Snow forces schools' closure

Staff and wire reports
Freezing drizzle topped by a thin blanket of snow made for slick roads this morning, prompting cancellation of public schools in Big Spring, as a polar air mass gripped the top half of the state. "Our transportation people got out early this morning and decided it would be marginal at best to run the buses," Big Spring schools Superintendent Lynn Hise said this morning.

Hise said the police department also advised him that roads in the area were treacherous. Police reported one weather-related accident on 11th Street and Birdwell Lane this morning.

The freezing rain and snow was expected to taper off this afternoon with a high temperature today in the mid-20s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland late this morning. A traveler's advisory was in effect today for the entire Permian Basin.

The cold weather is expected to linger for a few days with a warming trend due later this week, forecasters said.
The frigid weather is the work of a polar air mass hovering over the Lone Star State that coated roads and highways in northern and central sections with a dangerous layer of ice today. Snow continued to fall during the day today in the Texas Panhandle and more

Challenger panel focuses on 'seals'

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission investigating the Challenger explosion told NASA to turn over all internal space agency documents on what a newspaper called the "potential failure" of critical seals in the shuttle's booster rockets.
Commission Chairman William P. Rogers said he asked for the documents Sunday after a New York Times article described discrepancies between internal memorandums of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration and what space agency officials told the commission last week.
Rogers said in a telephone interview that NASA had agreed to cooperate with the request, but he declined to discuss the matter further.

White House spokesman Mark Weinberg, speaking for the commission appointed by President Reagan, said Rogers "has requested NASA to produce all internal documents and reports of investigations dealing with problems relating to seals on the booster rockets."
NASA said Sunday it was assembling the documents.
"Dr. William R. Graham, acting administrator of NASA, has assured the commission of full cooperation from all NASA employees," the space agency said in a statement.
The 13-member commission planned to review the documents in a closed-door meeting today and call NASA officials to testify at an open session Tuesday morning.

County to pay $10,000 to help get grant

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer
The Downtown Steering Committee will receive $10,000 of Howard County funds to apply for a grant from the Texas Community Development Program.
Pat Hardy, a member and the committee's representative at this morning's commissioner's court meeting, said the money would be used in applying for a grant study conducted by the Texas Community Development Program.
County commissioners authorized the approval through a motion brought to the floor by Commissioner Bill Crooker.
Commissioner David Barr seconded the motion which met disapproval from Commissioner

O.L. Brown in the final vote. Howard County Judge Milton Kirby also voiced disapproval of the request.
Hardy told commissioners the study would help answer questions regarding the economic development of downtown. One of the thoroughfares Hardy spoke about this morning was U.S. Highway 87 leading into downtown.
During the final discussion before the motion was voted on, Brown said in his opinion the whole issue of conducting another study for the rehabilitation of downtown Big Spring was "cloudy."
He earlier told Hardy that he was upset that he had not been consulted regarding a study of the U.S.

Highway 87 thoroughfare.
"You haven't asked me," Brown told Hardy about the committee's wish to gather information about economically upgrading North U.S. 87 to develop a new investment environment. Brown also questioned what would happen after the study had been conducted.
Kirby said his understanding of using county funds donated to the steering committee was that they be used for "parks and historical markers."
County Attorney Tim Yeats said after reviewing the state law regarding county funding, it was valid to donate county funds "tied to the historical restoration of downtown."

Kirby also expressed displeasure at the funding request. He told Hardy that county money "was set aside for when you get the program on the ground."
The judge said he thought the recently hired Main Street Project Director, Teri Quinones, was hired to conduct such studies on her own.
Hardy said Quinones was hired "to implement the plan," and results of the grant would help designate that plan.
He said the steering committee would apply for the grant, 14 days before its March 3 deadline.
During this morning's meeting, commissioners also approved a motion allowing county librarian Judith Gray to bid for an automated circulation plus system that would hold current information regarding the library's circulating materials.

Gray told commissioners the initial year's cash outlay would be approximately $10,000 for installation and cost of the system.
The $6,000 annual average in upkeep and modifications of the system, Gray said, would average approximately $6,000 for the next five years.
That figure was considerably lower than hiring a full- or part-time employee to work on the library's current inventory and circulation system.
"I believe it would be very cost effective and speed up operations," Gray told commissioners before they voted.

Michigan in race for atom smasher project

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan has joined other states in trying to win a $6 billion federal project to build at 52-mile-long atom smasher, one of the world's biggest scientific instruments, authorities say.
The huge particle accelerator is also being courted by several West Texas civic groups who would like to see the giant project brought to Garden City.
"It represents a frontier (of technology and probably 10 percent of the staff would be Ph.D.s," said Lawrence Jones, chairman of the University of Michigan Physics Department.

A coalition of government, industry and university officials have been working on the idea of winning the project for Michigan since 1983. The group is headed by Tom Anderson, chairman of the Michigan Energy and Resource Research Association of Detroit.

The atom smasher, a Superconducting Super Collider, is an underground tube running in a circle that physicists would use in research into collisions of subatomic particles.
"The federally sponsored project would bring 3,000 jobs and use as much electricity as a city of 100,000 people, authorities said.
The U.S. Department of Energy has spent $60 million on research and development for the project and may ask Congress for construction money as early as next year.

Illinois, Ohio, Texas and California have appropriated money to try to win the project, authorities said.
Michigan so far has committed $5,000 to studies of potential project sites. Jamie Kenworthy, a research manager with the Michigan Strategic Fund in the State Commerce Department, said a partnership with Ohio and Indiana would enhance Michigan's efforts to win the project and would enable the three states to split the $1 million needed for a respectable bid.

By winning the project, "Michigan could shake off the blue-collar image," Jones said. "But as much as the blue-collar image, Michigan tends to have a posture of aloofness or lack of interest in federal projects like this."

Philippines election outcome undecided

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — The National Assembly controlled by President Ferdinand E. Marcos debated for four hours today over how to conduct its count of the presidential election, the only tally in the closely contested race that is legally binding.
Challenger Corazon Aquino pledged, "We are going to take power."
An hour after Mrs. Aquino spoke at an outdoor Roman Catholic Mass, a supporter holding up a "Marcos concede" poster was shot to death on a truck bed where Mrs. Aquino had sat, and a second person was wounded. Mrs. Aquino had left when the shooting occurred.
The assembly began a special session today to count votes from Friday's election, but adjourned after four hours of debate over procedure. Officials of Marcos' governing New Society Movement have predicted it could take at least two days to open sealed envelopes containing tally sheets from across the 7,100-island nation.

Marcos, whose current six-year term is due to expire in 1987, called the special election as a test of his popularity.
So far, only unofficial tallies have been made, with the Marcos-appointed Commission on Elections showing him in the lead and an independent watchdog group showing Mrs. Aquino leading.

Reward posted on boy's death

A $1,000 crimestoppers reward has been offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the driver of the vehicle who struck and killed 13-year-old Armando Jesus Soto Saturday night, Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said today.
The Sand Springs boy was killed while riding his bike on the south service road of Interstate 20 near Moss Creek Road. The boy was dragged approximately 80 feet after being hit, according to law enforcement officials.
Standard said the "person (responsible) had more than adequate time to come forward." He said the boy's bike has been impounded for spec-

Art shapes up chemist's career

HIGHLAND VILLAGE (AP) — He has captured the spirit of such famous battles as The Alamo, Pearl Harbor and the Battle of San Jacinto.

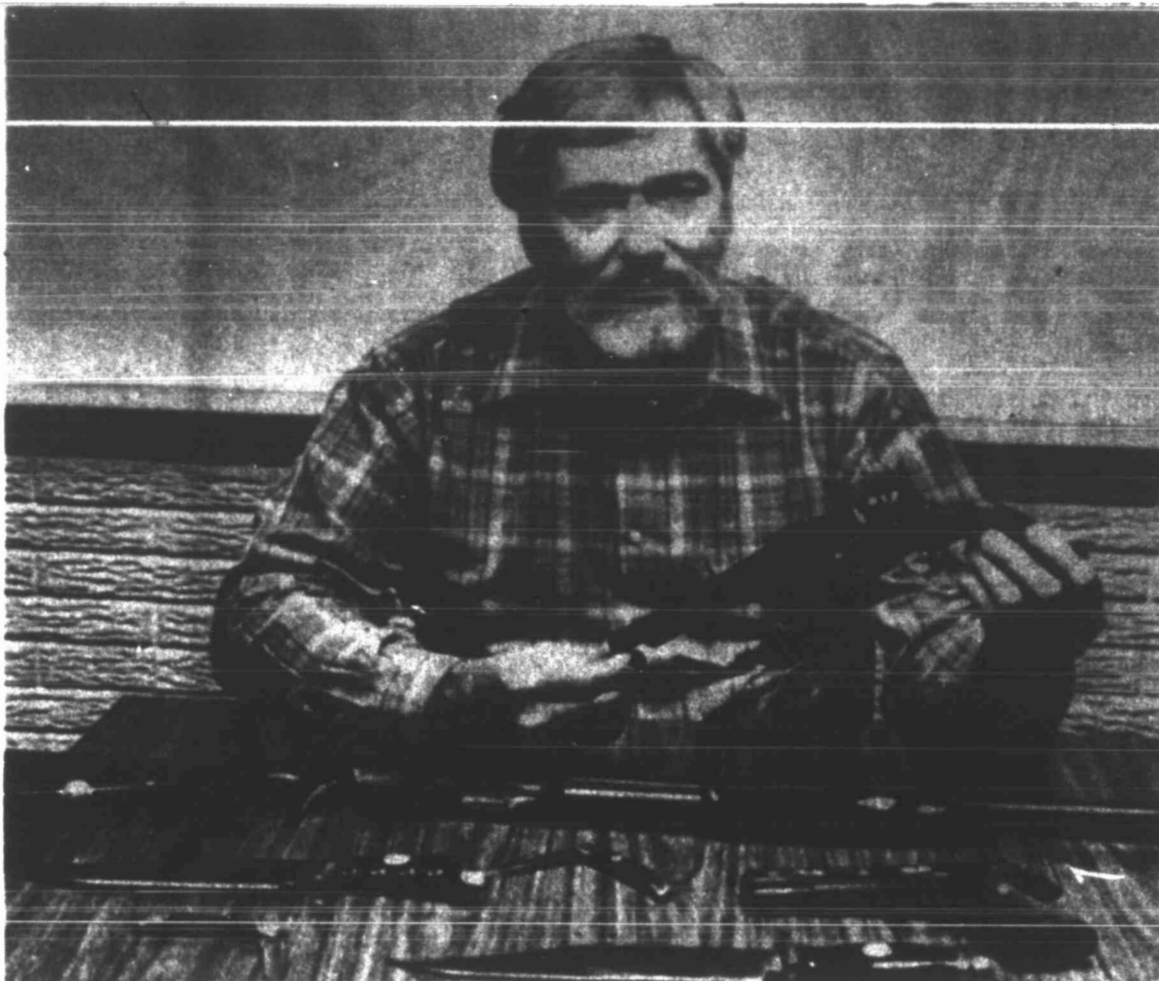

Through his work he has immortalized legendary figures including John Wayne, Kit Carson and Buffalo Bill.

Sam Shortes, a Highland Village resident, had brought famous people and events into homes and hearts of literally thousands of people through his commemorative guns and knives.

The success began inadvertently about 11 years ago, when Shortes, who received his training as a chemist, began studying a technique often used by Rembrandt. The art form involved etching patterns onto a wax surface and then covering the pattern with ink. When the ink was wiped away, the residue would remain in the etched pattern, bringing greater definition to the design.

Shortes began adapting the technique to pen and ink drawings and found the greater detail could be given to the sketchings by enlarging the print, perfecting the detail and then reducing the design. He showed the art form to a consultant of a leading gun manufacturer, who at the time was considering expanding their product line to include knives. Smith and Wesson asked Shortes how much he'd charge to produce the pattern on knives. After he gave them a "ball park" figure, the company returned with an order for five thousand knives.

With his wife to assist him, Shortes rented a warehouse and began working to fill the order. He maintained his job with Texas Instruments during the day and worked on the knives at night. The year was 1976, and "Bicentennial fever" was raging in epidemic proportions. The Buck Knife company contacted Shortes and requested 7,600 commemorative knife blades. Shortes filled the order, thus sealing the success of his infant company.

Initially, Shortes was responsible for producing the art used on the commemorative items, but as the company grew he found it necessary to hire artists to design the patterns for him. Shortes left his full time job and dedicated himself to building the future of his company. The name "Aurum Enterprises" was chosen because aurum is the Latin word for gold, and much of Shortes' work is etched and inlaid with 22 karat gold.

Sgt. Frank Woodall of the Department of Public Safety said the DPS has little more to go on than it did Saturday. However, he said the vehicle involved was probably a pickup truck that possibly had a grill guard. Woodall said the DPS suspects a grill guard since there was no glass or plastic grill fragments found at the scene.

A spokesman at the sheriff's department said the vehicle is believed to be a reddish color. "We don't have the exact color," he said. He said the department is waiting for the results of a spectrograph from the state crime lab in Austin that should be able to pinpoint the year and make of the vehicle.

"We're working on every bit of evidence we have collected," he said.

Extremes this morning were Amarillo with 11 degrees and McAllen with 47.

The weather service said this morning Lubbock had 7 inches of snow, with 5 inches of it falling in six hours. Childress collected about 7 inches in four hours, with heavy snow falling at 5:30 a.m.

Other snowfalls were 9 inches in Amarillo and 7 inches at Dalhart. The most substantial precipitation was from Lubbock into the western Red River valley near Quanah.

The National Weather Service

posted a winter storm warning for the western Red River valley and travelers' advisories over the rest of West and North Texas.

A strong upper-air trough prompted a large area of freezing drizzle and snow over West and North Texas. Snow extended eastward into the Dallas-Fort Worth metroplex from the High Plains and Permian Basin.

Freezing drizzle spread from the Hill Country into Central Texas and drizzle was common across the rest of the state. Abundant Gulf moisture created a blanket of low clouds.

Deaths

Arleigh McCree

Includes wire service reports
LOS ANGELES — Funeral services are Wednesday for former Big Spring resident Arleigh McCree, a widely known police explosives expert killed Saturday trying to defuse a booby-trapped pipe bomb.

Police officers have donned black armbands in memory of bomb squad chief McCree, 46, an explosives expert who had assisted the investigation of a 1983 Marine barracks blast in Beirut, Lebanon, and his partner, Ronald Ball, 43.

McCree, a native of Kentucky, attended Big Spring High School in 1955-56. His mother and step-father, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gibson, live in the Forsan area. His sister, Jeanette Meeks, lives in Big Spring.

McCree, a 21-year law enforcement veteran and chief of the Los Angeles Police Department bomb squad since 1973 had received 84 commendations during his career. His section, Firearms and Explosives, won acclaim for protection during the 1984 Olympic Games.

The bomb exploded Saturday at the North Hollywood home of makeup artist Donnell Morse, 36, who was arrested for investigation of murder, police said.

Saturday's explosion, 15 miles north of downtown, occurred hours after Morse was taken in for questioning in connection with Wednesday's ambush shooting of Howard Smit, 74, business manager of Make-up Artists and Hair Stylists Union Local 706, police said.

Officers called the bomb squad after they found two pipe bombs in a cabinet during a search of the house, police Chief Daryl Gates said.

Seconds before the explosion, McCree told other officers the bombs were booby-trapped, Gates said. "He had asked people to move back because he was about to defuse it and then it went off," said Gates. The police chief said McCree was "a friend of mine for years and it has affected me, yes."

The deaths were the first time city bomb squad officers were killed in the line of duty, Police Chief Daryl Gates said.

Members of the 11-member squad returned Sunday to the home to collect evidence and piece together details of the deaths.

McCree's decision to defuse the bomb rather than use a mechanical arm to lift it to a safe location will be questioned.

"We're going to hear criticism from all quarters, even from our own peers," said bomb squad Detective Dave Weller, McCree's close friend. "But Arleigh made a choice according to the best information he had at the time. Something just went terribly wrong."

Other survivors are his wife Edie McCree of Sylmar, Calif.; son, John McCree of San Diego; daughter, Kathy McCree of San Diego; father, John McCree of Union City, Tenn.; brother, Vernon McCree, Mayfield, Kentucky; and step-brother, Gary Gibson of Midland.

McCree's mother and sister will be flown to the funeral services at the expense of the Los Angeles Police Department, a family friend said today.

Gorbachev mood sways

WASHINGTON — Sitting across a Kremlin table from Mikhail Gorbachev, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy noticed the Soviet leader listened very closely when the discussion centered on the public mood in the United States on arms control.

"But once you moved off into human rights, it was like setting off a rocket," as Gorbachev turned agitated and lectured his American guest, Kennedy said.

Yet in the middle of his heated comments — "like he was watching my temperature go up" — Gorbachev altered his tone abruptly, Kennedy recalled.

Human error blamed

HINTON, Alberta — Using bulldozers and cranes, rescuers searched for bodies in the smoking wreckage of a head-on train collision in which 29 people were feared dead. Two railway officials said human error could be responsible for the rail crash, Canada's worst in 38 years.

A mile-long Canadian National freight train carrying grain and pipe ran a caution signal and a red light, then barreled through a closed switch before colliding Saturday with a nine-car Via Rail passenger train, said Ross Walker, Canadian National's senior vice president for western Canada.

Plea to start talks

WASHINGTON — Eight Latin American foreign ministers are urging the Reagan administration to stop supporting anti-government rebels in Nicaragua, and instead put its muscle behind a negotiated settlement to Central America's conflicts.

The foreign ministers also want the administration to resume bilateral talks with the Sandinista government in Nicaragua. The United States broke off the talks last year.

Representing Colombia, Mexico, Panama, Venezuela, Argentina, Brazil, Peru and Uruguay, the foreign ministers are meeting today with Secretary of State George P. Shultz and other administration officials.

Gold coins unearthed

DENVER — More than $1 million in gold buried in Tupperware containers was found by federal agents who followed a map they found in the home of a man accused of smuggling cocaine, according to a published report.

A copyrighted story in Sunday's editions of the Rocky Mountain News said the gold coins were found in a Nebraska field by agents who followed the map they found in the Hawaii home of William Compton Musson.

He also owned the land on which the coins were found, the newspaper said.

Washington may reconsider aid to Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — The fall of Jean-Claude Duvalier, Haiti's "president-for-life," may free up $52 million in U.S. aid not delivered to Haiti because of Duvalier's poor human rights record, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

"The question is under active consideration in Washington and Port-au-Prince," the spokesman, Jeffrey Lite, said Sunday.

While Lite said the new military-civilian council that took power after Duvalier's departure on Friday still must be certified on human rights, he said such approval could be obtained quickly.

Calm returned to Haiti's capital Sunday after two days of looting and violence that left as many as 300 dead following the end of Duvalier's repressive government. Frequent rifle and submachine gun fire, however, were heard through the night.

The Roman Catholic National Council of Bishops and the Protestant National Council of Evangelical Churches made a television appeal Sunday for calm in the nation, the poorest in the Western Hemisphere.

"We are going through a period of transformation and transfiguration," said the Roman Catholic bishop of Gonaives, Emmanuel Constant.

He paid homage to three student demonstrators killed in Gonaives in November by security forces. Constant said the three are now considered martyrs whose deaths sparked Duvalier's eventual departure because they inspired a national protest movement.

The Rev. Claude Noel, head of the Protestant council, said, "We lived through frightening times from which God has delivered us."

Duvalier's flight to Grenoble, France, ended his family's 28-year rule of this Caribbean nation of 6 million. He had inherited the presidency upon the death of his father, Francois "Papa Doc" Duvalier, in 1971.

France has offered Duvalier temporary asylum until a third country agrees to take him and his 20-member entourage permanently. At present, Duvalier and his party are staying in a monastery-turned-hotel outside Grenoble.

Meanwhile, aid is being sought to help Haiti. Eugene Gregoire, whose Social Christian party opposed Duvalier's government and supported the U.S. aid cutoff, is now calling for aid to be delivered immediately.

"Without outside aid we cannot do anything to help the people," he said.

Lite said such a move is possible. "There certainly is a feeling we would like to work with the new government in improving the living standard of the Haitian people."

Iran claims an island

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran today announced the capture of a strategic island in the Shatt al-Arab waterway and Iraq acknowledged Iranian forces had established a "shaky foothold" across the wide river in an overnight offensive.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said Iran had captured the island of Um-ul-Rasas, located inside Iraqi territory west of the Shatt al-Arab, which is strategic "due to its important oil installations."

Mafia trial begins

PALERMO, Sicily — The largest trial in Italy's history began today as a judge swore in jurors to hear evidence against 474 defendants accused of being members of the Mafia.

The trial, at which Italian prosecutors say they will present their strongest case yet against the criminal organization, hinges largely on the testimony of Tommaso Buscetta, also known as Don Masino, who also has testified in the New York "Pizza Connection" case.

In the New York trial, 22 men are accused of operating an international Mafia ring that used pizzerias as covers for drug deals involving billions of dollars in heroin trade believed based in Sicily.

Pope speaks to youths

BOMBAY, India — Police hauled away about 35 Hindu militant protesters today as Pope John Paul II arrived at a city park for a meeting with young people, the last public appearance of his 10-day "pilgrimage of peace and unity" to India.

About 100,000 people gathered in Bombay's sprawling Shivaji Park for the rally, where the pontiff urged them to remain "faithful to your national heritage and community" and called on Catholic youth to reject "all discrimination based on race, religion, sex, social condition or language group."

Blacks burned to death

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Five blacks were bound with wire and set on fire with burning tires in one of the most gruesome mass slayings in 17 months of anti-apartheid violence, police said today.

The killings, in a black township outside Port Elizabeth in eastern Cape Province, apparently were the result of political infighting between rival black groups opposed to the forced racial separation system, a Port Elizabeth newspaper said.

Search for the ultimate brain

Last October, a strange chess tournament was held in Denver, an affair unusually boisterous with unadorned kibitzing. It was the North American Computer Chess Championship, involving 10 computer-software teams, and their machines, from the United States, Britain and Canada. What's interesting about the contest is not so much that computers now play chess at extraordinarily high levels of skill, but that the kind of chess they play suggests they "think" in ways uncannily like the human brain. They can sift amazingly intricate value scales, remember mistakes and even learn from them.

The winning computer, coached by a team from Carnegie-Mellon University, has the capacity to evaluate within a single second 175,000 different board positions that could be reached in sequence, within eight moves, from a given setup of the pieces. The computer it beat could project and judge 100,000 positions a second. Significantly, none of the other machines came even close to that speed or depth of analysis.

Are we about to be shouldered aside by our smart machines? Well, among the spectators was an English chess expert (not even a grandmaster) who since 1968 has won thousands of dollars betting he could defeat any chess computer ever made. He's never lost a game. In Denver, he issued a standing wager of 100,000 pounds that during the next 10 years no computer will be able to defeat a human player of his choice. So far he's had no takers.

There apparently remain depths in the human mind which defy programmed mechanization, intuitive powers and creative leaps which no artificial intelligence can emulate. Yet even in the unlikely event that the Englishman loses his bet — even if the day comes when the world champion computer can lick any human — that machine couldn't claim equality with the human brain unless it passes the ultimate test: designing a computer smarter than itself, one able not only to wrest away its title, but able in turn to create a machine that could defeat it, etc., etc. Only a human can imagine that.

Deficit or not, lament goes on

Gramm-Rudman may not accomplish anything else, but at least it made short work of complaints about the deficit. For the past four years, ever since President Reagan's tax cut was enacted, the air has been saturated with laments of the inevitable disaster that would result from his budget deficits. Now the air is saturated with laments of the disaster that will result from eliminating those deficits.

The reason for the paradox is simple. Most of the politicians and pundits who criticized the deficit were really criticizing any effort to reduce the size and reach of the federal government. Reagan's tax cuts, by reducing the revenue available to finance the government, had created a huge obstacle to new programs and a constant threat to existing ones.

The tax cuts, then, had to be opposed. But it is bad politics to oppose lower taxes. Hence, the concentration on the deficit. The deficit, we were warned, would spur runaway inflation, raise interest rates, prevent an economic recovery, you name it. That it did none of these things didn't silence the alarms.

Gramm-Rudman replies: You think the deficit is a serious problem? Then let's get rid of it. It says that each year, Congress and the president must agree on a budget that keeps the deficit within a prescribed and declining limit, until the budget is balanced in 1991. If they don't, automatic cuts take effect to achieve the same result.

But apparently the only thing worse than running a budget deficit is reducing it. This week, for instance, there was a report, sponsored by the National Council of Senior Citizens, the Service Employees International Union and the Villers Foundations, which predicted that "states and local government across the country will be plunged into financial chaos" if the automatic cuts take effect in fiscal year 1987.

I can't be the only one who remembers governors and mayors habitually complaining about the federal deficit, back before Gramm-Rudman. So why didn't they greet this report with cat-calls? Why don't they applaud the law as a serious response to their concern about the deficit? Because they want the deficit eliminated only if it's not at their expense. Balance the budget? Fine. Give up revenue sharing? Don't be ridiculous.

So what's the alternative? Obviously, some money can be taken out of the defense budget, but most of the people who claim to want to do that are conspicuously resistant to the idea of abandoning some of the United States' foreign commitments — which in the long run is the only way to appreciably reduce military outlays.

There are plenty of prudent ways to retrench, but no appetite in Washington, or most likely in the general public, for doing so. Americans want world power without the inconvenience of paying for it.

The only other option is to raise taxes. But there is no reason to believe this would be popular either. If Americans really wanted to pay higher taxes, Walter Mondale would be president today. Tax reform has evoked widespread opposition on Capitol Hill not because people fear it will increase the deficit but that they fear it will raise their taxes. People like the idea of lower marginal rates just fine. What they mind is the idea of closing loopholes on individual taxpayers.

The only tax increase that would win public acclaim would be one that purports to exempt the typical American taxpayers — which means taking more from corporations.

North Korean collusion with Iran comes to fore

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — In an ominous echo of an almost-forgotten conflict, North Korea is fighting an undeclared war against the United States — and possibly, as in 1950, with the cooperation of China.

The communist regime in Pyongyang is supplying Iran with military hardware and instructors who are directly linked to the Ayatollah Khomeini's underground war of terror against America.

In fact, the latest report reaching us is that at midnight on January 14 a group of trained terrorists — 29 men and 11 women — left Tehran aboard a military aircraft for parts unknown. Sources inside Iran say the 40 terrorists had been trained in Iranian camps by the North Korean military advisers. Our intelligence sources fear that the group will be involved in terrorist activity outside Iran very soon — and Americans are still the No. 1 target of Iranian-backed Shiite terrorists.

According to other intelligence reports, the North Korean military influence in Iran is pervasive. There are known to be at least 300 North Korean military advisers working with the Iranian armed forces at the highest levels.

One recent report focuses on North Korean supervision of Iran's surface-to-air missile production. These weapons are not only useful for the stalemate war against Iraq, but could be used by terrorists to shoot down commercial airliners.

At Sadhu, near Isfahan, an Iranian colonel, Muhammad Tolouie, is the titular head of a large missile factory. But the real boss is Col. Chang Hoolt, a North Korean known to the Iranians as "Mr. Who." His technical staff includes 48 North Koreans, 18 East Germans, two Yugoslavs and a Pakistani.

In the last several years, according to highly sensitive CIA reports, North Korea has sold Iran more than $1 billion worth of weapons, mostly for the Iraqi war. Several of the reports indicate the CIA's belief that the North Koreans are often acting as surrogates for Peking, which supports Iran secretly. If so, the North Koreans evidently aren't always reliable surrogates. One report, classified above top secret, said China was trying to work out a deal to ship its weapons to Iran through Greece.

So far, the North Koreans have supplied more than 100 tanks and an unknown number of Chinese-made J-6 fighters to Iran. North Korean instructors train Iranians on the J-6 at a base north of Pyongyang, and also train Iranian kamikaze pilots on Swiss crop-dusters at another field at Won San. As we reported, several trainees were killed in the Swiss planes, which are modified to carry explosives for direct suicide attacks on warships or land facilities.

North Korea has also sold thousands of small arms, mortars and anti-aircraft guns to Iran. Most of the material is shipped by sea, though Iranian J47s have been used to fly in urgently needed spare parts and supplies from Pyongyang.

North Korea's exports of arms and expertise are not confined to Iran. North Korean pilots have been flying MiG jets in Libya for years because Libyan pilots still haven't mastered the aircraft. North Korean advisers trained the notorious Fifth Brigade that slaughtered innocents in southern Zimbabwe, and some North Korean troops have fought against Western-backed rebels in neighboring Angola.

In addition, North Korean weapons and instructors have been reported in other African countries: Benin, Madagascar, Rwanda, Tanzania and Uganda.

WATCH ON WASTE: Congress seems to have the weird idea that extravagance is OK as long as it's bipartisan. While all federal agencies are expected to tighten their budget belts to help reduce the deficit, political parties have been exempted. Just before it went home for the holidays, Congress approved extension of a Postal Service subsidy that allows political party committees to send mail at reduced rates. It will cost from $12 million to $14 million this year alone. Only Congress could buy the idea that political parties are in the same public-service category as news publications and non-profit groups, which also get a postage break.

UNDER THE DOME: What's the connection between a National Teacher's day and karate? Answer: Rep. E. Clay Shaw, R-Fla. He has a blue belt in the oriental self-defense method, and takes classes on Capitol Hill from Jhoon Rhee. The karate master is a firm believer in discipline, and feels American students don't get enough. He voiced his opinion to Shaw, suggesting that a day honoring the nation's teachers would instill respect and better discipline in the classroom. Before you could say, "Aieee-yeah," Shaw drafted and introduced a bill.

For Israel, potential was worth the risk

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Small, hemmed in, besieged by a terrorist threat, Israel sometimes takes chances in its "prolonged war" against unconventional enemies. And sometimes, as happened Tuesday, it doesn't work.

In an apparent bid to grab Palestinian guerrilla chiefs, Israeli warplanes intercepted an executive jet over the Mediterranean on its way to Syria and forced it to land in northern Israel.

The bold move risked a flare-up in tensions with Syria and an international rebuke for violating aviation rights. But for Israel the potential prize looked big — informed speculation here suggested Israel was hunting for Abu Nidal, the deadliest of Palestinian terrorist leaders, and the Syrian-backed guerrilla commander Ahmed Jibril.

But the Israeli armed forces also risked embarrassment if they came up empty-handed. And when they finally had to release the airplane and its 12 occupants — non-terrorists all — the military kept the news media far from the scene.

The incident underlined Israel's frustration in going after small, factionalized Palestinian guerrilla groups that have been scattered across the Arab world since they were deprived of their key base of operations, Lebanon, by the 1982 Israeli invasion.

"This scattering can be a problem," Aharon Yariv, a former head of Israeli military intelligence, said in an interview Tuesday. "You have the option of acting against the nations that sponsor them. ... But if you hit Libya or Syria directly, then the political angle crops up, especially when we're trying to move forward in the peace process."

Yariv said he believes that Abu Nidal, though elusive, can be tracked down. Abu Nidal is the code name for a Palestine Liberation Organization renegade whose real name is Sabry al-Banna.

"He moves around in the Arab world. He's very careful. If he has trouble in one country, he quickly goes to another. He has all kinds of aliases and passports," said Yariv, a retired general.

Abu Nidal has escalated the Palestinian terror campaign in the past year. Tel Aviv University's Jaffee Center for Strategic Studies, which Yariv now heads, calculates that incidents of international Palestinian terrorism — bombings, assassinations and other attacks outside Israel, against both Israeli and other targets — more than doubled in 1985, totaling about 70.

Half of those were attributed to the group led by Abu Nidal. The Abu Nidal attacks included airport attacks Dec. 27 in Rome and Vienna, where 20 people were killed. Tuesday's aerial interception was not the first time Israel has tried to pluck its enemies from the skies.

In 1973, Israeli warplanes forced an Iraqi Airways jetliner to land in Israel. The Israeli believed, erroneously, that George Habash, leader of the hard-line Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, was aboard.

Earlier that year, in an action that stirred international condemnation, the Israelis shot down a Libyan jetliner, killing 108 people, when it flew over a sensitive area of the Israeli-occupied Sinai Peninsula.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, in an interview with The Associated Press earlier Tuesday, seemed to foretell a daring Israeli move against Abu Nidal.

"In ... the Abu Nidal case, it is not very easy to discover and define targets," Shamir said. "But this does not mean we will not find it. Maybe it will take time, but the time will come. ..."

Asked in an AP interview Monday whether it had become more difficult to focus reprisals on responsible groups, Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin said Israel does not look on the struggle against terrorism as one of "act and react."

"We look on it as a prolonged war that has to be waged ... to minimize the damage by terrorist acts and maximize the impact we can inflict," Rabin said.

A key tactic in that war, the defense minister said, is to "reduce the people who organize and lead terrorist acts."

Rabin's men took another risk in their war Tuesday, high above the Mediterranean. And afterward, they refused to call it a failure.

"It's part of the dangers that are almost inevitable when you are fighting the war against terrorism," said one military source, speaking on condition of anonymity. "Sometimes it succeeds and sometimes it doesn't."

Dear Abby

Parents should step between daughter and abusive boyfriend

DEAR ABBY: I am compelled to respond to "Worried Mom," who learned that her 17-year-old daughter had been hiding the fact that her boyfriend of 2½ years had been beating her up.

Our daughter, Denise, was buried at the tender age of 24 because she, too, would not listen to our pleas to break up with an abusive boyfriend. Unfortunately, she married him.

We tried many times to get her to leave him because we feared one day he would kill her — hoping and praying all the while that we were wrong. Well, we were not wrong.

In August 1980, he beat her to death. She had been so badly beaten, we were not even allowed to view the body.

"Worried Mom," please take Abby's advice, and forbid your daughter to continue seeing this abusive character unless he gets counseling and corrects his abusive behavior. And see that your daughter gets counseling, too.

Abby, perhaps you can mention Parents of Murdered Children, the support group that has helped my husband and me to survive this terrible tragedy. It was founded by Bob and Charlotte Hullinger of Cincinnati in 1978 after their daughter, 19-year-old Lisa, was murdered.

COMPASSIONATE MOTHER, LOUISVILLE, KY.

DEAR MOTHER: I'm glad you wrote. I phoned Charlotte Hullinger and learned that Parents of Murdered Children now has 46 chapters in the United States; chapters also are in England and Australia.

She said: "Most parents of murdered children have told us that after their child was murdered, their friends deserted them. It's a universal phenomenon that friends and neighbors want nothing to do with these parents out of fear, and denial that the tragedy had ever happened and could happen to them. They rationalize that the parents are in some way 'guilty' — that it would not have happened had they taken better care of their kids who were in the wrong place at the wrong time.

"We have a support network of 250 contact people all over the United States who will take telephone calls and answer letters. We want parents of murdered children to know that they are not alone. There is enormous comfort in being able to discuss our grief and anger with other parents who have survived that terrible experience. We have monthly meetings and put out a newsletter containing pertinent information.

"We are having a convention in Cincinnati, Aug. 22-24, 1986.

Anyone desiring information about us may write to our national headquarters: Parents of Murdered Children, 1739 Bella Vista, Cincinnati, Ohio 45237.

"Please send a long, self-addressed, stamped (39 cents) envelope for a personal reply plus five pieces of literature.

"Our telephone, manned by compassionate members, is (513) 721-LOVE (or 5683).

"We are a non-profit organization and will talk to any parents who need our support."

Dr. Donohue

Gamma Globulin injections are less painful

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: This was written on a health report: hypogammaglobulinemia! What does it mean and can it cause me to pick up colds easily? — D.S.

I don't dare to try the phonetics on that one. Breaking it down into phrases, it's hypo-gamma-globulin-emia. Simply put, it means a shortage of antibodies. For all practical purposes, gamma globulins and antibodies are synonymous.

You only got part of the story. There are different kinds of gamma globulins. You have to know to which ones the report referred.

Then, you have to know how serious is the deficiency.

Without that information, I can't even speculate on your tendency to get colds. Certainly, the person with deficient antibody production is at greater risk of getting disease, because antibodies lie at the heart of the body's disease-fighting system. If you find out more specific information, write again and I'll try to answer more satisfactorily.

And on the subject of gamma globulin injections, I want to turn here to another question, asked by Mrs. R.O.J. Her child has one of those inherited illnesses marked by deficiency of such antibody production.

Until very recently, the only way to give gamma globulin was by injection into a muscle. A large amount of gamma globulin is needed and the muscular injections didn't last very long, so a great many were required. And the shots were painful. It created quite an ordeal, especially for youngsters.

Today, there is a form of injection that is almost painless and which can be given by vein. It has been a real blessing. Mrs. R.J.'s child need not have to suffer the ordeal she did years ago.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I had vomiting and stomach cramps. I had X-rays taken after taking the special dye pills the night before. Apparently, it didn't work. I had a repeat test. The doctor said he could tell from the test that my gall bladder was "non-functioning." Please explain what that means. Stones? Or what? — Mrs. D.S.

Let's trace the route of the dye. It first gets into the blood, which carries it to the liver. The liver then secretes it into tiny channels that eventually drain into the gall bladder. When you take a picture of the gall bladder it should pop out clearly because it is well-stained. And if it is healthy, it will show the staining.

If it doesn't, you have to find out why. The cause can lie at any point along the route the dye has taken: the intestinal tract, the liver, or the drainage ducts to the gall bladder. Usually, you find that the gall bladder is where the problem lies, and most of the time it is gallstones. They are blocking the ducts.

The term "non-functioning" can be frightening, but in this case the outlook for stones is better because of that conclusion. You will probably have other tests now to clarify any doubts. Ultrasound will be most revealing.

I know your next question will be about the future. If you are having those attacks, then surgery is the solution. If the gall bladder isn't giving trouble right now, some would say leave it alone. Others would advise the surgery to remove the organ.

Isiah dishes out East a victory

DALLAS (AP) — It was some 12 hours before the 36th annual NBA All-Star game and East guard Isiah Thomas stood eye-to-eye with West Coach Pat Riley in an elevator.

"There's a rock 'n' roll party going on, Isiah, what's the hurry?" kidded Riley.

"Coach," Thomas shot back, "I've got to get a good night's rest. We want to give your guys a hard time tomorrow."

"I knew right then we were going to have some trouble," Riley said. "Isiah had that look in his eye."

Thomas scored 30 points, dished out 10 assists, and outdueled Earvin "Magic" Johnson Sunday in a 139-132 East victory.

The point guard for the Detroit Pistons was unanimously named the Most Valuable Player for the second time in his five-year career in which he has never missed starting in an All-Star game.

The fiercely competitive play put to rest theories that players coast in All-Star games.

"A lot of fans don't know how important these games are to us," Sidney Moncrief of the East said. "We wanted to win it bad and since we did it is very special."

Thomas admitted he wasn't fired up about the game when he left Friday to come to Dallas.

"I was tired, my feet hurt and my head hurt," Thomas said. "When we landed in Dallas I started getting excited. I was ready to play before I got off the plane."

Thomas played attack basketball against the West, driving down the lane clogged with seven-footers.

"His nature is to attack and he creates so many opportunities when he penetrates down the lane," Riley said.

"He's a small package of dynamite," East Coach K.C. Jones said of Thomas, who scored 20 of his points in the second half.

Johnson, playing gamely on a sore knee which stiffened up on him in the fourth period, had 15 assists but turned the ball over nine times. He scored six points, taking only three shots.

"This is one of the best all-star games ever," Johnson said. "The first quarter was some of the best basketball ever, crisp passing, great shooting, and constant scoring. It made the fans excited."

A sellout crowd of 16,573 jammed Reunion Arena in the first NBA All-Star game ever held in Texas.

"It was great to be on the court with Isiah," Johnson said, "but we were on separate sides and both wanted to win badly."

Thomas said it was a dream come true for the second time in his life.

"When I was a kid, I never dreamed I'd be on the court with the best players in the world," Thomas, a collegiate star at Indiana, said. "Now it (MVP) has happened twice and I find it unbelievable."

He added, "It's hard to describe the feeling. It's very emotional to be singled out as the best when you think of all the people in the world playing basketball."

Thomas said his one-on-one game with Johnson was a kick.

"It's hard going against Magic but then again it's fun," Thomas said. "He's just so good that it makes the game extremely exciting. I could never have the upper hand against him, though, until I win as many world titles as he has won."

Missing from the East lineup was New York Knicks' center Patrick Ewing.

"My right knee is sore and I decided today not to play," Ewing, who added he didn't want to talk about it anymore, said.

Asked if the soreness would possibly keep him out of any Knicks' games, he answered, "Yep."

Ewing's absence forced Jones to play a big-man lineup, which included Thomas as the only true guard. Forward Larry Bird played guard the last 3:50 as the East outscored the West 18-4.

"They had to make an adjustment to contain Isiah," Bird said. "He was a good choice for MVP, no doubt about it."

Bird scored 23 points for the East while the West was led by Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who had 21 points in his record 15th All-Star game.

NBA All-Star's MVP Isiah Thomas (11) of Detroit goes in for a lay up while surrounded by NBA West All-Stars Rolando Blackman (22) of Dallas, Ralph Sampson (50) Houston and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of the LA Lakers.

Boxer keeps comeback hopes alive with TKO

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Alexis Arguello was angry to the point that he threatened not to fight Billy Costello.

Victor Valle, Costello's trainer, complained about how Arguello had wrapped his hands, and the Nevada State Athletic Commission ordered him to rewrap them.

"I'm not going to fight," the former featherweight, super featherweight and lightweight champion said minutes before he was supposed to battle Costello in a scheduled 10-round bout on CBS-TV.

Trainer Don Kahn quieted Arguello, so the dream of an unprecedented fourth championship lives.

"The best will always win in the ring," Arguello, who will be 34 on April 19, said.

But for three rounds Sunday before a crowd of about 2,500 at the 11,000-seat Lawlor Events Center

Arguello was not the best — all three judges scored each round for Costello.

Then what Arguello called "a clean right hand to the chin" knocked Costello down at 1:04 of the fourth round. Thirty-eight seconds later referee Mills Lane stopped the fight.

"I'm looking forward to a fourth title," Arguello, who has an 80-6 record, with 65 knockouts, said. "I will keep trying. I tried with Pryor twice."

Arguello was knocked out in the 14th and 10th rounds by Aaron Pryor in 1982 and 1983, respectively, in bids for the World Boxing Association junior welterweight title.

He was beset by financial and personal problems and returned to the ring last Oct. 25 with a fifth-round knockout of Pat Jefferson at Anchorage, Alaska.

Arguello maintains the belief he can become the first man to win four titles, not money, is the driving force behind his comeback.

Alexis Arguello raises his arms in victory.

Olson regains pole vault record from Soviet vaulter

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Billy Olson regained the world indoor best in the pole vault Saturday night, clearing 19 feet 5 1/2 inches in the Vitalis-U.S. Olympic Invitational Track and Field meet at the Meadowlands Arena.

Olson's effort, the seventh time this season that the world best has been broken, beat the mark of 19-5 set earlier Saturday by Sergey Bubka of the Soviet Union in Moscow. It was the fourth time this season that Olson had set a world indoor best.

Olson raised the best to 19-2 3/4 on Dec. 28 at Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, then, after Bubka improved the mark to 19-3 on Jan. 15, Olson went 19-3 3/4 on Jan. 17 at Los Angeles and 19-3 3/4 on Jan. 25 at Albuquerque, N.M.

In between Olson's 19-3 3/4, and Bubka's 19-5, American Joe Dial had raised the world indoor best to 19-4 3/4 on Feb. 1 at Columbia, Mo.

Evelyn Ashford made a triumphant return to track competition winning the women's 55-meter dash, and Diane Dixon smashed her American record in the women's 400.

The victory by Ashford, the 1984 Olympic 100-meter champion and 400-meter relay gold medalist, was highly popular with the crowd of 12,914.

So was the swift race run by the 21-year-old Dixon, who led all the way in winning in 52.13 seconds, well under the mark of 52.20 she had run Feb. 22, 1985 at New York.

The world indoor best is 49.59, by Jarmila Kratochvilova of Czechoslovakia, set May 7, 1982, at Milan, Italy.

Dixon had just missed winning this race last year, losing to Valerie Brisco-Hooks in a controversial finish that was not decided until five days after the event. Brisco-Hooks was entered Saturday night, but withdrew Friday because of a tendon injury.

Ireland's Marcus O'Sullivan, who had ended cuntryman Eamonn Coghlan's 15-race winning streak in the mile last month at Los Angeles, beat him convincingly again Saturday night.

O'Sullivan was timed in 3:57.33, with Bile clocked in 3:58.23.

The men's 55 meters, won by Ben Johnson of Canada, was run without Olympic quadruple gold medalist Carl Lewis, who pulled out when he discovered he would have to run in a qualifying heat.

Merlene Ottey-Page, the bronze medalist in the Olympic 100 two years ago at Los Angeles, finished a close second in 6.70, with Pam Marshall third in 6.79.

Ashford said that her race Saturday "does not compare to the Olympic Games or any other major competition."

Youngster gets 1st PGA win

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Bernhard Langer shrugged off the cross-handed put that misfired and paved the way for Bob Tway to become a first-time winner in the Shearson Lehman Brothers Andy Williams Open.

"I was trying as hard as I could to win. We're professionals. That's what we do. But Bob played very well," Langer said, then observed, "It will probably do more for him than it would for me, so maybe it's best that it happened this way."

And Tway, 26, now in his second year on the PGA Tour, was quick to agree.

"It opens a lot of doors," he said after he defeated Langer with a two-putt par on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff.

"It puts me in the Tournament of Champions, the Masters. It opens up so many more tournaments, so many more possibilities."

"The first win is the biggest. Maybe it will make it easier for the others to come," Tway said.

And this one definitely was not easy.

Tway, in the last group on the course, dropped back into a tie for the lead when he drove into trouble, missed the green and bogeyed the 17th hole.

He needed a birdie on the par-5 18th to win the tournament outright but soon found himself facing a six-to-eight foot second putt to save par and force a playoff.

He made it, finishing off a closing-round 69. That put him through 54 holes — the tournament was reduced to a three-round format after Saturday's play was rained out — in 204, 12 under par and tied with Langer.

Langer, the West German who holds the Masters title and is vastly more experienced than Tway, Bob Tway waves to the crowd after sinking a one foot putt on the second hole of a playoff to win the Shearson Lehman Brothers Andy Williams Open Sunday in San Diego.

played the last round in 68.

The first playoff hole was halved in routine pars. Both hit the green on the next, a par-3.

Langer ran his first putt, from about 30 feet, some six-to-eight feet beyond the cup. Tway missed from 20 feet.

Then Langer, putting through the distracting shadow of a television tower, missed the comeback putt and — tight-lipped — tapped in for bogey. Tway made his little one for par and was a winner.

"An undescrivable feeling,"

Tway, a 6-foot-4 native of Edmond, Okla. "You play golf all your life hoping this will happen and it finally comes."

The victory was worth $81,000 from the total purse of $450,000. Langer, who has won 17 career international events, and hasn't been lower than 13th in five starts this young season, won $48,000.

Paul Azinger, Mark Lye and Mike Hulbert finished one shot out of the playoff at 205. Hulbert had a closing 67, Lye and Azinger 69s.

SWC hoop action heats up

By The Associated Press

The Texas Aggies face two critical games on the road this weekend that are likely to decide their ultimate fate in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

The Aggies, who must overcome the shock of losing their first home game of the season 58-56 to Southern Methodist on Saturday, begin their perilous week in Fort Worth.

On Wednesday, they play SWC co-leader Texas Christian in Daniel Meyer Coliseum where the Frogs haven't lost this year.

Next comes a trip to Austin on Saturday night where the Aggies will trade shots with the other co-leader, the Texas Longhorns.

Both TCU and Texas will be ready to inflict some revenge on the Aggies who beat both of them at home earlier.

Texas A&M and Texas Tech were victims Saturday night, although nothing should be surprising in the SWC chase by now.

It was Kevin Lewis' clutch free throws that helped SMU beat the Aggies. A&M dropped out of the SWC lead with an 8-2 record.

TCU whipped Baylor 67-47 in Coach Jim Killingsworth's 1,000th collegiate game, and Texas added to Arkansas' woes with a 61-57 victory over the Hogs in Fayetteville. Defending champion Texas Tech was shocked in Lubbock 52-50 by Rice when the "messed dunk nightmare" once again revisited Red Raider Coach Gerald Myers.

The Frogs and the Longhorns are locked at the top of the SWC penthouse with 9-2 ledgers.

Arkansas, the preseason favorite with a 2-9 record, officially assured itself of a below .500 record in SWC play for the first time since the 1973-74 season.

SMU jumped right back into what is basically a four-team race with an 8-3 record.

Tech is now 5-5, Houston is 4-6, Arkansas 2-9, Rice 2-9, and Baylor 1-10.

"If we were going to be a factor in the race, we had to win in College Station," said SMU Coach Dave Biss. "We did a lot of things right."

It was A&M's first loss of the year at home.

Texas Coach Bob Weltlick got his first victory in Barnhill arena since coming to Texas in 1982.

"We took care of the basketball and let the other team make the mistakes," he said.

Baylor Coach Gene Iba praised TCU as "the best team in the league. I'm not saying that because they beat us the worst. I said that before we played."

"This victory puts us in position to make a run for the title," said Killingsworth.

In other games Wednesday night, Texas is at Baylor, Houston is at Rice and Arkansas is at Texas Tech.

Cowboys will make front office changes

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys President Tex Schramm says the National Football League team will undergo significant front office changes in personnel, responsibility and direction before the April 29 NFL draft.

Schramm told the Dallas Morning News in Sunday's editions that changes include the reduction in responsibility and authority of Gil Brandt, vice president in charge of personnel, and the addition of a pro personnel director, which the Cowboys have never had.

He described the changes as "a little overhaul and I think it's going to be healthy."

Schramm said the pro personnel director will be hired from outside the organization and will be in charge of scouting and evaluating NFL players, a job currently performed by Brandt.

The team president said Brandt will no longer be in charge of resigning veterans and probably will not be responsible for signing draft choices. Schramm said Brandt will remain in charge of organizing the Cowboys' complex network for signing rookie free agents.

He said Brandt, who has been with the Cowboys since their inception in 1960, is merely being freed of busy-work to turn his full attention to college scouting.

"Most clubs have pro personnel directors," said Schramm. "I think college scouting has become so complicated and time-consuming that I don't think the same man can do both. Gil has been doing that. This will now enable him to devote the necessary time on the preparation of the draft."

Schramm said the veteran signings could be part of the pro personnel director's job or somebody already in the Cowboys' organization.

"The ultimate decision always belongs to Landry," said Schramm.

Up-and-coming star stuns Edberg

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — With John McEnroe on a self-imposed sabbatical and Jimmy Connors's career fading, Brad Gilbert is rapidly stamping himself as one of America's top tennis players — a force to be reckoned with.

Ranked 15th in the world on the Hewlett-Packard-ATP computer, Gilbert goes into this week's $1.8 million Lipton International Players Championships tournament with his biggest title yet.

Gilbert, a 24-year-old right-hander from Piedmont, Calif., capped one of the biggest weeks of his professional career with a 7-5, 7-6 upset victory Sunday over defending champion Stefan Edberg of Sweden in the final of the $315,000 Volvo Tennis U.S. National Indoor Championship.

He reached the championship match by ousting Connors, the top seed, in the quarterfinals, and third-seeded Anders Jarryd of Sweden in the semifinals.

Midway in his march to the final at Memphis, Gilbert learned he had been named to the U.S. Davis Cup team which will play at Ecuador March 7-9. And he accumulated enough aces — 40 — to win an expensive oriental rug given to the pro scoring the most aces.

In Toronto, Sweden's Joakim Nystrom crushed 6-foot-8 Milan Srejber of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-4 to win the $150,000 Nabisco Grand Prix Regular Series event.

Gilbert, down 3-2 in the first set, used his rifle-like serve to block Edberg's plans to repeat as the winner of the U.S. National Indoors at The Racquet Club of Memphis.

And the title comes on the heels of the biggest victory of his career, when he eliminated McEnroe in the first round of the Nabisco Masters in New York last month.

Gilbert earned $45,000 for his week's work, while Edberg picked up $22,500.

In the first set of Sunday's match, Edberg jumped out to a 3-2 lead before Gilbert began his scramble. His serve kept Edberg deep and off-balance.

"My serve started to pick up at 5-4," Gilbert said. "I started standing a little closer on the returns. I started to really get around on the returns."

Gilbert hit nine aces in the match, but it was his return of serve that was most telling.

"I felt like I was penetrating his serve a little bit," Gilbert said. "He started missing his first serves. I think I started getting a good crack at the ball. ... I started hitting some forehands at 5-4 and 6-5 to win the set."

"I snuck a few forehands down the line. I was fortunate my serve picked up a lot in the second set. Once I started serving, my confidence started picking up," Gilbert said.

"I played all right today,"

Edberg said. "It was a very tight match."

Edberg, who had won three previous matches with Gilbert, said his opponent's serve seemed to get stronger as the match progressed.

"I rushed a little bit," the Swede said. "But he hit the line so many times."

"I've got to go for it and take some chances," Edberg said. "Maybe I should come in a bit, but it's very hard when he is passing so well."

Gilbert will move up several notches in the ATP rankings on the basis of his performance in Memphis, a tour official said Sunday.

"It was a great week for me," Gilbert said after the match.

In the doubles final, Ken Flach and Robert Seguso defeated Guy Forget and Jarryd 6-4, 4-6, 7-6. Flach and Seguso, who were top-seeded in the doubles, split $14,000. Forget and Jarryd split $7,000.

In Toronto, Srejber, the tallest player on the tennis tour, used his big serve and remarkable poise to battle his way through qualifying and into the final. But he served just three aces against Nystrom — all of them coming in the second game of the first set — and had seven double-faults.

"I knew he had a good serve, so I was just trying to get the ball back and it worked well," Nystrom, who collected $25,000 for the victory, said.

Nystrom said when he served, he went to Srejber's forehand.

"When I served to his forehand, sometimes he hit them out," the Swede said. "He's not very steady on his forehand. He's steadier on his backhand."
