Beard stays

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Mayor Mike Roark says he is leaving the fate of his face up to the public.

Roark stopped shaving in December, and has been getting a lot of grief about the beard, according to assistant Ed Esposito. So, the two men decided to conduct a telephone survey to determine whether the mayor should whisk off his whiskers, Esposito said. Roark announced last week that he would shave March 17 — St. Patrick's Day — if callers say they hate the hair. By Monday, the mayor's office had received about 45 calls in favor of the beard and 80 calls against, Esposito said.

Marcos quits; flees palace

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A defeated Ferdinand E. Marcos resigned as president of the Philippines today, slipping away in the Manila night and setting off an explosion of joyous celebration among his countrymen.

"Cory! Cory!" Filipinos chanted in tribute to new President Corazon Aquino as they demonstrated by the thousands across the capital.

Marcos, heading out of the country via the U.S. Air Force's nearby Clark Air Base, was brought down by a combination of a "people's power" uprising, military revolt and U.S. pressure.

First official word of his resignation came in Washington, where Secretary of State George Shultz said the toppled Philippine leader would be "welcome to come to the United States." But there was no immediate report on his final destination.

Marcos' departure ended four days of uncertainty and political drama in Manila and 20 years of highly personal Marcos rule over this impoverished archipelago nation of 52 million people, an important U.S. ally in the Far East.

Fourteen people were reported slain in violence sparked by the revolt against Marcos.

The longtime president was given a final push Monday by the Reagan administration, which issued a statement calling for a peaceful transition to a new government because of what it said was widespread fraud in the Feb. 7 presidential election, in which the 68-year-old Marcos claimed victory over Mrs. Aquino, widow of an assassinated political rival.

Shultz said the United States had officially recognized the new Aquino government and he anticipated no immediate problem in maintaining the two major U.S. military bases in the Philippines — Clark and Subic Bay Naval Base.

"We are prepared to confer with the new government ... to cooperate fully," he said.

Earlier today, both Marcos and Mrs. Aquino, 53, were inaugurated as president of rival Philippine governments in separate ceremonies. But within hours, both camps reported Marcos, at the president's Malacanang Palace.

Philippines: Land of islands

By The Associated Press

THE LAND — Located in the Pacific basin, the Philippines comprise 7,107 islands. About 1,000 of the islands are populated, the biggest being Luzon. The country has a land area of 115,000 square miles.

Half of the year, the weather is sunny and hot, until the typhoons begin. About 20 typhoons deluge the country annually.

THE PEOPLE — About 85 percent of the 55 million people are Roman Catholics. Some 5 million Moslems live on southern Mindanao Island. It is a young country, with about half of the people younger than 15.

Filipinos are mainly Malay people, with Chinese, American and Spanish minorities. Family ties are close, and families usually span three generations, including grandparents who live with their children.

There are 87 dialects, but English is spoken almost nationwide.

THE ECONOMY — About six out of every seven Filipinos live in rural villages, and are farmers. Per capita income is $400 annually.

Most industries are located around Manila, and draw people from the rural areas. The migration to Manila has created sprawling slums.

About 70 percent of the people are said to live below the poverty line. The United States and Japan are the country's biggest trading partners. U.S. investments total $2.5 billion.

HISTORY — Spain colonized the islands in the 16th century. About 200 local insurrections rocked Spanish rule until U.S. Admiral George Dewey and Filipino revolutionaries ousted the Spaniards in 1898.

American rule lasted until 1946, when the United States recognized Philippine independence. Japanese forces occupied the country from 1941 to 1944 during World War II.

Since 1946, Filipinos regularly changed presidents in elections every four years until President Ferdinand E. Marcos came to power in 1966.

Opposition leader Corazon Aquino smiles to applaud during her inaugural address at a private club in Manila Tuesday. Aquino and President Ferdinand Marcos both took the oath of office on Tuesday. Marcos later resigned the office he held for the past 20 years.

Aquino, reluctant candidate, to lead nation

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Corazon Aquino started her political career as a reluctant candidate but became a determined campaigner who rallied millions of her countrymen behind a drive to end Ferdinand E. Marcos' 20 years as president.

To the surprise of many Filipinos and many foreigners, the petite, 53-year-old woman managed to channel widespread dissatisfaction with Marcos into a powerful stream of opposition that swept him from power.

She became well known only after her husband was assassinated in 1983, a slaying that started the chain of events that brought down Marcos.

She was born Jan. 25, 1933, the sixth of eight children of a prominent and wealthy family from Tarlac province, 50 miles north of Manila.

She attended high school at Raven Hill Academy in Philadelphia and Notre Dame in New York. She earned a bachelor of arts degree from Mount St. Vincent College in New York, majoring in French and mathematics.

Mrs. Aquino enrolled in a law course in Manila in 1956 but gave up her studies to marry Aquino. He began a political career, first as mayor of his hometown of Concepcion, then as governor of the province and later as a senator in Manila.

Today, Mrs. Aquino swore an oath of office as provisional president and said she was "taking power in the name of the Filipino people."

An hour later Marcos took the oath as president at a palace ceremony. As an indication of how his power had crumbled, the broadcast of the ceremony was knocked off the air by rebels who took control of the station. They substituted a John Wayne film.

Several hours later, the man who dominated the country for two decades resigned.

Mrs. Aquino is a daughter of the wealthy Cojuangco family of Tarlac province, which has sprawling sugar plantations. Her first cousin, Eduardo Cojuangco, is a close business associate of Marcos and believed to be one of the wealthiest men in the Philippines, controlling a coconut monopoly granted him under the Marcos administration.

Stepping forward after her husband was assassinated, Mrs. Aquino waged an emotion-laden campaign in the Feb. 7 presidential election and made a strong showing in balloting that was tainted by fraud, according to her supporters and to independent election observers.

She campaigned throughout the country, always smiling and always wearing yellow. The color symbolizes the yellow-ribbon homecoming planned for her husband when he returned from self-exile in the United States, only to be assassinated at Manila airport.

When the Marcos-controlled National Assembly on Feb. 15 completed the count and announced that Marcos had won, Mrs. Aquino refused to accept that verdict and pledged a campaign to bring down Marcos by boycotts and demonstrations.

Then, two military leaders of the Marcos establishment announced on Saturday that they had broken with the president. They demanded he resign and allow Mrs. Aquino to lead the nation. Their action provoked widespread sympathy from the public, and thousands of people poured into the streets to support the rebels.

By Monday, the rebels had taken over a government television station and proclaimed a provisional government headed by Mrs. Aquino. Crowds in the streets chanted her nickname, "Cory, Cory!"

"Some people tell me I did not have any formal education in politics," she told The Associated Press in an interview. "But I was living with one of the best teachers in politics."

In addition, her grandfather, father and brother were congressmen. Her other grandfather and an uncle were senators, and another uncle is a member of the National Assembly.

But she has said most of her political ideas come from her late husband.

Aquino was allowed to travel to the United States for heart surgery in 1980 and spent the next three years in voluntary exile.

Turner, Heckler trade barbs

By HANK MURPHY

Staff Writer

A feud between Police Chief Rick Turner and local bondsman Danny Heckler has escalated into strong allegations by both men this week with the most recent volley coming from Turner today.

A Sunday story in the Big Spring Herald detailed concerns by the police chief that Heckler, local businessman and bondsman, ruined an undercover narcotics investigation by using public records in an attempt to discredit Turner.

Heckler claimed yesterday that Turner is trying to "harass" him by trying to link him to illegal drugs.

Heckler says public funds totaling $35,000 to $50,000 last year spent on drug investigations aren't properly accounted for and make the city "the biggest dope buyer in Big Spring."

Local police have built between 130 and 135 narcotics-related cases with that money, Turner said at a news conference this morning.

Turner said the police are "taking a stand against narcotic dealers" who he said are doing a brisk business in town. "It's bad in Big Spring, Texas," he said.

The Heckler's allegation that the city is the "biggest dope buyer" in Big Spring, Turner said: "I guess that's a true statement."

However, other allegations by Heckler that a police officer sold Amway products out of his car and that Turner sold jewelry from his police vehicle are not true, Turner said.

Turner explained that police are encouraged as part of their high visibility program to use police vehicles for personal use.

On whether he was seeking a grand jury review of Heckler, Turner said it was not up to him to send Heckler before a grand jury. "That's not my decision to make," he said. "We have presented the case to the county attorney, it's his decision alone."

When asked if he has a personal vendetta against Heckler, Turner said "no."

Turner said he was concerned that recent allegations and rumors about police misappropriation of narcotics funds was a "diversion trying to discredit the drug operation."

Turner said Heckler's close association with the sheriff's department gives him concern. "I am concerned about the recent chain of events. It concerns me that somebody who is the subject of an investigation would have access to license numbers, would have access to law enforcement officials to work on their side. It concerns me that a person under investigation would have a law enforcement radio in their vehicle. I know that we did not issue that radio. I don't know who did."

The city has made offers, Turner said, to work with the sheriff's

JP's ex-secretary gets seven-year probation

District Judge James Gregg placed a former secretary in Justice of the Peace Lewis Heflin's office on seven years probation for misapplication of fiduciary property.

Lee Winchester of 538 Westover was convicted last month by a panel of 118th District Court jurors of misapplying $1005.91 in fiduciary properties from August 1983 to August 1984.

She was eligible for a two- to 10-year sentence in the state penitentiary, but her court-appointed attorney, Wayne Basden, requested probation.

In addition to abiding by the terms of her probation as defined by the court, Winchester also was ordered to pay $102 court costs, $1,150 in court-appointed attorney fees and $1,005.91 in restitution fees to five persons named in the indictment counts. She was ordered to make these payments in monthly installments of $37.63 for the next 59 months with a final payment of $37.74 the last month.

Grand jurors in October indicted Winchester on 21 counts of misapplication of fiduciary property following an investigation into Heflin's office. The investigation was conducted by Ranger Charles Brune at Heckler's and County Auditor Jackie Olson's request.

Winchester worked as a secretary in Heflin's office from May 11, 1981, to Sept. 14, 1984.

Aquino murder triggered unrest

By The Associated Press
Thirty long months after it was fired, the bullet that killed one man in the Philippines has now undone another.

For Ferdinand E. Marcos, the last scenes of his tumultuous two decades in power may have begun on Aug. 21, 1983, on the tarmac of Manila International Airport, when his political rival Benigno S. Aquino Jr. was felled by a single shot to the head.

That assassination, widely blamed on Marcos, unleashed an explosion of popular outrage against the Philippine president, an explosion that shook the economy as well, deepening a financial crisis that was crippling the nation.

For an experienced Asian leader who had dealt with five U.S. presidents, a skilled politician who always managed to outmaneuver his foes, an autocrat who once claimed divine guidance in suspending democracy, the flood of opposition touched off by the Aquino assassination finally proved unstoppable, and he was forced to resign today as president of his nation of 52 million people, giving way to the widow of the dead, and now vindicated, Aquino.

In the end, the loyal ally once praised by Vice President George Bush for his "adherence to democratic principles" was accused by the White House of widespread fraud in presidential elections Feb. 7. The ally had become an embarrassment.

For the Philippines, the Marcos era was a time of modernization. His government built schools, roads and electrical systems. But at the same time it threw away untold millions of dollars on grandiose schemes and siphoned off millions more through official corruption.

In the Marcos era, one insurgency subsided, but another — even more potent — rose up. And under Marcos Filipinos voted in almost a dozen elections and referendums — only to see their democratic institutions erode.

By the time he left, after 20 years of the Marcos "New Society," the gap between rich and poor in the Philippines had widened, the cash-starved economy had fallen far behind neighboring countries, and the stage had been set for a long struggle with Communist insurgents.

Marcos was an accomplished lawyer when he rose to prominence in the Philippine Congress in the 1950s and 1960s. In the presidential election of 1965, he decisively defeated the incumbent, Diosdado Macapagal.

He ran on an anti-corruption platform and vowed in his inauguration speech "with the help of the masses, to make this country great again." He began by building the first of 63,542 miles of new roads that would be laid down over the next 20 years, and the first of 3,354 schools.

But the new president neither ended the old corruption nor created the necessary new jobs. By the late 1960s, as the Philippine population swelled, unemployment, inflation and discontent grew as well.

In 1968, a dozen former university students reorganized the banned Philippine Communist Party, formed the New People's Army and dug in for a long rural guerrilla war.

The following year, Marcos won a second presidential term in an allegedly fraudulent election, and major disturbances rocked the Philippines, including an assault by 2,000 leftist demonstrators on the presidential palace.

As the Communist guerrillas gained strength in the countryside, young leftist protesters took to Manila's streets, demanding Marcos's overthrow and an end to what they called a semi-colonial relationship with the United States.

At the time, the Philippines was providing engineers and medical personnel for the U.S. war against Communists in Vietnam, and U.S. military bases in the Philippines were a crucial rear base for the war effort.

On Sept. 23, 1972, in raids across Manila, troops arrested scores of opposition politicians, journalists, students and others critical of Marcos's rule. Newspapers and broadcast stations were shut down. Marcos had imposed martial law, to save the country from communism, he said.

He abolished Congress and rewrote the constitution to extend his presidency. Over the next five years — by his own count — his security forces arrested some 70,000 people.

Commissioners OK funds for library, sheriff's office

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer
Howard County commissioners on Monday unanimously approved funding for expanded services in the sheriff's office and for a new theft detection system in the county library.

Sheriff's deputy Barney Edens requested Monday morning the court's permission to apply for a matching grant with the Criminal Justice System of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

The grant, Edens told commissioners, would be used to hire two additional deputies and to purchase major crime force equipment.

Under the terms of grant, the county would pay an average of $23,000 over the next five years before it assumed total responsibility for the two deputy salaries.

The county also would have to match approximately $7,900 in funds for the proposed equipment, Edens said.

Commissioner O.L. Brown said during pre-vote discussions that the county had not applied with the regional planning commission in years.

"It's high time we made an application for federal funds," Brown told commissioners.

Edens said before the motion passed that deadline for the grant application was March 19 and the regional planning commission would release their selected choices of those who receive grants sometime in September.

The regional planning commission, Edens said, is operating on a $174,000 budget this fiscal year.

Commissioners also approved purchasing a theft detection system for the county library.

County Librarian Judith Gray told commissioners the system could save about $3,600 worth of materials that are stolen each year.

Following a 1982 inventory that covered a previous three-year transaction period, Gray said, it was discovered that "almost 900 items were missing without any borrowing record."

She said the electronic theft system would cost from $13,000 to $14,000 and would pay for itself in about three years.

During Monday's meeting, commissioners also:

• Approved a motion for the county road and bridge department to advertise bidding for 7,000 tons of aggregate for county road paving projects this summer.

Hance says he can carry rural vote

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

The key to winning the governor's race is not in carrying high-status areas like Highland Park in Dallas but in carrying rural areas, said Kent Hance of Lubbock, one of three candidates for the Republican primary.

Hance spoke to about 80 persons Monday afternoon at a fundraiser in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Rural areas such as Hereford must be carried, Hance said, and he assured the audience that he can carry the rural Texas vote.

"I can carry the important swing areas — the rural vote of Texas," he said. "I can identify with those people."

The Dimmitt native opened his talk saying Texans faced a serious problem with state spending rising 246 percent. As governor, Hance said, he would address area spending that would include action to cut members of the government spending staff.

He would request each state agency "to list programs by priority" and cut from the bottom up, he said.

If the cost savings measure wasn't enough, Hance said he would request across-the-board cuts.

"There are times you can't afford everything," he said. To diversify the state's economy, Hance said he would establish economic development commissions in Europe and Japan "to promote agricultural goods."

He would establish a "Texas Day" on annual visits to the northern and northeastern sections of this country to help develop incentives for corporations to relocate in Texas.

To accomplish this, Hance said, he would seek to eliminate a corporate franchise tax the first three to five years a company relocated here. Hance said he also would move to lower liability insurance rates to attract new industry.

The Democrat-turned-Republican Hance also criticized House Bill 72 saying it "took away local control of the school

KENT HANCE
...campaigns in Big Spring system."

He said the bill also has provisions that will substantially increase property taxes.

"The more we give to the school system, the more we hurt it," Hance said.

In reference to the current prison reform system, Hance said the state needs to make decisions regarding job training for prisoners and ways to save money while keeping prisoners busy.

"We don't have to agree with everything chief justice Wayne Justiss is ordering," he said. Hance said he favors using convicts as construction members and prefers they work in the cotton fields rather than using machinery.

After his speech, Hance told a reporter regarding the state's troubled oil economy that he would support an oil import fee as a way to balance out the tax load.

When questioned about the troubled farmer's situation, Hance said he would organize a farm crisis committee and work to develop farm exportation.

The luncheon was sponsored by the Kent Hance for Governor Committee in Howard County. Hance was introduced by county committee chairman Stan Black and received a vocal endorsement from local businessman Chris Christopher after his speech.

Beggs to quit NASA job

WASHINGTON — James M. Beggs is leaving the top job at NASA for good, his wife says, to allow President Reagan to name a successor to lead the embattled space agency through the aftermath of the space shuttle Challenger explosion.

Beggs, 60, had been administrator of NASA since July 7, 1981, three months after the first space shuttle flight.

He has been on unpaid leave since Dec. 2, when he and three other former General Dynamics executives were indicted by a grand jury on charges they plotted to hide cost overruns on the ill-fated Sgt. York anti-aircraft gun — before Beggs joined the space agency.

Priest protests paper

CHICAGO — A top official of the NAACP's Chicago chapter says he'll stay chained in front of the city's only black-owned daily newspaper until it retracts an editorial criticizing Mayor Harold Washington.

"As long as it takes, that's how long I'll be out here," the Rev. Herbert Martin said late Monday as he adjusted the 200-pound logging chain attached to his waist and a pillar of the building housing the Chicago Defender.

Martin, president of the board of directors of the Chicago NAACP, also said he was going on a hunger strike that would end when the retraction appears.

Poll favors farmers

NEW YORK — Fifty-five percent of those Americans surveyed said they are willing to pay higher federal taxes to help the nation's farmers save their land, according to a poll published today.

Fifty percent said there should be an increase in federal spending to help the country's farmers, a 14 percent increase from those who answered the same question a year ago, according to the New York Times/CBS Poll.

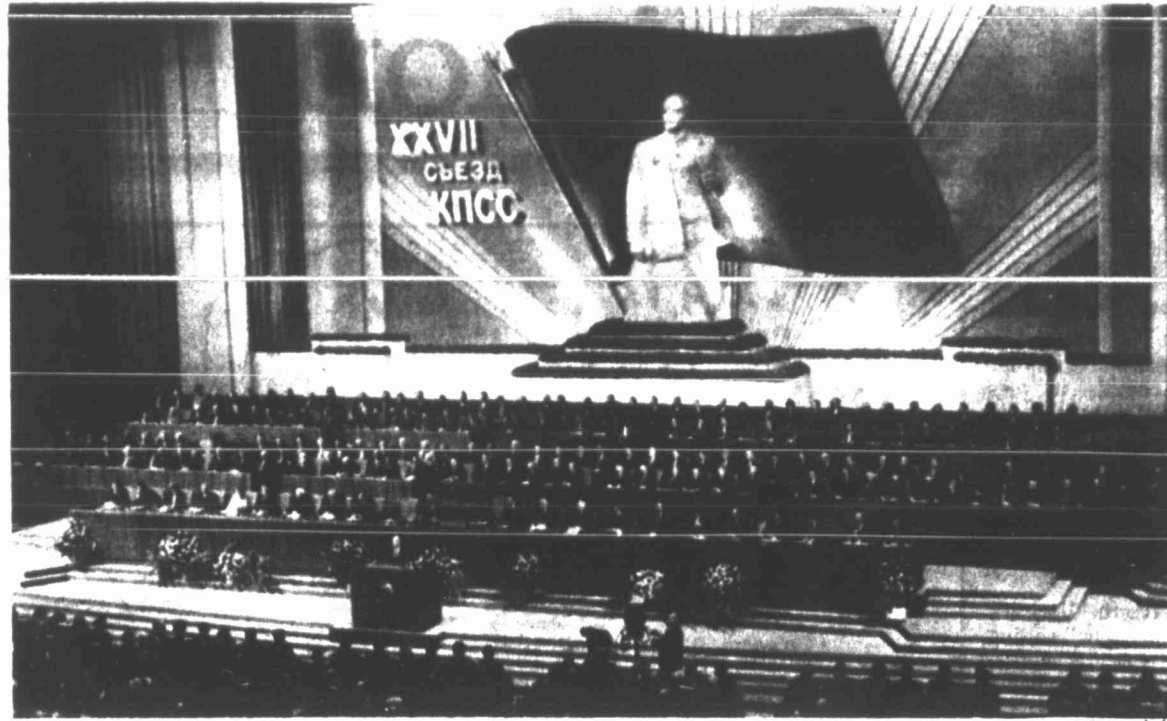

Officials firm on ban

BALTIMORE — Maryland officials stand by their ban on sales of a Gerber baby food suspected of containing glass fragments despite the company's $150 million lawsuit against them, a spokeswoman says.

Gerber Products Co. filed the suit against Gov. Harry Hughes and other officials Monday, one day after the state ordered jars of Gerber strained peaches removed from store shelves.

Man faces extradition

CLEVELAND — A retired autoworker who exhausted appeals of his extradition when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear the case, faces being sent to Israel for trial on charges he ran gas chambers where up to 900,000 Jews were killed during World War II.

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev, members of the Presidium behind him, addresses the opening session of the 27th Soviet Communist Party congress. Some 5,000 party members and foreign guests heard Gorbachev attack the growth of the Soviet bureaucracy.

Communist meet

Gorbachev criticizes Brezhnev legacy

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev today opened the 27th Soviet Communist Party congress with an attack on the "stiffness and escalation" of Soviet bureaucracy — a clear reference to the legacy of former party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Speaking to 5,000 party members and foreign guests, Gorbachev, the party's general secretary, also predicted the "moral and political isolation of U.S. imperialism," and called on Communists to abandon "habitual but already outdated notions" in their approach to world and domestic problems.

Delegates to the congress, the nominally supreme party body that meets every five years, will elect a new Central Committee, approve a policy program and changes in party rules, and formally endorse a new five-year plan and economic targets in line with Gorbachev's reform efforts.

At today's session, Gorbachev said the Soviet leadership commends the country's achievements but also "considers it to be its duty to tell the party and the people honestly and frankly about the deficiencies in our political and practical activities, the unfavorable tendencies in the economy and the social and moral sphere, and about the reasons for them."

He told party delegates assembled at the Kremlin Palace of Congresses that party and government bodies had "tailed behind the needs of the times and of life."

"The inertness and stiffness of the forms and methods of administration, the decline of dynamism in our work, and an escalation of bureaucracy — all this was doing no small damage," Gorbachev said.

Gorbachev did not refer to Brezhnev by name, but his remarks clearly referred to the Kremlin leader who headed the Soviet Communist Party from 1964 until his death in 1982. The final years of Brezhnev's 18-year reign were characterized by bureaucratic stagnation and the occupation of numerous posts by aging bureaucrats.

Gorbachev criticized the United States for what he said was manipulation of the dollar's value and interest rates to "fatten its economy" at the expense of U.S. allies, and for allegedly exploiting developing countries.

He said capitalism will have to choose between "shameless force and plunder" and criticized "bourgeois corruption and vandalism" worldwide. "The U.S. ruling circles are clearly losing their realistic bearings," Gorbachev said, predicting "the inevitable moral and political isolation of U.S. imperialism."

In contrast to the opening of the last party congress held in 1981 under Brezhnev, Gorbachev dispensed with a reading of the 100-plus names of foreign delegates, a time-consuming process. Applause from the party delegates was brief as Gorbachev and the 10 other members of the ruling Politburo took their places at the podium, with President Andrei A. Gromyko and Kremlin ideologist Yegor Ligachev flanking the Soviet leader.

The session was nationally televised and made available worldwide by satellite. The official Soviet news agency Tass began running a text of Gorbachev's speech, said to be nearly 200 pages long, and Radio Moscow provided a simultaneous English-language translation.

Gorbachev will turn 55 on Sunday, and nine days later will mark the first anniversary of his rise to the post of party leader following the death of Konstantin U. Chernenko.

Iran launches offensive

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran launched a new offensive in the mountains of northeast Iraq today to protect a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in the two nations' 5½-year-old war.

"After being disappointed by the Security Council resolution, the Iranian forces in the northern sector of the warfront dealt another crushing blow to the Iraqi regime," said Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of Iran's parliament who is also the spokesman of the Supreme Defense Council.

The council's resolution Monday night was "ineffective and shallow," Rafsanjani was quoted as saying by the Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia.

Crash remains found

BANGKOK, Thailand — Human bones, large pieces of aircraft, and at least one set of dog tags have been found at a crash site in southern Laos where a U.S.-Laotian team is searching for remains of American MIAs, a spokesman said today.

Lt Col. Terry McCann, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command, said the bones were found with "limited personal effects" and large pieces of aircraft at the site in Savannakhet province where an AC-130 gunship carrying 14 American airmen crashed almost 14 years ago.

Miners strike work

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — More than 12,000 black miners struck South Africa's second-largest gold mine today in a dispute that began with the deaths of four black supervisors in a fight at the mine last week, the union said.

The 250,000-member National Union of Mineworkers, South Africa's largest labor union, did not say how long the strike would continue at the Van Reefs mine located 100 miles west of Johannesburg.

'Last great act of defiance?'

To the editor:

As I see it, Mr. John Rice and Mr. Murphy's responsibility to Big Spring is communicating the news as completely, honestly and fairly as they possibly can. It is not their job, however, to fill in the gaps in another man's character or even to "spare our feelings" on any given subject.

It appears that Mr. Don Davis had absolutely no sense of responsibility to any of the local residents in so far as he showed no respect or sensitivity to anyone with his off-colored language. As a benefactor to his livelihood I find this shocking and offensive.

Everyone does have "bad" days and most even occasionally use a little profanity but the vast majority can and do control themselves even without the threat of exposure. If this was, as it appears, Mr. Davis' "Last Great Act of Defiance" then I say HOW DARE YOU, DON DAVIS.

Reader detects philosophical shift

To the editor:

I found the Herald's Sunday editorial on gasoline pricing a surprisingly sudden change in editorial philosophy. For years now, the Herald has been a bellwether of the "Buy It in Big Spring" method for re-vitalization.

Now, with one bold sweep of the editorial pen, the Herald has suggested a boycott of local gasoline retailers. To quote the Herald, "Big Spring retailers ought to think about that while they see if they can't refigure their pump prices."

The Herald went on to recommend, "Better yet, some sharp local entrepreneur should cut his gasoline price to 75 cents a gallon."

We can assume that the Herald based its 75 cents gasoline on the information provided by Tom Yates of Cosden. Mr. Yates told the Herald Friday that the refinery was selling regular for 61.5 cents. Sounds pretty good. Buy it for 61.5 and sell it for 75.

Well, without getting too involved in the intricacies of "downstream" distribution, let me just say that those customers of Cosden's are not the retailers. In the case of a branded station, Cosden sells to the brand company; i.e., Chevron, Texaco, Gulf, who in turn sells to the local jobber, who sells bulk wholesale and to the retail operators who put it in your tank. The more hands it goes through, the more mouths it has to feed.

And now come the two biggest mouths of all; the State of Texas and Uncle Sam. State and federal tax on a gallon of gasoline is 19 cents. Taxes are paid by the consumer.

Now, here we have the Herald's "sharp local entrepreneur" selling gasoline, retail, for 75 cents. Seventy-five cents minus 19 cents equals 56 cents. That's five and a half cents less than what the refinery sold it for. Not only did he cut his suppliers' throat, this "sharp" person just paid the public 5 1/2 cents a gallon for the pleasure of serving it.

Prices will continue to fall as old inventories are sold and replaced with new, cheaper inventories. Remember, a two cent drop at the refinery today has little bearing on the ten thousand gallons the retailer bought yesterday.

Oil people here overprice product

To the editor:

This letter is in support of Mr. Tony Taroni's letter to the editor (Mailbag, "Reader questions gasoline pricing," Feb. 16). Last weekend (Feb. 16) in Denton I paid 99.9 for unleaded gasoline.

Last night in Midland I saw major brands of gasoline priced as low as 94.9.

It seems obvious to me the oil people in Big Spring are trying to put the screws to us. Still they wonder why we don't SHOP BIG SPRING FIRST.

I think the American Business Women's Association made an excellent choice in naming Clint Hollomon "boss of the year."

But, I would like to go one step further — as one of their employees, I can tell you that Clint and Mary are two of the most generous and caring (not to mention fun) people a person could know.

My vote is for Clint and Mary Hollomon — bosses of the year.

200th birthday party planning on track despite budget cuts

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — Under President Reagan's austerity budget, the National Archives will no longer be able to support scholarly research on the founding of our government. Yet the president has allotted $12 million to a commission of noteworthy citizens to advise him on the celebration of the Constitution's 200th anniversary.

This triumph of form over substance is perhaps best illustrated in the contrast between two proposed undertakings — one that the White House wants to eliminate and one that has the enthusiastic support of the bicentennial commission staff.

The Archives budget cut would kill grants for research, including the Madison Papers Project, a definitive study of the voluminous records left by James Madison on the drafting of the Constitution. Madison was the principal architect of what is arguably the most important document in the history of democracy.

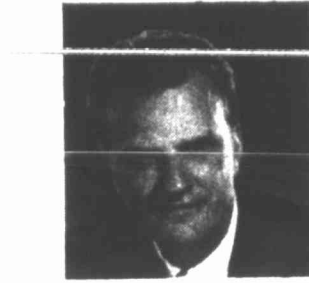

The project that the bicentennial commission is pushing would construct yet another monument on the Mall in Washington, an area already sinking under the weight of marble memorials.

According to internal commission documents, serious consideration is being given to a "Founding Fathers Hall/Constitution Center" that will include "a white marble wall on which the Constitution would be etched in gold letters." The hope is that the monument will be built "entirely from private contributions." Foreign governments will be encouraged to contribute.

Ronald Mann, the commission's deputy staff director, told our associate Donald Goldberg that the monument would cost anywhere between $100 million and $150 million. He said the building and wall are just one of several plans being considered, including a Constitution Park and a statue of the men who adopted the Constitution in 1787. All the proposals will be submitted to the commission so a choice can be made and a finance committee set up to run the fund-raising drive.

Dr. Raymond Smock, a historian with the House of Representatives, pointed out that a monument to the Constitution already exists — right on the Mall. The National Archives, a stately neo-classical building on Constitution Avenue, houses the original Constitution, the Declaration of Independence, the Bill of Rights and other priceless historical documents — so many, in fact, that it is bursting at the seams.

"If we build a new building, let's build a new Archives," Smock told a private gathering recently. "We don't need a separate new center of learning on the Mall, when we already have within walking distance the Library of Congress, the National Archives and the Smithsonian Institution."

Anger causes family's split

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Several years ago, my younger sister (who now lives in another city) got pregnant while she was still in her teens. My parents angrily disowned her and have refused to have anything to do with her since. My problem is that I have a lot of anger toward my parents because of this, and I don't know how to handle it.

— Mrs. B.N.

DEAR MRS. B.N.: It was anger that made them reject your sister; don't let the same emotion enslave you as well. The Bible rightly says, "Anger is cruel and fury overwhelming" (Proverbs 27:4). It also commands us, "But now you must rid yourselves of all such things as these: anger, rage, malice, slander... Bear with each other and forgive whatever grievances you may have against one another. Forgive as the Lord forgave you" (Colossians 3:8,13).

Although I do not know the full story, from what you say it was not right for your parents to reject your sister; it was, after all, a time when she especially needed help. But that is all in the past; the important thing is to do what you can to deal with your own feelings and rebuild (if possible) the relationships in your family. Bitterness and anger will only corrode you and hurt you and will solve nothing.

The first step you need to take is to turn to Christ. Ask Him to come into your heart by faith, and by faith accept His forgiveness. He has promised to forgive you freely — although you do not deserve it.

Then ask Him to help you forgive your parents for whatever wrong they have committed — even if (in your eyes) they may not seem to deserve it. Then pray for them. They need Christ, and they need to learn to forgive as well.

Pray also for your sister. Although your parents may have been wrong, she, too, has sinned and needs God's forgiveness and help. Begin again with Christ, and He will help you deal with the scars of the past.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

 was engaged in lengthy telephone negotiations over his departure.
 Residents in the area around the palace said they saw four helicopters leave the grounds at about 9 p.m. (8 a.m. EST), possibly carrying Marcos to Clark Air Base, 50 miles northwest of here, to take up an American offer to fly him out of the Philippines.

Manila radio station DZRH later quoted a Marcos loyalist, Romulo Fontanilla, as saying, "Without our knowledge he (Marcos) left us. Even the soldiers are not here anymore." The station said only a small protective force was left behind at the palace.
 As word of Marcos' departure flashed across this turbulent capital, jubilant throngs of Filipinos set bonfires outside the palace.

 "You're hearing the start of the rebirth of democracy!" a radio announcer boomed over the sounds of jubilation from demonstrators.
 More than 10,000 people danced, cheered, applauded and danced Mrs. Aquino's nickname at the gate of the palace. Marcos loyalists among the palace guards surrendered in single file.

 "They're defecting to the people's side so we don't hurt them," said The Rev. Joe Dixon. But he said 200 Marcos "fanatics" remained holed up inside the compound.
 Long lines of cars and public transportation "jeepsneys," packed with cheering Filipinos, inched along Manila's boulevards with horns blaring and flags waving.

 "It's liberation day! It's liberation day!" chanted one group.
 Makeshift barricades of auto tires, put up two days earlier to protect government facilities controlled by Aquino supporters, were turned into bonfires.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Technology affects auto repair industry

In recent years the automobile industry and service personnel have changed. Yesterday's mechanics are today's trained technicians. The term changed as automobiles became highly technical.
 In the near future there will no longer be a "shade tree mechanic." They will not have the knowledge or equipment to service the latest vehicles.
 The changes lie with the technological advancements in automobiles, such as the computer command control. New car owners can't afford to let just anyone make repairs on their vehicle. George Leatham of G & M Garage, 900 E.

3rd., wants to make today's car buyers aware of the current automotive technology.
 G & M Garage has the In-House Diagnostic Computer. This new diagnostic computer enables technicians to repair the automobile promptly and correctly. Guesswork no longer plays a part in determining what is wrong. The diagnostic computer gives a complete read-out on the auto's problems, including those that the customer may be unaware of that could cause trouble or damage.
 G & M Garage has just finished adding on more work space to its building and extra employees to serve customers better. Try G & M

Garage at 900 E. 3rd. George and Mary Leatham (they're the G & M) run a garage where you can feel confident your car will receive the very best care.

Thunderbird victories ruin Howard homecoming

Hawks dropped in finale; 75-68

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The New Mexico Junior College Thunderbirds, needing a win to keep their regional tournament playoff hopes alive, got just that, as they ended the Howard College Hawks' season and homecoming on a sour note with their 75-68 victory.

One bright spot of the contest was the halftime ceremonies which saw Big Spring's Kim Beckham named the 1986 Howard College Homecoming Queen. Other finalists were Brandye Mosley, Lisa Berry, Leticia Escanuela, Denia Pope and Lorri French.

The game itself marked the end of a two-year coaching stint by Howard mentor Ed Sparling, whose contract will not be renewed for next season. It sets up a showdown between Odessa College and NMJC Thursday for the fourth regional playoff spot. Both NMJC and Odessa have 9-6 conference records.

The Thunderbirds knew they had a job to do and they went out and did it. It was nothing fancy, just good basic basketball consisting of taking good shots, rebounding and defense.

The T-Birds did it with the bruising front line play of Richard Hollis, Derrick Hill and Clark White. The burly trio combined for 51 points and 18 rebounds. They pounded the boards and led their team to a decisive 39-24 rebounding advantage. The trio made life rough for Howard's inside punch of Mike Duran and Walt Reynolds. Duran scored 4 points and got one rebound while Reynolds scored 7 points and collected four rebounds.

"They beat everybody on the boards," said Sparling after the game. "Everytime we've played the White kid (Clark) has had a good game. They have the best talent in the conference." White, a reserve forward, did have an outstanding game as he sparked his team to an early first half lead by scoring three quick baskets. His barrage gave NMJC a 12-4 lead after eight minutes of play. He was 9 of 10 from the floor for 20 points.

Howard struggled desperately against NMJC's 2-1-2 zone. Mike McCall came off the bench and picked up the sagging offense with 9 first-half points.

The visitors led 37-24 at the half. Howard fell behind by as much as 19 points in the second half, but McCall and Trey Hughes, who also came off the bench, led a gutsy Hawks squad that refused to roll over and die. Hughes, a freshman forward from Tyler, bombed away at the T-Bird zone in the final 20 minutes. After scoring 4 points in the first half, Hughes hit 7 of 10 long range beauties in the second half, ending the contest with a game-high 24 points.

McCall ended the night with 21 points and 8 rebounds. He and Hughes scored all but 12 of Howard's second half points.

But in the end the Thunderbirds lead was just too much for Howard to overcome as the Hawks finished the season with a 11-18 record.

"I really had a great time coaching these kids," said Sparling reflecting back on the season. "They were young and didn't have enough veterans to pull them through. But they've been in every game this year but two. They all tried hard and I'm very proud of all of them."

Hawk-Queens playoff hopes shattered

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

As far as reaching the regional tournament, the Howard College Hawks-Queens controlled their own destiny going into last night's regular season finale against New Mexico Junior College. The Queens didn't handle their fate very well, blowing a 18-point lead and dropping a 67-61 decision to the Lady Thunderbirds.

The loss was fatal to Coach Don Stevens' team chances of reaching the regional tournament. A Queen win would have assured them of a fourth place conference finish, good enough to qualify for the region tourney next week in Snyder. Now they are out because even if there is a tie with NMJC and Clarendon for fourth place with 4-8 records, Clarendon would go because it defeated front running teams South Plains and Western Texas, thus giving them a higher power rating in the conference.

New Mexico, 4-7 in conference play, can with the berth outright with a victory over top-ranked Odessa Thursday at home. Clarendon ended regular season play last night with a 85-41 loss to Odessa.

It was a very dismal loss for the Queens, who seemed to have things well in hand after building up an 18-point lead in the first half. But the dominance they showed in the second half, never materialized in the first half.

For the Lady Thunderbirds it was a gallant comeback. Coach Sharon Falor's crew rallied back time and again against the Queens. When it seemed when Howard was about to deliver the knockout punch, NMJC retaliated with a flurry of its own.

"We played a good first half but we had a terrible letdown in the second half," said Stevens. "Our shooting was hot, then we couldn't buy a basket. We lost our poise."

If they were selling baskets in the second half, the Queens probably would have gladly forked over big bucks during the last 20 minutes of play.

Howard, who shot just over 30 percent from the floor in the first half, saw its average drop to 28 percent in the second half. The Queens stayed ahead by canning 16 of 21 free throws in the first half. Howard went to the line just seven times in the second half.

Post Carolyn Willandt was the only Queen on the mark in the second half. After suffering a terrible shooting first half, she scored 15 points in the second period.

While the Queens were ice cold in the second half, the Lady Thunderbirds were burning up as they sunk 19 of 33 field goal attempts for 58 percent. Leading the way was forward Tammy Spangle who scored 15 of her total 17 points in the second half.

Spangle led her troops down the stretch but it was fellow-forward Claudia Austin who kept NMJC from being totally blown out in the first half. Austin hit 7 of 10 shots in the first half, keeping the Lady Thunderbirds within striking distance as Howard held a 38-26 halftime lead. Austin ended the contest with a game-high 18 points.

Howard got off to a fast start led by the quick hands and feet of point guard Pam Franklin. Franklin, who spent most of the second half on the bench in foul trouble, had a great first half with 12 points, four steals and three assists.

Her two three-point plays sparked a rally that saw the Queens outscore NMJC 27-10 in an eight minute span in the first half. Things looked comfortable as Howard held a 30-12 lead with 7:07 left in the half.

In the last seven minutes of the game the Queens would manage only two baskets and two free throws. Spangler slowly put Howard away as her teammates fed her inside. With just under two minutes left, NMJC was full control with a 63-59 lead, ending Howard quest for a regional tournament berth.

The Queens end the season with a 12-18 record. NMJC is now 18-12 overall.

Marathon champion Joan Benoit-Samuelsen gets a hug from her husband Scott after she was named winner of the 56th Sullivan Award as the top amateur athlete Monday night in Indianapolis. The world record holder was one of ten finalists for the award.

Benoit awarded Sullivan

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Joan Benoit-Samuelsen, who overcame knee surgery to win an Olympic gold medal in the marathon, is battling physical problems again.

"I'm not sure I'll be able to compete in Boston (the Boston Marathon), the 28-year-old from Freeport, Maine said Monday after becoming only the seventh female winner of the Sullivan Award.

The award has been presented annually since 1930 by the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union for an athlete's accomplishments the previous year.

"I had surgery on both heels in my right foot in November," Benoit-Samuelsen said in discussing her current physical problem. "My right side bounced right back. My left one is still giving me some problem. I am training, about two-thirds of what I normally do to prepare for my competitive races. I'm just taking it day-by-day."

Benoit-Samuelsen set a world record for a loop course with a time of 2 hours, 21 minutes, 21 seconds in Chicago last fall in the America's Marathon and is aiming to break the 2:20 barrier.

"I'm up against the time clock, so to speak, as far as Boston is concerned. But, if there is any place I would like to break 2:20, it would be Boston in the Spring. But, if it doesn't happen in the Spring, Chicago was very good to me last fall and perhaps it will be even better."

She said Ingrid Kristiansen of Norway, who set a women's record of 2:21.06 last year, might be the first to break the 2:20 barrier. Benoit-Samuelsen's record was set in an event where the runners start and finish at the same location after following a specific route. Kristiansen's record was set in a traditional marathon, where the runners start at one point and finish at another.

"I'm really shocked," she said about winning the Sullivan in her second consecutive trip to the annual presentation dinner as a finalist. "I was here last year with what I considered the best athletes anywhere and this field assembled here this year equalled that field."

The award was presented by last year's winner, diver Greg Louganis, who told the finalists, "You all are winners. You may not realize it, but young kids are looking up to you."

"I run because I love to run, not for the awards," said Benoit-Samuelsen, who also won a 12-kilometer race in San Francisco last May and a seven-miler in Davenport, Iowa, in July. In August she returned to her native New England to win the 7.1-mile Falmouth Road Race.

"I thought after the Olympics I would at least slow down with my training and not take it as seriously," she said. "It's a tough thing to let go of when you're still enjoying what you're doing and having success."

That's why one week after her surgery in November, Benoit-Samuelsen began working out on a bike and one week later was swimming as part of her conditioning.

"It was the overuse syndrome," she said of the reason for the surgery. "The heels take the brunt of my activity and they were really bothering me before and I would have some times when I couldn't train sufficiently, as far as I was concerned."

And why does she continue to push herself.

"I really love it," she said, adding that she's now running once a day "trying to push a little bit beyond the level I should be, around 12 miles a day, and that's usually one run. I would like to be running twice a day."

Duke claims top ranking

By JIM O'CONNELL
AP Sports Writer

Duke became the third team — all from the Atlantic Coast Conference — to hold the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press Poll this season as the Blue Devils convincingly jumped over North Carolina.

Duke, 27-2, received 62 of the 64 first-place votes and 1,278 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters as the Blue Devils joined Georgia Tech, which was No. 1 in the preseason poll, and North Carolina, which held the top spot each of the 13 weeks in the voting since the season began. In four of the last five weeks, the Tar Heels were unanimous choices.

The Blue Devils managed two victories last week as they blasted Miami, Fla. 104-82 and held off a charge by then-No. 10 Oklahoma, 93-84.

Kansas, 27-3, jumped from third to second in the poll with 1,181 points and one first-place vote as the Jayhawks clinched the Big Eight regular-season title with an 84-69 victory over Kansas State on Saturday Monday night, the Jayhawks beat Oklahoma on the road 87-80.

North Carolina received the other first-place vote and 1,140 points after suffering two losses last week. The Tar Heels, 25-3, were beaten at home by Maryland 77-72 in overtime and fell at then-No. 20 North Carolina State 76-65.

The Tar Heels were second in the preseason poll and are scheduled to meet Duke this Sunday in Durham, N.C. North Carolina won the earlier meeting this season, 95-92.

Georgia Tech, 21-4, moved up one notch from last week to fourth with 1,077 points, while Kentucky, 24-3 and winners of the Southeastern Conference regular-season title, reached its highest ranking of the season in fifth with 979 points, 93 more than Syracuse, 22-3, which held on Sunday for a 64-63 nationally televised victory over then-No. 13 Georgetown.

Memphis State, St. John's, Nevada-Las Vegas and Michigan round out the Top Ten.

Memphis State, 24-3, fell from last week's No. 4 ranking as the Tigers dropped their only decision of the week, 82-80 at Florida State, and finished with 865 points.
