Shuttle debris

Experts look for crash clue

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Specialists examined at least five large chunks of shattered Challenger's fuselage today, and studied the possibility that a blowtorch of flame from a solid-fuel booster rocket triggered the explosion that destroyed the shuttle and its crew.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration were surprised that so many large pieces survived Tuesday's fireball.

The size of the objects raised the possibility the pressurized module in which the seven astronauts rode might have survived the explosion and is intact at the bottom of the Atlantic.

Sonar detected a very large metal object on the ocean floor, 140 feet down, in the area where the fuselage parts were discovered, and divers were prepared to go down to look at it.

Aware of the possibility human remains might be found, NASA today issued this statement:

"No comment will be made by NASA officials today on anything concerning personal effects or human remains out of respect for the astronauts' families."

The families were attending a memorial service today in Houston.

Some observers suggested that the pressurized cabin might have burst during the explosion and that the remains of the astronauts would not be found.

A NASA videotape of the unloading of debris from search search showed the Challenger's nose and part of the cabin, parts of a cargo bay door, and sections of wing and tail. The largest piece of the latest find was about 20 by 8 feet.

Ironically, on the side of the cabin area was a yellow arrow, with the word "rescue" pointing to an unit that rescuers would open in case the shuttle ditched at sea and was intact. Inside the unit are switches that would permit a rescue team to shut down the ship's electronic systems and blow the top off the cabin.

FmHA may warn area farmers

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

Area farmers more than $100 delinquent on their Farmer's Home Administration loans as of Dec. 31 may receive a stern notice from the FmHA after Feb. 21 asking them to contact the agency within 30 days.

The tough letter was originally to be mailed in January, however, the agency decided to wait until next month to send the notice.

The FmHA's form No. 1924-25, titled "Notice of Intent to Take Adverse Action," originally slated to be mailed in January, may be sent to as many as 37,000 farmers nationwide and more than 7,000 borrowers in Texas who are behind in their payments to the agency.

As of July, 1985, there were 225 FmHA borrowers in Howard, Midland and Glasscock Counties with an aggregate debt to the agency of $13.3 million. Loans that are delinquent totaled 139, said FmHA district director Bob Edwards.

Edwards said the number of delinquent farm borrowers has probably changed since then because some farmers have made payments to the FmHA with money earned from last year's harvest.

Earlier this month, Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower lambasted what he called FmHA's pressure tactics, saying the agency has "declared war on its own borrowers, coldly attempting to rush thousands of good agricultural producers out of business in the next few weeks."

He said, "What FmHA is doing, Jesse James got shot for. It's the greatest bureaucratic heist in American farming history, and we're going to do our damndest to keep them from ripping off Texas farmers and ranchers."

One of things the Texas Department of Agriculture has done has been to organize a toll-free "Farm Crises Hotline" supported by private organizations to assist farm families in communicating their needs. The hotline number is 1-800-AGRI-AID and is now in operation.

The TDA also is contacting 7,000 state FmHA borrowers, who Hightower said are in jeopardy of being foreclosed by the agency, and advising them of their legal rights and explaining what assistance is available to them.

"It is a sad irony that this assault on farmers is coming from the very agency that was established specifically to stand with

Losses, bad loans rock agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government agency whose loans are the last hope for 12 percent of the nation's farm borrowers is in serious jeopardy because of increased losses and the ever-shakier position of many of its borrowers, congressional investigators say.

The Farmers Home Administration, an increasingly important source of cash for farmers during agriculture's current slump, is likely to see 10 percent or more of its 270,000 borrowers fail, the General Accounting Office said Thursday.

Brian P. Crowley, a senior GAO investigator, told the Senate Agriculture Committee that the average FmHA borrower had a debt-to-asset ratio of 83 percent, a level defined as indicating "extreme financial problems."

"The financial condition of FmHA's loan portfolio and its borrowers is not a very pretty picture," Crowley said.

Twenty percent of the borrowers studied actually had ratios of more than 100 percent, meaning they owed more than they had in assets, Crowley said, but that did not stop some of them from receiving further loans from the agency.

In the first six months of 1985, the agency issued $763 million in new loans to borrowers who already were technically insolvent, the report showed. Another $1.2 billion went to farmers in extreme distress, it found.

He said 37,000 of the agency's borrowers had made no payments on their debt in at least three years, and that FmHA judged their survival chances as slim. A disproportionate share of the long-delinquent loans are in FmHA's economic disaster relief program, and the bulk of those loans are in southern states, he noted.

"In these difficult times, FmHA is faced with the dilemma of providing credit to high-risk farmers while at the same time protecting the government's, and ultimately the taxpayers', financial interests," Crowley told the panel. "The principal issue is ... where do you draw the line?"

FmHA, because it is the farm lender of last resort, always has a shakier loan portfolio than commercial lenders. Its charter stipulates that it take on primarily customers who have been turned down by other lenders, and it has 12 percent of the farm loan market. Since 1978, in a period of severe economic stress for farmers, the agency's lending has grown from $6 billion to nearly $28 billion.

City manager upholds firing of fireman

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

City Manager Don Davis Thursday upheld a Jan. 14 decision to fire recently hired firefighter Rudy Rubio.

Rubio was fired by Fire Chief Carl Dorton after he learned Rubio had a first cousin already in the department.

Earlier, Dorton rejected an appeal by Rubio to be reinstated to the department, and Monday's request to Davis was the last step in the city's labor appeals procedure.

John Branham, president of the Big Spring Professional Firefighters Association Local 2922, said the union stands ready to take further action to rid the city of the nepotism policy. "We'll take it all the way to the council on this and see what they have to say," he said.

Davis said his decision to turn down Rubio's appeal was "based upon our personnel rules and regulations which disallow two people who are related and working within the same department and where they directly or indirectly supervise the other."

After learning on Rubio's first day at work that his first cousin, Sammy Rodriguez, was a fire department employee, Dorton let the fireman stay on the job.

Rubio said Tuesday that Dorton initially told him he could remain on the fire department because he was never asked if he had relatives with the department and because he had already quit his previous job at Western Container.

"We were concerned and are concerned over the fact that there were some errors made on our part," Davis said. "There was some thought to keeping Rubio on in the department."

But city officials received a number of complaints from men in the fire department calling the hiring a violation of the city's nepotism policy, Davis said. Davis said relatives had been rejected in the past for this reason.

The complaints "certainly had a bearing" on Dorton's decision to

Businessman Mize joins mayor's race

Local businessman Cotton Mize announced this morning his intentions to run for mayor of Big Spring.

Mize, who operates a local food distributorship, said he believes the city needs to concentrate on obtaining small industries and assisting local firms, instead of trying to lure big industries.

One of his goals as mayor, he said, would be to upgrade the town's recreational facilities to compare more with other, similar-sized communities.

Mize, who sponsors the Clippers fast pitch softball team, said he intends to "emphasize the positive without ignoring the negative."

"If I can acknowledge the achievement of someone from Big Spring, be it the youngest preschooler or the oldest senior citizen, then I will have accomplished a portion of my function of mayor," he said in a press release.

Mize is a past president of the Evening Lions Club and local director of the Lion's eye bank. He also served two terms on the park and recreation board and was active in Little League and teen-age baseball.

Benefit dance slated to pay for security

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

Tired of theft and vandalism, including a severe episode that closed the center for two weeks, the Spring City Senior Citizens Center has installed a burglar alarm.

Now it is having a benefit dance to pay for the alarm, said center spokeswoman Jewell Dunlap.

The dance, featuring Country Jammers Band, will be Wednesday from 8 to 11 p.m. at the center in Airpark Building. No.

487. Admission is $3. Dress is casual, and a dance contest will be held.

The center needs $1,400 to finish paying for the $5,000 alarm, which was installed last week, said Dunlap.

"It works for any entrance," she said. "Any movement in the building will set it off after we have turned it on and gone."

Terminally ill musician wages personal war on cancer

ABILENE (AP) — It was predictable. Brad Busby would find the prognosis unacceptable.

Pessimistic doctors at Houston's M.D. Anderson Hospital agreed the best way to treat the malignant tumor — the one located in the cranial area beneath the brain, the one that was inoperable and destined to grow — was with large doses of radiation. They offered him some time but no hope.

That was in 1980 when Brad was known as a gifted 26-year-old guitarist and lead singer. He had formed such rock bands as "Flood-tide," "Magnum" and "Nebuchadnezzar," and later he was lead singer in a New York area band called "Vision."

Today, in spite of being listed as a terminal cancer patient, he is a superbly-conditioned, creative, radio-electronics communications man. The guy who designed the sound system at the Abilene Civic Center, not to mention some recording studios, and maybe even your own stereo. He does work for Bunkley Sound System as well.

Busby earned a degree from Chicago's DeVry Institute in radio-electronics communications by taking a correspondence course. It was a typical route for this largely self-educated, pleasant, but natural-born non-conformist.

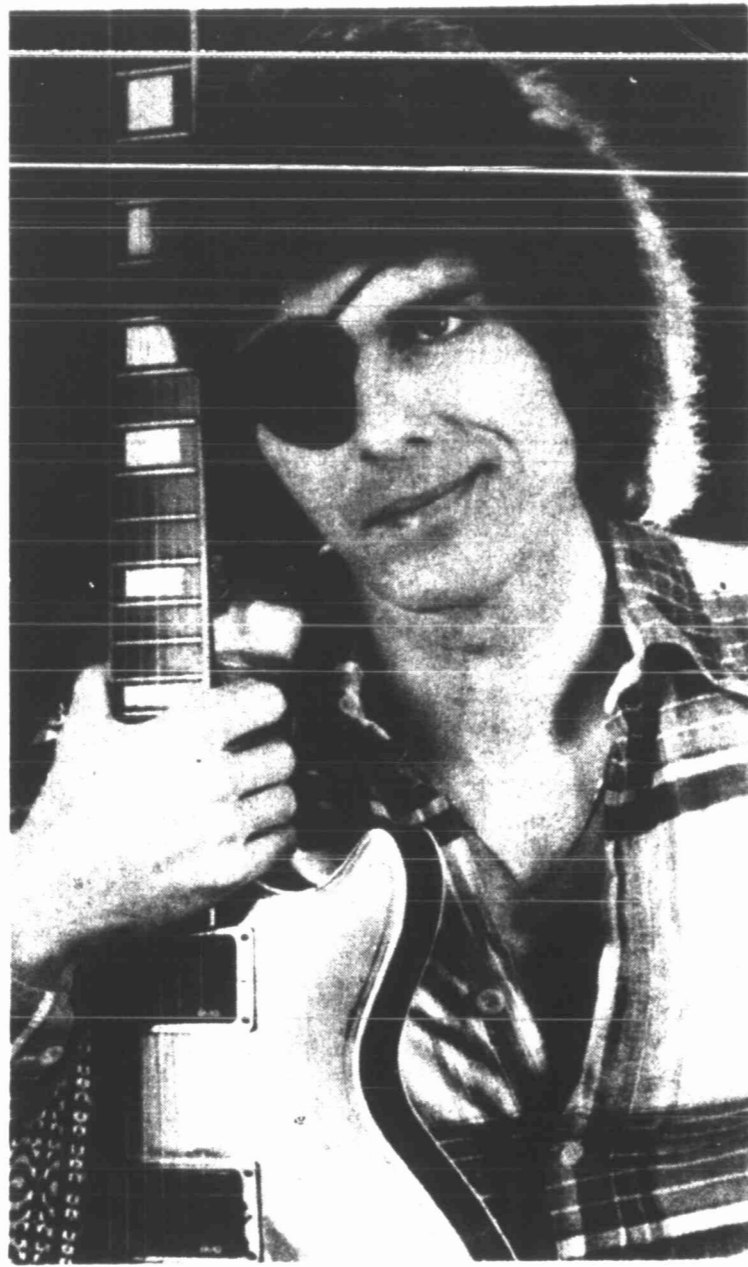

Not surprisingly, then, he rejected the radiation treatments the doctors suggested that day, instead embarking on his own controversial fight for survival.

To him, M.D. Anderson was cold and impersonal. A place where seriously ill people go to have their bodies destroyed by radiation and chemotherapy. A place where people are robbed of their dignity in their final days. There are plenty of examples that show otherwise, but to Busby such treatments are "cut and burn" barbarism.

"I can't believe they still use that stuff," he says. Some doctors find it just as unbelievable that nutritional therapy can actually have an effect on a malignant tumor.

His own physician, Dr. Austin King, is supportive of Busby's efforts, but not because he believes in the therapy.

"It's been my experience that people with good, tough mental outlooks have a better quality of life, and in terms of length too," he said, adding that he does believe a positive outlook can have an effect on the body's immune system.

Brad Busby, 31, of Abilene poses with a guitar recently. Diagnosed as having an inoperable tumor in the cranial area, he has rejected the idea of radiation treatment, and, instead, supports his body's immune system with great doses of vitamins and a vegetarian diet.

But King remains unconvinced about Busby's choice of treatment.

"I'm sure the therapy has given him hope and made him feel better. As to the progress of the tumor, I'm not sure it has affected that part."

Despite doctors' skepticism, Busby's tumor has not spread appreciably, and unlike most people who experience excruciating pain with such tumors, King notes that Busby has no pain.

When he returned from Houston that day in 1980, the first thing he did was empty his kitchen shelves and fill them with enough vitamins and supplements to make his house smell like a health store. He also began reading every book he could find on nutritional therapy and cancer.

It was Busby's way of launching his own very personal fight to preserve his own very personal life. If he was going to die, he'd die his own way, i.e. with with his dignity intact.

"Then again, I may outlive everybody," he says, expressing the optimism he considers essential to his success. "I've met a lot of cancer patients who have been cured by natural means, by changing their diets."

Once a year since 1980 local physicians, either King or W. R. Sibley, have ordered brain scan tests. Each year the same tumor shows up. Same malignancy. Same inoperable location.

"According to the doctors I should have been gone by now," he says. "They told me it was a small tumor mass that would develop and get larger, that it would spread much faster and farther than it has. I'm alive and I still have the original tumor. It has remained stable in a totally inaccessible area."

Busby realizes some will criticize him for encouraging others, who might be saved with more orthodox methods, to choose his unproven strategy instead. But Busby is a 31-year-old health crusader, a man who defines life in terms of quality, and who offers himself as testament to that quality.

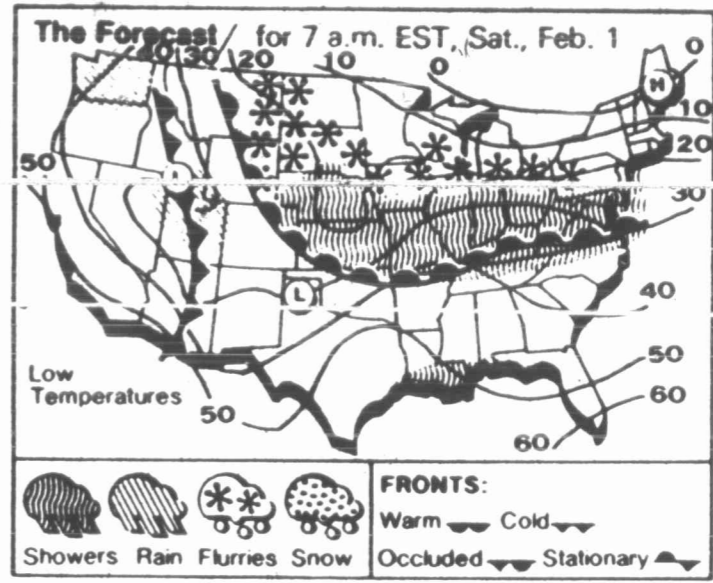

The black patch which covers his right eye is the only physical evidence of his condition. Because of the tumor the eye had no motility and gradually closed when muscles atrophied.

Otherwise, he presents the image of a man in remarkable physical condition. His heart rate is 60 beats a minute. His overall body fat measures less than 10 percent. That's roughly the same as Roger Staubach carried in the years he was taking the Dallas Cowboys to Super Bowls.

His war also is paying unexpected dividends. Because of his diet, he says his mental sharpness has improved dramatically. So has his intensity for living.

"I'll pack five years of living into every three months. No doubt I'm still much in danger. Sometimes it's hard to live with the fact that I'm a terminal cancer patient. But I'm thankful for every day I get."

Dunlap if the alarm goes off, she said.

The health department closed the center for two weeks in October and November to repair damage caused by vandals.

Vandals broke into the center and started a fire, which resulted in about $30,000 damage, Dunlap said. Carpet, ceiling tile and curtains had to be replaced, the remaining carpet shampooed, everything cleaned because of smoke damage, and doors repaired and replaced, she said.

The center had several breaks and minor vandalism before that, and "we thought we had to do something," she said.

But it will take time for everyone to get used to the new system.

"One of our janitors came out Saturday and got confused and set it off. The police were here immediately," she said.

Motorcycle wrecks hurt two

Two Big Spring men were injured in separate motorcycle accidents this week.

Joseph McMahon, 21, of 808 Settles St. was taken to Malone-Hogan Hospital Thursday evening after his motorcycle collided with a car driven by 81-year-old Charles Thomas of 1814 Donely St. McMahon was listed in stable condition this morning, said a hospital spokeswoman.

According to a police accident report, McMahon was riding his cycle west on FM 700 near the Virginia Street intersection when Thomas pulled out in front of him while attempting to turn left on the highway. McMahon's bike struck Thomas' car in the rear quarter panel, the report stated. Thomas told police he did not see McMahon's cycle coming.

The other mishap involved 25-year-old Cecil Bynum who was injured early this morning when he lost control of his motorcycle and stuck a curb while heading east on Canyon Road.

Bynum also was listed in stable condition this morning, said a hospital spokeswoman.

According to police, Bynum failed to negotiate a curve, struck the curb, flipped on his side and slid sideways across the pavement.

in Austin.

Superior ratings on Class II or III solos were earned by Christy Alexander, Medina Corwin, Malinda Ellinger, Chad Small, John Sotelo and Kristie West.

In the piano solo competition, Kathryn Dawes and Joanna Hamilton received superior ratings. Hamilton also qualified for state competition.

Police Beat

Five arrested in drug bust

Acting on a Crimestoppers tip, police Thursday arrested five people and seized a useable quantity of a controlled substance believed to be methamphetamine.

The bust was executed by officers of the criminal investigation division at approximately 3 p.m. Thursday in Room 18 at the Motel 9, 704 E. Third St., according to a police news release.

Arrested on suspicion of possessing a controlled substance were: Don Lloyd Brooks, 19, of 700 Alyford St.; Scott Murl Casselman, 26, of 1016 E. 21st St.; Tommie Leo Freeman, 31, of 1425 Hilltop St.; Clarence Nolton, 28, of Stockton, Calif.; and Tammie Sue Horn, 17, of Gail Route Box 248.

Justice of the Peace China Long set bond at $40,000 each for Brooks, Casselman, Nolton and Horn. No bond has been set for Freeman, police said.

John Dorton, owner of the Best Little Beer House, 3704 W. Highway 80, told police Thursday afternoon that someone broke into the business Thursday morning and caused $425 damage to three pool tables, a juke box and a cigarette machine. Burglars also stole $250 in quarters and 200 packs of cigarettes valued at $300, according to the complaint.

M. Bharta of the Motel 9 told police Thursday afternoon that someone caused $226 damage to bedding and a heater in Room 18 of the business between 11 a.m. Monday and 4:30 p.m. Thursday.

Rudy Hernandez of 911 N. Runnels St. told police early Friday morning that someone he knows struck him several times with a hard object about the face and body outside his residence early Friday morning.

Marvin Williams of 1503 E. Fifth St. told police early Friday morning that someone broke into his home and stole firearms and accessories valued at $2,325 between 10 p.m. Thursday and 12:30 a.m. Friday.

Earl Strong of 500 Owens St. was arrested early this morning on a charge of disorderly conduct and abusive language after a domestic dispute at his residence early this morning.

fire Rubio, Davis said. Regarding further action by Rubio or others on his behalf, Davis said: "Quite frankly, I don't know what to expect. I don't know what's going to develop out of this." Davis said, though, that some kind of legal action against the city was a possibility.

Branham, who said he "was not surprised" by Davis' ruling, said the city has been breaking its own rule by hiring relatives in other departments. He specifically mentioned Davis' appointment of Dorton as fire chief when it was known that Dorton had a brother and a cousin in the department.

"The union is striving to stop the selective hiring that the city is doing right now," he said. "It's all right for them to hire some people's relatives and not others. They're being haphazard in their hiring practices." Branham pointed out that other cities in West Texas have done away with nepotism policies regardless of whether they operate under civil service.

The fire union will be supported in its effort to repeal the nepotism policy and reinstate Rubio by the League of United Latin American Citizens, organization president Pat Deanda said Thursday.

Deanda said LULAC will be doing considerable research on the subject of nepotism and the circumstances leading to Rubio's dismissal. Big Spring is a small city, she said, and the nepotism policy unfairly keeps people from working where they would like.

"If we can do anything about it, we certainly will," she said. "We are pursuing it and we are doing research."

farmers in the kind of hard times we're suffering today," he said in a TDA news release.

Of Hightowers verbal attacks on the FmHA, Edwards said: "He's been on the bandstand about this. I don't think he understands our programs." He added that Hightower probably would not have lashed out at the agency if he was fully aware of the facts.

One fact, Edwards said, is the federal agency is not trying to push anybody off their farms. "We're doing our best to keep these fellows in business," he said. The notice, he said, is "just a letter asking (the delinquent borrower) to contact their office in 30 days to reschedule loans or defer loans" or make other arrangements. Plans by the FmHA to initiate any kind of foreclosure proceedings could be muddled by a pending lawsuit filed in South Dakota.

Farmers fearing a wave of foreclosures nationwide have asked a federal judge to keep the Farmers Home Administration from using new rules they say could be used to starve them out.

U.S. District Judge Bruce Van Sickle, whose order in 1984 caused the federal lending agency to forego foreclosing on delinquent borrowers for two years, was to hear additional arguments in the case today. His decision on the current dispute could affect more than 65,000 farmers who the FmHA says are behind in their loan payments.

Sheriff's Log

Man detained on warrants

Howard County sheriff's deputies turned Charles Rhodes, 42, of Ackerly over to Wichita County sheriff's deputies Thursday morning.

Rhodes is suspected of violating the terms of probation he received in Wichita County.

He pleaded guilty Tuesday in 118th District Court to theft of more than $750 and was sentenced to five years in the Texas Department of Corrections by District Judge James Gregg.

He also is wanted in Wilbarger and Gillespie Counties on warrants for violating probation received in those counties.

Deputies released Joe Bill Court, 25, of Houston from jail Thursday afternoon after he served time for finesowed the county.

Deputies released Michael L. Runge, 21, of Phoenix from county jail Thursday afternoon after he served a jail sentence for driving while intoxicated.

He was arrested Jan. 21 and pleaded guilty to the charge the following day in county court.

County Judge Milton Kirby fined him $200, $131 court costs, sentenced him to jail for 72 hours and revoked his driving privileges in Texas for 90 days.

Police transferred Jerry T. Walton, 40, of 1201 College to county jail Thursday night after he was arrested for driving while license suspended.

He was released on $500 bond.

World population soars

WASHINGTON — The world's population climbed to 4.9 billion in 1985, adding 85 million people — the equivalent of another Mexico — the Population Institute reported Thursday.

The world's population is expected to reach the 5 billion mark by mid-1987 and 6 billion by the end of this century, according to the Washington-based population study group.

Although population growth rates have declined slightly in recent years, that has been offset by the overall increase in size, since a larger number of people can produce many offspring despite seemingly low rates, institute officials said.

Damages given in crash

TORANCE, Calif. — McDonnell Douglas Corp. should pay $32 million to Continental Airlines regarding a 1978 crash of a DC-10 in which four people were killed, a jury decided.

The Los Angeles County Superior Court jury Thursday found McDonnell Douglas guilty of fraud, negligence and breach of contract for making false claims about the plane's ability to sustain a crash. The 1978 crash occurred at Los Angeles International Airport.

The panel, which deliberated 10 days, ordered the company to pay Continental $17 million in damages plus $15 million in interest.

'Peer review' sought

WASHINGTON — Civilian doctors soon will begin monitoring the quality of care delivered by military physicians, the first time such outside reviews have been conducted.

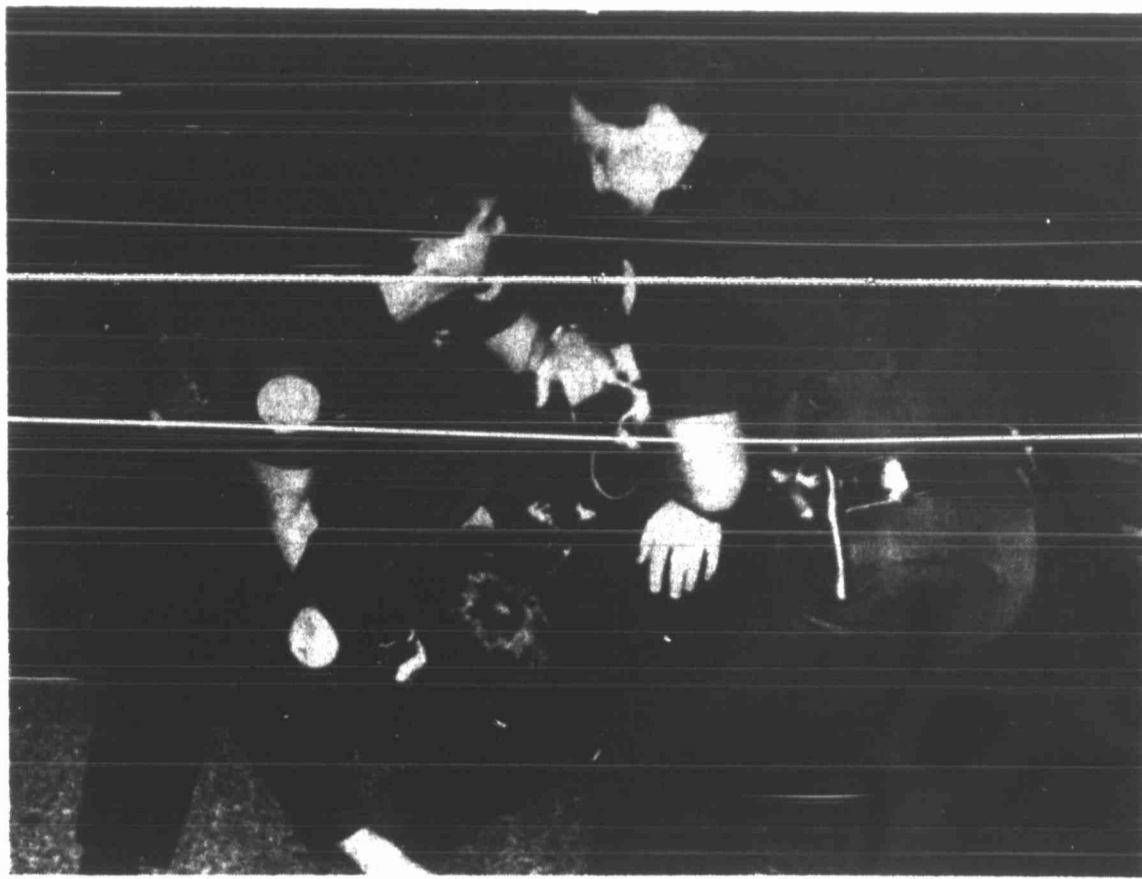

The decision to proceed with this "peer review" program was disclosed Thursday, when the Defense Department awarded a $4.6 million contract to the Commission on Professional and Hospital Activities, a non-profit organization based in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The organization will be responsible for reviewing each month the care delivered by doctors working at 168 military hospitals worldwide. The program should be under way by April, the Pentagon said.

Airman held for spying

BEALE AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — An airman accused of espionage tried to deliver the personnel roster of a secret spy plane squadron to a Soviet agent, the Air Force said in its first official description of the allegations.

Airman 1st Class Bruce D. Ott, 25, of Erie, Pa., was arrested Jan. 22 in Davis, by FBI and Air Force security agents. Ott could be sentenced to life in prison or to death if convicted of two of the four espionage counts against him.

Haitians staged demonstrations in Miami to express sympathy with the protesters against the government in that country. Here, an unidentified Miami policeman is helped up by two comrades after he was injured by angry demonstrators as Haitians called for the downfall of the Duvalier government. Another police officer was shot in the incident and a dozen people were injured during the disturbance Thursday night.

Refugees celebrate fall of government

MIAMI (AP) — Jubilant refugees streamed into the streets of Little Haiti today, celebrating the reported collapse of the government of Haitian President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier. Many vowed to return to their impoverished homeland.

A premature celebration Thursday night, when rumors circulated that Duvalier had been ousted, turned into a riot after a car plowed into a crowd of 1,500 refugees, killing a woman and injuring two men.

"It's a joy. The Haitians are all over in the street," said the Rev. Gerard Jean-Juste, leading spokesman for Miami's estimated 50,000 to 100,000 legal Haitians and director of the Haitian Refugee Center. "There are many ... wanting to go back."

"Everybody is extremely happy. That's what they've been waiting for," said Len Kaminsky, administrator of the refugee center.

"I think it's the most positive news to come out of Haiti in the last 27 years," said attorney Ira Kurzban, a leading refugee advocate. "The Duvaliers have represented the most repressive regime in the Western Hemisphere."

But Kurzban declined to guess how quickly the refugees — who have settled mainly in Miami, New York, Montreal and Paris — would return.

new government will be like," he said.

Demonstrators chanting "Duvalier is out!" and waving palm fronds, tree branches and red-and-blue banners walked down Northwest 54th Street, heart of Miami's Haitian community.

As word of Duvalier's downfall spread, the crowd grew and police were cordoning off streets.

"Of course, I'm going back. I have a good job here, too," said Jean Dorce, 44, a Social Security service representative.

"We're going to help build our government," said Dorce, who has been in the United States 19 years. "We're going to ask the United States to help us because the United States can see we're not going to be a communist country."

In the melee Thursday night, five people were bitten by police dogs, a police officer was wounded by his own gun during a scuffle, and another was hit on the head by a thrown object, said police Chief Clarence Dickson.

Police had said early today that they arrested four men believed to have been in the car that tore into the crowd in reverse at high speed late Thursday. But police spokesman Angelo Bitsis said later only one man was arrested. He was charged with aggravated battery for allegedly throwing a rock at a police officer.

Pilot blamed for crash

LOS MOCHIS, Mexico — Officials said Thursday the pilot of a DC-3 plane that crashed here, killing all 21 aboard, took an unnecessary risk in trying to land at a little used airstrip despite "zero visibility."

"It was a pilot error," Sinaloa state Gov. Antonio Toledo Corro said in an interview. "The control tower told him the conditions were terrible."

The AeroCalifornia plane carrying 18 passengers and three crew members plunged into a Los Mochis hillside in the fog Wednesday after its pilot attempted to land at an airstrip closed to commercial traffic.

Libyan plea rejected

TUNIS, Tunisia — A special meeting of the Arab League rejected Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy's demand for retaliatory economic action against the United States, and instead issued a condemnation of U.S. economic and military measures against Libya.

Only eight foreign ministers from the 21 Arab League members attended what was billed as a one-day foreign ministers' meeting.

They and lower-level delegations from other Arab countries showed little enthusiasm for anything stronger than the moral support they already have given Khadafy.

Stock market tumbles

SINGAPORE — Two companies have collapsed so far and the arrests have started in the wake of Singapore's "black Thursday" stock market crash.

The economic fallout and political repercussions are expected to last for months as authorities try to untangle a complex maze of transactions involving banks, stock exchanges, brokerages and speculators in the shares of listed companies in this island state, one of Asia's leading financial centers, and in neighboring Malaysia.

Pact on oil price issues

CANCUN, Mexico — A spokesman says the presidents of Mexico and Venezuela, two of America's major foreign oil suppliers, reached a general agreement on oil price issues in talks which the Venezuelan leader said might lead to a joint price cut.

Mexican presidential spokesman Manuel Alonso said the agreement took place Thursday during a special one-day meeting between Presidents Jaime Lusinchi of Venezuela and Miguel de la Madrid of Mexico in this Caribbean island resort.

Nuclear deterrence does balancing act

Ronald Reagan wants to make it possible to rid the world of nuclear weapons by erecting strategic defenses that will make them useless. Now comes Mikhail Gorbachev with the obvious retort: If we want to get rid of nuclear weapons, why not just get rid of nuclear weapons?

Under his plan, said the General Secretary, "By the end of 1999 there will be no nuclear weapons on earth. A universal accord will be drawn up that such weapons should never again come into being." Not coincidentally, this echoed Reagan's 1983 "Star Wars" speech, in which he called on scientists to "give us the means of rendering nuclear weapons impotent and obsolete," clearing the way for "measures to eliminate the weapons themselves."

Gorbachev's suggestions came last week in a package of proposals, which included some notable departures from past Soviet demands on various concrete measures. It is no more realistic than Reagan's "Star Wars" vision, though Gorbachev, unlike Reagan, probably understands that. But in the war for world opinion, urging nuclear disarmament allows the Soviets to recapture a spot on the moral high ground.

The idea is not only wildly impractical, though it is that. Gorbachev's plan had an agreeable vagueness, as if good intentions guarantee good results. But in an age when the technical knowledge for making nuclear bombs is widely dispersed, it is fantasy to believe that they can be banished forever.

No verification measures, no matter how stringent, can guard against a handful of devices being assembled somewhere, by someone. In a world without nuclear powers, the gains from making a nuclear bomb and threatening its use would be immense. As the United States demonstrated in August 1945, a handful of devices would be plenty.

But even if it could be achieved, through Gorbachev's method or Reagan's, a nuclear-free world would not be a safer world. Nuclear weapons, true, have vastly multiplied the hazards of an all-out war between the superpowers. But they also have reduced the chance of such a war to something approaching zero.

Does anyone imagine that, in the absence of the nuclear deterrent, these bitter enemies would have remained at peace, however uneasily, for these past 40 years? In the rare confrontations between the two — over Berlin, Cuba, the Middle East — they have gazed over the precipice and then quickly stepped back. No one knows if, in any of these cases, either side ultimately would have resorted to nuclear weapons. But their availability induced prudent behavior.

The abolition of nuclear weapons would merely make the world safe for conventional war. World War II cost tens of millions of lives and reduced an entire continent to rubble, but it would pale next to what another conventional world war would entail.

None of this means that there is no protection against the risks of the nuclear age. The U.S. and the Soviet Union can find ways to eliminate those weapons that encourage either side to initiate a nuclear exchange, which is one of the critical purposes of arms control. If they could bring themselves to acknowledge their mutual interest in stopping the spread of nuclear weapons to other countries — the most likely route to doomsday — they could work together to stop it.

A healthy residue of distrust and uncertainty, however, will remain in the best of circumstances. These are essential for nuclear deterrence and for peace between the superpowers.

The world feels an understandable yearning to escape the specter of an apocalyptic war. But the realization of that hope would be neither practical nor safe. All of us, Reagan and Gorbachev included, are compelled by history to live with the threat of nuclear weapons. And history, wrote Robert Penn Warren, is what you can't resign from.

Iranian terrorist missions hatched in Italian capital

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Iranian diplomatic facilities in Rome are the principal center for planning the Ayatollah Khomeini's terrorist operations throughout Western Europe.

Our intelligence sources now believe that the Iranian colony in Rome assisted in the Christmas time gun and grenade attacks at the Rome and Vienna airports. The head of Italy's military intelligence service reported earlier that the airport terrorists had been trained in Iran.

While Libya has been fingered as the main culprit in the airport attacks, and there is close cooperation among Libya, Iran and Syria in terrorist activities, it is the Iranians who have been responsible for the killing and kidnaping of more Americans than any other terrorist sponsor.

Rome became the headquarters for Iran's Western European terrorist operations in early 1984, following the French government's expulsion of many Khomeini supporters from Paris. Brussels is the secondary center for the violent exportation of Khomeini's Islamic revolution.

The Iranian terrorist nest in Rome is directed by Ayatollah Khosrow-Shahi, Khomeini's ambassador to the Vatican. The son of a carpenter, Khosrow-Shahi became Khomeini's chauffeur, bodyguard and trusted aide. He was second-in-command of the student revolutionaries who seized the American Embassy in Tehran and held its personnel hostage for 444 days. He was rewarded in 1981 with the ambassadorial appointment to the Vatican.

At least twice, Italian police have monitored Rome meetings arranged by Khosrow-Shahi of top officials in the Iranian and Syrian secret services.

Much of the plotting goes on at the Islamic European Cultural Center at 361-63 Via Nomentana, a large complex purchased at the time of Khosrow-Shahi's arrival. He and his deputy also have an apartment at 56 Colli de la Farnesina, but most of the work is done in the 60-room Islamic Center building.

The Italians use long-range cameras to keep watch on the center, but surveillance is made difficult by hidden exits to two nearby streets and at least one underground passage to the Libyan Embassy next door.

Trunks suspected of containing arms and explosives have been delivered to the center — immune from search under diplomatic seal. Hundreds of young, bearded Iranians have come and gone over the past five years, including one lot of three dozen flown into Rome ostensibly for medical treatment — although the center has no medical facilities.

One reason the Italians are so concerned about these young Iranians is the secret minutes of a high-level conference held in Tehran on May 26, 1984. Ayatollah Mohammed Khatami, Khomeini's minister of Islamic guidance, ordered Iranian officials to produce 1,500 to 2,000 men for suicide missions. They were to be under 30, preferably unmarried and "completely committed to martyrdom," according to the minutes.

CIA Director William Casey's comments to a small group of academics last April are worth considering. He said: "Probably more blood has been shed by Iranian-sponsored terrorists during the last few years than by all other terrorists combined. Tehran used terrorism as a major element of its ongoing campaign to export the Iranian revolution throughout the Moslem world and to reduce Western influence — especially that of the United States — in the Middle East. ... Libya's (Col. Muammar) Khadai is not in the Ayatollah Khomeini's league."

BUDGET BUMBLING — Every year the federal government falls farther and farther behind the mandated deadlines for the budget. For example, the White House is supposed to submit its budget proposals to Congress by Jan. 15 each year; as things look now, it'll be at least Feb. 5 before Congress gets the administration's figures for the upcoming fiscal year. And there's not much that can be done about it. As one congressional aide explained: "The law has no teeth. What can we do? Drag the president up here for contempt of Congress because the budget is late?"

MINI-EDITORIAL — FBI Director William Webster made a disturbing statement the other day at a press luncheon. Discussing the delicate balance required to combat terrorism yet maintain civil liberties, Webster said he believes that the American people, if given a choice between anarchy and repression, would choose repression, however reluctantly. Surely the choice is not that stark. The FBI has been able so far to keep terrorists at bay without trampling on the Bill of Rights, and we're confident that Judge Webster will see that it continues to do so.

It'd be tough to tell the kids

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
It's a good thing I'm not a father at this particular point of my life. I wouldn't know how to explain Tuesday's Challenger disaster to my children.

The startling image of that explosion would be etched into the child's mind for the rest of his or her life.

If the child likes to look at pictures in the newspaper, he or she would probably remind me of Christa McAuliffe's "thumbs up" sign she gave to photographers on Friday at the Kennedy Space center.

"Where is she now, Daddy?" or "Why did it happen, Daddy?" How do you tell a child that sometimes there are no answers? Some psychologists claim startling icons inevitably have an effect on behavior.

As a little boy who watched quite a bit of television during the 1960s, I remember the horror of watching reports about our national leaders getting gunned down in cold blood for no definitive reason.

I remember reports about a senseless war our country fought in Indochina. The youthful protest which ensued during the later half of the decade — what was the chant Yippies made while getting clubbed by Chicago policemen during the 1968 Democratic Convention. Something about "the whole world's watching."

I don't know if those images had an effect on my behavior as I became of age during the 1970s.

Other motives had to exist for my running up to the wilds of Oregon, growing hair down to my shoulders, getting involved in campus demonstrations and adopting what they called "the alternative lifestyle."

I'm sure if I was currently a father, the kids would more than likely be inquisitive about last Tuesday's disaster.

They would have developed their own perceptions by now about what they had seen or heard.

And more than likely, they would feel man or woman enough to express themselves and those feelings.

What would I do then? I guess I'd hear them out. Everything they'd have to say. And you know what — I'd sure be more than happy if they had the desire to hear me out too.

Memories rush back to old gusher days

By ERNEST JONES
It has been my lot to have witnessed the inception of energy development in the two greatest areas of Texas petroleum and natural gas production — first the great Permian Basin, then East Texas.

My first job in Big Spring was in 1919 as a field hand at the U.S. Dry Land Experiment Station north of town. A sister and her spouse lived there. They foolishly let me drive alone in their car to town, my first time ever behind a steering wheel. Luckily, I didn't meet anyone on the road.

I took the postal clerk/cARRIER exam in a school building, along with 50 drifting veterans, and was second only to a New Yorker who spurned the Big Spring letter carrier opening, which was immediate. I went to work next day, delivering mail to the eastern half south of the railroad and the entire north side of town twice daily; the route was 10 miles long had I delivered to every house. I held the job one year and had to resign when my formal appointment came through. The game right leg that had been irritated by long marches during my brief military training in 1918 had virtually hobbled me.

B. Reagan, postmaster and president of First National Bank, later caught me wrestling a 48-pound sack of flour in the basement of F.F. Gary & Son on Main. "Come back to your job at the Post Office, Ernest," he urged. "My son is trying to do your job; he needs to be in college." I had to say, in effect, "No way."

During my year as a postman, I was befriended by many, including Rancher John D. Birdwell, whose house was on the hill north of Big Spring High School. He'd come down to meet me and shorten my climb. I'd be winded and welcomed a brief rest, during which he'd tell exciting snatches of his early years. He had been one of the Texas Rangers who trapped and cashed in the chips of Sam Bass and his outlaw payroll bandits at Round Rock on the I&GN Railroad near Austin.

Then one day a friend who worked in the T&P offices and I were up on the southeast mesa, just hunting snakes, when I found a shriveled baby moccasin of woven grass. It gave me a queer feeling like disturbing a grave; I left it where I found it. It could have been the first baby shoe of the great halfbreed warrior/peacemaker, Chief Quanah Parker, whose Antelope Comanche tribe used the Big Spring site as a way station and Signal Mound off to the east as their smoke-talk facility during the period when Quanah was born at Cedar Lake west of Lamesa.

While researching recently for a sesquicentennial article about the Pilgrim Parkers, I learned that the Big Spring site was where Comanche trails from the Staked Plains to tribal haunts in Mexico forked, one trail continuing south, the other in a westerly direction. This was their "happy hunting ground," where bison herds coming to the spring for water could be arrowed at will. Here the Antelope Comanches killed and cured their food for the warpath and the long trails.

In 1918, I saw Ranger's muddy oil boom while passing through. That summer I was in Robb's Hippodrome Theater when the news of the first American troops having gone into action at Chateau-Thierry was flashed on the screen. My half-brother, Roy Carter, was over there then. That fall I was 18 and managed to volunteer for military service at a college in East Texas where they had a company of trainees.

I was a salesman for A.P. McDonald and Company when the General Oil Company began drilling for oil in Howard and Glasscock Counties. They got a flameless gas gusher where the Cosden Refinery later was built, and bailed a few samples of oil with no gas drive in a Glasscock County test.

S.E.J. Cox, the General Oil promoter, got in trouble for his blue sky use of the mails. Before Cox's bubble burst in Fort Worth Federal Court, he staged a free barbecue for 15,000 appetites on the Cole and Strayhorn flats. Long passenger trains snaked in investors from the four winds, including some from as far away as the Philippines. Joseph Weldon Bailey, U.S. Senator running for governor against Pat Neff, as I recall, shouted oratory from the front seat of a Studebaker while the appointed press took notes in back seats.

I was correspondent then for the Fort Worth Record and the El Paso Herald. A Ranger-rich Big Springer named Morris in a sweat-wet striped shirt bent his back on which I tried to scribble shorthand. Morris made my scribbles undecipherable by constant criticism of old Joe's remarks. George Slaughter stunted overhead in his aircraft, which had the Lazy S Ranch brand on its wings. In the afternoon, Cox led a motorcade to the Glasscock test well where oil was baled to show investors.

There was great excitement over an oil test well on the Orient Railroad west of Big Lake. On July 2, I rode the lone passenger coach at the rear end of a short train of cattle cars from Rankin to Big Lake. It took hours, stopping for trainmen to shoe cattle on the tracks. I sat dangling my feet on the back steps, tapping each tie as the train moved in slow motion.

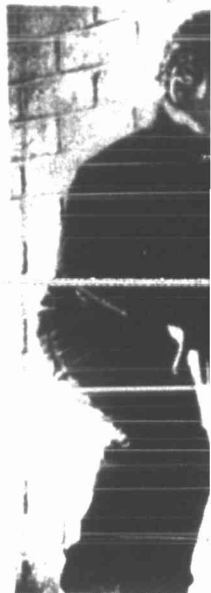

Ernest Jones lives at 3421 South Meadow Drive in Fort Worth. He worked 20 years on Texas and California newspapers before settling in Fort Worth in 1966 to be near his daughter and family. He is still active as a free-lance writer.

Statewide flu outbreaks reported

ATLANTA (AP) — Thirty-two states have reported influenza this winter, and 18 are undergoing local or statewide outbreaks, federal health officials said Thursday.

Delaware, Minnesota, New Jersey, North Carolina, Virginia and the District of Columbia were experiencing "widespread" flu outbreaks by the end of last week, the Centers for Disease Control said in its weekly report.

The CDC defines widespread outbreaks as those covering an area which includes at least half of a state's residents.

Thirteen more states — Connecticut, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, Michigan, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Utah — have reported more limited "regional" outbreaks.

Deaths last week were due to pneumonia and influenza, down slightly from 6.2 percent the week before but still above the 5.3 percent reported at the beginning of January.

The CDC's group of "sentinel physicians" reported seeing an average of 7.7 patients with flu-like illnesses in the week ending Jan. 15, down from 8.0 the week before but still above the 6.1 seen at the beginning of January. This indicates an "intermediate" level of flu activity, the Atlanta-based health agency said.

Two of the CDC's statistical indicators which measure the severity of the flu season have dropped slightly, but both are still indicative of the ongoing flu season: In 121 surveyed U.S. cities, 6.1 percent of the reported 13,256 school outbreaks of influenza-like illness have been reported from many states," the CDC said.

Ferraro will be cleared

NEW YORK (AP) — The Justice Department is completing a lengthy investigation of former vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro's finances and has no plans to prosecute her, according to a published report.

The New York Times in its Thursday editions quoted a federal law-enforcement official as saying it was "pretty clear" Ferraro would be cleared of allegations involving improper financing in her successful 1978 congressional campaign.

However, officials cautioned that the investigation was not completed, and that it was possible something could be uncovered that could lead to prosecution, the Times said.

The probe was expected to be finished in a matter of weeks, one official quoted by the Times said.

Ferraro recently announced she would not run for the U.S. Senate this year against Sen. Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., because of the continuing federal investigation. She called that decision "final and unequivocal."

TEXAS UTILITIES ELECTRIC COMPANY hereby publishes NOTICE that, pursuant to the provisions of the Public Utility Regulatory Act and the Public Utility Commission's Substantive Rule 23.23(b)(2), it filed an application on January 14, 1986, with the Public Utility Commission of Texas seeking authority to refund to its customers a prior over-recovery under its fixed fuel factors (base rate fuel component) in the amount of $78,002,807 as of November 30, 1985, including applicable interest, and to reduce its current fixed fuel factors.

Texas Utilities Electric Company has proposed that the refund be made and its fixed fuel factors be reduced effective with customers usage beginning with the billing month of March 1986. ## Pass rule sidelines students

DALLAS (AP) — The no pass, no play rule has barred nearly 25 percent of Dallas students from extracurricular activities for the third time this school year, but officials say the failure rate is down slightly.

Figures released Wednesday by officials of the Dallas Independent School District show that 24.5 percent of the district's 4,300 students taking part in sports are failing in one subject or another.

Under the statewide no pass, no play rule, students who fail a course are disqualified from extracurricular activities, including athletics, for six weeks.

Otto Fridin, the district's deputy superintendent, said the latest figures compare with 27 percent failures in the first six weeks of school and 25.3 percent in the second six weeks.

"I would certainly say there's a lot more work that we need to do," said Fridin. "I had hoped to see an improvement over the past by this point."

The student athletes are participating in seven sports — basketball, baseball, track, soccer, swimming, tennis and golf.

The new rule has also hit hard in the Dallas suburbs.

The North Mesquite High School girls soccer team Wednesday had to forfeit nine victories and a chance for the state playoffs when it was learned that a member of the district-leading Stallions had played in the nine games after she received an incomplete grade in one subject.

"We had a good season and it's too bad it had to end with something like this that upset the team so bad," said coach Mark White.

Trade deficit reaches record high level

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit swelled to a record $148.5 billion in 1985, with imports in December rising to twice the level of exports for the first time since the government reported Thursday. A second report suggested an upturn in other segments of the economy.

The Commerce Department said the government's main gauge of future economic activity — the Index of Leading Indicators — rose a healthy 0.9 percent in December. That was the best gain since a 1.3 percent rise last January, and the eighth consecutive month the index has gone up.

"They were both strong reports. One was strong bad news, and the other was strong good news," said chief Commerce Department economist Robert Ortner.

The two reports were not entirely contradictory, Ortner and other economists said.

Relatively strong economic growth over the past three years has helped keep the value of the dollar high relative to other major currencies, thereby aggravating the net trade deficit.

Thursday's report on the merchandise trade balance showed that in December, the United States imported $17.4 billion more than it exported, the highest monthly trade deficit ever — up 27 percent from November's $13.7 billion deficit. It was far above the $12 billion average for the first 11 months of the year.

The surge came at a time when many economists had anticipated an easing of the trade deficit. They had based their optimism on recent declines in the value of the dollar and a worldwide drop in oil prices.

Instead, the December figures showed the lowest level of exports — $17.0 billion — in any month since August 1983, and showed imports rising to a record $34.4 billion in December to slightly more than double the level of exports.

For the year, Japan accounted for roughly a third of the overall deficit — $49.7 billion, up from $37 billion last year.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the report on the leading indicators was "a clear signal of the gathering momentum in economic growth." But he acknowledged that the trade deficit was one of the "few problems we do see."

Speakes expressed hope that continued declines in the dollar and stronger economic growth abroad would combine to "begin to see a reduction in the trade deficit no later than the second half of this year."

Asked if the administration would like to see further action to bring the value of the dollar down, Speakes said: "We would like to see other world economies rise."

Helping to lift the December trade deficit was $4.1 billion in new car imports, about half of them from Japan, an increase of 5.9 percent over November. Meanwhile, agricultural exports declined in December by 0.22 percent, to $2.5 billion, while oil imports increased by 10.1 percent, to $3.5 billion.

"The decline in exports is what is really troubling," said David Wyss, chief economist for Data Resources Inc., a Lexington, Mass., forecasting service. "The world is beginning to show signs of recovery. They're buying things again. And the dollar has been dropping since February."

Wyss said he anticipated that the trade deficit would rise to $155 billion for 1986, although by the end of the year it should be showing an improvement.

The strong dollar against foreign currencies makes U.S. products more expensive abroad and imports less costly at home than their domestic counterparts. More than a million manufacturing jobs have been lost since 1981 in import-battered U.S. industries.

"The problems of trade and U.S. industry are chronic and will take the rest of the decade to correct," said Alan Sinai, chief economist for Shearson-Lehman Brothers. He said the 1986 deficit could reach $160 billion.

In advance of Thursday's report, U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter said a widening trade gap could trigger another wave of protectionist bills in Congress.

He said he would recommend vetoes on measures to restrict imports — like the bill President Reagan vetoed in December imposing limits on imported textiles — while pressing ahead with the administration's strategy for opening more markets to U.S. goods.

The United States imported $361.6 billion in 1985 and exported $213.1 billion, Thursday's report said.

The resulting $148.5 billion deficit was up from the then-record $123.3 billion deficit in 1984 and the $69.4 billion deficit of 1983.

Imports have climbed faster than exports since 1981.

The 0.9 percent December advance in the index of economic indicators followed increases of 0.2 percent in November.

Conrail war goes on

WASHINGTON (AP) — Reagan administration plans to sell Conrail, the government-owned freight railroad, to Norfolk Southern Corp. for $1.2 billion scored another victory today as the Senate rebuffed efforts to toughen antitrust scrutiny of the proposal.

"Truly this is a killer amendment," Sen. John C. Danforth, R-Mo., told the Senate before it rejected 56-37 an amendment to clear the way for an antitrust lawsuit against the sale. "Norfolk Southern was under the impression that it was buying a railroad, not endless, protracted litigation."

It was the fourth administration victory in a week in what has emerged as a billion-dollar bidding war in the Senate over control of Conrail between Norfolk Southern and the 43-member Morgan Stanley Investor Group.

Administration forces on Wednesday swept aside, 68-31, a budgetary roadblock to the Norfolk Southern plan and then beat back a move to replace the Virginia holding company's bid with the $1.4 billion Morgan Stanley offer.

Sen. Alan J. Dixon, D-Ill., a Morgan Stanley supporter, said in offering the antitrust amendment that the proposal dismissed Justice Department assurances that the Norfolk Southern sale would not violate federal laws designed to prevent illegal monopolies.

"Justice, instead of functioning as an independent antitrust adviser, has instead acted to do everything possible to help expedite the sale proposal of the Department of Transportation, and it is perhaps unreasonable to expect it to do anything else," Dixon said. "It is, after all, part of the administration."

Joyous reunion after 33 years

AUSTIN (AP) — For 33 years, John Dillow sensed that something was missing in his life. Two weeks ago, the Austin man filled that emptiness when he finally found his natural family.

"There was something missing in my life because I didn't know where I had been," Dillow said. "I feel like a jigsaw puzzle having its last piece put in."

Dillow, 35, was 2 when he last saw his parents. He was one of five children in a family that was separated after the father suffered a nervous breakdown and the parents no longer were able to care for the children. The children were adopted by other families.

Dillow was located two weeks ago by a younger sister who spent 15 years looking for him and another sibling.

He received a letter Jan. 18 from Margaret Cavallero of Novato, Calif., stating that she was looking for her brother and sister.

"When I received the letter I thought I might have a family," he said. "The next two days confirmed that I did."

He said he called his sister Margaret and talked to her for four hours. The next day he talked to his grandmother, his mother, his father and his older brother Dan.

"My father couldn't say a word," he said. "He just cried."

Dillow said he was shocked to talk to his family.

"I was emotionally numb," he said. "I haven't cried in 22 years until I talked to Dan."

Ms. Cavallero's search was long, tedious and emotional, she said in a telephone interview. She started when she was 17. After finding her real parents, Ronald and Viola Forslof, through an adoptive great aunt, she set out to look for the two remaining siblings.

"It was my grandfather's wish that we all be together," she said. "Whenever I stopped searching, my grandfather would encourage me." Her grandfather died last year.

John and Janet Dillow were adopted together, and Ms. Cavallero and her young brother went to another family. The oldest brother, Dan, was adopted by the grandparents. The state of Washington did not permit the grandparents to adopt more than one because of their health, Ms. Cavallero said.

She went to Bellingham, Wash., where John and Janet were born. By matching the birthday and the first two names — John Richard and Janet Louise — she managed to find the birth certificates, which carried the names of the adoptive parents. She knew they were the right certificates because the last names of John and Janet had been whited out, she said.

She could not find the adoptive father, whose background was private information because he worked in security for the Air Force. So she bought a heritage book, which listed the names and addresses of 1,086 Dillows. By a stroke of luck, in the first 25 letters she sent out, she was successful.

"It was utter amazement when John called me," she said. "I walked around the house not knowing what I was doing."

The family is planning a reunion this summer in Lynden, Wash., where the grandfather is buried.

"If I had the money, I'd be there right now," said Dillow, who is a laborer at Schlegel Lining Technology.

But Dillow will have a chance to see Ms. Cavallero this week. She will have a three-hour stop at the Houston Intercontinental Airport Sunday. She will be returning from visiting Janet in Atlanta.

New England drug controversy swirls

By HOWARD ULMAN
AP Sports Writer
FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — It started with an "almost negligible" drug problem and a "bold and courageous effort" to keep that problem from recurring. It exploded into a cross-country controversy involving a trade demand, an unfair labor practice complaint and criticism by an NFL official of the coach of the AFC champions.

Nothing will be finalized until after the Pro Bowl, slated for Sunday at Honolulu. Another NFL official said the league has been aware "for some time" that Patriots' players had used drugs. "I don't want to comment overall," NFL executive director Don Weiss said when asked whether the league had an obligation to make the information public. "We have been talking to the Patriots, trying to

RAYMOND BERRY
... embattled Patriots coach

BRIAN HOLLOWAY
... upset over release of names

The dust that has swirled around the issue of drug use by New England Patriots' players began to settle Thursday with a flurry of activity from Foxboro to Honolulu.

Patriots' psychiatrist Dr. Armand Nicholi, who runs the team's drug testing and counseling program, issued a detailed, two-page, single-spaced statement in which he said that, during the past year, tests showed five players had used marijuana — two of them on one occasion each — and two others had used marijuana and cocaine.

Tests show that none of those seven, the only players tested, has used drugs "for several weeks" and that some were "drug free for the entire season," Nicholi said.

"We have had no severe case of drug dependency and no one who required hospitalization," he added.

Compared with drug use in society at large in a similar age group, "the results of our testing indicate that our problem is, indeed, almost negligible," Nicholi said.

But serious problems surfaced soon after the Chicago Bears crushed the Patriots 46-10 last Sunday in the Super Bowl in New Orleans.

On Monday, the Patriots irritated the players' union by voting overwhelmingly to institute voluntary drug testing, the first pro team to do so. On Wednesday, the Boston Globe published the names of six players who, according to the newspaper, told Coach Raymond Berry they had used drugs.

On Thursday, National Football League communications director Joe Browne jumped into the fray when he criticized Berry for not notifying the league after learning that some players had used drugs following a 30-27 loss in Miami Dec. 16.

"We regret and are disappointed that we did not hear from Coach Berry," said Browne, who cited a league policy requiring such notification. "We're in the process of reviewing the entire matter.

work out the situation."

The Patriots also were the target of an attack Thursday by the National Football League Players Association, which filed an unfair labor practices complaint with the National Labor Relations Board in New York. It was lodged against the Patriots and the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining arm.

The union contended that the voluntary testing program repudiates the drug-testing policy that is part of the players' collective bargaining agreement. It also said the Patriots bypassed the collective bargaining representative, the NFLPA, and dealt directly with their employees about conditions of their employment.

Nicholi called the vote for voluntary testing "a bold and courageous effort on the part of our coach and his players" that he hopes "will serve as a model to be followed by athletic programs at all levels throughout the nation."

But hopes for that program crumbled after the Globe reported that Raymond Clayborn, Tony Collins, Irving Fryar, Roland James, Kenneth Sims and Stephen Starring had told Berry they had used drugs. Patriots' General Manager Patrick Sullivan said he would not deny the accuracy of that report.

New England player representative Brian Holloway, in Honolulu preparing to play in the Pro Bowl, said the release of the names dooms the voluntary testing.

Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFLPA, agreed. "Now that those names have come out, guys with a problem are going to go back into hiding," Upshaw, in Hawaii for the Pro Bowl, told the New York Times.

Clayborn, a cornerback who also will play in the game, has said he will demand to be traded.

"I can't believe (Sullivan) saying that I've got a drug problem when he and everyone else knows I don't," Clayborn said.

Two share lead at Crosby

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The golf tournament has a new name — the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am — but the same old weather, Crosby weather. "We had it all: wind, rain, cold," Peter Jacobsen said.

Those conditions, familiar for the Monterey Peninsula, were dubbed Crosby Weather during the 40-plus years that Bing Crosby's name was associated with this old event. The change of the tournament title — Bing's widow, Kathryn, refused to have the Crosby name associated with a commercial sponsor — did nothing to temper the conditions that have become associated with this tournament.

If anything, it was a little worse than usual. To start with, there was a one-hour delay because of flooded courses. Then there was the rest of it, particularly the wind.

"It was the worst wind conditions I've ever played in," Jacobsen said Thursday after battling the worst of it for a 3-under-par 69 that left him one shot back of Willie Wood and Kikuo Arai of Japan, who tied for the first-round lead with 68s.

Among the first players off the tee, both leaders played at Pebble Beach and, due to their relatively early starting times, avoided some of the worst of the weather.

"Playing early was a definite advantage," Wood said. But Jacobsen played later in the day, and on the more exposed Cypress Point course where the winds were at their worst.

The 376-yard, par-4 17th hole was a case in point.

"You could barely stand up, let alone hit a golf shot," Jacobsen said. He nailed a driver, hit a 2-iron "as good as I can" and still had a full wedge shot to the green. He then two-putted for a 5 that was one over par for the hole "but definitely not a bogey," Jacobsen said.

His difficulties on that hole, however, were shared by some starry company. Jack Nicklaus, for example, was making a move at the leaders until he played the 16th and 17th at Cypress bogey-double bogey. He birdied the 18th for a 73.

Tom Watson was one shot off the lead when he went to the 17th tee. He made double bogey and finished with a 71.

And Nathaniel Crosby, son of the founder, had the Crosby name back in the tournament for a while. He was three under par and one stroke off the pace through 13 holes at Cypress. But he played the next five holes seven over par — including a triple-bogey 7 at 17 — and was well back at 76.

Then there was Curtis Strange, a runnerup in this tournament a year ago and the 1985 leading money-winner. He required nine strokes to play the 17th and shot an 81.

Jacobsen was tied at 69, one stroke off the pace, with Fuzzy Zoeller, who played at Spyglass Hill, and John McComish, who spent his day at Cypress Point. Mark Wiebe and Bob Eastwood, each with a 70 at Pebble Beach, were two back.

The 180 pros, each with an amateur partner, play one round on each of the three courses before the field is cut for the final round Sunday at Pebble Beach.

Jack Nicklaus reacts to a putt on Cypress Point golf course Thursday afternoon during the first round of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am. He shot a one over par 73 for the day. Nicklaus is wearing a rain coat to ward off the cold and rain.

Gilbert upsets Jarryd in U.S. Indoor

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Anders Jarryd lost his concentration, then lost his match with Brad Gilbert in the U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships.

Gilbert, the 11th seed, ousted fifth-seeded Jarryd 7-6, 6-0 Thursday to advance to the quarterfinals of the $465,000 tournament.

Seeds Ivan Lendl and Jimmy Connors also reached the quarterfinals with victories Thursday.

Gilbert had lost convincingly to Jarryd two weeks ago at the Grand Prix Masters.

"He was serving much better than he did at the Masters," Jarryd said. "After the tie-breaker, I really lost my concentration. I had problems to come back after the first set."

Gilbert trailed 3-5 in the first set, but won 10 of the last 11 games.

"Your guess is as good as mine," he said. "I kind of snuck that game out at 5-4, and that seemed to break his confidence. He got rattled and his serve went off."

Gilbert will play Switzerland's Jakob Hlasek in the quarterfinals for the first time. Hlasek beat Mexico's Leonardo Lavalle 6-3, 6-3.

No. 9 seed Andres Gomez lost to eighth-seeded Paul Annacone, Gomez walking off the court trailing 3-1 in the third set. He said his chronic shoulder ailment was bothering him, but he walked off after getting a point penalty for swatting a ball in anger after losing a point.

"It made a lot of difference," said Gomez, who said he might have continued if he hadn't received the penalty.

Annacone, who won the first set 6-1 and lost the second 3-6, will play Lendl, who defeated 16th-seeded Greg Holmes 6-2, 6-2 in 65 minutes. Lendl served eight aces but faulted frequently. Connors beat Yugoslavia's Slobodan Zivojnovic 6-1, 7-6, winning the final six points of the tie-breaker after falling behind 2-1. Connors, the second seed, will face Tim Mayotte, who defeated Marty Davis 6-4, 4-6, 6-2.

Fifth-seeded Kevin Curren barely escaped defeat and ousted Tomas Smid 3-6, 6-4, 7-6. Smid was serving for the match at 5-4 in the third set, but was broken.

Curren will face Yannick Noah in the quarterfinals. Noah defeated Ben Testerman 6-3, 7-6.

Michigan St. star can't stay out of trouble

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Scott Skiles is the talk of the town.

It's not because he's the nation's third-ranked scorer with 26.3 points per game and it's not because he's the Big Ten Conference leader, averaging 28 points.

What dominates nearly every conversation about the 6-foot-1 Michigan State senior guard, what riles opposing-team fans, is Skiles' criminal record. He's been arrested three times in the past two years.

Last April, in his hometown of Plymouth, Ind., Skiles pleaded-bargained a cocaine-possession charge and pleaded guilty to marijuana possession, a misdemeanor. He was given a suspended one-year prison term, fined $100, placed on one-year probation and told to perform 120 hours of community work.

In May, in nearby Mason, he was sentenced to a night in jail and fined $300 after pleading guilty to a misdemeanor charge of impaired driving. He also had his license suspended for 90 days.

In November, in East Lansing, Skiles was charged with operating a vehicle while under the influence. He was suspended for one game and later pleaded innocent to the charge.

"Obviously, I wish I'd never gotten in any of this trouble," he said. "But I've learned that I can withstand anything that anyone is willing to dish out."

He gets lots of practice. Since his troubles began, Skiles has been subjected to some mean-spirited abuse, especially when the Spartans hit the road. Iowa State fans brought packets of sugar to a Dec. 14 game, waved them in the air and chanted "coke, coke, coke" when Skiles appeared.

"I've never seen anything quite like it at the college level," said Jack Ebling, a sports writer who covers Michigan State for the Lansing State Journal.

Coach Jud Heathcote blames a lot of Skiles' torment on the media, saying reports of the arrests have been blown out of proportion because Skiles is an athlete.

Since the latest charge was filed,

Heathcote has assumed a bigger role in Skiles' affairs. Requests for interviews must first be cleared by the coach; most requests are turned down.

"If reporters wanted to talk about basketball, Scott would talk all day," Heathcote said. "But few seem to want to talk to Scott about basketball these days."

A hearing will soon determine whether his one-year probation should be revoked because of the latest charge.

"If I have to go to jail, I'm prepared to go. There's no reason to be optimistic," Skiles told the State Journal last week. "That's probably the worst thing that could happen to me."

"And if I can do anything to stay out of jail, I'll do it. But I'll cope with it one way or the other."

But he worries that recent events may put a stigma on folks he cares about in Plymouth, a town of about 20 people, near South Bend.

"My dad works for the city of Plymouth," Skiles said. "People don't say too much to my parents' faces, but it's a small town. I'm sure people talk behind their backs."

He also has a nagging fear that the talk might continue long after he graduates.

"I'd like to coach some day, but say I go somewhere and use my degree, then get back into basketball at age 25 or 26," Skiles said. "They'll print my name in the paper and say, 'Scott Skiles was hired as an assistant at such-and-such. He played four years at Michigan State, where he was arrested...'"

"I'm sure it'll go with me for quite awhile."

He'd like to buy some time in the National Basketball Association, but he isn't certain he'll be drafted. Skiles scored 45 and 40 points in successive games against Minnesota and Michigan recently, but some NBA clubs are put off by his size and speed.

"Compared with college basketball players today, I'm below average athletically," Skiles told. See Skiles page 6-B

Virginia deals top-ranked North Carolina first loss

By The Associated Press
"Lose one?" North Carolina Coach Dean Smith asked rhetorically, as though he expected to lose a few more.

And, maybe he did after seeing his team's 21-game winning streak snapped Thursday night at Virginia with an 86-73 loss, leaving No. 2 Memphis State as the only major unbeaten team in the country.

"I'm surprised we got this far without losing one, and I'm surprised at Memphis State going this far," the coach of the top-ranked Tar Heels said. "We had a chance to lose up at Maryland, against Duke and against Marquette. I thought Georgia Tech was a close game, and Notre Dame, too."

"They all seemed close. Maybe they will all be close from here on out."

The Cavaliers, 14-5 and 4-3 after the Atlantic Coast Conference victory, got 19 points from center Olden Polynice, built a lead of as many as 19 points late in the game and survived a late North Carolina rush. The Tar Heels fell to 5-1 in the conference.

Other Top Twenty results: No. 9 Michigan 82, Northwestern 45; No. 10 Nevada-Las Vegas 62, San Jose State 55; No. 13 Bradley 63, West Texas State 54; Iowa 79, No. 15 Indiana 69, and No. 16 Virginia Tech 71, No. 20 Richmond 67.

The Virginia victory broke a seven-game losing streak against North Carolina dating back to Ralph Sampson's junior season in 1982.

"It was a great team effort, and we're deliciously happy," Virginia Coach Terry Holland said. "We played hard the full 40 minutes, but I'd like to think we didn't put our whole season out on the floor tonight."

Virginia led 35-22 at halftime, and the Cavaliers took their biggest lead at 84-65 with about a minute to go before North Carolina scored eight of the game's final 10 points.

Brad Daugherty led the Tar Heels with 21 points, and Kenny Smith had 20.

No. 9 Michigan 82, Northwestern 45

Roy Tarpley ignited a 16-3 first-half run with a pair of free throws, and Antoine Joubert had 13 of his 19 points in the second half as Michigan pulled away from Northwestern in a Big Ten Conference game. The big run put Michigan up 22-9 with 8:41 left in the first half, and the Wolverines led 34-19 at intermission.

Michigan, 18-2 and 6-2 in the conference, played much of the second half without Tarpley and guard Gary Grant. Tarpley fouled out for the second straight game, this time with 10:23 left, and Grant sprained his left ankle.

Shon Morris led Northwestern with 17 points.

No. 10 UNLV 62, San Jose St. 55

Nevada-Las Vegas recovered from a 37-30 halftime deficit, scoring the first seven points of the second half, and taking the lead for good, 52-51, with 4:48 to play in beating San Jose State in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

Guard Freddie Banks scored 21 points to lead the Rebels, 9-0 in the PCAA and 20-2 overall. UNLV was ahead 56-51 with 2:43 left.

No. 13 Bradley 63, W. Texas St. 54

Bradley got 22 points from Hersey Hawkins and 20 from Jim Les to improve its record to 21-1 and 8-0 in the Missouri Valley Conference. That represents Bradley's best start since the 1959-60 season.

Bradley turned the ball over just nine times in the game and blocked six West Texas State shots. Les tied a school record with eight assists in the game.

Bradley led 34-25 at halftime.

Iowa 79, No. 15 Indiana 69

Sophomore guard Jeff Moe, in only his eighth start, scored a career-high 24 points, and Iowa built second-half leads of as many as 22 points to beat Indiana in the Big Ten. The loss dropped the Hoosiers to 5-3 in the conference, 13-4 overall.

Indiana turned the ball over 11 times in the first half, and Steve Alford, who averages 25 for the Hoosiers, had only 10 points.

Iowa led 67-45 before Indiana scored 10 straight points, five by freshman Rick Calloway, to get back into the game. Indiana pulled within 71-63 with 2:30 left but got no closer. Calloway had 21 points for Indiana.

No. 16 Va. Tech 71, No. 20 Richmond 67

Dell Curry scored 28 points, including four in the final 27 seconds, to lead Virginia Tech over Richmond. With the points, Curry broke the Tech record with 2,138, two more than the career total of Dale Solomon.

The Spiders also saw their career scoring mark fall as John Newman had 18 for 2,148, breaking the mark of 2,145 of Mike Perry.

The Hokies, 17-4, took the lead for good at 12-10 and led 37-28 at halftime. Richmond fell to 16-3.

Unranked
Playing without six of the 12 players on its roster at the begining of the season, Minnesota got 17 points from freshman Ray Gaffney in his first start to beat Ohio State 70-65 in the Big Ten.

The Gophers lost three players to criminal charges of sexual assault, two others to suspensions for undisclosed violations of team rules and another to academic ineligibility, at one point causing school officials to think of dropping the sport.

Steve Mitchell scored 22 points to lead Alabama-Birmingham over Old Dominion 71-58 in a Sun Belt Conference game interrupted for nearly 20 minutes in the second half by a fight. The fight broke out between UAB players and Old Dominion students seated behind the Blazers bench. Both teams left the floor until order was restored, and the game was resumed.

The Big Ten's leading scorer, Scott Skiles, made 18 of 21 shots from the field and scored 36 points, including the game-winner on a layup with seven seconds left, to lead Michigan State over Wisconsin, 83-81.

Olajuwon swats away Kings victory hopes

By The Associated Press.
Akeem Olajuwon normally doesn't venture away from the basket on defense, but with four seconds to go and Houston leading by two points, he decided that the time was right.

The 7-foot center for the Rockets blocked an 18-foot shot by Sacramento's 6-10 LaSalle Thompson with four seconds to go Thursday night, preserving a 111-109 NBA victory over the Kings.

In other games, it was Seattle 89, New Jersey 82; Boston 101, Chicago 91; San Antonio 112, Cleveland 99; Denver 102, New York 97; Milwaukee 120, Golden State 108; and Los Angeles Lakers 118, Portland 94.

Fitch said the best part of the Olajuwon's game-saving play was not the block itself, but the fact that he also gained possession and passed the ball downcourt to run out the clock. It was his sixth block of the game.

Lewis Lloyd led Houston with 26 points, while Ralph Sampson had 23 points and 10 rebounds. Olajuwon finished with 19 points and John Lucas accounted for 14 assists.

Mike Woodson topped the Kings with 26 points and Eddie Johnson had 20.

The Midwest Division-leading Rockets led 34-24 after one quarter, took a 90-81 margin into the fourth period and led by more than 10 points throughout most of the quarter.

Sacramento started closing the gap with four minutes to go and pulled within four points when forward Mark Olberding intercepted an inbound pass at half-court and went in for a layup with 1:53 left.

The Kings then made it 111-109 when Johnson put in a rebound with 21 seconds to go. Houston did not score in the final 71 seconds.

Celtics 101, Bulls 91
Boston won its ninth consecutive game and improved its NBA-best record to 34-8 as Larry Bird scored 26 points and Robert Parish added 22 points and 16 rebounds.

The Bulls led by three points at halftime, but managed just seven field goals in the first 16 minutes of the second half and finished with just 39 points in the last two periods.

Sidney Green had 21 points and 10 rebounds to lead Chicago, which played without leading scorer Orlando Woolridge because of an injured wrist. All-Star forward Kevin McHale missed the game with a sore Achilles tendon.

Lakers 118, Blazers 94
Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 25 points and James Worthy and Byron Scott added 20 apiece as Los Angeles rolled to its fourth straight victory this season over Portland, the Lakers' closest Pacific Division rival.

Los Angeles scored the first nine points of the second quarter for a 35-28 lead, and the Lakers continued to add to their advantage throughout the game. The final score was their biggest margin.

Kiki Vandeweghe led the Trail Blazers with 25 points.

Bucks 120, Warriors 108
Milwaukee scored 10 straight points at the end of the third period and the start of the fourth and went on to hand Golden State its eighth consecutive loss.

The Bucks got the last six points of the third quarter to break an 81-81 deadlock and Kenny Fields opened the final period with two baskets for a 91-81 lead. The Warriors could get no closer than three points the rest of the way.

Eric Floyd led all scorers with 30 points for Golden State, while Terry Cummings had 26, Sidney Moncrief 23 and Paul Pressey 20 for Milwaukee.

SuperSonics 89, Nets 82

Seattle snapped a nine-game road losing streak as Al Wood scored 25 points, 13 of them in the Sonics' 19-point, fourth quarter against New Jersey.

Sacramento Kings guard Reggie Theus (24) finds the only way to get past Houston Rockets forward Ralph Sampson (50) is to go over his back during fourth quarter NBA action in Sacramento, Calif.

Jack Sikma added 24 points and 12 rebounds for Seattle, now 4-20 for the season away from home. The Sonics used a 15-4 streak in the second period and a 14-4 third-quarter spurt to take control of the game.

Michael Ray Richardson scored 20 points to pace the Nets, who got no closer than seven points in the final 12 minutes.

Spurs 112, Cavaliers 99
San Antonio broke open a close game by outscoring Cleveland 25-15 in the fourth period.

Edgar Jones scored 18 points and John Bagley 17 for Cleveland, but neither player had a point in the final period. The Cavaliers played without Mel Turpin, who was home with his wife after she underwent surgery Tuesday.

Nuggets 102, Knicks 97

Alex English scored 39 points and Bill Hanzlik a career-high 27 and they combined for 22 in the fourth period to keep Denver in front of New York.

Seahawks receiver overachiever

HONOLULU (AP) — Steve Largent seems an anomaly in a realm inhabited mostly by giants or men with fantastic speed.

But Largent, neither extremely big nor extremely fast, has been extremely successful in the National Football League.

"I've had to be an overachiever," said the Seattle Seahawks' wide receiver.

"Like it or not, the NFL's still awed by strength, size and speed. When you don't have those, you have to be an overachiever. Actually, I think it helped me. It made me work harder and do things better."

Largent, who'll be making his fifth Pro Bowl appearance Sunday as a member of the AFC All-Stars, has been "doing things better" in the NFL for the last decade.

The slight 5-foot-11, 184-pounder led the league in receiving yardage in 1985 with 1,287 yards on 79 catches, with six touchdowns.

He currently ranks fifth all-time in the NFL in both career receptions and yardage, with 624 catches for 10,069 yards.

And, as a tribute to his consistency and durability, he's only four receptions shy of the league's consecutive game receiving streak, 121 by Harold Carmichael.

Largent also became the first player in NFL history to log eight seasons of 50 receptions or more, and has equaled Lance Alworth's mark of seven 1,000-yard seasons.

Asked his secret for durability in a position that leaves a player especially vulnerable, Largent replied: "The more you play, the more experience you have, the less dangerous it is. You know where you're supposed to be and you know where the defenders are."

"A lot of football is just me against you, and the strongest wins. But it's a mental game, too, like a chess match in a lot of respects."

"I think people who get hurt are not aware where everybody is. I think mental awareness is the most important thing."

He added with a grin, "And I try to get out of bounds ... and I'm working on a slide."

Largent, 31, said he thinks the most important thing a wide receiver can do is give the quarterback a "consistent look."

"They depend on you to be in the right location," he explained. "If you have to adjust your route because of the defense, you should still be consistent so the quarterback can tell from the defense where you're going to be."

Although he conceivably could become the NFL's all-time leading career receiver if he plays long enough, Largent indicated he may not stay in football much longer.

"I have another year left on my contract, and after that football's optional," he said. "I don't want to hang on too long."

"Maybe the most difficult thing is to keep football in perspective, keep a perspective on your whole life. Life's bigger than football," Largent said. "My relationship with Christ and my relationship with my wife have helped me keep

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RICHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR SATURDAY, FEB. 1, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The day is fine for investigating and looking into new plans of action whereby you can formulate a campaign to gain your most ambitious undertakings.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day for keeping any promises or commitments you have undertaken, but keep out of a possible quarrel with your mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Convince a valuable partner to go along with some fine plan you have in mind. You can accomplish a great deal in public life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Persevere in whatever project you have started during the daytime and get fine results. Get into worthwhile and long-time aims.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Plan the amusements you like with friends, but don't be extravagant in the evening. Then off to pleasures.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Study problems at home and know how to best solve them wisely. Not a good day to have guests in.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to research data you have needed for some time, and it will fit nicely into your scheme of things.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have expensive tastes, so find an added source of income so that you can better afford them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You have ingenuity and can gain your wishes to yourself very wisely. Use positive methods and gain your aims tonight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You are better aware of what you can do to realize your hopes and dreams, so plan the future wisely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Look to a good friend for assistance in gaining a desired wish, which has long been difficult to attain.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Work on your greatest aims during the daytime and become more successful. The evening is not good for gadding about.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You get fine ideas for your betterment, so write them down so that you won't forget them later.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will be capable of planning a course that will be successful for a long period of time. One who will be very thorough and analytical of all details and will never act hastily about anything. One who will not be easily deterred in gaining own goals.

Counselor aids grieving pet owners

Pet-loving Americans spend more than $8 billion a year in animal care — more than the gross national product of many Third World nations, according to a University of Pennsylvania social worker.

An investment of so much money and time means an emotional investment as well, Jamie Quackenbush said, and that creates a need for what he does: psychological counseling for bereaved pet owners.

"It's something you'd find only in the wealthy, Western countries. In Laos and Cambodia, for example, they eat their dogs and cats," said Quackenbush, who describes himself as the only full-time grief counselor for pet owners in the nation.

For Americans with the leisure to fawn on their pets, the relationship between human and animal can become quite sophisticated, said Quackenbush, the author of a recent book, "When Your Pet Dies: How to Cope With Your Feelings."

"Our pets have the ability to accept us for what we are. It doesn't matter if I'm tall or short or fat, or anything like that. I can have a good day or a bad day, my pet's always going to be there."

"It's that kind of thing that animals provide that even the people who mean the most to us can't," he said.

"As a result, he said, some pet owners can feel profound grief when a pet dies, a feeling often made worse by the failure of others to take it seriously.

Social Worker Jamie Quackenbush gets a slurp on the cheek from a friend at the veterinary hospital of the University of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia.

At the Penn veterinary hospital where Quackenbush works, officials say figures show that Americans, particularly those in urban areas, are exceptionally fond of their domestic fauna.

Of the 110 million Americans who own at least one dog or cat, 40 percent display a picture of their pet in their homes, said Dr. Alan Beck, director of the hospital's Research Center for Human-Animal Interaction.

Studies show that 70 percent of the adolescents who have pets "confide" in them, Beck said. Forty-eight percent of adult owners also talk to their pets about problems, he said.

According to Dr. Allan Katcher, an associate professor of psychiatry at Penn's school of medicine, a study released in 1980 showed that heart disease sufferers who own pets are less likely to have a heart attack.

But Quackenbush admitted his speciality may seem odd to many, in a city where the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals complains about an overload of abandoned pets each year during the holidays.

People get rid of their pets because they're in the way during the holidays and "it's an opportune time," said SPCA spokesman Elaine Newton. Most often the pets are put to sleep because no one else wants them.

Callousness from others is a key reason his counseling is needed by the approximately 1,000 people that he treats every year, Quackenbush said.

"The classic comment they get is, 'It was only a cat,' or 'It was only a dog,'" he said. "That just adds insult to injury. The implication is that there's something wrong with you for feeling grief."

Quackenbush said that, "95 percent of the people I see have no history of mental problems." About 80 percent are women and most live in "smaller social unit," he said.

And what does he tell them as a counselor?

"I tell them what they're feeling is a natural response, that they can feel bad and be accepted for feeling bad by others. You simply don't own a pet in a vacuum," he said.

George von Hassell employee of quarter

Employees of Hall-Bennett Hospital recently named George von Hassell as the employee of the quarter from January through March.

Von Hassell has been on the staff of Hall-Bennett since April of 1979. Charles A. Weeg, administrator, said, "I am most pleased to see this employee receive this honor. He is a man of many talents and skills."

Von Hassell is cashier and part-time social service director and is skilled in nursing, according to hospital administrators.

Prior to coming to Big Spring, he was a social service worker for the Lutheran Church and was a director of a drug rehabilitation center in East Harlem, New York City. He later worked for a Mexican American farm workers group in California.

He is a 1964 graduate of Lutheran College in Teaneck, N.J. He took graduate courses

Robin Ethridge honored during recent shower

Robin Ethridge, bride-elect of Scott Robinson, was honored with a bridal shower at the home of Mrs. Billy Jack Darden in Coahoma.

Ethridge was presented with a red and white carnation corsage. Mother of the bride, Mrs. Rob Ethridge and Mrs. Lloyd Robinson, mother of the bridegroom, were presented red carnation corsages.

The serving table was draped with a white cut-work cloth and centered with a Valentine arrangement of red carnations, baby's breath and spider mums in a crystal compote. A red and white Valentine theme was used in heart-shaped petit fours and decorated mints.

Some years Steiger has even taught a Sociology of Humor course, which is not standard fare in all sociology departments.

The bride elect's grandmother, Dorothy Fowler of Big Spring, and Robinson's grandmothers, Vaughnea White of Big Spring and Ima Robinson of Knott were guests.

The hostesses gift was a brass lamp. The hostesses were: Judy Dobbs, Eddie Juan Echols, Gwen Fryar, Eleanor Garrett, Suzanne Haney, Sally Itz, Barbara Justiss, Becky Key, Nan McKinney, Lee Milliken, Sue Neff, Janie Phinney, Peggy Snell, Hattie Swann, Arlene White, Vivian Wilson, Loma Jean Wynn, Jackie Zitterkopf and Jeanie Darden.

The couple will wed Feb. 14 at the First Baptist Church in Coahoma.

Professor says humor helps the memory

FOREST GROVE, Ore. (AP) — Humor helps students to remember more, says Dr. Byron D. Steiger, who uses cartoons on class examination papers. An associate professor of sociology at Pacific University, he points out that sociology is a study of the human condition, and that humor certainly applies.

"Who is it that tells the king the truth? It's the fool or the court jester. Humor can get across ideas that would be unacceptable otherwise," he explains.

Steiger often uses a cartoon on the cover of a test to help students relax and insure that they all start the exam at the same time. Cartoons are also included in the body of the test. Steiger has found that if the student understands the preceding cartoon, he can answer the question.

He cites as an example studying the theory of deferred awards that serve a purpose.

"In the case of preparing to enter the work force, people learn that some jobs require more skill and training," he notes. "The gratification has to be deferred while the skills are acquired. However, people are often motivated to work toward this goal — the award, or the payoff or the carrot, comes at the end."

To illustrate, Steiger often uses a series of rat maze cartoons with the carrot at the end of the maze.

An example of a punch line from a cartoon Steiger has used on a test when the class was studying the efficiency of the jury system: "We find the defendant guilty, the lawyers incompetent and the judge pompous."

Steiger has used cartoons in classes and on tests for 10 years and has a collection of at least a thousand cartoons, sorted by classes in which he can apply them.

"Cartoonists make us look at the world in a different perspective, so we can't take everything for granted," Steiger says.

In the area of teaching, he adds, "You have to remain interested in what you're teaching. Collecting and using cartoons to fit courses keeps me more intellectually alive."

Epilepsy can focus on different organs

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please tell me about a brain abnormality that can cause pain and cramps in the stomach. My son, age 46, has this and was told it was caused by the brain. I can't believe it. He is taking Dilantin. Please explain this. — Mrs. V.S.

I'm guessing that your son's doctors suspect he has abdominal epilepsy. We tend to think of epilepsy in terms of visible signs, such as dramatic loss of consciousness. That's not always so.

Epilepsy occurs because brain waves have become erratic or overactive. If that abnormal state is centered in certain brain cells responsible for control of a specific organ, then symptoms will arise there. It's that way with abdominal epilepsy. Stomach pain and cramping become the predominant symptoms.

Dilantin is one of the medicines used to control abnormal brain waves. It will help your son. Check back with your son and his doctor. Am I guessing right?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: In your column you explained that drinking milk was a good way to avoid osteoporosis. What about those of us who have had calcium kidney stones and have to watch calcium. I have had four of them in the past 10 years. — Mrs. D.B.O.

The question is how do you balance the likelihood of getting another kidney stone against that of developing osteoporosis from inadequate calcium intake.

Much depends on you and your background. Certain factors predispose a woman to osteoporosis. They include family history of it, lack of physical activity, and cigarette smoking.

After assessing those factors in the individual, the doctor then can check the person's urine to see if the calcium level is high. If it isn't (and not all calcium stone-formers have high urine calcium) then you can get the calcium you need.

If the urine calcium is high, there's still a way around the problem. Common water pills, the thiazides, prevent calcium from staying in the urine and forming stones in the kidneys. You would be able to have your cake and eat it too.

I should mention also that there is a technique, photon absorptiometry, which measures bone density. That gives a good idea of the woman's chances of developing osteoporosis.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am taking Dramamine for sleeping pills. Are they harmful? For me, they are very effective as sleeping pills. — Mrs. C.P.

Dramamine is an antihistamine. One of the effects of most antihistamines is a drowsiness, so in that sense they are a mild sedative. Occasional use of antihistamine is safe. But your letter causes me to wonder why you have sleep problems at all. Why don't you explore this with a doctor?

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am to have stones removed from my bile duct. The process is to be endoscopy. Briefly describe this operation. — A.L.V.

An endoscope is a tube with a viewing device on the end. For your stone problem, the tube will be introduced via the mouth and passed into the stomach, then out to the small intestine, to where the gall bladder duct enters it. Stones obstructing that duct can be removed. The endoscope opens the duct and permits the stones to pass out into the intestinal tract for evacuation from the body. If necessary, a tiny basket can be attached to the endoscope to retrieve a stone and deposit it into the intestinal tract.

This non-surgical procedure is often favored in those who for reasons of age or poor physical health cannot withstand the rigors of conventional surgical stone removal.

FOR MRS. G.G.: Grafts for the aorta are made of inert materials. These do not cause rejection by the body. You are thinking of reactions that develop when organs from another human are implanted. The body senses them as foreign, living substance, and that evokes rejection.

Are you having a gall bladder problem? To find out how the gall bladder works and what kinds of trouble to look for, send for the booklet, "You and Your Gall Bladder." Write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Young mother wants tubes tied

DEAR ABBY: I'm 17 and have a 9-month-old daughter, and I'm pregnant again. But that's not my problem. I'm receiving state assistance and free medical coverage, but the state refuses to pay for getting my tubes tied, which is what I want.

They told me that when I reach the age of 21, they will, but not until. They say it's the law.

I don't want to risk having another baby. I can't take the pill for medical reasons, and the other methods are not 100 percent safe, plus they are a lot of bother. What should I do?

CONFUSED IN CONNECTICUT
DEAR CONFUSED: I am glad you wrote. Please contact your local family planning facility at once for instructions on the various methods of birth control. While some methods may seem like "a lot of bother," they would not be nearly as much bother as five children before your 21st birthday. A counselor at the clinic can also explain why a tubal ligation is not an appropriate method of birth control at age 17.

DEAR ABBY: I am 28 years old and have read your column for years, but this is my first letter to you. I am a bachelor (by choice) and was very much offended by comments made by your readers concerning bachelors.

I am the one who works late, or comes in early when something special needs to be done at the office. I usually work on holidays because I have no wife or children at home, so I allow my married coworkers to enjoy theirs. I also host showers, company parties, neighborhood gatherings, etc. because living alone makes it simpler to be a host. But I am still asked, "When are you going to settle down?" (I have.) "Why don't you get out and meet people?" (I do.) "Are you gay?" (I am not.) And if this isn't enough, I am viewed with suspicion if I'm too attentive to a married woman.

In spite of its drawbacks, I am single, and I like it. I don't appreciate being compared to a mule, or told that I remain single to avoid responsibility.

So, to you married men who fear bachelors: I am happy you have found someone to share your life with, but don't criticize bachelors. If your marriage turns sour, you will probably turn to a single friend for comfort. And as for that reader who called bachelors jackasses, you owe us an apology. Of course we'll never get one because jackasses (no matter how many legs) do not talk. They just make noise.

JOHN H. GARLAND, TEXAS

DEAR ABBY: Recently you had a letter from "Louisiana Libra," who didn't know what to say when she was asked, "How's your love life?" You suggested, "It's none of your business," which is true, but it's also rude.

In the early years of my marriage, I was frequently asked, "How come you don't have any children yet?" I replied, "I don't know." Sometimes they pressed it further with, "Whose fault is it, yours or your wife's?" I repeated my original answer, "I don't know."

To every question, I kept saying, "I don't know." They soon got tired of asking, and shut up.

I'm over 75 and still use that response to questions I don't want to answer, and it always works.

JUST H.R.

DEAR JUST: Good suggestion.

Sedinger to ordain his mother

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Religion Editor

Victor Sedinger, pastor of the First Christian Church, will officiate in the ordination services of his mother, Ione, Sunday in Fort Worth.

"There's getting to be a greater number of women in the ministry," Sedinger said, "but it's very rare for a son to ordain his mother."

Ione Sedinger has always been active in the church and has a real gift for teaching, Sedinger said, but has had to put her responsibilities as a wife and mother first.

She attended college on a part-time basis while raising her three children. It took many years to accumulate the hours needed, Sedinger said.

After the children were through with college, she went back to school full-time to pursue ministry. In December 1985, she graduated with a Masters of Divinity from Bright Divinity School at Texas Christian University.

At 59, most women are thinking about retirement with their spouses, but Ione is just embarking on a new career.

When asked how Sedinger's father feels about it, Sedinger said, "Dad's behind her 100 percent."

When Ione was a student pastor at Pilot Point, Sedinger's father also got involved in the church. His father "has an extremely gifted voice," Sedinger said and he sang at the services. "It also calmed my mother to have him there, Sedinger said.

"Dad is a couple years from retirement," Sedinger said and then Mrs. Sedinger won't be limited to where she can go to minister.

At first Mrs. Sedinger will fill in for other ministers until she gets her own church, Sedinger said. "She could get a job anywhere as an associate minister in charge of education, but she wants to preach," he added.

The service will be held Sunday at 2:30 p.m. at the Sandy Lane Christian Church in Fort Worth. The ordination service is a testimony to the consecration of her for the ministry, Sedinger said.

After the service there will be a reception for her at the church.

Among the guests will be her husband, three children and four grandchildren.

Navajo Bible may promote Christianity

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The new Navajo Bible, painstakingly translated in bits and pieces since 1910, may spark a new interest in the Indians' ancient tribal language as well as promote Christianity, religious leaders say.

The Navajo-language Bible was unveiled this month at ceremonies in Tuba City and Window Rock, Ariz., and in Farmington, N.M., on the sprawling Navajo reservation.

"It's the biggest thrill of my life. When I got it I just sat and cried," said Lois Martin, a missionary who began working on the translation with her Navajo husband, Geronimo Martin, about 40 years ago. Her husband, who was blind and read from an English Braille Bible to make his translations, played a part in the final proof corrections before he died in September 1984.

It is not the first time the complete Bible has been translated into an American Indian language, said William Wonderly, translation consultant for the American Bible Society, publisher of the Navajo Bible. "The Bible was translated more than a century ago into the Massachusetts Indian language, and also into the Dakota dialect of the Sioux language during the 1800s, he said.

referred to Hebrew versions, Tutt said.

It wasn't always easy to find the right words, Tutt said.

The concept of sin originally had been translated to mean "stumbling or blundering," but that language did not seem strong enough, he said, and the word was re-translated to mean "a missing of the mark," which fits with an existing Navajo religious concept.

Angels were translated as "the holy ones who serve God," Mrs. Martin said. Because the pomegranate fruit figures in the Bible, she said she got one at a store for her husband to sample. "That gave him a better idea of how to translate it," she said.

But the introduction of the first full Navajo Bible was anxiously awaited by many members of the United States' largest Indian nation.

"The Navajo people, those who have become Christians, have an intense love, a fervent love, of the Bible," Wonderly said. "There was a real air of enthusiasm at those ceremonies. It was a historic occasion which will never be repeated."

The book of Genesis was translated into Navajo and published in 1910, along with the gospel of Mark. Parts of Exodus, Psalms, Luke, Romans, 1st Corinthians and Revelation were completed by Christian missionaries in 1917. In 1930, Acts was published, like the others, by the American Bible Society, Wonderly said.

The project suffered a setback in 1974 when a suitcase containing the translated book of Job fell from the Martins' car during a trip. "We said by the time we got done (re-translating the book) we understood Job's trials better, and it probably was a better translation," Mrs. Martin said.

The Bible is selling well, religious leaders say, even though most Navajos are illiterate in their native language. For most, Navajo is mainly a spoken language, Tutt said.

A serious push to translate the entire New Testament began during the 1940s — led by the Martins and missionaries Faye Edgerton and Faith Hill — and the volume was published in 1956. The Martins then worked on the Old Testament with a new translation team led by the Rev. David Tutt, a United Methodist missionary.

The team relied mainly on the King James Bible and the New American Standard Bible but also referred to Hebrew versions, Tutt said.

Mrs. Martin said she plans in September to become a "floating literary worker" to help Navajos learn to read their language. A Navajo New Testament has been put on a cassette, and religious workers hope the Old Testament will be recorded soon so people can listen as they read the printed version.

The Rev. Sampson Yazzie, the Navajo pastor of the Farmington Christian Reform Church in New Mexico, said a woman at his church had offered to read the Navajo Bible and teach people about the language.

At Yazzie's church, services are conducted twice, in Navajo and in English.

Legend of bell intrigues congregation

EAST HADDAM, Conn. (AP) — The bell of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, which calls out an invitation to services each Sunday, is the subject of an intriguing legend about its mysterious past.

Some believe the bell, dating back to 815, is the oldest in Christendom, or at least in the New World. Legend connects it with Spain, Napoleon and the Duke of Wellington.

"There's a great deal of uncertainty about the whole thing," said East Haddam history buff Georgiana Costa.

"There are a lot of people who would like it to be the oldest bell, but it is most likely not."

The bell, about 32 inches high and 33 inches in diameter, has not aroused much recent research among the church's 120-member congregation in East Haddam, a picturesque and affluent Connecticut River town.

Church records on the bell appear to be limited to newspaper clippings and an unsigned, undated sheet of paper titled "Legend of the Bell." A book called, "Early Connecticut Meetinghouses," by J. Frederick Kelly, also gives some history of St. Stephen's and its bell.

In 1802, the church decided to sell its first bell, Kelly wrote. It wasn't until 1834 that the current bell was purchased for the original St. Stephen's church.

It now hangs in the belfry of the second St. Stephen's, a stone-and-shingle church constructed more than 80 years ago near the tiny schoolhouse where Revolutionary War patriot Nathan Hale once taught.

The church legend says the bell was cast in 815 and hung for a thousand years in a Spanish monastery, which is not named. In 1808, when Napoleon conquered Spain, the bell became part of the war debris and, the legend says, "it turned up as a part of Wellington's spoils of war when he overcame the 'Little Corporal.'"

The bell came to America as ballast for a ship. The legend continues that "a ship chandler named William Willys Pratt, who had married the daughter of Captain Oliver Attwood of East Haddam, secured the bell, and shipped it by barge from New York, up the Connecticut River to East Haddam, and to St. Stephen's Church in 1834."

When the bell was brought to the old St. Stephen's, it was rung by hand for five years "because it was considered unsafe to ring it in the customary manner," the legend said. Then a supporting frame was built and it was "rung in its usual way."

Since 1904, the bell has hung in its present tower in the new St. Stephen's church. To get to it, a visitor must get into the church hall's attic via a swingdown staircase and then climb a ladder through a roof hatchway. It is rung by a rope that can be pulled in the church hall.

Dark and worn, the bell's Spanish inscription has led to the speculation about the age of the bell.

The church translates the inscription this way: "Conceived in the spirit of the Holy Ghost in the year 815 when the very pious Don Miguels Villa was the Prior and the very pious Don Joseph Estevan was the new Procurator. Corales made me."

Legend has it that the bell of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church in East Haddam, Conn., was cast in 815.
