Open market oil prices gain

NEW YORK (AP) — Prices of crude oil rose sharply on the open market Friday, extending a recovery from seven-year lows to a third straight day.

But prices remained about a third lower than at the start of the year and well below the closing prices at the end of the previous week.

While prices rose in commodities and the non-contract spot market, oil prices quoted by major oil companies continued to decline, catching up with the earlier open-market slide.

Mobil Corp. said that effective Saturday, it is reducing the price it will pay for West Texas Intermediate crude oil by $2 a barrel to $22.75. It was the fourth cut of the year by Mobil, which was paying $27.75 a barrel for the major grade of U.S. oil as 1986 began.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, where West Texas Intermediate for March delivery bottomed out at $15.44 a barrel on Tuesday, prices shot up $1.40 in the early going Friday before giving some ground to trade at around $17.50 late in the session.

Just 2½ months ago, West Texas Intermediate soared as high as $31.70 a barrel on the Mercantile Exchange, and prices were above $25 last month. West Texas Intermediate closed last week at $18.83 a barrel.

In the spot market, where oil not covered by long-term supply contracts is sold, West Texas Intermediate for March delivery was quoted Friday at $17.50 a barrel, up $1.05 for the day.

Peter Beutel, an oil trading analyst at the commodities firm Rudolf Wolff Futures Inc., said a reduction in oil production by Egypt and a move toward cooperation among some OPEC and non-OPEC countries contributed to the price rise in oil markets.

Oil ministers of Venezuela, a founding member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, and non-OPEC Mexico and Egypt, met Friday in Cairo. The rapid fall in oil prices is especially painful to those debt-ridden countries. The ministers of Mexico and Venezuela have launched a joint effort to convince other oil producers of the need to work together to restore order to markets glutted with oil.

Beutel also said technical factors were helping send oil prices higher.

Traders who earlier had bet on declining prices by selling borrowed oil were having to pay a premium to find oil available for prompt delivery to fulfill their contracts, he said.

New council heads Haiti government

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — A military-civilian council took power Friday and called for calm after President-for-Life Jean-Claude Duvalier fled to France in a U.S. Air Force plane, triggering first rejoicing and then widespread looting.

Thousands of Haitians, whose poverty had increased under 28 years of repressive rule by the Duvalier family, poured into downtown Port-au-Prince, shouting, "He flew away!" Duvalier arrived in Grenoble, France, hours later, accompanied by his wife and about 20 other people.

The new council announced a 2 p.m.-to-6 a.m. curfew after the crowds looted businesses and at least one government ministry. Soldiers enforcing the curfew used tear gas and fired into the air, but no casualties were reported.

In a taped message broadcast nearly four hours after his pre-dawn departure, the 34-year-old Duvalier said his decision to leave "permits a peaceful and rapid solution to the current crisis."

His government, which allowed no political parties and relied on a national militia to put down dissent, had been the target of growing protests since last November. Rioting in the capital and other major cities last week led to an erroneous White House report Jan. 31 that he had fled the country, but Duvalier insisted then that he was "strong, as firm as a monkey's tail."

In his message Friday, Duvalier said, "I have decided to pass the destiny of the nation into the hands of the military ... so a bloodbath be avoided for my people."

Jubilant Haitians climbed on buses, honked car horns and tore down posters put up by Duvalier's

Panel says food stamps failed the poor

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD

Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau AUSTIN — Federal regulations have derailed the nation's food stamp program, leaving behind a trail of hunger and in some cases death, according to a team of doctors who toured Texas to study hunger problems.

"You're seeing the effects of nit-picky federal regulations in the bodies of dead babies," Dr. Deborah Frank, a member of the Harvard Physician's Task Force on Hunger, said Friday.

In a public hearing at the Capitol, the four task force members heard state officials, soup kitchen managers and social workers say the food stamp program that helped almost wipe out hunger in America a generation ago is now failing.

The task force last month identified the 150 "hungeriest" counties in the United States which have the worst rate of providing food stamps to the poor.

Among those counties, 29 are in Texas. Brazos County topped the Texas list with 86 percent of the persons living below the poverty level are not receiving food stamps.

Nationwide, 55 percent of those eligible for food stamps are receiving them, the task force said.

After visiting several counties in Texas earlier this week, task force member Dr. Larry Brown said on Friday, food stamp caseworkers are buried under paperwork, federal regulations slow down assistance and persons have become intimidated by the bureaucratic hurdles in applying for aid. "Our food stamp workers and clients seem to be trapped in a nightmare where they can't get services to the people," Brown said.

Another employee, Brown said, showed him eight volumes of processing regulations and said, "I have to ask whether the federal government is trying to harass the state in order to kill the program."

Task force member Dr. Aaron Shirley, of Jackson, Miss., said hunger was virtually wiped out in America largely due to a fledgling food stamp program in the 1960s and 1970s.

Emily Brenner, of the Houston Interfaith Hunger Coalition, said her clients could not apply for food stamps unless someone helped them through the application process.

State Sen. Hugh Parmer, D-Fort Worth, said a $15.5 million state hunger package he sponsored in the last legislative session has helped, but more funds are needed.

"We've taken a small step, perhaps a child's step," he said.

Aquino holds an edge over Marcos

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Opposition candidate Corason Aquino jumped narrowly ahead of President Ferdinand E. Marcos in the government's own vote tabulations on Saturday, and an aide said she was making plans to call on Marcos "to arrange an orderly transfer of power."

Mrs. Aquino, who earlier angered Marcos loyalists by issuing a statement claiming victory in Friday's elections, was reported to hold an edge of 10,297 votes in the 600,000 counted by the Commission on Elections, the official vote-tallying body appointed by Marcos.

The Pacific Ocean archipelago has 26 million voters in 90,000 precincts. Final figures were not expected for days.

The bitter, emotional, two-month campaign culminated in a bloody, controversial balloting. At least 30 people were reported killed, most of them by gunfire. There were reports of intimidation, vote buying, ballot-box switching and other irregularities.

Marcos had predicted he would win 63 percent of the vote, and would be disappointed if his margin of victory was less than 3 million.

The co-leader of a U.S. delegation of election observers accused Marcos of holding back vote results from Manila, where Mrs. Aquino is strongest, in order to "shape the returns."

"My own political judgment is that the government concluded the results from Manila would not be good," said Sen. Richard Lugar, D-Ind. By suppressing them, Lugar said, "the government is trying to determine, in what was a fairly close election, what is going to be required" for a Marcos victory.

Joe Concepcion, chairman of the National Citizens' Movement for a Free Election, or NAMFREL, whose unofficial count showed Mrs. Aquino leading, said there was "no doubt in my mind that the government is trying to make sure it has the margin to win the election. That is very clear."

NAMFREL said at 6 a.m. Saturday, 15 hours after voting ended, that Mrs. Aquino had 1,929,004 votes and Marcos 1,378,135.

Two seek school board spots

By CHARLIE ALCORN Staff Writer

A businessman and a speech therapist are seeking first terms on the Big Spring Independent School District board.

Teddy Griffin, assistant vice president at First Federal Savings and Loan in Big Spring, and Larry Phillippe, a speech maintenance pathologist for the 87-20 Educational Co-Op, have filed for at-large places in the April 5 election. Three spots are up for election.

Griffin, 35, was born in Big Spring and moved to Brownfield where he graduated from high school. He received a B.B.A. degree in administration from Texas Tech University and has lived with his wife, Donna, and children Amber and Tanner in Big Spring for the past 12 years.

"I have a concern for the community first of all, and especially in the area of education of our children," he said. "Good quality education is an indication of the quality of life we have in Big Spring, and the school system is an important factor in that equation."

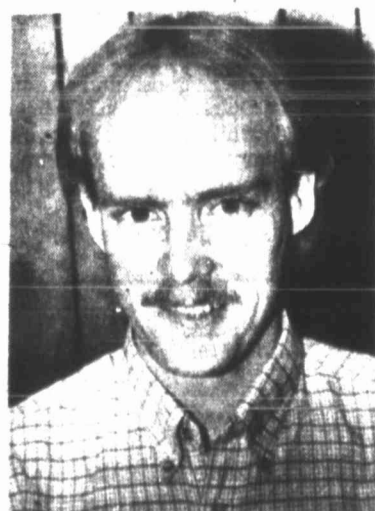

Griffin, who has worked for First Federal for the past five years, said his business experience will serve him well as a school board member.

"I think my dealings with state regulatory agencies in the savings and loan industry will be an asset to the school board because they are under more strict control from state and federal regulation than ever before," he said.

"With the declining tax base in Big Spring it will be a critical time for the school district. Rational business decisions will need to be made in the immediate term to maximize the use of tax dollars so our students will not suffer."

Real piece of Texas history for auction

East Texas entrepreneur Glenn Armstrong looks over 43 pine boards he says came from a home built by Sam Houston in 1848. The boards, some 20 feet long, are slated for auction tomorrow at Armstrong's Diboll Auction House, about 120 miles north of Houston.

DIBOLL (AP) — An East Texas entrepreneur plans this weekend to auction what he says are boards from a home built by Sam Houston in 1848.

A historian in Walker County, where Houston's renovated house is now a museum, agrees that Glenn Armstrong is accurate in his claims that buyers have a chance "to own a real piece of Texas history."

A state official, however, said Tuesday that while the boards may indeed be from the Houston house, they may not be original construction materials.

Armstrong says he bought the boards five years ago for about $50 from a Huntsville salvage yard, where they were taken after being rescued from a Sam Houston State University junk pile slated for burning.

"I would say his story is absolutely accurate," said George Russell, a member of the Walker County Historical Commission.

"He does have material that came from the Houston home. Some of it is material Sam Houston may have leaned against, stepped on and sawed himself."

The 43 pine boards, some of them up to 20 feet long, are slated for auction Sunday at Armstrong's Diboll Auction House, about 120 miles north of Houston.

"The 43 boards are not enough to build a house with," Armstrong says. "But a board is a board unless it came from General Sam's house."

"It's like owning a piece of the Alamo. That building is just as important as the Alamo, because without Sam Houston, we might be standing in Mexico."

Houston built the house in Huntsville for his wife and children while he served in the U.S. Senate. The house now is a museum adjacent to the campus of the university that carries his name. Houston is buried in a run-down cemetery about a mile away.

Armstrong, 54, a Galveston native who now lives in Lufkin, says he knew he had something of significance because the clapboards had been carefully bundled and carried markings indicating where they belonged on the house.

"These boards are actually priceless," he says. "I hope I get a good price. But I have no idea how much they'll bring."

Several of the boards lie on the floor of Armstrong's auction house. The rest are piled on an old hand truck. The exterior sides of boards have many layers of paint, which at one time may have been white. The insides of the boards, however, are unpainted and bear the scars of a rough sawblade and square nails.

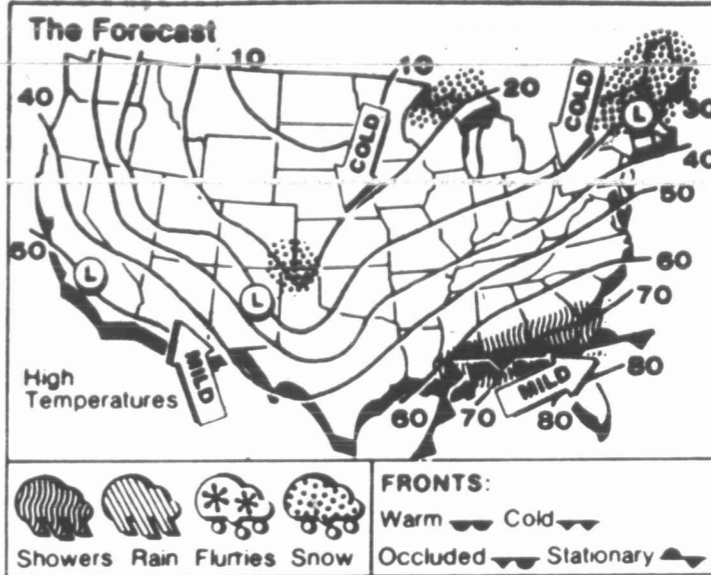

The boards share space in a former auto parts store with antique furniture and lamps, old Coca-Cola signs and circus posters.

Armstrong says he planned to sell the boards by the foot — he'll cut them himself — if buyers only wanted a small piece of Texas history.

For Rogers, the auction brings back bitter memories of the fight to save the original Houston house from a state-financed renovation in 1981.

"They got convict labor to gut it with sledge hammers and crow bars," Rogers says. "These convicts damaged mantles, doors and precious materials."

Griffin previously served as pool professional at the Big Spring Country Club. He is member of the Rotary Club and the First Baptist Church.

Phillipe, 26, works with students from Forsan, Coahoma, Stanton, Garden City, Grady and Greenwood high schools. He has lived in Big Spring for the past two years and is engaged to be married in December to Big Spring resident Debby Husted.

He was born and raised in Lubbock, he graduated from Idalou High School and received a B.B.S. in speech pathology from Hardin-Simmons University in Abilene.

He has worked for the 87-20 Co-Op for the past two years and was previously employed by the Houston and Ralls Independent School Districts as a special education speech therapist.

Phillipe said his service in the public school system for the past five years uniquely qualifies him for the job. "As a teacher I have a good grasp on the problems the school district is facing right now," he said. "I feel like I could bring a whole different view to the board. It would be a big asset to the board to actually have someone down in the trenches, actually going through what they are dictating policy for."

His being a teacher will not cause a conflict of interest, he said. "I hope people will realize that the experience I have working in the school system day by day will bring a whole different point of view to the school board. It's good to have a lot of variety."

He said the biggest issue facing the school board concerns controversial teacher competency tests. "The board will have to look at the aftermath of the competency test we're all going to take in about a month and the ramifications of that."

"The biggest concern of the board is to keep teachers' confidence in themselves and in what they're doing. It's real hard for teachers at this point to get their kids motivated when they're very concerned about the competency tests. In order to have a good system you've got to have teachers excited about what they're doing."

He also finds problems with House Bill 72. "The premise of the bill is great," he said. "I'm glad to see that education is being given top priority, but the bill was much too hastily thrown together. I'd like to see the legislature go back and do some fine tuning on it."

The president leading by 2,947,190 votes to 2,428,756 on Saturday morning. A count by pro-Marcos broadcasters put the president in front by 862,649 to 749,907.

Mrs. Aquino, in a statement released 10 hours after polls closed at 3 p.m. Friday (2 a.m. EST), said, "The trend is clear and irreversible. The people and I have won and we know it."

"The Marcos spell is broken," she said. "The myth of his invincible machine has been shattered. Against his guns, against his goons and against his gold, the Filipino people have prevailed."

Marcos, interviewed on Cable News Network, said a media poll showed him ahead of Mrs. Aquino, 13 million votes to 11 million. However, none of three tabulations purportedly showing Marcos ahead reported anywhere near that number of votes counted.

The supervisor of the government's official tally, Dr. Pedro Baraoidan, said in a telephone interview, "I am not in a position to know where he (Marcos) got his figures."

Nicanor Yniguez, speaker of the national assembly, told a television interviewer that the assembly would begin an official canvass of the votes on Monday.

"It seems to me everybody is canvassing votes when only the Batasan Pambansa is authorized by the constitution," he said.

Suspension lifted

WASHINGTON — General Dynamics Corp. after two months of closed door negotiations, will regain its right to obtain defense contracts following a suspension prompted by a federal fraud indictment, Pentagon sources said Friday.

The decision to lift the suspension against the No. 3 defense contractor was to be announced by Everett Pyatt, assistant Navy secretary for shipbuilding and logistics, after the stock markets closed at 4 p.m. EST, the sources said.

Reagan visits school

ANNANDALE, Va. — President Reagan promised high school students Friday that "teachers are still on the list to go up" into space despite the shuttle Challenger explosion that killed Christa McAuliffe.

In a visit to Thomas Jefferson Science and Technology High School in this Washington suburb, Reagan presented the first public model of the hypersonic aircraft he wants to build. The model was given to Judith Garcia, one of the ten finalists in NASA's Teacher-in-Space program, "in the name of her friends, the Challenger Seven, as a promise that their vision lives on."

Clerk held for bribery

DALLAS — A 15-month probe has led to the arrest of a former Dallas County Sheriff's Department clerk on a charge she took money to destroy a convict's criminal record.

Although the clerk has been charged only in connection with the missing crime record of a Cuban drug dealer, police say they believe several "master criminal records" have been destroyed.

Fake checks unearthed

Grocers and liquor store owners in more than 20 Arkansas cities have been the victims of a counterfeit check scheme involving fake IBM dividend checks, officials say.

In a written warning to bankers across the state, the Arkansas Bankers' Association said the checks have been cashed in stores throughout the state.

Boy awarded damages

ABBEVILLE, La. — A jury awarded $1 million Friday to an 11-year-old boy who was molested by a priest now serving a prison term for sexually abusing three dozen altar boys.

The boy's parents, Glenn and Faye Gastal, refused out-of-court settlements and sought $12 million in their lawsuit against the Roman Catholic Church. They pressed the suit, they said, because the church harbored the Rev. Gilbert Gauthé even after learning that the priest was a child molester.

Balancing act

Despite a blow, Gramm-Rudman is alive

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special federal court panel they have dealt a blow to the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law Friday, but the statute is far from dead.

For one thing, the three-judge court specifically noted that the effect of its ruling is delayed until the matter can be decided by the Supreme Court. That leaves nothing to block the $11.7 billion in automatic spending cuts scheduled to take place March 1 under the law.

Moreover, Congress may find it politically impossible to ignore the law's future deficit targets no matter what the Supreme Court eventually decides on the narrow legal issue of how the cuts to reach those targets can be imposed.

Legal experts familiar with the Supreme Court have estimated that the justices will hear arguments in May and issue a ruling by July.

The impact is unclear on the 1987 fiscal year which begins Oct. 1, but prolonged legal battles obviously could create chaos.

Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said, "I would hope we would operate as if we were under that (Oct. 1) deadline," pending a Supreme Court decision.

The new law sets annual, declining deficit targets for Congress and the White House to meet to bring the budget into balance by 1991. The court left those targets alone.

But the law also says the Congressional Budget Office and the White House Office of Management and Budget are to determine whether the targets are going to be met. If not, the General Accounting Office — the auditing arm of Congress — is directed to send a formal report to the president.

That action triggers automatic, across-the-board spending cuts necessary to meet the deficit goals. That provision is what the court threw out — saying the accounting office was exercising executive branch functions while not being headed by a member of the executive branch.

Anticipating a court challenge, the law said that if the automatic trigger mechanism was judged constitutionally defective, then the two budget offices would make their reports to the budget committees of the House and Senate. The committees then would draft a resolution imposing the cuts.

That budget-cutting procedure,

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, gestures while meeting with reporters on Capitol Hill Friday to discuss a court decision that struck down a central provision of the new law designed to balance the federal budget within five years, called the Gramm-Rudman act.

however, is not substantially different from weapons already in the congressional arsenal.

In fact, the charm of Gramm-Rudman, for some, was that it contained the automatic trigger that freed lawmakers of having to cast politically unpopular budget-cutting votes.

For others, it was that the specter of the automatic cuts would force presumably thoughtful compromises among lawmakers to reach the targets without having to fall back on arbitrary, across-the-board cuts.

Dole had this observation about the possibility of having to fall back on passing resolutions to impose cuts: "I think there's enough will. I don't know about the votes."

He added that any court decision unfavorable to Gramm-Rudman "turns down the fire on us and we need all the heat we can get."

Nonetheless, the new law passed both houses of Congress by overwhelming majorities, putting legislators on record in support of its annual deficit targets. Backers and critics of the new law say it may be impossible now to ignore those targets and walk away from some type of strong deficit-reduction action.

"The pressure would be such that Congress would have to meet those targets," said Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia.

Brad Harris surveys the trench, left, he had to dig across a county road in Waco in order to save most of his 2,700 peach trees that lie under water after more than 10 inches of rain fell on his orchard this week. According to Harris, the orchard is worth more than $100,000 but local officials said he may be endangering nearby residents by draining his land.

County road dug up to save orchard

WACO (AP) — Brad Harris admits he bucked the system when he dug up a county road to drain flood-water off his land. But he says he was desperate to save his "family" of peach trees worth more $100,000. While McLennan County officials say Harris may have violated state laws and possibly placed nearby homes in jeopardy, Harris counters that anyone in the same situation would have done the same. "It is a desperate situation," Harris said Thursday while a backhoe tore into the road. "If you were to relate it to people, you would say that this is my family here in a tank of water and they are going to run out of air in three days. If you were in the same situation, you would do everything you could to see that they get out." The orchard, near Waco, should be drained by noon today, and Harris says he will install two 18-inch culverts and repair the road. This week's heavy rains dumped an estimated 8 to 10 inches of rain on Harris' orchard, leaving 1,500 of his 2,700 peach trees under water since Monday, he said. Harris said Soil and Water Conservation officials told him he might lose the trees if they remained covered with water for 72 hours.

Harris claims the asphalt, county-maintained road, serves as a dam adjacent to his property, preventing the water on his 70 acres from draining across the roadway and into a natural runoff drain that would carry it to the Brazos River. Harris said he asked County Commissioner Wayne Davis to provide culverts, but got no response. He then decided to dig the ditch across the road. Harris also blocked both ends of the road without the county's permission. Davis said Thursday he had turned the problem over to the county engineer. "Sometimes progress is a slow process," Davis said. "We were trying to make a determination of where the water was going to go, but this rain slipped up on us and we didn't get a chance." Harris' attorney sent a letter to the county judge asking the county to reimburse Harris for his expenses in the project. W.C. Haley, an attorney who represents the county, said the county will not pay damages. "I guarantee you that we are not going to pay him," Haley said. "We are entitled to damages if anyone is." Haley said officials have not decided what action, if any, to take in the case.

Analyst draws dim picture for farmers

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — More than 2,700 Texas farmers lost their businesses last year because of financial reasons beyond their control and 1986 doesn't look any brighter, a Texas A&M University agricultural economist says. West Texas farmers were hardest hit, followed by those in the Rolling Plains and East Texas, said Carl Anderson, an economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Cotton and grain farmers suffered the most, he said. "Many of the farmers who went out of business are clustered in the Lubbock region where the strong income base is cotton," Anderson said. "Whether or not farmers survived was related to whether they were leveraged with credit they couldn't pay back." The weather aggravated the problems of the $33 billion-a-year Texas agricultural industry, which still suffered less than other states because of high diversification and lower land value fluctuation, Anderson said. "We could have survived this financial crisis better if it hadn't been for the prolonged drought periods and other severe weather conditions we've been having," Anderson said. Of the 22 farming regions in the state listed by the Texas Department of Agriculture, it was possible to recover costs on one crop in only six of those regions last year, said Leland Beatty, a department researcher. Although many farmers went out of business, Anderson says, very little land went out of production. Instead, much of it was operated by producers who were financially stronger. Anderson also blamed the farmer's plight on the prime interest rate implemented by the federal government which has forced rates up to 20 percent. "That's totally incompatible with agriculture. We knew at the time agriculture could not borrow money and repay it at 20 percent interest because returns on investments in agriculture historically have been somewhere in the 3 percent level," he said. Anderson said reducing federal borrowings that would bring lower interest rates is the first step the nation needs to take to help improve farmers.

Clothes don't grow on hangers

If your children think that clothes grow on hangers in department stores, you may want to take the family out to the Southwest Farm and Ranch Exposition at the Will Rogers Complex-Round Up Inn Room.

In addition to seeing the displays of southwestern natural fibers — cotton, wool and mohair — you can look at some of the machinery and materials it takes to produce these commodities.

You can even see the finished product in the form of some beautifully crafted cotton, wool, and mohair garments.

A Natural Fibers Fashion Showcase on Saturday, March 8, at 4 p.m. will be among the special events held during the week-long Exposition. Women from farm, ranch, and agri-business families will model the clothes they made from cotton, wool, and mohair or blends of these fibers.

The showcase demonstrates what beautiful finished product come from cotton, wool, and mohair — all Texas agricultural commodities.

The entrants will compete for first, second, and third place awards in four divisions: custom sewn garments, knitted and crocheted garments, coordinated mother and child ensembles, and former grand award winners. A fifth non-competitive division gives seamstresses an opportunity to show off Grandmother's oldie but goldie clothing treasure fashions from 1936 and earlier, celebrating Texas Sesquicentennial.

Each garment entered in the show must be made of a minimum blend of 50% cotton or 50% wool and/or mohair.

Contestants must be 18 years or older, and actively involved in farming, ranching, or agri-business; or be a member (or member's spouse) of an agriculture-related organization such as Extension Homemakers Clubs, Young Homemakers, Young Farmers, 4-H Leader Association, producer associations or auxiliaries and tractor pullers' clubs.

Sponsors of the event include the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Southwestern Hardware and Implement Association and Progressive Farmer.

Entries must be submitted by February 21, 1986. Contest rules and entry blanks are available at the County Extension Office.

Take care in choosing trees

Shade trees are one of our first thoughts in landscape development. We're fortunate in Texas to have many dozens of highly suitable species. Special care needs to be given, though, to fitting the tree to the location.

Have an overall plan or objective for planting a tree. Do you need shade, protection from wind, screening, a pedestrian barricade, or a colorful accent? Are you using the tree as a frame for your home?

Know your soil and climatic conditions. Many trees such as dogwoods and East Texas pines need acid soils, a rarity in most of Texas. Other trees such as eucalyptus, citrus and many palms aren't reliably hardy in North Texas.

Remember when planning to consider the tree's ultimate height and spread. Two or three well placed accents can do far more for a landscape than a dozen crowded and struggling plants.

It's best to avoid the really fast growing trees, since most are quite prone to pest problems. Included are willows (borers, cotton root rot, heat stress), cottonwood (borers, cotton root rot), Arizona ash (borers), Chinese elm (elm leaf beetle), sycamore (lace bugs, anthracnose), mimosa (mimosa webworm, mimosa wilt), and fruitless mulberry (borers, cotton root rot, heat stress).

Better by far are the following landscape plants:

OVER 40 FEET — Shumard Red Oak, Live Oak, Water Oak, Willow Oak, Bald Cypress, Cedar Elm, Deodare Cedar.

20-40 FEET — Chinese Pistachio, Golden Raintree, Flowering Pear, Mexican Plum, Crabapple, Japanese Black Pine, Austrian Pine.

UNDER 20 FEET — Crape Myrtle, Yaupon Holly, Possumhaw Holly.

Small trees (6-8 feet height) may be your better landscape investment.

Feelings given on friendship

At the regular meeting of the Extension Homemakers Council the Fairview Club member, Bernice Micallef, gave thoughts on friendship.

Frances Mason, chairman, thanked everyone who assisted the organization through volunteer and food contributions at the Howard County Stock Show.

This is the 60th year of extension work and all members who have achieved 60 years of service will be eligible to receive awards.

Naomi Hunt announced a workshop on making paper from cotton to be held in Lubbock at the Garden and Arts Center on Saturday from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Contact the extension office for information.

Leadership training will be given on getting a good night's sleep Feb. 24 at 2 p.m. in the Howard County Library film room.

Members were encouraged to participate in the cherry pie contest on Feb. 15. Pies are to be at the Highland Mall by 1 p.m. and will be auctioned after judging for the benefit of the Salvation Army.

TEHA chairman Myrl Soles, council chairman Frances Mason and Mildred Callihan will be delegates to the district meeting to be held in Rankin April 3. Alternates are Lennis Couch and Helen McIntire.

Canadians view local PBX system

Peters on excellence

Officials from Canada-based Mitel telephone manufacturing company visited Big Spring this week to view two of their digital phone systems installed here.

"They visited four places: New York, Washington, D.C., Los Angeles and Big Spring," said Robb McKenzie, executive vice president of Advanced Telephone Systems of Big Spring. His company is the only one in the U.S. to have installed two of Mitel's Generic 1000 Digital PBX phone systems, he said.

The systems were installed at Malone-Hogan Hospital and the State Highway Department district office in Odessa.

The system is half digital, which allows for transmission of data by computer link-up, and half analog, which is the normal type telephone, he said.

By TOM PETERS
There is a common lament shared by store managers, loading-dock supervisors and division general managers alike: too much paperwork gets in the way of getting on with the job of serving the customers better. But being inundated by paperwork is by no means inevitable in business.

● McDonald's Corp. does $10 billion in business each year (including its franchises' sales), yet the company's high-volume agreements with its suppliers generally are sealed with handshakes; rarely are they put to paper.

● A subsidiary of Mars Inc. recently was due to renew a labor contract. A management negotiator set an objective about which most of his peers were highly skeptical — to replace the current inch-thick document with five pages or less, focusing on a few simple principles. He was successful, and as a result of his efforts, grievances have been reduced to a trickle. There are no nit-picking details left for either side to debate.

● Rene McPherson was chairman of the $3.7 billion (sales) Dana Corp. during the company's remarkable turnaround in the 1970s. He believed that cutting bureaucracy was the key to increased productivity, because it would free up both management and non-management. He reduced layers on the organization chart from more than a dozen to just five, and he slashed the central staff by 80 percent. He also threw out all 22 inches of policy manuals and replaced them with a one-page statement of corporate philosophy.

Each line in a corporate policy and procedure manual doubtless makes sense. But as the statements are relentlessly elaborated upon, their sheer bulk becomes the prime source of organizational paralysis.

Lawyers will state that McDonald's is at some risk with its handshake agreements. And management and union administrators will shudder at Mars's truncated labor agreement. But systems, procedures, policies, agreements and contracts tend to take on a life of their own. Doing a job with quality and advancing the supplier-buyer or union-management relationship is then relegated to secondary status.

College prof opens instant print shop

By SAM MENON
Staff Writer
According to Bill Sprinkle Jr. of Speedy Printing, the business sign at the front of his shop says it all: Printing while you wait.

Located at 209 West Third, adjacent to the Chamber of Commerce, the facility is set up basically for instant printing, though Sprinkle does a lot more than just that.

Typesetting, design and layout, blue prints and reproduction, binding and photocopies, both black and color, are some of the other services Sprinkle offers to the public.

Custom badges and calligraphy are other areas Sprinkle specializes in.

The grand opening of the printery is scheduled for Feb. 11, though he started the business Jan. 16.

The need to provide "a service that is not offered elsewhere, is the prime motivation for Sprinkle to open a shop immediately after giving up a four-year teaching career in automobile technology at Howard College during 1981-85.

A master's degree-holder in education, Sprinkle majored in industrial arts and math at Sul Ross University.

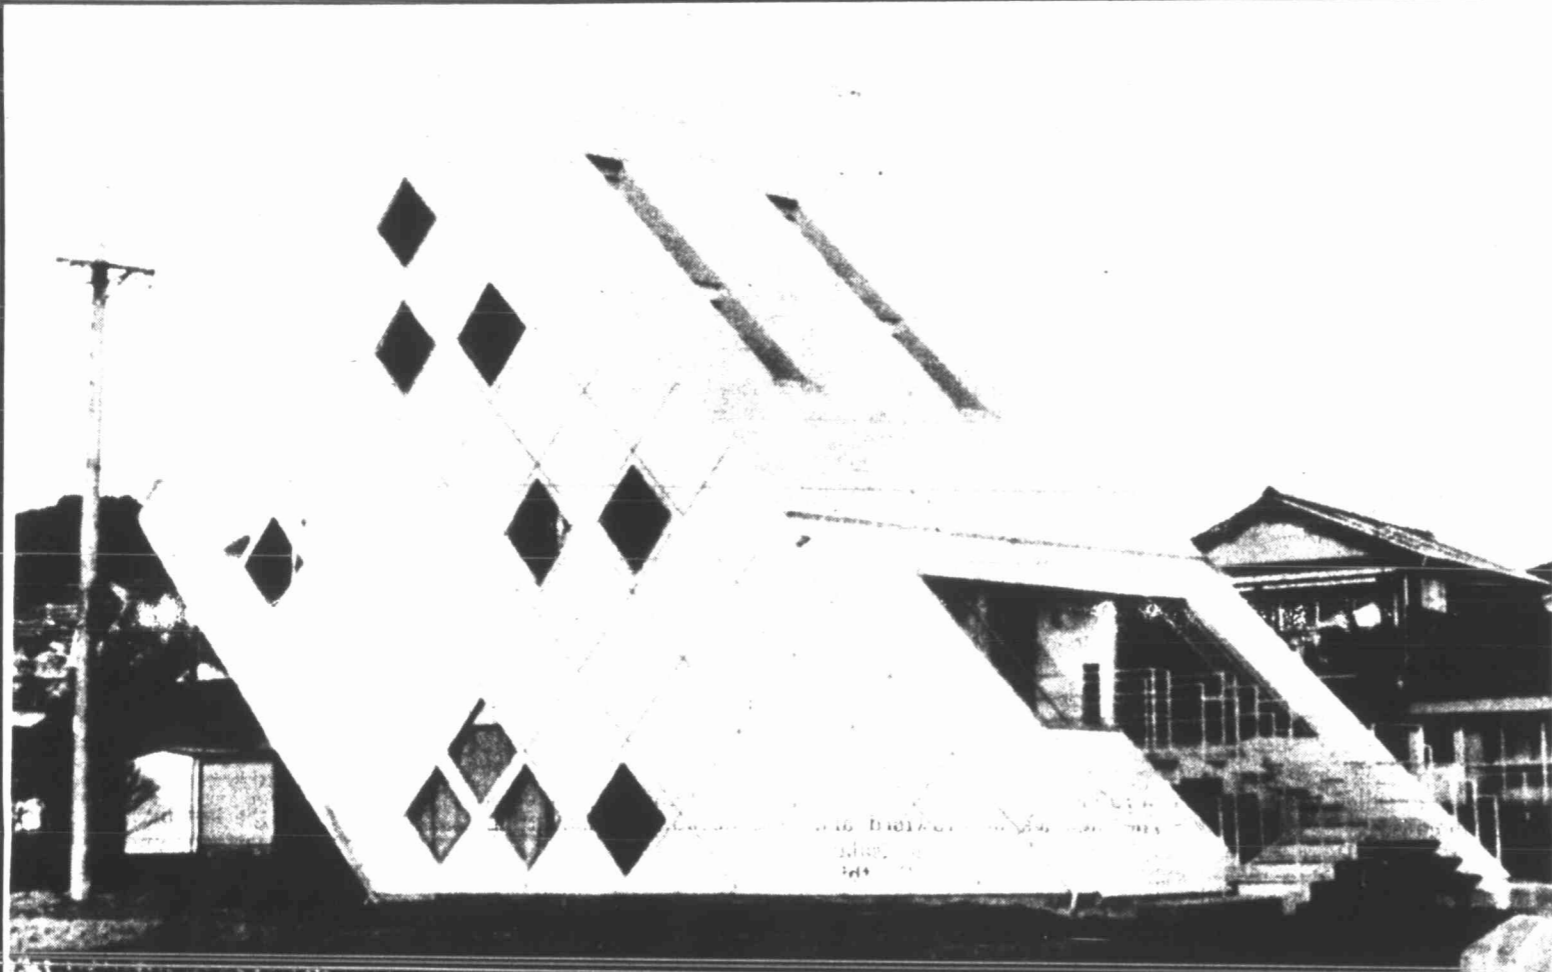

Sprinkle was the principal of a private school at Azle and taught math for a year before he moved to Howard College.

"I got fed up with teaching," Sprinkle said with a sigh of relief. "I am especially peeved at the decline of education, and more so at the insubordination of students."

"Printing is creative and I enjoy the feeling of doing a good job," he said.

Born in Monahans and raised in Pecos, Sprinkle is well-versed in welding, machine shop work, graphic arts and engineering drawing.

He had been in printing business twice before, in Baton Rouge, La., and Pecos.

Second half surge leads Lady Steers past Odessa

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Writer

One small consolation for the Big Spring Lady Steers as they finished the season with a 9-16 record, they saved their best for last.

Their best played off in a second half surge that saw them blow the Odessa High Bronchos away by a 55-44 margin in the season finale for both teams. Although neither team had a shot at the playoffs, it was a big game for since both entered the contest tied for fourth place in district with 3-10 records.

But in the second half coach C.E. Carmichael's troops played like the district championship was on the line as they totally humbled the visitors from the Petroplex. Odessa saw its 25-22 halftime lead go up in smoke as the Lady Steers played all phases of the game well in the second half.

It was a totally gratifying win for the Lady Steers since they were playing without leading scorer and rebounder Monique Jones who missed the game because of illness.

It appeared the Lady Steers missed Jones dearly in the first half as they fell behind 10-5 after first quarter action and trailed by three at the half. The first half wasn't one of Big Spring's banner performances. The Lady Steers turned the ball over 13 times, including 9 in a dismal first quarter.

The OHS duo of forwards Bunny Smith and Brianna Haggard staked OHS to its lead. But in the second half the Big Spring 2-1-2 zone held the 5-10 Haggard scoreless while Smith scored 7 points. Most of those came late in the contest with the game already put away.

Forward Sheri Myrick, who ended the game with 17 points and 11 rebounds, and guard Priscilla Banks; kept Big Spring close in the first half. Banks scored all of her seven points in the first 16 minutes of play. She and forward Teresa Pruitt combined for 17 rebounds, leading Big Spring to a 37-35 rebounding edge.

The second half was a total turnaround for the Lady Steers.

Big Spring came out hot by canning its five field goal attempts of the half. Guard Katrina Thompson and Pruitt hit two baskets each in the spurt. Big Spring went on to hit 9 of 15 field goals in the quarter, stalking to a 40-33 lead going into the final period. As a team the Lady Steers shot 50 percent from the floor in the second half.

Big Spring iced the game by scoring the first four baskets in the final quarter to take a commanding 48-33 lead with 5:20 remaining.

"We battled back in the second half," said a happy Carmichael after the game. "We came back much like we've done the whole season. I'm very proud of the girls."

JV'S MAKE IT A SWEEP

The Lady Steers junior varsity got their third win in-a-row by taking a 44-40 win.

Kim Phipps led the way with 22 points. Nikki Rodriguez and Ida Montez scored 9 and 6 points respectively.

Coach Elaine Stone's squad ended the season with a 7-18 mark and 4-10 district slate.

Mariners outfielder wins first arbitration case

By The Associated Press

Outfielder Phil Bradley of the Seattle Mariners, the eighth-best hitter in the American League last year, became the first major-league player to win his salary arbitration case Friday, earning an increase of nearly $350,000.

Bradley, who batted .300 with 26 home runs, 88 runs batted in, 100 runs scored and 33 doubles in 1985, in his second full season in the majors, was asking for $475,000 after earning $126,370 last season. The Mariners had offered $375,000.

It was the second straight year that Bradley had hit .300 or better — his 1984 average was .301, but that year he failed to hit a home run and knocked in only 24 runs.

The Mariners' remaining arbitration cases involve pitcher Mike Moore, catcher Bob Kearney and pitcher Mark Langston.

Earlier this week, his teammate, first baseman Alvin Davis, the 1984 AL Rookie of the Year, along with outfielder Kevin McReynolds of the San Diego Padres and catcher Alan Knicely of the Philadelphia Phillies had lost their arbitration cases.

Two other arbitration bound players signed contracts Friday. They were outfielder Mel Hall and pitcher Dave Von Ohlen, both of the Cleveland Indians.

Meanwhile, David Palmer, who pitched a five-inning perfect game against St. Louis for Montreal in 1984, signed a one-year contract with the Atlanta Braves and veteran free agent pitcher Dickie Noles signed with Cleveland and was assigned to the roster of the Indians' Maine farm club in the International League.

Also on Friday, the Boston Red Sox signed relief pitcher Steve Crawford and infielder Dave Stapleton, who both had filed for arbitration.

The signings of Crawford and Stapleton left Boston facing salary arbitration battles with third baseman Wade Boggs, catcher Rich Gedman, pitchers Bruce Hurst and Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, second baseman Marty Barrett and infielder Ed Jurak.

Bradley, a former All-Big Eight Conference quarterback at the University of Missouri, has been a consistent .300 hitter in his professional baseball career. He batted .301 with Burlington in 1981, .331 with Bakersfield in 1982 and .323 with Salt Lake in 1983, before joining the Mariners and hitting .269 in 23 games at the end of the '83 season.

Hall, injured most of last season, appeared in only 23 games with Cleveland and batted .318, with no homers and 12 RBI. After earning $280,800 in 1985, he was asking for $390,000 this year. The Indians offered $315,000.

Von Ohlen compiled a 3-2 record with a 2.91 earned run average in 26 games as a reliever for Cleveland in 1985, when he made $65,000. Von Ohlen wanted $140,000, the Indians were offering $85,000.

Palmer, the last major leaguer to pitch a perfect game, does not have a guaranteed contract with the Braves, General Manager Bobby Cox said.

Noles, a veteran of five major-league seasons, was invited by the Indians to their spring training camp. He spent last year with the Texas Rangers, compiling a 4-8 record with a 5.06 ERA. His career record in the majors is 29-46 with a 4.52 ERA.

Mize leads Williams golf

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Larry Mize birdied his final hole for a 68 that lifted him into sole possession of the second-round lead Friday in the $450,000 Shearson Lehman Bros.-Andy Williams Open Golf Tournament.

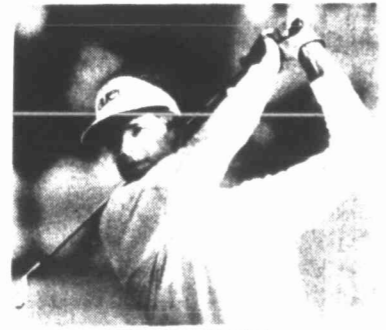

The last-hole birdie put him one stroke in front of Danny Edwards and Bob Tway, tied at 135 at the tournament halfway point. Edwards had a 69, also on the South course, and Tway 68 on the North.

"I got a little break in the weather," said Mize, the first man off the tee on Torrey Pines' South course.

"I got through most of the holes before the wind kicked up too much. A definite break," he said after compiling a 36-hole total of 134, 10 under par.

Mize, whose only victory came in the 1983 Memphis Open, was one of six tied for the first-round lead, but solved that tangle with a 2-putt birdie-4 on the 18th hole.

"A pretty solid round. I was pleased to get out of it with a 68," he said after his effort on Torrey Pines' South course, the longer and more difficult of the two layouts used for the first two rounds of this event.

LARRY MIZE ...10-under-par

Tony Sills, who scored his career-high finishes with a second and third in his last two starts, led a large group at 136, eight under par.

Sills' 66 on the South included a monster putt of "at least 100 feet — all the way across the green," Sills said. And it marked his 14th consecutive round at par or better.

"I'm playing real solid. Everything is going good. I'm putting well, keeping the ball in play. And when I make a mistake, it's not a big mistake," Sill said.

Cowboys add coach to staff

IRVING (AP) — Paul Hackett, who in the last three years directed one of the National Football League's most productive passing attacks in San Francisco, has been hired by the Dallas Cowboys as pass offense coordinator, Coach Tom Landry announced Friday.

Landry shuffled his own offensive coordinator, Jim Shofner, to a desk job as a special assistant.

"I said we were going to have to make changes and we are at that point now," Landry said.

The Cowboys finished 10-6 and won the National Conference Eastern Division, but were shut out 20-0 in their playoff game against the Los Angeles Rams.

"It is a unique opportunity for me," said Hackett, 39. "It's going to be very exciting to work with a running back like Tony Dorsett."

"Coach Landry told me that he would take my ideas and mesh mine with his and we would put them together to see what kind of movement we would get," he added. "Coach Landry called me about 10 days ago."

Hackett said 49ers Head Coach Bill Walsh "was disappointed and he asked me to stay, but I told him that I wanted to expand my offensive philosophies and he was very understanding."

In Hackett's three years as the 49ers quarterback and receiving coach, quarterback Joe Montana increased his passing yardage and touchdown passes while keeping his interceptions down.

Montana has been the highest-rated quarterback in the NFC and led the NFC in touchdown passes in both 1984 and 1985.

"It is a unique opportunity for Hackett," Walsh said. "He has done an excellent job with the 49ers over the past three years, and we wish him the very best."

Hackett has coached five years in the NFL. He joined the 49ers during the 1983 off-season as assistant coach in charge of quarterbacks and receivers, followed with two years with the Cleveland Browns.

He coached with the Browns during the 1981 and 1982 seasons. "This is certainly going to be a challenge," Hackett said. "I was spoiled to a certain extent in San Francisco and now I will get together with Coach Landry and go to work with the Cowboys."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE from the CARROLL RIGTER INSTITUTE

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1986

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Meditation can show you how to make your wishes come true. Be patient and successful in the days ahead.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Get in touch with close friends and state how you would like them to help you in your plans, and gain their cooperation.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Decide upon how best to handle community affairs in the near future. Then later discuss your career with a prominent person.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Seek out wise individuals who can give you good advice on how to solve your problematical affairs best. You may have to take a short trip to gain your goals in this direction.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Your hunches are exceptionally good now, so listen to their promptings, and follow them. Later you can come to an understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A good day to have long talks with associates and plan the future more intelligently for greater success.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A fine day to study your environment and know how best you can improve it. If a fellow worker is available, make arrangements.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A good day to go out for amusements that give you relief from daily tensions. If you have a mate, get out and have fun together.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Your home is where you can find the greatest amount of pleasure and happiness today.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Go where you can gain new ideas that will be helpful to you during the new week. Think big.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Even while at Sunday pursuits, concentrate on how to have greater abundance in the days ahead.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Do whatever you please today and get your ideas across to others easily since you are thinking wisely now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she can readily comprehend the principles behind any undertaking, so give a good education that will also teach how to make good ideas become a reality and how best to make them work. Teach to be more objective since there is a tendency here to be too bashful.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 10, 1986

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Some obligation may come up that could delay your plans for the day, but it is worth the cost of what you can accomplish a lot.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Don't permit one who is subordinate and stubborn to spoil your plans for the day, so dash out and get a lot accomplished.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You may encounter a stumbling block in the path of your work but can soon get over this hurdle and make big headway.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Your desire for pleasure should not interfere with important work ahead of you, so be wise and gain success.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Don't waste time at home, but go after the information you need so that you can become more efficient and successful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) First find out what a partner expects of you before keeping an important appointment, and then be fair and just.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Don't try to settle some long-time responsibilities right now, but concentrate on recreational matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Forget that personal desire and plan how to make your life more harmonious with your mate, and then follow through on it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get your home made more functional and charming and forget dull tasks you had in mind to do.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Steer clear of a friend who is irritated early in the day and get busy with your correspondence and communicating.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You had better study that mundane affair more carefully before you handle it. Take care of important business matters first.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Don't let that new idea take you away from a plan you have to get the things you personally like.

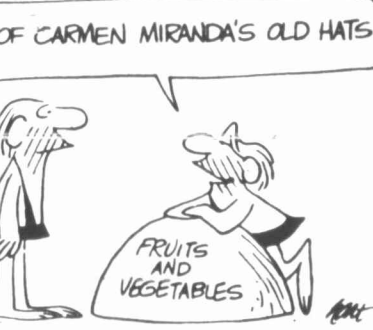

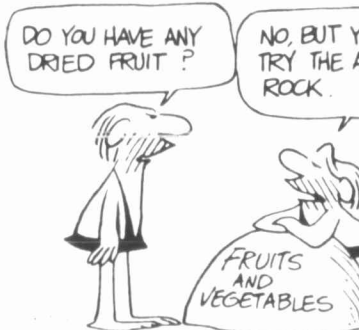

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY ... he or she will have much imagination and have high ideas and ideals, so be encouraging with your charming progeny. There is also the ability to handle details very well which can be most helpful to make such a reality.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel!" What you make of your life is largely up to you!
