Yeats seeks 'second opinion'

Attorney general to rule on liquor petition

Staff and wire reports
AUSTIN — An opinion committee from Attorney General Jim Mattox's office will decide whether signatures dismissed last June by deputies in the Howard County tax assessor's and collector's office were indeed valid.

The signatures were from registered voters in Howard County's Precinct 1, who requested that a local option election be held concerning changes in the precinct's current liquor-by-the-drink law. According to the law, persons cannot be served a mixed drink in public unless they are a guest of or a member of a private club.

Persons wishing to join private clubs must pay a fee.

The petition was dismissed by Tax Assessor and Collector Dorothy Moore June 25 because it did not contain enough valid signatures.

County Attorney Tim Yeats requested an opinion of the dismissal from the attorney general. According to the request, dated Sept. 13, a number of signatures were not approved because of minor variances from the names on the official copy of the current list of registered voters.

Yeats' request was stamped "received" by Mattox's opinion committee on Oct. 25. A spokeswoman for the attorney general's office will be able to say when an opinion will be released. "My question concerns the degree of variance necessary to invalidate a signature and the existence or non-existence of discretion of the voter registrar in these questions," Yeats said in his letter to Mattox.

Yeats said Tuesday that he was asked by Big Spring resident Ralph McLaughlin in September to submit an opinion request to the attorney general's office.

"I agree with Dorothy Moore's decision," Yeats said about her in-

Bales galore

Cotton farmers are expected to gather about 80,000 bales of cotton in Howard County this year.

1985 was a good year for cotton growers, as shown by the number of cotton bales lining the yard of West Texas Industries in Big Spring.

Singer dies in crash

DE KALB (AP) — Ricky Nelson, the singing idol who grew up on television in "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet," was killed with six other people Tuesday when a plane carrying him and his band crashed, authorities said. Two others aboard survived.

The private DC-3 was en route to Dallas from Guntersville, Ala., when it crashed and burned at 5:30 p.m. in this northeastern Texas community, said Ronnie Fincher, a Department of Public Safety trooper in Texarkana.

Nelson, 45, whose band was to play a concert in Dallas, was aboard the plane "and he was not among the survivors," Fincher said.

Fincher identified the other dead as Bobby Neal, Helen Blair, Patrick Woodward, Rick Intveld, Andy Chapin and Clark Russel.

Nelson, along with his brother, David, first appeared with their parents on the mid-1950s television series "The Adventures of Ozzie & Harriet."

Bubbly bashes mark New Year's Eve

New Year's Eve revelers in Nashville were taking to the water for a paddlewheeler party, Chicagoans chartered an "E1" train for a murder mystery and two New York couples prepared to wed in a packed Times Square.

But in Seattle a booze-free celebration was canceled for lack of interest. After mailing 35,000 invitations to donors and volunteers, the Union Gospel Mission had only 36 takers for the non-alcoholic party. "If we had received 200 reservations, we would have gone ahead with it," mission director Steven Burger said.

Still, parades and fireworks shootoffs were set elsewhere, and there was enough spirit for two parties in Las Vegas' downtown Glitter Gulch — one bash starting at 9 p.m. in order to accommodate a network television broadcast set when midnight struck in the East.

More than 20,000 people were expected for that street fete and another one when 1986 actually arrived in the gambling capital.

Spirit flowed at an Albany, Ga., radio station, where disc jockeys got "silly and giggly" after drinking on the air in a year-end reminder not to drink and drive.

"You can actually hear the change in their voices and how they made mistakes," said WALG-WKAK spokeswoman Rachel White.

A different kind of show was in the works in Chicago, where 79 people paid $104 each to watch a troupe of actors called "Homicide, Ltd.," perform a whodunit aboard a chartered Chicago Transit Authority elevated train. The audience had to discover the murderer before the ride ended at 1 a.m. Wednesday.

About 450 people had reservations aboard the General Jackson showboat for the paddlewheeler's New Year's Eve cruise on the Cumberland River near Nashville, Tenn. The cost of the dinner cruise and music was $86.20 per person.

Compared to the cost of partying elsewhere, that was a bargain. For $2,500 a couple, Los Angeles' Sheraton Premiere Hotel offered its presidential suite, a personal butler and chauffeured limousine, Patti Labelle concert tickets and champagne brunch.

Perhaps the most expensive party in New York was the $2,000-per-person bash at the Essex House hotel, where Julio Iglesias and Regis Philbin were performing in the Casino on the Park Ballroom. Tickets entitled 300 big spenders to a caviar-and-champagne party, a five-course dinner, a late night snack, overnight accommodations and brunch on New Year's Day.

Between 100,000 and 300,000 people were expected to jam Times Square for the annual festivities, highlighted by the descent of a giant apple down a flagpole at 1 Times Square at midnight.

This year, the celebration had special significance for Victoria Sanderson and Wayne Chew, who

Joint Chiefs list options against terrorists

PRESIDENT REAGAN
...briefed on options

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Joint Chiefs of Staff have sent President Reagan a list of possible military options to use against terrorists in the Mideast, government sources said Tuesday.

The White House sought preparation for possible military action in the wake of last week's bomb and gunfire attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports, said the sources, who spoke only on condition they not be named.

The list of options includes possible U.S. air strikes at Libya, the sources said.

Although the list of military actions was prepared, the Pentagon has not taken any major steps toward carrying out air strikes on Libya, the sources said. They stressed that effective attacks would be difficult to achieve.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Monday that Libya is believed to be harboring Abu Nidal, the leader of a radical Palestinian splinter group suspected of masterminding the airport raids in which 18 people, including three terrorists, were killed.

Speakes also said the United States is seeking the support of its allies for unspecified action to punish the Libyan government of Moammar Khadafi. President Reagan and top administration officials have long singled out Khadafi as a chief supporter of international terrorism.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said Tuesday that the shadowy terrorist group headed by Abu Nidal has carried out nearly 20 other assaults in 1985.

Redman said Nidal is believed to be operating from inside Libya and if that continues, more terrorism should be expected, particularly in Western Europe.

Any U.S. military action against Libya would likely involve U.S. planes flying from the deck of an aircraft carrier or from the nearest U.S. land base, the joint American-Italian base at Sigonella, Sicily.

The Coral Sea, the only aircraft carrier in the Mediterranean Sea, has been in port in Naples, Italy since before Christmas and is scheduled to remain there until Thursday, the sources noted. No leaves have been canceled, and even rounding up the Coral Sea's sailors on short notice would be difficult since many of them probably took advantage of the leave to travel around Italy or ski in nearby Switzerland, the sources said.

The cruiser Yorktown is in Italian port alongside the Coral Sea and its sailors are also on leave, the sources said. The cruiser and its sophisticated Aegis battle management radar would probably play a key role in defending the U.S. planes during an attack.

Brothers carry on charro tradition

EL PASO (AP) — Being a charro, riding horses, busting bulls and participating in charriadas is not unusual for Ernesto Cano's

"Since we were real small, we've been around horses and attending charriadas," said Adrian Cano, 18, of his family. "We're used to it. This is what we do almost every Sunday. My father has always competed, and we used to go with him.

"Now I compete, and so does my brother."

Adrian Cano and his brother, Ernie, 16, are two of the youngest members of the Herrero Charro Association, which is made up of three El Paso families. The organization is one of about 10 in El Paso that compete throughout the Southwest in charriadas, Mexican rodeos.

Almost every Sunday, the Canos are at one of the charro arenas in the city preparing for upcoming competitions.

"It's an expensive habit, but being a charro has a lot of tradition," said Adrian Cano, who graduated from Bel Air High School last spring. "And competing is a lot of fun."

It's also dangerous. During competition last June, Adrian was performing the pass of death, which consists of jumping from one racing horse to a racing wild bronco, when he fell, struck a wall and ripped some ligaments and cartilage in his left knee. Doctors repaired his knee with surgery, and Adrian is practicing his way back to performance condition.

"We have 12 members in our association, and each one has specific events to compete in," Adrian said. "I have to do my part for the team, so I have to be ready."

Ernie Cano, a junior at Bel Air High School, used to play football, but he gave it up because he didn't have any time.

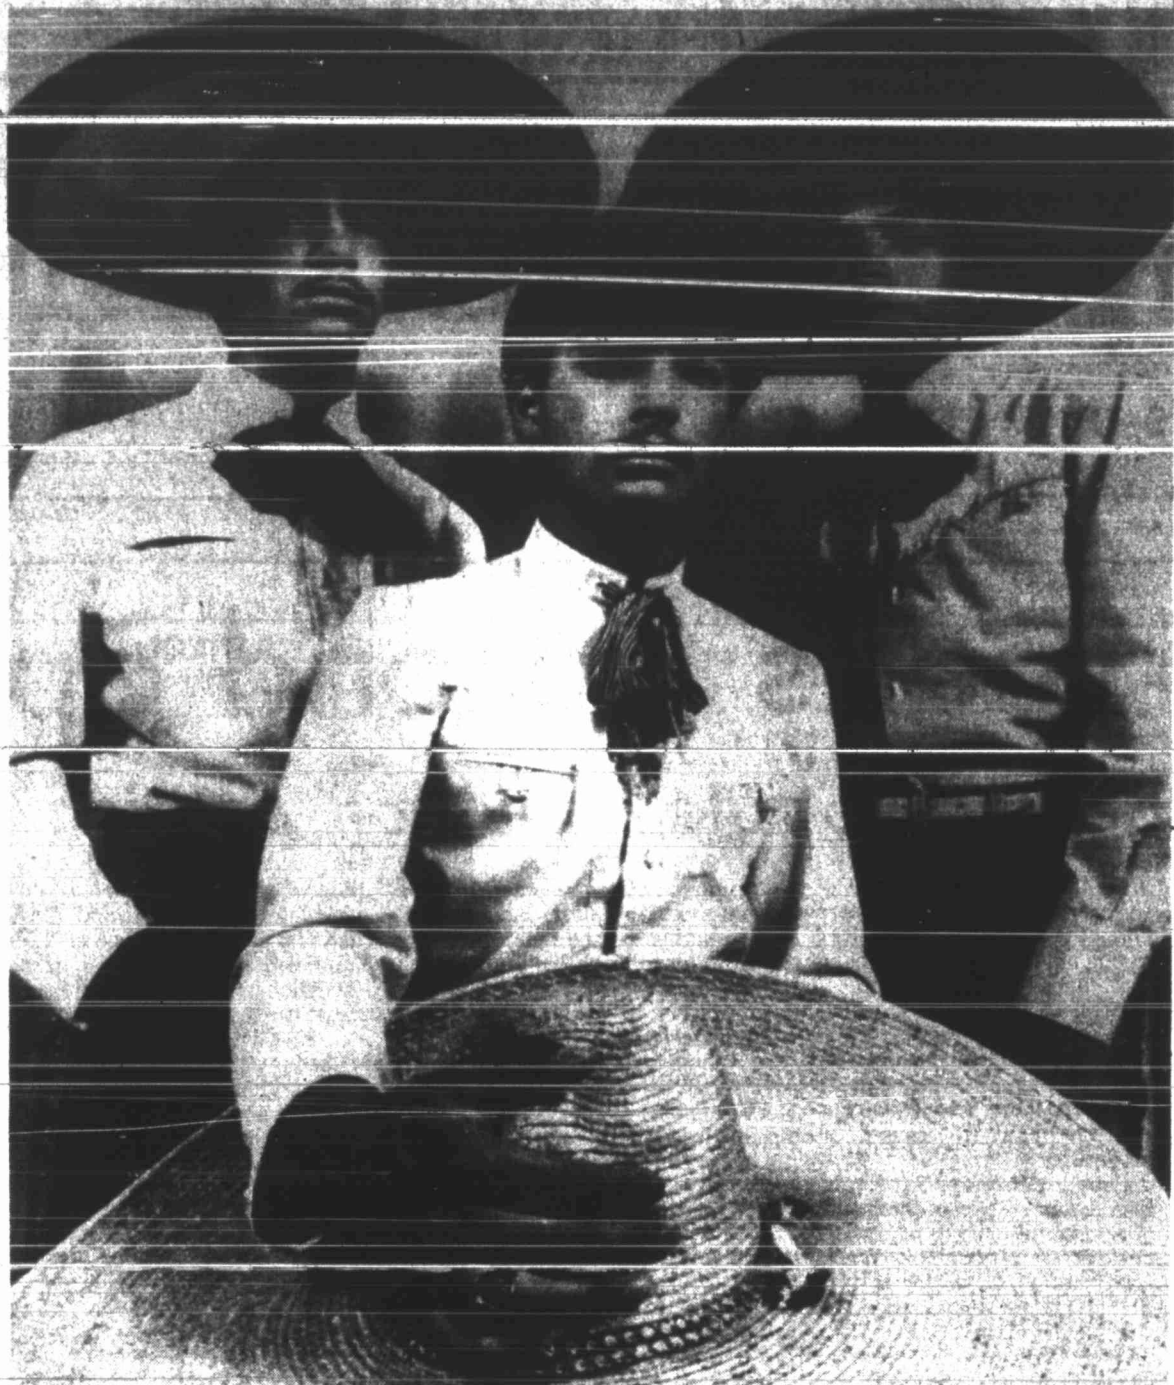

"You have to feed the horses every day," he said. "There's a lot of practicing that needs to be done before you can compete. You have to really like the charriadas to stay with it, because it takes a lot of time and money."

The time spent and the money invested in charriadas is what lured Jose Regalado back to the arena. Regalado used to compete every month since he was a child, but he stopped 10 years ago after getting married.

"I didn't have time to come out and practice and compete," said Regalado, who is also in the Herrero Association. "But I had a lot of money invested in it, so I came back."

"It's a lot of fun and I really enjoy it," Regalado said that just the hats used by the charros, often referred to as 10-gallon hats or Mexican sombreros, cost an average of $100.

"They have wide brims to protect you," he said. "If you fall and you're going to hit face-first, the hat will cushion and stop the fall."

The Mexican saddles with a big horn run about $500, and the pants, shirts and chaps also are expensive, Regalado said.

"I had my equipment just sitting at the house, so I decided to use it again," he said. Regalado said he is practicing so he can get back his performing style and timing.

Although all members of the association practice most of the charriada events, each competes only in specific events. Adrian Cano competes in the pass of death and in bronco riding, while Ernie competes in bull riding, team roping and sometimes bronco riding.

El Paso County has two char-riada competition complexes. One is the Chamizal Park complex, and the other is the Emilian Zapata Arena in the Lower Valley off North Loop, between Moon City and Clint.

Adrian Cano said that whenever there are competitions, teams from Dallas, San Antonio, Houston, New Mexico and Arizona show up.

"Usually one of the El Paso associations does good," he said. "Most of the trophies are brought back to El Paso."

At the state meet in Houston last summer, the Herrero Association finished second overall. The winner of the overall charriada competition was also an El Pasoan.

Efren Azarte, 18, who graduated from Bel Air High School last spring, won the overall competition easily, Adrian Cano said.

"He had 109 points, and the second-place guy had points in the 50s," Cano said.

Since Azarte competes in overall competition, he participates in all nine charriada events — horse showmanship, horse roping, bull tailing, bull riding, rope showmanship, bronco riding, foot roping, horse roping and the pass of death.

Each charriada competition starts with a parade in which each association displays its shining uniforms, its horses and its queen.

State

By The Associated Press

A Pacific front cleared the state Tuesday afternoon and moved out along the Texas coastline and over coastal waters.

Following the front was dry, cool air along with clearing skies and most of the state was bathed in sunshine. The exception was partly cloudy skies and a few small areas of light rain in Southeast Texas, the National Weather Service said.

The forecast called for generally fair skies in the west and partly cloudy in North and South Texas on New Year's Day.

Temperatures across most of North and West Texas were in the 50s Tuesday while the central Panhandle stayed in the 40s and the Trans Pecos edged into the 60s. South Texas readings generally in the 50s and 60s warming into the 70s along the coastal bend, and the lower Rio Grande Valley neared 90 degrees.

Extremes at 3 p.m. were 46 degrees at Amarillo and 89 at McAllen.

Northerly breezes mostly 10 to 15 mph swept across most of North and South Texas while over West Texas southerly winds returned with speeds in the 5 to 15 mph range common.

Gusty winds whistled across the upper Midwest Tuesday to push wind chills down to 25 below zero and temperatures dipped into the low 30s in Florida.

Rain spread from northwest New Mexico into northeast Arizona. Rain and occasional thunderstorms reached from Tennessee and Alabama across the lower Mississippi Valley and the upper Texas Coast, and sleet and freezing rain iced highways in western North Carolina and southeastern Tennessee.

Harriet."

While on the TV show from 1952 to 1966, Ricky Nelson went from a crew cut 11-year-old, to a real-life teen-age singing idol, to a 25-year-old husband.

Two of his biggest hits from the early 1960s were "Mary Lou" and "Travelin' Man." He also enjoyed moderate success in the 1970s with the song "Garden Party."

Nelson was born Eric Hilliard Nelson in Teaneck, N.J., on May 8, 1940.

When his parents transferred their radio show to television, he and his brother, David, began to be featured, and he became Ricky Nelson.

In 1957, he first performed "Teen-ager's Romance," and "I'm Walkin'" on the show. Those songs became his first million sellers.

Other hit records from his early career included "Be-Bo Baby," 1957; "Lonesome Town" and "I Got a Feeling," 1958; "Never Be Anyone Else But You" and "It's Late" 1959; "Travelin' Man" and "Hello Mary Lou," 1961; "Teenage Idol," 1962.

In the 1970s, a more mature Rick Nelson enjoyed a new lease on his singing career when he formed the Stone Canyon Band, a country rock-oriented five-piece group.

The title track of 1972's "Garden Party" album, an autobiographical account of his reception at a gig at New York's Madison Square Garden, was a major hit, producing another gold record for Nelson.

His movies included, "Here

Come the Nelsons," 1951; "Story of Three Loves," 1953; "Rio Bravo," 1958; "Wackiest Ship in the Army," 1960, and "Love and Kisses," 1965.

He married Kristin Harmon, April 20, 1963, and had four children: Tracy Kristine, twins Gunnar Eric and Matthew Gray, and Sam Hilliard.

His father, Ozzie Nelson, died in 1975.

Nelson's band had performed Monday night in Guntersville, said Greg Leach, manager of the Guntersville Airport, who saw Nelson and the band board the plane and depart at 2 p.m.

Bob Ellison, a pilot with the Air Life helicopter at St. Michael Hospital, said another helicopter pilot heard the pilot of the DC-3 talking with the FAA just before the crash, saying that the plane had caught fire.

The other helicopter pilot attempted to direct them to an airport before they apparently tried to land on the road, said Ellison, who was among the first on the scene.

"It appeared to me that they hit in the trees. There was fire everywhere," Ellison said.

The survivors, identified as Kenneth Ferguson and Brad Rank, were taken to St. Michael Hospital in Texarkana in critical condition with burns over the upper portion of their bodies, said nursing supervisor Glennette Stears.

De Kalb is about 13 miles south of the Oklahoma border in northeastern Texas.

terpretation of the state rules that petition signatures must appear exactly as the names on the voter registration cards.

However, Yeats said, he doesn't mind "asking for another opinion."

Yeats included the following questions in his opinion request:

- Is a signature invalid if it adds or leaves out a middle initial as compared to the official current list of registered voters?
- Is a signature invalid if the first name on the petition is shortened or lengthened (Robert-Bob) as compared to the current voter's list?
- Is a signature invalid if a middle name on the petition is added or left out as compared to the current voter's list?
- Does the registrar have discretion in approving or rejecting the signatures, and if so, would verification in any of the above situations amount to an abuse of that discretion?

State law specifies that no signatures may be counted where the name of the voter is not signed exactly as it appears on the voter registration list, Yeats said.

Yeats said he wants to know what happens when the name is slightly different but there is adequate evidence the signer is the same person as the name on the registration list.

McLaughlin said Tuesday a local group was interested in launching another petition drive calling for a local option election, but "wanted a ruling before it came up again."

"All we're trying to do is clear the way for the next drive," McLaughlin said.

no such thing as a surgical strike," said one source referring to the concept of hitting only the target and losing no planes.

American and Libyan forces have fought briefly once before during the Reagan administration. In August, 1981, two Navy F-14 jets shot down a pair of Soviet-made Libyan fighters in a brief dogfight over the Gulf of Sidra, the Mediterranean waters north of Libya where the U.S. Navy was conducting maneuvers.

"But that was over water, that was our turf," said one Navy source. "It's different over land. Look at what happened in Syria."

In December, 1983, 26 U.S. warplanes attacked Syrian positions in Lebanon's central mountains in retaliation for Syrian attacks on the U.S. peacekeeping force which was then in Lebanon.

Two of the American planes were shot down. One American was killed and a second, Navy Lt. Robert O. Goodman, was taken prisoner.

damaged Tuesday by a fire that federal investigators said they believed was arson, which would make it the third Ohio clinic hit by arsonists this week.

The only statement we're making is that it appears to be arson," said Robert Stellingworth, resident agent for the federal bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

Two other Tucson abortion clinics reported Tuesday that they had received bomb threats the day before, and city police put them under surveillance.

Two Cincinnati abortion clinics suffered $75,000 damage each Monday. Investigators there said it appeared that gasoline-fueled firebombs were thrown into the Margaret Sanger and Women's Health Care centers.

Woman hit by motorist

TULSA, Okla. — A woman who parked her car in a space reserved for the handicapped says an angry motorist deliberately ran into her, apparently not realizing she was disabled because her clothing covered a leg brace.

Patricia Boling of Broken Arrow was treated for a leg bruise at a Tulsa hospital after being hit in a discount store parking lot.

Mrs. Boling parked her car, marked with a handicapped sticker on the rear and a handicapped placard on the dashboard, in a handicapped spot in the lot Saturday, police said.

A woman in another car began shouting obscenities at her and said, "Handicapped, huh?" Mrs. Boling told police. She said she told the woman she was handicapped.

As Mrs. Boling and her 15-year-old daughter were crossing the parking lot to enter the store, the car in which the woman was a passenger stopped, then moved toward them, police said. She said a man was driving.

"I just stood there because I didn't know what he was doing," Mrs. Boling said Monday. "Then he started toward me and caught me right with the front end of his car."

Reactor to be tested

MIDDLETOWN, Pa. — The operator of Three Mile Island plans to shut down the Unit 1 reactor Thursday in a test that marks the final phase of a three-month startup program, a spokeswoman said Tuesday.

The test will cause a release of steam that contains "a trace amount of radioactivity that is undetectable offsite on a daily basis," said Lisa Robinson, a spokeswoman for GPU Nuclear Corp. "It amounts to a minute fraction of federal limits," she said, reading from a prepared statement.

Unit 1 will remain shut down for "a few days for routine maintenance" and will return to its maximum power with approval from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, she said.

Black youths flee from tear gas fired at them by police who broke up their demonstration outside the Kagiso township house where Winnie Mandela went after her release on bail early Tuesday. The youths were chanting freedom songs in support of Mrs. Mandela when police fired tear gas to disperse them.

Anti-apartheid

Activist Winnie Mandela freed, but defiant

KAGISO, South Africa (AP) - Anti-apartheid activist Winnie Mandela was freed on bail Tuesday on condition that she finally bow to a state order expelling her from the Johannesburg area, but she remained defiant.

Her lawyers said Tuesday night that she will probably try to return to her home in Johannesburg's Soweto black township, risking arrest for the third time in 10 days in a growing confrontation with the white-led government.

The government Tuesday banned public meetings for six months by every major anti-apartheid organization in 30 districts covered by a state of emergency. The 74 organizations listed included the United Democratic Front, the main opponent of South Africa's system of racial segregation.

The government gave no reason for the decree, which underlines powers police already have under the emergency imposed July 21 in an unsuccessful bid to quell 16 months of anti-apartheid rioting.

In a New Year message at the end of a bleak and bloody year, President P.W. Botha complained that the international community was pressing for change "virtually overnight" in South Africa, where the 5 million white minority rule and deny the vote to 24 million blacks.

On Tuesday, riot police, shouting through loudspeakers and firing a round of tear gas, dispersed hundreds of cheering youths who gathered in Kagiso, a black township where lawyers whisked Mrs. Mandela after a court appearance in Krugersdorp, 30 miles west of Johannesburg.

Police ordered journalists from Kagiso, while Mrs. Mandela met with lawyers in the matchbox-like concrete home of a friend, debating whether to defy the ban again. Kagiso adjoins Krugersdorp, a white mining town six miles west of Roodepoort, an area from which Mrs. Mandela also is barred.

"She is a very determined lady. It appears we're going for round three," one of her lawyers, Prakesh Diar, said.

Her lawyers said Wednesday could be decision day. At a 35-minute hearing, Magistrate Chris Eksteen freed Mrs. Mandela on bail of 500 rands ($190) and on condition she obeys the expulsion ban designed to keep her away from her Soweto home and the nation's biggest black townships. She was ordered to appear again Jan. 22 on two charges of breaking the order.

The court appearance was her second since Dec. 21 when Law and Order Minister Louis le Grange began enforcing the expulsion order against Mrs. Mandela, 50, wife of imprisoned black leader Nelson Mandela but now well-known in her own right.

Lawyers had tried to persuade state advocates to hold off at least until after a Jan. 7 challenge in the Supreme Court seeking to have the order quashed on grounds it is unreasonable.

After Tuesday's court hearing, security police trailed Mrs. Mandela to see if she would challenge the restriction and try to cross the Roodepoort boundary and go back to Soweto.

Hundreds of youths trotted down the dusty street in Kagiso chanting, "Winnie Mandela, Winnie Mandela is the mother to us!" Riot police moved in. An officer shouted, "You have three minutes to disperse!" The youths turned and raised fists in black power salutes to the white police in three trucks. But after a second three-minute warning, most of the crowd moved off.

Gorbachev urges peace

MOSCOW — Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said in his nationwide address on the eve of 1986 that the people of the world are "in one boat in the nuclear age," and called on everyone not to rock that boat.

It was the first televised New Year message from a Communist Party leader since Leonid Brezhnev's on Dec. 31, 1980. It contained no criticism or accusations against other countries.

The Soviet Union "shall do everything possible" to safeguard peace and avert the danger of nuclear war, Gorbachev said in his brief address to Soviet citizens Tuesday night, minutes before the new year began.

The speech was taped in advance, and a full text was carried by the official news agency, Tass.

On New Year's Day, Gorbachev's greeting to the American people will be broadcast in the United States, and President Reagan's speech is to be shown on Soviet television.

Gorbachev's message to his people lasted only a few minutes and focused on general hopes for a more prosperous nation and a more stable world.

End to violence sought

ROME — Pope John Paul II on Tuesday called for a united effort to break "the senseless spiral of violence" and wipe out crime and terrorism that "disfigure the face of our times."

Speaking during his traditional New Year's Eve Mass at the Jesuit order's main church in central Rome, the pontiff noted that "not a few episodes of violence have disrupted the life of the city."

"Innocent blood has been spilled, also during the Christmas period, with a carnage that particularly stirred the public opinion and sent shock waves in every part of the world," the pope said, referring to the Dec. 27 terrorist attack at Rome's Leonardo Da Vinci airport.

John Paul said the attack, in which 15 people were slain and about 30 wounded, "inflicted unspeakable suffering to numerous families and fed a sense of agony and insecurity to the population."

Tourists visit Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland — The number of visitors to the Irish Republic from the United States and Canada in 1985 rose to a record 426,000, 24 percent over last year, the Irish tourist board said Tuesday.

Tourist revenue from North Americans rose by 43 percent to a record 200 million Irish pounds ($240 million), the board said in a report. Overall, there were 1.9 million foreign visitors to the Irish Republic during the year, up 4 percent from 1984. They spent a total of 712 million pounds ($855 million), up 20 percent.

Resolution for '86 is 'make it work'

It's gone. Ended. Finis. 1985 is no more. So what are we gonna' do now? The national economic forecasts call for 1986 to be a virtual carbon copy of 1985. On the up side, two indicators of the local economy, don't bode any better for 1986 than for the year just ended.

Our unemployment rate has smoothed out and if the level of unemployment isn't all we'd like it to be, at least it is more predictable now, and thus the source of less discomfort.

Looks like the new year is ringing in as a time of stability, if not blossoming prosperity. The burden is on us then to use what we have, and make it work.

We have good climate, natural beauty, hard-working citizens, a diverse economic base, stable government facilities, and all the makings for a bright new year. Maybe a single resolution will suffice for Big Spring in 1986: Let's make it work.

Steve Chapman

Stylish stubble isn't right for all

It's getting harder all the time to be stylish. I show up for work one Monday morning with a two-day growth of beard, a la Don Johnson of "Miami Vice" because it's all the rage, or so I hear from Newsweek, which says "the look is sexy and simple" and is "decorating faces in the trendiest restaurants, clubs and advertisements."

The security guards are not so sure. A frisk and an inspection of my briefcase for explosives have to be endured before I'm admitted. My boss also takes a dim view. "If I want Fasser Arafat working for me, I know where to find him," he growls.

Back home to scrape off the stubble. My wife greets me at the door but resists a kiss on the cheek. "I might as well wash my face with an SOS pad," she says, from arm's length.

It just shows what they know. Some people wouldn't know style if it pitched a tent on their front lawn. I had the same problem when I walked into a ritzy restaurant wearing my patented Sonny Crockett pastel linen jacket over a sleeveless T-shirt. The maitre'd offered directions to Burger King.

It was easier when preppie was in. Put on a blue blazer, club tie and penny loafers, and you got respect. Executive headhunters plied you with corner-office jobs, banks gave you big loans with no collateral, fathers offered you their daughters in marriage, dowry included.

But after a while you get tired of looking like you were on your way to a mixer at Mount Holyoke. You see a few Indiana Jones movies, and it changes your outlook. Nowadays we stylish guys have a hankering for something different. So we're sprouting stubble. Like Californian David Katz, identified by Newsweek as "a sometime model who waits tables," who says, "Everyone wants the rugged, masculine look now."

Unfortunately not everyone can get it. Katz, even with a sprinkling of whiskers, is never going to fit in to your basic redneck honky-tonk.

He's too perfect. Sort of like fashion designer Ralph Lauren, who can wear faded jeans and flannel shirts 'til the cows come home and will still look like a fashion designer.

Same with Miami's most famous detective. Women swoon over him, but he wouldn't look rugged if you put him in combat fatigues and a bandolero. Don Johnson is pretty enough to be a Dallas cheerleader.

But the more you consider the new aversion to shaving, the more it becomes apparent that the rugged look can't be acquired by tossing away your razor. You've either got it or you don't. Waylon Jennings, Clint Eastwood, Marvin Hagler and Chuck Yeager have it. Timothy Hutton, Bjorn Borg, Mel Gibson and Bob Geldof, some of the stubbles cited by Time magazine, don't.

Worse, the new fashion threatens to take all the fun out of an unshaven Saturday. Patrice Serrani, who bears the unlikely title of "grooming editor" at that rugged men's magazine, Gentleman's Quarterly, recommends shaving at night with an electric razor: "In the morning you'll have the look." A New York hair salon owner uses electric clippers so the result will "look like an intentional accident," whatever that is. "It doesn't work if you look like a gardener," he instructs.

Well, if you're going to fret about whether people will mistake you for the hired help, you might as well go ahead and get out the Trac II. I can stand to shave or not, but I cannot stand to plan my shaving according to some schedule calendered by Gentleman's Quarterly. Half the pleasure of skipping your morning shave is the sense it provides of freedom from workday drudgery. This sort of advice makes it as constricting as a corset.

So I decided to just enjoy that freedom every day, let the whiskers grow and hang the loss to fashion. Don Johnson better hope I don't buy a pipe and tweed jacket. If I establish a new trend, he's going to have trouble getting the intellectual look.

Memo might reveal whether Roosevelt knew he was dying

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — An important historical document is in danger of being destroyed. It may contain evidence that could settle once and for all more than 40 years of speculation about whether President Franklin Roosevelt knew he was terminally ill when he ran for a fourth term in 1944.

The document, known as the "Lahey memorandum," is the subject of a court suit in Massachusetts. The story is summarized in a brief filed by the National Archives, which wants the memo preserved at all costs.

Dr. Frank Lahey, the eminent Boston surgeon who founded the Lahey Clinic, was one of a group of doctors called in to examine FDR in the spring of 1944. The doctors and Roosevelt's personal physician and close friend, Adm. Ross McIntire, publicly pronounced the president fit to run for re-election.

Despite persistent rumors of his failing health, Roosevelt swept to another landslide victory that fall after a grueling campaign. He died less than three months after his fourth inauguration.

Ever since 1944, the Archives brief notes, "there has been substantial speculation that Dr. Lahey in fact diagnosed the president as being gravely ill." It cites reports that Lahey told another doctor that FDR "had stomach cancer too advanced for a surgical cure," and that Lahey "advised President Roosevelt he was too ill to seek re-election."

The Lahey memorandum could confirm or refute these rumors. It was written by Lahey before his death in 1953, and entrusted to his longtime business manager and friend, Linda Strand. Lahey instructed her to make the contents public if he should ever be criticized posthumously in connection with his 1944 announcement that FDR was in good health.

But Mrs. Strand turned the memo, along with other documents, over to her attorneys, Herrick and Smith, during an employment dispute she filed against the Lahey Clinic in 1962. Herrick and Smith now refuse to return the document and state that it will be destroyed when Mrs. Strand dies. She is 90 years old.

Mrs. Strand has sued for the return of the memorandum, and the Archives has filed a friend-of-the-court brief asking that, whoever is given possession, the document be preserved for history.

What makes the Lahey memorandum uniquely important is the almost total lack of medical records on FDR. For example, no autopsy was conducted to confirm the cause of death as a cerebral hemorrhage. As for the records of the 1944 examination, they were locked in a safe at Bethesda Naval Hospital and disappeared shortly after FDR's death.

In contrast to the exhaustive medical details revealed about later presidents, Roosevelt kept the state of his health secret as a matter of policy. Dr. William Emerson, director of the FDR Library at Hyde Park, N.Y., told our reporter Jenny Cunningham the president was insistent that no physical weakness be revealed in the 1944 examination, which took place shortly before the invasion of Normandy.

"As commander in chief, he knew nothing must be done or said that would create a flutter of doubt in the millions of young Americans who were going into combat," Emerson explained. He doesn't believe FDR's poor health affected his political judgment.

Footnote: The Roosevelt family has written to the appellate court handling the Strand lawsuit, expressing a desire that the Lahey memorandum be preserved and made public when circumstances permit. In what he calls "just a historical coincidence," James Roosevelt Jr., FDR's grandson, is a partner in the Herrick and Smith law firm, which has custody of the memorandum.

REPORT ON TERRORISM: Vice President Bush's secret report to President Reagan on terrorism will disappoint hard-liners who want to wreak vengeance on countries that encourage or shelter terrorists. The report does not recommend assassination of such terrorist-coddlers as Libya's Muammar Qaddafi or Iran's Ayatollah Khomeini, or even trying to overthrow their regimes. Instead, it will urge more surprise U.S. responses, such as the interception of the Achille Lauro hijackers.

With an eye on his 1988 presidential candidacy, Bush will not recommend restrictions on media coverage of hostage situations. The media should be left to regulate itself, Bush will tell the president, pointing to the restraint with which news organizations behaved in the hijacking of the Egyptian airliner to Malta.

DEATH WATCH: At that gargantuan rumor factory in Langley, Va., Ayatollah Khomeini is once again reported to be on his deathbed. Things being what they are, sooner or later the rumor will come true, allowing CIA punsters to say smugly, "Ayatollah you so." Meanwhile, though, the Iran-watchers are chewing over the recent announcement of Ayatollah Montazeri as Khomeini's designated successor.

Significance is seen in the strange way Montazeri's ascension was made public — at a Friday prayer meeting reported by a single Tehran newspaper.

Gramm's off like a shot in the Senate

By JIM CRAIG

WASHINGTON — For Phil Gramm, 1985 may have been the highlight of his Senate career.

Of course, it was only the first year of his first six-year term. But by most yardsticks, it was a banner year for the Texas Republican, his supporters and critics agree.

Passage of the controversial and historic legislation to reduce the federal deficit to zero by 1991 was the major accomplishment of the year for him. Gramm, unsure when or if he will be able to top that achievement, hasn't decided if there will be any major new legislative initiatives in 1986.

To put that in context, however, it should be noted that as he entered the Senate last January he said he planned to stand in the wings and probably not take on any major legislative battles.

"I'm interested in getting the job done, getting it done without authoring major legislation," Gramm said in an interview following his election last year.

Then wham! He authored legislation to reform the way the Defense Department goes about procuring goods and services.

In the process, he won Senate approval (although the House did not follow suit) of repeal of the Davis-Bacon Act, the measure that requires the government to pay union scale wages even in areas where union scale is not paid in the work force.

Critics said Gramm, a freshman, couldn't take on Davis-Bacon.

What he took on in that battle was Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. In a squeaker vote, Gramm out-manuevered Kennedy and won. In his surprising victory in passage of the bill he authored with Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., and Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., to force a balanced budget, Gramm came close to becoming a household name across the nation.

During the days of debate of the deficit reduction bill, Gramm was on television programs aired across the country and found his way into front page headlines daily.

"They're going to be talking about this all over the country," said Gramm, who has a keen sense of what will make newspaper headlines, as the bill was being introduced.

To the amazement of some veteran lawmakers, Congress passed the bill and the president signed it into law.

Another accomplishment of Gramm's first year was having the Navy name Corpus Christi homeport for the battleship USS Wisconsin and the aircraft carrier USS Lexington. Gramm consistently was out front in the Pentagon lobbying effort to win homeport.

The action by the Navy will mean $100 million annually pumped into the Corpus Christi economy. Galveston was also selected as the homeport for some support ships for the battleship.

"It's been a good year," Gramm said recently. "I set out to address the budget and reform defense procurement."

"If I can make it (deficit reduction bill) work — I don't expect it to work perfectly — it will be something I'll always be proud of," said the former Texas A&M University economics professor.

Is passage of the deficit reduction bill the most exhilarating experience he can remember?

Gramm paused and recalled a time in College Station when he was a coach of a schoolboy football team.

He took a team of youngsters who had never won and, after working with them, they became winners. "I decided I couldn't top that," he smiled, explaining that he quit coaching after that achievement.

"I haven't decided to quit the Senate," he grinned, suggesting there are other achievements on the horizon he hopes can top the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill.

Around The Rim

A New Year's list of wishes

By HANK MURPHY

It's the time of year for sober reflection, a time to remember, to sift through the dense trail of events that stretch behind us like the tail of a comet.

As in past years, when the bones of 1985 are picked clean and the last statistic stored, its remains will still bear witness to the millions who died tragically. Some died from the twisted wrecks of cars and planes, some from the twisted minds of fanatics. Still others perished from spirit-sapping hunger or the devastation of nature's unleashed fury.

But in keeping with the season's emphasis on resiliency and hope, people across the world look to the new year with renewed commitment, renewed drive. And if a number of world personalities could make just one New Year's resolution and keep it, what a far better world this would be. Here is but a wishful and whimsical list of leaders and their resolutions:

● Libyan leader Col. Kadafy — "I resolve this new year not to aid and encourage the brutal and bloody attacks of Mideast terrorists."

● Soviet Chairman Mikhail Gorbachev — "I pledge in 1986 to pull all Soviet troops out of Afghanistan and seek political solutions for the strife-torn nation."

● President Ronald Reagan — "This year I will refrain from inflammatory anti-Soviet rhetoric and will trade away 'Star Wars' for drastic cuts in nuclear arms."

● The Rev. Jerry Falwell — "I resolve in 1986 not to go to Africa, say stupid things, and make a fool of myself."

● The military leaders of Guatemala — "We will not overthrow the fragile civilian government recently elected after 19 years of repressive military rule."

● J.W. Botha, head of white-ruled South Africa — "This year the government will begin to dismantle the degrading system of apartheid that threatens to plunge South Africa into a vicious race war."

● The Rev. Jesse Jackson — "During the coming year I'll be staying in America working to change the plight of America's poor instead of galavanting around the world playing grandstand diplomat."

● Iran's Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini — "I will drop my insistence for the removal of Saddam Hussien as Iraqi leader before entering negotiations to end the gruesome war between our two countries."

Reader gets on colon cancer soapbox

Dear Dr. Donohue: President Reagan's colon cancer surgery was a blessing to me. Forgive the namedropping, but you will understand when I tell you that I am a 64-year-old man who until a few months ago avoided rectal-type examination like the plague. My doctor was trying to get me in for testing, and I was encouraged to do so by the word of the president's experience. A stool test turned up blood cells. Then I had the dreaded sigmoidoscopy test (which wasn't really that bad). They found a large polyp, removed it, and sure enough, cancer. It was all removed as I have a clean bill of health. Besides being in honored company, I am on my soapbox now to convince people past 50 to get examined right away. If cancer is found early, it is curable. Thanks for the use of the soapbox. — T.C.C.

You're welcome to my soapbox for that kind of message. Certainly, there is general agreement that celebrity ailments usually become milestones in the annals of preventive medicine. I have no doubt that your experience will help as well.

One final look at '85

Happy New Year's to all you readers!

As the new year rolls in it's time for us to conclude our look at the old year. So set back and let's reminisce the final six months of '85.

JULY started with a bang when local trap shooter Kelly Rogers won a bronze medal at the United States International Shooting Championships in Chino, Calif.

In baseball action, the Midland Eastern All-Stars defeated Midland North Central All-Stars 8-5 to win the District III Little League Tournament held in Big Spring.

In softball action, the United Girls Softball Association National Championships held at Roy Anderson Complex, was a roaring success.

Abilene North won the Division I national championship; Denison won Div. II; Midland Blue, Division III and Odessa Black, Division IV.

Locals making the All-National Tournament team were Debbie Cunningham, Pam Gill, Katrina Thompson, Jancy Cunningham and Debra Rubio.

In rodeo action, the American Junior Rodeo was held at the Big Spring Rodeo Bowl. Local Jody Carper won the 12-and-under breakaway event.

A fairly new sport made the headlines in AUGUST. Washers was the name of the game at Comanche Trail Park as 31 teams battled in the Fifth Annual ALSA Washers Tournament.

The duo of Jimmy Yanez and Raul Hernandez won the event.

Local cowboy Wacey Cathey moved into second place in bull riding on the Professional Rodeo Cowboys Association circuit. At the time Cathey trailed El Paso cowpoke Tuff Hedeman.

In men's slow-pitch softball action, L.G. Nix, managed by Bill Battle, won the state tournament in Midland, qualifying them for the regional tournament in Houston.

SEPTEMBER started out with more men's slow-pitch softball news.

L.G. Nix's slow-pitchers didn't fare so well in the regional tournament in Houston. They won one game and lost two.

But the Big Spring Kings did well at the League of United Latin Citizens State Tournament in Abilene. The Kings, managed by player-coach Lupe Lara, finished third in the tourney.

The Kings won the tourney in '84. And with September comes news from the gridiron. The Big Spring Steers opened the season by getting upset by the Snyder Tigers, 42-28, in Memorial Stadium.

On Sept. 20 the Steers won their first game of the season against the Lubbock Monterey Plainsmen by a 35-0 decision. The entire second half was played in pouring rain.

The Steers defense was awesome, holding Monterey to a mere 41 yards total offense. The win raised Big Spring's record to 1-2 going into district play.

The Big Spring Lady Steers volleyball team captured the spotlight in OCTOBER. Coach Susan Sharp's troops traveled to San Angelo and handed Central a 15-12, 15-7 loss. The win gave Big Spring sole possession of first place in the district race with a 7-0 record. It was also San Angelo's first district loss in three years.

The new "no pass, no play" law didn't affect BSHS varsity athletes much. In five Fall sports, Big Spring lost a combined total of five athletes.

On Oct. 25 the Steers won their first district football game, a 34-16 upset win over high-powered Odessa High at Memorial Stadium. Odessa brought a 6-1 record into the game and was ranked 17th in the state.

Steer running backs Charles White and Phillip Matthews combined for 184 yards in the win.

One week later in NOVEMBER the Steers pulled off another big upset when they knocked off No. 23 Abilene High by a 15-13 count in Abilene.

The winning margin was a 22-yard field goal by Collin Carroll.

Turning to track, Grady senior cross country runner Shana Hale placed second at the State Cross Country meet in Georgetown.

The Howard College Hawks and Hawk-Queens opened up their seasons with coaches Ed Sparling and Don Stevens at the helm.

The Lady Steers brought Big Spring its first district volleyball championship since 1978. They finished district play with a 12-2 mark. Their only losses came to Odessa Permian and Central. They ended regular season play with a 23-9 overall record.

On Nov. 8, the Steers ended their football season with a 47-15 loss to Central at Memorial Stadium. Coach Quinn Eudy's team finished the season with a 3-7 mark and 2-5 district mark, tied for sixth place.

The Lady Steers spikers post-season play was short as they were defeated 15-13, 15-4 by Amarillo High in Bi-District action in Lubbock.

Senior Monique Jones was named District 4-5A's Outstanding Hitter. Katrina Thompson was named Sophomore of the Year and junior Tab Green was named to the First Team. Junior Sheri Myrick was selected to the Second Team while senior Tammi Green was named to the Honorable Mention squad.

In football action, Grady, as 4-Six-Man South Zone runner-up; and Forsan, winner of Class 7-A South Zone, were area football teams that made it to the state playoffs.

Grady, coached by Currie McWilliams, was defeated 51-13 in the opening round to eventual state champion Jayton. Forsan, coached by Jan East, was eliminated 16-0 by eventual state champion Goldthwaite in second round action.

Grady ended the season at 4-7 while Forsan was 11-1. In hoop action, the Howard Hawk-Queens defeated South

Air Force zooms by Texas

HOUSTON (AP) — Air Force's football season lasted just long enough for fullback Pat Evans, who started the season on the sidelines and ended it Tuesday as his team's most valuable player.

Evans, hobbed by a preseason knee injury, set up one touchdown with a 48-yard run and scored on a 19-yard run to lead the 10th ranked Falcons to a 24-16 victory over Texas in the 27th Bluebonnet Bowl in Rice Stadium.

Evans was named the most valuable player in the game for Air Force and defensive end James McKinney earned the honor for the Longhorns.

Evans credited his second 100-yard rushing performance of the season to "the center the center, two guards and tackles. They just kept them (Texas defenders) off me and had holes that a Mack truck could go through. I didn't do anything special."

Evans said it was his best game of a season that had been marked by frustration.

"I've been struggling all year," he said. "But this put me over the edge and gives me a boost for next year."

Evans, a junior, earned the praise of Air Force Coach Fisher DeBerry.

"He has done the job time and time again for us the last two seasons," DeBerry said. "I'm just thankful we had him back for another year."

The Falcons fulfilled a season-long tendency of capitalizing on their opponents' mistakes.

William Harris caught a 34-yard touchdown pass from Bret Stafford and Jeff Ward kicked field goals of 24, 31 and 28 yards to account for the Texas scoring.

"We had the opportunities but they had the big plays," Harris said. "We didn't take advantage of our opportunities and they did, and that was pretty much the difference."

Stafford said his touchdown pass "was just a good play that worked the way it was supposed to work. We didn't relax after that at all. Air Force just did a good job of stopping us."

The Falcons, who won their fourth consecutive bowl game, took a 14-7 halftime lead with a pair of touchdowns over a 1:59 span of the first quarter.

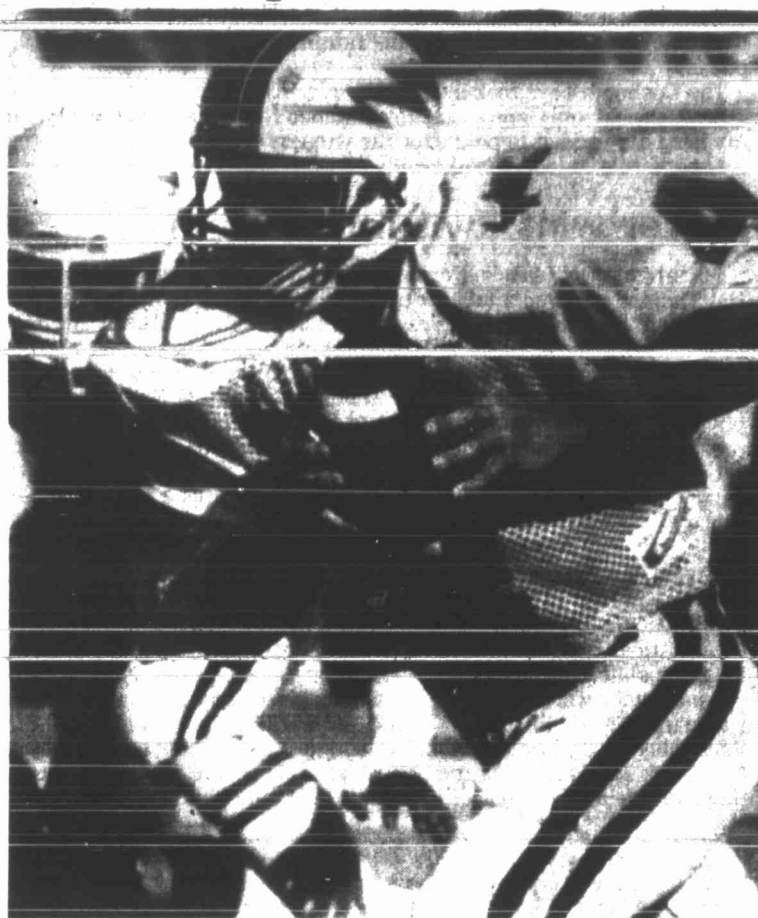

Evans, who missed the first two games of the season, broke 48 yards to the Texas 1-yard line to set up Greg Pshnsiak's touchdown run, and quarterback Bart Weiss leaped one yard for the go-ahead touchdown moments later. Weiss' touchdown came after Longhorn Lee Beckelman bobbled a kickoff and Air Force's Marc Munato recovered at the Texas 32.

Stafford's 52-yard run in the third quarter set up Ward's 24-yard kick, but moments later, Falcon cornerback Tom Rotello's 27-yard interception return paved the way for Evans' 19-yard scoring run.

Ward kicked his 31-yarder with 14:14 left in the game after Air Force safety Scott Thomas batted down a third-down pass at the Falcon 14.

Air Force cornerback Dwan Wilson's 14-yard interception return set up Tom Ruby's 40-yard field goal with 43 seconds left in the game.

The Longhorns, 8-4, were trying to erase memories of last year's 55-17 loss to Iowa in the Freedom Bowl. Instead, they extended their bowl losing string to four in a row. Air Force closed out its winningest season at 12-1.

Air Force Academy quarterback Bart Weiss (4) keeps the football for a nine yard gain against Texas in yesterday's Bluebonnet Bowl.

Evans finished with 129 yards on 18 carries in his biggest game of the season. Evans' previous best was 108 yards against San Diego State.

Rotello's fourth-quarter interception was his ninth of the season and gave the Falcons 30 thefts for the year.

The Longhorns needed only 3:46 after the opening kickoff to score their only touchdown.

Darron Norris' 5-yard run on a fourth-down play set up Stafford's pass down the middle to Harris, who caught the ball between the defenders Rotello and Thomas.

Army kicks Illinois in Peach Bowl

ATLANTA (AP) — Army quarterback Rob Healy ran for 107 yards, including a 22-yard touchdown run, and the Cadets' Wishbone offense pulled off a pair of surprise scoring passes in a 31-29 victory over mistake-prone Illinois Tuesday in the Peach Bowl.

Illinois quarterback Jack Trudeau connected on a 54-yard touchdown pass to All-American wide receiver David Williams with 34 seconds remaining to get the Illini to within two points. But Trudeau's pass on the two-point conversion attempt was batted away by Army defender Peel Chronister to preserve the victory for the Cadets.

The Cadets, 9-3, turned four Illinois turnovers into three touchdowns and Craig Stopa's 39-yard field goal in the triumph over the 6-5-1 Illini, despite a record Peach Bowl passing performance by Trudeau.

The nationally televised game was played in a steady rain with temperatures in the mid-40s.

Army went ahead to stay at 28-23 late in the third period on an 81-yard, eight-play drive that ended when Healy pitched to halfback Clarence Jones, who threw a 26-yard scoring pass to Scott Spellmon.

Stopa added his field goal with 6:40 remaining in the game following a fumble by Illinois' Ray Wilson that was recovered by Army on the Illini 42.

Illinois had taken the lead following the second-half kickoff by marching 79 yards in 15 plays, with Wilson plunging over from one yard out for a 23-21 lead.

Army's other halfback, William Lampley, threw the other scoring pass, a 33-yarder to Benny White in the opening half. Doug Black had scored on a one-yard run and Healy on his 22-yarder to give the Cadets a 21-16 halftime lead.

Illinois' first-half scoring came on a 45-yard field goal by Chris White, son of Illinois Head Coach Mike White, and a pair of Trudeau touchdown passes.

The senior quarterback connected on strikes of one and 15 yards to tight end Cap Boso and Williams, respectively. Trudeau finished with 38 of 55 passes for 401 yards and three touchdowns. The attempts, completions and yardage were all Peach Bowl records, while his three TD passes tied a Peach Bowl mark.

The news of sports spilled off the sports pages and into the news and financial sections — and sometimes onto police blotters — in 1985. Once again, winning or losing occasionally became secondary to how the game was played.

Pitchers Tom Seaver of the Chicago White Sox and Phil Niekro of the New York Yankees became baseball's newest 300-game winners. Pete Rose made a different kind of pitch. In a television commercial, he said that like any family, baseball had problems and was trying to solve them.

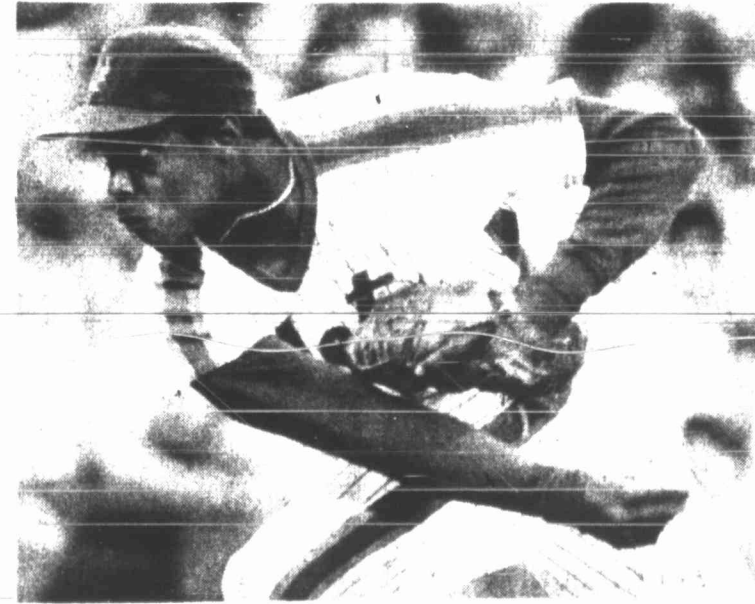

The one that struck hardest at baseball's wholesome image was drug abuse. Seven players, including Dave Parker and Keith Hernandez, paraded to Pittsburgh to testify that they had used cocaine and knew of others who had.

The new commissioner, Peter Ueberroth, vowed to crack down on drug and alcohol abuse, even implementing a testing program for everyone but major league players. But by year's end the owners had terminated their drug agreement with the players' union and only acrimony remained.

In college football, Kenneth Davis was touted as a Heisman Trophy candidate and his school, Texas Christian University, a national power. By season's end, both were in disgrace. Davis admitted he and several teammates had been paid to attend the school. They were thrown off the squad and TCU failed to win a Southwest Conference game.

A newspaper also claimed to have uncovered evidence of improper payments to Texas A&M players under Coach Jackie Sherrill and his predecessor, Tom Wilson. Both denied the allegations.

In college basketball,

Dwight Gooden, 21-year-old pitcher for the New York Mets, became the youngest pitcher to win the Cy Young award.

Villanova shocked defending national champion Georgetown 64-62 in the NCAA title game, ending the Patrick Ewing era. The loss didn't damage his market value. The 7-foot center was drafted No. 1 by the New York Knicks, the winners in the National Basketball Association's seven-team lottery of losers, and signed a 10-year, $31 million contract.

The squabbling which has become a pre-Olympic tradition continued three years in advance of the Seoul Summer Games, the North Koreans demanding a role as co-host. NBC, burned by the American-led boycott of the 1980 Moscow Games, bought the rights to the Seoul Olympics for between $300 million and $500 million. And Turner Broadcasting System and Soviet sports officials announced the creation of the Goodwill Games, a quadrennial event starting in 1986 in Moscow.

Death also claimed Roger

Maris, the New York Yankees' home-run hitter; Brooklyn Dodgers pitchers Burleigh Grimes and Van Lingle Mungo, the former a Hall of Fame spitballer, the latter immortalized in song; ex-Boston Red Sox pitcher Smokey Joe Wood; former major league player and manager Bob Scheffing; American League umpire Bill Kunkel; sportscasters Bob Prince of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Frank Gieber of CBS; golfer Rod Funseth; former pro basketball star Max Zaslofsky; Maurice Podoloff, first president of the NBA; longtime boxing trainer Cus D'Amato; John B. Kelly Jr., president of the U.S. Olympic Committee and Olympic sculler; pro hockey Hall of Famer Eddie Shore and Frank Selke; Philadelphia Flyers goalie Pelle Lindbergh; Jake Nevin, longtime trainer at Villanova to whom the Wildcats dedicated their NCAA championship; and Riva Ridge, the Player wins lawsuit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Football League cornerback Pat Thomas has won a $200,000 grievance settlement for breach of contract from both the Los Angeles Raiders and the Los Angeles Rams.

Arbitrator Sam Kagel ruled that each club owes Thomas $100,000 for breaching Thomas' 1983 player contract. The decision comes in a grievance first filed in 1983 after Thomas passed the Rams' preseason physical examination, was traded to the Raiders before he began his preseason practices and then subsequently failed the Raiders' physical.

Under a provision of Thomas' 1983, he was to receive his full $200,000 salary if he failed the preseason physical in 1983 as a result of a 1982 injury.

Bench, Staub honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Rusty Staub and Johnny Bench will be honored for their distinguished athletic careers and support of retarded children at the sixth annual Thurman Munson Award dinner on Jan. 27.

Bench twice was the National League's Most Valuable Player and also was named MVP in the 1976 World Series. He was a 14-time All-Star. Staub played 22 years in the major leagues before being released by the New York Mets following the 1985 season. He posted a .279 lifetime batting average and was one of baseball's best pinch hitters.

Time for the Big Four

• Aggies out to stop Bo • OU wants No. 1 spot

DALLAS (AP) — Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson caps his brilliant Auburn career in the 50th Cotton Bowl Classic on New Year's Day, hoping to lead his Tigers to their fifth consecutive bowl triumph.

The 11th-ranked Texas A&M Aggies, making their first Cotton Bowl appearance in 18 years, were two-point underdogs to the 16th-rated Tigers, playing here for the first time.

Bowl games bring out the best in Jackson.

He has been the most valuable player in the Liberty and Sugar Bowls, and also played on the winning team in the 1982 Tangerine Bowl.

With Jackson rushing 54 times for 285 yards and a five-yard bowl average, Auburn has knocked off Arkansas, Michigan and Boston College the last three years. His best bowl performance was 22 carries for 130 yards against Michigan.

Jackson missed a day of practice this week with a strep throat but was expected to be 100 percent by game time. He is Auburn's all-time leading rusher with 4,303 yards and has 21 games in which he has rushed for 100-yards or more.

COTTON
Dallas, Jan. 1
SWC Champion vs. Auburn

It's the first bowl game for the Aggies under Coach Jackie Sherrill, who left the University of Pittsburgh four years ago for Texas A&M and a celebrated $1 million contract.

Auburn and Texas A&M last met in 1911, with the Aggies winning 15-0.

The Tigers are 9-7-1 in bowl games, while the Aggies are 8-5 in postseason play.

The Southwest Conference champion Aggies closed with a 9-2 record, losing only to Alabama 23-10 and 20-15 to Baylor. The Southeast Conference Tigers were 8-3 with a heart-breaking 25-23 last-second loss to Alabama after they had already accepted a Cotton Bowl bid.

Two old friends will be matching strategy. Sherrill played linebacker under Auburn Coach Pat Dye in 1965 when Alabama won the national title. Dye was then an assistant under the late Paul (Bear) Bryant.

"I have a few knots on my head I'd like to pay back," said Sherrill. Dye is 4-0 in bowl games, while Sherrill is 4-1.

MIAMI (AP) — Barry Switzer has heard all the comments made by his players about how things are different this time around as the Oklahoma Sooners prepare for the Orange Bowl.

Then Switzer laughs and says baloney.

"They've told me that, too, saying the workouts have been harder and it's been more businesslike this year," the Oklahoma coach said Monday afternoon. "But I find it hard to believe unless you want to play as hard or practice as hard last year. It's just another excuse for losing."

Switzer's Sooners, ranked third with a 10-1 record, play unbeaten and top-ranked Penn State on New Year's night. Oklahoma is favored by 7½ points, which again causes Switzer to start talking about nonsense.

"I don't know why Penn State hasn't gotten the respect they deserve," he said. "It's unfair to Joe (Paterno) and his program. Their record is the best in college football right now."

"I think the psychological advantage is definitely with Penn State," he said. "...It's not a good situation for us."

The general feeling among Oklahoma partisans is that the Sooners need only to show up and not make too many mistakes in order to win. Certainly Oklahoma has the more impressive statistics, averaging 100 more yards per game on offense and allowing about 100 fewer yards on defense.

ORANGE

Switzer doesn't buy that way of thinking.

"I don't understand that rationale," he said. "Penn State is a very good football team. They're 11-0."

"Everyone is talking about who will be number one if we win. ... All we're trying to do is win the football game. We don't know if we can do that."

"We're probably going to have to play the best game we've played this year as far as our field position is concerned," he said. "They don't do anything to hurt themselves. You don't get many opportunities off their mistakes."

Oklahoma's Wishbone offense, in order to work successfully, requires that quarterback Jamelle Holieway have a good game. Penn State has used multiple defensive sets all year.

• Iowa out to prove point • Miami isn't concerned

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — The bitter memory still gnaws at Hayden Fry like a live case of heartburn that won't go away.

Hurt, humiliated, embarrassed — you name it, the Iowa football coach and his players felt that way after losing to Washington 28-0 in the 1982 Rose Bowl. Afterwards, Fry vowed that if the Hawkeyes ever got another chance to play in the New Year's Day classic, they'd give a decidedly better account of themselves.

On Wednesday, Fry and the Hawkeyes will have that chance. Fourth-ranked Iowa will meet No. 13 UCLA in the 72nd Rose Bowl, the oldest and richest of the postseason games.

Fry is so intent on making amends for Iowa's 1982 performance that he has cloth roses pasted everywhere — in his office, on his mirror at home, even on his wallet. When he talks to his team, he often wears a Rose Bowl sweater.

"It's been burning inside of me and inside of my players and coaches," Fry said of the 1982 game. "We may have that burning spell again because UCLA is a very fine football team, but that's not our plan."

Iowa, which set a school record for victories in compiling a 10-1 record, earned the Rose Bowl trip by winning its first outright Big Ten title in 27 years. The Hawkeyes, who were ranked No. 1 nationally for five weeks, were 7-1 in the Big Ten, losing only at Ohio State 22-13 in a driving rainstorm.

Coach Terry Donahue's UCLA Bruins are 8-2-1 and champions of the Pacific-10 Conference. This will be the fifth straight bowl appearance for both teams, but it will be the third Rose Bowl in four years for UCLA, which beat Michigan 24-14 in the 1983 game and whipped Illinois 45-9 in the 1984 contest.

Fry, whose team is favored by three points, is taking a serious, business-like approach to the game.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Vinnie Testaverde says second-ranked Miami of Florida can't be overly concerned with winning college football's 1985 national championship.

"We thought about it a little bit," the Miami quarterback said Monday.

"Our main concern is trying to beat Tennessee because if we don't beat Tennessee we can forget our dreams of being No. 1."

The 10-1 Hurricanes carry a 10-game winning streak into the 52nd Sugar Bowl contest Wednesday night and are an 8-point favorite over Tennessee.

The kickoff is set for 8 p.m. EST before a sellout crowd of 75,795 in the Louisiana Superdome and a national television (ABC) audience.

Tennessee, 8-1-2, carries a more modest five-game winning streak into the game since a midseason 6-6 deadlock with Georgia Tech. That was the first game after the Vols lost star quarterback Tony Robinson to a knee injury in a victory over Alabama.

It's the first meeting ever between the two Southern schools, the first Sugar Bowl appearance for Miami and the first New Orleans postseason date for Tennessee since 1970.

Both teams lost only to No. 6 Florida, which matched Tennessee's 5-1 SEC record but was ineligible for the conference crown because of NCAA probation. The Gators won 35-23 in the season opener at Miami and then trimmed Tennessee 17-10 at home four weeks later.

The Sugar Bowl will feature Miami's explosive attack against a Tennessee defense that had three shutouts during the season and thrived on forcing turnovers. The Vols picked off 22 passes, including a nation-leading nine by free safety Chris White, and recovered 27 fumbles.

Coach Johnny Majors of Tennessee says Miami has a complete football team.
