Oil price dip called transient

MIDLAND (AP) — Saudi Arabia will regain dominance of world oil production within five years, and the oil and gas industry will rebound, the president and chief executive officer of Halliburton Co. said.

By 1990 or 1991, the Saudis should be in a position to increase prices unilaterally because only they will have the production to meet increasing oil demand, Thomas Cruikshank told a meeting of the Permian Basin Oil and Gas Recovery Conference on Thursday. The Organization of Petroleum

Exporting Countries moved the oil industry away from the workings of the open market, the head of the well service said, adding that the recent return to market forces is painful but temporary.

Cruikshank said oil's price decline was almost inevitable. Saudi Arabia, in its efforts to prop up prices, had cut back production "to the point where it was disappearing," he explained.

He predicted that when the Saudis regain control of the market, they will inflate prices more slowly than in the 1970s — a move that won't encourage other countries to take extreme conservation measures, develop synthetic fuels or otherwise lessen their dependence on oil.

"The key now is to hang in there and be a survivor," said Cruikshank.

Falling prices are resulting in closure of stripper wells and less oil exploration, and soon could bring reduced production of Alaska North Slope crude, Cruikshank said. Consumption of petroleum products is likely to increase, he added.

"The forces we're talking about are those of supply and demand," he said.

Problems other than the Saudi actions face the oil sector, he said. Proposed tax changes would burden the industry with higher taxes and threaten "the survival of our industry," Cruikshank said.

And industries that consume a lot of oil and gas, such as the steel business, haven't benefited from the present national economic recovery, he said.

"Never have we been in the fourth year of what is highly fouted as an economic recovery with such a dearth of projects to expand the basic industrial capacity of the country," Cruikshank said.

Part of the problem stems from America's trade difficulties, resulting from a strong dollar and unfair trading practices by this country's trading partners, he said.

But a falling dollar and an increasing willingness to put pressure on those partners to bring about fairer relationships could help basic industries, Cruikshank suggested.

City grant moves one step closer

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Request for a grant to revitalize Big Spring's central business district and north corridor has passed its first major hurdle.

The Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Wednesday gave favorable review to a planning grant application by the city. The commission's stamp of approval clears the way for the grant being scrutinized by the Texas Department of Community Affairs in Austin, Main Street Director Teri Quinones said this morning.

Under the grant proposal penned by Quinones and city Administrative Assistant Pat Hardy, the TDCA would twice match local monies of $6,675 to fund a $20,000 study detailing economic and infrastructural needs on the northside, the central business district and the town's major thoroughfares, Quinones said.

"The planning grant, should it be awarded, would facilitate the master plan (for redevelopment)," she said. "The master plan would provide me with the technical assistance to implement downtown development."

The master plan also would determine which businesses lodged

Juveniles fuel burglary upswing in city

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer
First of two parts

It's a crime that touches hundreds of business, home, and automobile owners every year in Big Spring.

The crime is burglary and the number of victims is rising, according to police records.

Last year police investigated 577 burglaries, a 9 percent increase from 1984. Figures for break-ins this year were not available, but police say the number is substantial.

Police say the upswing in burglaries is fueled in part by a surge in juvenile crime. So far this year, 199 juveniles have been detained by police, 64 for felony charges that include burglary and major thefts, said police Lt. Jerry Edwards.

Of the last four burglary rings cleared by police, three involved children under 17, Edwards said.

"One of them had a juvenile as the ring leader," Edwards said. "It was a juvenile giving orders to older kids and two adults."

Local Juvenile Probation Officer

Margy Thompson said she detects an unsettling trend involving kids and crime. "I see more youths involved in more serious criminal activity, i.e. burglary of a habitation, burglary of a business, theft of an auto."

"It seems to me ... they've gone from stealing bicycles ... to more and more felony crimes," said police Det. Ray Meek.

And the reason for it? "Based on the kids I know, I think it has a lot to do with limited economic (conditions) in the home," Thompson said. "There's no money in most of these homes. Also, there's little or no supervision."

Meek and Edwards said they did not make the connection with economic background, but they agreed that lack of supervision was a major factor in youthful crime.

Kids in the fourth grade have been found out on the streets past 1 a.m., Edwards said, as he ruffled through a stack of reports dealing with young offenders. A lot of times, parents drop kids off at shopping centers or other areas of town thinking the kids are going to a movie or a friend's house. But, he said, often the kids end up roaming the streets, and some end up causing trouble.

"It's even been so bad that (shop owners) have ended up hiring officers to patrol just the shopping centers," Edwards said. "(Some of the parents) don't realize that some of these kids aren't mature enough to be wandering around at night."

Edwards said the city has been lucky so far that juveniles haven't been the victims of sexual or other

Lawmakers' trip linked to Contras aid request

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine Republican Congressmen left today on a hastily arranged trip to Nicaragua in the latest surprising development of the battle over President Reagan's request for U.S. military aid to the Nicaraguan rebels.

Two Democratic Congressmen, Reps. Nick Mavroulas of Massachusetts and Marilyn Lloyd of Tennessee, left Thursday night on a similar mission.

As the group departed at 7:45 a.m. from Andrews Air Force Base outside of Washington, Rep. Bob Walker, R-Pa., called the trip "a learning experience. I've never been to Nicaragua, never had a chance to talk to the Nicaraguan leadership. It can't hurt to learn."

The Republican group also included Dave Monson of Utah; Paul Henry of Michigan; Jim Kolbe of Arizona; Guy Molinari of New York; Bob Dornan of California; Barbara Vucanovich of Nevada; Thomas DeLay of Texas, and David Dreier of California.

Meanwhile, Pentagon sources, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said that if Congress approves Reagan's request, the Defense Department is prepared to have U.S. military advisers train the Contra rebels, who oppose the Sandinista government of Nicaragua. Such training is now banned.

Light rain breaks dry spell

Big Spring got brief relief from a dry winter with a light rain shower Thursday. The U.S. Agricultural Research Service in Big Spring recorded 0.03 of an inch precipitation.

This brings the yearly total to 0.33 of an inch, still far behind the 1.57 inches normal-to-date.

Tommy Hart of 1750 Purdue reported 0.2 of an inch.

Wendell Shive of Coahoma and Neil Fryar of Lomax, however, reported no rain.

The last precipitation in the area was 0.01 of an inch of snow Feb. 9, according to the field station.

Salvation Army plans new home

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The Salvation Army exceeded its capital campaign goal of $750,000 by almost $90,000 this year and will use the money for a new building, said vice chairman G.C. Broughton.

The army had its annual luncheon Thursday at the First United Methodist Church. Awards were given to individual and group volunteers, bell ringers, winners of the doll dressing contest, news media representatives and schools that collected the most canned goods for the Salvation Army's Christmas program.

An auction was held for the 14 winning dolls. Auctioneer Dub Bryant pitted elected officials and candidates against each other to buy the dolls.

The auction raised $1,200, said chairwoman Johnnie Lou Avery. The money will go to purchase 500 dolls for the next Christmas program, she said. Volunteers begin dressing the dolls in July.

A two-dimensional model of proposed building was on display at the luncheon. Avery said the building will be constructed two blocks south of the present building on land donated years ago by the Dora Roberts family. Bid requests are being sent out, she said.

The present Salvation Army building will be renovated and turned into a center for transients, she said. The new building will be a temporary crisis shelter.

Including furnishings, the new building will cost about $500,000, she said, and the additional money in the capital campaign will go toward renovating the old building.

The army also purchased the thrift store building for about $50,000 this year, she said. The building had previously been rented.

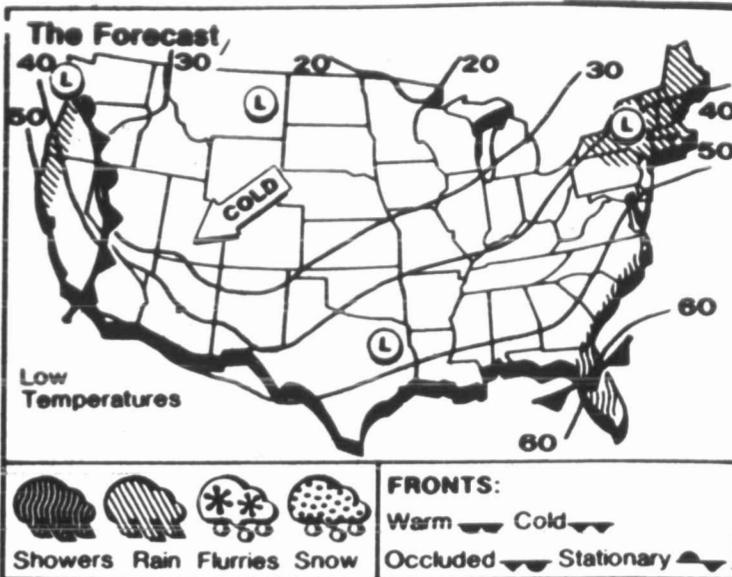

Board member Dock Voorhies said it was a very good year for the Christmas program. The army provided holiday dinners for 428 families, compared to 312 in 1984. The number of children receiving free toys rose from 716 to 916, and gifts from the Live Angel Tree rose from 321 to 338.

The army served 14,317 prepared meals to the needy and provided lodging for 2,238 transients and 1,407 residents. Emergency disaster services were provided to 376 individuals, including a fire at Cosden refinery and service to search for a missing elderly woman.

Johnnie Lou Avery, left, greets Rep. Larry Don Shaw at the Salvation Army luncheon Thursday. The dolls in the foreground were auctioned at the luncheon.

Sheriff's Log

Man held on drug charges

A truck driver was arrested Thursday night after a white powdery substance believed to be narcotics was found in his vehicle, said Department of Public Safety Trooper James Lasater.

The substance, found in a truck driven by John Eugene Gosnell, 34, of Riverdale, Ga., has been sent to the DPS laboratory in Midland for preliminary analysis, Lasater said.

Lasater said he pulled the truck over near the west roadside park of Interstate 20 near Big Spring when he saw a headlight out. A routine check on the driver revealed that he had outstanding warrants in other states, Lasater said.

Gosnell was arrested at 10:03 p.m. and his truck was impounded, Lasater said.

"We're going to charge him with possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana," Lasater said. "The white substance could be a cutting agent."

A passenger in the truck, Deborah Dianna Hollingsworth, 19, of Tulsa also was arrested for possession of a controlled substance.

Both were in custody this morning with no bonds posted for their release.

• Kerry Roberts of Route 1 Box 567C in Sand Springs told sheriff's deputies Thursday morning someone stole a check book from his pickup parked at his residence on Scout Hut Road.

• Howard Kloss told sheriff's deputies Thursday night someone stole a pistol from his pickup parked at his residence on Derrick Road sometime between Wednesday and Thursday.

The gun was valued at $500, according to a sheriff's report.

• Police transferred Henry Pascual, 18, of Elmwood, Ill., to county jail Thursday morning after he was arrested for possession of a controlled substance.

He was released on $500 bond.

• Police transferred Joseph R. Meyer, 26, of Evansville, Ind., to county jail Thursday morning after he was arrested for possession of a controlled substance. He remained in jail Friday morning in lieu of $5,000 bond.

• Midland County sheriff's deputies arrested Helen Ann Powell, 49, of Midland Thursday afternoon on a Howard County warrant charging her with issuing a bad check.

She was released after paying an outstanding debt and fine totaling $140.88.

• Deputies arrested Glenda Roberts, 20, of 2410 Runnels Thursday afternoon on a criminal mischief warrant. She was released on $500 bond.

• Police transferred James Earl Magers, 24, of 2911 W. Highway 80 to county jail Thursday night on a warrant charging him with possession of drug paraphernalia. He was released on a $2,000 bond.

Truck is stolen, recovered

Don Huff of Dawson Geophysical in Midland told police Thursday morning that someone stole a 1980 2½ ton truck from 2600 S. Gregg St. between 7 a.m. Monday and 7 a.m. Wednesday. The truck, valued at $12,000, was later recovered, according to police.

• Debra Bogard of Sterling City Route Box 109A told police Thursday morning that someone caused $82 damage to a window on her 1985 Honda Wednesday afternoon.

• Marciano Gracia of 1305 Kinzie St. told police Thursday night that someone shot holes in two tires causing $14 damage Thursday night outside his residence.

• Marcus Garza of 1401 W. Fifth St. told police someone stole a $30 jacket from his residence Thursday night.

• James Major, 24, of 2911 W. Highway 80 was arrested early this morning on suspicion of harboring a runaway.

• Two Shreveport, La., men were arrested early this morning on suspicion of burglary of a coin-operated machine. Arrested were Dean B. Patterson, 26, and Samuel R. Maxey, 27.

3 people hurt in wreck

Three Big Spring residents were injured Thursday evening in a two-car crash at the intersection of Farm Road 700 and Westover Street.

The driver of one car, Paul J. Holquin, 20, of 1002 N. Gregg St., and a passenger, Shawntina Thorpe of the same address, were treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital, said a hospital spokeswoman. Also treated and released was 16-year-old Darren Lee Heffington of 200 Circle Drive, a passenger in the second car, said the spokeswoman.

The accident occurred at 6:20 p.m. when an eastbound car driven by 17-year-old Robert Bronaugh of 1508 E. Fifth St. attempted to turn left on Westover in front of the westbound car driven by Holquin, according to the police accident report.

The report indicated Holquin's car had its left turn signal on when Bronaugh pulled out attempting to turn. Bronaugh was cited for failure to yield right of way.

Man sentenced for burglary

A Big Spring man will serve 15 years in the Texas Department of Corrections after he pleaded guilty in 118th District Court this morning to burglarizing a residence with intent to commit sexual assault last May.

Ricky Dale Payne, 22, of 509 S. Johnson had also been charged with burglarizing a residence with the intent to commit retaliation and a separate charge of retaliation, both alleged to have occurred last August.

Payne was declared mentally incompetent to stand trial last October by a panel of district court jurors and ordered to undergo treatment at Rusk State Mental Hospital.

He was later released from the hospital and transferred back to county jail Feb. 11.

He recently was declared mentally competent to stand trial based on a report the district attorney's office received from the hospital.

Waste dumper may be cited

The party responsible for illegally dumping septic tank waste Wednesday in a dry creek bed north of Big Spring has been identified and may be issued a citation, said Terry James, a biologist with the Texas Water Commission's regional office in Odessa.

James would not identify the person.

The dumping allegedly occurred about noon in a creek bed adjoining the Ed Cherry property.

Terry said this morning several witnesses saw the person dump the waste.

According to a letter from James T. Luck of the Big Spring-Howard County Health Department to Sheriff A.N. Standard, a preliminary investigation conducted by the district determined the waste was non-toxic but unauthorized for indiscriminate dumping.

Luck said in the letter that he referred the case to the Odessa regional office for further punitive action after it was felt "all possible damage has been deterred."

Terry said this morning District Director Bill Lockey would issue the citation possibly on Monday. Lockey was out-of-town and unavailable for comment this morning.

along the city's main thoroughfares would succeed in attracting tourism, Quinones said. Efforts are being made, she said, to cultivate a strong tourism trade in Big Spring — a trade that would benefit the entire city.

The city's share of the proposed grant comes from a $180,000 fund raised by the Downtown Steering Committee, she said. The remainder of the money has yet to be earmarked for specific projects, Quinones said. The study, she said, would offer the committee direction in how to receive maximum return on the $180,000 investment.

Edwards said some of the juvenile offenders are quite sophisticated in their burglary techniques. "They learn on the street from other juveniles — if they've been down to the Texas Youth Council ... everybody'll admit that that's a great training ground."

Other juvenile violators are less "professional" in their modus operandi. "They tear the thunder out of everything," Edwards said.

Meek, Edwards and Thompson all agreed that a citywide curfew

Quinones said chances of getting the grant "look very good." The department of community affairs will decide on approving the grant within the next two to three months, she said.

Meanwhile, Quinones will be interviewing a host of city planners in hopes of finding the right one to conduct the $20,000 redevelopment study, she said.

Besides the grant for the redevelopment study, the regional planning committee also approved sending on to Austin a city request for state and federal funding of its Retired Senior Volunteer Program.

would aid law enforcement officials in curtailing the vast numbers of children roaming the streets at night.

Said Meek: "If we had a curfew, (the patrolmen) could actually pick these kids up and bring them in and we could call their parents and say 'look, your kid's violating curfew, come and get him.'"

Meek said if parents had to come down to the station late at night once or twice, they would likely pay better attention to where the child is.

Tomorrow: What happens when they get caught?

Congress

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said today any such training would be "very limited."

Reagan wants to provide the Contras with $30 million in non-lethal aid such as medicine and clothing and $70 million that could be for military aid. Congress last year banned military aid but approved $27 million in non-lethal help that will run out March 31.

Reagan has been lobbying lawmakers all week at the White House and plans to take his case to the public Sunday night in a nationally televised speech.

Dornan said he and his colleagues were going on what he called "a trip of hope, a last-minute trip to get a breakthrough" which he said could either lead to peace or to strong U.S. support for the rebels.

DeLay told reporters at the airport, "At least we're talking to our opposition, unlike the Sandinistas government of Nicaragua."

Mitchell County plans new septic tank rules

COLORADO CITY — Mitchell County commissioners in a special meeting Thursday began work on proposed regulations for septic tanks around the two Mitchell County lakes.

The regulations are to prevent raw sewage from going into the lake and will bring requirements up to state standards, said County Judge Bill Carter.

Carter said there have been no problems at the lake, but the regulations are needed as a preventative measure.

"We have some septic tanks put in about 1949, and they may be substandard," he said.

The regulations may include all unincorporated areas of Mitchell County, he said.

Mike Menzies of the State Health Department and Kim Kreuger of the Texas Water Commission looked over the proposed regulations submitted by County Attorney Pete McKinney and made some suggestions for revisions, Carter said.

At a meeting March 24, the commissioners will tentatively approve the proposal, Carter said.

Once approved, the plan will be submitted to the Texas Water Commission. Carter expects up to a two-month wait before the water commission's approval is granted.

State to get revenues

WASHINGTON — In an agreement that could mean payment of $382 million to Texas within a month, the Reagan administration and members of Congress have reached a compromise on how to split long-disputed offshore oil revenues.

Overall, the agreement which would free up to $1.4 billion for seven coastal states.

The accord also would allow about $4.6 billion in revenues accumulated since 1978 to apply against this year's budget deficit. More than $7 billion has accumulated in escrow accounts since Congress required a "fair and equitable" distribution of revenue from federal tracts that border state waters.

Eastern faces FAA fine

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration is seeking a record fine of $9.5 million from Eastern Airlines for alleged maintenance violations, according to agency officials and a published report.

After a two-month inspection, the FAA alleged the Miami-based air carrier had committed 78,000 individual rules violations and is seeking the $9.5 million fine, the New York Times reported today.

The newspaper added that the airline said 60 percent of the charges were inaccurate.

Bank president named

WASHINGTON — Former Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr., a popular, moderate New York Republican who helped write many of the nation's basic tax laws over a 20-year congressional career, is headed for the presidency of the 149-nation World Bank.

Conable, 63, who retired from the House in 1985 and teaches government at the University of Rochester, was designated on Thursday by President Reagan to a four-year term as head of the international lending organization, a $175,000-a-year, tax-free job.

He will replace A.W. Clausen, whose term expires in July.

New AIDS drug tested

NEW YORK — A new anti-viral drug, the first to produce improvements in the symptoms of AIDS patients, is ready for large-scale, nationwide testing, researchers say.

The drug, azidothymidine or AZT, boosted the immune systems of 15 of 19 AIDS patients, reduced fevers in some of them and improved appetite and weight gain, the researchers reported today in The Lancet, a British medical journal.

The results are encouraging enough to have prompted the drug's maker, Burroughs Wellcome Co. of Research Triangle Park, N.C., to invest in a nationwide study of about 200 AIDS patients at 10 or 12 university medical centers, said Dr. David Barry of Burroughs Wellcome.

Engineers man computers in the main control room of the European Space Operations in Darmstadt, West Germany, Thursday, prior to the encounter of the Giotto space probe with Halley's Comet.

Closest encounter

Scientists take a peek at comet's nucleus

DARMSTADT, West Germany (AP) — The European spacecraft Giotto today beamed back the closest pictures ever taken of Halley's comet showing an egg-shaped iceberg surrounded by dust and gas, but the probe was blinded seconds before making its nearest pass.

"The signal was lost due to heavy impact of dust. But we consider the mission a complete success," said European Space Agency director general Reimar Lust.

Giotto had been traveling at 50 times the speed of a bullet, or 155,000 miles per hour, when it hit a "wall of dust the size of grains of sand," said Peter Wenzel, head of the agency's solar and atmospheric division.

After a 25-minute blackout, the probe began transmitting data again, but there were no more pictures, he said.

The craft's monitors had told mission controllers dust particles were bombarding it 120 times a second two minutes before the signal was lost, Wenzel said.

Until then, the craft was transmitting pictures every four seconds and had beamed back more than 3,000 before blacking out. Giotto's signal was lost when it was 415 miles from Halley's nucleus, at 1:10 a.m. (7:10 EST), said Roger Bonnet, the space agency's director of scientific programs.

Despite a loss of data, scientists believe that two seconds later Giotto passed the comet at a distance of 335 miles.

The craft's last photographs were flashed on West German television and showed an egg-shaped comet with a bright white center, surrounded by green, violet and red circles representing different layers of dust and ions.

As the signal died, the photos suddenly flickered, then blacked out, but Bonnet said it did not affect 10 experiments the craft was performing on the dust layers surrounding the comet's nucleus.

"All the experiments performed beautifully. We have achieved a fantastic series of results," he said.

Horst Keller, the West German professor who participated in designing the craft's multi-color camera, said Giotto was less than 620 miles away from the nucleus when the last photograph was received.

David Dale, the project manager, said the craft started rotating dramatically in the last two minutes before the signal was lost.

Giotto's pictures indicated Halley's nucleus is made up of a hard interior and an outer cocoon of dust, Keller said. Taken together, the nucleus and the dust cocoon were about 6.82 miles long and perhaps 3.1 miles wide, he said.

Fred Whipple, the American scientist from Boston said Giotto's data supported his theory that the comet's nucleus was basically a large "dirty snowball."

Giotto had been outfitted with protective shields, but scientists had warned that dust from the comet's train could knock out the signal and even destroy the craft.

Vega 1 and Vega 2, two Soviet probes which flew by the comet on March 6 and last Sunday, sent different data to earth on the size of the dust particles.

Vega 1 encountered small particles. But Vega 2 was hit by larger particles that destroyed 50 percent of its solar power, according to Roald Sagdeyev of the Soviet Space Research Institute.

Nazis claim murder

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Police announced their first arrest in the murder of Prime Minister Olof Palme, and a neo-Nazi group claimed responsibility for the socialist leader's assassination in a letter made public by a news agency Friday.

The group, calling itself the European National Socialist Union, sent a letter to the Swedish news agency TT that said, "We are behind the killing of Palme. German traitor Willy Brandt will be next."

Captive believed dead

DAMASCUS, Syria — A mediator indicated that two days of secret talks in Beirut led him to believe a Frenchman held captive there has died, and a British television network said it received film of three other hostages.

Visnews, the British television network, said early today that a statement accompanying the black and white video tape of the three hostages warned France that time was running out to accept the captors' demands and free the hostages. The film was not immediately broadcast.

Palace open to public

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino today welcomed hundreds of Manila slum-dwellers to the presidential palace, telling them that a look at the opulence inside would help them understand the revolt that sent Ferdinand E. Marcos into exile.

The poor of the Philippine capital fought for a chance to go through the palace on the second day after Mrs. Aquino fulfilled a campaign promise and opened it to the public.

Meanwhile, the Philippines Daily Inquirer newspaper said the government had frozen the bank accounts of another 18 Marcos associates, bringing to 51 the number of such accounts frozen this week.

Soyuz functioning well

MOSCOW — The Soyuz T-15 spacecraft carrying two veteran cosmonauts to a Saturday docking with the Soviet's newest space station is functioning smoothly, Soviet news media reported today.

Radio Moscow, in a brief report during its hourly English-language broadcast, said cosmonauts Leonid Kizim and Vladimir Solovov are feeling fine and performing tasks to prepare for the linkup.

The time of Saturday's rendezvous had not yet been disclosed.

Kizim and Solovov blasted off Thursday from the Baikonur Cosmodrome in Soviet central Asia. The liftoff was broadcast on national television, a departure from the secrecy usually surrounding manned Soviet space missions.

Salvaged logs give clue to county history

WACO (AP) — If the pieces of the log cabin now stored on the Robert Epperson farm near Satin could talk, they would tell an incredible story.

More than a century ago, the cabin stood on the Neil McLennan farm on land that is now under Lake Waco.

The old farm place later was owned by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Epperson. When they moved, they dismantled the old post oak log cabin and stored the logs on their present land.

Recently, the logs were moved to a dry storage area. Local historians hope the logs eventually can be reassembled in some sort of museum.

The cabin is as close as anyone can get to depicting the homestead residence of the founder of McLennan County. The original Neil McLennan cabin, located near this one, burned in 1932, said Roger Conger, Waco historian and author.

"This cabin was owned by a member of the McLennan family, but we're really not sure which one," he said.

He said Mrs. Epperson said the cabin was owned "by a cousin of his (McLennan's) next to his cabin."

"These logs were on the farm I owned in South Bosque," Mrs. Epperson said. "The enlargement of Lake Waco was to have inundated the site, so we took the logs down."

She said the logs have been stored on the ground at her farm for several years and are deteriorating.

Mrs. Epperson also preserved the stones from the cabin's rock chimney and parts to a wagon.

She said the cabin was on property near the Fish Pond Road area, which she and her children often visited and when they picnicked.

Before dismantling the cabin, Mrs. Epperson photographed it and had an artist do a painting of the old structure.

"I spent some time in the old log cabin before we tore it down, just to get a feeling of what it was like for them in the olden days," she said. "I visited it late one afternoon, about 5:30 or 6."

Mrs. Epperson said she wondered about the pioneer women living in the crude structure, especially about how they'd cook supper for their families.

"I wondered what she would use for light," she said. "And I found out the answer. They had situated about log cabins in Waco which was published in 1954.

"There were oak trees on either side," he said. "They looked like bookends — and the cabin was the book in between."

"It was a typical cabin of post oak logs," Conger said. "A post oak grows a straight tree trunk, sometimes up to 20 or 30 feet high, before it scraggles out in branches. They make good log houses, although they don't stand up as well as cedar logs," he said. The cedar logs were used for the cabins built on the east side of the Brazos

River, where a cedar forest once stood.

Early settlers would square the post oak logs by laying them on the ground, Conger said. Because they didn't have much taper to them, the post oak logs fitted together very well. "They didn't have such wide cracks to be chinked."

Conger observed one mystery when he visited the old cabin. Auger holes were drilled all the way through the logs, from the inside of the cabin to its exterior. Because the holes were small and were only about two feet above the floor, he knew they were not intended to be rifle shots.

Writing a newspaper article, Conger asked what these holes could be. Readers responded that early Texas settlers sometimes drilled such holes to anchor bed-frames made out of wooden sticks. They would box off one corner of a cabin for the bed and cover it with hides, he said. Later settlers could obtain springs and mattresses stuffed with either feathers or cornshucks.

Conger said the cabin on the Epperson property was probably "very much the same size" as McLennan's own cabin. However, the county founder's cabin also may have contained a shed room on the back used for cooking, he said.

"He was a true rugged pioneer," Conger said of Neil McLennan. "He was brought to North Carolina as a baby and moved to the wilderness of Spanish Florida in the 1820s."

A decade later, the family obtained a schooner and sailed from Florida to the Texas coast. They settled in the Milam County-Cameron area for a number of years before homesteading on land now a part of the county that bears their name.

"If anyone got within two or three miles of him, McLennan felt it was really congested," Conger said. "He liked the wide open spaces."

Mrs. Epperson said when McLennan farmed the now submerged land later owned by her family, he once had a close call with a band of Indians.

"He was in the fields working and he saw the Indians," she said. "He ran to a clump of trees and hid. He felt the trees saved his life. He had it written in his will that no one can ever destroy that particular clump of trees."

The trees, situated on a hill, are still there, she said. Mrs. Epperson said the area is off Old Crawford Road, a roadway "not easily accessible except by a circuitous route from the north." She said the road was once linked to the bridge at McLennan Crossing which is now under water.

Much can be said on oil import fee

The latest new idea being batted around Washington is an old idea. Faced with the obligation imposed by Gramm-Rudman to close the gap between spending and revenues, Congress and the President are both considering some sort of new tax on oil imports, gasoline or energy in general.

Advocates of energy taxes call to mind the old definition of a fanatic: someone who won't change his mind and won't change the subject. Though the question keeps changing, their answer remains the same. Back in the days of oil shortages, they pushed new taxes as a way to restrain rising prices. Now they propose it as a way to prevent prices from falling. They used to say such taxes would help to weaken OPEC. But OPEC's collapse, instead of making the tax superfluous, has only increased their enthusiasm.

Whatever the rationale, and whatever the form, this is still a bad idea. Each of the different proposals, however, is bad in its own way.

The oil import fee, which is favored by oil state senators and has gotten some mildly encouraging words from President Reagan, may be the worst of the lot. If set at $8 a barrel, it would yield some $17 billion a year in revenues. But the point is not so much to cut the deficit as to help American oil producers, who have been unmercifully battered by falling prices. An import fee is protectionism masquerading as fiscal responsibility.

By boosting the price of imported oil, the tariff would allow domestic producers to raise their prices to match, thus rescuing them from the bust that has followed the OPEC-led boom. Since only about a third of U.S. oil supplies come from abroad, oil producers would get $2 for every $1 going to the Treasury — or about $34 billion a year.

A way around this problem is to apply the new tax to domestic as well as foreign oil. This way the government would get the windfall that otherwise would go to oilmen. But limiting the tax to oil permits companies selling electricity, coal and natural gas to raise their prices. To avoid enriching them, all energy sources would have to be covered. That, however, would surely have a stifling effect on the economy, since energy is essential to the production and distribution of most goods and services. Falling oil prices stimulate economic activity, which in turn generates tax revenue. Keeping them above what they otherwise would be inevitably slows economic activity, which in turn reduces tax revenue. So the measure would at least partly defeat its own purpose.

Not only that, but the greatest impact of the change would be felt by industries that already are strapped. Among the sectors most dependent on energy are steel, automobiles and agriculture, none of which are healthy enough to bear a heavier load. A domestic tax on their energy use also hampers them in global competition, since their foreign rivals don't pay it.

The gasoline tax, with its limited application, avoids some of these problems. It is the favorite of people who regard automobiles as Carrie Nation viewed whiskey bottles — as vessels of inequity.

A 12-cent levy on each gallon of motor fuel would raise more than $10 billion a year. The real attraction of a motor fuel tax, though, has little to do with the budget. Its advertised virtues are that it discourages people from driving, pushes them to buy small cars instead of big ones and enhances the appeal of mass transit.

These effects, of course, are much more congenial to people living in New York or Chicago than to those in Houston or Phoenix. There is no good reason to penalize people who depend on their cars to get around, or to force them to sacrifice safety by choosing smaller cars. For those who worry about dependence on foreign oil, the experience of decontrol shows that the risk is not excessive consumption but government interference with prices.

The American economy has been weighed down for years with crushing energy costs. Why throw off the burden of OPEC just to shoulder a heavy load of new taxes?

NRC fire safety rules lack proper direction

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA WASHINGTON — More than 10 years after a near-disastrous fire at the Browns Ferry, Ala., nuclear power plant — considered by many to have been a closer brush with catastrophe than the Three Mile Island accident four years later — the plant's operator still hasn't complied with federal fire safety regulations.

What makes this doubly disgraceful is that the plant operator is a U.S. government agency — the Tennessee Valley Authority.

At a recent meeting on the issue, TVA officials asked for additional exemptions to the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's fire safety guidelines. "It is mind-boggling," one NRC inspector exclaimed to our associate Corky Johnson. A fire in a nuclear plant, if it blazed out of control, could create the fallout of a nuclear explosion.

The TVA officials are perfectly within their rights, considering the way the NRC has been ruffling things over the years. A nuclear plant is entitled to as many delays and exemptions as it can get from the commission, which has been amazingly permissive in its enforcement of fire-safety rules.

In fact, the agency's confused and relaxed direction has led to a minimization by some of the field inspectors who have been trying to make sure nuclear power plants are safe. Several inspectors have filed an official complaint, charging, among other things, that the NRC staff's "interpretations" of commission guidelines have seriously undercut attempts to bring plant operators into line.

It's the confusion, not to say inanity, of some of the interpreted guidelines that is driving conscientious inspectors to distraction. For example, a plant operator can be cited for failing to have adequate equipment to shut down the reactors in a fire — but only after an actual fire, in fact, knocks out the safety equipment. By then, of course, it would be a little late. "There is a message there that fire safety is just a minor issue," said one concerned source.

The inspectors are also upset over a new "backfit" rule, which makes it virtually impossible to force a plant operator to upgrade fire safety measures on older facilities. The operator can resist the improvements on grounds that they would cost too much.

"Certain utilities have banded together to resist, delay and fudge the fire protection requirements," NRC project manager Gregory Harrison wrote to the commissioners. Harrison, who has since quit the agency, added: "These utilities have repeatedly tried to water down the requirements and, eventually, gained an audience with upper (commission) management."

One result was the controversial interpretation of guidelines in 1984 by the NRC staff, which, the inspectors claim, let the power companies water down the stiffer requirements. Harrison and other sources charge that the inspection staff wasn't consulted in the drafting of the interpretations, for the simple reason that the inspectors were known to oppose any relaxation of the original rules.

"This is incredible," Harrison said, "and illustrates a flagrant disregard of fire safety. It's almost a decade since the Browns Ferry fire, and we are still mired down in our own bureaucracy."

As a result of the new, looser interpretations, nuclear power plant operators can — and do — delay action on fire hazards indefinitely, simply by disagreeing in writing with the findings of an inspector. As regional fire inspector Charles Ramsey told the commission: "All (that) the plants have to do to meet (regulations) is analyze their problems away. We cannot cite them for inadequate analyses."

Footnote: NRC's deputy director of inspection and enforcement, Richard Volmer, denied that the staff interpretations had weakened the fire safety regulations. The nation's nuclear power plants are perfectly safe, he said. The average plant spent about $15 million on fire safety equipment. Volmer added, and he said cost is never a factor in enforcing fire safety rules.

ORDEAL OVER: Stanley Sporkin, former enforcement chief of the Securities and Exchange Commission and later general counsel for the CIA, was finally sworn in last month as a federal judge. Sporkin's nomination to the bench had been fought bitterly in the Senate for well over a year. Charges that he had acted improperly while he was a lawyer for the CIA were never substantiated. Friends of Sporkin told us the day he was sworn in as a federal judge was the happiest of his life. He even had the swearing-in ceremony videotaped for posterity.

DIPLOMATIC DIGEST: The "Westernization" of Hungary has now taken a sharp turn Eastward: Hungarian men are into love potions. Why a country that has produced the Gabor and kindred beauties should have a market for aphrodisiacs for men is anyone's guess. But the fact remains that the "Casanova," a cocktail made with quail eggs, is the rage in Budapest. At a recent trade fair, hopeful swains flocked to the booth serving Casanovas and drained it dry.

Forged checks worry writer

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I don't know what is wrong with me. I have been forging checks for the past few months — always small amounts — and every time I do, I resolve never to do it again because I am afraid I will get caught. But then it seems so easy and I just keep doing it. Why? — G.F.

DEAR G.F.: There can be any number of reasons for your behavior; a trained counselor may be able to help you discover some of them. For example, you may do it out of simple greed, wanting "just a little bit more." Or you may do it out of a desire for adventure, or because you secretly resent others and somehow feel a sense of power when you get away with your forgery.

The most important thing, however, is to realize this is wrong — not just in light of our laws, but in the eyes of God. The Bible is very clear: "You shall not steal" (Exodus 20:15). Or again, "He who has been stealing must steal no longer, but must work, doing something useful with his own hands, that he may have something to share with those in need" (Ephesians 4:28).

In your own strength you may feel you cannot do this — and you may be right. But with God's help you can break this pattern of stealing (for that is what it is). Don't let another day go by, but get on your knees, confess your sin and your weakness to God, and ask Jesus Christ to come into your heart by faith.

Get into a church where Christ is preached, and where you will have the friendship and encouragement of others who know problems. In addition, to confirm your break with your past and to do what is right, make restitution to those you have cheated. That will not be easy — but with God's help you can leave your past behind and know His strength each day.

Police took time to care

To the editor:

Recently I asked the police department to check my home while my wife and I were on vacation.

According to my neighbors, they took the time to walk around the house checking the doors and windows. I was very pleased to hear this and I think the people of Big Spring are very fortunate to have a police department that does care about the security of our homes.

I commend you Rick Turner and your officers for caring. DON MURPHY

Briscoe arrest handled poorly

To the editor:

I found it very shocking when I walked in my fourth period class and was informed that a highly respected teacher/coach, Charles Briscoe, was apprehended. What made the situation improper was the actions our police department took. I ask you, was it appropriate for his arrest to be made at school? This made it look as if the drugs were in our school system.

The police department really made themselves look disgraceful. They did not consider the students nor did they the effect on the school.

In one of your issues a citizen was disappointed about the stand our school administration took. Why? Isn't a man innocent until proven guilty?

There was not a kid at school who wasn't crazy about Coach Briscoe. No one knows everything, but yet they're so ready to judge him. The students didn't and still don't approve of the arrest. I want to know KATRINA THOMPSON 1317 Mulberry

Coach helps athlete excel

To the editor:

A young athlete who started his diving career three years ago once said: "I'm going to be like that" referring to the performance of other divers, has within these past years, become one of the top contenders in the sport, as shown by the results. Those accomplishments have made a big difference in the lives of several members of this community.

Ever so wonderful the feeling is made possible by someone with unending devotion, patience, and application of his knowledge. For the past few years I have seen this devotion come alive at 5 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. daily to assist his team — never complaining, always there to render his all.

We shall call him "coach." It is with my unending thanks and pride that someone by the name of Coach Harlan Smith of Big Spring High School is now, and will forever remain, a part of his walk and way of life.

No major shift in U.S.-Soviet relations

By BARRY SCHWEID

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year after Mikhail Gorbachev moved into the top spot in the Kremlin, the relationship between the two superpowers remains basically unchanged.

Even last fall's summit meeting with President Reagan in Geneva has not eased the distrust, curbed the arms race or produced settlements in southern Africa, Afghanistan or other world trouble spots.

In at least one respect, Gorbachev has fulfilled U.S. expectations by retiring some of the Old Guard, placing his own associates in key positions and trying to improve the Soviet economy. His campaign against alcoholism symbolizes the seriousness that has marked his first year.

Three allies, Yegor Ligachev, Nikolai Ryzhkov and Viktor Chebrikov, were quickly promoted to full membership in the Communist Party Politburo. A fourth, Eduard Shevardnadze, 57, took over as foreign minister for Andrei Gromyko, who had held the post for 28 years. And, the 71-year-old Viktor Grishin was dropped after 18 years as head of Moscow's Communist Party organization. Boris Yeltsin, at 54 a younger man with experience in industry, succeeded him.

Gromyko, 76, moved into the largely ceremonial post of president where Gorbachev can still draw on his vast experience in foreign affairs, especially his impressions of how decisions are taken in Washington.

Anatoly Dobrynin, who may know even more about the subject, was called home after 24 years as ambassador to Washington. He is joining the ruling Politburo, will be in charge of industrial development and can still help

Gorbachev deal with the Reagan administration.

Despite all the changes, though, the Soviet Union has not undertaken any major shift in its foreign policy during Gorbachev's first year, including its way of dealing with the United States. And at this end of the hot-line, President Reagan and his foreign policy advisers have approached the Kremlin under Gorbachev much as they did his three ailing predecessors, Leonid Brezhnev, Yuri Andropov and Konstantin Chernenko.

Since Gorbachev, at 55, is a lot peppier and has a keener sense of the machinery of modern public relations, Washington has had to be on the alert for sudden disarmament or nuclear freeze proposals. But invariably, the Reagan administration's response has been as skeptical of Soviet intentions as it was when Brezhnev, Andropov or Chernenko had their unsteady hand on the wheel.

Gorbachev's eagerness to have a summit meeting with Reagan required some fast footwork. The two sides settled for a get-acquainted session last November in Geneva, lowered their rhetoric, accomplished little and agreed to hold back-to-back meetings in 1986 and 1987. They also agreed to have Secretary of State George Shultz and Shevardnadze get together more often.

The problem has been the follow-through. The two sides have been jockeying not only over a date, but more importantly, over what kind of a summit meeting to hold. Gorbachev has suggested — not insisted, as some accounts put it — that an agreement to reduce nuclear weapons be worked out before he sees Reagan. Clearly, the Soviet leader has concluded one get-acquainted session was enough, that it is time to move on to substance.

Shultz, on the U.S. side, said in an interview last week "obviously we'd like to see the meeting carry a lot of good substance in it." But he acknowledged there was no "major accomplishment" at the last round of nuclear weapons negotiations and "it remains to be seen what can be agreed upon" when Reagan and Gorbachev get together.

"We certainly don't feel that we should do something to induce them in order to have a meeting," he said.

Even the idea of his seeing Shevardnadze more often has not panned out. "We made suggestions on that which they have not responded to," he said. "So the ball is in their court."

Summit meetings are supposed to help dispel distrust, but the Reagan-Gorbachev "fireside" session in Geneva evidently failed on that score, judging by recent exchanges.

The administration last Friday ordered the three Soviet missions to the United Nations to reduce their staffs from 275 to 170 over the next two years. The move followed U.S. allegations that the missions were being used for espionage.

The Soviets responded on Tuesday that "direct damage" to relations with the United States could result. "The United States administration must be aware," a government statement said, "that such actions increase distrust of its policy and by no means create a favorable background for a summit meeting."

So as Gorbachev starts his second year the U.S.-Soviet relationship does not appear to have changed much.

Barry Schweid has covered U.S.-Soviet relations for The Associated Press since 1973.

Texas drug store is like a step back in time

Mary Jane Stripling stands by the well inside the Stripling Drug Store in San Augustine. The downtown store has been in continuous operation since 1904.

SAN AUGUSTINE, Texas (AP) — If you've been searching all over for Swamp Root, S.S.S. Tonic, Dr. J.H. McLean's Volcanic Oil Liniment or Black-Draught Tablets like Grandma used to take, look no further.

The Stripling Drug Store in downtown San Augustine has all these remedies of old and more. Step back in time by stepping into the downtown drugstore that has been in continuous operation since 1904.

Part-owner Mary Jane Stripling offers a warm welcome to visitors. "We love the tourists, we cater to the tourists," she said. The store is open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Saturday, at 107 Columbia.

Folks from Houston get all enthused over the fact that the drugstore still has a fountain where you can order up a frosty shake or iced malt, she said. Soft drinks and "personalized" hamburgers made to please the patron's palate are also served.

Miss Stripling chatted to visitors recently as they sat on the comfortable counter stools and sipped cherry Cokes. The cherry Cokes were the original kind where the cherry flavoring is squirted in separately from the cola, so that you can see where the ice is red.

She pointed out the old-fashioned display cases and drawers. The wooden drawers have white enamel knobs lettered in black. Some of the quaint names on the front were corn cures, bluing, borax, licorice, catarrh cure, ink, paraffin, and razor "strops."

"We still sell patent medicines," she said. Asafoetida, for example, is sold in liquid or in blocks that some people hang around their necks to ward off sickness. "It smells to high heaven," she said. Turpentine and Dr. Tichenor's Mouthwash are also available, as well as a variety of products bearing the brand name "666."

Miss Stripling is the daughter of R.N. Stripling, a pharmacist and county judge who ran the store from 1904 until his death in 1978 at the age of 97.

R.N. Stripling learned the trade from his brother, Sam Stripling, who had a drugstore in Nacogdoches. He washed bottles and acquainted himself with pharmaceutical practices for the sum of 50 cents a day.

When he had learned everything his brother had to teach him, there was not really a place for him in Nacogdoches anymore. The store didn't need two pharmacists. So, Miss Stripling related, "He said he was going over to Diboll to take his pharmacy test and if he didn't pass, he was going to go to work at the sawmill."

He did pass the test and in 1904 he opened his drugstore in San Augustine. In 1963 he decided to take advantage of an existing point of interest by reexcavating a well that his store had been built over. The well still sits inside the store and visitors can open the covering and toss in a coin to make a wish. A printed history tells the following story:

"It was dug to a depth of 27 feet by slave labor in 1860 and lined with the circular brick used in that day. The well supplied citizens of this early Texas town on the King's Highway with water for drinking and cooking and fighting fires.

"In 1891, when San Augustine residents had their own wells, a saloon keeper bought the land with the well and built a frame building over it for a new saloon; the well was near the saloon bar and the bartender kept the beer cool by lowering it into the water in sacks.

"When saloons were voted out in 1902, a bottling plant took over the building and used water from the well for making soft drinks. Stripling came from Nacogdoches and opened a drugstore across the street from the bottling plant in 1904. He acquired water from the well for use in his soda fountain.

But in 1917, the First National Bank of San Augustine bought the property. The frame structure was torn down, the well was filled in, surface bricks were removed and a new bank building was erected. Stripling bought the building later for his new drugstore site."

Photographs of early San Augustine are mounted next to the well. For a small fee, visitors may tour the mini-museum upstairs to see more artifacts. Thick old ledgers, glue pots, antique pharmaceutical containers, a buggy foot warmer, and a long-age funeral ensemble of long black dress, black gloves, black hat and black veil are some of the items on display.

An 1840 marriage agreement between William W. Frizzell and Isabella V. Culp is interesting. In a forerunner of modern pre-nuptial agreements, the two were quite specific as to property and monies that were to be involved in their wedded bliss.

Speaking of wedded bliss, a May 1941 article in the magazine "True Story" on display made spellbinding reading. The title was "18 A Week Love Nest" and it was written from a young wife's point of view. It was all about how she justified quitting her job so that she could stay home and be a better wife. One of her principal arguments was that by not working, she could save 47 cents a week on stockings.

Miss Stripling wished the visitors well, so to speak, as they were leaving and offered a guarantee on any coins that they might have dropped into the watery hole. "As my dad used to say, 'If your wish doesn't come true, come back next year and I'll give you your money back.'"

VA loan program announced

AUSTIN (AP) — The Veterans Land Board announced Thursday a new loan program for Texas veterans who need money to make substantial repairs and improvements to older homes.

"This will create a bunch of new jobs and it won't cost Texas taxpayers a single penny," Land Commissioner Garry Mauro told a news conference.

Mauro said his office had received thousands of requests for help from veterans "who have been frozen out of limited conventional home improvement money by high interest rates" of 13 to 14 percent. Beginning May 1, eligible veterans may apply for 11.5 percent home improvement loans up to $17,500 for single-family residences, with no down payment required.

Loans of up to $20,000 will be available for two- to four-family residences, including duplexes, townhouses and condominium units.

The minimum loan will be $5,000, and all loans will be 100 percent insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

OPEC feud may cause oil prices dip further

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Faced with a traumatic decline in oil prices, OPEC ministers will attempt to devise a strategy this weekend to reverse the slide by cutting production, but many analysts predict the effort will fail because of bitter divisions within the decayed cartel.

The analysts said Thursday that they expect sharp clashes between OPEC's traditional factions, led on each side by Saudi Arabia and Iran, and foresee an inconclusive meeting that could drive prices lower.

"It's going to be ferocious," Joseph Stanislaw of the Paris office of U.S.-based Cambridge Energy Research Associates, said in predicting the mood of the meeting. "The stakes have never been higher."

Representatives of the 13 members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries will lock themselves into the ballroom of a Geneva hotel starting Sunday, searching for a solution to their crisis that has left the world flooded with cheap oil and sharply cut their share of the market.

They also are planning to meet Wednesday with representatives of several non-OPEC oil producers, said James Audu, a spokesman at OPEC headquarters in Vienna, Austria. They will discuss possible joint action to push up prices.

Audu said he did not know which non-member countries would attend the meeting, although reports have said they would be Oman, Malaysia and Mexico.

The price decline has been welcomed by many economists because it will restrain inflation. But the oil refining and drilling industry has been severely hurt, and several major companies have cut spending as a result.

Exxon Corp. and Chevron Corp. announced reductions in exploration budgets totaling $3.6 billion on Thursday, blaming the uncertain outlook on oil prices.

Many analysts said they saw little chance of an agreement that could push oil prices back up because too many OPEC countries think they cannot afford to limit production, fearing they will lose more customers to non-OPEC rivals.

At the same time, however, the members are facing staggering financial losses, which already have forced Saudi Arabia and Indonesia to drastically revise their spending plans.

Peter F. Holmes, chairman of Shell Transport and Trading Co., a London-based unit of oil giant Royal Dutch-Shell Group, said that if oil prices held at the current average of about $15 a barrel, OPEC would lose about $60 billion in revenues this year.

Holmes said that OPEC was playing a "dangerous game," and that he expected prices to stay low or fall further until OPEC cut its production.

Antoine Elzir, an oil analyst in the Paris office of DRI Europe Inc., a private consulting firm, said he saw little chance that the meeting would reach agreement on a significant cut in output.

Even if the members reduced production to as low as 14 million barrels a day from the current level of about 17 million, prices likely would not break the $20-a-barrel level for several months, he said.

Oil prices have tumbled by about one-half from nearly $30 a barrel before OPEC's last meeting in December, when it ended four futile years of trying to prop up unrealistically high oil prices by limiting supplies.

It vowed instead to fight for an undefined "fair share" of the world oil market, even if it meant pushing prices drastically lower from the levels the cartel had dictated during the 1970s, when it dominated the market.

But prices fell faster than anyone had predicted, and OPEC has not increased its market share.

Pope cautions prelates

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II had praise Thursday for liberation theology's role in helping the poor, but he said the injection of political ideology can lead to violence that creates more injustice than it cures.

He told Brazilian prelates they cannot substitute for politicians, economists and unionists as their country builds democracy.

"To uproot the church from its principal mission and identify it with other elements could be dangerous and destructive," the pope said at the opening of a three-day meeting with Brazil's Roman Catholic Church leaders, including five cardinals.

He commended the church's work for the poor in Brazil but said attempts to bring alien concepts into liberation theology would create "grave consequences."

John Paul summoned the church leaders in connection with what Vatican analysts called a "total checkup" on the state of the church in Brazil, whose bishops are sharply divided over liberation theology.

Ex-Philippines general subject of investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has spent nearly $450,000 to transport deposed Philippines President Ferdinand Marcos and his party from Manila and lodge him at a U.S. Air Force base in Hawaii, according to a Pentagon official.

In a related development, the Pentagon's chief spokesman said today that Gen. Fabian C. Ver, the former chief of the Philippine armed forces, has been served with a subpoena in connection with a federal grand jury investigation of possible kickbacks involving U.S. military aid.

"My understanding is that he was presented a grand jury subpoena by a representative of the Defense Department in Hawaii," said spokesman Robert Sims.

Sims indicated the subpoena was served on Ver at Hickam Air Force Base in Hawaii, where Marcos and his family and associates have been residing since they fled their homeland.

The grand jury, based in Alexandria, Va., is looking into whether payments were made to high-ranking Philippine officials in connection with military contracts worth more than $100 million that were financed by the Pentagon, the New York Times has reported.

The figures on the expenses incurred on Marcos' behalf were supplied at a House Appropriations subcommittee hearing on Wednesday by James A. Kelly, a deputy assistant defense secretary. He said the total included $87,000 for " upkeep" of the Marcos party.

He said it cost about $200,000 when United States military planes flew Marcos, his 89 associates and 300 boxes of possessions and money from Manila to Hawaii.

Kelly said it has not been resolved who would pay the bills, which include overseas phone calls and thousands of dollars in purchases at military post exchanges at Hickam and in Guam, where Marcos' party made an intermediate stop.

State Department spokesman Charles E. Redman said Marcos is trying to arrange the rental of a home in Honolulu but that there have been complications involving the lease.

In the meantime, it has cost $150,000 for the services of guards and military personnel attending Marcos at Hickam Air Force Base, where Marcos has been living since late February when he fled his palace after 20 years of rule.

Redman said earlier this week that Marcos was a guest of the United States.

Among the possessions brought out by Marcos were boxes of documents that could shed light on the bitterly contested issue of the Marcos family bank accounts, real estate and other assets.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Asia, said the U.S. Customs Service has agreed to give his panel copies of 1,500 documents.

The panel has been seeking the records as evidence in its effort to help the new Philippines government of President Corason Aquino regain control of any wealth that Marcos might have sent abroad illegally during his rule.

"I am pleased we have been able to work out an agreement with the administration for them to turn over to us these documents in a timely fashion," Solarz said, weekend, Solarz said.

The documents will be turned over to the panel this weekend or early next week, Solarz said.

The documents could include details of Marcos' bank accounts and real estate holdings in New York, which the Philippines government has been claiming in legal proceedings in several states, Solarz said.

In a related development, the State Department announced that Jovito Salonga, chairman of a Philippines commission seeking return of Marcos' assets, will meet with department officials after his arrival in Washington this weekend.

Man gets 3-year term for spying

WASHINGTON (AP) — A District of Columbia courier for a company that transcribes congressional hearings was sentenced Thursday to a minimum of three years in prison for espionage.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell meted out a sentence of three to nine years to Randy Miles Jeffries, 26, who pleaded guilty on Jan. 24 to delivering national defense documents to a person not entitled to receive them. He must serve three years before becoming eligible for parole.

Jeffries, who faced a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison, pleaded guilty to the charge in exchange for the government dropping a more serious charge of delivering and attempting to deliver national defense documents to Soviet agents, which carries a life sentence.

Auto sales decline 4 percent

DETROIT (AP) — Domestic automakers on Thursday reported a 4 percent sales decline in early March compared with a year ago, and analysts pointed to waning consumer interest in cut-rate financing deals.

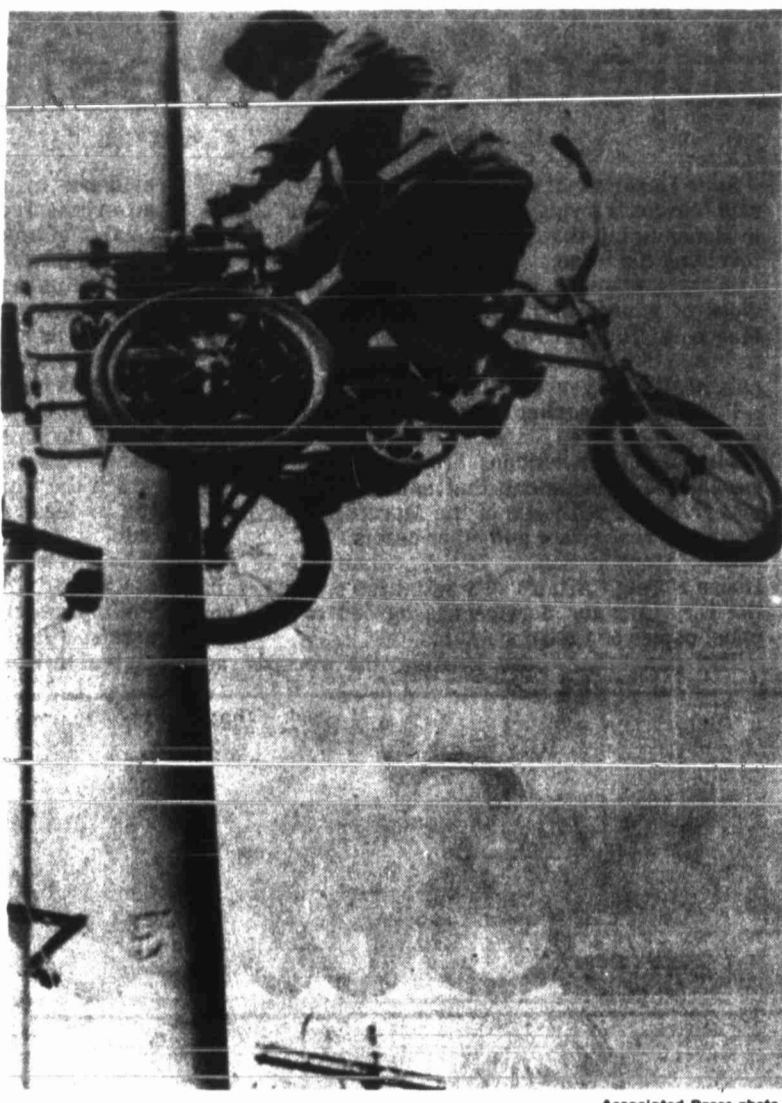

"There's a lack of significantly attractive financing incentives. The 9.9 rate really isn't working," said Jean-Claude Gruet, automotive industry analyst at Salomon Bros. Inc. in New York.

General Motors Corp. sales were up 1.3 percent in the March 1-10 period compared with a year ago. Ford Motor Co. sales were down 10.9 percent and Chrysler Corp.'s were down 11.8 percent.

However, Ford and Chrysler's market shares were unusually high a year ago at GM's expense. In the latest period, GM got back some, but not all, of the share.

Ford's share was 25.6 vs. 27.6 a year ago; Chrysler's was 13.5 vs. 14.7; and GM's was 56.5 vs. 53.5 a year ago.

The prevailing sales bait for consumers since late February has been a 9.9 percent interest rate on loans financed through the Big Three's in-house credit companies. Rates are below 8 percent on subcompact car lines, and regional dealer organizations in some cases have knocked a few points off Detroit's rates. Chrysler also is offering a choice of rebates.

Ear ailments impair skills

STATE COLLEGE, Pa. (AP) — Children who have repeated ear infections in pre-school years show poorer language skills and shorter attention spans later on, according to a seven-year study of 44 youngsters.

Otitis media, or middle-ear infection, is one of the ailments most often seen by pediatricians. The infection occurs most commonly in the first two years, when a child begins to develop language skills.

"We often think of these kinds of transient diseases, like otitis media, as having just a temporary effect on the child, and that once their hearing returns, that they'll be fine," Lynne Feagans, project researcher for the study by the University of North Carolina, said in an interview this week.

"My findings indicate that at least with a lot of otitis media, you're going to have children who are going to have poorer narrative skills and attention in the classroom than children who don't have that history," said Feagans, now professor of human development at Pennsylvania State University.

University offers to retrain teachers

DENTON (AP) — North Texas State University is offering its own version of a teacher competency test: if you're not fully satisfied with its education school graduates, send them back.

NTSU officials guaranteed the teacher and the principal of school districts across the state Thursday that it will re-train any incompetent teachers that graduate from NTSU through a Quality Assurance Program. If the teacher lacks in teaching or basic skills, NTSU will review the teacher, help plan an assistance program and offer counseling or professional services to the teacher and the principal of the teacher's school, said NTSU spokeswoman Charlotte Guest.

The program also offers free additional courses at NTSU and an individualized assistance program. "Throughout our 96-year history we always have had a commitment to quality teacher preparation," said NTSU Chancellor Alfred Hurley. "If we did not have the utmost confidence in our teacher education program, which has the highest admission standards in the state, we could not offer this kind of assurance to school districts."

Dear Abby

Family jewels lost in 'friendly divorce'

DEAR ABBY: This is for "Distressed," whose son and daughter-in-law, after a three-year marriage, are working out a "friendly divorce." Meanwhile, the daughter-in-law has not returned the diamond engagement ring — a family heirloom.

With approximately half the marriages ending in divorce, may I suggest we revive the old tradition of handing down significant pieces of jewelry to daughters only. This will ensure that heirloom pieces remain in the family.

My husband and I have one daughter and two sons. All heirloom jewelry will be given to our daughter. When our sons marry, their wives will be given new pieces, equal in value to the heirloom pieces.

This may be no consolation to "Distressed," but it may help other families with sentimental heirlooms to keep them in the family.

FIFTH GENERATION NEW ORLEANS

DEAR FIFTH: Heirloom jewelry should be given to whomever the giver wishes to give it, and the recipient should be free to give it to whomever he or she wishes to have it. Not all heirs have the same sentimental feelings about grandmother's pearls when they come with strings attached.

A son is as much entitled to grandfather's watch as his sister, and he'd find it more useful. And if there are no daughters in the family, then what?

DEAR ABBY: What would you give a man who has everything.

FREDA

DEAR FREDA: An audit.

DEAR ABBY: Please settle a family dispute. Our daughter, a professional woman of 30, shares our house. It works out well, as she helps my wife around the house some, but mainly we each have our own quarters.

She pays room and board of $75 a week, which includes everything — laundry and ironing done, etc. She makes over $20,000 a year. She has an MG car (paid for), and has about $15,000 in funds. She recently was laid off work and has run out of unemployment compensation. She feels we should not charge her any money at this time. We feel that if she were living in an apartment building, she would pay much more. She could use some of her savings. We do not need the money, but she needs to know responsibility. Maybe we should cut it in half? The atmosphere here has grown very chilly — and I am not talking about the climate. What should we do? Thanks.

DEAR DAD: If she were my daughter, I'd say she has already learned responsibility and doesn't need the lesson. But she's yours, not mine, so compromise, and cut the cost in half.

DEAR ABBY: Please print this letter to let the public know that they should never, never watch a person welding metal. I never realized the danger to your eyes. I was looking out my kitchen window at a worker about 30 feet away, for just a short time, and I burned my eyes badly.

It didn't start to hurt until three or four hours later. At first I thought I had something in my eye. During the night it got progressively worse — itching, pain, swelling of the eyelids and watering. I could not see clearly; everything was fuzzy. When I finally fell asleep, my eyelids got stuck together, and three times I had to get up and wash them and put eye drops in to be able to open them again.

I still wasn't sure what had caused all this until I called the welder to ask if that could be the problem. He said it was.

Please get the message out to help people. I'd hate to see a child or elderly person do damage to his eyes by watching a welder for a longer period of time than I did. Thank you.

CONNIE IN HAVERHILL, MASS.

DEAR CONNIE: Thanks for caring enough to write.

Dr. Donohue

Good diet has the vitamins from A to zinc

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I have read a lot lately about zinc and zinc needs in the health magazines. How can the person know when he is getting sufficient zinc in his diet? What foods are rich in it? — A.C.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can a zinc deficiency be behind by taste loss? I am a 71-year-old woman. Food is unappealing because of this. — Mrs. L.R.

I'm reading a lot about zinc, too. I can begin by using the old, trite but true line: You get all the zinc you need from any balanced diet. But I suspect you want more than truisms.

Here's where you get that zinc: You get about 70 percent from animal products (meat or dairy). Grain products provide most of the rest, with vegetables and other foods giving a fraction of a percent. The average adult needs about 12.5 milligrams of zinc daily. It's estimated he gets on average 6

mgs. from meat, 2.5 from dairy products, and 1.6 from vegetables and other foods — if there's a good balance of total intake.

Zinc needed during pregnancy rises to 20 mgs. daily. A breastfeeding mother needs more — about 25 mgs. infants and children require less, of course, depending on weight, as they progress into adulthood.

I get a lot of mail like Mrs. R's letter (older people complaining of taste loss). Much of that can reflect either medication use or sometimes the effects from a recent illness. But we are learning a lot about zinc, and it is now thought that a deficiency can account for many of the taste-loss complaints that seem to be a part of aging.

Whether this taste deficiency stems from lessened absorption of zinc or from poor nutrition generally is not clear. However, the questions posed are important, since poor nutrition may, in fact, stem from that very lack of taste acuity.

As Mrs. R. notes, her food is not as appealing as it used to be. Which came first, the zinc deficiency and taste loss or the poor zinc-deficient diet?

My advice to you, Mrs. R., is to look to your diet to see if it measures up to the balance I outlined. Second, you can ask your doctor if that diet is leaving you shortchanged in zinc and if you need supplements.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am not a diabetic, but I know several.

Some use the insulin injections, some get insulin in oral (pill) form. My question is why? Why do some have to go through the trouble of injecting themselves while some get by with the oral medicine? I know it's a dumb question to a lot of people. I have always wondered about it. — F.V.

It's not dumb; I'll bet a lot of people have wondered about it. It gets right to the heart of the diabetes problem.

First of all, the pills diabetics use do not contain insulin. They contain sulfonylureas. Those are drugs that help the pancreas cells secrete adequate amounts of insulin. As you know, the pancreas is the site of insulin production. Diabetics who manage their problem this way already possess functioning insulin-producing cells. Therein lies the difference.

Other diabetics are not getting any insulin production from their pancreas. The cells are non-functioning, so no amount of helper medicine (the sulfonylureas) will work for them. They need actual insulin and they get that by injection.

Does this clear up things for you?

Art group to bring Colorado City artist

The Big Spring Art Association will feature Caroline Walker of Colorado City, as guest artist on March 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the art department at Howard College.

Walker taught in the Jan Herring Studios in Cloudcroft, N.M. Her works have won numerous awards over the years. The glazing technique which she uses has made her method of painting unique. Walker has taught workshops and has judged area art shows. Currently, she is teaching in the Colorado City School system.

Business to be discussed will include selecting a nominating committee for the election of new officers and the spring art show.

Hoyas escape scrappy Raiders

By The Associated Press
DAYTON, Ohio — Guard Michael Jackson hit a jump shot and two free throws in the final minute as No. 13 Georgetown rallied from a seven-point deficit to defeat Texas Tech 70-64 in the first round of the NCAA Midwest Regional at the University of Dayton Thursday night.

The Hoyas, 27-4, will meet Michigan State, a 72-70 winner over Washington in the second round game Saturday.

Texas Tech, the champions of the Southwest Conference tournament bowed out at 17-14, but not until after pushing the Hoyas to the edge of elimination.

The Hoyas, who have been in the Final Four the past three out of four years, trailed 51-44 with 12:02 remaining in the game after holding an 11-point lead in the first half. But Georgetown fought back to trail 62-61 with 4:12 remaining.

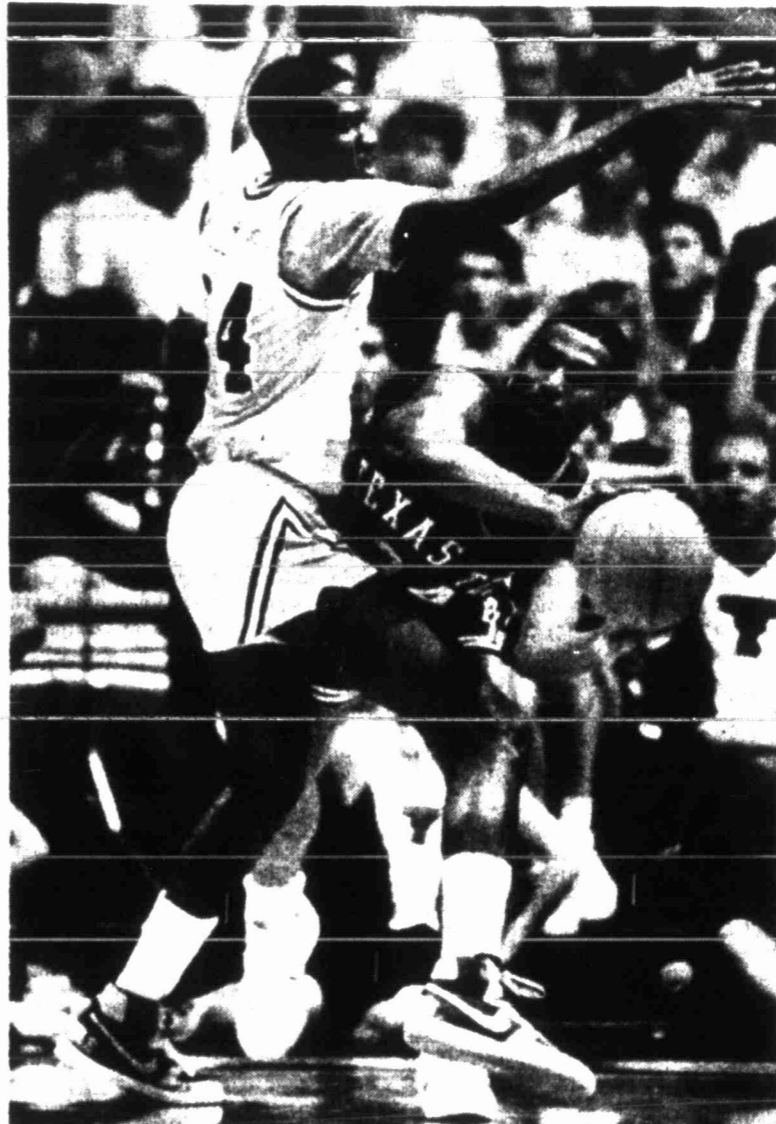

A three-point play by center Ralph Dalton at the 2:08 mark gave the Hoyas the lead for good.

"This may help us a little, but closing a game depends on getting the right basket at the right time," Georgetown head coach John Thompson said. "Ralph's three-point play and then they miss a couple of times; that was the deciding factor."

After Tech's Tobin Doda missed on a drive, Jackson hit a 22-foot jumper as time was running down on the 45-second clock to put Georgetown up 66-62. Two free throws by Jackson, who scored 12 points, and two more by David Wingate sealed the victory.

Reggie Williams led the Hoyas with 22 points.

Substitute guard Wendell Owens, who came into the game averaging 4.9 points per game, led Texas Tech with 22 points. Tony Benford had 17

Texas Tech's Tony Benford searches for a teammate under the outstretched arms of Georgetown defender Reggie Williams in the second half of the Hoyas 70-64 victory in the NCAA Midwest regional first round tournament game in Dayton Thursday night.

The 6'2" Owens, from Queens, N.Y., helped the Raiders trigger a second-half comeback from a thirteen point deficit late in the first half. Tech eventually built a seven point lead and were only 12 minutes from the upset of the day.

But the Hoyas, no stranger to tight playoff games, took advantage of Tech turnovers and missed shots in the final four minutes to end the Raiders season.

Georgetown also enjoyed a big advantage on the boards over the smaller Red Raiders. The Hoyas outrebounded Tech 28-13 in the first half, including 13-1 on the offensive end. Georgetown outrebounded Tech 40-29 for the game.

"It seems like we always have a tough first NCAA game," Hoya guard Michael Jackson said. "Now I think we're ready to roll."

"We're disappointed to say the least, that we weren't able to go ahead and win the game," Tech head coach Gerald Myers said. "But, at the same time, I couldn't be prouder of this team for coming back from a losing record a month ago to be in the NCAA playoffs."

For Owens, who has played just two minutes in the last five games, the Hoyas were just another team.

"I just came out there and played the best I could," said Owens, who had a similar performance during the regular season against Arkansas. "I was pushing the ball up and down the court."

"It's a disappointing loss, but young guys like me can learn from it. If we had had a little more patience and taken care of the ball, who knows."

Top regional seeds survive openers

By The Associated Press
Top-ranked Duke and No. 6 Georgia Tech had surprising battles Thursday before both struggled to victory in the opening round of the NCAA basketball tournament.

Duke needed 27 points from All-American Johnny Dawkins, including 20 in the second half, to rally past Mississippi Valley State 85-78, while Georgia Tech beat back unexpectedly tough Marist 68-53.

"I knew we would present Duke with some defensive problems," Mississippi Valley Coach Lafayette Stribling said. "You (the media) thought we were just a little team that got here by luck. I said before there were 63 underdogs (in the 64-team tournament), but I think you were trying to put me under the underdogs."

Mark Coleman paced Mississippi Valley, 20-11, with 24 points.

Old Dominion, 23-7, led by Kenny Gattison's game-high 27 points, will meet Duke on Saturday. Consecutive baskets by Frank Smith and Keith Thomas gave Old Dominion the lead for good at 38-35 in the Monarchs' victory over West Virginia, 22-11.

Oklahoma's David Johnson scored 24 points and Darryl Kennedy added 21 as the Sooners overcame the absence of Tim McCalister and a 35-point performance by Reggie Lewis for the Huskies. Lewis scored 14 straight points for Northeastern, which surged into a 64-64 tie with 5:44 left. Johnson broke the tie with a basket at 5:33 and the score was never tied again.

The Sooners will play DePaul on Saturday. The balanced Blue Demons' attack was led by Lemone Lampley with 15 points and three teammates with 12 each. It was 10 years ago on the same date in Greensboro that DePaul downed Virginia 69-60 in a first-round NCAA tournament contest.

Mark Price scored 20 points as Georgia Tech, 26-6, used a 12-0 spurt over a four-minute span in the second half to pull away from Marist, 19-12, in the Southeast Regional at Baton Rouge, La. Marist, making its first NCAA tournament appearance, took a 40-37 lead over Georgia Tech early in the second half before the Regional's top-seeded team made its run.

Defending national champion Villanova, 23-13, got 20 points from Harold Jensen and held off a late surge by Virginia Tech, 22-9, for its victory. Appearing in its seventh straight NCAA tournament, Villanova will play Georgia Tech on Saturday.

Memphis State also will play Saturday after mauling Ball State as Vincent Askew had 23 points and William Bedford contributed 16 points, most of them on short turnaround jump shots over two defenders. The Tigers will take on another set of Tigers, from host Louisiana State.

LSU's Anthony Wilson scored 11 points in the second overtime period. The Tigers went into the second OT tied 73-73. Wilson scored two quick baskets and seven free throws in the last 16 seconds to finish the 2½-hour marathon.

In the Midwest Regional at Dayton, Ohio, sophomore center Tim Perry scored six points in overtime to lead Temple, 25-5, past Jacksonville, 21-10. Perry, who missed the front end of a bonus situation with three seconds remaining that would have given Temple the victory in regulation, scored the Owls' first points in the overtime.

Second-ranked Kansas, 32-3, had four players in double figures, led by Danny Manning with 15, and was never threatened in coasting past North Carolina A&T, 19-8. The top seed in the Midwest Regional, Kansas will meet Temple on Saturday.

Longhorns nip Lobos in NIT first round

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — His voice on the hoarse side but his confidence on the rise, Texas basketball Coach Bob Weltlich had reason to feel optimistic about the Longhorns' chances in the National Invitation Tournament.

Texas, on the strength of some clutch shooting in the second half, overcame New Mexico's homecourt advantage and the Lobos' running game to take a 69-66 victory in an opening round NIT game here Thursday night.

"We played well when we had to," said Weltlich, his voice showing the effects of a cold. "We did some nice things at the end and we took the crowd out of the game."

Texas, which tied with TCU and Texas A&M for the regular season title in the Southwest Conference then lost in the semifinals of the league tournament, got double figuring scoring from four starters to offset a 30-point effort by New Mexico senior forward Johnny Brown. Forward Raynard Davis came up with a crucial offensive rebound with 54 seconds left and then hit a pair of free throws that secured Texas' victory before a partisan New Mexico crowd of 14,760.

Texas trailed by as much as seven points in the first half, got within 34-33 at halftime, then controlled the tempo down the stretch with the outside shooting of forward Patrick Fairs and the inside offensive work of Davis and senior center John Brownlee.

Texas, which won the NIT title in 1978, moves into the second round with a 19-11 record. New Mexico, which finished fifth in the Western Athletic Conference, ended the year at 17-14.

New Mexico was unable to overcome Texas' consistent shooting in the final 20 minutes. Fair, guard Karl Willock and Davis benefitted from the zone defense the Lobos employed to try and stop Brownlee, the Longhorns' leading scorer this season and the Player-of-the-Year in the SWC.

With Texas holding a 64-63 lead, Fairs missed on an off-balance 18-footer with 54 seconds left but Davis got the rebound and the Longhorns worked the clock down to 18 seconds before Fairs connected on another jumper for a 66-63 lead.

Brigham Young 67, Southern Methodist 63

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Guard Bob Cochran, who didn't see a great deal of playing time this season, was asked by Brigham Young Coach Ladell Andersen if he could shut down Southern Methodist Juggernaut Kevin Lewis.

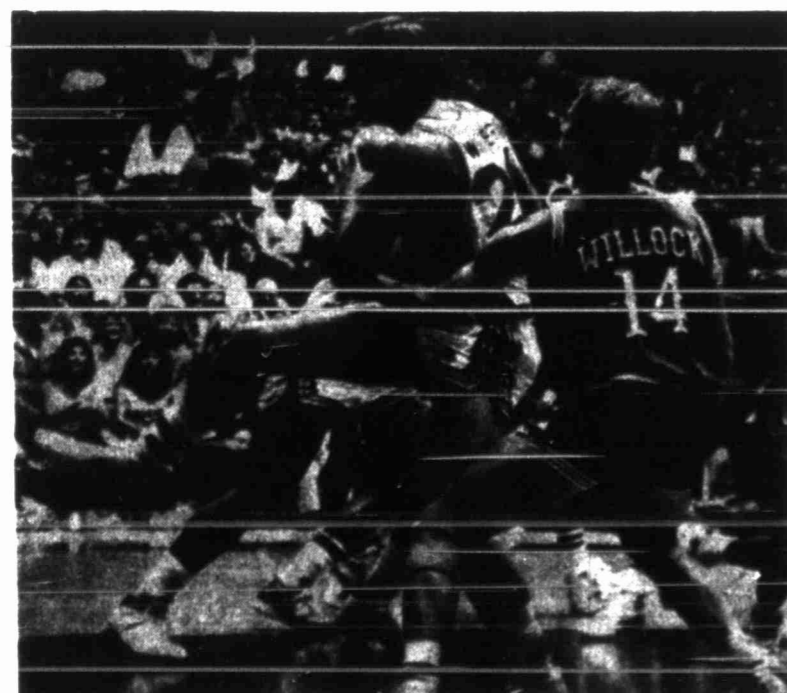

"I said yes. I had to keep my word," Cochran said and did as Brigham Young downed SMU 67-73 in the first round of the National In-itation Tournament Thursday night. The Cougars will play Cal-Irvine Tuesday night at Provo. Irvine downed UCLA 80-74 Thursday.

Lewis had a game-high 27 points, but scored only six of them against Cochran in the closing 11 minutes.

Cochran had a key rebound basket over Lewis and was fouled by Lewis with a minute left in the game. He missed the free throw, but BYU junior center Tom Gneiting, who scored 20 points, grabbed the rebound, was fouled and sank two free throws to give BYU a 65-63 lead with 50 seconds left.

The Mustangs had a chance at overtime when SMU guard Scott Johnson missed a field goal with five seconds left and Lewis rebounded. But Lewis' turnaround jumper inside the key missed and the rebound was pulled down by BYU's Jeff Chatman, who was fouled and sank two free throws to end the game.

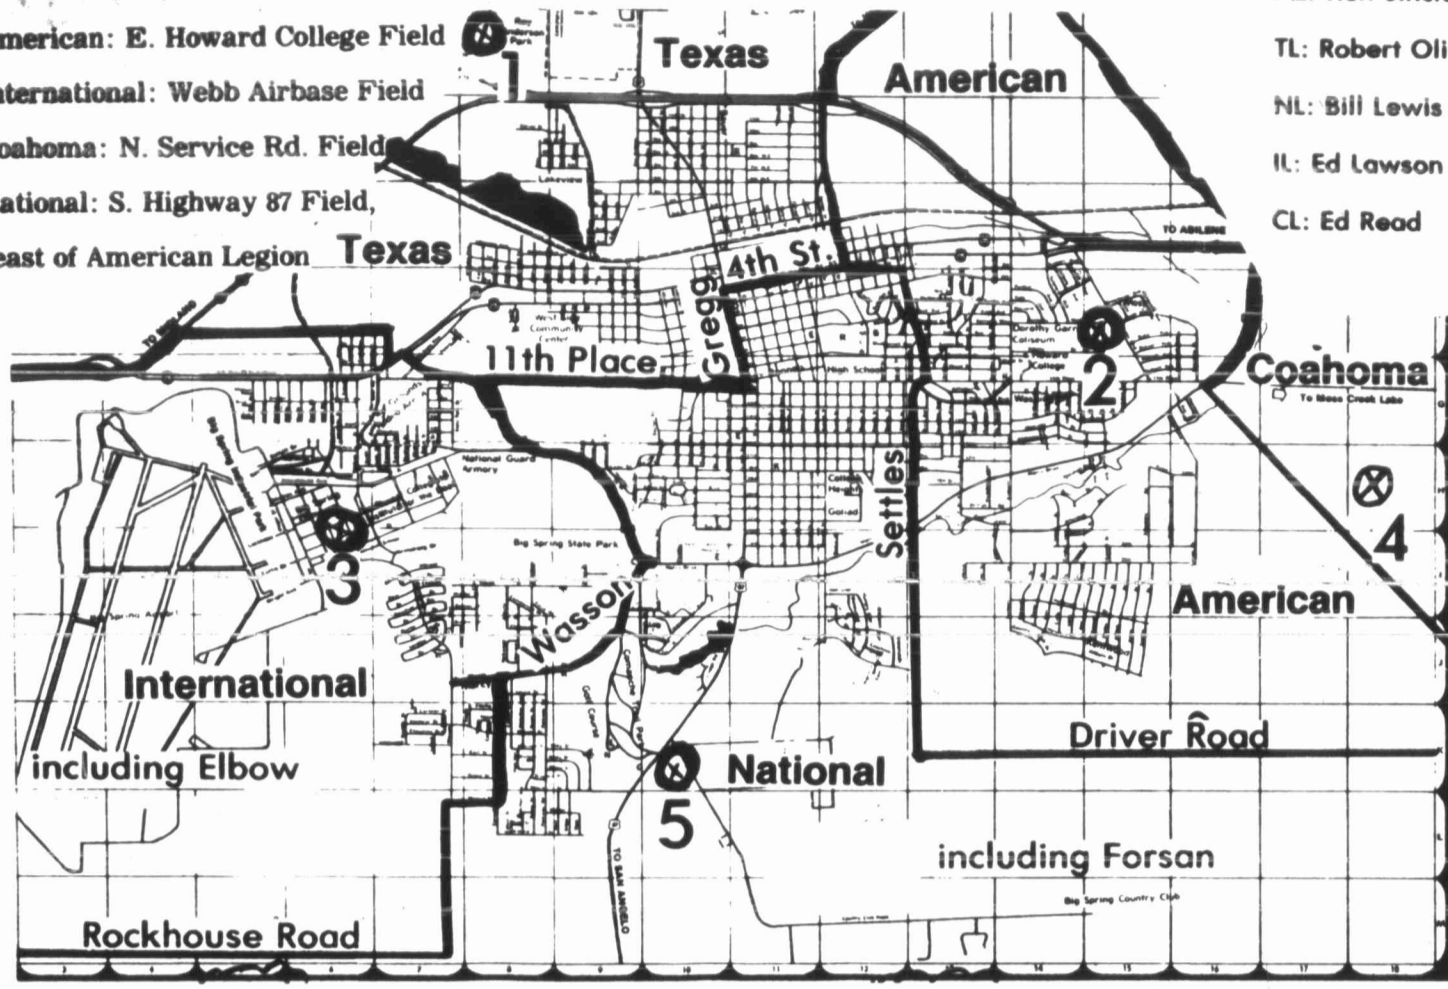

New Mexico guard Mike Winters takes a rebound from Texas guard Karl Willock during the Longhorns' 69-66 win over the Lobos on their homecourt in Albuquerque Thursday night.

Kite sails in Bay Hill Classic

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — While some of golf's finest players were struggling, scrambling and swearing through howling, gusty winds, Tom Kite was right at home.

"Players who grow up in Texas and California grow up with the wind, they seem to know how to handle it," Kite observed.

"I wish the wind would blow every day. I enjoy it. It keeps you on your toes, helps you concentrate," the Texas native said.

He failed, however, to mention Oklahoma. The wind blows there, too.

And shortly after Kite had finished with a 68, an Oklahoma native proved the best of the bunch at handling the wind in the first round of the $500,000 Hertz Bay Hill Classic.

Bob Tway, born in Oklahoma City and now a resident of Edmond, Okla., was the only man in the elite, invitational field of 114 able to get around Arnold Palmer's wind-raked Bay Hill Club without a bogey.

The 26-year-old Tway, a tour sophomore who scored his first victory last month in San Diego, shot a 5-under-par 66 and stepped two shots in front of the pack — Kite, Ray Floyd, Dan Pohl and Dan Forsman, all tied at three under par.

At 70 were Ben Crenshaw, Roger Maltbie, Scott Simpson and Corey Pavin.

Gideon's mission is placing Bibles

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

Every 17 days one million Bibles get placed around the world, Bob Spears, president of the local Gideon Organization, said.

"They are placed in the traffic lanes of the world," he said. A Bible is placed in every hotel, motel and hospital room plus given to every fifth grade student and to every nurse who graduates, he said.

"We know the word of God will not return void, but will prosper wherever it's sent," Spears said. Their purpose is "to be a Christian witness by personal testimony and distribute the word of God," he said.

From this placement, they get thousands of returns from people who accept the message of the Bible, Spears said.

The beginning of the Gideon Organization, he said, is attributed to two traveling salesman who decided they wanted Christian fellowship while they were on the road.

It is an international, non-denominational group which began in the early 1900s, in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, Spears said. They currently have organized camps in 135 countries around the world. Nashville, Tenn. is the headquarters.

Those who make up the Gideon Organization are Christian business and professional men who've been recommended by their pastors and feel they'd like to serve God through this avenue, Spears said. "We operate on our own personal funds," he said. None of the members of the organization are reimbursed

BOB SPEARS
...Gideon's president for their expenses or time. "We offer it freely," he said. One hundred percent of the money received from church donations and the memory Bible plan is used to place scripture around the world, Spears said. Sixty percent goes to the distribution of Bibles in other countries and forty percent is used in the United States, he said.

"We have the right and privilege to distribute Bibles in places because we're not one specific denomination," he said, "where other specific denominations may not be able to."

The Gideon Organization meets every Thursday, Spears said. The word denomination is never mentioned because they're together for one purpose, to get the word of God out, he said.

A branch of the organization is the Ladies Auxiliary of the Gideon Organization whose motto is "the women on their knees to keep the men on their feet," Mrs. Roy Hester, president of the local auxiliary, said.

The main purpose of the ladies auxiliary is ministry of prayer and winning men and women to the Lord, Hester said. They, too, help in the distribution of the Bibles, she said.

One thing the Gideons "don't like or seek is a lot of publicity for what they do. They do what they do in a low-key manner," Spears said.

An event the Gideons are currently working on is the annual rally which will be held May 4. A stewardship report will be given to the local churches by a member of the organization and donations will also be taken, Spears said.

St. Mary's sets Lenten series

The Rev. Allen Whitman, rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Midland, will be the featured speaker for the Lenten series Wednesday evening at St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

After earning bachelor degrees from the University of Minnesota and the University of Chicago, Father Whitman received his Master of Sacred Theology from Northwestern Lutheran Seminary and his Doctor of Divinity from Nashota.

Having served various churches in Illinois, Minnesota and Missouri, he became an associate at St. Matthew's Church in Austin from 1977-1981 before coming to Midland.

In addition to his church assignments, Father Whitman is the author of Parson McFright, Fairytale and Kingdom of God, Pray For Your Life, and Gospel Comes Alive.

The series begins with a service of evening prayer at 6 p.m., followed by a pot-luck supper at 6:30. Father Whitman begins his talk at 7 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

St. Patrick's Mass planned

Festivities in honor of St. Patrick will begin at 6 p.m. Sunday at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church on Hearn Street.

Holy Mass will be celebrated in Irish, the language of St. Patrick. Refreshments — corned beef and cabbage supper — and entertainment will follow in the cafeteria. Everyone welcome — faite — but reservations are requested, 267-4124.

Pope warns prelates of political influence

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II had praise Thursday for liberation theology's role in helping the poor, but he said the injection of political ideology can lead to violence that creates more injustice than it cures.

He told Brazilian prelates they cannot substitute for politicians, economists and unionists as their country builds democracy.

"To uproot the church from its principal mission and identify it with other elements could be dangerous and destructive," the pope said at the opening of a three-day meeting with Brazil's Roman Catholic Church leaders, including five cardinals.

He commended the church's work for the poor in Brazil but said attempts to bring alien concepts into liberation theology would create "grave consequences."

John Paul summoned the church leaders in connection with what Vatican analysts called a "total checkup" on the state of the church in Brazil, whose bishops are sharply divided over liberation theology.

The movement was born in Latin America more than two decades ago and links spiritual freedom to liberation from social and economic oppression.

"Liberation theology is not only orthodox but necessary," the pontiff told the 21 prelates representing the world's largest national church, plus 10 top Vatican cardinals. The closed meeting was held in the frescoed Hall of Bologna in the Apostolic Palace.

"It is my hope that Brazil, and all of Latin America ... fashions the necessary and widespread social reforms with justice and charity, with efficacy," he said.

The pope cautioned, however, that such efforts should be made without violence, which he said "usually ends up by generating more injustices than those which it was fighting in the first place."

Liberation theology should be "purified from elements which might adulterate it, in order to avoid grave consequences to the faith," he said.

The Vatican hails some aspects of liberation theology, such as the concern for the poor cited by John Paul, but condemns Marxist elements often associated with it.

Advocates use the Gospel to justify political action on behalf of the poor and oppressed, especially in the Third World, sometimes using the idea of class struggle to analyze social problems.

In his 35-minute speech, delivered in Portuguese, John Paul stressed a primary theme of his pontificate: Bishops and priests have a moral role to play, but are not politicians.

As Brazil moves toward democracy, he said, it must confront difficult problems such as health, illiteracy, poverty and hunger.

"Confronted by these challenges ... the church has a special role which does not identify itself with, or substitutes for, the role of the politicians, economists, intellectuals and unions must play," the pontiff said.

Conservative Brazilian churchmen, led by Cardinal Eugenio de Araujo Sales of Rio de Janeiro, support the Vatican position on liberation theology.

School board renews teachers' contracts

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Contracts for all but three Big Spring teachers were extended by the school board during a closed session of its regular meeting Thursday night.

Names of the three teachers were not disclosed.

Superintendent Lynn Hise said one of the three teachers was hired after Nov. 1, and his contract is not up for review until the May meeting.

The other two teacher's principals had asked for more time to review their performance, Hise said.

Teachers performances are evaluated twice yearly in the classroom by the school's principal, Hise said.

In other business the board:

- Approved recommendations of the textbook committee on books to be used in the schools beginning the next academic year. The committee met Feb. 27 to review and vote on the books.
- Approved a $146,000 bid by Colcraft Inc. of San Antonio to re-roof part of the high school.
- Approved an $8,410 bid by Johnson Sheet Metal for 30 evaporative coolers.
- Approved a $6,833.67 bid by Wes-Tex Equipment Co. of Midland for a diesel engine conversion package to be installed in a special education bus, which is equipped with a chairlift.
- Approved an employee flexible benefit plan, which was tabled at last month's meeting. The plan allows employees to select various benefit options and pay for them through salary reductions, said

Don Crockett, assistant superintendent for business. This reduces the employee's federal income taxes by paying for the benefits with pre-tax dollars, he said. Tom Cook and Associates will be the agent for the program.

- Approved a request for the Steer Band to participate in the Greater Southwest Music Festival in Amarillo May 1-4. Last year the Steers had to cancel the trip because too many band members were failing classes, but the problem does not exist this year, Hise said.

- Allocated $530 in Title II funds to the Region 18 Education Service Center. The money was reallocated to the district under the Economic Security Act. The board allocated $5,566 in Title II funds to the center earlier in the academic year. The center pools funds from school districts throughout the region and uses them to provide staff development, Hise said.

- Approved Policy GF, inadvertently left out of the Update 25 package of policy updates supplied by the Texas School Board. The policy allows district employees to come before the board to file a complaint as citizens rather than employees, Hise said.

- Approved a plan to conduct a drive throughout the district to collect funds to build a school and a clinic in earthquake-devastated Mexico City.

- Called for an April 10 noon meeting to canvass the April 5 election. The board's regular meeting was postponed to April 17 to allow time after spring break to prepare an agenda for the meeting.
