Tribute

Jack Lemmon, Robby Benson and Lee Remick star in "Tribute," a comedy-drama about a press agent who tries to rebuild a relationship with his ex-wife and son. It airs tonight at 7 on Channel 13.

Outside

Sunny

Look for sunny skies and temperatures in the mid 70s today with winds from the south and southwest at 10 to 20 miles per hour. Tonight, temperatures should be in the 30s with northwest winds at 10 to 15 miles per hour.

Comet not new

GALESBURG, Ill. (AP) — Although other people are buying telescopes in record numbers to glimpse Halley's Comet, Odie Galloway yawns with boredom.

After all, he's seen it before. Galloway, 91, of Galesburg, was 16 and living in Hancock County when the comet last came around in 1910.

He recalls others being worried about its arrival.

"So many people were afraid it was the end of the world. They thought the tail would strike the Earth and burn it up," Galloway said. "Nowadays they know what it is, but in those days, we country people were a little bit ignorant about natural things."

Israel will avenge attacks

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — The Palestinian guerrilla group headed by Abu Nidal, which some Israeli officials believe is responsible for twin terror attacks in the Rome and Vienna airports, is a difficult target for retaliation, military analysts said.

Nevertheless, Israeli officials vowed to retaliate for the attacks Friday on the check-in counters of El Al, Israel's national airline. Eighteen people were killed and more than 120 were injured.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin and other Israeli officials have said it appears the attacks were carried out by the Abu Nidal faction, which has ties to Libya, Syria and Iran.

In remarks broadcast today, Prime Minister Shimon Peres singled out Libya as a major factor in political violence. He did not directly accuse the regime of Moammar Khadafy of aiding in the airport massacres, but Israel television has reported that Abu Nidal, 49, is ailing and in hiding in Libya.

"There is no debating that the center of world terrorism today is Libya with Khadafy, using Soviet weapons and unbridled brutality," Peres told a Sunday political gathering in Jerusalem in remarks broadcast on Israel Radio.

"I am sorry that European leaders visit Khadafy, one of the worst phenomena in our world. If the countries, people, places and means that allow terror to arise are not identified, the modern world is doomed to violence whose main target is innocent people," Peres added.

Italian judicial sources said the surviving Rome terrorist suspect, Mohammad Sarham, told an Italian investigating judge that he and the three gunmen slain in the attack belonged to the Abu Nidal group, and that the organization planned more terror attacks in Europe.

Abu Nidal is the code name used by Sabry al-Banna, who broke away from Palestine Liberation Organization chairman Yasser Arafat's Fatah guerrilla faction a decade ago. Fatah sentenced Abu Nidal to death in absentia.

But military analyst Ze'ev Schiff wrote Sunday in the daily Haaretz that a "massive military response against the Abu Nidal organization is extremely difficult, because this small organization does not maintain any large bases or populated headquarters like most of the other Palestinian organizations."

Gunman slain, hostages freed in 2-day seige

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — A police sniper today killed a gunman who had claimed to be a killer and held two teen-agers for more than 30 hours, demanding $50,000 and plane tickets to England. The hostages were freed unharmed.

Dennis Lucas, 20, of Dayton, Ky., was killed by a state police officer after one hostage was removed by police and officials decided the second youth was in "certain, imminent danger," said State Police Capt. Dale Fortner.

Moments before the end of the siege, Fortner said, a woman and her two preschool children were evacuated from an upstairs apartment.

Officers armed with rifles also had begun closing in on the building, in a neighborhood of crowded rowhouses and small storefronts.

No details were immediately available on how hostage Bobby Wardlow, 14, was removed from the building. Fortner said officials moved in after becoming concerned that the life of the remaining hostage, 16-year-old Larkin Wardlow, was in danger.

"The situation quickly deteriorated and, due to the fact that the hostages' life was in danger, it became necessary to take the subject's life," Fortner said.

"Larkin was handcuffed to the bed," he said. "His life was in certain, imminent danger."

Police had said Lucas was an acquaintance of the gunman.

'86 economy to be a replay of 1985

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's main gauge of future economic activity rose a tiny 0.1 percent in November, the smallest gain since June, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the advance for its Index of Leading Indicators was down sharply from the 0.4 percent gains registered in both September and October.

Without a big rise in stock prices during the month, the index would have shown a 0.3 percent decline.

The November gain matched a 0.1 percent rise in June and was the weakest change since a 0.5 percent decline in April.

The weak showing surprised many analysts who had been expecting a much better performance given the fact that the stock market hit record highs during the month.

But the slight advance was in line with expectations that the economy will continue growing next year, though at much the same sluggish rate as in 1985.

Many analysts feel that 1986 is shaping up to be a virtual replay of this year with modest growth, continued low inflation and further declines in interest rates.

While few analysts are predicting a recession, they aren't looking for very robust growth, either. One of the reasons for the pessimism is the fact that the economy is now in the fourth year of recovery from the 1981-82 recession, considered old age as recoveries normally go.

Many economists are predicting a modest advance in the gross national product of between 2.5 percent and 3 percent this year.

This would be only slightly better than last year's.

Soviet is reunited with U.S. husband

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Helle Frejus, whose six-year quest for permission to leave the Soviet Union was won in the days before the Geneva superpower summit, is finally reunited with her husband in America.

Mrs. Frejus, 50, who married 82-year-old Kazimierz Frejus of Pomona, Calif., in 1979, arrived at Los Angeles International Airport around 9 p.m. Sunday. She had not seen her husband since 1981.

"Thank you, thank you very much," she said during a news conference upon her arrival.

Mrs. Frejus was the first Soviet spouse of an American citizen to come to the United States following the Soviet decision in November to let 10 citizens emigrate to the West, according to the Divided Spouses Coalition, a group of American citizens in the same plight as Frejus was.

Another Soviet woman, Tatyana Bondareva, reached West Germany on Sunday en route to a reunion with her husband, California businessman Tony Bartholomew, in Baltimore, Md. She said they planned to celebrate the New Year holiday, one of the biggest holidays in the Soviet Union, in New York.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco, Mayor Dianne Feinstein told the San Francisco Chronicle that she was notified shortly before Christmas by Soviet Consul General Valentin Kamenev that exit visas had been approved to allow 36 people to join relatives in California, New York and Minnesota.

The mayor wrote Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev last April, asking him to "end the pain of separation" for 160 Soviet citizens with families in the United States.

The letter was co-signed by mayors Tom Bradley of Los Angeles, Raymond Flynn of Boston, Edward Koch of New York, Donald Fraser of Minneapolis, Harold Washington of Kazimierz Frejus, left, holds the hand of his wife, Helle, one of 10 Soviet citizens, with American spouses or other ties, being allowed to emigrate to the West.

Slain naturalist to be buried in Africa

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Arrangements are being made to bury slain American naturalist Dian Fossey in a cemetery she built for her beloved mountain gorillas at an isolated camp in Rwanda, a U.S. diplomat said today.

Fossey, 53, was killed by blows from a machete last week at the mountain camp, where she studied the threatened species of ape for most of the past 18 years. She built a cemetery there for gorillas slain by poachers.

Police have yet to make any arrests in the case but reported today from the northern town of Ruhengeri they had identified some suspects. Police did not have any other details about her death, including a possible motive.

Helen Picard, information officer at the U.S. Embassy in the Rwandan capital of Kigali, said by telephone that Fossey's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Price, of Atherton, Calif., had given permission for the burial to take place in the Central African country.

Picard said it was "90 percent certain" that Fossey would be buried Thursday at Karisoke, her camp on the upper slopes of 12,175-foot Mount Visoke in Volcanoes National Park.

Fossey was a physical therapist in California before she began working in Central Africa in 1967.

In a 1970 article for National Geographic magazine, she described the gorilla as "one of the most maligned animals in the world." Contrary to its reputation for Dian Fossey, who spent most of her adult life studying gorillas in the wilds of Rwanda, was reported killed at her forest camp. She is to be buried in Africa in a mountain grave she prepared for gorillas.

belligerence, she said, the animal was gentle and dignified.

Colleagues credit her with being the first scientist to accustom the mountain gorillas to the presence of humans, a feat which has enabled impoverished Rwanda to develop a profitable tourist industry based on trips to see the animals.

Through her articles and a 1983 book, "Gorillas in the Mist," Fossey campaigned to protect the animals from poachers who sell their heads and hands as curios. To the dismay of some Rwandan officials, she encouraged the apes to fear Africans but not whites because poachers in the area were black.

Acquaintances of Fossey said she hoped to die in her highland rain forest, although she told The Associated Press in an interview in May that she would stay only as long as the gorillas remained threatened by poachers.

Man caught during burglary

Marcus Armendarez, 21, of 1008 N. Gregg St. was arrested on suspicion of burglary early Sunday morning.

According to a police report, a man was caught entering the home of Humberto Hernandez, 1007 N. Gregg St., after climbing through a bedroom window shortly after 1 a.m. Hernandez apprehended and detained the man until police arrived, the report stated.

Steve Coleman, owner of Coleman Machine and Supply, told police Sunday morning that someone entered the business through a roof vent between 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday. Nothing was reported stolen but $100 damage was done to the roof, and a cooling unit, according to the complaint.

Maria Garcia of 120 Airbase Road, Building 21, Apt. 3 told police Sunday afternoon that someone stole an $85 bicycle from her residence between 7 p.m. Saturday and 11:30 a.m. Sunday.

Harold Danford of Holiday Inn Apt. 4 told police Sunday night that someone caused $157 damage to his car while it was parked at Players Saturday night.

Jerry Bob Johnson of 1306 Wood St. told police Saturday night that someone broke into his car while it was parked Saturday night at the Ritz Theater. According to the complaint, an empty cloth money bag was stolen.

W.G. Bingham, minister of the Primitive Baptist Church, 715 Willa St., told police Sunday morning that someone tried to enter a storage shed near the church by kicking the door down. The door sustained $100 damage in the attempted burglary that occurred sometime within the past week, according to the complaint.

G.B. McNalley of 2800 Navajo told police Sunday night that someone threw a rock through a window at his residence causing $75 damage. The vandalism occurred shortly after 6:15 p.m. Sunday, according to the police report.

Ricky Shortes, 608 State St. Apt. A, told police Sunday night that someone moved a dumpster into his car causing $400 damage to the vehicle. The incident occurred at Shortes' residence at 10:30 p.m. Sunday, according to the complaint.

Glenn Murray of 208 N.W. Third St. told police Sunday night that he foiled an attempted burglary of a coin-operated washing machine late Sunday night at Nichols Laundry, 209 N.W. Third St.

According to the police report, the suspected burglar fled on foot, leaving behind a bicycle and a screw driver.

Angela Jones of Cahoma told police Saturday night that someone stole a $169 color television from K mart Saturday night.

Most U.S. population growth absorbed by Sun Belt states

WASHINGTON (AP) — Migration to the South and West continued during the past five years, with Sun Belt states absorbing most of the country's 12.2 million gain in population since 1980, the Census Bureau says.

The Census report released Sunday showed the U.S. population has increased by 5.4 percent since the beginning of the decade, and the Southern and Western states accounted for 91 percent of the rise.

California remains the most populous state, with an estimated 26,365,000 residents as of last July 1. New York was second, with 17,783,000, followed by Texas with 16,370,000; Pennsylvania with 11,853,000; and Illinois with 11,535,000. Florida moved into the No. 6 slot since 1980, with 10,744,000 residents.

Alaska continued to be the fastest-growing state, with a 29.7 growth rate over the five-year period. It moved from being the least populous state in the 1980 census to No. 49 with a population of 521,000 in the latest report.

Wyoming now ranks as the least populous state with 509,000 residents.

Population figures for the country as a whole reached 238,740,000 as of July 1, up from 226,546,000 recorded in the census on April 1, 1980.

Other fast-growing states are Arizona, which grew by 17.2 percent over the past five years; Nevada, 16.9 percent; Florida, 16.6 percent; Texas, 15 percent; Utah, 12.6 percent; Colorado, 11.8 percent; California, 11.4 percent; New Mexico, 11.3 percent; and Georgia, 9.4 percent.

Sirens to sound

A test of the warning sirens for severe weather will be conducted at noon on Wednesday, according to emergency management coordinator Hal Boyd.

The warning signals will be sounded for three minutes.

Water shutoff in Kentwood set Thursday

Water will be shut off in the Kentwood addition of southeast Big Spring Thursday between 8 a.m. and 1 p.m., the city public works department announced today.

Repair work is planned for fire hydrants and water lines.

Feinstein also brought up the matter during her trip to the Soviet Union last month.

She said the Soviet Union is continuing to weigh requests for exit visas from the list of 160 people submitted by the mayors.

When Mrs. Frejus, clutching a bouquet of flowers, got off the plane in Los Angeles, she was surrounded by members of the coalition, who carried signs reading, "Helle, Welcome from Estonia." Members of the group were dressed in traditional, multi-colored costumes from their native Estonia, a republic in the Soviet Union.

Mrs. Frejus appeared shy and a bit frightened by television cameras. She stayed close to her husband, who said he is recovering from a recent bout with pneumonia.

"I feel better because my wife is here," Frejus said. "She wants to thank the American people for all they did for her."

Frejus said he planned to take his wife to such Southern California attractions as Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm and Beverly Hills.

"She'll like that," Frejus said. "America is the best and greatest country in the world. Bless you people."

Moscow's pledge to let the divided couples reunite in America came just days before the summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev in Geneva in November.

Economy

than the preliminary estimate that the economy this year grew at a 2.4 percent rate, down sharply from the robust 6.6 percent growth turned in last year.

The Reagan administration, however, is predicting much faster growth this year at a rate of around 4 percent. While this is definitely higher than the prediction of most private analysts, some economists share this optimism.

Michael Evans, head of Evans Economics, a Washington forecasting firm, said he believed the GNP would grow 4 percent this year as business investment improves.

Evans and economists in the administration cite the record-setting stock market advance and the big declines in interest rates of recent weeks as evidence that the economy is reviving.

The sharp rise in the stock market was the biggest positive contributor to the rise in the Leading Index for November.

of the boys but that officials didn't know why he took them hostage.

Police said Lucas seized his hostages around 5 a.m. Sunday in this northern Kentucky community across the Ohio River from Cincinnati. He fired shots out a window several times during the day and night with a handgun.

The gunman had initially set a 5 p.m. Sunday deadline for his demands, but that deadline passed without incident and police said Lucas had not threatened to kill anyone.

WKRC-TV in Cincinnati reported that the man called the station Sunday night and said he had given authorities until noon today to give him the money and three plane tickets — one for him and two for his hostages. He did not say why he wanted to go to England.

Police spokesman Jimmy Kim said police talked to the man several times, but would not elaborate. "They have good communications. They are talking from time to time," Kim said Sunday night at a news conference.

Officers had cordoned off a four-block area around the house. Residents were evacuated from their homes in the block where the house is located, "plus (other) people who have done it on their own," Kim said.

The gunman apparently called Cincinnati radio station WLW-AM Sunday afternoon and boasted of killing two people recently.

He said one of the bodies could be found in a wooded area in nearby Cincinnati across the Ohio River from Newport and that the other could be found in the Licking River near Newport.

The caller said he was "a big heroin addict. I'm a big addict. But my mind is just sick because prison makes you mind sick."

City, county offices to close

All offices at City Hall will be closed New Year's Eve and New Year's Day, the city said today. City Hall will conduct business as usual at 8 a.m. Thursday.

Along with City Hall, all county offices will be closed Tuesday and Wednesday, said county clerk Margaret Ray.

Most banks in the city, however, will conduct business at the usual hours on Tuesday, but will be closed New Year's Day.

State

By The Associated Press Snow was scattered across the Northeast and temperatures in the South sank below freezing today after high water forced some Michigan and Oregon families from their homes.

Snow was scattered across southeastern Washington state, Vermont, New York, northwestern Pennsylvania and southern Michigan early today.

Today's forecast called for snow scattered across western New York; snow in the mountains and rain at lower elevations in central California, northern Nevada and Utah; and strong and gusty winds across the Dakotas and northern Rockies.

Rain extended over central and northeastern California and across Nevada, with freezing rain icing highways in the north, and changed to snow over northern Nevada and northwestern Utah.

The rain pushed out fog that has covered much of the West and Northwest for 2 1/2 weeks, and flights out of Seattle's airport returned to normal volume Sunday. The weather system that caused the fog also brought the longest air pollution episode in Washington state history and caused the driest December on record west of the Cascade Mountains, with a trace of precipitation at Seattle's airport the first since Dec. 7.

In Michigan, 20 to 25 families in Algonac, about 40 miles northeast of Detroit, left their homes after ice and high winds combined to push the St. Clair River over its banks, Mayor Jim Steinmetz said.

No damage estimate was available and no flood-related emergencies were reported, Steinmetz said Sunday.

Ice jams in Oregon pushed the Snake River over its banks, forcing several families to evacuate low-lying farms and stranding cattle in icy water. Malheur County Sheriff Bob Ingram called it the worst ice jam in 25 years.

Sheriff's Log

Burglary loss is $11,500

Paul Rivera of Welltech, 604 N. Owens, an oilfield service company, told Howard County sheriff's deputies Sunday night that his business was burglarized between 6 p.m. Saturday and 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Taken were $11,500 worth of items.

The stolen items were a photocopier valued at $5,000; one stamp machine valued at $1,000; one telex machine valued at $5,000; one pair of binoculars valued at $50; one AM-FM tape player valued at $50 and one vacuum cleaner valued at $400.

Johnny Self of 202 N. 5th in Coahoma told deputies Sunday afternoon that someone threw a car headlight through his glass front door at his residence. The incident occurred Saturday or Sunday, according to the sheriff's report.

Damage was estimated at $125.

Police transferred Marcus Armendarez, 21, of 1008 N. Gregg to county jail Sunday morning after he was arrested for burglary of a habitation. He was released on $5,000 bond.

Mitchell County sheriff's deputies arrested Douglas Joe Adams, 20, of Sterling City Highway on a Howard County warrant charging him with issuing a bad check.

He paid a $66.44 fine and was released.

Mitchell County sheriff's deputies arrested Frank Torres, 21, of Colorado City on a Howard County warrant charging him with issuing a bad check. He was released on $500 bond.

Buffalo hunters picked

GARDINER, Mont. — Three hunters were chosen from 3,000 applicants for the first legal buffalo hunt in Montana in 25 years, part of an effort to keep the massive beasts from wandering outside Yellowstone Park.

But animal rights activists pledged to continue to try to halt the hunt, scheduled to begin today.

State officials estimate that before the special hunt ends next June 30, as many as 100 buffalo may be shot.

The hunt was authorized by the Montana Legislature to control bison that wander onto private ranches as the winter deepens.

Veteran to resume fast

KENT, Wash. — A Vietnam veteran who ended a 51-day fast after a telephone plea from President Reagan says he may resume his fast because his request for a meeting with the president was turned down.

Gino Casanova, who fasted to call attention to Americans still missing in action in Southeast Asia, said Sunday he had received a letter from the White House saying Reagan didn't have time to see him.

Chinese leader honored

NEW YORK — Chinese leader Deng Xiaoping, Time magazine's Man of the Year in 1978, has been named again for 1985.

He is one of only nine men to be chosen for the title more than once.

The magazine credited Deng with introducing "sweeping economic reforms which have challenged Marxist orthodoxies and liberated the productive energies of a billion people."

Missing girls return

STAPLETON, Ga. (AP) — Two 12-year-old girls who disappeared a week ago while riding their bicycles on an isolated dirt road returned home today saying they had been abducted by two men in a pickup truck, officials said.

Robert Chalker, a member of a team that searched for the girls, said Jessica Barrow and Elizabeth Tanner walked up to the Barrow home at 7:30 a.m.

The girls told authorities they had been abducted by two men who dropped them off in the small east Georgia town early today, he said. A lookout was issued for the white pickup truck.

Ring out the tax breaks

WASHINGTON — A variety of tax breaks caught in the frantic, year-end rush from Capitol Hill will expire at midnight Tuesday, but some may be reinstated when a Congress returns for a new session next year.

Among the tax provisions left on the congressional cutting table were credits for installing energy-saving items such as storm doors, deductions for vanpooling and research and development credits for businesses.

Soviet allegations

Moscow denies violating arms controls

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has denied U.S. charges of arms control violations and in turn accused the United States of such violations.

It said the Reagan administration was trying to divert attention from the Soviet nuclear testing moratorium, which expires on Tuesday.

"That purpose is to ... knock the wind out of the Geneva summit, the agreements reached in Geneva," he said, referring to a joint statement last month in which President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev called for accelerated U.S.-Soviet talks on nuclear and space weapons.

The Soviet response to arms control allegations in Reagan's Dec. 23 report to Congress came in a government statement issued by the official news agency Tass and at a news conference by the foreign and defense ministries.

The replies were part of a stepped up campaign in the news media on arms control.

Speaking for the Defense Ministry, Lt. Gen. Viktor P. Staradubov said the U.S. arms control report was prompted by Tuesday's expiration of the testing moratorium, which Gorbachev has said would be extended only if the United States joined it.

Both Lomeiko and Staradubov criticized the U.S. underground nuclear test Saturday in Nevada.

Tass issued report after report on the moratorium Sunday. One report said that in his radio address Saturday, Reagan "maliciously distorted" Soviet policy in Afghanistan hoping to distract public concern from the nuclear testing issue.

Reagan's report to Congress alleged Soviet violations of treaties governing nuclear, chemical and biological weapons.

Tass called the charges "slandorous" and said that Moscow has lived up to the provisions of the agreements "and has not tried to circumvent them."

"It is the U.S.S.R. and not the U.S.A. that has every ground to ask whether it is possible to trust ... whether (the United States) fulfills its obligations," it said.

Staradubov said the United States is violating the anti-ballistic missile treaty with its Strategic Defense Initiative for "space-based missile defense system, commonly called 'Star Wars,' and by building what he called a "phased array radar for detecting nuclear missiles" in Greenland.

Mandela's wife arrested

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Police today dragged black activist Winnie Mandela screaming from her car, arrested her and whisked her off into custody as she tried to return to her Johannesburg home in defiance of a state order expelling her from the city.

Mrs. Mandela, accompanied by her daughter, Zinzi, and two grandchildren, arrived from Cape Town where she had been visiting her husband, jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela.

Jordan king visits Syria

DAMASCUS, Syria — King Hussein of Jordan arrived in Damascus today for his first visit to Syria in six years, the latest and most dramatic move by the Arab neighbors to patch up differences that once took them to the brink of war.

President Hafez Assad, Cabinet members and senior aides went to the airport to greet the Jordanian king, who was accompanied by Prime Minister Zaid Rifai, Foreign Minister Taher el-Masri and other top officials.

Dollar drops in Europe

LONDON — The U.S. dollar plunged in Europe early today on the back of a wave of year-end selling in the United States.

Bullion markets failed to react to the dollar's slide, with gold and silver prices fluctuating only marginally from levels reached late Friday.

Shortly after European exchange markets opened, the dollar was being quoted at its lowest level since the spring and summer of 1983 against the currencies of West Germany, Switzerland, France and the Netherlands. The dollar was at its lowest against the Italian lire since June 1984.

Guns seized from ship

AUCKLAND, New Zealand — Officials said today that customs agents seized enough guns to "start a small war" when they boarded a French freighter that probably was bound for the troubled French territory of New Caledonia.

Customs Collector Kevin Donovan said police initially feared the weapons found Sunday could signal an operation to rescue two French agents imprisoned in New Zealand for their role in the bombing of the Greenpeace protest ship Rainbow Warrior.

Pakistan lifts martial law

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — President Mohammad Zia ul-Haq lifted 8½ years of martial law and dismantled his military government today, but retained the presidency and broad powers over the new civilian government.

Zia, in a nationally televised speech before a joint session of Parliament, announced the restoration of Pakistan's constitution.

Let states set speed limits

America's motorists are schizophrenic when it comes to the nation's 55-mph speed limit. Studies show that most drivers regularly exceed the 55-mph limit, but congressional efforts to raise it have been stalled by a lack of public support.

The nationwide 55-mph speed limit was enacted in 1974 to conserve energy during the Arab oil embargo. It certainly has done that. A 1984 study by the National Academy of Sciences says the reduced speed limit saves 167,000 barrels of oil daily. That's a $2 billion annual saving.

Besides saving oil, the reduced speed saves between 2,000 and 4,000 lives a year, according to the Research Council study. Indeed, the council call the 55-mph speed limit "one of the most effective highway safety policies ever adopted."

Nevertheless, the council suggests that Congress consider permitting states to raise the speed limit on rural inter-state highways, where more than three-fourths of all drivers already drive faster than 55 mph. Two persuasive arguments can be made to support this recommendation:

For one thing, the 55-mph speed limit has become the 1980s equivalent of Prohibition — a law habitually violated by millions of otherwise good citizens. This breeds disrespect for the law and makes enforcement almost impossible.

What's more, Americans spend an extra 1 billion hours on the road each year as a result of the 55-mph limit. Although rural interstates comprise only 6 percent of the nation's highways, they carry 19 percent of its total traffic. Increasing the speed limit to 65 mph on these uncongested, well-designed highways would save Americans more than 445 million hours of travel time annually. It would also permit law enforcement to focus on speeders in more congested areas, where they pose a far greater threat to themselves and fellow motorists.

The 55-mph speed limit served its original purpose remarkably well. But much has changed since 1974. Oil is now plentiful, cars are more fuel-efficient and better-engineered, and freeway design has continued to improve. We believe Congress should return the authority to set speed limits to state legislatures and permit them to determine where 55 mph is appropriate and where the speed limit should be higher.

Bill useful only if it hits target

Watching Congress move toward enacting the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill was like seeing a notorious womanizer get married: The decision was noteworthy, but sticking to it won't be easy. If Congress and the President abide by their commitment to cut the budget deficit, the bill will deserve praise. If not, it soon will be forgotten.

In a concrete sense, the law may be pointless. Our elected officials could balance the budget without it, and a little ingenuity would allow them to further unbalance the budget in spite of it. As Joni Mitchell used to sing, true lovers "don't need no piece of paper from the City Hall" to stick together. But when temptation beckons, a marriage vow — or a bill requiring deficit reductions — may steel the weak.

The other crucial question to be answered in the coming years, as Congress and the President grapple with the limits imposed by Gramm-Rudman-Hollings, is how the deficit will be closed. Will they finally find the political nerve to bring federal spending under control? Or will they use the law as an excuse to saddle the economy with new taxes?

There is plenty of sentiment in Washington for the latter. With Walter Mondale safely retired, the loudest voice for the Capitol's prevailing wisdom is David Stockman, who has publicly urged "a very major tax increase, larger than we've ever had or contemplated... about $100 billion a year." Said Stockman: "The joy ride is over."

The former budget director derided prospects of major cuts in spending: "It is very clear to me, after five years, that the spending-cut episode is over. We've had a referendum on what we want in the budget, and what we don't. What's left, most of the people want. And we're going to have to raise taxes to pay for it."

couldn't do it, so it can't be done. Never mind that it took half a century and thousands of legislative battles for the budget to grow to its current dimensions. After five years of trying to reverse it, we may as well give up and send our paychecks directly to the IRS.

In Stockman's myth, we have all been binging on tax cuts, and now it's time to suffer the hangover. What is the truth? In the five years before Ronald Reagan took office, federal taxes absorbed an average of 19.2 percent of the gross national product. In the past five years, they actually have risen, taking an average of 19.5 percent of GNP.

There is no justification for raising them further — except maybe for a 100 percent levy on book royalties paid to former Cabinet officers. The real "joy ride" has been on the other side of the budget ledger. In the last decade, after adjusting for inflation, federal spending has risen by more than 40 percent.

Another force for higher spending is interest on the debt, which has grown in response both to chronic deficits and to the high interest rates produced by tight money. But without help from Paul Volcker, it's hard to cut this expense. The savings have to come from real programs, including not just defense and Social Security but farm subsidies, veteran's benefits, welfare payments, mass transit aid and more — the whole panoply of leftovers from the New Deal and the Great Society.

Congress and the President have missed previous chances to tackle these costs. Now they ought to acknowledge that the blame for the deficit doesn't lie in inadequate taxation. The value of Gramm-Rudman-Hollings should be measured by whether it serves to limit the expansion of government or to feed it.

Jack Anderson

For peaceful outer space

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — President Reagan brought a pair of binoculars with him to Geneva last month, hoping he and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev could view Halley's comet together.

The opportunity never arose for star gazing, but the president spoke to Gorbachev about closer ties between America's Young Astronauts and Russia's Cosmonauts.

The peaceful conquest of space can begin now, Reagan suggested, by bringing together our future space explorers. They will inherit the 21st century, which should be a fabulous age of exploration, with distant planets within reach. The president's hope is that Soviet and American youngsters should lead the world into a new era of discovery, achievement and prosperity.

Reagan established the Young Astronaut program as a catalyst to prepare America's youth for the 21st century, to train them in the technologies of tomorrow. Whether they become astronauts or accountants, scientists or poets, they will need to understand the computers, lasers and robots that will soon become everyday equipment.

One of the Young Astronaut Council's first moves, with the president's blessing, was to establish contact with the young cosmonauts. "Our Young Astronauts want to be friends with your Young Cosmonauts," the council proposed. "They would like to exchange visits, to learn from one another, to share dreams..."

Back came a letter from the Young cosmonauts, signed by Sergey Trofimenko and Nikolay Kubyskin. "We are for cooperation in space," the letter declared. "We would like space to remain forever peaceful so that children could lift up their eyes to the heavens without fear."

As the next step, President Reagan proposed at the Geneva summit meeting that Young Astronauts and Young Cosmonauts exchange visits. The Young Astronauts have also been encouraged to write letters to Young cosmonauts in an attempt to open a dialogue by mail.

The president, meanwhile, has founded Young Astronauts International in response to requests from around the world to participate in the program. Inquiries have been received from 52 foreign countries, and Young Astronaut chapters already have been formed in 18 countries.

Footnote: The president has encouraged elementary and secondary schools to form Young Astronaut chapters and participate in the studies that will lead to the exploration and settlement of other worlds. The idea is to make schoolwork less forbidding by dramatizing that it is the key to the universe beyond.

A presidential letter to 75,000 schools has already brought more than 53,000 responses. Although the program has been operational less than a year, hundreds of thousands of Young Astronauts have already signed up. Children between the ages of 6 and 16 can become Young Astronauts by writing to the Young Astronaut Council, 1211 Connecticut Avenue, N.W., Washington, DC 20036.

THE EASY WAY: Despite the impression you may have gathered from recent headline stories, the Soviet Union doesn't expend all of its intelligence-gathering energy on undercover espionage operations. Sometimes it tries the direct approach as in this recent letter from the Soviet State Bank to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.: "We would appreciate your assistance in providing us with the information on banking supervision and regulation in the USA. We are also interested in receiving your annual reports on a regular basis. Provided it is possible, please add our name to your mailing list." The FDIC obliged.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Are the oil sheiks really this hard up? Kuwait apparently would rather collect insurance on its hijacked airliner than collect the plane itself at the Tehran airport. The airliner was seized by Iranian-backed terrorists last December, and two Americans were murdered before Iranian police stormed the plane after a week on the ground. Initially, the Kuwaitis were hot to get the airliner back, and Iran stalled. But now the Iranians, in line with a new policy of trying to appear reasonable, have asked the Kuwaitis to please come and remove the plane, which is gathering dust on the Tehran tarmac. It's Kuwait that's stalling.

WORTH THE INVESTMENT: Officials of the National conservative Political Action Committee had an idea for an investment, but didn't want to throw their money around liberally. So they asked the Federal Election Commission for guidance: If NCPAC took out a $100,000 life insurance policy on its 34-year-old chairman, Terry Dolan, and collected, could the money be spent on political contributions and administrative expenses? The commission replied that the combative PAC could use the proceeds any way it wanted to. "There would have been no point in buying the policy if we couldn't do anything with the money," explained NCPAC attorney J. Curtis Hergé.

MINI-EDITORIAL: In a recent debate on farm legislation, we were amazed to hear Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., lambasting a federal price-support program. This one was for honey producers. Helms, who never met a tobacco subsidy he didn't like, said the government couldn't afford $100 million to help 2,300 beekeepers, and at first glance, his arithmetic seems reasonable. It would amount to roughly 10 times the per-farmer cost of the latest tobacco price-support program: $1 billion for 250,000 tobacco growers. On the other hand, beyond an occasional allergic reaction, honey doesn't cause costly health problems.

Billy Graham

It's faith that counts

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My friend says that her church is the only true church, because it alone follows the Bible strictly and correctly. She also believes that the only way we can be sure we are saved is to be members of that church. Is that true, do you think?

— D.N.
DEAR D.N.: I respect her sincerity, but I cannot agree with her for several reasons.

For one thing, the Bible makes it clear that we are not saved by being members of a church — although being active in a church where God's Word is taught is important for our spiritual growth. But it is Christ who saves us, and our faith and trust are to be in Him alone. Christ came for one reason: To make it possible for us to be forgiven and cleansed of our sins, and, therefore, reconciled to God our heavenly Father. He did this by dying on the cross as the only perfect sacrifice for our sins. "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life" (John 3:16).

In addition, no individual — and no church — understands all there is to know about God's truth, for His truth is inexhaustible. Even the great Apostle Paul could say, "Not that I have already obtained all this, or have already been made perfect" (Philippians 3:12). Or again he declared, "Now we see but a poor reflection; then we shall see face to face" (1 Corinthians 13:12).

Challenge your friend to examine her own heart and be sure she is trusting Christ alone for her salvation. And that is true for you as well. Have you acknowledged your own need of a Savior, and have you committed your life to Christ as your Lord and Savior? And are you seeking to grow spiritually each day? Make sure of your own commitment to Christ, and then trust the promise of His Word: "He who has the Son has life" (1 John 5:12).

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Monday, Dec. 30th, the 364th day of 1985. There is one day left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Dec. 30, 1853, the United States bought some 45,000 square miles of land from Mexico in a deal that became known as the Gadsden Purchase, for the man who engineered it, James Gadsden. The area became the southern part of Arizona and New Mexico.

On this date: In 1865, author Rudyard Kipling was born in Bombay, India.

In 1894, suffragist Amelia Jenks Bloomer died. She had gained notoriety for wearing in public a short skirt and baggy trousers that became known as "bloomers."

In 1903, about 600 people died when fire broke out at the Iroquois Theater in Chicago.

In 1911, Sun Yat-sen was elected the first president of the Republic of China after the fall of the Chinese dynasties.

In 1936, the United Auto Workers Union staged its first "sit-down" strike, at the Fisher Body Plant Number One in Flint, Mich.

In 1944, King George II of Greece proclaimed a regency to rule his country, virtually renouncing the throne.

In 1947, King Michael of Romania agreed to abdicate, but charged he was being forced off the throne by Communists.

In 1972, the United States halted its heavy bombing of North Vietnam.

Ten years ago: All parcel lockers at three New York-area airports were closed to the public as the investigation continued into the bombing at LaGuardia Airport that killed eleven people a day earlier.

Five years ago: Iran's chief hostage negotiator said Tehran was ready to hear new U.S. proposals to break a deadlock over conditions set by the Iranians for the release of the American captives.

Today's birthdays: Actress Jeanette Nolan is 74. TV personality Bert Parks is 71. Actress Jo Van Fleet is 66. Singer Bo Diddley is 57. Actor Jack Lord is 55. Actor John Hillerman is 53.

Dear Abby

Penmanship wrote her a ticket to happiness

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "Marilyn," who wondered how many pen pal relationships developed into something more serious, makes me wonder if perhaps my parents may have set a record.

In 1919, Pfc. Ernest Kern was stationed in Hawaii when an Indianapolis newspaper printed a list of "lonely" American soldiers seeking pen pals. An Indianapolis girl wrote to the first name on the list. Eight sacks of mail were received. Many of the servicemen picked the letters with the best handwriting.

Kern said, "It's not always the best handwriting that counts," and he picked Mary Mortsoff's letter. (Hers may have been one of the worst.)

Ernest and Mary corresponded the remaining 2½ years he was in service. Ernest sent Mary a diamond engagement ring and many gifts from Hawaii, which I now cherish. They met in 1921, and three days later they were married! Their marriage lasted for 53 years. I am their daughter. My mother died in 1976; my father in 1979.

I hope Marilyn and her husband (whom you brought together) will enjoy even more years together than my parents did.

PAULINE KERN,
INDIANAPOLIS

DEAR PAULINE: Thanks for sharing a beautiful memory.

DEAR ABBY: In 1961 I read in your column that civilians should write to a serviceman overseas. I followed your advice and sent off a letter to the general commander stationed in Korea, in care of Operation Dear Abby.

Eventually my letter made it to Camp Casey, Korea, where it sat in a box in a small corner for almost two years before SP4 David Edrington found it.

To make a long story short, that letter was from me, Denise Boyd. David and I corresponded until he returned to the States on March 1, 1965.

On March 10, we were married. It was the answer to two prayers: his and mine. We are presently stationed with the U.S. Army at Fort Belvoir, Va., and are expecting our first child any day now. We will be eternally grateful to you, Dear Abby, for bringing us together. May God bless you and your wonderful column.

DENISE AND DAVID
EDRINGTON

DEAR DENISE AND DAVID: I just telephoned Fort Belvoir trying to locate Denise and was told, "She just left for the hospital." Keep me posted, please.

Dr. Donohue

Wedge surgery is an option with ovarian cysts

Dear Dr. Donohue: For the past couple of years I have had excess facial hair and hair on my arms. I have also put on 30 pounds. My periods have been very irregular. In fact, I have not had one for more than two months. My doctor ran some blood tests and told me I have polycystic ovaries. He mentioned surgery. Can you explain the surgery? Will the hair be normal again? — C.P.

Have you heard of this condition by its other name — Stein-Leventhal syndrome? Years ago those two doctors first described the condition among women they were treating for complaints such as yours. They all were infertile, were not having periods, and tended to have hair growth such as you describe. They also had large ovaries with cysts. Many were overweight.

Today, we recognize many variations of the problem, but all have the common characteristic — enlargement and cysts of both ovaries. And there are different causes. For example, the adrenal glands may be producing too many male hormones.

Very clearly, pinpointing the cause leads to proper treatment. Sometimes the adrenal glands are suppressed with drugs. For others, the drug, clomiphene (a fertility drug) may be the answer.

Stein and Leventhal hit upon an unexpected answer. During the pioneering work, they decided to do biopsies on patients' ovaries. After taking the necessary wedge of tissue from the ovaries the patients went home and before long began reporting the return of normal periods. Some became pregnant.

To this day, the surgery (wedge resection) is still an option for some women with polycystic ovarian disease. Why it works for some women is largely unexplained. Successful treatment of the disease does end the symptoms, including the undesired hair problem.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I have glaucoma, the "open angle" kind, for which my eye doctor has prescribed eyedrops. The name of them is Timoptic and I am to use it twice a day. I wonder if headache can be a side effect of this, since I have been having them. They are really severe ones, too. Is this to be expected, or could the headaches be part of the eye problem? I have also had some dizziness. — Mrs. K.C.

Timoptic (timolol maleate) is quite helpful in reducing the eye fluid pressure for those with your kind of glaucoma. It acts by blocking neural receptor points on eye muscles. But it can also slow the heart rate. In the suggested doses it usually will not do this, though.

The delicate membranes of the eyes can permit significant absorption of the medicine into the blood circulation. And in significant amounts that might lie behind symptoms such as you report. You may be overdoing the amount of drops with each application. Anyway, you should report your headaches and dizziness so the doctor can evaluate things.

Dear Dr. Donohue: What is done in a lung scan? What will it show? — J.C.

The scan will show how well the lungs are operating. Usually, two separate tests are done. In one, a radioactive material is injected into a blood vessel leading to the lungs. As it travels through the small lung vessels it reveals on X-ray how well the tissue there is being nourished. That is the blood perfusion test.

The second test is the ventilation test. In that, the patient breathes in a harmless gas through a mask. The doctor can tell lung efficiency by how well the gas passes through to the lung tissue.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Consult a doctor before taking zinc

"If you think you have a zinc deficiency, it's important to consult with a doctor before taking supplements because too much zinc will interfere with other vital body functions," said a Texas A&M University Agricultural Service nutritionist.

The ingestion of large amounts of zinc in some forms can cause vomiting.

10 die, another injured in separate plane crashes

By The Associated Press
A small plane en route to a Utah ski resort was flying low with its engine sputtering before it crashed, killing all six people aboard, witnesses said, and another single-engine plane hit a power line and crashed while trying to land on a Seattle highway, killing four people and snarling traffic.

In Maryland, a student pilot practicing landing in a single-engine plane crashed into the bedroom of a house as he approached a runway near Winfield. He was seriously injured, state police said.

Ski equipment was strewn among the wreckage of the Cessna 210 that crashed Sunday in a field near two housing developments five miles south of Salt Lake City International Airport, police said.

The six victims were flying from Ontario, Calif., for a ski outing, authorities said.

"I heard a pop, sort of like a minor explosion, and it sounded like the plane was going down," said Russell McReavy, who was in his front yard when the plane approached the airport. "I ran around back and pieces of metal started coming out of the sky like rain."

Federal Aviation Administration investigators were to continue their probe into the crash today.

West Valley City Police Chief David Campbell said witnesses saw the plane flying very low before impact and said the engine was sputtering.

Flight controllers at the airport said the plane was on their radar screens and there was normal radio communication with the pilot minutes before the crash, Campbell said.

"There was no emergency broadcast from the aircraft before impact," he said.

Killed were the pilot, Dr. Peter O. Macs, 48, of West Covina, Calif., his wife, Biruta, whose age was unavailable, and daughter Linda, 22, of Santa Barbara, Calif.; Kenneth Overton, 55, of West Covina; Nancy Sanders, 52, of West Covina, and John Nelson of Fillmore, Calif., whose age also was not immediately available, police said.

In Seattle, mechanical trouble apparently forced the pilot of a single-engine Mooney 231 to attempt a landing on an Interstate 5 on Sunday, witnesses told police.

Instead, the aircraft hit a power line and slammed into a 50-foot-high hillside, scattering debris over the highway, witnesses told police.

"The engine sounded like it had no muffler and it was definitely trying to make a landing," said Richard Stewart of Bellevue, who was driving north on the freeway when the plane crashed. "We saw some flashes like it hit a power line."

The four victims had not been identified early today. Three bodies were found in the twisted aircraft cabin and the fourth was found about 30 feet away, said Battalion Chief Ron Wieland of the Angle Lake Fire Department.

Although the accident snarled traffic in both directions of I-5 near Seattle-Tacoma International Airport Sunday evening, no one on the ground was hurt and no cars were hit by debris, troopers said.

The FAA received no radio distress reports, said Mike O'Connor, an FAA duty officer. National Transportation Safety Board officials were investigating.

In Maryland, James L. Carl, 50, a student pilot, was preparing for landing at Clear View Airpark on Sunday when his Piper Cherokee plane went down 300 yards short of the runway and struck a home, said state police spokesman Chuck Jackson.

The pilot of a Cherokee airplane was listed in serious but stable condition at the University of Maryland Shock Trauma Unit after his aircraft crashed into the bedroom of a home outside Westminster, Md. No one was home at the time of the crash.

Lebanese civil war antagonists vow to enforce armistice

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon's main civil war antagonists agreed today to call a nationwide cease-fire and form a national coalition cabinet within one week to enforce a newly signed Syrian-sponsored armistice, Beirut radios said.

The radios said Syrian foreign minister Farouk Al-Sharaa arrived in Beirut with an invitation from Syrian President Hafez Assad to his Lebanese counterpart Amin Gemayel for summit talks on a process to enforce the truce accord.

State and privately owned radio stations said the cease-fire would go into effect at first light Tuesday on all civil war fronts as the first fruit of the pact that was signed by Lebanon's three most powerful militias in the Syrian capital of Damascus Saturday.

Prime Minister Rashid Karami, a Sunni Moslem, declared his support to the new truce accord and hailed it as "our only hope for salvation."

He indicated his willingness to resign and make way for a broad-based national coalition to replace his powerless nine-man government that has long been plagued by sectarian disputes.

The new Cabinet is to oversee the armistice and disband all militias. The accord empowers it to call in Syrian troops to quell any defiance in and around Beirut.

The main fronts along Beirut's dividing Green Line and hills east of the capital were reported calm by police for the second straight day after the signing of the armistice.

However, Syria was reported to have scrambled Soviet-supplied jet fighters over north Lebanon as Israeli warplanes staged mock attacks over the central Lebanese mountains and then crashed the sound barrier over Beirut.

The Christian-controlled Voice of Lebanon radio station said six Israeli jets carried out mock bombings over the central Lebanese towns of Sofar and Bhamdoun on the main Beirut-Damascus road shortly before midday.

There was no independent confirmation of the report. The Lebanese command declined to comment and there was no reaction available from Syria or Israel.

On Sunday in Damascus, Lebanon's three most powerful militia leaders pledged to "turn the dark pages of the past" and restore peace to their nation, which has been ravaged by 10 years of civil war.

The pledge came in a joint statement one day after Druse leader Walid Jumblatt, Shiite Moslem leader Nabih Berri and Christian commander Elie Hobeika signed a Syrian-sponsored armistice to end the civil war. The signing capped months of negotiations.

The document includes a series of political reforms designed to give Lebanon's Moslems an equal share of power with Christians, reunite the country and disband the militias that have ruled since civil war broke out in 1975.

Lebanon's 37,000-man army, which is splintered along sectarian lines and ineffective, will be rehabilitated.

The accord also stressed nation opposition to the "security zone" Israel developed in southern Lebanon along the Israeli border, called for elections in three years to give Moslems equal representation in Parliament, and reduced the power of the president, who traditionally is a Maronite Catholic.

The three leaders met with Khaddam, who worked out the agreement, after a 90-minute meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad on Sunday.

Assad said Syria will spare no effort to "ensure the translation of the accord into a reality on the ground."

After meeting with Khaddam, Hobeika told a news conference he was "very much convinced" that the accord would work.

U.S., Soviets hold TV debate

SEATTLE (AP) — U.S. protesters pleaded with participants in a three-hour U.S.-Soviet satellite-TV dialogue to "ask the tough questions" and accused producers of the television special of "editing" the audience to avoid controversy. Simultaneous translation was provided for taping of the "citizens summit" Sunday, moderated by talk show host Phil Donohue here and Soviet commentator Vladimir Pozner in Leningrad.

"What can your government do to ease the threat of nuclear war?" a Seattle questioner asked, drawing applause from the 200 people in the U.S. TV studio audience. There was an equal number in the Soviet audience.

A Soviet man answered with a call for a moratorium on nuclear testing, a reduction of nuclear arms and then cuts in all weaponry.

About 90 percent of the Soviet Union will see a 90-minute version of the program, probably on prime-time television, Donohue said he was told. The show is being aired at various times in most major U.S. cities in the next weeks, said Penny Rotheiser, who works for Donohue.

Before the taping, the program was criticized by Jewish, Latvian, Estonian and other activists who were barred from the U.S. audience.

"Please ask the tough questions," Jack Greenberg, one of about 40 protesters, called to participants filing into KING-TV studios.

Greenberg complained there had been an "editing out (of the audience) of anybody who was part of an organization."

Marilyn O'Reilly, a free-lance producer who selected the audiences for Donahue's Multimedia Entertainment, said she tried to avoid ideologues and to balance both sides with people in similar occupations.

She said she was free to choose whomever she wanted in Leningrad.

"Can you speak out without fear of reprisal?" Donahue asked.

"We express our views from the heart, and we listen to our government very carefully, and we support it because it's right. No one in the Soviet Union wants war," responded a Soviet teacher.

Asked about the treatment of dissenters in the Soviet Union, an audience member in Leningrad called Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei Sakharov a "traitor" who "slandered the Soviet Union." Sakharov has been exiled to the closed city of Gorky.

Giants oust ex-champs from playoff picture

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Lawrence Taylor didn't want to talk about refrigerators, stoves or any other variety of appliance. And he had no intention of entertaining suggestions the San Francisco 49ers had an off day against the New York Giants.

"Just because they lost doesn't mean they had an off day," Taylor said, of the Giants 17-3 victory. "We kicked their butts and that's all there is to it. We played awesome."

The Giants certainly did on Sunday, defeating San Francisco 17-3 in the National Football Conference wild-card game, ending 49er hopes of becoming the first National Football League team this decade to win consecutive Super Bowls.

New York dominated all phases of the game in earning the right to meet William "The Refrigerator" Perry and the rest of the Chicago Bears in the NFC semifinal Sunday in the Windy City.

Joe Morris rushed for 141 yards and Phil Simms tossed touchdown passes to tight ends Mark Bavaro and Don Hasselbeck to keep the Giants offense in gear. The only thing that kept the margin of victory down was the misfiring of New York placekicker Eric Schubert, who failed on field goal attempts of 43, 36 and 39 yards.

However, the misses were of little consequence, the way the Giant defense manhandled Joe Montana and the rest of the 49er offense, ending a streak of five consecutive losses to San Francisco, including playoff defeats in 1981 and last year.

"What we did to them was something they do to defenses," Giant linebacker Gary Reasons said. "They give so many wrinkles out there, a lot of motion, bring different people in on any down. There is not pattern to their offense."

"What we did was have no pattern to our defense. We gave them a couple of things to think about and took away their wide-open play calling."

The Giants also took away Roger Craig from the 49er offense. The fullback who this season became the first NFL player to gain 1,000 yards apiece both running and receiving was limited to 23 yards rushing on nine carries and 18 yards on two receptions.

The usually reliable Craig also dropped six little swing passes from Montana. The 49ers dropped 10 for the game.

"We had a good year," 49ers Coach Bill Walsh said. "We bounced back and made it to the playoffs. I'm not ashamed of anything. We played with a lot of injured players. That's not to suggest we could have won otherwise. The Giants played great."

The Giants played with intensity and a lot of hitting.

"Coming into the game we wanted to be physical, more physical than we had ever been," Giant linebacker Harry Carson said. "There was a lot of hitting out there and people got hurt on both sides of the ball."

The Giants got ahead early, driving 34 yards in seven plays with Schubert kicking a 47-yard field goal, his longest of the season.

Everyone gets in betting picture

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Dianne Feinstein lost 10 steaks and some police officers lost their shirts but there were some San Francisco winners in the 49ers' 17-3 National Football League playoff defeat by the New York Giants.

Feinstein bet New York Mayor Edward I. Koch "10 of the finest steaks in San Francisco" against Italian dinners for 10.

Police officers at San Francisco International Airport bet 48 T-shirts they will now ship to their counterparts at New York's Kennedy International Airport.

"I was going to get T-shirts from the police in New York, Chicago and then Los Angeles, Dallas and finally Metro Dade again," said officer John Glynn. "But I guess not this year."

The winners were the Sunday staff of the San Francisco Chronicle which won a set of hats from the staff of the New York Daily News.

Los Angeles Raiders running back Marcus Allen (32), shown here in action against the San Diego Chargers, was named the NFL's Most Valuable Player and Offensive Player of the Year. Allen led the NFL in rushing this season with over 1,700 yards. Associated Press photo

Allen nets top NFL honor

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Running back Marcus Allen of the Los Angeles Raiders says he's not concerned about statistics. His only individual goals involve being consistent and showing improvement.

Concerned or not, Allen rolled up such impressive numbers that he was selected National Football League Most Valuable Player and Offensive Player of the Year by The Associated Press.

Allen was selected in balloting by three writers or broadcasters who covered each of the NFL's 28 teams. He was a runaway winner in the offensive category and a narrow winner over running back Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears in the MVP balloting.

The only other players to receive significant support in either category were running back Roger Craig of the San Francisco 49ers and quarterback Dan Marino of the Miami Dolphins.

Allen finished the 16-game season as the NFL's leading rusher with 1,759 yards on 380 carries and 11 touchdowns as well as 67 pass receptions for another 555 yards and three TDs.

He rushed for more than 100 yards in each of his team's last nine games, tying an NFL record established by Payton earlier in the season. Despite handling the ball so many times, only three fumbles by Allen were recovered by the opposition.

"Everybody likes to attain certain things, I'm no different," Allen said. "Just as long as it brings a smile to the face of my parents ... I think I'm a lot happier for the guys around me. I'm just a representative of the work they do. So please don't forget the guys up front ... that includes the fullback, too."

The awards are the latest on a growing list for the 25-year-old Allen, who won the Heisman Trophy during his senior year at Southern California.

"I don't think you really realize the significance of these awards until your playing days are over," he said. "The true measure of someone's ability is consistency.

Hopefully, I can continue to play well for several years.

"I think each year as a player I've progressed, gotten better and better. Hopefully, the best is yet to come. I just want to be the best I can be."

Allen was the Most Valuable Player in the 1984 Super Bowl.

"This season's over with; we have a new season in front of us, a one-game elimination," he said. "We can't afford to lose."

A first-round draft choice of the Raiders in 1982, Allen said he's grateful to play for a winning team. A close friend, O.J. Simpson, didn't have such a luxury too often when he was playing.

"We sat down and reflected on that," Allen said. "He said he would have given some of his records up if he had had the opportunity to play in the Super Bowl. He would have loved to have played in the Super Bowl."

"I've already been in the Super Bowl, I've been in the playoffs every year. I've been very fortunate. I hope it continues."

Division I-AA All-American team released

NEW YORK (AP) — The University of Rhode Island record-breaking aerial duo of quarterback Tom Ehrhardt and tight end Brian Forster were named today to the Associated Press Division I-AA All-America football team for 1985.

Ehrhardt led the nation in total offense with 3,460 yards during the regular season, an average of 346 a game. He completed 283 of 494 passes for 3,542 yards and 35 touchdowns.

In just two seasons, he broke

Doug Flutie's New England record for touchdown passes in a career with 71 (Flutie had 67) and is second to Flutie in career completions and attempts. He threw at least five touchdown passes in three of the Rams' 10 regular-season games, including eight against Connecticut.

Forster, the nation's leading receiver, set an NCAA record by catching 115 passes this season for 1,617 yards and 12 touchdowns.

The wide receivers are Tom Stenglein of Colgate, a repeater from the 1984 team, and Eric Yarber of Idaho. Stenglein caught 65 passes for 984 yards and 13 touchdowns while Yarber finished fourth nationally with 75 receptions for 1,103 yards and 10 TDs.

The running backs are Lamar sophomore Burton Murchison, who led the nation with 1,547 yards on 265 carries, and Gill Fenerty of Holy Cross, who was second to Murchison in per-game average with 1,368 yards in 10 contests.

The offensive line is composed of tackles Jim Gabrish of The Citadel and Jim Meyer of Illinois State, guards Greg Rea of Nevada-Reno and Jeff Rosen of Delaware and center Gene Reeder of Furman, who won the Jacobs Trophy as the best blocker in the Southern Conference.

Tim Foley, who made good on 16 of 17 field goal attempts in helping Georgia Southern win the Division I-AA national championship, is the placekicker. Ironically, Foley's only miss came on his shortest attempt of the year, 21 yards. He also was 36-of-36 on extra points. Foley and Murchison are the only sophomores on the team.

There are two repeaters from 1984 on the defensive unit — middle guard Carter Ray Crawford of Arkansas State and linebacker Doug Landry of Louisiana Tech.

The other linemen are Mike Dwyer of Massachusetts, Markus Koch of Boise State and Clyde Simmons of Western Carolina.

Joining Landry at linebacker are Dino Hackett of Appalachian State, Charles Haley of James Madison and Jackie Walker of Jackson

State.

The defensive backs are Don Griffin of Middle Tennessee State, Pat Hunter of Nevada-Reno and Mike Turner of Northeast Louisiana.

The two punters who tied for the division lead with a 44.7-yard average were both named to the All-America team. They are George Cimadevilla of East Tennessee State and Mike Rice of Montana. Rice made the Big Sky Conference all-star as a punter, wide receiver and return specialist.

Huskies out for redemption in Freedom Bowl encounter

ANAHEIM Calif. (AP) — The University of Washington football team, toppled from national prominence by a disappointing season, has a shot at a small dose of redemption in the Freedom Bowl.

The Huskies meet the Colorado Buffaloes in tonight's second edition of the game, to be played at Anaheim Stadium. Kickoff is set for 5:10 p.m.

"No doubt finishing up with a victory in a bowl game would shine a better light on our season," Washington's senior tackle Dennis Soldat said. "Things have not gone well for us at times this year."

"Everybody is pulling together for one final effort and we hope a victory will start things off better for next year's team."

Washington finished second in the national rankings a year ago and opened as the 12th-ranked team in the preseason poll.

The Huskies, however, opened the season with consecutive losses to Brigham Young and Oklahoma State and struggled to a 6-5 record, finishing in a fourth-place tie at 5-3 in the Pacific-10 Conference.

"Every player in the Pac-10 wants to go to the Rose Bowl. It's not a secret," senior quarterback Hugh Millen said. "Just because we didn't achieve our primary goal doesn't mean we can't be excited about this game."

Washington has been installed by oddsmakers as 4-point favorite over Colorado, a team making its first bowl appearance since 1977.

After suffering through six straight losing seasons, Colorado finished 7-4 overall and 4-3 in the Big Eight Conference this year.

"Of the 36 bowl-bound teams, we must be the most excited to be in a bowl," said Colorado Coach Bill McCartney, in his fourth year as head coach. "I guess we were the longest shots to get to one going into the season."

Colorado's turnaround coincides with a reversal in its offensive strategy from a pure passing attack to a wishbone offense. The Buffaloes went from last among the nation's Division I schools in rushing (59 yards per game) to ninth in the country with a 259.8-yard average.

Sophomore fullback Anthony Weatherspoon ran for 569 yards in 140 carries to lead the Buffaloes' wishbone attack, which presents a lot of problems for Washington's defense.

"The biggest threat is that dive (play) because they've got a great fullback in Weatherspoon," Washington linebacker Joe Kelly said. "They pound that away at you until you begin to collapse looking for it and then they go to the outside with a pitch. And once they get the defense to suck up, then they hit you with a long pass."

McCartney said his newly installed offense has had a chance to ex-

OSU, Florida State set for Gator Bowl

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Eleven bowl-seasoned seniors, the nucleus of the most successful class in Oklahoma State football history, will be starting for the 19th-ranked Cowboys in tonight's Gator Bowl clash with No. 18 Florida State.

It is no coincidence that the Cowboys, 8-3, started their school-record string of three straight bowl appearances when Leslie O'Neal, Harry Roberts and John Washington broke into the starting lineup as sophomores in 1983. Oklahoma State had been to only three bowl games in 24 previous years.

O'Neal, Roberts, Washington and eight classmates who grabbed starting spots later in their careers will be playing in their last game as Cowboys against the Seminoles.

Florida State, 8-3, has only seven senior starters, and the Seminoles rely heavily on four freshmen and six sophomores. But Oklahoma State Coach Pat Jones knows better than to expect Florida State to roll over.

"I know two years ago we beat Baylor in the Bluebonnet Bowl when this crew was sophomores and Baylor had a pretty potent team," he said. "I don't know how much a factor inexperience is."

It certainly doesn't hurt the Cowboys' chances that the seven starters across the defensive front line have earned a total of 22 varsity letters. That defense held opponents to an average of 14 points this season, and only Nebraska managed more than 19 points against the Cowboys.

"I don't know if they're the best (defensive unit) we've played, but they rank in there with Miami and Florida," Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden said. "Maybe they're not quite as strong, but they have a little more speed than either of those."

Bowden's Seminoles lost to both Miami and Florida this year.

While much of the pre-game hype has centered around Florida State's explosive offense — which averages 404 yards per game — and the running prowess of Oklahoma State's Thurman Thomas, the coaches expect a low-scoring affair.

"I'd be surprised if either team scores a lot of points unless there are a bunch of turnovers," Jones said. "Florida State's defense tends to get overshadowed, but they know what they're doing."

Bowden is more concerned about his offense than his defense. Quarterback Chip Ferguson is a freshman with only five starts to his credit, and he's playing without his top two receivers. Darrin

Missing Nets star puzzles teammates

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Concern over the well-being of Micheal Ray Richardson grew among the New Jersey Nets as the whereabouts of the team's scoring leader remained a mystery following a team Christmas party.

"When it comes to Micheal Ray, there's always extra concern, obviously because of his past," Nets spokesman Jay Rosenfeld said Sunday. "Today (Sunday) at practice, there was genuine concern for him."

Richardson had not been seen or heard from since Friday night, when he attended a Christmas party in Moonachie.

His wife, Leah, said Richardson didn't return home after the party, according to Lewis Schaffel, Nets executive vice president and chief operating officer.

"He spoke to her Saturday," Schaffel said Sunday. "She doesn't know where he is, but he seems not to be under any duress or in any danger."

Richardson dropped out of sight in October 1983 due to a problem with cocaine dependency. But club officials refused to speculate on the reason's for his current absence.

"Until we find out why, it's just a guessing game," said Nets rookie Coach Dave Wohl. "We checked everywhere. We've called his friends, sent people who stopped by places where he hangs out. Nobody seems to have seen him. We're all concerned. We're talking about a kid's life here."

Rosenfeld said there were reports that one of Richardson's daughters was taken to the hospital Saturday morning, but the spokesman said a reporter told him that he had checked the hospitals in the area and that nobody was admitted under the names of either daughter, Naomi and Nicole.

Mrs. Richardson could not be reached for comment Sunday. A woman who would not identify herself answered the phone at Richardson's Mahwah home but would only respond with "No comment" to all questions.

Turnovers key in Pats win over Jets

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — For the New England Patriots, the magic number was five. They didn't quite get there, but it turned out that four was plenty.

"We set a goal of forcing five turnovers a game," linebacker Don Blackmon said. "We've got to be opportunistic. When we are, we win."

The Patriots won Saturday in the National Football League's AFC East wild-card game thanks to a staunch defense which forced three turnovers and a kickoff coverage team which converted a fumble into a touchdown in a 26-14 victory over the New York Jets. New England, which like the Jets finished 11-5 this season, will visit the Los Angeles Raiders on Sunday. The Raiders beat the Patriots 35-20 early this season.

know," Bowden said. "But we've got two tight ends lined up just in case. If we can't catch 'em long, we'll just line up and block for the running game."

The Seminoles have shown the ability to run the ball, averaging 215 yards per game. But their top rusher, Tony Smith with 711 yards, is far behind the Cowboys'

Thomas, who finished 10th in the Heisman Trophy balloting after gaining 1,533 yards on the ground.

"For us to win the game," Bowden said, "we need a star to evolve. I need to pick up that paper Tuesday morning and read 'out of nowhere came so-and-so. Where'd he come from, who is this guy?' That's what we need to happen."

Golden State downs Lakers

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The taste of a hard-fought, emotional victory agrees with the Golden State Warriors.

The Warriors, who had been struggling lately, posted a 130-122 victory Sunday night over the Los Angeles Lakers in a National Basketball Association game at the Forum.

NBA Roundup

It was a victory the Warriors are hoping will lead to others down the road.

"It's something positive for us to build on," said Warriors rookie Chris Mullin who had a season-high 24 points. "We just have to keep banging and hopefully we can have more success."

The Warriors made 56 of 97 shots (57.7 percent) and hit a number of clutch baskets every time the Lakers threatened to overhaul them.

"This game shows that we do have the shooting, and when we stay within the framework of our game, we can be effective,"

Golden State Coach John Bach said. "We played very well."

"We knew emotionally what we had to do tonight. We had guys on the bench yelling like it was a championship game. It meant a lot to us."

Joe Barry Carroll led the Warriors with 30 points and was happy that he could contribute to something positive.

"It was very exciting for us," Carroll said. "Things haven't been very positive for us lately, and we don't have a very good history in Los Angeles."

"It was a big when because when you're down near the basement, every win is important and each victory is a welcomed sight."

The Warriors, although they led almost the whole way, had to battle to the end to improve their record to 12-22. The loss was only the Lakers' fifth this season, but the second in their last three games.

Down by as many as 17 points late in the first half, Los Angeles fought back to within six points, 117-111, with 4:44 left, but Golden State then ran off six unanswered points. A three-point basket by guard Byron Scott got the Lakers to within 125-120 with 56 seconds left to play, but Los Angeles could get no closer.

The victory looked like it might be a costly one for Golden State. Purvis Short, who chipped in 21 points, left the game with 5½ minutes left in the third quarter with an ankle injury.

Short was taken to Centinela Hospital for X-rays, which were reported negative.

Larry Smith had 16 points and 13 rebounds while Eric "Sleepy" Floyd and Terry Teagle each added 14 points for the Warriors. Floyd had a season-high 18 assists.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar chipped in 22 points and James Worthy had 18 in the losing effort.

The 130 points scored by the Warriors was the most allowed by the Lakers this season.

Giants

10-0 in the second quarter following Terry Kinard's interception of a Montana pass that was tipped by Reasons.

"They ran the same play three or four times against us in San Francisco last year," Reasons said. "I saw the play and played with Montana. I took a step toward (Dwight) Clark and came back to (Russ) Francis and tipped the pass."

Four plays later, Bavaro made a one-handed grab of an 18-yard pass from Simms in the end zone.

San Francisco mounted its best drive of the day late in the half, moving 85 yards in 16 plays with the aid of three Giant penalties. But the 49ers had to settle for a 21-yard Ray Wersching field goal after getting a first and goal at the New York 9-yard-line.

Simms took the Giants on a 77-yard scoring drive at the start of the second half, finding Hasselback all alone in the end zone for a 3-yard scoring pass. It was only the second TD reception for the veteran tight end this season.

San Francisco got close on a couple of possessions late in the fourth quarter, but couldn't get the ball in to the end zone.

"San Francisco is an excellent football team," Taylor said. "They deserve to be overconfident, but they seemed a little too overconfident. San Francisco figured they could just get by the Giants and think about Chicago."

That will be the Giants headache now. They face a stiff challenge in the 15-1 Bears, a team many regard as the best in the NFL this year.

"I want to take two days off," Taylor said. "I don't want to think about refrigerators, stoves or appliances. In fact, I'm going home and throw all my appliances out the window."

That might be one solution, but the Giants need another in the second round of the playoffs. In their three playoff appearances this decade, New York has won the wild-card game each time and then been eliminated in the second round.

"This is stage one of the playoffs, the wild-card game," Carson said. "We face an even stiffer challenge next week in Chicago, playing — quote, unquote — the best team in football. Up until today, San Francisco was the best team, the defending champions."

chance to broaden our attack."

Washington's passing attack, which accounted for the bulk of the Huskies' offense this season, will be in the hands of sophomore quarterback Chris Chandler, whom Washington Coach Don James has named as his starter.

Millen, who started the first nine games, is still nursing a shoulder injury suffered against Arizona State on Nov. 9. James has said he is considering alternating Chandler and Millen at quarterback.

Washington fullback Rick Fenney, who led the Huskies with 497 yards rushing this year, will see limited action, said James, who added that "two days ago, I didn't think he would play."

The Buffaloes enter the game as healthy as they've been all year.

"For the first time in a long time, our team is healthy," McCartney said. "Our squad is just about 100 percent."

College hoop heads to conference play

By The Associated Press
Let the real college basketball season begin.

After more than a month of fattening their records with lopsided victories over easy opponents, the nation's college basketball elite turn this week to conference action where the play is heated and upsets lurk.

Unbeaten Michigan, ranked No. 2, will carry a 12-game winning streak to Thursday night's Big Ten game at Indiana after knocking off Cleveland State 105-85 Sunday and Illinois-Chicago 85-54 Saturday.

The Wolverines broke the school record Sunday for most consecutive season-opening victories set in 1918-19.

Top-ranked North Carolina will find the Atlantic Coast Conference schedule considerably less hospitable than the Orange Bowl tournament, in which the Tar Heels won two games by a whopping margin of 136 points. Carolina opens the ACC campaign against North Carolina State on Saturday.

Dean Smith, coach of the 12-0 Tar Heels, said, "I didn't schedule Manhattan and Brown." He said Carolina made the trip at the request of Miami Coach Bill Foster, "who just called and said, 'Would you come down?' and I said, 'OK.'"

No. 3 Duke pounded Appalachian State 88-46 and No. 13 Kentucky downed No. 15 Louisville 69-64 in Saturday's non-tournament play.

In other Saturday games involving the Top Twenty, No. 6 Kansas beat Wichita State 81-56 to win the BMA Classic at Kansas City; No. 7 Georgia Tech belted Navy 82-64 to win the Cotton States Classic title at Atlanta, while No. 20 DePaul nipped Texas 63-62 in the consolation game; No. 8 Oklahoma beat Southern Methodist 92-69 for the All-College Tournament crown at Oklahoma City; and No. 10 Memphis State routed North Carolina-Charlotte 106-82 for the Holiday Bowl title at San Diego.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 St. John's topped St. Bonaventure 85-69 to win the ECAC Holiday Festival at New York; No. 12 Nevada-Las Vegas edged No. 14 Alabama-Birmingham 73-72 to capture the UNLV Holiday Classic; No. 17 Indiana grabbed the Hoosier Classic at Indianapolis by 74-53 over Mississippi State; and No. 19 Virginia Tech defeated American U. 95-67 for third place in the Miller Lite Classic at Tampa, Fla.

Top Ten
Johnny Dawkins scored 16 points and Mark Alarie added 13 for Duke, 10-0, which recorded its most lopsided win of the season.

Georgia Tech, 9-1, got 23 points from Mark Price and 20 from John Salley in downing Navy, which had upset DePaul in the first round. DePaul, 7-3, snapped a three-game losing streak by beating Texas in the consolation game with Tony Jackson's two free throws and Dallas Comegys' blocked shot paving the way in the closing minute.

Tim McCalister hit from the outside for 29 points and Darryl Kennedy added 27 points as Oklahoma, 11-0, used a 20-3 run in the first half to put away SMU.

Memphis State, 11-0, tied its best start in history against UNC-

Charlotte behind Dwight Boyd's 17 points and William Bedford's 14.

Second Ten
Walter Berry's 28 points and 11 rebounds and 18 points apiece by Mark Jackson and Ron Rowan led St. John's, 12-1, past St. Bonaventure, which got 30 points from Barry Munger.

Freddie Banks' 20-foot jumper with one second left earned Nevada-Las Vegas, 10-2 its triumph over UAB, 12-2. Anthony Jones scored 21 points for UNLV, while Steve Mitchell's 18 points paced the Blazers.

Kentucky, 8-1, won for the third time in the last four meetings against Louisville, 6-3. Winston Bennett led Kentucky with a career-high 23 points.

Indiana, 8-2, ran over over Mississippi State behind freshman Ricky Calloway's 18 points.

Virginia Tech, 9-2, beaten by Miami of Ohio in the first round, used 20 points from Keith Colbert and Bobby Beecher's 17 rebounds for a consolation win over American. South Florida won the Miller title game, 76-63 over Miami.

Other Tournaments
Saturday

Jeff Frayer's 33 points paced Iowa State to an 80-79 victory in the Music City final at Nashville, Tenn; Dave Colbert's 21 points and 15 rebounds led host Dayton to a 59-53 overtime title win over California in the Merrill Lynch Classic; Kerry Trotter's 16 points helped Marquette beat Long Beach State 60-48 for the Milwaukee

Classic championship, which was enlivened by a second-half brawl; Wyoming won the Cowboy Shootout 71-48 over Illinois State behind Dennis Dembo's 19 points at Casper, Wyo.; Demetrius Gore scored 20 points as Pitt won the Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, 77-52 over Southwestern Louisiana;

Purdue, led by Troy Lewis' 24 points, won the Cable Car Classic at San Francisco, 84-56 over Santa Clara; Georgia, paced by Joe Ward's 29 points, beat Tennessee-Chattanooga 97-71 for the Krystal Classic title at Chattanooga; Arizona beat Boston College 71-61 for the Fiesta Bowl crown at Tucson, Ariz. behind Craig McMillan's 22 points; Tracy Moore scored 24 points in leading Tulsa over Jacksonville 67-57 for the Tulsa Classic championship title; Michigan State, with Scott Skiles scoring 25 points, topped New Mexico 76-61 for the Lobo Invitational title at Albuquerque.

Sunday
In Honolulu, forward Derrick Chievous scored 24 points to lead Missouri past Clemson 69-64 in a semifinal game of the 22nd annual Rainbow Classic basketball tournament. Keith Morrison scored 22 points and Joe Wallace added 19 to lead Washington State to a 74-67 win over Seton Hall in the other semifinal game.

Washington state meets Missouri in for the tournament championship tonight. Missouri downed Clemson 69-64 in the other semifinal game earlier.

Georgia Tech suspends four

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Four Georgia Tech football players, including senior quarterback John Dewberry, were suspended Saturday for missing curfew by coach Bill Curry and will not play against Michigan State in the All-American Bowl on New Year's Eve, a bowl official said.

Bill Oakley, a spokesman for the bowl, said Curry announced before his team's first practice at Legion Field that Dewberry, split end Gary Lee, flanker Toby Pearson and reserve fullback Charles Mack were being sent home.

O'Reilly win Junior Tennis

PORT WASHINGTON, N.Y. (AP) — Patty O'Reilly of Ridgewood, N.J. beat Jana Pospisilova of Czechoslovakia 7-6, 6-3 Sunday in the final of the girls' 18 division of the Rolex International Junior Tennis Championships.

In the girls' 14 division, Carrie Cunningham of Livonia, Mich. ousted Agnes Blumberga of the Soviet Union 6-1, 6-3 to advance to the semifinals. Melissa Hornando of Holmedel, N.J. also reached semifinals by downing Elena Brioukhovets of the Soviet Union 6-1, 6-4.

American sets pole vault record

SASKATOON, Saskatchewan (AP) — Former Abilene Christia University track star Billy Olson set an indoor pole vaulting world record with a vault of 19 feet, 2 3/4 inches in a weekend performance at the Knights of Columbus Saskatchewan Indoor Games.

Olson, a native of Dallas, who competes with the Pacific Coast Club, cleared the mark on his first attempt Saturday night, breaking the old record of 19-2 1/4 held by Thierry Vigneron of France.

He also shattered the previous Saskatchewan Games record of 18-4 1/4.

"I knew as soon as I left the ground I was going to make it," the 27-year-old Olson said after breaking the record.

Olson had cleared 17-8 1/2 and 18-9 1/2 before the record attempt. He missed at 19-0 3/4, then had the bar raised to 19-2 3/4.

"The record jump was my best run and jump of the day," Olson said. "There were probably parts of me that were more than four inches over."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, DEC. 31, 1985

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Happy New Year's Eve! A time when you are more interested in having a good time and celebrating the oncoming new year than analyzing your activities, so thoroughly enjoy yourself.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A fine day for being with new and old friends and having a very good time. Your mate is in the mood for a gala time.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Home should be the right place to be in today and tonight and to see the New Year in happily with family.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Drop in here and there to see friends who are not far away and bring this New Year in happily and full of fun.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) A good day to think about adding to abundance in the New Year and celebrate the holiday nicely.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Do what you please to see the New Year in and concentrate on greater prosperity in the coming year.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) It might be well to celebrate the New Year at some large function or big hotel and enjoy a gala affair.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Take your rightful place within the social circle to make this a very happy time. See the New Year in happily.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day for making new allies for the new year coming in and strengthening old relationships.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find new personalities who can be enjoyed in the next few days and see how they fit into your present circle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A good day to please your mate and your closest ties, and spread happiness all around. You may spend a lot of money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) See the old year out in the company of partners and this can become a memorable evening.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get your home nicely decorated so that you can usher in the New Year in the company of family, co-workers and friends.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have great scope and should be given the finest education possible so that your progeny can become very successful in whatever the natural talents may be. Give praise for any exceptional work that is done. Spiritual training is important.
