Price decline stings drillers

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Staff Writer

Oil well drilling contractors in the Big Spring area have been hurt by the recent drop in oil prices, but most say it is too early to predict how much.

Oil prices started sliding from the $27 a barrel level on Jan. 15. Five days later, the price of West Texas Intermediate crude fell $2.25 a barrel to $24.75 on spot markets. West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark of U.S. oil, was trading on spot markets at about $32 per barrel in December 1985. That figure has been cut in half, with spot market prices for WTI hovering at around the $15.50 mark as of Tuesday.

Pappy Warneke, manager of Robinson Drilling in Big Spring, says the higher capital drilling prospects will suffer first. "All the offshore drilling and Alaskan drilling will be cut back initially because it's so expensive to operate those big rigs," he said. "Eighteen dollars a barrel oil won't pay for those deep off-shore wells and stuff being drilled in the permafrost. "Locally, we've seen some cutbacks in the past couple of weeks but none of our first quarter contracts have been canceled."

After the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced in December it intended to pursue a larger share of the world

Slump may not show up at pump

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil prices have dropped by more than a third since the year began because of a market war between OPEC and non-OPEC producers, but some analysts say they doubt U.S. gasoline consumers will see a similar decline at the pump.

Prices headed toward $15 a barrel in tumultuous trading Tuesday, the lowest since the late 1970s, after an Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting broke up without devising a strategy to defend the cartel's share of the oversupplied market.

Traders reacted to reports that Saudi Arabia, Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates, among the richest OPEC members, will inundate the world with cheap oil to force non-members Britain, Norway and Mexico to curtail production.

"Arabian producers have effectively decided they are going to sacrifice the poorer members of OPEC on the altar of market share," said Peter Beutel, assistant director of Rudolf Wolff Energy Futures Inc., a New York commodities futures trader. "They're out to prove to Britain and anybody else, 'If you're not going to cooperate, you're going to be destroyed.'"

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the March delivery price of West Texas Intermediate, the best-known U.S. crude, plummeted to $15.44 a barrel Tuesday from Monday's close of $17.36.

In Europe, Britain's Brent crude traded Tuesday for $15.50 a barrel in the open market, the lowest this decade. It recovered to the $16.30-a-barrel level today based on a rumor that oil ministers of Norway and Britain planned a special meeting, but the rumor was later proved false.

In Tokyo, Dubai crude, the best-known oil in Japan's market, was quoted at $14.50 a barrel today, compared with $17 a barrel last week. The slide has deeply divided OPEC, which once got $40 for a 42-gallon barrel of oil when the 13-nation group dictated prices in the 1970s.

Many analysts say the decline will boost the economies of the United States, Japan, Western Europe and other industrialized oil importers by restraining inflation.

Loss of oil taxes has state upset

AUSTIN (AP) — As nervous state officials keep watch on sliding worldwide oil prices, the comptroller says his office will take a new look at the state's financial position.

But Gov. Mark White said Tuesday he doesn't yet see the need to call a special budget-cutting session of the Legislature.

Oil prices on the spot market tumbled to below $18 per barrel on Monday for the first time this decade, causing increased worries for state officials.

Some 13 percent of state government revenues come from taxes on oil and gas.

Comptroller Bob Bullock said Tuesday that "Mexico's decision over the weekend to drop oil prices to $20 a barrel may have been the straw that broke the camel's back in terms of relatively stable prices."

Bullock said Mexico's oil exports account for about 17 percent of the imported oil used in the United States, and that fact alone will have a strong influence on the Budget seeks hike in defense outlay

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan today sent Congress a "hard choices" $99.4-billion budget for fiscal 1987 that would meet targets of the nation's new budget-balancing law through deep cuts in domestic programs and auctioning an array of federal assets.

While few domestic programs were spared the budget knife, the president asked Congress for an increase in defense outlays in 1987 of $15.9 billion, up 6.2 percent from last year, and proposed a 37.8 percent increase over the next five years. The budget would leave all major weapons systems intact while proposing a 75 percent increase in the president's "Star Wars" program of defense against nuclear missiles.

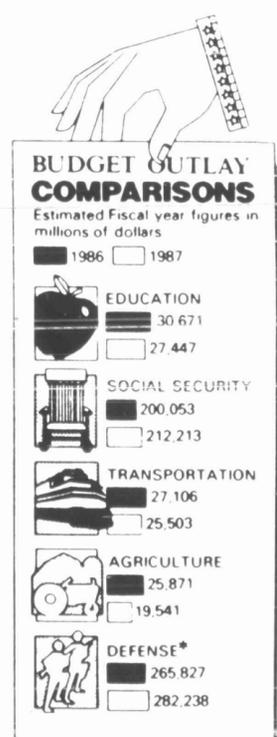

The budget would slash, freeze in place or eliminate scores of civilian programs — while granting a small, $94-million increase in funding to the nation's space program.

It would knock a million college students off aid rolls, cut Medicare and Medicaid health programs for the poor and elderly and recycle many of the program eliminations sought unsuccessfully by the president last year.

The budget would raise fees for using the national parks, impose a $10-per-angler licensing fee for fishing in the ocean, trim benefits under the GI bill, cut federal support for the Interstate Highway system and require able-bodied welfare recipients to engage in some "work-related activity" to continue receiving federal help.

In all, the budget calls for domestic spending cuts of $25.6 billion. Many of the proposals, including the government-wide spending total, had been leaked in advance.

It was the first presidential budget to be submitted under the new Gramm-Rudman budget law, which would force an end to government deficit spending by 1991. Automatic cuts of around $40 billion will be triggered next October under the law if there is a budget deadlock between Reagan and Congress.

The first round of Gramm-Rudman cuts, totalling $11.7 billion, have already been triggered. They will take effect on March 1. Figures in the president's new budget reflect the lower spending levels already in place because of these initial cuts.

In his budget message, Reagan told Congress that his plan would "set the deficit on a downward path to a balanced budget by 1991." Reagan said the proposals he wanted would present Congress with "hard choices... but we must find the will to face up to our responsibilities."

But few in Congress held out much likelihood that the president's budget would survive major modification in the coming months of struggle over spending and taxes.

"I don't think there are 25 votes in the United States Senate for the budget," said Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J. And Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, called it "DBA — dead before arrival."

Many senior members of both parties in Congress have expressed doubts that the federal budget can be balanced with spending cuts alone as Reagan prefers. Senate Republicans have recently urged Reagan to consider a compromise including some new taxes — possibly an oil import fee.

Signing the budget proposal in the Oval Office today, Reagan held open the possibility of approving an oil import fee to offset any revenue lost by changes in a tax overhaul bill pending in the Senate. "I've said that I'm willing to look at that, on that basis," Reagan said.

Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, proposed today that Reagan call a budget summit "to see if we can put a package together."

The president's budget projected total receipts of $850.4 billion.

Wagon train makes Capitol visit

AUSTIN (AP) — The wagons circled the Capitol on Tuesday, a tribute to the negotiating talents of Sesquicentennial Wagon Train leaders and local traffic officials.

Last week, it looked like the horse-powered entourage might not be welcomed in downtown Austin because of the potential traffic mess. But Austin police eventually decided the whole thing would be manageable.

"Things have worked out beautifully," Wagon Train Association president Charles Oliver of Dallas said as he watched the approximately 50 wagons roll past the Capitol.

"The wagon train in a city environment always presents a traffic problem. But that's been worked out and hopefully we're not too much of a detriment to the traffic," he said.

"Coming to the Capitol is one of the main highlights of the trip," said wagon train member Jerry Eason of Longview.

The long trip began Jan. 2 in Sulphur Springs and is scheduled to end July 3 in Fort Worth. The route — a circuitous one — next swings west toward El Paso.

"It's not the most direct route between Sulphur Springs and Fort Worth, but it may be the fun route," Gov. Mark White pointed out as he welcomed the wagon train to Austin.

Hundreds of school children lined the Capitol to watch the wagons. They cheered and whooped as the modern pioneers rolled by.

"I think it's very important that all of them get a taste of the flavor of the history of this state — to learn to love it as all of us do," White said of the children.

Will Howard, chairman of the Travis County Sesquicentennial Committee, told the spectators they were seeing living history, an almost-exact replay of the wagon trains that brought settlers west.

"This is literally and exactly how they did it. They didn't have Velcro though," he said, referring to some of the fittings on the wagons.

The history of the Capitol and the wagon trains cross, said Howard. "This Capitol was put here and 80 percent of the justification for it was purely to draw the population westward. We wanted to populate this great land that we had," he said.

After a brief ceremony, Howard said the Capitol roll-by was proof that the wagon train can co-exist with modern traffic.

"If you can imagine 150 wagons, instead of 60, then you're talking about gridlock," he said.

"And now at this point I wish to challenge San Antonio. If the wagon train can come here to the Capitol it can go to the Alamo on March 2," Howard said.

Police Beat

Man arrested after wreck

Elvin Greathouse Jr., 38, of 1000 W. Fourth St. was arrested on suspicion of driving while intoxicated after the car he was driving was involved in a minor accident with a school bus Tuesday afternoon.

According to a police accident report, the bus, driven by Carolann Winbush of Sterling City Route, was unloading students on Randolph St. at Albrook when it was struck in the left rear by Greathouse's car as he attempted to pass. The bus had its red flashers operating at the time, the report showed.

Greathouse left the scene but returned a short time later and he was arrested, the report stated.

Thomas Lewis of 1209 Scurry St. told police Tuesday night that someone stole camera and stereo equipment valued at $1,272.90 from his house Tuesday night.

Vada Minnick of 1107 Mulberry told police Tuesday that someone forged a $160 check that cleared the First National Bank

Tuesday. James Williams of 2906 Cherokee St. told police Tuesday night that someone he knows fired shots at him in the 800 block of Wyoming St. Tuesday night.

Jack Grey of 1212 Lloyd St. told police Tuesday evening that someone entered his car and stole $85 while it was parked that evening at Permian Distributing.

Anthony Barber, 20, 1207 Ridge Road was arrested Tuesday on a second charge of driving without insurance.

Joe Diaz of 711 N.W. 8th St. was arrested Tuesday afternoon on suspicion of enticing a child.

Shirley Ann Larry, 26, of 1002 N. Main St. was arrested Tuesday afternoon for driving with a suspended license.

Juanita Flores of 1011 E. 13th St. told police early Wednesday morning that someone she knows assaulted her in her home late Tuesday night.

Drillers

Continued from page 1-A oil market instead of continuing to prop up prices by restricting production, prices have been plummeting.

"It (the price drop) really didn't come as a surprise once it got started," said Jim Williams, manager of Riley Drilling in Big Spring.

On Tuesday, spot market oil prices tumbled below $16 a barrel for the first time this decade. Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, OPEC's president, predicted a "major price collapse" unless producers restrain output.

"We haven't had any contractors back out yet, but the independent producers are getting a little worried," Riley said. "We drill for a lot of major companies like Chevron, ARCO and Texaco and a few independents who we're familiar with, so we haven't had any trouble collecting on this quarter's jobs."

Some contractors in the Permian Basin are desperate enough for business to take jobs below cost just to keep their business operating. This is not the case, yet, for most drilling contractors in Big Spring.

"I don't think I would have a job very long if I willingly bid on a job that I knew would lose money on," said Warneke. "I look over every project thoroughly, so even though we've dropped our prices we're able to stay in business."

Williams said, "We're not losing money. But it's getting down to around cost figures for our first quarter contracts."

Chuck Richardson, well operations manager for Harmony Drilling in Big Spring, admitted that his company has been forced to drill below cost on some first quarter contracts.

"Of course we've had to drop prices since the first of the year. We're even drilling some a little below cost right now," he said. "Eventually I think we're going to need some cooperation from the government to get through this period. Our prices for materials and labor are too high to justify drilling at the current price per barrel."

Richardson said independent investors have been canceling drilling projects with Harmony Drilling during the past three weeks.

There also is some indication major oil companies may be cutting back on drilling.

But one Odessa economist said the outcome could be good for those drilling companies that manage to pull through the oil patch's latest economic hardship.

If the oil price doesn't recover, some businessmen, especially in the drilling business, could be facing hardships, said Jim Williams, a partner in Texas Business Forecasts, a business consulting company in Odessa.

A sharp price drop could weed out financially weak companies, he predicted.

After a shakeout, fewer businesses would compete for drilling costs, drilling prices would increase and the drilling business would become more profitable, the business consultant told the Associated Press.

"It will certainly be good for the survivors," he said.

State

Bullock said he wrote White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby and House Speaker Gib Lewis, D-Fort Worth, telling them of plans to update the state's financial position.

"Even though world oil prices have been volatile, I'm not ready to throw out the current revenue estimate," Bullock said. "But the oil situation that has unfolded in the past three weeks has serious implications for Texas and its finances."

The state government's current budget is based on Bullock's last estimate that taxable oil sales, based largely on long-term contracts, would average about $25 a barrel during this fiscal year and near $24 the following year.

Asked about Bullock's statement, White said the oil price drop has left him "obviously very concerned about... its impact on the state's financial health."

However, White said, "unless new information proves otherwise, I do not think it's necessary to call a special session at this time."

Ray Perryman, an economic forecaster at Baylor University, said contract oil prices still are hovering just above the price threshold — $22.50 to $23.50 per barrel — for economic growth in Texas.

Human bones found near city

The Howard County sheriff's department is attempting to identify human skeletal remains discovered five miles north of Big Spring off U.S. Highway 87 Tuesday afternoon. "I think once we determine who the person was we can conclude whether there was foul play" in the death, said Sheriff A.N. Standard.

Standard said the remains have been turned over to Dr.

Robert Rember, a state certified pathologist, who will attempt to determine cause of death, as well as age, height and sex of the deceased. Denture plates discovered at the scene should help in identification, he said.

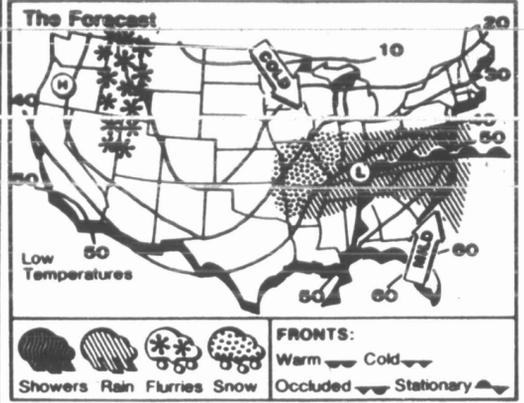

Preliminary information indicates the remains have been at the site about 2 to 2½ years, Standard said.

The bones were discovered about noon Tuesday by members of a seismographic crew who notified the sheriff's department. Justice of the Peace China Long and Rember were accompanied to the scene by sheriff's deputies, Standard said.

The sheriff said remnants of what "appeared to be a robe and house shoes" also were discovered at the scene.

Kevin Jay Patterson of 601 Circle also pleaded guilty to two counts of driving while license suspended and two counts of failure to maintain financial responsibility.

He was arrested Oct. 31. County Judge Milton Kirby fined Patterson $900 total for those offenses and ordered him to pay $515 court costs.

School board filing continues

Larry Philippe of 1209 Lloyd, a special education speech therapist, filed Tuesday for candidacy for the Big Spring school board.

Three at-large positions on the school board are up for election April 5. Philippe is the fourth person to file for candidacy since filing opened Monday.

Filing opened Tuesday for the Howard County Junior College

District board of trustees, but no one had filed by this morning, said Mary Dudley of Howard College.

Precincts 1 and 2, currently held by David Gomez and Curtis Mullins, are up for election on the college board. Dudley said this is the first year elections have been by place rather than at large. Filing deadline is March 5.

Insurers cool to plan

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's suggestion that government and the insurance industry join forces to protect Americans from the financial disaster of catastrophic illness is meeting resistance from insurers who say they're already doing the job. Jack O'Day, president of the Insurance Economics Society, a trade organization, said Tuesday that "government ... and the private sector have been working together very nicely and very adequately," indicating no new government program is needed.

25 inmates surrender

MONDSVILLE, W.Va. — Twenty-five inmates in isolation for their alleged involvement in a violent prison riot broke out of their cells before armed guards persuaded 23 of them to surrender early today, officials said. The other two inmates at the troubled West Virginia Penitentiary were recaptured and the prison was secured. One inmate sustained minor injuries during the disturbance, said Warden Jerry Hedrick.

Explosion cause probed

CRYSTAL SPRINGS, Miss. — Investigators were trying to determine if a gas leak caused an explosion that turned a block-long furniture store into an inferno, killing eight people and critically injuring one, who witnesses said was blasted through a window in flames. Victims of the Monday afternoon explosion and fire included at least four members of the family that owns and operates the building.

Budget cuts hit mail

WASHINGTON — Charities and newspapers face a March 9 postage increase, the postal service has warned, and another jump may be necessary by the end of the year if Congress makes further cuts in the subsidy the mailers get. Budget cuts resulting from the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law will cost non-profit and newspaper mailers $32 million unless Congress makes fewer people eligible for the taxpayer-subsidized "preferred rates," U.S. Postal Service Board Chairman John R. McKean said Tuesday.

Mother feels betrayed

ABBEVILLE, La. — The mother of an altar boy who was one of 36 youngsters molested by a Roman Catholic priest told a jury her son has lost his self-esteem and she has lost her faith. "My religion has betrayed me, my son and my whole family," Faye Gastal told the state district court jury Tuesday, the first day of testimony in her $12 million lawsuit against the Roman Catholic church. "I don't believe in it anymore."

Parole refused to Manson

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Mass murderer Charles Manson, denied parole after telling a state board he would pursue his dream of a violent world revolution if freed, can look forward to at least another three years in prison.

The parole board on Tuesday found the 51-year-old former cult leader unsuitable for parole from his life sentence for the 1969 massacre of pregnant actress Sharon Tate and six others.

Manson, who wears a blue swastika on his forehead and told the board he spends his time making dolls of scorpions with the power to torment, must wait the maximum three years before his next parole hearing, the panel ruled.

In a surprise appearance, Manson, scruffy-looking with long, graying hair and beard, delivered a rambling, often incoherent 20-minute speech he wrote the night before. He had told prison officials he wouldn't appear at the hearing, but changed his mind Tuesday morning.

Manson said he didn't think the hearing would be fair to him, and blamed the media for describing him disparagingly.

"I have children write me and tell me it's already in the history books that I'm a bad guy," he said, rubbing his long-nailed thumbs together over and over as he slouched in a chair. His wrists were tattooed, and he had inked-in the swastika he carved into his forehead years ago.

He said the scorpions give "the power of the revolution to the people," and that "from the world of government, I did loose demons and devils with the power of scorpions to torment."

If paroled, Manson said, he'd "probably join the revolution down south somewhere and try to save my life on the planet Earth. I might go to Libya. I might go see the ayatollah (leader of Iran). I might go to France, catch somebody in France I'm upset with."

Manson was described at the hearing as a "caged, vicious, wild animal" by Los Angeles County head deputy district attorney Stephen Kay, and was diagnosed as a schizophrenic in a state psychiatrist's report to the board.

In finding Manson unsuitable for parole, the board cited the psychiatric report, Manson's 42 prison violations since his 1971 conviction, his unstable childhood and the "cold-blooded and senseless murders."

Manson and four members of his so-called "family" of followers were convicted in the August 1969 Los Angeles slayings of Miss Tate, four of her guests and two other people in a separate attack the following night.

Arabs condemn jet interception

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Arab leaders denounced as an act of piracy the interception by Israeli warplanes of a Libyan jet suspected of carrying Palestinian guerrilla leaders to Syria, and Syria vowed to retaliate.

Saudi Arabia's King Fahd today termed the seizure an "act of perfidious aggression." The official Saudi Press Agency quoted Fahd as telling Syrian President Hafez Assad in a telephone conversation of his "deep resentment of this act of air piracy, perpetrated by our common enemy."

The plane was headed to Damascus with nine Syrian and Lebanese politicians Tuesday when it was intercepted by Israeli jets over the Mediterranean Sea.

Israeli military sources would not say who the Israelis hoped to capture, but there was speculation the target was either Ahmed Jibril or Abu Nidal, whose group is blamed for the Rome and Vienna airport massacres on Dec. 27 in which 20 people died.

Israel released the plane and its passengers after about five hours.

Syria's official Syrian Arab News Agency quoted Gen. Hekmat Chahabi, chief of staff of the Syrian armed forces, as saying: "We will answer this crime by teaching those who committed it a lesson they will not forget. We will choose the method, the time and the place."

The Palestine Liberation Organization said in a statement issued by the Wafa news agency, "This act of air piracy is in accordance with other acts of Israeli state terrorism such as the (October) attack against the headquarters of the PLO" in Tunis, Tunisia.

About 60 people died in that incident, which Israel said was in retaliation for the slaying of three Israelis in a Cyprus harbor in late September.

As Israeli security chiefs braced for reprisals, Khalid Abdul Majid, a spokesman for the Syrian-backed National Salvation Front coalition of six radical Palestinian factions, said in Damascus:

"This act will result in an atmosphere of revolutionary violence to be carried out by the revolutionary forces in retaliation."

Thousands greet Pope

MADRAS, India — Throngs of cheering Christians welcomed Pope John Paul II to this tropical city in southern India today, but police deployed thousands of officers to prevent protests by militant Hindus opposed to Christian missionary work.

Church officials estimated 1 million people would attend the pope's Mass on a Bay of Bengal beach. Roman Catholics from surrounding areas began pouring into Madras on Tuesday.

Shop-keepers warned

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The government ordered thousands of merchants who have closed their doors since Sunday to end what it said was an illegal strike and reopen today, or face arrest and possible seizure of their shops.

The presidential order read over state-run television at midnight Tuesday was another bid by President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier to return this impoverished Caribbean country to normal following two weeks of unrest that has claimed an estimated 50 lives.

Campaign winds down

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand E. Marcos staged a final outdoor rally today in torrential rains as the Philippines' tumultuous election campaign drew to a close.

Shouting hoarsely in Tagalog, the national language, Mrs. Marcos said, "Our opponents want to wreck our republic and replace a God-fearing society with a goddess one."

As the crowd chanted, "We want Marcos! We want Marcos," the president declared that his opponents had sowed "an atmosphere of hatred, anger and revolution."

Castro accuses U.S.

HAVANA — President Fidel Castro, while holding the United States responsible for virtually every international conflict, says he is willing to open negotiations to resolve his differences with Washington.

Speaking Tuesday to a Communist Party congress, Castro said negotiations with the United States could succeed only if they were "serious, equitable, reciprocal and based on mutual respect."

Bombs wreck buildings

LIMA, Peru — Incendiary devices planted by leftist guerrillas started fires before dawn Tuesday that destroyed three stores a block from the Government Palace and injured 10 people, officials reported.

They said damage from the fires left 70 people homeless in nearby apartments. It was the latest of several nighttime bombings and arson attacks in two weeks.

Weapons by mail must be banned

To the martial hordes of young boys whose combats rage across the back yards of suburban America, killing is fantasy and play. However, the weapons of those who style themselves ninja warriors are frequently all too real. Popularized in films and in martial-arts magazines, weapons like "shurikens," flat throwing stars with eight dagger points that can pierce a car door or an eye, and "nunchakus," two skull-splitting hardwood clubs connected by chain or rope, have found their place in toy closets beside cap pistols and plastic Uzis. The result has been tens of thousands of injuries to the young, many of them serious.

To curb this dangerous ninja mania, thirteen states, including California, on the advice of police officials, have banned the sale and possession of martial-arts weapons, which are also used by criminals. But the state bans are frequently circumvented because the weapons are easily available for purchase through mail-order advertisements placed in leading martial-arts magazines. To reinforce those bans, Sens. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., have introduced legislation to make it illegal to use the mails to sell the ninja weapons to customers in states that prohibit them.

Martial-arts enthusiasts complain the Senate bill unfairly singles out their sport for restraints. Martial-arts weapons are legitimately used in demonstration sports, they contend, and are no more dangerous than commonly available recreational items like archery equipment, baseball bats and hockey sticks.

But the entertainment industry does not promote using bats on heads or bows and arrows on the warrior down the street. By contrast, the ninjas of the silver screen show "shurikens" and "nunchakus" as concealable weapons intended for mayhem. Outlaws have gotten the message, and so have too many impressionable kids. A ban on mail-order sales of martial-arts weapons would be a boost for both safety and common sense.

Federal revenue sharing a luxury

Does it make sense for a bankrupt man to give money to his wealthy neighbor? Of course not. But, on a larger scale, that is the bizarre effect of the federal revenue sharing program.

Last year the federal government ran a deficit of $212 billion. The nation's states and municipalities had an overall budget surplus, as they have for years. Yet this year's federal budget — besides all the money it gave to cities and states for mass transit, welfare, education and other specified purposes — includes $4.2 billion in these unrestricted grants to local governments.

For mayors, it's an enviable deal. Washington raises the money, and the mayors get to spend it however they please. But the Reagan administration thinks that in the age of Gramm-Rudman, revenue sharing is an indulgence the federal government can no longer afford.

That idea has inspired some colorful oratory by assorted mayors. Mayor Edward Koch of New York calls it "Rambonomics." Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn accuses Reagan of committing "urban terrorism." Politicians don't take kindly to losing money, particularly if it can be spent without accountability to the people whose taxes provide it.

But revenue sharing can be eliminated without inflicting real pain on urban-dwellers, since it makes up only 2.5 percent of local government revenues. For every dollar a typical city has today, it would have 97.5 cents after this budget cut. Even in the 49 biggest cities, revenue sharing supplies just 6 percent of their funds.

It isn't even clear that cities actually benefit from the program. The shared revenue is divided up among some 39,000 cities and towns, or nearly every local jurisdiction in America. The vast bulk of the tax dollars used to finance this generosity comes from those same 39,000 cities and towns. To put money in their right pocket, Washington has to take money out of their left.

The funds are not allocated by any rational criteria. Among the recipients are such pockets of urban blight as Palm Springs, Calif.; Aspen, Colo.; Scarsdale, N.Y.; Palm Beach, Fla.; and Wellesley, Mass. In 1984, the 3,300 poorest cities and towns in America got a puny 2 percent of the money.

Some federal spending can be justified as a response to national problems that have unfairly fallen on a comparatively few cities. It might make sense, for example, to make welfare entirely a federal responsibility. It's also reasonable for Washington to help pay for programs that it requires, like education of the handicapped.

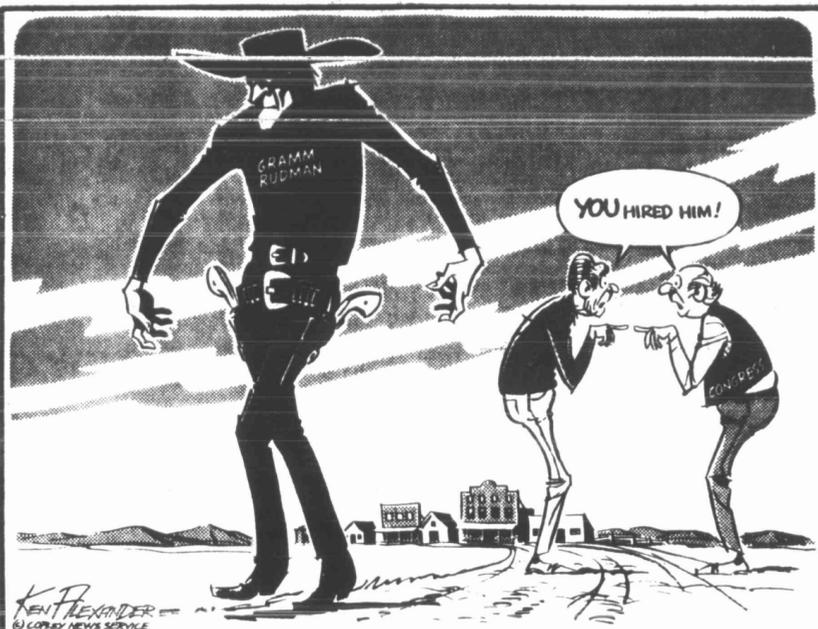

But revenue sharing is a different matter altogether. It is spent on programs that traditionally are the domain of municipal governments — police, fire protection, roads, sanitation. Local residents get most of the benefits of these services. Why shouldn't they bear the costs, too?

If the program was dubious in the best of times, it's downright crazy in an era of huge federal deficits. When it was created in 1972, the theory was that the federal government could raise money more efficiently than the cities and states, which were in chronic financial straits. Since then, as they have relied less on property taxes and more on income and sales taxes and user fees, their fiscal health has improved substantially.

Washington, meanwhile, no longer has extra revenues to spread around — even though federal taxes now take 19.1 percent of the nation's income, compared with 17.8 percent in 1972. To preserve revenue sharing and bring the budget into balance, Congress will have to find comparable savings elsewhere or raise taxes.

Better to let those 39,000 cities and towns decide for themselves if the programs they finance by revenue sharing are genuinely crucial. If so, their residents should be willing to pay for them. If not, there is no reason anyone else should.

Jewish Congress probe reopens Mengele's case

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — Is Dr. Josef Mengele still alive, congratulating himself on a stupendous hoax that led a team of respected experts to declare that skeletal remains exhumed in Brazil last June were his? Did the Auschwitz "Angel of Death" pull off one last devilish trick to throw the world's Nazi hunters off the trail just as they were closing in on him?

This slim but tantalizing possibility is raised — hesitantly, to be sure — by the World Jewish Congress and a former Justice Department prosecutor, Eli Rosenbaum. Dissatisfied with the initial findings of the international team of forensic medical experts, the congress, with Rosenbaum's help, conducted its own investigation into Mengele's death.

The World Jewish Congress kept its inquiry secret, to avoid raising false hopes among Holocaust survivors that the old death-camp doctor might still be capable of being brought to justice for his war crimes. Our associate Lucette Lagnado has read internal correspondence about the WJC's Mengele investigation and interviewed some of the people involved in it, as well as other experts in the field. Here is what she learned:

• Rosenbaum, convinced that the examination done by the medical team in Brazil was inadequate, said the experts would be "lucky" if their work had led to the correct conclusion. Though he stressed that he thinks it highly probable that Mengele is dead, it was Rosenbaum who persuaded the WJC to conduct its separate investigation.

• The medical team based its conclusion that the remains were Mengele's on mostly circumstantial evidence — no X-rays, fingerprints or other "concrete" identification.

• The team of experts seem to have ignored evidence suggesting the possibility of an elaborate hoax. "Mengele had earned a Ph.D. in anthropology," a WJC document noted. "Mengele's family is among the wealthiest in Germany... moreover, he was in contact during his years in South America with... Nazi sympathizers." Therefore: "Mengele was in a position, from the standpoint of scientific, financial and logistical resources, to pull off a fairly sophisticated hoax."

• The total lack of postwar dental records on Mengele is so mysterious as to be suspicious. He was known to have had extensive dental work done in exile, yet the experts were unable to find an X-ray of even a single tooth. All they had to go on were inadequate dental records dating to World War II and earlier. Even dentists who admitted working on Mengele could produce no X-rays.

• The most crucial discrepancy is that the skeletal remains showed no evidence of osteomyelitis, a serious inflammation of the bone marrow, although Mengele's S.S. records show that he suffered from the disease when he was a teenager. And a medical school colleague of Mengele has stated that the osteomyelitis was so severe that a piece of diseased leg bone broke off and had to be removed surgically.

• No X-rays or medical records could be found on any serious physical ailments, even though Mengele's diaries reveal that he suffered from several. For example, in 1972 Mengele required extensive hospital treatment for a hairball in his stomach. This common affliction of cats is rare in humans, and is usually associated with psychotics who pull out their hair and eat it. In Mengele's case, he apparently chewed on his mustache and swallowed the indigestible bristles. One pathologist finds it strange that no medical records have been found on this unusual case, which surely would have been the subject of professional discussion.

Evidence of hairball treatment would hardly survive six years underground in the grave, but the absence of records is suspicious. Not knowing when hot pursuit might force him to produce his supposed remains, Mengele would have destroyed all his medical records in case an earlier exhumation had been necessary.

Footnote: Members of the official U.S. team of pathologists said they were confident that their final report would clarify the discrepancies.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: The Secret Service lost its battle to stop construction of a 130-foot office building overlooking the White House grounds, but it is still not reconciled to the danger from snipers that such a vantage point poses in this age of terrorism.

New U.S. envoy fails to move Pinochet

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX
SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — His first utterances in correct, American-accented Spanish held the public spotlight here for weeks and reportedly sent tremors of insecurity through the presidential palace.

But the debut of U.S. Ambassador Harry G. Barnes Jr., while seeming to align the Reagan administration more firmly with Chile's democratic forces, has made no obvious chink in the armor of military rule under President Augusto Pinochet.

In a series of conspicuous gestures, the new envoy met opposition leaders before calling on the military junta, held a candle at a religious observance by human rights activists, and handed his credentials to Pinochet along with some blunt advice: "The ills of democracy can be cured only with more democracy."

These departures from Washington's usually silent diplomacy drew an indirect rebuke from the army commander who has run Chile since a 1973 coup.

"Since when are some ambassadors arbiters of our internal problems?" Pinochet said a few days later. "We are not anyone's colony or slave."

A similar but direct denunciation came from Paraguay after the new U.S. ambassador there, Clyde Taylor, met recently with a tiny coalition opposed to the 32-year-old government of President Alfredo Stroessner.

Both incidents underlined the determination of South America's two remaining military strongmen to resist Washington's largely symbolic pressures in favor of representative, civilian government. In Chile, this has raised the question whether tougher U.S. action is forthcoming.

Three days after Barnes finished his initial six-week round of visits and flew to Washington for Christmas, Pinochet formally rejected a "National Accord for a Transition to Complete Democracy," which had been endorsed by the U.S. State Department. Drafted by Chile's 11 principal non-Marxist parties, it called for open presidential elections.

In mid-January, Chilean police stood by idly as 200 rightists throwing rocks, eggs and tomatoes blocked the motorcade of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy when he came to meet opposition leaders.

Pinochet has defied U.S. pressure since a 1976 amendment sponsored by the Massachusetts Democrat in the Senate cut off arms sales to punish the regime's heavy-handed police methods. Chile bought arms elsewhere.

During the Carter administration, the United States blocked credits to Chile from the World Bank and other public lending institutions. But private banks were eager to lend to Chile's then-booming economy.

While heeding the arms embargo, the Reagan administration eased economic sanctions and, through Ambassador James D. Thoberge, a political appointee, tried to cultivate good relations with Pinochet. But, worried by the prospect of growing Marxist-led violence, Washington became more critical a year ago after Pinochet cracked down on swelling popular dissent with a seven-month state of siege.

The arrival of Barnes, a senior career diplomat who had been ambassador to India and was opposed by U.S. congressional conservatives, has prompted knowledgeable Chileans to wonder what Reagan is up to.

"From India to Chile is not exactly a promotion, so he must be on some kind of 'Mission Impossible,'" said Carlos Portales, a Chilean who studies U.S. policy for a research institute linked to a Socialist coalition.

A foreign policy adviser to Pinochet, insisting on anonymity, said: "A lot of officials, from the president on down, were apprehensive that Barnes was bringing a totally different policy, which was nothing less than to destroy Pinochet."

That initial impression has changed. In mid-December, Elliot Abrams, assistant U.S. Secretary of State for Inter-American Affairs, declared that Chile was "moving in the correct direction" toward democracy.

That same month, the United States declined to support resolutions at the United Nations and Organization of American States criticizing Chile's human rights record. It has continued voting in favor of loans from public institutions on which Chile has become increasingly dependent.

Chileans who have spoken with Barnes say he apparently was sent here with a mandate to define what role the United States can play in promoting a return to civilian rule.

However, both he and Kennedy, who met here with a broad range of opposition leaders, have heard conflicting views from them about whether shutting off loans will change Pinochet's authoritarian course and not just aggravate Chile's economic slump.

Around The Rim

Human spirit can't be stifled

By HANK MURPHY

Once in awhile something happens that leaves an indelible mark of pain on the national psyche. Waves of shock, disbelief and sadness ripple throughout the country. The explosion of Challenger and the deaths of the seven courageous Americans is such an event.

And the point driven home by such a horribly cruel blow was described best by senator and former astronaut John Glenn when he said the tragedy serves to remind us that despite our greatest achievements and advances, human beings are still imperfect creatures.

We go on, he said, building and achieving in science, architecture, medicine and technology until our imperfection causes setbacks, briefly shaking the supreme confidence we have in our abilities. But we learn from our errors, he said, and progress a little more until our imperfection stifles us again.

Examples of Glenn's observance abound in every facet of human endeavor, whether it's birth defects caused by medication given to a pregnant woman, a plane crash caused by a mechanic's negligence, a nuclear power plant crippled by a design flaw, a journalist confusing facts in a story, or a malfunctioning computer warning of a nuclear attack.

It seems the more fantastic our accomplishments, the more spectacular our failures. The more technologically advanced we become, the more capable we are of using that technology to exterminate ourselves. Such is the fate of imperfect beings with an insatiable desire to control and manipulate the forces of the universe.

Man will probably walk on Mars someday. And in centuries to come, humans may well leave our solar system and stake out territory on planets yet to be discovered. Further still, political and economic balances may someday be struck that will eliminate much of the poverty, violence, and persecution that tears at the very fiber of human civilization.

But as with the great strides of the past, such feats will become manifest only when the inherent defects in the human character are outweighed by the progression of the intellect and the sustained tenacity of the human spirit.

Dr. Donohue

Menstrual trouble common in girls

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a girl, 15 years old, and in very good physical health. I am very scared and worried. I got my first period about a year and a half ago. I got it again a year later, and now it's six months without one. I am simply afraid of doctors and especially of talking to them about such personal matters. I am also embarrassed to talk to my mother about this. Can you please tell me what is wrong with me? What will the doctor do if I go to see him about this?

— M.R.S.
To answer your last question first, the doctor very likely may not want to do anything at all but listen to your story. He may want to wait. Many factors affect menstrual patterns in the first years of puberty. There may be anywhere from two to 10-months between the periods. Ovaries at this stage are just not releasing eggs on a regular monthly basis. It takes time for them to become more reliable. And this may be a factor in the high incidence of teenage pregnancies for this erratic ovulation leads to unpredictable fertility status in young girls.

Another factor often overlooked is body weight. You do need a certain amount of fat to have normal menstrual cycles. A young girl usually has to weigh around 100 pounds before cycles get regular. I cannot deny that there are more serious causes for absence of menstruation — a hormone imbalance, for example. Just on the slight chance that this is part of the picture, I want you to see a doctor. Your modesty is natural, and the doctor will find it refreshing. You'll see that your anticipation of an unpleasant visit is unjustified.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Covering baldness: a bald man's view

DEAR ABBY: I'd like to address this letter to "Splitting Hairs in Florida," who wrote to you recently complaining about middle-aged men who let their hair grow long in order to wrap it around their heads to cover their bald spots. She said they looked ridiculous.

I reluctantly changed my hairstyle at the insistence of a woman I was dating at the time because she wanted me to have a more youthful appearance. In our society, which, on the desirability scale, equates growing old with contracting leprosy, one must do whatever is necessary to create the illusion of youth.

Unless "Splitting Hairs" has never resorted to trying to improve her appearance in the ways I have described, I believe she owes an apology to men who try to cover their baldness. I feel much better getting this off my chest — where I do not have the same problem I have on my head.

Before I bought the hairpiece, a young woman flipped over me, but after she saw me with that $300 mistake on my head, she wanted nothing to do with me. I am the same man with or without the hairpiece.

Recipe exchange

Valentine's Day prompts dessert lovers' treats

Valentine's Day is Feb. 14 and as a special treat to Recipe Exchange readers, we've included a number of desserts for this week.

A special recipe was submitted by Betty Wrinkle. Wrinkle and several other Big Springers recently returned from a trip to New Zealand and Australia.

Wrinkle said, "Pavlova seemed to be the national dessert. It was always served with hot tea with milk and raw sugar crystals.

"We spent a night as guests of a family living on a goat farm. Our hostess, Avis Hamilton-Manns of Rotorua, New Zealand, shared her recipe. It was usually served with fresh fruit."

PAVLOVA

Beat three egg whites until stiff and frothy with an egg beater. Toss in a breakfast cup of sugar, a third at a time. Fold this in with a fork. Add two teaspoons of vinegar and two of vanilla essence. Beat this with a fork.

Pour the mixture into a sponge tin containing a greased piece of tin foil. Pop it into an oven pre-heated to 300 degrees. After an hour, turn the heat down to 250 degrees and leave for another hour.

Turn it onto a plate, leave to cool. Decorate with whipped cream.

UPSIDE-DOWN APPLE CUSTARD CAKE

1 1/2 cups unsifted flour
3/4 cup sugar
1 Tbsp. baking powder

1/2 tsp. salt
2 eggs
2 Tbsps. milk
1 1/2 Tbsps. grated lemon rind
1/4 cup margarine or butter, melted
2 medium all-purpose apples, pared, cored and thinly sliced (about 2 cups)

1/2 tsp. ground cinnamon
1 (14-ounce) can sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
1 (8-ounce) container sour cream
1/4 cup lemon juice

Additional ground cinnamon

Add flour mixture and margarine; beat on low speed until well blended. Spread evenly into greased 9-inch springform pan. Combine remaining sugar and cinnamon. Arrange apples on batter. Sprinkle evenly with sugar-cinnamon mixture. Bake 25 to 30 minutes. Meanwhile, in medium bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk and sour cream. Stir in lemon juice. Remove cake from oven; pour cream mixture evenly over apples. Sprinkle with additional cinnamon. Return to oven; bake 10 minutes longer or until bubbly. Cool. To serve, remove side of pan. Serve warm or chilled. Garnish as desired. Refrigerate leftovers.
Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Walk-a-thon set for mall

Several businesses and organizations will "Walk the Mall for Heart" on Saturday to promote the new walking course in Highland Mall.

Each business and organization will sponsor a three-member team, each of which has signed up friends as sponsors for the walk.

The public can also join the walking event. Sponsor sheets are available at Highland Mall office and Malone and Hogan Clinic.

The new walking course is a joint effort of the American Heart Association and Highland Mall. With no rain, wind, uncomfortable temperatures, automobile traffic or stray dogs to contend with, the walking course is an ideal place to begin a regular, year-round exercise program.

According to the American Heart Association, walking is an aerobic exercise that can condition the heart and lungs if performed at the proper intensity for 20-30 minutes at a time at least three times a week.

"Walking can be an important part of your cardiovascular fitness program," said Shirleen Brown, chairman of the "Walk the Mall for Heart" task force.

Funds raised will go toward research, public education and community service programs sanctioned by the American Heart Association.

Keeping up with ex-Hawks

A short while ago a Howard Hawk basketball fan and I were chatting about some of the ex-Howard players who have played over the past two seasons.

That conversation prompted this column. It got my curiosity going and I started doing some checking up on ex-Howard players who I've seen play in my two years in Big Spring. With the help of some efficient Sports Information Directors around the country, here's what I found out.

Members of coach Mike Mitchell's 1983-84 Hawk team are doing just fine. Remember they were ranked No. 16 in the country at one point and finished the season with a 27-3 record.

They won the Western Junior College Athletic Conference but were upset by Western Texas College, 55-54, in the finals of the regional tournament. WTC went to the national tournament and finished fifth.

That was one of the better teams Howard will ever have. Here's how that crop of players has panned out in major college ball.

JERRY STROMAN — A 6-7 senior forward at the University of Utah. The JC All-American has started two seasons for the Utes, who are in the Western Athletic Conference.

Stroman can still light'em up. The All-WAC performer leads his team in scoring with a 18.1 average. He's averaging 6 rebounds per game, shooting 53 percent from the floor and 68 percent from the line.

Utah is 12-7 overall and 4-4 in conference play.

JOE JOHNSON — This 6-5 forward took his services up the road to Lubbock Christian College, an independent National Athletic Intercollegiate Association school.

The senior is starting his second season for the Chaps and is averaging 11.3 points and a team-leading 8 rebounds. He's shooting 53 percent from the floor and 71 percent from the line.

Last year the Chaps made the NAIA District VIII playoffs, and were eliminated in the semi-finals. This year the Chaps are 14-7 and ranked fourth in the district. The top eight teams qualify for the playoffs.

MAURICE HOSKINS — This 5-10 point guard has also spent the last two seasons at Lubbock Christian College, starting both seasons.

This season's he's averaging 7.1 points, 2 rebounds to go along with his 66 assists and 34 steals. According to the college SID, he's doing a great job of running the offense.

JAMES JOHNSON — This 6-5 senior went from quick forward at Howard to point guard for Middle Tennessee University, a NCAA basketball power in the Ohio Valley Conference.

Johnson is also in his second year as a starter for Middle Tennessee. Last season they won the conference tournament and qualified for the NCAA tournament. They were defeated 76-57 by North Carolina, a game seen live on ESPN.

This year Johnson has led his team to a 8-0 conference slate and 18-5 overall record, including a current 14 game winning streak.

He leads the league in steals (63) and is second in assists (165). He had a school record 20 assists in a game against South Carolina. Johnson has already set assist records for single game, season and career.

The school's SID summed it up best by saying "James makes everyone else play better."

DWIGHT HARRIS — The 6-0 senior guard is in his second season with the University of Tennessee-Chattanooga, a NCAA Division I school in the Southern Conference.

Harris is playing about 12 minutes per game and is used for instant offense with his long range bombs. He's averaging 7 points, 1 rebound, shooting 55 percent from the field and 70 percent from the line.

UT-Chattanooga is currently leading the conference with a 8-1 record and 15-5 slate overall.

It is aiming for its sixth consecutive bid to post-season play. Last year it was defeated 71-66 by Louisville in the quarterfinals of the National Invitational Tournament, finishing the season with a 24-8 record.

MICHAEL PORTER — He was one of the few players on the 83-84 team who was a freshmen.

Now a junior at the University of New Orleans, the 6-4 Porter is starting at guard for the Privateers, a NCAA Division I independent school.

Porter is the team's second leading scorer with a 13.5 average. He's also averaging 4 rebounds per game. He's shooting 47 percent from the floor and 83 percent from the line. His 27 assists and 20 steals make him one of the leaders on the team.

The Privateers are currently 9-7 this season.

Two others from last year's Hawks team also continued their hoop careers.

JOE BURNEY — A 6-0 sophomore guard at Sul Ross State University in the Texas Intercollegiate Athletic Association. Burney is currently leading Sul Ross in scoring with a 12 point average.

AL WILLIS — The 6-0 sophomore is starting point guard for Sul Ross. He's averaging 5 points and leads the team in assists (75) and steals (23). Sul Ross has a 9-16 record.

Rebels gun down Steers

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

After the Midland Lee Rebels' 69-57 win over the Big Spring Steers last night in 4-5A basketball action, it no doubt the Steers have seen enough of Lee Dixon and Anthony Dickens.

The duo definitely wore out their welcome last night at Steer Gym as they combined for 52 points as Lee remained in a first place tie with Odessa Permian and Midland High. All three teams have 9-3 records.

As usual Big Spring got a strong performance from sophomore forward Brian Mayfield, who turned in a 30-point, 15-rebound game. But he alone was not enough to offset the fluent Rebel attack, which displayed aggressive defensive play and solid offensive rebounding.

Dixon, a 6-1 guard, was the main weapon for the Rebels in the first half. The shifty senior had a torrid first 16 minutes of the game, scoring 22 of his 28 points in the half. He opened up the Steers defense up with his deadly outside shot and then ripped it with smooth drives to the basket.

His 11 of 15 first half shooting performance carried the Rebels to a 40-29 halftime lead. The hot-shooting Rebels made 19 of 32 field goals in the first half for a scorching 59 percent.

Dickens, a 6-6 forward, took up in the second half where Dixon left off in the first half. The high-flying senior scored 17 of his total 24 points in the period. He ended the night with a game-high 16 rebounds, including 8 offensive boards. His 10 of 15 shooting performance from the floor helped him have a very productive night

...another strong game

CEDRICK BANKS
...good job on boards

against the outmanned Steers.

The Rebels took advantage of the Steers' loss of forward Sidney Parker to an ankle injury. Without him to bang on the boards, Lee collected 13 offensive rebounds to only 6 for the Steers. Lee outrebounded Big Spring 41-37 in the contest.

Lee started things off with a bang, making their first four shots, three by Dixon, and grabbing a 8-2 lead after two minutes had elapsed. Mayfield's three-point play cut the margin to 8-5 almost two minutes later. But Lee made a run and took a 19-13 lead after the first quarter of play.

Big Spring stayed close in the early going of the second quarter behind some strong offensive rebounding by Cedrick Banks and the scoring of Mayfield and Billy Cole. Cole's three consecutive jumpers cut the margin to 23-21 at the 4:56 mark.

But Lee rallied behind the play of Dixon to outscore Big Spring 17-8 the remainder of the half to take a 40-29 halftime lead. Dixon showcased his ability late in the quarter when he hit a jumper, then got a basket on a tip-in over three Steers and then promptly stole the ball and slammed for his 22nd point of the half.

The second half was played on even terms as both teams' shooting percentage fell off. Both teams scored only 10 points each in the third quarter. Midland made just 4 of 17 field goal attempts in the half while Big Spring was a respectable 5 of 8. Seven turnovers in the period is what hurt the Steers.

Lee continued to roll in the fourth quarter as Dickens simply took charge. The lead grew to 55-41 after two minutes of play and was stretched to a commanding 61-44 bulge with 2:20 left in the game.

Big Spring gamely fought back as Mayfield connected on his last five field goal attempts in the game. But it was too little, too late as the Steers dropped their 21st game in 24 outings. Big Spring is now 2-9 in district play.

Mayfield worked hard for his 14 of 25 shooting performance from the floor against a Lee front line that averaged 6-4. He got help on the boards from Kevin McKeown and Banks, who grabbed 8 rebounds each.

JV'S ALSO FALL

The Rebels made it a sweep with a 72-48 win in the junior varsity contest.

Joe Beasley led the Steers with 15 points. John Olson added 10 and Chris Lopez chipped in 8.

Tar Heels nip 'Wreck

By The Associated Press

It was No. 1 North Carolina versus No. 2 Georgia Tech, and the game ended in a one-point, overtime victory for the Tar Heels.

But, says the game's hero, Brad Daugherty: "This was not necessarily No. 1 and No. 2 in an ideal sense. This was just two good clubs going out and battling hard."

Daugherty, the North Carolina's 7-foot center, scored 22 points, including two that put the game into overtime and two more that gave the Tar Heels a lead they never relinquished in a 78-77 victory Tuesday night over Georgia Tech Ramblin Wreck in Atlanta. Joe Wolf hit four free throws in the final 46 seconds to ensure the victory.

With the victory, North Carolina took over the lead in the Atlantic Coast Conference at 7-1, 22-1 overall. Tech is 17-3 and 6-2 in the ACC.

The Tar Heels trailed by 13 points, 59-46, with 11:56 to play, then ran off nine straight points before putting the game into a five-minute extra period.

The only other game involving a ranked team, No. 17 Texas-El Paso defeated Oregon State 64-49.

The Tar Heels pulled into the tie on a basket by Daugherty with 55 seconds to play that made the score 70-70. Mark Price missed a 15-footer for Tech with eight seconds left, and Kenny Smith and Jeff Lebo each missed shots that would have given North Carolina the victory in regulation time.

A basket by Daugherty gave North Carolina a 74-70 overtime lead. Georgia Tech cut the lead to 74-72 on a basket by Duane Ferrell, then Wolf hit the first two of his four free throws to make it 76-72. Bruce Dairymple had a basket for Tech to cut the lead to two points, and Price's free throw with 14 seconds left made it 76-75.

No. 17 UTEP 64, Oregon St. 49
Texas-El Paso, down 40-35 with 13:53 to play, scored 20 of the game's final 25 points and rallied behind center Dave Feitl to beat

Oregon State in a nonconference game. Feitl scored 24 points for the Miners, 19-3.

Trailing by five, UTEP outscored Oregon State 19-5 over an 8:13 span of the second half to take the lead for good at 46-44 with 10:09 to play. After that, Texas-El Paso went on another tear, this time outscoring the Beavers 20-5, to build its biggest lead at the final buzzer.

Unranked
Kenny Wilson scored all 12 of his points in the final 11½ minutes to help Villanova hold off Boston College for a 67-57 Big East Conference victory. Boston College trailed only 36-34 when Wilson went on his spree. He hit three quick baskets, and the Wildcats pushed their lead to 53-42.

John Williams scored 28 points, including a layup with 11 seconds left to break a tie, and Louisiana State beat Auburn 63-61 in a Southeastern Conference game. The victory ended a four-game LSU losing streak.

Freshman Rod Strickland had 18 points to lead DePaul over Evansville, 73-41. The victory was the fourth in five games for the Blue Demons, who led 37-20 at halftime on two baskets by Strickland.

Redskins quarterback knocks McMahon

HAMILTON, Ontario (AP) — Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon, criticized for showing a "lack of respect for the rules of life as a professional athlete," brushed aside the remarks made by Joe Theismann of the Washington Redskins.

"I don't listen to remarks made by gentlemen who can't punt more than one yard," McMahon told NBC page Jim McRae when asked to respond to the Redskin quarterback's remark. "That will be my only comment on the matter."

McMahon was in Burbank, Calif., Tuesday for a guest appearance on "The Tonight Show." He was referring to Theismann's kicking performance in the Bears' 45-10 victory over the Redskins on Sept. 29. When Jeff Hayes, Washington's punter, suffered an injury on a 99-yard kickoff return by Chicago's Willie Gault, Theismann was pressed into service and his lone punt went one yard.

On Monday, Theismann, attending a B'nai B'rith sports dinner here, said McMahon should "remember where he is. If it weren't for football, he'd be some yo-yo out there drinking beer."

Theismann, who played for the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian Football League before signing with the National Football League, was especially upset over McMahon's headbands during the NFL playoffs. After being fined for wearing a headband with a commercial name, McMahon wore a band bearing the name of NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

"We have rules and regulations we're expected to follow and one is that we don't do commercial advertisements (on the field)," Theismann said. "He did it, got fined for it as he should, and then literally comes out and says 'Stick it (in) your ear.'"

Theismann said he had no quarrel with McMahon being a free spirit.

"Wearing sunglasses and punk haircuts, that may be his way of expressing his individualism. But there is a responsibility to the youth. What he doesn't realize is kids look up to him. Maybe he doesn't care."

"I sure wouldn't want my kids growing up like him," said Theismann.

Pacers break losing streak with win over Nets

By The Associated Press
 The Boston Celtics own the longest winning streak of the NBA season... and the Indiana Pacers own their longest winning streak in almost two years.
 Indiana's four-game skein may seem modest alongside the Celtics' 12-gamer, but it's all theirs nonetheless.
 "We're playing real good defense as a team, gambling and taking advantage of certain situations," Herb Williams said after scoring 21 of his 25 points in the second half to lead Indiana over the New Jersey Nets 117-101 Tuesday night to give the Pacers a four-game success streak for the first time since March 1984.
 "Take nothing away from the Pacers. The whole team played well," echoed New Jersey Coach Dave Wohl. "I tried a lot of combinations, but none seemed to work."
 Meanwhile, center Robert Parish scored 12 of his 20 points in the third quarter, keying a 20-7 spurt that opened the second half and sparked the Celtics to a 112-93 victory over Milwaukee. Coach K.C. Jones, however, was reluctant to dwell on the streak.
 "You start talking about streak on this team, then what's going to start happening is you start thinking beyond the next three or four games," Jones said.
 In other action, the Los Angeles Lakers beat Dallas 110-102, Cleveland nipped Atlanta 105-104, Detroit shaded Chicago 117-115, Denver edged Portland 119-118, San Antonio outlasted Seattle 124-119 in overtime and Phoenix defeated Golden State 127-118.

 Steve Stipanovich contributed 22 points as the Pacers erased an early 12-4 deficit, taking the lead for good as Stipanovich scored five points in a 10-point spurt that put Indiana on top 18-14. An eight-point run a few minutes later made it 28-18 and Terence Stansbury scored five points in a 13-3 burst that opened a 52-33 bulge with 6:36 remaining in the first half.
 Guard Clint Richardson contributed a season-high 20 points for Indiana and also had 10 rebounds and seven assists. Otis Birdsong led New Jersey with 24 points.
 "Vern (Fleming) and Terence are really running the break well and they're recognizing the mismatches inside," Williams said of Indiana's turnaround.
 Coach George Irvine credited adjustments by rookie Wayman Tisdale with helping make up for the absence of Clark Kellogg with an injury.
 "Tisdale is becoming more comfortable with what we're doing. Now he's extended his game away from the basket," Irvine said. "That's opening things up inside for Stipo and giving us the mismatches we didn't take advantage of earlier."
 Celtics 112, Bucks 93
 Larry Bird scored 24 points for Boston while Terry Cummings had the same number for Milwaukee. Boston led 46-43 at halftime but outscored Milwaukee 37-24 in the third quarter and held three 19-point leads. The Bucks pulled within 12 with 8:52 left in the game but got no closer.

 "I didn't have as many big men as I need without (injured Paul) Mokeski," said Milwaukee Coach Don Nelson. "They had us to the point where we didn't know what to do. We were between a rock and a hard place."
 "The key was the way Robert Parish started the second half," said Bill Walton, Parish's backup, who came off the bench and scored nine of his 12 points in the decisive third period. "It just sort of picked everybody up."

 "The thing that's so good about this team right now is its unselfish play in every phase of the game. We were even guilty of passing the ball too much at times."
 Lakers 110, Mavericks 102
 Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Mike McGee scored 21 points apiece as Los Angeles rallied from an 18-point second-period deficit. The Lakers, who controlled the boards by an overwhelming 53-25, outscored Dallas 21-3 starting late in the second quarter and caught up 60-60 on a breakaway layup by McGee early in the third period. They led 93-90 and settled matters midway through the final period by scoring nine of the game's next 10 points.

 James Worthy scored 18 points and Earvin "Magic" Johnson, playing in his first game after missing six contests with a knee injury, added 14 points off the bench. Sam Perkins and Rolando Blackman scored 18 points apiece for Dallas.
 Hawks 105, Cavaliers 104
 Atlanta only led once in the second half but it came when Randy Wittman tipped in a missed shot with one second to play that sent Cleveland to its seventh consecutive setback.

 Pistons 117, Bulls 115
 Isiah Thomas, held to six points in the opening half, made three key free throws in the final 1:22 as Detroit handed Chicago its 10th loss in the last 12 games. The Bulls took a 112-111 lead with 2:40 left on Kyle Macy's long jumper but Detroit's Kelly Tripucka, who scored 28 points, made a layup to put the Pistons ahead to stay 113-112.

Players skip arbitration

By The Associated Press
 Four players, including outfielder Jesse Barfield and pitcher Jim Aker of the Toronto Blue Jays, have signed contracts for 1985, sidestepping baseball's salary arbitration process.
 Both of the Toronto players signed one-year contracts. The other two arbitration-bound players who signed were pitcher Danny Darwin of Milwaukee and infielder Dave Anderson of Los Angeles. Darwin signed a two-year deal, while Anderson signed for one season.
 Still headed for arbitration were all eight of the players seeking $1 million or more.
 The list, with scheduled hearing dates, included third baseman Wade Boggs of Boston, $1.85 million, Feb. 21; pitcher Fernando Valenzuela of Los Angeles, $1.7 million, Feb. 15; outfielder Tim Lincecum of Montreal, $1.7 million, Feb. 20; first baseman Don Mattingly of the New York Yankees, $1.5 million, Feb. 18; pitcher Dwight Gooden of the New York Mets, $1.5 million, Feb. 18; pitcher John Tudor of St. Louis, $1.2 million, Feb. 14; catcher Rich Gedman of Boston, $1 million, Feb. 17, and pitcher Orel Hershiser of Los Angeles, $1 million, Feb. 10.
 Barfield, whose arbitration hearing was scheduled for Feb. 12, reportedly was seeking $720,000 from the arbitrator, while the club was offered $575,000. Aker signed on the day his hearing was scheduled. He reportedly sought $367,500, while the Blue Jays offered $300,000.
 The 26-year-old Barfield hit 27 homers and stole 22 bases last season with 84 runs batted in and a batting average of .289. Aker, 27, had a 7-2 record with 10 saves and an ERA of 3.23 in 61 appearances last season.

Dear Shoppers,

Furr's has been in the grocery business for 81 years. That's four generations worth of families who have shopped with us over the years. The Furr's name is trusted and respected throughout Texas and New Mexico and we work hard to maintain that trust.

Our everyday low price policy is just one of the ways we strive to keep our shoppers coming back to Furr's year after year. We know you don't want to walk into the grocery store and be surprised every week over the cost of your food. Some supermarkets yo-yo their prices up and down every couple of weeks. At Furr's, we prefer to keep our prices as low as possible and our shoppers as happy as possible.

In addition to our everyday low prices, we also have great specials. Look through our ad this week, come on over to the store and take advantage of our weekly specials. There are no surprises at Furr's - just everyday low prices, great specials and the best service 81 years can build.
