Appeal planned in murder case

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

MAYOR CLYDE ANGEL

An attorney for self-confessed murderer Jorge Loy Chavana, 22, said today he plans to appeal his client's 30-year prison term set by a jury Dec. 12.

Chavaña's accomplice, Joe Angel Martinez, 23, also received a 30-year term in a plea bargain Monday District Attorney Rick Hamby said this morning that the plea bargain stipulates that Martinez waive his right to appeal.

Chavana, of 817 W. Eighth, and Martinez, of 808 Magnolia, pleaded guilty in November to the beating death of Maurine Terrell, 80, of 1600 S. Scurry at her home last March. Each had requested that his punishment be set by a separate jury

The plea bargain arrangement for Martinez "was good lawyering," said Odessa attorney Robert Chavez, who represents Chavana.

Theoretically, a guy who did the actual killing should get more than an accomplice," Chavez said. "From all indications I got from listening to our jury, anything less than 50 years for Joe Angel Martinez should be considered a victory.

Chavana had testified during his punishment trial that Martinez struck all the blows that killed

Martinez is represented by Lubbock attorney Javier Alvarez. Chavez said Tuesday morning that he is reviewing the court record of proceedings during his client's punishment trial last December. He plans to file a motion for a new punishment trial in the appelate court in Eastland before Jan. 13.

If a judge denies the motion, Chavez said he will file a motion for appeal.

Errors were made in instructions given jurors regarding narole Chavez said.

Chavez said he will include within his appeal, a portion of District Attorney Rick Hamby's closing argument to jurors alluding to the possibility of Chavana also striking blows to the victim.

The defense counsel had objected to that portion of the argument during the trial claiming it was not recorded as evidence

The news conference will be broadcast live tonight by the major radio and television networks beginning at 8 p.m. EST.

Returning to the Oval Office on Monday following a weeklong California vacation, Reagan held a strategy session with his top foreign policy advisers, but his spokesman refused to disclose what was discussed.

The spokesman, Larry Speakes, said "reasonable people could assume" that Libya was the topic of conversation.

Since Reagan's last formal meeting with reporters in the East Room on Sept. 17, Palestinian terrorists hijacked an Italian cruise liner and murdered an American tourist. They were arrested by Italian authorities after an Egyptian plane carrying them to Tunisia was forced down in Sicily by U.S.

Furry friend is making life easier for paralyzed man

CDANCTON DI (AD) _ SUSI has been an inseparable companion for nearly four years to Louis Corvese III, bringing him drinks and food, books and cassette tapes that his paralysis prevents him from getting for himself, and turning on and off his lights and heater.

SuSu is a 9-year old capuchin monkey, one of only seven in the world trained to help the handicapped in the same way that guide dogs serve the blind.

"I was scared at first. Now there's a bond between us," Corvese says. "To me she's more like a normal person than an animal What she does for me makes me appreciate her more and more."

In return for what SuSu does for him, Corvese, 30, an ex-Marine paralyzed from the chest down in a 1976 car crash, provides affection, food and a place for the monkey to hang by her powerful tail.

Susu chirps with delight as Corvese grips her cage handle with his teeth and sets her free. She explodes from behind bars and jumps in a flash of fur from Corvese's wheelchair to her favorite spot on a table by a window

Corvese wrenches his head so his mouth can aim a tiny red light pointer attached to his wheelchair.

He points the light at a small refrigerator and starts putting his friend and helper through her

Homeowner loses case

DALLAS - A judge has ruled against a homeowner in the first case involving more man to people who claim they were tricked out of the titles to their homes.

Lawyers and others connected with the case say the ruling by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Robert McGuire could be a sign of how the rest of the cases will turn out.

The homeowners claim the titles to their homes were taken fraudulently by J&J Planning Services, whose two owners have been sentenced to prison.

Lawmaker against law

WASHINGTON — A congressman pressing for speedy court action to strike down a new, sweeping budget-cutting law says he has legal standing to challenge the act because it would reduce his salary.

Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., said in a court affidavit Monday, "I will be directly injured" by budget cuts under the law that automatically would cut his salary, office expenses and the pay of his aides.

"My constituents will also be injured by the budget act, which is designed to cause automatic reductions in numerous programs upon which they rely," he added.

WASHINGTON - The U.S. Postal Service has fired Postmaster General Paul N. Carlin in the wake of accusations he was too slow to increase automation of the service and streamline its executive staff and has replaced him with Albert Casey, a retired airline Carlin's resignation, which was requested by the postal board, and Casey's appointment were announced Monday by Postal Service spokesman Ralph Stewart after the board made the change at a closed meeting.

Military group vows to fight election fraud

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A reformist group of military officers pledged today to work against any cheating in the Feb. 7 special presidential election and to support Corazon Aquino as their commander-in-chief if she wins. 'We are bound to disobey illegal orders," Navy Capt. Felix Turungan of the Reform the Armed Forces Movement said at a news conference, referring to the possibility that higher officers might order intervention in the election.

'We will stop any sector, any party, from subverting the will of the people," Turungan said.

However, Turungan and the other young officers at the conference did not say whether they expected military cheating on behalf of President Ferdinand E. Marcos. They said they plan to hold prayer meetings and seminars on election cheating at military camps.

"If Cory wins," Turungan said, using Mrs. Aquino's nickname. "then she becomes our commander-inchief. We are loyal to the commander in chief whoever he or she is. Marcos claims Mrs. Aquino is supported by communists, and says the military might not accept her as Mrs. Aquino has said she has no communist ties and would not appoint a communist to her Cabinet, but would welcome communists who renounce violence into the government. Mrs. Aquino campaigned today in a mountainous

She told a crowd of about 1,000 people in Tabuk, about 200 miles north of Manila, that her government "will be one of consultation, not dictation.

Some of the seven officers at the Manila news conference said they did not believe Mrs. Aguino had communist support or that her victory would mean a communist takeover

"The president is entitled to his opinion," said Lt Diosdado Valeroso

The officers said they did not expect Marcos would refuse to give up power if he lost the election. Pressed by reporters to say what might happen in that event, Turungan said, "I don't know.

"We feel confident that whoever wins this election. as long as the election is honest and fair, will have a smooth transition into power,' said Navy Capt. Rex Robles. "An unfair election would lead to discontent, civil strife and instability.

The Reform the Armed Forces Movement has the tacit approval of high-ranking military and defense of ficials and Marcos, but claims it is independent Leaders estimate it has about 1,000 active members and general support from about 70 percent of the officers in Marcos' 200,000-member military.

It has called for the retirement of all officers beyond retirement age, including Chief of Staff Gen Fabian C Ver and most top commanders.

Handicapped due equal treatment

, Handicapped Americans have made many gains during the last 10 years or so. Their ability to contribute to society has been recognized. And laws have been passed recognizing their right to equal treatment

Despite gains, however, there is a long way to go before the handicapped have true equality.

Air travel is hard enough these days for even the strongest and most agile among us. Thus, we view with concern a U.S. Department of Justice case that would deny equal rights to handicapped persons who travel by air.

According to the Paralyzed Veterans of America, handicapped persons are presently entitled to equal treatment on public transportation, including use of all facilities at airports. But if the administration wins its case, the protection against discrimination will be endangered.

All handicapped persons are morally entitled to the same treatment and opportunity given to other citizens. Veterans who received disability in service are entitled to even greater consideration.

We do not know why the administration brought the suit, for it makes no sense. It is cruel and unfair, and it should be dropped before it comes to trial.

'Best' hijacking detection ever is producing terrible results

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA WASHINGTON — More than 1,900 air travelers lost their lives last year in hijackings and plane crashes.

The irony of this tragic record — the deadliest in aviation history - is that it was compiled at the same time the Federal Aviation Administration's 'What surprised me on my first security program was achieving unparalleled success in detecting and preventing potential air

> The cornerstones of the FAA's security system are the X-ray devices and metal detectors that were first installed 13 years ago. Last June, agency officials told Rep. Cardiss Collins, D-Ill., that since 1973 some 31,000 weapons have been detected and 13,000 persons arrested. A conservative estimate is that 112 hijackings or other airborne crimes have been prevented.

> The price of this enviable record has been eternal vigilance. This was pointed up in a still-secret "special evaluation" of security screening procedures at the world's busicat airport, O'Hare International in Chicago.

The evaluation was ordered by Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole following the June 14 TWA hijacking and the bombing at Frankfurt airport five days later. O'Hare was one of 40 airports studied by FAA security experts. Here's what the experts found

• All the X-ray machines in use by 23 airlines detected 24-gauge (very thin) copper wire inside carry-on luggage

• The two, sometimes four, metal detectors used by the 23 airlines rated high grades.

 Screening personnel at 16 of the 23 airlines failed to detect facsimile dynamite being smuggled past them. Those who "failed to recognize the test object (dynamite bomb)" in the tests, conducted in late July, included personnel under the control of Eastern Airlines at Air Wisconsin, Braniff, Continental, Jetstream, Northwest Orient, Piedmont and Eastern itself.

Screening personnel at three other airlines under the control of TWA and three under Delta's control also failed to spot the dummy dynamite.

Personnel at American, Frontier, Jet American, Pan American, People's Express, Republic and Sim-"If you have to ask what a local mons were able to detect the facsimile dynamite "Does anyone want to contribute

Security experts told our associate Tony Cappaccio that screening personnel are constantly being to a fund to pay John McEnroe's retrained in dynamite detection because it is so difficult. They weren't surprised at the results of the FAA's July testing.

An Eastern spokesman said the airline's security specialists, who reviewed the FAA report, continually retrain their screeners in explosives detection in conjunction with FAA efforts. The Eastern spokesman pointed out that the FAA had not formally notified the airline of the July test results, which interpreted as meaning the federal inspectors did not think Eastern's detection techniques or training were remiss.

In fact, one security expert told us he was confident that the screening personnel who flunked the July tests would spot the dynamite if a test were run

INFO, NOT DISINFO: U.S. Information Agency Director Charles Wick doesn't mind it his agency is accused of spreading pro-American propaganda. But he won't tolerate "disinformation" or outright lies. In a cable to the troops, he explained the difference: "(Propaganda is) information or ideas methodically spread to promote or injure a cause, group, nation, etc. ... Disinformation, on the other hand, is distinguished primarily by its intent to deceive through flat lies, misrepresenting facts or the views of an adversary, or by its fabricating the details of a situation or policy position.

HERE'S A HOT ONE: The Louisiana delegation in Congress doesn't want a protective tariff on certain imports essential to Cajun cooking and Louisiana's economy: hot red peppers and salt. The Pelican State's representatives have introduced legislation that would grant permanent duty-free entry to these ingredients

MINI-EDITORIAL: A pall of pessimism overhangs America. One reason for this, we suspect, has been the closing of the American frontier. In earlier times, the disadvantaged and the discontented could pull up stakes and head westward into new territory. With nowhere left for escape, the disillusioned now focus their frustration in damaging directions. They cease to set their sights higher, so they tend to drift lower. Yet never has there been a frontier more challenging than space now offers. The last frontier, infinite in its vastness, is outer space. And the next step for mankind, it seems to us, should be to explore it.

Resolve in '86 to seek God

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think it's a good idea to make a list of New Year's resolutions? I have never done it before but would like to try. What do you think are some good resolutions to make? — F.D.

DEAR F.D.: Certainly there is no harm in making a list of resolutions and, in fact, I would encourage you to examine your life and set some definite goals - not just at the beginning of a new year, but regularly

What should your resolutions be? Above all, resolve that you will seek God's will for your life and that once you discover it you will do it, with His help.

What is God's will for your life? Most of all, He wants you to commit your life to Jesus Christ as your Savior and Lord, if you never have done so. This would be the greatest step you could take at the beginning of this new year — to yield your life to Christ without reserve. Make your commitment to Him today.

Then resolve to seek God's will for your life daily. God is concerned about every detail of our lives, and the highest goal you can set for yourself is to do His will. Set aside time each day to pray and to read a portion of the Bible, and ask God to help you apply its truth to your life.

There is an old saying that says, 'Sin will keep you from God's Word, but God's Word will keep you from sin." Let your prayer be that of the Psalmist: "Teach me, O Lord, to follow your decrees Direct me in the path of your commands, for there I find delight. Turn my heart away from worthless things" (Psalm 119:33,35-37)

In addition, seek the strength which God gives through His Holy Spirit. You cannot live as you should apart from God's help and He is ready to give it to you as you commit your life afresh each day to Him.

Allies hedge on sanctions against Libya

By R. GREGORY NOKES The Associated Press

The reluctance of America's allies to join in sanctions against Libya results from a combination of factors: economic interest, istrust of IIS policies in the region and a feeling that sanctions don't work, anyway. West Germany said in a statement over the weekend that economic sanctions weren't workable, and a British diplomat said in an interview here Monday that his government takes the same position.

And not all of the allies, the British in particular, are as convinced as Washington that Libya's Moammar Khadafy is behind such recent terrorist actions as the attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports in which 19 people

But White House Larry Speakes said Monday that international pressure is needed to curb Libyan terrorist activities and still hoped the allies would agree on joint measures.

The American position, voiced privately, is that in refusing to impose sanctions, the allies are putting their own individual self-interest above the common good, failing to take advantage of an opportunity to strike a blow against global terrorism that would be in everyone's

American frustration over what it contends is European foot-dragging in the war against terrorism has been apparent for several years. But even now, Washington won't let the differences with the allies become a divisive public issue

There has been some cooperation, as demonstrated in Italy's assistance in the recent Achille Lauro ship hijacking. However, even in that case, Italy angered Washington by letting the suspected ringleader go and in refusing to allow the hijackers to be taken to the United States

In the wake of the Vienna and Rome airport attacks, it appears some internationally coordinated measures will be taken, such as steps to curb the movements of Libyans and potential terrorists. But officials now seem to be ruling out the major economic sanctions Washington wanted imposed against Libya.

In part, the differences over combatting terrorism in the Middle East have their roots in contrasting approaches to the problems of the region. Most of the European allies have felt the United States is too supportive of Israel and not sensitive enough to the problems of the Palestinians.

"We do feel the more moderate parts of the Palestinian community need to be encouraged," said a British diplomat, who asked not to be identified. "We were not very happy with the kind of attitude which lumps all forms of Palestinians into one basket, and attributes to even the more moderate wing of Palestinians outrages perpetrated by extremists.

And while the Reagan administration has sought almost from the day it took office to isolate Khadafy in the international community, French President Francois Mitterand met with him last year and top Italian leaders conferred with him recently

The British broke diplomatic relations with Libya in 1984 after a Libyan diplomat shot and killed a British policewoman during an anti-Khadafy demonstration in London. But the British have not severed economic ties, nor are they likely to do so.

"Our feeling about sanctions is they are jolly difficult to impose, they tend to hit at poorer parts of the community and they can actually strengthen the internal economy of the country being boycotted," the British diplomat

The West Germans take a similar view. Libya's chief export is oil, and "it is not easy to find out where oil comes from." said a German source who asked not to be identified 'We have never been very fond about sanctions. They could be circumvented.

A diplomat from a West European country, who didn't want either his name or nationality to be used, suggested in an interview that American pressure for sanctions is weakened because the United States maintains a significant economic interest in Libya of its own.

The British diplomat also said the allies aren't entirely persuaded by evidence they have seen so far that Khadafy provided assistance to the airport terrorists. He also indicated Britain wouldn't back any action against Khadafy that isn't lawful.

In dealing with Irish terrorists, we go to extremes to be sure what we do is lawful, that it doesn't go outside the law," he said. "We are very concerned that whatever action be taken is properly justified.

Dr. Donohue

Scrub typhus is an old Vietnam nemesis

Dear Dr. Donohue: During an invasion of Owi zoot-zamooch fever. I had a temperature of 106 and was delirious about five days. They didn't have any medicine for it then, but I think I remember somebody saying I had been bitten by a mite. I was put in a tent hospital on Biak Island, where they watched me for a month. Could this disease cause me trouble today? Is it a form of typhus? - L.F.L.

I had no trouble interpreting your phonetic spellinig for Tsutsugamuchi fever. It's a lot better than the one my medical dictionary has. It is Japanese for "dangerous bug." Fortunately for us all, the disease has a more manageable name, 'scrub typhus.

It is a form of typhus, and the mite that carries the germ lives in scrub vegetation, the kind you encounter between dense forest and barren clearings. It is an illness of the Orient, and in Vietnam soldiers were getting it 30 years after your encounter.

When the mite bites, a small sore develops, enlarging to an ulcer covered with black crust. Lymph nodes in the area enlarge and fever begins, with headache, muscle pain, and sometimes delirium.

During Vietnam, antibiotics were used, but even in the days before we had those drugs most people recovered in two weeks. You can consider youself fortunate, for before antibiotics three of 10 victims did succumb

I have not seen documentation of any long-term organ damage occurring from a bout with scrub typhus. I'm sticking with that name, but that doesn't mean you cannot hold on to your own colorful version. Our language can use all the color we can lend

Dear Dr. Donohue: Enclosed is an article about AMP for shingles pain. Can you comment on it? -

Yes, I read the article. It appeared originally in a very scholarly medical journal, a research article, not, I'm sure, intended necessarily to raise the hopes of a patient suffering from shingles pain.

Wait-and-see-until-we-know-more-about-it subjects aren't the usual grist of this column. However, you aren't the first to ask about this.

AMP is adenosine monophosphate. It's not a drug; it's one of the compounds the cells make and use for energy. It's no wonder substance.

How it works in preventing symptoms of viral infections (which is what shingles is) is not known. The moderate success noted by the researchers makes it of interest for further study. All possible side effects have to be assessed. We'll have to wait, maybe years, before we have all the answers.

You may want to look through the booklet "The Facts About Shingles" for some hints as to treatment. Other readers may order by writing me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, selfaddressed envelope and 50 cents. It's true (as you say in another part of your letter) that older people seem to have more prolonged bouts of the postshingles pain than younger people. We don't know Doar Dr. Denskuo: Does saleium in the Get bely lower blood pressure? My doctor, who I asked about this, said it might. He said I should be getting more calcium to protect my bones as I get older, anyway. But will it help lower my blood pressure? - Mrs.

I can't add to your doctor's reasoning. It is true that a recent study did indicate calcium supplementation lowers blood pressure in some patients in whom it was tried. But it isn't being recommended for that purpose. If you aren't getting the calcium you need in your diet you could use supplements whether or not you happened to have high blood pressure. If that were to have the spin-off effect of lowering your pressure, fine. The fact is that we don't really know if calcium beyond what a person needs for health would help lower pressure.

FOR M.K. — The colon pouches of diverticulosis occur at weak points in the colon lining. Those are points where tiny blood vessels are to nourish the lining. And that's where bleeding comes from, if it is to occur at all.

Hemorrhoids can be cured! If troubled with this or other rectal problems, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of this newspaper, P O. Roy 11210 Chicago, IL 60611. for a copy of his booklet, "The Real Cure for Hemorrhoids." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and one dollar.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers questions are incorporated in his column whenever

blasts Akers

By BOB WEST Port Arthur News

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) Former University of Texas assistant football coach Ronnie rnompson said four years of frustration — of having to bite his tongue, of seeing players misued, of seeing suggestions ignored - poured out after head coach Fred Akers fired him and three others last week.

Shattered that his loyalty meant nothing and that Akers would use him and the other dismissed coaches as a sacrificial offering for his own shortcomings, he said, the former head coach of Port Arthur Jefferson High School fought back.

Thompson's verbal broadside after the sackings last Friday probably ranks as the upset of the year in college football, bigger than Texas-El Paso beating Brigham Young.

Fired coaches who speak out in anger after being fired generally have their comments dismissed as sour grpaes. Then they find themselves blackballed.

Thompson, who coached the running backs at Texas, said he understands all that. Nonetheless, he has no qualms about saying that Akers lied to him, that Akers made his assistants the scapegoats for a disappointing season, and that Akers limited the input of his assistants.

"Fred can only fire me once. And how's he going to recommend me to anybody now that he's done that?" Thompson said. ""Besides, since this has happened, I've learned Fred is bitterly disliked by an awful lot of people. So maybe it won't hurt me. Anyway, I have no regrets.

It is possible in this particular case Thompson's taken the right approach. Fred Akers is neither well liked nor respected by a great many football people across the state. The list starts with Darrell Royal, who realized Akers' limitations long ago. Ever since former UT football coach Darrell Royal took away Akers' offensive responsibilities and replaced him with a high Bellard back in 1968, Akers has been obsessed with proving Royal made a mistake, Thompson said. "One of the things that really killed us this year," Thompson said, "was our inability to score touchdowns from inside the 20. We usually settled for field goals. Fred called approximately 82 percent of the plays inside the 20. I know because I kept the charts.

Ron Toman, as Texas' offensive coordinator, was little more than a figurehead, Thompson said. "Ron and I got to call a lot of plays on third-and-8, but on first and second down it was a real circus. We'd be working off the game plan charts and call what had been discussed for down and distance. Fred was always deviating from it," Thompson

"What we'd wind up with on game day was a grab bag offense that didn't have any rhyme or season. Sometimes I wondered why we even prepared a game plan. We wouldn't stick with anything in a game long enough for it to be successful

... bitter after firing

Before he was officially a member of the Texas coaching staff, Thompson said, he sat with Toman in the press box during the Longhorns' 1982 Cotton Bowl game against Alabama.

With Texas trailing late in the game, he heard Toman recommend a quarterback draw. Three plays later Longhorn signal caller Robert Brewer scored the winning touchdown on a quarterback draw.

Thompson, on his way to the dressing room, bumped into a sportswriter acquaintance, who asked him who made the call. Thompson said it was Toman.

Meanwhile, in the dressing room, Akers was taking full credit, Thompson said. It didn't sit well with Akers when he learned his new assistant was quoted as saying Toman suggested the decisive play, Thompson added.

"I was new and just didn't understand how things worked," Thompson recalls. "Dating back to what happened with Darrell, Fred has a terrible complex about his offensive knowledge. He's still trying to prove Darrell made a mistake. Anything that worked needed to come off as Fred's idea. As head coach at Port Arthur Jefferson, Thompson built a reputation as an innovator with a sophisticated passing offense. He said once he became frustrated being a UT assistant, he thought "plenty of times" about moving on.

"If the right opportunity had come along, I would have. But I kept thinking if I'd be a good. loval assistant at the University of Texas it would lead to something better. I just put the blinders on, tried to ignore the distractions and work within the system," he said.

Given the benefit of hindsight, Thompson said he would never have left Port Arthur.

"If that wasn't the biggest mistake of my life, it's in the top two. I thought I was taking a step up, thought going to the University of Texas was a real opportunity.

Thompson added, "I feel a lot better having gotten some things off my chest," he says. "If I'd kept it inside me, it would have eaten me up.

NEW YORK (AP) - Pole vaulter Bily Olson, considered by his critics to be washed up before he returned to prominence last month with a world indoor best of 19 feet, 2% inches, says he will be disappointed if he doesn't regularly clear 19 feet this year.

Olson, who erased the 1984 mark of 19-21/4 established by Thierry vigneron of rrance, says renewed health and a change in technique are responsible for his reemergence. The first American to clear 19 feet, and the overall men's Mobil Grand Prix track and field titlist in 1982 and 1983. Olson has been bothered the last two years by hamstring and knee

'I would be surprised if I don't go much higher this season," Olson, who attended Abilene Christian University, said Monday via telephone at a luncheon of the Metropolitan Track Writers Association. "My feet, which have kept me crippled, have been healthy. I have been able to work out like I want."

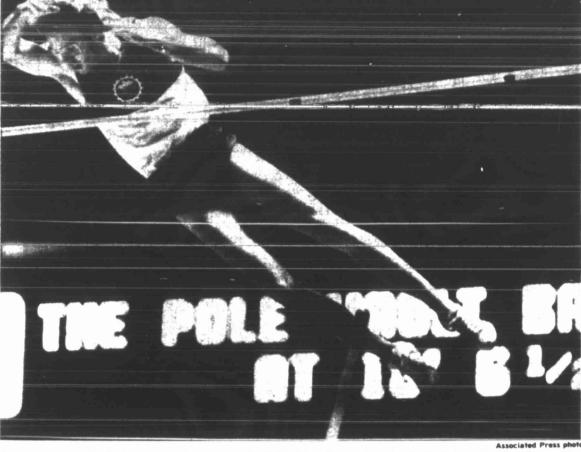

In his conditioning program, Olson runs up and down inclines while carrying his vaulting pole. Because of that, Olson thinks his speed and leg drive are better than (vaulters) have been holding 10 and above," Olson said. "On my record jump, I held 16-5."

Olson has incorporated some of the techniques used by Sergey Bubka, the world outdoor recordholder at 19-81/4. Bubka holds the pole higher than any vaulter, between 16-8 and 16-10.

Former Abilene Christian University pole vaulter Billy Olson has lept back into the international pole vaulting picture with his indoor world record leap of 19 feet 2% inch last month. Olson is coming back after two sub-par years due to various injuries

Olson's record-setting performance Dec. 28 at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan was a surprise because it came at the first major indoor meet of the track and field season. Few athletes are at their peak so early in the season.

"I needed to re-establish myself as a creditable vaulter again,' Olson, who failed to qualify for the 1984 Olympics, said. "I heard I was ween in 1982-1983. used meat. That's a sad way to be described. You're a valuable comwhen you're not, you're useless."

Lakers dominating

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD AP Basketball Writer

The Los Angeles Lakers would have to lose their next nine games to equal the same record they had at this time last season, when they went on to win their third NBA title of the decade.

Don't bet it will happen.

'We've got a cushion and that's nice if you struggle down the road," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said, referring to his team's 27-5 record and eight-game lead in the Pacific Division. "We aren't thinking about the playoffs, although the ultimate goal is to win another championship.

Los Angeles started the previous two seasons 27-14 and 25-16, en route to final records of 62-20 and 54-28, respectively

"slow" starts ultimately cost the Lakers a homecourt advantage in two championship series against the Boston Celtics. It didn't matter last June as the Lakers won two games in Boston, but in 1984 Los Angeles lost the seventh game at Boston Garden.

Riley and the Lakers, however, deny that gaining an upper hand in the playoff finals is the motivation behind the team's uncharacteristic fast start. "We don't want to focus on Boston's record, at least not this early," Riley said. "We could burn ourselves out just trying to beat their record. We might worry about it more when the time gets

"We always have short-term goals," said Earvin "Magic" Johnson, who leads the National Basketball Association in assists. We don't like to look too far ahead because we get distracted. When we look ahead to playing the Celtics, we lose three games thinking about them.

Riley said these short-term goals are all team-oriented. With only Johnson among the NBA top 10 in a major statistical category, Riley seeks to make the team greater that the sum of its parts, however talented the parts may be.

"We try to hold the opposition's shooting to 47 percent and we want to lead the league in rebounding,' Riley said.

The Lakers have held the opposition to a 47.6 field-goal percentage and rank third in the NBA behind Houston and Indiana in rebounds per game.

Long regarded as a finesse, fastbreaking team with little taste for the physical aspects of the game, the Lakers have rebounded 72 percent of their opponents' missed shots and have grabbed 53 percent of all rebounds in their games this season

"We're a better team this year because of our rebounding and interior defense and we've improved in those areas because of the addition of Maurice Lucas and A.C. Green," Riley said. "Those two have made the difference in four or five close games that we've won."

Lucas, acquired from Phoenix for second-round choices in the 1988 and 1989 player drafts, leads the team in rebounding and off-thebench scoring. He has scored a season-high 21 points three times, twice in consecutive four-point Los Angeles victories against Chicago and Utah on Dec. 1 and Dec. 4.

Green scored a season-high 20 points in the Lakers' 118-88 romp over Washington Sunday night.

Perhaps the most telling Lakers statistic is the one that shows them leading the NBA in scoring with 120 points per game, while allowing 10 "The only weakness on this team, in my opinion, is that sometimes we have a mental block and tend to get lackadaisical," said forward James Worthy, who is averaging nearly 20 points per game, second only to Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's 22.

"I don't think we have a glaring weakness," Riley said. "Our style of play could be one. We don't make real good decisions sometimes because we're always looking to get the ball up the court so quickly. But when you talk about the four basis areas - shooting, rebounding, ballhandling and defense - we're solid.

In sum, as Seattle Coach Bernie Bickerstaff said, "Something unusual has to happen for them to

Landry picks Chicago, Miami in Super Bowl

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Dallas Coach Tom Landry predicted Monday that the Miami Dolphins and the Chicago Bears will meet in Super Bowl XX at New Orleans on Jan. 26.

The Los Angeles Rams travel to Chicago for the National Conference title game Sunday, while New England plays at Miami for the American Conference championship.

The Bears have that strong defense." Landry said. "They also will be playing at home and are used to the cold weather.

Landry said New England was on such a roll that he would like to pick the Patriots, who are coached by Ray Berry, a Dallas assistant coach in 1968.

"I'd pick them if they were playing anywhere but Miami," Landry said. "They are on quite a losing streak there (18 in a row). It's very difficult to beat Miami in Miami. particularly after you've been on the road for two straight weeks.

Landry was back in his office Monday planning for the Cowboys' 1986 season - his 27th with the team. He scotched rumors he might not return.

I'm always coming back," quimed Landry, who said he "had no feeling one way or the other' when he will retire

Suns survive NBA's first rain-delay

By WILLIAM . BARNARD AP Basketball Writer

The visiting team built a big lead, sweated out a long rain delay and then coasted to victory after the water was cleared off the playing surface

No, baseball fans, it's still three months until April. This is the National Basketball Association. The Phoenix Suns led Seattle 35-24 early in the second quarter Sunday night when referee Mike Mathis halted the game because rain was leaking into Seattle Coliseum from the roof. After NBA Commissioner David Stern ruled Monday that the game must be resumed at the point of interruption instead of replayed from the start, the Suns went on to defeat the SuperSonics 114-97.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Philadelphia defeated San Antonio 108-102 and Sacramento stopped Washington 106-87.

The Suns reacted differently when asked how it felt to play in the first NBA game ever suspended after it started. "I don't want to have to do another game like that," said Phoenix forward Larry Nance, who was 12-for-15 from the field and scored 27 points in the two-day game. "Anytime you're on a roll like we were, you hate to have the game stop. "It was difficult to get our heads in the game in the second quarter," added Suns guard Jay Humphries, who added 23 points and 12 assists. 'But I liked the long break. It really helped us.

Seattle outscored 25-14 after the game resumed to tie the game at 49, but the Suns, who snapped a three-game losing streak, rebuilt the margin to 55-50 at halftime.

James Edwards scored 17 of his 25 points in the second half and Nance added 13 after halftime as the Suns pulled away in the final two periods. The SuperSonics trailed 84-70 after three quarters and could get no closer than 10 points in the final 12 minutes. "We've been involved in a lot of strange things," Phoenix Coach John MacLeod said. "I knew Seattle was going to do that in the second quarter when they made their run. They really came out and played a good game.

'Under the circumstances, we didn't do too bad," Sonics Coach Bernie Bickerstaff said. "We did the best job we could." Rookie Xavier McDaniel led Seattle with 24 points and 11 rebounds. Gerald Henderson added 18 points.

76ers 108, Spurs 102 Philadelphia won for the ninth time in 10 games as Maurice Cheeks had 23 points and 13 assists and Moses Malone 20 points and 13

McEnroe gets revenge with win over Curren

ATLANTA (AP) McEnroe had not forgotten his last match with Kevin Curren - an upset loss to the South African in the 1985 Wimbledon quarterfinals but the second-ranked player in the world did not have revenge in mind. McEnroe got back at Curren

Monday night with a 7-6, 6-1 victory in one of two opening matches in the $500,000 AT&T Challenge tennis tournament. Jimmy Connors defeated Yannick Noah 6-4, 7-6 in the other match at the Omni before a crowd of 12,484. In today's matches No. 1 seed

Ivan Lendl meets Andres Gomez and Stefan Edbeg faces Anders Jarryd in the round-robin format that concludes Saturday.

'I knew it was the first time we had played since Wimbledon," said McEnroe, who is seeded second

John here. "But he hasn't played in a about three months and hasn't played much in six months because of a bad ankle. It kind of takes something away from it."

McEnroe, who has now beaten Curren in eight of nine matches, started slowly and lost his serve in the third game to fall behind 2-1, but got even at 5-5 when he broke Curren's serve and then went on to win the first set in a 7.5 tiebreaker.

The second set was no contest as McEnroe broke Curren's serve in the first and third games. He jumped out to a 4-0 lead and won the set in less than 30 minutes.

"After he lost the first set I think he got a little disenchanted and I felt my game picked up," said McEnroe. "It was just a matter of time. He hadn't played much lately and he wasn't sure of himself.'
