By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Frances Wheat and Owen H. Ivie were named Man and Woman of the year Saturday night at the annual Big Spring Chamber of Commerce banquet at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Also honored at the banquet were Ray Alexander, Ambassador of the year; Marianne Brown, who received the Blue Blazer "pat on the back" award; Jerry Iden, agricultural producer of the year; and D.C. Lee, conservationist of the year.

Outgoing chamber president Granville Hahn was presented with a plaque, as was Industrial Foundation past president Hooper Sanders. Outgoing and incoming chamber officers also were recognized.

About 500 people attended the banquet, served by students from Howard College and SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

Don Newbury, president of Howard Payne College, gave a humorous speech with a "look for the best" theme. Joe Whitten of Whitten Prison Ministries led the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and other patriotic songs.

Wheat, of Wheat Furniture, is president of the 1955 Hyperion Club, chairman of the Heart of the City committee and co-chairman of the Sesquicentennial committee. She also serves on the board of directors of Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center, is co-chairman of "Celebrate" committee for the First Baptist Church centennial and is a member of the Texas Home Economist Association, the American Home Economist Association and Republican Women.

In 1985, she was inducted into the Big Spring High School Hall of Fame. She has a Grand Cross of Color of the Order of the Rainbow and has served as a volunteer at Malone-Hogan Hospital.

She also has served as vice president of the Jayceettes, president of the Heritage Museum, president of the AAUW, president of the Ladies Golf Association at Big Spring Country Club and director of the chamber from 1981-83.

U.S. unhappy with Philippine election

WASHINGTON (AP) — American officials, dismayed by fraud and violence reported in the Philippine election, concluded Saturday that President Ferdinand E. Marcos was losing the contest and would create chaos if he remained in power.

In a development that caused considerable consternation among U.S. policymakers, Marcos told a news conference he might invoke powers permitting him to void the special election and stay in office until his regular term expires in 1987.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the House subcommittee that deals with the Philippines, said he feared such a move would inevitably lead to street demonstrations followed by clashes with police and widespread fighting. Marcos' opponent, Corazon C. Aquino, had pledged before the election to lead such demonstrations if the government voided her victory.

"Mrs. Aquino seems to have a substantial majority," Solarz said in a telephone interview. "Marcos failed to steal the election on a wholesale basis and is now trying to steal it on a retail basis."

He urged the Reagan administration to put pressure on Marcos to leave office and issue a warning that "the future of the U.S. relation with the Philippines depends on Marcos respecting the will of the people."

"If this election is simply stolen and the will of the people is thwarted it could bring the Philippine nation to the brink of civil war," Solarz said.

He said a stolen election would be a "bonanza" for communist guerrillas trying to enlist support among moderate citizens.

Neither the State Department nor the White House issued public comments on Friday's election because final tallies by official vote-counters and an independent citizens' poll-watching organization known by its acronym Namfrel, were not expected until Monday.

However, administration officials were said to believe in the accuracy of a Namfrel count putting Mrs. Aquino ahead by a 4-3 margin with about one-third the

Pickens finds his way around oil price slide

FORT WORTH (AP) — While world oil prices are plunging toward pre-1979 lows, T. Boone Pickens has locked his Mesa Petroleum Co.'s entire 1986 crude oil production at $26.50 a barrel throughout 1986, two newspapers reported.

In November, when oil was selling at nearly $32 a barrel, Pickens said he sensed prices would begin falling, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Saturday.

So he contracted on the oil futures market to sell 4 million barrels — the company's entire production — this year at approximately $26.50 a barrel, or a total of $106 million.

The flamboyant Amarillo businessman, among America's most famous and feared "corporate raiders," told the Star-Telegram Mesa decided to play the futures market because "we could see very clearly that prices would drop."

He also told the Sunday Oklahoman that he and other Mesa officers "didn't like what we were seeing" as potential oil prices in 1986, "so we said let's go ahead and lock in our position. We did that."

Last week, oil prices skidded to between $15 and $20 a barrel on the spot market. Even the major oil companies have adjusted their posted price — the amount they are willing to pay suppliers — to as low

13-year-old boy killed by hit-and-run driver

A 13-year-old Sand Springs boy was killed Saturday night in a hit-and-run accident on the south service road of Interstate 20 near Moss Creek Road.

Armando Jesus Soto was pronounced dead by Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin about 10 p.m. Saturday, said sheriff's department Sgt. Carl Thurman. The sheriff's department was notified of the accident at 9:06 p.m., he said.

Soto apparently was riding his bicycle on the road when he was struck by a vehicle, Thurman said.

"It appears to be a truck with off-the-road tires. We have a paint transfer" of the vehicle, he said.

Services are pending at Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

Miss USA makes Big Spring stop

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Staff Writer

Reigning Miss USA, Laura Martinez-Herring of El Paso, comes across as more than a typical beauty queen.

A naturalized citizen from Mexico, she is the first Mexican-American to win the national title. She spent her senior year of high school at Aiglon College in Switzerland and her graduation summer in 1982 living and working as a volunteer in India. For the next year, she traveled throughout Europe and Asia.

"I wore jeans and did manual labor like digging ditches, carrying rocks and planting trees," she said. "It makes you a stronger person."

When Martinez-Herring returned to Texas from traveling, she won Miss El Paso and Miss Texas-USA titles.

"When I became Miss El Paso, many people told me I 'had it all' to become Miss Texas, but that I shouldn't get my hopes up because a Hispanic had never won the title. That was a challenge I was deter-

Support mounts for independence

NEW YORK, N.Y., APRIL 26, 1836 — Declaring that "Mexico can never conquer Texas!" Commissioner William Wharton delivered an impassioned plea to the people of New York last night to aid Texans in their struggle against the tyranny of Mexico.

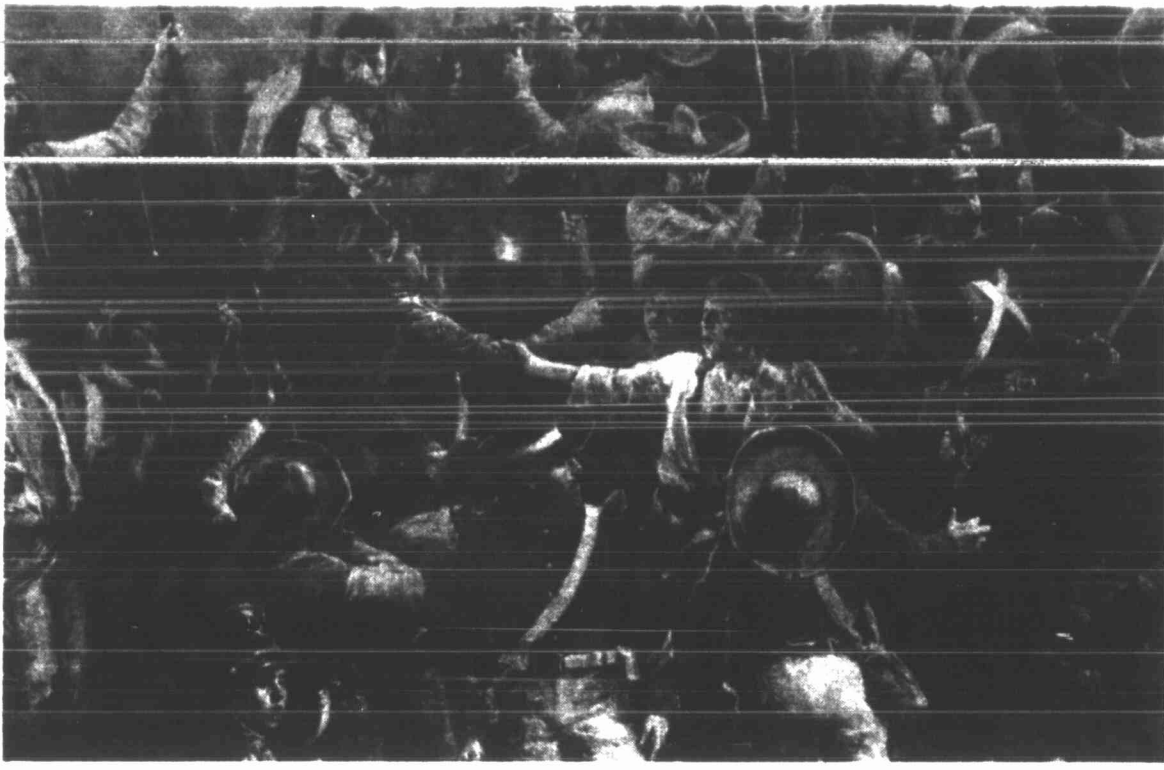

The Anglo settlers of Mexico have been involved in several losing battles against a reported 6,000 Mexican troops and their dictator Santa Anna, who stormed into Texas in February. Two months later most of Texas' leading citizens have been killed at two battles: San Antonio and Goliad.

Journey through Texas

General Sam Houston has kept his troops in retreat and there have been unconfirmed reports that he captured Santa Anna at San Jacinto three days past. Wharton and Stephen, Austin, known to be the most powerful emissario in Texas, report that Texas has declared itself independent from Mexico and they implore recognition and support from the U.S. government here.

Wharton spoke eloquently of the plight of his people and he illuminated some history: "Because of the dread of Indians, Texas held no interest for Mexican immigrants. They were accustomed to a lazy pastoral or mining life in a healthy country," he said.

The Anglo settlers earned their rights to the Mexican land through bloodshed and hard work, he explained. "Under smiles of benignant heaven, however, the untiring perseverance of the colonists triumphed over all natural obstacles and expelled these savages by whom the country was infested, reduced the forest into cultivation and made the desert

He described the long succession of presidents and dictators Mexico has had since allowing immigration in 1822, then asked: "Can the same amount of crime and carnage be culled and collected from 100 years in the history of any other Christian people? No! ... I put it to your candor and republicanism, gentlemen," he implored, the Mexicans are "incapable of self-government ... the Mexicans never afforded the colony a shadow of protection!"

Wharton decried the Mexican prohibition against additional immigration in 1830, stamping the government with the "foul blot of ingratitude."

"They imprison our citizens without cause, detain without trial and in every respect trampled upon our rights and privileges," he said.

Of Santa Anna, Wharton said: "While laying this flattering unction (sic) for our souls and indulging dreams of fancied felicity never to be realized, the military despot Santa Anna developed his tyrannical intention to reduce us to absolute slavery or to involve all who refused to be slaves in an undistinguished massacre.

"The Anglo-American race is destined to be forever proprietors of this land of promise and fulfillment. Their laws will govern it, their learning will enlighten it..."

In conclusion, Wharton asked the people to help Texas defend the principals upon which the nation was founded. "I invoke you by every principal honor, by every feeling of humanity, by every obligation of blood, by your devotion to liberty..."

U.S. government sources say Congress will not recognize Texas unless it receives "official" and regular dispatches from the new government there. Colonel Austin is reportedly attempting to borrow money from eastern banks to help the effort.

The committee passed a resolution advocating Congress assist Texas in its war. It is uncertain what the government will do at this time.

"Journey Through Texas" is a Sesquicentennial project of the Office of Media Relations of the University of Houston-University Park. This piece is based on materials housed in the Special Collections Department of the M.D. Anderson Library at the University of Houston-University Park.

Election

vote tabulated. The official government tally, running far behind, showed Mrs. Aquino slightly ahead.

In Manila, Sen. Richard Lugar, leader of a team of U.S. observers, accused Marcos of manipulating the vote count and warned it could seriously damage U.S.-Philippine relations.

Richard Kessler, a Philippine expert at the Carnegie Endowment for Peace, said Mrs. Aquino "has won the election. I don't think there's any doubt of it ... Marcos' only claim to power now is coercion, and coercion is not democracy."

Kessler, commenting on reports of 30 people dead in election violence, widespread ballot-box stuffing and intimidation of Mrs. Aquino's supporters, said "I think the place is going to erupt."

For the United States, the situation in the Philippines represents more than a struggle between two political factions in a densely crowded and distant chain of Asian islands. There are two major U.S. military bases in the country, a growing communist guerrilla movement that operates freely in large sectors of the nation and a set of grave economic problems.

Since Marcos announced the elections late last year, Reagan and other U.S. leaders had called for fair and violence-free balloting. They had asserted, moreover, the election could be a disastrous turning point if the Philippine people felt it was a fraud.

Until now, the Reagan administration — while making clear its dissatisfaction with Marcos' performance in office — has not exerted overt pressure against him, though he has accused the United States of supporting Mrs. Aquino, wife of a slain Philippine human rights activist.

Marcos' government received $240 million in U.S. assistance this fiscal year. In his budget request for next year, President Reagan asked for roughly the same amount, $233 million, which would put the Philippines in ninth place on the list of U.S. aid recipients.

Solarz, whose subcommittee votes on aid to Asian countries, said "we will need a root and branch review" if Marcos remains in power.

Kessler said, "I think that if Marcos tries to stay in power, the administration is going to get very tough with him, including cut off his aid. They have to use some leverage."

mined to meet," she said.

In May 1985, she met the challenge and won the national title.

Martinez-Herring was in Big Spring Friday as part of a national tour.

At a reception and autograph party at Gordon's Jewelers, Mayor Clyde Angel presented her with a bouquet of yellow roses. "We're a typical West Texas town," Angel said, "but tonight we have the beautiful Miss USA."

For nine months Miss USA has been on a constant tour, said her traveling companion, Barbara Johnson.

Since Monday she has been to Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Lubbock and Big Spring. She will continue on to Midland and Odessa.

"I enjoy traveling. I enjoy people. But there are sacrifices... I have no time for myself," she said. "Sometimes I go weeks without having a day off."

But the position has advantages, too. "You gain so much. Like confidence, job offers and money."

Martinez-Herring said.

As Miss USA, she has received $175,000 in cash and prizes, a personal appearance contract, a Paramount Pictures screen test and exclusive New York City and Los Angeles apartments, which she shares with the reigning Miss Universe.

She has also had four job offers with major companies, she said. Born in Mexico on March 3, 1964, she moved with her family to Marble Falls, San Antonio and finally settled in El Paso.

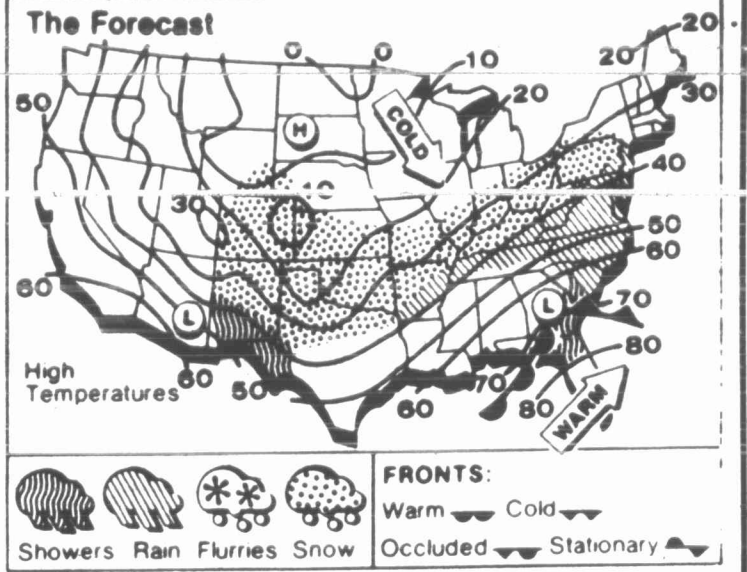

Martinez-Herring is a naturalized citizen, and her mother recently became a U.S. citizen as well.

"My mother has waited for years to become a naturalized citizen and finally became one," Martinez-Herring said. "It was so exciting because I got to play a part in her naturalization," she said.

Martinez-Herring will face a new challenge in July when she vies for the Miss Universe crown in Miami.

"I'm enjoying my year as Miss USA," she said. "I've been doing this since '82, but I'm ready to continue with my life."

Temperatures ranged from 10 to 20 degrees below normal across the state, the National Weather Service reported. Snow was reported from south of Dalhart through Amarillo to near Lubbock.

In addition, patches of light snow mixed with sleet were reported over North Central Texas generally from Waco to Stephenville eastward through southeastern Dallas.

A chance of snow was forecast for most parts of North Texas on Sunday and Monday. The highs should be between 26 and 44 degrees, while the lows should range from 24 to 35 degrees.

In West Texas, a travelers advisory is in effect for the Panhandle and South Plains on Sunday, and many areas have a chance for more snow.

Police say man found dead may have been murdered

Police are investigating the death of a 64-year-old Big Spring man as a possible homicide, police Lt. Jerry Edwards said Saturday.

Officers killed by bomb

LOS ANGELES — At least one pipe bomb exploded inside a house Saturday, shaking the neighborhood and killing the two police bomb squad officers who were trying to defuse the device, authorities said.

Detective Arleigh McCree, 46, a noted explosives expert who directed bomb-squad operations during the 1984 Olympics in Los Angeles, and Officer Ronald Ball, 43, were killed, said Police Chief Daryl F. Gates.

Gates said he believed it was the first time a member of the department's bomb squad had been killed on duty.

Gates said the incident began Saturday morning when officers served a search warrant at the North Hollywood home of Donnell Morse, 35. The warrant was in connection with the Feb. 4 slaying of an unidentified union official, he said.

While searching the garage, officers found two pipe bombs in a storage cabinet and the bomb squad was called, Gates said. McCree and Ball arrived and began working to defuse one of the bombs when it exploded about 11:30 a.m.

Divers search for rocket

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Navy divers probed the ocean bottom 16 miles east of Challenger's launch site Saturday for a new piece of wreckage: the upper-stage rocket that was to have propelled a communications satellite into stationary orbit.

The 17-foot by 10-foot rocket was believed to be in one piece and was being considered "a hazardous object" because of its normal load of 27,400 pounds of solid propellant, said Cmdr. Arthur E. Norton, a Navy spokesman.

The rocket would have propelled the satellite into permanent orbit 22,300 miles above the Earth.

Norton and NASA officials said there was no word on recovery efforts of other underwater sonar "targets," which may include the crew compartment and solid rocket boosters of the spaceship that exploded on liftoff Jan. 28, killing the seven astronauts on board.

New Orleans celebrates

NEW ORLEANS — Thousands of raucous revelers crowded into the narrow streets of the French Quarter on Saturday to participate in Carnival, the party before the party of Mardi Gras.

Nine parades, including Endymion led by grand marshal Paul Anka, wound through the streets of the city. Sudden showers Friday night forced Hermes, a major parade, to shorten its route by two miles, and the sky was overcast Saturday.

But predictions of foul weather and dropping temperatures did not cool the attitude of costumed partygoers taking part in the pre-Lenten bash, a period commemorating Jesus' 40 days in the wilderness, begins Wednesday.

Train wreck

Collision in Canada kills 30-40 passengers

HINTON, Alberta (AP) — A passenger train collided with a freight train in the Canadian Rockies Saturday and a Via Rail spokesman said 30 to 40 people perished in the heap of twisted, burning rail cars. Medical workers said 80 people were injured, at least a dozen seriously.

The accident occurred at 9:40 a.m. CST, 10 miles east of Hinton, a pulp-mill town on the main Canadian National railroad line, said Bill Dewan, a spokesman for the principal cross-country freight line. The freight train, with 114 cars and three diesel locomotives, was westbound, he said, and the nine-car passenger train, also with three diesel engines, was heading east.

"I was sitting having breakfast and all of a sudden all hell broke loose," said Douglas McDonald, 44, of Winnipeg, Manitoba, a bartender-steward on the passenger train. "It kept on coming, it hit, then it hit again. All of a sudden, the windows started coming in. I was looking out that window," he said, holding his ribs and pointing, "and I left out that window."

Passenger Bruno Belanger said, "The dining car ended up getting split in half, like a sardine can, and some people were lucky to get out of there."

Estimates of the number of passengers ranged from 101 to 120. Of the 24 crew members on both trains, seven were missing, said Dewan.

He said the accident occurred on a slight curve after the freight train entered a single track from a double track. The trains collided about 75 yards from where the section of double track ended.

"The train should not have left the double track section, and whether its failure to stop was due to signal failure or human failure is what is under investigation," he said.

Seventy-six cars from the freight train, half carrying grain, were derailed and all but three cars of the passenger train — including three sleepers — left the track. Officials at the scene said all 20 freight cars carrying ethylene dichloride remained on the track.

A fire that broke out after gas tanks ruptured was extinguished by firefighters in helicopters and on the ground, Dewan said.

Witnesses said 30 cars were strewn about and piled on top of each other in a 100-by-50-yard mass of smoldering, twisted steel along a flat stretch in thick forest country. Smoke curled from the wreckage and piles of yellow sulphur, grain and pipe from the freight train were scattered along the tracks.

The accident occurred near Jasper National Park, on the border between Alberta and British Columbia and 175 miles west of Edmonton, the provincial capital.

"We have ... received word that there are between 30 and 40 deaths," said Cedric Jennings, spokesman for Via Rail, the Canadian passenger train service, in a radio interview from Montreal. He said there were 103 passengers on the train.

Dewan said the train carried between 101 and 120 passengers. There was no accurate count, he said, because the conductor had not yet registered passengers who boarded or left the train at Jasper and Hinton, its last two stops. Survivors, some transported by helicopter, were treated at Hinton Hospital, where 64 were released and three were admitted, said employees. At least a dozen seriously injured were taken to Edmonton by ambulance. Police set up a makeshift morgue in Hinton, a town with a population of 1,800, Jennings said.

Herman Adams of Paradise Valley, Alberta, limped off an ambulance bus went into the hospital. "All I can tell you is it just felt like our car went up a couple of times and then down and over on its side," he said.

The estimated number of dead would place the crash among the worst in Canadian history. On Sept. 1, 1947, 31 people were killed when two passenger trains collided head-on at Dugald, Manitoba.

Haitians seek revenge

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — Haitians embittered by 28 years of repressive rule sought revenge Saturday against members of the hated Tonton Macoutes, the private army used by deposed President Jean-Claude Duvalier to stifle dissent.

Numerous reporters told of seeing acts of violence against Tonton Macoutes members, and Associated Press reporter Art Candell saw at least 100 bodies stacked in an unrefrigerated morgue at the General Hospital.

Most were believed to be the bodies of Tonton Macoutes beaten to death Friday and Saturday.

Dictator exiled in luxury

TALLOIRES, France — Deposed Haitian dictator Jean-Claude Duvalier spent his first full day of exile behind closed shutters in a luxury lakeside hotel in snowy southeastern France Saturday, enjoying a dish of salmon and a warm sauna while waiting for a permanent refuge.

Duvalier, his wife Michele, their children and an entourage are being housed in a four-story, converted 11th-century Benedictine abbey.

His party arrived in France late Friday after leaving his impoverished Caribbean nation in the face of a mass uprising. A military-civilian council assumed power in Haiti upon his departure.

Libya begins maneuvers

TRIPOLI, Libya — The Libyan air force and navy on Saturday began eight days of maneuvers "with live ammunition" off the coast of Libya, state-run television said.

The broadcast in Arabic did not give any details as to how many ships or planes were involved, but identified the maneuver area as the "Tripoli Air Traffic Control Area."

In the last week of January, the area off the coast of Libya was the scene of maneuvers conducted by two U.S. aircraft carriers, the Coral Sea and the Saratoga, and a number of support ships.

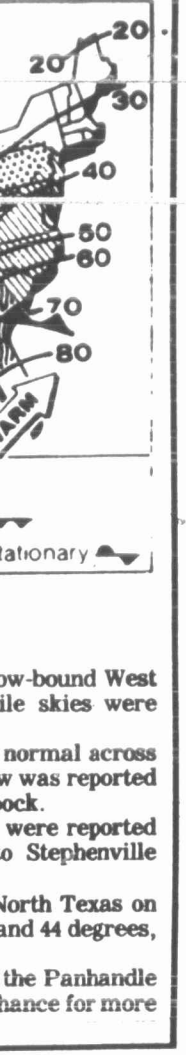

Pentagon sources have confirmed the U.S. ships were to return to the area next week for further air and sea operations.

Libyan television said "all air activity will be under visual and radar control to ensure the safety of civilian aircraft." It did not elaborate.

Cuban troops to remain

HAVANA — President Fidel Castro says that 35,000 Cuban troops in Angola will stay there until South Africa dismantles apartheid.

He also says that Cuba will increase its aid to Nicaragua if Congress approves President Reagan's request for more aid to anti-Marxist Nicaraguan rebels.

Orthodontic's dual goals.

Certainly you know the first goal: to build confidence and self-esteem by building an attractive smile. The second, equally as important, is to shape the long-term health of your mouth. This is done by achieving a balance, a harmony, of all the forces of your bite. This takes a higher skill than merely moving a tooth. And it's this skill that establishes the foundation for an enduring, attractive smile and a healthy bite.

Vigilantism good only for movies

Bernhard Goetz, New York's subway gunman, may prove the point that many of his defenders seek to make. And that point is that the court system in this country is unworkable.

A judge in New York has thrown out the murder and assault charges returned against Goetz by a grand jury. The judge's ruling is based on flimsy grounds. Now the prosecution must take a lengthy detour through the appellate courts or go through the grand jury process again, more than a year after the shooting.

Goetz pulled a gun and fired at four young black men on a New York City subway train. He said among other things that he felt threatened by their "body language." After he started shooting, he didn't stop. "You don't look so bad, here's another," he told one victim and fired again.

Was that the action of a reasonable man, firing in self-defense? The judge seems to think so. His ruling would indicate that almost any violent action is justified, based on fear, no matter how unreasonable. That's vigilantism. It makes good movies but bad law.

The young black men had criminal records and sharpened screwdrivers. They may have been robbers waiting for an opportunity. But they did not present so serious a danger to New York subway riders as Goetz and hundreds of armed citizens like him could, if the criminal justice system gives its approval.

Immigration helps economic resources

The President's Council of Economic Advisors recently concluded that immigration represents a net economic gain for the country — signaling a departure in the national debate over immigration.

For a long time, a uniform public view shaped the country's immigration policy. Public opinion polls consistently showed most Americans view immigration as an economic and social threat.

But now business interest groups are increasingly opposed to restrictive immigration legislation. With that, a new perspective on the issue is emerging.

Business has long had reservations about immigration bills such as the Simpson-Rodino version now pending in Congress. Those concerns are evolving into a new school of thought that views immigration as a national economic resource.

Business played a silent but critical role in helping Hispanics defeat potentially discriminatory legislation in 1981 and 1983, when they collaborated in a subtle strategy to clog up the congressional arteries.

Now come the council's views — not long after a Rand Corporation study on the effects of immigration on California was made public.

The Rand study reached similar conclusions and, in fact, may have played a major influence in the development of the council's views.

But the studies illustrate how the country's economic elite has come to view immigration quite differently from the rest of the public.

Both the council and the West Coast think tank believe immigration creates jobs and produces greater levels of economic activity in areas where immigration is the strongest. If so, the contributions immigrants make to U.S. society probably outweigh the social costs involved.

Neither report goes that far, but both focus on the economic advantages immigrant labor produces.

Business has come to regard immigration — specifically from Mexico — as an important weapon to combat worldwide competition against U.S. products. Faced with increased foreign competition, immigration is a tool by which many U.S. businesses can survive economically as the U.S. is flooded by a wave of cheaper foreign goods produced by cheaper foreign labor.

Immigrant labor, too, helps U.S. industry produce goods and services which otherwise would have to be imported — at greater costs.

Immigration, then, has become a positive influence in the country's balance of trade.

This may be why the council believes the Los Angeles economy has risen steadily as immigrants plied into the city. An abundant supply of moderately priced labor enticed investors to build labor-intensive industries. Many of these were new industries which helped fire the rest of the economy.

By creating new businesses, immigration expanded the general economy and, in effect, increased the net income of native-born U.S. residents by creating additional sources of employment.

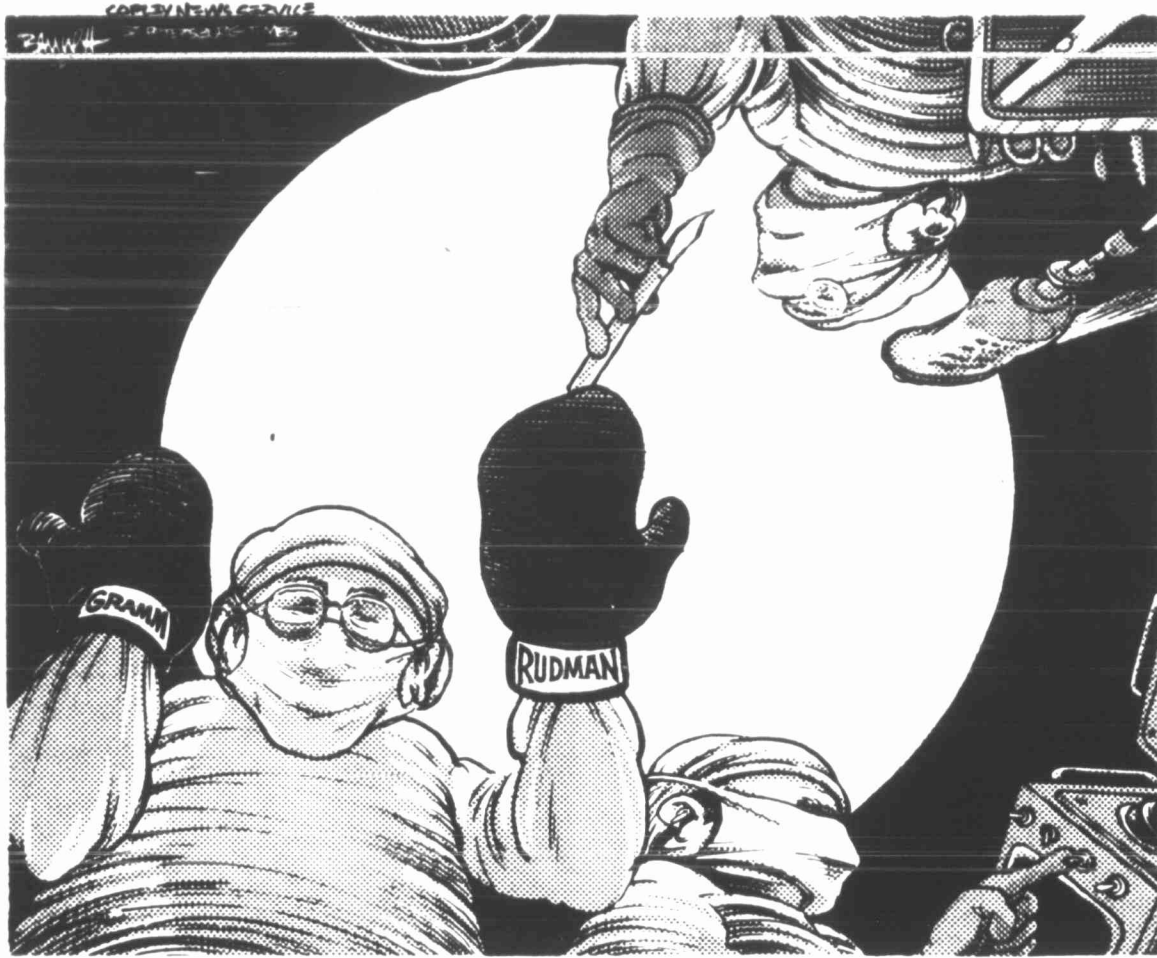

The council's draft memorandum on immigration rings with such conviction that it may now be difficult to move business off its growing opposition to immigration legislation.

In its best tradition, business has invented a phrase to defend its new-found profit resource: Labor market tax.

Penalties against employers who employ immigrant aliens — the art of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill Hispanics found the most odious because they feared employers would discriminate against Hispanics — constitute a market tax on labor, businessmen say.

When the council's viewpoints on immigration became known, immigration legislation proponents screeched. But the council earlier had heard another sound, that of cash registers ringing throughout the economy.

A news day like no other

When the space shuttle Challenger exploded just seconds after launch on Jan. 28, I was locked in a room with managers of the newspaper wrangling over the 1986 budget. Out of the conference room for a moment's break, I was walking toward the news department when I noticed something was wrong.

The most striking incongruity was that no one was in his proper place. Instead of the controlled frenzy of steady efforts at assigned work stations, the normal deadline fare, the news reporters and editors were standing, sort of hovering.

The devastating news threw everything out of kilter. Work assignments that had been top priority for the afternoon paper suddenly seemed remote and insignificant. The magnitude of the event was so powerful that shock set in. It had to be not only accepted and absorbed, it had to be dealt with. It was tragic, inexplicable, devastating, but it also was headline news.

I was in the newsroom by then and directed a quizzical look at Robin Ward, the city editor. She was treading water, pacing between her desk and the Laserphoto wire service photo machine. We spoke just a bare, few words.

Associated Press sent a bulletin at 10:41 a.m. on the explosion, and then more stories in one paragraph fragments on the space launch turned disaster. Dispatches on the explosion were juxtaposed with an "urgent" first paragraph describing a perfect launch. That's how suddenly it all happened.

The AP advised that a photograph, taken from television monitors, was being moved to member newspapers via satellite.

Stories still were so fragmented as to be worthless.

By that time the newsroom was coming out of its collective shock, and was primed, waiting for instructions and assignments.

The shuttle explosion happened late in our news cycle, after 10:30 a.m. Normally by 10:30 a.m., we know what stories will be on the front page and what it will look like. Sports is finishing up its section, and the inside news pages are complete, leaving only Page One and Page Two.

Reporters are 30 minutes away from copy deadline. The pages of the newspaper are two hours away from being ready for the press. The press is 2½ hours away from running.

That's on a normal day. This Tuesday was anything but normal.

We sent word to other departments on what was happening, and the production department scrambled to set up for color reproduction on the slim chance that the AP might have color available quickly.

We in the newsroom began identifying potential stories for use: A main story on the explosion. A profile of America's teacher in space, Christa McAuliffe. A reaction piece on the school children who watched their teacher's space launch. Reaction from President Reagan and Congress.

We were watching the Laserphoto equipment to see what illustration could be used to tie this all-new front page together. It didn't produce any photos. It was broken.

We were losing precious minutes. I finally located the problem, a belt that guides the photo paper had come loose. By the time I put it back in place, the critical first photos already had been transmitted, and AP, scrambling to produce as much on the subject as quickly as possible, couldn't take time to resend anything.

In desperation, I called the Midland Reporter-Telegram. Newspapers are highly competitive, but the competition does not outweigh an essential kinship. Newspapers historically have helped one another in time of trouble. Midland's editor instantly agreed to share his photographs.

But Midland is an hour away. I pushed my luck and asked if he could spare anyone who would be willing to meet us — physically — halfway. He paused just a second, and then said he could. And so a rendezvous at the Dairy Queen in Stanton was arranged.

Stanton was 45 minutes away, roundtrip. It was 12:10 p.m. One of our reporters left instantly to meet the Midland reporter in Stanton.

Meanwhile, stories on the Associated Press wire began to congeal. AP by this time had been able to process color photographs of the tragic explosion.

We decided to go with color, even though it meant longer setup time on the press. It was nearly 12:30 p.m.

To reproduce color, three separate photos are needed. Each highlights a certain color from a trio of hues which combine to make a full-color photograph.

Two of the color photos — representing the magenta and cyan hues — survived the satellite transmission fine. The third, representing yellow, made it to every state but Texas.

We finished sending stories and writing headlines. It was 1 p.m., 30 minutes past deadline.

AP alerted members that it would try to resend.

We waited.

The reporter drove back in with the black and white photos, but by now we were committed to color and expecting that we'd have the last photo any minute.

A second try on the yellow-highlight picture cut off halfway through transmission.

AP promised to try again. It would take 10 minutes. We waited.

A third attempt failed.

Finally, an hour past deadline, we improvised, using a magenta printer and adjusting for the yellow hues.

We went to press two hours late, but our news coverage of the shuttle disaster was thorough. It was as good same day reporting as the area papers produced the next morning. No brag. We compared front pages Wednesday morning.

We went home Tuesday exhausted and emotionally drained, but satisfied that in crisis we had done our jobs. Police work has been described as 90 percent routine and 10 percent sheer terror. We could adapt that observation to newspaper work.

Billy Graham

God controls our destiny

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: A friend of mine spends a lot of money on books about astrology and horoscopes. She claims our future is already decided and can be discovered by the stars. What do you think of that? Mrs. A.G.

DEAR MRS. A.G.: The Bible does not support this idea — in fact, it says it is untrue. Don't be misled by the popularity of such things, or by those who say it is just a harmless hobby.

Why is your friend's view wrong? First of all, the Bible makes it clear that it is God who is in control of our future, not the stars. The bible says, "My times are in your hands" (Psalm 31:15). Furthermore, God has a plan for each of us, and we can know His will if we seek it. In the Bible we discover who God is and how He wants us to live. The stars can never tell us these things.

In addition, throughout the Bible, occult practices are always associated with pagan ideas — and can even lead to demonic practices. That is why the Old Testament warned God's people, "Let no one be found among you ... who practices divination or sorcery, interprets omens, engages in witchcraft, or casts spells ... Anyone who does these things is detestable to the Lord" (Deuteronomy 18:10-12). To follow them is to turn your back on the living God. Finally, astrology and other occult practices are very self-centered — always seeking a selfish advantage in life instead of ways to help others.

Pray for your friend. She may actually have a deep hunger for God — a hunger that can never be satisfied by astrology or any other occult practice. Instead, she needs to know Christ. And if you have never thought about your own spiritual need, realize that you, too, need Christ's forgiveness and new life. Open your heart to Him today and then ask God to help you point your friend to Christ.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Deaf, hearing students join for play

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Cinderella was speaking in sign language. A student at the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf, "Cinderella" Gina D'Amore was one of four deaf students participating in a joint dramatic venture with four hearing students from Howard College.

Gina D'Amore, left, plays Cinderella and her twin sister Rina D'Amore, right, plays a stepsister in a joint production by students from Howard College and SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf.

The students performed "Cinderella," an interpretive play with an adult twist, at the Phi Rho Pi theater tournament Saturday near Houston.

"Hearing students will be voicing what deaf students are signing," said Liz Wolter, SWCID drama instructor. Deaf students play the major characters and hearing students, in addition to their voicing roles, enter as various minor characters, she said.

This is the first group with both hearing and deaf students at the tournament, and there are only a few such ventures in the country, she said.

The students involved said they have had to make adjustments but no communication problems exist between the deaf and hearing actors.

"It takes a lot of concentration; it's a lot of fun too," said Phyllis Hardeman, a hearing student who plays a stepsister. "It feels uncomfortable at first. I had to adjust, but I was amazed at how well I picked it (sign language) up."

"It takes a lot of adjustment," said Dawn Gardner, hearing student. "It's a lot slower pace. In other plays we laugh and mess around, but here you have to hold still so they (the deaf actors) can watch."

Mary Southworth, a deaf student who plays the stepmother, said it's easier for her to understand what's going on. Usually, she said, many deaf people must listen to one interpreter, but here there are many interpreters.

"It's fun," she said through an interpreter. "We have to work hard to memorize lines, to be ready, to feel comfortable and get rid of butterflies in your stomach."

Wolter said, "It's a shared kind of feeling among deaf and hearing students of the cast."

The contest is in interpretive theater. Actors work with scripts in hand. Deaf students put their scripts down in order to use both hands for signing, Wolter said.

Instead of traditional costuming, the actors are clad in black with scraps of colored silky cloth denoting the different characters. The prince wears a purple scarf draped over one shoulder, like a Miss America banner. Cinderella wears a long, yellow scarf on her head to symbolize long, blonde hair.

Gina D'Amore plays Cinderella and her identical twin sister, Rina, plays a stepsister.

"It pokes fun at the beautiful princess rescued by the prince charming. It's taking a look at that myth and turning it inside out," Wolter said. "It's an image many of our parents grew up with."

"No one ever expected me to earn a living year after year, so how could I expect it of myself?" Cinderella says in the play. "Females are taught they have a way out — that someday, in some way, they are going to be saved."

"That is the fairy tale, the message we have injected as if with mother's milk," the stepmother adds. "We may venture out on our own for a while. We may go away to school, work, travel. We may even make good money, but underneath it all there is a finite quality to our feelings about independence. Only hang on long enough, the childhood story goes, and someday someone will come along to rescue you from the anxiety of authentic living."

Parts of the script were derived from "The Cinderella Complex: Women's Hidden Fear of Independence" and other books, Wolter said.

The SWCID drama department is working on several other productions, including a video ad for NBC, with "TV 9, let's all be there" in sign language, and six public service announcements for the Rape Crisis Center in voice, sign language and mime, Wolter said.

By LILA ESTES

Q: We are seriously considering selling our home, ourselves, to save the realtor's commission. Can you give us an idea of the sales costs we might encounter?

A: Begin with the cost of advertising your home. Then add to that the cost of your time, effort, etc., spent in showing the home to many people before finding a buyer. Next come closing costs which may include the following: 1) a mortgage prepayment penalty if the old mortgage is paid off; 2) legal and escrow fees, often split between buyer and seller; 3) transfer fees; 4) portions of real estate taxes and utility fees; and 5) title insurance fees, etc. A good and reputable real estate agent can, among many other services, help to negotiate with the buyer in paying some of these expenses. You may end up paying more than you would have in the agent's commission.

Director: Shuttle crew was beyond help

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Not even a divine warning could have saved the lives of the Challenger shuttle crew, who died when the spacecraft exploded Jan. 28, the mission's flight director said. "If the Lord himself came in and said, 'This is the problem,' flying was the only way out," Jay H. Greene said. Greene, after spending 10 days reviewing data from the Challenger flight, said he is convinced none of the information indicated anything was wrong with the shuttle. Photos of the shuttle just moments before and at the time of the explosion show what NASA officials call "an unusual plume" of fire blowing out of the right solid fuel booster rocket, or SRB. Investigators are trying to determine whether the flame ignited the massive hydrogen fuel tank on which the space shuttle sat. But Greene said Mission Control data indicated the flight was progressing normally. "I cannot imagine a piece of data involving this secondary plume that would have made me want to do anything differently," he said in an interview Friday. During the Challenger launch, Greene was watching a computer screen that displays data about the mission's progress and did not see the explosion at first. He said that when radio contact with the Challenger crew was lost, he first thought there was a communication problem. But he looked at the communications operator and saw the fireball on a television screen. "When I saw the SRBs come off, I didn't know what to think and hoped the orbiter would come out of the plume," he said. "Then I got a report that there was an explosion. Even that was not conclusive because that means multiple pieces," he said.

Commissioners to hear grant request

Members of the Downtown Steering Committee will request approval for a grant expenditure when they meet with Howard County Commissioners at 9 a.m. Monday in the county courthouse.

Johnny Rutherford, a steering committee member, said Saturday afternoon the committee wants to apply for a $20,000 grant with the Texas Community Development Program.

If the grant is approved, Rutherford said, the money would be spent by the committee on "a study to tell us what entrance corridors may enhance reconstruction in the downtown area."

The development program is under the auspices of the Texas Department of Community Affairs in Austin, Rutherford said.

According to grant application requirements, the committee must provide half of the requested funds. The department would then "match" the remaining half, Rutherford said.

Commissioners last August approved a funding request from the committee for $6,000 over a three-year period. Rutherford said other counties that have provided the committee with funds include the city and the Industrial Foundation.

The committee has raised approximately $180,000 in funds over a three-year period, Rutherford said.

By applying for grants, he said, the committee "is trying to make its money go as far as we can."

Rutherford said deadline for the grant application is about three weeks away and, according to the application instructions, it should be received by the state's community affairs department 14 days prior to deadline.

Commissioners also will hear requests during Monday's meeting for:

• An automated circulation system for the county library. County Librarian Judith Gray said she wants to bid for an IBM PCAT system that would contain information on library card holders and circulation materials.

Gray said purchasing and installing the program and maintenance equipment would cost about $10,000.

• Approval of a proposed cost schedule from Dorothy Moore, county tax assessor and collector, regarding her department's overhead expense in collecting taxes for entities the county has recently contracted with.

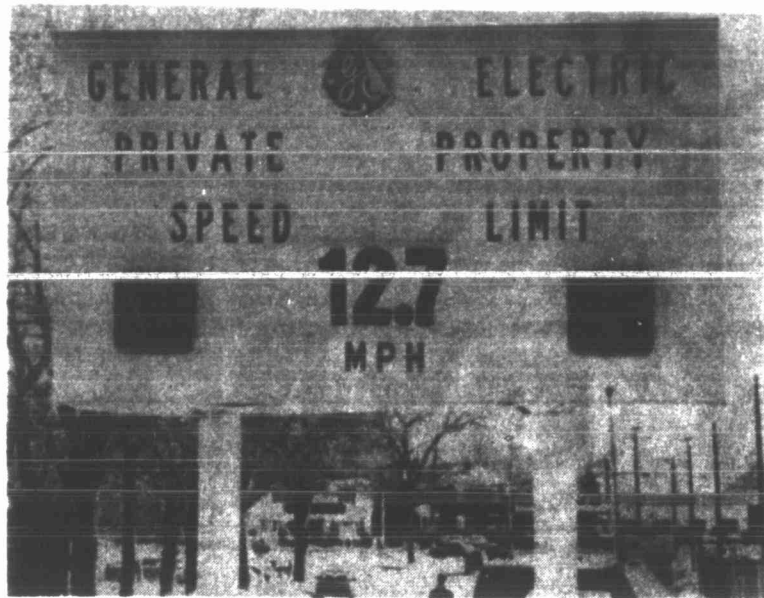

Moore said she expects commissioners to make further suggestions and improvements to the proposal before it is approved.

• Complying with a state law requiring county officials to deposit all county funds in a designated county depository.

Jackie Olson, county auditor, said the law was a special problem for Justice of the Peace Willie Grant whose office is in Coahoma.

Grant had deposited county funds her office received in the Coahoma State Bank.

Olson said Grant had agreed to open an account for her office with the State National Bank, which is the county's depository.

NBA favorites strut their stuff

Spud slams home a dunking crown

DALLAS (AP) — Not 5-foot-7 Spud Webb, or anyone else present, could describe the perfect dunk he performed Saturday to unseat Atlanta Hawk teammate and defending champion Dominique Wilkins in the National Basketball Association's Slam-Dunk Championship.

"I can't describe them, it's just something I do," said Webb, who electrified a crowd of 16,500 in Reunion Arena with his acrobatics that included a dunk off a 360-degree spin.

Wilkins called Webb's dunks "unbelievable." "I didn't think he could hang in the air long enough to do the 360," said Wilkins. "I'm proud to be his teammate. He's the best little guy I ever saw."

Webb, who is from suburban Wilmer-Hutchins, scored a perfect 100 points with two dunks in the finals. Wilkins had 98 points.

Webb's second dunk involved bouncing the ball off the floor and off the glass and catching it with one hand to slam the ball through.

"The crowd helped me get more power into my jumps," said Webb. "I really didn't have a plan. I didn't know what I was going to do until I got the ball."

Wilkins said "I scored over 45 on all my dunks but he got 50s so what are you going to do? Everybody likes to see a little guy do well. And he did a lot of dunks guys 6-7 and 6-8 can't do."

Webb's vertical leap was measured at 42 inches when he was a junior at North Carolina State.

The 6-foot-7 Wilkins, who has a vertical leap of 48 inches himself, said "Spud's leap was 50 inches today."

Webb won $12,000 and Wilkins took $7,500.

Terence Stansbury of the Indianapolis Pacers won $5,500 for finishing third and Gerald Wilkins of the New York Knicks, Dominique's younger brother, won $2,500 for fourth place.

Stansbury provided the most unique leap of the day. He jumped over a person seated in a chair and another man kneeling beside it and slammed down a dunk.

But it was clearly Webb's day.

Asked how he jumps so high, Webb answered "I haven't the slightest idea. When I find out I'm going to write a book about it. I guess it's just God given talent."

He said 5-9 Calvin Murphy, a former NBA player for the Houston Rockets, was his hero.

"I saw Calvin and he said he had his house bet on me," said Webb. "I hope he was just kidding but I was glad he got to see it."

Murphy said later "It was the most incredible thing I've ever seen. I never dunked a ball."

Spud Webb of the Atlanta Hawks stuffs the ball during the NBA Slam-Dunk Championship Saturday afternoon in Dallas. Webb, who played for Midland College, won the contest.

West goes for second straight All-Star win

DALLAS (AP) — Julius Erving, a starting guard for the Philadelphia 76ers since mid-December, makes his 10th consecutive start as a forward Sunday in the 36th National Basketball Association All-Star Game.

The 76ers were struggling with a 12-11 record when Erving was inserted as a starting guard on Dec. 14. After that, they won 19 of 25 games.

Boston Celtics Coach K.C. Jones will make the lineup decisions for the Eastern Conference team after Erving, forward Larry Bird of Boston, center Moses Malone of Philadelphia and guards Sidney Moncrief of Milwaukee and Detroit's Isiah Thomas.

Dallas will play host for the All-Star Game for the first time since the Mavericks joined the league in 1980. It was chosen as part of the 150th anniversary celebration of Texas independence.

The game at Reunion Arena — site of next month's NCAA Final Four — is an advance sellout, but the crowd of 16,573 will be some 500 short of the normal capacity to accommodate the media.

Pat Riley of the Los Angeles Lakers will coach the West team, which includes three members of the defending NBA champions in the starting lineup. Forward Ralph Sampson of Houston and guard Alvin Robertson of San Antonio join Lakers Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, James Worthy and Magic Johnson as starters.

Eastern Conference substitutes are Robert Parish of Boston and Patrick Ewing of New York at center; Dominique Wilkins of Atlanta, Kevin McHale of Boston and Buck Williams of New Jersey at forward; and Maurice Cheeks of Philadelphia and Jeff Malone of Washington at guard. Guard Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls was voted a starter, but will not play because of an injury.

For the West, Akeem Oluajun of Houston and Artis Gilmore of San Antonio were added at center; Alex English of Denver and Adrian Dantley of Utah at forward; and Marques Johnson of the Los Angeles Clippers, Rolando Blackman of Dallas and Clyde Drexler of Portland at guard.

Abdul-Jabbar and Erving each will be appearing in his 15th All-Star Game as professionals, although five of Erving's were in the American Basketball Association. Abdul-Jabbar established the NBA record last year with his 14th, one more than John Havlicek, Bob Cousy and Wilt Chamberlain.

The game is expected to be high-scoring. The last time a team won an All-Star Game with fewer than 120 points was 1975, when the East won 108-102.

In the last 10 games, the winning team has averaged 133 points.

TCU rips Baylor; UT nips Porkers

FORT WORTH (AP) — Norman Anderson scored 19 points and Jamie Dixon added 14 as Texas Christian trounced Baylor 67-47 in Southwest Conference college basketball action Saturday.

Dixon came off the bench when his Horned Frogs trailed 6-4 at the 15:20 mark and proceeded to spark a first-half TCU rally.

SWC

Over the next 15 minutes, Dixon scored six points, hauled down four rebounds, dished out five assists and keyed three Texas Christian fast breaks with steals.

The Horned Frogs, now 17-5 overall and 9-2 in SWC play, led 36-30 at intermission. The loss dropped Baylor to 9-13 and 1-10.

Anderson, whose 19 points marked a career high as he shot seven for seven from the field, scored a dozen of those points in the second half. Dixon also had game highs of eight assists and six steals, plus five rebounds.

Texas 61, Arkansas 57 FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — John Brownlee and Karl Willock each scored 16 points to lead Texas to a 61-57 victory over Arkansas in Southwest Conference basketball action Saturday.

Brownlee, hitting mostly from inside, made seven of his 13 shots from the field. Willock bombed from outside, hitting six of nine medium-range jumpers.

Mike Ratliff and Byron Irvin led Arkansas with 12 points each and Kevin Rehl added 11.

Patrick Fairs scored 12 for Texas and Alex Broadway added 11, nine of those coming at the foul line.

The victory lifted Texas to 9-2 in the SWC and 14-8 overall. Arkansas is 10-12 and 2-9 in the SWC.

Arkansas was frigid from the field. Until Irvin hit a layup off a steal with 8:06 left to play, the Razorbacks had gone over eight minutes without a field goal and were shooting 28 percent from the field. Arkansas hit 10 of its last 12 shots.

Iowa State upsets No. 5 OU Sooners

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Jeff Grayer scored 13 of his 21 points in the second half, including the go-ahead basket with 56 seconds left, as Iowa State defeated fifth-ranked Oklahoma 73-70 in Big Eight Conference basketball Saturday.

Nation

Oklahoma, which had shared the Big Eight lead with Kansas, fell to 21-2 for the season and 6-2 in the conference. The Sooners' only other loss was a 95-92 setback at Kansas.

Oklahoma rallied from a 12-point deficit early in the second half to take a 64-61 lead with a six-point run capped by Tim McCalister's jump shot with 4:28 left.

(No. 1) N. Carolina 91, Wake Forest 62

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Brad Daugherty scored 20 points, Warren Martin 17 and Joe Wolf 16 as top-ranked North Carolina used its mammoth front line to overpower Wake Forest 91-62 Saturday and run its record to 24-1.

North Carolina opened the game with its small lineup of three guards, but it was the three big men — 6-foot-11½ Daugherty, 6-11½ Martin and 6-10 Wolf who swept them past the Demon Deacons.

(No. 6) Kansas 85, Oklahoma St. 69

STILLWATER, Okla. (AP) — Kansas' Ron Kellogg and Cedric Hunter scored 18 points apiece Saturday as the sixth-ranked Jayhawks trounced Oklahoma State 85-69 in a fight-marred Big Eight Conference basketball game.

After Oklahoma State took an 8-6 lead with 15:46 remaining in the first half on a jumper by Melvin Gilliam, Hunter keyed an 11-2 Kansas spurt with a layup to put the Jayhawks ahead to stay.

Illinois 83, (No. 7) Michigan 79 OT

CHAMPAIGN (AP) — Junior guard Tony Wysinger hit four free throws in the final seconds of overtime Saturday to give Illinois an 83-79 victory over seventh-ranked Michigan.

Illinois had a chance to win the game in regulation play, but Wysinger's jump shot from the corner fell short as time ran out.

(No. 17) Texas-El Paso 71, Air Force 47

EL PASO (AP) — Dave Feitl scored 15 points to lead No. 17 Texas-El Paso to a 71-47 victory over Air Force in college basketball Saturday.

New district welcomes Big Spring

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Writer

With the new University of Interscholastic realignment moves, the Big Spring Steers have been lowered a class and moved to District 2-4A.

Now Big Spring will be competing against the likes of State Football Champion Sweetwater along with basketball powers Lamesa and Andrews. Also in the district is Monahans, Snyder, Pecos, San Angelo Lake View and Ft. Stockton.

The Herald sports department contacted some of the athletic directors in District 2-4A and got their response to having a new team in the district.

Here is what they said. DAVID VISETINE, ANDREWS — "Big Spring will definitely have an impact on the district. They will be a very competitive team and some of their teams will probably have a shot at some district championships."

"I don't think there's a chance of us dividing the district up into two zones. It would be nice to be able to play a few more games before district begins, but if we divided it into zones, we would have a hard time finding that many non-district games."

"I think that football is the strongest sport in this district, but it is very in all sports. It's just a tough district."

BREEN HOLLAND, MONAHANS — "Big Spring will toughen up our district considerably. This is a very strong district, especially in basketball, football, track and volleyball."

"I really don't think that we will switch to two zones. It's hard enough to find games as it is."

"I think there's a considerable difference between our district and the one Big Spring is leaving. The main reason is that you've got more people to choose from at those schools. There might not be that big a difference between the two top teams in our districts, but overall there is a big difference."

JIM SLAUGHTER, SAN ANGELO LAKE VIEW — "This league is already a tough one and Big Spring will make it tougher. I'm not looking forward to playing them. But I do think it will be nice playing a eight game district schedule."

"Big Spring is really coming from a much stronger district than ours. Take for example Abilene High, a team that finished in the middle of that district, beat our district and state champion Sweetwater 18-0."

"As far as football goes, 4-A schools are getting away from using two-way starters. To be really competitive I think you must have players going one way. Last year we had 40 players on the varsity. Three played both ways."

DAYLON WHITEHURST, PECOS — "The change is a plus for Big Spring because they are now a large 4A school instead of a small 5A school. Their entire athletic program should be stronger."

"Coach Eudy (Quinn) is a very good football coach, his teams play a good brand of ball. It's just that he's been outmanned in the past."

"If you're able to play players one way in 4A ball it's a big plus. Last season we had 35 varsity players. Six or seven of them played both ways."

Soviet vaulter sets record

MOSCOW (AP) — World record-holder Sergey Bubka of the Soviet Union soared to the third indoor best pole vault in as many weeks Saturday, clearing 19 feet, 5 inches at the Soviet National Indoor Championships.

Bubka's effort, the sixth time this winter that world best has been broken, beat the 19-4¾ mark set last Saturday by American Jee Dial in Columbia, Mo.

A week earlier, Billy Olson vaulted 19-3¾ in Albuquerque, N.M.

Bubka, who set the world record at 19-8 last July in Paris, topped Dial's record in his first try at 19-5, the official news agency Tass reported.

Bubka and Olson have battled all winter for supremacy in the indoor vault, with Olson opening the fight when he cleared 19-2¾ at a December meet in Canada.

On Jan. 15, Bubka upped this to 19-3 in Osaka, Japan, then Olson came back three days later to lift the record to 19-3½ in Los Angeles.

Olson was to compete Saturday night at the U.S. Olympic Invitational meet in East Rutherford, N.J.

Bubka, 22, said last summer after setting his outdoor record, that he would like to top 19-8 by the end of the year. He failed — but his performance so far this winter has Soviets hoping he will go still higher in 1986.

In other action at the championships, long jumper Robert Emmiyan broke the longest standing European indoor mark with a leap of 27-4½ inches that surpassed the 1966 mark set by Olympic gold medalist Igor Ter-Ovanesyan by 4½ inches.

Emmiyan, who celebrates his 21st birthday next week, first broke the record with a 27-3 leap, then bested that with the best indoor jump in the world so far this winter.

Big Spring Steers senior half-miler Dax McCracken leads the way in the 800 meter run Friday at a practice triangular meet at Blankenship Field. The Steers were competing against Midland High and Abilene Cooper. McCracken won the event in a time of 2:12.0.

WHO AM I?
 Don't you just love the way young children and elderly people are so blunt? I do I find it refreshing. Forget the beat-around-the-bush stuff. If they want to know something they just bluntly, boldly ask. Some of my elderly patients come to see me and bring me homemade jam, tell me I'm too fat or too skinny or that my hair is too long or too short and they ask questions. Doesn't bother me one bit. You wonderful elderly people just keep on asking. I love all of you and all too soon I'm going to be right up there with you and I will be (if I'm not already) just as blunt as the best of you. One elderly lady said to me as she entered my exam room, "Now, just who are you?" I had to tell her all about myself before she decided I was fit to take care of her eyes. She was a little skeptical because I wasn't a Methodist but finally gave in because I was born in Texas. So in answer to your questions, and as best as I can remember, this is who I am - my name is Harold Golden Smith. The Golden is for an uncle. Lord knows where they got the Harold. I was born Nov. 3, 1934 in Abilene, Texas to Truay and Rayford Smith. Mom and Dad still live in Abilene (Daddy is about as blunt as they come). I had a brother who died at birth so I was reared an only child. I graduated from Abilene High in 1954 and attended Hardin-Simmons Univ., the Univ. of Houston and then went to the Southern College of Optometry in Memphis, Tenn. where I met and married Sue. We went on a honeymoon to the Smokey Mountains and came home with 17 cents in our pockets. After 27 years I am still married to the same Sue and I probably still have about 17 cents in my pocket. After a year in Abilene and another year to further my contact lens knowledge we moved to Big Spring. We've been here going on 26 years. We have a daughter, Karen Suzanne. She is married to Greg Holditch, teaches school and lives in San Antonio. I DO NOT have a grandchild. We have a grandcat. But you can't take a cat fishing. Do you hear that, Karen? Space will not permit me to go into shoe size or my bad back. So I will end by saying I hope to see all you wonderful elderly people soon... and don't forget the jam. Your optometrist.

Sun Valley reigning king of American ski resorts

By LISA LEVITT RYCKMAN
Associated Press Writer

SUN VALLEY, Idaho (AP) — In the middle of the Depression, the man who ran the railroad came up with a scheme to fill his trains. Find a place in the middle of nowhere, a place people could reach only by rail. Then give them a reason to go there, a magnificent one.

The year was 1936. The man with the idea was Averell Harriman, board chairman of the Union Pacific railroad, later governor of New York.

The place was Ketchum, the belly button in Idaho's midsection, a town built on silver and sheep surrounded by some of the western high desert's most awe-inspiring mountains.

The reason to board the train was Sun Valley, America's first destination ski resort and the place that altered a whole nation's definition of skiing. Once considered a sport solely for the hale and foolhardy, skiing was transformed through Sun Valley into the passion of the privileged and the proletariat alike.

As Sun Valley marks its 50th anniversary this year, an estimated 21 million skiers will spend more than $2 billion to slalom, slide or slip down slopes at 680 ski areas, from Rhode Island's tiny Yagoo Valley to huge Mammoth Mountain in California.

More than 9 million lift tickets were sold in Colorado last year; 7 million in California; 4.2 million in Vermont; 3.6 million in New York; about 1.5 million each in New Hampshire and Oregon. It was a record year and proof-positive that U.S. skiing has come of age.

Harriman, now 94, says Sun Valley has done "what I had hoped it would do — gotten other people to develop ski resorts such as Aspen and Alta, at Salt Lake City, and in the Sierra."

The 1932 Olympics at Lake Placid, N.Y., brought out the latent winter sportsman in America. Early Eastern ski resorts installed rope tows and T-bars. On Jan. 22, skiers at the Suicide Six resort outside Woodstock, Vt., celebrated the 52nd anniversary of America's first ski tow.

But Sun Valley was the first of a new breed of ski resorts in the United States, one loaded with the amenities and charm common to those in Europe that Harriman had visited.

Count Felix Schaffgotsch, who had helped develop resorts in Austria, traveled Union Pacific territory in search of the perfect site. Possibilities in Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Oregon and Washington were rejected: too cold, too rainy, too far from the railroad, too close to a city. Then a Union Pacific employee called him to Ketchum.

"It contains more delightful features than any other place I have seen in the United States, Switzerland or Austria for a winter sports center," Schaffgotsch wrote Harriman.

The Union Pacific chairman made the trip in his private railway car.

"I remember very vividly getting off the car and putting on my skis, skiing into Sun Valley on this powder snow," he said. "I fell in love with the place then and there."

Steve Hannagan, brought in to promote the resort, had a different view. "(It was) a Godforsaken snowfield," said the publicist, who helped put Miami Beach on the map and despised winter cold as much as he loved Florida's heat. It was Hannagan who gave Sun Valley its name and insisted that it be a place where guests could "rough it in luxury," a philosophy that became the key to the industry's success.

Author Ernest Hemingway, left, and actor Gary Cooper, center, with their guide Taylor Williams take a rest after spending the day hunting in Silver Creek, Idaho located near the famed ski resort of Sun Valley. This year Sun Valley celebrates its 50th year of successful operation. It is the oldest ski resort in the United States.

The four-story $1.5 million lodge, built of concrete made to look like wood, was filled with flowers and custom-made furniture. There was an orchestra, a heated swimming pool and a staff of handsome Austrian ski instructors in Tyrolean garb.

And stars were everywhere, skiing the slopes by day and clinking glasses by night. The glamorous ghosts of Sun Valley past still haunt the hallways of the newly refurbished lodge, where their photos line the walls.

Clark Gable, Gary Cooper, Bing Crosby, Judy Garland and Norma Shearer partied and played there. Claudette Colbert came to film scenes for "I Met Him in Paris." Olympic ice skater Sonja Henie starred in "Sun Valley Serenade," the 1941 film that put the resort atop America's vacation wish-list.

Ernest Hemingway worked on "For Whom the Bell Tolls" in suite 206 and hunted game nearby.

"It was a swinging place (in the '30s and '40s); it was the place to be seen," said Don Fraser, a member of the first U.S. Olympic Alpine Ski Team in 1936 and a long-time Sun Valley resident.

In 1937, a Life magazine cover story called Sun Valley "Society's Newest Winter Playground." Publicity like that made the public eager to get a piece of the fantasy; the chairlift, carrying a smiling skier on the magazine cover, made it accessible.

James Curran, a Union Pacific engineer who had watched fruit unloaded from ships by hooks and conveyor belts, decided skiers might be transported like so many bananas.

Before that, "You had to walk up," said Gretchen Fraser, Don's wife, who skied at Sun Valley in the early days and went on to win the United States' first gold medal in alpine skiing in 1948. "It took about two hours to go up, and two minutes to come down."

Half a century later, Sun Valley's two mountains boast 16 lifts that can carry 22,000 skiers an hour. The train no longer stops here; commuter flights are the fastest way in. Condominiums dot the countryside, and the old sheep town has an art gallery or sportswear shop on every corner.

In Sun Valley and across the nation, skiing is big business, getting bigger every year. With millions of dollars at stake, far less is left to nature's quirks. No snow fell for Sun Valley's grand opening in December 1936, but Harriman averted a public relations disaster by inviting the guests to stay free until the skies cooperated.

That wouldn't happen today. "Your public isn't out there anymore waiting for it to snow," said Nappy Neaman, Sun Valley's assistant slopes manager. "They demand ... snow and it has to be good."

Seventy-five percent of U.S. ski areas have snow-making machinery, a necessity every year in the East, in dry years in the West. But as more people strap on skis each year, they have fewer slopes to try. In the last decade, the number of skiers has almost doubled while the number of ski areas has dropped from 929 to 680, in part because of ever-increasing operating costs.

A few plan expansion; Winter Park outside of Denver is spending $60 million to increase capacity from 11,000 to 23,000 skiers a day in the next 10 years. But it is the exception.

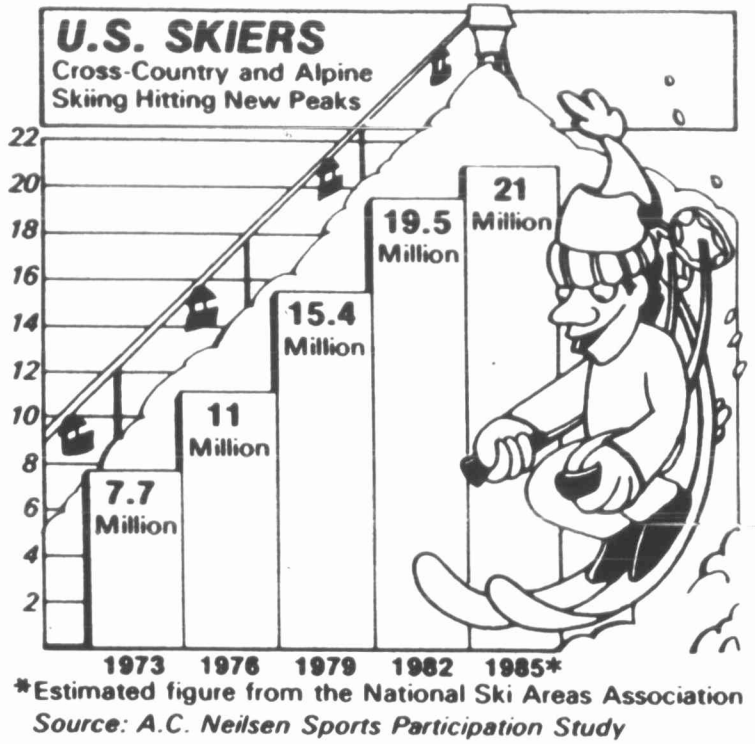

"The industry trend both in the state and nationally is toward consolidation," said Craig Wakefield, a commerce department official in New York, which has at least 61 ski areas, down 10 from the 1978-1979 season.

The industry's biggest competition, resort operators agree, comes from demands on the time of young working adults, who comprise the largest segment of the ski market, and the lure of sunny beach vacations.

"If you get people started, they become skiers," Sun Valley spokesman Carl Wilgus said. "There's an attitude, there's an ambiance, there's a feeling about the sport. ... It's just a matter of getting people started."

Skiers who have been tackling mountains for more than 50 years, like Gretchen Fraser, believe skiing will eternally captivate seekers of speed, solitude and scenery.

"There's just something about being out on a good day, in good snow in the quiet of a mountain," she said.

Author still writing about native Texas

By KATHRYN BAKER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Larry L. King likes to look back in most of his books and articles, to the places where he grew up and to the people he once knew.

"The Old Man" was an article about his father, a West Texas oilfield worker. He also wrote about a zealous TV reporter who campaigned to close down a popular bordello. The story turned into the hit Broadway musical "The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas."

King's latest work is "None But a Blockhead," which will be published later this month by Viking. The title is taken from a Samuel Johnson quote in 1776: "No man but a blockhead ever wrote except for money."

The book is about writing, a process that still fascinates King 50 years after he wrote his first story on a Big Chief tablet when he was kept home from school one day with whooping cough.

He writes cleverly, in good ol' boy vernacular — a kind of stilted "redneck" style similar to other Southern authors such as Roy Blount and Charles Portis.

But King's love of writing often clashed with the pursuit of other, deadlier pleasures.

"I went through a period where the writing was incidental to the drinking and mood modifiers — I hesitate to use the word 'drugs' because drugs are illegal and everybody knows I'm a nice boy," King said in an interview.

"But now, since I've gotten over all of that, I've come to realize the writing I produced then was in spite of the drinking and drugs, not because of the drinking and drugs. ... I've done more in the last three years since I gave up everything than I had in the previous 10 years."

Indeed, King has been prolific.

He just published a collection of articles, billed as the best of Larry King's Texas writings from 1966-81.

He's working on a children's book called "Because of Lozo Brown." It's a story he created for his own two kids about the fears children have of meeting others. King has three grown children by his first wife. His second wife died in 1972. He's currently married to his agent, Barbara Blaine.

There's also a World War II novel twirling somewhere in his head, and a new play, "The Night Hank Williams Died," is set to open off Broadway in the fall. And to cap it off, he'll be in Alaska this month to do a piece for National Geographic on what it's like during the long winter night.

King, 57, came to Washington in 1954 to work for a newly elected Congressman from El Paso. A journalist from West Texas, he had planned to remain on Capitol Hill for about three years and then go to work for a newspaper.

"I got up here and found that the Washington Post, the Washington Star and the Washington Daily News, none of 'em were very impressed with my background as a high school dropout and former reporter for the Hobbs, New Mexico Daily Flair," he said.

He wound up staying in politics for 10 years. His experience produced a best seller in 1978, "Wheeling and Dealing: Confessions of a Capitol Hill Operator."

President Kennedy's assassination caused him to reevaluate his life. He quit politics and headed to New York where he taught, worked on books and free-lanced for magazines.

He wrote the Chicken Ranch article in 1974 for Playboy. He took the $3,000 and thought no more about it.

However, Peter Masterson, a Texas actor, saw the article and thought it would make a great play.

Donation Tea set for benefactors

A Donation Tea will be held for volunteers and friends of the Big Spring State Hospital, Saturday, February 15 from 2 until 5 p.m. in the home of Marilyn and Don Newsom, at 529 Hillsdale.

Planned as a social event for the guests, the tea is also being used to help raise money to retire the remaining $4,000 outstanding debt on the curtains for the hospital's gymnasium stage.

"We're most anxious to retire this debt so we can move on with other projects that will benefit the hospital," said Mrs. Newsom. "We're asking that all volunteers and guests bring their donations to the tea."

Kathy Viccinelli, Volunteer Coordinator for the hospital cited Newsoms' outstanding volunteer work. "The Newsoms richly deserved the the Friend of the Hospital Award which they received last year," she noted. "They regularly furnished birthday cakes for the patients on the units and have been kind enough to host this most important function."

Viccinelli said that Mrs. Newsom has also volunteered to make presentations to any social and service groups interested in volunteer groups and service opportunities at the Big Spring State Hospital. Anyone who would like to hear her presentation at a club or group meeting should contact her at 263-2488.

A.K. Smith, hospital superintendent, Jim Weaver, chairman of the Volunteer Executive Committee, and members of the Executive Committee will join the Newsoms and Ms. Viccinelli in the receiving line.

Mrs. Delores Norred, a long-time hospital volunteer, is furnishing the money tree on which donations will be placed at the tea.

Invitations have been mailed to some volunteers and friends of the hospital but anyone interested in participating in the function and helping retire the debt is welcome to attend, Newsom said.

Marilyn Newsom, left, and Kathy Viccinelli will be hosting a Donation Tea to benefit the Big Spring State Hospital, Saturday, February 15 at the Newsom residence. Donations are being collected to retire a $4,000 debt.

Chlorine in pools kill the AIDS virus

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that the AIDS virus can be found in bodily secretions. This includes tears, perspiration, urine, saliva, etc. Well, when people swim, they open and close their mouths, so a swimmer with AIDS would be mixing his saliva with the pool water, right?

I had planned to take parent-tot swimming lessons with my infant daughter at a public pool, and now I am concerned for her health and safety.

Please ask your professional sources if a person can get AIDS from a swimming pool that has been used by a person who has AIDS.

CONCERNED PARENT
DEAR CONCERNED: The AIDS virus is very fragile. According to the Mayo Clinic, exposure to such common household chemicals as hydrogen peroxide, rubbing alcohol, Lysol or a 10-percent solution of household bleach will kill the virus. According to the Centers for Disease Control, the chlorine in a swimming pool will also serve as a reliable antiseptic.

***
DEAR ABBY: Please help us settle this debate: My sister is expecting a baby soon, and we were discussing the cost of raising a girl vs. a boy from infancy until age 18. I say it costs more to raise a son; my sister says I'm wrong — it costs more to raise a daughter. What do you say?

STILL DEBATING
DEAR STILL: Having raised one of each, I would guess it's more costly to raise a girl. However, if there are any statistics available, I hope someone sends them to me. Watch this space for a possible official answer.

***
DEAR ABBY: Here are some suggested replies to "How come a nine girl like you isn't married?"

Just lucky, I guess.
I'm fussy.
I don't really know. Why did you marry?
I enjoy being single too much.
I haven't received the calling yet.

Not everyone is meant to be married.
Now, for the truth: I was 22 years of age when World War II broke out. In the next six years, 55,000 Canadian lads were killed, many more were seriously wounded, and others married foreign girls.

On the 40th anniversary of "D Day" — June 6, 1984 — I wrote the following:

They marched away — strong, tanned, fit, lighthearted young men of Canada. Girls they left behind are often asked why they never married. No one can see beyond the brave front they put on to comprehend the uncompleted lives, aching hearts, and loneliness, year after year after year.

+"Why aren't you married?" is not a kind of question to ask a woman at any time.

Dr. Donohue

Body action to your good health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: The whole second half of last golf season was wiped out for me because of pain in the hand, in the area of the little finger. I haven't had as much pain since winter set in, but the other day I had a really sharp twinge when I gripped one of my clubs and gave it a little swing. What could this be? — S.E.H.

A guess might be something to do with the small bones of the hand. I am thinking particularly of the hamate bone. It's in that region of the hand and it can be involved in many sports-related injuries.

The hamate bone has a little hook in it, and that hook can break under stress. It is a bone that can produce pain when you grip something, like a golf club.

It's not an uncommon injury in golfers, but perhaps a more familiar setting for fracture of the hamate occurs in baseball. If a batter starts a swing and then tries to halt it, he can easily break the hamate bone.

The matter can be neatly resolved with an X-ray, which would show a fractured bone. Incidentally, if you do have a fracture of that small hook portion of the hamate, it can be removed without any loss of grip strength.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: You've gone through most of the sports in your column, but you have totally ignored the greatest one of all — kayaking. Just to refresh your memory, a kayak is an Eskimo canoe. The operator sits in a narrow opening and uses a single paddle with two ends on it. Anyway, we kayakers are waiting for your opinion of this sport. I doubt you can find a better overall developer of the cardiovascular system than kayaking. — D.M.

I have nothing but good to say about kayaking and kayakers. My oversight probably stemmed from the fact that there really aren't that many people taking part in this activity. I agree with your assessment of its cardiovascular and muscle-building qualities.

I did some reading on the subject. In propelling this strange little craft, you have to use almost every muscle in the body, including those of the legs. The upper body muscles — abdominals, back, arms and shoulders — really get a workout. It fits aerobic exercise requirements to a T. Large-muscle groups are put to work over a continuing period for the sustained heart work needed.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Arthritis scares me. It scares me enough that I want no part of fitness programs, for I hear of more athletes hobbling around in their 50s and 60s nursing joint injuries from the "fitness" years. — K.D.

I think you have heard stories about professional athletes, especially football players, who later in life have been plagued with arthritic joints. If you looked closely you will find those bad joints are that way because of the violent jolts they took from collisions during play, not from running or other more normal joint use.

You can develop arthritis from any serious joint injury. It even has a name, traumatic arthritis. You don't have to worry about that in any everyday kind of fitness program. You can close out all possibility of having future joint problems by strengthening the muscles of the legs.

Remember that when the foot strikes the ground it does so with tremendous force, many times that of the person's body weight, in fact. That sets up a shock wave that travels up the leg and thigh muscles. As the weave of force travels upward it is absorbed by those muscles. The muscles at the knee contract to help that joint absorb as much of the force possible.

So the answer is to do exercise that strengthen all those shock-absorbing muscles and joints.

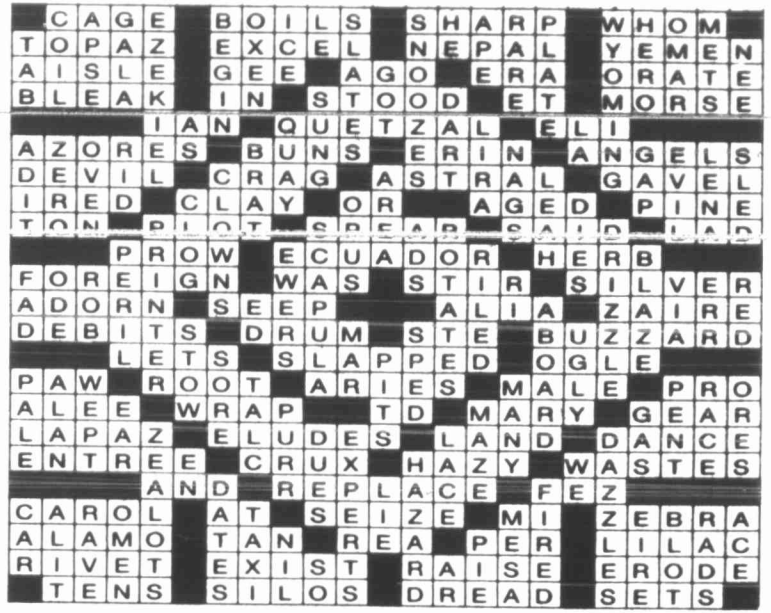

Strong muscles preserve joints, and you get strong muscles by using them.

FOR W.S. — Anyone logging more than 60 miles a week should look at his old shoes every few months. Much depends, though, on the runner's weight.

Millions of out-of-shape men and women desire fitness, but shy away from formal programs because they think it's all too complicated and difficult. Dr. Donohue's newest booklet, "Introduction to Fitness," puts the esoteric terminology of aerobics into plain language and offers a fitness program anyone, regardless of age, can adapt.

For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.50.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Home Improvement Specialists

by Bob and Jan Noyes
EYE APPEAL
 A house that has great eye appeal usually sells for a price that reflects that appeal. There are houses, though, that have the potential to stand out in the neighborhood. Such potential may not be realized by current owners who sell them for bargain prices in comparison with surrounding homes. Turning a house that "could be" eye-appealing into one that "is" can produce thousands of dollars in value appreciation for the new owner. In fact, that always is something to think about when evaluating a home. What could be done to make this home something special? Before going house-hunting, it makes sense for a prospective home investor to talk to a contractor, one who can give good advice about the costs of such improvements.
 If you're going to sell your house, making needed repairs and cosmetic improvements first can add much more than their cost to the selling price. At BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK, we do all kinds of remodeling and rebuilding including room additions, carpentry, decks, and sun porches. Come to 613 North Warehouse Road, in the Industrial Park.
