Job troubles hit oil patch

ODESSA (AP) — When oil prices started dropping and producers stopped drilling, the roughnecks lost their jobs first. Then banks suffered. Then people bought less merchandise in retail stores, and the problem got bigger and bigger.

Evidence of the problems the oil price drop has caused can be seen in the Texas Employment Commission office in Odessa, where many oilfield workers live.

One such worker, L.A. Richards, said he'd worked in the oil fields since he was 15, when he got his first job by lying about his age.

Friday, the 29-year-old driller became one of 1,543 people to file for unemployment benefits in February at the Odessa office, almost four times as many as the 403 people who filed in February 1985, the TEC reported.

"You grow up in the oil field and it's what you've always done. It's hard to figure out what else to do," Richards said. "I'll find something."

Richards said he's seen slack times in the oilfields before, and is confident the industry will come back. He said he won't look elsewhere for work.

"I'm not going nowhere. I like it here," he said.

Many others want to stay, too — so many that the commission is now processing claims in groups of up to 50 at a time. Formerly, the commission set half-hour appointments with unemployed workers, said Ron Norris, commission area manager.

"We will have a problem real soon with space constraints," Norris said, adding it might be necessary to expand a room or find

State hospital launches mental health hotline

Big Spring State Hospital began a Crisis Hot-Line Saturday to be a full-time link to the hospital for people requiring mental health services.

The hotline will serve a 23-county area around Big Spring, which the state hospital serves. The hotline number is 268-HELP.

The service, mandated by Senate Bill 633, will operate 24 hours a day, seven days a week, said Superintendent A.K. Smith.

A call to the new line will light up an emergency light on the hospital switchboard and the operator will promptly transfer the call to a mental health professional. From 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. the call will go immediately to the outpatient clinic. At other times, it will be referred to a professional on call for that purpose.

The person who takes the call will evaluate it and decide what measures need to be taken.

The hotline number will be listed in the yellow pages of telephone directories that cover the 23 counties, Smith said.

Soviet Congress assails 'Star Wars'

MOSCOW (AP) — The 5,000 delegates to the 27th Communist Party Congress vowed Saturday to render the U.S. "Star Wars" program useless and pledged to double industrial production by the year 2000.

They approved changes to the party platform dropping the late Nikita S. Khrushchev's promises of a communist utopia, and adopted rules for party membership and organization that stress improved discipline.

Delegates saluted with their red party cards once in a ritual unanimous vote for the programs, and again to signify their approval of the keynote speech delivered Tuesday by party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

The votes marked the end of five days of addresses by Politburo members and other officials, who endorsed Gorbachev's plan to revive the economy and read it into official Communist Party history.

Congresses are held every five years. This is the first since the leaders that rose under Leonid I. Brezhnev relinquished power to Gorbachev's generation with the death of President Konstantin U.

Chernenko in March 1985.

It provides an important forum for Gorbachev to weave his economic strategy into party policy and to complete the first phase of his personnel changes. The new membership of the party Central Committee is to be announced next week.

Many details of Gorbachev's strategy remain vague, despite his 5½-hour speech Tuesday and a series of news conferences for more than 2,700 Soviet and foreign reporters.

But the speeches revealed plans to give more autonomy to state farms, continue the modest decentralization of decision-making already under way, and make the state price-setting system more

Vice President George Bush embraces Dulles High School student council president Kellie Cook as he is presented a Sesquicentennial flag by Cook and Clements High School vice president Mitch Whitler Saturday. Bush was in Sugarland dedicating the world's largest Sesquicentennial flag.

Bush dedicates giant flag

SUGAR LAND (AP) — Vice President George Bush started his four-day swing through Texas Saturday by dedicating the world's largest Sesquicentennial flag to commemorate the state's 150th birthday.

"Here in Sugar Land today we're showing the world once again what Texas pride is all about," Bush said. "Sugar Land was Texas' first Sesquicentennial community and now today Sugar Land is flying the biggest Sesquicentennial flag in the world."

Sugar Land was the first to get "Sesquicentennial community" status when the state began handing out that moniker in 1982.

The flag, measuring 100 feet by 150 feet and a replica of the official Texas Sesquicentennial flag, was draped over the side of the Sugar Creek National Bank building in clear view of drivers on Highway 59.

About 3,000 residents in this community 20 miles south of Houston — many waving Sesquicentennial, Texas and American flags — enjoyed the pleasant 70-degree weather to take in the celebration that commemorates Texas' independence from Mexico.

"Tomorrow is Texas Independence Day, the day when 150 years ago the Texas

Austin columnist recalls growing up in Big Spring

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

Big Spring isn't the town it used to be, says Jesse Trevino, who works on the research staff of State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office in Austin. He spent his childhood here before moving to San Antonio in 1965.

Big Spring used to be bigger, and it had more vitality then, he said. "Economic changes have really hurt the town."

Trevino writes a column on Hispanic social and political issues, which is run by the Herald and papers in Corpus Christi, Dallas, San Antonio and Laredo. He was in town Saturday to visit his parents and to speak to Herald staff.

He lived in Big Spring from 1959 to 1965, when he moved to San Antonio to attend Central Catholic High School. San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros graduated from the school three years ahead of him, Trevino said.

"Growing up in Big Spring was the usual boys' play: marbles, tops, exploring dry creek beds. That was my favorite part," he said. "I used to walk along the dry creek beds over by the old salt lake, look for caterpillars and stare up at the sky in wonder."

He remembers watching with wide-eyed interest the building of I-20.

"I realized it was circumventing the city," he said. "I heard stories about how it would affect a town. Even at that age I wondered how it would affect Big Spring."

"Instead of driving through the town and seeing what kind of town it was," people would just pass by, he said. "West Texas is a very isolated area. Millions of people have traveled through West Texas, and it remains totally invisible. Hispanics grow up in West Texas and remain hidden within it."

West Texas is dramatic for its isolation, he said. The space beneath the bridges of I-20 "became my caves," he said. He would listen to the cars pass by and try to gauge the weight of each vehicle.

"There's a family: are they local people, are they going transcontinental, from Florida to California? Everyone wanted to go to California," he said.

Trevino lived in California for awhile, and in Houston, San Antonio, Austin, Corpus Christi, Washington, D.C., and New York City. He lives in Austin now and loves it, he said.

"I finally realized my fantasies of Ohio," he said. "I traveled all the back roads of Ohio, Virginia, the Shenandoah Valley." He plans to visit Europe this summer.

"Life is a constant looking for the new, for the different," he said.

"The reason for my column is trying, simply, in my own way and sometimes stumbling, to comment on some of the things that are happening, especially for people who may be isolated," he said.

"It's like my traveling," he added. "It's exploring, it's presenting an opportunity. It's realizing the history and the future of Texas are simply travels into what people are doing and what they're about to do, and I want to go on that journey."

Jesse Trevino, now on the research staff at State Comptroller Bob Bullock's office, reminisces about growing up in Big Spring.

Pentagon funds to be cut

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first round of spending cuts under the Gramm-Rudman balanced-budget law will force the Pentagon to discharge thousands from duty ahead of schedule, reduce flight time for pilots and postpone for months some transfers to new duty stations.

The cuts will also lead to a cut in operating hours for Air Force commissaries; prevent almost 12,000 National Guard and Army Reserve members from attending training schools and reduce the amount of military family housing to be constructed.

Those and other changes were disclosed as the Pentagon began Saturday to put in effect $5.1 billion in cuts forced by the new balanced-budget law for fiscal 1986.

Catholics publish dissent

WASHINGTON — In a new challenge to Roman Catholic Church leaders, more than 1,000 Catholics are publishing a broadside defending dissent on abortion and blasting Vatican reprisals against dissenters.

The declaration, published as a full-page advertisement in Sunday's New York Times, includes signatures of at least five priests and 40 nuns, sponsors said, though many signers didn't include affiliations.

Frances Kissling, president of Catholics for a Free Choice, which helped organize the protest, said in an interview that a main goal of the statement is "to send a clear message to the Vatican that Catholics will not be intimidated by reprisals against Catholics who speak out ... that reprisals will lead to more public comment rather than less."

Space probes near comet

PASADENA, Calif. — Five space probes converge on Halley's comet this month for an exploration that scientists say is likely to revolutionize their knowledge of comets and provide clues about the origin of the solar system.

"It's the greatest week cometary science has ever had and is likely to have for quite some time," said John Brandt, astronomy laboratory chief at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's Goddard Space Flight Center in Greenbelt, Md.

The encounters start late Wednesday when the Soviet Union's camera-equipped Vega 1 flies within 5,555 miles of the comet's solid nucleus of ice and dust, followed Saturday by Japan's Suisei, which will get to within about 95,960 miles.

Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme and his wife Lisbeth are carrying torches in a march towards Storkyrkan in Stockholm two weeks ago for a memorial service for Swedish disarmament politician Alva Myrdal. Olof was assassinated late Friday evening.

World leaders recoil at slaying of Palme

World leaders, many from nations touched by the violence of assassins, reacted Saturday with shock and grief to the slaying of Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme, who was known for his commitment to peace and disarmament.

A gunman killed Palme Friday night as he walked with his wife Lisbet in downtown Stockholm without any bodyguards.

Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said, "He will be grievously missed, not only in Sweden but really the world over."

Thatcher, herself the object of an Irish Republican Army assassination attempt in October 1984, said other world leaders "have to carry on taking risks for democracy and not be deflected."

"Sometimes it is as well we do not know what fate has in store for us," she said.

Queen Elizabeth II sent King Carl XVI Gustaf of Sweden a message expressing shock at the assassination and sympathy for Palme's family and the Swedish people, Buckingham Palace said.

In a statement released by the White House, President Reagan said: "My sorrow in the face of this senseless act of violence is profound."

"The world will remember him for his devotion to democratic values and his untiring efforts to promote peace."

The 5,000 delegates to the 27th Communist Party Congress in Moscow observed a minute of silence, and the party and Soviet government sent a telegram expressing "profound indignation" over the slaying.

The official Soviet news agency Tass said Palme was the latest peace activist struck down by "militarists of all stripes."

Tass did not, however, directly accuse America's CIA or other Western intelligence agencies of involvement in the assassination.

But it included in its account claims that the FBI kept a file on American schoolgirl Samantha Smith who visited the Soviet Union, and that West German intelligence agents spied on the Nobel Peace Prize-winning group International Physicians for the Prevention of Nuclear War.

Sweden mourns official

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Mourning citizens heaped flowers Saturday on the bloodstained cobblestone sidewalk where socialist Prime Minister Olof Palme was assassinated, and police scoured the nation for the unidentified killer.

Palme's widow, Lisbet, who was grazed by the single 9mm pistol bullet that fatally wounded her husband late Friday night, told police she thought she had seen the killer before, but could not recall the circumstances.

Police said they were investigating an anonymous telephone call to an international news agency in London saying West German terrorists killed the 59-year-old Palme, who was serving his fourth term as prime minister since 1969.

Aquino retires generals

MANILA, Philippines — President Corason Aquino retired 22 generals and pushed for the release of additional political prisoners Saturday as more exiles returned to support her fledgling government.

Four days after she was swept to power by a nearly bloodless "people power" revolution, Mrs. Aquino was running the government from an office building as soldiers cleared booby traps from the presidential palace.

The government's Philippine News Agency said that by Saturday, soldiers had neutralized 18 landmines planted by troops loyal to then-President Ferdinand E. Marcos on the banks of the Pasig River behind the palace.

Vietnam reports on MIAs

BANGKOK, Thailand — Vietnam has handed over to the United States results of investigations into 49 reports of remains or crash sites involving missing Americans, a U.S. expert said Saturday upon returning from Hanoi.

"We got some specific information back on these 49 cases they've investigated ... I can tell you they have found remains and some of those remains will be repatriated," said Lt. Col. Paul Mather.

He led a team which discussed with Vietnamese officials on Thursday and Friday cases involving Americans missing from the Vietnam war.

Hanoi says it is investigating 30 reports from local villagers, Mather told a news conference.

Col. Joe Harvey, another U.S. military expert who returned from a crash site excavation in Laos, told the same conference the U.S.-Laotian team had dug up the aircraft they were looking for — an AC-130 gunship shot down in March 1972 with 14 American airmen aboard.

Marcos stays put at U.S. base

HONOLULU (AP) — Exiled Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos stayed in his temporary home at an Air Force base Saturday while U.S. officials took an inventory of property he and his entourage brought with them.

Five of the 89-member Marcos party left Hickam Air Force Base, where they have been living in guest officers' quarters since arriving Wednesday, said Lt. Cmdr. Sheila Graham, spokeswoman for the U.S. Pacific Command.

She said she did not have the names of those who left and added: "We don't know where they went and we don't know if they're coming back."

Marcos said Friday he would leave Hickam as soon as arrangements had been made to rent a private residence. He did not say where the family hoped to relocate.

Real estate held by the Marcos family has been reported as including mansions in London, Rome, and Beverly Hills, Calif., and two estates in Honolulu. However, no Hawaiian property is listed in his name.

"We have been accommodated very comfortably everywhere we went on American soil and treated with utmost respect and generosity," Marcos told reporters Friday.

Dennis Murphy, a spokesman for U.S. Customs in Washington, said Saturday that the agency was still working on an inventory of luggage the Marcos party brought along from the Philippines and that its attorneys were reviewing applicable law on who should get to keep the items.

"Sometime in the immediate future, something will be released on the categories of items which arrived in the plane, within the constraints of the legal protection of confidentiality," he said.

Welder brings Old West alive

Guy Brown uses a cutting torch as he works on a 7-foot tall likeness of a Texas Ranger in his shop in Abilene. Brown has been working on the sculpture for more than two years.

ABILENE (AP) — Guy Brown clips his welding mask up, rubbing a work-roughened hand over the steel creases in the jeans of his lifelike statue.

"If it doesn't look like he's going to walk off, then nobody will probably ever see him," Brown says of the Texas Ranger he's been constructing from the floor up for more than two years.

When it comes to his artwork, the 33-year-old welder and steel art worker is a perfectionist.

More than 1,500 hours of work, in Brown's spare time, already have gone into the creation of the ranger. So far only the body has been sculpted — the face, head and hat are still only envisioned in his mind's eye.

"I'm anxious to get started on his face," Brown says with a strong Texas drawl. "I'll do the head in layers, starting with the chin of three-inch plate and coming up about three inches at a time."

When done, the lawman will stand 7 feet tall, holding a Winchester in one hand, wearing a Colt .45 and a Bowie knife. And you can bet he'll be authentic, down to the last wrinkle in his shirt sleeve and the curl in his mustache.

He's borrowed a Colt .45 to study and get the proper dimensions for the one he's making for his ranger.

"I got several photos I've collected of Texas Rangers. I wrote Levi Strauss on how the pants were designed in that time and they sent me some old photographs," Brown says. "I like to listen to the old timers talk about those days. You listen and learn a lot from them."

Brown says he began work on the statue after years of being interested in western art and law.

"I've always been interested in law enforcement," the soft-spoken Georgia native says, noting that he got an associate's degree in law enforcement before he opened his own business.

The self-taught artist found his resources readily at hand in oil field steel.

"I woke up one morning and just started out making a stick figure using 2 1/2 inch oil-field pipe. I wrapped 3/8-inch bar steel around it and made a skeleton."

The solidly-built 6-foot-5 Brown, who has lived in Abilene since he was a year old, breaks into a grin as he says: "I've got to call it a hobby, 'cause I'm sure not making a living from it."

He talks in short sentences, frequently punctuated with a polite "ma'am," elaborating on the historical background of his tall, lean lawmen. "Most of 'em were smaller men.

There were a few tall ones," he says. "Most of those rangers dressed real sharp. They had good boots and good hats. He's going to have suspenders under his vest. He'll have a watch fob and chain."

Brown had assumed the jeans had belt loops and spent 20 hours carefully tooling them on the jeans. Then he discovered that "belt loops didn't come out until 1922."

"I sure do hate that," he says ruefully, pointing to the burnished spots on the statue where he's just removed all loops. Now he'll add suspenders. For the hands, Brown used his own as models, carefully planned for a realistic look.

"I haven't got his wrinkles in from the knees up yet," he explains. "I've got to get the gun belt and Bowie knife on first."

Brown owns his own general welding business, venting his creative talents in making customized home and ranch signs. He learned his business in the oil field, he says, but "I try my best to stay away from it now. I like the shop work."

He's not sure what he'll do with the ranger once he's completed.

Despite any formal art education, Brown is an avid art admirer. "Steel," he says, "is kind of my medium. It just seemed the natural thing to do."

Santa Anna: 'Napolean of the West'

By MICHELE RAYMOND
When President Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna was rudely awakened at gunpoint by General Sam Houston's weary men at the battle of San Jacinto, he was dressed in the finest silk nightgown, surrounded by fine china, silk sheets, silver tea urns and a silk tent. But, he seemed to have a certain respect for the men who died at the Alamo, and he was very complimentary of Houston's treatment of him when he was captured.

This "Napoleon of the West," best known for his slaughter of Texas rebels at the Alamo, is the most loved, hated and feared of any of Mexico's succession of dictators. In his autobiography, written several years ago, Santa Anna repeatedly describes his feelings of "courage" and deep patriotic ideals. He paints a picture of a brave military leader who is repeatedly called to duty by his countrymen.

Besides his numerous terms as president, he waged campaigns in California, lost his foot in a battle with the French, and at one time he conspired to work with the U.S. government.

Now, however, having been once banished, he is all but forgotten. Allowed to live out his last days in Mexico City, he is surrounded by a few friends.

He is quoted as saying, "A hundred years to come my people will not be fit for liberty. They do not know what it is, unenlightened as they are, and under the influence of the Catholic clergy, as despotism is the proper government for them, but there is no reason why it should not be a wise and virtuous one."

Observers note that if Santa Anna's own rule had been virtuous, he might have been president for many years on a continuous basis. Political cartoons show him standing on top of piles of gold, hogging all the wealth for himself. And some people claim that vices and excesses have been his downfall. It was well-known that he has had numerous affairs with women, and was addicted to opium.

Journey through Texas

Born in 1795 in Jalapa, in the mountains above Vera Cruz, of middle class parents, he started his career as a soldier at the age of 16. He served in Texas under Arrendondo as a lieutenant, where he learned the basics of brutality: no mercy for the vanquished. His ways were to sweep him in and out of power for 50 years hence.

After surviving the revolution against Emperor Iturbide against Guerro, Santa Anna learned another political trick: the rocky road to power in times of instability lies not in devotion to duty but in choosing the right side.

Santa Anna led the army which defeated the Spanish government's last attempt to regain power in Mexico. This gave him the reputation as the "hero of Tampico." In Texas, he was well-liked because of his liberal leanings.

When the cunning politician was finally made president in 1832, he retired to his home in Vera Cruz, though he says he left to quell rebellions. He let his vice president, Gomez Farias, propose a totally liberal form of government: it restored privileges of the states. The Constitution of 1824 (similar to the United States) called for a reduction in power for the military and the Church and proposed a widespread literacy program for the poor.

The elite and the church rose up against Farias's new proposals — so Santa Anna took his cue to return and take office to "save" the status quo, again winning him hero status. He dissolved the Congress and formed a totally centralized dictatorship with absolute power.

During another of his reigns in 1843-44, he claims there was "no graft," that widowers and pensioners and state employees were paid on time, and the nation's first railroad was started.

25 burglaries linked to 17-year-old man

Four more burglaries have been linked to a 17-year-old Big Spring man, bringing the total to 25 burglaries he is believed to have committed, sheriff's deputy Barney Eden said Saturday.

Joe Bernardo Lopez of 609 State St. was arrested at 4:30 a.m. Friday when police responded to a suspected auto burglary at Sixth and Elgin Streets. Evidence was found on him linking him to several recent business burglaries, police said.

Eden said Lopez gave the sheriff's department a statement that cleared burglaries at M&M Construction, Diamond Seed and two burglaries at KC Steakhouse. The steakhouse was burglarized Dec. 14 and Feb. 19, according to sheriff's reports.

Police said Friday 18 business burglaries and three auto break-ins were linked to Lopez.

Police Lt. Jerry Edwards said Lopez admitted to burglaries dating back to July.

He later gave statements to investigators connecting him to 21 area burglaries, police said.

Hungry jury amazes onlookers

NEW YORK (AP) — Notes from a deliberating jury usually give lawyers food for thought, but queries coming from jurors at the bombing trial of six political radicals often concern thoughts of food.

The jury, recessed until Monday, has amused and confused onlookers at the federal courthouse in Brooklyn with their numerous requests for pizza, bagels and Chinese food since deliberations began Feb. 13.

Courthouse wags have dubbed the panel of eight men and four women, "The jury that ate Brooklyn."

"This is the best note yet," Assistant U.S. Attorney Charles Rose chortled Friday afternoon as the jury adjourned for its third weekend without a verdict.

The jury's 57th note, addressed to U.S. District Judge I. Leo Giasser said: "We all appreciate the new menu. The food was excellent." It was signed by all 12 jurors "with our compliments and thanks."

Giasser's courtroom deputy, Louise Schillat, said the jury didn't like food from the restaurant where she had been ordering their meals.

"They complained it wasn't hot enough," she said, "and they wanted Italian food."

Jurors receive lunch each day, and dinner is provided if they deliberate into the evening. All the meals, paid for by the government, come from modestly priced restaurants, and jurors may order anything on the menu, officials said.

The defendants are charged with a string of terrorist bombings at corporate sites and military installations in the New York area between 1982 and 1984.

"I've never had a jury with so many notes," said veteran civil rights lawyer William Kunstler, one of the defense attorneys.

"If I wasn't so tired, it'd be funny," said Assistant U.S. Attorney John Gallagher.

On the third day of deliberations the jury asked: "If we do not reach a verdict tonight, can we have Chinese or Italian food tomorrow?"

A few days later they requested bagels and cream cheese for a coffee break.

In between there were requests to see evidence or hear readbacks of some of the 12,000 pages of testimony from the trial.

Former 'wimp' rescues girl, kills attacker

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A short-order cook who says he has always felt like a wimp is being dubbed "Urban Warrior" and "East Side Avenger" after he rescued a teenager and killed her alleged attacker.

Robert Thomas, a single father, says his sudden fame surprises him and he just believes "somebody has to take a stand."

"I've always felt like a wimp," he said. "I was attacked by seven dudes once. This time I was on the other end of the stick instead."

Police are continuing to investigate the Thursday incident in which George Simmonds Jr., 36, of San Antonio was killed by being hit with a two-by-four.

Police spokesman Paul Buske said Friday that police will turn their findings over to the district attorney, who in turn will present them to a grand jury.

If the man is cleared, Buske said, the police department formally will recognize him for "going to the aid of a victim and quite possibly saving the young lady's life."

"We'd really love to martyrize this guy," Buske said. "But what if we submit this to the district attorney's office and there's a kink in it?"

The 15-year-old girl whose screams attracted Thomas' attention was recuperating at Medical Center Hospital, suffering from stab wounds, cuts and abrasions. A hospital spokesman said the family has asked that no information about the girl be released.

Thomas said he was getting off a bus Thursday night when he heard her screaming.

"I saw three guys walking and I yelled at them to help me, but they kept walking," Thomas told the San Antonio Express-News. "It's a tough neighborhood."

He said he picked up a discarded two-by-four from the ground, and a "big guy" came out of the bushes and lunged at him "bearlike."

Thomas said he raised the wood and brought it down across the man's head, knocking him to his knees.

"The girl had to fight her way through the thicket," he said. "Her clothes were all torn. She was delirious."

Bouncers set record

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland State University's record-breaking fraternity is at it again.

Six members of Tau Kappa Epsilon completed 53 days of bouncing on a trampoline Friday at the University Center, exceeding the Guinness Book of World Records' mark of 52 days, or 1,248 hours. That record was set by six people in Phoenix, Ariz., in 1974.

Cleveland State's trampoline marathon began Jan. 6 and ended Friday at 12:15 p.m., the university said. The marathon was staged to raise funds for the school's Alumni Association.

The six students bounced in relay fashion to set the mark, with each bouncer completing a pair of two-hour shifts each day.

Cleveland State's chapter of Tau Kappa Epsilon holds the Guinness book's record for the longest reported bathtub push.

Diet helps elephant get fit

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (AP) — Even elephants need to go on diets sometimes. All it takes is some low-cal hay, a few push-ups, no monkey biscuits and fewer peanuts.

Bunny, the elephant at Mesker Park Zoo, has lost 640 pounds in three years on such a regimen, and now tips the scales at a svelte 7,200 pounds.

Part of the problem was her lifestyle, said keeper Pam Rogers. "A bored elephant will just eat hay and stand around swaying back and forth each day," she said. Zookeepers say the diet hasn't been hard for Bunny, and she even likes the exercise program which has her running laps and doing push-ups and deep knee bends.

Keepers have substituted a lower-calorie hay, but Bunny still gets the same amount — about a bale and a half each day. She gets fewer peanuts and no monkey biscuits, and she's limited to one soft drink a day.

Of course, that one soft drink is a 32-ounce bottle, Ms. Rogers said. It's a low-sugar drink, however, to help protect Bunny's teeth from cavities.

Joyous return

Country singers Barbara Mandrell, right, and Dolly Parton laugh it up as they perform on stage together Friday night at the Universal Amphitheatre in Los Angeles. The event, sponsored by Marlboro Country Music, was a "welcome back" appearance for Mandrell, who was seriously injured in a 1984 automobile accident.

D-FW audit uncovers odd expenditures

GRAPEVINE (AP) — A $900 softball game, a $15,000 employee picnic and $10,000 in dinners, drinks, cakes and car washes spent over a two-year period are among the items auditors have found in the books of the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport.

The findings are part of the fallout of a probe into alleged mismanagement that resulted in several resignations.

Auditors' notes on the airports' cash and miscellaneous accounts are sprinkled with notations that "proper accounting procedures were not followed," that backup documents couldn't be found and "further clarification" was needed.

The auditors are going over the airport's books as part of a six-month probe into charges of mismanagement.

Ernest Dean, longtime airport executive director, was forced out of office in July when the allegations first surfaced.

Since then, several top to mid-level managers have resigned under pressure, and three airport employees have been indicted — two for felony theft and one on charges of tampering with government documents.

A police investigation into possible criminal activity is still under way.

Among the findings by the auditors is that in 1984, $15,000 in D-FW funds were spent to throw a big employee bash at a party ranch, complete with boat rides and clubhouse.

The $15,000 cost was split into three payments so that staff wouldn't have to mention it to the airport board of directors, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

At the time, state law required purchases of more than $5,000 to be made by competitive bid. Board approval of such expenditures also was required.

In a memo written last fall, airport purchasing manager Mary Jo Sinclair described the picnic plans that outraged her.

"The cost alone left me in a state of shock," she said.

Q.: Would you advise speculation in real estate as a relatively sound form of investment.

A.: When considering real estate investment, think of location, current market price, area trends, usage and amount of investment, etc. Speculation in real estate, particularly housing, is a unique form of investment. Unlike more risk-prone types of speculation, people aren't buying houses and leaving them empty. Even the family whose investment is limited to its own dwelling is — investing, particularly when the property appreciates in value. And, the homeowner is gaining use from his home as well as tax breaks in property tax and interest deductions. Many speculate in real estate in buying a property or two with the intention of renting. Real estate speculation, entered into wisely, even on a small scale, may be the most risk-free and rewarding form of speculation.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Education William J. Bennett unveiled a list Friday of 41 tips on how best to teach children, and said most of the pointers, distilled from years of research, are just common sense.

"Given the abuse common sense has taken in recent decades... it is no small contribution if research can play a role in bringing more of it to American education," Bennett said.

The report, "What Works: Research About Teaching and Learning," is written in plain language devoid of researchers' jargon. It is addressed to the American public.

It recommends teaching children to read by phonics — learning to recognize the sounds that combinations of letters make — rather than the "look-say" approach of recognizing whole words.

It puts in a good word for rote memorization, which some teachers have veered away from.

And it says young children learn arithmetic more easily when they have blocks or other real objects to help them.

The 65-page report is divided into three sections: home, classroom and school. It is studied with charts and classical quotations.

President Reagan is holding a White House ceremony Tuesday for 250 educators to trumpet the book. He gave a similar sendoff three years ago to "A Nation At Risk," a critical report by an Education Department advisory panel that hit a raw nerve among educators and parents.

The findings were pulled together by the Education Department's research chief, Chester E. Finn Jr., and reviewed by several prominent educators.

Finn, a former Vanderbilt University education professor, said, "This is not an education 'cookbook' so much as a 'guide to sound nutrition.'... We do not, however, claim to be offering pat answers or simple nostrums."

Bennett, in a telephone interview, said the findings may stir controversy among teachers "who don't like phonics or who hate memorization and would never ask anybody to memorize anything."

Bennett said he had been unaware before reading the report that experts have found "that a good way to teach children arithmetic is to use objects."

He added, "Since I read this two weeks ago, I've been using more blocks at home to teach John," his 22-month-old son. "I'm my own first test case," he said.

The book emphasizes parents' role as "their children's first and most influential teachers."

Some findings:

- "The best way for parents to help their children become better readers is to read to them."
- "Children improve their reading ability by reading a lot."
- "Learning to count everyday objects is an effective basis for early arithmetic lessons."
- "Children who are encouraged to draw and scribble 'stories' at an early age will later learn to compose more easily."
- "Many highly successful individuals have above-average but not extraordinary intelligence. Accomplishment... is often more dependent upon hard work and self-discipline than on innate ability."
- "Children get a better start in reading if they are taught phonics."
- "The most effective way to teach writing is to teach it as a process of brainstorming, composing, revising and editing."
- "Memorizing can help students absorb and retain the factual information on which understanding and critical thought are based."
- "Student achievement rises significantly when teachers regularly assign homework and students conscientiously do it."
- "The best way to learn a foreign language in school is to start early and to study it intensively over many years."
- "Advancing gifted students at a faster pace results in their achieving more than similarly gifted students who are taught at a normal rate."
- "The more advanced the subject matter and the more rigorous the textbooks, the more high school students learn."

Seat belt club thrives in N.J.

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — A year after New Jersey became the second state in the nation to require drivers and front seat passengers to wear seat belts, a Saved by the Belt Club already has 150 members, including a woman who says she would be dead without the law.

The statute, which marks its anniversary today, had been in effect only a few days when Joyce Lynch of Manahawkin and her 18-month-old granddaughter, Amy, were injured in a car accident.

"I put on the seat belt that day because of the new law. I don't even like to think what would have happened if we hadn't been using seat belts. We wouldn't have been alive to tell about it," said Mrs. Lynch.

Under the law, violators can be fined $25, but motorists can be cited only if they are stopped for another offense. Children under 5 must ride in a specially designed car seat.

When the statute was enacted, supporters predicted it would save 250 to 300 lives a year. No statistics are available to prove or contradict the forecast, but police said the number of highway deaths is down.

The New Jersey Committee for Safety Belt Use said car accidents are the No. 1 killer in the country of people between ages 1 and 44. The Paramus-based group also said that each New Jersey resident has a one-in-three chance of being involved in a car accident.

Between March and December, 407 front-seat passengers were killed in car accidents in New Jersey, according to the Division of Motor Vehicles.

During the March to December period in the five years before that, an average 468 people were killed.

"That shows that 61 lives have been saved by the seat belt law, which is a decrease of about 13 percent," said Carol Ann Dillon, director of the safety belt committee.

Since the law was enacted, state police troopers have handed out 7,962 tickets to offenders, said Col. Clinton L. Pagano, superintendent of the state police.

He said the law is too new to determine accurate results, but added that "it has both saved lives and reduced serious injuries, and that's the purpose of seat belts."

Pagano said the law should be strengthened to allow police to cite offenders without having to pull them over for first violation.

He said compliance with the seat belt usage law is down to about 52 percent, compared to the initial 65 percent to 75 percent. He recommended that the state step up educational programs to convince drivers to strap themselves in.

"We have to strike out at that remaining 50 percent of drivers who haven't yet gotten the message," said Pagano.

Central boys win ABC title

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The San Angelo Central Bobcats finished out with a bang as they swept the ABC Relays boys team championship by scoring 143 points.

The division was a very competitive one as the Bobcats made a surge in their last three events to pull away from second place Abilene High who scored 124 points. Despite taking an event-ending 1600 meter relay victory, Midland High finished third with 121 points. The Big Spring Steers turned in a good performance by finishing fourth with 96 points.

C.L. Bowman kept the victory string alive for the Bobcats as he nipped Big Spring's Dewayne Sherman in the 200 meters. Bowman's time of 22.77 was two-hundredths faster than Sherman, who was running the event for the first time this season.

Coach Randy Britton's Steers made a very strong showing in the running events, paced by second place finishes in the 400 and 1600 relays and a one-two finish in the 800 by Dax McCracken and Sean Jackson.

A victory in the high jump by Brian Mayfield and a third place finish by Phillip Matthews in the long jump were the majority of the Steers' 22 field event points. Meanwhile Central scored 49 points and Abilene 44 points in the field events.

Mayfield, who had the bar moved to 6-8 after eliminating all his competition, won the event at 6-4.

Matthews went from fifth to third place on his final jump. His 20-6 was his best of the season. "I couldn't get my steps down because this runway is so short. I missed the board by about six inches on my last jump," explained Matthews.

Behind a strong third and fourth legs by Matthews and Sherman, the Steers 400 relay team, which also includes James Halin and Charles White, placed second with a 44.06. Midland won in 43.69.

Senior McCracken and sophomore Jackson waited until the 200 meter to make their move in the 800. The duo passed Midland's Rocky Sanchez and Central's Fitchett at that point to take control. McCracken won going away in 2:01.19 while Jackson had to hold off a fast-closing Sanchez for second.

"We kind of got boxed in on the second lap for a while but we gutted it out," said McCracken. "I feel good," said a happy Jackson after recording a career-best 2:02.96.

"Coach (Britton) said he didn't care which way it was but he wanted us to finish one-two, and we did."

The Steers also added big points on a two-three-six finish by Wimley White, Cedrick Banks and Kim Anding in the 400.

The 1600 relay was billed up to be a Big Spring-Midland High showdown and that's exactly what it was. Only Midland High was in control all the way thanks to a 49.0 leadoff leg by Tyrone Oliver, who also won the 400.

Midland set a meet record with a 3:23.40. The Steers foursome of Banks (52.19), Matthews (51.48), Jackson (51.57) and Sherman (51.81) ran a 3:27.15. The Steers B team of Brian Reid, Wimley White, Charles White and McCracken finished third in 3:34.0. Reid had the best leg in 51.84.

Big Spring Lady Steer sprinter Aretha Isiah comes off the turn during her leg of the 800 meter relay in the ABC Relays held at Blankenship Field Saturday afternoon. Isiah helped the relay team to a third place finish in the event.

Abilene girls surprise Mojo

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The Odessa Permian girls got some surprises at yesterday's ABC Relays. To be exact they got three surprises. Abilene High, Midland Lee and San Angelo Central all finished ahead of the heavily-favored Panthers.

The Abilene Eagles, using strong team depth, dethroned the Panthers of their title by scoring 109 points. Lee and Central totaled 96 and 96 respectively while the Panthers scored 94 points.

The Panthers, fresh off a Comanche Relays victory where they easily outdistanced Lee and Central, fell on hard times at Blankenship Field. Meanwhile the Eagles, competing in their first meet of the season "nicked and dimed" their way to victory. They won their share of firsts, but won the meet with bunches of fourths, fifths and sixths.

AHS did win five events, led by a sweep in the distance runs; the 3200 and 1600 meters. Kim Griffin won the 3200 and Beverly Pyle finished it off with a win in the metric two-mile. Abilene got 20 more points when it sprinted past Lee for first in the 800 relay.

The Big Spring Lady Steers did not have a banner day in front of the home folks. But there were some bright spots for Coach Randy Britton's team who finished seventh with 28 points.

Senior weight person Amanda Solis scored Big Spring's first points of the day when she finished fourth in the shot put with a toss of 33.9. She was displeased with her performance. "I threw bad," she said. "I threw better in Ft. Stockton last week and I've been throwing around 37 feet in practice. I couldn't get my form down. I wasn't pushing off with my legs." Solis added four more points when she finished fourth in the discus with a throw 103-7.

The Lady Steers scored six more points when freshman distance runner Manuela Bernal placed third in the 3200 in 13:48.12. Bernal knocked almost a minute off her time while running to a medal. Susan Garza scored more another Big Spring point with a sixth place finish in the event.

Cary Brooks jumped 4-10 in the high jump to finish sixth for Big Spring.

Perhaps the brightest spot for the Lady Steers was return of junior sprinter Pam Palmer. Palmer, returning back to Big Spring after transferring from Midland Lee, had just come out for the team. She responded with a second place finish in the 100. Her time of 12.74 followed Lee's Tangi Carter who ran a 12.48.

"I'm pleased with my time," she said after the race. "I'm not in shape yet, I had just one workout before the meet. I really didn't get that tired out there today."

The only meet record of the day was broken by Midland High's Ethel Edwards, who broke the 200 record she set last year. She lowered the standard from 25.63 to 25.44. Edwards also ran a great anchor leg on the winning Midland 1600 relay. She turned a 20 meter deficit into a 15 meter win for her team over Permian.

Central's Bonnie Campbell won the 800 and placed third in the 400.

ODESSA — The Big Spring girls varsity golf squad placed sixth in the Odessa Invitational Golf tournament held Thursday and Friday at Mission and Odessa Country Club courses.

The Lady Steers shot a two day total 777. Andrews won the team title with at 744. Permian was second at 745 and Amarillo High was third at 756.

Pam Martinez was the top individual for the Lady Steers with rounds of 99 and 88. Karen Brodie fired rounds of 100 and 93. Michelle Cox shot rounds of 102 and 95. Heather Varley finished with rounds of 104 and 97. Rebecca Read rounded out the team with rounds of 103 and 112.

Rose survives winds

CORAL SPRINGS, Fla. (AP)—Clarence Rose rode a hard-won round of par-72 through gale-force winds and into a tie for the third round lead Saturday in the $500,000 Honda Classic.

"My best 72, and one of my top 10 career rounds," said Rose, now in his sixth season of PGA Tour activity. "It was a great score today — like a 65."

No one offered argument. In the face of the extreme winds — 30 miles per hour with gusts to 45 — it was a remarkable achievement. Only one other man — Mike Reid — was able to match it. No one bettered it.

Rose completed three trips over the TPC course at 215, 1-under-par. He was tied for the lead with Andy Bean, who struggled through the winds and out of water and through varied forms of woe to a 77.

Of the 22 men who started the day's play in subpar figures, there were the only two to stay there. Bean did it only by virtue of what he called "maybe the best shot I ever hit" — a 3-wood second shot that set up a one-foot birdie putt on the 18th.

Payne Stewart was next at 73-216.

Kenny Knox, the longshot who led through the first two rounds, shot an 80.

And he remained in title contention.

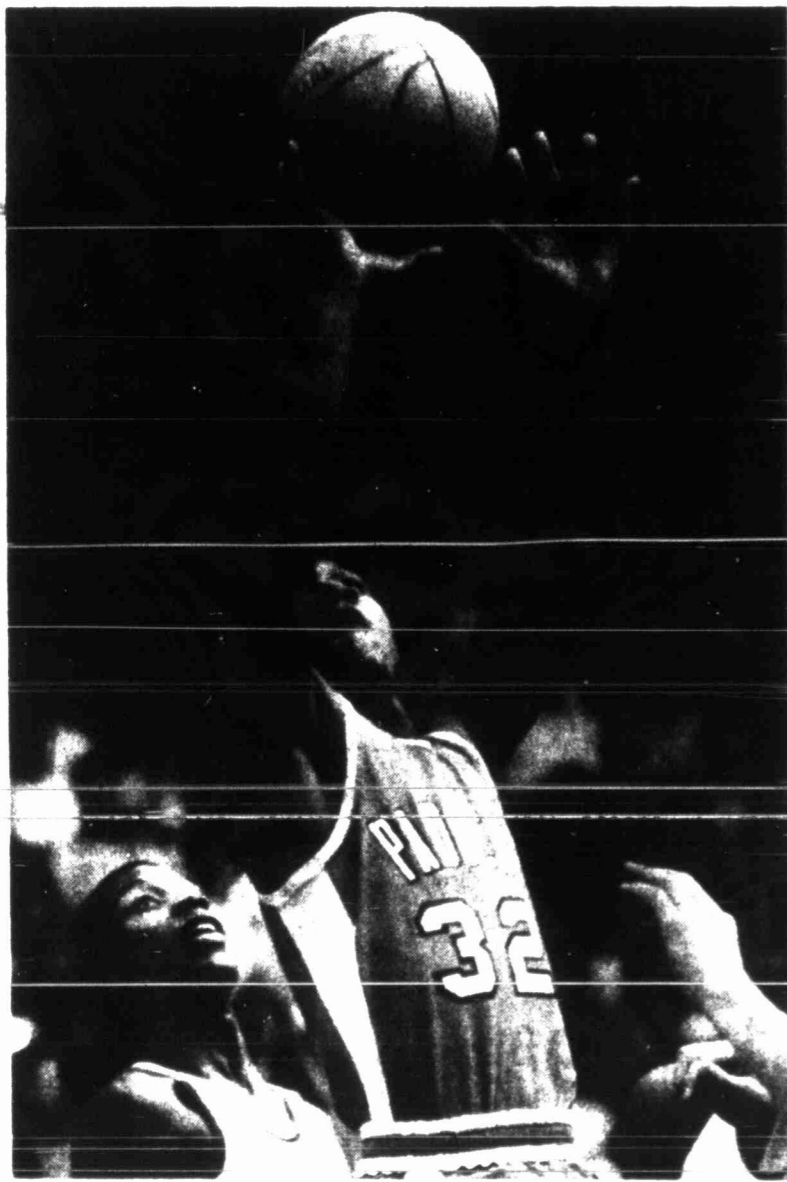

He was tied at a 217 with Jodie Mudd who had a 75, a score Stewart said was "around par today."

That may have been optimistic. Actually, the field averaged 79 for the day.

"I don't think I ever played when it was this windy," Rose said.

Others recalled the howling winds of Sawgrass in the Tournament Players Championship of 1979, the U.S. Open of '72, the old Sahara in Las Vegas in the 60s. Bean mentioned "some Crosbys, maybe that one Memorial."

In short, it was a golfing horror show.

Paducah forward Shedrick Davis puts up an inside shot over Morton's Kenneth Johnson in first half action of his team's 63-61 loss to the Indians Saturday at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Morton nips Paducah

By CHARLIE ALCORN
Sports Writer

Morton rallied from behind in the final quarter to register a tough 63-61 win over Paducah in the boy's Region I-AA finals Saturday afternoon at Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. The win earned the number-one ranked Indians a trip to the state tournament next weekend in Austin.

Morton, who raised their record to 31-7 on the year, was behind after all of the first three quarters but held Paducah to two points in the last five minutes of the game to eke out the two point victory. The Indian full court press forced seven straight Paducah turnovers in the final quarter enabling them to tie the game at 59-59 with 4:53 left in the game.

Paducah had ample opportunity to win the game in the final minute when Morton shooters missed five consecutive free throws that would have put the game out of reach. But the Indians somehow managed to control the offensive rebound on three of the five misses and forced Paducah to turn the ball over on the other two misses.

Dragon center Will Flemons helped his team build a ten point lead late in the second quarter with 16 first half points, but the Indians closed the gap with a furious last minute rally to trail only 37-36 at halftime. Flemons ended with a team high 22 points.

Morton center Jerry Joyce keyed the fourth quarter Indian rally with eight of his team-high 22 points.

Stan Burns was the only other Paducah player in double figures with 19 points. The Dragons finished the season at 30-3.

Nystrom ousts Connors in Classic semis

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Fifth-seeded Joakim Nystrom of Sweden ousted second-seeded Jimmy Connors 6-4, 6-2 Saturday to advance into the final of the $405,000 Pilot Pen Classic men's tennis tournament.

Nystrom will meet fourth-seeded Yannick Noah of France in Sunday's final at the La Quinta Hotel and Tennis Club. Noah struggled past fellow Frenchman Thierry Tulasne 6-2, 6-7, 7-5 Saturday in the tournament's other semifinal.

The winner of Sunday's final will earn $55,250, with the runnerup pocketing $27,625.

Connors was up a service break, leading 3-2 in the first set. But his erratic play allowed Nystrom to break back in the sixth game and then score the decisive service break in the 10th and final game.

In the second set, both players held serve for four games before Nystrom reeled off the next four games to take the match.

"I tried to play to his forehand and he made a lot of mistakes," Nystrom said. "I was lucky to break him and I was back in the match."

Connors said that it wasn't his erratic forehand but Nystrom's strong baseline game that was his undoing.

"He hits the ball well and has control," Connors said. "It was difficult to come in. The ball was landing three or four feet from the baseline and I couldn't come in Big Spring High School golfer Jeff Rhodes sends his putt toward the cup during second round action of the Big Spring Invitational Golf Tournament at Comanche Trail Municipal Golf Course Saturday. Rhodes recorded a fine round of 79 for the day leading the Steers to a 13th place finish out of 24 teams.

Wylie captures BS Invitational

The Abilene Wylie Bulldogs won the Big Spring Invitational Golf Tournament by 21 strokes over second place finisher, and defending champion Abilene Cooper, with a two-day total 625 Saturday at Comanche Trail Municipal Golf Course.

The Bulldogs were led by tournament medalist Paul Sissell, who took first place honors with rounds of 78 in the first round played at the Big Spring Country Club course, and 73 at Comanche Trail, for a 151 total. Teammate Lance Howard placed second in the medalist standings with rounds of 79 at BSCC and 75 at Comanche Trail for a two day total 154.

Abilene Cooper had a two day total 646 while Odessa Permian captured third place with a team total 656.

Big Spring finished 13th overall for the tournament with an 897 total for the two days. Chris Sims led the Steers with rounds of 81 and 82 for a 163 total. Jeff Rhodes was next with rounds of 87 and 79 for a 166 total.

Mark Crouch was next in for the Steers with rounds of 90 and 86 for a 176 total. Mike Porch fired rounds of 94 and 87 for a 181 total. Steven Ross shot a 111 for the first round but had to withdraw in the second round.

Snook ends Nazareth reign

AUSTIN (AP) — Six-foot Connie Cole scored 26 points and grabbed 10 rebounds Saturday as Snook upset Nazareth 36-33 for the Class A girls' state basketball championship.

Nazareth was seeking its ninth title since its first tournament appearance in 1976.

It was the first championship for Snook, which lost in the semifinals in 1978 and also last year to Nazareth by 18 points.

Snook led 32-23 after three quarters but committed eight turnovers under relentless defensive pressure in the final period as Nazareth closed to 34-33 with 33 seconds left in the game.

Heiman, a 1985 all-tournament player like Cole, was held to 11 points, half her average but still making her top scorer for Nazareth.

Only two other players besides Cole scored for Snook. Charlotte Benford had 6 points and Rhonda Thomas 4.

Snook finished with a 28-4 season record, and Nazareth 28-5.

ABERNATHY 51, ROGERS 42

AUSTIN (AP) — Phoebe Dunn scored 16 points and defensive star Mary Cooper added 10 Saturday as Abernathy won its fifth state girls' basketball title, defeating Rogers 51-42 in the Class 2A final.

Abernathy took control of the game early in the second quarter after Rogers led 15-14 at the end of the first period.

Dunn, who was All-Tournament last year when Abernathy lost in the finals, scored 12 points in the first half and used her defensive skill in the second half to shut down Rogers' high-scorer, Keyla Faglie.

Faglie had 14 points by halftime but could only manage four more after intermission.

Mikki Webb also scored 10 points for Abernathy, which won state championships in 1958-59, 1981 and 1984.

Shirley Schiller had 13 rebounds and eight points for Rogers before fouling out with 16 seconds left in the game.

Abernathy's victory pushed its season record to 28-5. Rogers, a semifinalist in 1975 and 1979, fell to 30-6.

LEVELLAND 44, A&M CONSOLIDATED 43

Levelland's Terri Meyer hit two free throws with 1:11 left in overtime and College Station A&M Consolidated's Voccia Calhoun missed one with six seconds left Saturday as Levelland eked out a 44-43 victory and the Class 4A title in the girls state high school basketball tournament.

Calhoun had hit two free throws with eight seconds left in regulation to pull A&M Consolidated into a 42-42 tie and send the game into overtime.

The Tigers, losing only their second game in 33, held a 10-point halftime lead, but the Lobosetties went on a 16-4 rampage in the third quarter, led by Kristi Schonstedt's six points and two steals. That gave Levelland a two-point edge going into the final eight minutes.

Dailene Terrell led the Lobosetties, 32-2, with 12 points and nine rebounds, followed by Kim Cavanaugh with 10 points.

Meyer finished the game with eight points, six of them from the free throw line.

Gwen Thomas was high scorer for the Tigers with 12. Nelda Roy added 10 points and 12 rebounds.

In its last state tournament appearance, Levelland lost in the finals to Waco Richfield in 1984. A&M Consolidated was making its first appearance in the tournament.

SOUR LAKE 72, INGLESIDE 53

Freshman Yatisha Basha scored 19 points and the other four starters for Sour Lake Hardin Jefferson also were in double figures Saturday as the Hawks defeated Ingleside 72-53 for the Class 3A girls' state basketball championship.

Hardin Jefferson, starting two freshmen and three sophomores, ran off 14 unanswered points within four minutes of the second quarter to overcome a 16-15 Ingleside lead.

Jones scored 13 for Hardin Jefferson, her sister Antionette had 12, Stephanie Edwards had 14 and Latanyia Fontenot, 10.

Hardin Jefferson's defense forced 21 Ingleside turnovers, which the Hawks turned into 24 points.

Lisa McKittrick, a 6-foot-2 senior, tallied 21 points for Ingleside and tied with teammate Nina Perez for the most rebounds with 11 each.

Hardin Jefferson's first girls' basketball title climaxed a 33-4 season. Ingleside finished at 32-3.

Cece Kern (14) of Nazareth loses her balance as she backed off from Cindy Blake of Snook in action from their Class A championship game at the schoolgirl basketball tournament in Austin Saturday. Snook won 36-33.

VICTORIA 57, TYLER LEE 44

AUSTIN (AP) — Tisha Boldt and Glynnia Alkek scored 15 points apiece to lead Victoria to a 57-44 victory over Tyler Lee Saturday night to take the Class 5A title at the girls' state high school basketball tournament. The victory marked the Stingers' fifth state title, a record for 5A, and the third title for coach Jan Lahodny.

Lee trailed by 11 points, 43-32, at the end of the third quarter, but cut Victoria's lead to five, 43-38, on Lisa Dark's layup with 4:40 left to play.

Victoria finished its season at 33-3, while Lee finished at 30-2.

Ellenberger awaits return to coaching ranks

By PETE HERRERA

AP Sports Writer

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — On the surface, the last six years have been kind to Norm Ellenberger, who has found that time can be an accommodating companion.

His hairline is a little higher and thinner, but his tan remains constant. There is less anger in his voice because of the past, but there is no less determination to overcome it.

And the former New Mexico basketball coach who once was as much a public figure in the state as the governor, speaks of returning to the sport with the intensity of a father's love for his only child.

"There is an ever present burning deep inside because I loved it so much," said Ellenberger, who spends his energy these days working 16-hour days at his new Albuquerque restaurant, Stormin' Norman's.

For Ellenberger, his love of basketball turned overly zealous in the summer and fall of 1979.

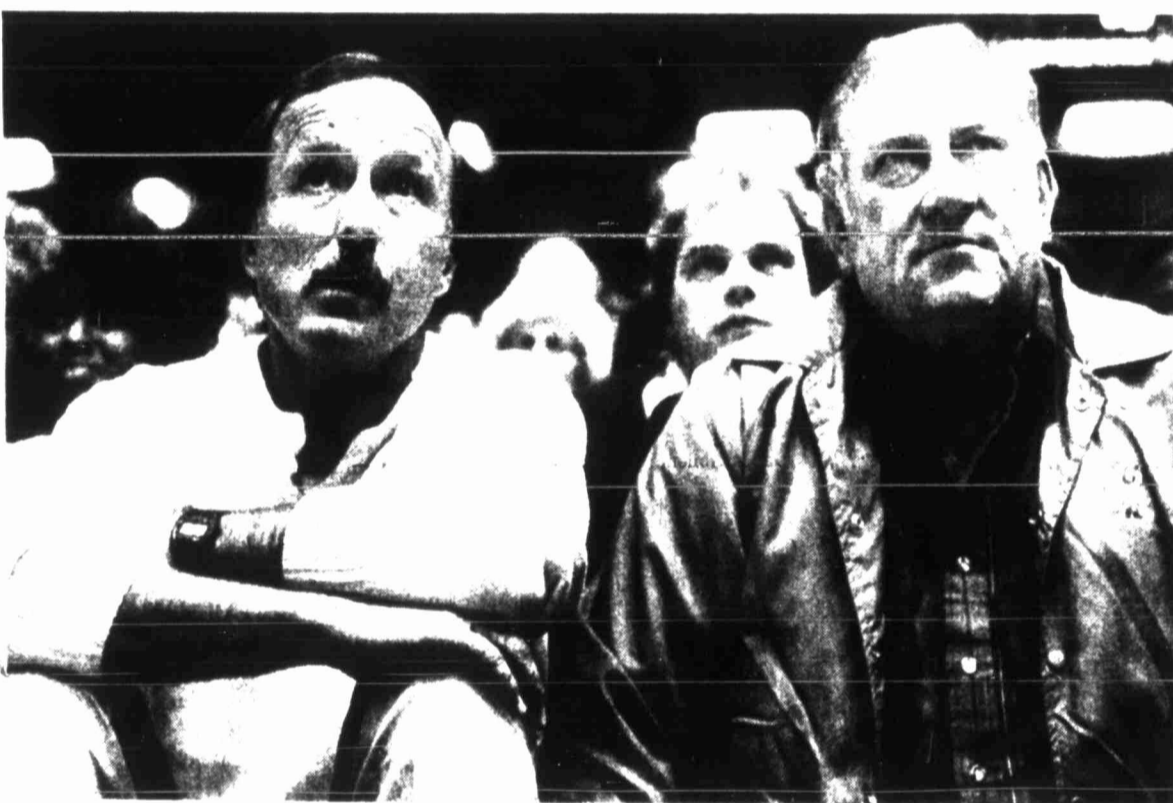

Coming off the school's fourth straight winning season and a year and a half removed from the school's most successful year — a 24-4 record and top 10 national ranking — Ellenberger and his staff set out to, as he often put it, "reload" the Lobos.

The problem was some of the recruits had too many academic blanks.

On the eve of the team's first road trip of the 1979-80 season, Ellenberger's coaching career at New Mexico came to an abrupt end.

An FBI wiretap had uncovered evidence that the academic transcripts of several of the players had been altered to ensure their enrollment at the university.

Ellenberger and his chief

recruiter, Manny Goldstein, lost their jobs, nine players were ruled ineligible and the program that had traditionally ranked among the nation's best in home attendance had to hold public tryouts to fill a team.

Ellenberger spent much of the next two summers in courtrooms, defending himself against federal and state charges resulting from the recruiting scandal.

Technically, he went 1-1 with the legal system.

A jury in Roswell acquitted him of seven federal counts of mail fraud, wire fraud and interstate travel in aid of racketeering.

But a jury in Albuquerque convicted him on 21 state counts of fraud and filing false public vouchers. The presiding judge at the state trial, however, chose not to impose a jail sentence, choosing instead to place Ellenberger on one year of unsupervised probation.

Since the end of the legal battles in the summer of 1981, Ellenberger's business interests have run from a racquetball club to restaurants, but inevitably, he seems always to find his way back to a basketball arena.

He coached a women's pro basketball team known as the Albuquerque Energie during its brief existence, and spent two seasons as coach of the former Continental Basketball Association-member Albuquerque Silvers.

And he has become a fixture in the crowd at University of New Mexico home games, occupying a seat about a 15-foot jumper away from where he once patrolled the home team's sideline.

Players plan challenge to Ueberroth's suspensions

NEW YORK (AP) — Keith Hernandez of the New York Mets said Saturday a grievance will be filed in an attempt to overturn Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's player suspensions, but Dale Berra of the New York Yankees said he won't challenge the decision.

They were two of the 11 players hit Friday with conditional suspensions by Ueberroth as a result of past drug involvement. Those players and 10 others were told that if they accepted the commissioner's decision they would be subject to spot drug-testing for the rest of their major-league careers. "I don't know yet what we will do and won't know for several days at the earliest," Don Fehr, executive director of the Players Association, said Saturday. "On Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, we'll be discussing the situation with the players and their agents and asking for additional information from the commissioner."

He said the union would not initiate individual grievances without the players' permission. "We advise, consult and recommend, but in the last analysis it's his decision."

On Friday Fehr had said: "It is important to note... that while the commissioner has lumped the players into several groups, each player's case must be reviewed on its own merits and all decisions must be based on the specific facts."

The union already is actively contesting the drug-testing clauses unilaterally placed in multiyear contracts.

Ueberroth on Saturday said, "I think the players association will cooperate in the end."

"Everybody involved with baseball wants to get this problem out of our game," the commissioner said in an ABC-TV interview from Hanover, N.H. "We owe it to the fans and we owe to the parents of kids across this country..."

"Almost all the baseball players playing baseball today are clean, and they're tired of drugs, and they're tired of being labeled with this thing and they want to get it behind them."

When Bowie Kuhn, Ueberroth's predecessor, slapped one-year, drug-related suspensions on several players — albeit without the "buy-out" conditions offered by Ueberroth — an arbitrator reduced some of the suspensions to a few weeks.

Under Ueberroth's ruling Saturday, Hernandez, Berra, Joaquin Andujar, Dave Parker, Lonnie Smith, Enos Cabell and Jeff Leonard — labeled by the commissioner as players "involved in a prolonged pattern of drug use" or distribution — were told they will be suspended for all of 1986 unless each:

- Donates 10 percent of his base salary to a drug-abuse prevention center or program in his team's city.

- Contributes 100 hours of drug-related community service in each of the next two years, and

- Participates in random drug testing by the commissioner's office as long as each plays professional baseball.

Monetarily, it means a cost of as much as $135,000 (Hernandez) or as little as $45,000 (Cabell) to the seven players most severely punished.

Al Holland, Claudell Washington, Lee Lacy and Larry Sorensen, "engaged in more limited use or involvement with drugs," Ueberroth said, can avoid 60-day suspensions if they donate 5 percent of their salaries to drug-abuse programs, contribute 50 hours of community service each year and accept random testing.

"I kept trying to come back to what was fair," Ueberroth explained. "I did not want to take the players out of the game. Instead, I would let them give back to the area of society that caused their problems."

Most of the players named by Ueberroth were either unavailable for comment or declined to discuss the matter. Parker, who had said Friday he would conduct a news conference Saturday, called it off "on advice of his counsel," a Cincinnati Reds official said. Parker brushed past newsmen and photographers at the Reds' Tampa, Fla., training camp.

On Friday he told the Pittsburgh Press: "I have never heard of a fine levied that large, anywhere, in any industry," a reference to the estimated $87,500 he would have to donate to drug-prevention, "and there are people who have committed far more serious crimes."

"I have no problem doing community work. I was doing those things long before we went into court. And I have agreed to do the drug testing. But I've never heard of a fine levied for as much as that."

Illinois stuns Georgia Tech, 59-57

ATLANTA (AP) — Efreem Winters broke a tie with a 13-footer from the right baseline with 31 seconds remaining to give Illinois a 59-57 victory over fourth-ranked Georgia Tech in college basketball Saturday.

The Yellow Jackets had several chances to tie it, but Bruce Dalrymple missed a 12-footer and Duane Ferrell was off the mark on a tip with about 10 seconds to go.

Then, after Illinois' Tony Wysinger failed on a one-and-one free throw opportunity with eight seconds remaining, Dalrymple missed a driving reverse layup at the buzzer.

The Illini, 20-8, overcame a 10-point deficit in the final 10 minutes behind the scoring of Wysinger and Ken Norman.

John Salley's two consecutive dunks at the end of a 10-0 Tech run put the Yellow Jackets in front 45-35 with 11:21 remaining. Wysinger started the Illinois comeback on a 15-footer from the free throw line with 9:40 to play.

Illinois drew even at 49-49 as Wysinger scored eight points in a 14-4 run before Norman's 10-footer put the Illini up by two with 5:35 left.

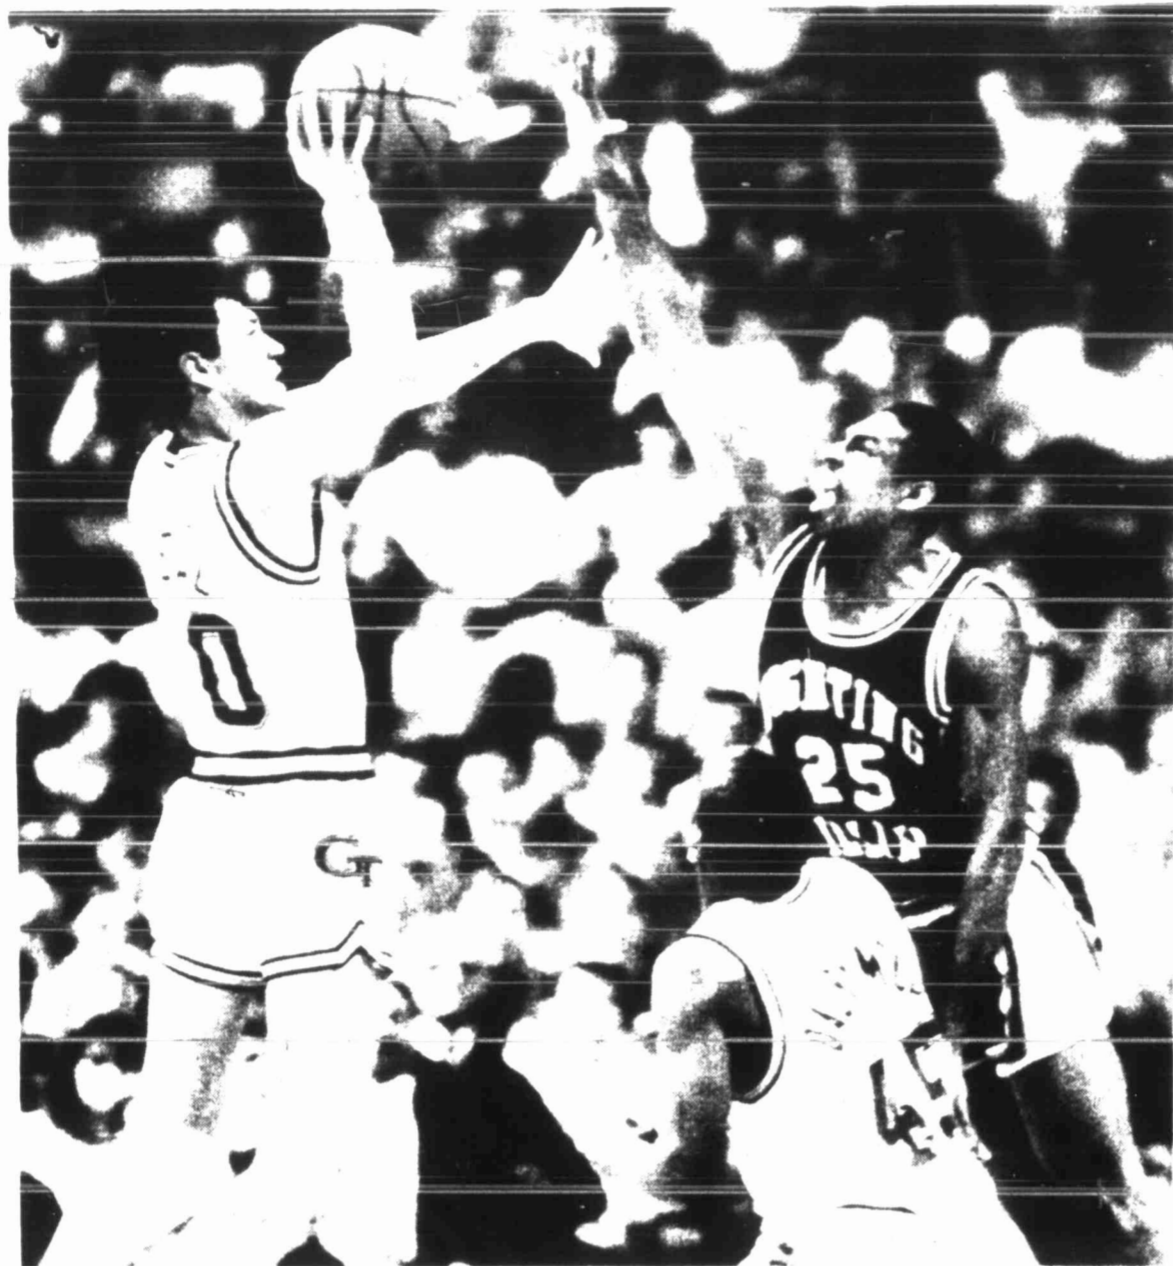

Norman had two baskets for Illinois, offset by Tech scores by Mark Price, Salley and Tom Hammonds that left the game deadlocked at 55 with 2:19 remaining.

Glynn Blackwell put Illinois ahead 57-55 on an 18-footer from the left corner with 1:11 to go and Price tied it again with 14 seconds later when he hit from the deep left corner, setting up Winters' game-winner.

Norman led Illinois with 17 points, Wysinger had 14 and Winters 10.

Price and Salley each had 14 for Tech, 22-5.

NOTRE DAME 74, MARQUETTE 66

Illinois forward Bruce Douglas (25) goes up to block a shot by Georgia Tech's Craig Neal (10) during the first of Saturday's NCAA game in Atlanta's Omni. Illinois went on to upset the fourth-ranked Yellow Jackets.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Mark Stevenson scored 16 of his 18 points in the second half to lead a Notre Dame comeback as the 12th-ranked Fighting Irish defeated Marquette 74-66 Saturday in non-conference basketball.

Stevenson, a 6-foot-5 freshman guard, scored eight points in a key run at the beginning of the second half that brought Notre Dame back into the game after trailing at halftime.

Stevenson's last two points gave Notre Dame a 67-61 lead with 2:08 left in the game.

David Rivers converted seven of eight free throws in the final minute to sew up the game as the Fighting Irish improved to 21-5.

Marquette, led by Kerry Trotter with 16 points, dropped to 17-9.

Marquette, trying for an NCAA tournament at-large bid, led all the way in the first half and went into intermission with a 34-27 edge.

But Notre Dame, down by as many as 13 points in the first half, used a 12-3 streak at the beginning of the second half to take its first lead of the game 39-37 with 15:25 remaining.

The game was tied 54-54 with 7:30 remaining, and Notre Dame led 63-58 with 3:17 left.

OKLAHOMA 72, N. CAROLINA ST. 69

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Tim McCalister's jump shot from the left wing with 34 seconds remaining — his only field goal in seven second-half tries — carried 14th-ranked Oklahoma to a 72-69 college basketball victory over No. 18 North Carolina State Saturday.

After McCalister's shot gave the Sooners a 71-69 lead, teammate Darryl Kennedy deflected a pass by Bennie Bolton that Oklahoma recovered. McCalister then made one of two free throws with :08 showing to ice the victory.

The Big Eight Conference

Sooners, who ended a three game losing streak, improved to 24-6. North Carolina State, of the Atlantic Coast Conference, fell to 18-11.

Oklahoma led by one at the half, 45-44, thanks to a 12-6 run in the final 3:40. The Sooners widened it to nine, 64-55, with 11:22 remaining in the game on a shot by Chuck Watson.

Kennedy, who finished with a 21 points, scored nine as Oklahoma outscored the Wolfpack 19-11 in the first 8:38 after intermission.

North Carolina State fought back behind Nate McMillan and Chris Washburn, eventually taking a 69-67 lead on a Washburn slam with 3:53 left.

UTEP 78, HAWAII 66

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Dave Feitl scored 18 points Saturday to lead Texas-El Paso to a 78-66 victory over Hawaii that puts the Miners in a tie for the Western Athletic Conference lead.

El Paso, now tied with Wyoming for WAC's first place, finished its season at 24-5 overall and 12-4 in the conference. This is El Paso's fourth consecutive year to finish first in the WAC.

Hawaii, which was led by Kenny Walker's game-high 22 points, finished its season at 4-23 and 1-15.

The Rainbows jumped out front with two quick baskets after the game started, but the Miners tied and controlled play from then on.

At halftime, Texas-El Paso commanded a 35-42 lead, and Hawaii trailed by as many as 17 points during the second half.

Also in double figures for UTEP were Juden Smith with 16 points, Tim Hardaway with 11, Jeep Jackson with 11, Mike Richmond with 10.

Former big Spring High School star Jerald Wrightsil added 13 points to the losing Rainbow effort.

Pro sports enact tougher drug policies

A Capsule Look at the anti-drug policies and programs in major-league sports:

BASEBALL

Baseball has had no drug program since October 1985, when the club owners unilaterally withdrew from their agreement with the Players Association, contending the program was ineffective. The union filed a grievance with the National Labor Relations Board.

Last November, Commissioner Peter Ueberroth called on players to submit to a program of voluntary testing. The plea was generally ignored until clubs began including testing clauses in long-term contracts — a move that seems to have gained widespread acceptance among the players themselves.

The abrogated joint drug program, agreed to by players and management on May 1, 1984, had established amnesty from disciplinary action for any player who voluntarily sought help for a drug problem. A three-member panel, including at least two doctors, also could have been called upon by clubs for help in counseling or seeking out players with suspected drug problems.

Players treated under the program could have been placed in a probationary period following treatment, during which they could have been tested for drugs and subject to further therapy.

Players not covered by the amnesty included those convicted of or pleading guilty to drug-related charges, either possession or distribution; players found to have distributed drugs to other players, and players disciplined once who are found to be involved with drugs again.

Under the agreement, penalties usually were meted out at the discretion of the commissioner, but some mandatory penalties had been set forth. Conviction in a drug-related crime, distribution of drugs, or drug use at the ballpark, for instance, carried a minimum suspension of one year with a maximum penalty of a permanent ban.

FOOTBALL

NFL

Under the Collective Bargaining Agreement between the National Football League and the Players Association, players may be tested during the season only if the team doctor feels there is "reasonable cause" to suspect a drug problem. Players are required undergo urinalysis as part of their mandatory pre-season physical. The Players Association is disputing claims by NFL teams that they may include drug testing as part of post-season physicals.

Gene Upshaw, executive director of the Players Association, says NFL players would support a drug program in which first-time offenders would receive full or partial pay while rehabilitating before being allowed to regain their position on the roster. A second-time offender would receive no pay during rehabilitation and a third-time offender would be suspended.

The existing drug program involves education, rehabilitation, discipline and confidentiality. Clubs and the NFL both conduct drug education sessions. Representing the league are Charlie Jackson, one of its security officials, plus law enforcement authorities. Upshaw speaks to players, and many of the teams have their own drug programs; former running back Calvin Hill, for instance, is a team drug counselor for the Cleveland Browns.

Players with problems are encouraged to volunteer for help. Teams will then send them to outside rehabilitation centers at team expense.

Repeat offenders or players in trouble with the law because of drugs risk suspension or other disciplinary action.

USFL

The newest of America's major pro sports leagues, the 3-year-old United States Football League, says it accepts "the responsibility for maintaining an image that safeguards the League's integrity and credibility as a professional organization," and has a policy to suspend any player caught using illegal drugs.

Anyone found trafficking in narcotics would be expelled from the USFL. Any player who voluntarily admits a drug problem is exempt from punishment under USFL rules and is eligible for help under a League-sponsored substance abuse program.

HOCKEY

The National Hockey League handles each drug case individually, with a League investigation and a decision by Commissioner John Zeigler regarding punishment. How the courts handle a particular case seems to have little impact on the League's action.

For instance, in 1984 Rik Natress of the Montreal Canadiens was caught with a small amount of marijuana and was fined by the courts but was suspended for a full season by Zeigler, who later changed the suspension to 30 games. Don Murdoch was suspended for a season for cocaine possession a few years ago but also had it shortened, to a half-season.

NHL security forces tour all training camps and explain the League policy on drugs and where to go for help. The League has no set procedures for drug rehabilitation.

Zeigler has said he will hand out severe punishment for any drug involvement by players, coaches, management, trainers — anyone connected with a team.

BASKETBALL

Any National Basketball Association player who is convicted of, or pleads guilty to, a crime involving the use or distribution of heroin or cocaine would be permanently barred from the League.

Under the "illegal use" provision, an independent expert in the field of drug abuse prevention would review information made available to the NBA or the players association.

Any player who voluntarily comes forward to seek treatment of a drug problem will be provided with counseling and medical treatment, at the club expense, with no penalty imposed.

A player who, after previously requesting and receiving treatment for a drug problem, comes forward a second time to seek such treatment would be suspended without pay during the treatment but receive no further penalty. Any subsequent drug use, even if voluntarily disclosed, would result in immediate permanent dismissal.

The barred player may, after a two-year period, apply for reinstatement and may return to active duty in the NBA only upon approval of both the League and the Players Association.

REMEMBER

ALAMO!

SAN ANTONIO—Tourists visit the Alamo in downtown San Antonio site of the March 6, 1836 dawn assault by Santa Anna and his army. Today, Texans are remembering the Alamo as the place where their ancestors began a short and bloody fight for independence from Mexico.

By SHEILA ALLEE
Associated Press Writer

Candles will be lit at the Alamo in San Antonio for its 188 defenders who were wiped out by a Mexican army 150 years ago, as Texans honor their courage in the fight for Texas independence.

The Alamo "has become a symbol of standing up for what you believe and fighting for it," said Bill Green, Capitol historian in Austin.

History books are rife with legends of what happened during the 13-day siege at the mission here, legends about how Davy Crockett, Col. Jim Bowie, William Travis and the others at the Alamo fought precious time against Gen. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna's army.

Almost two months after the Alamo's fall, the Texas army defeated Mexican troops at San Jacinto. That victory sealed the Texans' declaration of independence signed at Washington-on-the-Brazos March 2, 1836.

Texas remained a republic until 1845 when it became a state, the only one of 50 to function for any length of time as a republic.

Bells will peal throughout the state at noon today to celebrate 150 years of independence. Vice President George Bush is scheduled to appear today at the Alamo and in Dallas, and Gov. Mark White is to speak at Washington-on-the-Brazos, northwest of Houston.

On Thursday, the anniversary of the Alamo's March 6 fall, "A Dawn at the Alamo" ceremony will commemorate Santa Anna's final bloody attack on the Roman Catholic mission. One candle will be lit for each defender who died.

Later in the day, delegations from 21 states and four nations, representing the native lands of the various Alamo defenders, will post sesquicentennial flags in Alamo Plaza across from the shrine. The final Alamo battle will be re-enacted March 8 at Alamo Village in Brackettville, where John Wayne's movie, "The Alamo," was filmed.

After Thursday's ceremonies, White and Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander will participate in a tree-planting ceremony in the Alamo's Cavalry Courtyard in remembrance of Crockett and the 33 Tennessee volunteers who died in the siege.

Fewer than 10 of the 188 martyrs were from Texas. Most came from the South, lured by the spirit of the Texans' stand against Mexico, and several were from England, Scotland, Ireland, Denmark and Germany.

"Gallantry of itself in battle is worthless, until its results may be assessed," historian T.R. Fehrenbach wrote in "Lone Star," his story about the origins and development of Texas.

Fehrenbach details the defense mounted by Travis, the Alamo commander, and the others, concluding that they did not die in vain.

"Travis to begin with had given Anglo-Texas twelve precious days," he wrote. "The five-hour engagement on March 6 extended his country several weeks. These were weeks without which Anglo-Texas could not have survived.

"Damage to the soul of Santa Anna's army," he said, would only be revealed later.

The turmoil that led to the battle at the Alamo had its roots in Mexico's own freedom from Spanish dominance.

Mexico established a republic in 1824 and required the Anglos moving into Texas to become Mexican citizens. The pioneers also were required to embrace Catholicism. Most of the new Texans were Protestants and defensive of the religious freedoms they enjoyed in the United States.

Turmoil in the Mexican government, cultural tensions between the Mexicans and Texans and other problems mounted until armed confrontations began.

In early 1836, Santa Anna moved troops into Texas and arrived in San Antonio on Feb. 23, when the Alamo siege began.

The defenders sent out persistent pleas for reinforcements, but got little help. They held off Mexican troops, who numbered 4,000 by March 6, for 13 days before Santa Anna began the final assault.

Legend has it that when Travis realized the Alamo was doomed, he called his troops to a meeting.

He is said to have informed them that none likely would survive. He then, the story says, drew a line on the ground and urged those who would stay to the end to cross it with him.

All but one crossed the line. Among the loyal was Bowie, who had become ill with typhoid-pneumonia. He had his cot carried across the line.

There was no mention of the "draw the line" story until nearly 40 years after the fall of the Alamo, said Green, curator for the "Remembering the Alamo" exhibit at the Witte Museum in San Antonio. The 1873 Texas Almanac carried the first account of the Travis challenge.

The story is not as important "as what people thought happened," he said. "It has inspired people" through the years.

Santa Anna, whose forces sustained about 600 casualties at the Alamo, ordered the bodies of the defenders burned. Texans viewed the bloody massacre and the burning as barbaric.

Then, three weeks later at Goliad, Santa Anna ordered the mass executions of about 300 men captured in another battle.

By the time Gen. Sam Houston met Santa Anna at San Jacinto on April 26, the Texans "were so mad" they could have won with half the men they had," Green said. The 1986 Texas Almanac estimates Houston had about 900 troops, while Santa Anna had between 1,100 and 1,300.

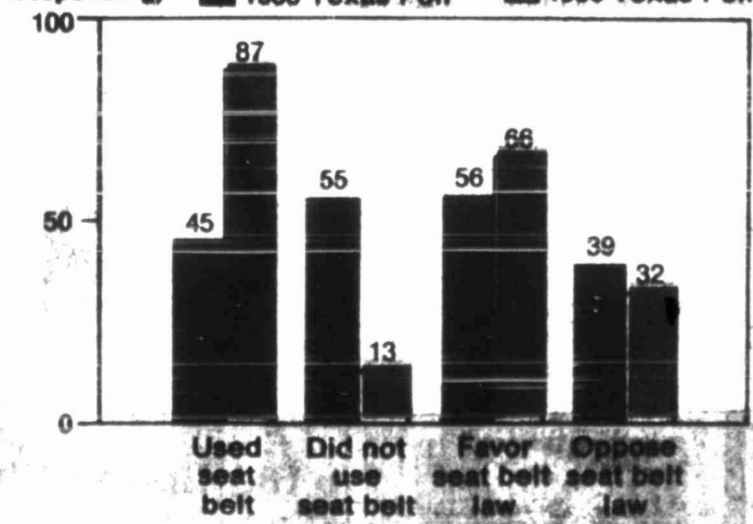

Houston's army won the battle quickly, killing 600 Mexicans and wounding or capturing hundreds more.

The Republic of Texas was thus assured.

More Texans use seat belts, support new seat belt law

Q. Thinking about the last time you got into a car, did you use a seat belt or not?
Q. A law that fines people $25 to $50 for not wearing a seat belt in the car went into effect recently. Do you favor or oppose this law?

More Texans are buckling up

By KATHY CASTEEL
Harte-Hanks News Service

Texans are twice as likely to "buckle up" since the state seat belt law went into effect last year, the winter Texas Poll shows.

An overwhelming 87 percent of those surveyed told interviewers they used a seat belt the last time they got into a car, up from 45 percent who said so six months ago.

Approval of the law also has increased in the last six months. Two-thirds of Texans now favor the law, compared to 56 percent who approved last July.

Since Sept. 1, it has been mandatory for all drivers and front-seat passengers in Texas to wear seat belts. A three-month grace period ended Dec. 1, and violators now face a $25-$50 fine.

The turnaround in seat-belt use is tied directly to the new law. Most Texans (70 percent) said they are using their seat belts more since the law went into effect. Less than one-fifth of Texans (18 percent) said the law had made no difference in their seat-belt use, while only 11 percent said it made no difference because they always wore seat belts. A similar study last July gave compliance rates of 6 percent to 18 percent.

Although telephone survey reporting may overestimate seat-belt usage, the dramatic change in Texas Poll figures between now and last summer indicates a major change in behavior has occurred among Texans.

Because the State Board of Insurance assumes seat-belt use will reduce injuries and deaths on the road, auto insurance rates were cut an average of 5.1 percent effective Feb. 1. The board uses a minimum standard of 65 percent compliance in calculating auto insurance rates.

The insurance industry, pointing to its own survey figures, isn't satisfied.

"It's not a foregone conclusion that rates will go up," says Magruder. "But if we can't keep (the seat-belt use) rate above 65 percent, rates probably will go up."

According to DPS records, the new law, and the tremendous increase in those obeying it, has reduced deaths and serious injuries of auto and truck front-

The percentage of Texans using seat belts has been a point of contention by automobile insurance agencies in the state. Observations on interstates in nine Texas cities last December by the Washington-based Insurance Institute for Highway Safety indicated compliance rates of 42 percent to 64 percent, says Mary Jo Magruder of the Insurance Information Institute. Between September and December of 1985, 460 people died in auto or truck collisions, 18 percent fewer than the same period in 1984. Serious injuries were down by 4 percent.

The Texas poll surveyed 1,000 Texans by telephone between Jan. 24 and Feb. 6. Results may vary by up to 3 percentage points in either direction because of sampling error. The poll is sponsored by Harte-Hanks Communications Inc. and is conducted by the Public Policy Resources Laboratory at Texas A&M University.

"When you're on a diet, you need a reason to keep going. Losing 5 lbs. in 3 days was reason enough for me."
Tammy Rogers

"Looking at that scale three days later and seeing I was already five pounds lighter was all the motivation I needed. So far, I've lost 20 pounds and I'll tell you, there's just no stopping me now."

One reason it's been so easy is because I almost don't feel like I'm on a diet. The food's great. In fact, it's so great, even my kids want to eat it.

Because of Nutri/System and their Sure Start Program, I've not only lost weight, I've gained confidence.

➡ And that's something I don't ever plan to lose."

The new Sure Start™ Accelerated Weight Loss Program, exclusively from Nutri/System.

As people vary, so does an individual's weight loss.

TAX RETURN FILING

(Get other benefits)

With the new year comes the often unpleasant task of filing your income tax return. This is an excellent time to analyze your overall financial picture.

Many of us wish we could take the time to review our investments, check on our insurance, improve our record system, and check to see that our financial decisions are sound.

Tax return filing season gives you an opportunity to raise the questions you may have put off in reference to real estate investing or tax shelter analysis. Accountants are willing and qualified to assist you in reviewing your tax and financial questions. The more questions you ask and the more you learn about business and general tax concepts, the better equipped you become to ask profitable questions of your accountant.

If you're running a small business, perhaps you have questions about the use of computers in your business. Maybe you have questions about business expansion, or equipment lease versus buy decisions, or inventory controls, or employee pension and profit sharing plans.

Whether you're filing a very simple income tax return or a more complicated business return, you should take a few extra minutes to question your accountant about all these other very important financial concerns. Accountants handle a great variety of business and financial transactions. They make very good sounding boards. If your questions fall outside the area of expertise of your accountant, he/she will direct you to other professionals for assistance.

You may never enjoy filing your income tax return, but at least you can look forward to a profitable annual review of all your other financial concerns.

Dr. Donohue

Exercise has three goals

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I ride an exercise bike for 20 or 30 minutes a day. In order to achieve the greatest possible fat loss from my hips and thighs should I pedal with the bike tension on or off? What does one accomplish from free wheeling? Do you have to feel the tension to get the benefits? — A.R.

I think you are a prime candidate for my two-minute primer on aerobics. Exercise has three primary goals — cardiovascular fitness, muscle strengthening and weight reduction. How you go about exercise dictates which of these benefits you get.

Let's start with cardiovascular improvement; that's aerobics. You do it to improve the health of your heart and circulatory system. Roughly, it demands that you get your heart beating at a rate of at least 120 beats per minute for around 15 minutes at a time. You can easily figure whether pumping a tensionless bike is doing that. If it is not, then you are not getting those aerobic benefits.

Now let's look at muscle strengthening. That demands what is called "overload." You have to put increasing effort into your exercise if you want your muscles to get stronger. A person who pedals an exercise bike day in and day out, month in month out with the same tension level is not providing overload and is not improving musculature. That's why body builders keep adding weights to their barbells.

Finally, there is weight reduction. This involves expending more calories, either through food restriction or increased body activity. You spend more calories riding with tension on your pedals than without it.

So you have to ask yourself which of these exercise goals is desirable for you. Perhaps all three are important. And I can't let this go without making another point. If you believe you are losing those fat from your thighs just because you are moving them (with or without tension), you are mistaken. You will lose fat, but you will lose it in all places on the body where it's deposited. You will not lose it selectively in the areas being exercised.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: As a fellow physician I thought I'd pass on a bit of jogging trivia inspired by your recent reference to birds attacking joggers. You very likely came across the same bit of information that appeared in a recent issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Perhaps it is not so much the color of a jogger's suit that inspires aggressive behavior of birds (which you suggest) but use of caps that may be hiding the jogger's eyes from the birds' view. For example, it appears that birds tend to attack joggers from the rear because from that side the joggers' eyes are hidden from their view.

In the article mentioned a naturalist reported his experience with Australian magpies that had been pecking him during runs. He experimented with two artificial eyes attached to the back of his jogging cap. It seemed to work, but he could not vouch for the idea wholly since his experiment coincided with the end of that bird's mating season, another factor in timing of the "divebombing" episodes. — Dr. F.F.

Thanks. I did see the same item. The writer noted that the attacks seemed to subside when the runner's eyes were screened from overhead view. Perhaps others have tried this idea and will correspond.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I got my boy a knee brace for avoidance of injury in football. His coach quickly squelched the idea, saying it was illegal. What's your view of this? — P.K.

Braces are being worn by players in most levels of football to day, so I don't buy the illegality idea, unless it happened to be an unusual brace that posed some danger to other players.

The braces are not without controversy from other aspects, however. In one magazine I read conflicting reports — one that the braces reduced injury, one saying they didn't and, in fact, may even contribute to injuries. We'll have to wait for more studies to substantiate either claim. This coach may be putting himself behind an eight ball with his blanket denial of their use, however.

Millions of out-of-shape men and women desire fitness, but shy away from formal programs because they think it's all too complicated and difficult. Dr. Donohue's newest booklet, "Introduction to Fitness," puts the esoteric terminology of aerobics into plain language and offers a fitness program anyone, regardless of age, can adapt.

For a copy write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611. Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and $1.50.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Name change isn't easily said

DEAR ABBY: This is no joke, so please take it seriously and give me some advice. I am a single male, 33 years old. I was named Ray Jr. after my father (no middle name).

I never liked my name. All through school I wished I had a name I liked better.

Two years ago my father died, so last year I petitioned the court for a legal name change. I chose Michael.

Now for my problem. Nobody, but absolutely nobody, calls me Michael. I had copies made of my official name-change document and mailed them out to my friends and relatives requesting that they start calling me Michael. I even had my I.D., bank account, credit cards, etc. changed to Michael.

When I am addressed as Ray, I politely say, "I am not Ray anymore — I am Michael." I even refused to answer to Ray, but nobody takes me seriously; they just laugh and keep calling me Ray.

I am really upset over this. What should I do?

DEAR MICHAEL: To the friends and relatives who have always known you as Ray, it will be difficult for most and impossible for some to call you anything else. You can keep correcting them and hope they make an effort to accommodate you, but don't be disappointed if they don't. From now on, introduce yourself to new acquaintances as Michael, or relocate and assume a new identity.

DEAR ABBY: I have a solution for the problem of young children at weddings and receptions. Hold the wedding at night!

I recently attended a 400-guest wedding held at 7:30 p.m. on a Friday night, followed by an adult reception at a hotel with a loud band. It was great. No kids in sight. When I get married, I'm going to use the same game plan.

Can you honestly imagine anyone bringing a 3-year-old to a 9 p.m. reception?

DEAR JANICE: Yes. For a variety of reasons:

• "The sitter didn't show up and we didn't want to miss the wedding."

• "He's a very well-behaved child and we know he'd enjoy it."

• "There were a lot of relatives there who have never seen our child, and we wanted them to see him."

DEAR ABBY: I have two teenage grandchildren living in a distant city. They are fine children and a credit to their parents. I write to them quite often and they are very good about responding.

Quite by accident, I learned that their mother opens their mail and reads it before giving it to them. Isn't this an invasion of privacy?

Or don't children have any rights? I have no objections to her reading the letters I write to my grandchildren, but I think they should read them first. Please print your response.

DEAR GRANNY: Opening mail addressed to another is, indeed, an invasion of privacy. And, yes, children do have rights.

Parents have an obligation to protect their children against suspected drugs or pornographic material that might come through the mail, but obviously this is not a factor in the case of your grandchildren. Shame on their mother.

DEAR ABBY: In "Confidential to T.L. in Berkeley," you wrote that Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "The end of the human race will be that it will eventually die of civilization."

Uncivilization, yes — civilization, no! In his scholarly two-volume study, "Civilization and Ethics," first published in 1923, the late Dr. Albert Schweitzer wrote: "Our civilization is going through a severe crisis. Most people think that the crisis is due to war, but they are wrong. War, and everything connected with it, is only a phenomenon of the condition of uncivilization in which we find ourselves."

If anything kills us, Abby, it will be uncivilization.
