Reagan orders spending cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Saturday ordered the first round of spending cuts under a law designed to balance the federal budget by 1991, but complained that the cuts "make no distinction between high priority programs and those of little merit."

"I'm confident we can achieve these reductions while maintaining government services," Reagan said in his weekly radio broadcast, delivered from Camp David, the presidential weekend retreat in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland.

However, he said, the fiscal 1987 budget he will submit to Congress on Wednesday will take "a different and better approach" to the legislation's goal of reducing the deficit to $144 billion — from a projected $200 billion or more — by the end of the fiscal year that starts in October.

"We propose to reform or eliminate the programs and activities that are either too big or shouldn't exist at all," he said. "And we propose to transfer programs that should be handled by state and local governments or private enterprise consistent with their traditional responsibilities."

But the president said his budget "will not cut the essential programs to anyone who needs such assistance," will not cut Social Security benefits and will provide for "modest but steady growth to sustain the defense program set in motion five years ago."

The cuts Reagan ordered Saturday, which apply to spending for the current fiscal year, amount to 4.3 per cent for domestic programs and 4.9 per cent for the military. Troop strength will be left uned because the president took advantage of a special provision in the bill allowing him to exempt military manpower. Social Security benefits also will not be affected.

As required by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law passed by Congress last year, the president followed the cuts outlined in January by Comptroller General Charles Bowsher.

Shuttle probe reveals odd burst of flame

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The board investigating the destruction of the space shuttle Challenger said Saturday that film of the last 15 seconds of the shuttle's 73 second flight shows an unusual spurt of flame in the right rocket booster.

NASA spokesman Hugh Harris said neither the board nor the space agency will speculate about what that observation means. But other sources have said the tongue of flame, clearly visible in the pictures, burned into the adjacent fuel tank and caused the explosion that killed all seven astronauts.

The film did not clearly confirm or conflict with those theories. It showed a tongue of flame apparently lashing upward from the rocket exhaust into an area that films of previous launches showed to be clear of fire or flame.

The space agency, which has clamped down on information since Tuesday's explosion, disclosed earlier that Challenger's seven astronauts had no warning their ship was going to explode.

Examination of a booster nose cone that was recovered from the Atlantic showed that the rockets that pull spent boosters away from the shuttle had not fired, the Coast Guard said.

If commander Richard Scobee had been alerted to impending danger he would have hit a "ditch button," which fires the booster separation motors.

"The booster separation motors were never activated," a statement said.

Meanwhile, a Navy helicopter carrier, the USS Guam, plucked a 13-foot-diameter orange cone from the sea far north of the main search area because it might be the top of Challenger's fuel tank.

And at the Kennedy Space Center, a memorial wreath of white chrysanthemums and seven red carnations — one for each of the dead astronauts — was dropped into a gray sea after a service attended by 4,000 space workers and their families.

Harris said the films shown to reporters were taken by 70mm cameras and transferred to videotape.

"We don't want the quick answer, we want the right answer," Harris said.

He called the films of the 15-second period only "an area of interest" — not the only area of interest.

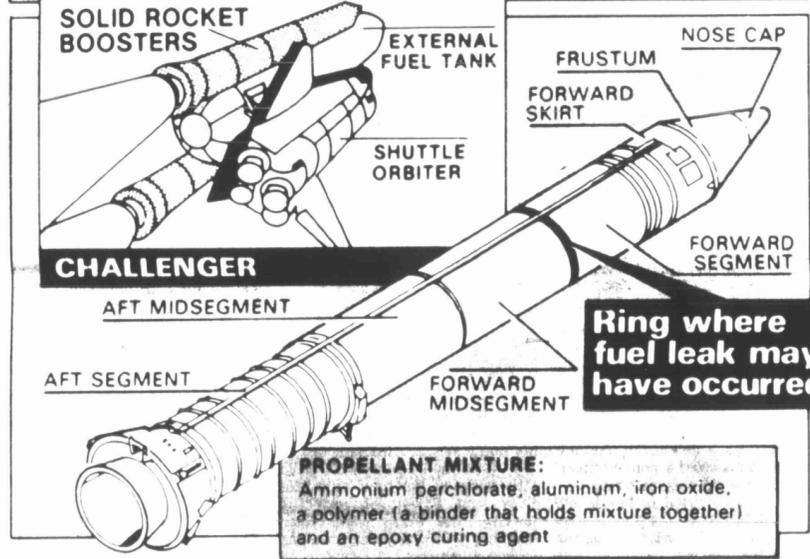

The films were taken from Playalinda Beach, just north of the Challenger launch pad, and show a different angle from videotapes available earlier.

Harris would not even agree that the pictures were the most unique thing seen by the investigating board. "I only know it is unusual," he said of the plume of flame. "That is the engineering judgment of the board."

The brief NASA statement did not address statements to the news media that the right rocket booster experienced a small drop of

Another Possibility

Investigators examined tapes, films and photos to determine if Challenger was destroyed by a rocket booster rupture that shot a flame into a self-destruct mechanism on the shuttle's external fuel tank.

Americans support space program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans, 73 percent, believe the space shuttle explosion was the price the nation must pay for space exploration, according to a U.S. News & World Report poll released Saturday.

Of the 1,003 people surveyed, 73 percent agreed with the statement that the shuttle deaths were "a regrettable disaster but nevertheless a price we must be willing to pay" for exploration of space.

Twenty-two percent said the accident was an unacceptable price to pay.

But asked whether civilians should fly the shuttle, only 55 percent agreed and 41 percent said the flights should be restricted to professional astronauts.

Schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe, the first "common person" to fly the shuttle, was among the seven crew members killed.

On spending for the shuttle program, 69 percent said it should remain the same and 25 percent said it should be reduced.

The telephone survey was conducted by the Roper Organization on the two nights following the explosion of the Challenger last Tuesday. The poll has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

VA Medical Center plans to close surgical ward

Surgery will be discontinued at the Veterans Administration Medical Center within the next few years under a plan being developed at the request of VA Central Office, according to Tom Balderach, assistant to the director.

Surgical patients, which average 25 a day here, will be transferred to other VA medical centers at that time, he said. Nearest general surgery is Amarillo.

VA officials here will decide how best to convert the 46 surgical beds to either long-term psychiatric care or intermediate medical care, he said. A plan for making the change is due by May 1. No reduction of personnel here is anticipated, medical center director John H. Steward said.

The VA medical center has 249 beds. A proposal to expand the 40-bed nursing care unit to 90 beds is unaffected by this decision from the Department of Medicine and Surgery Planning Board, Balderach said.

Surgery is being discontinued here because occupancy rate is about 45 percent, Balderach said. He said one other VA hospital in our district, in Prescott, Ariz., is also losing its surgical care.

Austin's request falls through

As the convention at San Felipe de Austin adjourns, Stephen F. Austin glances over the resolutions just approved on this first day of April 1833. The list of grievances from Texas to Mexico are lengthy, but the most important document just drafted is the proposed state constitution.

Currently, Texas and Coahuila are one state in the Confederacy of

Journey through Texas

Mexico, but Texans are ready for their own state and have drafted the necessary paperwork. Austin, a man of proven loyalty and common sense, has been commissioned to bring this petition and the grievances to Gomez Farias, acting president of Mexico during President Santa Anna's absence.

On April 20 Austin is ready to make the long journey, but before departing he writes Thomas Learning, a friend and relative

"I depart from here early tomorrow for the city of Mexico on a mission to the government asking for admission of Texas into the Mexican confederation as a state separate from Coahuila," he begins. "Should it be refused, I think it will be the greatest error that the Mexican government has ever committed. Texas is now able to sustain a state government and cannot do any longer without one. A refusal will inevitably produce a violent agitation here of some kind.

"A sound policy clearly says that Texas ought to be separated," he continues. "It was only united to (Coahuila) provisionally...with the express condition or promise that so soon as Texas is in a situation to Stephen F. Austin accepts a commission to petition for statehood of Texas from Mexico in 1833, but things don't go as planned.

figure as a separate state should inform Congress thereof for its resolution. We are acting under shield of the LAW and with its express sanction in asking for admission into the union as a state and I have no doubt we shall succeed. We have no government now that deserves the name of one and a refusal to give us one will be bad policy, very bad indeed."

Early in July of 1833 Austin arrives in Mexico City and is cordially received by Farias. The Mexican government, though, is in a state of turmoil. Many months pass and nothing is done with the petition.

By September, Austin still has no work, so again he meets with Farias to "urge the just and constitutional claims of Texas to become a state in the most pressing manner." The visit doesn't go well. Later he writes, "It was my misfortune to offend the high authorities of the nation — my frank and honest exposition of the truth was construed into threats."

On Oct. 2, in an admitted moment of irritation and impatience, Austin writes to those at San Antonio de Bexar recommending "that the people organize as a state de facto without waiting any longer."

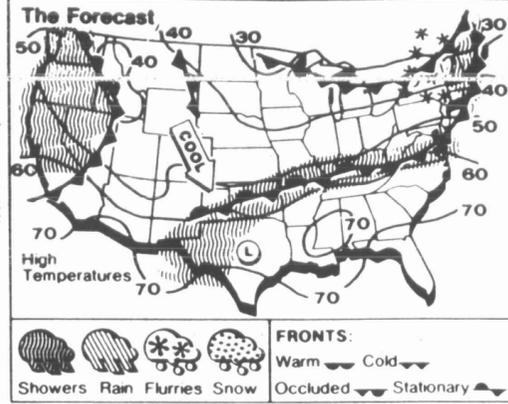

Finally, on Nov. 5 there is a breakthrough. Santa Anna returns to Mexico and agrees to meet with Austin. He approves of a "repeal of the ban on immigration, better mail service and a modification of the tariff, but he firmly refuses to separate Texas. Texas is far below the 80,000 inhabitants required for statehood, Santa Anna notes, so he firmly refuses to continue the discussion.

Stephen Austin leaves Mexico the following month, but in the Coahuilan capital of Saltillo he is suddenly arrested and escorted back to Mexico. It seems that his letter to San Antonio found its way to a government official and was sent to Farias. Enraged, he ordered the arrest.

Austin is held incommunicado, deprived of books, visits or even courtyard walks. After more than a year, on Christmas Day in 1834, he is released, but by now tensions between Texas and Mexico are critical. In a minor scuffle Texans have taken over the Alamo in San Antonio and Mexico wants it back. War seems imminent.

"Journey through Texas" is a Sequocentennial project of the Office of Media Relations at the University of Houston University Park. This piece is based on material housed in the Special Collections Department of the M.D. Anderson Library at the university.

Shuttle

The large orange cone was spotted in the ocean 100 miles east of Savannah, Ga., and the Guam was sent in after another vessel, the USS Dewey, reported it did not have the right equipment to pick it up. The Guam is a 600-foot troop ship with a deck like a small carrier for helicopters.

NASA said it did not know whether the cone had come from the 184-foot shuttle tank and was awaiting its return. Savannah is more than 200 miles north of Cape Canaveral.

The flash of fire investigators are looking at was noted in frame-by-frame examinations of pictures in the instant before the shuttle's tank exploded, killing all seven astronauts.

The space agency is said to be looking at the possibility the fire struck a primer cord on an explosive "destruct" package. The package is on the fuel tank in case the shuttle goes off course and has to be destroyed by a radio signal from the ground.

NASA still was saying little about the direction of the investigation, despite increasing reports in news media quoting sources who refused to be identified.

The New York Times reported that the right booster rocket lost a small amount of power about 10 seconds before the fuel tank exploded. The boosters are attached to the tank, which holds more than 500,000 gallons of liquid hydrogen and liquid oxygen at liftoff.

The three main shuttle engines, which receive their fuel from the tank, shut down almost immediately after a booster power drop of about 100,000 pounds of its 2.5 million pounds of thrust, the Times reported.

U.S. to watch elections

WASHINGTON — The U.S. observer delegation to the Feb. 7 presidential election in the Philippines will be prepared to denounce signs of election-stealing and will stress to the Philippines government the importance of an independent vote count, a co-chairman of the delegation says.

"Our role is to support the democratic process," said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, who will co-chair the 19-member delegation of members of Congress and private citizens.

Lugar, Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., the other co-chairman, and the rest of the delegation will leave for Manila on Tuesday and remain through the Friday election.

New AIDS test sought

BOSTON — Several companies are working on a new generation of AIDS screening tests that would reveal if a person has been exposed to the AIDS virus without producing the false alarms that mar the current test.

"Fewer people will be under suspicion of having AIDS when they really don't," said Pamela Hicks, business development director of Centocor in Malvern, Pa.

"It should be very encouraging news," said Gary Buck, president of Cambridge Bioscience in Hopkinton, Mass.

Study to minimize pain

WASHINGTON — A growing number of American researchers are trying to minimize pain and suffering of laboratory animals and to reduce their use by developing alternatives involving computers, according to an exhaustive congressional study.

The study released Saturday concludes, however, that laboratories will continue for the foreseeable future to sacrifice millions of animals each year for everything from studying cancer to testing cosmetics.

The Office of Technology Assessment, Congress' scientific advisory arm, spent more than two years and $425,000 studying animal use in scientific research, product testing and education.

Bulldog owner to pay

CONROE — The owner of a pit bulldog that attacked a 4-year-old Conroe girl pleaded guilty to a misdemeanor charge of injury to a child and agreed to pay the child's medical expenses.

In return for Friday's guilty plea, Conroe carpenter Kenneth Gillis, 32, was given back his dog, Princess. The dog, however, must be muzzled at all times, except when eating, and be removed from the county, assistant Montgomery County Attorney Carole Clark said.

Gillis, holding a dog muzzle during the court proceedings, said he was not pleased with the plea-bargain. "But it's the only way I can get my dog out."

After Baylor

Ousted editors say they're closer than ever

BUDA (AP) — Six years ago, three journalism students took a stand at Baylor University that gained them national notoriety and cost them their jobs as editors of the college newspaper.

When Jeff Barton, Cyndy Slovak and Barry Kolar won The Lariat's top three positions late in 1979, they promised to "provide a more provocative editorial page."

Within three months, they were embroiled in a battle between busters and Baptists, pitting principles against the publisher — university president Abner McCall.

It was free publicity for Playboy magazine, which came to the Waco university in the spring of 1980 looking for Baptist beauties for its "Girls of the Southwest Conference" pictorial.

In the end, the three editors were fired. Two journalism professors quit over the flap, as did newspaper staffers. Scholarships for several students, including Barton and Ms. Slovak, were not renewed.

These days, Barton, Kolar, Ms. Slovak and Sheri Sellmeyer, another Baylor journalism student who lost her scholarship over the controversy, are running the Onion Creek Free Press, a weekly newspaper in this community south of Austin.

"What Abner McCall did was take away our paper and made a big point of saying, 'Well I'm the publisher. If you want to run your own paper go buy your own press.' And, in effect, that's what we did. We went and got our own paper," said Barton, who is co-publisher with his wife, Ms. Slovak.

The newspaper was owned by Barton's father, veteran newspaperman and former legislator Bob Barton Jr., and Jeff Barton took it over in 1983.

McCall, now president-emeritus at Baylor, said the students' behavior got out of hand. Six years ago, he said the incident was "like a wart on my big toe." He makes the same assessment today.

"It was a minor matter," McCall said. "There were lots of things going on. This was just a passing irritant. It didn't affect the main operation of the university. The journalism department has kept on going. The Lariat has kept on going, gotten bigger and improved. It's just going great guns."

The young journalists, all in their mid-20s and into their third year at the Free Press, said the experience at Baylor has helped them.

"The education was invaluable, in terms of understanding where you are and knowing where your breaking point is ...," Barton said. "I think all of us feel like there's not much we'd do different."

The former students say they have stood up for each other countless times since the Playboy flap.

"If we ever get in a libel suit or if somebody ever tries to buy us out or if we really are in cut-throat competition, I don't ever have to worry that Barry's going to take the money and run and that Barry's going to cave in and cut a deal with those guys, because we've already been through that," Barton said. "There were plenty of times to cave in before."

Barton, Kolar, Ms. Slovak and Ms. Sellmeyer all have journalistic backgrounds.

Train wreck kills 39

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Rescue workers used a crane Saturday to pry apart the wreckage of two passenger trains that collided outside Durban, and they found more bodies, raising the death toll to 39, officials said.

Willie Mitchell, railways director for Natal Province, said many of the bodies were uncovered when a crane pried one smashed car from atop another at mid-day Saturday, 18 hours after the Friday night crash.

Screaming and moaning passengers were trapped overnight in the wreck, some for as long as 12 hours, reporters at the scene said.

Mitchell said 71 people were injured, most of them slightly, and one person was in serious condition at a hospital. He said those who perished were 38 black passengers and the white engineer of one of the trains.

Craters to be memorial

MOSCOW — Two craters on the planet Venus will be named in honor of Christa McAuliffe and Judy Resnik, the two female U.S. astronauts killed when space shuttle Challenger exploded, a Soviet newspaper said Saturday.

The Soviet daily Sotsialisticheskaya Industriya (Socialist Industry) said Soviet cartographers had decided in 1975 to name features on the planet only after women, because in Roman mythology Venus was the goddess of beauty.

Oil cuts impact Mexico

MEXICO CITY — A Mexican official said Saturday that the nation's efforts to bolster its sagging economy were in danger because of its sharp $4 a barrel cut in oil prices.

Abel Beltran del Rio, director of CIEMEX-Wharton Inc., predicted the latest reduction by Mexico, which was announced late Friday, would require Mexico to seek an additional $1.5 billion in outside financial help this year. CIEMEX-Wharton is a Mexican government forecasting project with offices in Philadelphia.

Avalanche kills traveler

INNSBRUCK, Austria — A massive avalanche destroyed part of an Alpine hotel Saturday, killing one guest and injuring at least 30 people, a rescue official said.

The official, Peter Zich, said the dead person was from the Netherlands. He said Austrian Automobile Touring Club and Interior Ministry helicopters flew the casualties to Innsbruck University Clinic hospital.

The snow smashed into the hotel at Obergurgl, about 25 miles south of here, said Zich, spokesman for the auto club.

A physician at the clinic later said four people had been treated by hospital staff and none was in serious condition.

Look out AAAA, here we come

Sometimes, less is more. One less 'A' in our University Interscholastic League classification will give us more competition. It's a good move for Big Spring.

Starting with next fall's football season, we will move from the equivalent of the heavyweight class into light heavyweight. Still serious contention, you understand, but better reflecting our size. The matchups in the new District 2 4A will be much more realistic than they were in District 4-5A.

We leave Mojo, and San Angelo Central, and Midland and Abilene behind. For 30 years, we've tangled with these schools on the gridiron and on the courts. But the reality is that Big Spring cannot compete effectively against cities four times its size.

Next fall, we go heads up with Sweetwater, Snyder, Lamesa, San Angelo Lakeview, Monahans, Fort Stockton, Pecos and Andrews. In that group, there is serious competition — particularly from Sweetwater in football and Andrews in basketball. It will be challenging, but not frustrating.

We go from being the smallest city in the Class AAAA district to the largest in our Class AAAA district. We can, and will, go from bringing up the rear in district football play to being contenders for a district crown.

Our fan support has always been strong. With the move to the Class AAAA district, the crowds will really have something to cheer about.

Jesse Trevino Spanish TV success sparks control war

By JESSE TREVINO

A high-stakes battle is raging over the future of the Spanish International Network — a television system which could prove to be a major influence in the cultural and political development of the country.

To non-Hispanics, SIN is that curious station they flick through on their channel selectors on their way to a favorite station.

But a growing number of people — mostly Hispanic — do make the stop at the SIN channel. In some households, the channel seldom changes. That is why the future of SIN is developing into a full-scale war among knowledgeable people in the nation's political and social power centers.

The struggle is embroiling powerful groups — including the White House — in a shootout which started years ago over a stockholder dispute but which escalated into a frenzy last month.

Four weeks ago, the Federal Communications Commission ruled that SIN is foreign-controlled, specifically by the wealthy Azcaraga family of Mexico City. Federal law prohibits foreign control of a broadcasting entity, and the FCC ruled SIN must restructure itself.

At immediate stake is the fate of a multi-million dollar company and its ownership. SIN must raise hundreds of millions of dollars to, in effect, buy itself out from under its foreign control, and its present system of U.S. co-owners may be unable to do just that.

SIN's nationwide system of major stations in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago, Washington, D.C., San Antonio, Miami and San Francisco and some 200 "transponder" stations — could end up in non-Hispanic hands.

An integral part of the dispute is the concern over SIN's affect on U.S. society through its influence on the Hispanic population.

Already, the nightly SIN national news program — SIN's version of the CBS Evening News with Dan Rather — has topped not only

Rather, but Jennings and Brokaw as well in the Miami television ratings. The SIN program also is beginning to rate significantly against the networks in other cities with major Hispanic concentrations, especially in cities with new-immigrant populations.

None of this sits well with either television broadcast executives or the foreign policy establishment.

Foreign policy opinionmakers worry other markets will follow Miami's lead and that SIN provides a Hispanic filter outside Washington or New York control through which Hispanics view the world.

New York television network executives harbour similar fears, but for financial reasons. SIN's market shares of 4-5 Nielsen points place the Hispanic system well behind the three major networks, whose average shares are about 20 points.

But in a day and age when the three network's predominant position is being challenged by a string of cable systems and super-stations, four or five rating points could well mean the difference between a healthy or a not-so-healthy report to stockholders.

While SIN is not in danger of being bought by one of the three major networks, furious efforts are underway to raise enough capital — perhaps as much as $500 million by the time all is said and done — to protect the system from falling victim to a corporate raid and to keep it in Hispanic hands.

But which Hispanic hands? A firestorm has broken out among Cubans and Mexican-Americans on different coasts, neither thrilled that the other group could emerge as the system's new owners.

At the focal point of this fight-within-a-fight is a soon to be announced appointment to the FCC by President Reagan, who is rumored will appoint a Hispanic from California.

Stay tuned. There's more.

Jesse Trevino of Austin, a former Big Spring resident, writes on Hispanic social and political issues.

Gambling letter draws hallelujah

To the editor: I am so glad to see a pastor come out against city and state gambling. He's right! We don't need it! Now all we need is to have someone come out against this idea of liquor by the drink and push harder on the DWI laws.

Tell me why Gordon Grinnan is still in a coma and his DWI gets only 18 months to a year, then released to kill again. Can he compensate to the family for the loss of a husband and father? He should be hung up by his toes. Too many are out on bail and still driving!

In the same paper, Gucci confessed to holding out on income tax. If only all the crimes could be confessed, and all criminals punished for their crimes, even the little bit of cheat. Wouldn't this be a wonderful, happy world?

Demos' reception needed coverage

To the editor: Why did the Herald fail to have someone cover the Howard County Democrats' open reception at the courthouse where all current and past elected officials were invited?

It is a shame you failed to have a reporter and cameraman there for a picture of all these past servants of Howard County. Joe Hayden, former county commissioner, was there in a wheelchair. He has been in a rest home for years but friends got him out for this affair.

It was for the purpose of celebrating Texas Sesquicentennial. You ran the notice on the front page for several days. ... Pauline Petty, former county clerk for many years, Lee Porter, county judge for years, were there along with Cy Terrazas, Ralph Proctor and others.

Don't mess with Texas

My 9-year-old daughter said to me, unprompted, as she wadded the tinfoil wrapper from a stick of gum: "I use my pocket to put trash in, and then at the end of the day I throw it all away."

"That's good, you don't litter," I said. "Of course not," she replied, with a sidelong glance and a quizzical "that-stands-to-reason" expression. "Litter is terrible."

It may stand to reason for a 9-year-old in the mid 1980s. But for her 34-year-old dad, litter consciousness is a relatively new phenomenon.

In my youth the reasoning was that somebody else was supposed to pick up your trash. That's what roadside crews were hired to do.

Disposing of litter properly, as the side-of-the-road barrels admonished, was for squares. Of course, the word "squares" is as dated now as the social more of litter chic.

Nowadays we unconsciously frown a brow when we see some absent-minded slug toss a wrapper to the winds. That's at the very least. At most, we yell at him — car-to-car, man-to-man — to say that his social development stopped at age 3.

Even though what Lady Bird Johnson began has captured an entire generation in the State of Texas, efforts to educate still are important. The state's latest public relations campaign is built around the theme, "Don't mess with Texas."

Budgeted at $2 million, the advertising and multi-media effort is the most visible of the state's litter reduction programs. There are radio and TV ads, decals, bumper stickers and official "Don't Mess

With Texas" litterbags.

The campaign combines public awareness with threat of punishment. Always lurking behind the prominent "Don't mess with Texas" lettering is a reminder: Up to $1,000 fine for littering.

There are musical radio ads aimed at a youthful audience. One features Johnny Rodriguez offering up social consciousness in a country music version and Johnny Dee and the Rocket 88s in the pop-rock vein. TV promos have guitarist Stevie Ray Vaughan pushing the Keep Texas Beautiful theme.

Kids like my daughter have the message. Litter is bad. And Texas highways, compared to what they looked like when I was growing up, are simply beautiful. But bad habits are easy to slip back into. So the message continues. The beat goes on.

Lawmaker's jargon is back on the Hill

By JIM DRINKARD Congress is back into session now after taking a month off for the holidays, and the air is filled once again with the unique rhetoric of lawmakers.

Expressions like "grandfathered," "fact-finding" and "thorough debate" take on new meaning when uttered in the halls of the Capitol.

As an aid to understanding, here's a brief Washington-to-English dictionary: "District Work Period" — What Congress has been doing for the past month, and plans to do again in February, March, May, June and August. Vacation.

"In principle" — As, "I agree with you in principle." Generally means the speaker is not about to get involved in whatever was just mentioned, but doesn't want anyone to hold it against him.

"On board" — Part of a team or coalition. Variant is "signed off," meaning joined in sponsoring a bill or letter, agreeing in more than principle.

"On the table" — In the line of fire, subject to tinkering. The phrase, "everything is on the table" usually sends lobbyists scrambling.

"Level playing field" — Said by someone whose pet project or sector is doomed under the status quo, and wants the rules changed "for fairness." Those on the other side think the field is already level, and that tilting it may make something roll onto the table.

"Grandfathered" — Allowed, through a legal loophole, to be exempt from something regarded as an onerous new requirement. Off the playing field.

"On the back burner" — Not a live issue, off the table. Said of a matter on which a politician agrees with you in principle.

"Commission" — A home for unwanted issues. If headed by a former governor, referred to as a "blue-ribbon commission." A group instructed to study something and report back to Congress a long time from now, preferably after the next election.

"Revisit" — To come back to an issue thought to be already settled. The battle cry of the loser is "we'll revisit that later."

"Insofar as practicable" — Verbiage added to soften up legislation the executive branch doesn't like. Means, "If it's not too much trouble."

"Fact-finding" — Frequent activity during district work periods. In the winter, often done in warm, sunny places.

"Sweeteners" — Goodies, delicacies; bait added to legislation to entice votes. If enough sweeteners are added, a bill becomes a Christmas Tree. If too many are added, it turns into veto bait.

"Photo opportunity" — A brief period during which news people are allowed into an otherwise closed meeting, often one called to add sweeteners. Arranged by politicians who want people to know they had a meeting, but don't want anybody to know what it was about.

"Thorough debate" — Filibuster. Used exclusively in the Senate, to warn that a measure is about to be talked to death.

"I ask that further reading be dispensed with" — The speaker would rather give you his explanation of the legislation than have the real thing read out loud.

"I suggest the absence of a quorum" — Said by a senator to buy time when he or she is through talking and doesn't know what to do next.

"The most distinguished and able gentleman (or gentlelady)" — Any member of Congress.

Jim Drinkard writes for the Associated Press.

Big Spring to host Liberty exhibit

Big Spring will become one of 200 American cities to host Allied Van Line's Statue of Liberty exhibit, said Main Street Project director Teri Quinones.

The exhibit, officially tagged "Move To Freedom," will lumber into town aboard two Allied trucks Feb. 19, she said.

Its first day here, the traveling display will open its doors in the municipal parking lot at Second and Main Streets at 12:45 p.m. The next day, Feb. 20, the exhibit will locate at Goliad School, Quinones said.

The displays are designed to capture the images and impressions arriving immigrants shared of Ellis Island and the Statue of Liberty during the first half of the century, according to company literature. Visitors to the exhibit witness an elaborate multi-media production featuring sights and sounds of the immigrant experience.

Quinones said a number of downtown merchants have agreed to contribute items to be raffled off the day of the downtown display.

The "Move to Freedom" exhibit features a collection of historical photographs, artistic renderings, sculptures and a videotape presentation requesting contributions for the restoration of the Statue of Liberty and buildings on Ellis Island.

The money raised will go towards the statue's restoration, she said. The local chapter of the Jaycees will provide refreshments at the display, Quinones said. The exhibit, which ends in October, will be in Midland and Odessa the week prior to its swing through Big Spring, Quinones said.

high school newspaper and the town's weekly.

Kolar, 27, grew up in Wolbach, Neb., working at a rural weekly, and Ms. Sellmeyer, 29, is the daughter of Ralph Sellmeyer, who taught journalism at Texas Tech University for 21 years.

Although they had different reasons for going to Baylor, all knew about its conservative background.

Barton and Ms. Slovak, both juniors, and senior Kolar teamed up to convince the Publications Board to allow them to direct The Lariat for the spring of 1986 — Barton as editor-in-chief, Ms. Slovak as news editor, and Kolar as city editor.

Playboy announced it was looking for women to bare all for the magazine and, on Jan. 31, 1986, McCall issued an order that any model who posed nude as a representative of Baylor would face disciplinary action.

Because with everything we know about cigarettes today, there's only one thing you'll be if you start smoking now. And that's sorry.
Sorry you can't get up in the morning without coughing your lungs out. Sorry you can't climb a single flight of stairs without getting winded. Sorry that every time you light one up, your risk of heart disease goes up.

WHAT'S NEW

As I read the many journals, magazines and health letters that cross my desk each month I circle certain articles that I'd like to share with you from time to time. Here are a few from the past couple of months.

YOUR HEALTH AND FITNESS — "The eyes receive the greatest percentage of injury of all body parts. More than 1,000 eye accidents occur every working day! Each year, close to 100,000 American industrial and farm workers lose the sight of one or both eyes. Safety goggles are the best preventive measure."

SCIENCE IS — "The deaf can see speech with lip-reading glasses. A microphone on an eyeglass frame picks up a voice as much as 12 feet away and transmits it to a cigarette-pack-sized microcomputer that analyzes the sound. The computer then relays signals to the lens and produces an image that appears projected next to the speaker's mouth." How about that!

MAYO CLINIC HEALTH LETTER — "Muscle twitches of the eyelid, or fasciculations, often occur after nervous tension and fatigue. The condition is almost always harmless, although fasciculations can be a symptom of muscle or nerve disease. Because eyelid muscle twitches are painless, short-lived and almost always medically insignificant, treatment generally is unnecessary. However, some people do find that a gentle massage over the eyelid helps relieve the twitches."

After a Lariat editorial argued women should decide for themselves whether to pose, McCall said the paper could criticize him, but not advocate disobeying his policies.

Four days later, a paragraph in an editorial criticizing McCall was removed by publications director Ralph Strother. Barton, Kolar and Ms. Slovak threatened to quit and were told to quit or be fired.

Associate professor Donald Williams, who had resigned over the controversy, was told March 3 to leave immediately. The three editors were fired by the Board of Publications, and some staff members quit. Another journalism faculty member also resigned.

Reporters from across the country flocked to the Baptist institution. Some newspapers criticized the students; others blamed the administration.

"I think a lot of people thought we were naive," Barton said. "Some people thought we were stupid. Some people and some newspapers thought we were grandstanding and made that clear."

McCall said, "They tried to make an issue of freedom of the press out of it. I kept telling them, 'Freedom of the press?' It's freedom of the publisher, not freedom of the editor or the reporter."

The Onion Creek Free Press once was the Austin Sun, which Bob Barton bought and renamed the River City Sun. It lost money. Then Barton moved it to Buda, population about 1,000, and renamed it again.

The four journalists once wanted to work for large dailies, but have accepted their roles on a small newspaper.

Barton said the staff of the 3,000 circulation newspaper is diligent in covering area news because of the contact every day with sources in the community.

"You tend to work harder to make sure your facts are right. You tend to be a little bit more compassionate. You tend to be a little bit more human ..."

Cowboy poets

Poems, tall tales illustrate cowboys' view of the West

Buddy Hellinghausen and his chickenmobiles are well known on Dallas' Greenville Avenue. Competition from other area eating and drinking establishments are forcing Hellinghausen to close his business.

ELKO, Nev. (AP) — The wide-open West, with its harsh lessons and tough people, was celebrated in verse by those who know it best — the cowboys.

The second annual Cowboy Poetry Gathering drew thousands of people, mostly ranchers, to this rural Nevada town Thursday for three days of poems, music and story-telling — traditions started around campfires more than a century ago.

For the men and women from working ranches around the West, the get-together represented what organizer saw as a chance to ponder, brag and laugh about the harsh life they've chosen.

The poems are laced with insider's words, like "honyhokers" for early-day settlers and "kangaroos" for expensive cowboy boots, and are read aloud in dialects unfamiliar to many city dwellers.

"Cowboys are part of the American culture. We identify with cowboys," says Hal Cannon of the Western Folk Life Center, which played a key role in launching the event.

Cannon says cowboy poetry is a true American folk art that punctures the stereotyped version of the Wild West and defies efforts at commercialization because of its uniqueness.

Among the poets who recited at the gathering was Don Bell of Byron, Wyo., whose "Not For Me" read in part:

"When we were living those good old days,
"They didn't seem so good.
"We read by the light of a kerosene lamp
"And heated our homes with wood ...

"Now you may look with envious eyes
"To these times — if you are 20.
"But I've been through those good old days
"And once, my friend, is plenty."
Here's another from Montanan Gwen Petersen:
"A cowgirl knows just what she shouldn't do.
"And several things that she wouldn't do.
"But, by God, to her credit
"Though she never has said it
"There really ain't much that she couldn't do."

Dallas' Mr. Chicken goes home to roost

DALLAS — Buddy Hellinghausen is taking Mr. Chicken home to roost after almost 22 years in business here.

Hellinghausen runs the Mr. Chicken restaurant, perhaps more famous for its cars decked with a fiberglass chicken head and tail than for the restaurant's fried poultry.

"After 21 years, I'm kind of tired of it," the 56-year-old owner said Saturday, saying he plans to close the Greenville Avenue eatery in a couple of weeks and reopen on a smaller scale near his farm home north of here.

"The main reason, of course, is the business has dropped off and another reason is the rents are so high, also, now. They're getting $30 a (square) foot," he said.

He blames his lack of business on the character of Greenville nightspot hangout, with plenty of bars serving free food at Happy with his chicken recipe and his two chicken cars to a service station on Texas Highway 121 where he'll start frying up chicken again — probably at an easier pace.

In a telephone interview from the gas station that will be his new location, Hellinghausen said the site is close to his farm in the McKinney area, north of Dallas.

There are no definite plans for the chickenmobiles yet. But Hellinghausen says he's considering keeping them in operation.

The 1977 Cadillac and the 1976 Buick, plus their respective chicken heads, mounted on the roofs of the cars, have been a familiar sight around Dallas for years.

Hellinghausen has used them as a promotional gimmick, renting them out to folks who like using them as a corny joke.

"They're kind of movable signs," the restaurateur said. "People started coming in and wanted to pay me to ride in it."

So Hellinghausen started renting them out for $35 an hour for "birthdays, weddings.

Hellinghausen said his current Cadillac will appear later this month in a television movie called "The Last Run."

Tax & financial planning

SOCIAL SECURITY (Who pays?)

All taxpayers with "earned income" contribute to social security without regard to age. There is no minimum age and no maximum age.

There is a common misunderstanding that once a taxpayer has reached age 72 he/she no longer has to contribute to social security. As long as you have income from wages or self-employment (earned income), you are required to make contributions to social security. There are two exceptions: farm labor earning less than $150 per year and self-employment income of less than $400 per year.

Employees in 1986 will pay 7.15% on all earnings up to $42,000 per year, and the employer must match this contribution with a like amount. The total contribution from employer and employee combined will total $6,006 for 1986 as compared to $5,583 for 1985.

The self-employed individual will pay 12.3% on all net earnings up to $42,000 for a total contribution of $5,166 compared with $4,673 for 1985.

If you work for more than one employer, you might pay in an "excess" amount to social security. Each employer is required to hold out the full amount without regard to what other employers may have withheld from you. In other words, if you earned $60,000 in 1985 ($30,000 from each of two companies), you will have overpaid your social security by $1,438. You are to treat this excess as a credit against your income taxes.

If you worked for more than one employer in 1985 but earned a total of $39,600 or less, you will not have paid in any excess.

Social security tax along with other tax considerations should be reviewed in determining whether your business should operate as a corporation or not and what levels of compensation and/or dividends should be withdrawn by the owners.

Panel to probe state Supreme Court

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state legislative panel will launch an investigation into alleged misconduct involving private attorneys and the Texas Supreme Court, the San Antonio Express-News reported Saturday in a copyright story.

State Rep. Frank Tejada, chairman of the House Committee on Judicial Affairs, said the panel will look into allegations involving the proposed transfer of two multi-million dollar cases involving San Antonio lawyer Pat Maloney Sr. from the 4th Court of Appeals to other appellate courts.

The committee will convene here Feb. 12.

Questions about the proposed transfer of the cases were raised in stories in the Express-News, which Tejada, D-San Antonio, said prompted the investigation.

In addition, Tejada said the legislative committee will look into other incidents of suspected judicial impropriety that have been reported privately to him.

"I've been told this is the tip of the iceberg," said Tejada, who is an attorney.

The judicial committee of nine lawyers from across the state will consider appointing a special counsel and issue subpoenas for various people, including Maloney, Supreme Court Associate Justice C.L. Ray and Herb Schaefer, clerk of the state Court of Appeals, according to the Express-News.

Tejada said the committee also will subpoena records of telephone calls made by Maloney and other attorneys to Supreme Court members.

The legislator said Carlos Cadena, chief justice of the San Antonio appeals court, is cooperating fully with the committee probe.

Contacted Saturday by The Associated Press, Maloney called the matter "political. All the probe will show is they're the worst court we have. I'm pleased for a probe."

Tejada conferred with Cadena after the Express-News reported Jan. 22 that Cadena had raised questions in a letter written to Supreme Court Chief Justice John Hill.

Cadena charged that "special treatment" was involved in the singling out of the two Maloney cases for inclusion in a block of appeals to be transferred from the 4th Court to the Texarkana and Corpus Christi courts of appeals, the newspaper said.

Precinct 2 candidate files

A fourth candidate has joined the race for Howard County Commissioner Precinct 2.

G.C. "Dub" Clinton of Big Spring has filed as a Republican candidate for the position, according to news in the county clerk's office.

Charles C. Christopher was designated as Clinton's campaign treasurer, according to the filing.

The Precinct 2 position currently is held by Paul Allen, D-Coahoma, who has announced that he will seek reelection for a third term.

Other candidates running for the position are Jack Shaffer and John Stanley, both D-Big Spring.

Cockroaches lead to lawsuit

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — Five college students have sued their landlord for allegedly violating their civil rights after they helped form a tenants' union to try to force him to get rid of a severe infestation of cockroaches.

The suit was filed Thursday in Hampshire Superior Court in Northampton, after a dispute between 52 tenants in 19 apartments and landlord Stephen Puffer. Tenants withheld $42,000 in rent from September to December trying to get Puffer to exterminate the pests.

They contended in their complaint that their civil rights had been violated because Puffer tried to evict them for withholding rent and for forming a tenants' union.

Puffer's attorney, Richard Howland, said he hoped the civil rights suit could be settled amicably since his client had hired an exterminator who had eradicated the cockroaches in all but four apartments.

Va. Tech upsets Memphis St.

BLACKSBURG, Va. (AP) — Dell Curry scored 28 points Saturday as 16th-ranked Virginia Tech dashed No. 2 Memphis State's hopes for the No. 1 ranking with a 76-72 upset of the nation's last unbeaten major college team.

Avenging a 22-point loss to the Tigers in Memphis Monday night, Virginia Tech moved to a 10-point second half lead, then held off a late charge by the Tigers, who could have tied it with eight seconds left on a jumper by Dwight Boyd but the shot was no good. Curry, who had just 12 points Monday, scored 16 of his 28 in the second half.

Memphis State, now 20-1 and 5-1 in the Metro Conference, entered the game with a chance to move up to No. 1 after top-ranked North Carolina suffered its first loss Thursday night to Virginia.

Memphis State led 36-35 after a first half that featured five ties and 14 lead changes. But Virginia Tech scored the first six points after intermission to take a 41-36 lead on a pair of free throws by Bobby Beecher with 16:52 to play.

Andre Turner, who led Memphis State with 21 points, gave the Tigers their final lead of the game at 48-47 on a steal and layoff with 12:24 left.

Virginia Tech took the lead for good with 10:55 remaining on Johnny Fort's layup, which gave the Hokies a 51-50 advantage. Virginia Tech then went on a 14-5 run capped by Curry's two free throws with 6:36 remaining for a 65-55 lead.

But Memphis State kept pressing, closing to 73-69 on an 8-foot baseline jumper by Baskerville Holmes with 1:01 to play.

William Bedford's follow with 33 seconds remaining cut the gap to two points again at 74-72. But Boyd missed the jumper and Tech held on for the win.

Keith Colbert had 16 points and 11 rebounds for Virginia Tech and Beecher scored 10.

Bedford finished with 18 points for Memphis State, Holmes had 13 and Boyd 12.

Virginia Tech is now 18-4 overall and 4-2 in the conference.

Syracuse 68, St. John's 64

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Dwayne Washington and Rafael Addison sank free throws in the last 15 seconds Saturday as 11th-ranked Syracuse defeated seventh-ranked St. John's 68-64 to take over the lead in the Big East Conference basketball race.

Syracuse, holding St. John's Walter Berry to 15 points with a collapsing zone which often saw him surrounded by four players, boosted its league mark to 8-1 and improved to 17-2 overall.

St. John's dropped to 8-2 and 20-3.

Addison scored 23 points to pace all scorers, with teammates Wendell Alexis, Rony Seikaly and Greg Monroe contributing 12 apiece for Syracuse.

Mark Jackson scored 14, Willie Glass 15 and Ron Rowan 10 for St. John's.

Syracuse, which led 32-27 at halftime, opened a 10-point margin in the first 4:24 of the second half, and the Redmen spent most of the rest of the game trying to catch up.

St. John's managed to tie the game twice — the last time 54-54 on a layup by freshman center Marco Baldi with about 5:30 to play.

Baldi, a 6-foot-11 freshman, committed three fouls in 44 seconds and became the first St. John's player this season to foul out. He left with his fifth foul with 5:07 to go, and Addison's two free throws gave the Orangemen a 58-54 lead.

Addison pumped in a jumper with 1:02 remaining for a 65-60 Syracuse advantage, but St. John's came back on a basket and two free throws in a 35-second span.

Washington, who missed a one-and-one with 39 seconds to go, hit one free throw for a 66-64 edge with 15 seconds left, and Addison clinched the triumph with a pair of free throws with one second left. He was fouled after rebounding the Redmen's last shot — a layup by Willie Glass.

Monroe had all of his 12 points for the game at halftime, including six in the last 2:57 of play as the Orangemen opened up their five-point intermission edge from a 23-23 tie.

The muscular junior broke the tie with a 22-foot field goal, sank two free throws and capped the scoring with another long-range field goal with 23 seconds remaining.

Notre Dame 72, Marquette 70 (OT) SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Tim Kempton sealed a Notre Dame victory with three free throws late in overtime and Tim Dolan came off the bench to score a career-high 22 points as the No. 14 Irish beat Marquette 72-70 Saturday in a non-conference college basketball game.

Dolan brought the game into overtime at 60-60 when he grabbed an offensive rebound of Donald Royal's missed shot and scored at the buzzer.

In the overtime, Kempton put the 14-3 Irish ahead for good, 69-68, with 1:07 remaining when he hit the front end of a one-and-one. Scott Hicks grabbed the offensive rebound when Kempton missed the second, and Marquette's Tom Copa fouled David Rivers as he drove down the middle.

Rivers hit the first of his one-and-one and the Warriors' Michael "Pop" Sims then fouled Kempton.

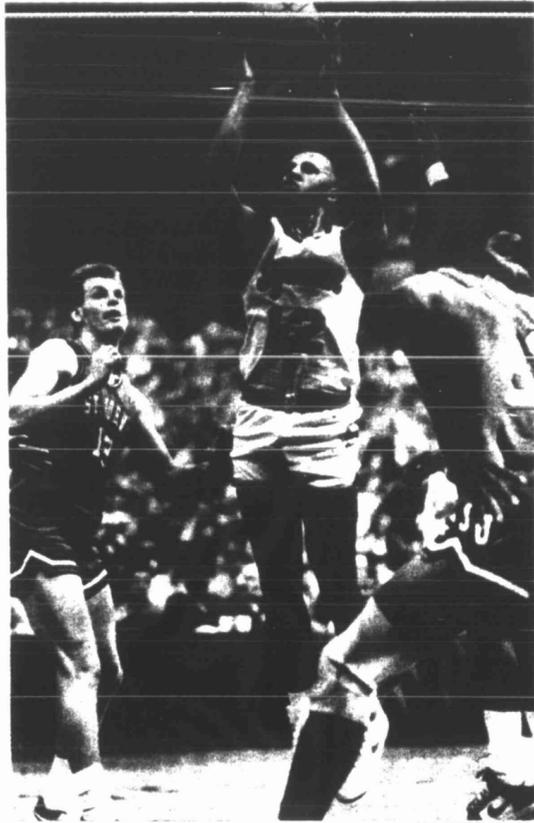

Kempton hit both free throws and Marquette's Kevin Johnson took the ball and drove in for an uncontested layup for Marquette, 12-7.

Texas 87, Houston 60 AUSTIN (AP) — Clarissa Davis had 18 points Saturday as the top-ranked Texas Lady Longhorns rolled over Houston 87-60 to push their unbeaten college basketball record to 19 games.

Texas also got a 15-point performance from Yulondo Wimbish.

Sonya Watkins paced Houston, 14-6, with 25 points.

The Lady Longhorns, who never gave up the lead, held a 43-33 halftime advantage.

Syracuse University's Raphael Addison pumps the ball toward the basket as St. John's Ron Rowan and Shelton Jones look on. Syracuse took sole possession of the Big East with 68-64 win.

1986 Pro Bowl has Bear-Patriots flavor

HONOLULU (AP) — The 1986 Pro Bowl has the flavor of a Bears-Patriots rematch, with players from the Super Bowl teams heading the cast of All-Stars for Sunday's annual clash of the National Football League's conferences.

Chicago, which mauled the Patriots 46-10 in the Super Bowl a week ago, has nine players on the National Football Conference squad, most of any team.

New England tops the American Conference with eight representatives.

"It's a fun game," said Patriots running back Craig James, "but I'd like to win."

"It would make it a lot easier to end on a winning note. It certainly wouldn't make me forget the Super Bowl, but it would make it a lot

Super Bowl MVP; linebackers Mike Singletary and Otis Wilson, safety Dave Duerson, and end Dan Hampton.

The Patriot players, in addition to James, are guard John Hannah, wide receiver-kick returner Irving Fryar, and tackle Brian Holloway from the offense; and linebackers Andre Tippett and Steve Nelson, cornerback Raymond Clayborn and safety Fred Marion from the defense.

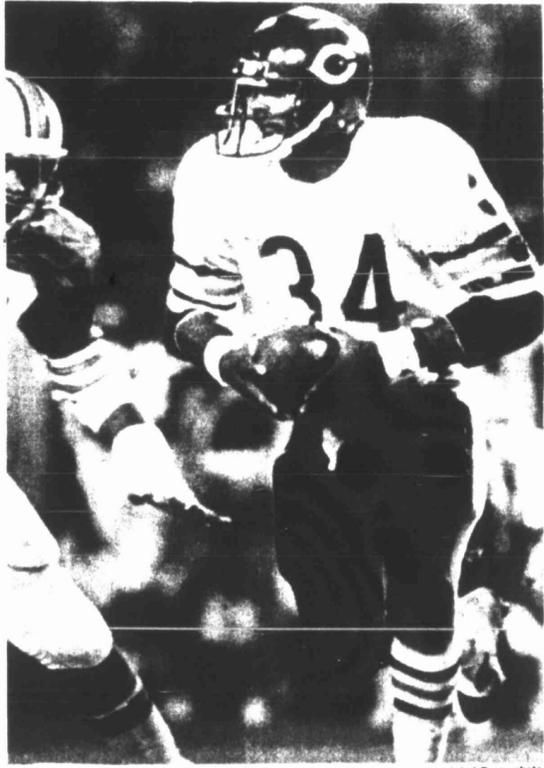

Members of the winning squad will receive $10,000 each, with the losers getting $5,000.

The normally quiet week leading up to the Pro Bowl was shattered by a drug scandal involving the Patriots. The team had voted last Monday to undergo voluntary drug testing, then names of players who allegedly had used drugs surfaced — including Clayborn and Fryar.

Both declined comment, saying they were concentrating on helping the AFC win the Pro Bowl.

While the Super Bowl teams are heavily represented, the opposing Pro Bowl teams are coached by men whose own clubs fell victim to the Bears and Patriots during the NFL playoffs.

Don Shula, whose Miami Dolphins were knocked out of the playoffs by the Patriots, is the AFC coach. The NFC coach is John Robinson, whose Los Angeles Rams lost to the Bears.

The NFL's all-time leading rusher, Walter Payton of the Chicago Bears, will lead the NFC All-Stars versus the AFC in Sunday's Pro Bowl in Honolulu, Hawaii.

Sports Briefs

Zoeller leads at Pebble Beach

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Fuzzy Zoeller casually contrived a 66, took a 3-stroke lead and then touched off a mild controversy Saturday in the second round of the AT&T Pebble Beach National Pro-Am.

"I am not happy with the PGA (Tour's) decision to lift, clean and place," Zoeller said after his 6-under-par effort at Pebble Beach produced a 36-hole total of 135.

"We played in the slop at Spyglass (in Thursday's first round), and now the guys playing there get to tee it up. That's a 3- or 4-stroke advantage," Zoeller said.

Dial breaks pole vault record

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Joe Dial cleared 19 feet, 4 3/4 inches Saturday to set a world indoor best in the pole vault, breaking by 1 inch the mark of 19-3 3/4 established one week ago by Billy Olson in Albuquerque, N.M.

Dial, who is the U.S. world record holder in the outdoor pole vault, set the indoor standard in his second attempt. He was competing as an independent at a college track meet at the University of Missouri's Harnes Center.

Dial, 23, who attended Oklahoma State, did not attempt another leap after his new mark.

Dial, of Marlow, Okla., holds the U.S. outdoor pole record of 19-2 1/4.

Lendl advances to Indoor finals

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Top-seeded Ivan Lendl had to reach for all the strokes that have made him the No. 1-ranked player in the world to defeat fast-developing Brad Gilbert 7-5, 4-6, 6-2 Saturday in the semifinal round of the $465,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Tournament.

Lendl, 25, advanced to Sunday's final for a $67,500 first-place prize against the winner of Saturday night's semifinal between fourth-seeded Yannick Noah of France and seventh-seeded Tim Mayotte.

The world's top player won the best of three-sets match by taking the final set with service breaks in the third and seventh games. The Czech tennis star took the final game from love-15 by winning the next four points, clinching the victory with a backhand cross-court shot off the net.

Will Rutherford vaults to the top

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

Will Rutherford has come a long way since his first days of gymnastics training at the Pinewood Gymnastics School in Longview.

Back then he was a shy, scared lad who felt out of place because he was the only male attending the school. Now he feels much different. At the ripe age of 12, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Rutherford is considered one of the finest young gymnasts in the country.

In fact Rutherford has done so well this year that he's earned himself a trip to Moscow. Two weeks ago, his top score at a national testing camp in South Plains, N.J., won him a spot on the United States Gymnastic Association Junior Elite Team which departs in July.

But for all the current glory, Will still harbors some not-so-fond memories of his first days in the gymnastics world.

With the encouragement of his parents, Rutherford got his start in gymnastics at 5 with basic floor work. Rutherford says this solitary introduction to the sport almost made him quit. "At first I was the only boy in the class and I wasn't comfortable," he said. "When you're five you really don't like girls that much," he laughed.

"When I first started, I didn't like it because I thought I was terrible. Now I love it." He admits he's a lover of baseball and this year he's giving up the sport to concentrate solely on gymnastics.

Rutherford even took a short break from gymnastics. When his family moved to Big Spring four years ago, he took a year's leave.

But then along came the founder of the local gymnastics team Russ McEwen followed by Big Spring Sidewinder coach Ken Werner. These two turned the young lad's gymnastic future towards the very positive, said Rutherford's father, Johnny.

"These two got together and really spent some time with Will. That's what he needed because he was already too advanced for me. The problem at the other gymnastics schools was that there were so many girls and most of the time was spent on them."

McEwen started a boys gymnastics team and his son Drew and Will were the only members. Four months later Werner was named to the Sidewinders coaching position. Now the team is eight members strong.

"When I heard Russ was starting a boys team I asked my mom if I could join. She looked into the program and I signed up a short while later."

With McEwen, who the Sidewinders gymnastic center is named after, and Werner, a young, fiery instructor from Decatur, Ill., urging him on, Rutherford began to improve quickly. He was soon doing the six compulsory exercises: pommel horse, vault, rings, floor, and parallel bars, with varying degrees of proficiency.

Werner says Rutherford's desire has carried him a long way. "He's got a lot of talent, but he spends so much time working on his own. He's very dedicated. I would have loved to have had him when he was five," said Werner.

In addition to working out at the gymnastics center mornings and afternoons four days a week, he still goes home and spends time on his skills.

Werner says Rutherford and young McEwen's work habits have rubbed off on the rest of the male gymnasts. "They are all a serious group of kids. I plan to have four kids on the national team in the next five years if they stick with it."

Rutherford's this year has been almost unbeatable. He has been in five competitions and has come away with four All-Around titles. His most impressive win came three weeks ago at the Bart Connors Invitational in Norman, Okla.

Besides coming away with the All-Around prize, he also won something truly unique. The meet was sponsored by Mr. and Mrs. Harell Connors, Bart's parents. They gave away a trophy which was won by their son when he was 12. The Bart Connors Spirit Award went to the athlete that reminded them most of Bart when he was 12. The trophy was presented to

Rutherford. The Big Springer said he was overwhelmed at getting a trophy that belonged to one of his idols.

Last week Bart went to national testing camp in New Jersey. All the qualifiers for the Junior Gymnastics Elite Team had to end with a 8.0 average in all routines. Rutherford led the 12-year-olds with a 8.03, just a hair behind the national record of 8.05, thus qualifying he and coach Werner for a trip to the Soviet Union.

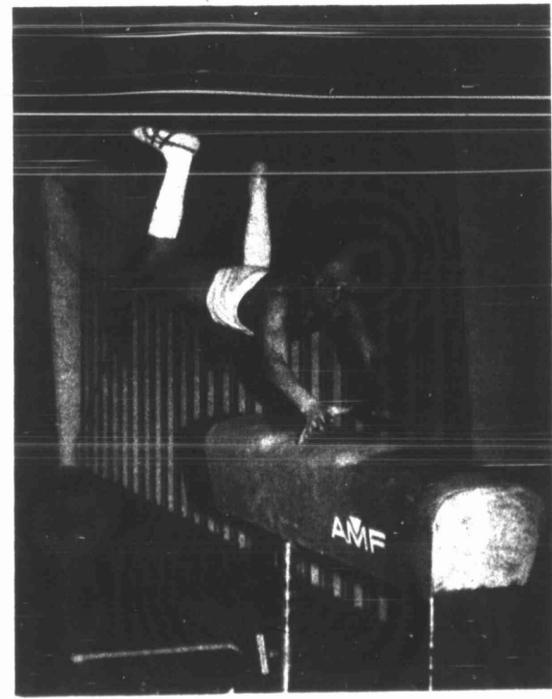

While in Russia, which is considered the top gymnastics country in the world, Rutherford will be training with Soviet instructors anywhere from eight to twelve hours a day for two weeks. Werner says the time spent observing the Russians' advanced teaching techniques will be invaluable both to him and his pupil.

With his fast climb to the top, Rutherford has taken everything in stride, handling his success like a well-trained adult. He intends on getting better and doesn't plan too far in advance.

"I read a book that Bart Connors wrote and he kept making short term goals and accomplishing them. Before he knew it, he was in the Olympics. So I'm setting short-term goals. Right now my goal now is to win the meet in San Antonio this weekend. But I guess you can say my overall goal is to make the Olympics."

A far cry from being a shy 5-year-old who didn't even like the sport.

Will Rutherford, a 12-year old gymnast with the Big Spring Sidewinders team, prepares to do a front somersault off the vault during practice for an upcoming meet this weekend in San Antonio. Rutherford is one of only a handful of young gymnasts from around the country to be selected for a special trip to Moscow this summer to practice with the famed Soviet team.

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD

AP Basketball Writer
Despite their first three-game losing streak since last January, the Los Angeles Lakers still look like the best team in the National Basketball Association.

Their only real challengers for that distinction, the Boston Celtics, defeated the Lakers 110-95 last week with an outstanding performance from new addition Bill Walton. But overall, Los Angeles appears to have improved more than their Eastern Conference rivals.

Sacramento, New York, Golden State, Phoenix and the Los Angeles Clippers all were contenders for worst-team billing early in the season, but victories come too frequently for them to overcome the Pacers, who seem to have a patent on late-game foidups.

Here are some other bests and worsts, surprises and disappointments in the NBA as the season moves past the halfway point:

SURPRISE TEAM — The Atlanta Hawks. They were picked to finish last in the weak Central Division by some observers who thought the addition of Wayman Tisdale would pull Indiana out of the doldrums. The Hawks, instead, are the only challengers to division-leading Milwaukee.

Dominique Wilkins, after years of being written off as a high-scoring dunk specialist, still is that, but he has quietly grabbed an average of eight rebounds per game, a remarkably high total for a 6-foot-7 forward. He deserves his first All-Star Game appearance to go along with the defense of his slam-dunk title. Wilkins' teammates are all inconsistent, but there are enough solid performances behind Wilkins to keep the

Hawks flying

San Antonio also has been a surprise. The Spurs' previous fall from the top of the Midwest appears to have been more an indication of the improvement of their division rivals than a drop in their own quality.

MOST DISAPPOINTING TEAM — Detroit. The Pistons, once thought to be the up-and-coming team in the Central Division, have been down-and-going instead. Any team with Isiah Thomas and Bill Laimbeer can't be all bad, and the Pistons aren't. But when a coach nearly leaves a team in the offseason, then stays, as Chuck Daly did, that's asking for trouble. Thomas reportedly was so unhappy at one point he almost quit.

MOST VALUABLE PLAYER — Magic Johnson, although there's no clear favorite yet. Recent winners Larry Bird and Moses Malone still are exceptional players, but their statistics have slipped noticeably, and stats have a disproportionate effect on this award, along with team success. Johnson has played well enough for the past four seasons to win, and he practically never has a bad game, so maybe it's his year.

He had better be quick because second-year pros Akeem Olatuwon of Houston and Charles Barkley of Philadelphia rapidly are becoming dominant players. Watch a Rockets game or a 76ers game and everything seems to revolve around those two — Ralph Sampson, Malone and Julius Erving notwithstanding.

MOST IMPROVED PLAYER — Alvin Robertson. The second-year San Antonio guard sat in the shadow of George Gervin during his rookie season, but has blossomed after Gervin was traded. He has become a consistent scorer, is leading the league in steals and was the league's Player of the Month in December. Also showing great improvement with increased playing time is Chicago's Sidney Green. He already has more rebounds this season than he totaled in his first two years as a pro and is showing progress on the offensive end.

MOST DISAPPOINTING PLAYERS — Kelly Tripucka and Jim Paxson. This pair of two-time All-Stars has fallen on hard times. Tripucka, who averaged 26.3 points for Detroit in 1982-83, is down to 17 this season. Paxson, who scored better than 21 points per game in his All-Star seasons in 1982-83 and 1983-84, now is overshadowed by Clyde Drexler at Portland, and his average has slipped to 13.

BEST ROOKIE — Patrick Ewing, no contest. With almost no supporting cast, Ewing already is one of the best centers in the league and is getting better as the season progresses and the losses mount for the New York Knicks. Xavier McDaniel, Karl Malone, Chris Mullin and Wayman Tisdale are the best of the rest.

MOST DISAPPOINTING ROOKIE — Benoit Benjamin, Los Angeles Clippers. The No. 3 pick in the draft appeared lost for most of the season, although his numbers have improved lately with some tutoring by Bill Russell. While playing in every game and starting seven, he had only three double-figure games through Jan. 11. Then he scored 11 or more points in seven straight games, three with 10 or more rebounds. But he has a long way to go before becoming a consistent force in the NBA.

Museum takes patrons on journey to the past

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Writer

Every day doesn't have to be just an ordinary day. In Big Spring one can take a journey to the past and observe the heritage of the Howard County region of West Texas at the Heritage Museum.

The museum was once the home of Dora Roberts, until she gave it to the county. It was built from limestone from the old Howard County courthouse, according to museum records.

The home was renovated into a museum and opened its doors to the public on April 18, 1971. According to Neil Allen, curator of the museum, the museum exhibits heritage from the first Indians 12,000 years ago to the cattle ranches, railroads and settlements which persist today.

The Native American, cattlemen, longhorns, outlaws, antique furniture and artifacts, the railroad and other modes of transportation and telephone communication are all exhibited for public viewing.

Allen said there are three new exhibits available to teachers and organizations to use for a week at a time. These include: Cowboys and Cattle, Native Americans in West Texas, and Howard County Pioneers.

"This is a great learning experience for kids. The exhibits include things they can hold and touch," Allen said.

Museums have always been a place to look and not touch, Allen said. "I thought we needed something else."

Neil Allen, curator of the Heritage Museum, opens up a trunk of surprises at the museum.

Kids Korner is Allen's solution to the problem. "This is a 'hands-on' exhibit for the kids to touch and feel," he said.

Included in Kids Korner are dinosaur matching in which the child matches the dinosaur with a picture; and an architecture comparison of old homes in Big Spring to the renovated newer models. Included in this exercise is the old Dora Roberts home on Aylford and its modern version. Also the child will be able to build a log cabin.

Also included are a "What is it?" board containing antique items such as a curling iron, food chopper, fence puller, plow point and ox shoe which illustrate how these items looked before they were modernized; a "What is it?" guess box requires the child to figure out the item by feeling and not seeing.

Allen shows off a wagon located inside the museum. Several new exhibits are planned for coming months.

A "Try your hand at archaeology" displays a box of sand that illustrates what three levels of ground might contain. The child gets to dig and discover in this exhibit. "Tools of the Archaeologist" illustrates the different types of tools used by an archaeologist.

Allen is also planning a Big Spring Adventure for the children to attend for four Saturdays sometime this summer. The museum will be displaying exhibits from the Traveling Exhibits collection from the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio.

They will be: April — Search for Alexander; July — Children of many lands; September — Ranch women: roles, images, possibilities; October — Archaeology in Texas; December —

Texas Prairies: Grass Root Cultures.

The museum is making plans for a celebration in April for its 15 anniversary, Allen said.

Heritage Museum is open Tuesday thru Friday from 8 a.m. to 12 noon and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday it is open from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. The museum is closed on Mondays.

Hospital volunteers open 'The Chalet'

By CAROL BALDWIN
Lifestyle Editor

Volunteers at Big Spring State Hospital will realize a long-time goal Monday when they open "The Chalet," a used clothing, furniture and crafts store at 126 E. Third.

Doris Day, coordinator of the program, said, "This has been in the works for a long time. We've been working on it seriously for about 1 1/2 years."

Betty Miller, co-coordinator for "The Chalet," said volunteers got the idea for "The Chalet" by seeing similar operations run by other organizations.

"We didn't know how well we'd do," said Miller, "but we thought we would try anyway."

Day agreed, saying, "We are thinking positively. We think we'll do really well."

"The Chalet" will feature donated items as well as arts and crafts made by state hospital volunteers.

Big Spring State Hospital has a "fashion shop" on the hospital grounds which features donated clothing which is given to patients. "The Chalet" will be an outlet for clothing not used by the fashion shop.

"If a patient needs something specifically that's not in the fashion shop and we have that item, that item will go to the patient rather than being sold," said Day.

Miller added, "Most of what we have here is what patients cannot use."

As workers prepared for the Monday opening, walls of "The Chalet" were lined with clothes, including dresses, blouses, shirts and blue jeans.

Arts and crafts made by hospital volunteers were placed on a table in the center of the small shop. Kathy Viccinelli, volunteer coordinator at the Big Spring State Hospital, said volunteers hope to add several items of furniture in the near future.

Betty Miller and Doris Day are coordinators for "The Chalet," a new store operated by volunteers at Big Spring State Hospital.

Viccinelli, seeing the store for the first time in weeks, said volunteers had "really cleaned up the store. Someone had a garage sale here and left items behind."

"The Chalet" is housed in a building rented to the hospital volunteers by Big Spring businessman Danny Heckler. Heckler is letting volunteers rent the store for a low fee and is also letting them use another storage area in downtown Big Spring for occasional rummage sales.

"Occasionally we'll have a rummage sale of items that can't be sold in this shop," Day said.

"Danny Heckler is very kind to let us use this building for such a minimal rent," Day said.

All donations to "The Chalet" are "tax deductible," said Day, because the shop is a non-profit organization.

"We are always looking for donations," Miller added.

The shop will be manned by two volunteers each day. Volunteers include: Day and Miller, Joyce Sherwood, Norma Kelly, Murlene and Covie Williams, and Faye and Bill Wallace.

Also Hazel Duggan, Gene Harrington, Deloris Norred, Lucille Petty, Jean Puckett, Frances Jones, Edna Rawls and Debbie Rodgers.

The store will be opened from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays. "If sales demand, we may stay open on Saturdays," said Day.

Viccinelli praised the efforts of the volunteers, and said, "They provide things for the patients that the state cannot. And they provide tender loving care to the patients while the patients are at the hospital."

Volunteers give thousands of hours each year to programs at the Big Spring State Hospital and never receive a dime for their work, Viccinelli said.

"They donate many big items to the hospital," she added. Most recently, volunteers were instrumental in helping the hospital put up new curtains in the auditorium in the Allred Building on the hospital grounds.

Volunteers and others will help with a "donation tea" for the curtain project from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Feb. 15 in the home of Marilyn and Don Newsom.

Experts say some stress essential

New research indicates some stress is essential for well-being — it is distress that is unhealthy.

The pace of modern urban life has been blamed for many ills, according to an article in a recent issue of Cosmopolitan, but recent studies show people in rural areas suffer from higher than average incidence of stress-related psychiatric disorders.

"Cities have more stressors (stress-causers)," one investigator said, "but they also have many resources for satisfaction (that) rural communities lack."

An insurance study of accomplished women found their mortality rate 29 percent lower than that of less successful women of the same age. A check of men holding top jobs in the nation's largest corporations revealed their mortality rate was 37 percent below their contemporaries.

Executive stress is a fallacy, best summed up by the man who said, "I don't get ulcers, I give them." The lower down the corporate ladder you go, the more stress-linked illness you find.

"Secretaries, along with assembly-line workers, are at very high risk from stress, because all their decisions — when they start work, when they stop, what they do — are predetermined," said Dr. Kenneth Greenspan, director of the Center for Stress and Pain-Related Disorders at New York's Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center.

"They fear they can be easily replaced. They see themselves as victims, and that produces damaging stress."

Hans Selye, a Canadian biologist and an authority on stress, pointed out that all living things are under constant stress, which is caused by anything, pleasant or unpleasant, that temporarily speeds up the intensity of life.

Scientists like Selye divide stress into three groups — distress, normal stress and eustress.

Prolonged periods of distress can be unhealthy. Distress includes not only negative emotions such as anger, anxiety and frustration, but also isolation, loneliness, monotony and boredom.

Normal stress is brought on by daily routine. Some stress is needed to keep mind and body in good running order.

Eustress, the opposite of distress, involves feeling quietly satisfied, eager, exhilarated or thrilled.

Richard S. Lazarus, professor of psychology at the University of California at Berkeley, found in a study that the most frequently volunteered sources of uplift were "completing tasks" and "accomplishing goals."

Psychological hardness is our best defense against stress. Suzanne C. Ouellette Kobasa, psychology professor at the City University of New York, has found stress-resilient people are open to change, involved in what they do and feel in control of events. Stress-vulnerable people perceive change as threat, find their tasks meaningless and have no feeling of control.

To benefit from the positive effects of stress and minimize its negative impact, we must cultivate psychological hardness.

• Determine the kind of person you are. Selye says everyone is part "racehorse," thriving on stress, and part "turtle," yearning for tranquility. When you feel signs of distress — increased heartbeat, irritability and insomnia — it is time to slow down or replace frustrating activities

Author tells the public 'How to Raise A Brat'

HONOLULU (AP) — There are books on how to raise everything from African violets to your bridge score, but Kenneth Condrell may be the first to tell a waiting public "How to Raise a Brat."

"I've been working with families for 20 years," said the Buffalo, N.Y., child psychologist. "You become impressed with the fact that people finally come to you after years of difficulty, after trying unsuccessfully to solve their own problems. But when you know what you're doing wrong, you can learn what's right."

Condrell, who appears regularly on Buffalo morning television, has based the book on the problems most frequently brought to him by his clients and his TV audience. "The book is a collection of the mistakes I've seen in the last 20 years," he said.

"Probably the most underrated factor in a child's development is the importance of friends," he notes. "Friendships are absolutely basic to good personality and a satisfying life for your child."

In his book, Condrell first suggests talking with the child's teacher and then observing him with other children.

"A child who doesn't relate to other children is probably boring to them," he says. "He hasn't a variety of skills or he lacks confidence. He fails to reach out to other children, or he may become overly silly or wild in a group. Or he may be so self-centered that he isn't aware that his behavior isn't effective. He will quit in the middle of a game or he won't follow the rules."

Solutions include helping him to gain skills through sports programs, Scouting, church clubs and museum classes. The child's friendly behavior with other children should be complimented and unfriendly action should be discussed, Condrell advises.

"If a real effort on your part for six months hasn't produced good results, I believe you should definitely find professional assistance," he says. "Children without friends are like birds without wings. Neither will be going anywhere."

Condrell, who devotes a chapter to "How to Make Your Children Jealous," considers sibling rivalry to be one of the major causes of strife within the family.

Condrell, whose own three children are spaced four years apart, suggests a period of at least three years between pregnancies. He also makes a strong case for the children's father taking an equal role with their mother in the parenting of their children.

"It's interesting how people think they can have an unhappy marriage or significant personality problems and still raise children well," Condrell says. "You have to get your own house in order. It can be harder on a child who lives with both parents, but one ignores him, than for a child with a single parent. The child begins to think, 'If I were more lovable, if there weren't something wrong with me, Dad would be around more.' They personalize the problem."

"Research tells us that children of divorced parents do not necessarily develop emotional problems. It is not divorce or the breakup of a family that causes kids to become emotionally disturbed. It's the way the parents handle the divorce."

"We know that children do best when life after the divorce continues to provide them with the opportunity to be with each parent and with the relatives they love. When things after the divorce are almost like they used to be, kids have a better chance of making a good adjustment."

Adolescence is the most challenging stage in a child's development, Condrell contends — and he gets no argument from most parents.

"Parents all struggle with adolescence, a time when you have to switch gears in your behavior toward your child," he says. "You need to relax control. You have to know when to use muscle and when not to, what kind of rebellion is safe. Some is, and should be encouraged, some isn't."

"No teen-ager can be his own person without taking on his parents," he adds. "Odd clothes, too much makeup, a bad choice of jewelry, are all things parents don't approve of. Cutting down on church attendance, sleeping late on weekends, showing up 20 minutes late for dinner — these are all ways of pounding the chest and saying 'You don't run me,' but they are acceptable.

"If you don't know that, and your kid comes home flaunting some screwy haircut or takes up with a friend you don't approve of, you get more strict and the power struggle begins. What we don't want are drugs, drinking too much, skipping school and vandalism."

The wise parent should respect each child's individuality, explains Condrell, who in addition to his private practice in child psychology is a clinical professor in the department of psychiatry of the State University of New York Medical School.

"You can have family rules, family goals, family discipline, but each child is unique and we want to nurture that uniqueness," he points out. "Love and good intentions are not enough for raising children. Children are the real experts in dealing with their lives, if we can just learn to hear what they're saying."

Dear Abby

Mom is heartbroken over ring

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago, when my son became engaged, I gave him my mother's engagement ring to give to his fiancée. At that time, I asked him to please ask his fiancée to sign a paper stating that if the marriage was ever dissolved, she would return the ring to his family. He became indignant, said he was hurt that I had so little faith in their future together, and refused to even ask her. Like a softy, I let it go.

Two and a half years later, she walked out on him. She has the ring. My son says he wants no discordancy whatever — that he will pay me what the ring is worth.

Abby, I didn't sell it to him. I want the ring, not the money. They are working out a "friendly divorce," although I know my son is broken-hearted because she left him. They are living apart, and she is living it up. Meanwhile, knowing she has my mother's diamond really upsets me.

Maybe in time my son will want to marry again. Then what? Is there a solution?

DISTRESSED

DEAR DISTRESSED: Even though the ring is a family heirloom, when you gave it to your son you relinquished all claim on it. He would not be out of line, however, to suggest to her that because it belonged to his grandmother, he would like to buy it from her and keep it in the family. It's worth a try.

***

DEAR ABBY: One last word on how to eat a banana, the most consumed fruit in the United States. Where I come from, there is only one way to eat a banana. Alone! That way you can enjoy it to the fullest, and better someone shouldn't warble, "Poinciana, is that your nose or a banana?"

JOHN H.
NEAR JACKSONVILLE

DEAR ABBY: When "Ryan" and I were first married, he showed me some photographs he had taken of his ex-wife posing in the nude while they were still married. (Photography is his hobby.) She was very well-built and the pictures left nothing to the imagination.

I asked Ryan to either send them to her or to destroy them because I didn't want them in the house. He said he never destroys any of his pictures as they are "art." (I call them trash.)

Now it's nine years later, and I found these pictures stashed in the back of a drawer! Abby, we have two small children who could have easily found them. How could I explain who the naked lady was?

Should I put them back and say nothing to Ryan? Should I tell him I found them? (He'd probably hide them somewhere else, and I want them out of our house.) Should I return them to his ex-wife, or destroy them and hope Ryan doesn't miss them? Or is it none of my business?

ANGRY IN ARIZONA

DEAR ANGRY: Give them to your husband and ask him to please lock up his "art." If your children had found them, you could have told them the truth: "The naked lady was once married to Daddy."

Lifestyle guidelines

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this. The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information. We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS
Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

WEDDINGS
If a wedding writup is submitted to the Herald after the wedding has occurred, the space allotted to it will diminish according to the length of time that has passed since the wedding.

BIRTHS
Local hospitals supply information for Storkclub. If a child is born elsewhere in the newspaper's circulation area, or is born to out-of-town parents with local or area grandparents, please contact the Herald Lifestyle Department with Storkclub information.

Information needed for Storkclub is: newborn's name, sex, time and date of birth, weight, place of birth, parents' name and address. If the baby is born outside the circulation area but has local grandparents, please include their name and address. The local grandparents serve as the area connection for the information.

INDULGE YOURSELF

A homeowner who remodels a kitchen can economize and yet be indulgent. That may sound contradictory, but few home improvements add so much to the value of a house or so enhance its sales potential as a convenient kitchen. Real estate investors who buy old houses to modernize and resell know this. This is why they take the trouble and go to the expense of installing attractive kitchens. Remodeling a kitchen not only can add to the resale value of a house but it can provide interim convenience, ease of use and reliable appliances. This is in addition to the visual and aesthetic rewards of improving one of the most important rooms in the house.

The kitchen is one of the most-used rooms in the house. It can be one of the best-looking. For help with kitchen design, call BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK. We can design, build, and install your new kitchen from floor to custom cabinets. Our skilled craftpeople can handle any home renovation job. Come to 613 N. Warehouse Rd. in the Industrial Park, or call 267-5811. Open M-F, 8-12, 1-5 or by appt.

'Burn' has no place in aerobic exercise

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am doing aerobic exercise via television. The instructor occasionally uses the term, "burn." Do you "feel the burn?" she will ask. She implies that this is a desired goal. What is the burn and what's so great about it? — Miss L.N.

Hold on. Something's wrong here. Terms such as "feel the burn" have no place in aerobic exercise. It is a reference to the pain that fatigued muscles produce when they are used at such intensity that they no longer are getting oxygen. Lactic acid has built up, the byproduct of such muscle use.

Aerobic exercise won't do that. The kinds that might be sprinting and weightlifting, both of which entail brief but very intense exercise. Very soon fatigue sets in. You cannot go on and you hurt.

Aerobic exercise is different. You don't get the lactic acid buildup. You shouldn't, either. The energy combustion that's going on is utilizing oxygen as fuel. In theory, you can continue such exercise indefinitely. It's the kind of energy marathoners use. It's also the kind of energy that permits a person doing aerobics to continue long enough to give the heart a worthwhile workout.

Perhaps what this instructor is referring to is not "burn," but a sensing of just which muscles are being used in a particular exercise. If you do a situp properly, with knees bent, you will sense the strain on the abdominals. That's not a "burn."

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Our 12-year-old daughter is in gymnastics. After her first year, she is progressing rapidly. We're proud of her. We wonder, though, just how much practice is wise. She seems young for such intensity. What is your view? — Mr. and Mrs. N.

How is one to know when a young girl like your daughter is overdoing? I can give you three handy criteria.

• The first is frequency of injury. If she is having many sprains, muscle strains, or bone pains, she's overdoing. No single one need be disabling, but when you consider all the little complaints, they can add up to excess activity. It indicates that her immature body is not up to it.

• Another hint that a young girl may be overdoing is delay in menstruation. If she is lagging behind in this, then it's time to take a serious look at the program.

• The third criterion has to do with the non-physical area. Is she devoting so much time to this pursuit that she is becoming one-dimensional? Is she allowing this activity to impinge on her academic and social progress?

Keep these three factors in mind and inject a bit of intuition into the evaluation. Proper supervision will ensure that she is enjoying her sport, not becoming a slave to it.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: As a trainer, I find there is much lay misunderstanding about various uses of exercise. Perhaps a prime example is the misuse of the terms, "weightlifting" and "weight training." As you know, the purpose of weightlifting is essentially competitive. Weight training, on the other hand, is essentially what it implies, a training of the body with weights. A small distinction, perhaps, but not if one is a "weightlifter." — H.D.

That's a good point to make. The difference is significant. In weightlifting the object is to accomplish a single lift with maximum effort. Weight training involves loads below the maximum capability and one that can be lifted several times, or, as they say, in many "reps." The object is to build up muscular strength. The weightlifter weight trains to become good at his sport.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: A well-trained person has a slower pulse than an untrained person. Does this necessarily mean that his pulse is also stronger? — W.B.

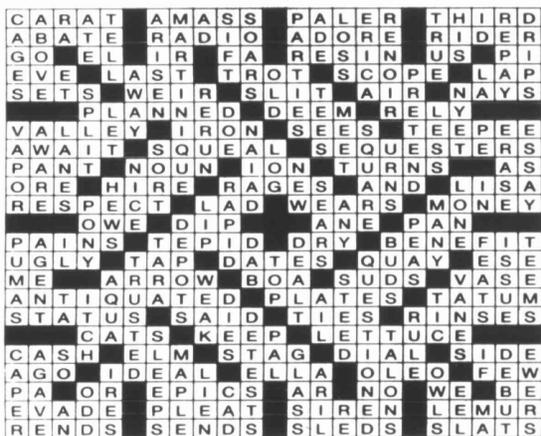

That's correct. The trained heart beats more slowly, but delivers more blood with each stroke. So the trained pulse is a stronger one.

Millions of out-of-shape men and women desire fitness, but shy away from formal programs because they think it's all too complicated and difficult. Dr. Donohue's newest booklet, "Introduction to Fitness," puts the esoteric terminology of aerobics into plain language and offers a fitness program anyone, regardless of age, can adapt.

For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.50.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.
