Jetliner crash kills 6 Americans

All 90 aboard die when plane goes down in jungle

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — A jetliner carrying tourists to famed Mayan ruins in northern Guatemala crashed Saturday in a remote jungle area, killing all 90 people aboard including six Americans, the airline Aerovias said.

Col. Adolfo Corzo, director of Civil Aeronautics, had initially said there were 88 dead and all of the victims were from the United States. The airline at first said the toll was 87, including 10 Americans.

The twin-engine Caravelle jetliner, operated by the private Aerovias company, went down as it approached the airport at Santa Elena, about 150 miles north of the capital of Guatemala City.

Gerry Waters, a spokesman at the U.S. Embassy, said airline officials reported the control tower's last contact with the plane was at 7:58 a.m. and the pilot had not indicated there were any problems.

He said an embassy official was sent to the crash site to confirm the number of U.S. victims.

"Right now, we are just saying there were a number of Americans on the flight," Waters said. "We don't want to say specifically until we can get it nailed down."

He said the jungle where the plane crashed is so dense that an area had to be cleared for a Guatemalan air force helicopter to land.

The airline released a tentative list of the dead Saturday night. It said 53 passengers and five crew members were Guatemalans, and the other 32 victims were foreigners, including a Colombian flight engineer.

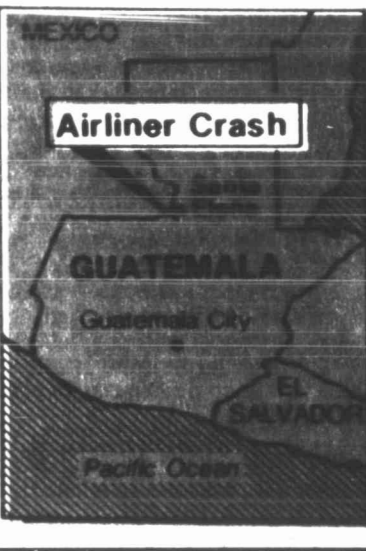

It said of the foreigners killed, six were Americans; six from Colombia; four from Venezuela; two from Mexico; two from Costa Rica; two from the Netherlands; two from Britain; two from Canada; two from the Netherlands Antillas; and one each from West Germany, Greece, France and Italy.

One of the Venezuelan victims was former Foreign Minister Aristides Calvani, Corzo said.

Corzo said the accident, the worst in Guatemala's aviation history, occurred eight miles northwest of Santa Elena in the northern department of Peten. Military patrols based at the airport arrived at the site soon after

Like a knee-high lion, the chow dog stood and regally surveyed the arena. Weaver hardly seemed to notice when the blond, bearded man brushed his orange mane.

Mike Bantley of Lubbock, a professional dog handler, was preparing Weaver to appear in the Big Spring Kennel Club dog show Saturday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

All around Weaver were hundreds of dogs. Dogs of every breed, unusual and familiar, stood or sat calmly, much quieter than one would expect at such a gathering.

Two pug-nosed oriental dogs melted onto tables, their long fur parted straight down their backs. Strider, a black schipperke, was at his first show. Strider has no tail.

The breed is from Belgium, said Lara Luke. She and Tom Luke own several schipperkes.

Reagan: Colorblind society needs no quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan quoted Martin Luther King Jr. today in support of his contention that a truly "colorblind" society in which all people have the right to succeed should not have quotas.

The president, resting at Camp David following a visit Friday to the Bethesda Naval Hospital for a post-cancer surgery check-up, used his weekly radio address to press the argument that blacks have benefited under his administration.

And Reagan made clear that he remains opposed to quotas, or minority hiring goals, an issue that has provoked heated debate within the White House in recent months.

Reagan's Cabinet is embroiled in a debate over changing a 1965 executive order and barring the Labor Department from using goals and timetables in pushing federal contractors to hire more minorities and women.

At several appearances this week marking King's Jan. 15 birthday and the federal holiday on Monday honoring him, Reagan has either refused to comment on the dispute, or say only that the matter has not been put before him for a decision.

"Martin Luther King believed, as I and so many Americans do, that our country will never be completely free until all Americans enjoy the full benefits of freedom," Reagan said.

Reagan said that the United States has "come a long way in the pursuit of racial fairness" and that even though there is much to be proud of, there is nothing to be complacent about.

"We still have a way to go. We are committed to a society in which all men and women have equal opportunities to succeed, and so we oppose the use of quotas," Reagan said. "We want a colorblind society. A society, that in the words of Dr. King, judges people not by the color of their skin, but by the content of their character."

The president went on to argue against critics that have charged that his administration has attempted to do away with affirmative action, anti-poverty programs and weaken civil rights enforcement.

The president said that blacks have shared widely under the robust economy that has marked his administration, that he has backed strong fair housing and has pursued civil rights cases. He argued that blacks have gained new jobs and enjoyed a rise in median family income under his administration.

"The answer to the question, 'How are blacks doing in America?' is better than ever before, but not good enough," Reagan said.

"If we continue to allow the Gubernatorial candidates talk pro-life

AUSTIN (AP) — Two Republican candidates told an anti-abortion rally on the Capitol grounds Saturday that the state's top Democratic officials must be defeated before there is any hope of success for pro-life legislation.

"All our top officials have sold their souls to the abortion industry," said Bill Price, president of the Texas Coalition for Life. "You will never pass substantive legislation until you elect a new governor, new lieutenant governor and attorney general."

Price blamed Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby for defeat of bills in the 1985 Legislature that would have prohibited late-term abortions and would have required parental permission for teen-age abortions.

He criticized Attorney General

Jim Mattox for putting church-run child care homes under state control.

GOP gubernatorial candidates Kent Hance and Tom Loeffler spoke to the enthusiastic rally of several thousand. Local organizers said as many as 6,000 were on hand in a picnic atmosphere that included a rock band and balloons.

A similar rally was scheduled Sunday in Dallas, but in Beaumont Saturday, an anti-abortion lawyer said the 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion deprived unborn children of the right to life, challenging faith and law.

"We must thirst after justice for these children," said Joseph P. Witherspoon, a law professor at the University of Texas at Austin School of Law. "We must not be hearers of the word only, we've got to do something."

That includes organizing political action groups to persuade churches and city councils to pass resolutions opposing abortion, said Witherspoon, who spoke at an ecumenical service at St. Anne's Catholic Church memorializing the 13th anniversary of legalized abortion in the United States.

But that does not include acts of violence toward abortion clinics, he said.

"I am committed to lead in the battle about abortion that is about to begin in Austin," Loeffler at the Austin rally. "I believe in the principles of pro-life and my record speaks for itself."

"For me, pro-life is a matter of conscience, not political expediency... together we can protect the right of the unborn," Loeffler said.

Hance said he believes now is the time to seek changes in abortion laws.

"No one ever thought there were going to be 1 1/2 million unborn children destroyed as they were last year," Hance said. "The time to make a change is now."

Hance said he favored a U.S. Constitution change but in the meantime "the state has a duty to regulate what is taking place now."

"I've served in the state capital and I know how you get things done," Hance said. "It's going to take strong leadership to get the regulation that this state needs."

Ed Walsh of Georgetown and John Roach of Collin County, both GOP candidates for attorney general, also spoke in support of pro-life legislation.

Memorial is today

A memorial program honoring Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. will be given at 3 p.m. today in the conference room of the Veterans Administration Medical Center.

Dr. Steve Morgan, principal at Lakeview Elementary School, will speak, and a local minister will give a litany in King's honor.

Music will be provided by the Mount Bethel Baptist Church Sanctuary Choir and the Highway 80 Church of Christ.

Monday marks the first official national holiday honoring the slain civil rights leader.

Debbie Dacus, left, of Jacksonville talks to Mike Stewart of Palestine recently while they wait on the set of "Dallas: the Early Years" being filmed in Maydelle. They were two of 40 extras from the surrounding area to be cast in the TV-movie.

Extras have fun in 'Dallas' movie

By BONNIE LASITER
Palestine Herald-Press
PALESTINE (AP) — Elliott Turner was applying for a loan at a local savings institution when a loan officer across from him leaned over and said: "You ought to be in pictures."

My husband and I were having dinner with friends who told us that a movie might be filmed in Palestine. As the wire editor at the Herald-Press, I'm always looking for a story, and I told my friends to be sure and let the paper know when.

The movie is "Dallas: The Early Years," a made-for-TV production covering the background of the popular Friday night soap "Dallas." It is to be released in the spring.

Sandy Couch, vice president at Jacksonville Savings and Loan in Palestine and active in community theater in the town, was given the chore of casting 40 extras for the movie to be filmed on the Texas State Railroad. She called on community theater groups in Rusk, Athens and Jacksonville as well as Palestine to provide the actors.

Turner would fill the part of one of the porters, Sandy told him as he filled out his loan application. It sounded fun, so he took the day off from his job at the Texas Department of Corrections and joined the movie scene.

Sandy contacted Bonnie to tell her the film crew was in fact coming to Palestine, and before Bonnie realized it, she had signed herself on as an extra.

Herald-Press photographer Steven D. Reece would have to be on the scene for photos, so why not join the cast also. And when the movie crew needed more male extras, sports editor Allen Burnett found himself giving up a day off to join his co-workers on location.

And besides, the movie production company was paying extras $40 for the day's work.

At Maydelle we joined others who had taken a day off their jobs to get in on a little of the action. (The depot sign was changed to Pride, Texas, for the movie.)

On the way over, the Herald-Press trio was worried we wouldn't even make the cut for extras. What if they had signed up too many extras? What if they didn't have our sizes recorded and there was no place for us?

After all, we were the "amateur's amateur." We weren't rejected and soon were ushered to the wardrobe truck to stand in line and take clothes issued to us. Just like the military.

Then it was off to a makeshift dressing room in somebody's house. (We just followed the crowd — the location crew had taken care of all the details.) I had a rather boring dress to wear, which was covered by a drab coat and shoes that looked just like the ones my third-grade teacher wore. Allen looked like he was a stock broker from the East, and Steve, well, he looked like the average working guy in well-worn clothes.

It was the 1930s, after all. Since women wore virtually no makeup in that day, it was a quick smudge of lipstick, and I was on my way to the hair design area. It is incredible how an expert from Dallas can turn a 1985 hairdo into a depression-era style with just a little styling gel, pins and lots of hair spray.

But Steve and Allen had to stop off at the barbershop. They both had already given up their beards because they were told ahead of time that all men must be clean shaven. For $40, they decided it was worth it.

But again like the military, it was over the cars and off the neck time for the guys. Local barbers Bennie McInnis and Thomas Vaughn were hired to do the haircuts. After we had been there for three hours, we were finally on the set. It was the back of the set, but we were there. We got to watch some of the other extras filming a crowd scene at the train depot.

It was just what you would expect. There was a camera mounted on a boom truck, a director sitting in a "director's" chair and (portable) dressing rooms for stars with their names on the doors.

We hardly ever saw the stars. And since these were the early years, we didn't really recognize old Jock and Digger.

We finally got up to the action area and were given a specific chore. Steven was to look up into the train at a girl he had never seen before and pretend his heart was breaking as the train pulled away from the station, carrying her away. He was to be so broken up, in fact, that he was to run alongside the train, waving his arms. Now, that is really acting.

But Allen and I were not so fortunate. We were to walk down the wooden sidewalk — in the deep background.

After a quick run-through and several takes on film it was time to break for lunch. Another military maneuver — stand in line and take what they give you.

The afternoon dragged quite a bit as we filmed one more brief scene, took a two-hour break and then went back and boarded the train for an altogether different scene. We were to give the appearance that the train was full of passengers as it pulled up to the station. After a one-hour wait on the train, we rode up to the station — about a two-minute ride just as it was getting dark and the filming would have to stop.

It was a lot of waiting for a little action, but it still seems worth it. During the lengthy break, the extras were stationed at the Maydelle Cafe. And when you put a group of amateur actors together (most of them are active in community theater groups), the creativity just seems to come out. First some impromptu lines and then singing. There was a piano player in the group and the songs went from Christmas carols to contemporary to old-time gospel.

The mood among the "stars" was friendly. And there was a lot of visiting during the wait on the train. In addition to the TDC employee and the savings and loan vice president, we met a boutique operator, hospital lab technician, teacher, construction company owner, steel fabrication worker, title company executive, general store operator and aerobics instructor. Where else but a movie set in Maydelle, Texas, could you meet all those people.

For many of them, it was their first experience at real-live movies. Others had been on the scene during last year's filming of "Up Hill All The Way," starring Roy Clark and Mel Tellis.

Why were they spending their Monday on the movie scene? "Applause," one said. "How many can say 'That's me' in the movie?"

"We like playing dress up." "It's a free haircut, and we won't need another one for three months."

And perhaps the most comprehensive response: "It's the same reason you go on stage for free in little theater — it's the camaraderie."

The others agreed. And we found ourselves nodding in agreement at the end of the day. We had met some interesting people and had a chance to put ourselves into another time, another place. We had made 40 bucks for almost nothing, and we had done something we could write home about.

See you in the movies.

Aerovias had rented the French-built aircraft from the Ecuadoran airline Saeta for flights to Santa Elena because of a greater-than-normal demand to travel to the area, authorities said.

Calvani, like some of the others aboard the flight, was in Guatemala to attend last Tuesday's swearing-in of President Vinicio Cerezo, the nation's first civilian head of state in 16 years.

The Venezuelan Embassy said Calvani was traveling with his wife, Adelita, and two daughters, Graciela, 23, and Maria Elena, 25. The plane left Guatemala City at 7:25 a.m. for the 40-minute flight to Santa Elena, which is 37 miles south of the Mayan ruins of Tikal. The airport is used by travelers flying to see the ruins.

economy to expand and continue to work for a more perfect society, then people of all color will prosper, and isn't that what Dr. King's dream and the American dream are all about?" Reagan said.

Black joblessness reached nearly 15 percent at the end of last year, compared to 5.9 percent for whites. The median family income for blacks in 1984 was $15,432 while it was $27,686 for white families.

In the Democratic response, Rep. William Gray of Pennsylvania cited similar figures. "We are producing fewer jobs in the first five years of your administration than in the previous one. Thus black adult unemployment stands at 15.6 percent today when in 1978 it was 12.3 percent. Black family median income is 56 percent of white family income. The facts are clear, Mr. President," Gray said. "Thirty-two percent of black families lived in poverty in 1980. Today 42 percent of black families live in poverty."

He was the father of six children and a close friend of President Cerezo, also a Christian Democrat.

Officials said Cerezo sent a personal message of condolence to Venezuela's government and political leaders.

By The Associated Press
Drier and somewhat cooler air settled over the northern half of Texas Saturday behind a Pacific cold front that stretched from Texas to Waco to Del Rio. Skies were generally fair to partly cloudy statewide, with only East and Southeast Texas experiencing mostly cloudy skies, according to the National Weather Service. Afternoon temperatures remained in the 50s and lower 60s from the Red River westward into the High Plains. Temperatures were mainly in the mid 60s across the rest of the state, except in South and Central Texas where low to mid 70s prevailed.

who rested calmly in their cages nearby. More than 1,000 dogs entered the show Saturday, coming from all over the country. Owners filled Big Spring hotels or parked at Howard College in motor homes.

Finding a hotel that would accept dogs was no problem, Tom Luke said. Hotel managers don't mind the four-footed guests as long as they stay in their special traveling cages, he said. Travel costs for shows can run up quite a bill, though, he said.

But, "it's a pretty good investment when you buy a show dog," said professional dog handler Guy Mauldin. Mauldin was showing Champion Rodan's The Windwalker, a blue meal shetland sheepdog, who had won 117 best breed awards, 51 group one awards, 10 best of shows and five specialty best in shows, he said. She won best herding dog Saturday.

The best of show Saturday was Kirsch's Rodeo of Halo, a poodle owned by Rober Koepffel of New York.

Other winners were: highest scoring dog, Jo-Lyn's Texas Tornado, a shetland sheepdog; best of toy breeds, Southland's Toast to Bev-Nor, a poodle; best of terrier breeds, Rampage Rousean Detonator, a miniature Schnauzer; best of working breeds, Rodden Berte V. Zederwald, a Rottweiler; best of hounds, Branscombe's Comptre Richlieu, a basset; and best of sporting breeds, Wildwind's The Jazz Singer, a Gordon setter.

Policeman held on rape

PHILADELPHIA — A Philadelphia police officer has been charged with raping two girls, ages 8 and 10, while babysitting them.

Officer Raymond Morrison, 30, was suspended with the intent to dismiss from the force after his arrest Friday, police said.

The 4½-year veteran of the department was charged with two counts each of rape, indecent assault, statutory rape, indecent exposure and corrupting the morals of a minor and one count of involuntary deviate sexual intercourse, police said.

Police said the assaults occurred between December 1982 and December 1985. The girls, who are half-sisters from Tucson, Ariz., are not related to the officer, police said.

Ruling issued on AIDS

WASHINGTON — A federal judge on Saturday temporarily barred the Navy from discharging 11 Navy recruits whose blood shows exposure to the AIDS virus, pending a review of the case by the U.S. Court of Appeals here.

U.S. District Judge Louis F. Oberdorfer said, however, he doubted the recruits would win their case.

Still, he told the Navy it can't discharge the seaman for at least 10 days while they bring their suit before the appeals court.

"It seems quite likely that, unless restrained, plaintiffs will be discharged within minutes" of the Saturday expiration of an earlier order that had temporarily prevented the discharges, he said.

Nazi massacre suit won

LOS ANGELES — A Nazi concentration camp survivor has won a $5.25 million libel judgment against a man who claimed the Nazi massacre of Jews was a hoax and says the victory proves America's judicial system works.

"Let's just say that America spoke," said Mel Mermelstein, 59. "I never lost faith in the justice system."

A jury deliberated less than four hours Friday before announcing its verdict against Dittlieb Felderer of Sweden, who allegedly called Mermelstein "a racist and exterminationist."

Plane crash kills four

RAGLAND, Ala. (AP) — A twin-engine plane plunged into a wooded, mountainous section of northern Alabama on Saturday, killing all four people aboard, authorities said.

"It appears the plane struck a tree and went straight down," said St. Clair County Coroner Charlie Forman.

Vietnam gives children back after 7 years

HANOI, Vietnam (AP) — Sen. Frank Murkowski went to Vietnam to find out about American MIAs from the Vietnam War, but left Saturday with two sobbing Vietnamese children who were separated from their mother seven years ago.

Murkowski, R-Alaska, led the U.S. congressional delegation to Hanoi to urge the Vietnamese to help resolve the cases of Americans who remain listed as missing in action from the Indochina war.

But the delegation left Saturday after Vietnam's foreign minister told them no Americans were being held against their will in the communist country.

Instead, Murkowski had answered a mother's plea. The lawmakers left with 10-year-old Nguyen Vu Chinh and 9-year-old Tran Thanh Quynh. The two children are to rejoin their mother Tuesday in Alaska.

Their mother, Xuan Thi Nguyen, had fled to the United States seven years ago and now lives in Fairbanks. She had asked the senator's office to help get her children out.

Murkowski first saw the children with Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach at his side. The tired village children sobbed loudly.

"I'm just very emotionally moved at the sight of those two kids here with us on the way to a new life," said Murkowski, who led the lawmakers to Vietnam in his role as chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs committee.

"I'm so pleased and so humbled that we can bring them to their mother, that they will have the opportunity that we enjoy living in America," he said.

The liftoff from Hanoi capped an emotionally wrenching day, not only for the children but for the Americans as well.

The children had been accompanied from Ho Chi Minh city by their aunt, 30-year-old Nguyen Thi Sau, who raised them in their hometown of Tay Ninh city after their mother left.

When Miss Sau parted from the children, she burst into sobs.

So did the children. Murkowski choked up. Susan DeConcini, wife of Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz.,

Senator Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, escorts Tran Thanh Quynh, 9, and her brother, Nguyen Vu Chinh, 10, to a U.S. Air Force jet that took them out of Vietnam Saturday. The Vietnamese government, acting on Murkowski's appeal, released the children into his custody so they could rejoin their mother.

stepped into the crisis.

"Susan was absolutely fabulous," Murkowski said later. "She picked up that little boy in her arms — he was almost as big as she is, because she's small — and got into the van taking us to the airport. Everybody followed."

Murkowski said last minute red tape threatened to stall the exchange when low-ranking officials questioned whether the children's paperwork was complete.

Murkowski said at that point Thach leaned over to him and said, "Just go."

The delegation did.

Murkowski said he saw the children's release as his personal crusade, and was determined to do "absolutely everything I could to pull this off."

He carried with him a handwritten letter from the children's mother which she gave to him only five days before he left on his mission. The letter pleaded with the aunt to help the senator convince the Vietnamese government to let her children go.

"This is very seldom an opportunity," she wrote in broken English. "I wish you are very clever to help for children to come here as soon as possible."

Murkowski said the woman told him she works for the Yukon Office Supply Co. in Fairbanks, and that she and her husband, an American aircraft mechanic, who have no children of their own, "have a home and good financial standing."

Soviets make U.S. offer

MOSCOW — The Kremlin will scrap its medium-range missiles in Europe if Washington does the same, but highly mobile SS-20 missiles would remain in Soviet Asia until the last stage of the new Soviet disarmament proposal, senior officials said Saturday.

Discussing Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's new arms control proposals, the officials also confirmed that Moscow is offering for the first time to scrap superpower missiles in Europe without insisting on simultaneous elimination of British and French nuclear weapons.

But they said the plan called for Britain and France to hold their nuclear forces at current levels and eventually eliminate them.

Reagan's ban ignored

TRIPOLI, Libya — Mohammad T. Mehdi, president of the New York-based American-Arab Relations Committee, arrived here Saturday in defiance of President Reagan's order banning Americans from traveling to Libya.

Mehdi told reporters at the Tripoli airport that he had come on a "peace mission."

"I intend to see brother Moammar (Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafi) and ask him not to supply weapons to the Palestinians, just as President Reagan has to stop supplying arms to the JIPs," Mehdi said.

Asked to explain "JIPs," he said they were "Jews in Palestine," a term he uses in place of Israel.

Reagan has accused Khadafi of supporting Palestinian terrorists who carried out the Dec. 27 airport attacks in Rome and Vienna that left 19 people dead, including five Americans and two Israelis.

Financial leaders meet

LONDON — Treasury chiefs and central bankers from the five major industrialized democracies gathered Saturday to discuss the Third World's debt crisis and review their September decision to reduce the value of the dollar.

The 10 financial leaders were to meet over dinner at 11 Downing St., official residence of Chancellor of the Exchequer Nigel Lawson, Britain's chief treasury official, and resume discussions Tuesday morning.

The full agenda of the private meeting was not published, but a U.S. Embassy spokesman said the officials "will review progress since September," when they took steps to lower the value of the dollar.

He also said they would discuss a proposal from U.S. Treasury Secretary James F. Baker on handling Third World debts.

Sewer plant loss is a puzzlement

Perhaps city officials on Tuesday will shed some light on how $3.2 million in modifications to the sewage treatment facility here could have gone for naught in just four short years.

That's the day they are scheduled to answer to the Texas Water Commission on why we are regularly polluting Beal's Creek. City Manager Don Davis said Friday that he, Public Works Director Tom Deceil, Mayor Clyde Angel and at least one other city councilman are planning to answer the state's call for a personal explanation of the problem before commissioners in Austin.

We've tried to divine an explanation for the situation in stories published since Big Spring was named to a state list of polluters in November 1985. We've heard answers that include: turnover among sewage department personnel, lack of adequately trained operators, a "mystery polluter" who has been throwing material into the sewers which robs the system of its ability to clean sewage.

Maybe the problem is a combination of all those things. But the bottom line here is that $3.2 million worth of work seems to have been flushed down the toilet. Perhaps testimony before the state commission in Austin will help us understand what went wrong.

Jesse Trevino

Whistle's blowing for last train out

Far removed from the state's major cities, economic disruptions are building in parts of West and South Texas with serious implications for the economy.

These disruptions are not headline-grabbing and more often than not are not covered by the state's major newspapers. But, like the tenuous price of oil on the world market, the 40,000 homes up for sale in Houston or the slowdown in microchips, they are just as important.

These smaller economic events are coming together to form a rather unsettling picture in the rural outback.

Already flogged by weather, a soured agricultural economy and retrenching oil companies, the western heartland of Texas is contending with a pullback by the Industrial Age umbilical cord which connected the interior to modern Texas in the first place — the railroad.

This is not your run-of-the-mill railroad story which CBS' Charles Kuralt could convert into rustic poetry. But it is just as poignant. This area of Texas, always lagging behind the state economically, is fighting to retain not the latest high technology invention but merely cold, aging tracks of steel embedded on a plain of red rock and wooden boards.

The latest installment in the area's economic crisis is painted succinctly by an Austin firm, Southwest Development Associates, whose nine-page report overpowers with its brevity.

The report tells how a slowly shifting economy is squeezing an area southwest of San Antonio generally in the direction of Laredo.

The railroad in question is small. It extends 80 miles between Biewett and Gardendale. The railroad is the Missouri Pacific, serving Zavala, Uvalde, Dimmit and La Salle counties, an area known as the winter garden of Texas. The Missouri Pacific connects the winter garden to San Antonio and to Mexico.

In many ways, this is Texas' Appalachia. It runs from the winter garden south into the Mexican valley of the Rio Grande. It is an area racked by low education and unemployment. Unemployment in Dimmit County stands at 14 percent, 25 percent in Zavala County. Per capita income in the area averaged less than $5,000, while the state average was more than $9,000 in 1980.

But unlike many parts of Appalachia, the winter garden area has been highly productive, regularly producing hundreds of tons of food and fibre.

But now, the railroad's directors, with heavy economic argument difficult to discount, is threatening to pull out.

Immediately endangered are 158 new jobs which would have been generated by a San Antonio food concern with plans to locate a $6.5 million canning facility with a $2.6 million annual payroll near Crystal City near Zavala County.

Another casualty might be the Del Monte food organization, which employs 250 people at a minimum and 1,200 during the high packing season. Discontinuation of rail service and increased trucking transportation costs could force the company into what Southwest Development calls "a transfer of operations to more economically accessible facilities."

Halliburton Services — itself symbolic of the economic times buffeting Texas as oil prices soften and demand declines — employs 60 people in the area with a payroll of $1 million and uses the railroad because "the lowest truck rates are three times as great as rail."

Halliburton would have to reduce its oil servicing operations in the area if the railroad pulls out.

Another oil giant reduced in size of late is Tesoro Petroleum. Its now-closed refinery in Dimmit County could reopen if demands for petroleum for the new naval homeport in Corpus Christi becomes reality. But that won't happen if the railroad moves.

Beyond economic costs are social costs, too. Losses in county and school taxes — $300,000 from one company alone — would be difficult to replace.

While financial figures in ledger books, these figures chalk up to the possible sounds of the last train braking through these parts.

Mad dogs and Englishmen

By JOHN RICE
Managing Editor

Everyone's got his headaches. Postmen get bitten by dogs. Journalists get thumped on the head in some country where nobody speaks English, much less Texan.

Timothy Harper tells the story of how tricky it is covering Northern Ireland's civil strife. Writing in Editor and Publisher magazine, he says British reporters are sometimes stopped by gangs of thugs and asked to recite the "Hail Mary."

"The reporters are allowed to pass if they know the Roman Catholic prayer and the thugs are Catholic, or if the reporters don't know it and the thugs are Protestant," he writes. "Otherwise, they risk a beating."

News gathering in the world's hot spots carries an inherent danger. To be where the news is made requires going where the danger is. Most often, injury to journalists is the result of accident — being too close to the action — but there are ample incidents of journalists as targets.

Ideally, the journalist is the neutral observer, and no one is able to tilt his inclinations to either side. The journalist is kind of like the medic in combat, whose red cross on helmet and sleeve gives him immunity from target practice. A wallop on the head by a policeman or a knife attack by a demonstrator, though, might alter a newsman's allegiances a bit.

There may be a subtle shift taking place. In Great Britain's strife, for example, there is a developing perception that the news media is pro-government — partly because the British Broadcasting Corporation is government-funded and, as Harper believes, "partly because some conservative newspapers consistently support the police.

Laws and customs that imply journalists are an extension of the police erode the perceived objectivity of news gathering organizations.

Donald Treford, editor of the Sunday Observer in London, said a 1984 law that allows police to raid newsrooms in search of files, notes and film is similar to the recent moves by the South African government to bar coverage of race riots. "Handing over evidence to the police may result in a short-term gain for justice in a particular case. But our society would suffer a bigger loss in the long-term if the press come to be seen as agents of the police," he told Harper.

Could the story of the Watts riots in Los Angeles been told as well if the participants had seen journalists as arms of the law?

Newspapers, if they are to remain viable, must be seen as accessible by all, the rich and powerful as well as the poor and downtrodden. When the press shuns one segment of society in the interests of another, it isn't doing its job.

Billy Graham

Retirees must remain active

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Recently I retired from my job. For years I had looked forward to it, but now that it has happened I feel useless and empty. I suddenly have realized I never had any hobbies or interests outside my work, and now I am bored and miserable. I wish you would warn people they need to prepare for retirement. — F.M.

DEAR F.M.: Almost every week I receive letters like this. One reason I have printed yours is because I hope it will encourage others to plan more carefully for their retirement years. Just as a young person may spend years preparing for a career, so many older people should spend much time preparing for their second "career" — the "career" of retirement.

Yes, retirement can be a time of boredom and feelings of uselessness — but it need not be, if you let God help you discover His will for this time in your life. You see, God has a perfect plan for every stage of our lives.

The first step is for you to turn your life over to Jesus Christ. Perhaps you have never trusted Him as your Lord and Savior; if not, you need to make your decision for Him now. Perhaps you have known Christ, but you need to renew your commitment to Him and ask Him to show you His will.

Then take practical steps to enrich your retirement years. Yes, develop some new interests and hobbies; there is nothing wrong with enjoying life. But more than that, let these be years in which you serve others and grow in your relationship to Christ.

Your pastor may have some specific ways you can help with your church's work. There may be people in your neighborhood or among your relatives who need practical help, and you can give it in the name of Christ. The main thing is not to get wrapped up only in your own interests, but to "live a life of love, just as Christ loved us and gave himself up for us" (Ephesians 5:12).

Today

By The Associated Press

Today is Sunday, Jan. 19, the 19th day of 1986. There are 346 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On Jan. 19, 1807, Robert E. Lee, the commander-in-chief of the Confederate armies, was born in Stratford, Va.

On this date: In 1736, James Watt, the inventor of the steam engine, was born in Scotland.

In 1809, author Edgar Allan Poe was born in Boston.

In 1825, Ezra Daggett and his nephew, Thomas Kensett, obtained a patent for their process of storing food in tin cans.

In 1853, Verdi's opera "Il Trovatore" premiered in Rome.

In 1861, Georgia seceded from the Union.

In 1937, millionaire Howard Hughes established a transcontinental air record when he flew his monoplane from Los Angeles to Newark, N.J., in seven hours, 28 minutes and 25 seconds.

In 1955, a presidential news conference was filmed for television for the first time, with the permission of President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

In 1977, in one of his final acts as president, Gerald R. Ford pardon-ed Iva Toguri D'Aquino of Chicago — World War II's "Tokyo Rose."

Ten years ago: In his State of the Union message, President Gerald R. Ford called on Congress to reduce federal taxes, curb spending and forgo expensive new programs to bring what he called a new realism to relations between government and the people.

And, dark-horse candidate Jimmy Carter, a former Georgia governor, scored a stunning victory in the Iowa caucuses over others seeking the Democratic nomination for president.

Fight's on for control of the Senate

By LAWRENCE L. KNUTSON

WASHINGTON — A baker's dozen states are emerging as the battlegrounds for party control of the Senate in a political struggle enlivened by Democratic recruitment failures and an unusually long list of Republican targets.

Control of the Senate is the biggest prize at stake in the 1986 midterm election and strategists for both parties are acting optimistic in the face of clear signs of potential problems.

The Democrats must pick up four seats to wrest control away from the Republicans, who enter the campaign with 53-47 majority.

But Democratic hopes were dimmed last year when several of their strongest prospective challengers decided against Senate races. At the same time, the Republicans lost two strong incumbents when Sens. Paul Laxalt of Nevada and Charles Mathias of Maryland decided to retire, and the GOP must defend 22 seats in November while the Democrats have only 12 at risk.

The races now are taking shape and it appears that both parties will be looking at 13 states as offering the best chances for change.

Those states are California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Louisiana, Maryland, Missouri, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Dakota and Vermont. Some strategists would add Alabama, Georgia and Wisconsin to that list.

David Johnson, executive director of the Senate Democratic Campaign Committee, contends that despite recruiting disappointments, the Democrats have the candidates and organizations in place to recapture the Senate, race by race and state by state.

Thomas Griscom, head of the Republican Senate Campaign Committee, says the GOP is positioned to beat the odds and to successfully buck a historical pattern in which the party in control of the White House loses several Senate seats in the sixth year of a president's term, a pattern Griscom calls "the six-year itch."

Favorable odds going into the campaign gave Democrats real hope of reversing the results of President Reagan's landslide victory in 1980 that swept 16 Republican freshmen into the Senate and gave the GOP its first majority in that body since 1954.

But in several key states where Republican incumbents are considered vulnerable the Democrats have not been able to convince strong potential contenders to make the challenge.

Four sitting Republicans have pulled out of the race so far — Laxalt, Mathias, Barry Goldwater of Arizona, and John East of North Carolina — compared to three incumbent Democrats, Gary Hart of Colorado, Russell B. Long of Louisiana and Thomas Eagleton of Missouri.

Democratic recruiters have failed to convince potentially strong challengers in New York, Wisconsin, Indiana, North Dakota and North Carolina to enter the race. All four states had appeared to offer Democrats a better than even chance for an upset. They still may. But the outcome is less hopeful.

On the other hand, Republicans have not mounted a strong challenge to the Democratic incumbent in Illinois or to find a credible candidate to defend Mathias' seat in Maryland.

Johnson rebuts the perception Democrats have not done well at recruitment this year and contends the party is well positioned for a Senate takeover.

"I think we're going to win back control of the Senate in 1986," Johnson said in an interview. "We will do that by picking up at least four seats, protecting our incumbents and protecting the open seats."

And he said that he has already pushed one victory pin into the wall map near his desk within the borders of the state of Maryland.

Even Republicans concede the GOP may not be able to find a strong Republican to make the race to succeed Mathias.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., the Senate Democratic whip whose own seat is on the line this year, states the most optimistic case for a Democratic comeback.

"The odds and history are with us," Cranston wrote in a letter aimed at attracting contributors to Democratic campaigns. "We have more to go after and less to defend. The Democrats seeking re-election are all strong candidates who survived the disastrous 1980 landslide when the Republicans took over the Senate.

"History is with us because ever since the second term of Ulysses S. Grant in the last century the party that has lost the White House twice in a row has picked up an average of seven Senate seats in the midterm election held in the final term of a lame-duck president."

"They call that the six-year itch," says Griscom at GOP Senate headquarters. "My job is trying to make sure the six-year itch gets repealed in 1986."

Lawrence Knutson is a writer for the Associated Press.

Illegal aliens arrested in bogus contest sting

EL PASO (AP) — Federal immigration officers turned 56 illegal aliens from happy winners into startled losers Saturday when they showed up to collect their promised prizes in a contest — and were promptly arrested.

The Mexican nationals appeared at the Texas National Guard armory after receiving letters from a non-existent car dealer telling them they had won free gifts.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service sent the letters to the last known addresses of about 270 aliens who were slated for deportation but have hidden from authorities for years, said INS spokesman Mario Ortiz.

Ortiz said the bogus contest, held only in El Paso, was the first such operation the INS has used to arrest aliens sought on deportation arrest warrants.

The letters stated that a recently opened car dealership was offering prizes to attract new customers, Ortiz said.

Recipients were asked to appear at the armory Saturday morning with valid identification in order to qualify for a radio, television, appliances — or the grand prize of a new car, Ortiz said.

"Consequently they drove up. There's balloons outside. Everything looked legitimate," Ortiz said. "There were people standing around outside looking like car dealers."

But the aliens were bewildered when they learned what the real prize was.

"They showed their prize-winning letters and were promptly arrested," Ortiz said.

By the end of the operation at noon Saturday, authorities arrested 25 Mexican nationals who were sought on deportation warrants, Ortiz said.

Also arrested were 30 others — mostly friends and relatives accompanying the contest "winners" — who are illegal aliens but have not been ordered deported, Ortiz said.

INS officials planned to transport the aliens to the Mexican border immediately, he said.

"Currently they're all just sitting together looking at each other in bewilderment," he said.

Most of the aliens slated for deportation have been hiding out for several years, Ortiz said.

"Some of these cases are well over three years old," he said.

By LILA ESTES

Q.: Why is face-to-face bargaining between a home owner and a prospective buyer discouraged by real estate agents? It seems to me this is where my interests are best represented by myself.

A.: The major reason is the emotional element involved in such confrontations. A prospective buyer is usually much more critical than the seller-owner. A third party can usually maintain objectivity, a prime requirement in good bargaining — and good bargaining means getting your price. Secondly, owner/sellers often make the mistake of not allowing room for negotiation when setting the price. Take it or leave it situations can usually be avoided. The key to negotiation is the seller's response to that first offer. With no "give," the seller is telling the buyer he's really not interested in selling. The third person, again, can provide the needed objectivity.

Subway vigilante case still unresolved

NEW YORK (AP) — Thirteen months have passed since Bernhard Goetz fired an unlicensed pistol and wounded four young men he claims menaced him on a subway train, but the case against Goetz has not been resolved.

The so-called subway vigilante won an important decision Thursday when a judge threw out attempted murder and assault charges against him.

In the first flush of victory after state Supreme Court Justice Stephen Crane's ruling, Barry Slotnick, Goetz's lawyer, said the worst was over. Goetz, who said he had armed himself without a permit for protection after an earlier mugging, said, "It means that the system will abandon the concept of prosecuting victims."

But Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau immediately said he would appeal the dismissal.

And a day after the ruling, Slotnick predicted "it is a very strong possibility that the district attorney is going to abandon proper caution and proceed with another grand jury."

The case already has been before two grand juries. The first panel indicted Goetz only on weapons charges and sparked widespread public criticism — Goetz is white and the wounded youths are black.

But many in New York and around the nation applauded the 38-year-old electronics technician as standing up to criminals.

The district attorney was urged by black leaders to pursue the case. The Rev. Herbert Daughtry, president of the African Peoples' Christian Organization, said Crane's decision "sends a signal that if you are white you are almost certain to be protected and the law enforcement apparatus is going to stand behind you."

Crane let stand lesser charges against Goetz — reckless endangerment and illegal weapon possession, which are punishable by prison terms of up to four and five years, respectively. A hearing on those counts was scheduled for Tuesday. The dismissed charges carry 25-year maximum sentences.

Slotnick said Morgenthau was pushing on because of a desire to get Goetz, a belief shared by a lawyer on the other side.

Attorney William Kunstler, who represents Darrell Cabey, one of the wounded youths, said Morgenthau has been playing to public opinion throughout the case.

"When Goetz was a big hero, (Morgenthau's) initial objective was to get rid of it as soon as possible, get him indicted only for the gun charges," said Kunstler. "But when things changed and people thought Goetz might be a little psychotic and dangerous, he resubmitted it."

Public sentiment began to swing away from Goetz with the revelation that he had shot Cabey a second time, saying, "You don't look too bad, here's another."

Stephen F. Austin fulfills his father's dream

They're coming, you see, because of the land. It's a chance to have land of their own to farm or ranch. They're eagerly leaving the United States for the empty prairies and rich bottom lands of Mexican Texas.

Stephen F. Austin, too, is motivated by the land. He has the aid of no other sketch, but manages to draw a map of Texas depicting how it looks during this October of 1829. The map is now in the care of kinsman Thomas F. Leaming in Philadelphia, who is having it published. Leaming also is sending geography books for use here in San Felipe de Austin.

A fraudulent land deal being advertised in the United States has Austin very concerned. D.A. Smith, Richard Exeter and Co., claim the need "to dispose of 48,000,000 acres of land on the head of Red River." But Exeter cannot deliver the title since he "is nothing more than what the law calls an Empresario... an agent hired by the Government to introduce a certain number of families of a certain description within a certain time," Austin notes. He has permission to settle land, but he has not titles to transfer.

Truth is, Austin himself is an empresario: Since 1821 he has received four grants to settle U.S. ranchers and farmers in Texas. Stephen became an empresario because of his father, Moses. It's the elder Austin who received the grant from the Spanish Mexican government to settle 300 families here. Moses, a lead mine operator, had dealt with the Spanish before when, as empresario, he led his family and miners to Missouri before the territory belonged to the United States. Losing all in the bank panic of 1819, he looked for a new business venture: Texas land. But Moses died in 1821, so 27-year-old Stephen, a former member of the Missouri legislature, carried on his father's dream; it was the young Austin who chose the Brazos and Colorado river areas for the settlements.

Austin went to New Orleans to announce the formation of his colony and to give the rules and regulations: In return for taking an oath of allegiance and being "moral, sober, and industrious," the head of each family will be granted land that must be cultivated within a year.

If the contract was fulfilled, Austin also received land. For surveying and other empresario duties, the settlers paid him 12½ cents per acre. He also took responsibility for the actions of his settlers.

The price of U.S. land was very high in 1821, and many men were ruined by land speculation of the '20s depression. It's no wonder Austin found settlers there waiting for him when he returned to Texas.

Austin turned the property over to a settler by "taking his hand, walking around the land and saying in a loud and perceptive voice...in the name of the government of the Mexican Nation" the land is his. The new owner sealed the bargain by pulling weeds, throwing stones and planting cuttings. The land commissioner then delivered the title.

During the first two years of his colony Austin spent much of his time trying to convince the new government in Mexico to honor his grant. Eventually, the issue was decided: ranchers got a league or sitio of land (4,428 acres), farmers got a labor (177 acres) and everyone had to profess allegiance to the Roman Catholic Church. Few, though, changed religions.

Austin's became one of the most successful and best-known empresarios. He got upset over land speculators who claimed to be what they're not.

This 1835 map published in Philadelphia shows the original land grants in Texas. Austin's grant is center right.

Regulations on hospital transfers to tighten

By JANET WARREN
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — The emergency room doctor recalled receiving a head injury patient transferred unexpectedly to his hospital from a rural facility.

Across the bandage on his head, the transferring hospital had penciled in the name of the medicine he had been given, along with the time it was administered. That's all the information that was sent.

For the receiving doctor, Leonard Riggs of Dallas, transfers today are seldom handled as poorly as that one was 10 years ago. But the problem has remained bad enough to recently make Texas the first state to legislate against patient dumping.

"It wasn't just an overwhelming huge problem with streams of ambulances with terrible transfers. But just one a month was a disaster for the poor patient involved," said Riggs, who heads the Texas Medical Association's committee on emergency medical services and trauma.

By April 1, all Texas hospitals are required to adopt transfer policies adhering to strict new rules approved by the Texas Board of Health at the behest of the Texas Legislature.

"If you are in pain, somebody will look at you, evaluate your condition and do something for you and then get you to a facility equipped to handle your problem and/or a public facility," said Rep. Jesse Oliver, D-Dallas. He pushed the new law through the Texas Legislature last spring as part of a package of laws on medical care for the poor.

The new transfer rules were penned primarily to stop hospitals from shipping out non-paying emergency patients before giving them minimum care or stabilizing them, Oliver said.

The rules require that hospitals initiate treatment to avoid loss of life, organs or body parts and provide care for a woman in labor.

If the hospital doesn't have the necessary equipment or staff to correct the medical problem, a physician should evaluate the patient, provide any necessary treatment and transfer the patient as soon as possible.

Also, the rules require specific information to be sent with a transferred patient. The physician authorizing the transfer must secure a receiving physician and hospital to accept the patient.

Oliver said he wanted to make private hospitals "exercise some reasonable judgment in alleviating pain and suffering" for emergency patients who are not insured and can't pay a deposit.

But Riggs said most dumping or transfer of patients for financial reasons has stopped and the new rules should halt "what little was left over."

Most transfers are for medical rather than financial reasons, Riggs said, since many rural hospitals do not have the facilities to deal with some serious emergency cases.

"Everybody dwells on the financial aspects of all this. But more importantly is when hospitals don't have the capability to take care of the patient. That most often is the reason for transfer," Riggs said.

"It is really the rural versus the very large city hospitals. Because the smaller hospitals don't often get transfers, the larger ones are the ones that get the improper transfers," Riggs said.

The Texas Hospital Association is pleased with the new rules, particularly because they should improve communication in transfers, said Charles Bailey, THA vice president for legal affairs.

But private hospitals are concerned that public hospitals may narrow their eligibility requirements for charity care and leave private hospitals to deal with more non-paying patients, Bailey said. According to the new rules, a hospital must agree to take a patient before the transfer can take place.

"I think everybody will be looking more closely at eligibility," Bailey said.

Motorists pay fines in blood

ANGLETON (AP) — About 65 Brazoria County traffic violators paid their fines in blood in exchange for having their tickets dismissed, authorities said.

The motorists took Justice of the Peace Walter Mathews up on his one-day offer to drop tickets against violators who participate in a blood drive at the county courthouse.

"I'd rather take blood than take their money," Mathews said.

The drive on Friday netted 136 pints of blood, 65 of which came from traffic offenders.

Tickets were also dismissed for those who showed up to donate but whose blood could not be accepted. Motorists charged with driving while intoxicated were not allowed to participate.

I'M HOOKED

If you happen to be like me — in the over 40 age group — this little bit of information might be of interest to you. I don't usually have much time for "just for fun" reading, so I was looking forward to finally reading "The Clan of the Cave Bear" while Sue and I traveled to Tennessee during Christmas vacation. When I ran down to the Howard County Library just before we left town I was disappointed to find the book was checked out... but, it was available in the large print section of the library. The kindly librarian let me have the book and now I'm hooked. When Sue and I travel we often take turns driving and reading aloud to each other. You can't imagine how nice that big print was to read. — We traveled some at night during our trip and discovered something else new to us. One of Sue's friends gave her several "books" on cassettes for a Christmas gift and time and distance seemed to fly as we listened to "Dracula" and Edgar Allan Poe's "Fall of the House of Usher." Scary, too! When I returned the book to the library I learned that audio cassettes are available there also. They have old radio programs, the scriptures and a new series on Texas history. All of these materials are available to everyone, but I especially wanted to bring it to the attention of those with limited vision. Thanks Library!

Three hurt in accidents

Three people were injured in two separate accidents Friday. Denis Earl Williams, 39, of Sterling City Route Box 102 was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital for injuries he suffered when his motorcycle overturned, a hospital spokesman said.

Also, Agnes Mayfield Monzino, 43, of Duncenville and Patricia Patterson McCutchen, 50, of Coahoma were taken by ambulance to Hall-Bennett Hospital after a car collision, according to police reports. The hospital was unable to confirm treating the women. Williams' 1980 Harley-

Davidson overturned at 7:23 p.m. Friday while he was westbound on Highway 80, police reports said. The motorcycle skid 273 feet after throwing the rider.

The other accident occurred at 4:25 p.m. Friday at 1800 E. Fourth. Monzino, driving a 1969 Cadillac, failed to yield at a stop sign to McCutchen, who was driving a 1985 Pontiac Grand Prix, according to police reports. The collision occurred at Fourth and Tulane.

McCutchen was not wearing a seat belt, police reports said. Monzino was cited for failure to yield right of way.

Museum picks new trustees

Seven new trustees were elected for the Heritage Museum at its annual membership meeting.

Serving three-year terms will be Kay Bancroft, Ernie Boyd, Rob Haney, Lori Mae P. ... Floyd Smith, Darlene Daoney and Pat Hardison will serve two-year terms.

Officers for 1986 are Curt Mullins, president; Katie Grimes, vice president; Janice Rosson, secretary and Kyle Choate, treasurer.

In other business, the executive committee authorized the purchase of a replica Metoposaurus dinosaur skeleton, found near Otis-Chalk in the 1940s. The original skeleton is on display at the Texas Memorial Museum in Austin. Also, curator Curt Mullins presented Harry Middleton, 1985 president, with a plaque.

Chamber banquet deadline nearing

The deadline is Jan. 31 to purchase tickets for the annual Big Spring Chamber of Commerce banquet to be held Feb. 8 at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Tickets are $12.50 each and may be purchased from board of directors members, the Ambassadors, the Blue Blazers or at the chamber office. A total of 650 tickets must be sold for the chamber to break even, said executive director LeRoy Tillery. Usually 600 to 700 people attend the banquet, he said.

Dr. Don Newbury, president of Howard Payne University, will speak and annual chamber awards will be given.

School schedules open house

An open house is scheduled for Thursday at the high school.

At this time, parents of junior high and high school students will have an opportunity to visit with teachers and pick up report cards.

The One-Act Play is "The Diary of Anne Frank." Those on the cast are: Dana Hiltbrunner, Anne Frank, Thad Sneed, Mr. Frank, Lance Soles, Mr. Van Daan, Sylvia Dale, Mrs. Van Daan, John Gustin, Peter Van Daan, and Shay Howard, Mr. Kraler.

Others are: Teresa West, Miep, Joe Summers, Mr. Dussel, Tonya Rock, Mrs. Frank, and Melynda Grifford, Margot.

Alternates for the play are Russell Roberts and Tara McCarthy. Crew heads are Russell Roberts and Kim Henry. Crew members are Sandra Alcantar and Leticia Reiner. The play is directed by Mrs. Jan Sims.

The seventh grade boys basketball team defeated Grady Monday. The eighth grade girls also won their game, while the eighth grade boys suffered a loss.

The junior varsity boys and girls basketball teams were defeated by Sands Tuesday. The varsity girls were also defeated. The varsity boys won their game after going into two overtime periods.

There will be no classes Monday due to a teacher's workd. y. School will resume on Tuesday at regular time.

Boys, girls teams in action

On Monday the basketball teams will be in action. The boys B team will play at 7 p.m., and the A team will play at 8 p.m. Both teams will be playing against Colorado City in Colorado City.

The girls teams will also play Colorado City at 5 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. These games will be played in the Runnels gymnasium.

Report cards will be handed out Wednesday. The Valentine Committee will be having a meeting Wednesday during second advisory.

National Junior Honor Society grade sheets will be available Thursday. Sheets must be filled out and returned no later than Jan. 27 to room 202 or 312.

Finals over, report cards given

Semester finals were given Thursday and Friday. Report cards will be handed out Wednesday and should be returned Friday.

All teachers attended a workday Saturday to review for a competency test which will be given Mar. 10.

The Mustang basketball teams have high hopes of finishing at the top in district competition. The Lady Mustangs are 2-0. The boys stand at 1-1 due to a narrow defeat by Forsan.

Mustangs travel to Sterling City Tuesday. The Student Council is planning to sale telegrams for Valentine's Day and do computer matching for St. Patrick's Day.

Inservice dismisses school

School will be out Monday due to teacher inservice. The second semester will begin Tuesday.

The Glasscock County 4-H Livestock Show will be held on Friday and Saturday. There will be no school Friday.

The Bearkats will host the Sands Mustangs Friday. The varsity girls will play at 6:30 p.m. and the varsity boys will follow.

Reading scores big in area MS Read-a-thon

Students in Big Spring schools stacked up the books in the Fall edition of the Multiple Sclerosis READ-A-THON.

Youngsters read a record 296 books and raised $490.08 to lead the fight against multiple sclerosis in West Texas.

Recently local MS volunteers presented an exciting challenge to grade school students: "join the MS READ-A-THON and read for the need of others."

With the support of area teachers and parents, the children responded by reading books and recruiting sponsors who contributed a quarter or more for each book read. All proceeds went to the Permian Basin Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The funds collected in the read-a-thon are used to support the research and patient services programs of the MS Society. There are 500,000 persons afflicted with MS in the United States.

Two-hundred new cases are detected everyday in persons in their 20's, 30's and 40's. Many MS persons are able to live normal lives, but others must use canes, crutches or wheelchairs. The cause of MS is unknown.

Children who participated in this program are: Jeremy Bronaugh, Amanda Tijerina, Christina Gonzales, Melinda Fritsh, Margaret Reyes, Samantha Venegas, Leah Sealy, Brian Tubb, Angela Tubb, Wade McWilliams, Toby Shewmake and Crystal Adkison.

Others are: Michael Madison, Elizabeth Rivas, Stacey Rivas and Allison Cooper.

Lotto mania draws lines

NEW YORK (AP) - Saturday's $30 million jackpot in the state's Lotto 48 drawing attracted so many players that lottery officials, who anticipated raising the payoff, said their computers couldn't keep up.

Bets were placed at a rate of more than $19,000 a minute Saturday morning and sales were made faster than during a comparable period before August's $41 million drawing, the North American record, said Lottery Director John D. Quinn.

The six winning numbers drawn Saturday night were 22, 32, 34, 14, 43 and 12.

Lottery officials said the computers wouldn't be able to finish processing results to determine if anyone had picked the right numbers until Sunday.

On Saturday alone, sales totaled $11.4 million, said Dan Cadden, the lottery's director of operations. Since Wednesday's drawing, people had bet $27.8 million, compared to $18.7 million gambled in the same period before the August drawing, he said.

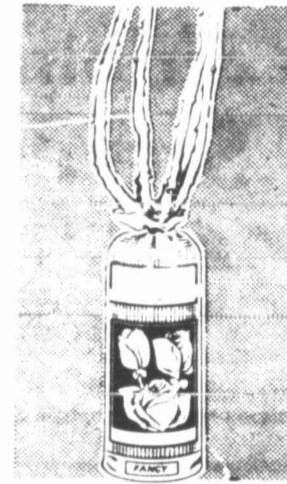

Revenue from that heavy betting had boosted the jackpot from $28 million Thursday to $30 million by Friday.

White House announces Reagan's polyps benign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three small polyps removed from President Reagan's colon during a post-cancer surgery checkup were found to be benign along with a sample of skin taken from a bump on his face, the White House said Saturday.

The president, resting over the weekend at his Camp David, Md., retreat, was given the results of the tests by his personal physician, Dr. T. Burton Smith, according to White House spokesman Albert Brashear.

On Saturday, Reagan kept to his normal schedule and delivered his weekly radio address from the presidential retreat.

The president, his wife Nancy, and their dog Rex flew to the Catocin Mountain retreat Friday evening after the president's six-hour visit to the Bethesda Naval Hospital.

The 74-year-old president underwent the first examination of his colon since his successful cancer surgery in July. Blood tests, X-rays, and a CAT scan were also done.

The White House issued a terse, two-sentence statement Saturday on the results of the president's medical tests.

"Final laboratory evaluation on the three intestinal polyps and facial tissue removed from the president yesterday has been completed and all are benign. The President was informed of the results by his physician at Camp David this morning," the statement said.

Brashear, asked for more detail, refused comment. "I can not and will not elaborate on the statement," he said. Asked for Reagan's reaction to the apparent clean bill of health, the spokesman said, "He's fine. We expected nothing less."

The spokesman said no further details on the president's health or checkup would be forthcoming. Reagan was expected to remain secluded at Camp David until Monday, a federal holiday honoring Martin Luther King Jr.

The statement issued by the White House did not state how the results were obtained or who performed the tests. Although it did not state which physician discussed the checkup with Reagan, Brashear checked and said Smith had spoken with the president.

On Friday, the White House had issued a brief statement saying that initial tests had shown that three "very small" polyps were removed and had been evaluated as "clinically benign."

After a two-inch cancerous tumor and a two-foot section of Reagan's colon were removed in July, Reagan's physicians recommended that he undergo regular tests to be sure that there is no recurrence of the cancer.

Cancer specialists don't regard cancer patients as cured until they have survived five years without a recurrence.

Space shuttle finally makes it back to earth

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The space shuttle Columbia ended its hard-luck mission Saturday with a faultless pre-dawn touchdown in the California desert, two days late and a continent away from its intended landing site.

After a record seven launch postponements and three wave-offs from the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, where it was supposed to have landed Thursday, the shuttle landed at 8:59 a.m. EST on a floodlit concrete runway in the Mojave Desert.

Florida had been the target again Saturday, but a threat of rain for a third straight day forced shuttle commander Robert Gibson to keep the ship in orbit for an extra swing around the Earth for the California landing.

"Columbia performed magnificently," said Jesse Moore, who administers the shuttle program for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Moore said the refurbished Columbia, which was out of service for two years for overhaul, suffered no ill effects from the six-day voyage, and the seven-member crew appeared to be in good condition.

Despite the failure of a device that was to enhance photographs of Halley's comet and of some of the mission's experiments, Moore said the mission achieved 90 percent of its objectives.

Yacht rescue mission cut short by Yemen fighting

Stewards check the table setting in the dining room of the royal yacht Britannia, which was pressed into service to evacuate Britons and other foreigners from factional battles in South Yemen.

LONDON (AP) — The royal yacht Britannia cut short its South Yemen rescue mission in the face of heavy fighting Saturday and headed across the Gulf of Aden, taking about 300 evacuees to safety in Djibouti, the government said.

Other foreign nationals, caught in the outbreak of war in the Marxist nation at the southern tip of the Saudi Arabian peninsula, assembled on the beach awaiting rescue until fighting became too heavy for boats to approach, the British news agency Press Association said.

Three Soviet ships took 1,000 people, most of them Soviets and Eastern Europeans, 160 miles to Djibouti on the east African coast, the British Broadcasting Corp. said.

BBC said some Britons were on the Soviet ship, and added that the body of one Soviet was aboard, but did not give details of the death.

Britain, France and the Soviet Union have been reported cooperating closely on the evacuation effort since fighting broke out between government and rebel forces in South Yemen six days ago.

The Soviet Union is South Yemen's closest ally and has a large community of residents there. The capital, Aden, near the entrance to the Red Sea, has an important Soviet naval base and Soviets help run the armed services, the port, the airport and the civil service.

The royal yacht, which had been cruising to New Zealand for use during the queen's scheduled visit there in February, was diverted from the Red Sea to help the trapped foreign diplomatic and business community.

Small boats from the 3,990-ton vessel picked up 140 evacuees from the beach east of Aden on Friday evening.

But when they returned at first light Saturday, shooting on shore halted the evacuation after about 160 people were ferried to the Britannia, a spokesman for the Defense Ministry said. He did not give his name, in accordance with British government practice.

A Foreign Office spokesman said most of the 70 or 80 Britons in South Yemen had been rescued and were en route to Djibouti, but that a return trip to Aden for the people left behind was "an option."

Repeated broadcasts on BBC world service radio advised any Britons still in Aden to contact the U.N. Development Office about future evacuation, and people outside the capital were told to await further instructions.

Sixty-three French nationals evacuated by the Britannia have been transferred to the French warship De Grasse at the request of the French Press Association said.

West Germany said five of its citizens are unaccounted for and are believed to have taken refuge from street fighting.

Spokesman Hans Schumacher at the Foreign Ministry in Bonn said four West German women and two children were evacuated, and that after the embassy was hit by shell fire, the remaining staff there went to United Nations offices or the home of the West German consul in Aden.

British Ambassador Arthur Marshall was said to be aboard the royal yacht.

Idle director still draws her salary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two months after White House officials asked her to resign, Loretta Cornelius is still earning $73,600 a year as deputy director of the Office of Personnel Management but performs no official duties.

While Mrs. Cornelius still holds OPM's No. 2 job, agency spokesman James Lafferty says he only sees her occasionally in the hallways.

"We just don't have any contact," he said.

"She has no duties," Lafferty added. Tasks normally performed by the deputy director are being shared by other top OPM officials, he said.

Cornelius angered administration officials by giving Senate testimony last June that helped prevent her old boss, Donald J. Devine, from continuing as OPM director.

She was asked to resign Nov. 8 by White House officials who said the new OPM director, Constance Horner, wanted to pick a new deputy director.

Cornelius was not at work Friday and was unavailable for comment. Her attorney, Ronald H. Uscher, declined to comment except to confirm that his client was still OPM's deputy director.

In an interview published in the January issue of The Washington Woman, Cornelius said she was staying on at OPM to fight internal agency charges that she improperly used a government car and chauffeur for personal business.

OPM wants Cornelius to pay the government $3,536 to cover the cost of mileage and the chauffeur's overtime.

"I want to get all of these false accusations cleared up," Cornelius was quoted in the magazine as saying.

After she was asked to resign last fall, Cornelius said through her lawyers that she served at the pleasure of the president and would only give up her job if the request came from President Reagan.

So far that request has not been made, said Albert R. Brashear, a White House spokesman.

Lafferty said he understood that the Nov. 8 White House request for Cornelius' resignation was still pending.

Brashear declined to discuss why Reagan had not followed up on his staff's request that Cornelius give up the OPM post.

"It's a personnel matter and we don't discuss it while it's going on," Brashear said.

"The only statement that is pertinent as far as we are concerned is that we have said the president believes each Cabinet secretary and agency head has the right to select his or her own deputies," Brashear said.

Brashear conceded that Horner has not been able to exercise that right.

Asked when he thought the matter might be resolved, Lafferty said: "Frankly we consider that a White House matter and it's up to them to really act on it."

Cornelius became acting director of OPM on March 25, 1985, when Devine resigned to become executive assistant while awaiting Senate confirmation for a second term as the agency's head.

A month later, she fired Devine after discovering that he had secretly empowered himself to continue running the agency.

During his confirmation hearings before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, Cornelius testified that Devine asked her to remain silent about the letter he had signed delegating those powers.

Realignment Rumors

By Charlie Alcorn

Every two years before the University Interscholastic League, the body that governs high school athletics in Texas, announces its decisions on realignment the rumor mills start running overtime. No where is this more evident than in Big Spring. Everybody and their brother is just dying to know whether the Steers are finally going move down to Class 4A after years of martyrdom in the "Little Southwest Conference".

The wait will be over soon for the Steers and several other teams in the Crossroads who could be moved up, down or realigned in the same class. The UIL will announce all new districts and realignments on January 30.

Briefly, here are the current rumors circulating about area teams. Forsan is a sure bet to move up to Class into Class 2A, probably with Stanton in district 8-2A. Klondike could easily move down the Six-Man ranks, but the school board is hesitant to make the switch. Coahoma could move down to 2A, but it's not likely. Garden City and Sands will stay in Class A, but district 7-A will undergo radical changes to eliminate the present zone format. Garden City could possibly join a new Class A district to the west with Grandfalls, Rankin, Iraan, Wink, and Sanderson.

My bet is that Big Spring will move down to Class 4A and join District 2-4A that currently includes; Sweetwater, Lamesa, San Angelo Lakeview, Fort Stockton, Andrews, Monahans, Pecos and Snyder.

Here's the reason why. During the last realignment period in 1983-84, Big Spring barely made the 5A cut with 1309 students enrolled in the top four grades. The big-boy cutoff for that year was 1306. This year BSHS Athletic Director Ron Logback the Steer student population at 1310.

I'd bet some 50-yard line Super Bowl tickets (got any takers out there?) that the 5A cutoff will be raised by more than four students during the upcoming realignment period.

Rumor has it that Big Spring will be some 75 students under the 5A cap. So goodbye Mojo, Angry Orange, Screaming Eagles and the like. And hello to a group bunch of Wild Mustangs and Los Lobos.

Actually, it's much like jumping from the fire to the frying pan. Anybody in town who expects the Steers to waltz in to the lower ranks and come out with instant district championships should hastily reconsider.

Everybody plays good football in 2-4A. Sweetwater is the defending state 4A champions. Lamesa and Andrews are both currently state-ranked in basketball. Snyder is the defending state champs in volleyball. In a word, tough.

The biggest difference between the two districts is naturally, size.

Big Spring head football coach Quinn Eudy feels that the probable drop to 4A won't mean a drop in the quality of play. "I think the two districts are comparable in quality, the big difference is depth. We'll be playing schools that are closer to the same size as we are, and that will definitely be to our benefit."

Indeed, Big Spring has been behind the eight ball long enough. There is just no way a high school in a town of 25,000 can compete with schools from cities of 100,000 or more. Big Spring natives have always taken pride in playing in Texas' most celebrated district, despite sharing the state record for consecutive district losses (43, 1974-80). It was fun playing "the best", and those occasional 4-5A upsets were always very sweet.

But it's time to stop playing the 5A whipping boy and get accustomed to the role of "new kid on the block".

Big Spring won't necessarily be the bullies of the new 4A district, but I do predict winning seasons in every sport (no sports dropped will be dropped at the 4A level) and championship challenges to replace those perennial cellar-dwelling finishes.

A new era is likely to begin for Big Spring High School. And though many will lament the change now, I suspect their view will change when the Steers trade those losers blues for a victory tune.

And what a sweet (4A) song that will be.

No. Carolina holds off Duke

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Steve Hale came in through the back door to christen North Carolina's new $33.8 million Dean E. Smith Student Activities Center.

Hale, 6-foot-4 senior, scored a career-high 28 points, and 6-11 1/2 center Brad Daugherty had another 23 to lead top-ranked North Carolina to a 95-92 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over No. 3 Duke Saturday before a capacity crowd of 21,444 at the new arena, named for the Tar Heels coach.

Hale started the second half with a steal and a layup, then shook loose for three back-door layups as the unbeaten Tar Heels broke the game open with a 16-5 after intermission. The run gave North Carolina a 64-48 margin, its biggest lead of the game.

During an ensuing timeout, the North Carolina cheerleaders ran across the court, carrying a streamer which said, "Dean's Dome—The Tradition Continues." The Tar Heels had posted a 169-20 record in 20 1/2 seasons at their old home, Carmichael Auditorium.

(4) Syracuse 73

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Just as he had done before his foot injury last season, Louisville guard Milt Wagner is rising to meet every situation.

Wagner, a senior, scored 24 points as No. 18 Louisville built an early lead then fought off Syracuse comeback attempts to take a 83-73 victory over the fourth-ranked Orangemen in a nationally televised college basketball game Saturday.

"Milt is playing like Milt used to play" before he was redshirted last season because of a broken foot, said Louisville Coach Denny Crum. "He has a way of rising to the top."

Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim said he underestimated Wagner.

"I thought there were two things during the first 10 minutes of the game — we were not aggressive on defense and we didn't play Milt Wagner very well," Boeheim said. "I thought we played real well in the last 30 minutes, but we dug too deep a hole."

For Wagner, the game was just another confidence builder for him and the team.

"My jumper is back and I have all the confidence in the world," he said. "It just showed us we're as good as anybody else in the Top 20 if we play hard and with intensity."

Iowa 57

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Richard Rellford scored six points in a 12-5 run during a five-minute stretch late in the game to rally second-ranked Michigan to a 61-57 victory over Iowa in the Big Ten Conference Saturday.

Michigan, bouncing back from Thursday night's 73-63 loss to Minnesota, wiped out a five-point Iowa lead with its charge and sent its record to 17-1, 5-1 in the conference. Iowa fell to 13-5 and 3-2.

Center Roy Tarpley led Michigan with 18 points and 16 rebounds despite picking up his fourth foul with 8:24 left, and Rellford finished with 15. The Wolverines were in foul trouble for most of the second half but were able to compensate with a 45-27 rebounding edge.

Andre Banks led Iowa with 15 points, but missed two free throws that could have cut Michigan's lead to one point with 31 seconds left. Gerry Wright, Al Lorenzen and Bill Jones each scored 11 points for the Hawkeyes.

The score was tied at 28-28 at halftime.

Duke's Mark Alarie, right, goes high to knock the ball away from North Carolina's Steve Hale (25), during first half play in Saturday's ACC game being played at the new Dean Smith Activities Center in Chapel Hill, N.C. The Tar Heels won the game 95-92.

Heisman Trophy winner Bo Jackson (34) of Auburn escapes the grasp of the North's John Offerdahl of Western Michigan and makes a first down during first quarter action of the Senior Bowl in Mobile, Alabama. The North defeated the South 31-17, behind the passing of Washington State quarterback Mark Rypien, who threw three touchdown passes and was named the game's Most Valuable Player.

North wins Senior

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Mark Rypien of Washington State wasn't even scheduled to play in the game, but injuries to a trio of quarterbacks opened the door for him.

"I don't think I did anything to hurt myself," Rypien said of his potential draft slot in the National Football League after he fired three touchdown passes Saturday to lead the North to a 31-17 victory over the South in the 37th Senior Bowl game.

"I showed 'em I could (put) touch (on) the ball," Rypien said after hitting on 13 of 17 attempts for 168 yards.

Rypien wasn't on the original Senior Bowl roster, but added when two other North quarterbacks — Robbie Boscoe of Brigham Young and Jack Trudeau of Illinois — pulled out of the game with injuries.

He was thrust into Saturday's action on the North's first possession when starter Mike Norseth of Kansas was knocked out of the game with a mouth injury.

North Coach Dan Reeves of the Denver Broncos said Rypien "showed great poise and threw the ball extremely well."

"They played like they'd been together all season," Reeves said of his squad.

"To sum up the game, the North just dominated the second half," said South Coach Leeman Bennett of Tampa Bay.

Each member of the winning team was paid $2,250 and the losing team members each got $2,000.

The game's Most Valuable Player award, an automobile, went to Napoleon McCallum of Navy, who rushed for 91 yards on eight carries and also caught three passes for 31 yards, including one touchdown.

Two of Rypien's TD passes came in a span of 49 seconds of the fourth quarter and put the North in control.

Rypien gave the North a 21-10 lead when he fired a 36-yard scoring strike to Rennie Benn of Lehigh with 9:20 left in the game and he stretched the advantage to 28-10 with 8:31 to go with a 40-yard completion to Reggie Bynum of Oregon State.

Bynum's score came on the first play after Joe Kelly of Washington intercepted a pass by the South's Jeff Wickersham of Louisiana State.

Rypien entered the game on the North's first offensive possession after Norseth had engineered a drive from the 21 to the South 36. Norseth had to have 40 stitches in his mouth after being injured on a 9-yard scramble to the 36.

Rypien then completed the 79-yard drive with an 11-yard touchdown pass to McCallum.

Becker, Lendl set for Masters final

NEW YORK (AP) — Two of the hardest hitters in tennis — Wimbledon champion Boris Becker of West Germany and top-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia — fought off strong challenges Saturday to advance to the final of the $500,000 Nabisco Masters tennis championships.

Becker outlasted Sweden's Anders Jarryd 6-3, 6-4 and Lendl, the reigning U.S. Open champion, stopped Ecuador's Andres Gomez 6-4, 7-5.

Sunday's nationally televised title match on the indoor carpet at Madison Square Garden is scheduled to begin at 12:30 p.m. EST. The victory is worth $100,000, while the runnerup will collect $70,000.

Although the 18-year-old Becker and Lendl, the world's No. 1-ranked player, were favored in their semifinal battles, neither one had an easy time of it.

Lendl broke Gomez's service to begin the match. And when he held serve at love, beginning with the first of his 11 aces, it appeared he would easily crush the Ecuadorian, a last-minute replacement when fourth-seeded Jimmy Connors was forced to withdraw because of illness.

Gomez lost his serve again in the fifth game when he double-faulted at break point. Lendl then held for a 5-1 lead and a seemingly quick trip into the final.

It was not to be. Gomez, a powerful left-hander with a small but vocal group of supporters cheering him on, matched Lendl stroke for stroke, power for power, slice for slice.

He broke Lendl's service at love in the eighth game when the Czech was serving for the opening set. And when he held his own serve at love, he had pulled to 5-4.

Lendl, however, stopped any thought Gomez may have had of a first-set comeback by racing out to a 40-love lead, then, after dropping a point, closing out the set with a service winner.

The battle had just begun.

With the small band of Ecuadorians sitting high up in the arena chanting "Gomez, Gomez" and ringing a cowbell, the left-hander battled Lendl on even terms through the first 10 games. But, aided by a double-fault — the fifth for Gomez in the match — Lendl finally broke service in the 11th game and served for the match.

It was to be the longest game of the match, a 14-point battle with both players racing around the court making seemingly impossible retrievals. At 40-15, Lendl had double match point, but Gomez saved them both.

Two deuces later, Lendl reached match point for a third time. And for a third time, Gomez rose to the challenge, winning a stirring exchange when Lendl's forehand drop volley was just wide.

Lendl double-faulted, giving Gomez the advantage. Then he rifled a forehand deep into the corner that Gomez couldn't reach, bringing the game back to deuce.

His 10th ace gave Lendl his fourth match point. And this time, finally, he closed out the 1-hour, 40-minute battle when Gomez netted the service return.

"He's hitting the ball really hard," Gomez said of Lendl. "His main weapon is that his serve is so big and that puts a lot of pressure on you when you serve."

"I think I stayed more with him today, but if he's serving well, it's hard."

Becker, a flamboyant redhead from Leiman, West Germany, had the Madison Square Garden crowd chanting "Boris, Boris" as he advanced to the championship match in this, his first trip to the Masters.

And he didn't disappoint his fans, many of whom cheered him on in German.

"You've got him in the bag. Now close the bag," came a shout in German from high up in the 18,800-seat arena. Later, the same person shouted — again in German — "Close the bag. Close the bag."

Becker did just that, but it wasn't quite that simple nor that easy.

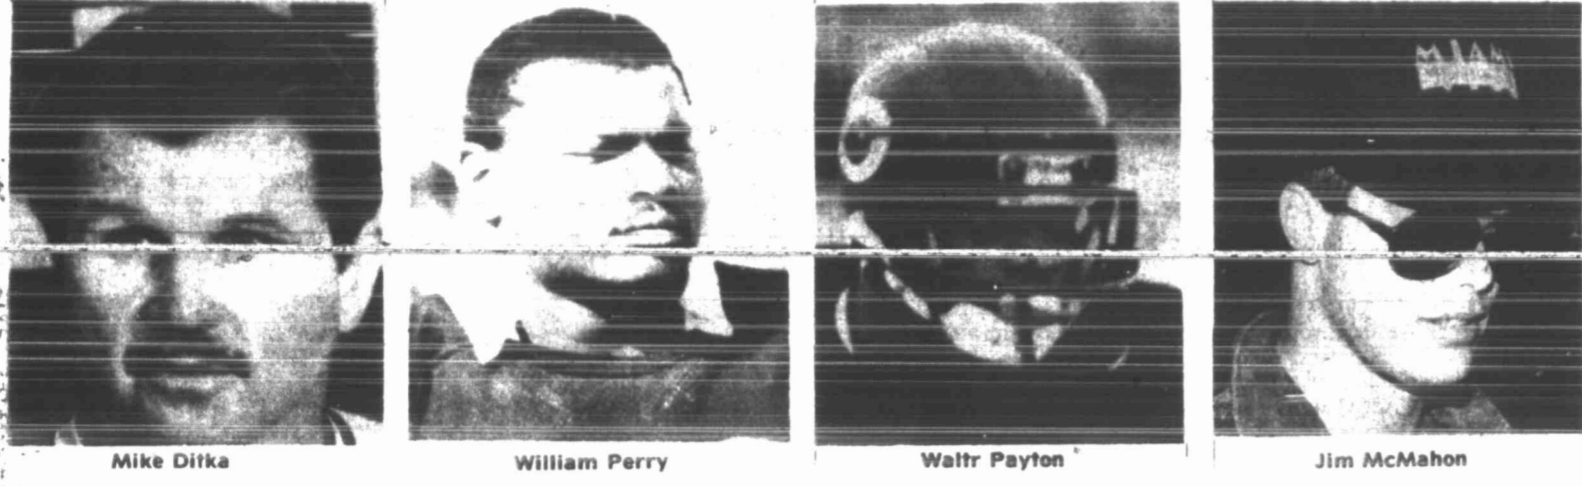

Ranked eighth in the world, Jarryd jumped out in front, breaking Becker at 30 in the fourth game to grab a 3-1 lead. But Becker, No. 6 on the Hewlett-Packard-ATP computer, then reeled off six straight games, closing out the first set and taking a 1-0 lead in the second.

When Jarryd lost his serve in the fourth game, and Becker fought back, aided by two of his seven aces, to hold in the fifth game and take a 4-1 lead, it appeared the 18-year-old redhead would breeze to a quick, easy victory.

But Jarryd, who had played loosely in the opening set, showed that he wasn't quite ready to just give up and collect his $35,000 for his semifinal appearance.

West German tennis star Boris Becker is seen during play in his semifinal match against Sweden's Anders Jarryd Saturday afternoon in New York's Madison Square Garden. Becker won the match 6-3, 6-4 to advance to the finals.

Chicago Bears: A season to remember

By NICHOLAS K. GERANIOS
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — The quarterback opened training with a Mohawk haircut. A new defensive tackle nicknamed "The Refrigerator" went from a "wasted draft pick" to a national cult hero. The coach was convicted of drunken driving. The team got together to put out a video, "The Super Bowl Shuffle."

renegotiated. Other holdouts are defensive end Richard Dent, defensive back Todd Bell, linebacker Al Harris, offensive tackle Keith Van Horne, and defensive tackle Steve McMichael.

— Aug. 5: Perry finally signs a 4-year contract, for a reported $1.356 million, after missing two weeks of camp. But two days later, defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan calls Perry "a wasted draft pick" after Perry's first practices are unimpressive. "They're trying to get me motivated," explains Perry.

— Aug. 8: "The Super Bowl, that's what we're here for," says running back Walter Payton, the leading rusher in NFL history, who has never played in one. But the next day, the Bears lose their exhibition opener to St. Louis. They also lose to Indianapolis and Dallas before smashing Buffalo in the exhibition finale. All of the holdouts are back before the regular season opens, except for Harris and Bell, who will end up sitting out the season.

— Sept. 8: The Bears rally to beat Tampa Bay 38-28, after trailing 28-17 at halftime, in what later is viewed as a key victory of the season.

— Sept. 15: The Bears topple New England 20-7, but McMahon suffers muscle spasms in his back.

— Sept. 19: The Bears crush the Vikings 33-24 in a nationally televised game at Minnesota, when McMahon comes off the bench to throw three touchdown passes in less than 6 minutes in the third quarter.

— Sept. 29: The Bears trounce Washington 45-10, despite only 6 rushing yards by Payton, his lowest total of the year.

— Oct. 13: The Bears record a 26-10 victory over San Francisco, the team that knocked them out of the playoffs last season. Perry gets a shot on offense and carries twice for short yardage. Payton also begins his NFL record string of nine straight 100-yard games with 132 yards. After the flight home, Ditka is arrested on a charge of drunken driving.

— Oct. 21: "Fridge Fever" takes hold as the Bears blast Green Bay 23-7. Perry, again working offense, blasts two huge holes in the Packer line for Payton touchdowns, and then scores himself on a 1-yard run. He is an overnight sensation, and soon finds himself wooed for commercials and talk shows.

— Nov. 3: Payton rushes for 192 yards, his best output of the season, as the Bears down the Packers 16-10. Perry, in yet another role as a receiver, catches a 4-yard touchdown pass.

— Nov. 8: Ditka is convicted of drunken driving and fined $300.

— Nov. 17: The Bears demolish Dallas 44-0 on the road, providing Ditka with a victory over Tom Landry, the man he once worked for as an assistant coach.

— Nov. 24: The Bears rout Atlanta 36-0, registering their second consecutive shutout and their 12th straight win. Perry scores again on a 1-yard run.

— Dec. 2: For the Bears, blue Monday. Dan Marino throws three touchdowns in a Monday night game as the Dolphins win 38-24, handing the Bears their first loss of the season. McMahon comes off bench in the second half, but fails to salvage the game. But there's a lighter side, with word on formation of The Refrigerettes, a group of 200-plus pound cheerleaders in the Perry mold.

— Dec. 20: Eight Bears make the Pro Bowl: offensive tackle Jim Covert, center Jay Hilgenberg, Payton, Dent, defensive tackle Dan Hampton, linebacker Otis Wilson, Singletary and defensive back Dave Duerson.

— Dec. 22: The Bears rout Detroit 37-17, as linebacker Wilber Marshall's savage hit knocks veteran quarterback Joe Ferguson out of the game. Marshall is fined $2,000 by the NFL for spearing, and rumors circulate that the Bears defense has put a bounty of quarterbacks. And after the game, Ditka sharply criticizes his team's performance, saying the Bears would not have beaten a playoff team.

— Jan. 5: In their first playoff game of the season, the Bears knock running back Joe Morris out of the game early and shut out the Giants 21-0 as receiver Dennis McKinnon catches two touchdown passes.

— Jan. 12: The Bears become the first Super Bowl-bound team in NFL history to shut out consecutive playoff opponents, routing the Rams 24-0 to win the National Football Conference championship.

Meanwhile, "The Super Bowl Shuffle," a record and video made by the Bears, turns up No. 88 on the Billboard chart — providing proof that the Bears can move on the dance floor as well as the gridiron.

Akers keeps job

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Fred Akers will return next season as football coach of the Texas Longhorns, but will be expected to produce better results, Texas Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said Friday.

Akers' teams in nine seasons at Texas have won more than three-fourths of their games, but trailed off in 1984 and 1985 at 15-8-1, including two straight lopsided losses to archrival Texas A&M. He also has won only two of nine post-season bowl games.

Dodds said the men's athletic council met behind closed doors for two hours Friday and discussed Akers' Jan. 3 firing of four assistants and the hiring of their replacements.

However, Dodds said the council has set no standards that Akers will be required to meet in order to hold his job.

"His (Akers') situation is unchanged," he said. "If you're asking me if he'll be here next year, the answer is yes."

Dodds said the council's attitude is much like the public's. "I think they want us to do better, and I think our expectations are high, and I think they should be," he said. "And I think we need to make improvements. ... Our public demands that, and I think our council demands that."

The athletic council, at Dodds' request, recommended that the four dismissed assistants be paid for an additional three months, or until they find new jobs.

Their contracts were scheduled to expire Feb. 28, but the council voted to extend the pay period to May 31, with the option for a further extension.

The recommendation goes to university president William Cunningham.

LOUISIANA SUPERDOME NEW ORLEANS

All in all, it's been quite a season for the rough-and-tumble Chicago Bears, as they compiled the year's best record in the National Football League and earned their first trip ever to the Super Bowl.

Here are the highlights:

— July 20: At training camp in Platteville, Wis., quarterback Jim McMahon tries to give himself a haircut and botches the job. Wide receiver Willie Gault tries to repair the disaster, and cuts off nearly everything but a Mohawk-style strip down the middle.

— July 27: Contract talks break off between the Bears and rookie defensive tackle William Perry, whose size — well over 300 pounds — has earned him the nickname, "The Refrigerator."

— "We are through negotiating and will play without Mr. Perry," warns general manager Jerry Vainisi.

— July 29: The Bears are confronted by key holdouts, including middle linebacker Mike Singletary, who wants his contract

Aggies down Tech on last-second play

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Senior center Jimmy Gilbert's three-point play with five seconds left lifted Texas A&M to a 58-57 come-from-behind victory over Texas Tech Saturday in a battle of Southwest Conference unbeatens.

Gilbert, who hit a total of 19 points, scored on a layup and was fouled by Tech's Ray Irvin six seconds after Dewayne Chism missed a slam dunk that would have wrapped up the game for the Raiders.

The victory kept the Aggies, 11-4 overall, atop the SWC standings at 5-0. The 5-0 start is A&M's best since a 9-0 charge in 1970, the last year the Aggies won a conference title.

Tech, which entered the game tied for first place, fell to 9-7 overall and 4-1.

The Raiders trailed by six points at halftime, 30-24, but used a three-quarter court trap to badger the Aggies in the early minutes of the second half.

Chism scored all eight of his points during a span of 1:13 to help the Raiders race to their biggest lead of the game, 45-38, with 11:18 remaining.

The Aggies stayed close, however, behind the shooting of Don Marbury, who led all scorers with 24 points, including 10 during the final 9 1/2 minutes. Marbury's five-foot jumper with 26 seconds left pulled A&M to within 55-55.

Irvin missed the third end of a one-and-one that would have extended Tech's lead with 22 seconds remaining, and the Aggies came down with the rebound. But Tech stole the ball and Chism was wide open under the bucket.

His attempted jam bounced high off the rim and was rebounded by A&M's Al Pulliam with 10 seconds remaining. The Aggies quickly moved the ball upcourt and fed inside to Gilbert to set up the winning play.

Tony Benford led Tech with 15 points, and Sean Gay followed with 12.

WACO, Texas (AP) — Alvin Franklin scored 27 points, 10 of them in the second half's first eight minutes, to lead Houston to a 79-58 drubbing of Baylor Saturday night in a Southwest Conference basketball game.

Houston upped its season record to 8-7 and 2-3 in SWC play. The Bears fell to 8-9 and 0-6.

Baylor built a brief 6-2 lead with 18:09 left in the first half, but the Cougars ran off a 16-to-6 spurt to take an 18-10 lead with 11:30 left. Houston increased its lead to 14 points, 32-18, with five minutes left in the half.

But the Bears, backed by Michael Williams' six points, ran off a spurt of their own. Baylor outscored the Cougars 12-2 to cut Houston's halftime lead to 34-30.

Franklin's 10-point run in the second half helped Houston build a commanding 50-36 lead with 12:39 remaining. Freshman Steve Smith slam-dunked a last-second basket to end the game and give Houston its largest lead of the night.

Greg Anderson pumped in 22 points and 11 rebounds for Houston, and Ricky Winslow added 16 points.

Robert McLemore came off the bench to lead the Bears with 14 points. Frank Williams and Michael Williams both had 10 points for Baylor.

Houston out rebounded Baylor 45 to 26 and shot 57 percent from the field, while Baylor managed only 40 percent.

SMU 63

Texas 56

DALLAS (AP) — Terry Williams muscled in 19 points and Kevin Lewis produced some critical second half buckets Saturday night to lift the Southern Methodist Mustangs to a 63-56 Southwest Conference victory over the Texas Longhorns.

It was SMU's eighth consecutive victory over Texas. The Mustangs are now 11-5 overall and 3-2 in SWC play.

Texas dropped to 9-8 and 4-2 in SWC games.

Lewis scored nine of his points in the second half, including a three-point play with 23 seconds left to play that put the game away for SMU.

Texas was led by center John Brownlee who scored 16 points but fouled out with slightly over two minutes to play. He was the only Longhorn in double figures.

Texas had problems handling SMU's fullcourt press after building a 7-4 lead.

Local couple gets inside look at Russia

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

Flynn and Grace Long were a little apprehensive about a recent trip to the Soviet Union because of pre-conceptions that Americans hold about the country, they said.

But they found "There is nothing frightening about the inside of Russia. The people have a evident pride about their society and economy. There was a sense of patriotic enthusiasm. We expected some bad experiences and there were none. It really wasn't that strange," said Long.

Long, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, and his wife were members of a tour group assembled by alumni of Davidson College in North Carolina. When they learned of the trip, they at first decided not to go. They changed their minds in the fall and prepared for the week-long tour.

The group left New York on Dec. 28, arrived in Moscow Dec. 29, toured by train to Leningrad Jan. 1 and returned to the United States Jan. 6.

Long is a history buff and had a working knowledge of the Soviet Union before embarking on the trip. But the couple admitted that the trip taught them about as much about Russia as a visit to Chicago would teach a Russian about the United States.

"What we know we learned from seeing the two largest cities" in Russia, they said. Moscow has 8 million people. Leningrad has 3 million.

"There are three things that tend to alienate you" about the Soviet Union, Long said. First are the pre-conceptions perpetuated by years of shaky relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

Mrs. Long said she was a little concerned about "passport control. They take it very seriously." When a guard stared down a passenger entering through the airline gates, Mrs. Long realized, "He's just taking his job very seriously." With a laugh, she added, "I was sure there would be guys (in the airport) with submachine guns. There weren't. It was not as bad as I thought it'd be."

"I thought there would be restrictions on where I could go," Long said. He found very few restrictions. The Soviets do not allow photographs to be taken inside airports, which they consider military installations. But Long was allowed to take pictures of the office building where Mikhail Gorbachev works.

A tour guide "told us 'You can go anywhere you want to,'" Long said. "That's easier said than done," he added, because street signs are unintelligible to the average American.

It is the difference in language that is the second thing that alienates Americans from Russian lifestyles, said Long.

"They have a different vocabulary, a different alphabet," Long said. Many tourists make the mistake of trying to read signs which have letters that make no sense to Americans.

Interpreters with the tour group were fluent in English, but the couple found, "it's difficult to talk to common people on the street," Long said. Despite the language barrier, the couple found the people "very polite, very thoughtful... They are fascinated when they find out you are an American," Mrs. Long said.

The third obstacle is the weather. "It is cold," Long said. "It never got above freezing. It got up to about 27 degrees during the day."

The days were also short. The Flynn and Grace Long recently returned from a trip to the Soviet Union. The couple visited Moscow and Leningrad.

St. Basil's is located on Red Square in Moscow. It was built to celebrate a Russian victory. In the Russian language, the word for "red" means beautiful.

sun rose about 10 a.m. and set about 3 p.m., leaving the tourists five to six hours of daylight.

The Longs were surprised to see almost every Russian on the street "dressed in furs" but quickly realized that furs in Russia are not an extravagance but a necessity.

Mrs. Long said children in the country left a lasting impression on her.

"I have never seen as many children on the street. Babies look like bundles of fur," she said with a smile. "I was very impressed with the children. They were so cute and healthy."

The country provides "lots of activities for children." And children the couple encountered "are extremely well-mannered," said Mrs. Long.

The couple took advantage of the country's rapid transit system, composed of gleaming subway stations.

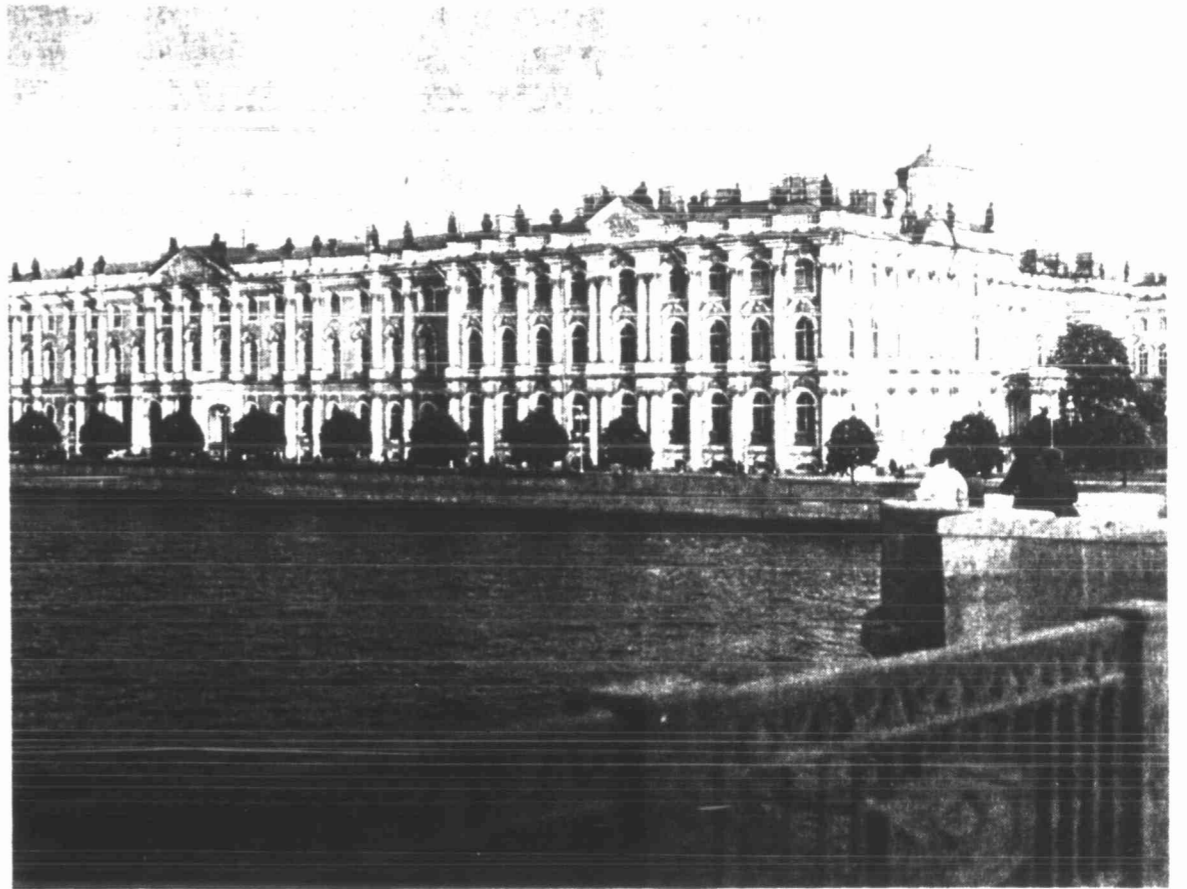

Mrs. Long said, "Every station looks like a museum. There is not a scrap of litter, no signs and no graffiti. It's very clean."

Long added, "Every train was on schedule." During the rush hours, a train would roar through the station "every 30 seconds," Long said.

The Kremlin, long a mystery to Americans, became less so to the Longs after they toured the area.

The word "kremlin" means "mass fortress," Long said. The couple found that almost every Russian city has a kremlin, or an enclosed area.

The couple also learned that the Russian word for "red" is beautiful and Red Square means "beautiful square" in Russian. Every home

The Hermitage, formerly the Winter Palace, is located in Leningrad. The apartments of the czars were once located in this palace.

St. Isaac's Cathedral, located in Leningrad, is now a museum.

has a "red corner," the most attractive area in the home.

Inside the Kremlin, "there is an impressive number of churches," Long said. "That's a surprise to most people. In fact, we saw more crosses than anvils and sickles."

Although most of the churches are not used for religious services, there were active churches within both cities.

"We were told we could go to church," Long said. "There was no problem with that. The impression I got was that the people are very much aware of the church. Attendance is low. The percentage of people who go to church in New York City or Big Spring on any given Sunday is not outstanding," said the minister.

The couple saw "no evidence of unemployment, no begging, homeless people" on the streets. "Everyone apparently has a job," Long explained that some of the jobs are obviously tokens, just something to keep people working. It is a form of welfare, he said. Many jobs "may not be much of an incentive but they offer security. It's a trade-off," Long said. "They trade freedom for security. It takes the risk out of living."

The Longs went into Russian stores, but spent much of their time selecting gifts for people back home in beriozkas, or stores established only for tourists.

"The Russian people can't go in them," Mrs. Long said.

Tourists are not allowed to tip Russians in American dollars. The Longs were told that tips could be made in the form of items. "We took gum, cigarettes and lighters," Mrs. Long said. The Long found items such as these were well received.

The Longs trip coincided with one of the brightest celebrations of the year in the Soviet Union — that of New Year's Eve and New Year's Day. The couple found Moscow decorated with lighted trees.

The Longs also saw a lot of Father Frost, the Soviet equivalent of Santa Claus. In Russia, children look forward to the New Year's Eve arrival of Father Frost bearing gifts for them.

The Longs are sorting out all of their memories of the trip and have been asked to share their experiences in Russia with several local groups.

Big Spring 'celebrities' to wait tables for charity

A number of Big Spring "celebrities" will become waiters for a special benefit Saturday night at the Highland Mall, according to Shirleen Brown of the local American Heart Association chapter.

Brown said the "celebrity waiter" event will benefit the research, public education and community service programs sanctioned by the American Heart Association. Waiters have been selling tickets for the event to raise money and will wear aprons Saturday night to collect tips for the American Heart Association.

According to Rebecca Powell, Highland Mall manager, the waiters will earn tips based on quality, or lack thereof, of service. The top three waiters earning the most tips will win awards at the end of the competition.

Powell said each waiter will perform "extraordinary acts" to earn extra tips during the evening.

The event begins at 7 p.m. Hors d'oeuvres will be served, followed by dinner catered by Furr's cafeteria. Furr's will be serving recipes compiled by the American Heart Association.

Tickets are $25 per person and $50 per couple and are available from any celebrity waiter. Tickets may also be obtained by calling Bob Coltrane at 267-2511 or Shirleen Brown at 267-6361.

The waiters will have a white elephant auction after dinner. Mesa, a local band, will perform until 1 a.m.

A surprise master of ceremonies is also on tap to emcee the events.

Bob Coltrane is chairperson for the event. "We have a good committee that has worked hard to ensure a successful fund-raising event," Coltrane said.

Celebrity waiters include: Sue Balios, Bud Butler, Gary Don Carey, Jerry Clayton, Dave Ziebell, David Mills, Tommy Churchwell, Laurie Churchwell, Gail Earls, Linda Floyd, Dee Elrod, Tony Geanopolis, and Suzanne Haney.

Also Tim Haynes, Sam Hill, Bill Lasater, Cecelia McKenzie, Bob Mehan, Murray Murphy, Jay Phinney, Pat and Pat Porter, John Rice, Dr. David Rickey, Chris Showalter, Larry Don Shaw, Aggie Turner, Rick Turner, Dock Voorhies, Rick Wells, Rowdy Yates.

Shirleen Brown and Bob Coltrane, seated, give their orders to celebrity waiters David Mills and Cindy Robertson.

Anniversaries

The Burlon Williams

Mr. and Mrs. Burlon H. Williams celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday.

Burlon and Katholeen met in Pecos in 1935 and were married at the Rock of Ages in the Carlsbad Caverns, N.M. in 1936. They lived in Reeves and Ward Counties for seven years and moved to Howard County in 1942.

In 1974, both Mr. and Mrs. Williams retired from their careers; Mr. Williams from the Texas and Pacific Transport Company and Mrs. Williams from their self-owned and operated beauty shop.

Burlon Williams was born in Parker County and Katholeen (Harmon) Williams was born in Young County.

The couple's children are Mrs. Bob (Nelda) Jones of Lamesa;

Tom Williams of Houston; and Mrs. Bill (Linda) Battle of Big Spring. They have five grandchildren, Mrs. Steve (Joni) Hodges of Midland; Jason Jones of Lamesa; Reagan and Chad Williams of Houston; and Jana Jones of Big Spring. The celebration will be delayed until later in the spring with a family gathering honoring the couple. All family and friends are invited to share in the celebration with cards and letters.

The Floyd Smiths

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd H. Smith of 208 Capri, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday with a reception in Garrett Hall at the First United Methodist Church.

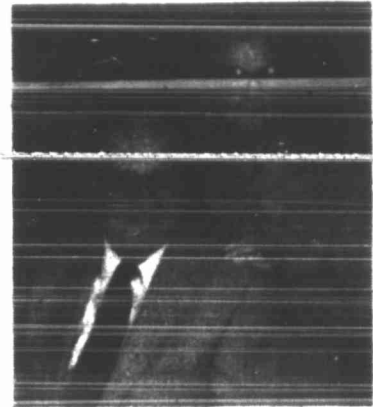

Hosting the event were the couple's children and grandchildren: Mr. and Mrs. Floyd C. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Donelson, Gary and Debra Donelson and Michelle Smith.

Smith was born in Stanton. Mrs. Smith, the former Pauline Cathey, was born in Putnam. They met in Stanton and were high school sweethearts.

They married Jan. 18, 1936, at the Baptist parsonage in Colorado City with the late Dr. P.D. O'Brien officiating.

The couple has lived in Stanton, Dallas and Big Spring. Smith worked for the City of Dallas and Mrs. Smith worked as a bookkeeper for the Dallas Health and Science Museum. They are both retired now.

They are members of the First United Methodist Church. Hobbies including gardening, ceramics, knitting and crafts.

Women meet district director

Bonita Hart, Pecos, district eight director of the Texas Federation of BPW Clubs, was guest speaker at the Business and Professional Women's Club meeting Tuesday.

Hart outlined plans for the district Spring Rally which will be held in Big Spring on March 8 and 9.

At the Spring Rally, representatives selected by local clubs will compete for: Young Career Woman (YCW), Individual Development (ID) and Woman of the Year (WOY).

A winner will be chosen for each of the three categories and will compete at the state convention.

The winners at this level will go on to compete at the national convention and a grand prize winner will be selected for each category.

Emphasis is placed not only on a desire to win but also on preparation for personal growth.

Hart was accompanied by members of the Odessa club: Carol Buchanan, Cliff Buchanan and Jo Gordon who will be participating in the Spring Rally activities here.

Next meeting will be a program-business meeting at La Posada on Jan. 28.

Lifestyle guidelines

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper.

Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7231 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS
Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published.

AUTO RECORDKEEPING (One More Time)

New rules go into effect January 1, 1986, concerning the recordkeeping required for the business use of automobiles, computers, airplanes, boats, etc. All the publicity about the easing of the rules should not lead you to think that you do not have to keep records. The fact is that the new rules are very much like the 1984 Tax Act rules, with the exception that your recordkeeping no longer has to be done "contemporaneously"; that is, as the usage occurs.

You are still required to keep "adequate records" or "sufficient evidence" to substantiate any deductions or credits that you take for the business use of equipment. For automobiles you must keep a record of the date, the distance, the destination, and the business purpose of each trip. Though daily recordkeeping is no longer necessary, the law makes it clear that logbook entries made at or near the time of the trip will still be the best documentation should there be any challenge to your deductions. Receipts, cancelled checks, and other documentary evidence may also be used to support deductions.

The "sampling method" can be used in some circumstances. You keep thorough records for a portion of the year and demonstrate that this portion of the year accurately reflects the usage during the rest of the year.

Where employers provide a vehicle to employees for business use, no logs have to be maintained if certain conditions are met. Check with your accountant for details.

If you use a vehicle or other listed equipment in your business, be sure you understand the recordkeeping requirements in your particular situation. Do what is necessary to maintain adequate records throughout the year. A tax approach could cause you to lose deductions to which you are rightfully entitled.

THE PANTRY

Pantries are a good idea. In addition, they seem to be coming back. More and more houses of medium to large size have them. They serve as an excellent buffer between the kitchen and dining room. Kitchen noises and odors have a tough time getting through to the front of the house. They also remove activities and people from the kitchen that interfere with meal preparation. A pantry with a sink and small refrigerator or icemaker is an ideal place to mix drinks and fix flowers. It is also an ideal place to install a dishwasher. Regardless of its other uses, it can be used for the storage of dining room ware. At Bob's Custom Woodwork we build the pantries to match the kitchen cabinet and install Lazy-Susan shelving and adjustable door shelving.

Adding a pantry can solve most of your home storage problems, as well as making your kitchen more efficient. At BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK, we do all kinds of remodeling and rebuilding including room additions, carports, decks, and sun porches. We also do furniture restoration. Come to 613 North Warehouse Road in the Industrial Park. Tel. 267-5811. Open M-F, 8-12, 1-5 or by appt.

Jaycees to sponsor orientation meeting

An orientation meeting for the new Howard County Jaycees chapter will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Coors Hospitality Room. All interested men and women between the ages of 18 and 35 are welcome to attend, according to Karen Martin, one of the group's organizers.

The chapter currently has 22 charter members and are anticipating 60 by the first of April.

Interim officers are Karen Martin, president; Randy Howell, vice-president; Jim Bob Coates, secretary/treasurer.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower in a speech to an annual meeting of Jaycees in 1953, said, "Yours is one of the nation's most distinguished and enterprising organizations.

You are young and responsible people, with impressive careers and achievements already recorded to your credit...because you are both young and responsible, you know what is your greatest responsibility — tomorrow — the whole future of freedom."

Dr. Donohue

Soreness after exercise

Dear Dr. Donohue: I've started an exercise program — again! I have tried before, but I use as an excuse to stop the soreness in my muscles that develops. Besides, I always hear advice not to exercise over pain. Is there any way to get around this? — E.G.

A certain amount of soreness comes with the territory, at least in the initial days or weeks of an exercise program. If it didn't, something could be wrong.

You are using muscles unaccustomed to the work, and there is bound to be some damage. The explanation is the rise in blood levels of muscle enzymes that accompanies such damage. But the other side of that coin is that while this is happening, other muscle cells are stimulated to grow. The tired old aphorism that you have to break eggs to make an omelette holds in the world of physiology, as elsewhere.

Mind you, I'm talking about soreness from exercise, not frank pain while exercising. I am sure you know the difference. For example, any pain or soreness that prevents a jogger from utilizing correct running technique can lead to greater problems.

For the kind of problem you apparently have, the answer lies in attention to the intensity of exercise in initial workouts. It's been shown that intensity of exercises, as opposed to duration, is the major factor in muscle soreness. So at first keep your intensity low, perhaps extending the duration. I believe this way you will be able to get over the initial weeks of your program. After that, you can start increasing intensity levels.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I hear of exercise being recommended for diabetes patients. How much is sensible? — J.J.

I can't be specific; each diabetic is different. And in diabetics this individuality is doubly important. Poorly controlled diabetics cannot and should not engage in vigorous exercise. Some may end up spilling too much protein into their urine from stringent activity.

My cop-out here has to be the suggestion to see the doctor who is treating your diabetes. He may, for example, want to analyze a urine specimen taken after you have been exercising. Also, exercise may alter the diabetic's medical and dietary therapy.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

OPEN A BOX OF FREE

The Box is more than crates and bins full of groceries. It's also a giant freshness market!

Our Produce Department is a colorful array of fresh, crisp vegetables and tender, juicy fruits. Our selection and freshness of produce are equal to, if not better than, a farmers' market full of garden-grown food. In fact, we buy our produce from local farmers when we can. This summer at The Box you'll see a lot of farm-fresh fruits and vegetables that were grown right here in the area.

We buy our produce internationally as well as locally. Some of the delicious fresh fruits we have right now are imported from tropical countries. We carefully select our merchandise then make sure it is shipped to us as quickly as possible. When we buy fresh produce in California and Arizona, we truck it ourselves to guarantee freshness!

And freshness doesn't cost more at The Box! Our everyday low prices are the best in town and we work hard to keep our standards high and our prices low.

For example, every day of the year you can walk into The Box and buy three loaves of Farm Pac bread for

Tidbits

Belated party is surprise
 TOM ARCAND was given a belated surprise in honor of his 40th birthday Saturday night. Tom was greeted by friends and co-workers after he was lured to an office space at Avery and Associates Saturday night on the premise of filming a training session for a local organization. Once he arrived, however, he found there was no training session — only a party in honor of his birthday.

TOM WORKS in media services at the SouthWest College Institute for the Deaf. His birthday actually fell on Christmas Day, but family members postponed the party until January. He is the son of MR. AND MRS. ANDY ARCAND of Big Spring. His wife, DORIS ARCAND, his children and his sisters, CECELIA MCKENZIE, and TERESA ARCAND of Austin, helped plan the party. Members of the Big Spring High School band attended the party because Tom has helped film a

SEN. JOHN MONTFORD recently sponsored a Senate Proclamation celebrating the 40th anniversary of Howard College, according to LEA WHITEHEAD, a HC employee. The proclamation, sent to DR. BOB RILEY, president of the Howard County Junior College District, commended everyone connected with the college for reaching this landmark.

Wedding

Dalby-Hunt

Dear Abby

Many claim flower poem

MRS. ROBERT HUNT II
...formerly Charicie Kay Dalby

POST Charicie Kay Dalby and Robert Coleman Hunt II were united in marriage in a candlelight ceremony Jan. 4 in the First United Methodist Church in Post. Dr. Tom Pass officiated.

The bridegroom's brother-in-law, the Rev. Gene Glaiser of Gainesville, closed the ceremony with a prayer.

The bride is the daughter of Judge and Mrs. Giles W. Dalby of Post. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hunt of Ackerly.

The ceremony was performed before an altar of figure-eight candelabra. The altar was flanked with standing brass vases of white gladioli, white roses and carnations. Votive candles and fresh greenery decorated the windows and aisles.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a formal candlelight imported taffeta and lace gown. The bodice was fitted with a natural waistline and high Victorian sleeves of puffed imported silk Chantilly lace. Her front skirt had a deep border of beaded Alençon lace appliques.

The cathedral-length train was cover-shaped. The center was of Chantilly lace and each side was a petal of solid tiered pleated ruffles ending with a rose made of the ruffles. She wore a Juliet cap of bead-ed French Alençon lace with imported finger-tin illusion.

Matrons of honor were Mrs. Robert Elliott of San Angelo and Mrs. John Whitmire of Houston, both sisters of the bride. Bridesmaids were her sister-in-law, Mrs. Giles Dalby Jr., Mrs. Mike Tatum, Mrs. Toby Craft and Chris Mason.

Best man was Giles Darby Jr., brother of the bride. Groomsmen were Rickie Tubb, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, David Hall, both of Big Spring, Ronny Long, Bryan Mitchell of San Francisco, Calif., and Brad Stebben of Lubbock. Ushers were Perry Wigginton and Gerald Harmon.

Flower girls were Lindsey Elliott of San Angelo, Whitney Whitmire and Sarah Whitmire of Houston, nieces of the bride, and Haley Tubb of Ackerly, niece of the bridegroom.

A reception followed at the Dalby home. The bride's table was covered with white silk chiffon and centered by Laliq swans. The three-tiered cake was decorated with fushia, lilac and pink flowers. Mrs. Carla Pugh of Stanton, sister of the bridegroom, was a server.

The bridegroom's table was covered with a chiffon cloth and held a chocolate cake. Servers were the bridegroom's sisters, Mrs. Jill Tubb of Big Spring and Kaye Glaiser of Gainesville. Members of the house party were: Mr. and Mrs. Preston Mathis, Mrs. Anne Leake, Mrs. Charles Williams Jr. and Mrs. Jimmy Bird.

Following a wedding trip to Tahiti, the couple will reside in Lubbock. They both attend Texas Tech University. The bride is a graduate of Post High School and has attended both Tech and American Commercial College. Hunt is a graduate of Ackerly High School and attended Texas A&M and Texas Tech.

Lions Club presents check for camp projects

Members of the Big Spring Evening Lions Club presented a check for $1,629 to Glendon Westbrook, district director for the Texas Lions Club Camp at Kerrville, recently.

Westbrook presented a slide show of the camp activities to the club Monday at Furr's Cafeteria.

The camp is operated each summer to provide crippled and diabetic children a free two-week camping and training session. A staff teaches crippled and diabetic children to be more self-sufficient.

Members of the Texas Lions Clubs are now accepting applications for the camp and will furnish free transportation for eligible crippled children between the ages of 7 and 17 and diabetic children between the ages of 6 and 17.

The Big Spring Evening Lions Club raised the money from the annual barbecue, Christmas card sales and White Cane lapel pin donations. Ed Shive is project fund chairman. David Jansch is president of the Big Spring Evening Lions.
