Expert discusses farm debt

Slumping assets called key issue for farmers

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Farmers today should look at their individual assets to see if each item is paying its keep, said Dr. Wayne Hayenga, an economic-management specialist with the Texas Extension Service in College Station.

The decline of assets is a key problem area that needs to be scrutinized by farmers during these times of "terrible agricultural debt," he said, speaking to 23 persons Thursday night in the Dora Roberts Fair Building.

His presentation on financial and stress management for farm producers was sponsored by the Howard County Extension Service and its extension program building committees.

"How many articles do you see about farmers making money today?" Hayenga asked the audience.

The issue, he said, when studying the economic hardships farmers are suffering is to determine "who is in trouble."

According to figures recently released by government census experts, the U.S. farm population in 1985 suffered one of its sharpest year-to-year declines in a decade.

The loss in farm population is blamed on a continual trend of debts mounting while assets decline.

"Any asset not earning higher than your highest debt is costing you money," Hayenga said.

He suggested farmers should include all financial information in their record statements, which would reveal allocated production to direct costs.

"Keep records of how much you earn per acre," Hayenga said. "Set up several divisions within your accounting system."

If a farmer considers liquidating an asset, he should compare the loss of an asset's earning power against cash generated after paying off a secured debt.

Hayenga said when a farmer looks at his list of creditors, he "should pay the guy who if you don't pay, he'll put you out of business. That's the bottom line."

One way for farmers to gain equity, Hayenga suggested, is to find investors or property buyers who in the near future would lease the land back to you.

"People are interested in this (arrangement)," Hayenga said, "because it is an opportunity to turn some cash."

He said buyers want to lease back to farmers because "they're looking for automatic tenants."

Dr. Wayne Hayenga of the Texas Extension Service in College Station talks to a gathering of farmers and other interested parties Thursday night about solving financial problems.

Farmers can consider bankruptcy as a means of salvaging their operation temporarily if the timing is right, Hayenga said.

He suggested that bankruptcy requests be filed six months before notes or debts are due in order for farmers to qualify for Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code.

This chapter of the bankruptcy code, Hayenga said, allows a farmer to reserve some of his collateral, which is a bargaining plus for him in negotiations with creditors.

Bentsen wants Soviet embargo lifted

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas has lost thousands of jobs since the 1979 embargo of oil drilling equipment sales to the Soviet Union, says Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, who has asked the Reagan administration to lift the ban.

The embargo expires on Jan. 20, and Bentsen, D-Texas, has written to Secretary of State George Shultz, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige and Treasury Secretary James Baker asking them not to renew it.

Bentsen said the embargo cost the oilfield equipment industry 90 percent of its potential overseas orders from 1979 to 1983 at a loss of more than 8,000 jobs. He said Texas companies have borne about 50 percent of the losses.

The embargo was imposed by the Carter administration after the invasion of Afghanistan and has been maintained by the Reagan administration.

The Soviet Union is the biggest petroleum equipment market outside the United States. Exports account for about 35 percent of the U.S. oilfield equipment industry's sales.

"I have long been concerned that this country has a history of shooting itself in the foot on trade matters," Bentsen wrote to the cabinet members. "I strongly believe that we should not impose embargoes unless the target country is hurt worse than the United States is."

Bentsen said exports have dropped from about $5.3 billion in 1982 to about $3.2 billion in 1985.

He argued that the embargo does not meet the requirements of the Export Administration Act of 1985, which requires the administration to consider whether the embargoed goods are available from other countries before continuing an embargo. "Other countries can and do produce comparable equipment, and they have refused to join in this embargo," Bentsen said.

A spokesman at the State Department who asked not to be identified said the issue had also been raised by the petroleum equipment industry.

"I don't think the question is fully resolved here in the building," he said.

But he said Bentsen could expect a reply from the department soon, possibly within a week.

Shultz tells Khadafy U.S. may use force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Thursday the United States was near the "end of the road" in applying economic pressure on Libya and would consider using force, if necessary, to counter terrorism.

"We are prepared to use the means that will be effective and are necessary," Shultz said at a news conference dominated by the escalating U.S. effort to tame Khadafy.

"Force may not be the best means, but it may be necessary," he said.

Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy, meanwhile, ridiculed President Reagan as a "useless actor" and attacked the United States as "stinking" and "rotten," saying he will do whatever he can to end the U.S. military presence in the Mediterranean.

Shultz announced that he was sending his deputy, John C. Whitehead, to Europe to try to persuade U.S. allies to support the American campaign to isolate Libya economically.

With rising emotion, he suggested the Europeans, who have been dragging their feet, should look at the photographs of the mayhem at the Rome and Vienna airports after terrorists struck at the check-in counters of El Al, the Israeli airline, and other carriers.

"Other countries should take a good look, a good hard look," Shultz said.

Khadafy, at a news conference Thursday in Tripoli, said economic sanctions will have no effect on his nation. He scoffed at the U.S. position as "silly and emotional ... looked down upon by the international community."

Refusing to give up hope of support from the allies, Shultz said "people's thinking is moving, it's dynamic." He said Whitehead, a former New York investment banker, would explain the U.S. view and be "as persuasive as he can."

Reagan acted Wednesday to halt virtually all American economic activity with Libya and ordered a freeze on all of the North African country's assets in the United States and in bank branches overseas.

In Friday's editions, the Los Angeles Times quoted administration sources as saying the Libyan government transferred about $100 million from an American bank to a foreign bank Wednesday, prompting Reagan's order to freeze

GOP candidate files for Rep. Shaw's seat

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

A Big Spring Republican who says he is "no stranger to Austin" has officially filed for candidacy for 69th District state representative, a position now held by Larry Don Shaw, D-Big Spring.

Travis Floyd of 805 Edwards sent his filing fees and papers to the secretary of the state's office Wednesday.

Floyd, a commercial property holder in Big Spring who has participated in various civic organizations, said he desires the elected position because he has time to devote to it.

"Larry Don Shaw is a good friend of mine, but he hasn't gotten accomplished what we sent him to Austin for," Floyd said.

If elected to the office, Floyd said he would overhaul the Public Utility Commission in Austin "because they've raped the small businesses and people with high utility bills."

Floyd's political experience in Austin includes lobbying efforts as Environmental permit costs for Stacy Dam 'frightening'

Cost implications for obtaining an environmental permit to build Stacy Dam are "frightening," O.H. Ivie, general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, told board members Thursday.

State Sen. John Montford was present at the meeting, the first of the year for the water district board.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Department is putting pressure on the U.S. Corps of Engineers, who issue the permits, to require the district to purchase land to be set aside as a game preserve, Joe Pickle, secretary of the water district, explained after the meeting.

Preliminary figures are 10,000 to 18,000 acres for the purpose, or about 28 square miles, he said.

"We are talking about a couple of million bucks," he said.

The Texas Historical Preservation Office wants to do archaeological studies on the area, adding another $2 million to $3 million to the cost, Pickle said.

And "other miscellaneous things" may also be required for the permit, he said. The fish and

Reading partners

Older students help teach basic skills to younger ones

DALLAS (AP) — Daniel Margolies is reading aloud softly, and when asked he recalls the story "Tikki Tikki Tembo" with ease. But he has trouble when he comes to words like "glittering," "blossomed" and "frightened."

That's where his sixth-grade partner Jason Skibell comes in, to help the first-grader sound out the big words.

Near them two girls are composing a story about Hanukkah, the older one instructing the younger to erase the "e" at the end of "eae" and suggesting she write a "t" there instead.

Across the room a small round table is the scene for a spelling quiz, but other days the activity can be a word puzzle or mix-and-match game with parts of words.

Jo Pakowsky scans the clusters of children, too intent to notice visitors, and smiles as sixth-graders temporarily take over her role as teacher.

"They've really been creative," she said.

The program in operation, Reading Friends, has spread like wildfire through Solomon L. Schechter Academy in north Dallas in a year and a half and has recently received national recognition.

A synopsis and on-site study of the program led the National Council of Teachers of English to choose the school as one of 158 centers of excellence in the country, and one of seven in Texas.

First-grade teacher Zelene Lovitt created Reading Friends, which pairs older and younger students in reading, writing and other language arts activities.

"The program is based on the belief that children are knowledgeable, responsible and capable of teaching each other basic skills and positive attitudes to facilitate growth in reading and the other language arts areas," Ms. Lovitt's proposal reads.

For varying amounts of time each week, the older students go into the classrooms of the younger ones, where they choose their own books, create their own games and develop their own non-graded tests for their charges.

Teachers pre-select materials and monitor the activities, but from a distance.

Flexibility is a key to the program, as is the fact that it is voluntary, Ms. Lovitt said. She began with just her students going to the preschool room, but now the whole school of nearly 500 students is involved.

First-grader Russell Louis, left, and Matthew Levy, who is in kindergarten, share a book at the Solomon Schechter Academy in Dallas. The two are participating in a program known as Reading Friends, in which older students assist the younger ones.

"It's rewarding for everybody," she said. "The big kids feel so good. What this does is it lets good readers show their skills, but poor readers do too, because they're better than the younger kids."

The little ones "love" the program and develop a positive view of reading by sharing it with the older ones, the teachers said.

"They do a lot of mimicking," said Lois Davidson, director of the preschool, the founding section of the 6-year-old day school of Congregation Shearith Israel that now goes through sixth grade.

"They get the idea that reading is so exciting and so much fun," she said.

Recently, an audience of 2-year-olds sat still with eyes fixed on first-grader Lesly Hershman and the book in her hands, "Little Red Riding Hood."

"They sat down and I started reading, and they were so interested in it they didn't get up or anything," Lesly said.

That kind of power is not something a teacher usually holds, Ms. Lovitt said.

"I can say do this, do that, but if a child says do this, they do it," she said.

The pure enjoyment of the activity and lack of pressure, which the staff hopes will lead to a love of reading, reflects the philosophy of the school, said educational director Rabbi Edward Feinstein.

According to an old Jewish custom, on a child's first day of school the teacher writes the letters of the Hebrew alphabet in honey on a clean slate and the child licks it off, the hope being that every day thereafter spent in learning should be as sweet, Feinstein said.

"Through (Reading Friends) we find the children are really motivated," he said.

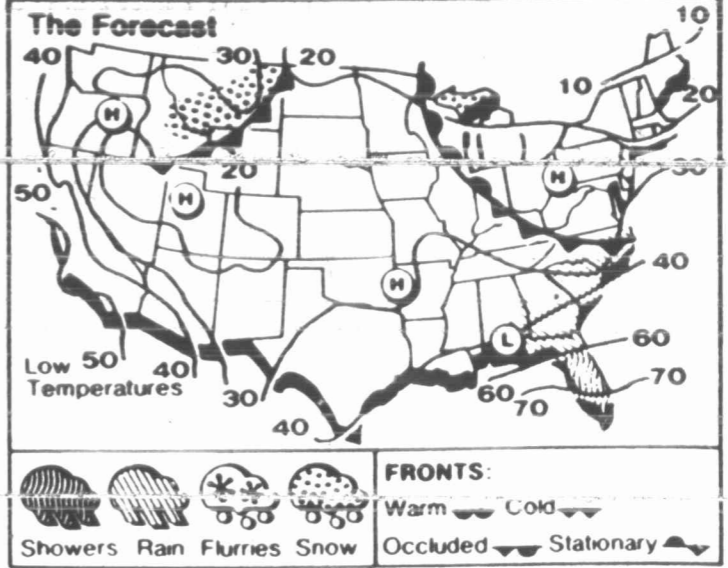

Children are reading more, said Ms. Lovitt, but there have been no tests to show if they are reading better because of the program.

"That's a big mistake that educators are making if they try to dissolve everything about reading into a test score," Feinstein said. "Excitement, responsibility, caring — how do you measure that on a standardized test?"

Ms. Lovitt said a large school district in the area has already asked her about the program, and materials are available for any teacher or district in the country through the NCTE.

"I think it's a sound program," Ms. Lovitt said. "It teaches things that are important to children. For that reason it's something I'd like to see widespread."

Weather

State

Light rain continued to dampen the upper coast and Southeast Texas this morning as a weakening upper-level disturbance over the area tracked towards the east.

Meanwhile, drier air associated with a northwest flow aloft brought clear skies to the rest of the state.

Temperatures once again were on the cold side, with most readings in the 20s and 30s and a few 40s confined to the upper coastal waters, the weather service said.

Temperature extremes at 4 a.m. ranged from 21 degrees at El Paso to 40 degrees at Galveston. Light winds prevailed, although a northerly wind of 10 to 15 mph breezed West Texas.

In the forecast, North Texas should have mostly clear skies through Saturday with lows in the 30s and highs in the 60s. West Texas should be fair through Saturday with lows in the 20s and highs in the 60s.

Governor prefers rewards

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White has rejected a proposal from Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to punish school districts where students do a poor job on performance tests, saying he prefers to reward districts doing a good job.

"We need to not penalize. We need to enhance right now our enthusiasm for educational reform," White said.

"We would hope there would be incentives for them to accomplish that. Financial would be one of them. That's always one that seems to work very well in the business community."

White's remarks to his weekly news conference Thursday followed an earlier suggestion from Hobby that state funds be taken away from school districts which have a high failure rate on the new high school graduation test.

3 plead guilty to charges

Three men entered guilty pleas in district and county courts Thursday afternoon.

Raymond Galindo, 38, of Odessa pleaded guilty in 118th District Court to burglary of a building. He received an eight-year probation sentence from District Judge James Gregg.

District Attorney Rick Hamby said Galindo attempted to burglarize a vacant house in the summer of 1985.

Lioncio Rodriguez Jr., 30, of 828 W. Seventh pleaded guilty in district court to a forgery charge.

He received a three-year probation sentence from Gregg and was also ordered to pay $200 attorney fees and $102 court costs.

Arthur Martinez Armendarez, 23, of 1008 N. Gregg entered a guilty plea in county court to a revocation of probation charge for a prior DWI judgment, according to the sheriff's log.

He is currently serving a 15-day jail sentence after his arrest on Wednesday by sheriff's deputies.

Suspect released on bonds

Howard County sheriff's deputies released William B. Killcrease, 19, of Wilcox Trailer Park from county jail Thursday afternoon on order of County Judge Milton Kirby.

The theft and driving while intoxicated suspect was released on bonds totaling $1,000.

A charge of unlawfully carrying was dropped by County Attorney Tim Yeats.

Police transferred Linda Sue Belvin, 27, of Loraine to county jail Thursday morning after she was arrested on suspicion of DWI.

She was released on $1,000 bond.

For the record

Joe Pickle, secretary of the Colorado River Municipal Water District, said he gave a wrong figure Wednesday concerning monthly charges for water set by the district board for 1986. Big Spring's monthly charge will be $80,872, not $106,482 as reported in Wednesday's Herald. This compares to $79,451 a month in 1985. Other figures in the article, including the estimated rate of 54.80 cents per 1,000 gallons for next year, were correct, he said.

Murderer executed

COLUMBIA, S.C. — James Terry Roach, who murdered two teen-agers when he was only 17, was executed today after the Supreme Court rejected his appeal and the governor refused clemency requests from the United Nations, Mother Teresa, Jimmy Carter and human rights groups. Roach, 25, was pronounced dead at 5:16 a.m., said Doug Catoe, a deputy corrections department commissioner.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — The launch of remodeled Columbia on its first flight in more than two years was postponed for a record seventh time today as wind and heavy rain belted the shuttle on its launch pad. Shell boycott urged WASHINGTON — Aiming a blow at apartheid racial policies, the AFL-CIO is calling on consumers to boycott Shell Oil Co. products until the company's multinational owners cut business ties to South Africa. Withdrawal of investments by the parent company, Royal Dutch Shell, would undermine the white-ruled South African government, union leaders said Thursday at a news conference. "We hope that the boycott will convince Shell to disinvest in South Africa," United Auto Workers President Owen Bieber said, snipping in half a gasoline credit card and urging consumers to do the same.

Accord reached on suit

CORPUS CHRISTI — The state of Texas and 32 oil companies have reached an agreement in a federal suit that could add $50 million in unclaimed oil and gas royalty revenue to state coffers. The oil companies had filed suit against state Treasurer Ann Richards and Attorney General Jim Mattox in October, claiming state law governing abandoned property was unconstitutional.

HOUSTON — A homosexual high school teacher who was transferred to a non-teaching position after he appeared in a Houston magazine with an article on AIDS was given another classroom assignment, officials said. School officials, however, declined to give details about the new teaching position.

Botha regime critical of U.S. team's visit

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Government radio today accused visiting U.S. lawmakers of interference in South Africa's affairs that slows the pace of racial reforms by harming the nation's economy. The accusation was made in the South African Broadcasting Corp.'s daily "editorial comment." The head of the six-member delegation, William Gray, D-Pa., said he had not heard the broadcast, but charges that U.S. economic sanctions meddle in South Africa's affairs was not new. "The American people have made the decision that they do not want to provide economic fuel for the engine of apartheid," Gray told The Associated Press. "If South Africans want to call that interference, that is their right, just as it is the right of the American people to decide where to invest." Gray spoke to the AP as he and the other five U.S. lawmakers spent the day at the Johannesburg offices of the South African Council of Churches meeting with representatives of anti-apartheid groups. The radio commentary said the Americans "personify a form of foreign interference in the country's affairs that has grown dramatically in popularity among a certain kind of Western politician in the last year or two." Sanctions and the lack of confidence in South Africa's economy caused by 16 months of rioting have been cited as factors in the dramatic drop in value of the rand, South Africa's currency, which makes repayment of foreign loans calculated in dollars more costly. The U.S. lawmakers met with President P.W. Botha on Wednesday and submitted a list of proposals to change apartheid, under which 5 million whites rule 24 million voteless blacks.

In other developments, police today said a black man was stoned and burned to death by a mob of blacks near Queenstown in Cape province, and that a 24-year-old black woman was hospitalized in serious condition after also being mobbed and set afire. Blacks often set upon other blacks seen as collaborators with the white-led government. Police said they arrested 30 people in the unrest near Queenstown. Rioting was also reported in eight other areas of the country overnight. Police said that near Fort Natal, on the Indian Ocean coast, officers came under sniper fire, but that no one was wounded. Police in the Durban area today hunted for clues in the twin explosions that damaged a power station Thursday and wounded five whites, including three policemen. One officer was listed in critical condition today from the blasts in the mixed-race suburb of Austerville, near the Indian Ocean port. On Thursday, the Americans toured the black squatter camp of Crossroads, outside Cape Town, and heard residents describe alleged police shootings and maimings. The white-led government has tried repeatedly to tear down Crossroads and evict its 100,000 residents. At Crossroads, Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., pledged to seek U.S. aid for the squatters. The government is trying to get them to move to a new township nearby, but Crossroads has become a symbol of the struggle between authorities trying to restrict blacks' movements and blacks who want to live outside the tribal homelands, where jobs are scarce. After touring Crossroads, the U.S. lawmakers joined a prayer meeting in Bellville at the Dutch Reformed church of the Rev. Allan Boesak, a mixed-race foe of apartheid.

Libya may retaliate

TRIPOLI, Libya — Col. Moammar Khadafy said Libya may counter American economic sanctions by freezing all U.S. assets, and that "American threats" could push the North African country closer to embracing communism. At a late Thursday news conference, Libya's radical leader accused the United States of endangering security in the Mediterranean and of acting like a "stinking, rotten crusader" toward Arabs. "This hostile position can only be explained in racist and crusade terms," Khadafy added, referring to the 11th-13th century armed expeditions by European Christians to seize the Holy Land from Moslems.

Boycott call endorsed

FEZ, Morocco — Members of the Islamic Conference Organization, urged by Libya to take their money out of the United States and boycott American products, strongly condemned U.S. sanctions against Libya and called for a response from Moslems. Libya turned the foreign ministers meeting of the organization into an anti-American forum for the second time in three days on Thursday. The resolution passed by the conference followed a milder declaration Tuesday of "firm solidarity" with Libya. Both measures were approved unanimously by the 45-member organization.

Resignation splits party

LONDON — The governing Conservative Party was reported today to be split "top to bottom" over the resignation of Defense Secretary Michael Heseltine, who declared that honor dictated he quit in a dispute over the sale of a helicopter company. After stalling out of a Cabinet meeting Thursday, Heseltine told a news conference he quit because Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was trying to silence his campaign against a U.S.-led takeover of Britain's only helicopter manufacturer, Westland PLC.

Nobel Prize winner dies

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — Jaroslav Seifert, winner of the 1984 Nobel Prize for Literature and the nation's best-loved contemporary poet, died during the night at age 84, friends of his family said today. Seifert, who had been suffering for years from a variety of ailments, including heart problems, died in Strahov Hospital, said the family friends. They spoke on condition they not be identified. Seifert wrote poetry for more than six decades, and proved that art could withstand repression, war and obscurity.

Palestinian group bitter

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Palestinian group accused of staging last month's raids on two European airports vowed in a statement published today to avenge the death of an Egyptian policeman convicted of murdering seven Israelis.

Bomb threat turns out to be hoax

ROME (AP) — An Air France jetliner flying to Greece with 111 people aboard made an unscheduled landing at Leonardo da Vinci airport today after an anonymous caller telephoned a bomb threat, police reported. A preliminary search by police bomb experts turned up no explosives aboard the Airbus 300, police said. The jet was flying over the southern Italian city of Naples on a flight from Paris to Athens, Greece, when flight controllers ordered it to land at Rome's airport, police said. Police said an anonymous telephone caller told an Olympic Airways office in Athens that a bomb was hidden on the plane.

Opinion

Steve Chapman

Female illusion or male delusion

It is widely but wrongly believed that the female is the more vain of the human sexes. Women, to be sure, are not entirely blameless for this inaccurate stereotype. After all, many of them do things that have no earthly value beyond embellishing their appearance — wearing high-heeled shoes, shaving their legs, painting their lips, streaking their hair, curling their eyelashes.

But women are not entirely to blame for their attachment to empty ornamentation. Women don't punish their feet with six-inch spike heels because they like them, but because men do. It's not the fault of the average woman that men are suckers for the Morgan Fairchild look. Rather than squander their allotted days in the futile task of trying to raise the low aesthetic standards of the male, most women reluctantly elect to go along with them.

Still, if you want to see real vanity, don't visit the cosmetics counter at Nieman Marcus. Just walk down a busy Chicago street on one of those Arctic days that enliven our winters, and count all the men without hats. It is a rare woman vain enough to risk frostbite of the cerebellum, but plenty of men do it all the time.

This is foolishness on the order of building a bonfire on a gas station's driveway, or getting on a flight to Beirut without making out a will. No sane person would do it. On a typically bitter Chicago day, with a stiff wind blowing, exposed flesh can be transformed into permafrost in a matter of minutes.

I don't need the weatherman to tell me that. When I first moved here several Januarys ago, accustomed to the blistering summers of my native Texas, I once set out hatless across the Michigan Avenue bridge. Halfway across, my head felt as if it were going to explode from the cold. Needing no more evidence, I sprinted to the nearest store to buy a hat, determined never to step outside on a winter day without one. Some days I'm tempted to wear two.

A lot of lifelong Chicagoans aren't so smart. It can be 20 degrees below zero, with heavy snow falling and the wind howling off Lake Michigan, and some men will stride down the street with no cranial covering, trying to convince themselves it's July.

There are two possible explanations for his defiance of basic rules of self-preservation. The first is an excessive regard for appearance. Half of the guys sporting hats display grand heads of hair — lovingly coiffed, combed and sprayed. They would no sooner muss their creations with a hat than Helmut Jahn would build bungalows. In this vanity, they easily surpass the average Chicago woman, who will spoil a $75 permanent rather than voluntarily endure frigid torture.

But some of the hatless ones have the most nondescript hair, and some have none at all. This group, I suspect, is motivated by a blind impulse to show their physical toughness, regarding hats as manifestations of effeminacy. Of course, this attitude makes no sense, in light of all the macho icons who have made a habit of covering their heads, from Davy Crockett and Ulysses S. Grant to John Wayne and George Patton. And how about all those wimps wearing helmets in the National Football League? But irrationality is no bar to masculine ideals.

The real problem is that men who go hatless in a Chicago winter suffer something resembling outright lunacy, marked by an inability to distinguish reality from fantasy. They persuade themselves that people gazing upon their uncovered heads will think, "Such a handsome head of hair!" or "What a tough guy!" In fact, anyone with minimal intelligence will have only one thought: "Here is an idiot."

Women who spend hours primping at least do so with a soberly realistic attitude, avoiding efforts that will earn them only ridicule. Their eagerness to be admired is nothing compared to the absurd delusions of winter's hatless hordes. But if you want to freeze your brain, go right ahead. Me? I'd sooner curl my eyelashes.

Taiwan expertise pays off

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — There is a strong Oriental influence in the ambitious psychological warfare being waged against leftists in Latin America.

The two sources of this bizarre trans-Pacific cooperation are the government of Taiwan and Causa International. The latter is a political movement run by former South Korean CIA Col. Bo Hi Pak, longtime right-hand man to the Rev. Sun Myung Moon.

The United States may be providing the money that fuels the Salvadoran government's fight against leftist guerrillas, but the "real expertise" comes from Taiwan. This is the word of Salvadoran military authorities, including two members of the armed forces' chief of staff. "The Taiwanese are the real masters" of anti-communist defense, one of them told Jon Lee Anderson.

The Nationalist Chinese regime on Taiwan was established by the late Chiang Kai-shek 36 years ago when he was driven off the Chinese mainland by Mao Tse-tung's communist armies. As experts in survival, the Taiwanese government holds invitation-only courses in political warfare for Latin American military officers, teaching them how to combat communism — and how to profit from Chiang's mistakes.

The beneficiaries of Taiwan's instruction have repaid their teachers by maintaining diplomatic relations with Taipei long after most countries have dropped the Nationalists in favor of Peking.

Causa International, generously financed by Moon's Unification Church, employs similar techniques, inviting Latin American military men and influential civilians on all-expenses-paid trips abroad for seminars on common problems. Causa's influence is especially pervasive in Uruguay and Honduras.

Also deeply involved in Latin America is the far-flung World Anti-Communist League, originally set up by the South Korean and Taiwanese governments in the late 1960s. In the summer of 1984, Anderson met a military instructor sent by the Japanese chapter of the league to train Miskito Indians fighting the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua.

By then the league was already the key vehicle for aid to the Nicaraguan contras, with behind-the-scenes encouragement from high Reagan administration officials. Contra leaders have acknowledged that Taiwan has supplied them with military hardware.

The World Anti-Communist League's current president is retired Maj. Gen. John Singlaub, whose ties with the Taiwanese and South Korean governments go back many years. Singlaub was an operative with the Office of Strategic Services (the World War II predecessor of the CIA) in China, where he served as a liaison officer to Chiang Kai-shek.

In the late 1970s, Singlaub commanded American troops in South Korea, until he was forced to retire after publicly rebuking President Carter for suggesting the possible withdrawal of U.S. troops from the country.

In addition to his success as a fund-raiser for the contras, Singlaub maintains his ties to the two Asian anti-communist governments. Latin American members of the league also said it was through Singlaub that they received invitations to Causa International seminars in South Korea.

The influence of the World Anti-Communist League in El Salvador is illustrated by the fact that its literature is in the waiting rooms of supreme court justices and in the offices of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's advisers.

RISEING STAR: Bureaucrats in Foggy Bottom are green with envy over the rocket-like rise of Allan Keyes, who at 35 is the newly appointed assistant secretary of state for international organizations. Keyes, a Ph.D. from Harvard, was "discovered" by former U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick when he was a junior Foreign Service officer at the Bombay consulate. She brought him to the U.N., where he won ambassadorial rank, and continued up the ladder after Mrs. Kirkpatrick left.

Lebanese refugee camps breed militancy

By ED BLANCHE
BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The battered, squalid refugee camps of Lebanon are breeding a new generation of militant young Palestinians who are being recruited by extremist factions blamed for a chain of terrorist attacks, including the Rome and Vienna airport massacres.

Mohammed Sarhan, 19, the sole survivor of four Palestinians who attacked the El Al Israeli airline desk at Rome airport Dec. 27, came from Beirut's notorious Chatilla camp. Sixteen people died in the Rome attack. Three more, including a gunman, were slain in a similar attack in Vienna the same day.

Two Palestinians jailed in Cyprus for killing three Israelis in Larnaca Sept. 25 also came from Chatilla.

They represent a generation of Palestinians living in the shantytown camps in Lebanon, Jordan and Syria where conditions have been steadily deteriorating for years amid wars, political crackdowns and economic recession. Disillusionment with Yasser Arafat's efforts for rapprochement with Israel and the dismemberment of his Palestine Liberation Organization as a result of Israel's 1982 invasion have heightened militancy among the camps' young men.

In addition, a resurgence in the belief that only terrorism will achieve the dream of a Palestinian homeland has driven many young men into the ranks of headline factions like Abu Nidal's Fatah-Revolutionary Council, a Palestinian splinter group.

Abu Nidal has become the world's most wanted man after a spate of bloody terrorist attacks in Europe and the Middle East blamed on him and his followers.

U.S. and Israeli officials say he was responsible for the Rome and Vienna bloodbaths, the hijacking of an Egyptian airliner in which more than 60 people were slain and dozens of other attacks. Western intelligence reports say that in recent months he has recruited young militants from the camps and now has several hundred activists in Lebanon, Syria and Libya.

The camps in Lebanon, once the center of Arafat's "state within a state" when the PLO virtually ruled much of the country, have been the target of Christian, Moslem and Israeli forces.

Right-wing Christian militiamen slaughtered hundreds of Palestinians and Moslems there and in the neighboring Sabra camp in September 1982 while Israeli troops surrounded the camps.

One of the Palestinians jailed in Cyprus, Khaled Abdel Kader Khatib, a 28-year-old student, said his family was wiped out in the Chatilla massacre.

Sarhan is reported to have told Italian investigators that "suicide squads" of young Palestinians who survived the 1982 massacres have been formed in Lebanon.

Last summer, Syrian-backed Shiite Moslems overran much of Chatilla during a bloody five-week war against Beirut's camps. More than 650 people were killed and some 2,500 wounded.

Sabra was overwhelmed after tenacious resistance. Many buildings that survived the shelling were dynamited and bulldozed.

Only Bourj el-Barajneh, the largest of Beirut's camps, held out.

But nearly every house in a 100-yard-deep belt around the ramshackle shantytown, where sewage runs in open drains in the narrow alleyways, is riddled with bullet and shell holes. Many are uninhabitable.

Hasne Amkar's two-story cement block house was shredded by rocket-propelled grenades and machine-gun fire. She lives there with her four daughters and two of her

Around The Rim

A patriotic Super Bowl

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Ladies — the men in your lives will regain their normal behavior sometime next week.

The maddening National Football League's 1985 season will finally wind down to two teams.

In two weeks, the Chicago Bears and New England Patriots will battle in a rather anticlimactic Super Bowl XX.

No — it's not a misprint. I'm going with the Patriots. They're long overdue for a victory against Miami in the Orange Bowl.

Furthermore, they've been humiliated by the media for not beating the Dolphins in the Orange Bowl in the last 18 tries.

To win in the NFL this year — you had to win the war in the trenches.

Golden boys who held out at the start of the season for more money because of their slinging arms did grab some of the limelight. Why heck, they were even highlighted in television commercials featuring hand gloves and Diet Pepsi.

But, as any refrigerator could tell you, the players who hit hardest this year usually walked away victorious.

And I dread to think how New England is going to come out a hit-in' on Sunday.

Crack — one for the Patriot grand old man and inspirational leader, Julius Adams, a 15-year defensive lineman who is going to retire at season's end. New England drafted him in the second round of 1971's NFL draft. The Texas Southern product has been a loyal company man to say the least.

Crunch — one for the team as a whole who lost a disheartening 30-27 contest to Miami on Dec. 16. The Patriots battled back the entire game, but were denied their first AFC East Championship since 1978 when Marino and company lucked out again.

Pop — one for head coach Raymond Berry who has molded a team of hot heads into a unified group ready to defy the odds again this Sunday.

Like the revolutionary war heroes they are named after — it's time to tip the throne guys and gain your own independence from the domain of Marino and company.

Dear Abby

Mom says child's room is castle

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of a 13-year-old son. I believe if a child wants his bedroom to be messy, with clothes and other belongings strewn all over the place — on chairs, doorknobs, the floor — so be it.

The bedroom is supposed to be a private, comfortable place a child can call his own. How can that be when parents holler, scream, yell and threaten at whatever trips their trigger?

My son will be brought up to know that his bedroom is his — not mine.

I don't know how many others would agree with me, but I was raised by a mother who screamed, yelled and threatened me if my room wasn't in perfect order, and all I have is bad memories of my childhood.

MODERN MOM
IN ENID, OKLA.

DEAR MOM: Kids (especially messy ones) will love your letter. Mothers will hate it. Me? I say, keep the doors to the kids' rooms closed, and go in once a week to rake them.

I would, however, insist on one rule: If there is any snacking in the bedroom, all dishes and leftovers should be taken to the kitchen before bedtime.

DEAR ABBY: Please help me. I am 28 and the mother of two darling children. I've been happily married for five years and I really love my husband. He's good to me and the kids, but here's the problem: I am very much attracted to my husband's brother, and he's attracted to me. We kid around and flirt a lot, but haven't done anything about it except maybe a quick kiss in the kitchen. Abby, it's getting harder and harder to fight these feelings.

Maybe if I have a fast fling with this guy and get it over with, I will finally get him out of my system.

What do you think?

ALL IN THE FAMILY

DEAR ALL: I think you should try harder to fight these feelings. No flirting, no eye contact, no kidding around, and no quick kisses in the kitchen or anywhere else.

Forget the fast fling. It could fling your marriage right into the divorce court.

Dr. Donohue

Coughing not sign of emphysema

Dear Dr. Donohue: My father's doctor told him he has emphysema. He has smoked for 42 years and has finally quit. The dictionary doesn't tell much about emphysema. My father doesn't have a cough. He's 59 and does have shortness of breath. Could you please tell him something about emphysema and what he can do now? — S.G.

Let me try to describe what happens in emphysema.

The air sacs of your lungs look a little like clusters of tiny bubbles. To get into the blood, air has to pass through those bubbles. If the air sacs break down and if dense scar tissue fills them, oxygen from the air can't get through. You become breathless with the slightest exertion. That's emphysema, and cigarette-smoking is the No. 1 cause.

Coughing is not a sign of emphysema. Many people have it and cough because they also have its twin ailment, bronchitis, irritation of the breathing tubes. I'm surprised that your father doesn't have a cough, but absence of that is in his favor. And he's stopped smoking.

so that should stop emphysema's progress, even though he won't be able to undo the lung damage already done.

What your father must do now is try to make the best of an admittedly bad situation. He can begin training his body to adapt to the oxygen shortage created by emphysema. By that I mean he should find exercises he can do within his present endurance and within limits set by his doctor. With exercise, muscles can learn to use all the oxygen available to them, even from a somewhat poor supply.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in this column whenever possible.

Church career 'dream come true'

By CAROL BALDWIN
Staff Writer

Bob Beasley, new director of the music, education and youth programs at Baptist Temple Church, said his position with the church is "a dream come true."

Beasley is a longtime Big Spring resident. He worked for Phillips Memorial Baptist Church for six years as a part-time music director, Emmanuel Baptist Church for two years on a part-time basis, and for Baptist Temple, located at 400 11th Pl., on a part-time basis for a year before the full-time position at Baptist Temple Church opened up.

During those years, Beasley explained that he was bi-vocational. Because the church couldn't afford to pay him for a full-time position, he worked in various other jobs, including positions at Prager's Men's Wear and at Gentleman's Corner. Recently, "the opportunity opened up to work full time," Beasley said. "I've been preparing for this for 14 years."

Beasley and his family moved to Big Spring in 1962 and he graduated from Big Spring High School. He later attended Arlington Baptist College and studied music.

"I knew when I went to Arlington Baptist College that the Lord had a particular work in mind for me," he said.

His new duties at Baptist Temple Church will include working with all choirs. He views the choirs "as an outreach program to involve people in music and to present the gospel to them through music."

He hopes to start a hand bell choir and to start a youth choir in the near future. The church already has adult and children's choirs.

In his educational duties, Beasley will be building a Sunday School program "that meets the needs of all ages and allow children and adults the opportunity to grow as a Christian."

Beasley hopes that the church will add a youth director to the staff in the future. "I want to find someone who can be available for young people," he said. Until a new staff member is added, Beasley will be serving in that capacity.

Pastor of Baptist Temple Church is Logan Peterson. Beasley and Peterson have worked together for three years.

Beasley and his wife, Marlina, have two children, Todd, 10, and Vanessa, 4. His parents, Paul and Betty Beasley, are also Big Spring residents.

Criswell hoping to find successor

DALLAS (AP) — The 76-year-old pastor of the largest Southern Baptist church says he hopes to find a young successor sometime this year who could be groomed to take over the post.

The Rev. W.A. Criswell, who has pastored the 26,000-member First Baptist Church of Dallas for 41 years, said, "I am in my 77th year. It just stands to reason I cannot be here forever."

"My prayer is we will find a younger man to come here to our church and work with me..." he said recently.

Criswell said that after a search committee locates the right pastor, "I could hope to work with him two years."

He speculated that he probably would become senior pastor once his successor is found, and the two of them would both deliver sermons during a period of transition, which could last two years.

"It would be wonderful if we could find someone before the end of this year," Criswell said.

Speculation about Criswell's plans arose after his annual state of the church address on Sunday when he spoke of biblical leaders whose work was carried on without interruption by young successors.

But so far, he has no one in mind to lead the congregation, which is not only the largest but is considered the wealthiest with a $12 million budget.

Criswell said he considers the physical growth of First Baptist into a massive complex that covers five blocks in the heart of downtown to be one of his congregation's greatest achievements.

The pastor confirmed that his annual salary is around $90,000 and that the church provides him with a wardrobe and a new car every year.

In 1984, on his 40th anniversary with the church, his grateful congregation gave him a black Mercedes. His parsonage in a fashionable historic district is a mansion filled with antiques he and his wife have collected in their travels.

AIDS reactions labeled 'flawed'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

The keen and often revealing mixture of human reaction to the spread of AIDS sometimes bears strong religious implications.

Along with the general fears, the malady has unleashed varied emotions and attitudes ranging from solely clinical to harshly condemnatory.

Numerous church thinkers repudiate both responses as flawed, aiming the sharpest rebukes at smug views of the disease as God's judgment on homosexual activity.

That latent notion has surfaced in some strictly conservative commentaries since the fatal affliction has struck mainly among homosexuals.

Some people, including Christians, often have "reacted with condemnation rather than compassion," writes the Rev. Russell T. Hitt in the evangelical monthly, Eternity.

He says such attitudes have made AIDS victims the "new lepers," outcasts like those to whom Jesus so often ministered, enjoining Christians to do likewise.

Some major denominations, notably the Episcopal Church and several Roman Catholic dioceses in New York, San Francisco and elsewhere, have launched special ministries in behalf of AIDS sufferers.

"This is not a matter for pointing a finger, but for offering a helping hand," says Roman Catholic Archbishop Patrick Flores of San Antonio, Texas.

The Episcopal Church, whose general convention repudiated "any and all indiscriminate statements which condemn or reject" AIDS victims, inaugurated a churchwide program of help to them.

Nevertheless, the idea of divine retribution for homosexual activity continues to crop up, and evangelical publications have dealt with it most openly and seriously.

One of the ablest examinations of it came from theologian Cornelius Plantinga Jr. of Calvin College, Grand Rapids, Mich., who criticizes both the ignoring of the problem's moral dimensions and looking down on its victims.

"If there is a divine judgment on unrighteousness, we may take God's word for it that there is also, perhaps more severe judgment on self-righteousness," he writes in the fortnightly Christianity Today.

"For those of us not tormented by the appetite for promiscuous sex, a more sinister temptation gleams — the desire to toss and gore public offenders until the last rag of their humanity has been shredded.

"The need to be... comforted by the sins of others puts us at final risk with God as surely as if we traveled the fast track on the streets of San Francisco. In fact, our risk is likely to be greater..."

"The misery that comes from human fallibility typically evoked not Jesus' condemnation but his compassion. He asked the chance to eat with sinners. Nobody else did. He touched lepers. Nobody else did..."

"It is a grave mistake to underestimate sin and strive for no-fault moralities... But it is an even greater mistake to underestimate... the reach of divine compassion. Sin is not acceptable to God; repentant sinners are."

Plantinga also faults the "ulterior response to AIDS, the 'pious humanist' media reactions that shun moral aspects of the problem, considering the notion of sin irrational, stressing only that science must be mobilized against the menace.

"Once more, technology must be trusted to clean up after the party," he says of that view.

For the most part, he says, the media treats AIDS as "tragedy without tragic flaw; hopes for remission of disease but no prayers for remission of sin; fear without phobia; danger without wrongdoing; poised alarm; no-fault scandal; technological sanctification."

Nevertheless, he says, serious Christians recognize that "God is not mocked. When someone sins, someone pays. A seed wrongly sown may yield a bitter harvest. Happy heterosexuals who ignore their spouses and children cannot hope for solid homes.

"Nicotine-stained souls should not be surprised by the dreaded report that one day comes back from a lab. We should all know by now that drunkenness yields hangovers and deaths, greed produces stress and enmity, promiscuity issues in diseases.

"The notion that we shouldn't bother our heads over private immorality (the kind that 'doesn't hurt anyone') suddenly seems naive and fantastic."

Church news

Indians are subject of study

The Women of the First Church of God met recently. Betty Reagan, missionary education director, introduced a lesson on "Native Americans of the U.S.A."

Reagan talked about Native Americans and emphasized the importance of recognizing their lack of response to the gospel.

Renae Loy, spiritual life director, brought the worship, using Acts 17:24-28. She also read an Indian prayer written by Chief Yellow Lark.

The next meeting is Feb. 3 at the church.

Derek Prince to speak

Derek Prince will speak at the new Holiday Inn Country Villa Convention Center at 4300 W. Highway 80 in Midland Jan. 14-16 at 7:30 p.m. nightly.

He will meet with the Midland Ministerial Association on Thursday, Jan. 16, at noon at First Baptist Church in Midland.

Prince was born in India. His parents were British. He studied at Eton College in England and Cambridge University. He has been an evangelist for more than 40 years. His radio program is heard on more than 60 stations in the U.S., China, India, Australia, New Zealand, East Africa, the Caribbean and Central and South America.

Prince will also speak to the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church on Jan. 15 at 10 a.m.

Space scarcity puts squeeze on Austin hospital

AUSTIN, (AP) — Dangerous mental patients at Austin State Hospital are being housed on wards with non-violent patients because the maximum security unit at Rusk State Hospital has been full for six months, the Austin American-Statesman reported today.

As an alternative to Rusk, Austin State Hospital officials have tried various methods to keep violent mental patients quiet. One large patient who throws furniture is given Oreo cookies several times a day to keep him calm, the newspaper said.

Mental health officials see no end to the crowding at Rusk, and have decided to expand the state's only maximum security unit for the mentally ill by opening a new building there, the newspaper said.

Officials told the paper the Rusk unit is mostly filled with mentally ill criminals and those judged incompetent to stand trial, not state hospital patients.

"So far, we haven't had anybody killed or had anybody maimed," said Kenny Dudley, superintendent of Austin State Hospital. "There hasn't been a tragedy — yet. "But we've got people who are manifestly dangerous, and they're not supposed to be here," Dudley said. "We're kind of just left in limbo. We can't get people out of here in a hurry who are actually out and having problems."

Although Rusk's maximum security unit has been filled almost every day since June, Austin State Hospital has continued to hold disciplinary hearings to determine whether violent patients are "manifestly dangerous." Manifestly dangerous patients routinely had been sent to Rusk, but recently only those violent enough to cause emergency alarm have been accepted for transfer, Dudley said.

The remainder have been returned to their wards. Dudley said the hospital had five patients Wednesday who had been declared dangerous, including two on a ward of 20 patients.

Some workers at Austin State Hospital say they are afraid to work near the dangerous patients who should have been sent to Rusk.

A mental health worker who cares for the patient who is given cookies said the man "is always on the verge of exploding. He's like a gorilla."

The man was declared dangerous after he "threw tables across the day room and against the wall," said the worker, who asked not to be identified. "He also threw two heavy wooden chairs."

The other patients were gouging furniture. I was sweeping up sawdust afterward."

"It's a spooky situation," said a nurse on the same ward. "It's very unpredictable. The workers are real apprehensive. They'll do just about anything these people want to keep them calm."

"It's very difficult to get the patients to cooperate," the nurse said. "They don't have to if they don't want to." But the nurse said a "cookie program" has been working for the large male patient.

Dudley acknowledged use of the cookie program and said "At least they're doing something."

Dr. John White, superintendent of Rusk State Hospital, said his 305-bed maximum security unit had 296 patients Wednesday. "At least 250 are in the criminal justice system," he said.

"They're picking up people on minor criminal charges and sending them to us. That's perfectly legal," he said.

PLO's Abbas to combat 'terrorism'

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — A newspaper said today Palestinian leader Mohammed Abbas, wanted in connection with the hijacking of an Italian cruise ship, has called for a meeting of revolutionary groups to discuss "U.S. terrorism."

The Irish Times today published an interview it said it conducted with Abbas at an undisclosed location. It did not say when the interview was conducted.

The byline on the article was Faris Glubb, a British writer who has long had close contacts with the PLO.

The United States has offered a $250,000 reward for information leading to Abbas' arrest. Italy has also issued an arrest warrant for Abbas in connection with the hijacking of the Achille Lauro cruise ship on Oct. 7 and the death of an American passenger, Leon Klinghoffer.

Abbas, also known as Abul Abbas, is a member of the executive committee of the Palestine Liberation Organization and heads a section of the Palestine Liberation Front, a PLO branch.

The Irish Times quoted Abbas as saying the Palestine Liberation Front "has invited international revolutionary parties and forces to hold a secret conference to decide jointly on the best means to combat U.S. terrorism internationally."

Abbas was quoted as saying he had received some positive responses to his invitation. "The results of this conference will be announced in a subsequent public communique in a way that does not conflict with requirements of secrecy," Abbas was quoted as saying.

He was quoted as saying the United States has declared war on the PLO and the Palestinian people.

"This must be confronted by a declaration of war," he was quoted as saying. "America and imperialism are on one side, and we with all the revolutionary forces, all the forces which have been targets of U.S. terrorism, are on the other side. These forces are not negligible."

The Irish Times said Abbas denied the Achille Lauro hijackers killed Klinghoffer, an elderly Jewish man from New York City. Abbas was quoted as calling Klinghoffer "this elderly man who may have died of hunger, fear, illness or neglect, since everyone was in an exceptional situation and nobody paid attention to him."

Hawk Classic kicks off tonight

The Howard College Hawk Classic will get underway tonight at 7:30 when the Midland College Chapparrals, the nation's fourth-ranked junior college team, takes on Murray State (OK) Junior College at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The Hawks will get back into action after a lengthy Christmas break Saturday night (7:30 p.m.) when they take on Murray St.

The Chaps, who bring a sparkling 18-0 record into tonight's game, lead the Western Junior College Athletic Conference with a 3-0 record and are considered odds-on favorite to capture the league crown this year. Led by guard Ricky Grace with a 15.2 point average, the Chaps balanced offense is averaging 87 points per game, while giving up an average of 70.

Murray State JC, which brings a deceiving 7-6 record into the Friday contest, has an excellent squad, said Howard coach Ed Sparling. Sparling says that the Oklahoma should be tough. "Murray State plays in a very tough conference in Oklahoma and their pre-conference schedule has been brutal. They're a better team than their record indicates."

Sparling welcomed back all but two of his players from the first semester. The most conspicuous absentee was leading scorer Bruce Kimble who was an academic casualty and will not be able to play the rest of the season. Kimble, a second-team All-Region performer in 1984-85 for the Hawks, was the third leading scorer in the WJCAC this year with a 20.4 average.

Freshman reserve post player Larry Thompson is the other Hawk not with the team in the second semester. He has transferred to the University of Texas-El Paso and is working days for the Federal Atomic Commission in White Sands, New Mexico.

Sparling said that the team would not be devastated by the loss of Kimble despite his obvious talents. "We'll put Mike McCall at his natural position in place of Bruce at shooting forward. Naturally, we're going to miss Bruce's scoring and his leadership, but the men realize that he isn't coming back and their determined to get the job done."

The Hawks will get back into WJCAC action Monday night when they face Midland College at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Queens nip Temple in Odessa Classic

ODESSA — The Howard College Hawks Queens held off a hard charging Temple JC squad Thursday afternoon, 57-54, in the first round of the Odessa Women's Classic Chamber of Commerce Tournament at Odessa College gymnasium.

The Queen avenged an early season defeat at the hands of Temple. They did it with balanced scoring from the five starters and a pair of clutch free throws by freshman guard Terri Powell that iced the contest with four seconds left in the game.

Freshman post Carolyn Willandt led the Queens with 15 points, hitting seven of ten shots from the field. Willandt's teammate in the paint, freshman Sophia Ish also had an outstanding game collecting 12 points and a game-high 12 rebounds. Powell chipped in 12 points on the day and sophomore forward Lorri French also added 12 points.

Temple was led by sophomore forward Joyce Boudreaux with 30 points.

The Queens raised their record to 6-10 with the win and now face South Plains JC, who defeated Panola JC 69-55 in their first round game, in the

Lendl undefeated in AT&T tennis action

ATLANTA (AP) — Yannick Noah made him fight for the distinction, but Ivan Lendl remained the only undefeated player in the $500,000 AT&T Challenge Tennis tournament by pulling out a victory with a 10-8 third-set tiebreaker.

The 6-3, 6-7, 7-6 victory over Noah marked the second time in two nights Lendl was extended to three sets.

Lendl faces John McEnroe, upset by Stefan Edberg earlier Thursday, at 7 p.m. EST tonight. Jimmy Connors and Edberg meet in the other semifinal this afternoon.

Doubles competition begins today, with Stan Smith and Bob Lutz facing Kevin Curren and Mark Dickson in the afternoon session. Edberg and Anders Jarryd meet Andres Gomez and Jaime Yzaga at night.

Edberg said he served and returned serves better than at any time previous to his 6-3, 7-6 first-time victory over McEnroe.

McEnroe had won all three of his previous matches with Edberg in straight sets.

Edberg broke McEnroe's serve in the fourth game of the first set. There were no service breaks in the second set, but McEnroe had an early lead in the tiebreaker when he broke Edberg for 2-0. Edberg came back with overpowering returns and serves. At one point McEnroe broke his racket when he slammed it to the ground in frustration.

Earlier Thursday, Connors returned to the court only 15 hours after losing a 2½-hour match to Lendl to defeat Gomez 6-0, 3-6, 6-2.

In the other afternoon match, Curren downed Jarryd 6-4, 6-1.

Connors, 33, had battled Lendl until almost 10 p.m. Wednesday — losing 6-3, 5-7, 6-1 — and was back at The Omni sports complex for Thursday's 1 p.m. match.

Curren needed only 25 minutes to take the second set from Jarryd and win his first match of the round-robin tournament.

After breaking Jarryd's serve in the eighth game of the first set, Curren didn't let Jarryd come close in the second, breaking serve in the first, third and final games.

The exhibition tournament brings together eight of the world's top players. McEnroe, who heads one four-man group, won the inaugural event last year in Las Vegas. Lendl leads the other team.

Two players from each group will meet in today's semifinals with the winner of Saturday's nationally televised final collecting $150,000. The runner-up receives $100,000.

Martina advances in Virginia Slims play

WASHINGTON (AP) — Martina Navratilova looking across the net into tennis' future and found the image of herself a dozen years ago.

Advancing into the quarterfinals of the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Washington Tennis Championships, downed Susan Sloane in straight sets.

Lining up against the 15-year-old Kentucky teen-ager, the youngest player in the 32-woman field, Navratilova said she saw herself more than a dozen years ago when she was the up-and-coming youngster meeting the world's best.

"I started to think about the first time I played Chris (Evert Lloyd), I was 16. I said 'bonzat, here I go.' You're just so excited you don't feel any pressure when you're that age," she said.

Sloane, who was ranked for the first time on the Association of Tennis Professionals at No. 241 this week, admitted she was a little in awe of her surroundings.

"I couldn't believe it was Martina," said the diminutive schoolgirl, smiling through her braces.

Combining powerful groundstrokes and pinpoint passing, Sloane split the first four games of the match, pulling even 2-2 after breaking Navratilova in the fourth game. "She surprised me by how hard she hit and she got to some really tough balls," Navratilova admitted.

Finding her opponent a little more than she expected, Navratilova merely turned her own game up a notch.

After winning the last two games to capture the first set, Navratilova needed just 19 minutes to oust Sloane in the final set.

"I played the best I could, I couldn't have done anything more," said Sloane. "Her approach shots are just so deep you don't get a second chance."

The victory moved Navratilova, the tournament's No. 1 seed and defending champion into the quarterfinals where she will meet fifth-seeded Zina Garrison.

"The matches between us are always good, going three sets. Zina usually brings out the best in me," said Navratilova.

Also advancing into the quarterfinals on Thursday were Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany and Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova.

Kohde-Kilsch, the tournament's third seed, defeated Australia's Wendy Turnbull 6-4, 6-4. Sukova, seeded sixth, ousted Yugoslavia's Sabrina Goleš 6-0, 6-4.

LSU falls from unbeaten ranks

By The Associated Press
Louisiana State basketball Coach Da'le Brown was thinking of going back to the drawing board — not to draw on it, but to break it.

The eighth-ranked Tigers lost their first game of the season Thursday night, bowing 83-67 to Alabama at Tuscaloosa. Crimson Tide Coach Wimp Sanderson called the Southeastern Conference victory "one of the biggest" in his school's basketball history.

"It's the same group of guys that came in 14-0, so you have a tendency to come in and ask 'Should you put your fist through the blackboard?'" Brown said afterward, "and that's the way the league is, the way the competition is."

Buck Johnson, the leading scorer in the SEC with a 22.5 average, scored 29 points and had 10 rebounds for Alabama, 9-3.

Other Top Twenty results: No. 1 North Carolina 92, Fordham 68; No. 5 Georgia Tech 85, Rutgers 46; No. 6 Memphis State 73, No. 17 Louisville 71; No. 12 Nevada-Las Vegas 85, Pacific University 80; No. 14 Alabama-Birmingham 72, Virginia Commonwealth 79 in overtime, and No. 20 Purdue 88, Michigan State 83.

Alabama led 40-31 at halftime and built its lead to as many as 17 points with 7:14 to play. Tide forward Jim Farmer's steal and breakaway slam dunk made the score 50-33.

"They probably would have beaten a lot of teams tonight, and we probably would have lost to a lot of teams," Brown said, "because I thought they took all of our momentum from us."

John Williams paced LSU with 16 points.

Top Ten

Brad Daugherty scored a career-high 33 points, 23 in the first half, to lead unbeaten North Carolina over Fordham in a Madison Square Garden doubleheader. The 15-0 Tar Heels led by 32 points with 11:53 to play, when Coach Dean Smith sent in his reserves. The Tar Heels led only 21-19 when they outscored Fordham 20-2, led by Daugherty's 10 points. James Robinson topped the Rams with 16 points.

John Salley and Mark Price scored 16 points apiece as Georgia Tech romped over Rutgers in the second game of the doubleheader, winning its 12th straight game. The Yellow Jackets, 13-1, matched the second-best start in their history, leading by as much as 82-34 with 5:21 left. Tech outscored Rutgers 12-5 at the start of the second half, then went on a 14-2 run to lead 70-31 with 10:11 to play.

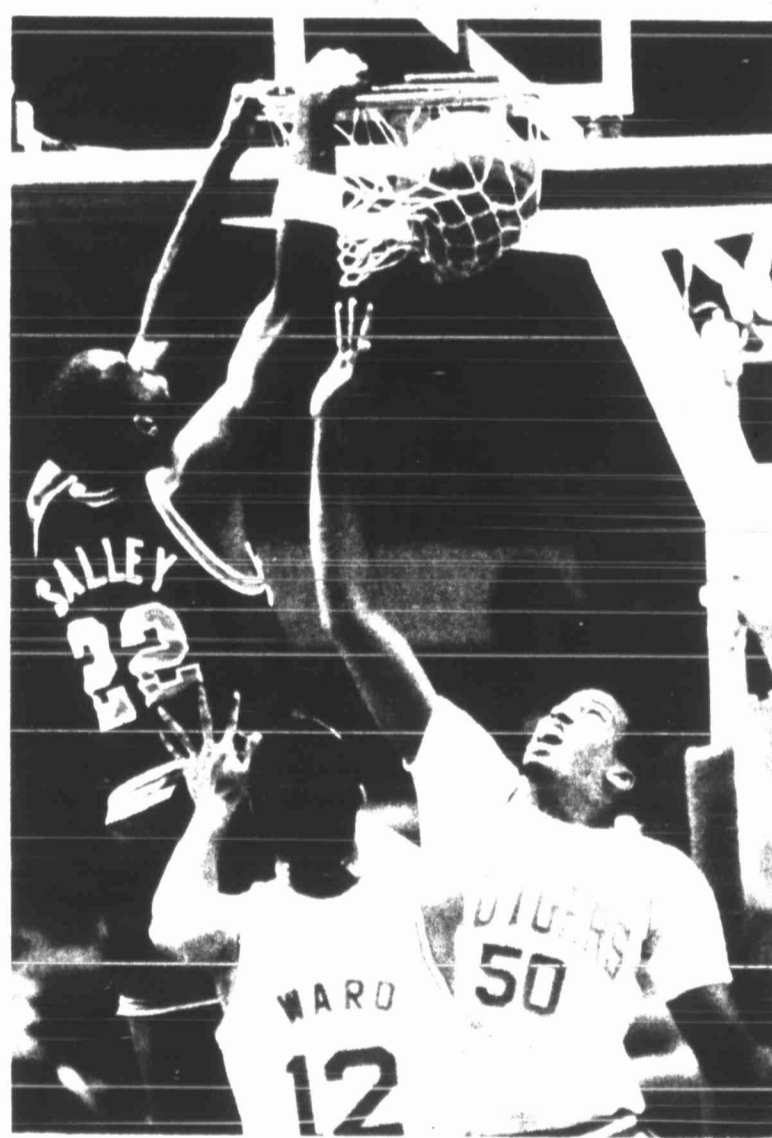

Memphis State, which trailed much of the first half, took its biggest lead at 68-63 with 4:35 left, then held on to beat Louisville in a Metro Conference game behind the 20 points of junior center William Bedford. The victory was Memphis State's 30th straight at home, and the Tigers now are 14-0. Louisville, 8-4, led 37-36 at halftime, but Memphis State pushed ahead 62-60 with eight minutes left on a jumper by freshman center Marvin Alexander. Herbert Cook led the Cardinals with 14 points.

Second Ten

Fred Banks made two quick baskets to expand a three-point lead to seven, and Nevada-Las Vegas won its Pacific Coast Athletic Association game with Pacific. Banks took advantage of two UOP turnovers to give the Rebels a 78-71 lead with about three minutes left, and he finished with 31 points. Anthony Jones had 19 for UNLV, 14-2, which trailed 49-47 early in the second half.

Michael Charles missed a chance to win the game from the free-throw line in regulation but hit two foul shots in overtime to give Alabama-Birmingham its two-point victory over Virginia Commonwealth in the Sun Belt Conference. Charles had missed two foul shots with 18 seconds left in regulation before Michael Brown of VCU hit a 20-footer with 10 seconds left to send the game into overtime. UAB, 15-2, was led by Steve Mitchell with 27 points.

Dublin coach in hot water

DUBLIN (AP) — Dublin Athletic Director Bill Bryant was suspended with pay early today pending an investigation into his use of money from the high school's vending machines.

The suspension is based on a Texas Education Agency audit report that showed Bryant used funds from the machines to pay for trips to see University of Texas football and basketball games, school officials said.

Three tied for ToFC lead

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Tom Kite had a 6-under-par 66 on Thursday, a round in which he hit 17 greens in regulation and didn't suffer a bogey.

"The best round I've played in a long time," Kite said. "But good as it was, it wasn't quite good enough for him to retain sole possession of first place in the $500,000 MONY Tournament of Champions."

Kite, the defending title-holder in the exclusive tournament that brings together only the winners of Professional Golfers Association Tour events from the last 12 months, was two shots clear of the field with two holes to play on the La Costa Country Club course Thursday.

BBWA slights Williams, again

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

The appointed guardians of baseball's Hall of Fame have speedily ushered Willie McCovey into Cooperstown, while once again denying admission to Billy Williams, compounding a continuing misdemeanor.

They examined Williams' credentials — a .290 career batting average, 20 points higher than McCovey; 2,711 hits, 50 more than McCovey; and 426 home runs, 95 less than McCovey — and advised him to apply again next year.

Williams fell four slim ballots short of election — nine-tenths of a percentage point shy of the "pure 75 percent" the baseball writers require. Last year, they shut the doors by just two votes on the late Nelson Fox in his final year of eligibility, turning away a man whose induction would have only added luster to the shrine.

Williams is luckier. He has 10 more swings and almost certainly will make up the narrow deficit in the 1987 election when no first-time heavyweights, like McCovey this year, move up for consideration. That is not the point. Williams ought to be marching into Cooperstown right now. He shouldn't have been forced to wait around for another year. He shouldn't have had to wait the five years since he first became eligible.

It is sad to report that there are some otherwise responsible members of the Baseball Writers fraternity who absolutely refuse to vote for a candidate in his first year of Hall of Fame eligibility. Never mind that his credentials will not change, that he will not get one more hit or record one more victory. These voters just feel that election in the first year — an achievement denied even the legendary Joe DiMaggio, who later was chosen the greatest living player of the century — is too much of an honor to bestow on any mere mortal.

It's one thing to protect the integrity of the Hall of Fame and to take seriously the responsibility of choosing its members. But it's quite another to be fanatical about it.

The BBWAA electors are far from perfect. They proved that when Hank Aaron and Willie Mays were not unanimous choices for Cooperstown. If some voters could find a way to leave them off their ballots, then certainly Billy Williams' absence should not be a shock.

Not a shock, perhaps. Just wrong.

McCovey's selection is completely justified. He hit more home runs (521) than any other left-handed hitter in National League history. And if his credentials are good enough for induction — as his and Williams' certainly are — then he ought to be elected as soon as he is eligible and not be made to cool his heels in the waiting room, undergoing the scrutiny of an annual review.

And while Williams waits, the electorate casually tosses around throw-away votes. It is to be hoped that none of those missing Williams votes came from ballots that found room for marginal candidates like Jack Billingham, Jose Cardenal, Bud Harrelson and George Scott, all fine fellows but hardly Hall of Famers, and each of whom received one vote for Cooperstown.

Thirty-three voters supported Don Larsen, a distinctly ordinary pitcher with an 81-91 career record who owns one of baseball's singularly spectacular accomplishments — a perfect game in the World Series. Hopefully, those 33 Larsen voters found room on their ballots, too, for Billy Williams, whose production spanned 18 seasons, not one day.

McCovey became the 16th first-year candidate to be inducted. "I didn't know so few players went in in their first year," he said. "I'm thrilled to get this in my first year and not have to go through the anticipation year after year."

Meanwhile, Billy Williams is still anticipating.

Hawk Profile

Although he never played high school basketball, Howard College forward Mike McCall has earned himself a starting job on the team with impressive natural ability and unquenchable enthusiasm for the game.

McCall plays at the shooting forward position. He has one of the best vertical jumps on the team enabling him to go inside the paint for rebounds and an improved outside shot lends versatility to the Hawk frontcourt.

The 6-4 freshman hails from El Paso and is the son of Arnold McCall. The 20-year-old says he plays the sport "because I like the challenge of winning," but adds "sometimes I don't like to work at it."

McCall says that his father has been the most influential person pertaining to his basketball career. "He started helping me when I was six years old."

The Howard freshman lists his favorite subjects as math and government and says his favorite hobby is fishing.

McCall plans on majoring in electronics and someday shoot for a career in professional basketball.

Bullets extend Jazz losing streak

By The Associated Press

The sharpshooting of Jeff Malone outside and the shot-blocking of Manute Bol inside were too much for the Utah Jazz to handle.

Malone scored 32 points and the 7-foot-6½ Bol blocked seven shots as the Washington Bullets sent Utah to its ninth loss in 10 games, 95-89 Thursday night. Washington snapped a four-game slide.

"We tried to get everyone involved in the offense," said Malone. "My shots were falling tonight."

And so were Utah's — to the floor

after being blocked by Bol.

"If I stay in control on defense we can win," said Bol, who had only two points. "It's good to win a game on the road."

Jazz Coach Frank Layden was impressed with the Bullets' 1-2 punch that did in his team.

"Give them credit, they are a good team," said Layden. "They isolated very well and really controlled the ball."

"Although he only scored two points, Bol played a great game. A lot of people came to see him tonight and I don't think he disappointed them. He had seven blocked shots and was an intimidating force every minute he was in the game."

Rockets 120, Spurs 110

John Lucas scored 27 points as the Rockets rallied from a 17-point hole at halftime and won their 19th straight home game. Houston moved within two points with a pair of three-point baskets by Lucas early in the fourth quarter.

Ralph Sampson contributed 24 points for Houston, while Steve Johnson led San Antonio with 31.

Hawks 110, Pistons 99

Glenn Rivers had 29 points and Dominique Wilkins scored 26 as Atlanta won for the 11th time in 15 games and Detroit fell for the 11th time in 13 outings.

Nuggets 94, SuperSonics 90

Reserve Mike Evans, playing for foul-prone Lafayette Lever, contributed 12 of his 15 points in the last 10:17 of play to lead the host Nuggets. A tight defense held Seattle to only five field goals in the last quarter.
