the suggestions: add a health/medical reporting beat; hire an economist to interpret local events with economic impact; do more "publicity" in advance of events; do followup stories on more events.

There was some concern about routine news not getting into the newspaper but, as one member said, announcements that are given to the newspaper almost always get into print.

The question really is over differing perceptions of what news is and how much attention should be given to a specific event. What is big news to one person or group may be small potatoes to most readers. Ultimately, that's what the editors of a newspaper get paid to do, make decisions on newsworthiness.

One person said that while the newspaper does a good job of letting readers know of upcoming events, it does a poor job of covering events. At the recent ConsumerFest, for example, a committee member said someone had complained about lack of a followup story to say how many attended and what happened.

Several members expressed displeasure with feature photographs from distant places. We should stockpile timeless local photographs, they said, for use in big newspapers when we normally plug in Associated Press feature photos.

We should give more length (and therefore depth) to local stories that are complex in nature, such as those dealing with taxation and legislation. The electronic media can't explain complex stories; print journalism is the place for depth, said one committee member.

I listened to all the suggestions over the fast-paced 1½-hour meeting. I've passed along ideas to our news-gatherers and supervisors. The committee is a big help.

Two species of turkey

By ROBIN WARD

Turkeys have been part of America's Thanksgiving tradition for hundreds of years, the centerpiece on many a holiday table. But the tasty gobblers haven't managed to live down their reputation for being stupid, according to those who know them well.

"They do strange things," says William O. Cawley, a poultry expert with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service headquarters at Texas A&M.

"For instance, younger turkeys are so inquisitive that if you leave an empty bucket in their pen, they'll all climb in until the bucket fills up," he says. "The ones at the bottom could smother to death."

In the spring, when younger birds are raised on open ranges, some of them are so amazed by heavy rains that they gaze at the sky until they drown, Cawley says.

Their image of being dumb appears to be well-deserved. But the tasty fowls aren't the only turkeys in plentiful supply around Thanksgiving. Some of the human variety are in full force as well.

How many people travel hundreds of miles on Thanksgiving Day to gather with friends and relatives they haven't seen for years, and then spend the day staring at six hours of football followed by another six hours of football?

And how many wives fix an enormous feast of turkey and dressing and all the fixin's, then spend the next three months trying to disguise the leftovers so they won't go to waste? Ever had a meal of turkey salad, creamed turkey, turkey pie and turkey surprise? Only turkey ice cream could top such a spread.

Yet how many people eagerly await the holiday every year, never tiring of the rituals?

Maybe we're all turkeys at heart — at least around third week in November.

Billy Graham

People need practical ideas

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: When I've heard you preach on television or read your column, it seems like all you do is tell people to believe in Jesus Christ. It seems to me that we need some practical answers to the problems people face. — P.T.

DEAR P.T.: Certainly God is concerned about practical answers to our problems — and so am I. The Bible, in fact, is filled with practical solutions; for example, the book of Proverbs in the Old Testament was written "for attaining wisdom and discipline... doing what is right and just and fair; for giving prudence to the simple, knowledge and discretion to the young" (Proverbs 1:2-4). One of the purposes of a column like this is to point the way to practical answers to everyday problems.

But if we are really going to deal with the problems in our lives, we need to find out what's causing them and treat that cause. Imagine that you developed some painful sores on your body. The doctor would probably bandage them — but he also would try to find the cause and treat it. In the same way, the problems we encounter in our daily lives are often symptoms of a deeper one — that of our relationship with God.

Therefore, the most practical way to help people with their problems is to point them to Jesus Christ.

Hispanic clout tied to economy

By JESSE TREVINO

The same week the government announced that the Texas unemployment rate pushed past the national average to reach 8.1 percent, the Mexican peso fell to the rate of 500 pesos to the U.S. dollar.

The two figures are in themselves unrelated, but they form the backdrop to how the political power of the country's major states could be changing.

Other than the growth of their native population, migration from other states and immigration from Mexico have steadily added to the population of Texas and California, increasing their political power in Congress.

But now, the Texas economic slump has slowed the number of jobs becoming available in Texas. For every 3.1 new jobs being created across the country, Texas is creating only 1.8 new jobs in its economy. With less jobs available, the number of people migrating from other states to Texas has fallen to about 30,000 a year compared to the 400,000 coming annually as recently as three years ago.

At the same time, California's economy continues growing at a stable rate, along with its population.

To the south in Mexico, however, the peso is losing value daily — making the dollar increasingly attractive to Mexicans hounded by an inflation rate which causes prices to double almost every 16 months. As a result, immigration arrests along the border have already passed the one-million mark this year.

While the one million apprehensions do not represent the number of permanent illegal immigrants, they do reflect that neither a good nor bad economy keeps immigrants from crossing the southern border.

The political consequences, then, are becoming clear: All segments of California's population are growing while Texas' are not — resulting in a possible California gain of as many as five new seats in Congress after the 1990 census while Texas gains no more than three, if that many.

Not only will California outgain Texas, but New York may well retain the second largest delegation in Congress after California. Texas had hoped to surpass New York in total representation in Congress by 1990 but Texas' economic downturn may prevent it from doing so.

So slowed has become Texas' population growth that Florida — a state with five million less people than Texas — may gain as many new seats in Congress as Texas does after 1990: Three.

How immigration from Mexico helps Texas and other states, principally California, increase their political representation in Washington cannot be accurately measured. But it is significant.

So strong had been the combined impact of the influx of immigrants and the natural growth of the Mexican-American population during 1970-80 in California that the state ended up creating two largely Hispanic districts after the 1980 census. In effect, after a lengthy, controversial reapportionment process, two of the three new seats California received after the 1980 census went to Hispanics.

In Texas, too, Hispanic population growth helped pull three new seats into the state. One of them became in time a mostly Hispanic seat.

The continued growth of Texas' political power, while slowed overall, will depend more so on Hispanic population growth during the balance of the decade. Already, the Texas Department of Health is preparing to report that the Hispanic population has increased its percentage of the population from 18 percent in 1980 to 22 percent this year.

Despite the ongoing growth of the Hispanic population in Texas the state will not realize the political gains its boosters were hoping for at the beginning of the decade, unless the economy turns around quickly and with significant force.

Jesse Trevino, a former Big Spring resident, writes from Austin on state Hispanic political issues.

Re: Concerning the Motor Speedway Complex proposed by Mr. Leffler.

It seems we're not having much luck attracting new industry to Big Spring. In particular, industry which is not related to Oil or Agriculture. Well, here's our chance to support something that would be very beneficial to our city and surrounding areas.

Speaking from the experience of attending two national events at the same type of complex that Mr. Leffler is proposing (one last year in Colorado, one this year in Louisiana) I can say that 50,000 to 60,000 fans and racers equal big bucks, and these were only auto drag racing events.

Mr. Leffler is working not only for auto drag racing but also for boat drags and an oval track. He's not talking about some small operation but an operation that is first class and one the entire community could benefit from and be proud of.

In an open meeting (Monday) November 25, 1985, our County Commissioners Court will discuss these questions. I plan to be there by 9:30 a.m. Monday. As citizens concerned for all the youth of our community, our presence can be helpful.

After tough day in court, it's party time

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Just because you're in serious trouble with the law doesn't mean you have to be serious. Not in Louisiana, anyway.

Gov. Edwin Edwards and his seven co-defendants in a federal racketeering trial have stolen headlines with their defiant antics outside the courtroom during the last 10 weeks.

Edwards arrived at the courthouse one day in a mule-drawn buggy from the French Quarter. "I was looking for some mode of transportation that was indicative of the pace of the trial," he explained.

His brother Marion, accused by U.S. Attorney John Volz of being the governor's "bag man," played the part to the hilt one night at a French Quarter bar.

Invited to be the "celebrity bar tender" at Molly's at the Market, Marion Edwards entered wearing a shopping bag on his head like a crown. He reached into another bag and tossed phony $100 bills to the crowd while blowing a whistle.

Volz gamely took his turn at the taps at Molly's but was clearly out of his league. He had to force a smile when reporters put up a sign welcoming "Defense exhibit No. 1: Jumpin' John Volz."

That referred to Neal's claim in court that prosecutors had Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards offers a toast at a local bar in the French Quarter in New Orleans. Behind the governor is his lawyer, James Neal. Edwards, accused of conspiring with seven others in an allegedly illegal hospital scheme, made a brief appearance as his attorney served as "celebrity bar tender."

"jumped up and down" during grand jury proceedings. When Volz leaped to his feet to object, Neal milked a big laugh by offering Volz as defense exhibit No. 1.

Charles David Isbell, a nephew of the Edwards brothers and one of the defendants, is paying for his room in a downtown hotel by playing piano in the lounge at night.

One night Isbell was invited down to Molly's to play, and Uncle

Marion dedicated the songs. There was "The Gambler" for brother Ed, whose Las Vegas exploits became an issue in the trial; "16 Tons" for portly co-defendant Gus Mijalis; and "Please Release Me" for all the defendants.

Mijalis lumbered over to the piano and sang "I Did It My Way." Then he stuffed a phony dollar bill into his mouth.

Why do they do it? "It doesn't do any good to sit round mulling and grilling and crying," Marion Edwards said.

"Everybody tries to act like they're in a good mood," Mijalis said. "But nobody wants to be here."

The defendants are accused of using their influence to illegally obtain state certification for nursing home and hospital projects in which they held interests. If convicted, they face years in jail and some stand to lose millions of dollars in fines and forfeitures.

The sideshows, Marion Edwards says, couldn't happen anywhere else. "That's why south Louisiana is so great," he said. "People of Louisiana love to live."

Neal recalls a heavily publicized trial in Indiana in which reporters, prosecutors and defense lawyers formed competing bowling teams.

"But there is a little more camaraderie here," he said as he strolled past the spot where the defendants and their lawyers had recently posed for a kind of team picture. "A little more willingness to relax and be friendly in the off hours."

Salvation Army: No more clothes

PHILIPPI, W.Va. (AP) — The Salvation Army has been flooded with so many donations of clothing for West Virginia flood victims that it has begun turning away truckloads, an official said Saturday.

"The truth of the matter is nobody needs clothes anymore in the disaster areas," Maj. Stanley Jaynes said. "The city fathers are becoming greatly concerned with what they are going to do with the clothes."

"The only needs we have now are for furniture and cash — no clothes, no food, no cleaning supplies."

Jaynes said contributions have poured into the state since floods ravaged eastern and northeastern West Virginia early this month.

"We could stock three grocery stores today," he said. "People have been very kind. We don't want people to misunderstand, but emptying out their closets is no longer useful."

BUSINESS BUDGETING

Budgeting is not just for big business, just as building plans are not just for large buildings.

Many small business owners feel that budgeting is cumbersome and unnecessary. Small businesses need a budget (a plan of operation) just like a house builder needs a plan. The budget should be used as a guideline for the yearly operations and not as something so inflexible as to hinder good business decisions.

Most small businesses can design a budget from last year's financial statements. Review each account on last year's profit and loss statement starting with sales. With input from your employees, you should be able to make reasonable estimates on all of the income and expense items for the next twelve months. If there are some unusual factors such as adding a new product line or opening a new business location, these must be taken into consideration.

Again, your budget is not cast in bronze. As your year progresses, you can compare your actual monthly operating statements with your budget. Large variations from the budget, either up or down, should have some logical explanation. For a budget to be most useful, you should have monthly financial statements prepared immediately after the close of the month. Old financial information or statements as infrequent as quarterly, provide you with information too late to take corrective steps in problem areas.

If your business is small, your budget can be very simple and inexpensive to prepare. If your business is larger (more employees, more locations, etc.), your budget will be even more beneficial and the costs of preparation and review will be recovered by the use of the budget.

To maximize the benefits from your budget, seek professional assistance for its preparation and review.

INSURED MUNICIPALS INCOME TRUST

This represents the net annual interest income after annual expenses, divided by the public offering price as of 11/28/84. *Interest rate is subject to change in either amount and with the particular payment option. The terms of the insurance policy are more fully described in the prospectus. No representation is made as to the issuer's ability to meet its commitments. The insurance is provided by American Municipal Bond Assurance Corporation (AMBAC) and relates only to the units of the trust and not the bonds in the portfolio. The insurance does not remain in the market risk since it does not guarantee the market value of the units. Portions of this return may be subject to state or local taxes. This is future delivery of a portion of the portfolio on deposit date. The actual first year return will be 8.90% lower than the normal annual current interest. This difference will still be paid to the unit holder the first year but will be called a principal distribution rather than tax-exempt interest.

Fish, turtle kill baffles biologists

GALVESTON (AP) — Biologists have been trying to determine what happened to more than 400 black drum fish and 16 turtles found dead on beaches between High Island and Freeport in the past two weeks.

"It's some unusual phenomenon that killed them," said Orman Farley, a biologist with Galveston's National Fisheries Service.

"But I just don't have a clue as to what the problem is," Farley said. Seven of the dead turtles were Kemp's Ridley sea turtles, considered endangered species. Federal and state government agencies have spent thousands of dollars in the last eight years trying to preserve the turtles.

Black drum fish breathe through gills and sea turtles breathe air. Experts said the most deadly phenomena that would affect the fish shouldn't affect the turtles.

Some experts believe the turtles got caught in shrimping nets and were tossed back into the Gulf of Mexico injured and unable to fend for themselves.

Autopsies on some of the dead fish failed to yield any clues.

UT president orders groups to end hazing

AUSTIN (AP) — University of Texas President William Cunningham has sent the leaders of 56 fraternities and other student organizations a stern letter warning them to stop hazing and asking them to promise to end the practice.

Cunningham said his crusade against hazing was prompted by "numerous complaints" about hazing from parents of students, mostly in unsigned letters sent to his office.

Cunningham's letter said he is "shocked by the information that has come to my attention about hazing."

"If only half the reports are true, we have a serious problem," he said.

In his letter, Cunningham said he found it "incomprehensible" that "decent individuals want to inflict pain on another human in the name of brotherhood, sisterhood or tradition."

"Hazing is outmoded, antiquated and thoroughly unacceptable," he wrote. "It is a ritual which has no place in today's universities."

The UT president said Friday that he will ask the leaders of campus groups to sign pledges that they understand university policy against hazing and the penalties for hazing, which can result in organizations being permanently barred from campus activities.

Eric Webber, director of the Interfraternity Council, said Cunningham's action was overdue.

"This university has a bad reputation nationally" for hazing, he said. "In part, it's because the university has had a do-nothing attitude," he said.

Webber said very few UT fraternities engage in serious hazing, but some use electric cattle prods on pledges and conduct rituals in which pledges are "in various stages of undress."

Retired CIA analyst latest spy suspect

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former CIA intelligence analyst faced charges Saturday that he served as a spy for his native China over "a long, long time," in what is the latest in a series of blows to U.S. intelligence services, officials said.

Larry Wu-Tai Chin, 63, who retired from the Central Intelligence Agency in 1981, was arrested at his Alexandria, Va., home and faced an afternoon arraignment on charges of espionage and conspiracy, the FBI said.

"It's been going on a long, long time," said one federal law enforcement source, who spoke only on condition he not be identified. He said authorities are considering the possibility Chin was spying as far back as the early 1940s, before communist forces won control of China.

Details of information that may have been compromised were not immediately available. At the time of his retirement, Chin worked in the Foreign Broadcast Information Service at the CIA's headquarters in Langley, Va., where foreign government radio services are monitored and transcribed.

As a CIA employee, Chin would have carried a "top secret" clearance, officials said.

Justice Department sources said Chin worked for the U.S. government in various capacities since the early 1940s and had worked for CIA for at least 11 years. Chin also did work for the agency as a translator, and had been employed at the U.S. embassy in China in the early early 1940s, the sources said.

In another espionage case, the wife of a Navy intelligence officer charged with selling U.S. military secrets was arrested Friday night and faced arraignment Saturday. Anne L. Henderson-Pollard, 25, wife of Navy intelligence analyst Jonathan J. Pollard, was charged with unauthorized possession of classified defense documents.

Spruce heralds holiday season

NEW YORK (AP) — A 75-foot Norway spruce rolled into New York's Rockefeller Center Saturday morning, a sure sign that Christmas can't be more than a month or so away.

At that, the famous tree which stands over the skating rink opposite the RCA Building was late. Jim Reed, a spokesman for Rockefeller Center, said heavy rains had delayed the cutting of the tree at a farm in Harveyville, Pa., and bulldozers had to scrape away tons of sodden topsoil to clear a firm path for a crane to lift the tree.

2 Eastland teens killed in wreck on way to game

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Two Eastland teen-agers on their way to a high school football playoff game were killed and two others injured when their car rear-ended an 18-wheeler Friday night on the way to Electra, authorities said.

Texas Department of Public Safety Trooper Carl Pittman said Walter Hutcheson and Rhonda Burfield, both 16, died in the accident about 12 miles north of Scotland on U.S. 281.

Diana Marie Smith, 16, was listed in guarded condition Friday night and Douglas Webb, 16, was listed in critical condition, according to Bethania Regional Health Center officials.

Archer County Justice of the Peace C.D. Cox, who pronounced Hutcheson and Burfield dead, said the teen-agers' car rear-ended an 18-wheeler rig parked on the shoulder of U.S. 281 at about 7:15 p.m.

The accident was the second in recent years in which Eastland teen-agers have been killed while on the way to a football game in Wichita County, the Wichita Falls Times Record reported.

Cotton prices reported low

Prices for cotton remain sluggish, holding in the 58- to 60-cent per pound range, and the market could get weaker, according to the November newsletter from State National Bank.

Cotton production is forecast at 13.6 million bales, creating little incentive to hold cash cotton not in the loan program, the newsletter states.

Current talk of protectionist trade policies also could signal a downturn in the market, the newsletter states.

Cattle markets, however, are expected to remain strong. Slaughter weights are coming down to normal levels in the fourth quarter. Fourth quarter beef production is expected to be 5 percent lower than levels last November, the newsletter states.

December futures will move to at least the $64 a hundredweight level, the newsletter advises.

Feeder cattle markets are responding to strength in fed cattle prices, cheap corn and low interest rates. Long hedgers who were aggressive and now are holding positions in the $60-$62 level should keep those hedges in place, the newsletter states.

Doctor admits keeping cancer a secret

AUSTIN (AP) — After admitting he never told a patient she had cancer, a Killeen gynecologist agreed Friday to pay her heirs $2 million in damages.

Dr. Harold Wood settled the medical malpractice case after a four-day trial that included deathbed testimony from Shilla Wheat. The videotape, which had many in the courtroom fighting back tears, was made about a month before she died of cervical cancer on March 10, 1982.

Wood admitted on the witness stand that tests done 3 1/2 years before her death revealed the cancer. But he said he never told her about the September 1979 test results.

Although Wood settled with Mrs. Wheat's family for $2 million, the medical malpractice case against Army doctors who also treated her is continuing in Austin federal court.

According to medical records, the military physicians were able to feel a mass inside Mrs.

Wheat by June 1980, but they never diagnosed it as cancer.

As the disease went unchecked, Mrs. Wheat frequently sought treatment for gynecological problems and pain, her husband, Bill Wheat, testified Friday.

But the Army doctors told her the pain was "all mental, it was all in her head," he said.

As her condition worsened, "it was slowly tearing us apart," Wheat said. "Shilla was frustrated. I was frustrated."

It was not until Mrs. Wheat was admitted to Scott and White Hospital in Temple in 1981 that she was told she had cancer, Dr. John May of the hospital testified. By then, the cancer was terminal, he said.

Bill Whitehurst and Mack Kidd, attorneys for the Wheat family, said Friday they also are trying to reach a settlement with the government. Mrs. Wheat's heirs had been seeking $5.2 million from Wood and $2 million from the Army.

Dallas police officer faces fraud charges

DALLAS (AP) — Felony charges have been filed against a Dallas police veteran for allegedly collecting more than $20,000 in insurance money by filing fraudulent burglary paperwork.

Cpl. Robert H. Winters, 31, a Dallas motorcycle traffic officer, was notified of the charges at Baylor University Medical Center, where he is recovering from a gunshot wound.

Winters is in fair condition after he was shot Nov. 13 when his revolver discharged accidentally as he tried to wipe off spilled coffee in the police locker room.

Police Chief Billy Prince said he placed Winters on administrative leave and took away his police credentials until Winters can respond to an internal complaint stemming from the criminal charge.

The Dallas County district attorney's office is expected to refer the case to a grand jury.

The charge, a third-degree felony, alleges that Winters submitted three fraudulent affidavits for an insurance claim after he reported that his East Dallas apartment had been burglarized last February, said Assistant Chief Bill Newman.

As a result of the affidavits, Winters received two insurance checks, one for $7,500 and another for more than $13,000, Newman said.

Former janitor is sentenced to die

CONROE (AP) — A former high school janitor has been sentenced to die by injection Jan. 16 for the 1980 rape-slaying of a teen-age Bellville girl during a volleyball scrimmage.

Clarence Lee Brandley, 34, was convicted and sentenced to death in February 1981 for the death of Cheryl Dee Ferguson, manager of the Bellville High School volleyball team.

The execution date was set Friday.

Miss Ferguson was found strangled Aug. 23, 1980, on a prop platform in the Conroe High School auditorium about 90 minutes after she was reported missing.

Medical examiners testified the girl had been raped after she was killed.

Hawks end tourney on winning note

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The Howard Hawks bounced back from a dismal showing on Friday night to down the Ranger Junior College Rangers 66-55 in the final night of the Big Spring Classic.

The Hawks hardly resembled the team that lost Friday night to Cisco 58-55, a game in which Howard had sloppy ball-handling and got beat badly on the boards.

But last night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, Howard displayed fine overall play while handing the Rangers only their second loss in seven games. Coach Ed Sparling's Hawks took care of the ball, played good defense and made runs that squelched all Ranger comeback attempts.

Leading the way was sophomore forward Bruce Kimble who gunned in a game-high 21 points while leading Howard in the rebounding department with 9 caroms. It was Kimble and Walter Walker that keyed a Howard run in the first half in which Howard took the lead and kept in for good.

Ranger led 18-17 at the midway point in the first half. In the next five minutes Howard ran off a spree outscoring their opponent 14-4. Kimble hit four baskets in-a-row during the stretch and Walker, a 5-11 guard from Statesville, N.C., hit three baskets.

Meanwhile Ranger was going three minutes trying to get over the 20 point barrier. By the time Darren 'O Bryant hit a basket, the Howard lead was 31-22 at the 4:45 mark. From then on, the home team would never trail again.

Howard took a 37-25 halftime lead.

O'Bryant kept Ranger close during the game. He ended the contest with 18 points and eight rebounds, despite missing his first five shots of the game.

Ranger tried to press Howard in the second half but unlike Friday night, Howard stayed poised under the pressure. The Hawks committed only seven turnovers as compared to 22 the night before. Meanwhile the Howard's man-to-man defense gave the Rangers problems.

Led by the play of Kimble, who had three steals, and Klondike High School product; Tim Cope, Howard forced 15 Ranger turnovers.

O'Bryant got hot in the second half and Ranger narrowed the deficit 48-43 with 9:12 left in the game. But Kimble and El Paso freshmen Mike McCall rallied the Hawks with their timely drives to the basket. Soon the Howard lead was up to 59-51 at the 3:31 mark. And for all practical purposes, the game was over.

The win ups Howard's record to 4-6 for the season.

In the opening game of the night, Cisco Junior College downed New Mexico Junior College 65-62. The win gives Cisco a 4-1 record while New Mexico Junior College, who lost both games in the tourney, falls to 10-2.

HOWARD (46) — Bruce Kimble 10 1 21; Steve Blanchard 3 0 6; Walt Reynolds 3 0 6; Mike McCall 5 3 13; Tim Cope 1 3 5; Walter Walker 4 4 12; Mitchell Porter 1 0 2; totals 27 12 66.

RANGER (55) — Mark Davis 4 1 9; Clint Middleton 0 2 2; Darren O'Bryant 8 2 18; Willis Jones 4 3 11; Warren McDaniels 5 0 10; Greg Roland 0 3 3; Melvin Swift 2 0 4; totals 22 11 55. Halftime — Howard 37, Ranger 25.

No Cotton Bowl for Baylor Bears

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Longhorns bounced the Baylor Bears out of the Cotton Bowl picture on Saturday and set up a Thanksgiving Night showdown with Texas A&M University for all the Southwest Conference marbles.

Texas overcame three critical lost fumbles to keep alive a 34-year Memorial Stadium hex over the Bears with a 17-10 victory on a dark, misty day before an overflow crowd of 78,912 fans.

Baylor got a consolation prize, the Liberty Bowl on Dec. 27 against Louisiana State in Memphis, Tenn.

The loser of the Texas-Texas A&M game is expected to receive an invitation to the Bluebonnet Bowl against Air Force.

"The game is a big drain on us physically but we'll have to get ready in just four days to play the Aggies," said Texas Coach Fred Akers. "Our team is really excited but we have some bruises and strains that will have to heal."

Akers added, "I doubt that you have to remind our guys of last year's A&M game." The Aggies won 37-12.

The only other time Texas and A&M have met head-up for a Cotton Bowl berth was in 1943 with Texas winning 27-13.

Akers said, "We played our best game of the year against Baylor. Our fumbles gave them 14 points but we made a great goal line stand. It was a proud moment for our team."

He praised Baylor, saying, "Nobody wearing Orange (Texas colors) or Green could leave here today and not feel proud. It was two good football teams going at it."

Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said, "I'm not feeling good. We set our goal for the Cotton Bowl and when you don't get there it hurts."

"We're proud and happy to be going to the Liberty Bowl. I've wanted to go to that bowl for a long time."

Teaff said Texas "did a great job defensively and I congratulate them. They did what they had to do to win the game."

A Longhorn defense led by James McKinney and Edwin Simmons' tough running was too much for Baylor.

Texas, now 8-2 and 6-1 in SWC play, plays Texas A&M Thanksgiving night in College Station with the Cotton Bowl on the line.

The Aggies went into a day game against Texas Christian with only one league loss.

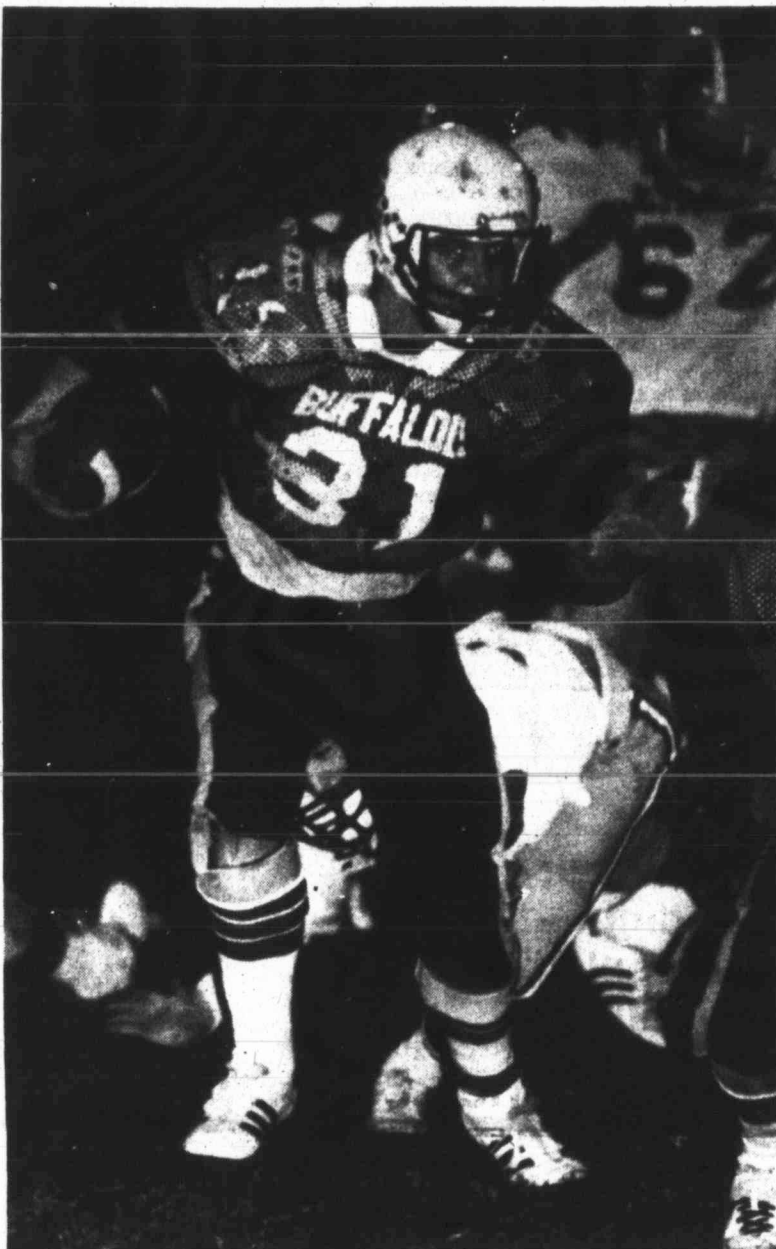

The 15th-ranked Bears ended their regular season 8-3 overall and 6-2 in the SWC.

Baylor had its chances, failing to score from the Texas five yard line after Ron Francis had intercepted a pass with six minutes to go. McKinney sacked Baylor quarterback Tom Muecke on fourth down.

Texas built a 17-3 lead early in the fourth quarter on Jeff Ward's 34-ard field goal and Darron Norris' 12-yard run.

Then Baylor got back into the game on Derrick McAdoo's 59-yard run which setup Randy Rutledge's 14-yard touchdown dash.

Lost fumbles kept the Longhorns in hot water throughout the first half but they still led 7-3 on Simmons' first touchdown run of the year, an eight yard gallop up the middle late in the second quarter.

Thundering Buff

Forsan Buffaloes halfback Bruce Strickland gains yardage in last night's zone championship game versus Goldthwaite in Abilene. Strickland led all rushers with 140 yards but Goldthwaite defeated Forsan 16-0.

Sooners boom Huskers, 27-7

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Keith Jackson, a 241-pound tight end, rambled 88 yards for a touchdown on his first carry of the season Saturday, triggering fifth-ranked Oklahoma to a surprisingly easy 27-7 victory over No. 2 Nebraska and a berth in the Orange Bowl against Penn State.

Jackson, a sophomore and Oklahoma's leading receiver, turned the corner and tightroped his way down the right sideline to give Oklahoma a 7-0 lead.

Freshman quarterback Jamelle Holieway darted 43 yards for another touchdown 5½ minutes later, three plays after a 38-yard pass from Holieway to Jackson — Oklahoma's only completion of the game — put the ball at the Nebraska 46.

The Sooners' two touchdown strikes covered 91 and 90 yards and Oklahoma's explosive Wishbone attack churned out 208 yards on the ground in the first quarter — and 423 in the game — against a Nebraska team that had allowed only 91 rushing yards a game.

Another end-around by Jackson covered 29 yards late in the second period and set up Tim Lashar's 36-yard field goal with 1:18 left in the first half. Lashar added a 34-yard field goal early in the third period and Jackson barreled 19 yards after faking a pass — he carried three times for 136 yards — during a 75-yard drive that culminated in a 17-yard scoring run by Holieway.

It was Nebraska's worst setback since a 38-7 loss to Oklahoma in 1977. The 17-0 halftime score marked Nebraska's largest midway deficit since a 47-0 loss to Oklahoma in the 1968 finale.

The Cornhuskers prevented what would have been their first shutout in 147 games when defensive tackle Chris Spachman plucked an Oklahoma fumble out of the air and lumbered 76 yards for a touchdown with 26 seconds left in the game.

Nebraska finished the 1985 regular season with a 9-2 record and a 6-1 Big Eight mark. Oklahoma is 8-1 overall and 6-0 in conference play, with a game against Oklahoma State next week and a nonconference win-dup against Southern Methodist on Dec. 7.

However, Stan Marks, president-elect of the Orange Bowl, said Oklahoma was the choice as Penn State's Jan. 1 opponent. The No. 1-ranked Nittany Lions played Pitt in a Saturday night game.

The Orange Bowl would have had a certain national championship shootout had Nebraska defeated Oklahoma.

While the Sooners clinched at least a share of their 28th Big Eight crown in the last 40 years, Nebraska had to settle for a Fiesta Bowl date against Michigan.

Aggies set stage for UT showdown

FORT WORTH (AP) — Quarterback Kevin Murray's three touchdown passes propelled 19th-ranked Texas A&M to a 53-6 victory over Texas Christian Saturday and into a Thanksgiving showdown with the Texas Longhorns for the Southwest Conference championship and host spot in the Cotton Bowl.

Murray winged scoring shots of 61 yards to Keith Woodside, 15 yards to Jeff Nelson and 13 to Shea Walker and Anthony Toney added a pair of short distance TDs as the Cadets set up a Thursday night shootout at College Station for all the SWC marbles.

Texas erased Baylor from the title picture earlier Saturday with a 17-10 verdict over the Bears at Austin.

The Aggies are 8-2 for the year and tied with the Longhorns at 6-1 in the conference.

A huge throng of Aggie supporters shook Amon Carter Stadium with a mighty roar when the final Texas-Baylor score was announced in Fort Worth and with A&M en route to its 13th triumph in a row over the Horned Frogs.

The Frogs, crippled by an early season recruiting scandal, ended a traumatic year winless in SWC play and 3-8 overall.

Aggie defensive back Domingo Bryant skyjacked a TCU pass and returned it 32 yards for a quick touchdown and Ira Valentine ended it with a 13-yard run.

Murray, who once hit 12 passes in a row, wound up 15 for 22 with 246 yards and the three touchdowns.

Ken Ozee kicked twin 42-yard field goals in the final quarter and set a new TCU career scoring record with 205 points.

Arkansas 15 SMU 9

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (P) — Senior quarterback Mark Calcagni converted a third-and-23 situation and followed that moments later with a 4-yard touchdown run as 18th-ranked Arkansas rallied to beat Southern Methodist University 15-9 Saturday in the Southwest Conference.

The Razorbacks finished 9-2 and accepted a Holiday Bowl invitation.

They started the winning drive inauspiciously as Ben Hummel dumped Calcagni for losses of 4 and 9 yards. On third down from his 27, Calcagni dropped back and found Bobby Joe Edmonds crossing from left to right for 48 yards to the SMU 25.

On second down, Calcagni kept right on the option for 12 yards and a first down on the 9. After Derrick Thomas made 5 yards, Calcagni started right again, faked a pitch to Sammy Van Dyke, kept and scored.

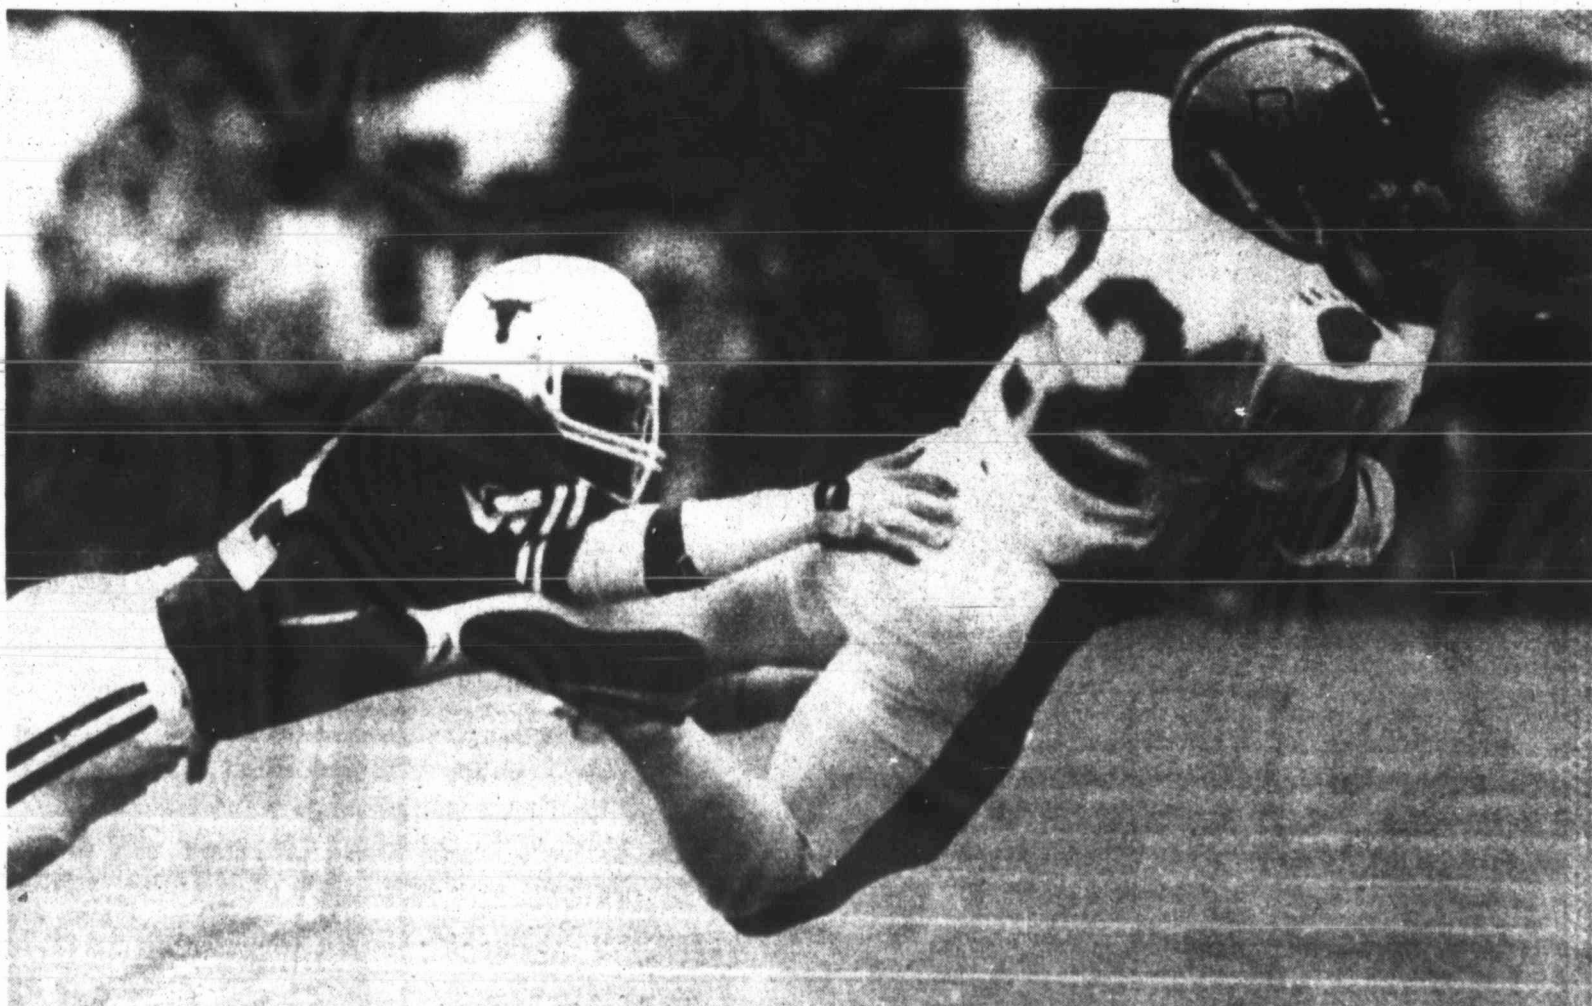

It was Arkansas' first victory over SMU since 1979 and the first time since then that the Razorbacks have won nine regular-season games. SMU is 6-4 with Oklahoma to play on Dec. 7. Arkansas finished 6-2 in the conference and SMU wound up 5-3.

Calcagni, in relief of starter Greg Thomas, guided the Razorbacks to a second-quarter touchdown that made it 7-3. Brandy Brownlee's third field goal put SMU on top 9-7 with 3:25 left in the third quarter.

The Mustangs reached midfield in the closing minutes, but David Schell sacked Don King for an 8-yard loss and King overthrew Albert Reese on fourth down.

Houston 17 Texas Tech 16

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston's Gerald Landry and Sloan Hood each scored touchdowns and linebacker Gary McGuire batted away a two-point conversion with 56 seconds left to preserve a 17-16 victory over Texas Tech Saturday night in Jerry Moore's final game as Raider head coach.

Tech's 5-3 punt return specialist Tyrone Thurman returned a punt 78 yards to the Cougar 10-yard line, and on the second play, James McGowen ran 3 yards for the score.

Tech quarterback Billy Joe Tolliver then passed into the end zone on the two-point conversion attempt, but McGuire batted it back at the goal line.

Houston running back Raymond Tate gained 176 yards on 23 carries, and Hood got his third consecutive 100-yard performance with 20 carries for 100 yards.

Moore, fired Tuesday after five seasons of losing records, finished his Tech tenure with at 16-37-2. The Red Raiders ended the season at 4-7 and 1-7 in the Southwest Conference.

The Cougars, who represented the SWC in the Cotton Bowl in January, improved their record to 3-7 and 2-6 with one game left Saturday against cross-town rival Rice.

It was Houston's first home victory in five tries this season.

Landry ran 10 yards for a first-quarter touchdown, and Hood bulled 16 yards in the second quarter to give the Cougars a 14-3 halftime lead.

The Raiders, who have never won a game in the Astrodome in five appearances, got on the scoreboard first with a 28-yard field goal by Marc Mallery after James Johnson recovered a fumble at the Houston 34.

Auburn headed to Cotton

DALLAS (AP) — Tenth-ranked Auburn accepted an invitation Saturday to square off against a Texas team in the 50th annual Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day, officials said.

Auburn, 8-2 in the Southeast Conference, was idle Saturday. But Ohio's 38-17 loss to Bowling Green and Iowa's 31-9 win over Minnesota gave Auburn a berth in the game.

Who their opponent will be depends on the traditional Thanksgiving night matchup between Southwest Conference rivals Texas and Texas A&M in College Station.

The SWC Cotton Bowl berth was left open Saturday when Texas defeated Baylor 17-10 in Austin. The victor of the Thanksgiving game wins the SWC crown and will square off against the Tigers at Dallas' Cotton Bowl.

"We are pleased and proud to have Auburn University as our visiting team in the 50th Cotton Bowl Classic," Bowl President Jim Ray Smith said. "Coach Pat Dye is one of the most respected in the country and has a great record at Auburn."

Michigan drops Ohio State

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan quarterback Jim Harbaugh threw three touchdown passes and set two school records Saturday to lead the sixth-ranked Wolverines to a 27-17 Big Ten football victory over arch-rival Ohio State.

Michigan finished the season with a 9-1-1 record, 6-1-1 in the Big Ten Conference. The 12th-ranked Buckeyes wound up 8-3 overall and 5-3 in the Big Ten.

College Roundup

Ohio State announced immediately after the game it would meet Brigham Young in the Citrus Bowl at Orlando, Fla., on Dec. 28.

Harbaugh, a 6-foot-3, 204-pound junior, completed 16 of 19 passes for 230 yards. That gave him 1,913 passing yards for the season, surpassing the 1,735 by Steve Smith in 1982. His three TD tosses gave him 18 for the season, breaking the record of 17 by Rick Leach in 1978.

Harbaugh threw a 4-yard strike to fullback Gerald White at 12:32 of the second quarter that pulled the Wolverines into a 10-10 tie which stood through halftime.

Harbaugh found tight end Eric Kattus alone in the end zone for a 5-yard TD pass at 12:04 of the third quarter and hooked up with freshman flanker John Kolesar for a 77-yard bomb that sealed the victory at 5:41 of the fourth quarter.

Senior Pat Moons, who handled all of Michigan's place-kicking chores after Rick Sutkiewicz and Mike Gillette were suspended the day before the game, had a 34-yard field goal in the first quarter for the Wolverines.

All-American tailback Keith Byars of Ohio State, who played the entire game, scored on a 2-yard run in the second quarter and quarterback Jim Karsatos fired a 36-yard, fourth-down TD strike to Chris Carter at 4:50 of the fourth quarter. Rich Spangler's 48-yard field goal in the second quarter accounted for the rest of the Buckeyes' points.

(No. 17) LSU 10, Notre Dame 10 SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Jeff Wickersham completed a record 31 passes against Notre Dame and Garry James blasted off tackle for a touchdown with 3:26 to play Saturday to lead 17th-ranked Louisiana State to a 10-7 victory over Notre Dame.

the 2-yard line with winning touchdown.

Wickersham's 31 completions, the most ever against a Notre Dame team, came in 42 attempts for 294 yards.

The victory gave the Tigers a 7-1-1 record and avenged a 30-22 loss to Notre Dame at Baton Rouge last year. LSU is 4-1-1 in the Southeastern Conference and still has a chance to gain a Sugar Bowl bid.

Notre Dame dropped to 5-5 for the season, losing at home for the first time this season. It was the 25th loss for the Irish in Coach Gerry Faust's five-year reign, the most losses by any one Irish coach. Faust's contract is not expected to be renewed.

Notre Dame took a 7-0 lead on its first possession as Tim Brown went 18 yards on an end-around play for the score. The Irish nursed that lead until James notched the winning touchdown.

Iowa State 12, Oklahoma State 10 AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State's Rick Frank kicked three field goals and a late-game 45-yard punt to bury Oklahoma State and ice a 15-10 upset over the seventh-ranked Cowboys Saturday in Big Eight Conference football.

Iowa State linebacker Jeff Braswell and defensive end Lester Williams capped a strong defensive effort by sacking Cowboy quarterback Ronnie Williams twice with time running out to preserve the victory.

Frank kicked field goals of 23 and 30 yards in the first half, and added a 34-yarder in the fourth quarter. But his most important kick of the chilly, 22-degree afternoon was the 45-yarder with 3 minutes remaining to put the Cowboys on their own 29-yard line.

The loss dropped Oklahoma

State to 8-2 overall and 4-2 in the Big Eight heading into next week's season finale at home against Oklahoma. Iowa State wound up 3-6 and 3-4.

Washington St. 21, Washington 20 SEATTLE (AP) — Mark Rypien passed for three touchdowns and Rueben Mayes rushed for 167 yards on 29 carries as Washington State ended a disappointing season on a high note Saturday with a 21-20 Pacific-10 Conference football victory over Washington on a bitterly cold day.

The favored Huskies scored on a 50-yard touchdown pass from Chris Chandler to Lonzell Hill with 2:25 left, but a two-point conversion pass from Chandler to Hill sailed out of the end zone.

Despite the loss, Washington, 6-5, is expected to be invited to the Freedom Bowl in Anaheim, Calif., Dec. 30.

Rypien also had a 24-yard scoring pass to Taylor in the second quarter and a 44-yard touchdown pass to Michel James in the first quarter.

The game was played in 25-degree temperatures with snow lining the AstroTurf field at Husky Stadium. The field was slippery, but all snow from a Thursday storm had been removed by game time.

(No. 16) Tennessee 42, Kentucky 0 LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Daryl Dickey passed for three touchdowns and ran for one as No. 16 Tennessee found its offensive punch in the second half, shut out Kentucky 42-0 in a Southeastern Conference college football game and continue its trek to the Sugar Bowl.

The victory put Tennessee's record at 7-1-2 overall and 4-1 in the conference. The Volunteers need a victory over Vanderbilt next week to seal their first conference championship since 1970 and a berth in the Sugar Bowl. Kentucky ended its season at 5-6 overall and 1-5 in the SEC.

After managing only 70 yards total offense and two field goals in the first half, Dickey guided Tennessee to touchdowns on its first three possessions of the second half.

Dickey, after narrowly avoiding a sack, hit wide receiver Tim McGee from 37 yards out and Tennessee completed a two-point conversion to take a 14-0 lead with 3:29 into the third quarter.

Illinois 45, Northwestern 20 EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — Quarterback Jack Trudeau passed for three touchdowns and ran for another, and Thomas Rooks scored twice Saturday to lead Illinois to a 45-20 rout of Big Ten rival Northwestern and a berth in the Peach Bowl.

Trudeau, a senior from Livermore, Calif., completed 22-of-29 passes for 307 yards on the afternoon.

Trudeau began his assault on the outmatched Wildcats early with a five-yard touchdown pass to Rooks just six minutes into the game.

He scored again with a 46-yard pass to senior David Williams early in the second quarter to make the score 17-7.

Jets-Patriots battle head list for NFL Sunday

By The Associated Press
The New York Jets and New England Patriots play Sunday for the lead in the National Football League AFC East Division. So it's a big game, right?

Not particularly, say the participants.

"Our past six games were just as important as this one," says Marvin Powell, the Jets' left tackle. "The next game is always critical. Every game is a must game. When you're winning and going for the playoffs, the only thing on your mind is the next 60 minutes, the next game on Sunday."

Meanwhile, Jay Schroeder gets his first start at quarterback Sunday for Washington, which visits Pittsburgh in a game crucial to the playoff hopes of both teams; Philadelphia visits Dallas in a game that may help unuddle the jumbled NFC East, and the NFC West-leading Denver Broncos visit the Los Angeles Raiders, who could tie for the lead with a win.

In other games Sunday, Atlanta is at Chicago; Cincinnati at Cleveland; Detroit at Tampa Bay; San Diego at Houston; Miami at Buffalo; New Orleans at Minnesota; the New York Giants at St. Louis; Green Bay at the Los Angeles Rams and Indianapolis at Kansas City.

Seattle is at San Francisco Monday night.

Denver (8-3) at Los Angeles Raiders (7-4)

This is the first of two games in the next three weeks between the two teams fighting for the AFC West title.

Both are hurting. The Raiders may be without both starting safeties, Vann McElroy and Mike Davis. Sammy Winder, the Broncos' top runner, is out for two weeks with a knee injury; they lost Rick Parros to Seattle on waivers when they tried to sneak him off injured reserve, and they may begin the game with only Gerald Wilhite and rookie Steve Sewell healthy.

Like most Raiders games, it figures to be physical.

"That's the way they play," Broncos Coach Dan Reeves says. "I told our players that if somebody says something wrong to them this week to slap the guy around. That will get us in the right mood for this game."

Washington (6-5) at Pittsburgh (6-5)
Washington's 23-21 win over the Giants Monday night put the Redskins back in the race for a fourth straight playoff spot while Pittsburgh beat Houston to resume its customary spot atop the AFC Central.

Philadelphia (6-5) at Dallas (7-4)
The Eagles surprisingly find themselves in the middle of a playoff race, tied with the Redskins in the NFC East, a game behind the Cowboys and Giants. They haven't played consistently well for a full game, but they have a defense that can carry them.
Both teams have injured quarterbacks — Philadelphia's Ron Jaworski (bruised right shoulder) is doubtful and Dallas' Danny White was knocked out of last Sunday's 44-0 loss to Chicago twice, once with a mild concussion, then with a neck injury. He is listed as probable.

Rookie Randall Cunningham would replace Jaworski, who guided the Eagles to five wins in six starts after regaining his job from Cunningham. Dallas' backup is Gary Hogeboom, who threw two interceptions in his first two attempts against Dallas and was the quarterback in the Cowboys' 16-14 loss in Philadelphia earlier this year.

Seattle (6-5) at San Francisco (6-5)
Time is getting short for both these teams, who were a combined 20-5 in the regular season last year.

The Seahawks, who lost at home to New England last week, are third in the AFC West, a game behind the Raiders and two behind Denver and right now are a game out of the wild-card picture.

The 49ers' biggest problem may be the schedule — Washington, the Rams and Dallas after Seattle. They have won three of four and appear to be playing their best football of the season.

Atlanta (2-9) at Chicago (11-6)
This game features the NFC's two top rushers, Atlanta's Gerald Riggs and Chicago's Walter Payton. Payton will be shooting to tie a record with his seventh straight 100-yard game.
Chicago's Dan Hampton injured a shoulder in last week's 44-0 rout of Dallas that clinched the NFC Central title for the Bears. Quarterback Jim McMahon, who also has a sore shoulder, is a maybe for Chicago, but that shouldn't bother the Bears against Atlanta, though the Falcons upset the 8-3 Rams 30-14 last week.

Cincinnati (5-8) at Cleveland (5-6)

These two are a game behind Pittsburgh in the I-don't-want-it-you-can-have-it division, also known as the AFC Central. The game may depend on whether offense-poor Cleveland can score against defense-poor Cincinnati or whether the offensive-minded Bengals can crack the Browns' tough defense.

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas

Salvation Army, volunteers gearing up for holiday rush

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

While some grumble that the Christmas season seems to arrive earlier each year, others say that time is running out for needy families in Big Spring.

The annual Christmas drive, spearheaded by the Salvation Army and fueled by hundreds of local volunteers, is the reason many needy families are not overlooked during the holidays. Volunteers range from children to local merchants.

The Salvation Army began ordering toys and other gifts in June and got their first shipment in September, said Helen Braun, wife of Salvation Army Captain Carroll Braun. The couple and Salvation Army volunteers have been storing the toys in preparation for the annual distribution to needy families in December.

Toys will be dispensed out of a makeshift toy store Dec. 21 set up in the old Prager's Building on Third Street in downtown Big Spring.

Mrs. Braun said the Salvation Army will begin taking applications for Christmas aid this Monday through Wednesday at the old Prager building. Applications will be taken again on Dec. 2-6 at the Prager's building.

To qualify for Salvation Army aid, families must bring proof of income, a list of expenses and an identification of each family member.

Families will receive baskets of food at Christmas. Children in families qualifying for aid will receive two toys, a stocking stuffer and clothing.

In September Salvation Army workers began contacting local schools and clubs in preparation for the annual canned food drive.

Safeway stores around the state are participating in a canned food drive throughout the holidays, according to Thomas Land and Randy Reeves, local Safeway managers.

Land said that many grocery stores were supplying cans donated by customers to local food banks. Land and Reeves agreed to donate local contributions to the Salvation Army Christmas canned food drive.

Boxes have been placed at the exits of both Big Spring stores. The food drive is in conjunction with President Reagan's "Operation Care and Share" program designed to "feed hungry people through the holidays," said Land.

The drive begins officially Nov. 25 and will continue through Dec. 9. At that time Salvation Army volunteers will collect cans to donate to families at Christmas.

Children in schools in Big Spring and the surrounding area will also be collecting canned goods for the Salvation Army, said Braun. Several schools have already established committees and will conduct their canned food drives the week of Dec. 2-6.

The Big Spring Mall will set up an Angel Tree, said Braun. This year, anyone wishing to donate new clothing items to needy children may select a paper angel off the tree. Written on the angel will be a child's age, sex, and size. Shoppers can purchase a piece of clothing and leave it under the tree with the paper angel attached for distribution by the Salvation Army.

Susan Lewis of the Highland Mall said mall merchants there will collect toys for children. The mall will set up a "Giving Kids" tree with ornaments made by children at the Westside Day Care Center. People who wish to donate toys may "pick up an ornament off the tree with the sex and age of a child written on it," Lewis said. People may then purchase an item appropriate for the child, place the ornament on the item and place it back under the tree.

Lewis said the tree is called a "Giving Kids" tree because "you can be a giving kid at any age." The Salvation Army will distribute the toys donated by the community right before Christmas.

The "Giving Tree" program will start Nov. 29 and continue until "a couple of days before Christmas," Lewis said. Santa Claus is scheduled to be at the mall on Thursdays and Saturdays through the holidays to meet with kids.

Braun said funds for Christmas programs are gathered throughout the year, but one of the major fundraisers of the year is the annual Christmas mail appeal. More than $40,000 was raised last year through the appeal, said Braun. The money is used both for Christmas activities and for winter relief programs.

Volunteers also help the Salvation Army during their busiest time of the year. Among local clubs assisting the Salvation Army are: Rotary, Key Club, Shriners, NAACP and a team of volunteers from the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

The Salvation Army is also aided by a Christmas committee, chaired by Dock Voorhies. Other members are Lupe Dominguez, Bob Crowell and Jack Alexander.

Food baskets will be loaded by the Salvation Army's Ladies Home League, the Corps Cadets and the children's Bible Class.

The Ebony Club from the Big Spring Federal Camp will work on repairing bicycles for kids.

What does all this early planning mean in terms of people reached during the holidays? Last year the Salvation Army enlisted the aid of 69 volunteers. Figures show that 312 families were provided holiday dinners and 716 children received a total of 2,118 toys through the Salvation Army program.

Gifts from the Angel Tree amounted to 321, and gifts to nursing homes, the Big Spring State Hospital and Veterans' Administration Medical Center patients totaled out to 980.

More than 100 people were served a holiday dinner at the Salvation Army headquarters.

This year, the Salvation Army has a gift to people in the community. Volunteers will host a "mothers day out" babysitting service from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 30. RSVP at 267-8239. The event is limited to the first 25 children who enroll, Braun said.

Individuals dress dolls for daughters of needy families

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

She's the little girl's best friend — someone she can tell all her secrets.

Not all parents can afford to buy their daughters dolls for Christmas, but the Salvation Army, with the help of local organizations and individuals, is playing the part of Old Saint Nick this year.

About 332 dolls were dressed and will be given to little girls whose families apply for Christmas food through the Salvation Army. The dolls will be distributed Dec. 21 when families pick up food baskets and toys.

Until distribution, the dolls will be displayed on special "trees" at local malls and banks.

The dolls were judged Nov. 14, and the winners will be auctioned at the annual banquet in March.

Money made at the auction is used to purchase dolls for next Christmas, said Helen Braun of the Salvation Army. "We buy the dolls and then the community dresses them," she said.

The Future Homemakers of America club at Big Spring High School dressed over 100 dolls, said Mrs. Braun.

Letha Duke dressed 25 dolls for this Christmas. Three of them placed second in the contest. "I like dolls, and I like to make doll clothes for the children who wouldn't get them otherwise," she said.

After retiring from Malone-Hogan Hospital, "I had the time to do them," Duke said. She worked as a registered nurse at the hospital for 35 years until retiring two years ago.

"I like to sew," said Duke. "I always save all my sewing scraps because I know it will make a doll dress."

She designs the dresses, making her own patterns. "It just takes some imagination," she said.

"I like to dress them kind of old fashioned with ruffles and lace. I think those look like Christmas dolls," she said.

She plans to continue dressing dolls for the Salvation Army "as long as I can," Duke said.

This is the local Salvation Army's third year to dress dolls. Duke has participated each year. Last year she dressed 23 dolls. One of her dolls placed first and one placed second in last year's contest.

When serving a Salvation Army in West Virginia, Mrs. Braun had a program where people in the community dressed dolls to be given away at Christmas. When she and her husband Capt. Carroll Braun came to Big Spring, they started the program here.

"We're real proud of our project," said Mrs.

Braun.

The dolls were judged by: Mrs. Clyde Angel, Mrs. Rick Turner, Mrs. A.N. Standard, Chris Shoalwater, Mrs. D.A. Brazel, Lynda Proffitt and Shawn Proffitt.

Categories were: story book, knitted and crocheted, baby, prom night, international, old fashioned, sports and general.

Placing first or second in the contest were: Dixie Powell, Jo Hampton, Patsy Rodriguez, Letha Duke, Maggie Dugan, Wanda Scown, Twila Lomax, Ellen Horn, Mrs. Clayton Hicks, Nora Stilwell, Vilen Garcia, Mary Raley, Lelah Smith, Ramona Rodriguez, Santiago Paredes and Janie Sculthorp.

A few dolls still need dressing. Anyone interested in dressing them can contact the Salvation Army.

G.C. Broughton and Jerry Worthy drop their donations into a Salvation Army Christmas kettle.

Kettles have long history

The Salvation Army is looking for a few good men, women and kids to operate the Christmas kettles this season.

The kettles have become a familiar holiday sight. This year, the Christmas kettle kickoff is slated for Friday, Nov. 29 at 11 a.m. at the Big Spring Mall.

Kettles will be set up at various locations around the city, but a lack of volunteers to keep some of the familiar jangling bells silent, said Capt. Carroll Braun.

The kettles "bring in about 10 percent of our total income," Braun said. But the most important role that the bright red kettles play is a reminder of the work the Salvation Army does during the holidays.

The Christmas kettles have been a symbol of the Salvation Army since 1891, when the Salvation Army captain in San Francisco decided he wanted to provide a free Christmas dinner for people.

The Captain, Joseph McFee, couldn't think of a way to raise enough money to provide food for the hungry. Remembering he had been a sailor in Liverpool, England, he recalled a large pot which was placed on a dock.

McFee decided to place a large pot at the Oakland ferry landing on Market Street.

By 1895, the kettle concept was used in 30 Salvation Army corps in the West Coast. The idea spread to the east and by 1897, 150,000 people were fed thanks to donations.

Workers at the Salvation Army Christmas store set up toys that have been stored since this summer.

The Robert Honeycutts

Robert E. and Geneva Honeycutt will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday with a reception at Salem Baptist Church from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. The reception is open to friends and family.

Hosting the event will be the couple's children, including Nadine McHugh of Midland and Wesley Honeycutt of Spring. The Honeycutts have five grandchildren.

Honeycutt was born Dec. 5, 1915, in McLennan County. He is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Howard Honeycutt. Mrs. Honeycutt, the former Geneva Row, was born April 5, 1919, in McLennan County. She is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Row.

The couple met at an ice cream social in 1934. They were married Nov. 30, 1935 in the home of the man who married them, Brother Jones, in McLennan County.

Honeycutt farmed when the couple married, then served in the Army Medical Corps in the medics. He served in general hospitals in the China, Burma and India theatre. The couple moved to Howard County in 1945, and he worked for the railroad. He went to work for Cosden several years later. He worked there for more than 17 years, retiring Aug. 1, 1969.

Both serve as custodians for Salem Baptist Church. Mrs. Honeycutt also works part time at the Coahoma School Cafeteria. They are members of Salem Baptist Church where Honeycutt is a deacon.

Asked to comment on their mar-

The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper.

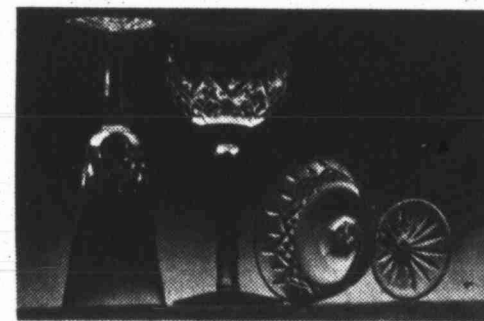

Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. ### Williams-Ammons

SEAGRAVES — Andrea Kay Williams and Matthew Shane Ammons were wed in a candlelight double ring ceremony Nov. 2 at Temple Baptist Church. Tom McCollister, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. David Potts of Lovington, N.M. and Michael Williams of Big Spring.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W.G. Ammons of Seagraves.

The couple exchanged vows before an archway flanked on each side by baskets of flowers in shades of blue. Columns were topped with hurricane lamps adorned with white doves nestled in flowers among gathered net.

Music for the 5 p.m. ceremony was performed by Pam McCollister, and Pam Smith and Cindy Smith, sisters of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin taffeta. Pearl scattered lace edged the wide caplet-type collar, which accented the semi-scooped neckline. The full, gathered skirt fell from a fitted bodice and was enhanced by a deep lace hem flounce that had scatterings of seed pearls. The lace-trimmed chapel-length veil and blusher cascaded from a pearl and sequin encrusted headpiece.

The bride carried a silk bridal bouquet of white mums with pale lemon tinged centers and scattered with blue and baby's breath. Pale blue streamers flowed from the arrangement which featured a blue bow.

Trina Cavazos was matron of honor. Sammy Williams, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. Jon Ammons, nephew of the bridegroom, was best man. Groomsman was Tony Cavazos.

Ushers were Jimmy Smith, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and David Potts, step-father of the bride.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a pale blue cloth with white lace overlay and centered with the bride's bouquet.

A three-tiered, heart-shaped wedding cake was served. Lattice work columns separated white tapers trimmed with pale blue scrolls and daisies. A large lattice work heart-shaped locket, which opened to reveal entwined wedding bands nestled among baby white mums, adorned one layer. A large lattice work heart supporting double wedding bells and entwined wedding bands topped the cake.

The bridegroom's table was covered with cornflower blue cloth overlaid with off white lace. A two-layered offset square chocolate cake, topped with a cherubic reluctant bridegroom and bride figurine, was served.

Cristi Ammons, niece of the bridegroom, registered guests. Serving at the bride's table were Cindy Smith, Pam McCollister and Susan Ammons. Cristi Ammons and Patti Saizado served at the bridegroom's table.

The bridegroom's parents hosted a rehearsal dinner Oct. 31 in the fellowship hall of Temple Baptist Church.

The bridegroom is a 1984 high school graduate and is employed by the City of Seagraves.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple will live in Seagraves.

Q.: Besides my earnest money and my signature, is there anything else to include in an offer to buy?

A.: There are several things to include before you sign an offer to buy a home. Among these are, of course, the date, and the names and addresses of the buyer and seller. There must be a legal description of the property, as well as the purchase price, the size of the down payment you intend to make, and a statement as to how you intend to finance the balance of the purchase price. This should include the maximum interest rate you are willing to pay, and provision for cancelling the offer if that rate cannot be obtained. There should be a stated time limit for acceptance of the offer, a complete list of items included in the sale, closing and occupancy dates and a stipulation that title to the property be insured.

Couple returns from the Bahamas

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor
IVAN and MILDRED COLLINS of 1725 Purdue returned to Big Spring Nov. 6 from a five-day free trip to the Bahamas where they attended workshops and a banquet.

The couple won the leadership trip through Shaklee, a food supplement company. They are senior supervisors in the company and have been with the company since 1974.

Visiting in Big Spring last week was ANN COOPER, mother of CINDY APPEL. Cooper is a resident of Selingsgrove, Pa., and spent the week visiting Cindy and son-in-law TIM before returning home.

GAYLE MURPHY and EDNA YOUNG recently returned from the American Society of Travel Agents 55th Worldwide Congress in Rome. The women visited St. Peter's Basilica, the Sistene Chapel, the Pantheon and other points of interest. They also were guests at a number of social functions sponsored by various countries.

The women said highlights included a special audience with the Pope and a "very emotional" grand finale in which the Italian Air Force paid tribute to America. The women said delegates from all over the world stood to join the Americans in singing the Star Spangled Banner.

Next year's Congress will be held in Singapore.

Dr. Donohue

Test will determine sex of athletes

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I heard a few years back that there was a test involving body cells that could be used to confirm that an athlete was a woman and not a man posing as a woman. True? I also understand that it is not being used. — J.W.B.

Whether it is now in use I cannot tell you. In the test, a small scraping of a few cells from the inside lining of the mouth is obtained and examined under a microscope. The examiners are looking for cells containing what are called Barr bodies. Female cells have Barr bodies (little extra blobs inside the cells) and males do not. Barr bodies are present when the cells have two X chromosomes, the chromosomes that make a woman a woman. Men have only one X chromosome. DEAR DR. DONOHUE: With all the talk about cocaine use by baseball players, can you give any good reason (physically) why players would want to use it? — S.S.

It produces a perception of invincibility, a feeling of being in complete control of the body. It makes the player feel like Superman. But it is only a feeling. It does nothing to enhance actual performance. If we knew why an athlete, or anyone else for that matter, needed to have this feeling we might be able to prevent this dangerous chemical dependence. Much heart trouble is preventable. Write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of his booklet, "How to Take Care of Your Heart." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents. Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters.

Artifacts is Holiday Headquarters!

Ethel Pringle is a real people person who handles most of the retailing transactions at Artifacts. She came to work with her daughter, Barbara Hall, when the store moved to Highland Mall in February of '84. Ethel chalked up quite a few years of selling experience since moving to Big Spring in 1964. She and her husband, Cotton, raised their three children here and have become active in the church and business community. They have four grand children and are looking forward to hosting the family over the Thanksgiving holiday.

Ethel has made sure the shop is ready for this festive season. The windows are full of decorative and collectors items. From musical ornaments to dated santa figurines, the unusual abundance at Artifacts. Barbara has stocked accessories by Mullin Square which make perfect hostess gifts. There's the smell of Christmas, tins for cookies and candy, gift boxes and bags.

The shop is the center for fine custom decorating in Big Spring. Draperies, carpeting and upholstery are specialty areas. Barbara does unusual fabricated headboards that bring unity to a bedroom. The completed finished product is a source of pride at Artifacts where the atmosphere reflects the sincere desire of Barbara and Ethel to satisfy their customers.

This mother/daughter team is a part of the hometown merchant feeling you'll get when you shop at Highland Mall.

Santa will arrive Friday at 1:00 P.M. and you'll have an opportunity to provide a toy for a needy child when you participate in Giving Kids. Share your holiday, pick an ornament off our tree and be a "giving kid" yourself! All this from Highland .... The Mall with the heart. FM 700 & South Hwy. 87.

Dear Abby

'Gift' idea nixed

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I just received a letter that threw us for a loop, and we don't know what to do about it. It was from our daughter, married for a short time and living in another town.

She tells us that she knows we plan on giving her and her husband something for Christmas, so if we really want to give them something they need, to give them the cash! She went on to say they don't need "things," but they are in debt and could use the cash to help pay off some of their obligations.

We are, of course, distressed to learn that these newlyweds are so hard up, but our idea of a Christmas gift is not cash.

Now we are sorry they were so frank with us. I think this was very nifty of them. A gift is one thing, but helping them pay their bills is something we had not planned to do. Should we ignore their request and give them gifts as we had intended? Or should we just send them a check to help pay off their bills? They both have jobs, if that will help you tell us what to do.

CAN'T DECIDE
DEAR CAN'T: A gift is something one gives freely and with good feelings. Obviously you would feel no joy in giving these newlyweds cash to help pay off their bills. So give them what you want to give them, plus a letter telling them that putting themselves in debt is no way to start a marriage, so they had better begin to live within their means.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter has the habit of saying "Yes" instead of "Hello" when she answers the telephone.

I think this is a poor idea and told her she should start saying "Hello" because if a seducer called and she says "Yes," she could be raped.

May I have your opinion?
