December construction is up

Building permits for 1985 down 62 percent from last year

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Spurred by major expansion of the Safeway Store at College Park Shopping Center, a $59,225 addition to Cain Electric Supply Co. and a more than $200,000 alteration of the Highland Mall Car Wash, citywide construction costs for December leaped more than 220 percent from December of last year.

Seventeen building permits totaling $398,748 were issued last month, a $274,148 increase over construction costs for the 11 permits granted by the city last December.

But despite December's surge in expected cash outlays, 1985 building costs in Big Spring totaled less than two thirds that of calendar year 1984.

The city issued 278 building permits last year, two more than in 1984. But the $3,756,569 spent on construction, was only 62 percent of the $6,050,919 generated a year earlier.

Heading the list of big ticket items needing December permits was a $225,000 addition to the Highland Mall Car Wash owned by Russel Rutledge of R and R Enterprises. The permit is for the building of structures and installation of equipment needed for gasoline sales.

The work at Cain Electric will cost $59,225 for a sheet rock partition supported with steel studs.

Along with the car wash and electric company, the Safeway store was issued a permit to build a bakery, deli, pharmacy and flower cooler expected to cost $50,000. The work on the store is being done by Wayne Knowels Construction.

Other build permits were issued for:

• A $13,000 workshop and storage area for John Sparks at 3400 E. Farm Road 700.

• A $20,000 addition to the home of Jerry Oliphant at 2302 Drexel St.

Birthday wagon hits trail

SULPHUR SPRINGS (AP) — Rudy Nelson first came to Texas two months ago to prepare for the 150th anniversary of a state he had never seen.

But there he was Thursday among the native-born and transplanted Texans and proud politicians, kicking off the state's sesquicentennial celebration with the best of them.

"I quit my job to be here," said Nelson, an Arizona construction superintendent, from atop a red stagecoach. "I may not be a Texan now, but you can bet I'll feel like one when this is over."

Nelson will be joined by 3,000 other riders as the sesquicentennial wagon train circles Texas. Before it winds up in Fort Worth July 3, it will have traveled 3,028 miles in about 150 Texas cities.

"We'd love to go the whole way," said A.W. "Bulldog" Kornegay, a cattle rancher from Hearne who, with his wife, will hitch up on Jan. 29 for three days. "But somebody's got to feed the cows."

For some such as 78-year-old Hazel Bowen of Antelope, the commitment is for six months. Bowen will drive her own team of horses and sleep under the stars in the same way she did during her pilgrimage to Valley Forge during the Bicentennial Wagon Train.

A registered nurse, three school teachers and portable toilets will also accompany the wagons on their odyssey. Thousand-gallon trucks will pump water, and chefs working out of a 40-foot trailer kitchen will dish out meals.

Trail riders begin the first leg of the Texas Wagon Train's ride around Texas Thursday in Sulphur Springs. The ride, begun to commemorate Texas' sesquicentennial celebration will circle Texas and end in Fort Worth on July 2, 1986.

Mexican drug traffic top concern for U.S.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — As President Reagan prepared to fly to Mexico today for a meeting with President Miguel de la Madrid, U.S. officials expressed concern that Mexico's long history of political stability could be disrupted by its increasingly powerful drug smuggling chieftains.

Reagan planned to stop off at the border town of Mexicali for the four-hour meeting as he returned to Washington following a weeklong New Year's vacation in California.

In written answers to questions from the Mexican news agency Noticias de Mexico, Reagan said narcotics trafficking and terrorism, which the administration contends are backed by Cuba and Nicaragua, "represent the most insidious and dangerous threats to the hemisphere today." The written answers were released here Thursday.

A senior U.S. official who briefed reporters Thursday said Mexico could soon find itself in a similar situation to Colombia, where he said political stability is being undercut by an alliance between narcotics smugglers and terrorists.

"That is something you will have to look at in the case of Mexico in the relatively near future," said the official, who insisted on anonymity.

"That could be something that could bring them into difficult straits even before the economic problems, which we may be able to solve."

The official said an estimated one-third of all cocaine shipments to the United States pass through Mexico. Another official said heroin traffic from Mexico also is on the increase.

In remarks prepared for an arrival ceremony in Mexicali, Reagan said the "good and decent people of both our countries have made a strong commitment to fight the scourge of narcotics and drug trafficking. This battle continues."

Reagan did not allude directly to

Falwell de-moralized over press criticism

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Rev. Jerry Falwell, complaining that press criticism has frightened people away from his Moral Majority, said today he is starting a new group with a different name and broader goals.

The Moral Majority will stay in existence, he said at a news conference, but it will be merely part of the new Liberty Federation.

Through the federation, Falwell said he plans to expand efforts supporting national defense and budget-balancing — subjects many people don't consider moral issues — and put more emphasis on fighting communism overseas.

The television evangelist also hopes the new organization, which Moral Majority members are being asked to join in a mass mailing this month, will attract people who share his views but fear identification with the much-publicized Moral Majority.

Libyan demonstrators pledge to thwart U.S., Israeli raids

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Libya's state-run radio said Libyans staged giant anti-American demonstrations in all of the country's major cities for a second day today, vowing to defend themselves against any attack by the United States and Israel.

"We are ready to face any attack by the American imperialists and Zionists; we are ready to fight and to join suicide squads," the demonstrators chanted, according to the Tripoli Radio report monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus.

The State Department appealed

Thursday for international sanctions against Libya. The United States and Israel charge Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy supports a renegade Palestinian faction headed by Abu Nidal, which they blame for the Dec. 27 terrorist attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports that killed 19.

In Naples, Italy, a U.S. Navy task force led by the aircraft carrier Coral Sea left today for an undisclosed Mediterranean destination after completing a holiday port call, an American military spokesman said.

Lt. Col. John Marchi, spokesman for U.S. Naval Support Activity in Naples, confirmed the task force departure and said it was scheduled. He denied Italian newspaper reports that all leaves had been canceled for U.S. military personnel in Italy.

CBS News, quoting sources who asked not to be identified, reported Thursday that U.S. forces in the Mediterranean have been built up in case President Reagan calls for a retaliatory strike against Libya.

Nutcracker suite

Pecan lovers open world's only museum of nutcrackers

MOUNT PLEASANT (AP) — Hayward and Jesilin Rigano are nuts about pecans. They eat them in one form or another every day. And while the 50-acre pecan farm they own near Mount Pleasant is well known for its pecan candy factory, they hope it will soon be as well known for the world's only nutcracker museum.

"It may not be the most extensive collection, but as far as we know, it's the only nutcracker museum in the world," Rigano said.

The Riganos have been in the pecan business 18 years. They were familiar with pecans even when Rigano was a plumber in Houston so they knew what they were looking for when they visited more than 40 orchards in search of one to buy. They found the Pecan Farm on the old Barrett Homestead outside Mount Pleasant in 1967 and bought it.

"Everything was right. The price was right, the trees were right, the area was right," says Rigano. The late E.C. Brice, long-time Mount Pleasant educator, had bought the farm from the Barretts and in 1932-33 had some of his high school agriculture students set out the pecan trees. Brice operated the orchard until he sold it in 1957 to Hugh Jeffus, who worked it a year, let it lay fallow until Rigano bought it.

Rigano recalls a summer day in 1968. He was working and turned around to see a car drive right in the middle of the orchard and park.

"I got mad and went out there. There stood a man leaning against the car with tears streaming down his face. He said 'I'm just so glad that someone is finally taking care of this orchard again.' It was Mr. Brice. By then he was in his 70s and living in Sulphur Springs. We had never met him."

The candy manufacturing operation began in 1970. Pecan rolls, pecan divinity and pecan pralines are produced at the Riganos' and distributed all over the country but primarily in seven southern states. At one time, says Rigano, they were selling as many as a million bars a year, but they aren't doing quite that much candy business now.

Visitors to the Pecan Farm this year will find that something new Jesilin Rigano poses near a display of some of the nutcrackers in the Rigano Nutcracker Museum in Mount Pleasant. The Riganos have been in the pecan business for 18 years and have what they believe to be the only nutcracker museum in the world.

has been added, something the Riganos are just as nuts about as pecans — a nutcracker museum that is, as far as they know, the only one in existence.

The Riganos already had a start on a nutcracker collection of their own. They had hunted flea markets and antique dealers, researching nutcrackers in antique books as they went.

Last year, while visiting the New Orleans World's Fair, they saw a nutcracker that seemed to them to be the proverbial "better mousetrap." They liked its design so much they bought the company and are now manufacturing their own nutcrackers at the Pecan Farm.

But it was while traveling in England last spring that they hit the jackpot. They ran across a man named David Styles who had been collecting the crackers for 25 years. "It was hilarious," laughs Rigano. "How serious are you about this?" Rigano says Styles asked him, as he pulled a large box full of nutcrackers from beneath a table. "Are you THIS serious?"

Rigano said he told Styles he was, and said Styles continued, "Well, are you THAT serious," pulling out another large box of nutcrackers.

Styles was tired of collecting and had planned to auction the nutcrackers. Rigano bought all 230 nutcrackers, carrying them home in two suitcases.

The collection is made up of both modern and antique crackers, and several "gentlemen's nutcrackers," including one, pre-Georgian, circa 1650.

In Georgian and Victorian times, gentlemen carried the small brass nutcrackers in their pockets, much as men today might carry pocket knives.

The European nutcrackers are usually squeeze-type crackers and are more decorative than the mechanical American ones.

The Rigano collection includes animal nutcrackers — alligators, fish, squirrels, dogs — and a number of intricately carved wooden figures. The Riganos' favorites to collect are "treen" crackers, a variety of carved wooden nutcrackers. A treen bear worth about $800 is the most valuable piece in the collection and Rigano's favorite.

The Riganos are excited about their new museum. They invited Styles to the official opening last month. And they are talking of putting together a book about nutcrackers one of these days.

Electricity, phones out after truck hits pole

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

Electric power and telephone service was interrupted Thursday for several hundred residents on the northeast side of the city after a tractor-trailer rig swerved to avoid hitting a car and swiped a utility pole.

About 300 customers of Texas Electric Service Co. lost electricity shortly after 10:19 a.m., said a company spokesman. It was restored more than an hour later, he said.

Telephones were knocked out for some until 2 p.m. and others until 8 p.m., said a spokeswoman for Southwestern Bell.

The refrigerated semi tractor-trailer, operated by Daniel Swan, 35, of North Carolina, was east-bound on Interstate 20 exit ramp 177 when an unidentified woman driving a dark blue Chevrolet ran a yield sign, then inexplicably stopped in the path of the oncoming truck, according to the accident report.

The truck swerved to avoid hitting the car, lumbered over a curb, took out a utility pole and rammed into a stack of cotton bales before stopping, the report stated.

Swan was uninjured in the mishap, and the driver of the Chevrolet left the scene, according to police.

Damage totaling $2,700 was done to equipment owned by the telephone and power companies, the report indicated. No damage was reported to the cotton bales owned by Trinity Co., a company spokesman told police.

Fire damages Connies store

Fire and smoke damage estimated at $8,000 was done to a building occupied by Connies Fashions at 600 Main St. Thursday morning.

Firefighters were called at 8:49 a.m. and on arrival saw smoke rising from a roof-mounted heating unit. The burning heater was extinguished using powder and 10 gallons of water, according to a fire department report. A smoke ejection unit was deployed to discharge smoke from the building, the report stated.

Owner of the building was listed as Tina Brunson of San Angelo.

Associated Press in Washington that the Coral Sea's battle group has been ordered to resume routine operations in the central Mediterranean, but refused to confirm that any order had been given involving a "massing" of Sixth Fleet ships.

Tripoli Radio said Libyans also held mass meetings Thursday night and sent cables to Khadafy declaring they "are in the trenches and the front line ready to confront the Zionist..." and the American imperialist threats against the Arab Libyan people.

The meeting was taking place at a time of U.S. uneasiness about Mexico's ability to meet its repayment schedule on its $96 billion foreign debt and still maintain economic growth. One bright spot for Mexico has been the recent decline in U.S. interest rates. Troubled plane lands

DALLAS — Southwest Airlines Flight 223 landed safely at Love Field Sunday afternoon after its right engine came loose on takeoff on its flight to Austin, an airline spokeswoman said.

The plane landed safely back at Love Field shortly before 8:30 a.m., about an hour after its takeoff.

Earlier, a spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the Boeing 737, enroute to Austin, took off at 7:24 a.m. and the tower advised immediately that the No. 2 engine, the right engine, had broken loose.

Death rate declines

CHICAGO — Improved medical care and better education are likely reasons why the pregnancy-related death rate for women aged 35 or older has been cut nearly in half over the past several years, researchers say.

"Although older women will probably continue to be at higher risk of maternal death, recent trends ... should be reassuring to younger women who are considering postponement of pregnancy and to women aged 35 or older who are contemplating pregnancy," the researchers said in today's Journal of the American Medical Association.

Hearing on lawsuit set

NEW YORK — U.S. District Judge John F. Keenan, a relative novice on the federal bench, faces what could be one of the most important decisions of his career as he considers whether lawsuits over the Bhopal chemical disaster belong in the United States or India.

Keenan planned to hear a final round of oral arguments on that issue today before he hands down his decision, probably in a few weeks.

Fast blaze tied to crash

TEXARKANA, Ark. — Fire in an airplane that carried singer Rick Nelson to his death spread so quickly that smoke filled the craft's cockpit three minutes after the pilot radioed he had a small problem, officials said.

A heavy blaze broke out in the cabin of the DC-3 but four of the five fire extinguishers aboard the craft were unused Tuesday as the seven perished in a crash near De Kalb, Texas, said Jim Burnett, National Transportation Safety Board chairman.

Safest year in aviation

WASHINGTON — This past year was one of the safest on record in terms of the commercial aviation accident rate, even though air accident deaths reached a new high, Federal Aviation Administration Chief Donald Engen says.

Nearly 2,000 people died in air accidents worldwide in 1985, but the overall accident rate is declining, Engen said in an interview Thursday on NBC's "Today" show.

Prison riot

Rampaging inmates agree to free victims

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — Inmates "in complete control" rampaged through the West Virginia Penitentiary and killed two more prisoners after agreeing to free the last of 16 hostages and return the prison to state control today, authorities said.

The body of a third inmate killed by fellow prisoners was removed from the prison this morning and there was no way to tell if other inmate killings had occurred, said Assistant Corrections Commissioner William Whyte.

Gov. Arch Moore's office said officials hoped to have all the hostages out by shortly after noon under terms of an agreement signed Thursday by inmate representatives and state officials.

Moore's office said late this morning that he would hold a news conference following the hostages' release, as guards re-entered the prison to resume control.

The settlement called for the last seven hostages to be released today and state control of the 120-year-old, fortress-like prison restored after nearly three days of rioting.

In return, inmates were promised there would be no reprisals for participating in the rioting. They also were promised a meeting with Moore to discuss grievances, officials said.

Gubernatorial aide Ben Bailey said the "no reprisals" provision would not be interpreted as amnesty for those who committed crimes, including the prison killings.

The uprising began Wednesday night when inmates overpowered guards and seized the hostages. After a 20-hour standoff, they agreed to the settlement. But Thursday night, prisoners swarmed through the penitentiary's main building, raided the hospital drug dispensary and went on a rampage, officials said.

"We understand there has been a lot of physical damage, rampage and wrecking, destroying everything in sight," said records clerk John Massie.

Six of the 13 hostages still held Thursday afternoon were freed after the negotiated settlement was signed by state officials and inmate representatives.

"You never think you're going to see your family after a thing like that," Maj. Edward Littell, 33, said after being released. "I did a lot of praying. I had a lot of people doing a lot of praying for me."

Moore's press secretary, John

Judy Wilson is consoled by Donald Krupica after she learned that her husband, John Wilson, was not among the group of hostages released at the West Virginia Penitentiary in Moundsville after an agreement for the release of hostages over two days was signed on Thursday.

Price, said Thursday's release was a show of good faith, and officials believed the settlement would "produce a peaceful end to this situation."

Inmates remained in control of most of the prison Thursday night, however. At dawn, the prison was quiet, although inmates could be seen pacing by the windows. State police and guards stationed outside the prison walls remained, tight-lipped.

The body of the third slain inmate, Jeff Atkinson, 22, who was serving a life sentence for murder, was taken from the prison shortly before 10 a.m. today, said Whyte.

Earlier, Corrections Department spokeswoman Jerrie Clutter confirmed that a second inmate had been killed by fellow prisoners. Clutter identified the victim as Richard Harold Dean, 31, who was serving a 15-year sentence for kidnapping.

Inmate spokesmen Danny Lehman and Alvin Gregory said the disturbance had not been planned in advance but tensions had been growing for some time because of filthy conditions and delays in making court-ordered reforms.

The annual report of the U.N.'s International Narcotics Control Board, issued Thursday, noted that worldwide, "the abuse of a variety of drugs ... remains at a high level."

Oil embargo urged

BONN, West Germany — A newspaper quoted the Israeli ambassador as calling on the world community to stop buying oil from Libya in retaliation for its alleged backing of terrorists, but a Bonn official said more study was needed.

Yitzhak Ben-Ari, the Israeli ambassador to West Germany, was quoted by the Cologne-based Express newspaper on Thursday as saying his government was convinced Libya and Syria support Palestinian terrorists with money and weapons.

Police looks for suspect

VIENNA, Austria — The interior minister said police are searching for a man who reportedly gave last-minute instructions to three gunmen before they attacked travelers with submachine guns and grenades at Vienna's airport.

One gunman was killed in a shootout with police shortly after the Dec. 27 attack, and the other two are being treated for wounds at a prison hospital.

Aquino heckled

ALAMINOS, Philippines — Youthful backers of President Ferdinand E. Marcos harassed opposition candidate Corazon Aquino today, the second day of her campaign swing through Marcos' home region, but more than 2,000 people turned out to support Mrs. Aquino.

Mrs. Aquino said at a news conference in Baguio on Thursday, the first day of campaigning for the Feb. 7 special election in Marcos' home area, that she would welcome communists into her government if they renounced violence and participated in election.

Kennedy move suits his style

When Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts traveled to South Africa to protest against apartheid, he was dogged by questions that he was really there to get headlines to run for president. When he voted for the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction bill, he was accused of pretending he was conservative in order to garner support for the presidency.

The questions of Kennedy's candidacy have followed Kennedy ever since the assassinations of his two brothers left him the last of that generation of Kennedy politicians.

Now, Kennedy has laid those questions to rest. In an eloquent and moving statement taped for television, he said he would not run for president in 1988. Instead, he pledged to commit himself to a "far more fundamental challenge, to put aside complacency and the appeals to narrow interest, to care about one another, even the least among us."

Kennedy can better champion his liberal causes as a senator than as a candidate for president. In this era, when the pendulum is swinging toward conservatism, it is important to keep a voice of liberalism alive in Congress. Kennedy is, in a sense, the Barry Goldwater of the Democrats, a man of firm convictions who can use the Senate to fight for his ideals but is out of the running for national office. His vote on Gramm-Rudman-Hollings shows that Kennedy, like Goldwater in recent years, intends to be no ideological rubber stamp, but to call each issue as he sees it.

Kennedy actively ran for president in 1980, a race which failed to gain him the nomination but succeeded in dividing the Democrats and bringing down President Jimmy Carter in the November election. He created great bitterness in that primary, which was not completely assuaged in 1984.

For his decision not to run in 1988, Kennedy deserves praise. It was, as Democratic Chairman Paul Kirk said, an "act of personal strength and political class."

FHA outlives its purpose

Gramm-Rudman-Hollings may turn out to be fun. President Reagan had barely signed the deficit-cutting law before someone leaked the news that his Office of Management and Budget wants to sell off the Federal Housing Administration and, after half a century, get Washington out of the business of insuring mortgages.

Actually, the effect of the budget would be slight — a one-time revenue boost of $3 billion or so. But the proposal is a welcome sign that the drive to roll back the federal government, fueled by the demands of this self-imposed restraint, may be just beginning.

The FHA, created during the Great Depression to help Americans buy their own homes, did much to remake housing finance in this country. It popularized the 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage. It also helped to spur the postwar surge in home ownership.

Getting rid of the agency will require a bitter fight on Capitol Hill, where the agency is probably more popular than Chivas Regal. Why? It advances the hallowed purpose of home ownership, a favorite with voters. It distributes its favors in every state and congressional district, and it costs the federal government nothing. In fact, the FHA makes money.

But none of these are reasons to keep it. Southern Methodist University political scientist Dennis Ippolito points out that, like many agencies established during the 1930s, the FHA was supposed to be temporary; like most of these, it outlived the emergency conditions used to justify its creation. The agency's rationale, always dubious, is less defensible now than ever. If it were closed down, most of its functions would be taken over by the private sector. The rest ought to be ditched.

The FHA's main job is providing mortgage insurance to banks and other lenders. It covers 5.2 million mortgages, worth more than $150 billion. If the borrowers can't make their payments, the rest of us have to.

The help is supposed to be aimed at low- and moderate-income buyers, but the results don't match the intent. The average FHA beneficiary has a yearly household income of $37,000 — some 40 percent more than the typical American family.

There are plenty of private companies offering this kind of coverage — in fact, they provide about half of all mortgage insurance. But FHA-backed loans are especially attractive. They allow downpayments as small as 3 percent, while other mortgages normally require 10 percent. Since the government is assuring repayment, lenders also are bound to charge a lower interest rate than if they had to risk losing their money.

In other words, lenders and borrowers are subsidized by transferring the risk of default from the parties involved to the public at large — which includes a lot of people who can't afford to buy homes, with or without the FHA's help.

Tradition aside, it's hard to see why a few homeowners warrant financial assistance from their fellow citizens. The government already gives homebuyers enormous help by letting them deduct interest payments on their income taxes. Subsidies like these are one reason so much of investment in this country goes into housing rather than productive capital.

Some defenders of the FHA, noting its operating profits, insist that it provides no subsidy. The howls from beneficiaries like mortgage bankers suggest otherwise.

In any case, if no subsidy exists, the agency's existence is pointless. If it merely insures people at a rate reflecting their risk, covering its costs and a reasonable return, then private mortgage insurance firms would be eager to take over the business and get the profits for themselves.

The administration proposal will do little good for the budget deficit. But by attacking the pernicious myth that the government can give to one group of citizens without taking from anyone else, it will strengthen the cause of limited government. Deficit or no, the FHA deserves to be dismantled.

The soft side of Mengele

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — Taped recordings of Dr. Josef Mengele merrily singing Christmas carols in his South American exile present a supposedly human side to the Nazi "Angel of Death," who consigned hundreds of thousands of Jews to the gas chambers at Auschwitz.

But transcripts of other Mengele tapes, obtained by our associate Lucette Lagnado, give a different impression of the homicidal quack. The conversations, recorded in Brazil in December 1969 and August 1971, reveal Mengele as a rather tiresome old crank, still spouting Nazi racial garbage and bemoaning the downfall of Hitler's 1,000-year Reich after only 12 years of slaughter.

If it weren't for the substance of Mengele's pontifications, and his record as a coldblooded Nazi who performed hideous experiments on helpless prisoners, one might almost feel sorry for this aging fanatic, who had seen his dreams go up in smoke. But the dreams were too sick to inspire sympathy.

"There are no more elites," Mengele mourned in one of the long, wandering discussions with two sycophantic German fellow exiles, Wolfgang Gerhard and Wolfram Bossert. "They should exist again ... Ten thousand Spartans terrorized 300,000 Helots. Why should that not be possible over here?" The Helots were ancient Greeks enslaved by the Spartans who served as role models for the Nazis.

Mengele's drinking companion, Gerhard, offered a lugubrious observation of the sad state of Brazilian society: "Only here there are no Spartans, only Helots."

Mengele agreed. "That's the problem. The problem isn't the law or the masses, but the fact that there are no more giants. That's the question."

A woman's arrival with drinks revived Mengele's spirits. "Long live those who bring us drinks!" he cried.

The irony of Mengele's situation never seemed to dawn on the old Nazi. He was contemptuous of the Brazilian society that had given him refuge. He apparently couldn't bring himself to admit that the racial mixing that was anathema to the Nazis had produced a robust, tolerant nation that daily contradicted Hitler's dire predictions of what "mongrelization" must inevitably bring.

"The races will always mix," Mengele admitted glumly. "Nothing positive will be achieved. On the contrary, the more they mix the more disharmonic they will be."

The mulattoes who make up a substantial part of the Brazilian population were singled out for Mengele's crocodile tears. When blacks and whites intermarried, he said, "the result is a weaker mulatto."

Even more ironically, Mengele, toward the end of his life, fell in love with a Brazilian mulatto and begged her to come live with him. But she declined, making it clear that she required a wedding ring as part of any arrangement. This was apparently more than Mengele was willing to offer.

Mengele repeatedly voiced his contempt for postwar Germany, where "the true values have been destroyed." He defined these as "race, nation, class, social status." Instead, he said sadly, modern Germans are concerned with "human beings."

After one three-hour session with his fellow Nazis, Mengele acknowledged the futility of their blatherings. "We are not getting anywhere," he said irritably.

A Justice Department Nazi-hunter put it more succinctly with a single Yiddish word. The contents of the Mengele tapes, he said, are "dreck" (rubbish). We couldn't agree more.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: Hard-line fans of former United Nations Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick miss her sorely. Mrs. Kirkpatrick's replacement, Vernon Walters, is more a diplomat than an ideologue, and he evidently hasn't provided enough rhetorical red meat to satisfy the voracious appetites of arch-conservatives, who used to howl in glee at Mrs. Kirkpatrick's denunciatory anti-Soviet speeches. Walters prefers to operate quietly and effectively behind the scenes. Even his unquestioned skills are cause for griping. "He is inarticulate in seven languages," grumbled one critic who pines for the glory days of Mrs. Kirkpatrick's tough talk.

OLYMPIC GOLD: Mary Lou Retton isn't the only one to profit from the 1984 Olympics. The U.S. Olympic Committee recently reported to Congress that it has accumulated $42.5 million in profits from the sale of silver and gold commemorative coins minted by the Treasury. The money will be used to train future Olympic athletes and to support amateur sports programs. The committee already has given $6.4 million to amateur sports groups. And the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee used $29 million from its share of coin sales to offset the expenses of the Games.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Should high school English classes have to pay a government fee for performing one of Shakespeare's plays? Believe it or not, the National Endowment for the Humanities wants to study the idea of collecting royalties on performances of songs, plays and other works that are now in the public domain. We always thought the endowment was supposed to encourage such activities, not penalize them. Why stop with Shakespeare, though? Let's put a tax on the National Anthem, the Pledge of Allegiance and the Constitution while we're at it. Think how the money would roll in.

Imbalances dog U.S. trade with Japan

By JIM ABRAMS
TOKYO (AP) — Japan in 1985 reduced tariffs, bolstered its currency and pleaded with its people to buy more imports. But with the arrival of 1986, there is no end in sight to Japan's lopsided trade surplus with the United States and the threat that Congress will retaliate against Japanese imports.

Japan's advantage with its most important trading partner was $36.8 billion in 1984, almost a third of America's global trade deficit. It will approach $50 billion in 1985 despite Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone's efforts to boost imports.

"Outcries in Congress are muted for the time being," U.S. Ambassador to Japan Mike Mansfield told a group of reporters in a year-end meeting. But "next year, with a $50-billion deficit being announced and with an election-year in effect, I think things will be quite difficult."

The U.S. worldwide trade deficit totaled $131.8 billion, as of the end of November, already exceeding the record $123.3 billion deficit of 1984, the U.S. Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

A Foreign Ministry official, speaking on condition he not be identified further, concurred. "We are under no illusions about the current situation in the United States. We see very strong protectionist pressures."

Those pressures come after a year in which Japan, at the strong urging of the United States and other trading partners, acted with rare decisiveness in removing impediments to imports.

During 1985, the government announced an "action program" to reduce tariffs on more than 1,000 items, simplify technical standards and import procedures and liberalize financial markets.

Sixty major companies pledged to increase imports by $5 billion in 1985, while Nakasone, calling trade friction a "life and death" crisis for Japan, in April appealed to every citizen to buy $100 worth of imports.

Subway and railway station signboards still carry messages telling Japanese that it is their patriotic duty to buy imports.

With the United States, sometimes rocky progress has occurred in the so-called MOSS (market-oriented sector-selective) talks, focused on opening up markets in telecommunications, pharmaceuticals, electronics and forest products.

U.S. officials contend that Americans are very competitive in these fields and could sell billions of dollars more if import barriers vanished.

Mansfield said the MOSS talks, with the exception of forest products where the faltering local industry remains protected, are in "excellent shape" and may be concluded when Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe meets Secretary of State George Shultz in Washington early this month.

Nakasone also has pledged to ease dependence on exports by boosting domestic demand, although Japan is grappling with a serious budget deficit and any tax cuts or increase in public works will be modest at best. Perhaps the most important development of 1985 was a Sept. 22 meeting in New York of finance ministers from Japan, the United States, Britain, France and West Germany, where they reached agreement to bring down the overvalued dollar.

The Japanese yen subsequently dropped from 280 yen per dollar to about 200 yen, meaning that U.S. goods in principle should be 23 percent cheaper in Japan.

Economists have said an excessively strong dollar was the main cause of the U.S.-Japan trade imbalance, but they caution that it will be some time, perhaps late 1986, before the exchange adjustment affects trade figures.

Mansfield, a former Democratic majority leader of the Senate, praised Republican Reagan as "the one person standing between the enactment of protectionist legislation."

However, the Reagan administration, faced with some 300 anti-trade bills before Congress, has had to show it won't ignore unfair practices by U.S. trading partners.

In September, President Reagan promised to retaliate, under provisions of the 1974 Trade Act, against attempts to take unfair advantages in trade, singling out import restrictions on Japanese leather goods and tobacco.

In December, U.S. officials boosted tariffs on Japanese leather imports but withheld further punitive steps when Tokyo agreed to lower imports of 88 other items. Washington has also agreed, to Japan's chagrin, to investigate U.S. industry charges that Japan is dumping semiconductor chips in the U.S. market.

Around The Rim

Small bundle of good cheer

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

He requested a picture slide show from his uncle during a drive through the Oklahoma countryside last Friday.

Following a picnic and big afternoon in a children's playground, he promptly conked out during the drive back to the city.

The young man retained consciousness 14 hours later — and we adults entertained ourselves during his sleep with a slide show from uncle.

Such are the trials and tribulations of a 3 1/2 year old trying to contend with today's deceiving world. He's lean and he's mean, though. And his name is Eric — the latest addition to the family line.

"Eric is looking forward to meeting you," said my sister-in-law upon my arrival in Tulsa, Okla., on Christmas Eve.

She said the young man probably didn't remember me from Christmas two years before. He sported diapers then and was learning how to talk.

The whole world was a blur. But this year, he took on the responsibility of properly introducing himself to me early Christmas morning.

I woke to the sounds of excited footsteps on a wooden floor, and a shout requesting that his parents and uncle wake up.

How dare we saunter about and take our sweet time.

If this wasn't the day so far in his lifetime. And what made it even better as he eyed the mound of presents underneath the tree was that his older brother Kyle, 5, and two cousins, Farrar, 7, and Zoey, 10, were in on the fun too.

On the morning of his departure back to St. Louis, Eric and I briefly visited.

I gave him a pack of baseball cards which were promptly strewn across the floor.

Loose change from a bedside table soon followed the path of the baseball cards.

He had made his impression, loud and clear.

I'm here to stay and I'm your nephew.

Yes sir. I hope I'm with you again next Christmas, Eric boy.

Dear Abby

Estranged parents live worlds apart from son

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are in our 70s and in poor health. Ten years ago, our son borrowed $10,000 from us. He promised to repay it on a monthly basis (no interest) within three years. He needed it for his business. His business has been thriving. He and his wife have their own home and swimming pool; the two older children (in college) have their own cars, and his wife also has one. We have not received one penny of the $10,000. Four years ago, this son literally walked out of our lives without one word of explanation. He lives two miles away. We have not had a telephone call, a card, a gift — nothing. This also applies to his wife and children. (The oldest is 21; the youngest is 11.) We know that they are well because we hear from others who see them and do business with our son. Before Christmas my husband said, "Let's accept the fact that they don't want to be bothered with us, and stop sending them gifts. (Until this year, we remembered them on all occasions, but they never acknowledged anything — just cashed the checks.) What do you say, Abby? Where did we go wrong? We have never mentioned the $10,000 they owed. FORGOTTEN PARENTS

DEAR FORGOTTEN: You say you live two miles from your son, his wife and their children, and for four years you sent them gifts for all occasions, none were acknowledged, yet you continued to send gifts and checks. Something is drastically wrong. Have you ever phoned your son or written to him? Do you have a promissory note for the $10,000 he borrowed? I would suggest that you initiate some kind of communication and try to find out why your son walked out of your life. If you're reluctant to initiate it, how about a friend, relative, your attorney or clergyman? There must be a reason why your son thinks you deserve this kind of treatment. This is a very bizarre and mysterious situation. I want very much to help you, but there are many unanswered questions. Good luck and God bless you. Please write again. I care. DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column from "Louisiana Libra," the 45-year-old unmarried secretary who didn't know what to say when asked, "How's your love life?" You suggested, "It's none of your business." Well, I am also a mature unmarried female who has been asked numerous times (mostly by harmless men) how my love life is, and I have been able to answer without hurting anyone's feelings by simply saying, "Private, and I hope yours is too." It works every time. COLORADO CRITIC DEAR CRITIC: Thanks. Your answer was better than mine. DEAR ABBY: What would you do about a guy who asked you to marry him before tax time so he can write you off? MARSHA DEAR MARSHA: If this is the only reason he wants to marry you, write him off. * (Is your social life in a slump? Lonely? Get Abby's updated, revised and expanded booklet, "How to Be Popular" — for people of all ages. Dr. Donohue

Common form of apnea

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am a 56-year-old male. The morning headaches I was having got me to see a doctor. After my examination he pronounced that I had sleep apnea. I told him of recent drowsiness that lasts most of the day. I was having to lie down when I got home from work in the p.m. That compounded my sleep problems.

He commented on my weight. I am about 40 pounds over what I should be. He said that losing 20 or 30 pounds would help and asked if I would consider having a tube put in my throat. Is that done for my problem? He wrote on a piece of paper "obstructive apnea." What does that refer to? How common is this? Thanks for any comment. — B.L.

Any apnea is cessation of breathing. Sleep apnea is the kind that occurs, as you might guess, during sleep, and the most common form of that is obstructive apnea. It refers to the cause, the blockage of air flow through the upper respiratory tract. Sometimes these two factors combine to produce the breathing problem, and that is called mixed apnea.

Headache is a common symptom, reflecting the loss of adequate oxygen delivery to the body. Being overweight can increase one's odds of developing this condition. This is especially true in men (most patients are men) who have narrowed airways to begin with. Slackness of muscles supporting the tongue and other throat structures, enlarged tonsils, even a goiter (thyroid enlargement) may contribute.

In obstructive apnea, the neural respiratory control remains, and the apneic patient produces sharp snorts in extra efforts to overcome the physical blockage of air flow. Correction of the apnea depends on the cause and seriousness. Often, simple weight loss is sufficient to reopen the airway. Also, a severely-deviated septum can cause the obstruction.

For others, devices to support the tongue at night or insertion of tubes to bypass the obstruction are needed. The tracheal tube is capped during the day. Drugs to stimulate breathing are also part of treatment. We don't know how common sleep apnea is, but anyone who is a loud snorer and has any of the classic symptoms should be examined.

Tips may help families survive in a house fire

COLLEGE STATION — In the time it takes to read the next few paragraphs, several homes in this county will catch fire. A residence burns every 45 seconds, adding up to 1,900 a day and almost 700,000 a year. Nearly 7,000 persons die in these fires and at least one-fourth of the victims are children under 14.

Most children are helpless to save themselves. Through lack of knowledge and practice, they make deadly mistakes such as rushing into smoke-filled hallways or down burning stairways when they could go safely out a window. Some don't even try to escape. They wander in bewilderment or panic. Many hide in closets or under beds and firemen find them dead, waiting in vain for parents to rescue them.

A child who has practiced what to do in a fire is much less susceptible to panic and has a better chance of surviving, fire authorities say. This has been proven by thousands of pupils who, fire-drill trained, have calmly escaped from burning schools.

A home fire drill is a must. Drills conducted as a "let's pretend to be firemen" game may stimulate more interest and impress the information more firmly in the child's mind.

Make fire escape plans with your family. There must be a main route and an alternate. Pay special attention to escapes from bedrooms where a fire is most likely to trap you. Don't depend on stairways as these are often flooded with heat and smoke.

Your best escape route is through a window, perhaps one that opens onto a garage deck or porch roof. Even if you can't get to the ground from there, you can usually wait safely in the fresh air for rescue.

Decide on who will help very young children or the elderly in the family and where you will meet after the escape so no one risks going back in for someone who is already safe.

OU Sooners number one team

By The Associated Press
 The Oklahoma Sooners are still in the habit of finishing what they start.
 Since the Associated Press began a preseason college football poll in 1950, Oklahoma has been ranked No. 1 entering the campaign six times.
 The Sooners have won the national championship four of those times, capped by Wednesday night's 25-10 Orange Bowl victory over No. 1 Penn State that gave them the 1985 title.
 "I don't think there's any added pressure," Coach Barry Switzer said of the Sooners' preseason status. "I knew we'd be good because of our defense. I knew our defense would carry us."
 The Sooners led the nation in total defense and pass defense and finished second in rushing and scoring defense.
 In winning its sixth national championship, second only to Notre Dame's seven in the 50 years of the AP poll, Oklahoma received 55 of 57 first-place votes and 1,138 of a possible 1,140 points from a nationwide panel of sports writers and sportscasters. Three voters did not submit their ballots and could not be reached.

 Oklahoma will receive the Associated Press Paul W. Bear Bryant national championship trophy at a date to be announced.
 Michigan, rebounding from last year's 6-6 embarrassment, finished a distant second to Oklahoma after defeating Nebraska 27-23 in the Sunbowl Fiesta Bowl. The Wolverines, No. 5 in the final regular-season poll, received one first-place vote and 1,032 points.
 The Orange Bowl loss after five weeks as the nation's No. 1-ranked team cost Penn State what would have been its second national championship in four years. Instead, the Nittany Lions finished third with 990 points.

"We were beaten by a better team," Coach Joe Faterino said.
 Switzer, equally as gracious, called Penn State "the second-best team in the country without a doubt the best team we played this season. They're better than Nebraska."
 Oklahoma won national championships in 1950, 1954, 1955 and this season after starting out No. 1, although each time they fell from the top spot somewhere along the way. This season, they dropped as low as 10th after a 27-14 loss to Miami on Oct. 19.
 The Sooners also finished No. 1 in 1950 and 1955 after starting out sixth and second, respectively. They were ranked No. 1 at the start of the 1957 and 1977 seasons but came in fourth and seventh.
 The only other teams to win national championships after a No. 1 preseason ranking were Tennessee in 1951, Michigan State in 1952 and Alabama in 1978.

The crowning of the Sooners, who were third going into the Orange Bowl, became a formality when second-ranked Miami lost to Tennessee 35-7 in the Sugar Bowl and No. 4 Iowa was beaten by UCLA 45-28 in the Rose Bowl.
 Tennessee received the other first-place vote in jumping from eighth place to fourth with 907 points. The Vols were followed by Florida, which moved up from sixth place to fifth. The Gators are on probation and did not play in a bowl game.
 Texas A&M, a 36-16 winner over Auburn in the Cotton Bowl, vaulted from 11th place to sixth with 792 points and cracked the Top Ten for the first time since Oct. 9, 1978.
 UCLA climbed from 13th to seventh with 767 points, followed by Air Force, up from 10th to eighth with 755 points after beating Texas 24-16 in the Bluebonnet Bowl.
 Miami got a break when Penn State lost but blew its national championship hopes by failing to Tennessee. The Hurricanes skidded from second place to ninth with 699 points. Iowa rounded out the Top Ten with 621 points.

 Nebraska and Brigham Young's 1984 national champs, seventh and ninth in the final regular-season poll, dropped into the Second Ten, which consists of Nebraska, Arkansas, Alabama, Ohio State, Florida State, BYU, Baylor, Maryland, Georgia Tech and LSU.
 The final regular-season Second Ten was composed of Texas A&M, LSU, UCLA, Arkansas, Alabama, Auburn, Ohio State, Florida State and Oklahoma State, with Bowling Green and Maryland tied for 20th.
 However, Auburn lost to Texas A&M in the Cotton Bowl, Oklahoma State bowed to Florida State 34-23 in the Gator Bowl and Bowling Green was shellacked by Fresno State 51-7 in the California Bowl.
 They were replaced by Baylor, a 21-7 victor over LSU in the Liberty Bowl; Maryland, which defeated Syracuse 35-18 in the Cherry Bowl; and Georgia Tech which beat Michigan State 17-14 in the All-American Bowl and made the Top Twenty for the first time all season.

 Florida was the only other team to start and finish the season in the same position, No. 6.
 The preseason rankings had Oklahoma, Auburn, SMU, Iowa, Florida, Southern Cal, Maryland, Ohio State, Nebraska and BYU in the Top Ten.
 The preseason Second Ten consisted of Illinois, Washington, LSU, Notre Dame, Arkansas, Oklahoma State, South Carolina, Penn State, Florida State and UCLA.
 Fresno State, 11-0-1, was the only unbeaten major-college team, although the Bulldogs were tied by Hawaii 24-24. They finished 21st and have not appeared in the Top Twenty since Nov. 2, 1942.

Midland runs by Steer hoopsters

By CHARLIE ALCORN
 Sports Writer
 Fundamentally speaking, Midland High's 90-76 victory over the Big Spring Steers was an impressive one. The district-favorite Bulldogs used an aggressive full court press, crisp passing and several hot shooting hands to subdue the inconsistent Steers Thursday night in Steer gym.
 The Steers, who suffered their thirteenth consecutive loss, played well in streaks, but could not challenge the Bulldogs after falling behind midway through the first quarter. Big Spring sophomore post Brian Mayfield kept the Steers in the game with a 26-point second half performance, but it was not enough against the dominating team play of Midland High.
 The Bulldogs were led by "Mr. Inside", Elvin Mackey, who finished with a team-high 26 points, and "Mr. Outside", Anthony Deande, who scored most of his 25 points on long range bombs. Two other Bulldogs, Terry St. Peters with 16 points and Matt Sears with 12 points, scored in double figures in the balanced Bulldog attack that always worked patiently for the good shot.
 Big Spring took an early 8-4 lead with just under five minutes remaining in the first quarter when the Midland High press began to take its toll. The Bulldogs ran off 13 unanswered points, with the help of six straight Steer turnovers, and never looked back the rest of the game.
 Deande ended the first quarter with four consecutive 20-footers to give the Bulldogs a comfortable 28-10 lead. He finished the quarter with 13 points. The Bulldog press resulted in 12 Steer turnovers in the period.
 The Steers solved the press in the second quarter, turning the ball over only three times in the period, but could not make up any ground on the hot shooting Bulldogs who connected on 22 of 41 first half shots.
 Mackey and St. Peters began dominating the boards for the Bulldogs in the second quarter building a 20-14 first half rebounding edge and helping their team to a 46-28 halftime bulge.

 Big Spring made its best run of the night midway through the third quarter when Mayfield hit six straight shots, forcing the Bulldogs to call a timeout with the score 66-51.
 Mayfield continued his hot shooting through the rest of the third quarter, hitting eight of nine shots in the period, but the Steers could not closer than 15 with the score 70-55 at the end of three quarters.
 Any hopes of a Steer rally in the fourth quarter were doused by turnovers as the Bulldogs stole several passes off the press for easy buckets. Mackey hit for 8 fourth quarter points as the Bulldogs cruised to the 90-76 victory.
 Mayfield's consecutive field goal streak ended at ten early in the final quarter. He finished the night with a game-high 30 points. Billy Cole scored 15 points, and Charles Young chipped in 11 for the Steers.
 Midland High, who had to forfeit three tournament games played during the Thanksgiving holiday due to an ineligible player, raised their record to 11-6 on the year and 1-0 in 4-5A play.
 The Steers fall to 1-13 on the year and 0-1 in district play.
 The Steers will travel Saturday to the Odessa Permian gym for their second 4-5A tilt. The game is scheduled to start at 8 p.m.

Lady Steers bow out in final quarter, 50-46

MIDLAND — The Big Spring Lady Steers let one get away last night in District 4-5A basketball action as the Midland High Bulldogs rallied in the final quarter to take a 50-46 win.
 It was a very disappointing loss for coach C.E. Carmichael's squad because it had a 43-38 lead with three minutes remaining in the game. Then the Lady Steers committed six straight turnovers as the Bulldogs, behind the scoring of Nadine Hill, came back for the win. Hill led all scorers with 20 points.
 The game was fairly close all the way as the two teams had a hard time scoring in the first quarter. The score was deadlocked 6-6 after the first eight minutes of play. Behind the scoring of Teresa Pruitt and Monique Jones, the Lady Steers played well over the next two periods.
 Big Spring outscored Midland by five in the second quarter, taking a 23-18 halftime lead into the locker room. Midland put on a spurt in the third quarter to take a 35-33 lead going into the final quarter. This set the stage for Big Spring to rally again, before faltering in the end.
 "We made 28 turnovers in the game but it didn't hurt us until down the stretch," said Carmichael. "We played well, shot well and rebounded well. But we couldn't hold the lead because of turnovers. We can play with anybody in this district if we cut down on the turnovers."

Aggies drop Baylor, 62-48

By The Associated Press
 Texas A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf says Winston Crite shouldn't stop with his 24-point effort against Baylor in the Southwest Conference basketball opener for both teams.
 "I'd say this was the best game Winston has had," Metcalf said after Crite pulled down 10 rebounds to lead the Aggies to a 62-48 win over Baylor on Thursday.
 Texas A&M also got 14 points from Don Marbury and seven rebound from Jimmy Gilbert. Brandon Taylor led the Bears with 14 points and nine rebounds.

 In other SWC action Thursday, Texas Christian edged Rice 66-64, Texas defeated Houston 70-68 and Southern Methodist whipped Arkansas 71-66.
 The Aggies advanced to 7-6 while Baylor fell to 8-4 on the season.
 Baylor, which lost seven players and all five starters to an NCAA suspension after posting a 7-3 record, used a tight zone defense to keep the game close for the first half, which ended with A&M in front 24-19.

 The teams were even in rebounds at that point at 18-18, but the Aggies took over the boards and shot 66.7 percent to pull away in the second half.
 The Aggies forced Baylor into 13 turnovers and stole the ball eight times. Neither team shot well during the first half, as Baylor hit only seven of 21 attempts and A&M made nine of 28.
 But during the final 20 minutes, the Aggies hit 18 of 27 and Baylor made 13 of 24.
 The Bears also had trouble facing A&M's pressing man-for-man defense throughout the game.
 "You've got to have emotion to use the press effectively and we kind of did it without emotion," said Metcalf. "We've got a great gym to press in but tonight there were not many people here and the guys couldn't get that fired up."
 In Fort Worth, Greg Grissom contributed 15 points to aid Texas Christian in its win. Norman Anderson scored 14 for the Horned Frogs.
 TCU, despite leads of eight and seven points in the second half, needed a 15-foot jump shot from Jamie Dixon and a free throw by Larry Richard in the last 23 seconds to outlast Rice.

 Senior center Greg Grissom led the Horned Frogs with 15 points. He helped TCU hold a commanding 36-22 rebounding edge over the Owls.
 "The fact that we beat them says something," Grissom said. "That's something we haven't done since I've been playing here."
 The victory raised TCU's season record to 9-3, 1-0 in conference. Rice dropped to 6-5 for the season, 0-1 in conference.
 John Brownlee scored 29 points before fouling out as the Longhorns capitalized on free throws in the closing minutes.
 "It's a good start to win one on the road because we've been pretty poor on the road this year," said Brownlee. "The shots just came to me tonight and they were falling."
 The Longhorns evened their record at 6-6, with Brownlee and starter Patrick Fairs on the bench with five fouls.

Three Crossroads Country graders have been named to the San Angelo Standard-Times All-West Texas Football Team.
 Forsan players Bruce Strickland and Wayne Wright were chosen to the Class A team while Colorado City's Sammy Rivera was named to the Class AAA team.
 Wright and Strickland were instrumental in leading Forsan to the 7-A South Zone championship and a 11-1 record.

Wright, a 6-1, 185-pound junior, was named to the squad as a running back. The All-District and All-Crossroads Honor Roll performer rushed for 1,221 yards while scoring 20 touchdowns.
 Strickland, a 6-0, 205-pound senior, transferred from Ira this year. He was the leader of a Forsan defense that registered seven shutouts while allowing only 37 yards rushing per game. He ended the season with 129 tackles. Strickland was also a All-District performer and was the Honor Roll's defensive Most Valuable Player.

 Rivera, a 5-9, 160-pound senior running back, was named to the All-West Texas Team for the second consecutive season. This is also his second year to make All-District and the Honor Roll.
 This season he rushed for 1,474 yards, giving him a two-year varsity total of 2,756 yards.

Apartheid is focus of religious outcry

By The Associated Press

The ghetto existence imposed on blacks in South Africa has come under a sharpening fusillade of religious condemnation and resistance both in that country and elsewhere, including the United States.

That swelling movement, shown both in words and deeds, was ranked as the prime religious development of 1985 in a poll of the Religion Newswriters Association, and was gaining in magnitude as the year turned.

"The moment of truth — the 'kairos' — is now, both for South Africa and the world community," declared a pre-Christmas emergency meeting on the issue of church leaders from many lands in Harare, Zimbabwe.

Denouncing the "oppressive structures of apartheid" as "against God's will" and "morally indefensible," the December gathering summoned by the World Council of Churches said:

"The transfer of power to the majority of the people, based on universal suffrage, is the only solution to the present crisis."

U.S. participants were seeking to organize a broad church assembly on the matter in Washington in mid-January, including Roman Catholics and Southern Baptists as well as denominations in the National Council of Churches.

Redoubled, coordinated church efforts on the issue were pledged, including lobbying with Congress, requesting a meeting with the administration, pressing for U.S. economic sanctions and planning a day of prayer and fasting.

Beyond just words, religious forces were mobilizing against the racial separation system with an urgency that some say resembles the religious drive in the civil rights movement of the 1960's.

There were, however, individual religious voices of disagreement, such as that of the Rev. Jerry Falwell, Moral Majority leader, who defends South Africa's course. But the major denominations worked to alter it.

Both Protestant and Roman Catholic church organizations, through stockholder pressures, have been behind decisions of several top U.S. banks to stop making loans to South Africa's government.

Religious groups also have been "prime movers in persuading numerous city and state pension plans to divest holdings in companies with South African operations," says United Church spokesman William Winslow.

In the past year, about 2,000 mostly church people, including many bishops and top officials, have been arrested in demonstrations outside the South African Embassy in Washington and at consulates in other cities.

Church news

Janie White to give concert

The First Church of the Nazarene will kick off 1986 with special services Sunday. At 9:45 a.m., Sunday School classes for all age groups will meet. This will be followed by a concert by Janie White, one of the nation's leading gospel vocalists.

White is a commissioned song evangelist, according to Carl Powers, pastor of the First Church of the Nazarene. For more than 10 years she has been giving concerts across America.

She and her husband, Jim, and daughter ReJana, travel together offering a variety of music from southern gospel to the more contemporary sounds of the Gaithers.

Her husband was involved at one point in his life in organized crime. They will give a testimony during Sunday's service.

The presentation will begin in the sanctuary at 10:30 a.m. The First Church of the Nazarene is located at 1400 Lancaster.

As a conclusion to the first Sunday of 1986, there will be a "Celebration of Praise" with special music by the ReJoyce choir.

Amahl, Night Visitors slated

"Amahl and the Night Visitors" will be presented by the music ministry of First United Methodist Church at 6:30 p.m. Sunday. Written for television in 1963 by Gian Carlo Menotti, "Amahl" has become a favorite story at Christmas time.

Menotti said he wrote the one-act opera with his childhood memories in mind. In Italy where he spent his childhood, there was no Santa Claus. Instead the Three Kings would visit on Jan. 6, Epiphany Day, and leave gifts for children.

Epiphany Eve, Jan. 5, was a time of great anticipation just as Christmas Eve is for children in the United States. Epiphany is traditionally celebrated in the Christian church as the time when the Three Wisemen arrived in Bethlehem to worship the Christ child.

The story of "Amahl" evolves around a 12-year-old crippled boy named Amahl, his mother, a poor widow, and the three Kings and their page. The Three Kings pay an unexpected visit to this family as they pause for a short rest on their journey to Bethlehem. While there, a miracle happens.

Amahl is played by Michael Powell, a student at Goliah. His mother is played by Joyce Bradley, music teacher at March Elementary School. The Kings and the page will be played by John Wilson, Will Johnson, Joe Dawes and Mark Corwin. The public is invited.

Religion briefs

Baptist group retains Bell

ATLANTA (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney General Griffin B. Bell has been retained by the Southern Baptist Convention to defend it against a lawsuit challenging the legality of actions at the denomination's convention last June.

The suit, filed by a Birmingham, Ala., couple and a retired Navy officer of Windsor, Mo., claims parliamentary rulings by the denomination's president, the Rev. Charles Stanley, undercut the majority will of the convention.

A fundamentalist wing, which backed Stanley, has gained increasing control over the denomination in a partisan struggle with moderates.

The suit, seeking to throw out as illegal a presidentially appointed committee that picks trustees of denominational agencies, is against both Stanley and the denomination's executive committee, which upheld his actions.

Bell of Atlanta was attorney general during the presidency of fellow Georgian Jimmy Carter. Both are Southern Baptists.

Zimbabwe bishop named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Retired United Methodist Bishop James K. Matthews of Washington has been named to preside over the denomination's branch in Zimbabwe for seven months in the absence of Bishop Abel T. Muzorewa.

Muzorewa, prime minister in Zimbabwe's transitional government in 1979, last fall resigned as head of his political party there to devote full time to his church post, but is on a sabbatical, studying in Nashville, Tenn.

Matthews, 72, retired in 1980 after serving 20 years as bishop in Boston and Washington areas.

Church banned from liturgy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clowns are OK in some ways for teaching about Christ, but are not to be used in the church's regular liturgy of worship, says a Roman Catholic committee.

The Bishops' committee on liturgy says the "sincerity of those involved in 'clown ministry' is not to be questioned, but it must be made clear that they have no liturgical function."

The statement says the "clown has a place" to entertain, to aid in teaching children and in "works of charity" such as visiting those who are sick or confined and "even in certain traditions of Christological reflection."

This refers to the role a clown can play in portraying the idea of being a fool for Christ or of God's apparent foolishness and weakness surpassing human wisdom and strength, says the Rev. John Gurreri of the liturgy secretariat.

He says that except in liturgical worship, the statement is "very supportive" of the clown ministry.

While not wishing to "stifle genuine adaptation and authentic creativity where permitted by liturgical norms," the statement said, use of clowns is not appropriate in the liturgy and detracts from its "prayerful atmosphere."

Group aims at $27 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trying to counterbalance the U.S. government's aid to rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government, an interfaith group says it is hopes to raise $27 million for "true" humanitarian aid in Nicaragua.

Roman Catholic, Protestant and Jewish groups backing the project, called "Quest for Peace," said it directly challenges the $27 million in non-military aid approved by Congress for the rebel contras.

Auxiliary Catholic Bishop Thomas Gumbleton of Detroit told a news conference the counterplan would bring "healing to the people" of Nicaragua who "suffer deeply from effects of our government's policy."

Methodist bishops speak out on war

By The Associated Press

United Methodist bishops, in a long, deliberative process, are drawing up a denunciation of nuclear war and weaponry, and it seems likely to be stronger than the firm rebuke by U.S. Roman Catholic bishops.

Instead of conditionally accepting nuclear deterrence, as the Catholic bishops did, a preliminary draft of the Methodist document declares that nuclear deterrence "cannot receive the churches' blessing."

Any moral case for that policy, "even as an interim ethic, has been undermined by the unrelenting arms escalation," the draft says, with deterrence becoming a "dogmatic license for perpetual hostility" and for resisting arm controls.

Beyond that key difference, the Methodist bishops' views generally concur with those of their Catholic counterparts, praising them, as well as the World Council of Churches, for their condemnations of nuclear war and arms buildup.

Declaring that the "passing years of the nuclear age keep multiplying the dangers," the Methodist draft says:

"The whole earth is now threatened by conflicts among nations, by tens of thousands of nuclear weapons, and by injustices which give rise to terror and repression. The Creation itself is under attack.

"God's sovereignty is denied. The most blasphemous evils are committed and prepared by the policies of governments."

The Methodist bishops have been working on their document for more than a year, gathering testimony from military and scientific experts, as well as theologians.

A first draft of the pastoral letter and an accompanying study document were tentatively approved at a mid-November meeting in Wichita, Kan., of the United Methodist Council of Bishops.

Based on discussions there, further refinements were planned before final adoption at the bishops' semi-annual meeting next April 28-May 2 in Morristown, N.J.

Bishop C.P. Minnick Jr. of Raleigh, N.C., who co-chairs the project with Bishop C. Dale White of New York, said the documents were not intended to reflect a consensus of the church but to be "pastoral and prophetic words."

The church, second largest to Southern Baptists in Protestantism, embraces 10 million members, including 1 million overseas. Its bishops' council has 110 members, 50 of them retired.

Entitled "In Defense of Creation: The Nuclear Crisis and a Just Peace," the draft of the 1,500-word letter, accompanied with a 30,000-word study document, declares:

"As bishops, we are now impelled to say No, a clear and unconditioned No, to nuclear war and to any use of nuclear weapons."

Without specifically naming the Strategic Defense Initiative pushed by President Reagan, often called "Star Wars," the draft calls for a "ban on all space weapons."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, JAN. 4, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are under excellent aspects to get in touch with your associates and to be associated with in the future and to join forces with them and formulate a mutual course of action.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Contact associates and discuss mutual matters with them, so that the future can be more successful for all concerned.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) An ideal day to get into the sports and amusements that you most enjoy, but first make some new plan for the days ahead.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Put worries aside and be off to pleasures with good companions and have a fine time with them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Add something new to your home that will please family and bring greater comfort there.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Get out with good friends to whatever activities are mutually enjoyed. Later make visits to friends you haven't seen.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Handle those tasks that will make your possessions more charming and valuable. Show that you have excellent taste.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Get busy early improving your appearance in some way and this will give your ego a boost. Then plan to make a good friend soon.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to delve into whatever is puzzling to you and get the right solution to enigmas.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Try not to do or say anything that could irk one you care much about. Any personal duties should be handled.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If out in public, be certain to do nothing that can spoil your good reputation. Study career matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You want to take on some new enterprises but you need more information if they are to be made successful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Your intuition is not working very accurately, so rely solely on your mature judgment. Not a good day to take on responsibilities.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she can easily understand others and will be so charming that everyone will want to be with your progeny. Be sure to send to fine schools where this natural charm can be enhanced and a fine career is possible in the world of entertainment.
