Q. Is the date set yet for the quarterly Chamber of Commerce banquet?
A. The banquet will be at noon Dec. 11 at Howard College.

Calendar

Library closed

THURSDAY
• The Howard County Library will be closed for Thanksgiving Thursday through Saturday. It will reopen Monday. The book drop at the parking lot entrance will be open to return books.

• The Tom Castle Country Western Band will give a concert at 7 p.m. at the Kentwood Older Adult Activity Center.

FRIDAY
• Dr. B.M. Cohen, director of infertility surgery at Presbyterian Hospital in Dallas, will speak on "Current Techniques in Infertility Surgery" at Malone-Hogan Hospital's classroom at 12:30 p.m. For reservations, contact Sissy Jones at 263-1211, Ext. 175.

MONDAY
• The City Council PTA will sponsor a skate night for Big Spring elementary school students at Skateland from 6 to 8 p.m. Admission is $2, and 50 cents of that goes to the PTA.
• Toastmasters meets at 6:30 a.m. at Herman's.

• Big Spring Sports Boosters meets at 7 p.m. in the high school cafeteria.

Outside

Fog

Afternoon skies are mostly cloudy with light drizzle. Dense fog may cause hazardous travel conditions. The high is in the mid 50s, cooling to the mid 40s this afternoon. Tonight's low should be near 40. Thursday's forecast calls for a high in the mid 50s and winds east to northeast at 10 to 15 miles per hour.

Morning edition on Thanksgiving

Thursday's holiday edition of the Big Spring Herald will be published Thanksgiving Day morning.

If you are a subscriber and your paper hasn't arrived by 7:30 a.m., call the newspaper's circulation complaint desk at 263-7331 by 10 a.m. to have one delivered.

All other offices of the newspaper will be closed all day Thursday.

County decides on juveniles

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Howard County juveniles offenders will be detained in Taylor County effective immediately, according to a written contract submitted to the Howard County commissioner's court and unanimously approved by the court this morning at a special meeting.

Commissioner William Crooker said the contract stipulates that Taylor County will house Howard County detainees "if they have room." If Taylor County doesn't have room, then Howard County is "up the creek," Crooker said.

The contract is dated Oct. 1, 1985, to Sept. 30, 1986.

Howard County will pay $50 per day to Taylor County to detain Howard County juvenile offenders, according to the contract.

Commissioners called the special meeting to attempt to meet a federal mandate that requires juveniles by Dec. 8 to be housed in separate quarters that are out of sight and out of sound of adult offenders.

Commissioners O.L. Brown said during Monday's meeting that he and Crooker would visit Tom Green County on Tuesday to study that county's offer to house Howard County juveniles.

Crooker said he and Brown learned during yesterday's journey that Tom Green County is currently building a facility to detain juveniles, which will cost about $1 million.

But the new facility won't be open until July, Crooker said. He said Tom Green County has incorporated $160,000 to $180,000 per year in its county budget to operate the facility.

"Howard County can't support a full-blown juvenile detention center," Crooker said.

He said operating costs calculated by Tom Green County is based on housing 12 to 13 juveniles per day.

Concerned citizens attended this morning's meeting to voice their concern about the juvenile situation.

Nancy Patrick of 1104 S. Benton said she wished the county would detain juveniles here rather than contracting with another county to house juveniles elsewhere.

Patrick also inquired about the functions and duties performed by the commissioners court and the 118th District Juvenile Probation Board to address juvenile delinquent cases.

"Where is the breakdown in communication?" Patrick asked the court.

Commissioner David Barr said

When it comes to Thanksgiving dinner menus, most Texans talk turkey.

Nearly 72 percent of Texans plan to serve turkey on Thanksgiving, Nov. 28, according to the fall Texas Poll.

adults by telephone between Oct. 17-31. Sponsored by Harte-Hanks Communications Inc., the poll is conducted by the Public Policy Resources Laboratory at Texas A&M University. Results may vary by as much as 3 percentage points either way, because of sampling error.

Egypt asks Malta to extradite hijacker

VALLETTA, Malta (AP) — Egypt today demanded that Malta extradite the surviving hijacker of the Egyptian jetliner and autopsies were conducted on scores of people killed when commandos stormed the plane.

Maltese investigators today questioned passengers and crew who survived the drama, which began Saturday when terrorists commandeered the Boeing 737 shortly after it left Athens, Greece, for Cairo, Egypt.

Fifty-eight people were killed when Egyptian commandos stormed the jetliner Sunday and the hijackers threw fire grenades into the cabin.

An American woman was shot to death before the Egyptian raid. Two other Americans and two Israelis were also shot by the hijackers Sunday morning, Maltese. All survived, but one of the Israeli women was declared clinically dead Tuesday.

Government spokesman Paul Mifsud said the total death toll in the 24-hour drama was 59. There were 98 people aboard the plane when it was commandeered.

Maltese officials on Tuesday said the suspected hijacker had identified himself as a 20-year-old Tunisian named Omar Marzouki whom they said was described by several people on the plane as the leader of the hijackers.

He was hospitalized in satisfactory condition with unspecified wounds, Mifsud said.

In Cairo, the Egyptian government today issued a statement saying the extradition request was made so Marzouki, "can be tried under Egyptian law since this is Egypt's right under international law."

Mifsud said Marzouki had been questioned by police but "his health condition has not permitted yet any in-depth interrogation."

On Tuesday, before the news agency report, Mifsud said Malta "will have to see" whether any extradition request would be honored.

Egypt's state security prosecutor Ragaa al-Araby said that if extradited Marzouki could face charges of murder, espionage and endangering transportation with penalties ranging from death to lengthy imprisonment.

Autopsies to determine whether the victims died from gunshot wounds or the effects of the grenade were conducted today at St. Luke's Hospital and at a temporary morgue.

Mifsud said the results of the autopsies would be turned over to the investigating magistrates. He said he did not know if the results would be made public.

He also said there was no change in the conditions of the seriously wounded, including an Israeli woman shot in the head by the hijackers who has been pronounced clinically dead.

Maltese investigators, including Deputy Magistrate Noel Cuschieri, this morning interviewed four Egyptian women, including two injured stewardesses, who were among 11 women released by the hijackers before the plane was stormed.

hijacked. Soon after the plane was forced to land on the Mediterranean island, two wounded Egyptian stewardesses and 11 women passengers from the Philippines and Egypt were taken off the plane.

Firemen salary

City council to revoke decision

By KEELY COGHLAN
Staff Writer

Big Spring city councilmen will rescind a city policy reducing firefighters' base salaries at their next meeting, Mayor Pro Tem Harold Hall said Tuesday night.

In addition, the council also will pay overtime retroactively to Nov. 15 for the three regularly scheduled hours past the federal 53-hour workweek for firefighters, Hall said after the council meeting.

The council is taking the action to improve personnel relations within the fire department, not because the city policy is out of compliance with federal law, he said.

City Attorney Doyle Curtis recently said the policy does not violate a new bill concerning state and municipal employees' coverage under the federal Fair Labor Standards Act. However, Curtis' interpretation differs from the law's interpretation by attorneys for the Big Spring firefighters' union international.

The council agreement to start paying overtime now was made to ease differences, Hall said. The federal law does not require cities to pay overtime until April.

"We don't have to pay them retroactively," said Hall. "We truly want to work with them."

"We don't hold any animosity against the firefighters," Hall said. "They had their civil service election. As far as the city council is concerned, it's a dead horse. We're going to operate under civil service and the (Fair Labor Standards Act)."

Council members took no action on the rescission last night because the item was not included on the agenda. They discussed the action during a work session Monday afternoon.

During the meeting, councilmen approved bid specifications for the purchase of seven cars for the police department, including three patrol cars and four cars for the criminal investigations division.

Jo Montague, the first female mayor of Ponder is paving the way for the city's expected fast growth. Her efforts include establishing new laws, and enforcing old ones.

Woman mayor helps town's transition

PONDER (AP) — She's made bookcases, helped to build a patio, painted umbrellas and sun visors at craft shows and written children's books when time allowed. One of her goals now is to learn how to bake bread. Her other goal is help the city of Ponder get through a transitional period.

"I became interested in politics in '77 when I lived in Denton. I was a member of the League of Women Voters and was selected 'Outstanding Woman of America' for two consecutive years. The league taught me a lot. I learned to really study the issues and to be precise," Montague said.

"When I moved to Ponder, I started attending the council meetings and became involved. The last council voted in a planning and zoning committee and I was a member of that, but I think the league helped me more than anything," she said.

"I believe not living here long or not being from here is more of a resentment than my being a woman," she added. "I was raised in Cheney, Kansas, a small farm town outside of Wichita. I went to three different colleges and studied journalism, English and literature. I guess I never finished because it was more work than I wanted to do all the time."

Firemen douse car blaze

Firemen doused a car fire Tuesday morning at 102 E. Second, according to department reports. The blaze caused an estimated $1,000 damage to the 1973 Buick Apollo, owned by E.R. Moren. The car was being used by William Moren of 603C Douglas at the time of the fire, the report stated. Firefighters arrived at the scene at 7:45 a.m. to find the car motor in flames. They opened the hood and extinguished the fire by pouring water on it, the report stated.

Western Auto burglarized

Burglars took more than $2,500 in electronics equipment and watches from the Western Auto store at 504 Johnson, according to police reports. Store employee Moren Reeves told police the burglary occurred between 5:30 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday. A window and a door lock were damaged in the break-in, the police report stated.

• David Rube of 1408 E. 14th told police someone broke into his 1986 Mazda pickup truck between 1 p.m. Monday and 7:50 a.m. Tuesday. Taken were a radar detector, valued at $190; a 40-channel CB radio, valued at $210; a cassette deck, valued at $100; an 80-watt booster, valued at $100; and an unknown amount of cassette tapes.

Man faces mischief charge

Howard County sheriff's deputies Tuesday morning returned Jacob Fredrick Giesbrecht, 29, of Seminole from Gaines County jail to Howard County where he faces a criminal mischief charge. He was released on $3,500 bond.

• Deputies arrested Paul Justin Brown, 22, of Route 2 Tuesday afternoon for theft over $200 and under $750. He was released on a $5,000 bond.

Three plead guilty to DWI

Three persons pleaded guilty Tuesday morning in county court to driving while intoxicated. Gina S. Allen, 50, of Sterling City Route pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated Oct. 7. Howard County Judge Milton Kirby fined her $300, $131 court costs and placed her on a 60-day jail sentence probated for two years.

• Deputies arrested Carolyn Benson, 18, of Route 2 after her bondsman withdrew bond for a theft warrant. She was released after another bondsman posted $1,000.

Drug test for workers

SAN FRANCISCO — A federal judge has cleared the way for drug and alcohol tests of railway workers involved in accidents that cause death or major injuries or damage. U.S. District Judge Charles Legge sided with the Federal Railway Association when he ruled Tuesday that the tests are legal. The plan covers 200,000 non-supervisory railroad workers nationwide.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — The widow of a man who died of lung cancer and heart problems testified Tuesday that her husband believed he had been "fooled by the tobacco companies" and in his dying days said he wished he had never started smoking. John Galbraith said six months before he died that he wished he had believed the federal government's warnings about the dangers of smoking. Etsyne Galbraith testified in her $1 million wrongful death suit against the R.J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. She claims the manufacturer of Camel, Winston and Salem cigarettes is liable for her husband's death.

Vow to fight for homes

PHILIPS — Residents of this Panhandle community have pledged to fight for their homes even if Phillips Petroleum Co. buys the land out from under them. About 400 people crowded into the Phillips High School auditorium Tuesday night and applauded a pledge to fight the Oklahoma-based oil company that is trying to buy land under 90 percent of the city's 2,500 residents. But while ready to fight, residents were told they also must be ready to move. Plans were discussed that could mean relocating the entire town to one of two nearby sites.

Astronauts launch Mexican satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Atlantis' astronauts, hurried into orbit in a dazzling nighttime launch, today deployed a $42 million Mexican communications satellite that for economic reasons and because of earthquake damage to ground facilities won't be used for four years.

Morelos B is the first of three communications payloads the crew planned to spin out of the space shuttle in the first two days of its mission to clear its cargo bay for two lengthy space walks to practice space station construction methods.

"We got a good deploy," reported astronaut Sherwood Spring.

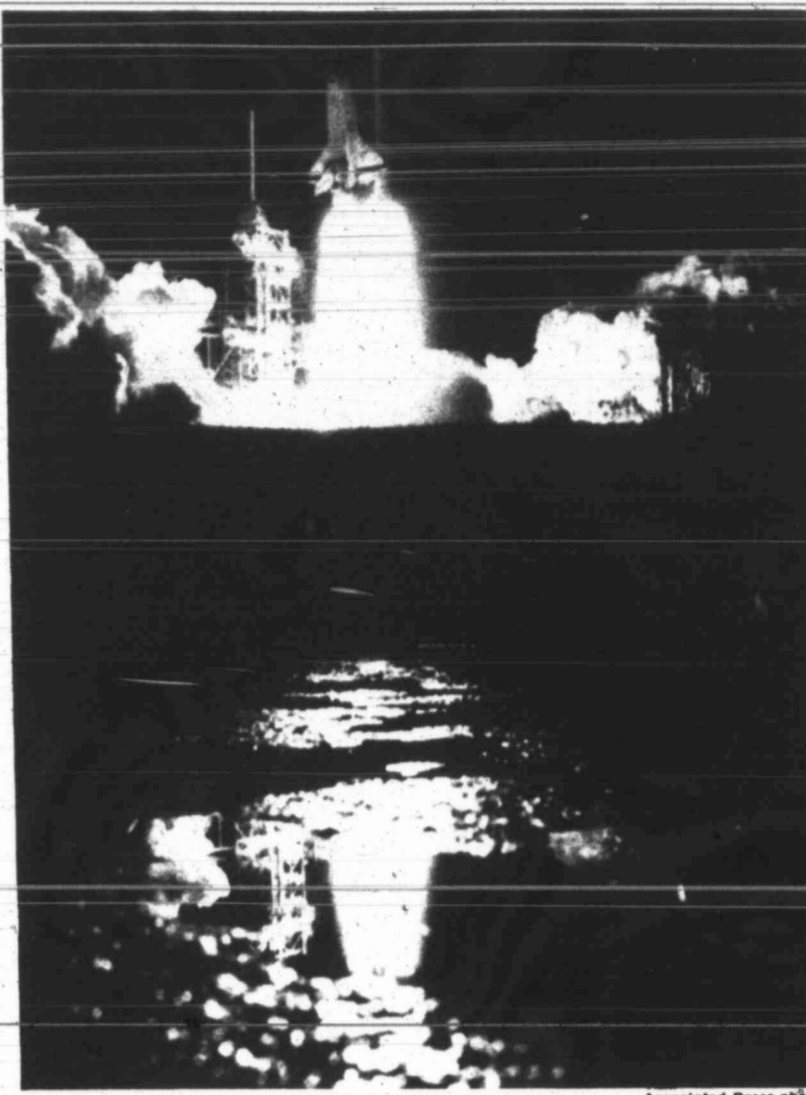

Forty-five minutes later, a rocket motor fired to propel Morelos B toward a lofty outpost 22,300 miles high.

The positioning of the satellite dictated the brilliant nighttime liftoff Tuesday that provided rocket watchers with the most spectacular sound and light show in the 35-year history of more than 2,000 launchings from Cape Canaveral.

Mexican officials said Morelos B would be inserted into an orbit that will allow it to slowly drift, without using fuel, to its planned stationary post in 1989. They said if they waited four years to launch, the cost would be four times the $10 million Mexico is paying NASA for the delivery service now.

Morelos A, which was launched from a shuttle in June, is providing first-time telephone and television service to many remote areas but only half its capacity is being used. The recent Mexican earthquake which damaged many of the nation's satellite ground communications facilities was another factor in the decision to "park" the second satellite for several years. It will be some time before money is available to repair the facilities. Astronaut Rodolfo Neri, Mexico's first astronaut, was aboard to observe the deployment of his country's satellite and to conduct several experiments for Mexican scientists.

The launch originally was scheduled for 7:38 a.m. today. But when Mexico decided to put Morelos B into the drifting orbit, liftoff was advanced to an afterdark liftoff at 7:29 p.m. Tuesday.

In the immediate area, the clear sky was transformed from night into light as the 100-ton space plane thundered toward orbit, trailing a 30-foot fountain of flame. The sensational sight drew oohs and aahs from more than 55,000 people watching from inside the spaceport and another 100,000 or so viewing from vantage points elsewhere in the county.

The launch was seen as far away as Columbia, S.C., 400 miles to the north; Miami, about 200 miles to the south; Key West, about 420 miles southwest; and St. Petersburg, 150 miles west.

Only twice before have rockets with such power blasted away from the Cape in darkness. The first was Apollo 17 in 1972, and the second was space shuttle Challenger in 1983. Both times clouds reduced the visibility. But not Tuesday night, when the stars were twinkling, and a bright moon, just one day shy of being full, hovered above the launch area.

A satellite will be launched tonight for the Australian government and on Thursday for RCA American Communications.

Goup claims bombing

ATHENS, Greece — Police said today a Greek terrorist group has claimed responsibility for setting off a car bomb that ripped into a passing police bus, killing one officer and injuring 14 others.

A caller claiming to represent the "November 17" underground organization phoned the pro-government Athens daily Eleftherotypia said it was responsible for the Tuesday night bombing, according to a police spokesman who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The group has claimed responsibility for at least six political assassinations since 1975, including two U.S. officials in Athens, three Greek police officers and a right-wing Greek newspaper publisher.

Arens admits failure

TEL AVIV, Israel — Cabinet Minister Moshe Arens returned from the United States on Tuesday, saying he apparently failed to ease American concern over charges that a U.S. intelligence analyst passed military secrets to Israel.

"It will take time for the smoke to clear. I don't think we have succeeded in calming the situation," Arens told reporters at Ben-Gurion Airport.

Jonathan J. Pollard, a 31-year-old Navy civilian analyst, was arrested outside the Israeli Embassy in Washington last Thursday and charged with spying for Israel.

Europeans praise Egypt

LONDON — West European governments expressed praise for Egypt's firm stand against terrorism in storming a hijacked jetliner, but dismay at the heavy loss of life. Many newspapers accused the Egyptians of bungling.

Hijackers seized the Egyptair Boeing 737 on a flight Saturday from Athens to Cairo, forcing it down on Malta, and Egyptian commandos stormed the plane 24 hours later. Maltese officials said Tuesday that 58 people were killed in the assault.

Britain's Foreign Office said it admired the "strong stand taken by Malta and Egypt against terrorism," but was saddened by the loss of life.

UNITED NATIONS — The Des Moines Register and the Christian Science Monitor were among the publications honored for their coverage of the famine in Ethiopia at the World Hunger Media Awards, presented by singer Kenny Rogers.

Mexican officials hail technical milestone

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Government officials hailed the launch of Mexico's first astronaut and second satellite as a technological milestone, but critics questioned the expense while the national economy staggers under a $96 billion foreign debt.

The crew of the space shuttle Atlantis Tuesday included mission specialist Rodolfo Neri Vela, a 33-year-old engineer chosen by the Mexican government after a nationwide contest.

Morelos II, a U.S.-built telecommunications satellite, was to be launched during Atlantis' sixth orbit. The government has spent $150 million on the satellite project, which also requires construction of seven transmitter-receivers and 186 receiver stations on the ground to relay telephone and TV signals.

Neri planned to carry out four medical and scientific experiments, ranging from the photoconductivity of rocks to the use of electric shock to relieve motion sickness.

Neri had no direct role in the launch of the Morelos II telecommunications satellite, which the government said would help extend telephone service to 18 million

Mexicans currently without telephones.

Morelos I was launched from a shuttle in June and was credited with making limited domestic telephone service available immediately after September's earthquakes. President Miguel de la Madrid's September state of the union address was broadcast nationally via satellite.

Federal Communications and Transportation Secretary Daniel Diaz said the launch of Morelos II would fulfill an important goal of de la Madrid's administration.

Interviewed at the city airport before leaving Tuesday morning for Cape Canaveral, Diaz Diaz called the space flight a "watershed in the technological and scientific history of Mexico."

But critics have charged the government undertook the satellite program to satisfy Mexico's private television industry, giving business priority over the country's other needs.

The afternoon newspaper Ultimas Noticias noted in an editorial Tuesday the government's explanation that the satellites will help unify the nation through complete communications coverage.

"It cannot cease to cause amazement that in our times (the project) is being carried out for that reason ... contrasting with the dramatic reality that millions of human beings are struggling, victims of illiteracy, disease and socioeconomic shortages of all kinds," the newspaper said.

Another daily, La Jornada, said other developing nations, such as Brazil, had launched satellites without sending up their own astronauts.

La Jornada said the system's

"non-television uses have been designed along the way to justify the investment." The newspaper said the satellites would serve television alone for the next five years, adding that the government had advertised their usefulness for "education and health, without specifying at any time the how, the when and the why."

Spokesmen for the communications department announced at Cape Canaveral on Monday that the government might seek to offset some of the cost by renting satellite telephone service to Central American nations.

Hospitals wage ad wars to woo patients

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Twin Cities hospitals are advertising "loving arms" or the chance to "design your own private miracle" in a battle for patients that may tell something about the future of the nation's medical system.

"The Twin Cities is really the hotbed of competition in the country and all eyes are on us to find out if it works or not," said Geoff Kaufmann, director of marketing for University of Minnesota Hospital.

Two big forces are at work: The area has the nation's highest per-capita enrollment in health maintenance organizations, which have drastically cut hospital stays for their members, and the cities' hospitals usually have half their beds empty.

So the hospitals are marketing their services in ads that range from helpful to hype.

"North Memorial's New Emergency Room Operates at 180 mph," blares one ad by a hospital that owns a helicopter.

"Design your own private miracle," urges another hospital, promoting its birthing rooms.

Television commercials feature the "loving arms" of a third. Other enticements include luxury suites with large-screen televisions, video recorders and gourmet meals or delivery rooms where families are welcome.

"The survivors in the health care business are going to have to make more of an effort to communicate to people what they have to offer," said John Milton, vice president for marketing at North Memorial Medical Center in Robbinsdale. "Within the metro area, there's been a lot of advertising on brand image or name identification — advertising that gets your name out and associates a certain facility's name with high quality," said John Klein, a health economics analyst with the Minnesota Department of Health.

He said the hospital ads may be directed as much at HMOs as at consumers.

"One theory is that they may be doing it in part because they think it may strengthen their hand in negotiations with HMOs," Klein said.

HMOs offer care by member physicians to individuals or families who pay a flat monthly fee. By emphasizing preventive care, cost containment and outpatient treatment, they sometimes utilize hospital services but also compete with hospitals for patients.

"One concern is that advertising might be used to generate demand artificially," Klein said. "There's no question there are some advertisements we've seen that get into that area."

If the hype can be confusing to consumers, it's also confusing to some hospital administrators, he said. Some feel obliged to advertise just to match the competition.

Forty-seven percent of hospital beds in Minneapolis and St. Paul were empty on an average day in 1984. Nationally, the figure is 33 percent, said Cathy Tokarski, a spokeswoman for the American Hospital Association.

The number of hospitals in the area providing general acute services, excluding the Veterans Administration Hospital, has dropped from 37 in 1978 to 32 this year, according to the Metropolitan Health Planning Board.

Ultimately there will be four or five major health care providers in the Twin Cities, Kaufmann said. "Everybody's scrambling to be a part of one of those four or five systems."

Hospital advertising has grown nationwide within the last five years but nowhere as dramatically as in the Twin Cities, largely because of the drop in occupancy, said James B. Kenney, executive director of the Minnesota Coalition on Health Care Costs.

The coalition, made up of business, labor, government, consumers and health-care providers, estimates health-related radio, television and mail advertising costs in Minneapolis and St. Paul will reach $15 million this year, up from $10 million last year.

Kenney said organizations representing physicians, primarily HMOs, are spending about as much as the hospitals for advertising.

Technological advances and cost-containment measures, including greater use of outpatient surgery, elimination of unnecessary tests and earlier discharge of patients, have shortened the average hospital stay and caused admissions to plummet.

The Council of Community Hospitals, a trade association of Twin Cities hospitals, said stays for the 25 most common diagnoses fell from 5.3 days in 1983 to 4.3 days in 1984.

The Metropolitan Health Planning Board, which tabulates average stay for acute services, said the 1984 figure was 6.3 days, down from 6.9 in 1983.

The average cost per stay was up just 4.6 percent in 1984, to $3,034,

A variety of newspaper ads typify the keen competition for patients among hospitals in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area. Experts say the competition, the hottest in the nation, could affect health care across the country.

compared with annual increases of about 10 percent during the last decade, the council said.

The presence of six HMOs in the Twin Cities is a key element in holding prices down, officials say.

People covered by traditional fee-for-service insurance use hospitals at a rate of 800 to 900 days per 1,000 enrollees, but HMO members use them at a rate of only 300 to 350 days, Kenney said.

HMOs covered 42 percent of the area's people but only 15 percent of those hospitalized in the Twin Cities in 1984, according to the Metropolitan Health Planning Board.

It is expected that HMOs or similar alternatives to the traditional system will soon care for 60 percent of the people in the area. That's the conservative estimate; one study predicts 100 percent within six years.

"There's a revolution going on in medical care and nobody's noticing," said Walter McClure, president of the Minneapolis-based Center for Policy Studies, a non-profit organization which researches health care delivery issues.

"All these doctors and hospitals that seem to be kings of the mountain right now are going to be working for somebody else in 10 years or less," McClure predicted.

City must work with firefighters

Lines of communication between city administration and the fire department are frayed. Before the city can truly row in unison, this inefficient situation must be corrected.

Since the fire department sought, and was given by the voters, civil service status under state authority, there has been an obvious friction from the top down that ripples through the rank and file.

Perhaps it is a matter of perceived loss of authority because of the new civil service rules. Perhaps it is simple economics, the cost of benefits accorded under civil service. But whatever the cause, the friction is real and ultimately counterproductive.

The latest salvo in the disagreement is the city's 11th hour move to trim firefighters' pay to offset anticipated new overtime pay requirements. If the city was truly unaware of the pending federal legislation which addresses that issue, then it should have been aware. If it was aware, and chose to skirt the spirit of the new law, as "emergency" council action would imply, then it is not dealing realistically with firefighters and civil service.

To claim that firefighters should not be treated any differently than other city employees is ludicrous. Firefighters work a schedule no clerk or white-collar employee could comprehend. A 56-hour workweek that includes 24-hour shifts is nothing if not different than an 8-5 Monday through Friday position.

So let's not pretend now, since civil service has extended some new benefits for firefighters, that suddenly everyone should get all of those benefits. And let's not disenfranchise the fire department simply because they won a hard-fought election for civil service status. A firefighter is not a clerk nor a sewer line repairman nor a policeman. City hall should accept the city's firefighters for what they are and the job they do, not what city administration might wish them to be.

Health IRAs are a viable option

Medicare is both a success and a failure. Its success is in ensuring health care for older Americans. Its failure is its spiraling cost. The failure, unfortunately, is so great that it threatens to undo the success.

This year Medicare will cost some $71 billion, more than five times what it cost 10 years ago. The annual cost is expected to grow by another $20 billion in the next two years alone. To accommodate the expansion, taxes for Medicare have risen drastically. Since 1976, the maximum tax on an individual has nearly doubled.

Still, the program faces a long-term fiscal crunch. Last spring the government estimated that the Medicare trust fund would run out of money by 1998. Given less optimistic assumptions about the economy, it could happen as soon as 1992.

The Reagan administration has reacted by putting strict limits on hospital reimbursement in an effort to hold down costs. These undoubtedly have done some good, but they are bureaucratically cumbersome, unpopular with hospitals and prone to the usual side effects of price controls.

The threat of insolvency isn't Medicare's only problem. It also suffers from a bizarre design, covering almost all the hospital costs of moderately serious ailments but leaving the victims of catastrophic illness vulnerable to enormous expense. It also has spurred a rapid increase in medical costs, frustrating its aim of making health care affordable.

Is there another way? Peter Ferrara, a former Reagan White House aide, offers the most promising alternative yet. His proposal, outlined in a monograph for the Washington-based Cato Institute, would encourage Americans to set aside funds to cover the cost of their medical needs after retirement, and thus to ease the strain on Medicare. Already it has been incorporated in a House bill.

Ferrara's innovation is to adapt Individual Retirement Accounts to another need of the elderly. Instead of getting a deduction for their contributions, as in the case of IRAs, workers putting money in "Health IRAs" (up to the amount of their annual Medicare payroll taxes) would get a 60 percent tax credit. The credit makes it more attractive to low-income people; the 60 percent limit keeps the government's revenue loss within reasonable bounds.

Anyone contributing to one of these accounts would be able to use the accumulated funds to pay for health care after retirement. (The 40 percent of contributions not covered by the credit could be withdrawn anytime without penalty.) If the retiree's medical costs in a given year were below a specified amount, he could use the difference as he pleases. The worker is guaranteed health care in his old age, while retirees are given an incentive to avoid unnecessary medical treatment.

The government also gets something. For each contribution to the account, the individual would see his Medicare coverage reduced through a higher deductible. His Health IRA funds would take up the slack. This change has the effect of pushing Medicare in the direction of catastrophic coverage. All retirees would still be assured of help with large medical bills, but a lot of smaller expenses would be paid for by the patient. Of course, workers without Health IRAs would be fully covered by Medicare.

The change wouldn't reduce Medicare spending much in the first few years, but it would dramatically reduce the program's long-term liability. That is what makes it bearable to sacrifice those tax receipts — up to $4 billion a year. In exchange for a temporary increase in the federal deficit, the government would save vast sums in the future.

Everyone gains from Ferrara's proposal: workers get the assurance of health care in their old age; doctors and hospitals get less federal involvement in their affairs; the federal government gets relieved of some onerous expenses and an insolvent trust fund. No other proposal to repair Medicare does half so well.

Sting operation uncovers gang's deep Taiwan ties

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Undercover agents have made an alarming discovery about Chinese criminal gangs in the United States: They're targeting police officials for assassination.

This ominous development was uncovered by a joint FBI-New York City police operation that succeeded where other attempts had failed: infiltrating a major Chinese gang — in this case the United Bamboo Society.

The gang, headquartered in Taiwan, is believed to have 15,000 members worldwide. It was implicated in the murder last year of a Chinese-American journalist and critic of the Taiwan government, Henry Liu, in a San Francisco suburb.

New York City police were able to infiltrate the Bamboo Gang, and then participate in a "sting" operation to sell heroin to other officers posing as would-be drug dealers. The caper resulted in the arrest two months ago of 12 alleged Bamboo Gang leaders. But law enforcement sources familiar with the operation told our associate Donald Goldberg it was significant for more than just the 12 arrests:

• It marked the first important "bust" in this country of one of the Asian organized-crime gangs, which have emerged in the last six years as major factors in the underworld. The gangs were long believed to have been ignored by law-enforcement agencies because of the difficulty in penetrating them.

• It was also the first time that an undercover police officer was initiated and gained full membership in a gang. The officer most deeply involved — a Korean-American — was taken to Houston for a full dress ceremony, including the ritual drinking of a mixture of wine and blood. Even more remarkably, the secret rite was captured on videotape by the FBI.

One of the undercover officer's first assignments was to bring back the hand of a gang enemy from New York's Chinatown. Fortunately for the undercover man, there was a major police raid on Chinatown the very night he was supposed to carry out his task, which gave him an excuse for not performing it.

• By far the most significant lesson learned in the Bamboo Gang penetration was that the criminal organization is ready and willing to take on the police. The undercover agent's next major assignment was to be the assassination of six people, including three West Coast police officers.

As part of the sting operation, officers posed as rich "Yuppies" who wanted to open a casino in Las Vegas and become distributors of heroin, which they proposed to buy from the Bamboo Gang. The eventual "buy" was to be 300 kilograms from Thailand. When a sample brick of the heroin was tested, it proved to be of the highest quality.

Although government officials decline to speculate on links between the United Bamboo Society and the Taiwanese government, our sources are convinced there's a close working relationship. They note that Liu's murder was traced to the former chief of Taiwan's intelligence service, Vice Adm. Wong Hsi-Ling, who was sentenced to life in prison for his role.

Two other Bamboo Gang leaders in Taiwan were also convicted in the Liu murder, but critics complain that the case was closed before it could be ascertained whether Wong was following orders from higher-ups.

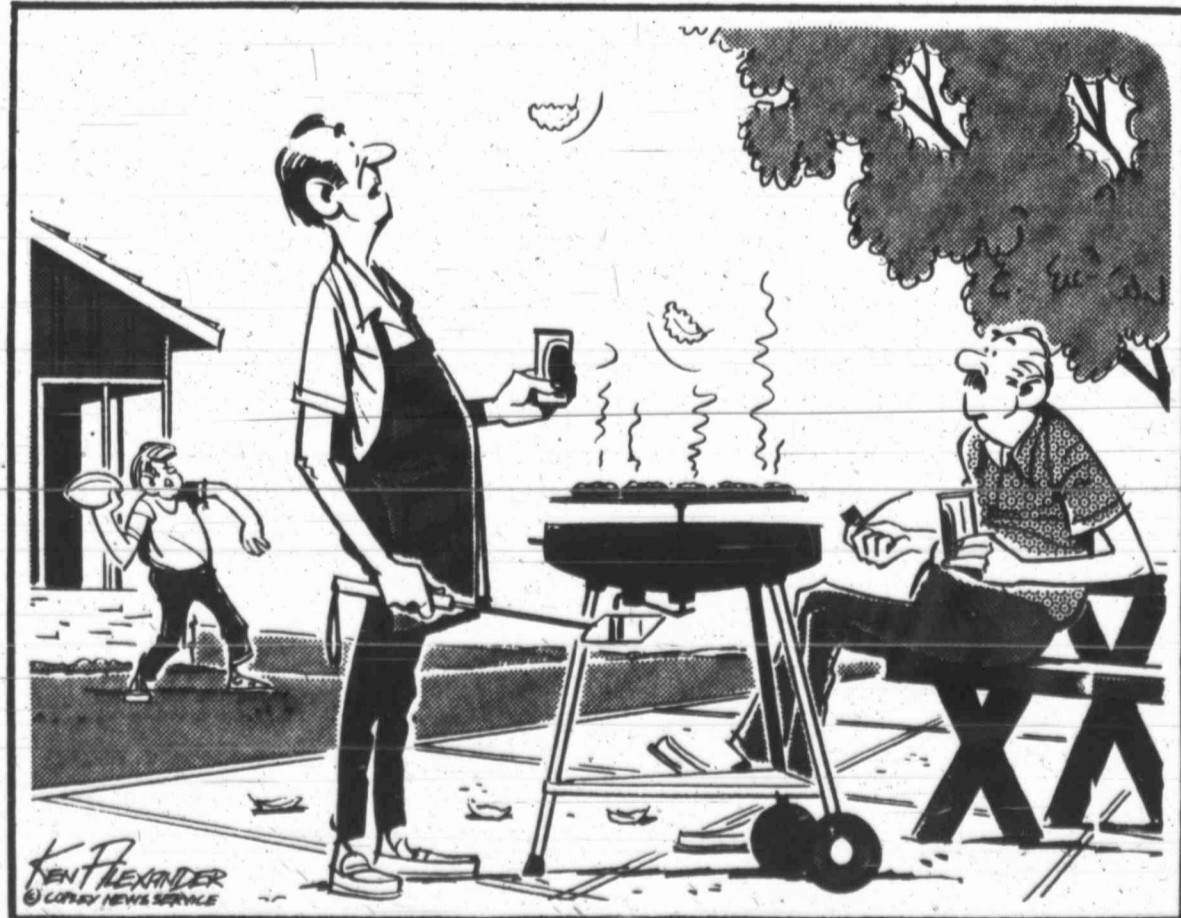

One of the jailed gang leaders, Chen Chi-li, was implicated in the undercover operation's heroin sting. He is believed to have helped orchestrate the deal from his prison cell — which would indicate the gang has close ties to the Taiwanese government.

PENTAGON WATCH: Acutely aware that its rented bases in the Philippines are subject to eviction notices in the event of a political upheaval, the Pentagon is taking pains to keep the locals happy on the farthest-west U.S. territory in the Pacific: Guam. Both the Navy and the Air Force, which have huge bases on the island, are engaged in "beautification" projects to keep Guam attractive to tourists yearning for a reasonable facsimile of Bali Ha'i. One thing that sours the relationship is the military's enthusiasm for shipping in fresh food from the mainland, instead of depending on local produce.

DISARM ISRAEL?: For years, it has been generally recognized that the Middle East is the likely place for a major war, including a superpower confrontation. Yet activist peace groups have concentrated mainly on anti-nuclear demonstrations in Europe and, more recently, on protests against U.S. policy in Latin America. The word we hear now, however, is that the peace groups are going to train their doves on the Middle East — even if it means demanding that Israel and its foes join in disarmament efforts.

MINI-EDITORIAL: It has occurred to us that perhaps we were a little rough on the closet royalists in this former British colony who were so unyielding by the visit of a rather ordinary young couple who happen to be the Prince and Princess of Wales. Their visit is mercifully receding into memory — but the damning record of the American media's coverage of Charles and Diana lives on, and it was unbelievably bad. Gushing and simpering, the American press made so much of the royal couple that it's no wonder glib social climbers thought the visit was something to take seriously.

Around The Rim

Farewells are difficult

By KEELY COGHLAN
I've never said goodbye well. Instead, I edge around leave-takings, discussing mundane things like rent and new jobs. I say the standard things: "Take care." "I wish you well." "Make sure you write."

We head off into a sunset, neither I nor my friends giving voice to unspoken thoughts. Once the car's packed, I get tongue-tied and forget to say how heartening a smile and a quiet compliment was on a bleak, grey day.

I'm leaving next week to take a job at the San Angelo Standard-Times. Right now, I'm mixed knee-high in boxes that clutter the living room, wondering how I accumulated seven-year-old copies of Texas Monthly, one brown mitten, an obscure phone number, a worn jeans jacket and other odd bits of the past.

I will miss this town. I'll miss my infrequent walks around the state park, the tall tales of prairie dogs roaming free on the airport runways, and my neighbors' gardening, gossip and golf.

I've been going crazy trying to take care of the odds and ends — I am a natural procrastinator — and I've probably missed several opportunities to tell friends I'm moving. I'm sorry; I've always been reluctant to say goodbye.

Actually saying the words is hard because I have to acknowledge what I'm leaving; if I think too much about it, I'll never take that first step out the door.

But to renew yourself, you have to take chances. New beginnings are hard; I'm consumed with nervousness as well as optimism.

And so I'm following (sort of) a great sage's advice, though instead of moving west I'm headed for the hills southeast of here.

My move is not without regrets nor a sense of satisfaction for my accomplishments. Big Spring is a comfortable town, a place I've grown accustomed to. The people are warm and welcoming.

Actors are told to leave their audiences always wanting more. I hope I've taken the advice to heart, and yet I find myself looking back to see what I'm missing. If I were Lot's wife, I too would be turned to salt.

Very simply, I've enjoyed my stay. Y'all take care.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Wednesday, Nov. 27, the 31st day of 1985. There are 34 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Nov. 27, 1978, San Francisco Mayor George Moscone and City Supervisor Harvey Milk, a gay-rights activist, were shot to death inside City Hall by former Supervisor Dan White. White served five years in prison for manslaughter. He was found dead this past Oct. 21, a suicide.

On this date: In 1901, the Army War College was established in Washington.

In 1910, New York's Pennsylvania Station opened. At that time, it was the world's largest railway terminal.

In 1942, during World War II, the French navy at Toulon scuttled its ships and submarines to prevent them from falling into the hands of the Nazis.

In 1945, General George C. Marshall was named special U.S. envoy to China to try to end hostilities between the Nationalists and the Communists.

In 1953, playwright Eugene O'Neill died at the age of 65.

In 1970, Pope Paul VI was wounded in the chest during a visit to the Philippines by a dagger-wielding Bolivian painter disguised as a priest.

In 1973, the U.S. Senate voted 92-3 to confirm Gerald R. Ford as vice president, succeeding Spiro T. Agnew.

Ten years ago: Thousands of young British doctors unhappy over pay began a slowdown, forcing dozens of hospitals in Britain to refuse patients or start closing.

Dr. Donohue

You can overdo the fiber bit

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When a person eats lots of fruits, vegetables, and cereals to get fiber the result can be elimination several times a day. It would seem that too much fiber can be as harmful as not enough. Has this question come up? — F.F.

You are right and you're the first to raise the question here. But people should not run into problems if they go about introducing fiber to their diets carefully. More on that later.

If you overdo fiber you can end up with mineral deficits, specifically those of zinc, copper, iron and magnesium. They are absorbed into fiber and don't have much of a chance of getting into the blood. Some fiber speeds passage of food through the digestive tract. Again, you can lose the full benefit of food nutrients. On top of this, fiber attracts digestive tract fluid. A certain amount of that is good. But overdone, the person can run into the kind of problem you cite in your letter.

In fact, it always takes the digestive tract time to get used to the idea of fiber increase. At first, there may be a lot of gas and a little diarrhea. So the person should start out on a small scale and increase fiber gradually. A typical American eats only about 10 grams of fiber a day. Our diet should include about 30 grams (20 more than is now the case). And just to give you an idea, a teaspoon of pure bran has two grams of fiber. Using that as a base for fiber increase, the person should take about four weeks to work up to a full dosage of three tablespoons.

There are many kinds of fiber and some perform different roles. Cellulose, for example, expedites passage of food, and pectins are water retainers. They also trap cholesterol and help in reducing blood levels. So it's best to get a mix of fiber from a mix of fiber foods — whole grains, vegetables, fresh fruits, as well as bran.

(And on the same topic):
DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I hear mentioned the importance of "whole grain" cereals, but it is never explained exactly what "whole grain" means. Can you tell me? — D.C.

The grain is the seed of cereal food — wheat, maize, oats, etc. Bran is the coating of the grain. Whole grain is the unmilled cereal, meaning the seed and its bran coating.

Historically, the invention of the roller mill led the way to our present fiberless food crisis. That device gave manufacturers an inexpensive means of stripping the white grain from its dark envelope. The resulting "processed" raw product gave us nice white bread flour. Some even claimed it tasted better, an opinion I would have to dispute on a personal taste basis.

In any event, we now know that maybe we went too far in the direction of fiber-deficient foods, so now we are trying to get whole grains and other sources of roughage back into our diets (for all the good reasons I mentioned in the preceding answer to F.F.'s question).

Many interested nutritionists labored hard to raise public awareness of the need to reintroduce proper amounts of fiber into their foods. Today, you can turn to the labels on many products to find fiber content listed. I just looked at the label on my Raisin Bran box and found that it contained "3 grams of fiber per ounce."

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My daughter had a lump removed from her breast. The opinion is that it was sclerosing adenosis. Can you tell me what this is? Could the breast become cancerous? — H.F.

It's not cancer. Sclerosing adenosis is a variation of the common and benign condition you've heard of as "fibrocystic breast." If you are asking if having sclerosing adenosis means your daughter will be at greater risk of developing breast cancer, the answer is no, it doesn't. And today we have many ways of examining breast lumps to determine cancerous conditions. Adenosis means the lump is of glandular origin (here breast glands) and sclerosing means a hardening.

What about constipation? Many can be relieved of it, both mentally and physically, by reading Dr. Donohue's booklet, "The Way to Stop Constipation." For a copy write to Dr. Donohue, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Are women who have had an early natural menopause more likely to develop osteoporosis later on? — Mrs. P.H.N.

That is generally so. The status of bone density at the time of the onset of menopause determines the degree of ultimate bone-thinning — if steps aren't taken to limit it. Smoking adds to the danger.

For a comprehensive discussion of how to cope with the change of life, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for his invaluable booklet, "Make Menopause Easier." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Count your blessings

DEAR READERS: By popular demand, here is my traditional Thanksgiving column:

Tomorrow is Thanksgiving Day, so take a few minutes to think about what you have to be thankful for.

How's your health? Not so good? Well, thank God you've lived this long. A lot of people haven't. You're hurting? Thousands — maybe millions — are hurting more. (Have you ever visited a veterans hospital? Or a rehabilitation clinic for crippled children?)

If you awakened this morning and were able to hear the birds sing, use your vocal cords to utter human sounds, walk to the breakfast table on two good legs and read the newspaper with two good eyes, praise the Lord! A lot of people couldn't.

How's your pocketbook? Thin? Well, most of the world is a lot poorer. No pensions. No welfare. No food stamps. No Social Security. In fact, one-third of the people in the world will go to bed hungry tonight.

Are you lonely? The way to have a friend is to be one. If nobody calls you, call someone. Go out of your way to do something nice for somebody. It's a sure cure for the blues.

Are you concerned about your country's future? Hooray! Our system has been saved by such concern. Concern for fair play under the law. Your country may not be a rose garden, but it also is not a patch of weeds.

Freedom rings! Look and listen. You can still worship at the church of your choice, cast a secret ballot and even criticize your government without fearing a knock on the head or a knock on the door at midnight. And if you want to live under a different system, you are free to go. There are no walls or fences — nothing to keep you here.

As a final thought, I'll repeat my Thanksgiving prayer: perhaps you will want to use it at your table tomorrow:

O, heavenly Father: We thank thee for food and remember the hungry.

We thank thee for health and remember the sick.

We thank thee for friends and remember the friendless.

We thank thee for freedom and remember the enslaved.

May these remembrances stir us to service.

That thy gifts to us may be used for others. Amen.

Have a wonderful Thanksgiving, and may God bless you and yours.
Love, ABBY

P.S. Want an instant high? The surest cure for the post-holiday blues is to do something nice for someone. Why not call someone who lives alone and invite him (or her) over for dinner or leftovers?

Better yet, call and say, "I'm coming to get you, and I'll see that you get home." (Many older people don't drive, and those who do don't like to go out alone after dark.)

Try it. And let me know the results.

Susan Lewis gives program on Texas wines

Susan Lewis presented a program on Texas wines to the GFWC-TFWC Big Spring Junior Woman's Club at a meeting Nov. 18 at the home of Marilyn Nehl.

Lewis discussed the different types of wine made in Texas and explained how wine making began in Texas.

A program on the origin of federation of woman's clubs was given by Cheryl Harris, federation counselor.

Members voted to help with the March of Dimes. Nancy Welch is chairperson. Members will be responsible for finding people to walk given blocks in the city to collect donations for the March of Dimes.

The club recently began an adopt-a-grandparent program. Each adoptive grandparent will be visited at least once a week by one or more club members.

The club's community improvement project is to help in the renovation of the downtown area. Susan McLellan is chairperson of the project. She gave a report on her meetings with the Heart of the City committee.

Members will make a large holiday basket to be given to a needy family in Big Spring.

Sue Robertson was installed as parliamentarian. Sheree Moates was installed as treasurer. Ginny Zobeck is a new member.

The next meeting will be a Christmas party at 7 p.m. Dec. 16 at the home of Karen Fraser. Members are to bring a Christmas item for exchange, a secret pal gift, food for the holiday basket and an item for the Northside Community Center.

Herald recipe exchange

By KIM KIRKHAM
Lifestyle Writer

Meredith Holly, consumer information specialist, recently demonstrated recipes from "Yuletide Yummies" by Energas.

About 45 people turned out for the cooking school. Some of the recipes she demonstrated follow.

A reader called the Lifestyle department and asked for our help in finding a recipe which has appeared on the label of a mayonnaise jar. The reader just has pieces of the puzzling recipe and she needs the full recipe. The recipe calls for broccoli, rice and tuna. If you have a recipe meeting this description that you got off the back of a mayonnaise jar, please send it to Box 1431 so we can share it with our readers.

From now until Christmas, the Recipe Exchange will feature holiday recipes. Anyone wanting to share their favorite recipes may mail them to the Herald Recipe Exchange, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

BROCCOLI DIP IN FRENCH BREAD

1 pkg. (10 oz.) frozen chopped broccoli
1 cup dairy sour cream
1 cup mayonnaise
2 Tbsps. chopped green onions, including tops
2 Tbsps. chopped fresh parsley
1 jar (2 oz.) diced pimiento, drained
1/2 tsp. dill weed
Salt to taste
1/4 tsp. garlic powder
1 lb. loaf French bread, unsliced*

Thaw broccoli; squeeze out excess moisture with paper towel. Finely chop broccoli. In small bowl, combine sour cream and mayonnaise; blend well. Stir in broccoli and remaining dip ingredients. Refrigerate at least 2 hours to blend flavors.

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Slice off top crust of French bread; hollow out inside of loaf. Cut removed bread into chunks; place chunks on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 350 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly toasted. Spoon dip into hollowed out bread loaf. Garnish as desired. Serve with toasted bread chunks, crackers or vegetable dippers. Makes 4 cups.

* Can also use hallowed out Hawaiian bread.

SESAME TOAST

2 Tbsps. sesame seeds
2 Tbsps. butter
6 Tbsps. butter
1/4 tsp. basil
1/4 tsp. rosemary
1/4 tsp. marjoram
1 small loaf very thin sliced bread

Over medium flame, brown sesame seeds in 2 tablespoons butter. In small bowl, blend 6 tablespoons butter and the herbs; stir in browned sesame seeds. Trim crusts from bread. Cut each bread slice into thirds. Spread with herb butter. Bake at 300 degrees for 20 minutes or until browned. Store in airtight container.

SURPRISE PUNCH

1 can (12 oz.) orange juice concentrate*
1 can (12 oz.) apple juice concentrate*
1 can (46 oz.) pineapple juice
1 bottle (2 liter) sugar-free ginger ale or lemon-lime carbonated beverage

Reconstitute the orange and apple juice as directed on the can; add pineapple juice. Freeze several hours or overnight for a slushy consistency or serve chilled.

APPLE COLESLAW

3 cups shredded cabbage (1/2 cabbage)
1 medium Winesap apple, chopped
1 medium Granny Smith apple, chopped
1/2 cup salted peanuts
1/2 cup raisins
Your choice of salad dressing
1 to 2 Tbsps. lemon juice

Combine all ingredients. Toss with your favorite dressing and sprinkle with lemon juice.

PECAN PIE BARS

1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
2 Tbsps. brown sugar
1/2 cup butter or margarine
2 eggs
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
3/4 cup chopped pecans
2 Tbsps. butter or margarine, melted
1 tsp. vanilla
1/8 tsp. salt

In small bowl, combine flour and 2 tablespoons brown sugar. Stir in 1/2 cup butter until dough begins to hold together. Press into bottom of greased 9-inch square baking pan. Bake 350 degrees for 12 to 15 minutes or until just firm. In medium bowl, lightly beat eggs and 1/2 cup brown sugar. Add cor-syrup, pecans, melted butter, vanilla and salt; mix well, pour over crust. Bake 25 minutes or until firm. May have to bake about 10 minutes longer so bars are firm and not runny. Bars will caramelize on edges. Cool in pan or rack. Cut into bars.

ROCKY-ROAD CHOCOLATE WREATHS

1 to 1 1/4 pounds milk or semisweet chocolate, broken in pieces
1 cup broken walnuts or pecans
1/2 cup golden raisins or snipped dried apricots
1 cup miniature marshmallows

Generously grease two 8-inch foil pie pans and outsides of 2 small straight sided glasses 2 1/2 inches in diameter. Place a glass upside down in center of each pan. Melt chocolate in top of double boiler set over simmering water. Stir until smooth. Pour 1/4 the chocolate in each pan. Spread evenly around glass with metal spatula. Sprinkle with 1/4 the walnuts, 1/2 the raisins and marshmallows. Drizzle remaining chocolate over tops; press in remaining walnuts and raisins. Chill until firm. Gently remove from pan; ease glass away from center. Store in cool place up to 2 weeks. Makes 2 wreaths, 12 servings each. For gift giving, wrap wreaths in plastic wrap, tie with ribbon and place in tissue-lined foil pie pan.

Note: May add a small amount of paraffin to chocolate mixture to add firmness around the edges of the finished wreath. This keeps it from getting too soft.

EVERYTHING BUT

1 tsp. chili powder
2 tsps. ground oregano
2 tsps. black pepper
1 Tbsp. garlic powder
3 Tbsps. dry mustard
1/2 cup + 1 Tbsp. onion powder
3 Tbsps. paprika
1 Tbsp. poultry seasoning

Combine all seasonings. Place in shakers and use instead of salt. Makes approximately 1 cup, so share with friends.

CHRISTMAS SCENT

(Keep this mixture brewing on your gas cooktop and you'll know Christmas is in the air)

3 sticks (4-inch) cinnamon
3 bay leaves
1/4 cup whole cloves
1/2 lemon, halved
1/2 orange, halved
4 cups water

Combine all ingredients in a teakettle or saucepan, and bring to a boil; reduce heat and simmer as long as desired. Check often, and add additional water, if needed. Mixture may be stored in refrigerator several days and reused.

HOLIDAY CHEESE SPREAD

4 cups grated Cheddar cheese
1/2 cup whipping cream
1 cup mayonnaise
Red pepper to taste
1 cup pecans, finely chopped

Trim fat from steak. Freeze until firm and then slice into thin strips. Marinate in remaining ingredients overnight in glass or plastic container. Place meat on a rack in baking dish. Bake at 250 degrees for 8 hours or until meat is thoroughly dry.

ITALIAN CRESCENTS

1 can (8 oz.) refrigerated crescent rolls
1/2 lb. ground beef, cooked and drained
3 Tbsps. ketchup
2 Tbsps. chopped green pepper
1/2 tsp. instant onion.
Salt and pepper to taste
1/8 tsp. oregano
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
1 can (4 oz.) chopped green chilies
1/2 cup grated Monterey Jack cheese

Unroll and separate crescent dough into 8 triangles. Combine ground beef, ketchup, green pepper, onion and seasonings. Spread 1/4 mixture on each of the 4 triangles. Top with remaining triangles, press edges together with tines of fork to seal. Place on ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes or until brown. Heat tomato sauce with green chilies. Spoon over hot pastries. Sprinkle with cheese and place under broiler, for a minute or two. Makes 4 servings.

Strawberry preserves
Assorted crackers

Combine cheese and cream. Add mayonnaise and pepper and mix well. Add chopped pecans. Mold with hands into any shape desired and refrigerate. When ready to serve, pour strawberry preserves over the top. Serve with crackers.

BEEF JERKY

1 flank steak
1 tsp. seasoned salt
1 tsp. liquid smoke
1/2 tsp. garlic powder
1 small onion, minced
1/2 tsp. chili powder
1/2 cup Worcestershire sauce
1/2 cup soy sauce

A time for giving thanks

Last week marked my second-year anniversary with the Big Spring Herald. During my stint I've grown as a person as well as a sports writer in the Spring City. I've really enjoyed serving this fair community.

I couldn't have had so many good times without the help of local and area people in the sports field. Since Thanksgiving is only a day away, I'd like to salute the following for their efforts in making the Herald sports department a fun place to work.

EVERETT BLACKBURN — By far the most underrated person in the Big Spring High School sports system. It's easy to overlook the BSHS trainer because he always does such a good job, you tend just expect of him. Whether he's rehabilitating a player's injured knee, phoning in game results or offering fatherly advice to some troubled youth. You can always count on Everett.

QUINN EUDY — This man has made a giant step in getting Steer footballers to believe in themselves. It showed in late season upsets of two top twenty teams. This man is not interested in making a good showing, he wants to win; and it's rubbing off on his players.

HARLAN SMITH — As far as turning in meet results, you couldn't ask for a better man than the Big Spring High School swim coach. A very patient coach who is striving to make BSHS a swimming contender. He's also a whiz at keeping unhappy parents off sport writers' backs.

RON LOGBACK — The Athletic Director has done a good job in running a tidy ship at Big Spring High. A man that comes through with valuable information when no one else can. He doesn't just sit behind his desk and give orders. Logback doesn't mind sweating for the betterment of school athletic functions.

SUSAN SHARP — She said she would lead the Lady Steers to a volleyball crown and she did. A very enthusiastic lady who knows how to get the most from her kids. She's also learned how to use the telephone this year. Reporting good news is a much easier chore.

JAN EAST — The Forsan head football coach is one of the easiest coaches to interview, and one of the best when it comes to returning calls. He doesn't beat around the bush, he gives you straight answers. He has lifted Forsan out of the doldrums and transformed it into a Class A power. East is also pretty good about giving away caps at track meets.

J.V. MARTINEZ — The coach of the Big Spring Boxing Club is willing to work with the media, not to mention being a very patient man. I should know, I've made him the coach of the wrong boxing club three times this year. Thanks for understanding J.V.

WALLACE GILL — It's very few times you'll see the local YMCA Director without a smile on his face. He's constantly finding new ways to promote the "Y" and always manages to get his information to the paper in plenty of time. He can also tell you some interesting sports trivia.

ANNA RODRIGUEZ — The BSHS girls manager has helped me along the way during my tenure. Whether she's keeping stats, running the scoreboard or leading the cheers for the Lady Steers, Anna is always in a cheerful mood.

ROCKY VIERRA — This is my favorite slow-pitch softball umpire. No only is he's a good ump, he a very good person. You won't find very many ball players that will disagree. A man that has put on numerous softball tournaments so that we softball freaks can have something to do in the summer. Keep on calling 'em Rock.

ED SPARLING — The head coach of Howard's men's basketball team is a dynamo. The man's enthusiasm never ceases to amaze me. And you can bet if the Hawks play with as much zeal as Sparling maintains, they'll go far. Plus, you've got to love a man who greets one and all with a jolly, "Hey baby!"

DON STEVENS — The Hawk Queen's coach is a very patient man. Trying to drum up publicity for his girls is a thankless job, but Stevens is ever vigilant. I certainly appreciate the effort, makes keeping up with the Queens a pleasure.

GLORIA PETERSON — Howard College Athletic Department's resident angel, Gloria always has the information we need, and right on time. She deserves a big bonus for maintaining composure around the frantic offices of Messrs. Sparling and Stevens, and for having the prettiest smile in the Coliseum.

College recruiting out of hand

Texans ready to get tough

By DR. JAMES DYER
Harte-Hanks News Service
Most Texans would impose tough penalties on individuals involved in any cash payoffs to college athletes, but they also would be easier on the teams, the findings of the latest Texas Poll reveal.

Majorities of Texans said they would impose a fine on any booster who paid money to athletes, make a player give back any payoff he had received, and suspend without pay any coach who condoned the practice.

One thousand Texans interviewed by telephone Oct. 17-31 were asked to consider the following hypothetical case:

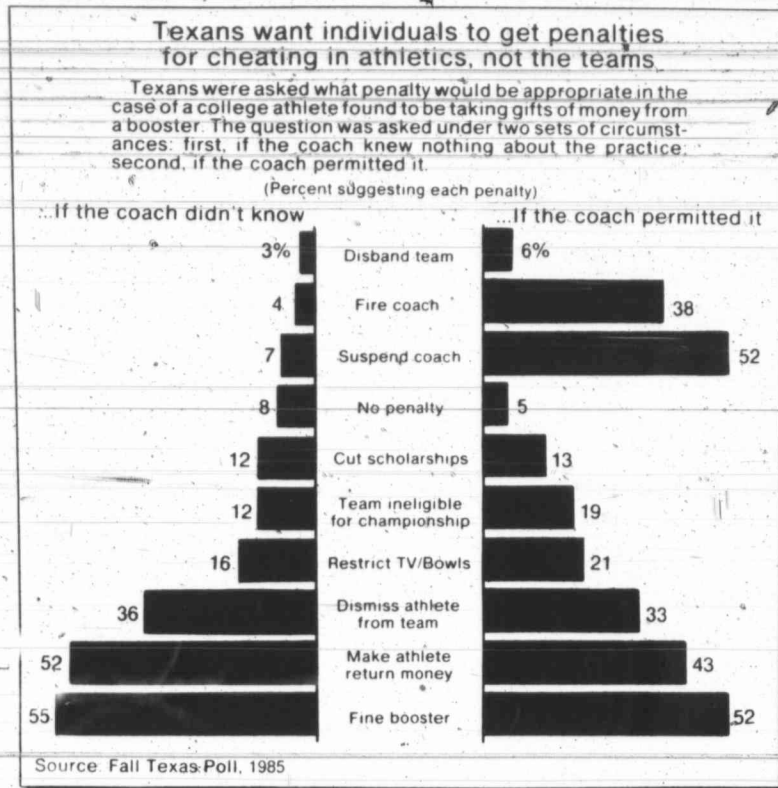

"Suppose a college athlete takes gifts of money from a booster, a practice the athlete's coach knew nothing about. What is an appropriate penalty, if any, under these circumstances?"

And, "Suppose the coach knew the athlete was taking money from a booster and permitted it. What is an appropriate penalty, if any, under these circumstances?"

In both cases, more Texans picked punishments levied against individual offenders rather than against the entire team or school.

The National Collegiate Athletic Association, which polices college athletics, may impose a variety of penalties against colleges that violate NCAA rules, ranging from a private reprimand of the athlete to dissolution of the entire program.

Possible NCAA penalties include declaring the offending athlete ineligible to play, making the athlete give the money back, declaring the team ineligible for its conference championship, restricting the team's TV and bowl appearances, reducing the school's number of athletic scholarships and disbanding the team.

The penalty on which most Texans agreed was to fine the booster involved: 55 percent chose this if the coach was in the dark about the payoff, 52 percent when the coach permitted it. The NCAA does not fine overzealous boosters; it might "disassociate" a booster from a particular school, prohibiting contact with the athletes there.

The coach's job could be jeopardized in a payoff scandal, but not directly by the NCAA, which considers it a personnel decision by the individual school. In the survey, only 7 percent favor suspending without pay a coach who knew nothing of payoffs, but that number jumps to 52 percent if the coach permitted payoffs.

The innocent coach would risk firing from just 4 percent of Texans, but 38 percent would favor firing a coach who permitted payoffs.

Many Texans also felt the athlete in question should be forced to give the money back: 52 percent if the coach knew nothing, 43 percent if the coach knew.

A third would kick the athlete off the team: 36 percent would if the coach didn't know, 33 percent would if he did.

Only 16 percent of Texans would restrict the team's television and bowl appearances, although that number rises to 21 percent if the coach knew of the payoff.

Removing the team's eligibility for a conference championship is the choice of 12 percent of Texans, and their ranks increase to 19 percent if the coach knew what was happening.

The school's athletic scholarships also would be cut by 12 percent of Texans even if the coach was innocent, 13 percent if the coach knew.

Less than one Texan in 12 thought there should be no penalty involved in either circumstance.

The Texas Poll, sponsored by Harte-Hanks Communications Inc., is conducted by Texas A&M University's Public Policy Resources Laboratory. Results may vary by as much as 3 percentage points in either direction because of sampling error.

Irish coaches have toughest college job

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer
Time ran out on Gerry Faust on Tuesday.

Or did that really happen five years ago, when he moved into the hottest seat in college football, the coaching job at Notre Dame?

Lou Holtz, Dick Vermeil, George Welsh and the other candidates mentioned as potential successors might be advised to carefully consider just what awaits any man who accepts the coaching job under the Golden Dome.

Understand first that working in the athletic department at South Bend is sort of like being curator in a museum. All around you are momentoes of the storied past — battered game balls from memorable victories, paeans to the Four Horsemen, tributes to the glorious regimes of Rockne, Leahy and Parseghian. The place almost echoes with the sounds of a glorious football history. It is a legacy of legends.

Into this pressure cooker stepped Faust, a genuinely nice man whose coaching credentials began and ended at Moeller High School in Cincinnati. This is not the very best preparation for a job of this magnitude. The souvenirs and portraits that line the halls at the Athletic and Convocation Center in the middle of the Notre Dame campus seemed to peer down on him permanently, saying to the new man, "OK, it's your turn now. Let's see what you can do, coach."

It all started so well for Faust, too. His first team in 1981 won its first game, beating Louisiana State 27-9, a convincing victory that pushed Notre Dame into the No. 1 ranking in the nation.

Hey, this is easy, right?

Not exactly. The Irish lost their next game to Michigan and dropped to No. 13. Then they lost to Purdue and tumbled out of the poll. That is difficult for the Irish to do because the voters, like the fans, remember the glory years and enjoy canonizing this school whenever possible. In fact, Notre Dame has made at least a token appearance in the poll in each of Faust's five years. Tokenism, however, does not work here.

Notre Dame finished 5-6 that first season, its first losing year since the disastrous 2-7 one-year stewardship of Hugh Devore in 1963. The wolves, smelling blood, began assembling, rallying behind cries of "Oust Faust," cruel treatment for a gentle man, who is also a gentleman. They have been there, waiting, ever since.

They come with the territory. Just ask Dan Devine, who went 57-16-1 in six years and won a national championship in 1977 but still had them chasing him from time to time.

In the case of Faust, an ex-

Notre Dame head coach Gerry Faust, shown here at team introductions against LSU in South Bend, Indiana, announced his resignation Tuesday from what most say is the toughest college coaching job in the nation. University officials will announce the selection of a new head coach later this afternoon.

ample: Last Saturday his team marched crisply downfield on its first possession against Louisiana State and scored a touchdown. And then, without explanation, the offense closed down like an engine whose ignition had been shut off. The early touchdown turned out to be their only points and they lost 10-7.

Three days later, Faust resigned. The wolves had their man.

UTEP relieves Yung of coaching duties

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Bill Yung, head football coach at the University of Texas at El Paso, has become the second major Texas university coach to be fired this month.

Yung, who had compiled a 1-9 record so far this season, was fired Tuesday. His last game will be Dec. 7 against Western Athletic Conference foe Wyoming in Melbourne, Australia, Athletic Director Bill Cords said.

"It's been a tough year for him," said Grant Teaff, head football coach at Baylor. "I've talked to him a few times this fall. I know he got some people injured early. I'm disappointed to hear it."

The 50-year-old Yung coached under Teaff at Baylor for several years.

Yung's termination comes on the heels of the firing of Texas Tech head football coach Jerry Moore. The Red Raiders coach was fired a week ago.

"I'm very biased, but I think the firing of Yung, like the firings of other coaches recently ... is not justified," said Dee Margó, an El Paso businessman.

"I feel he was hindered in doing some things by the administration. He was promised certain things, but funds were not there to do what was promised. So he had to raise the funds," Margó said.

The Miners' only victory this season was a 23-19 upset over Brigham Young University in an Oct. 26 WAC clash.

When the Miners defeated Brigham Young, last season's national champion, the Cougars had lost just one game in 1985 when UCLA snapped what had been the nation's longest winning streak.

Yung, who compiled a 7-38 record during four seasons at UTEP, said he did not want to talk to reporters Tuesday. He has one year remaining on a five-year contract that pays him about $50,000 a year.

"We have great respect and admiration for coach Yung and deeply appreciate all that he has done for the university, the football program and the city. We wish him the very best for the future," Cords said.

"I will meet with the assistant coaches as soon as possible to discuss this situation. We will begin an immediate search for a new football coach."

Max Bowman, assistant head football coach, recruiting coordinator and line coach, said he believed the university had seen improvement in the football program under Yung.

"We recruited against the best. And we took some players away from some of the best people (schools) in the country. The Tony Russos, the Seth Joyners, Don Sommerses, the John Harveys, Tony Garzas ... I don't think these type players were here when they came," Bowman said.

"I'll walk out of here with my head high," he said, just hours after learning his boss had been fired and that the assistant coaches would be out of work after the season finale Dec. 7. "Things will work out for the best. Maybe it doesn't always look that way, but there's a plan."

Yung has been involved in football since strapping on a uniform at Ranger, Texas, High School in 1948.

After playing at Texas Christian University, where he lettered and played in the 1956 Cotton Bowl, Yung went on to coach at high schools in Fort Sill, Okla., and Coleman and Garland, Texas.

He joined the Baylor staff as line coach in 1972, becoming offensive coordinator under Teaff the following year. His stint at Baylor included a trip to the Cotton Bowl against Alabama in 1974.

Yung became head coach at West Texas State in 1977 and guided the Buffaloes to a 26-27-2 record, a pair of Missouri Valley Conference championships and was twice named Coach of the Year in the league.

"Bill was a vital part of us being able to establish a winning program at Baylor, and, no doubt about it, he turned it around at West Texas," Teaff said.

Steers fall to Brownfield

BROWNFIELD — The Big Spring Steers took an eight point lead into the locker room at halftime in their game against Brownfield but could manage only six points in the third quarter resulting in a 57-50 loss to the District 3-3A Cubs Wednesday night in Cub gymnasium.

Led by the 15 first half points of sophomore post Brian Mayfield, the Steers looked good in amassing a 32-24 lead but ran into foul trouble in the last half. Mayfield was the game's high scorer with 21 points.

The Steers were whistled for 21 fouls in the game and provided the margin of victory despite the Cubs less than 50 percent shooting from the line.

The Steers dropped to 1-3 on the year. They will play again Friday morning at 11 a.m. in the Tall City

Classic in Midland's Chapparell Center.

STEERS (50) — Dewayne Sherman, 3-0-6; Charles Young, 3-2-8; Colin Carroll, 1-0-2; Sydney Parker, 5-1-11; Brian Mayfield, 10-1-21; Paul Decker, 1-0-2; Totals, 23-4-50.

BROWNFIELD (57) — Ellis, 2-2-6; Perkins, 6-3-15; Andrews, 6-1-13; McGaha, 1-0-2; Cantrell, 6-2-14; Aulburg, 2-3-7; Totals, 23-11-57.

Celtics down 76ers 98-91

By The Associated Press
For years, the Boston Celtics and Philadelphia 76ers have played each other to a virtual standoff. This season the difference is noticeable.

"Their size, their strength, wore us down," 76ers Coach Matt Guokas said after Boston defeated Philadelphia 98-91 Tuesday night, the Celtics' second victory over the 76ers in five days.

Six-foot-10 Kevin McHale, guarded most of the game by 6-6 Charles Barkley, had 20 points and 13 rebounds, while 7-0 Robert Parish added 22 points and nine rebounds for the Celtics, now 12-2 and six games ahead of the 76ers in the standings.

The 76ers never got even again after Boston's fourth-quarter rally, although they got within one on two occasions.

A crowd of 17,921, the 10th straight regular-season sellout for a Celtics-76ers game in Philadelphia, saw the 76ers rally from a 10-point deficit to tie the score 50-50 at halftime and surge from a nine-point deficit to lead 76-74 after three quarters.

"Lucky bounces went our way at the end," said Larry Bird, who had 17 points, nine rebounds and 11 assists, but hit only six of 17 field-goal attempts for Boston. "I'm tickled to come in here and get a win. It's never easy."

Barkley had 24 points to lead the 76ers.

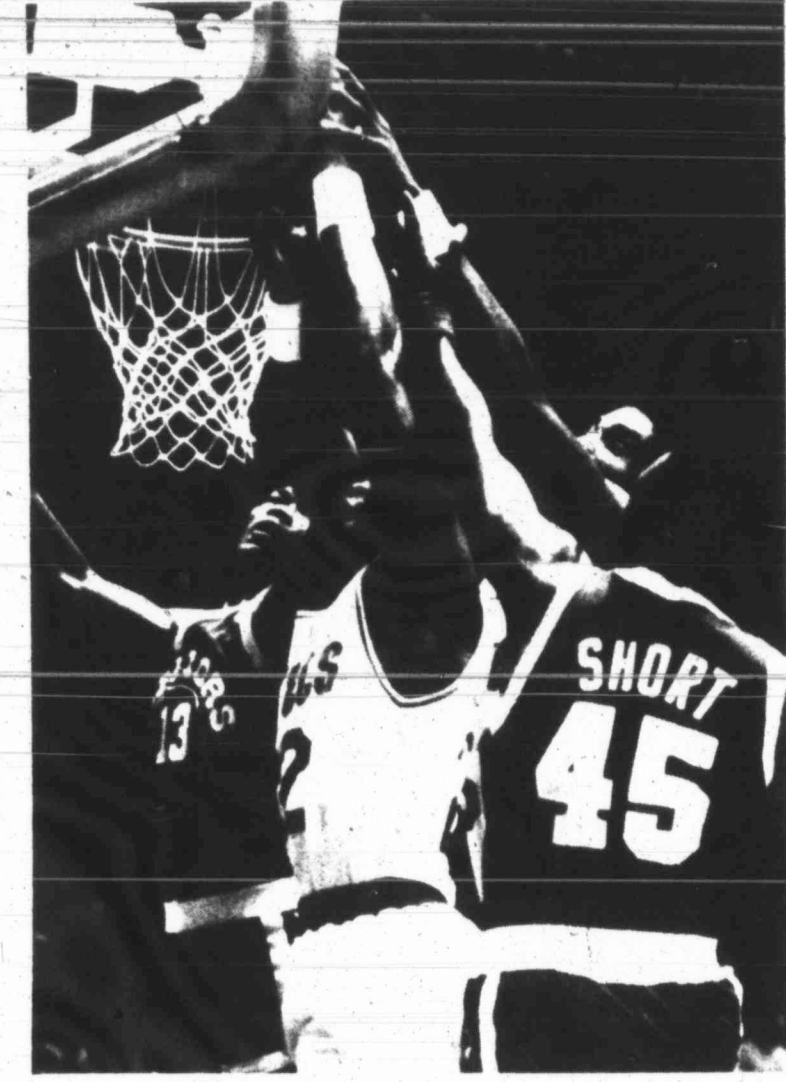

Rockets 130, Warriors 108
Houston remained unbeaten in nine home games as Akeem Olatunji and Lewis Lloyd both scored 21 points against Golden State.

The Rockets stretched a 58-49 halftime lead to 18 points by outscoring the Warriors 42-33 in the third period. Lloyd scored 14 points and John Lucas collected 10 of his 18 assists in the quarter.

Ralph Sampson, who scored a career-low two points in his last game, came back to post 18 points and 11 rebounds for the Rockets.

Bulls 128, Nuggets 123
Denver's lead over Houston in the Midwest Division was cut to one-half game as the Nuggets fell to Chicago.

George Gervin scored 27 points and Quentin Dailey added 24 for the Bulls, who won for only the third time in 11 road games.

Pistons 113, Cavaliers 98
Detroit, off to its best start since 1970, improved its record to 11-5 as John Long scored 21 points to lead six Pistons in double figures against Cleveland. The Cavaliers played without injured starters World B. Free and Phil Hubbard.

Hawks 104, Knicks 94
Dominique Wilkins scored 21 of his 35 points in the second quarter, 11 of them on free throws, as Atlanta sent New York to its 15th straight road loss.

Mavericks 112, Bulls 99
Dallas got sparkling play from bench players Derek Harper, Jay Vincent and James Donaldson in its victory over Washington.

Harper led the Mavericks with 21 points, while Vincent scored 19, 10 of them in the second quarter. Donaldson, acquired from the Los Angeles Clippers for Kurt Nimphius on Monday, had nine points and 11 rebounds in his first game in a Dallas uniform.

SuperSonics 131, Clippers 99
Tom Chambers scored 17 of his season-high 28 points in the first half as Seattle built a 22-point halftime lead and went on to beat Los Angeles.

The Clippers suffered their ninth loss in 10 games.

Kings 111, Suns 107
Sacramento won for the first time in its new home, handing Phoenix its ninth consecutive road defeat.

James Edwards scored 30 points and Walter Davis 29 to lead the Suns, who are 2-14 overall.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, NOV. 28, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a splendid day and evening to go after what you want with courage and confidence, especially since your mind is working in sensible directions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to see as many key people as possible and get much of worth done cleverly. An ideal time for communicating with others.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You have far better ideas now than you have for some time about how best to add to present abundance.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Your ingenuity is high and you can put any course into action that interests you, so get right to it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You like to make a plan before you go after your fondest desires and this is wise, but schedule your time well.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get in touch with fine friends in the morning, and then discuss your personal wishes and they can be of assistance to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Get your work done efficiently so that a higher-up may be considering you for a promotion. Go to bed early tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have wanted to expand for some time and this is a good day to make the right contacts and get the ball rolling.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Contact a trusted adviser who can assist you in clearing up problematical affairs and get good results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can reach a meeting of minds with associates if you use patience with them. Be happy.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you study your work and are enthused about it, you can impress a bigwig most favorably.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) This can be a banner day for you, both in business and social affairs. Get your finest talents perfected.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study ideas you may have to improve family life, and then put them across without delay. Be active and happy.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be full of energy and intelligence and can meet life bravely. Success starts early here since there is an infectious charm that few can resist, so be sure to give as fine an academic education and your progeny can sail through life almost miraculously.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

PUBLIC NOTICE
 Texas Utilities Electric Company (TUEC) has filed with the Public Utility Commission of Texas a tariff for intrastate wheeling of electric power, pursuant to Substantive Rule 23.66 of the Public Utility Commission of Texas. This tariff is to be applicable to those qualifying facilities with a rated capacity greater than one megawatt, who wish to wheel energy through the Company's transmission system to another utility. It is not applicable to any wheeling transaction covered by contract.
 A complete copy of the proposed tariff for transmission wheeling service is on file with the Public Utility Commission of Texas at Austin, Texas.
 Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223 or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf within 15 days of this notice.

UT-Arlington shocked by football decision
 ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Coach Chuck Curtis of the University of Texas at Arlington had no hint of what was about to happen when Athletic Director Bill Reeves invited him to lunch.
 The UTA Mavericks had faltered late in the Southland Conference football race and posted a 4-6-1 record, but with most of his freshmen redshirted there was great hope for 1986.
 "Bill didn't look very good and I was wondering if there was a death in the family," said Curtis. "It turned out to be the death of our football program."
 UTA, which started playing intercollegiate football in 1919 on the junior college level, dropped the sport on Monday because of the school's athletic budget deficit of $950,000.
 "A level of deficit financing has been reached which cannot be continued," President W.H. Nedderman said. "Thus, we have no choice but to immediately discontinue our most costly sport, football, and thus reduce our athletic budget by over $1 million a year."
 Nedderman said UTA would continue to have basketball, golf, baseball and track.
 Curtis' contract, which runs through December 1986, will be honored and the scholarship players have a choice of staying at the school to complete their education or go elsewhere without any loss of eligibility.
 The Mavericks became a senior college in 1959 and joined the Southland Conference in 1964. UTA dropped from NCAA Division I-A to I-AA three years ago. Curtis was in his second season after coming here from Cleburne High School.
 "I felt like we were just getting things turned around here," said Curtis. "We had redshirted all but four of our freshman to get ready for the future. You talk about a shock. Nobody saw this thing coming. This is very rough."
 During the 1985 season, UTA averaged 5,600 spectators per game, with the biggest crowd — 7,205 fans — recorded on opening night.
 Maverick Stadium was constructed in 1977 as a sign UTA was ready to stay competitive in football.
 UTA has sent players to professional football, including Buddy Parker of the Pittsburgh Steelers in the 1940s, Skip Butler of the Houston Oilers, Dexter Bussey of Detroit, Derrick Jensen of the Los Angeles Raiders, and Roy Dewalt, who led the British Columbia Lions to the Grey Cup championship this week.
