Reagan lobbies for tax reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today told members of the House in a letter that a vote against tax overhaul this week "would doom our efforts to achieve real tax reform for the American people," perhaps for years to come.

Turning up the heat on what had been regarded by some members as his lukewarm support for both Republican and Democratic tax plans, Reagan said either measure would provide "substantial improvement over present law and represent a significant and essential first step toward real tax reform."

But his spokesman, Larry Speakes, who read Reagan's letter for reporters and television cameras to help draw attention to it, refused to say whether the president would sign the tax bill produced by the Democratic-controlled House Ways and Means Committee if it were to become law.

What Reagan wants, Speakes said, is for one bill or the other to go to the Senate to keep the issue alive. The spokesman said Reagan would telephone a couple of Republican House members today to lobby for their votes and might step up his personal efforts as the House votes draw closer.

"A tremendous amount of work has already gone into the process that has brought us this far," Reagan said in his letter. "If a bill does not move forward from the House now, it is reasonable to suggest that tax reform might be 'dead' for several years."

Although the Ways and Means Committee bill is far from what Reagan originally sent to Congress last spring, the president said both it and the Republican alternative would substantially reduce individual and corporate tax rates, increase personal exemptions and standard deductions to benefit the working poor, curtail tax shelters and impose "a stiff minimum tax," all goals he set when he initiated the drive toward an overhaul of the income tax system.

On Saturday, Reagan used his REAGAN page 2-A

Crooker: county favors tax pact

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Howard County "is very much in favor of contracting" with Big Spring Independent School District and renewing a contract with City of Big Spring for collection of taxes, Commissioner William Crooker said today.

Commissioners discussed the contracts submitted by the city and school district this morning in a regularly scheduled commissioner's court meeting.

Crooker said no action was taken on the requests, but commissioners did ask County Attorney Tim Yeats to resolve two or three minor questions raised during this morning's discussion, Crooker said.

He said commissioners have scheduled the tax collection contracts for action at the Dec. 23 meeting.

Tax Assessor-Collector Dorothy Moore "doesn't anticipate any problems" in collecting the taxes for the school district, Crooker said. Moore's office already collects for the city. "The problem is the heavy collection duties after the Christmas holidays," he said.

Crooker said Moore's office would be able to assure deposits are made either the day the monies were received or the following day. "They (school and city) don't want their monies to lay in the office and not draw any interest," Crooker said.

Moore's office currently collects taxes for Howard County, Howard County Junior College District, Howard County Water Control and Improvement District and the cities of Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan. Exact cost of collection for COUNTY page 5-A

Mayors support increased taxes

SEATTLE (AP) — The nation's municipal leaders are endorsing a House tax-revision plan but coupling it with a plea for President Reagan and Congress to raise taxes and spare domestic programs from "irreparable damage" through indiscriminate budget cutting.

Cleveland Mayor George V. Voinovich, president of the National League of Cities and a Republican, said Sunday that federal red ink must be stemmed through increased taxes because aid to cities and other federal domestic programs have taken enough cuts already.

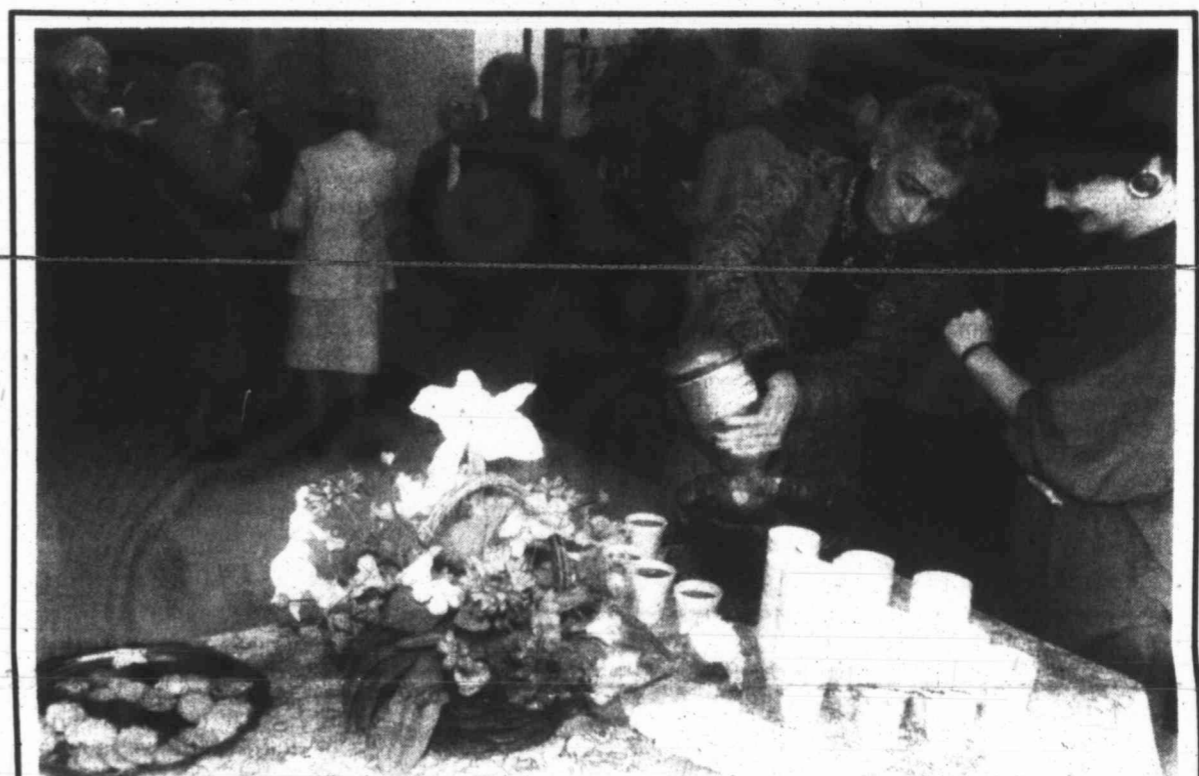

"The only response we seem to be getting from Washington, the administration and Congress, is that those of you on the domestic side must take more cuts, must make more sacrifices," he said.

"If the federal government abdicates its responsibility toward municipal spending it will do irreparable damage to the quality of life in our cities and do irreparable damage to the citizens."

Voinovich spoke as more than 4,000 mayors, council members and other municipal officials met for the annual, four-day Congress of Cities.

Directors of the National League of Cities immediately adopted a resolution putting the association of more than 1,200 municipalities in favor of the tax reform bill approved by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The group voiced reservations about provisions that would limit the ability of cities to offer bonds to raise revenue and promote development. But the group considered the House committee version a victory since it would continue to allow taxpayers to deduct their state and local tax bills — a provision the version Reagan offered would have repealed. Experimental cure kills cancer patient

WASHINGTON (AP) — An experimental cancer treatment that uses a hormone to turn the body's ordinary white blood cells into roving cancer killers has killed one patient who received it, a doctor at the National Cancer Institute said.

The experimental treatment, which researchers say can destroy or dramatically shrink tumors even after they have spread, was announced last week.

Dr. Steven Rosenberg, director of surgery at the National Cancer Institute, said in an interview Sunday that one death had been associated with the treatment, and strongly reiterated a warning that the therapy carries potentially dangerous side effects.

"There was one patient who had cancer that had spread throughout his body. It was present in his lungs, his liver, his soft tissues, his kidneys, that did experience toxicity of the treatment and did die, and the treatment probably did play some role in that," said Rosenberg, who also is heading the research team developing the treatment.

In the treatment, doctors remove cancer patients' own white blood cells and grow them in test tubes with a hormone called interleukin-2, which programs the cells to seek out cancer. Then the blood cells are put back into the patients' bodies, where they are bolstered further with injections of interleukin-2.

The first human use of the treatment, called adoptive immunotherapy, was reported by

Jolly old elf

Canadian post office helps spread cheer far and wide

MONTREAL (AP) — Santa Claus got more than half a million letters last year from children all over the world, delivered in care of the Canadian post office.

Santa can expect even more mail this year. But every one of those children — so long as there's a return address — gets a reply from the jolly old elf, with an assist from several thousand Canada Post employees who volunteer as Santa's helpers.

Cheryl Ann wrote from Trinidad, for instance, to say, "I have never written to you before and I'm scared. I've seen pictures of you in your red suit in your sledge drawn by reindeers." She wanted a doll.

"Ho! Ho! Ho! What a pleasant surprise to find your very special letter in the big bundle of mail I received from the post office today," Santa wrote back to Cheryl Ann.

Canada's Santa project began 13 years ago when two postal workers noticed a handful of letters to Santa Claus headed for the dead letter office. They decided to answer them.

Slowly, the program spread nationwide and Canada Post assigned an official address, including a postal code conforming to the Canadian system of alternating letters and numbers, but reminiscent of Santa's laugh.

The address is: Santa Claus, North Pole, Canada, H0H 0H0.

"Because the North Pole is in Canada geographically — we can say that — other postal administrations thought of sending their letters here," said Ghislaine Marsot, manager of the Post Office House in downtown Montreal.

She could get an argument on geography — Canadian territory stops some distance short of the pole — but mail from 28 countries as far away as Kenya, Vietnam and Uruguay found its way last year to Santa via Canada.

For the first time this year, all Canadian embassies and consulates around the world were asked to spread the word, so even more foreign mail is expected.

Shoppers on St. Catherine Street can stop and watch Santa's helpers

— postal workers on their own time — wearing their red stocking caps and scarves as they work through stacks of mail in the display windows of Post Office House.

Every afternoon, when 200 school children are bused in for a visit, Santa Claus is there to greet them.

To cope with the crush of mail, standard replies have been printed in French and English, but some letters pose special problems. Federal government translators help with letters received in Polish, Chinese and, so far, about half a dozen other languages. The Canadian National Institute for the Blind responds to letters in Braille.

Then there are the sad letters, for which "Ho! Ho! Ho!" would be a tactless response.

"A child might write that he has not seen his father in 10 years, and he doesn't want any presents, he just wants his father," Mrs. Marsot said. "You don't send the normal letter."

Another difficult letter from a

7-year-old asked Santa to console his mother, who cries all the time because he is dying of leukemia.

Those letters are answered by Dr. Albert Plante, head of psychiatry at Montreal's Sainte-Justine Hospital.

"It's very moving sometimes, the way he finds to help kids accept things," Mrs. Marsot said. "It has to sound very true, very human, with no false hopes."

weekly radio address to make another pitch for House action, saying, "While the proposals before the House are far from perfect, they do represent an essential step toward a tax code that is fairer, simpler, and encourages greater growth."

"I hope the House will vote yes ... and allow the Senate to consider, debate and to improve this important measure," the president said.

Republican leaders will be offering a tax overhaul bill, but the only measure given a chance of passage is a package drafted by the Democratic-led Ways and Means Committee. And Republican leaders will not back that bill.

House Republican Leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois, appearing Sunday on ABC's "This Week," said, "I cannot" vote for the Ways and Means bill because, "I just think it's so far afield from what the president had initially asked for and maybe there is some substance to starting all over again."

Rep. Dick Cheney, R-Wyo., chairman of the House Republican Policy Committee, said, "I'll do everything I can to kill the bill."

Democratic leaders, facing defections from their own ranks, have said GOP votes will be necessary if the measure is to pass.

Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., appearing Sunday on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he supports "the process," and agreed the House should send a bill to the Senate, where it could be revised more to the president's liking.

Dole said the Senate could make the bill more than a "re-shuffling" of the different loopholes and the different interest groups.

But House Republicans, mindful of next year's congressional elections, argue that they should not be put in the position of voting for something the president will not sign.

Michel said it was a traumatic decision for him to oppose the president's wishes, but "this is not good mileage for Bob Michel and the majority of the Republicans as they represent their individual districts out there."

Meanwhile, Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, acknowledged on the ABC program that some Democrats also may vote against his panel's bill because it would increase taxes paid by businesses in their districts.

He added that the president still needs to do more to drum up support.

"It's the president's initiative," Rostenkowski said. "I'd like, certainly, to see the president become a lot more active."

Rostenkowski also defended the retention of a variety of controversial tax breaks in his panel's bill saying, "I'm a negotiator ... I had to negotiate with members of the committee in order to get a bill. ... If it's not simpler, there's certainly a lot more people going to be paying taxes."

Mayors

The policy was adopted even without vote of the full membership because of a desire to make it official policy quickly, while Congress is still in session, league spokesman Randy Arndt said.

The urban policy adds that money should be raised toward reducing the $200 billion a year federal deficit through closing tax loopholes and questionable incentives — in effect raising taxes.

In calling for federal taxes to replace budget cuts, Voinovich used strong language and said Reagan and Congress were turning their backs on the needs of cities and their people, "washing their hands of it like Pontius Pilate."

"I just wish he would get out into American cities and see firsthand what's going on," he said of Reagan. "I think if he did and had all the facts in front of him he might be looking differently at all these programs that are being proposed to be eliminated."

In scores of workshops and policy meetings, talk was of the impact on cities of pending federal budget cuts and the latest version of the Gramm-Rudman deficit-cutting plan agreed to by House and Senate negotiators.

Voinovich called the proposal "cowardice in the worst sense" because it would make automatic across-the-board cuts in spending programs if Congress doesn't meet its own budget targets.

"The people in Washington know what needs to be done and haven't got the guts to do it," Voinovich said, referring to increased taxes. "The lust to stay in Washington must be overriding."

Frank Shafroth of the league's staff said its analysis showed that passage of the deficit-cutting plan would force elimination of the major aid-to-cities programs: the $4.6 billion revenue sharing program, which cities use for everything including police and fire services; the $4 billion community development block grants for distressed areas; urban development grants used to attract city developers; and most other city programs.

Uncut cocaine seized

LAREDO — Officials say the seizure of more than 150 pounds of uncut cocaine with a street value of $28 million was the largest drug haul in South Texas history.

The cocaine, along with an airplane and $500,000 in cash, was seized Saturday by authorities. The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration says several warrants, as a result of the seizure, will be issued next week, and arrests will begin immediately after that in major cities around the country.

Three crushed to death

TIVOLI, N.Y. — Three people are dead after their car turned into the path of an Amtrak passenger train and was crushed into a tangled mass beneath the engine.

Dutchess County Sheriff Fred Scoralick said the car was driving south on a gravel roadway parallel to the railroad tracks in this Hudson River community about 100 miles north of New York City Sunday afternoon when the southbound train called the Bear Mountain came around a curve at 90 mph.

The engineer sounded a warning whistle when he saw the car, said Scoralick, but the car turned across the tracks and was struck roadside.

Dream trip fulfilled

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Egor Sastarko met Mickey Mouse in the highlight of a dream trip that brought the 9-year-old cancer victim from Eastern Europe to the Magic Kingdom.

Egor, who is from a small village outside Zagreb, Yugoslavia, spent Sunday at Disneyland courtesy of an American group that makes wishes come true for dying children.

Nightmare recalled

KIRKLAND, Wash. — A survivor of the Egyptian airliner hijacking says stewardesses averted mass hysteria aboard the plane because they did not panic after they were shot.

Patrick Scott Baker, 28, of White Salmon, who faked death after being shot, recalled the Nov. 23 nightmare in an interview at his brother's home in this Seattle suburb published Sunday by the Vancouver (Wash.) Columbian.

Gas prices creep up

LOS ANGELES - Retail gasoline prices, resisting a traditional year-end slide, continued an upward climb during the past two weeks that may become sharper next year, an industry analyst said.

"The reason for the upward trend is the increasing cost of the lead phase-down program," analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday. "It takes a lot more crude to refine unleaded gasoline."

Residents of Leandra, South Africa, a black township about 50 miles southeast of Johannesburg, scatter after police fired teargas into the crowd Saturday. Police were breaking up a planned march to a police station seeking the release of 23 youths arrested Friday in a police sweep.

South Africa

12 apartheid foes cleared of charges

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government withdrew treason charges today against 12 of South Africa's most prominent apartheid foes who had been accused of supporting the aims of the banned African National Congress guerrilla group.

Natal Province Attorney General Michael Imber announced in Natal Province Supreme Court that charges were dropped against the defendants in South Africa's most important treason trial in more than 20 years. Imber said the trial will continue for four other defendants in the case.

The move resulted in wild scenes of jubilation outside the court in Pietermaritzburg, where relatives and friends hugged and kissed the 12. Mewa Ramogobin, 52, said, "Our acquittal is an indictment of security police methods. We have been vindicated. The struggle will continue."

All 12 are members of the United Democratic Front, a nationwide, multiracial anti-apartheid alliance that claims 2 million members.

"While there's no doubt we were on trial, apartheid was also on trial, and the methods of our struggle under the banners of the Natal Indian Congress and the UDF were held in question. Now we have been vindicated. We hope the rulers of the country come to their senses," Ramogobin said.

The Natal Indian Congress is South Africa's oldest political party, founded by Mohandas K. Gandhi in 1894. Gandhi then was working in South Africa.

The Congress is also the nation's oldest anti-apartheid organization. There are about 850,000 Asians in South Africa, most of them residing in Natal province.

Charges were dropped against Ramgobin, George Sewpershad, 43; M.J. Naidoo, 53; Dr. Essop Jassat, 52; Aubrey Mokoena, 52; Curtis Mkondo, 56; lawyer Archie Gumede, 70; Paul David, 40; Albertina Sisulu, 66; the Rev. Frank Chikane, 34; social worker Cassim Saloojee, 49; and teacher Ismail Mohammed, 54.

Sisulu is a president of the UDF and her husband, Walter, is a former ANC leader serving a life sentence for trying to overthrow the white-led government.

Gumede, Naidoo, Ramgobin and Sewpershad were among six men who sought refuge in the British consulate in Durban more than a year ago, and spent weeks inside to escape arrest for their anti-apartheid activities.

The trial of the 16 began in May, after they had been granted bail. Some of the defendants had first appeared in court about a year ago, after the three-month holdout in the British consulate.

Justice John Milne urged those freed today to restrain their exhilaration until they left the court. Outside the building, Gumede said, "This ordeal has not discouraged me in the least to continue to work toward a peaceful South Africa."

Random border check

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico — Mexican Army officials say Americans driving in this border city should not be alarmed if they are stopped by soldiers who search their vehicles.

Officials said soldiers of the Mexican Army's 26th Infantry Battalion were setting up random checkpoints in Ciudad Juarez to inspect vehicles for drugs and weapons.

Contenders split on flag

MANILA, Philippines — A fragile opposition agreement to unite against President Ferdinand E. Marcos, collapsed at the last minute in bickering over which party banner to use, apparently damaging opponents' chances of ending Marcos' 20 years in office.

The two leading opposition figures, Corason Aquino and Salvador Laurel, had agreed that Mrs. Aquino would head a united ticket against Marcos in a Feb. 7 special election. However, each accused the other of a last-minute change of mind Sunday over the party banner.

Military rule ends

GUATEMALA CITY — Christian Democrat Vinicio Cerezo scored a landslide victory in runoff presidential balloting, becoming the first civilian elected to take charge at Guatemala's National Palace in 19 years.

The triumph by the 42-year-old lawyer in the Sunday election comes after more than 30 years of virtually uninterrupted and often brutal military domination in this Central American country.

Nobel winners helpful

OSLO, Norway — Soviet and American heart specialists who are in Oslo to receive the Nobel Peace Prize for their work to limit nuclear weapons cut short a news conference today and rushed to help a Soviet journalist who suffered a heart attack.

American Bernard Lown and Soviet Yevgeny Chazov joined other doctors in trying to revive the reporter, who fell to the floor about half an hour after the news conference began.

Lown and Chazov are the co-presidents of International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War, the organization chosen to receive this year's Nobel Peace Prize.

Bombs linked to blast

PARIS — Tests of fragments found after blasts at two Paris department stores indicate that crudely made fire bombs triggered the blasts which injured 39 people, sources said.

Callers claiming to represent the Palestine Liberation Front, the Islamic Jihad and the Armenian Secret Army for the Liberation of Armenia, were among those taking responsibility for the Saturday blasts, police said.

Toys for li'l boys and little girls

Wonder what the little princess wants for Christmas? To hear one toy manufacturer tell it, she's probably dreaming of her own little princess — Princess of Power, to be exact, a doll that inhabits the Crystal Castle (sold at toy stores everywhere) and rides a swan (ditto on availability).

For boys, meanwhile, there are the usual warrior toys representing the forces of Good and Evil. He-Man does battle with Skeletor and a host of other baddies, all of whom show a predilection for unusual vehicles: Battle Bones, something akin to a lizard skeleton; Land Shark, halftank and half-Jaws; and Bashasaurus, a wheeled dinosaur equipped with an impressive trunk. Then there are robots that turn into (1) guns or (2) insects. And there are dolls known as Mutant Figures (really; we're not making this up).

What is one to think of these novelties emerging from Santa's workshop? Mainly, that 15 years of increasing focus on feminism notwithstanding, there are boy toys and girl toys — and if kids don't grasp the difference from TV commercials, they do at toy stores, where each aisle's offerings are segregated by gender.

Incredibly, one toy maker bungled an opportunity recently to create a less sexist Barbie doll. After 25 years of apparently uninterrupted leisure, Barbie now has a job (unspecified), to which she totes miniature briefcase and Wall Street Journal. But whatever statement a gainfully employed Barbie might make about liberation from sex-role stereotypes, it is blunted by the glitzy, peekaboo evening wear she turns out to have on beneath her dress-for-success suit.

Ironically, the toy perhaps most in touch with reality these days, in a nation of struggling single mothers, is My Little Pony. This rubberized equine has borne a Baby Pony or two and raises the offspring without any help from the invisible Mr. Pony. Maybe some savvy toy maker will discover this marvelous market opportunity for My Little Stallion.

Tax bill imperfect, but it's all we got

The House Ways and Means Committee's rewrite of President Reagan's tax reform plan is like one of those priceless paintings that has been slashed with a knife by some lunatic. It still has some admirable features, but it isn't what it was.

The mutilation on Capitol Hill was the product not of madness but of politics, which often produces similar results. Among the casualties were several bold administration proposals — the abolition of the deduction for state and local taxes, the crackdown on the business entertainment abuse, the taxation of some employee benefits, the removal of vacation homes from eligibility for the interest deduction.

These were the most attractive remnants of a lovely Treasury Department blueprint, which had to be liberally retouched before getting the President's endorsement. What was originally a breathtaking revision of the tax code, single-mindedly guided by the demands of efficiency, neutrality and simplicity, was reduced by the White House to a worthy but more modest overhaul. The Ways and Means bill, drafted under the guidance of chairman Dan Rostenkowski, is twice removed from a true version of comprehensive tax reform.

Comprehensive tax reform isn't. Plenty of powerful interests got their way, at least on some things. The biggest were business, which kept business entertainment 80 percent deductible, and organized labor, which kept the exemption for employer-paid health insurance.

Other lobbyists wheedled concessions for Realtors, small businesses, independent oil producers, small banks, timber owners and issuers of tax-exempt bonds. The reasons, you will not be amazed to learn, had nothing to do with sound tax policy.

When it wasn't gutting the President's better ideas, the committee was adding bad provisions of its own. The worst is the "minimum tax" on those corporations and individuals who make excessive use of the dubious loopholes the committee has so carefully preserved. This is just another argument for closing them.

Still ... still, the bill has several provisions that, judged apart from the other crimes, deserve enactment. The first is the reduction of rates not as dramatic as the President wanted, but still substantial. The Ways and Means version cuts the top rate on individuals from 50 to 38 percent and the marginal rate on a family with a taxable income of $35,000 from 28 to 25 percent.

By raising the personal exemption, the standard deduction and the earned income credit, it lightens the overall tax burden on low-income Americans, removing 6 million of them from the tax rolls altogether. Corporations get their top rate trimmed from 46 to 36 percent.

The second is the repeal of the corporate investment tax credit and the tightening of depreciation rules. The current code, by excessively generous tax breaks, encourages spending on machinery and buildings even when it makes more sense to simply hire more workers. This diverts the flow of investment dollars away from new, labor-intensive firms and into older heavy industries. These changes help to right the balance.

The committee made some minor improvements as well. It tightened tax rules for the oil industry, allowed corporations to deduct 10 percent of their dividend payments, curtailed the free ride given to business entertainment, made unemployment benefits fully taxable and limited allowable losses from those notorious real estate partnerships. If it could have done better in some of these respects, it also could have done nothing.

When the next edition of "Profiles in Courage" is published, it won't have a new chapter about Rostenkowski and his Ways and Means allies. But that's no reason the President shouldn't support passage of their bill. Once it's through the House, he can press the Senate to erase its worse sections.

Marxist country learns lesson that there is no free lunch

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Suriname is developing into another Cuba-style dictatorship in the Western hemisphere. Its Marxist strong man, Desi Bouterse, desperate for cash to keep his repressive regime afloat, has turned to two tainted sources of money: Libya and Colombian drug dealers.

But he's learning that there's no free lunch in the foreign-aid game. When Suriname was given its independence by the Netherlands in 1975, the Dutch promised $100 million a year in aid until 1990. The stipend continued even after Bouterse's military coup in 1980 and his growing leftward tilt.

Bouterse cultivated and modeled himself after Maurice Bishop, the Marxist prime minister of Grenada. At Bishop's suggestion, Bouterse succumbed to Fidel Castro's overtures and welcomed a Cuban ambassador to Paramaribo in September 1982.

Cuban aid soon followed, as did the quid pro quo. Dozens of Cubans arrived in Suriname to assist Bouterse in setting up a Marxist dictatorship — which would be under Castro's control. The Cubans trained Bouterse's bodyguards, and even acted in that capacity themselves. Suriname officials were sent to Cuba for indoctrination.

Both the Dutch and American governments (the United States was also sending Suriname some modest aid) grew increasingly uneasy at the blossoming Bouterse-Castro relationship. In December 1982, when Bouterse rounded up and executed 15 opposition leaders, Dutch and American aid was cut off.

Castro, himself dependent on Moscow gold to bolster the shaky Cuban economy and his foreign adventures, proved slow in providing the money he had promised Bouterse. So, according to our CIA sources, the Surinamese dictator accepted the offer of a loan from Colombian marijuana and cocaine traffickers.

Meanwhile, Brazil, which borders Suriname on the south, woke up to the danger of this Castro foothold and sent a military strike force across the border in April 1983. Literally under the gun, Bouterse agreed to decrease the Cuban presence in his country in return for a $300 million aid deal with Brazil.

Bouterse dragged his feet on the bargain, until Bishop was deposed and murdered by Cuban-backed Grenadan Marxists. Blaming Castro for the death of his friend and mentor, and fearing for his own neck after the U.S.-led invasion of Grenada, Bouterse sent his Cuban advisers packing. Though he had previously claimed there were only 15 Cubans in Suriname, about 100 were kicked out (leaving only eight, according to our sources).

port his dictatorship. He needed more money — and gratefully accepted a promise of $100 million from Libyan dictator Muammar Qaddafi.

What does Qaddafi expect to get for his money? Our sources say he hopes to expand his influence in South America. He also wants Surinamese passports for Libyan assassination squads, and hopes to get them for his Palestinian terrorist sidekicks as well. Qaddafi has already set about turning Suriname into a Libyan "staging area" for terrorist attacks. One Suriname source told us there are more than 200 Libyan military instructors in the country, training terrorists.

Meanwhile, Bouterse is raking in money from his connections in the drug trade. Our associate Donald Goldberg has learned that the operators of a huge cocaine factory destroyed in Colombia moved their base to Suriname, where it is guarded by Bouterse's troops. Drugs reportedly are shipped to Amsterdam in diplomatic pouches.

BELTWAY BANDITRY: The Federal Trade Commission was left holding the bag on a $30,000 contract when a Washington-area consulting firm skipped town. The federal agency had paid the firm in advance for a study of mail-order business regulations, but the company disappeared after delivering a half-finished report containing figures that didn't add up. FTC employees have been trying for months to straighten out the mess. The company also welshed on a Small Business Administration loan.

NOT-SO-SECRET SQUABBLE: The National Security Agency, which is in the code-cracking business, is the most super-secret federal agency. That's why it's acutely embarrassing to have a former employee suing it. There are no secrets involved, just old-fashioned charges of gross mismanagement and bureaucratic revenge. Richard Floyd, a former procurement policy chief, was fired in 1977, and he says it was because he blew the whistle on contracting irregularities and incompetence. Floyd was fired when he refused to submit to a psychiatric examination.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Over the years, we've grown accustomed to the arrogance of politicians who resent having their deficiencies held up to public scrutiny by the press. But Mayor Marion Barry of Washington added a new wrinkle the other day, when he berated an investigative reporter who had broken a story of corruption in a city agency. Indignantly, the mayor suggested the reporter had committed a crime himself by merely telling the public about the scandal. Instead, Hizzoner said, the reporter should have told the authorities. And the Watergate reporters should have taken their information directly to Richard Nixon, right, Mr. Mayor?

Bad marriage leaves hurt

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My husband has left me for another woman after almost 30 years of marriage. It has devastated me, although we had been having problems for years. My friends say I am better off without him because of the way he treated me, but they don't understand how hard it is to be rejected and alone. How can I overcome my feelings of hurt and despair? — Mrs. B.P.Y.

DEAR MRS. B.P.Y.: I am sure your pain is shared by many people who have been through the same experience. Tragically, some people today view divorce as an easy way out of their problems and fail to see the terrible heartache and broken lives they leave behind. Perhaps your question will make someone who is contemplating divorce reconsider, and then work to make his or her marriage the joy that God intends it to be.

Divorce is often like the death of a loved one — except that it can also bring with it feelings of rejection and unworthiness. Realize, therefore, that what you are experiencing is not wrong or unnatural and that it will take time for your emotional wounds to heal.

How can you deal with this? First, get involved in activities that will bring you in contact with new people and help others in need. This will turn your mind away from your own problems. Many churches now have groups specifically designed for divorced persons or single parents. You especially need their encouragement during special times of the year, such as holidays.

In addition, realize that you are important in God's eyes. You may feel rejected right now — but God has not rejected you. He loves you, and He wants you to become part of His family through faith in Christ. Think of it! You are that significant to God! If you have never done so, receive the gift of His love today by asking Christ to come into your life and be your friend every day.

AMA proposes AIDS test for marriage

WASHINGTON (AP) — AIDS is becoming so hazardous to the nation's health that tests for exposure to the deadly virus should be required of everyone planning to marry, says a resolution being considered by the American Medical Association.

The resolution, distributed to the 271,000-member association's policy-making House of Delegates on Sunday, will be among more than 100 proposals it will face in voting on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Among other, earlier-publicized issues are several tobacco-related proposals calling for legislation to ban all cigarette advertising and to stop television advertising of smokeless tobacco such as snuff and chewing tobacco — both on grounds of links with cancer and other diseases.

In particular, the smokeless tobacco resolution says such products are dangerous because "the public is much less aware of the dangers of using smokeless tobacco than with those of smoking tobacco."

The AIDS-marriage resolution says that "acquired immune deficiency syndrome has in the last few years become a hazard to our American society; the American public has become very aware of this hazardous physical illness and

... the disease of AIDS is rapidly becoming a threat to the health of all of the American people."

Most states already require some premarital tests before issuing marriage licenses, it notes.

Thus, it concludes, the AMA should "recommend that each of our 50 states encourage introduction of legislation" to require tests to show whether or not a person has been exposed to the virus believed to cause the disease.

There is no indication what, if any, action state authorities should take if the required tests did indicate exposure to the virus — or even any suggestion that authorities would be given that information.

In fact, a separate resolution calls for the association to "oppose discrimination against AIDS patients or individuals with (AIDS)-positive serum" and to "oppose any local, state or federal legislation that would lead to such discrimination or that would invade patient-doctor confidentiality."

The disease, which attacks the body's immune system, has been mainly restricted to sexually active homosexuals and to intravenous drug-abusers in this country. But there have also been a number of cases of transmission between men and women and also cases among babies born to AIDS-carrying mothers.

About 15,000 Americans are known to have contracted the disease. More than half have died and none is known to have recovered.

A positive test for exposure to the virus doesn't necessarily mean the person has the disease itself. It is currently thought that only a minority of people whose blood tests show such exposure will go on to develop full-blown cases of the disease.

Still another resolution to be considered by the delegates addresses but doesn't resolve the issue of whether children suffering from AIDS should be allowed to continue attending school — an issue that has led to bitter controversy in New York City and other school systems.

This resolution says that the disease "can be transmitted only via intimate contact or parentally;" that "school-age children have a right to quality education" and that children "may be stigmatized or psychologically damaged by exclusion solely because of a diagnosis of AIDS or pre-AIDS."

Rather than taking any position on attendance, however, the resolution asks that the organization study the issue further and report back at next year's meeting.

House plans to enlist public against waste violators

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a move to enlarge the ranks of people keeping a sharp eye out for illegal disposal of hazardous chemicals, the House is proposing to cut citizens in for a share of the multibillion dollar "Superfund" toxic waste cleanup program.

The House wants the Environmental Protection Agency to offer a reward of up to $10,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of environmental law violators.

"This should enlist the population in the fight to protect the environment," says Rep. Paul Kanjorski, D-Pa., who had no trouble getting colleagues to add his reward amendment into the still-pending Superfund renewal bill.

"This is a dumpbusters amendment," said Kanjorski, who doesn't think he'll have any problem convincing Senate and House conferees to include it in the final Superfund bill that Congress produces.

Kanjorski is a freshman from northeastern Pennsylvania with a more than passing interest in toxic cleanup. His district contains the Butler Mine Tunnel in Pittston, one of only six Superfund sites EPA has declared cleaned up.

To Kanjorski's dismay, it didn't stay cleaned up. On Sept. 27, Hurricane Gloria poured tons of water through mine bore holes, flushing poisonous chemicals into the Susquehanna River.

It's too late to stop the midnight dumpers who poured the toxics into the mine over the years, but Kanjorski thinks citizen rewards will discourage further illegal disposal there and might prevent creation of other such toxic hotspots around the nation.

"We have to enlist the private citizen," he said. "If we had had just one person who had seen what was happening, we might have saved the two and a half million dollars EPA had to spend at Butler."

He says there now are citizen stakeouts at the mine. "We're calling it the Environmental Watch, like a Neighborhood Crime Watch.

We're not looking for a person to turn in his neighbor. We're after the hard-core polluter."

Kanjorski thinks that by sweetening the pot with rewards, a nationwide citizen awareness and vigilance movement could be fostered.

"This is an incentive," he says. "There aren't enough police to do the job."

Kanjorski says that if his plan becomes law, rewards should be backed by advertising. "I think EPA should take out billboards saying in big letters, 'Wanted! Dumpers.'"

Asked about the proposal, Gene Lucero, director of waste programs enforcement at EPA, said: "I imagine it's going to help a bit, but it's hard to tell. It may help."

Lucero said the agency's "very best criminal cases have come from informers."

So far, according to Lucero, informers have fallen into two categories.

Highs Tuesday around 20 Panhandle, 30s South Plains and mostly 40s elsewhere except mid 60s lower Rio Grande of Big Bend.

State

A stationary front moving into northern sections of Texas early today brought cooler temperatures in its wake and forecasters said the system could trigger widely scattered showers and light snow in northwest sections.

The front crossed the northern section of the state from just south of the Red River into the High Plains, while moist Gulf air spread northward into the eastern half of the state.

Low cloudiness covered North Central Texas. Patchy dense fog shrouded parts of East and Southeast Texas, lowering visibility to near zero at some locations. Drier air filtered into western portions of the state.

Skies were clear from the Panhandle southward to the Big Bend region, the National Weather Service said.

Temperatures north of the front were in the mid 30s to mid 40s. Readings hovered in the 50s and 60s over the remainder of the state except for the South Plains and west of the Pecos, with 40s.

cancer institute in last week's issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

The journal reported that the researchers tested the technique on 25 patients with advanced, spreading cancer that failed to respond to all ordinary therapy. In 11 people with four different kinds of cancer, the tumors shrank by more than 50 percent.

The journal article, however, did not report the death from the treatment. It mentioned the treatment had a major side-effect: severe fluid retention that can lead to breathing failure.

On Sunday, Rosenberg cautioned that much research needs to be done before interleukin-2 can join the list of safe cancer therapies.

After the journal article was publicized, hundreds of people called a Cancer Information Service hotline seeking treatment.

Trees, wreaths placed in museum

By KIM KIRKHAM

The Christmas spirit has hit the Heritage Museum.

Local clubs and organizations have placed Christmas trees and wreaths throughout the museum for the first annual Heritage Museum Christmas Tree Festival. The items will be on display through Dec. 15.

The Forsan 4-H Club was the winner in the tree contest with the Big Spring Garden Club having the best wreath. Judges were Mayor Clyde Angel and Harry Middleton, president of the Heritage Museum.

Over 200 letters were mailed in October inviting clubs and organizations to participate in the festival. "I had eight replies up until last week; so, I wasn't so sure that it was gonna turn out," said curator Neil Allen.

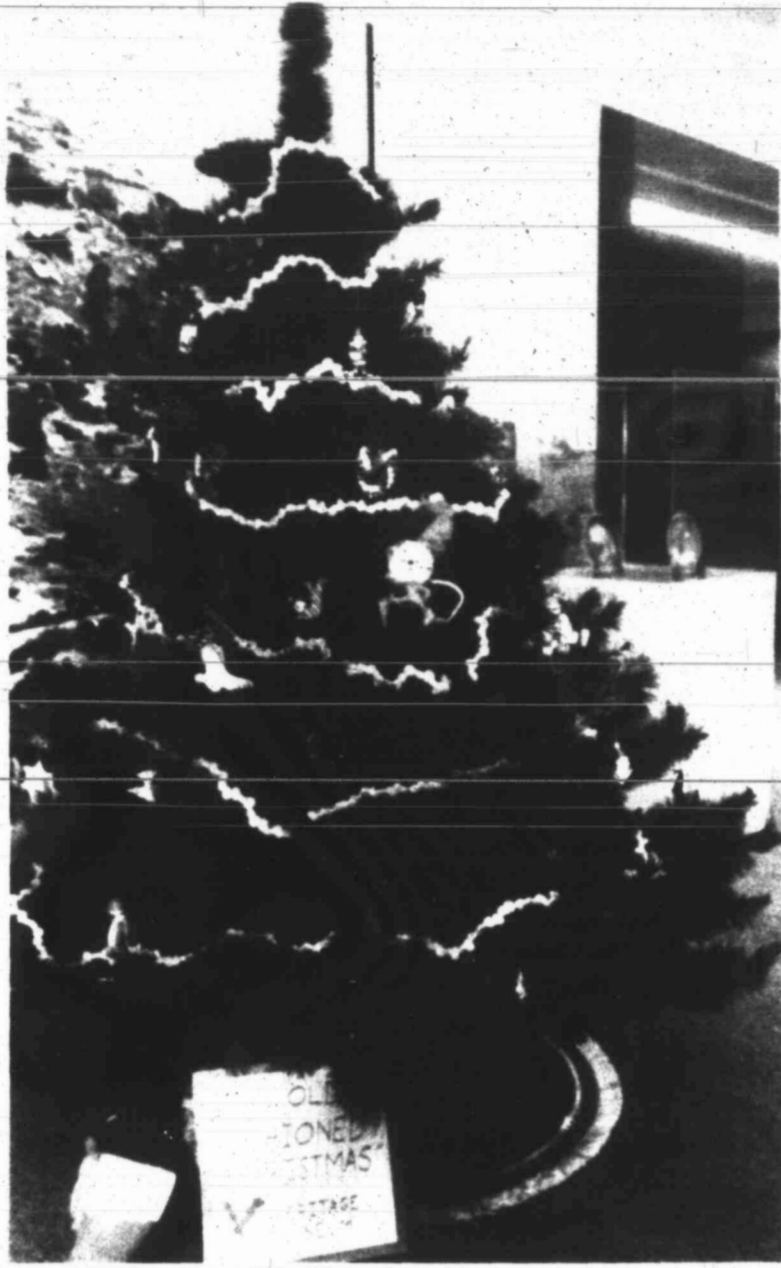

"I think once we get started, it'll pick up," he said. Allen hopes to have the festival again next year. "It gives the different clubs exposure," he said.

Eight organizations decorated trees for the museum, and seven wreaths were made. The Desk and Derrick Club placed an oil derrick decoration with a Christmas theme in the museum.

Allen got the idea for the festival from the a museum in Lima, Ohio. The Allen County Museum has about 142 entries in its 13th annual festival. Allen was previously assistant curator of collections at the museum while serving an internship there.

The trees and wreaths are placed in different areas in the museum. "That way we can get people to go through the museum," said Allen.

Admission is free during the festival. The museum, located at

The Heritage Museum's tree has the theme of "An Old Fashioned Christmas." Local organizations also placed wreaths and trees throughout the museum.

Dear Abby

Son needs counsel, not a kick

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Desperate Widow," who can't get her 28-year-old son to look for work and get out of her house. I am a 28-year-old male, still living at home and without a full-time job to support myself.

A few years ago my parents started pressuring me to get a job. They even threatened to throw me out. I don't think I could have made it on my own, as I lacked the self-confidence to look for a job. What I needed was professional help. I got it and have improved tremendously over the past year. I am emotionally more mature and get along much better with my parents. While I don't have a full-time job yet, I am definitely closer to being on my own.

Thus, my advice for parents in this situation is not to simply "throw the bum out." Give him a choice. Make him seek professional help, or get out! Professional help does not have to be expensive. Most community mental health centers charge according to one's ability to pay. In any case, it would be cheaper than supporting your son for the rest of his life.

GETTING HELP
DEAR GETTING: You're right, of course. Although it's not easy to "make" an unmotivated person seek professional help, he should be given a choice. "Either get help, or get out!"

Not let's hear how another mother handled that problem:

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter was married a month ago, and a couple we know well attended both the wedding and reception. However, no gift was ever received from them. They live in our town, so I'm sure it wasn't mailed.

Should I mention it to them? Either they haven't bought a gift yet, or if they gave money, it could have gotten lost at the reception.

Our daughter received either a gift or money from everyone else. How much longer should we wait before we mention it to them?

MOTHER OF THE BRIDE
DEAR MOTHER: Forever. It would be in very poor taste to mention it.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Dr. Donohue

Bloat can be muscle problem

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I suffer from stomach bloat whenever I eat. I put off eating as much as possible, and I feel great in the a.m., evidently because I haven't eaten all night. Specialists have run tests — upper GI and lower GI. I've had scopes down my throat and up my rectum. Everything seems in order. I don't drink or smoke, and I exercise regularly. I need help. — O.G.P.

It must be discouraging to have had all those tests and be left without answers to your problem. But it's not unusual. So let's look at the digestive tract and some of the problems that can cause such symptoms, yet not be seen.

The gastrointestinal tract is nothing more than a long tube with musculature that propels contents along in rhythmic surges, like the gentle rolling of waves on a shore. At various points along this tube special muscles form junctures, as for example where the stomach and the small intestine meet. Those muscles are normally synchronized with the others along the tract. But if one happens to hear a different drummer, it might go into spasm and send the entire arrangement into turmoil. The result is often bloat, discomfort, belching even frank pain.

Sometimes, a similar disturbance occurs lower in the tract. If it happens in the large intestine, then you have what is called irritable colon. But wherever it occurs, results can be felt all along the system.

I am suggesting that in the light of your negative test results something of this order is happening to you. It's a guess, but if it is correct, then you can be helped, and rather easily. Anticholinergic drugs often serve to restore the proper digestive tract rhythm. Sometimes, simply adding fiber to the diet will trigger the system back into uniform wave action.

Or, if your problem is one of food allergy, then attention to that will help. Many times, a person lacks sufficient lactase, the enzyme for digesting milk sugar, and supplying that or avoiding such food, ends the problem.

Your specialists have given you the good news that there is nothing structurally wrong with your digestive system.

Bengals embarrass Cowboys

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals coach Sam Wyche correctly predicted a victory over the Dallas Cowboys...

"We didn't think we'd score 50 points," Wyche said, after the Bengals hit the Cowboys fast and hard in a 50-24 National Football League romp Sunday.

The Bengals sped past the 35-point mark early in the third quarter and kept the offense at full throttle, handing the Cowboys one of their worst beatings in years.

"The Dallas Cowboys are a great team," said Bengals wide receiver Cris Collinsworth, who caught a game-high seven passes for 123 yards and a touchdown.

The explosive combination came at just the right time for the Bengals and at a painful time for the Cowboys.

The Bengals took the free kick and struck quickly, marching 72 yards in seven plays capped by Larry Kinnebrew's 3-yard touchdown run.

Bengals quarterback Boomer Esiason inflicted most of the damage, throwing for three touchdowns and 265 yards against the stunned and perhaps distracted Cowboys.

Esiason figured Dallas might have been thinking about its home game next Sunday against the Giants.

"I think they were looking ahead to New York," said Esiason, who completed 15 of 25 passes without an interception.

Cowboys Coach Tom Landry agreed his team seemed a little complacent.

"It just appeared they (the Bengals) had more to lose than we did, because they played a very good football game and we didn't," Landry said.

It was the Cowboys' first appearance in Cincinnati, and a sell-out crowd of 56,936 got plenty to cheer about from the opening series.

The Cowboys took the kickoff, the Cowboys lost more than 20 yards on a fumble, and quarterback Danny White was tackled in the end zone for a safety on the third play from scrimmage.

"That was a pretty good indication of what kind of a day it was going to be," Landry said.

The Bengals took the free kick and struck quickly, marching 72 yards in seven plays capped by Larry Kinnebrew's 3-yard touchdown run.

Esiason hit wide receiver Eddie Brown with a 45-yard TD pass on Cincinnati's next possession, and running back James Brooks burned a Dallas blitz with a 27-yard scoring run on a draw play. The extra point failed.

Less than nine minutes into the game, it was 22-0 — the most first-quarter points ever allowed by a Dallas team.

Esiason was knocked out of the game in the second quarter by a knee bruise, but returned in the third quarter and immediately turned a 22-3 halftime lead into a rout.

Esiason hit Steve Kreider with a 29-yard TD pass on Cincinnati's first possession. The Bengals recovered a fumble on the kickoff — one of four Cowboy turnovers — and Brooks ran 18 yards for a 36-3 lead.

Esiason capped his afternoon with a 58-yard scoring bomb to Collinsworth as the Bengals rolled toward a staggering 50-10 lead early in the fourth quarter.

The Bengals even got some play — Cowboys page 2-B

blitz with a 27-yard scoring run on a draw play. The extra point failed.

Less than nine minutes into the game, it was 22-0 — the most first-quarter points ever allowed by a Dallas team.

Dallas Cowboys returner James Jones (23) fumbles the football as he is tackled by Cincinnati Bengals defender Robert Jackson during third quarter NFL action.

Denison streak broken

By The Associated Press When Austin Westlake knocked the Denison Yellow Jackets out of the Class 4A state football playoffs with a 17-0 shutout in Waco on Saturday, it ended a winning streak that extended over the entire 1984 and 1985 seasons.

Denison, after 16 years of not making the playoffs, won all 16 of its games last year, then improved the perfect mark to 29-0 going into its quarterfinal encounter with Westlake.

But the Yellow Jackets' ace running back, Aaron Jackson, was sidelined by leg injuries, dooming Denison hopes.

Munday, ranked No. 1 in Class 1A all season, had shared the state's longest winning streak with Denison, but now stands alone after beating Wheeler 14-7 in Childress on Saturday to run the Moguls' string to 30. Munday will play Goldthwaite in the semifinals.

However, the Italy Gladiators are still on a roll, having eliminated High Island 21-14 to win a spot against Runge in the other 1A semifinal. Runge defeated Agua Dulce 21-7. Italy got 217 yards and two touchdowns from Charles Davis.

Daingerfield advanced to the 3A semifinals by beating District 11-3A rival Pittsburg for the second time of the year. Daingerfield used a no-huddle offense to score two touchdowns in the first quarter and went on to a 44-13 runaway.

Next foe for Daingerfield is Vernon, which made the playoffs this year only after winning a three-way district coin flip with Iowa Park and Springtown. Vernon beat Post 13-0 to move into the semifinals against Daingerfield for the second straight year. Daingerfield won 14-7 last year, then lost to Medina Valley in the state championship game.

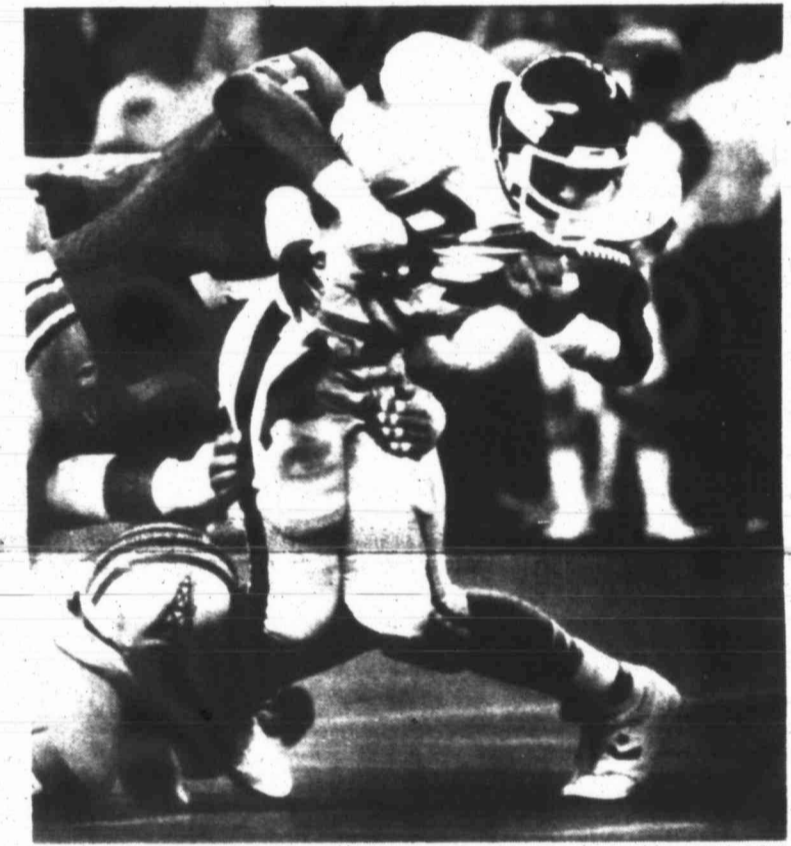

Electra, ranked No. 1 the entire year in Class 2A, beat Pilot Point 29-7 and will play Shiner, which routed Thorndale 66-26. Like Denison, Pilot Point had the misfortune of going without its top running back.

Houston Yates beat district rival Houston Jones 21-15 to move into the semifinal round of the Class 5A high school football playoffs, while two other state playoff jousts were marked by memorable performances.

Trey Richey from tiny Jayton gained 396 yards and scored six touchdowns and Tomball's Bubba Greeley became the 11th player in Texas schoolboy history to gain more than 6,000 career yards.

Richey scored on runs of 20, 15, 21, 1, 35 and 53 yards as the Jaybirds destroyed Weinert 66-16 at Stamford for their 27th consecutive victory in six-man football.

In other 5A games, Odessa Permain beat Irving MacArthur 27-7; Cypress-Fairbanks clipped Conroe 20-11; and San Antonio Holmes edged Converse Judson 30-29.

New York Giants wide receiver Byron Williams (87) drags a crowd of Houston Oilers defenders after a 18-yard reception from quarterback Phil Simms.

Giants drain Oilers

HOUSTON (AP) — New York Giants running back Joe Morris scored three touchdowns and rushed 129 yards and then let quarterback Phil Simms do the talking.

Simms passed for two more touchdowns to assist in the Giants' 35-14 victory over Houston Sunday and was delighted to talk about the Giants and Morris.

Morris turned in his fifth 100-yard performance of the season and became only the second 1,000-yard rusher in Giants history.

His three touchdowns extended his National Football League-leading total to 17 touchdowns.

"I'm happy for him," Simms said of Morris, who made a quick exit from the locker room. "It was a great accomplishment for him and our offensive line. Joe does a great job of running the ball."

The victory, coupled with Dallas' 50-24 loss to Cincinnati, knotted the Cowboys and Giants at 9-5 atop the National Football Conference's Eastern Division going into Sunday's showdown at Dallas.

"We've done a lot of good things this season and now we've got a chance to do a lot more," Simms said. "It (Dallas game) could be the biggest game I've ever played. It will be like a playoff game."

"When a player thinks of all the practice and how many times you get to play in a big game, it means

Oilers twice at the Giants 3-yard line in the third quarter and several fourth-quarter bombs by Moon fell short of their targets.

"When we got those goal line stands, it's got to take some of the sting out of them," defensive end Curtis McGriff said. "To get that close and to come up empty-handed, took some spunk out of them."

Linebacker Lawrence Taylor's 25-yard fumble return gave the Giants a first down at the Oiler 11 and set up Morris' third touchdown run.

Raiders down Denver in overtime; again

By The Associated Press The difference between the Los Angeles Raiders and Denver Broncos is six points, and the Raiders have had to work overtime to prove it.

"That's what football is all about," Coach Tom Flores said after his Raiders edged Denver 17-14 in overtime Sunday. "It's amazing to play the same team in three weeks and get two overtimes."

Los Angeles won the previous meeting between the two National Football League teams 31-28 — also in overtime.

"It wasn't something we had planned on," Flores said. "But we have a tradition of getting up for first two possessions, the Broncos had minus-2 yards in total offense and was unable to move past their own 20.

On Denver's third possession, pinned up deep in his own territory, quarterback John Elway dropped back to pass when he was sacked by defensive end Howie Long. Teammate Greg Townsend arrived a split second later, knocked the ball loose, then fell on the fumble at the Denver 8.

On the next play, 4:55 into overtime, Bahr kicked the winning three-pointer as the Raiders, down 14-0 at halftime, completed their successful comeback to raise their record to 10-4 and gain sole possession of first place in the AFC West. Denver is now 9-5.

Chargers 54, Steelers 44 Running back Gary Anderson, formerly of the U.S. Football League, ran two yards for the tie-breaking touchdown and, 24 seconds later, rookie safety Jeff Dale returned a pass interception 47 yards for a score to lift San Diego.

The 98 points ranked fourth all-time in NFL history. The highest-scoring game ever was 72-41 by Washington over the New York Giants in 1966.

The Steelers, who entered the game with the highest-rated defense in the AFC, fell to 6-8 and two games back of Cleveland and Cincinnati in the AFC Central with two games remaining.

Pittsburgh stormed back from a 14-point halftime deficit and took the lead for the first time on Steelers kicker Gary Anderson's third field goal, a 26-yarder with 6:37 to play that made it 44-41.

The Giants will go into the game tied with the Cowboys because they beat back Houston's only challenge with a 21-point spurt over the final 3:36 of the first half for a 35-14 halftime lead.

Morris capped New York's first two drives of the game with touchdown runs of 12 and 2 yards.

Warren Moon, who had missed three games with a hip pointer injury, hit touchdown passes of 3 yards to Jaime Williams and 27 yards to Tim Smith over a 48-second span of the second quarter to tie the score at 14-14.

Simms, who hit 13 of 24 passes for 234 yards for the game, hit touchdown passes of 10 yards to Mark Bavaro and 22 yards to Bob Johnson and Morris ran in from 2 yards for a 35-14 lead at the half.

Former Eagles trainer dies

PHILADELPHIA (AP)— Michael P. Mandarino, a former Philadelphia Eagles football player and team physician and one of the first surgeons to use plastics in repairing broken bones, is dead at the age of 64.

Mandarino, an orthopedic surgeon, died Saturday at West Park Hospital, which he helped found in 1963.

In 1944 and 1945, he was a lineman with the Eagles of the National Football League, and the following two years he played for the Wilmington (Del.) Clippers, a minor-league team.

Before his playing career and between seasons, Mandarino, a Philadelphia native, interned at Hahnemann Medical College, from which he graduated in 1945.

Swede wins Australian Open

NFL

MELBORNE, Australia (AP) — Sweden's Stefan Edberg defeated countryman Mats Wilander 6-4, 6-3, 6-3 in one hour, 33 minutes Monday to capture the men's singles crown in the $1.5 million Australian Open Tennis Championships, his first Grand Slam title.

Edberg, 19, took home $100,000 with the victory, which was delayed by rain.

Wilander, who was seeking his third straight Australian Open title, received a runnerup check for $50,000.

It was the first all-Swedish Grand Slam final and meant that all four Grand Slam men's crowns were won by different players. Wilander captured the French Open, West Germany's Boris Becker was the winner at Wimbledon and Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia took the U.S. Open.

The historic victory moved Edberg to fifth in the world rankings, displacing Becker, who didn't get past the first round in this grass court tournament.

"This has been one of my greatest tournaments ever," Edberg said after his triumph. "I've never been so happy in my life."

It was the second time this year that Edberg and Wilander have met in a tournament final. Wilander won the first meeting, in the Swedish Open Championships in Bastad.

Edberg upset top-seeded Lendl on Sunday to move into the men's singles final. He outlasted Lendl 6-7, 7-5, 6-1, 4-6, 9-7 in a rain-interrupted, four-hour struggle after squandering three match points in the ninth game of the final set.

Two titles were decided Sunday as the top-seeded American pair of Martina Navratilova and Pam Shriver captured the women's doubles by defeating West Germany's Claudia Kohde-Kilsch and Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova 6-3, 6-4, and American Paul Anacone and South African Christo Van Rensburg teamed up to stop Australians Mark Edmondson and Kim Warwick 3-6, 7-6, 6-4, 6-4 for the men's doubles crown. On Saturday, Navratilova captured the women's singles crown by defeating Chris Evert Lloyd 6-2, 4-6, 6-2. The victory, her 13th Grand Slam singles triumph and her third on the grass courts of Kooyong, cemented her spot as the top women's player for the fourth straight year.

The women's final marked the 67th match between Navratilova and Lloyd, a 30-year-old native of Fort Lauderdale, Fla. And the victory gave Navratilova a 35-32 lead in the longest rivalry in tennis history. She has won 17 of their last 19 contests and seven out of eight on grass.

Navratilova, who also won Wimbledon this year, collected $100,000, while Lloyd, winner of the French Open, took home $50,000.

The Czechoslovakian-born Navratilova said she had wanted to play Lloyd in the final and had thought if she did, she stood a good chance of winning.

"It's very, very satisfying," she added. "I knew this was for the No. 1 ranking, so I really concentrated and zeroed in on that."

for four touchdowns, including two to Daryl Turner — his 11th and 12th TDs, as Seattle, 8-6, kept its playoff hopes alive. The loss snapped a three-game Cleveland winning streak.

Krieg completed 24 of 34 passes for 268 yards without an interception.

Bears 17, Colts 10
Walter Payton rushed for 111 yards — extending his NFL record to nine straight games over 100 yards — and scored a touchdown to help Chicago outlast the stubborn Indianapolis Colts.

Chicago, 13-1, went into the game as a prohibitive favorite, but couldn't move the ball against a rugged Indianapolis defense until the second half. The Colts fell to 3-11 and lost for the sixth straight time.

Dolphins 34, Packers 24
Quarterback Dan Marino passed for 345 yards and five touchdowns, including two in the fourth quarter, as Miami rallied after a furious second-half comeback by Green Bay to retain a share of the lead in the AFC East.

Marino connected with tight end Joe Rose on a 2-yard TD pass with 3:18 remaining in the game to get the victory. The Dolphins, 10-4, then scored an insurance touchdown on a 61-yard pass-play with 2:10 remaining from Marino to Dan Johnson.

Marino's five TD passes in a game tied his NFL career high.

Vikings 26, Buccaneers 7
Minnesota's defense forced six turnovers and Tommy Kramer passed for 309 yards as the Vikings toppled error-prone Tampa Bay in a sloppy game. Jan Stenerud kicked four field goals for the Vikings, now 7-7.

Interceptions by Chris Doleman, Tim Newton and Willie Teal, fumble recoveries by Doleman, Dennis Fowlkes and Doug Martin, and two sacks by Keith Millard helped Minnesota drop Tampa Bay's record to 2-12.

Jets 27, Bills 7
Three touchdown passes by Ken O'Brien, two to tight end Mickey Shuler, powered the New York Jets over Buffalo. O'Brien, who completed 25 of 40 passes for 370 yards, threw touchdown passes of 20 and 2 yards to Shuler and connected with Wesley Walker for a 96-yard scoring strike — the longest play in Jets history.

The Bills, the NFL's lowest scoring team, had three long drives stopped by turnovers, one coming on a fumble when they were on the Jets 1 and another when Bruce Mathison's pass from the Jets 4 was intercepted in the end zone.

Redskins 17, Eagles 12
George Rogers ran for 150 yards and scored a touchdown to lead Washington over Philadelphia, 6-8, and keep the Redskins' mathematically alive for a fourth straight playoff spot.

The Redskins, 8-6, had to stop a Philadelphia drive that reached the 2-yard line with three minutes left before claiming their eighth victory against six losses.

National Finals Rodeo action heats up

By The Associated Press
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Joe Beaver, a 20-year-old calf roper from Victoria, Texas, strengthened his claim to rodeo's rookie-of-the-year honors Sunday, finishing in the money in the second round of the National Finals Rodeo competition. Beaver, who won first in his category Saturday night, moved into first place among the 15 calf roping finalists with Sunday's third-place finish. He slipped past eight-time world champion Roy Cooper of Durant, Okla. in the calf roping category. In other action Sunday, Clint Corey, Silverdale, Wash., slipped ahead of Lewis Feild, Elk Ridge, Utah, among top money winners in the bareback riding competition. Chuck Logue, McKinney, Texas, won first place in Sunday's bareback riding. Ted Nuce of Manteca, Calif. won the bull riding competition, edging out Ricky Bolin of Mesquite, Texas and Saturday night's co-winner, Charles Sampson of Los Angeles.

"We've got everything in our hands now," Taylor said. "It's up to us. Nobody can say we backed into the playoffs."

The Giants, who blew a 33-21 lead last week in a 35-33 loss to Cleveland, stopped the Oilers twice at their 3-yard line in the third quarter.

The Oilers are 5-9 and will close out the season on the road at Cleveland and Indianapolis.

ing time for 15th-year veteran quarterback Ken Anderson, who completed two of four passes in his first appearance since the second game of the season.

When it was over, the Cowboys had surrendered the most total yards in team history (570) and the most points since a 54-13 pounding by Minnesota in 1970.

Even the Bengals were surprised by the ease of their conquest.

"I think they were very flat," said Bengals nose tackle Tim Krumrie, who had a game-high nine tackles. "They didn't seem to have too much emotion. We dominated. They never seemed to get their wits about them."

The Bengals had extra incentive to prove themselves against the Cowboys. Krumrie referred to a newspaper article that said Dallas center Tom Rafferty didn't know the name of the Bengals' nose tackle.

"It made me kind of mad when I read that this morning, that Rafferty didn't know my name," Krumrie said. "I'm sure when he watches the game films he'll know it now."

Lakers rally by Mavericks

By The Associated Press
It can't be good news for the rest of the National Basketball Association that the Los Angeles Lakers can play defense, too.
The Lakers, highest-scoring team in the league this year, held Dallas to 14 points in the fourth quarter Sunday night and rallied from an eight-point deficit to beat the Mavericks 125-119.
"Defense is the most inconsistent part of our game," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "It seems like we're happy to trade baskets until we're ready to make a stand. In our big games, we've made that stand early. This time, we made no concentrated effort on defense until the fourth quarter."

"Maybe they got a little tired and we increased our effort on defense," Lakers center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar said.
In other NBA games, Washington crushed Sacramento 111-89, Seattle tripped Philadelphia 105-100 and San Antonio defeated Golden State 121-114.
Riley tried his hand as a punter in giving rookie forward A.C. Green credit for the team's fourth-quarter rally.
"A.C. was our sparkplug," Riley said. "Both he and Byron (Scott) made some great defensive plays. A.C. seemed to be in all the right places."

Green scored eight of his 12 points in the fourth quarter and led the Lakers with nine rebounds. Scott scored 12 of his team-high 30 points in the last 12 minutes.
The Lakers trailed 105-98 after three quarters and the Mavericks, who scored 41 points in the third period, led 108-100 in the early moments of the fourth quarter. But Los Angeles, winners of seven straight, reeled off an 11-3 streak to tie the score at 111-111 with 4:46 left.
The defending champion Lakers, who improved their record to 18-2 while handing Dallas only its second loss in the last nine games, scored 25 of the last 36 points in the game.
"We're playing very good, but not our best," said Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who had 28 points and 15 assists. "This year we have a lot more firepower. We've won a lot of games that we would have lost last year."
"It seems that we can turn it on when we need to, but you can't do that to the good teams," Scott said. "We're just playing good ball right now."
Mark Aguirre, who led all scorers with 32 points for the Mavericks, said it wasn't the Lakers' defense that won the game.
"I don't think it was their defense; their offense finally got going," Aguirre said. "We weathered most of their attacks — until their last one. The Lakers' just ran away from us in the last eight minutes."

SuperSonics 105, 76ers 106
Tom Chambers, the leading bench scorer in the NBA, had 28 points and Xavier McDaniel 24 to lead Seattle to their first victory at Philadelphia in six games since 1980.
The 76ers, who were outscored 24-16 in the fourth quarter, led 92-85 until a 10-2 SuperSonics' streak, with six of the points by McDaniel, gave them a 95-94 lead with 5:35 remaining.
Charles Barkley's layup gave Philadelphia its last lead as McDaniel scored again at the three-minute mark to give Seattle a 99-98 edge. Neither team scored again until Rickey Sobers hit two free throws with 34 seconds left.
Moses Malone and Julius Erving led the 76ers with 20 points each.
Spurs 121, Warriors 114
Mike Mitchell scored 26 points and Alvin Robertson 25, and both players hit two free throws in the final minute to seal San Antonio's victory over Golden State.
The Warriors scored eight consecutive points in the last two minutes to cut an 11-point deficit to 117-114, but the free throws by Mitchell and Robertson kept the Warriors from getting closer.
Backup center Jerome Whitehead led Golden State with 18 points. He played most of the game when starter Joe Barry Carroll left early because of illness.

Bullets 111, Kings 89
Washington hit 13 of its first 14 shots en route to taking a 32-18 lead in the first quarter, then coasted against Sacramento for its eighth straight home victory.
Cliff Robinson scored 28 points

Ex-Aggies spill beans

DALLAS (AP) — Dozens of former Texas A&M University football players have told of thousands of dollars, primarily from alumni, paid to top Aggie players in car deals, weekly allowances, performance payments, signing incentives and bonuses, according to a report in The Dallas Times Herald.
A&M officials huddled behind closed doors over the weekend to study the allegations and indicated an official comment could come as early as today. A Southwest Conference official said the National Collegiate Athletic Association was investigating the team's football program.
Former players told the newspaper in a copyright story for today's editions that team members sold their complimentary tickets for as much as $150 per ticket and $700 for season tickets.
Complimentary tickets were sold, during the A&M tenures of head coaches Jackie Sherrill and Tom Wilson, to A&M boosters milling around the athletic dormitory, Cain Hall, and willing to pay top dollar for a top player's tickets, the former players told the Times Herald.
In three copyright stories over the weekend, the newspaper reported coaches and boosters at A&M gave football players thousands of dollars in car deals, weekly allowances, performance payments, signing incentives and bonuses.
The Times Herald said interviews with 40 recent players and other sources indicate A&M players tapped into a wealthy network that allowed them special privileges in alleged violation of NCAA rules.
SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Saturday the NCAA was investigating the A&M football program for possible rules violations.
Former player Gary Rogers of Dallas told the Times Herald he received so much money from Dallas banker and Dallas A&M Club president-elect Riley C. Couch III that he began to doubt one man alone was supplying it.
The Times Herald, in another story Saturday, reported that Sherrill, head coach of the SWC champion and Cotton Bowl-bound team, had conducted a "cover-up" by denying reporters access to players as well as information about their vehicle registrations.
Sherrill, in comments made available Saturday to The Associated Press by Texas A&M officials, denied any improprieties.
Many alleged improprieties were reported from players who were dismissed from the team for various reasons. The Times Herald said it found, among the irregularities:
— Money-stuffed envelopes were allegedly slipped anonymously into lockers and shoes in the dressing room after games or under doors in the athletes' dormitory rooms.
— Elroy Steen of Gonzales, a player dismissed from the team in 1980 for drug-related reasons, told the Times Herald he and other players got $600 to $700 from coaches at the beginning of a season in exchange for a season's worth of complimentary tickets.
