Hospital to build new complex

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Led by a $350,000 medical complex, new construction costs are expected to jump nearly 60 percent from December, 1985 and a whopping 542 percent over January one year ago.

The $633,220 total is based on building permits issued by the city in January.

The huge jump in construction costs was spurred by 21 building projects and headed by a professional complex at 1608 Farm Road 700 being built by the Hospital Corporation of America.

The estimated cost of January construction compares with $398,748 for December and $98,525 last January.

The city's total construction cost for the fiscal year beginning October 1, 1985, stands at almost $1.4 million, a 56 percent rise over the $891,951 spent at this point last year.

The professional building, with a target completion date of June, will house five office suites, said Emily Ward, public relations director at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

Doctors will work independently at the new facility in competition with physicians practicing at the Malone-Hogan Clinic, a separate entity from the hospital of the same name.

General contractor for the 6,700-square-foot building is Bill Averitt and Co. of Lubbock, Ward said. She added that a number of subcontracting bids were awarded the local firms of:

- Hester and Roberts Mechanical Contractors for the plumbing and air conditioning.
- Brumley Electric for the electrical work.

- Price Construction for excavation.
- John Pitts, local contractor for masonry work.

Another sizable portion of the last month's increase was generated by a $100,000 service station and convenience store at 1506 Marcy St. planned by Thurman Oil

Shuttle accident report in 120 days

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chief of a presidential commission charged with conducting an impartial investigation of the shuttle Challenger disaster promises not to be "unfairly critical of NASA" and says he believes the space agency is doing an excellent job.

William P. Rogers, former secretary of state in the Nixon administration, was named by President Reagan on Monday to head the probe of the explosion that killed six astronauts and schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe in the worst accident in the history of space exploration.

Reagan ordered the group to deliver its final report within 120 days.

Neil Armstrong, the first person to walk on the moon, was named vice chairman of the commission.

Other members include Chuck Yeager, the test pilot who was first to break the sound barrier; astronaut Sally Ride, the first American woman in space; and Nobel laureate Richard P. Feynman.

Half the 12 members appointed Monday have past or present ties to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. Under an executive order signed by Reagan, eight more members may be named.

"Their charge is to find out what happened, why it happened, and to fix it — simple as that," White House spokesman Larry Speakes said.

Speculation on the cause of the disaster has focused on a plume of fire that NASA films have shown spewed from the shuttle's right solid-fuel booster rocket.

Reagan to focus on welfare reform

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a week's delay due to the shuttle Challenger explosion, President Reagan goes before Congress tonight to deliver a State of the Union address calling for welfare overhaul, catastrophic health insurance and revamping of the international monetary system.

The half-hour speech to a joint session of the House and Senate will be carried live by the major radio and television networks beginning at 7 p.m. CST.

Aides have said Reagan will use the speech to "redefine the role of government" for the rest of the century. As part of that, they said, he will order yearlong studies designed to develop proposals for revising federal programs for the needy, initiate a program to protect all Americans from the costs of catastrophic illness and deal with uncontrolled currency fluctuations that aggravate the U.S. trade deficit.

Two officials who agreed to discuss the administration plans said the studies would be modeled after the Treasury Department's analysis of the income tax system, which Reagan called for in his 1984 State of the Union address and which led to his proposal to overhaul the tax system.

A House version of that proposal was adopted at the end of the year, and the Senate is giving the issue top priority now.

The administration officials, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Reagan's fifth State of the Union would emphasize his concern for the American family.

Rather than calling for national sacrifice to meet the stringent spending cuts required by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law, Reagan is expected to stress the importance of the family budget rather than the federal budget.

The sources said Reagan would take a "pro-family" approach to overhauling welfare programs and related services, proposing to eliminate provisions that tend to encourage the breakup of families and calling for incentives to encourage the poor to overcome their dependence on government aid.

Three file for county positions

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Concerns about a tightening local economy and more active representation of the people were viewpoints expressed by the latest candidates to file for county positions in this May's primary elections.

• G.C. "Dub" Clinton Jr. said his decision to file for candidacy in the county commissioner Precinct 2 race was a desire to take "an active part in community politics."

"It's time to get some young people in there and involved," the 37-year-old Big Spring native said.

Clinton, a Republican, said he was running as a "representative of the people" in order "to keep the lines of communication open."

The self-employed construction worker lives with his wife, Diane, and their two children at 2407 Alabama.

• Leo Williams, also running for county commissioner Precinct 2, believes the local economy is stagnated and more jobs must be offered "to help generate more tax revenues."

"We're at a time and place where something needs to break loose," the Republican said.

The lifetime county resident said he was requested by friends to run for the position.

higher employment figures would lower the tax rate, relieving the burden on county taxpayers, he said.

Williams said if elected he would study the salary level of commissioners and lower it if possible.

Ten contest C-City races

COLORADO CITY — Monday was the deadline to file for Mitchell County primaries, and four races will be contested.

The office of justice of the peace Precinct 2 is being sought by Billie Forbes and Ruby Claxton. Charles Ray Watlington and JoAnn Merket are vying for that spot in Precinct 1.

In the county commissioners race are Bill Preston and Herman Mitchell for Precinct 4 and Johnny Shackelford, Tom Daughtree, William Conaway Jr. and Carl Guelker in Precinct 2.

There are several unopposed county races.

Incumbent candidates are JoAnn Beach, county clerk; Bill Carter, county judge; Ann Hallmark, county treasurer; Bill Erwin, district clerk; and Jerry Hammond, constable Precinct 1. All are Democrats.

Young model

12-year-old Texan lives life others only dream of LAREDO (AP) — Of all the fantasies of young girls, perhaps the most fervently dreamed of is the chance to be famous, the chance to be applauded and loved — however briefly — by an admiring audience.

Some girls dream of winning a beauty pageant. Others imagine themselves as a model, or perhaps, an actress. But even as they are lost in sighs and longing, most girls never expect their daydreams to come true. They know, deep down, the difference between fantasy and reality. But for Melissa Joy Hinojosa, the line between fantasy and real life can be difficult to distinguish. Melissa Joy has actually lived what so many young girls only dream of.

Melissa Joy, 12-year-old daughter of Armando and Sandra Hinojosa, has won beauty, talent and modeling titles in more than 25 national and international pageants, has modeled professionally, has appeared on television commercials, has performed at Disneyland and at a Dallas Cowboy halftime.

She also has made appearances on the USA Network, CNN, MTV, and the Nashville Network. Currently, she is serving as the host-reporter for the local children's news program entitled "Border Friends" on KLDQ-TV.

When Melissa Joy entered her first pageant she was already accustomed to being in the public eye. She had performed in dance recitals since the age of 3 and at the time was the mascot for the Martin High School cheerleaders.

"We had never been to a pageant or even thought of entering one, but the cheerleaders wanted her to represent the school," recalled Sandra Hinojosa, Melissa Joy's mother. "So, she entered that and she won, and the followup was to go on the National Pageant. On we went with our little Montgomery Ward dress that I paid $6.99 for. That's what she competed in."

And that first pageant was what got Melissa Joy hooked. "After that first pageant, I decided that I wanted to keep on doing it because I really liked it," Melissa Joy said. "I want to keep on doing it for as long as I can."

Melissa Joy Hinojosa looks over a script with her mother, Sandra. The 12-year-old has won beauty, talent and modeling titles in more than 25 pageants.

At that first national pageant, Melissa Joy and her mother were shocked by the cut-throat attitude that existed among many of the contestants.

"That is when we learned that there was a pageant circuit and that there are mothers that spend thousands of dollars and do not let their children move or breathe so that they are very mechanical, very perfect," Mrs. Hinojosa said. "I have seen mothers pinching and poking their children in the lineup before they go on stage."

"People get carried away when they see a crown on their little girl's head. They seem to lose all sense of reality," she said. "It's a very silly thing."

Melissa Joy added, "I don't think it's right for a mother to be pushing her daughter. If the little girl wants to win, she should try her best and that should be enough. Her mother shouldn't for her."

In addition to compete in pageants, Melissa Joy acts as reporter-host of a local children's news program, "Border Friends," which airs on KLDQ every Friday at 4:30 p.m. As reporter-host, Melissa Joy reports "upcoming events about school, what's happening in the city about children, things that have happened in the past week, and we also give prizes. We have a winner every week."

The "Border Friends" spot came about, Melissa Joy said, when she noticed that people seemed to have only bad things to say about kids. "I was talking to my mom about things and I asked her why someone couldn't report good news about children for a chance," she recalled.

Mother and daughter approached a local television station and sold it. In spite of her busy schedule, Melissa Joy still manages to excel in the traditional activities and endeavors of youth. She is a straight "A" student and participates in the Gifted and Talented program at Lamar Middle School. She also is active in the student council, cheerleading and attends dance class five times a week. And like any normal kid, she spends time with her friends, too. "My friends treat me like any other friend, but they ask a lot of questions sometimes. They're curious. Sometimes they tease me, especially on Fridays, when I come out (on TV). They call me Miss KLDQ," she said. "Most of my friends tell me I'm very lucky because I get to travel a lot and see a lot, but they don't know that it takes a lot of work," she said.

Shaw so far unopposed in primary

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — State Rep. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring apparently will escape an opponent in the Democratic primary but will face opposition in the Nov. 4 general election.

Shaw was the only District 69 candidate filing as a Democrat prior to the 6 p.m. Monday deadline. But Travis C. Floyd of Big Spring filed in the Republican primary for the right to challenge Shaw in November. Party officials said filing documents received by mail still will be accepted if postmarked prior to the deadline, so the final ballot list could change.

In the 17th Congressional District, incumbent Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, appeared to be unopposed for another two-year term in Washington, D.C.

Other Big Spring-area races lined up as follows at the deadline:

Burglary suspect arrested

Police have a 17-year-old suspect in the burglaries this week at the Highland Mall. Lt. Jerry Edwards said this morning. Edwards said a possible connection exists between the Highland break-ins and a man who was arrested Monday night at the Big Spring Mall.

Ismael Holguin of 3620 Calvin St. was arrested at Big Spring Mall on suspicion of attempted burglary and attempting to evade arrest.

According to a police report, officers were investigating suspicious activity by two men at the mall at 11:52 p.m. When the men realized they had been seen by police, they fled, reports show.

One man was caught while the other eluded arrest, according to the report. After being read his rights, he reportedly told police that he and his accomplice were attempting to burglarize the shopping mall, police said.

Hal Taylor, manager of the Travel Inn, 3500 W. Highway 80, told police Monday morning that someone left the motel without paying a month's rent owed to the business. Taylor also told police the person stole tools valued at $500 between 10 p.m. Sunday and 5 a.m. Monday.

Don Brodie of Pollard Chevrolet, 1501 E. Fourth St., told police someone broke into the business early Monday morning and caused an undetermined amount of damage to a glass door, a cigarette machine and a wooden drawer.

Joe Patterson of the Circle J Drive In, 1200 E. Fourth St., told police Monday morning that someone broke into 11 11 coin-operated machines at the business between 1:30 a.m. and 10 a.m. Monday and took an undetermined amount of coins.

Ken Smith, owner of Waterbeds Unique, 1607 E. Third St., told police Monday night that someone stole two orbital sanders valued at $79.20 and a cassette tape from the business Monday morning.

Connie Torrez of 1502 Oriole St. told police Monday night that an acquaintance entered her home and struck her with a fist Monday night.

Kathy Clayton of 3912 Parkway told police Monday night that an acquaintance threatened her at her home Monday night.

Oscar Puente, 18, of 1007 S. Main St. was arrested on Gregg St. Monday morning on suspicion of driving without a license and failure to provide proof of insurance.

Three women injured in two-car collision

Three women were injured Monday afternoon in a two-car collision at the intersection of Goliad and E. 10th Streets.

The driver of one car, Audra Scott, 84, of 1102 E. 14th St. was listed in stable condition this morning at Malone-Hogan Hospital, said a hospital spokeswoman.

The driver of the other car, Mary Saldivar, 63, and a passenger, Rosa Saldivar, 57, both of Route 2 Box 135 were treated and released Monday from Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital, said a hospital spokeswoman.

Witnesses told police the cars collided after Scott, who was driving southbound on Goliad Street, attempted to turn left onto E. 10th Street in front of Saldivar who was heading north on Goliad.

The injured women were wearing seatbelts, the police accident report showed.

Three prisoners escape

GONZALES — Authorities were searching today for three prisoners who escaped from the Gonzales County Jail in South Texas by greasing themselves with soap and squeezing through a small air conditioning vent, authorities said.

Chief deputy sheriff Richard La Font said the prisoners were reported missing after a routine check of cells early Monday.

He said the wall vent, which is about 6 feet above the floor, is only 8 inches wide. The vent led to a larger duct into an attic in the ceiling. The men then apparently crawled to an opening in a storage utility room in the jail's garage, he said.

Jail standoff ends

LAREDO — A Webb County jail inmate who allegedly shot one deputy to death and wounded two other lawmen and held a large force of heavily armed officers at bay for several hours surrendered early today, a police spokesman said.

Rogelio Hernandez, 35, who faced charges in the shooting death of a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service inspector before the shooting rampage and jail standoff, surrendered at 5:38 a.m. today, according to Laredo Police Dispatcher Idalia Nava.

Fire under control

HARRISBURG, Pa. — An eight-alarm fire that burned through a jet engine parts plant less than a mile from the Capitol was brought under control today, averting the evacuation of 16,000 people, officials said.

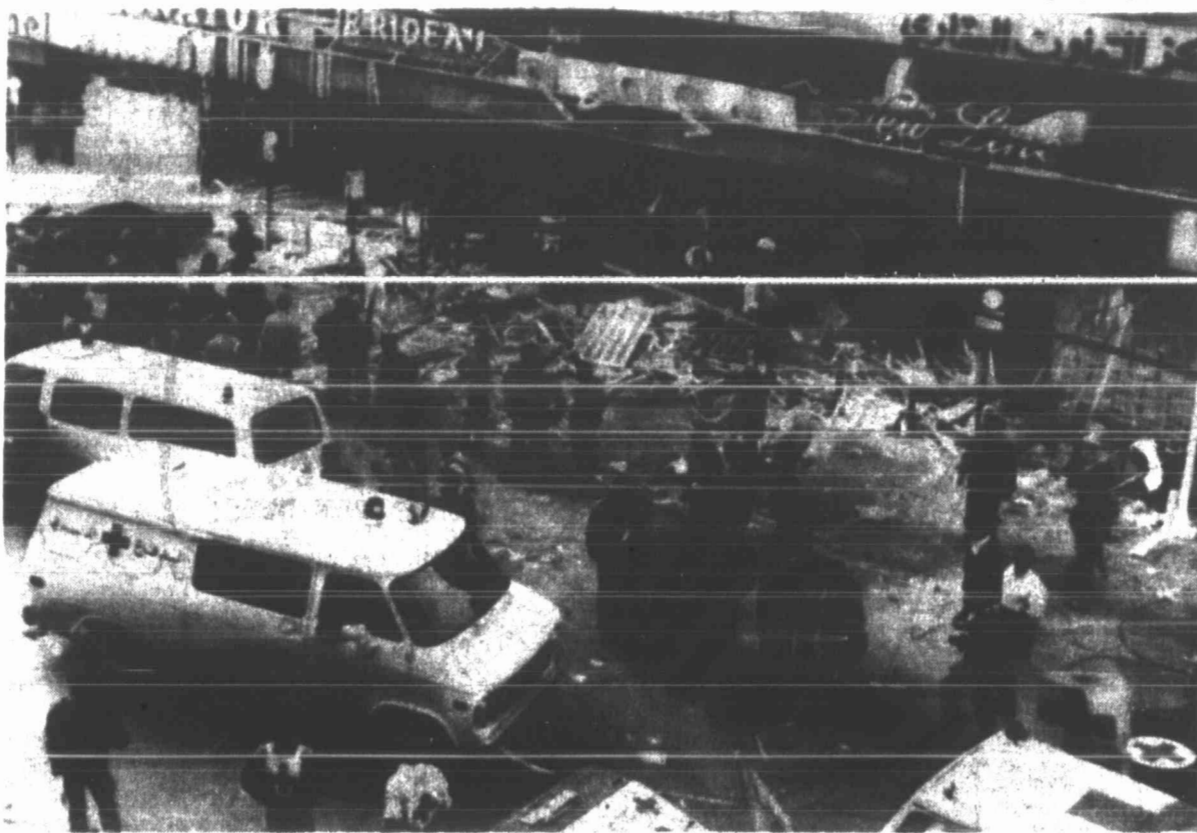

Officials feared the fire at TRW's turbine airfoils division might reach a variety of chemicals at the plant and send a noxious cloud of chemicals over sections of the city.

The fire broke out shortly after 7 p.m. and was declared under control about 12:30 a.m., city officials said. A state of emergency, declared as a precaution, was called off 10 minutes later.

FAA orders inspection

WASHINGTON — Airlines flying older Boeing 747s have begun special inspections of the jumbo jets after the Federal Aviation Administration determined there might be severe cracks in the main frame of some of the huge planes.

The FAA ordered inspections on as many as 160 of the Boeing 747s flying in the United States and advised foreign carriers to do likewise after routine maintenance uncovered cracks in the frame, or rib cage, of four jumbo jets.

Incidents of shooting and destruction are so common in Beirut, like the one in the picture, that there are not many medical facilities to care for the sick and the wounded in that troubled city. When fighting rages, the American University Hospital is one place the militias can turn to. Medical teams in the hospital have treated more than 30,000 casualties since the civil war erupted in April 1975.

Innocent victim

Beirut hospital seldom a neutral zone

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — When fighting rages in Beirut, the American University Hospital looks more like a MASH unit under fire than a teaching facility.

The hospital, the main medical center in Moslem west Beirut, handled nearly 800 casualties, one-third of them surgical cases, in one two-week period last summer.

Hospital chief of staff Dr. Farid Fleihan estimates his medical teams have treated more than 30,000 war casualties since the civil war between Christians and Moslem erupted in April 1975.

"I don't think there are many hospitals around the world who've faced what we have and come through in the last 11 years," Fleihan said in an interview.

Young interns among the 340 medical students carry stretchers and more experienced students man the operating theaters and emergency rooms.

There's an unwritten agreement among Beirut's warring militias to keep the hospital a neutral zone. But the violence often spills over as militiamen are brought in as casualties.

Rival factions have shot it out in the corridors of the 420-bed hospital or outside in the street.

One gunman blew himself up with a grenade in an emergency room, destroying X-ray machines.

"Fortunately there were no staffers in there at the time," Fleihan said. "The man had ordered nurses out of the room while he undressed."

Militiamen have put guns to the heads of surgeons operating on their buddies, warning them they'd be shot if their patients died.

No doctor has been shot yet. But several, mainly Christians, have been kidnapped.

The hospital's director, David Jacobsen, is one of six Americans still held by Shiite Moslem extremists. Jacobsen, 54, of Huntington Beach, Calif., was grabbed May 28 by gunmen near the hospital which is part of the American University of Beirut.

During last summer's bloody fighting between Shiite Moslems and Palestinians, when 600 people were killed and nearly 2,500 wounded, Shiite gunmen dragged bleeding Palestinian guerrillas from operating theaters.

The morgue was stacked so high with bodies that the hospital had to use refrigerated trucks to store the corpses. Some Shiites refused to let doctors treat wounded Palestinians until their men had been patched up.

"Armed militiamen come into the emergency rooms with their wounded friends," Fleihan said. "The room fills up with casualties, relatives and gunmen. In the end you find you've got 200 patients and 600 other people, many of them with guns."

Fleihan added: "The gunmen, naturally, want their friends treated first, even if their wounds are minor compared to everyone else's."

"You have to be a diplomat as well as a doctor, just to calm things down," he said. "I've seen militiamen bring in dead brothers or comrades and order doctors to make them well again. When you tell the gunman his friend is dead, out come the guns. It takes a lot of careful, calm talking to cool things down."

Prisoner swap rumor

BONN, West Germany — A Western government source says a prisoner exchange between East and West that has been reported to include Soviet dissident Anatoly Shcharansky will take place next week on a Berlin bridge.

The White House and West German officials have refused to comment on the reports, which began with a story in Monday's edition of the West German newspaper Bild.

But the Western government source in West Germany said Monday that a prisoner exchange would take place, and Israel radio said the United States had informed Israel that Shcharansky would be freed in three days as part of an East-West prisoner swap.

Kremlin retaliates

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union said today it ordered several French Embassy staff members out of Moscow in an apparent response to France's expulsion of four Soviet Embassy officials from Paris.

The official news agency Tass did not say specifically that France had ordered the four Soviets to leave France, but said the Soviet action was in response to an "unfriendly action" by French authorities toward Soviet employees in Paris.

Cartel reported split

VIENNA, Austria — Oil ministers from five OPEC countries began a second day of meetings today with sources saying cartel members were split between increasing production and risking a price war with independents.

After the first day of meetings Monday, OPEC President Arturo Hernandez Grisanti of Venezuela called on cartel members and independents such as Great Britain and Norway to cooperate to prevent a price collapse.

The price of oil plummeted to less than $18 a barrel Monday for the first time in the 1980s, and oil industry experts said they had no idea how much lower the price might go.

Seven hurt in blast

PARIS — A bomb exploded at a shopping mall on the Champs Elysee, injuring seven people, three of them seriously, and less than an hour later an unexploded bomb was found in a public lavatory in the Eiffel Tower, officials said today.

There was no claim of responsibility for the first blast Monday night, which broke showcase windows in the luxury shops in Galerie Claridge, knocked down sections of a false ceiling and set off an automatic sprinkler system, drenching the mall in water.

Art Buchwald Comet watching is status symbol

The country seems to be divided between those who have seen Halley's Comet and those who say they have. It isn't like 1910 when everyone did see it. This time if you blinked your eyes you could easily have missed it.

Yet, as Halley's Comet fades behind the sun, more and more Americans are pretending they sighted it. These citizens will tell you, "I saw Halley's Comet last night with my opera glasses."

There is no reason for you to doubt them until you remember it was so foggy last night that they had to shut down the airport.

Why do otherwise honest people, the pillars of our communities, many who wouldn't even pick up a discarded newspaper from a bus, lie about what they saw in the heavens?

The answer is that since Halley's Comet has been so hard to spot, status seekers are forced to resort to perjury in order to impress their friends.

If claiming you saw the comet when you didn't is just a way of keeping up with the Joneses, then I say more power to the fibber. But what makes this practice so dastardly is that it does injustice to the people who actually have spotted it.

Those who stood outside all night in the freezing cold stabbing their fingers at the skies deserve a lot more respect than the ones who stayed in bed with their heads under the blankets looking at photos of Halley's in People magazine.

The reason I am incensed about all this is that I happened to see Halley's Comet the other night. I refused to mention it to anyone because it's the sighting and not the bragging that counts with me.

Then Novak came down the hall and claimed that he had seen it. I have been suspicious of Novak's comet sightings ever since he announced in 1973 that he viewed Kohoutek and told everyone it was on a crash course with earth.

The people in the office were quite impressed that Novak had seen Halley's Comet, but no one thought to find out if he was telling the truth.

"What did it look like?" I wanted to know.

He replied, "A dirty snowball." He could easily have read that in Penthouse magazine, so I asked him, "How long was it?"

"As long as the dirtiest snowball I've ever seen," Novak replied.

"That long?" I said. "Did you see the tail on it?"

I thought I had him. Novak said, "It was too dirty to see the tail. I was lucky to get a glimpse of its mouth."

I was leading him right into a trap. "And what did the mouth look like?"

"A big dirty snowball streaking across the sky."

"Did it fly past the moon?"

"Of course it flew past the moon. What kind of comet do you think it is?"

"Not so fast, Novak," I said. "I saw Halley's Comet last night and it was nowhere near the moon."

"Well, it was so dirty I couldn't tell what it was passing. All I know is the sky is falling."

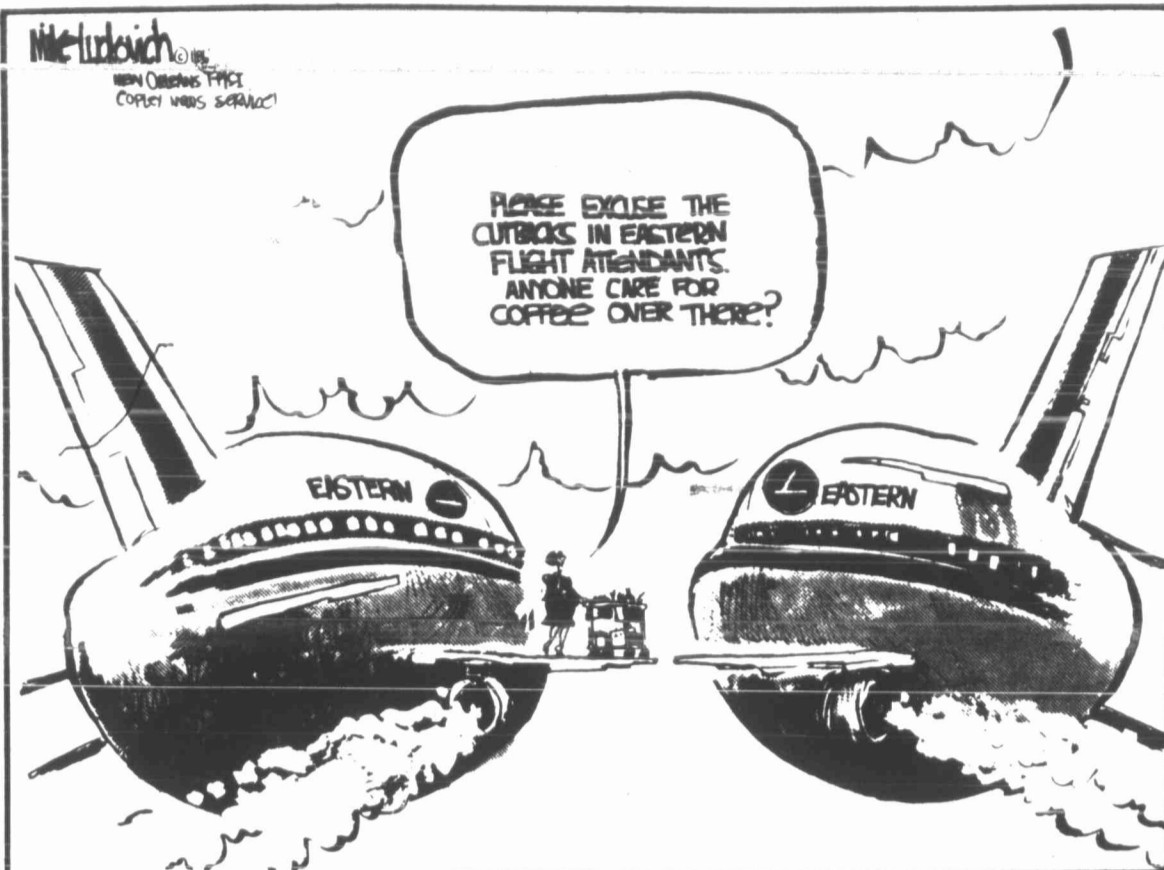

"People have been lying about Halley's Comet for 2,225 years."

Novak was adamant. "I know what I saw. It was a snowball, and it whizzed right past the moon."

"Where was it going?"

"It was on a crash course with earth."

Jack Anderson Sandinista lie exposed

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — When we found out the Sandinistas were terrorizing Nicaraguan employees of the U.S. Embassy in Managua, they responded with a brazen lie and a colossal bluff. Now we've called their bluff.

Last month, we reported that State Department cables from the U.S. Embassy in Managua said that several local employees had been hauled in for interrogation by the Sandinista security police. They were threatened with death if they continued to work for the Americans.

Women were asked for intimate details of their sex lives, and at least one was humiliated by ployees were subjected to long interrogation and solitary confinement — for as long as 13 hours.

The Nicaraguan Embassy in Washington responded with a vehemently written denial. In a letter to us, the embassy press attache, Miriam Hooker, contradicted our report on every point: No one was threatened or stripped, she said, and the questioning lasted no more than an hour. Besides, she said, the employees were supporters of the late dictator Anastasio Somoza.

Then Hooker pulled her big bluff. She informed us that an American diplomat, Bradley Johnson, could confirm the truth of her claims. As a vice consul at the Managua embassy, she explained, Johnson had accompanied the Nicaraguan employees to the state security headquarters and waited while they were interrogated.

Unfortunately, Johnson was on home leave in the United States, she added, but if we could find him, he would tell us that the State Department was lying and the Sandinistas were telling the truth.

It seemed unlikely that the U.S. Embassy would have falsified its confidential reports to the State Department. On the other hand, the Nicaraguans wouldn't make up a story that could be so conclusively checked out. Or would they?

The Sandinistas were correct about one point: Johnson was indeed on home leave. In fact, he was off skiing somewhere, and the State Department didn't know where. Evidently the Nicaraguans figured we'd drop the matter after reporting their denial.

We didn't. Our associate Lucette Lagnado eventually got hold of Johnson. He was tanned and rested, and his memory was clear.

"They're lying," Johnson said. "What the Sandinistas said is absolutely false." He said he had never accompanied any of the embassy employees to their interrogations.

As a matter of fact, Johnson told us, he had talked with several of the embassy employees who were interrogated, and was told that all of them had been detained for more than six hours.

Diplomatically, Johnson suggested that perhaps the Sandinistas had been confused because the Nicaraguan woman he was dating had been summoned for questioning, and he had accompanied her to the security police building.

His friend, a 22-year-old student who had nothing to do with the U.S. Embassy, was questioned from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Johnson said. She "was told that if she saw me she would spend years in prison," Johnson said. The police interrogators accused her of being a traitor and spy for the Americans, he said.

Johnson was able to get his friend out of the country. He said that incident was probably what led the Nicaraguan Embassy to give his name.

Footnote: An American Embassy official in Managua, reached by phone, said that since it had protested the harassment of its employees, there have been no further incidents.

WATCH ON WASTE: The new Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law has had some impact on Occupational Safety and Health Administration — on paper, anyhow. On Jan. 14, the agency's acting chief, Patrick Tyson, issued an edict to all employees, ordering a cutback in travel expenses to comply with mandatory budget cuts under Gramm-Rudman. But on Feb. 13, Tyson will fly to sunny San Juan, Puerto Rico, for a two-day meeting with safety officials from 23 states and two territories. About 40 people in all will attend, at an estimated cost of about $1,000 each (Tyson anticipates he will spend $647). In deference to Gramm-Rudman, Tyson is leaving behind two aides who were scheduled to go.

MINI-EDITORIAL: We think it admirable that Vice President George Bush is such a civic-minded soul that he wishes to take on the demanding task of running the country. We find it distasteful, however, when he pants and slavers in his lust for the job. He has courted the extra-chromosome conservatives who think Dwight Eisenhower, Gerald Ford and Henry Kissinger were closet liberals. And recently, the vice president's image team borrowed a trick from Richard Nixon when they tried to arrange a cameo appearance for Bush on the popular television show "Miami Vice." Nixon, you may recall, exploited the hit show of 1968, "Laugh-in," when he appeared and uttered the memorable line, "Sock it to me."

Billy Graham Your gifts will enrich lives

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I get a lot of mail from various religious organizations asking for money, but I never have given anything to them because I don't think my little amount would do much good. — Mrs. T.R.S.

DEAR MRS. T.R.S.: Do you remember the large multitude that was following Jesus one day and had nothing to eat? They were far from any town, and the only person who had any food was a little boy with a lunch of five small loaves of bread and two small fish. But we read that "Jesus then took the loaves, gave thanks, and distributed to those who were seated as much as they wanted. He did the same with the fish" (John 6:11). In Jesus' hands, the boy's small lunch became enough to feed 5,000 people.

God is able to do the same with our money — no matter how great or small our gifts might be. Let me give you an example. In 1983, we sponsored an international conference in Amsterdam for 4,000 evangelists. (We will be sponsoring a similar conference this summer.) Most of those who attended were from very poor countries and had very little in the way of money or resources. Some, we discovered were very effective preachers, but had not transportation and, therefore, could only preach in towns or villages near their homes.

Because people like you had given support, we were able to provide bicycles for some of these evangelists — and as a result they have been able to preach the Gospel in many more towns, with many coming to Christ who otherwise would never have heard His message. A bicycle doesn't cost much — but it is making the difference for those evangelists!

There is an old saying: "A little is much — when God is in it!" God will use your gifts — and your prayers — to touch lives for Christ. Be like the early Christians who "gave themselves first to the Lord" and then gave their money to help God's work. (2 Corinthians 8:5).

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 4, the 35th day of 1986. There are 330 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On Feb. 4 1945, President Franklin D. Roosevelt, President Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Soviet leader Joseph Stalin began a wartime conference at Yalta.

On this date:
In 1783, Britain declared a formal cessation of hostilities with its former colony, the United States of America.

In 1789, presidential electors unanimously chose George Washington to be the first chief executive of the United States.

In 1801, John Marshall was sworn in as chief justice of the United States.

In 1861, delegates from six southern states met in Montgomery, Ala. to form the Confederate States of America.

In 1932, New York Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt opened the Winter Olympic Games at Lake Placid.

In 1938, the play "Our Town" by Thornton Wilder opened on Broadway.

In 1941, the United Service Organization, also known as the USO, was founded.

In 1948, the island nation of Ceylon, now Sri Lanka, became an independent dominion within the British Commonwealth.

In 1974, newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst was kidnapped from her apartment in Berkeley, Calif., by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army.

Ten years ago: A severe earthquake struck Guatemala and Honduras. It killed more than 22,000 people.

Five years ago: Talks broke down between the Polish government and strike leaders in a southern province, and the independent labor federation Solidarity told its chapters to be ready to act if force were used to break the strike.

One year ago: President Reagan formally sent his budget proposal to Congress, saying that the major cuts he sought in domestic spending would change the course of American history.

Conservatives consolidate strength

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
WASHINGTON (AP) — There was a downright mainstream mood at this year's Conservative Political Action Conference. It was a gathering of people who acted confident their revolution had succeeded.

Gone were the denunciations of closet moderates such as James A. Baker III and George Shultz.

James Watt was not around to rail against the "forces of evil" and the "radical left-wing activists."

Instead, the delegates spent a good deal of their time listening to speeches by six Republicans who might bid for conservative support in the race for the 1988 GOP presidential nomination.

The appearances of the potential candidates was testimony to the strength of the conservatives within the Republican Party as well as to the understanding that their support is up for grabs in 1988.

For the past 25 years, there was no competition for conservative support. Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., owned the movement in the mid-1960s, and then it passed on to Ronald Reagan.

With Reagan ineligible for re-election, the conservatives are looking over the field.

During the early years of the Reagan presidency, C-PAC meetings often featured speakers seething with frustration over the fact their agenda was being somehow subverted by people such as Baker, who was then White House chief of staff.

Three years ago, conservative columnist M. Stanton Evans got nods of agreement when he told the conference that "there has been no Reagan revolution."

And his audience went wild with cheers and applause when Evans said, "The president should be asked by all of us and by conservatives all over America to fire Jim Baker."

Conservative distrust of Baker stemmed largely from his role as campaign manager for George Bush during the 1980 Republican primaries.

Now, Baker is treasury secretary and no one felt a need to denounce him. Shultz is no conservative favorite either, and there was loud applause when one speaker mentioned how much he'd like to see former U.N. Ambassador Jeane Kirkpatrick as secretary of state. But no one denounced Shultz.

One of the areas in which conservative activists expressed most frustration at past meetings was the lack of progress on enactment of their social issues agenda: constitutional amendments to allow school prayer and prohibit abortion.

Those goals remain unachieved, but they were not big issues at the 1986 meeting.

In fact, C-PAC organizers commissioned a poll of conservative activists and when asked to rate issues in terms of importance, 56.7 percent listed economic issues as most important; 26.6 percent named foreign policy; and 13.2 percent named social issues.

That same survey found Bush getting the most support, 36.3 percent, on the question of who was their first choice to succeed Reagan. Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., was second with 16.9 percent.

Another measure of the importance potential candidates gave to the meeting was the fact that Kemp supporters, aware that the poll would show Bush with the most support, quickly organized a straw poll of C-PAC participants. That poll favored the New York congressman 151-25 over the vice president.

The less militant mood at the conference was of some concern to political organizers who have benefited from the zeal of conservatives in the past.

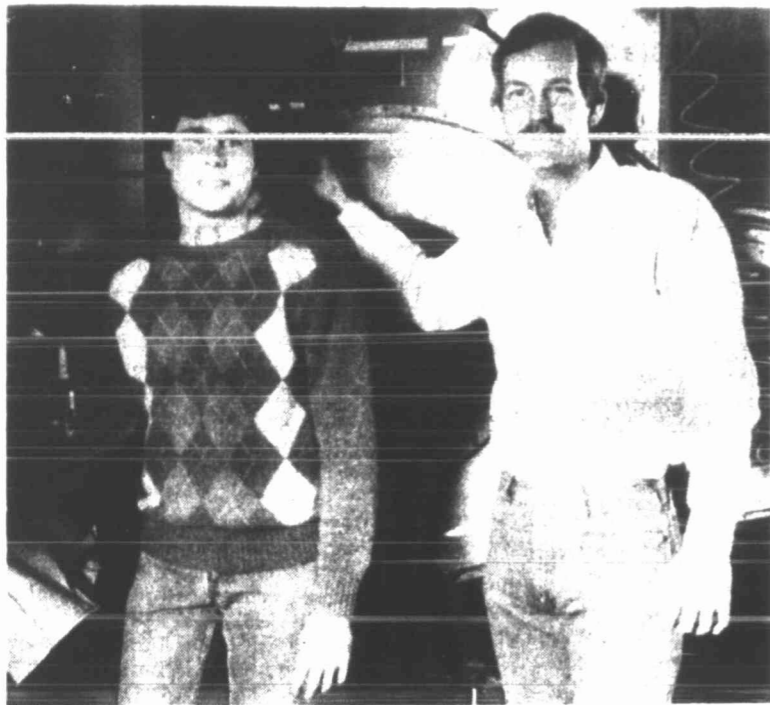

"We've been successful in toppling the government," said John P. Maxwell, executive director of Campaign for Prosperity, Kemp's political action committee.

As a result, he added, the emotionalism is missing.

"We've got to find new ways to make people mad enough and dedicated enough," Maxwell said.

Class project grows into symbol of success

Kelly Blake, left, and Andy Kocher pose at one of their three dry cleaning stores in Wichita Falls. They started their business while attending an entrepreneurship class at Midwestern State University.

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — Andy Kocher and Kelly Blake hardly look old enough to own a laundry and dry cleaning plant, much less three of them, but the two 25-year-old business graduates are examples of Midwestern State University's emphasis on entrepreneurship.

"We hadn't planned on getting into this business. I guess you could say we goofed around in that class (entrepreneurship) and waited until the last minute to come up with a project," said Blake.

"Yeah, that's probably why we only got a B in the class," said

Kocher.

"But we remind the instructor about it everytime he comes in now," said Blake.

The two were frantically seeking some kind of a class business project when they talked to a relative of Blake's who is in the dry cleaning business in Austin. That conversation put them in touch with the firm which sells Comet Cleaners franchises and led them to where they are today.

They are both quick to say how helpful the franchising firm was when they were getting started.

"We really didn't know a lot about this, and they were super nice to us," said Kocher.

They recently opened their third store.

Today, they have 20 people on their company's payroll. The two partners admit it's a lot of work with each putting in 12-14 hours a day, six days a week.

Both admit their social lives suffer from such hours. Blake says he doesn't get down to the Dallas-Fort Worth area to see his girl friend nearly as often as he'd like.

Kocher said most of his dates are confined to Saturday nights and Sundays. Neither partner seems to mind having to get up at 5 a.m., but both admit it's sometimes hard to get up at that hour on a Monday morning.

In the 2½ years they've operated the laundries and dry cleaners, the longest either has been able to take off at once has been four days last summer, but they hope this will change soon.

Asked about hobbies, the two replied almost in unison that "sleeping" occupied most of the time they weren't working.

Collector had eye for guns

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — A vault-like room at Texas A&M University's student center houses what curators say is one of the finest collections of vintage and historic firearms.

The collection, once owned by dairy magnate Carl Metzger, spans 500 years and includes about 1,100 guns and accoutrements.

At one end of the room, under a sealed glass case, rests a 7-inch hand-held cannon from 14th-century China. A huge "Hemingwayesque" elephant gun lies nearby.

Metzger was an avid hunter who traveled the world looking for rare or unusual firearms. He would delight companions by showing up at a hunt armed with ancient fowling pieces such as a 16th-century crossbow or an ebony-and-ivory Oriental piece from the early 1700s.

Metzger left the collection to the university when he died in 1949.

Curator Jim Earle, professor of engineering design graphics who shares Metzger's love for unique firearms, said the collection has been valued at $2 million.

"This collection would probably rank as one of the top five or six in the country," Earle said. "There are collections with more guns than this, but not of this quality."

The weapons are taken out of carefully-sealed glass cases once a year for oiling, Earle said.

Pointing to a brace of boxed dueling pistols from the early 1800s, Earle said society's attitude toward firearms has changed drastically.

"Guns were a form of art in those days. There were given as gifts; they were very expensive," he said.

China Long's Bachelor's Degree Paid Off

"I knew educated people generally have a better quality of life"

China Long's professional life could have ended with the closing of Webb Air Force Base in 1977, but it didn't. It just began.

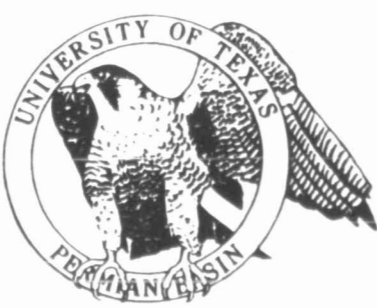

"I had seventeen years in civil service, three short of retirement. I could have transferred anywhere in the world, but I wanted to stay in Big Spring," she said.

So Long decided to travel the 55 miles from her home to The University of Texas of the Permian Basin every day for a year. "I decided a long time ago I was going to be 50 whether I got a degree or not—it's never too late. I knew that educated people generally have a better quality of life. A college degree doesn't insure success, but it shows that you're willing to put forth the effort to attain a goal."

Long graduated from high school in 1956 and completed a year at Howard College before she married. Then over the next 15-20 years she kept taking courses until she earned her associates degree at her hometown college.

"When I got to U. T. Permian Basin, I found that an older student has a definite advantage; you have more life experience to relate to the material you study." Long also took advantage of U. T. Permian Basin's unique self-paced instruction courses that allowed her to complete work on her own time without the added pressure of classes to attend.

You can reach your potential with a bachelor's or master's degree from U.T. Permian Basin. See Teresa Brockman at Howard College's "Educational Pursuit" College Night. Tuesday February 4, 6:30-8:30 p.m. in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Self-examination to detect melanoma

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What are the chances of cure from a melanoma? I saw a suspicious mole on my side, and had it looked at. My doctor removed it and he said I shouldn't have any problems. I think you should stress self-examination to detect these dangerous moles. — Mrs. K.F.

When discovered early, as I assume yours was, there's almost 100 percent chance of complete cure of melanoma (skin cancer). Without wasting time, let me get right to your great suggestion about urging self-examination. We all have some harmless patches on the body. They can even fool the experts. However, here's what to look for:

xxA brown spot with an irregular perimeter.

xxOne that is multicolored, with browns, blacks, reds and whites intermingled.

xxA spot greater than a quarter-inch at the largest diameter.

xxA spot that undergoes changes, as in size, shape, color or surface texture.

xxAn itching and redness of surrounding skin.

Some moles are present at birth, and they can change to melanoma.

The chances, in fact, are quite high, so many doctors now recommend immediate removal of this kind. Others favor leaving them alone, but keeping close watch.

When you inspect for melanoma, look at the entire body. Last year, 5,500 people died from melanomas that might have been removed successfully if reported soon enough. A spot that makes an appearance after age 40 is suspect.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am so angry with my physician because he just won't prescribe sleeping pills for my insomnia. He gives me the warm-glass-of-milk routine. Is he afraid that I, at my age (68), will become addicted to anything? — Mrs. P.H.

It sounds like a simple enough request. But let me be a devil's advocate for your doctor.

I could rattle off a page of reasons why a doctor would be reluctant to prescribe these potent hypnotic medicines. Potential for addiction would, in fact, be rather low on the list.

For the record

An article announcing the Jennings-Burleson wedding in Sunday's paper incorrectly stated the name of the bride's grandparents. The name should have read Mr. and Mrs. James H. Jennings.

Dear Abby

'Just Say No' letter draws 8,000 responses

DEAR ABBY: Last August you printed a letter from Angel Wiltz describing the "Just Say No" clubs, made up of children 7-12 years old who use positive peer pressure to support each other in their commitment to lead drug-free lives. As a result of Angel's letter in your column, 8,000 people wrote or phoned for information, and hundreds of clubs have formed in cities and towns across the country!

Oakland Parents in Action, sponsor of the "Just Say No" charter club, has published a book explaining the clubs and how to start one. The book includes suggestions for projects and activities, discusses fund raising and recruitment, and lists a number of resources for information about preventing drug abuse. "Just Say No: Stopping Drug Abuse Before It Starts" costs $3.50. Checks should be made out to OPA, and orders under $10 must be prepaid. (Quantity discounts are available.)

"Just Say No" clubs are organizing an international Walk Against Drugs on May 22. Five million children and teen-agers are expected to take part. Information about the walk is contained in the book. Oakland Parents in Action is compiling a national "Just Say No" directory, and is asking clubs around the country to contact us so that they may be included.

We now have a toll-free "Just Say No" information line — (800) 258-2766 — which operates Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Pacific time. Abby, you have helped us so much already. Will you please help us again and put this in your column?

JOAN BRANN, PROJECT DIRECTOR, OAKLAND PARENTS IN ACTION
DEAR JOAN: I just said yes!

DEAR ABBY: My problem is that I am vastly smarter than virtually everyone I know — at least I think I am.

This troubles me, because shortly after I have begun a conversation with someone — anyone from my dentist to my wife — I begin to realize that they are intellectually inferior, and I regard what they say as only amusing, if not utterly stupid. Yet, I don't want to become an isolated hermit, or associate exclusively with super-intellects. What should I do?

SMART BUT CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: For openers, you could quit rating everyone you meet by where you perceive them to be intellectually. Why not relax your standards a bit, and try harder to find something worthwhile in what your wife has to say — and your dentist as well!

I think your chances for becoming a hermit are infinitely better than associating exclusively with the super-intellects, who may find you more confused than smart.

DEAR ABBY: My father is very fat, and he is getting fatter because he doesn't do any kind of exercise and he eats everything he knows he shouldn't. He is supposed to be on a special diet, but every night I catch him sneaking a handful of cookies or a gigantic bowl of ice cream. When I tell him he shouldn't eat that stuff, he gets very angry. I am his 11-year-old daughter, but please don't use my name because he knows who he is, and I would never hear the end of it.

Don't tell me to tell my mother. She knows all about it, but Dad won't listen to her either. How can I help him?

WORRIED DAUGHTER

DEAR WORRIED: You are a very loving and caring daughter, but the only person who can help your father is himself. Finding his 11-year-old daughter standing guard over the bacon he has brought home only adds to his guilt and frustration. Offer lots of love, but hold the advice.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (398 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

To live and die in the lane. Or more specifically, the free throw line. It's getting to be an increasingly popular and melancholy song for the Howard College Hawks.

Another victory slipped away from the Hawks Monday night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum, as visiting Western Texas College hit four crucial free throws in the final seconds to secure their sixth conference win, 75-71.

It was a particularly tough loss for the Hawks, who played the Westerners close the entire game. But as has been the case in almost all of Howard's recent losses, free throws spelled the difference.

The Hawks hit only 11 of 23 from the charity stripe and missed two front end opportunities in the final minutes that would have kept them in the lead. Western was not much better, hitting only 13 of 23 from the line. But when the game was on the line, Duster guards Alvin Lee and George Moore netted all four of their free shots.

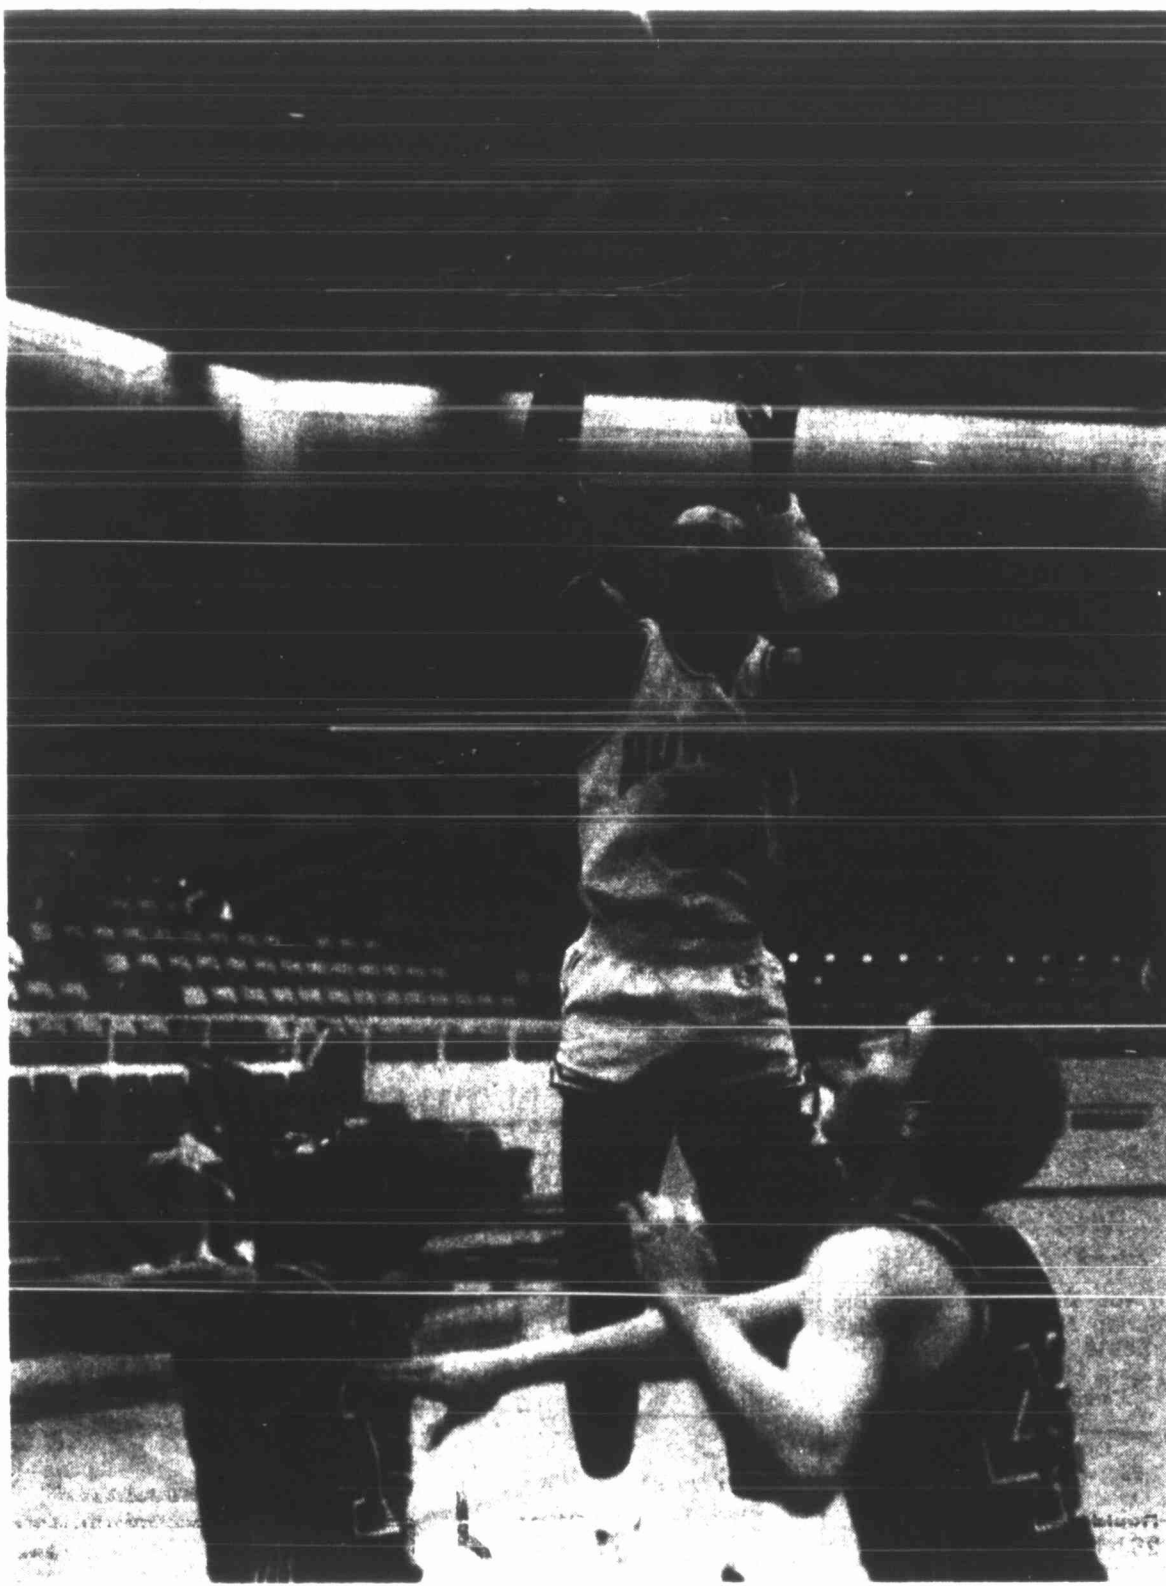

But all was not free throws. The game also showcased two of the best sophomores in the WJCAC, Western forward James Dawn and Howard post Walt Reynolds.

The two put on a show in the second half with Dawn pumping in 24 of his game high 34 points and Reynolds 16 of his team-high 24 points to lead their teams down the stretch. Reynolds also had a game-high 16 rebounds.

The Hawks began the game running their motion offense to perfection against Western's match-up zone, pulling out to an 18-10 lead behind the scoring of Reynolds and Mike McCall, who had 10 first half points.

The Hawks ran into foul trouble midway through the first half, sending the Westerners into the bonus. This allowed the visitors to tie the game at 24-24 on a drive by Alvin Hicks with 7:18 remaining in the half.

The two teams traded baskets through the rest of the half before

Howard College Hawks guard Walter Walker (30) goes up with a jumper against Western Texas Westerners defenders John Lewis (12) and Ed Teal (42) in Monday night WJCAC action at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The Westerners got even with Howard for an earlier setback in December.

Dynamic Duo does number on Queens

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

Coming into the game, the Howard College Hawk-Queens knew they would have to stop Western Texas' dynamic duo, Brenda Welch and Pam Cox, if they were to have any chance of upsetting the tough Lady Dusters.

Welch and Cox entered the game as the second and third leading scorers in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference and they showed the Queens why, scoring 21 and 20 points respectively to lead their team to a 79-61 victory. This broke a three-game Howard winning streak last night at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

The inside play of the Lady Dusters, led by Welch, was too much for the Queens on this night as they constantly worked for position on rebounds and driving baskets. Welch also had help from fellow posts Gigi Robinson with eight points and guard Angela Jeans, who pulled down a team-high 10 rebounds from her point position.

And if the Lady Duster inside personnel wasn't getting the job done, Cox and Jeans quickly lit the scoreboard up with deadly outside shooting.

Howard countered with a game-high 25 points from off-guard Terri Powell whose long-range bombing kept the Queens within striking distance through most of the game. Queens post Carolyn Willand also had a fine game with 15 points, as did freshman Sophia Ish with a game-high 11 rebounds and nine points.

But in the end the Queens could not match the tenacious defense or patient offense of the Lady Dusters, whose consistent play finally wore down the Howard starters.

The Queens jumped to an early 7-4 lead and worked the ball well inside, but the Lady Dusters tied the game at 10-10 with 15:06 left in the half on a pair of baskets by Jeans and one by Cox.

Midway through th first period,

Western's pressure defense began to take its toll as the Lady Duster opened up a 22-16 lead on six unanswered points off Howard turnovers.

Howard scrapped back to within two, 26-24, on a pair of baskets by Powell and one each by Willand and Ish, but that was as close as they would get the remainder of the game.

Western began breaking the press with ease late in the period and also began dominating the offensive boards, enabling the visitors to pull out to a comfortable 40-32 lead at halftime. The Dusters' 17-10 rebounding edge and 4-10 turnover ratio were keys to the halftime bulge.

Western came out of the locker-room determined to keep the pressure on, opening a 48-36 lead with 16:40 remaining.

But Howard held tough behind the shooting of Powell, finally cutting the lead to 50-40 with 12:11 left in the game.

Following a timeout, Western began to pull away, using balanced scoring from the inside and outstanding pressure defense.

Five different Western players scored two baskets or more during a mid-period streak that raised their lead to an insurmountable 67-46 with 6:50 remaining.

Howard got into its full-court press with just over five minutes left in the game in a last-ditch effort to come back, but had little effect on the skilled Western ballhandlers. The Lady Dusters cruised to the 79-61 final tally.

It was win number 20 for the Lady Dusters and coach Kelly Chadwick against six losses. Western also stayed in the thick of the WJCAC title race with a 6-1 conference mark, one game behind number-one ranked Odessa College.

The Queens dropped to 3-5 in WJCAC play and to 9-15 on the year.

Lee kills Lady Steers upset hopes, 64-60

MIDLAND — The league-leading Midland Lee Lady Rebels got quite a scare from a scrappy Big Spring Lady Steers team last night before they came away with a 64-60 win in 4-5A basketball action.

The win leaves the Lady Rebels with a unblemished 13-0 district record. They have already clinched the district championship with one game remaining. Midland High and Abilene High are deadlocked for second with 10-3 records.

Heart-breaking losses have become a habit for Big Spring this season. Five of their 10 district losses have come by four points or less.

The game was close most of the way. The scored was tied 14-14 after one quarter of play and Lee held a 36-31 halftime lead. Lee opened up a 14 point lead midway through the third quarter. But behind the scoring of Teresa Pruitt and Monique Jones, Big Spring reeled off 14 unanswered points to knot the game at 49-49 early in the final quarter.

With 4:30 left in the game Big Spring scored five straight points to take a 54-51 lead. But the Lady Rebels kept their poise to rally for the win.

SWC lowers boom On Baylor basketball

WACO (AP) — The Southwest Conference's barring of Baylor's basketball team from play in the postseason tournament was disappointing and may sap the team's motivation for this season, Coach Gene Iba said.

Hit hard already by NCAA probation, suspensions and dismissals of players, the squad had counted on making the SWC tournament as an incentive, Iba said Monday after the SWC Executive Committee voted.

"I'm very disappointed with the executive committee's decision. We feel very strongly their decision is wrong," Iba said.

"We have adhered to the NCAA penalties 100 per cent and now the conference is adding to these. Although I haven't been in the league that long I don't ever remember them doing this."

"I really don't know what kind of motivation we will have for the remainder of the year and I don't think that's right. Ever since our situation with the NCAA started you haven't heard me say much but I think this is unjust."

"Our players feel they have paid for their wrongdoings. If they (the SWC) are worried about us beating someone in the tournament then maybe some of those teams don't belong there," Iba said. Baylor is under NCAA probation for rules violations and is also ineligible for the national tournament this season. The penalties include a ban on post-season play, and a reduction in scholarships. The Bears can be on television this year.

The Southwest Conference has a rule prohibiting its members from competing for the conference championship under such circumstances. The NCAA considers a post-season conference tournament as part of the regular season and had no objections to the Bears qualifying for it.

SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby said Baylor had asked for an interpretation of the conference rule covering SWC tournament participation after the NCAA sanctions went into effect last week.

The SWC Executive Committee made the interpretation during a conference telephone call Monday.

The SWC post-season tournament will be held Friday-Sunday, March 7-9, at Dallas' Reunion Arena.

Since it encompasses an eight-team format, the other eight schools now automatically qualify for the first round of games on Friday, March 7.

North Carolina remains on top in hoop poll

By The Associated Press For 15 years, the Western Kentucky Hilltoppers had to look up to see the Top 20 college basketball teams in America.

On Monday night, Western Kentucky celebrated its first appearance in the national rankings since 1971 with a 51-46 victory over Jacksonville, improving the Hilltoppers' record to 18-3.

"It is quite an honor to be ranked," Coach Clem Haskins said of his 19th-ranked team. "Our hard work of the last few years may be beginning to pay off. It's good for the university, but we can't afford to get wrapped up in the polls. We need to keep a low profile, get well prepared to play each time out, and play them one game at a time. The one thing the rankings do for you is get teams motivated to play harder against you."

The last time the Hilltoppers were ranked, they reached the Final Four and were No. 7 at season's end.

Meanwhile, North Carolina remained atop The Associated Press' rankings despite its first loss of the season last week.

After winning their first 21 games of the season, the Tar Heels fell 86-73 at Virginia last Thursday, then beat Clemson 85-67 Saturday. They received 58 of 62 first-place votes and 1,235 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters.

Georgia Tech, 17-2, which received three first-place votes and 1,118 points, moved from third to second, followed by Memphis State, 21-1, which also lost its first game last week. The Tigers fell one spot after their 76-72 defeat on the road at Virginia Tech on Saturday and had one first-place vote and 1,091 points, 29 more than No. 4 Duke, 20-2.

Oklahoma, 20-1, moved from sixth to fifth, followed by Kansas, 20-3, which had been fourth but suffered a 77-74 loss at Iowa State last week. Michigan, 19-2, jumped from ninth to seventh with 860 points, 41 more than Syracuse, 17-2, which jumped from its 11th-place ranking last week with a 68-64 victory over St. John's.

Nevada-Las Vegas, 21-2, improved one place from last week, while St. John's, 20-3 and seventh last week, rounded out the Top Ten.

Georgetown, which defeated Louisiana State 74-72 on national television Sunday, led the Second Ten, followed by Kentucky, Bradley, Notre Dame, Virginia Tech, Louisville, Texas-El Paso, Indiana, Western Kentucky and Alabama. Last week's Second Ten was Syracuse, Georgetown, Bradley, Notre Dame, Indiana, Virginia Tech, Louisiana State, Louisville, Texas-El Paso and Richmond.

Western Kentucky, leader in the Sun Belt Conference race, and Alabama, 15-4 and in second place behind Kentucky in the Southeastern Conference, are both making their first appearance in the Top Twenty this season.

Falling from the ranks of the ranked were Louisiana State and Richmond.

Louisiana State, 16-6, lost three games last week — two to ranked teams. Then-No. 8 Kentucky beat the Tigers on a buzzer shot 54-52. Georgia coasted to an easy 92-76 victory over Louisiana State, and the Tigers fell to Georgetown on Sunday.

Richmond, which last week made its first appearance in the Top Twenty since 1954, dropped two of three games to fall to 17-3. The Spiders lost to Old Dominion 62-59 and Virginia Tech 71-67 before saving the week with a 67-47 victory over William & Mary on Saturday.

 Howard point guard Vernard Goode hit the final six points to put the Hawks up 35-34 going into the locker room.

Dawn quickly asserted himself in the second half, scoring eight straight points as Western grabbed the lead, 46-41, for the first time in the game.

But the Hawks never let the Westerners out of sight. Mike Duran hit a pair of free throws and Trey Hughes, who has been out most of the season with bone chips, hit a driving jumper to pull the Hawks to within one 48-47.

Midway through the second half, Western got another eight point burst off three consecutive Hawk turnovers building their lead back to eight, 60-52, with 8:42 left in the game.

Reynolds kept the Hawks close with some excellent play in the paint, scoring three straight baskets to close the gap. At the 3:42 mark, Reynolds hit a pair of free throws to put the Hawks back in the lead 64-63.

The two teams traded baskets until Dawn canned a pair of turnaround jumpers to put the Westerners back in the lead for good, 71-67 with 1:01 remaining.

From there it was game of foul and free throw strategy.

Duran went to the line for Howard with 28 seconds remaining and hit both foul shots to pull the Hawks within two, 71-69. Alvin Lee then stepped to the line for Western and canned both his shots.

Reynolds scored the final Howard points on a rebound and shot with 13 seconds left. The Hawks fouled Moore with 11 seconds left and the sophomore guard iced the game with a pair of free throws for the final 75-71 score.

Howard dropped to 2-7 in WJCAC play and 8-14 on the year. Three Hawks besides Reynolds scored in double figures, McCall with 14 points, Goode with 11, and Duran with 10.

Rockets edge Nuggets, 104-102

By The Associated Press
 It was a night to forget for National Basketball Association scoring leaders Alex English and Adrian Dantley.

English averaged 20.5 points per game for Denver this season, managed only 14 points on 6-for-23 shooting as the Houston Rockets edged the Nuggets 104-102. Dantley, averaging 29.3, was held to 12 in Utah's 112-104 loss to San Antonio.

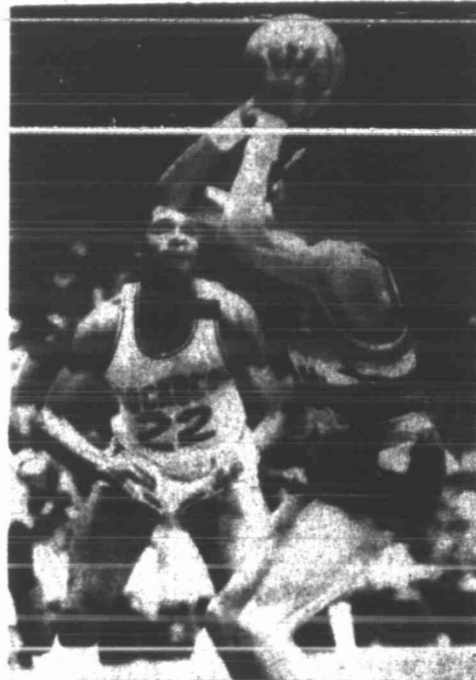

"We were really going after Dantley from every angle every time he got the ball," said Spurs' guard Wes Matthews, who scored nine of his 16 points in the final nine minutes to lead a San Antonio rally. "That may have been the difference in the game. If he gets his usual 29, maybe they win it."

"We really concentrated on Dantley," Spurs Coach Cotton Fitzsimmons said. "We wanted to make him give it up every time he got it, which is about what he had to do most of the time. You're doing a nice defensive job any time you hold a guy like Dantley to 12 points. It was a gutsy performance by our people."

English was suffering from a hyper-extended knee, an injury that Denver Coach Doug Moe had said earlier in the day would sideline his star forward for two weeks. English, however, said the problem was not that serious.

"My knee never was on a status of not playing," English said. "I hyper-extended it but I was never not going to play."

In the only other NBA game Monday,

 Denver Nuggets forward Alex English looks for an open teammate to pass the ball to as Houston Rockets forward Rodney McCray guards him in first quarter action Monday night at the Summit in Houston.

Sacramento edged New York 94-90.

John Lucas had 29 points and 12 assists and Akeem Olujuwon added 23 points and 15 rebounds in Houston's victory over Denver.

Lucas said the bench should get the credit for Houston, which rallied from a 15-point deficit in the second half to win the 25th time in 26 home games.

"The play of Robert Reid and the rest of the bench was a big difference," Lucas said. "I thought the play of the game was Reid's basket that tied it at 99-99. He told me that he wanted the ball and we got it to him."

After Reid's basket, Olujuwon put the Rockets ahead for good with a three-point play with 57 seconds left.

Rockets Coach Bill Fitch said Olujuwon played with an injured hand.

"He did pretty good for a one-handed man," Fitch said. "He had a hard time shooting but the competitive juice got flowing."

The Rockets trailed 57-46 at halftime as Ralph Sampson, Reid and Jim Petersen picked up three fouls.

Houston, which was outscored 32-19 in the second quarter, fell behind by 15 points early in the third quarter before rallying to an 81-77 deficit starting the fourth quarter.

Wayne Cooper took up the slack for English, hitting 27 points for the Nuggets.

Spurs 112, Jazz 104
 Artis Gilmore had 26 points and 12 rebounds for San Antonio, which outscored Utah 17-4 down the stretch.

The Jazz led 92-90 with 8:22 remaining, but the Spurs' spurt gave them a 107-96 advantage. Utah had led 81-73 in the third period.

DENNIS THE MENACE

THE FAMILY CIRCUS

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR WEDNESDAY, FEB. 5, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon, you are under good influences to decide the policies and the goals under which you would most like to live in the days ahead and to make changes where necessary.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) You get fine ideas in the morning, and should discuss them with one who can give you backing you need.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Organize your activities more intelligently so that you make greater progress and increase happiness.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A talk with a partner can bring fine ideas that should be put in motion quickly so that you can both benefit from them.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Take time to make promises that you have made work more efficiently and profitably for you.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Spend the morning perfecting some special talents you possess and then make a big hit with them in the afternoon and evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Talk over with kin how to make your home more charming and smooth-running, and then make the right changes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning is fine for handling correspondence and clearing your desk of bills. Then the evening can be charming at home.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Get busy working out present financial arrangements in the morning, and tonight concentrate on how to be more productive.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Study your wishes carefully and know how best to attain them, then full speed ahead at gaining them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get the advice you need from experts so that you can gain what means the most to you.

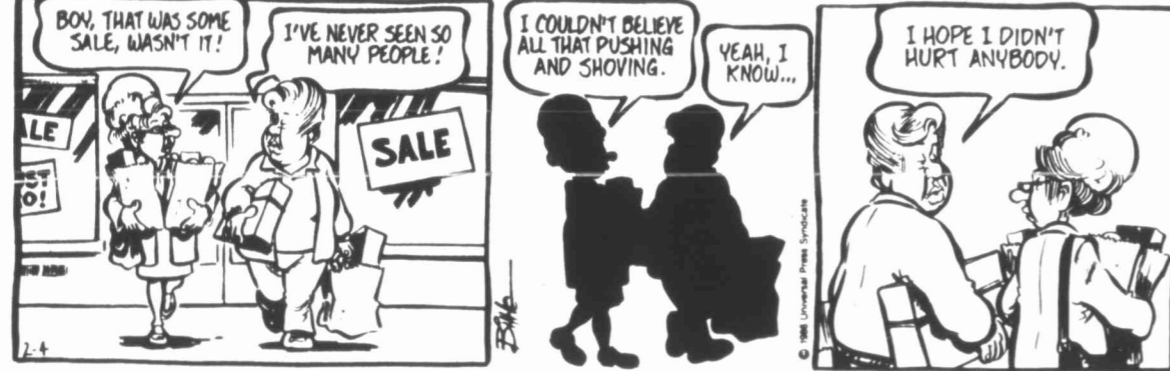

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Be positive in going after your aims in the morning, but tonight use tact and subtle ways. Be charming.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handle any credit or public affairs in the morning, and tonight pursue personal desires, and gain them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will want to learn a great deal and possess a fine mentality. Give as thorough an educational course as you can and your progeny will make very good use of it, especially in the business world, and can be very successful. Make sure that spiritual training is given early for best results.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Cop gets respect from both sides of the law

PARIS (AP) — Jacques Mesrine, once France's most wanted criminal, called Robert Broussard "a great cop." Broussard calls Mesrine "a great thief."

They drank champagne together in 1973 after Broussard persuaded Mesrine to lay down his weapons and surrender. Six years and a prison escape later, Broussard and his men gunned Mesrine down, pumping 18 bullets into his body.

The Mesrine saga stands out among an illustrious series of cases that have made Broussard this nation's best known and, it is said, best loved policeman. He is nicknamed "Super-Cop," "Bulldozer" and "Zorro."

In the 1973 episode, Broussard and his men found Mesrine holed up in an apartment in southern Paris. He was wanted for murder, kidnapping and robbery. Trapped, Mesrine called to Broussard to disarm himself and come get him. The policeman said he would, if Mesrine also would lay down his weapons.

Mesrine then surrendered, flourishing a cigar in a show of bravado, and invited Broussard and his men inside for a glass of champagne.

The killing of Mesrine in 1979 was a rare episode of bloodletting in Broussard's 25-year career.

More in the Broussard style were the delicate, 30-hour negotiations to free judges, jury and spectators held at gunpoint by three men in a Nantes courtroom in December. Pure Broussard: sensational, high-risk psychodrama with a happy ending, and not a drop of blood spilled.

"For the public, Broussard is, before anything else, an image:

that of the cowboy, pure and tough, who always wins," the newspaper Le Figaro once wrote.

The Nantes drama was Broussard's first public appearance since Interior Minister Pierre Joxe plucked him from tracking separatists in Corsica a year ago, put him in suit and tie, and gave him operational control of France's battle against terrorism.

It also was the first appearance of RAID, a special police action squad Broussard formed.

Broussard, boyish face ringed with a shock of salt-and-pepper hair and closely cropped beard, begs off the super-cop label.

"I've always been surrounded by extremely well-chosen, well-trained and determined men," he says. "It's not just Broussard knocking at the door."

But he admits he is accorded an uncommon respect among criminals.

"I have a certain authority vis-a-vis criminals. It's obvious that a lot of big-time gangsters like to talk to someone on their own level, not with a little cop, as they call it. ..."

"It can be a positive element, but it's not without risk. To rub out Broussard, that would be a nice hunting trophy."

For all but his first year as a policeman, Broussard, now 49, has been in the field. He has concentrated for the last 14 years on some 50 hostage situations.

His coups include the arrest in 1975 of Jean-Charles Willoquet, a much-wanted lieutenant of Mesrine; negotiations to end the 1978 seizure of the Iraqi Embassy, and a 15-hour session to gain the surrender of Armenian terrorists in the Turkish Consulate in 1981.

"My big advantage is ... knowing my clientele, their behavior, their reactions ... their weak points and, on the other side, the feelings of superiority in some," Broussard explained.

But the "Broussard method" includes something else.

"Even with a criminal of the worst kind there is always a little something that is positive. ... And when there is something even a little positive, there must be a minimum of respect."

Broussard also stresses fair play: "Good fights we've known," he said, but once a criminal raises his hands, puts down his weapon, "that's where this notion of respect for the adversary comes in."

There are some who claim Mesrine died without that benefit. If anything has compromised

Broussard's image, it is that accusation.

Mesrine "died as he wanted to," said Broussard.

Wanted in France, Canada and Belgium, following the third prison break of his criminal career in 1978, Mesrine was gunned down in November 1979 at the wheel of his car in northern Paris. Broussard insists Mesrine was reaching for a grenade when police opened fire.

Broussard said that at the trial following his 1973 arrest, Mesrine "declared that the next time we wouldn't drink champagne ... that it would take place in the street and the fastest guy on the draw would win."

"He warned me in front of everyone: 'Broussard, you're a nice guy, but the next time I'll be forced to shoot.'"

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Accounting firm can help with 1985 tax returns

April 15 is around the corner. Now is the time to work on your 1985 income taxes.

Professional Business Services offers its clients tax consulting, help with all types of tax returns, bookkeeping services, and assistance in the preparation of payroll reports and insurance reports.

Patsy Henry, owner, has extensive experience in all types of tax returns. She was associated with Clyde Hollingsworth, C.P.A. for 7½ years, where most of the business was tax accounting. Prior to his death, she worked with Hollingsworth on corporation, Sub S, partnership, individual and fiduciary returns.

"Anybody that has tax questions, I'm willing to help them," from someone wondering whether to itemize to others with complicated returns, she said. For people who make estimated tax payments, she reminds them of upcoming payment deadlines.

"Some individuals have extensive oil and gas operations," she said. Because oil and gas work is complicated, many investors prefer to place their bookkeeping in the hands of a professional and ask Mrs. Henry and Professional Business Services to handle bookkeeping and business reports.

Although Professional Business Services opened its doors last August, Mrs. Henry has been an accountant 17 years since 1968. She kept books for United Chemical and an oil and gas corporation in Hobbs, N.M. and Mesa Irrigation in Lamesa before joining Clyde Hollingsworth, C.P.A. With Hollingsworth, she also encountered the accounting and tax needs of farmers. She has a degree in accounting from Oklahoma State University.

Professional Business Services is located at 602 N. Lamesa Highway. It is open from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays during the year with expanded hours during tax season.

If you need help with your income taxes or bookkeeping, contact Professional Business Services by calling 267-5315.

TAX TIME — Patsy Henry, accountant and owner of Professional Business Services, reminds people that it is time to start working on 1985 income tax returns.
