County jobless rate up

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Unemployment increased sharply in January in Howard County, and the number of newly unemployed has almost doubled over last year, according to Texas Employment Commission figures released this morning.

The unemployment rate for January was 6.5 percent, compared to 5.1 percent in December and 5.6 percent in January of 1985.

The TEC registered 221 newly unemployed for the first three weeks of February and 256 for the month of January. This compares to only 124 claims for the entire month of February last year.

The rise in unemployment is related to the decline in oil and agriculture, said Joe Wallis, manager of the local TEC office.

"Every sector of the economy is cutting back some," he said. "I cannot put my finger on it — it's everything."

Figures this month have been revised to incorporate 1980 census data, newly acquired by the TEC, he said. The new figures are "a lot more accurate."

Dianne Dobie, labor market analyst with the TEC in Austin, said before the new figures, the TEC was using 1970 census data.

In January, there were 15,473 in the labor force in Howard County, compared to 15,456 in December and 15,336 in January of 1985.

Total number employed was 14,474 in January, compared to 14,663 in December and 14,470 last year.

There were 999 unemployed persons in Howard County in January, compared to 793 in December and 866 last year.

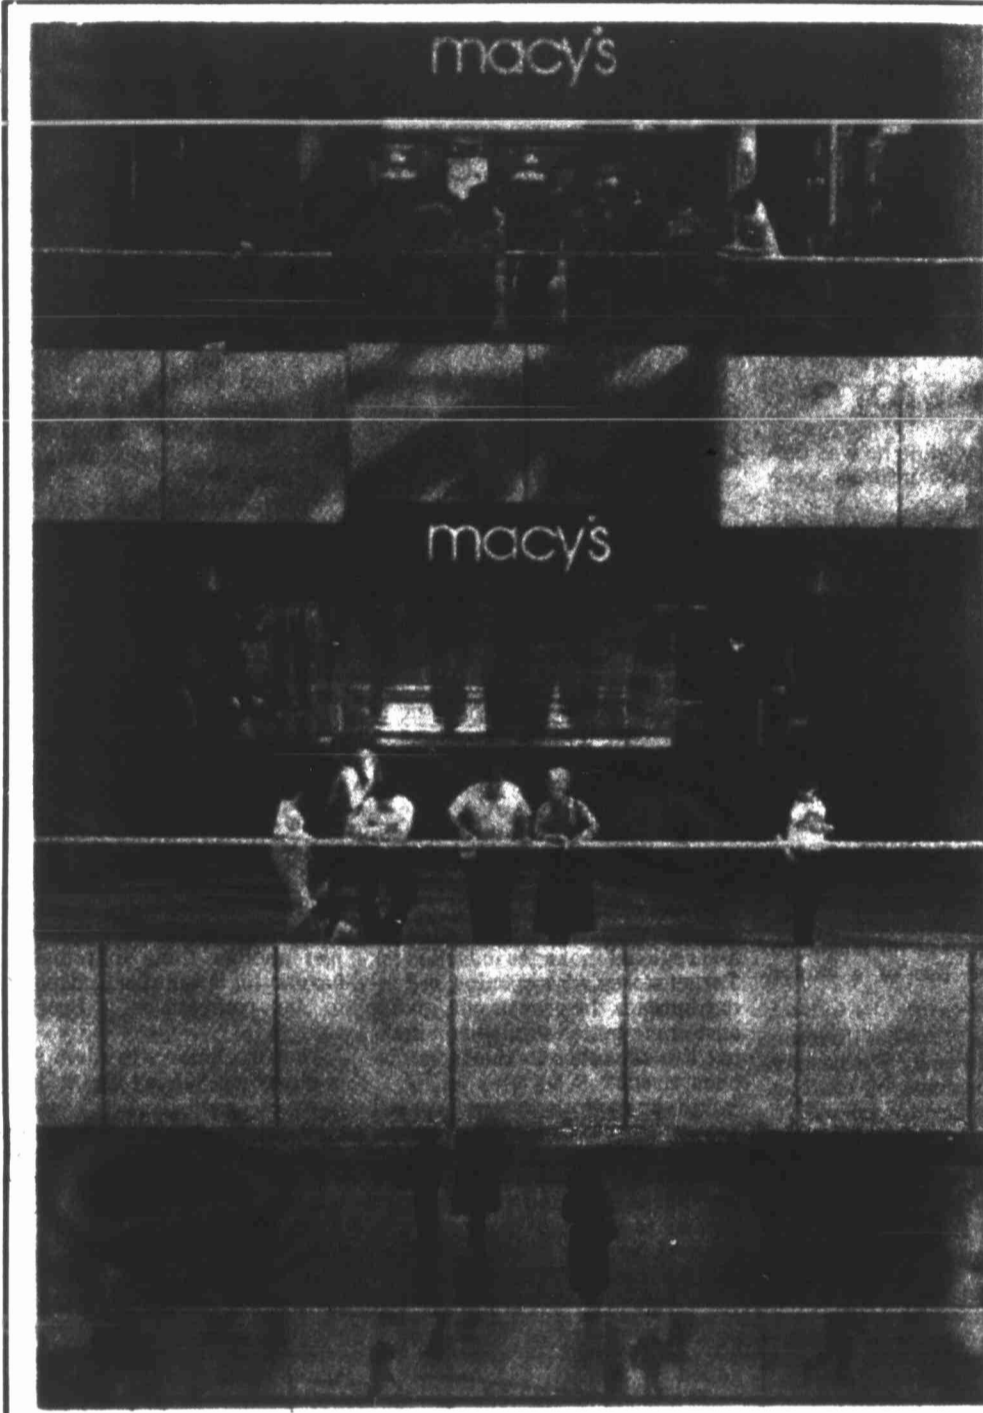

Sewer spill halted

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Public Works Director Tom Decell said this morning the sewage spill polluting Beal's Creek has been contained.

City crews have dammed the portion of the stream where an underwater pipe had been releasing raw sewage into the creek and are pumping waste back into the city's collection system, Decell said.

The cost of repairing the ruptured sewage lines that have brought on the ire of Texas Water Department officials has yet to be assessed, Decell said. But City

Dallas shoppers mingle outside the Macy's department store in north Dallas Sunday. With the approach of March 1, which marks six months since the repeal of the "blue law," some retailers say they are profiting from Sunday business while others say it's a giant headache.

Hassle or help?

Sunday sales impact too early to judge

DALLAS (AP) — It was late on a Sunday afternoon at NorthPark Shopping Center and by this time, the two teen-age girls had their shoes off and were carrying them.

But they kept up their quick pace, scurrying to yet another store.

And they weren't about to leave.

"I like to shop," said 13-year-old Carroll Benjamin. "I usually stay here about five hours."

Her companion, Mika Freitas, 15, said Sunday shopping at a Dallas mall is a good way to see friends, too, and she rarely passes up the opportunity.

Brandon Anderson, 24, said Sunday window-shopping in a mall is a recreation like going to the park. And Sunday is the only day lawyer David Slottje has to shop. "I love it," he said.

Until last September, Sunday shopping was the exception. The state's "blue law" banned the Sunday sale of 42 different items, including clothing and kitchenware, and the effect was to keep apparel, discount and department stores closed.

But the law was repealed, and March 1 marks six months of Sunday shopping.

Some retailers say they are profiting from Sunday business. Others call it a giant headache.

Many preferred the six-day work week and say they are sorry today that their competitors force them to open for seven.

Whether the law's repeal is ringing up more profits for retailers or more sales tax revenues for state and city coffers is too early to say, according to most store operators and the state comptroller's office.

"At best, we're breaking even," said Alan Schwartz, an executive officer with La Feria, a San Antonio-based junior department store chain that caters mostly to moderate-income families.

"Sunday is a decent day, but it is taking a lit-

Poll: Texans favor tax hike

By JIM DYER

Harte-Hanks News Service Most Texans say they are willing to pay increased taxes or fees to the state in order to encourage economic development. The measures most popular are a higher sales tax and a new corporate income tax.

According to the winter Texas Poll, 65 percent of Texans say they are willing to pay higher taxes while 29 percent are not.

A new corporate income tax has the highest support (51 percent) and least resistance (41 percent) among Texans. Increasing the sales tax is supported by 49 percent of Texans, but another 43 percent are opposed. Increasing the gasoline tax is approved by only 24 percent of those surveyed and is opposed by 67 percent.

The most distasteful option for Texas taxpayers is initiating a state personal income tax. That measure was approved by only 14 percent and disapproved by 78 percent.

In interviews with 1,000 Texas adults conducted between Jan. 24 and Feb. 6, people were asked:

Manager Don Davis told the City Council Tuesday night the repair operation will exceed $25,000. Bill Lockey of the TWC Odessa office is in town today to discuss the matter with Decell.

Lockey said Tuesday someone had deliberately directed raw sewage into the creek where a manhole was overflowing.

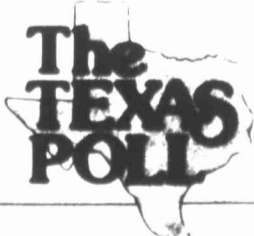

Decell said he was disturbed when he heard about the diversion into the creek.

"I do not know who did that, and I'm very disturbed about it," he said. "It looks like it was a deliberate attempt. It disturbs me

"Would you be willing to pay increased taxes or fees to the state in order to encourage economic development?" and then, "Assuming that new state taxes are required, what type of taxes would you be willing to see initiated or increased?"

Responses were given to four listed choices: increase sales tax, increase gasoline tax, initiate state personal income tax and initiate a corporate income tax. People could choose more than one option, or none.

The corporate income tax proposal is most popular with those under 44 years old (59 percent approving), those who make $10,000 or more a year (55 percent), newcomers to the state (62 percent) and residents of large cities (56 percent). About 67 percent of political liberals prefer it, compared to 52 percent of moderates and 48 percent of conservatives.

Sales taxes usually are more popular with those economically better off. The option to increase the state's sales tax is popular with 30- to 61-year-olds (53 percent approving), Anglos (52 percent) and those earning more than $30,000 (54 percent). Political moderates prefer a higher sales tax (54 percent) over conservatives (48 percent) and liberals (43 percent). Although sales taxes in large cities usually are a cent or more higher than the state's 4 1/2 cents on the dollar, 44 percent of urban residents approve of increasing the sales tax.

A higher gasoline tax is universally unpopular. This may be because the gas tax was raised from 5 cents to 10 cents a gallon in 1984.

The Texas Poll is sponsored by Harte-Hanks Communications Inc. and is conducted by the Public Policy Resources Laboratory at Texas A&M University. Results may vary by up to 3 percentage points in either direction because of sampling error.

Source: Winter Texas Poll, January-February 1986
Note: This question was asked after the following question: "Would you be willing to pay increased taxes or fees to the state in order to encourage economic development?" Totals sum to greater than 100 because respondents could choose more than one option. Another 9 percent gave "No Opinion" responses to all four alternatives.

Contempt charges dropped

Howard County sheriff's deputies released Milton Lozano Jr., 37, of Lamesa from county jail Wednesday morning after a contempt of court charge was dismissed.

Lozano had been charged with contempt of court, fined $100 and sentenced to a three-day jail sentence by Justice of the Peace Lewis Hefflin after he was arrested Tuesday afternoon on a peace bond warrant.

A Department of Public Safety trooper arrested Grover Craig Creech, 26, of Odessa Wednesday afternoon on a warrant issued from Mesa County, Colo., charging him with violating probation he received from that county.

Sheriff's deputy Barney Edens said this morning that Creech had signed a waiver of extradition, and the sheriff's office was awaiting word from Colorado regarding Creech's fate.

Deputies arrested Antonio Ruiz, 51, of Lamesa Wednesday afternoon on a warrant charging him with violating the terms of probation received from a prior driving while intoxicated conviction.

He was sentenced to 20 days in jail by County Judge Milton Kirby.

Shopping

tie away from Saturday (sales) and a little away from Monday," he said. "If we had our druthers, we wouldn't be open on Sunday."

Some bigger retailers said the same thing.

"As far as we can tell, almost all the (Sunday) sales are being transferred from other days in the week, particularly Saturday and Monday," said Lasker Meyer, chairman of Houston-based Foley's, which has a chain of 17 stores.

It costs to stay open an extra day and pay employees time-and-a-half, he said.

"We have never felt there was an advantage to being open seven days a week," he said.

Plenty of others disagree.

Bill Gerton, senior vice president and regional manager in Dallas for Target stores, says opening on Sunday spreads the crowds out, giving customers better service and making life smoother in the busy discount arena.

Still, he said it's too early to tell how much sales might increase.

Jonke's, which got its start in San Antonio and is now headquartered in Dallas, eventually expects a 5 percent to 7 percent increase in its revenue because of Sunday sales, said its chairman Robert Mettler. Mettler, who helped lead the fight to repeal the blue law, says he's pleased with sales so far, but added:

"It's tough to tell (whether Sundays are contributing to the bottom line), because business has been difficult generally," Mettler said.

At Sanger Harris department store, spokeswoman Becky Powell contends her company has found that "people had 'X' amount of dollars to spend, whether they spent it on six days or seven."

In other states, Sanger Harris' Monday sales usually suffer by stores being open on Sunday, she said.

Such contradictory reaction is typical, according to Mickey Moore, president of the Texas Retailers Association in Austin, which opposed repeal.

"The responses I get fall exactly along the lines of what people said last year. The ones for repeal say it's been good for business. Those who were against repeal tell you it's not made any difference," said Moore, adding that his group is not planning to push for reinstating the blue law.

"I'm not going to say it's a lost cause. But our association has no plans to get involved in it again," he said.

While some members of Moore's group favored blue law repeal, the retailers association represents many small businesses, who were especially concerned about competition forcing them to open on Sunday.

"It has increased our costs," said John Brockman, president of Brockman's Inc., in Angleton, which owns four apparel stores in southeast Texas.

"The bigs are getting some of (the business) from the smalls. It's just another thing that makes it harder for a smaller independent to be competitive," Brockman said.

The Brockman's in Alvin, which is closed on Sunday and is just 20 minutes from Baybrook Mall in Houston, "is having more trouble with its Saturday business," he said, because of mall stores opening on Sunday.

Across the state in San Angelo, the marketing director for Sunset Mall said most of the merchants there seem pleased about the extra shopping day and only three of the 94 stores there have chosen to stay closed on Sunday.

"We get a lot of weekend business since we draw from a 13-county area," said Lynn Hagey. "It's a different type of shopper on Sunday. People come in to shop as a family after church. It's not so much as coming in to pick something up real quick, but people browse more and are more relaxed. For many spouses it's the one day of the week they can join the family shopping."

In Beaumont, which borders Louisiana where Sunday shopping is still taboo while being contested in the courts, some stores say they're benefitting from the out-of-staters.

"Sunday's are excellent," said Leslie Plemons, manager of The Ranch in Parkdale Mall. "We have a lot of people from Louisiana coming out here to shop."

pending more information on the charges against him.

Hise said he was disappointed in Briscoe's arrests, as are other employers whose people were held in connection with drug transactions. But he said it was "unfortunate that he was singled out."

When asked if Briscoe's status of school teacher made his case special, Hise said "not to the extent of notifying the television media." Briscoe's status should not have lent any special application to how his arrest was handled, Hise said. He also said the arrest did not have to be made at the school.

Also, arrested Wednesday on suspicion of delivery of marijuana were:

• James Richardson, 26, of 1200 E. 15th St. He was released on $10,000 bond.

• Olivia Mae Kimble, 29, of 2911 W. Highway 80 No. 10. She is free on $10,000 bond.

very much." Meanwhile, Max Woodfin of the TWC, said this morning that a bacteria count performed Wednesday on Beals Creek confirmed that raw sewage has spilled into the water.

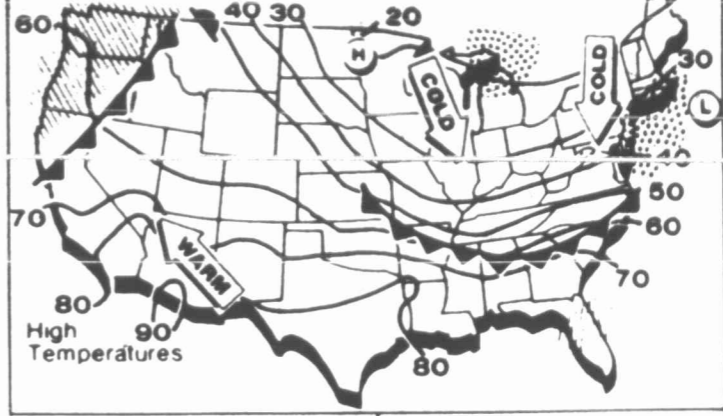

"We ran fecal coliform counts on the creek yesterday and the results were 44 million fecal coliform per 100 milliliters of water, which merely confirms that it is raw sewage," said Woodfin.

Woodfin said state standards for safe swimming water are 200 fecal coliform, which is bacteria found in human and animal waste, per 100 milliliters of water.

Also, the agency planned Thursday morning to issue a citation, or notify the city, concerning its displeasure over the spill. Woodfin said administrative penalties may be considered against the city at some point. The citation is the first step in this process.

Rockwell official testifies

NASA was warned of risk

WASHINGTON (AP) — The company that manufactures spaceplanes warned NASA hours before Challenger's launch that it could "not assure that it is safe to fly" because of ice around the launch pad, an investigative commission was told today.

"I reiterated the statement several times" in a 9 a.m. meeting on launch day with NASA officials at Cape Canaveral, said Robert Glaysher, vice president of Rockwell International.

Testifying before a presidential commission, Glaysher said, "We felt that we had communicated Rockwell's position that it was unsafe to fly."

Neither Glaysher nor any other senior Rockwell officials who testified were asked immediately what response they received from NASA officials when they registered their objections.

Rockwell's objections came to light on top of safety concerns expressed by Morton Thiokol, Inc. engineers who work on booster rockets, and thus seem likely to reinforce doubts expressed by commission members about NASA's decision to press ahead with launch despite unprecedented cold weather. Glaysher and other Rockwell officials said they told space agency officials they had never seen ice conditions like those that existed on the night before the launch, and "were in an unknown condition."

They said they were worried that icicles would come loose from the launch tower during liftoff, hit the pad and ricochet into the spaceplane. They also expressed concern that ice might be sucked into a flame trench under the solid fuel booster rockets when they ignited and then bounce up against the shuttle.

With no previous data, Al Martin, Rockwell's manager at the Cape, said he told NASA officials the company could not "predict where the icicles will go on liftoff."

The presidential commission also heard testimony from members of a special ice team that reported finding low temperatures in the hours before launch on the right booster rocket, which is a suspected culprit in the explosion that destroyed the shuttle and killed its seven-member crew last month.

Jurors acquit principal

LIVINGSTON — The killer of football coach Billy Mac Fleming may never be found, said the lawyer for a principal who was accused of murdering the coach because of an alleged love triangle.

"The trail is so cold now I don't think we'll ever know who killed Billy Fleming," said Dick DeGuerin, the attorney for Hurley Fontenot.

Jurors acquitted the former junior high school principal of murder charges he killed Fleming over the affections of a school secretary, but some jurors still had their doubts.

Fire kills two kids

ARLINGTON — Two children died when a fire swept through their mobile home, fire officials say.

The two brothers, Daniel Lemire, 1½, and David Lemire, 3, died Wednesday despite efforts by neighbors to rescue them, fire department spokesman Curtis Dunn said.

Intense heat and smoke kept several neighbors from reaching the children.

Darla Lemire, 25, mother of the two children, was asleep at the time the fire broke out. She managed to escape by crawling through a bedroom window, but was unable to return for the children.

Soviet satellite burns

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — A Soviet satellite burned up today as it re-entered the Earth's atmosphere over north-central Australia, U.S. air defense officials said.

No pieces of debris from Cosmos 1714 have been reported, said Kay Cormier, public affairs officer at the North America Aerospace Defense command headquarters inside Cheyenne Mountain, west of Colorado Springs.

The bus-sized satellite re-entered the atmosphere at 5:15 a.m. MST at a speed of about 17,000 mph, Cormier said. It burned up as a result of friction.

Tylenol maker relieved

NEW YORK — The maker of Extra-Strength Tylenol welcomed an FBI report that two bottles of the pain reliever tainted with cyanide were contaminated outside the manufacturing process.

Capsules in one bottle were blamed for the death of a Peekskill woman Feb. 8. That bottle was bought at a supermarket in Bronxville, a suburb of New York City. Four days after the death of Diane Elstroth, 23, another bottle of Tylenol containing cyanide was found in a store a few blocks away from the first.

Comet debris studied

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. — Halley's comet is "popping like popcorn" as it rounds the sun, tossing off up to 6 million tons a day of elements that were the building blocks of the solar system, space agency scientists say.

A close-up image of the giant cloud, or coma, surrounding Halley's released Wednesday by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration also showed for the first time the tremendous pressure of solar radiation on comet debris.

Aquino frees Filipino political prisoners

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino today began releasing Filipinos jailed on political charges under her ousted predecessor, Ferdinand E. Marcos, and a military leader said 400 or more could be freed soon.

Emotional reunions with friends and relatives occurred as at least a dozen people were taken out of detention at two camps in the Manila area. One of them, well-known poet Milagros Aguilar, 35, had been jailed since 1984 for "rebellion and subversion."

At an outdoor Mass in Manila, one ex-prisoner, identified as Jaime Verdán, told hundreds of worshippers, "I cannot say how happy I am. I thank 'people's power' and God."

In other developments, special U.S. envoy Philip Habib arrived in Manila and met with Mrs. Aquino to congratulate her on her victory, said a statement from Mrs. Aquino's office.

It said Habib "extended the warmest greetings of President Ronald Reagan and the American people, and that the United States had 'the highest hopes and the best wishes' for her success."

Habib also said, "Filipinos had astonished the world with their courage," and "pictures of nuns kneeling in the path of on-rushing tanks had deeply moved the American people and those in the highest circles of the U.S. government," according to the statement.

Spokesmen for Mrs. Aquino said she also met privately with envoys of the 12-nation European Common Market and with ambassadors presenting letters from their governments, many of which had refused to recognize Marcos' victory in the Feb. 7 election that Mrs. Aquino said Marcos had stolen from her by fraud and violence.

Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, the new military chief, said after the Mass at Camp Crame, headquarters of the pro-Aquino "people's power" revolt that drove Marcos into exile on Tuesday, that 33 people jailed on political charges were slated for immediate release.

The head of the Philippine human rights organization Kapatid, or Brother, said the group had given Mrs. Aquino's government a list of 560 detainees, most of whom were jailed under Marcos' Presidential Detention Act.

The act, set up as part of Marcos' 1972 decree of martial law, provided imprisonment for activities that threatened national security or public order.

The list given to Mrs. Aquino's aides, Kapatid chairman Armando Malay said, was based on documents maintained by Task Force Detainees of the Philippines, a Catholic church-oriented group set up to monitor human rights abuses under Marcos.

Kapatid, the task force and Selda, a third civil rights group, issued a joint statement Wednesday calling on Mrs. Aquino to release all political prisoners "as a matter of justice and a genuine gesture for national reconciliation and unity."

The vice president and prime minister-designate, Salvador H. Laurel, said Wednesday that he expected a "general amnesty" for political prisoners, and Mrs. Aquino said the same day that she wanted to be "magnanimous in victory."

Haiti to get U.S. aid

WASHINGTON — Haiti's new government, given good grades for human rights, will be getting the $25.5 million in aid that the U.S. government withheld because of "repressive actions" by former "President for Life" Jean-Claude Duvalier, the Reagan administration says.

The State Department cited what it called the new government's "radical break" with Duvalier's policies for the change in policy.

The aid for development and military training had been appropriated by Congress, but withheld from Haiti "because of serious repressive actions taken by the Duvalier government in late 1985 and early 1986."

Cairo relatively calm

CAIRO, Egypt — Diplomats and residents said rebellious security forces clashed with army troops early today on the city's northern fringe, but the rest of the capital remained generally calm after a violent mutiny by members of the paramilitary.

Sources said scores may have been killed and hundreds wounded in the violence that broke out Tuesday night, spreading to civilians and security garrisons in other cities.

A curfew ordered Wednesday to control the rampaging Central Security Force troops was suspended for three hours today to allow Cairo's 12 million people buy food and essential supplies. Food shops throughout the capital were jammed.

Tass assails Reagan

MOSCOW — The official news agency Tass today accused President Reagan of using anti-Soviet slander and "confrontationist rhetoric" to justify his request for a $320 billion defense budget.

"At a time when the Communist Party of the Soviet Union from the rostrum of its 27th Party Congress is appealing to reason and conscience of all mankind in the name of ending the arms race ... Washington has openly proclaimed the intention of going ahead with its militarist course," Tass said.

Proof of Marcos' illness

MANILA, Philippines — Ferdinand E. Marcos had always scoffed at reports that he was ill, but his bedroom at the presidential palace appeared to be the refuge of a very sick man.

The smell of medicine hung in the air Wednesday and an unmade hospital bed was pushed against one wall, cranked up slightly, with a man's pajama top tossed over the footboard. A box of disposable syringes sat on a bedside table.

People who had visited the Malacanang Palace earlier said they saw what they thought were machines used for treating kidney ailments, and a booklet titled "Renal Transplant Outpatients Book" was seen lying on a table just outside the bedroom.

Transplants unpopular

TOKYO — Japan lags far behind the United States and Europe in organ transplant operations although its medical profession is among the world's most advanced.

One reason is a religious belief of many Japanese that the spirit flows within the body for a time after death.

Opinion

Steve Chapman

Amendment badly needs revocation

It is a paradox of American democracy that Ronald Reagan, who was re-elected to the presidency in 1984 by 59 percent of the popular vote and the biggest electoral college margin in history, may not be reelected in 1988 even if he has the support of 99 percent of the voters and every state. Here, the people rule, unless they want to give a president more than two terms in the White House.

For the first century and a half of the Republic's existence, that limit was imposed by the most direct of democratic means — elections. George Washington established the tradition by declining to seek a third term. The voters consistently upheld it until Franklin Roosevelt and World War II came along, when they considered the options and decided that national survival might be a higher purpose.

Unsporting about being denied the White House four times by a single man, a Republican-controlled Congress voted in 1947 to override the preferences of future voters by writing the previous tradition into the Constitution. History has avenged the Democrats. Only two presidents have been affected by the 22nd Amendment: Eisenhower and Reagan.

Few amendments to the Constitution have been more irrational, and few have more clearly deserved repeal. The point is not that Reagan should be re-elected. In fact, to remove that factor from the equation, the change should be written to exempt him from it, as the existing limit excluded Harry Truman. That done, the limit should be removed.

Why? No better case can be found for repeal than the arguments offered by advocates of an altogether different reform. Recently four former Cabinet officers — Griffin Bell, Herbert Brownell, William Simon and Cyrus Vance — took to the pages of The New York Times to propose that presidents be limited to a single term of six years.

The problem, you see, is that paying attention to the voters is so damned inconvenient. "Re-election pressures lie at the heart of our inability to manage complex, long-term national problems," say the four. "Important policy decisions are often deferred because of the enormous pressures a re-election campaign places on presidents."

Examples of the latter phenomenon are John Kennedy's decision to stay in Vietnam, which he supposedly planned to reverse as soon as he was safely past the 1964 election, and Richard Nixon's Watergate escapade, which the four authors attribute to his "obsession with re-election."

But they overlook some facts. If Ike had been president when the decision had to be made about Vietnam, as the 22nd Amendment prevented him from being, he probably would have blocked any large American role there. And re-election, to be charitable, was not the only source of Nixon's dementia. Thinking about what he might have done, given a six-year lease on the Oval Office and relieved of the need to consider the wishes of the electorate, is enough to make the blood run cold.

The four proponents note the popularity of the idea with people who have occupied the White House. Sixteen of them, they claim, have endorsed it. The reasons are not hard to imagine. What president wouldn't like six years in which to pursue his own political goals, indifferent to the preferences of the electorate? It sounds a lot more pleasant than continually deferring to fickle popular opinion.

But what is good for presidents may not be good for government. Barring presidents from re-election at any time, whether after one-six year term or two four-year terms, discourages presidents from altering their policies in response to popular sentiment. It removes the incentive to good government that the framers of the constitution had in mind when they allowed a president to serve as long as he could satisfy the voters.

The political demands on a president interested in the next election are a nuisance to him and an affront to those who think the main obstacle to sound government is public opinion. But if we really want to give the nation's chief executive a free hand to pursue the policies he deems wise, regardless of what the people think, there's a simpler method than this. It's called monarchy.

Reporter of a rarer sort

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — It was two years ago that Jock Hatfield died at the age of 26, and we still feel his absence acutely. Jock was a talented and caring reporter who followed the basic rule of investigative journalism: Comfort the afflicted and afflict the comfortable.

Jock had arrived in our chaotic offices from California with one rumbled suit, enough money for about three meals — and a burning ambition to get into the Capitol dome. He was as green as new grass, but tempered by obvious physical handicaps that would have caused a lesser person to give up.

Roaming Washington's sterile corridors of power, Jock was soon diligently and cheerfully exposing the graft and the gaffes, the mistakes and malfeasance that are red meat to a good reporter. His first story exposed an Interior Department giveaway of 300,000 acres of public land to the coal barons — an exclusive that set the standard for a string of scoops on similar deals for those favored by the high and mighty.

Jock's personal courage was limitless. He was particularly proud of the columns he filed from Haiti. At no small risk to himself, he detailed the repression and corruption that blighted the wretched inhabitants of the Duvalier domain, and planned to return for a follow-up even after the Haitian government had made its displeasure with his first series clear.

He never made the trip. He learned that, in addition to his physical disfigurement, he had inoperable cancer. Jock chose to spend his remaining weeks doing investigative stories on Capitol Hill.

It was in those final days of pain and debilitation that Jock showed courage of an even rarer sort. He never whined or bemoaned the lousy hand fate had dealt him. He retained his capacity for both outrage and amusement at the ethical frailties that he had set himself to expose. Never revealing the hopelessness of his situation, refusing to play his sources for sympathy, Jock poured all his energies into his chosen craft. He died without fuss or complaint.

His friends, determined to preserve his memory in an appropriate way, set up the Jock Hatfield Memorial Scholarship Fund to compensate young reporters who will cover the stories that Jock would have. Donations to the fund and scholarship applications will be accepted by its director, Susan Benesch, at 945 West End Ave., No. 6-B, New York, NY 10025.

CONSTITUTION COMMERCE: Congress is considering a bill that would remove the prohibition against using the logo of the Constitution bicentennial commission for commercial purposes. The idea is to allow the commission to license the use of the logo in advertising as a way of raising funds for the 200th anniversary celebration of the Constitution's adoption next year. But congressional critics of the plan are afraid we may soon be seeing official Constitution hamburgers or Bill of Rights beer. The pending legislation allows the commission to write guidelines that would prevent misuse of the logo.

HAITIAN HEX: Did President Reagan invite a voodoo curse by assisting in the ouster of Jean-Claude "Baby Doc" Duvalier as president of Haiti? Eight years ago we reported that Duvalier's mother, Mama Doc, had put a voodoo curse on President Carter for constantly nagging her baby about human rights. And many years earlier, Duvalier's father, Papa Doc, cast a hex on President Kennedy. The older generation has passed to its dubious reward, but voodoo is still practiced here and there in Haiti, and Baby Doc might have taken a practitioner of the black art with him into exile. Watch for sharp pains, Mr. President.

UNDER THE DOME: Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., was reportedly miffed at a fellow liberal member of the Foreign Affairs Committee, Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., for what he feels was less than solid support for the Solarz investigation of U.S. real estate purchases by Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos and his wife, Imelda. Solarz noted that Barnes hadn't attended most of the hearings, and suspected it was because of Barnes' connection with two key witnesses who were cited for contempt by the committee. A Barnes aide denied everything and said the congressman supported the hearings.

Politics, economy cast gloom in Mideast

By ROBERT H. REID
CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A new surge of fighting in the Iran-Iraq war, falling oil prices and the collapse of King Hussein's peace initiative are raising new fears of instability in the Middle East.

Many in the area will view the outbreak of violence in Cairo on Wednesday as symptomatic of what can happen during periods when economic strains cause tensions to rise in countries like Egypt.

Foreign diplomats, government officials and Arab commentators in the Middle East say the outlook is pessimistic and that the list of failures and lost opportunities is long.

Economies throughout the Arab world are suffering as oil prices fall below $15 a barrel, down by $10 in a matter of months.

Egypt's oil minister, Abdel Hady Kandil, says the oil price plunge will cost his financially strapped country about $700 million this year. A senior official said privately that Egypt had cut oil production so much that "we have very little left for export."

Politically, the situation throughout the Middle East appears bleak.

After months of intense diplomacy, the Arab-Israeli "peace process" is deadlocked. Israeli forces are again battling Lebanese Shiite Moslem militiamen in southern Lebanon eight months after Israel withdrew its troops to a zone along the Lebanese-Israeli border.

Arab overtures to Iran have failed to bring Tehran to the peace table. Now, when the winds are right, strollers along Kuwait's beachfront promenade can for the first time hear the rumble of distant artillery fire as the 5½-year-old Iran-Iraq war draws closer.

"The Arabs are no longer capable of solving the Lebanese problem or putting an end to the Iran-Iraq war, or unifying their ranks or ending their differences," wrote Egyptian columnist Mahmoud Abdel-Monetm Murad in the Cairo daily al-Akhar.

"They do not seem to be aware of what's really going on inside them or around them. It's all talk, talk, talk, and we reap nothing from this but total loss."

One of the few bright spots was an agreement last month between Egypt and Israel on a formula for resolving rival claims to a 250-acre tract of barren beach in the Sinai Peninsula.

Even with agreement on a formula, negotiations are expected to drag on for months before the claims are settled.

Efforts to resolve the Middle East's two most serious crises — the Arab-Israeli conflict and the Iran-Iraq war — have so far failed. Both Arab officials and Western diplomats say privately that prospects for resolving them are dimmer now than six months ago.

For more than a year, Jordan, Egypt and other Arab moderates pinned their hopes for a comprehensive peace with Israel on a 1985 agreement between King Hussein of Jordan and PLO chief Yasser Arafat to work together for a negotiated settlement with Israel.

That initiative collapsed Feb. 19 when Hussein, frustrated after months of haggling with a divided Palestine Liberation Organization, announced he could no longer deal with the PLO leadership.

Israel hailed the collapse of Jordan-PLO cooperation and renewed its offer to open direct peace talks with Hussein. But the king said Jordan was not prepared to enter peace talks without the PLO.

"For the foreseeable future, things will be at a stalemate," a senior Jordanian official told The Associated Press in Amman, speaking on condition he not be identified.

Egypt, ostracized for its 1979 peace treaty with Israel, saw the Hussein initiative as an opportunity to bring more Arab states into peace discussions. That would end Cairo's diplomatic isolation and help it regain a position of leadership of the Arab world.

Egypt's government-owned daily al-Ahram summed up official frustration in an editorial which asked: "When will the Arabs wake up?"

Arab hopes of a quick end to the Iran-Iraq war were dashed when Iranian troops this month broke through Iraqi defenses and reached the port of Faw, only 15 miles from Kuwait.

For months, Arab states of the Persian Gulf, foremost among them Saudi Arabia and the United Arab Emirates, had been making quiet overtures to Iran in hopes of preventing the war from spilling over their borders.

Despite efforts to negotiate an end to the war, a senior Omani official admitted privately that the Arabs held out little hope. Arab and Western observers say the latest round of fighting has dimmed what little flicker of hope existed.

"There is a great deal of frustration here now about the war and prospects for ending it," said a Western in Kuwait in a telephone conversation. "It is clear there is more concern now that the fighting is so close. But everyone seems to be running out of ideas."

Today

By The Associated Press

Today is Thursday, Feb. 27, the 58th day of 1986. There are 307 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 27, 1933, Germany's Parliament building in Berlin, the Reichstag, burned down. The Nazis, charging a Communist plot, used the fire as a pretext for suspending civil liberties.

On this date:

In 1801, the District of Columbia was placed under the jurisdiction of Congress.

In 1807, poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was born in Portland, Maine.

In 1922, the U.S. Supreme Court unanimously upheld the 19th Amendment to the Constitution that guaranteed the right of women to vote.

In 1939, the U.S. Supreme Court outlawed sit-down strikes.

In 1972, President Richard Nixon and Chinese Premier Chou En-lai issued the Shanghai Communiqué at the conclusion of Nixon's historic visit to the People's Republic of China.

In 1973, members of the American Indian Movement occupied the hamlet of Wounded Knee in South Dakota, the site of the 1890 massacre of Sioux men, women and children. The occupation would last until early May.

In 1982, Wayne Williams was found guilty of murdering two of the 28 young blacks whose bodies were found in the Atlanta area over a 22-month period.

Ten years ago: A widening rift between Moscow and Western European Communists was illustrated when the Italian Communist Party chief used the 25th Soviet party congress to spell out political views frowned on by Moscow.

Five years ago: Chrysler announced it lost $1.7 billion in 1980 — the largest loss in American corporate history.

One year ago: The House and Senate approved proposals providing emergency loans for credit-hungry farmers to finance spring planting.

Today's birthdays: Former Texas Gov. John Connally is 69. Actress Joanne Woodward is 56. Actress Elizabeth Taylor is 54. Sen. Malcolm Wallop, R-Wyo., is 53. Consumer advocate Ralph Nader is 52. Actor Howard Hesseman is 46.

Thought for Today: "Great is the art of beginning, but greater the art of ending; many a poem is marred by a superfluous verse." — Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1807-1882).

Around The Rim

Let victims have a say

By SPENCER SANDOW
A great new program giving crime victims input during the sentencing process has been proclaimed a success by the judge who started it. Since 1983 the long-overdue policy has been instituted statewide.

State District Judge Tom Rickhoff, who began the program three years ago, told the Associated Press he's surprised at how forgiving people are. He said he couldn't believe the state functioned for decades without victims' opinions.

The program is instituted by probation officers. Victims fill out a form asking for their opinion on sentencing. The form also asks whether financial restitution is needed for medical bills, property damage or stolen items.

Such information helps give the judge and jury a broader perspective when sentencing the convicted criminal.

Bexar County went a step further. Foster parents there are asked for input in determining where abused or neglected children should be placed.

Several years ago, when national feelings turned toward conservatism, people began voicing concern with the rising crime rate and a criminal justice system that didn't give criminals a stiff enough sentence or let them off free on a technicality.

Letting victims help decide the fate of the criminals that hurt them helps them feel less helpless, angry and afraid after a scary, often traumatic event.

They also feel less like the criminal justice system let them down by not giving the criminal an appropriate sentence. Most people in the program have no objection to a criminal being put on probation, especially when they learn such a punishment is like "serving a sentence outside the penitentiary." Bexar County's chief probation officer, Caesar Garcia, told the Associated Press.

I think the program should be expanded to the federal court system.

Turner versus Standard: Round 3

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

Sheriff A.N. Standard said today he has not personally authorized a license number check for Danny Heckler on the department's Texas Crime Information Center computer system.

"I have not run checks for Mr. Heckler," Standard said. "It may have been done by a deputy."

His comments came today in response to another news release issued this morning by Police Chief Rick Turner. Turner said he was "concerned" that Heckler, a local businessman and bail bondsman, had said he used a license plate check to help identify an undercover police narcotics officer.

Standard suggested Turner check within his own department to see whether or not the procedure had been conducted at the police station.

Heckler was criticized by Turner last week for exposing the identity of an undercover drug agent with the police department. Turner also questioned Heckler's association with the sheriff's department.

Turner said that according to Heckler's news release, the bondsman used license plate numbers to investigate the identity of an undercover police agent.

Turner said he also was concerned about a claim by Heckler that he had contacted "local authorities" about the undercover agent's identity without notifying police.

Standard said he was not aware that police had employed an undercover agent until it was revealed in Sunday's Big Spring Herald.

A third concern expressed by Turner was Heckler's written statement about a sheriff's deputy listening in on a conversation between Heckler and the undercover agent.

"I've heard rumor to this effect," Standard said, "and it could be very well true."

The sheriff said, however, the deputy knew nothing about an undercover agent at the time and was listening in on the conversation to evaluate information about a bottle of whiskey that had been reportedly stolen.

Also, Standard said, conversation regarding narcotics would normally arouse a deputy's attention for possible investigation.

Finally, Turner said he was concerned about Heckler's use of a law enforcement automobile radio in that it may have been provided by the sheriff's office.

The sheriff said various law enforcement receivers were legally accessible to the public and the sheriff's office has never authorized a radio in Heckler's car.

"He (Turner) and I both need to enforce the law and cooperate with each other and not investigate each other's department," Standard said.

Dear Abby

Kids won't make it easy for couple's second time around

DEAR ABBY: I'm a very attractive woman for my age, I'm told. I've lost two husbands; one is in the cemetery and the other one is in New Jersey. I recently renewed an acquaintance with an old boyfriend — I'll call him Danny. His wife died four months ago after a long illness. We hit it off as though we were a couple of kids. We want to get married. Danny is very well-to-do, but this is truly a love match.

Now the problem: Danny's children think that out of respect for their mother, their father should wait a full year before marrying. This means waiting for eight more months! Abby, I'm 68 and Danny is 72, and we could both be dead in eight months.

We are old-fashioned and don't believe in living together before marriage, and we want to get married as soon as possible. We'd like your opinion.

YOUNG AT HEART
DEAR YOUNG: The only opinions to be considered are yours and Danny's. The time to show respect for a person is while he or she is living. Time is precious. Grab the brass ring (or the gold one) now.

DEAR ABBY: I submit my tale of woe as a warning to others. I am 73 years old, have driven a car for over 50 years and never had an accident, but this time I really blew it.

I had had several drinks at home when a friend phoned and asked me to pick him up, so without thinking, I did. I hit a low center divider, damaging the underside of my car and putting it out of commission.

The police arrived on the scene, gave me a sobriety test, handcuffed me and took me in for a blood test. I spent the night in jail.

I was ready to plead not guilty in court until I saw the results of the blood alcohol test, which showed 2.48 — three times the legal limit for driving! (I pleaded "no contest.")

I was fined $410. Now I have to spend another 36 hours in jail and attend four sessions at a drug and alcohol abuse clinic for which I must pay $100.

The damage to my car is $500, my driver's license has been suspended for three months and my insurance rate has tripled!

All this for driving after taking a few drinks.

LEARNED THE HARD WAY
IN RENO

DEAR LEARNED: Thanks for the tale. Woeful as it was, you were lucky; you hit only a low divider. Some drunk drivers hit people.

DEAR ABBY: I telephoned a local florist and ordered an evergreen plant in a ceramic dish to be used as a centerpiece for a round dinner room table that seats six people. This was to be a housewarming present for my parents who had just retired and bought a new home.

When my mother called to thank me for the plant, I could tell she wasn't very happy with it. I asked her to describe it to me. She said, "It looks like a cornstalk — about 4 feet high in a plastic tub, with three half-dead carnations stuck in the dirt."

I called the local florist from whom I ordered the plant and told him what my mother told me. He said there was nothing he could do about it — that the florist in my mother's town had the right to substitute if they didn't have what I ordered.

Abby, please tell us how we can stop this kind of cheating.

FIGHTING MAD

DEAR MAD: If you receive a disappointing floral delivery wired from another city, let the sender know immediately of your disappointment. The sender should then call the florist with whom he or she placed the order and ask that florist to straighten it out with the florist who filled the order.

If a replacement or refund is not made, the customer should write to the Florists' Transworld Delivery Association, 29200 Northwestern Highway, Southfield, Mich. 48037.

Most florists are honest and are only too happy to weed out the bloomin' cheaters. No one should accept dead flowers or an inappropriate arrangement without complaining.

Dr. Donohue

Loud noises damage hearing cells

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Every night my teenage son goes to sleep with the radio in his room blaring rock music. This is not restful music, mind you, but rock — and very loud. It's a large house and no one else is bothered because his room is off in a corner. But when I come downstairs in the morning it's like having the radio on right beside me in the kitchen. My son thinks there's nothing wrong. And he certainly sleeps like a rock (excuse the expression). But the whole situation bothers me. — M.S.

He may be able to sleep through it all but what's happening to his hearing mechanism is alarming. Time and again it's been shown that continued exposure to loud noise damages delicate cells inside the ear, cells that permit us to transform sound waves into sound perception.

Specifically, hearing loss occurs with continued exposure to sound greater than 90 decibels. The average home has background noise in the 50-decibel range. A noisy restaurant has an 80-decibel level. Listening to rock music ranges far above the 90-decibel danger zone.

I haven't seen any studies that explain the effect of loud sound on the ear cells of a sleeping person, but I think I can state with some assurance that the damage would be at least as great as it is in the waking state.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My college daughter went to the hospital at school for urinary problems (frequency) and they found a urinary infection. She told me she was given one dose of antibiotics to take the same day. I recall when I had a similar infection I took the medicine for 10 days, and I read where you warn women to be sure to take the medicine for the entire prescribed time. Now I wonder if she got mixed up and will have a recurrence. I had her read the medicine she took and it was the same as I got. Please comment. — Mrs. U.B.

Single-dose antibiotic therapy is becoming popular for bladder infections. It's been found that single high dose medication is just as effective as prolonged dosage and may even lead to fewer side effects. Some women taking such medicine over long periods develop opportunistic infections, as from yeast organisms.

There's another good reason for the single-dose therapy. There's a lot less non-compliance. Many recurring infections can be traced to incomplete use of the antibiotic through negligence.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: What is the rationale behind the ear-noise maskers I've heard about? Isn't it just substituting one noise for another? — Mrs. M.M.

You're right. The rationale behind this is that usually it's much easier to accept noise from the outside than the annoyance of noise seemingly originating inside the ear. In fact, some people are helped with hearing aids that amplify outside sounds and mask ear noises that way.

If you're thinking of buying a device I suggest you give one a try first before actually making the purchase. They don't work for everybody. The booklet "Ear Noises: Their Causes and Cures" offers some hints. Other readers may order by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please define "idiopathic refractory sideroblastic anemia." What can be done for it? — A.L.A.

Anemia means red blood cell deficiency. Sideroblasts are certain cells in the bone marrow. They contain a circle of iron deposits. Because this iron isn't getting out into the blood in the red cells anemia results. Idiopathic means there is no detectable cause, and refractory means it does not respond to corrective treatments used for various other kinds of anemias.

This kind of anemia usually runs an indolent course, but if the blood count gets too low transfusions can be given. You have to tread a narrow line, though, between too many transfusions and too few. Too many can cause an iron overload and too few can create classic anemia symptoms, like shortness of breath and fatigue.

Herpes may be killing the sexual revolution, but having it doesn't mean the end of your life. Or the end of your sex life. In his new booklet, Dr. Paul Donohue separates the truth from the fiction about this controversial health problem. For your copy of "Herpes: Don't Panic," send $1.25 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

I am buying this ad to address the charges that Police Chief Rick Turner has made against me. I am buying this ad because the Big Spring Herald would not print my remarks verbatim which were made in a news release on Monday, February 24th.

Turner charges that I foiled his narcotic investigation by revealing the identity of his undercover agent. I did not reveal the identity of his agent. I told the Grand Jury and Sheriff's Department personnel that I suspected that Turner had a woman working for him that was trying to set me up. Her cover was blown through an investigation into alleged missing funds at City Hall. That investigation is being conducted by law officers, not by me. It was through their efforts that her identity came to surface. If Turner wants to blame me for revealing his agent, let him blame City Hall for its mess.

I cannot prevent Turner believing what he wants to about me, but I am not going to put up with his continued harassment against me.

Turner is trying to blame someone for his botched up dope investigation. He has spent thousands of dollars and has only a handful of small time arrests to show for it. Turner claims that his department has built between 130 and 135 narcotic related cases, but his past record proves that the local police department has a low percentage of convictions on their cases.

Personal checks totaling more than $50,000 have been given to Rick Turner for his narcotic work. Turner says the dope business in town is bad and doing a brisk business. He's probably right, but if it is that bad, it looks like Turner and his undercover agent could come up with more than just eight or nine arrests after nearly a year of investigation. His poor percentage of arrests and convictions surely cannot be blamed on a lack of funds.

I have repeatedly stated that I am not accusing the city staff nor Turner of any wrong doing concerning the large amounts of money that is being given to Chief Turner. I have simply repeated what Tom Ferguson told me and that is that the money is not included in the annual city audit and that a separate set of books is kept at the police station. Ferguson audits these records himself, and he states the money is not redeposited in city funds and much of it cannot be accounted for because receipts are not required. I have stated that I believe this is a loose way of handling such large sums of money, and I don't apologize for making that statement. Separate sets of books have been the cause of trouble more than once and the local police department has been investigated in the past for such loose handling of investigative funds. Why would any local citizen want to run the risk of opening such a can of worms again?

I run my businesses in a legitimate manner, and I would hope Turner is conducting his business in a like manner.

I have no objections to Turner cleaning up the dope traffic in Big Spring. The more arrests he makes, the more business I get in bail bonds. However, Turner has spent a lot of time and money trying to prove I am involved in the dope business, and he has not come up with a single thing.

I want the public to know that every citizen in our town has the right to privacy and to make a legitimate living. Most of you would not tolerate such police harassment against you or your family, and I will no longer tolerate such actions.

I have the same privilege of privacy and peace of mind as any other Big Spring citizen and I demand Turner either present his case against me or back off and leave me alone. The public should demand this also, because it is costing the taxpayers a lot of money and a lot of time that could be spent looking for the real dope pushers.

Tech blasts tight TCU, 62-52

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — There were no Hollywood-style finishes for the Texas Christian Horned Frogs.

Looking for a piece of its first Southwest Conference basketball title in 15 years, tight-and-tense TCU suffered its worst loss of the season Wednesday night.

Texas Tech rode the career-high 25 points of Tony Benford to a 62-52 victory, knocking TCU back into a tie with Texas for the SWC leadership with 12-3 records.

TCU plays at Houston Saturday night, while Texas hosts the Raiders Sunday afternoon in Austin. If TCU beats Houston it can still clinch the No. 1 seed in the SWC post-season tournament in Dallas next week.

In other SWC action Wednesday night, meanwhile, Southern Methodist defeated Houston 78-71, Baylor edged past Arkansas 65-64 and Texas A&M pulled away from Rice in the last five minutes to win 70-62.

The Horned Frogs beat Texas 54-53 Saturday on Jamie Dixon's 30-foot prayer at the buzzer. But TCU had no magic in Lubbock, a graveyard where the Frogs have lost 13 of their last 14 games.

TCU Coach Jim Killingsworth could feel it coming.

An hour before the game, he said, "this has been the longest day of my life. I'm not sure we're ready."

TCU turned the ball over 15 times and shot miserably from the field.

"I think we were awfully tight," Killingsworth said. "We just never got anything going. We just didn't play good. It was a simple as that."

Carl Lott, who led TCU with 21 points, said, "Coach Killingsworth told us Tech would come out fired up and they did, but we obviously didn't."

Benford scored 14 points in the last five minutes.

"Tony had a great game and it just might have been the best performance of the year for us," said Tech Coach Gerald Myers. "We played smart basketball."

"Our defense kept us in the game," Benford said. "It was emotional for me, knowing it was my last time to play on this floor."

Myers switched from a man-for-man to a zone defense that confused TCU.

TCU fell to 20-6 overall. Texas Tech is 13-13 and 8-7 in the SWC.

"We really put ourselves into a hole now for the Houston game," Killingsworth said. "We'd better play better down there than we did tonight."

Carven Holcombe, Gregg Grissom and Norman Anderson were all slapped with technicals. Anderson was ejected from the game for cursing referee Mike Tanco.

In Waco, Eric Johnson canned a 16-foot jump shot with just 34 seconds left to lift Baylor to its victory over Arkansas. Baylor, now 11-16 on the season and 3-13 in the SWC, finishes its regular season and will not play in the league tournament next month because of NCAA probation.

Arkansas fell to 12-14 and 4-11.

And in Dallas, Kevin Lewis led all scorers with 25 points as Southern Methodist held off a second-half rally to defeat Houston 78-71. The victory increased the Mustangs to 17-9 and 9-6, while Houston fell to 13-12 and 7-7.

Texas Tech forward Greg Crow (31) puts a shot off the backboard in front of TCU's center Greg Grissom (44). Texas Tech defeated TCU in their conference game 62-52.

Hawks sweep twinbill from Pioneers

By CHARLIE ALCORN Sports Writer

Howard College baseball coach Bill Griffin said that he would have an idea how good his team might be after their five day, eight-game homestand with Paris College and Western Oklahoma State.

The Hawks gave him a very positive answer Wednesday afternoon by sweeping a doubleheader from Western Oklahoma 9-4 in nine innings and 12-8 in the twinbill called after five innings by darkness.

The sweep gave Howard a 3-1 advantage over Western Oklahoma in the two day, four-game series and raised their record to 8-4 for the year. The Hawks begin Region 5 conference play this Saturday in Waco with a three-game series against perennially tough McClennan Community College.

In the first game went a couple of extra innings before Howard second baseman Bruce Smith blasted a double over the centerfielder's head, scoring Dan Lanfer, in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Hawks the hard earned 5-4 victory.

It was a close game throughout with neither team able to maintain more than a one run lead the whole game.

Howard starting pitcher Joel Chimel pitched seven strong innings giving up four runs on six hits and walking only two batters. The freshman righthander from Brooklyn, New York used a variety of pitches with excellent control to keep the Hawks in contention.

Western first baseman Jamie Allison put the Pioneers out front 1-0 with a solo home run in the top of the third inning. It would have been a 2-0 lead had Hawk catcher Fred Lopez not gunned down a Western baserunner trying to steal second, the pitch before Allison's fifth round tripper of the year.

The Hawks answered with two runs in the bottom of the inning. Ramces Guerrero led off the inning with a walk then took two bases on a passed ball by Pioneer starter Darren Peters. Lopez tied the game at 1-1 with a sacrifice fly scoring Guerrero, who made a nice slide to avoid the tag at the plate.

Damon Amaya gave Howard its first lead of the game with a two-out RBI double scoring Jeff Shults who got on base with a walk, leaving the score 2-1.

Western came right back with two more runs in the top of the fourth to regain the lead 3-2. Designated hitter Gary Belch drove in both runs with a two-out triple down the third baseline.

Howard tied the game 3-3 in the bottom of the fifth inning when leadoff batter Scott Smith drew a walk and then proceeded around the bases on three straight passed balls by Peters.

in Western's final run with a towering solo shot over the left field fence, giving the Pioneers a 4-3 lead after six and a half innings.

Hawk infielder Steven Keller tied the game for the third time with a leadoff home run over the right field fence leaving the score 4-4.

A leadoff single in the top of the eighth by Tyrone Sims chased Chimel, but Hawk relief man Bryan Willis came on to snuff the threat with two outstanding defensive plays and one by shortstop Keller.

Willis gave up only one hit in two innings of relief work and picked up the win after Smith's RBI double provided the winning run in the bottom of the ninth.

HAWKS 12, PIONEERS 8

In the second game the Hawks used a six-run second inning and a five-run third inning to register the sweep over the Pioneers in four and a half innings.

After spotting Western a 2-1 lead in the first inning, the Hawks exploded in the next stanza. Keller hit a two run double to put the Hawks back in the lead 3-2. Damon Amaya drove in two more with a home run over left field. Frank Medina drove in another run with a sacrifice fly and Messer knocked in the last run of the inning with a single giving Howard a comfortable 7-2 lead.

Western chased starting pitcher Greg Landry with a three run third inning. Belch started the Pioneer rally with an RBI triple.

Landry left the bases loaded for relief pitcher Albert Lopez, who pitched well despite giving up a pair of RBI singles to George Antio and Rob Elkins. Lopez retired two batters on flys after Elkins single to leave the Hawks in the lead 7-5.

Medina drove in two more runs in the bottom of the third with a bases loaded double to raise the Hawks lead to 9-5. Amaya then sent Pioneer relief pitcher Mariano Romero back to the dugout with his second hom run of the day, a three-run shot just inside the left field pole.

Thad Weber came into relieve Lopez after the Pioneers struck for three runs in the top of the fourth and pitched two innings of hitless ball to earn the save.

Landry picked up the win for the Hawks in the second game. Pioneer starter Chip Bliss was the loser.

"I was very pleased with our defense in the series. It was the most improved area. We also hit the ball fairly well and with some power. Our pitching is still a little shaky but they are coming along well," said Griffin following the game. "I guess we're as ready as we'll ever be for MCC. It's going to be interesting."

Permian girls favored in ABC Relays

By STEVE BELVIN Sports Writer

For the second straight year the Odessa Permian Panthers girls roll into the ABC Relays coming off a Comanche Relays meet title. And for the second straight year the Panthers are the odds-on favorites to win the ABC Relays.

The Panthers rolled up some impressive times in Ft. Stockton last week, prompting Big Spring coach Randy Britton to label them the favorites. "In track they are a lot like football. Each year they lose a lot of kids, but they find some more quality athletes somewhere," said Britton.

Last year the Panthers hooked up in a duel with Odessa High and came out on top 107-92, despite getting disqualified in one relay and dropping the baton in another.

This year it looks like they might duel with the San Angelo Central Bobcats. Last week Permian outdistanced second place Central 136-106.

The meet is an early preview of the district meet. 4-5A teams Permian, Central, Big Spring, Abilene High, Abilene Cooper, Midland High and Midland Lee will compete along with Lubbock High. Odessa High is the only district team missing.

Permian has an excellent chance of winning both the 400 and 800 relays. Last week it won the 400 (50.01) and finished second in the 800 behind Odessa High.

The Panthers also have excellent

CONNIE SWINNEY ... junior hurdler

PRISCILLA BANKS ... placed 5th last week chances of winning the 100 hurdles, with Nikki Smith and the 400 with Elaine Gamble. Teammate Tina Ellis is also a strong candidate in the race. Weight person Julie Blavier is coming off wins in the shot (38-0) and discus (113-5) last week.

Central will counter with sprinters Diane Franklin (12.39) and Michelle Manning and 400 runners Bonnie Campbell (62.0) and Kim Butler (65.2). Franklin zoomed to a 26.6 last week in the 200 but the favorite will be ABC record holder Ethel Edwards of Midland High. Edwards won in 25.17 last week in Ft. Stockton.

Central and Midland Lee might push Midland High in the 1600 relay, which is anchored by Edwards. Last week Midland ran a Comanche relays meet-record 4:11.92.

Other top individuals will be Abilene High's Kim Griffin in the 3200 (11:21) and half-miler Lisa Amozola (2:38.5) and sprinter Harriet Jones.

Cooper has two good quarter-milers in Pam Brown and Angela MacInnes. Both run in the 62-second range.

Although he is still experimenting with his squad, Britton is looking for improvement from the Lady Steers. "I just might pull names from a hat to see which event they'll run," he joked.

"Right now I'm still trying to find who'll run in what. I just hope the kids keep improving."

No doubt Britton will get points from his weight trio of Paula Jolley, Amanda Solis and Maria Sanchez. Last week Solis was third in the shot (34-0) and Sanchez was fourth in the discus (97-0). Jolley, who finished second in the shot in last year's meet, will make her 1986 debut.

Triple jumper Priscilla Banks, who finished fifth last week in Ft. Stockton with a 31-10 jump, will be counted on to score points.

Freshmen distance runners Manuela Bernal and Susan Garza are also good bets to score points. Both scored points in last week's meet.

Britton is also counting on points from freshmen sprinter Angie Dees and hurdler Connie Swinney.

Action gets underway at 9 a.m. Saturday at Blankenship Field with field events. Running prelims get started at 10:30 a.m. Running finals get started at 12:30 p.m.

Mauzy files complaint against opponent

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Supreme Court candidate Sen. Oscar Mauzy said Wednesday morning on a campaign stop in Big Spring that he filed a complaint last week with the State Commission on Judicial Conduct against a candidate opposing him in a hotly contested race.

"I've politely asked Judge Hugo Touchy to stop this conduct activity. He's declined to do so. I have now called it to the attention of the commission conduct and the agency," said Mauzy, a Democrat from Dallas.

The conduct that has riled Mauzy concerns remarks Touchy made about the Texaco-Pennzoil civil case. The quotes were printed recently in a Lubbock Avalanche-Journal story.

"The Texaco-Pennzoil case is pending in the courts of Texas," Mauzy said. "It is unethical and a violation of the law for Judge Touchy to comment on that case or any other case."

The current state senator said he hopes the commission will rule on the complaint before the May 3 primary.

Mauzy said during Wednesday's press conference at the Chamber of Commerce that the four-person Democratic race for the position centers around two issues. The first issue is the question of election versus appointment of judges.

He said one of his opponents, incumbent Seamus McGee, could not according to law serve the full six-year term if elected because of the mandatory 75 years of age retirement law.

Mauzy said the governor by constitutional law would have the right to appoint a successor and "it would be a tragic day in the history of Texas if Bill Clements was again the governor of Texas."

He criticized his other two opponents, Touchy and San Antonio Judge Shirley Butts, for not resigning their current positions when they announced their candidacy. Resignations would have resulted in elections rather than appointees to those positions, Mauzy said.

"I just think the question of election versus appointment of judges is central to this campaign," he said.

Mauzy said he is the only candidate in the race who voluntarily resigned his current position thus leaving it for voters to decide who will serve.

Mauzy, a member of the State Legislature for 19 years, said he had been approached by a faction of lawyers he described as "a bunch of wimps and a bunch of whiners who represent out-of-state corporations, insurance companies, banks and other selfish self-interest groups."

The faction, he said, was upset at recent State Supreme Court decisions that had been ruled against them.

Mauzy claims he was offered a $1 million endorsement from the group for a commitment to vote in their favor on certain cases.

"I refused to talk with them because I cannot under the law tell them how I'm going to vote to decide any given case," he said.

Mauzy accused his opponent Touchy of meeting with the group "in secret" last Friday in Austin.

Reagan's appeal denounced

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's nationally televised appeal for his proposed large increase in defense spending found little early support in a Congress trying to cut the federal deficit and end Pentagon contracting scandals.

"The president's appeal will not fly," said Sen. Charles Grassley, R-Iowa, Wednesday night. "At the grass roots, people do not think they are getting their money's worth. They see a bloated defense budget as the reason for $200 billion deficits."

Grassley said the Pentagon needs to be reformed to end abuses such as paying $434 for a hammer or $600 for a toilet seat cover.

"The only way to get these changes is by sending them the strongest message the only way Congress can — cut their budget," he added.

Reagan sought $320 billion in what would be the sixth annual installment of his 1980 campaign pledge to "re-arm America."

Congress is seeking to cut spending to reduce the debt and comply with the new Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, sided with Grassley.

3 students to attend legislature

Three Big Spring High School students left today for a junior legislative session in Austin, sponsored by the YMCA's Youth and Government Program.

Shelly Brasel, Scott Ferguson and Paula Valli are participating in the program, and Hana Coleman, program staffer at the local Y, will go as an adviser.

About 1,000 delegates from YMCAs statewide will take part in the mock legislative session, which lasts through Saturday afternoon, said Wallace Gill, general director of the local Y.

The students will elect a governor, a lieutenant governor and other state officials, and will introduce bills and pass legislation.

They will use the actual government facilities at the Capitol, Gill said. Gov. Mark White and other politicians will act as advisers to the students.

"It's a learning situation," he said. "The students will learn the way bills are prepared, how the bills go to committee, how they are amended, and these kind of things." Some students will be chairmen of committees, some will serve on committees and some will be delegates, he said.

The students have been working locally for the past five months writing bills and learning procedures. They participated in a district conference in January in San Angelo to prepare for the legislative session, Gill said.
