Spring Negotiators approve farm bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congressional negotiators late Saturday broke past a week of bitter disagreements to approve a costly new long-term farm policy designed to keep farmers afloat until their competitiveness is restored and American agriculture regains its footing.

The massive bill now must go to both the House and Senate for final endorsement, expected as early as Tuesday, then to the White House, where it is unclear whether President Reagan would sign it.

The president has an opportunity now to cap this effort by signing the bill and sending a signal to the farmers of the nation that he's sensitive to their problems," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan.

"The bottom line is we've got a farm bill that provides income protection and provides more flexibility" to adjust U.S. production to world market conditions, Dole

Agriculture Secretary John Block, who had participated in dozens of closed-door meetings during drafting of the compromise, said the legislation contained improvements, but refused to say whether he would recommend that Reagan sign it.

In several key ways, the administration won policy victories. Price support levels would begin to decline immediately next year, helping make U.S. commodities more attractive in export markets. After a two-year freeze, income subsidies for grains, cotton and rice also would begin to decline, although at a slower rate.

But the policy came at a high

The final bill would cost about $125 billion over the next three years, of which about $52 billion would go for crop price and income supports and the rest for an array of programs from farm and rural credit to research, foreign food aid and the food stamp program. Reagan has insisted that commodity spending not exceed $50 billion. Agreement came after eight days of bargaining sessions. On Saturday, major progress came with the negotiators' approval of a new program under which the government would buy entire dairy herds in an attempt to solve the milk industry's perennial over-production problems. The 18-month dairy buy-out offer is a gamble that enough of the nation's 11 million dairy cows can be sent to slaughter or exported to bring supply more into line with demand and avoid what the industry most fears - further cuts in its price supports.

The conferees also endorsed food stamp provisions that would make modest improvements for the working poor and families with high housing costs. The negotiators made a string of amendments in the way subsidies are computed to help shave about $2 billion off the final price tag and make the bill more acceptable to the administration.

Under the dairy agreement, price supports would be frozen at the current level of $11.60 per hundred pounds next year, with a modest 25-cent cut authorized on Jan. 1, 1987. If the unorthodox buyout program fails to make a suffi-

His talent came in handy Saturday when he introduced "Night Before Christmas and other stories," a puppet show by Kelly Draper at Highland Mall.

Yellow, green and pink pup-pets with brilliant orange hair slept, mouths agape, in a miniature bed on an elaborate stage at the mall. The bed was slightly raised to allow the puppeteer access from underneath.

The stockings were hung by the chimney with care, and a triangular Christmas tree lit up the area. "Mice" climbed up and down the tree, to the delight of the young audience.

Multi-colored, armless puppets danced across the stage to the "Nutcracker Suite," "Jingle Bells" and other songs.

Crowds of Christmas shoppers gathered around the stage, children sitting on the floor and parents standing behind.

Some curious young spectators began examining the curtained stage and puppet bed that rested on the floor, until a stage patron warned them away from the set. One tiny, curly-haired girl refused to budge until her father came and got her.

The children shrieked with laughter as a stocking-capped Papa puppet entered the "room." A jolly Santa with a flowing white beard appeared in

Caterers 'shoot it out' at barbecue

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

No injuries were reported during a four-person shootout at 202 Young Saturday afternoon.

Members of the Texas Ranger Gang, a barbecue catering company and traveling western troupe, conducted the western shootout with blanks and black powder.

"We've been expecting police to show up whereever we perform our shootouts," said company owner Rex Loftis of Midland. "The law may show up one of these days and shoot the real thing. The company was hired by Smith

Brothers Pipe Company in Midland to cater a barbecue yesterday at Harmony Drilling Company of 202 Young. Loftis said Smith Brothers conducts business with Harmony.

A mobile barbecue smoking pit known as "the beast" was transported this morning and used by the company to cook the barbecue. Loftis said "the beast" has a 350-pound capacity.

"We fed 'em (Harmony employees and family) German sausage and fajitas," he said.

The troupe arrived in Big Spring at 6:30 Saturday morning, and immediately set up a Cheyenne teepee in front of the Harmony

Company, Loftis said. The catering company also brought a stagecoach complete with western attired dummies of Tip O'Neal, Ronald Reagan, Richard Nixon and Jimmy Carter.

The stagecoach "is a mobile road vehicle," which is cleared through the state's motor vehicle licensing division, Loftis said.

'We went down the highway at 50 miles per hour," Loftis said about the journey to Big Spring this morning.

He said Department of Public Safety troopers had never pulled the traveling troupe's vehicles off the road for questioning during the company's three-year history.
"Why should they?" Loftis said.

However, other motorists observing the traveling troupe's en-tourage will usually "turn their heads," Loftis said. The Texas Ranger Gang, Loftis said, recently put on shows at the Boomtown settlement in Odessa, the Summer Mummers melodrama show in Midland and a cattle sale sponsored by Clayton Williams of Midland that was featured on ABC's "Good Morning

Auctioneer finds some new homes for teddy bears

LONDON (AP) — Pip, Squeak and Wilfred together fetched $143, upmarket Nigel cost $286, but a 75-year-old named Sydney sold for more than $1,000 in a booming bear market.

Smart or scruffy, each of the 186 teddy bears offered at a special Christie's auction on Friday found someone to give him a new home except one.

Misha Bear, who stands 7 feet 9 inches tall, is losing his stuffing, and nobody wanted him at the reserve price of $114. Poor Misha was left on the shelf, unwanted, just 12 days before Christmas.

cient dent in the surplus, the bill provides for more price-support cuts beginning with a 25-cent reduction on Oct. 1, 1987.

The price supports are a major factor in the price of milk and dairy products to consumers, and consumer groups had argued for steeper cuts beginning immediately. The agreement was a compromise with the dairy industry, which had sought to write into the law higher support levels along with a program that would have paid farmers not to produce milk.

Under the agreement, the government would continue to buy up enough surplus dairy products to keep prices at the support level specified by law. Those purchases have resulted in huge stockpiles of federally owned nonfat dry milk, cheese and butter that are costly to store and difficult to dispose of.

The buy-out program would be financed at least in part through a farmer assessment of 40 cents per hundred pounds of production, dropping to 25 cents in 1987.

The new, untried dairy program would let farmers wanting to go out of business offer their entire herds for sale either for slaughter or for export, with the government subsidizing that sale on a bid basis. Participants would have to stay out of dairying for three to five years.

Rep. Tony Coehlo, D-Calif., chairman of the House Agriculture dairy subcommittee, said the program should thin the U.S. dairy herd by 800,000 cows over the program's 18-month life.

"It's something that starts us on the road of bringing down overproduction," added Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt. "It's a pay-as-you-go dairy program.

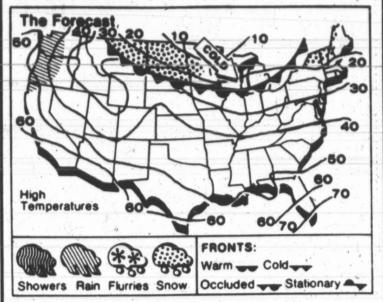

But Rep. Jim Jeffords, R-Vt., opposed the standby price-support cuts which would go into effect if the buy-out doesn't solve the surplus problem. He noted advances in biotechnology that threaten to trigger a quantum increase in milk production, such as the use of growth hormones and feed supplements for dairy cows.

To offset the effects of the buyout on the red meat industry, the bill provides that the government will buy up 400 million pounds of meat during the program, shipping half of it overseas for use in U.S. commissaries and using half of it in domestic nutrition programs.

The food stamp agreement would boost annual spending on the program slightly from the current $12.5 billion level, adding $346 million over three years. It would make slight improvements in deductions allowed for earned income and shelter in figuring benefits, and would eventually prevent states from charging sales taxes on food stamp purchases.

"It will provide some very limited (extra) assistance to peo-ple on food stamps," said Robert Greenstein of the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities, a lobbying group. "It's not a major new initiative to deal with hunger, and it is less than what the president's hunger task force recommended in January 1984."

Reagan accuses Ortega

WASHINGTON — Describing Nicaraguan leader Daniel Ortega as a "dictator in designer glasses," President Reagan on Saturday accused the Sandinistas of using Cuban aid and terrorists to turn their country into a breeding ground for subversion.
In some the harshest language ever directed at Nicaragua's leftist government, Reagan used part of his weekly radio address to push for additional assistance to the rebels fighting the government of Managua.

"Nicaragua today is an imprisoned nation; it is a nation condemned to unrelenting cruel-ty by a clique of very cruel men; by a dictator in designer glasses and his comrades, drunk with power and all its brutal implications," Reagan said.

Exit polls topic of battle

TACOMA, Wash. - The news media and the Washington state government square off this week in a court battle over how far the state can go in trying to regulate election day exit polls and early projections of winners.

At issue is the networks' use of analyses of key precincts and polls of people who have voted to project the winner in presidential races long before the polls close on the West Coast. In 1964, 1972, 1980 and 1984, the winner was known before the polls had closed in the Pacific time zone.

Washington Secretary of State Ralph Munro argues that, besides physically disrupting polling places by interviewing people as they leave, broadcast of early election projections discourages late voters in Western states from casting ballots.

Critics to fight FHA sale

WASHINGTON — Opponents of a plan by President Reagan to sell the Federal Housing Administration to private bidders and cut housing subsidies in the 1987 fiscal year vowed Saturday to fight the proposal in Congress.
"It's nuts. Why doesn't he sell the Washington Monument?" said Mayor Edward I. Koch of New York. "We haven't seen this kind of turning your back on low income people since Marie Antoinette," the mayor said, referring to the French queen beheaded during the French Revolution. The queen, told that her people had no bread, said "Let them eat cake," according to tradition.

Jerking cable results in scores of injuries

DILLON, Colo. (AP) - A chairlift cable at a ski resort jolted violently Saturday, throwing some skiers 40 feet to the ground and injuring scores of people, at least nine critically, witnesses and authorities said.

As many as 50 people were injured in the latemorning accident, said Lillian Ross, communications director at Keystone resort.

A giant wheel at the top of the Teller Lift holding and turning the cable fell out of position, dropping 8 to 10 feet, said Chris Sayer of Denver, a skier who witnessed the accident. The jerk along the cable was "so forceful that in some cases it broke the backs of some of the chairs' carrying skiers, Sayer said. Along the triple chairlift, some skiers still clung to their seats while Ski Patrol members and resort workers attended those who had fallen, Sayer said. As dusk fell over the resort, dozens of friends and relatives huddled in 23-degree cold outside the clinic, waiting for word of skiers known to be skiing in the area where the accident occurred.

number of critically injured was unknown.

At St. Anthony Central Hospital in Denver, spokesman Randy Shook said four victims were brought to the hospital in critical condition, including a 49-year-old man who was undergoing surgery for chest and abdominal injuries and a 51-year-old woman in surgery for head and back injuries.

Five others were reported in critical condition en route to Denver hospitals via Flight For Life and Aurora Presbyterian Air Life helicopters, Shook said.

Those not critically injured were treated at the Snake Creek Clinic at Keystone and all were reported "stabilized" by midafternoon, Shook said.

"Nobody realized the implications of a having a wheel fall like that. Then people began to realize that this was really a serious accident," Sayer said. "It was deadly quiet.

There was 45 inches of snow on the slopes at Keystone and North Peak on Saturday, according to reports from Colorado Ski Country USA. Skies were clear and crowds were moderate, Sayer said.

Crash cause still mystery

GANDER, Newfoundland - All bodies have been moved from the rocky hillside where a DC-8 crash killed 248 American soldiers and eight crew members, and the remains will be flown to the United States starting Monday, officials said.

But investigators say they still have not been able to solve the mystery of why the chartered aircraft, after an apparently normal takeoff in light snow, crashed to earth in a ball of fire early Thursday.

Peter Boag, head of the investigation, said Saturday that all "identifiable remains" had been moved from the crash site to a makeshift

The bodies are to be shipped in flag-draped caskets to the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology at Dover, Del., where autopsies will be conducted under supervision of the Canadian safety board's officials, Boag said.

Schultz visits Berlin Wall

BERLIN - U.S. Secretary of State George P. Shultz said in this divided city on Saturday that since the 1948-49 Berlin Airlift, "the defense of the freedom of Berlin has become a hallmark" of American foreign policy.

Shultz, who earlier in the day met West German leaders in Bonn, flew here to visit the Berlin Wall, a symbol of a continent split by 40 years of confrontation between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The secretary was greeted at the military wing of Tegel Airport by Maj. Gen. John H. Mitchell, the American commander in West Berlin, before his scheduled meeting with Berlin Mayor Eberhard Diepgen.

In brief comments on the runway during a driving rainstorm, Shultz said: "Flying in here reminds me of the Berlin Airlift.

Canadians heal separatist split

Canada is so close to the United States, both culturally and geographically, that it swings on the same pendulum. Right now, that pendulum is swinging toward the conservative side, even in cranky Quebec.

It is an election sweep by the Liberal Party that brings the French-speaking province closer to normalcy. For the first time in nine years, the separatist Parti Quebecois is out of power. That means many French-speaking voters of the province have joined their English-speaking fellow Canadians in support of federalism and confederation.

It was agonizing to see the province torn by conflict during the last decade over language and culture. The radicalism was generated, in great part, by economic issues. Quebec has among the highest unemployment rates and taxes in Canada. The provincial government has a $3.2 billion deficit. None of these economic problems could be solved by separatism, and all of them might well have been made worse. Finally, the separatists recognized that reality.

It helped that the federal government made generous concessions to the Franco-phone minority. French is being taught in all the provinces and many young Canadians will be truly bilingual. That is certain to enrich their lives and given Canada an even more respected and influential voice in world

Once again, our sensible neighbors to the north have composed themselves in a constructive way and healed their divisions. We congratulate them.

U.S. border needs free trade zone

The anti-trade frenzy sweeping Congress is smothering a bill by Rep. Bill Richardson of New Mexico to establish a 200-mile free trade zone along both sides of the U.S.-Mexico border. Congress — especially the Texas delegation - should take up the bill, for it holds one of the answers to revitalizing the economy of a key region of the country is also an immigration bill. But it is unlike the harsh immigration bill which has passed the Senate and awaits the House.

Supported by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the Richardson plan, could also help Mexico create jobs on its side of the border, thus helping to stem the flow of immigrants northward.

Instead of penalizing employers who hire illegal immigrants, Richardson seeks to help transform the Mexican and southwestern economies by making the area permanently attractive to industry.

Richardson's idea is simple: Use tax breaks to lure industry and commerce into the 400-mile zone and make the products of the zone's companies (which must be owned jointly by U.S. and Mexican businessmen) duty free. Declaring the products duty free would make them more competitive on the world market, and should make the zone powerfully attractive to businessmen familiar with the bottom line and world competition

The Richardson plan is specifically about growth. It freely concludes that only growth can solve the problems of a region which, other than its several cities which are Sunbelt successes, is suffering badly and begs for new investment.

Anyone aware of the economic blight crippling parts of the region - such as West and South Texas. parts of the Arizona border area and the area all along the Mexican side of the border - should greet the possibilities suggested by international debt. Richardson optimistically.

The border area's population continues to grow while its rolling by extending some bond economic problems multiply. But financing programs Congress only Reps. Albert Bustamante and Henry Gonzalez of San Antonio and would then eliminate other taxes Rep. Certain questions of constitutionality regarding state revenues and federal prerogatives are bound to come up. Almost half of New Mexico and Arizona would be included in the zone, perhaps a great disadvantage to their neighbors. Southern California, already swollen with industry and people, would probably benefit the most from the plan as it is structured now. Why locate a plant in Del Rio when the same plant could reap the same benefits in a spectacular city like Los Angeles?

In this regard, the plan as presently drawn would benefit rger metropolitan areas at the expense of the areas the bill intends to help

Yet, despite the flaws, including effects on the environment and demand on water supplies, the Richardson idea merits serious attention. The bill's introduction in Congress marks the first time a congressman has come up with a potentially workable strategy to the twin issues of immigration and a ravaged economy.

How far Richardson gets is another thing altogether. Currently, no hearings on the bill are scheduled. But Richardson has succeeded in getting the idea attached to another bill in Congress, directing the Secretary of Commerce to study the feasibility of the trade zone. However unclear its future, the zone — had it been in existence - might have convinced General Motors to choose East Texas for its Saturn plant had General Motors been able to locate some of its feeder plants within the

In a similar way, the hightechnology corridor being suggested between Austin and San Antonio could receive an important boost, for the zone would stretch almost to Austin.

Mexico would benefit greatly, too, by attracting the critical foreign capital it needs to develop its economy and pay itself out of its

Richardson would get the ball wants to phase out in 1986. The plan

Excuse me, but I'm confused here. I thought the purpose of public schools was to educate. The 3Rs and such.

Extracurricular activities, I thought, are what the name implies - "extras" to be extended once the regular classroom work is satisfactorily accomplished.

But either the definitions have changed or I had it all wrong to begin with. Sports activities seem to be vying for equal standing with academics. To hear some tell it, you'd think a limitation on sports is tantamount to depriving school children of basic educational opportunities.

'Isn't it a shame," say the sports addicts, "that little Johnny won't be allowed to play?" What convoluted thinking this is.

And what does it tell us about the erosion of individual rights and the intrusion of government in our lives? It tells us that we've abdicated yet another responsibility to a bureaucrat miles removed from our homes, our communities and our schools.

Instead of parents telling their sons and daughters "you won't play if you don't pass," the parents have passed the responsibility on. instead of coaches telling their charges "you won't play if you don't pass," the coaches have passed the responsibility on. Look how the sands of time and neglect have eroded individual responsibility. Instead of Mommy telling Johnny that he has to buckle his seat belt before she drives out of the driveway, she tells him: "You better buckle up, it's the law. Instead of seeing an opportunity to integrate our schools and provide equality in education as a natural evolution in society, we had to wait for the federal government to send storm troopers into communities to enforce arbitrary standards for mixing blacks, whites and browns in the melting pot of education.

Instead of seeing the need to make public buildings accessible to the handicapped, we waited - again for government intervention. High school principals and coaches in the state are considering banding together politically to influence the outcome of statewide elections. The sole purpose is to address education issues. The implied threat is I can't say as I blame them. Frustration over niggling rules that cost time and money has principals upset: frustration over arbitrary and excessive bans on extracurricular activities has coaches up in

I guess this is like closing the barn door after the cows are out, but the real responsibility here lies with educators and parents who let rules get too lax for too long. Schools got too soft on education. Extracurricular activities became a primary objective with education as a sidelight. We even put the philosophy to words: "At least this will keep him in school" we said of the athlete whose work was passable only on the playing field.

There's no reason to sell short the capacity of our young people to get basic educations in the public school system. The failure to educate should be acknowledged only for what it says about our inabili-

If we paid as much attention to educational realignments as we do to realigning athletic districts, then we wouldn't have had the need for a state no-pass, no-play rule.

Milder brands of tobacco ads

By ROBIN WARD Cigarette ads have come a long

A recent target of the American Medical Society, tobacco promotions are criticized for attracting young people to an addictive, deadly habit. But today's appeals in cigarette ads are more subtle than those of 50 years ago. I ran across some magazines from the 1930s recently, and the difference in advertising tactics was startling. Cigarette ads in these magazines, published before the first General Surgeon's report on the ill effects of smoking in 1964, focus on the healthful, energy-producing effects of tobacco. One ad, in a 1934 Liberty magazine, features Olympic diving champion Georgia Coleman who, after a hard of day of swimming, smokes a cigarette to feel like her "real self again.

'Here's a delightful way to restore your energy ... as revealed by Science," the tobacco company proclaims. "This 'energizing effect,' a discovery confirmed by a famous research laboratory in New York, occurs in a harmless and utterly delightful manner."

A 1936 ad has New York debutante Miss Vivian Dixon telling how smoking "gives you a splendid lift in energy.

"One's first season is so exciting," she says. "There are so many parties, so many things to do. But all the rushing about does tire you sometimes, and that's when smoking (cigarettes) makes such a difference.

Not all the ads were aimed at people looking for a "lift." Some, like a 1933 ad in Woman's Home Companion, appeal to a woman's good taste.

"Women are flavor experts...naturally they best," says the ad.

Who could resist such tlattery? Men also were a target of the promotions, as in a 1932 ad in The Country Home. "On the farm, where men work close with Nature, the freshness of (a brand of cigarettes) is especially well understood and appreciated.

In contrast, today's cigarette advertisements rely on visual impact with a short slogan to sell their product. The companies make no claims of physical benefits, but imply deceptively that the successful, exciting lives of the subjects go hand-in-hand with smoking.

"Performance counts" declares one cigarette manufacturer, who features a race car driver and ballet dancer in its ads. "Reach for the exceptional" admonishes another, with an airborne surfer shown silhouetted against the sky. "Alive with pleasure" are a man and woman building a snowman. "After all if smoking isn't a pleasure, why bother?" the ad asks.

Could it simply be because smoking is addictive?

Seeds of discord mark Capitol trees

AUSTIN — The big question in this cold capital city in the final days of 1985 has been: Should a 19th century mistake be repeated in the interest of historical accuracy?

State Capitol Architect Roy Graham was insisting up until last week that sycamore trees be planted on the Capitol grounds to replace old elm trees that are diseased and dying. He argued that sycamores are the appropriate replacement trees because state planners in the late 1880s chose them to grace the long front walkway of the beautiful Capitol grounds

Be assured that Graham's view has not been embraced by everyone. Significant lobbying efforts were begun by fans of everything from oaks to pecans. Sycamores are trash trees. they charged. So are pecan trees, replied the sycamore lobby

The Austin American-Statesman jumped into the dispute with an editorial favoring the live oak because it is native and not imported from other states, as is the sycamore.

And, opponents point out, the original choice almost 100 years ago obviously was a bad one. The old elms that are now dying were planted along the Capitol's front walkway because the original sycamores quickly died. Why repeat a mistake?

Live oak supporters are upset not only about Graham's tree preference but also about his orders for digging up and moving some currently healthy live oaks that were planted on the Capitol grounds in recent years. "They're not matched, and they're too small," Graham said of the oaks.

Some activists sneaked into the area early last week and hung banners on some of the asyet-unmoved live oaks saying, "Leave Me Alone. I'm a Native Texan.

All in all, it's an amusing little dispute to end the year on. But then last week came word that a fast-acting bacterial disease is wiping out sycamores in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, and it may be headed for Central Texas.

Like any good bureaucrat, Graham used the news as an excuse to drop the unexpected hot potato and plant it as deeply as possible. The issue, he said, will be studied for about a year.

Another indication that this strange year is leaving on a strange note: old foes Ralph Yarborough and Price Daniel Sr. held a joint news conference at the Capitol and acted like boyhood pals.

In 1956, the two squared off in a bitter race for governor. Daniel was a U.S. senator and the choice of the conservatives. Yarborough, who later became a U.S. senator, tried to put together a coalition of moderates and liberals.

During the campaign, Yarborough tried to link his opponent with a Veterans Land Board scandal of the previous administration. Daniel warned of "left wing radicals" trying to take over state government.

Daniel won by only about 3,200 votes, and the two remained bitter political enemies for years to come. But last week Daniel, 75, and Yarborough, 82, held an emotional reconciliation before the media.

They called the news conference to announce that they will be serving together as unpaid attorneys to help the Tigua Indians of El Paso to obtain a designation for a federal reservation, but they also used it to heal old political wounds. Daniel praised Yarborough's public service, and the former foes grasped hands in friendship.

With that unlikely reconciliation as an example, maybe the great tree controversy can be settled, too. Maybe decades from now the branches of elms, sycamores, oaks and pecan trees can come together in peace on the Capitol lawn.

ROGERS, Ark. (AP) - Death sometimes occupies his thoughts, but the activist father of America's bestselling primer on parenting says his biggest concern is the arms race. At 82, Dr. Benjamin Spock is still writing and lecturing.

And he frowned when asked whether he advocated permissiveness along with tips on sore throats and toilet training. "That's a bad rap. For the first 22 years after the book came out, nobody accused me to my face or wrote to me that the book was too permissive,' Spock said with a sigh

The description was first applied to his writings, Spock said, by the Rev. Norman Vincent Peale in a January 1968 sermon in New York, about two weeks after the pediatrician was indicted for aiding draft resisters. He was later acquitted.

"Peale, like other conservatives, was upset that the young people seemed so unpatriotic, so selfindulgent, and he thought it was awful for older people to give them any kind of moral support," Spock

Sales of his book dropped after Peale's speech, Spock said, but he got a letter a few years later from the positive-thinking pioneer. "He wanted to say if he'd done me any harm he was sincerely sorry for it. But that word permissiveness stuck. Very discouraging," he said.

"Every edition of Baby And Child Care' has said in one way or another that you have to give children firm, clear leadership. You're older than they. It's up to

'I've also said specifically, ask your children for cooperation, ask them for politeness. I was never permissive and I never recanted and I never recanted because I had nothing to recant. I never was permissive in the first place.'

"The Old Piano Roll Blues" rattled from his record player and Spock boosted the volume, observing that ragtime virtuoso Knuckles O'Toole was in rare, joyful form.

Spock says he wants no depressing dirges played in his memory.

"I want my funeral to be cheerful. I don't want people sniffling and whispering. I want some good you to guide the child. You don't hymns, and I'd like America The have to be oppressive, you don't Beautiful and the Battle Hymn of jazz funeral "I want to die cheerfully. I don't want to be kept alive in a terminal illness with medical heroics. Furthermore, I don't want people to try to pull the wool over my eyes. I want them to be straight shooters.

Spock then hurried up his steep living room stairs to swap a dark Brooks Brothers suit for a faded work shirt to wear on a canoe trip in Escalapia Hollow, named for a Greek god of medicine.

It was an overcast November day, and Spock said he was glad to conclude a trip to Benton County that took hours with complicated air schedules and a bouncy ride over dirt roads. "It's a good 30 or 45 minutes to the house from here," he said, pointing to the last liquor store on U.S. 71 in Washington County.

Benton County is dry. Inside the store, Spock surveyed the prices, then extended a long arm into the cooler for a $2.49 six-pack. He paid with a $20 bill and waved to the clerk.

Spock wanted a home in the Ozarks near water after his 1976 marriage to Mary Morgan, an Arkansan 40 years his junior. He also adopted her daughter Ginger,

He pointed to a couple of fiberglass racing shells and his canoe near a wooden dock just off the back porch. A member of Yale's 1924 Olympic rowing crew, he still manages to row several miles on Beaver Lake when he's in town. It's not that often. His speaking schedule keeps him on the road in spring and fall.

The house is for sale and Spock has moved his office from a Rogers bank building to the Virgin Islands. The climate is agreeable there and Spock says he can relax by sailing to secret coves. He can also handle speaking tours more conveniently, avoiding hours of delays leaving rural Arkansas.

"He became a critical person in my whole life," Rothenberg said. "I wanted to treat children and families in a more complete kind of way. There was no name for it in those days. I knew after I met him that here was the kind of pediatrician I wanted to be.

Their paths crossed again in the 1960s during demonstrations against the Vietnam War and the relationship solidified with an exchange of letters in the 1970s about the effects of television violence on children.

ASCS committee elects chairman

Donny Reid, a farmer in the Sand Springs-Coahoma area, was elected last week as new chairman of the Howard County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation committee.

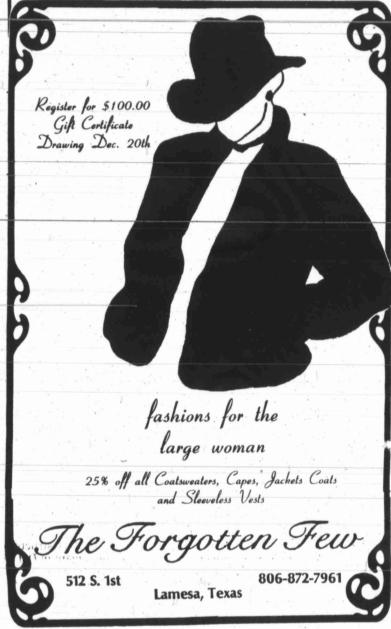

Reid will join vice-president Lloyd Underwood and committeeman Clay Ingram as voting members of the nine-man committee, said Tim Hall, director for the county ASCS office.

Reid, a previous member of the committee, will hold the post vacated by R.C. Thompson, who recently stepped down after serving the committee for nine consecutive years, the maximum time allowed by committee bylaws.

tee for nine years previous to 1985, Reid took a year off from committee functions. The year off enabled him to again seek election to the committee, Hall

Members of the committee serve three-year terms before having to be reelected. Reid's stint as chairman will be for one year, Hall said.

The role of the committee, he said, is, among other things, to oversee compliance with federal farm policy and to select applications for such things as cost-sharing for conservation practices.

Senior citizens teach school

LUFKIN (AP) - Some Lufkin teen-agers are learning math from a retired postmaster, English from a local newspaper columnist or science from a former engineer as part of a special school program using volunteer teachers.

The Adopt-A-School program, sponsored by the Lufkin Chamber of Commerce, brings retired volunteers into the classroom to help teachers instruct remedial eighth-graders.

A MATTER OF COLOR

New neutral colors for appliances were unveiled by manufacturers nearly two years ago. They are slowly making their way into America's kitchens. The new neutrals, however, have a long way to go before they catch almond as the first choice in appliance colors. The new colors are "toast" or "sand," which are warm tans for traditional decorating, and "platinum" or "silver" to go with cooler color schemes. These new colors face stiff competition from almond. The creamy classic accounted for 57 percent of all refrigerators and 51 percent of all ranges shipped to retailers in 1984. However, the mighty can indeed fall. Today, harvest gold, avocado, coffee and coppertone (the darlings of the 60's) together account for no more than 8 percent of shipments.

Perk up a neutral color scheme with brightly colored accessories. For help with kitchen design, call BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK. We can design, build, and install your new kitchen from floor to custom cabinets. Our skilled craftspeople can handle any home renovation job. Come to 613 North Warehouse Road in the Industrial Park, or call 267-5811. Open M-F,

Twice a week, White takes five of teacher Diann Maxey's remedial math students into another classroom and drills them in basic math skills. Some of the students had math test scores comparable to the third-grade level.

'I don't profess to be a teacher." White told the Lufkin Daily News. "I work with the teacher. Whatever she wants done is what I

Mary Benson, assistant regional director for RSVP, said the tutor program started during the 1984-85 school year. "All of our senior volunteers are special, but I think our school volunteers are especially special,"

she said. She said it was not easy finding volunteers to work in the schools because "teen-agers often have an intimidating reputation."

All of my life, I've heard about Halley's Comet. So, when I heard it was making its once-in-alifetime voyage again, I decided to look for the thing. Now, I've seen comets on T.V. and I was fully expecting to see this blasting fireball streaking across the sky ... until I had my hopes dashed by an article written by Dr. Keith Bowen of Rocky Ford, Colo. Here are some tips Dr. Bowen offers for all of us who are ignorant on comet watching:

Best viewing time will be about 1 to 1½ hours after sunset in the southwestern sky ... get away from the city lights, but don't expect to get in your car, blast out to the country and say "Well, where is it?" Make some careful preparations ... choose a night when the moon is not so bright ... on the "big day" wear your sunglasses during the day to improve your night vision ... Don't drink alcohol or smoke ... Check your glasses or contact lenses carefully for dirt or scratches ... Turn off all lights and give your eyes at least 30 minutes to adjust to the darkness — if you take along a flashlight, use a red filter on it or coat the glass with red nail polish ... use binoculars, a magnification of 7x50 is sug-gested. Dr. Bowen says that, at best, we can expect to see a long fuzzy formation about 25 to 40 widths of a full moon that looks spot it, look slightly to the right to enhance the brightness. Good luck, and if you see it, call

Richey runs wild in six-man game

By CHARLES RICHARDS Associated Press Writer

In capturing the six-man state football championship for the second straight year, the Jayton Jaybirds treated previously unbeaten Christoval like just any other foe.

Jayton runningback Trey Richey exploded for 450 yards and eight touchdowns on a frozen field Friday night before the game finally was halted with 2:16 remaining in the third quarter because of the 45-point rule employed in six-man ball.

Jayton's 64-14 victory over Christoval before 2,000 shivering fans at Indian Stadium on the McMurry College campus in Abilene was the Jaybirds' 14th straight triumph and 28th in a row, since joining the six-man ranks before the 1984 season.

Richey, a 160-pound senior considered by many to be the best all-around player in Texas six-man ranks, scored on runs of 11, 74, 4, 54, 6, 12, 7 and 9 yards on his 28 carries. He had 319 yards by halftime as the Jaybirds jumped to a 44-14 lead. Goldthwaite 23, Munday 7

At Breckenridge, sophomore running back Doug Holtzclaw scored three touchdowns to lead Goldthwaite, which knocked defending Class 1A champion Munday out of the playoffs and stopped the Moguls' winning streak, longest in the state, at 30 games. Holtzclaw rushed for 86 yards and scored on runs of 14, 33 and 3 yards. Tim Sims added a 37-yard field goal for Goldthwaite, which improved its record to 14-0-1. Munday had to go without its starting quarterback, Dent Offutt, who broke his collarbone the previous week during a 14-7 quarterfinal victory over Wheeler.

Runge 7, Italy 0

At Georgetown, Augie Rodriguez threw a 25-yard Touchdown pass to John Jamicek with nine minutes gone and Runge made the score stand up for a win over previously unbeaten Italy in the 1A semifinals.

Runge, 12-2, set up the drive by recovering a fumble at the Italy 40. Two running plays moved the ball to the Italy 25, from where Rodriguez threw the touchdown pass.

Electra took a 28-0 lead in the first half on Bell's two TD tosses and scoring runs of 9 yards by Willis and 2 yards by Lott.

The Indians, who have won 23 straight games, fell behind 2-0 when a high snap on their first possession rolled into the end zone, where Groveton's Jamie Kemper recovered for a safety.

Groveton drove 56 yards to take the lead in the second quarter, with Williams gaining 40 of the yards on seven carries. Quarterback Glenn Ray Thornton chipped in a key 17-yard pass to Eddie Calvin, and Thornton scored the touchdown on fourth-and-goal from the 1.

Permian advances to finals

IRVING, Texas (AP) - Woody Bryant kicked a 19-yard field goal with no time remaining to give defending state champion Odessa Permian a 10-7 victory over Cypress-Fairbanks Saturday in a Class 5A semifinal football game before 8,900 fans in Texas Stadium.

Permian will return here at 12:30 p.m. next Saturday to play Houston Yates for the state championship.

The game was tied at 7-7 with Cy-Fair holding a 3-2 lead in penetrations as the game moved into the final minute of play. But Permian's Jason Harrington completed a pass to Bryan Lauterbach at the Cy-

Fair 13 with 42 seconds remaining for the tying penetration.

Permian also led in first downs finishing with a 16-11 advantage meaning the Mojo would have advanced to the title match against Yates even without the field goal. But Permian coach John Wilkins said he wanted a clear win.

"I couldn't have lived with myself if I hadn't tried to win it outright," said Wilkins, who had his team call a time out with four seconds left to set up the field goal.

Bryant missed on his first attempt, but two penalties moved the ball closer, and he booted his 19-yarder with no time left on the

"The only chance they had to win was to block the kick and then return it 80-something yards for a touchdown. I'll take that chance every time and I think our kids would too," Wilkins said.

Wood told an overflow crowd at a news conference at a local motel that he will officially retire June 1 at the end of 43 years of coaching.

Wood compiled a record of 405-88-12 and spent the past 26 years as head coach and athletic director of Brownwood High School in West Texas. Superintendent Jim Lancaster said applications would be accepted through Dec. 31 for a successor. Tommy Butler, president of the school board, added, "We hope to have a new coach hired and ready to go by Feb. 1. Although Saturday's news conference was scheduled several days ago, Wood said it was "only in the last 24 hours" that he came to his decision about what to do. "Actually, if I did what I wanted to do, I'd go after Alonzo Stagg's record. I think he coached 72 years, or something like that. I really would. I think that would be a challenge," Wood said. A consideration, Wood said, is that because of his many years in coaching, his retirement pay will be substantially more than his current salary - "well over twice as much, just in each of the next two years alone."

Sweetwater in 4A finals

BROWNWOOD, Texas (AP) — Quarterback Neal Hoover connected with Anthony Norman on a 63-yard touchdown pass with 3:09 remaining to lift Sweetwater into a 21-21 tie with Austin Westlake Saturday, and the Mustangs advanced to next week's Class 4A state championship game with a 7-4 edge in penetrations.

Sweetwater will play No. 1-ranked Tomball, which defeated New Braunfels 32-21.

Going into the fourth quarter, Westlake had a 21-14 lead and a 4-2 edge in penetrations. Sweetwater moved deep into Westlake territory in the fourth quarter, but Westlake's Dennis Schenk intercepted Hoover's pass in the end zone to blunt one drive, and Hoover's fumble at the 9 with 5:02 left in the game stopped the other threat.

North Carolina native finds home in Hawk backcourt

By CHARLIE ALCORN Sports Writer

What does a star schoolboy athlete from basketball crazec North Carolina do after a multiletter career in football, basketball, and track? If your Statesville's Walter Walker, a basketball scholarship is accepted to Howard College in football crazy west Texas.

Made perfect sense to Howard mens coach Ed Sparling, who managed to nab the 6'2" Walker from the clutches of scores of covetous college basketball and football coaches

Sparling was skeptical about his chances of luring Walker from the glory of Division I football at North Carolina State. Walker was just another big fish he desired, but figured would get away.

WALTER WALKER multi-talented athlete

One day in the spring of this year, Sparling got a call from Wake Forest assistant basketball coach Herm Cruzar. Cruzar had long ago found out about the little juco basketball conference out in west Texas with the reputation of producing quality players.

"I had no real hope of landing Walter until I got the word from Cruzar, who taught at a summer camp where Walter was MVP. He said 'if you can keep him away from football, he'll be a helluva player."

To make a long story short, Walter didn't think much of playing football after all. A surgerygrade knee injury his sophomore ear in high school made long term football commitments

"I never really thought about playing football seriously," said Walker

So Sparling and Cruzar made a deal. The assistant recruited one Sparling's backcourt demons off the '84 squad , a 6'4" shooting guard named Mike Porter, who as since transfered to the University of New Orleans. And Sparling got a new running mate in the backcourt for prize recruit Nate "Tiny" Archibald, Jr.

Yes folks, Mr. Walker is keeping some pretty speedy company down in these parts. "It's a lot faster paced game than in high school," explained Walter. "You have to think all the time.'

The Hawks have an abundance of talent assembled in Sparling's first recruiting class since taking over the reigns at Howard right before the start of the 1984/85 season.

Walker has classmates from Hattiesburg, Miss., Dix Hills, New York, Seattle, El Paso, Detroit and Galveston, Spring and Patricia, Texas. Plus, a pair of holdovers from Savannah, Ga. and Norfolk, Va. All have one thing in common raw talent.

"I'm really not suprised by the talent in this league. Coach Cruzar told me this was one of the best league's in the nation. Most college players are good," admitted Walker.

One of the things Walker had to think about for the first time in his life, was how to crack the starting lineup. The Hawks started the 1985/86 season against Jacksonville (Tx.) Baptist with redshirt sophomore, Steve Blanchard in the backcourt along side Archibald.

At the start of the season, Walker progresses slowly, learning Sparling's system and looking for his natural position. But he has since came on strong earning a starting spot at shooting guard by the conference opener against Western

In the three WJCAC games Howard has played this year, Walker has been one of the Hawks most consistent performers. He is averaging 12.7 points per game and plays outstanding defense.

'He's doing fine," said Sparling of his star pupil's transition. "Walter is like all freshmen. He experienced some tough times but he is really beginning to establish himself. He's an excellent ballhandler and passer and he's getting more confident with his outside shooting.' Walker professes not to be worried about scoring, or starting. 'When I'm playing guard, I'm not counted on to score a lot of points. My job is to direct the offense, keep the ball moving around, and play

Chicago bounces Jets, 19-6

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. field goal (AP) - Jim McMahon hit Tim Wrightman with a 7-yard scoring pass for the only touchdown and Kevin Butler kicked four field goals, while the Chicago Bears' defense shut down the highpowered Jets offense in a 19-6 National Football League victory over New York Saturday.

The victory for the 14-1 Bears was built on a rugged defense which forced three fumbles and didn't allow the Jets to get untracked. The Bears also were helped by a chilling wind, which whipped up to 28 mph

The defeat, the Jets' first loss at home this season, dropped their record to 10-5. The Jets still can clinch a playoff spot with a victory over Cleveland at home next Sunday. Chicago already has clinched home field advantage throughout the National Conference playoffs. Walter Payton, the NFL's alltime leading rusher, was held below 100 yards for the first time in 10 weeks, gaining 53 yards on 28 carries. But he played a pivotal role with a 65-yard pass reception in the third quarter which led to a

Butler, who has kicked 14 straight field goals on the road, hit from 21, 18, 37 and 31 yards. A turnover that counted and one which didn't played a major role in After the Jets forced a Chicago punt following the Bears' first possession, New York quarterback Ken O'Brien connected with tight end Mickey Shuler on a 15-yard pass. But Shuler dropped the ball while running with it and Dave Duerson recovered at the Bears'

Chicago then marched 54 yards in nine plays for Butler's 18-yard field goal.

After the Jets tied it on Pat Leahy's 23-yard field goal, the Bears got a big break. On the first play of the second quarter, McMahon launched a long pass for Willie Gault. Jets safety Kirk Springs caught the ball and juggled it as he fell to the ground.

After a lengthy conference, the officials ruled the ball hit the ground. Television replays indicated that Springs made the interception without the ball falling the crossbar.

McMahon tried to pass on the next play, but was chased out of bounds for a loss. However, Jets cornerback Johnny Lynn was called for a personal foul — a 15-yard penalty.

The Bears drove the remaining 45 yards to complete an 80-yard drive and took a 10-3 lead on Wrightman's scoring catch.

From there, the defenses - the Bears are ranked first in the NFL, the Jets ninth - took control. It was the first time since the seasonopener that the Jets failed to score a touchdown.

The Jets pulled within 10-6 on a 55-yard field goal by Leahy early in the third quarter. A shanked punt by Chicago's Maury Buford went only 17 yards and died at the Bears 38. After three incompletions, Leahy, helped greatly by the gusting wind, hit the longest field goal in team history.

But the Bears came right back, with McMahon hitting Payton for the 65-yard play that set up Butler's 31-yard field goal against the wind. The ball just made it over

Giants picked over Cowboys

By DAVE GOLDBERG
AP Football Writer
Question: Were the Dallas Cowboys that lousy against Cincinnati last week or were they looking ahead to the New York Giants?

Answer: Both.

When Giants visit Texas Stadium Sunday to decide the NFC East title, they'll find the Cowboys questioning themselves. "I don't understand this team," says Tony Dorsett. In reality, there's not much to understand. The Cowboys are a decent team with a mystique that leads people to believe they're better than they are - even Tom Landry admits he's surprised they have nine wins by now. They probably aren't better than the Giants, whom they beat 30-29 in New Jersey, courtesy of one of home-field advantage. The Cowboys get an edge on experience, including the more also be too late. Still ... experienced coach — Landry won't panic following the 50-24 debacle with the Bengals. But the game may be decided on the field - if the New York offensive line can give Simms some time and Joe Morris a few holes ...

Simms' myriad fumbles. That's what the oddsmakers say. Dallas is favored by three -

N. Dakota St. wins Div. II football title

McALLEN, Texas (AP) - North Dakota State's Jeff Bentrim P ed for two touchdowns and passed for another Saturday as the Bison whipped North Alabama 35-7 to claim the NCAA Division II title.

Bentrim, last year's leading scorer in Division II, rushed for a 4-yard touchdown on the first drive in the first quarter, a 1-yard TD in the third quarter and threw an 11-yard TD strike to Len Kretchman in the third quarter.

The Bison capitalized on North Alabama's turnovers, bwt it was a Bison fumble in the fourth quarter that led to the Lions' touchdown.

It was the second time in three years that North Dakota State has won the championship at the Palm Bowl in this South Texas city.

From the opening kickoff, the veteran Bison backfield dominated the game with Bentrim and running backs Chad Stark and James Molstre using draw plays and op-tions to push the ball through the highly ranked Lions defense.

Stark, who rushed for more than 100 yards, scored a Bison touchdown in the third quarter after the Lions fumbled the ball deep in their territory. On a fourthand-two from the 18, Stark took the handoff from Bentrim and scampered through the middle for

The Lions took the ball into Bison territory after the exchange, but quaterback Dallas Metcalf threw the ball right into the hands of linebacker Charlie Stock.

From there, the Bison drove to the Lions goal line and Bentrim went in for the score.

The Bison kicked off, but after two plays the Lions lost the ball at the 13. Bentrim, after two plays, threw to Kretchman for the TD.

The Lions got on the score board when Charles Johnson scored from the 1 after the Lions recovered the ball on a Bison fumble and drove it to the goal line.

Molstre scored a 4-yard TD on the Bison's third possession.

NEW YORK (AP) - Former heavweight champion Leon Spinks unloaded a barrage of punches to stop Kevin "Kip" Kane in the eighth round Friday night to win the World Boxing Council's Continental Americas heavyweight title.

It was the fifth straight victory for the 32-year-old Spinks, who returned to the ring earlier this year after a 21-month layoff. He was always the aggressor against the 28-year-old Bowling Green graduate from Columbus, Ohio. Spinks knocked down Kane for a four-count with an overhand right in the opening round.

Kane came back to win two of the next three rounds, but after he stood toe- to-toe with Spinks in the sixth, appeared to be hurting and was lunging with his ight hand.

Spinks dominated the eighth round, connecting often with right hands, and was pounding away at Kane's body when referree Joe Cortez stopped the bout at 1:37.

Spinks, from Detroit, weighed in at 213 pounds, while Kane weighed 208 for the 12-rounder at Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum. Spinks, who beat with 11 knockouts. Muhammad Ali, for the crown

Washington's Riggins headed for retirement

WASHINGTON (AP) — After bulldozing past National Football League tacklers for 14 years, John Riggins likely will play his final home game for the Washington Redskins Sunday at RFK Stadium.

Riggins did not play in the Redskins' 17-12 victory over Philadelphia last Sunday, the first time in four years that a healthy Riggins did not see action. Afterward, he told running backs' coach Don Breaux, "I think I have just spent the first day of the rest of my

After a season of splitting running back chores with George Rogers, Riggins appears to have been pushed aside in favor of the former New Orleans Saints' star, who rushed for 150 yards on 36 carries and scored a touchdown against the Eagles.

'It would take a miracle for John to come back," said one Redskins official, who asked not to be identified.

ing back in the league and the highest paid, earning more than $825,000. He will be a free agent after the season and Redskins officials have said privately there are no plans to offer him a new contract.

'To bring him back would just hurt the team and continue to impede the progress of George said another high-(Rogers), ranking Redskins' official, who also asked not be identified.

'The truth is no matter what John has done in the past, this is a young man's game.

While it is uncertain whether Riggins will try and play another season, he already has shattered the myth that a running back's best years are before age 30.

Since his 30th birthday in 1980, Riggins has run for more than 100 yards 22 times, including an NFL record six in a row during the playoffs. He has scored 71touchdowns, rushed for more than 1,000 yards three times, led his team to three division titles, one league championship and two Super Bowl victories.

'Don't tell me John is too old for this game," said Redskins center Jeff Bostic. "It would not surprise me if he decided to play another year, another five years, whatever he wants.

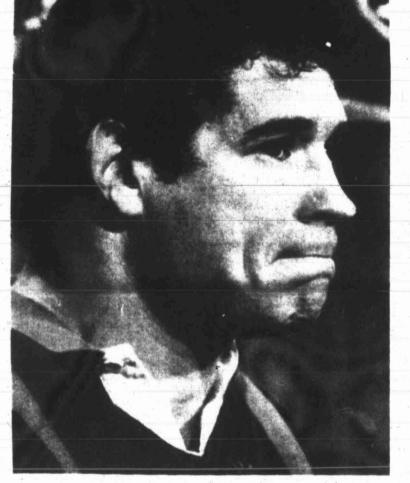

Only the second player in league history to score 100 touchdowns rushing, Riggins has scored eight times this year and trails Jim Brown's NFL record 106 by two. With 677 yards rushing this season, he moved past O.J. Simpson into fourth place on the league's alltime rushing list at 11,352.

"What separates John from the rest is his tremendous consisten said veteran Redskins tight end Rick Walker. "You can give John the ball and he would eat up the clock, picking up two, three or four yards. Then when you got inside the 10-yard line, you knew it was Riggo's time. Inside the 10 with John was as good as gold."

'Not just to the fans but to the players, John is a legend," said Redskins linebacker Neal Olkewicz.

A former Kansas All-American, Riggins was the No. 1 draft choice of the New York Jets in 1971 and led the team in receiving and rushing as a rookie.

Before playing out his option in 1975, Riggins would run for more than 3,800 yards and score 31 touchdowns for the Jets.

He also led the team in outrageous acts, showing up one year with a Mohawk haircut, another with his toenails painted purple and always on a motorcycle.

baseball history in 1961 by breaking one of the game's most revered marks, the 60 home runs hit by Babe Ruth in 1927. That season produced many emotional highs and lows for Maris and left an asterisk after his name in the record books. A Christmas remembered...

By CAROL BALDWIN Lifestyle Editor

The holidays are filled with traditions, and the Big Spring Herald is seeking help from readers in continuing the tradition of publishing "A Christmas Remembered.

For the past two years, the Lifestyle department has solicited letters from readers recounting their most memorable Christmas. This year, letters selected by members of the staff will be published in the Sunday, Dec. 22 edition of The Herald.

What makes a good story? Any Christmas story that, is special to you might make in-teresting reading for others in this area

Stories we've published in the past included a letter from a mother separated from her imprisoned son during the holidays, the story of a couple wed on Christmas Eve, a mother and daughter reunited after a 20-year separation, and Christmas during the Depression.

If your story has been published before, please do not submit it again. Stories should be submitted by Dec. 19 for publication on Dec. 22.

This year, we're asking readers to include a photograph of themselves in addition to the story. We will accept stories without photographs.

Ethridge honored with shower

Robin Ethridge, bride elect of Scott Robinson, was honored with a bridal shower Dec. 7 at the home of Joann Peugh.

Ethridge was presented with a double red carnation corsage tied with red ribbon. Marie Ethridge, mother of the bride-elect, and Sue Robinson, mother of the prospective bridegroom, were presented similar corsages.

A table overlaid with a floorlength, candlelight lace cloth was set with silver and crystal appointments. Centering the table was a candlelight lace heart-shaped wreath held on an ornate gold easle. The wreath formed a frame for kissing angel figurines silhouet-ted in the background. A picture of the bride elect and prospective bridegroom was in a gold frame and completed the setting.

The bride's grandmother, Dorothy Fowler, Big Spring, and the prospective bridegroom's grandmothers, Vaughnea White, Big Spring, and Ima Robinson,

Knott, were guests. The hostesses gift was a vacuum cleaner. The couple will be wed in a Valentines Day ceremony Feb. 14, 1986, at the First Baptist Church of 12-year-old wants weight paraphernalia

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My 12-year-old son is begging us to get him some barbells and dumbells along with one of the weight benches. I'm not sure we want to, but it's getting close to Christmas, and we'd like to make his dream come true. I know he lifts at some of his friends' homes, but we discourage that, too. What is your opinion? -Mrs. F.L.B.

I'll give you the conflicting opinions on this, then tell you what I recommend.

The cons first: Those who don't like the idea say that a child before puberty doesn't have too great a supply of the male hormones, thus weight lifting to build up muscles doesn't make sense. Muscle tissue, they note, grows only under the influence of those male hormones.

Other opponents object on the grounds that there is potential for injury in a youngster, because his bones are not yet fully matured. They feel young bones should be allowed to mature without imposing outside stresses from lifting Proponents disagree, even with the hormone argument. They insist that young children can become stronger by using weights. They point out that a stronger youngster is less prone to injury when participating in sports. They say that strength training improves athletic performance.

So what do I say? I say that supervised weight training is OK and that for the athletic child it may do what its proponents say. But I would insist on intelligent supervision. The child should use only light loads, ones he can lift comfortably six to 15 times. And the child should rest 24 hours between exercise sessions. Weight competition should be avoided like the plague, for it is then that he would tend to throw all caution to the winds and overdo.

As you note, your son is lifting anyway, and in perhaps unsupervised settings. The equipment will serve to bring this activity home, where you and your husband can exert some control over it. If you are willing to do that, go ahead and make his day.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Why do they tell a pregnant woman to be sure to take her temperature in connection with exercising? -

Because body temperature rises during exercise and one higher than 101 can harm a fetus, especially in the first few months. There's a whole book on the subject, "Exercise in Pregnancey," by Artal and Wiswell, published by Williams &

The general rules for the exercising pregnant woman include reduction of the intensity of exercise (from the non-pregnancy level) and for her to have, in fact, been exercising prior to pregnancy. The other rule is to get her doctor's permission. That's the most important physical development. We hope this is a better way of grouping children. That way the more muscular and larger kids won't have an advantage over smaller ones. We can't really do this in the regular way. What is a fair measure of physical development?

By the "usual way" you mean the Tanner method, where you assess physical characteristics maturity of sex organs, pubic hair distribution, etc. Let me suggest hand grip as an alternative. There are special devices for such measurement. If there is a large university near you, you can inquire at its physical education epartment. Someone there will help you conduct the test. In fact, I wouldn't be surprised if you found more than passing interest in your plan. Some enterprising student might want to help in connection with a formal paper on the subject. I like your idea, and would be interested in the results my self.

Dear Abby

Given in marriage by her father. the bride wore a white silk organza gown fashioned with a Victorian neckline. The English yoke was outlined in Venise lace and accented with tiny seed pearls and crystals. The sleeves were tucked with reembroidered Chantilly lace. The A-line skirt fell from a semiempire waistline with appliques of embroidered Chantilly lace and Venise lace. A cascade of Wedgewood lace ruffles formed the chapel-length train and edged the bottom of the skirt.

The bride carried a bouquet of white stephanotis, dusty pink roses and pink carnations with English

The table was covered with a gathered, all white cloth with lace overlay. Pink carnations, white gladiola candelabra centered the table.

DEAR ABBY: My brother and his wife (I'll call her Dora) left town to attend the wedding of their daughter, who lives about 500 miles from here.

The morning of the wedding, I received a telephone call from Dora's mother who lives in Europe. She told me that her son (Dora's brother) had died suddenly, and asked me to please notify Dora.

I phoned Dora immediately, thinking she might want to make plans to fly to Europe right after the wedding in order to attend her brother's funeral and console her

As it truned out, Dora didn't go to Europe at all. Since then I have received a lot of criticism from other family members for passing along the message and "spoiling the wedding." I was told that I

Daughter's pregnancy is odd to parents

Was I wrong or right? CAN'T WIN

DEAR CON'T WIN: You delivered the message promptly, thinking it was the right thing to do at the time. It would have been presumptuous of you to have taken it upon yourself to delay passing the message along. In any case, what's done is done. If I were you, I'd forget it.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine asked if she could borrow my wedding dress for her wedding because she wanted to keep her expenses to a minimum. I told her she could wear it with pleasure, and I carried it to her.

She asked me to be her matron of honor and I was thrilled, until she told me that the dress she had chosen for her attendants would cost me $200!

been criticized no matter what I she became upset. To make a long story short, she eliminated me from the wedding party entirely, and I was so hurt I did not attend her wedding.

Abby, shouldn't the bride consult with her attendants concerning the price of the gowns the attendants are expected to pay for?
And do you think I was wrong to refuse to go into debt to buy the dress she selected? By the way, she wore my wedding gown.

CHEATED IN HOUSTON

DEAR CHEATED: You were not wrong to refuse to go into debt to buy the gown she selected. And yes, the attendants should have been consulted.

I cannot believe the colossal nerve of a bride who would borrow a friend's wedding gown (to keep expenses to a minimum), then eliminate her from the wedding party for wanting to do likewise.
