Traffic light

Q. In light of the recent accidents at Westover Road and FM 700, does the city plan to install a traffic light there?

A. Police Lt. David Spilman of the traffic commission said the city can make no changes to FM 700 without state approval because it's a state highway. However, the commission has advised the City Council to ask the state to do a study to determine if changes are needed there, he said.

Jury to sentence murderer

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Punishment for 37-year-old Felix Zamora, convicted Wednesday of murdering his wife, was expected to be set this afternoon following deliberations by a six-man, six-woman jury.

Zamora faces a possible life term in the state penitentiary if the 118th District Court jury decides on the maximum sentence. Defense attorney Richard Abalos of Odessa said he has filed for a probation sentence not to exceed 10 years for his client.

Abalos summoned six character witnesses from Knott this morning, who testified that Zamora was a "peaceful, law-abiding citizen" before the Nov. 16 shooting of his wife, Maria Isabel Zamora, at the Latin Quarters club.

Jurors reached their verdict Wednesday night after 3½ hours of deliberation following two days of testimony.

Prosecutor Rick Hamby closed the testimonial portion of the trial Wednesday afternoon after he cross-examined Zamora on the witness stand.

Zamora told jurors Wednesday morning that he could not remember who gave him a gun in the club's parking lot or details of the shooting. He claimed losing his mind moments before, during and after the incident.

During cross-examination, Zamora again recounted events leading up to the Saturday night shooting and his flight from Big Spring. He was captured by sheriff's deputies at the Greyhound Bus Station as he returned to Big Spring the following Monday.

Zamora told jurors he was requested by club owner Antonio Arispe to leave club premises following a scuffle on the dance floor with his wife, and he thought it would be best to go home.

Brace up for freeze tonight

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Freezing temperatures tonight could spell doom for some of the area's young plants and fruit trees if the cold lingers for more than a few hours, said assistant county extension agent Mike Bragg.

The forecast tonight calls for low temperatures to hover near the freezing mark.

"If we're going to see 32 degrees and below all night long, we're going to lose some fruit," Bragg said.

However, he said if the mercury dips below 32 for just a few hours, he doesn't expect significant damage to young plants and fruit trees.

As for field crops, Bragg said there's little chance of the hardy grain plants being harmed by the cold.

Bragg said a number of measures can be taken to limit or prevent freeze damage to fruit trees and young plants like those Coahoma Elementary School fourth-graders crowd around Buckwheat, a baby lamb, while on a field trip to Paul Allen's farm Tuesday.

Farm trip

Students have field day with animals

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Fourth-graders at Coahoma Elementary School got hands-on experience about soil conservation, cattle and other domestic animals Tuesday afternoon on a field trip to County Commissioner Paul Allen's farm.

The trip was sponsored by the Texas Cowbelles, a group of area women who promote the cattle industry.

The students were allowed to pet a lamb and viewed cattle, horses, sheep and pigs at the farm.

Richard Christie, soil conservationist, demonstrated the effects of water runoff, soil erosion and conservation methods using a pan of earth and a watering can.

When the "ground" was terraced and covered with hay, the earth got the benefit of the water, whereas when left alone, the water ran off, carrying the topsoil with it, he showed.

Farmers must deal with the resources they have, he explained. "They have to take care of it (the land) in a conserving manner so it will be here for their kids and grandkids."

The fourth-graders were followed around the barnyard by a little black lamb named Buckwheat. They swarmed around the affectionate animal, who tried to suck their fingers.

"He bit my finger!" one girl said, laughing.

Others examined nose-to-nose a curious brown horse. They were warned not to put their hands in the pen because "he might bite you."

Next to the horse was a mother quarterhorse with her 4-to-5-day-old, long-legged colt. The colt followed the mother around the pen at her side.

Executives discuss problem of oil price fall

AUSTIN (AP) — With oil prices caught up in a "wild free fall," leading oil and gas company executives have called for a hands-off attitude by the federal government and a don't-panic response from the industry itself.

More than 20 executives were on the roll call at the Texas Railroad Commission's annual hearing on the "state of the industry."

"We know doing nothing can be frustrating. But doing something — especially if it's the federal government that does it — will probably be the wrong something. And very likely the permanent, expensive, wrong something," said Jack Mon-gomery, general manager of crude oil supply for Amoco Production.

"Now is the time to get prepared to let U.S. oil companies operate in a free-market environment," said Robert Writz Jr., vice president of Sun Exploration & Production Co.

Writz, Montgomery and spokesmen for other major companies opposed any tariff on imported crude oil. "Sun believes the imposition of an oil import fee is an example of a 'quick fix,' not a fundamental solution," Writz said.

But others, such as Vice President James King of Crown Central Petroleum Co. said "some type of tariff system is critically needed."

James Hunt of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association (TIPRO) said an oil import fee "is the only medicine for our industry's illness caused by artificially low oil prices."

"Clearly, the state of the industry is not good," said Texaco U.S.A. President Roland Routhier. "If current trends continue for many more months, the U.S. domestic industry will be irreparably injured."

Routhier said if oil prices stay at $14-$15 a barrel through 1990, oil imports will rise and much of the domestic industry will be shut down.

"If we continue to allow the nation's oil and gas industry to be dismantled because of 'cheap' foreign oil, the United States could become nearly a 100 percent importer of crude oil. Then our nation would truly be hostage to the political uncertainties of nations in the Middle East and North Africa, which control the surplus supply of petroleum," said Hunt of TIPRO.

Colin Lee, executive vice president of Conoco Inc., said, "Energy independence may have been an overly ambitious goal for this country, but to replace it with energy subservience would be perilous."

To avoid a "severe oil shock," Lee proposed decontrolling the price of old natural gas; repealing the windfall profits tax; removing the restriction on the export of Alaskan oil; and scrapping tax proposals that would reduce certain deductions.

Lee also recommended filling reservoirs of oil reserves with oil from government-purchased wells that produce fewer than 10 barrels a day and relaxing leasing moratoria.

Several executives outlined how their companies were selling assets, laying off workers and otherwise reducing costs.

Names in the news

LOS ANGELES — RUDY VALLEE, whose image as a Yale University graduate crooning "The Whiffenpoof Song" through a megaphone endured a 60-year radio, movie and stage career, is recovering from throat surgery, officials say.

...recovering from surgery

Vallee, 85, was admitted to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center several days ago, according to hospital spokesman Ron Wise, who said Wednesday that Vallee was expected to be moved to a private room shortly.

Vallee's wife of 36 years, Eleanor, has requested that no other information be released about her husband's condition or ailment, Wise said.

Daily Variety columnist Army Archerd reported Wednesday that Vallee had undergone throat surgery and was expected to be removed from intensive care by the end of the week.

Vallee rose to fame during the Prohibition era, when he crooned such tunes as "Vagabond Lover," "My Time is Your Time" and "The Maine Stein Song" to an audience that lionized the lifestyle of Ivy League colleges.

It was at New York City's Heigh-Ho Club in 1928, leading the Connecticut Yankees, that Vallee used a small red megaphone to sing the Yale drinking song that begins "We're poor little lambs who have lost our way..."

NEW YORK — Defense

ROBERT LUDLUM
...gets cutting review

Ludlum said Wednesday he was "most flattered and not a little alarmed that an extraordinarily busy man such as Mr. Weinberger has the time to read a thriller."

He added he would read the secretary's review carefully, "for I consider him to be a master of fiction."

Weinberger was in Europe and unavailable for comment, said Pentagon spokesman William Caldwell. Caldwell said he did not know if Weinberger was a regular reader of spy novels.

How the protector of the nation's defense became a critic of its literature was something of a mystery. "We don't give out information on how we make our review assignment decisions," said Claudia Rosett, the Journal's book editor.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH. — EDWARD BERNAYS, who wrote the first book and taught the first course on public relations more than 70 years ago, wonders if he's created a Frankenstein's monster.

The book is afflicted with "turgid travelogue" and "one-dimensional" characters, and its "dialogue falls strangely on the ear, with lines that are wooden and at times preposterous," he wrote.

Weinberger tossed Ludlum a few wilted bouquets, crediting him with "enough narrative skill to keep one turning the pages — a few at a time, anyway" and having "concocted and conveyed a story that does not lack for excitement."

"It's gotten to the point where any press agent, any flack, any carpetlayer can call himself a public relations consultant — and does," said Bernays, 94, a lecturer, author, adviser to presidents and the dean of public relations people.

He said in an interview Tuesday that he'd like to see states license and police his contemporaries much the same way doctors and lawyers are regulated.

month old, were also on view. The pigs roared through the soil in their pen with blunt snouts.

"This is where your ham, bacon and sausage come from," explained county extension agent Mike Bragg.

The white sheep with black legs and faces behaved like, well, sheep. They followed one another around the pen and congregated at one end, away from the crowd. One sheep and a lamb carried on a chorus of "baahs" back and forth for several minutes like dueling banjos.

Allen told the students most sheep in West Texas are either raised for the wool or raised for both wool and meat. Most of the meat is consumed in the north United States, he said.

The cattle were kept in a pen far from the other animals, except for one which wandered about in the open. They congregated in the center of the pen, mothers with calves by their sides and one bull, twice as tall as the others in the pen. They shook their heads, flicked their tails and snorted from the excess dust that permeated the air.

"This is where your beef starts. It doesn't start in the store; it starts on the ranch," Allen told the youngsters.

City administrative assistant resigns

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Administrative Assistant Pat Hardy has tendered his resignation with the city of Big Spring effective April 9.

Wednesday, Hardy accepted the city manager's position in the northern town of Blue Earth, a small city in southern Minnesota. He'll begin work there April 14, he said.

Hardy lived in Big Spring in his youth and returned to the Spring City in January 1984 as an administrative intern from East Tennessee State University.

In two years of service with the city, Hardy played a pivotal role in the emergence of the downtown renovation movement and was instrumental in writing grant proposals and establishing a city code enforcement policy. He also was an active member of the Friends of the Newspaper.

The major changes he saw in his two-year stay in Big Spring include implementation of a seven-member council, the emergence of civil service, the Capital Improvement Program, automation of the sanitary service and the building of a multimillion-dollar trash bailer, he said.

"I have a very special place in my heart for Big Spring," Hardy said. "It's a wonderful city. Its people are its greatest asset."

"In terms of personal development, I've learned a real, real lot," he said.

Hardy said "things are slowly but surely turning around" for the city. "We're beginning to realize and implement things we need to do to develop our economy," he said.

Councilman Gary Don Carey said Hardy's resignation comes at a tough time for the city with the breaking in soon of a new city manager. Carey said he favored Hardy as interim city manager after Don Davis resigned.

"I think he did an outstanding job," Carey said. "I hate to see him leave Big Spring."

"I just was very pleased with his two years of work," said Councilman Russ McEwen. "He did a very good job."

Acting City Manager Hal Boyd said he had no plans to replace Hardy. "We'll disperse his functions among the staff," he said. Boyd said it would not be fair to the future city manager for him to hire an administrative assistant.

Of Hardy's work for the city,

Boyd said: "My reaction as a co-worker is that he's an outstanding young individual. He contributed quite well" to the city administration.

Police Beat

Shooting suspect arrested

Big Spring police Wednesday arrested an east Texas man wanted for the attempted capital murder of two policemen.

Earl Albert Lott, 31, of 508 N. San Antonio St. was arrested by police Wednesday morning at his home after receiving a Crimestoppers tip, said Lt. Jerry Edwards.

Edwards said Lott had escaped from authorities near the town of Brenham in Washington County between Austin and Houston. He was being held in connection with the attempted shooting of two police officers who came across a suspect burglarizing a home, Edwards said.

Edwards said police got a Crimestoppers tip Sunday from San Angelo that Lott was in Big Spring.

● Shonda Elliot of 538 Westover Road Apt. 251 told police Wednesday morning that someone stole 20 cassette tapes valued at $160, a $30 leather tape case, $30 in cash, a store credit card and six personal checks from her car between 1 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. Tuesday.

● Victor Wrye of 632 Caylor St. told police Wednesday morning that someone stole two motorcycle side panels and a $190 custom canvas cover. While stealing the items, the thieves damaged the cycle's wiring system, according to the complaint. The theft occurred in Wrye's backyard between 10 a.m. Thursday and 9:35 a.m. Wednesday, the police report indicated.

● Robert Ramirez of 508 Abrams St. told police Friday night that someone he knows used a weapon to assault him outside 503 N. Lamesa Highway Friday night. No injuries to Ramirez were reported.

● Police told Tom Branham of Branham Auto Sales early this morning that someone had broken into the business. The burglary occurred between 5 p.m. Wednesday and 2:10 a.m. this morning, according to the complaint. Branham told police that $100 in coins, 15 knives valued at $265 and 10 one-ounce silver ingot bars valued at $100 were stolen. Intruders also caused $30 damage to a window.

● Ena Mae Peterson Newsome, 67, of 2106 Monticello St. was arrested Wednesday night at Interstate 20 and Highway 350 on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

beginning to sprout in area flower beds.

Small plants, he said, can be protected by covering or by warming them with heat lamps. Or, if the plants are potted, he suggests bringing them into the house for the night.

Covering plants insulates them from the cold and shields them from the wind, he said. He said it's essential for the plant to have protection from a north wind. "The freeze normally comes from the north. Protection from the wind is a big key, I really believe that," Bragg said.

Fruit trees can be protected the same way young plants are, he said. Covering them with plastic or hanging heaters from the branches are good preventative practice, he said.

Bragg said he has seen fruit trees where only half the tree bore fruit. The other side, he said, was either unwarmed by a heater or exposed to an arctic wind.

Trees and plants in town are protected somewhat from the wind by hills and buildings. But unbuffered trees and plants growing in the country's open spaces can suffer a great deal from cold northern blasts, he said.

After he crossed the highway, Zamora said, he heard someone calling his name.
"I didn't realize what was happening," Zamora said. "It's kind of a vague memory."

He said he returned to the club's parking lot and remembered money being exchanged between Enrique Mendiola, a co-worker he had driven to the Latin Quarters that night, and Freddy Olivares, a friend at the club that night.

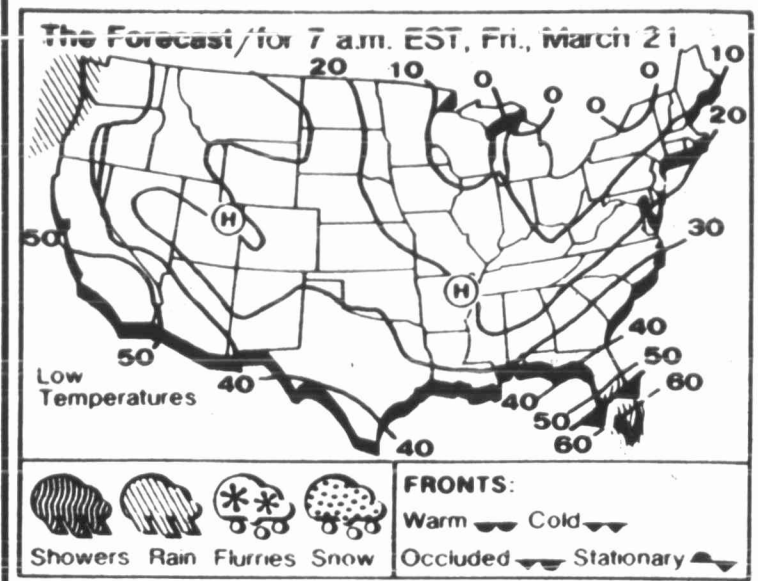

"Freddy had a gun. I saw it in his hand," Zamora testified.
"Somebody gave it to me."
He said Mendiola then gave Olivares $100.

Asked about the transaction and Zamora's eventual possession of the handgun, the defendant testified that "in my mind, I was hearing this — but not seeing this."

Olivares testified earlier that a gun he carried in the glove compartment of his vehicle was still in the glove compartment Nov. 16, but discovered missing two or three days later.

Zamora claimed a loss of memory when Hamby asked him if he remembered kissing Olivares' wife on the cheek moments before walking over to the table and shooting his estranged wife three times with a .38 caliber gun.

State

A blast of Canadian air sent temperatures and wind chills into a nosedive on the first day of spring.

The cold air that pushed across the upper Midwest early today dropped temperatures into the single digits to teens from the Dakotas and Nebraska across the upper Great Lakes region.

Wind chills were as low as 30 below zero in northern Michigan and chills of below zero were common across the upper Mississippi Valley, the upper Great Lakes and upstate New York.

Temperatures also were unseasonably low in the southern Plains and brisk northerly winds pushed the cold air over much of the East. Gale warnings were issued for lakes Michigan and Erie and nearly all of the Gulf Coast and Atlantic Coast, except for the coasts of Florida and Georgia.

Snowshowers were scattered from southern Michigan and Indiana through the lower Great Lakes region. Locally heavy snowfalls, of as much as 5 inches, hit the Chicago area Wednesday evening. Snow also spread across the central High Plains.

Rain was widespread from the central Gulf Coast through Georgia and the Carolinas to southeast Virginia.

Skies were generally clear elsewhere across the Plains and over much of the nation west of the Rockies.

Today's forecast called for snow likely from the upper Ohio Valley through the northern and central Appalachians; rain from Virginia across the Carolinas and through central Florida; cloudy skies over much of the northern Plains; and mostly sunny skies elsewhere in the West.

Highs will be in the teens to 20s from the upper Mississippi Valley across the Great Lakes and northern Ohio Valley to northern New England; 30s to 40s from the northern and central Plains across Missouri and Arkansas, the Tennessee Valley and Virginia to southern New England; 50s to 60s over much of the West and Deep South; and 70s to 80s over western Oregon, California, the Desert Southwest and the Florida Peninsula.

Temperatures around the nation at 2 a.m. EST ranged from 7 degrees below zero at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Warroad, Minn., to 78 at Key West and Homestead, Fla.

Panama offer to Marcos

WASHINGTON — The United States is negotiating with the government of Panama about the possibility that deposed Philippines president Ferdinand Marcos will move to the Central American nation, according to government sources.

The sources, speaking only on condition of anonymity, said Wednesday that the U.S. effort to find a new home for Marcos had centered on Panama after he was rejected by several other nations, including Singapore, Spain, and Indonesia. Marcos is now in Hawaii.

Booster debris studied

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Rocket experts were ready today to begin examining a 4-by-5-foot chunk of Challenger booster debris that could be the "smoking gun" in the investigation of the shuttle explosion.

The one possible solution was brought into play Wednesday night by a salvage ship that plucked it and two larger pieces of one of the shuttle's solid-fuel boosters from the ocean floor 650 feet down.

Canada gets assurance

WASHINGTON — Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney has gotten President Reagan to do something that years of effort by U.S. environmental groups could not achieve: a promise to act against acid rain.

It's only a promise, but it's a big one: $5 billion over five years from U.S. government and industry to install "clean coal" technology into the nation's power plants.

Plane linked to drugs

GOLIAD — Wreckage of a single-engine plane discovered near this South Texas city could be evidence of an airborne operation to smuggle illegal drugs, authorities said.

Searchers found the wreckage of a Cessna 206 early Wednesday on the Spires Ranch about 10 miles south-southwest of Goliad.

Goliad Sheriff's Deputy James Finley said Genevieve Spires called the department at about 9:30 a.m. Wednesday after she found the burned wreckage of the six-passenger, high-wing aircraft of Mexican registry on a ranch road.

Cheating a way of life

DALLAS — Many students at a Dallas high school say they feel no qualms about cheating in the classroom because they are merely following the lead of adults who fudge on income tax returns and expense reports.

More than two-thirds of respondents to a student survey admitted to at least one form of cheating and 54 percent said they do not feel guilty about it.

Democratic gubernatorial nominee Adlai E. Stevenson III listens as his choice for Illinois lieutenant governor, state Sen. George Sangmeister, answers questions during a Wednesday news conference in Chicago. Sangmeister was defeated in his bid for the Democratic Party's nomination for the No. 2 state executive office by Lyndon LaRouche candidate Mark Fairchild.

Bizarre twist

Illinois primary returns ruffle nominee

CHICAGO (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial nominee Adlai E. Stevenson blasted two supporters of ultra-conservative Lyndon LaRouche nominated to run with him, and vowed never to share a ticket with "bizarre and dangerous extremists."

Stevenson, a former U.S. senator making a second bid for the governor's mansion, said Wednesday he may form a third party to keep his dreams alive if Mark Fairchild and Janice Hart aren't removed from the Democratic Party ticket.

"These candidates are not remotely qualified, nor are they Democrats," Stevenson said. "They are adherents to an extremist political philosophy bent on violence and steeped in bigotry. They may meet the legal requirements, but they clearly don't meet the standards of basic civility and decency we Democrats require of our candidates."

Fairchild, 28, defeated state Sen. George Sangmeister, Stevenson's choice for lieutenant governor, by nearly 22,000 votes in Tuesday's primary, according to unofficial returns.

Asked at a news conference Wednesday if he could work with mainstream Democrats, he said, "I don't see it as any problem on my behalf, and I hope it's not on theirs."

Mrs. Hart, 30, was leading the Democrats' endorsed candidate, Aurelia Pucinski, by almost 15,000 votes in the primary for secretary of state.

At the news conference, Fairchild and Mrs. Hart outlined a platform that includes a quarantine of AIDS victims and a campaign against bankers who, they contend, launder drug dealers' profits.

"There will be Nuremberg tribunals set up around the country," Mrs. Hart said. "Traitors will be charged with treason, drugs runners will be charged with killing children."

LaRouche, head of political organizations known as the National Democratic Policy Committee and the U.S. Labor Party, is a hardline conservative who has run for president three times.

He once called Henry Kissinger a Soviet "agent of influence," and is said to believe the collapse of economic order is imminent.

Both Fairchild and Mrs. Hart are full-time consultants for a LaRouche organization, Caucus Distributors Inc., in Chicago.

In a statement issued from his Washington headquarters, LaRouche said, "The vote in Illinois is largely a protest vote."

"One thing I want to make absolutely clear tonight: I will never run on a ticket with candidates who espouse the hate-filled folly of Lyndon LaRouche and the U.S. Labor Party," said Stevenson, who had taken primary opposition.

If efforts to remove the LaRouche backers from the ticket fail, Stevenson said he may "reconstitute the regular Democratic Party under a slightly different label."

In a letter delivered to the embassy, the protesters said the Farm Act, effective April 15, would slash Thailand's annual rice exports by between 1.5 million and 1.9 million tons because of subsidies for 2 million tons of rice now stored on American farms.

Factions fight in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Christian and Moslem forces fought tank and mortar battles on three civil war fronts in and around Beirut today and police said seven people, including a woman and a girl, were killed and 21 wounded.

The military escalation coincided with a stalemate in diplomatic efforts to work out a power-sharing formula to end Lebanon's 11-year-old sectarian conflict that, by conservative estimates, has killed more than 100,000 people.

Soviet sailor flees

TOKYO — A Soviet sailor who rowed into Japanese waters last month in a rubber raft has been granted asylum in the United States, the U.S. Embassy said today.

Valery V. Polyinin, who reportedly fled from a Soviet fishing trawler on Feb. 14, "is expected to depart shortly for the United States," a spokesman quoted an embassy statement as saying.

SDI study progressing

WUERZBURG, West Germany — The head of U.S. "Star Wars" research said today that rapid progress in research and development could enable the United States to decide whether to deploy the system before the early 1990s target date.

U.S. Air Force Lt. Gen. James Abrahamson also told a news conference that NATO defense ministers were discussing the possibility of creating a defense against Soviet missiles aimed at Western Europe that would be linked to Star Wars.

OPEC remains deeply divided over production cuts

GENEVA (AP) — OPEC leaders, eager to reverse the collapse of world oil prices, entered a fifth day of tense deliberations today with no clear sign of movement toward agreement on a common strategy.

The 13 oil ministers, already having agreed they must cut their oil production to prop up prices, reportedly were at odds over how deep the cuts should be and how they could be shared by the member nations.

The cartel was aiming at a preliminary agreement that could be presented Friday to representatives of five non-OPEC oil producing countries, whose help OPEC is seeking in a broad price-support scheme, officials said.

After a two-hour morning session ended, Iranian Oil Minister Gholamreza Aghazadeh told reporters more time was needed to reach agreement.

He said the aim was to "restore the previous level of prices," implying he wanted prices at nearly $30 per barrel — the level prevailing last December before prices crashed to about $15.

Representatives of other OPEC nations said earlier this week they would be satisfied with the price at $20 per barrel. The OPEC officials were to reconvene later today.

The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries failed to win more than vague gestures of goodwill in talks Wednesday with officials from non-OPEC members Mexico, Malaysia, Egypt, Oman and Angola.

Mana Saed Oteiba, the oil minister of the United Arab Emirates, told reporters as he entered today's meeting that the cartel had been unable to present a single proposal to the non-OPEC officials. He said he hoped such a proposal could be worked out before Friday's scheduled meeting.

OPEC experts estimate the world oil glut at about 2 million barrels a day and say it could widen significantly in the next two months, when warm weather reduces oil consumption.

Sources have said that without joint action to reduce production, oil prices will remain at about $15 or fall even further.

One source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there also was broad agreement that any joint action between OPEC and non-OPEC countries should be aimed at pushing the price back to about $20 a barrel.

These sources were participants in Wednesday's talks.

Alhaji Rilwanu Lukman, the oil minister of Nigeria, said OPEC was considering cutting its output to between 13 million and 16 million barrels a day. He also said the ministers seemed to be narrowing their differences on production limits.

But Arturo Hernandez Grisanti, the oil minister of Venezuela and OPEC's president, was more downbeat.

"We still have a lot of work to do," he said after the session ended.

Lukman confirmed that OPEC was ready to abandon its short-lived strategy of trying to win a bigger share of the world oil market by dropping prices.

"I believe there is no secret about that," he said. "Nobody has benefitted from it, nobody is enjoying it, so we will change what's happening."

The price collapse has thrown OPEC into turmoil and threatened the economic futures of many of its member countries. But economists say it has given the oil-importing nations a major boost by helping curb inflation and expand economic growth.

The plunge in prices was triggered by OPEC's declaration last December that it would seek to grab back oil sales from non-OPEC countries. The move was perceived in the oil market as the start of a price war that would not end until either OPEC or non-OPEC oil producers scaled back production.

Saudi Arabia, which carries the most clout within OPEC, stated that the most important aim of OPEC's December tactic was to force Britain and Norway to cooperate with OPEC by cutting production.

Britain reiterated Tuesday that it would not consider helping OPEC, and Norway also has not acted.

However, Grisanti remained optimistic that OPEC could persuade the five non-OPEC producers in the Geneva talks to work with the cartel.

"We have a reasonable optimism that in future consultations and conversations we will be able to reach an agreement."

Choice is between Nicaragua, Cuba

I want you to pay close attention. Unlike Pat Buchanan, I don't consider you all Communists just because you refuse to support President Reagan's request to send money to the contras in Nicaragua. It's quite possible that you're either a dupe of Daniel Ortega, or you're a registered Democrat. In any case, they love you in the Kremlin.

I know I told you the last time out that $20 million would be sufficient to support the freedom fighters in their battle to win their homeland. Well, now it's no longer a fight over one country, but rather a life or death struggle for Western civilization. Are you going to let the Western hemisphere go down the drain for a lousy $100 million? If your answer is yes, then go back to Russia where you belong.

What, you ask, am I going to get for my money? You're going to get a first-class fighting force with guns, ships, tanks, helicopters and a light at the end of the tunnel.

The answer is yes, they can buy all that for $100 million — though supplemental funds may have to be added at a future date to protect the stuff when it arrives.

Now I want to talk to you about San Diego. You all have an approximate idea where San Diego is. It's located on America's doorstep to Central America. A nice clean city, it has friendly people and a sun that shines 365 days a year. Suppose I told you that if we don't give the $100 million to the contras, Nicaraguans will march barefoot right through downtown San Diego and continue along the coast until they reach Disneyland and turn it into a Marxist training camp.

I'm not making it up. I read it in an article by Pat Buchanan, and he works in the White House where they know these things. It is the administration's position that only those Americans who support Ronald Reagan's Central American requests give a damn about what happens to San Diego. The rest of you are in bed with Gorbachev whether you know it or not.

Don't shout at me. I know what's coming next. You're going to ask, if we give $100 million to the contras does that mean we will have to eventually send American boys to fight there? The answer is an unequivocal NO — although we have to keep our options open in case the freedom fighters have trouble against the overwhelming superiority of the Sandinista army, which most of our Democratic members of the House and Senate secretly support.

I want to assure every father and mother that no one wants to see our boys in Central America, and we won't have to send them if each and every one of you goes along with sending the money instead.

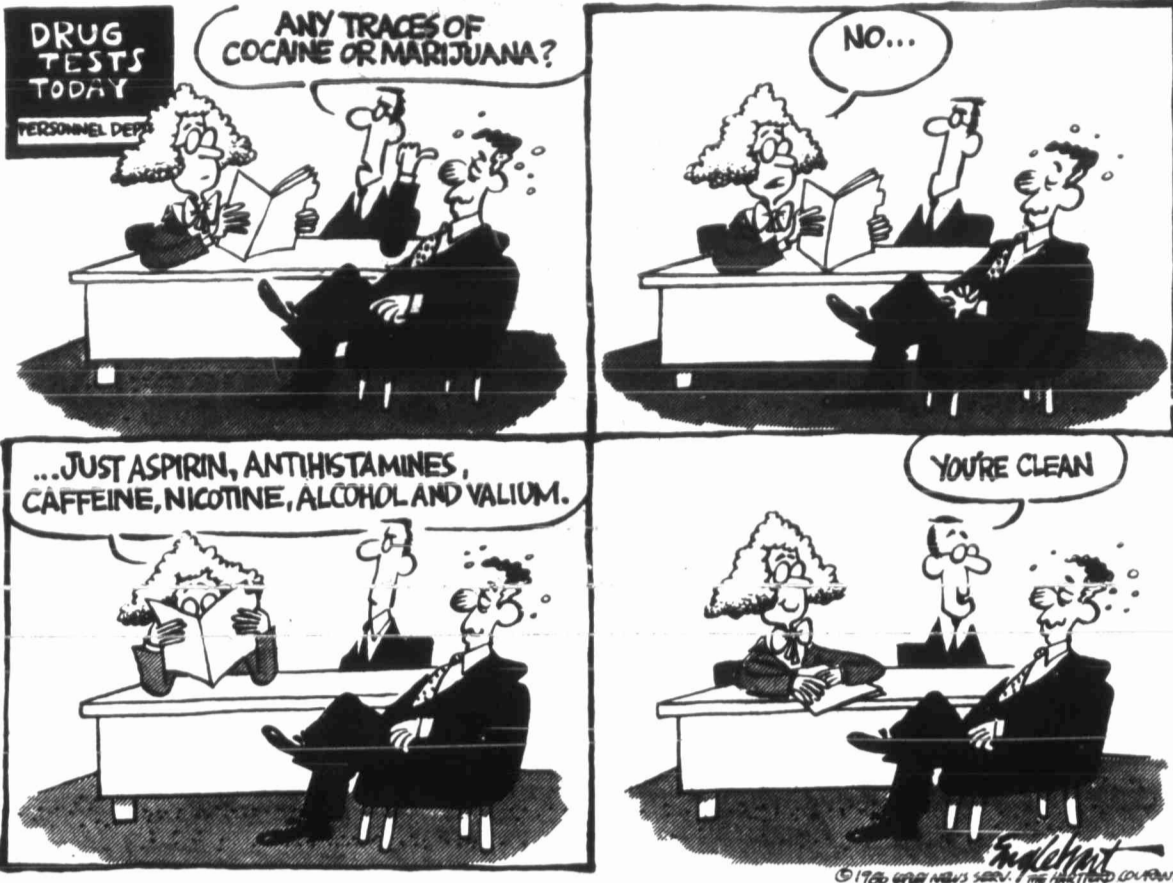

You are going to have to dig deep into your pockets to make up for Leninist idiots, Marxist clergy, congressional fellow travelers and pinko do-gooders, who would rather give the $100 million to Castro.

I believe I've made my case. The people who love this country are for Reagan's policy of involvement in Nicaragua. Those who for whatever reason are against it are hereby ordered to report next Monday morning to their nearest passport office to take a lie-detector test.

Before I go, I would like to get personal for a moment. Pat Buchanan was in the U.S. Marines and I was in the U.S. Marines. I didn't know him in the service, but it doesn't matter. I know him now. And I'd just like to say to Pat that no matter what happens, I want to fight by his side in the foxholes of San Diego. I'm not saying Americans will have to fight there; at the same time I'm not saying we won't. It all depends on how many traitors there are in Congress.

The time for debating Reagan's adventures in foreign lands is over. Stand up now and be counted. Which side are you on? If you have forgotten "Remember the Maine!" ... REMEMBER THE MAINE!

Defense official linked to shady gambling figure

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — Richard Armitage, assistant defense secretary for international security affairs, has drawn mixed reviews for his high-profile activities lately. He was blamed for the confusion over the POW/MIA issue, but then got high marks for his part in the successful outcome of the Philippines crisis.

The White House is now reportedly concerned about Armitage's acknowledged friendship with a woman who has been implicated in illegal organized gambling operations in the Washington suburb of Arlington, Va. She is a Vietnamese refugee, Nguyet Thi O'Rourke, and she has pleaded guilty to conducting an illegal gambling operation.

We first reported the story two months ago, after the President's commission on organized crime questioned Armitage about his relationship with Mrs. O'Rourke. The commission grew concerned after learning that Armitage had written a letter, on official Defense Department stationery, urging the Arlington County Court to "show mercy" on Mrs. O'Rourke.

Armitage told the commission and us that he had been a friend of Mrs. O'Rourke's since his service in Vietnam and had seen her on numerous occasions in this country. But he denied knowing of her alleged involvement in organized crime.

Our associates Donald Goldberg and Corky Johnson have now learned that Mrs. O'Rourke has been linked by law enforcement officials to Raj Kumar Bansal, described in police records as a major gambler and loan shark heavily involved in organized crime. He was recently arrested on gambling charges in Virginia. In an interview, Bansal denied any involvement in gambling, and said he didn't know why he had been arrested. He said Mrs. O'Rourke is a friend of his, but that they have had no business dealings.

A report on file in the Arlington court, referring to a 1983 organized crime report from next-door Alexandria, Va., states: "Bansal was a major gambling figure who was tied to the organization of Michael A. Larusso, also known as Mario A. Scarfoni; James Corbett Ballard; Roger W. Simkins Jr.; Herbie Cole, (and) Richard A. McCaleb; all known and convicted gamblers and organized crime figures."

According to the report, Bansal recently assumed operation of a Washington, D.C. adult movie house from Cole, who is described as "into gambling and narcotics" and who is now serving time for tax evasion.

The report filed with the court quotes law enforcement officials as saying that "Bansal was the person who was over the Nguyet Thi O'Rourke gambling operation." Mrs. O'Rourke, given immunity to testify before the president's crime commission, stated in secret testimony that she phoned Bansal at his office two or three times a day. In police records, she is quoted as saying, "As the money got more and more, I couldn't cover the bets, so I passed the bets on to bigger people in Washington."

While Mrs. O'Rourke was awaiting trial on the gambling charges, according to police records, she and a friend were stopped by police as they were leaving a high-stakes gambling operation in Silver Spring, Md. Her friend had allegedly fired a machine gun during a dispute moments before. Police sought to revoke Mrs. O'Rourke's bond after the incident.

Three months later, on June 6, 1985, Armitage wrote to the Arlington court on Mrs. O'Rourke's behalf, describing her as "a successful businesswoman (with) a reputation for fairness and honesty..." Referring to her arrest, the Pentagon official wrote: "I believe that this experience has chastened her, clearly embarrassed her and certainly has left her with a better appreciation of our own law and norms."

Armitage told us he had been asked by Mrs. O'Rourke's attorney to write the letter, and said he hadn't seen the woman since he wrote it. Neither Mrs. O'Rourke nor her attorney could be reached for comment.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: The American embassy in Manila built up an impressive record for solid intelligence in the last months of the Marcos regime in the Philippines. Consider this query from Washington last year: "If the opposition should succeed in uniting behind a single candidate and that candidate should be elected president, what would be the overall impact on U.S.-Philippine relations?" The cabled reply: "The opposition could be expected to act responsibly and the U.S.-Philippine relationship would prosper."

Around The Rim

Drugs take Texas route

Corrupt Mexican officials have made the southwestern United States a "modern-day horror story" of drug smuggling, the Reagan administration said recently.

Most illegal drugs come from Mexico, South America and thereabouts, officials told the Associated Press, adding that drugs are a serious problem in the United States.

They say that since the crackdown on drug smuggling in Florida and California, most drugs are entering the U.S. through Texas, the next logical place.

In addition, officials complain illegal aliens are a real problem, coming across the Mexican border under cover. That too affects Texas most.

Our collective governments and law enforcement agencies are spending millions of our dollars to combat drug trafficking and stem the flow of illegal aliens.

Meanwhile, we continue to help the culprit countries, including giving them substantial military and financial aid. Much of that is in "loans" to underprivileged countries that will never be paid back.

President Reagan continues to push a request for $100 million in aid to the Contras, implying that anyone who opposes such a measure is pro-Communist.

Something doesn't seem right there. On one hand we spend millions of dollars combatting drugs and illegal aliens, and on the other hand we spend millions of dollars helping those who are giving us the problems.

It seems only logical that we should curtail the aid until the foreign governments start controlling their resident drug producers and traffickers and begin to better patrol their side of the border for illegal aliens.

That would put more of the responsibility of stopping crime on the countries in question. It would stop crime at its starting point, before it hits the U.S., and it would give considerable help to our own overburdened law enforcement agencies.

It might also help curtail some non-productive spending. The foreign governments have made little effort to stop drug trafficking that originates within their borders. Let's give them some incentives.

Seatbelt violation wasn't important

To the editor:

In your Monday edition, there was an article stating a driver took his eyes off the road and struck a parked car and the police cited him for a seatbelt violation.

Please tell me this was a misprint and that the driver was actually cited for reckless driving as I cannot believe that a trained policeman would disregard an obvious unsafe act in favor of a seatbelt violation.

In this case who cares if the driver is injured? Mentally substitute that car for a child, a wheelchair or a father of three or four children. If your article was indeed factual, that officer should be dismissed with prejudice.

Editor's note: No misprint; the story is correct. The officer did indicate in his report that unsafe speed was a contributing factor in the accident.

Money has not bought Contras success

By R. GREGORY NOKE
WASHINGTON (AP) — Back in 1981, the Contras were "a pretty scruffy lot," sometimes engaged in cattle-rustling and other criminal activities, recalls a senior State Department official. But they evolved into the Nicaraguan "freedom fighters" President Reagan now compares to this nation's founding fathers.

"When I first heard the stories there were Contra training camps where people were learning the basics of guerrilla warfare, I tended to say that is something we knew nothing about," the official said. "I was not lying. I was telling the truth."

What he didn't know then, but subsequently learned, is that the Central Intelligence Agency was involved in organizing, recruiting, training and providing intelligence to the Contras who started with a nucleus of several hundred former National Guard officers and men who had once served the ousted dictator, Anastasio Somoza.

The official agreed to be interviewed Tuesday about the history of U.S. involvement with the Contras only on condition he not be identified. He held a diplomatic post in a Central American country during some of the formative years of the Contra insurgency.

Congress will decide within the next few days whether to provide another $100 million in American aid for the Contras, a vote that many say could determine whether the five-year-old insurgency survives. The House will vote Thursday; the Senate vote is scheduled for Tuesday.

Looking back on the Contras of 1981, the senior official said, "They were a pretty scruffy lot. The few I came in contact with were very scruffy. We heard from time to time ... some of them were into criminal activities, small-scale cattle-rustling, small-scale contraband, and this sort of stuff.

"A couple of them had very bad records," he added. "Back in that time we were talking about very small numbers, maybe a few hundred. Everytime you heard about these guys, there was another title for the organization, the 15th of September movement, the next time it was the Condor Legion. Every time it was a different name. I sort of had in my mind it was a sort of Keystone Kop kind of organization."

After five years, the Contras have grown to more than 20,000, by administration estimates; less than that, according to the Sandinistas. The official said the ranks have been swollen by peasants fleeing Sandinista oppression, and the original National Guard officer corps has been "diluted" with the addition of ex-Sandinista officers.

By all accounts, the insurgents to date have received more than $100 million in U.S. funds, most of it secretly through the CIA.

But the money has not bought the Contras success in holding any important towns in Nicaragua. And a major question in the current debate is what another $100 million will accomplish.

The United States is now alone among nations in aiding the Contras, although private groups have provided assistance. But when the movement was first organized in 1981, there was valuable help from another country, Argentina, then ruled by a right-wing military junta.

The senior State Department official recalls seeing "Argentine officers" in Honduras, where the training camps were located, and assumed they "had a relationship with the Papers reveal Marcos wealth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Papers brought to the United States last month by deposed Philippines president Ferdinand Marcos detail a widespread U.S. financial empire worth hundreds of millions of dollars that is so intricate it may take months to unravel, congressional sources say.

"He owns or has holdings in a number of things beyond the New York properties," one source said Wednesday, speaking on condition of anonymity and referring to five New York area real estate holdings worth an estimated $350 million.

The House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on Asian and Pacific Affairs tentatively planned today to make public most of the 2,089 documents taken by Marcos to Hawaii when he fled Manila last month after his 20-year reign collapsed.

"I want to make as much of this public as soon as possible," said Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., chairman of the panel. Solarz and subcommittee investigators met Wednesday with officials from the Justice Department's criminal division, which has copies of the documents.

The documents also were provided to the Commission on Good Government, a Philippines investigating panel appointed by Marcos' successor, Corazon Aquino, to probe a Marcos financial empire that commission president Jovito Salonga has estimated could be worth $5 billion to $10 billion.

One of the documents detailed contributions reportedly made to U.S. politicians, including $50,000 each to the 1980 presidential campaigns of Ronald Reagan and Jimmy Carter, along with $10,000 to the 1980 re-election campaign of Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Spokesmen for Reagan and Carter denied Wednesday that the campaigns had received the money, and Cranston, a long-standing critic of Marcos, also said he hadn't received any money.

It is illegal for foreign nationals to contribute to U.S. political campaigns, and it also is against the law for American campaigns to accept such foreign contributions.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., center, chats with Jovito Salonga, head of a Philippine commission investigating deposed president Ferdinand Marcos' finances prior to a House Asian and Pacific Affairs subcommittee briefing Wednesday on Capitol Hill on documents detailing Marcos' financial holdings, including a reference to a $10,000 contribution to Cranston.

The subcommittee has been investigating Marcos' New York real estate dealings, but it will expand its probe because of information in the documents, Solarz said.

The panel has asked the General Accounting Office, the congressional watchdog agency, to investigate the Redwood National Bank of San Francisco because of information linking Marcos to the bank. The institution is owned by two Filipino businessmen.

Salonga met with the House panel Wednesday and said the papers detail what he said are "kickbacks paid by foreign corporations in public works equipment."

Although several Japanese companies were named, the only American company listed was the Westinghouse Corp., the sources said.

Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J., told reporters after Wednesday's meeting that the documents include a one-page "schedule of payments" from Westinghouse. He said the document describes what he termed "commissions paid" which he said total $8 million. He identified the paper as "an internal memorandum from the office of the president" of the Philippines.

Other sources have said

Westinghouse is under investigation by a federal grand jury for allegedly paying commissions to a Marcos associate who helped the company win a contract for a nuclear power plant.

In Pittsburgh, Westinghouse spokesman Ronald E. Hart said, "Despite all these investigations, there has never been any evidence brought forth that any of this money went to any Filipino government official, affiliate or any member of the family."

And company spokesman Maurice C. Sardi said, "Westinghouse reiterates that it knows of no payments made to Mr. Marcos, directly or indirectly."

Democratic Club rally draws state candidates

State and local Democratic candidates will speak at a Howard County Democratic Club rally and chili supper Friday night.

The supper will begin at 7 p.m. in the Big Spring High School cafeteria. Tickets are $5 each and are available at the door or from any club member.

Jaynet Smith, club vice president, said several state candidates have plan to speak at the rally, including State Rep. Larry Don Shaw; Attorney General Jim Mattox; Jack Hightower, representative of the attorney general's office; gubernatorial candidates Andrew C. Briscoe III, A. Don Crowder and Ron Slover; P.S. (Sam) Ervin, John Pouland and John Sharp, candidates for railroad commissioner; Noel S. Cowling, agricultural commissioner candidate; and Oscar Mauzy, candidate for justice of the supreme court.

Donna Ringener, club secretary/treasurer, said each candidate will be given three to five minutes to speak. Local candidates will speak only if their race is contested.

Chamber directors plan audit of 1985 accounts

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

The Chamber of Commerce board of directors voted Wednesday to solicit bids for an audit of 1985 accounts.

The last audit was conducted in 1979, chamber president John Arrick said, and a new one is needed.

He said an audit hasn't been needed since then because Certified Public Accountant Max Green "was very involved with the chamber" until recently and kept an eye on the accounts. "Now he's no longer involved with the chamber," Arrick said.

In other business, the chamber:

- Voted to grant $1,500 for the Heart of the City festival, to go toward out-of-town advertising, instead of the $3,000 the heart of the city committee requested. The amount granted was the same as last year. The festival will be May 17.

- Voted to grant $1,000 for the Howard College Rodeo.

- Approved Richard White and Mrs. Pat Porter as new co-chairmen for the business committee.

- Voted to compose a statement supporting the Stacy reservoir effort, to be presented at the April 3 public hearing on the impact of the reservoir on the Concho water snake as an endangered species.

- Voted to oppose House Bill 1524, which bans employers from using a polygraph for employment. "That should be up to the businessman," Arrick said.

- Voted to direct money from belt buckle sales to the general fund. The business committee announced it has approved art for the new belt buckle in the series and has set a tentative date of May 17 for its sale.

- Announced the annual planning retreat, in which chamber, city, county, school, college and other officials take part, will be April 29.

Dr. Donohue

Shot protects against Hepatitis A

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am traveling abroad to one of the poorly-developed countries this summer. I understand I will need to be protected against hepatitis. When should I get the shots? — Mrs. K.M.

The chief concern is for hepatitis A, the kind contracted from contaminated food and water. For this protection you need a shot of immune serum globulin. Those are antibodies against the A virus; they're obtained from the blood of people who have had hepatitis.

You get that single shot immediately before departure, and the amount of serum needed depends on the planned length of stay. You need a small amount if you're going to be there three months or less, a greater amount if longer than three months. And if you are to stay even longer you will need booster shots periodically. You'll be informed of the proper schedule.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can you tell me anything about the reports of aspirin cutting down heart attack chances? How much aspirin a day are they talking about? Also, my husband has angina and I would like a brief discussion of that. — Mrs. P.H.

The FDA recently approved prescription of an aspirin a day for people who have survived a heart attack. Studies prompting this move showed that if a person had a heart attack and then followed the aspirin-a-day therapy, his chances of having another attack were reduced by 21 percent. An aspirin a day refers to one 325-milligram tablet.

I recently had an in-depth discussion of angina pectoris. Let me send the booklet on the subject, which will answer most questions. Other readers can order it ("You Can Control Angina") by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611 enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.25.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: When is the widely-publicized (a few years back) anti-chicken pox vaccine going to be available for children in the U.S.? My doctor says only that it's not in the immediate future. He says you can only get it from testing programs. I understand Japanese children are being protected. True? Why not here? We get everything else from Japan. — Mrs. H.L.

The chicken pox (varicella) vaccine story is rapidly unfolding in the U.S.; there's a good chance it may be approved for use here soon, within a year, even. So far, those studies to which you refer show good protective effects in the more than 10,000 children in whom the vaccine has been tried. Most studies report success rates in excess of 90 percent.

In Japan, where the vaccine has been used for 10 years, protection has lasted over a decade. Work really started on the vaccine there more than 20 years ago.

I hope you understand why any substance that might affect practically every child in the nation would require such careful and deliberate evaluation before approval for general use. Delay is the price of health protection.

Many laymen might view chicken pox as one of those innocent childhood rites of passage. But medical authorities view it in more serious light. Of the estimated 2 million chicken pox cases reported each year in the U.S., a significant number result in serious complications, such as bacteria infections, encephalitis, myelitis, ear infection, even Reye's syndrome. So eventual approval of the Japanese vaccine for use here will, when it occurs, be a major landmark in the history of disease control.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can a blood pressure drug cause a personality change in one using it? Since my husband started using it, he has been in a blue funk. He is grumpy and is interested in nothing anymore. — Mrs. F.R.

Certain high blood pressure drug cause a depression in some users, more so if the person has had a tendency toward depression beforehand. I cannot list all the drugs with this potential, but one you mention elsewhere in your letter (reserpine) has it. Have your husband report this. His doctor can substitute any number of other medications in its place if it is at fault.

Unless properly treated, both glaucoma and cataracts can lead to blindness. If you are afflicted with either of these ailments, or know someone who is, write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for his booklet, "Cataracts and Glaucoma." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but requests that due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Proper care of pearls adds luster and life

NEW YORK (AP) — It has never been claimed that pearls can last forever, but they will keep their beauty and value for generations if cared for properly, says Alan Macnow of the Cultured Pearl Association.

Unlike diamonds and colored stones, pearls are the products of a living creature, the oyster, and are relatively soft, he points out.

"Excessive exposure to heat or acids will dull their luster, and hard objects will scratch their surface," he says.

But two simple precautions, combined with common-sense care, will keep their glow undiminished, he adds.

First, he cautions, guard against scratches. Don't scramble cultured pearl jewelry with diamonds, sharp-faceted stones or metal pins. Wrap the pearls in tissue paper or place in a chamois bag before putting them in your jewelry box.

Second, avoid acid erosion. Perspiration is slightly acidic, as are many hairsprays and cosmetics, as well as most perfumes.

Macnow advises pearl owners to complete their makeup before putting on their pearls. Then, after pearls have been worn, they should be wiped with a damp cloth to remove traces of cosmetics, perfume or perspiration.

Dear Abby

Union man's wife wonders if she is getting her due

DEAR ABBY: John and I are young grandparents. I go to my daughter's home quite often on weekends to baby-sit. We live in New York, my daughter lives in New Jersey. John encourages my visits, but he stays home, saying he has business meetings to attend or people he has to meet for business. I accepted that because he's very active in his union.

One weekend I stayed home with the flu. John was home, too. The phone rang and I answered it. A woman said, "This is Marion. Will you please tell John we are waiting for him?" Then she hung up. I could hear loud music in the background that sounded like she was calling from a party or a bar. When I gave John the message, he turned red and said, "It must have been a wrong number." It reminded me of the time he called me "June." My name is Terry.

Is this man a sinner or a saint?
GRANDMA TERRY
DEAR GRANDMA: If your suspicions are correct, he's a sinner.

DEAR ABBY: Your advice to "Against Tipping" was good but misleading. The IRS does not force waitresses to pay tax on tips they did not get. The current rules are the same as they always were. The waitress is required to keep a daily record of tips and report them to the employer once a month, so that the employer can deduct the proper tax, just as he does on the other wages.

It has long been the practice of some waitresses, waiters and other servicepersons not to report the tips at all. Therefore, the IRS has ruled that the employer must include an amount equal to 8 percent of that employee's sales on the W-2 form as "allocated tips." If the employee has done his (or her) duty and reported the actual tips, then this is already included in the taxable wages, and the "allocated tips" mean nothing. If the required reporting has not been done, the employee may still use his own record for figuring the tax on tips. However, if no reporting or record keeping has taken place, the allocated amount is the amount that person must pay tax on. This is only fair. The United States is the only country in the world where the government allows taxpayers to tell it what they owe. The least we can do is be honest.

Abby, please print this to set your readers straight.

OKLAHOMA C.P.A.
DEAR C.P.A.: I've printed it. I hope my readers are set straight. I am. And thank you for not billing me.

DEAR ABBY: On the subject of introducing people who you don't know their names: As a tennis official for the last 50 years, I've traveled all over the world and met a lot of people, and it's impossible to remember all their names. This is how I handle it:

If I'm with a person whose name I don't know comes up to me, I say to the one I don't know, "You've met John Doe, haven't you?" One of them will either say, "Yes," or "No, my name is John Jones — pleased to meet you."

If you don't know either person's name (and it's happened to me), I say, "You two have met before, I'm sure." One of them will say, "No, my name is Joe Blow," then he extends his hand to the other. It's never failed me. Just make your statement and shut up, and one of them is sure to say something. It works. Try it.

Information about your changing telephone service from Darlene Gifford, Manager-Community Relations

Diversifying the Lone Star Economy

News about tumbling oil prices is a reminder that Texas faces some knotty economic challenges. But the outlook for an upbeat economy appears good. One reason for the optimism is the state's efforts to diversify our economy.

Economic diversification may not be a new twist, but you may be surprised to learn about the new ally in this campaign. Meet your new partner: telecommunications. Yes, the telephone company. Surprised?

Consider that many businesses today, including the so-called high-technology industries, are heavily dependent on information. These firms need to move large amounts of data across the state and the world. Much of that information will zip across the telephone network — an intricate web of circuits, transmitters and lines.

Without a first-class telecommunications system, Texas cannot compete with other states vying for new jobs and industry. Remember, most every state is recruiting the same firms. How does Texas set itself apart from the crowd? One way is to parlay our telephone network into a major advantage for our state.

An economic edge

Homegrown Texas firms also will find it increasingly an edge to be served by a dependable communications network. For example, in the oil and gas industry, millions of dollars are riding each day on the ability of these firms to transmit and receive geological data from drilling sites. That puts a premium on fast, reliable communications.

In our homes too, telecommunications is playing a more important role. Many Texans are using computer linkups over telephone lines to start new businesses, expand their education and even receive health care — all this without leaving their homes.

Much of what we take for granted in our everyday lives would be impossible without telecommunications. Consider that in Texas there are $15 million in goods and services sold each day by phone... more than seven million transactions between financial institutions are processed every day over the telephone network... and nearly 248 million times a year Texans use phone lines and automatic teller machines to bank at their convenience.

A mind-boggling figure

There's one more statistic that perhaps tells the story best. On a typical day, Southwestern Bell Telephone handles more than 82 million voice and data messages from homes and businesses across the state. And, this figure is expected to continue to grow.

Obviously, huge investments are required to meet this growth. In fact, for eight consecutive years, my company has spent more than $1 billion annually to improve and add to the state's telecommunications network. This year will be no different.

We all have a stake in the economic future of Texas. All of us must do our share. For our part, we want to provide a telecommunications network that is second to none. We have the resources and people to achieve that goal. Given adequate earnings, there is no doubt we will succeed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Study into new interests and investments that appeal to you, but you do not have sufficient funds for such as yet.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can have more harmony and happiness at home if you do not permit an associate to interfere.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A problematical affair at your job has to be solved early, but later you can accomplish a great deal.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Plan to save more money and avoid heavy expenditures for pleasure, and be wise about it.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't let a home situation keep you from accomplishing a good deal in the outside business world.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Don't waste time with some unimportant person in your life and plan how to become more successful by making the right contacts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Avoid that financial problem today and be more concerned with the personal side of life. Be more generous.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Listen to one who has been very successful and put away any prejudice you may have that could deter your progress.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Do not permit some secret worry to delay your advancement in the outside world. Make new contacts of worth.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Avoid a demanding person, but be sure to listen to the advice of one in business who is interested in your welfare.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Avoid that bigwig who is full of anger, or you could get the brunt of it. Be with partners whom you can trust.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Study your environment and see how best to improve it instead of going off on some tangent.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she has the ability to get to the top of the ladder in the chosen career so long as you teach to put away prejudices that could become stumbling blocks in the path of progress. Give as fine an academic education as you can and teach to have a generosity of spirit with others.

Morelion diving for 5A gold

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The long awaited dream for Louis Morelion will take place this weekend. That dream being the chance to compete in the UIL State Swimming and Diving Meet in Austin.

The Big Spring High School diver will be one of 16 contestants from eight regions in the state vying for the coveted gold medal, a goal Morelion has a chance to reach after only three years of competitive diving.

"At the start of the season my goal was to reach the state meet," said Morelion at his Wednesday workout. "Now I have to set another goal, that's to dive as well as I possibly can in Austin."

Not only has the senior diver been fighting a physical battle in perfecting his dives for the state meet, mental preparation has also come into effect.

"When I went to regional people started telling me how good I was, the bad thing is that I started to listen to them and it affected my diving. I kind of slacked off, but now I'm over that."

Big Spring head swimming coach Harlan Smith says that this year Morelion's mental attitude has to be different.

"We won't fall into the same trap as we did last year," said Smith. "Last year when Louis went to regional and placed sixth, our goal was to make the finals, which he did. We were content with him making the finals. In the finals he didn't go for the dives like he should have. He could possibly have made it to state last year."

Morelion is quick to predict that won't happen in Austin. "I'm going all out for every dive. I'm going to keep a strong mental attitude through the last dive."

Big Spring High School diver Louis Morelion warms during a recent practice in preparation for the UIL State 5A Swimming and Diving Championships scheduled this Friday and Saturday at the University of Texas Swim Center in Austin.

In Austin the diving preliminaries will begin at 10 a.m. Friday. The top 12 divers after the first eight dives will go into the finals scheduled for Saturday at 10 a.m.

Smith says one of the keys to his diver's success will be his ability to perform three high difficulty dives in-a-row on Friday. "He's got to hit the forward 2½ summersault, 1½ double-twist summersault and reverse 1½ summersault in a pike," Smith firmly stated. "If he hits those dives, then he won't have any problems making the finals."

Morelion says the two-day format is a big plus for him. "If I make the finals it will be less work on my body because I'll be able to rest and concentrate on making my remaining three dives."

Both coach and athlete have been tuning themselves down, fighting pre-meet jitters. "I'm trying to stay calm and not lose much sleep," said Smith. "He's really more nervous than I am," laughed Morelion. "I'm going to keep my composure and not lose my aggressiveness like I did at regional last year," Morelion concluded.

Smith summed things up best by saying "This year he's going for the gusto."

Maybe that gusto will be in the form of a gold medal for Big Spring's diving sensation.

NCAA TOURNAMENT

Omni no advantage to Tech

ATLANTA (AP) — Georgia Tech has won 27 of its 33 games this season, but four of the six losses occurred at The Omni. So while the Yellow Jackets are being given the edge in the NCAA Southeast Regional because it's being played in Atlanta, Coach Bobby Cremins doesn't see any big advantage.

"I think you're going to see a lot of fans who are solid college basketball fans," Cremins said of the crowd he expects for tonight's Southeast Regional semifinals win which his Yellow Jackets taking on Louisiana State in the second game of the double-header.

"The issue is going to be decided out there on the floor," Cremins added in reference to any influence a pro-Georgia Tech crowd might have on the outcome.

In the first semifinal game, Kentucky and Alabama square off for the fourth time after two regular-season Southeastern Conference meetings and one in the SEC tournament. Kentucky, 31-3, won all three.

"It's been sold out for two months. When you have a regional like this, people from all over the country get tickets and come into the city," Cremins said. "We will be lucky to have 100 students here."

Playing on or near a home court has been of little aid to some teams in the NCAA tournament so far. Utah lost to North Carolina in a first-round game at Ogden, Utah, while Syracuse was beaten by Navy in the Carrier Dome last Sunday.

But LSU, 24-11, reached the Southeast Regional by winning on its court in Baton Rouge, the same place where Georgia Tech defeated Marist and Villanova.

Cremins said LSU has survived the loss of players through academic problems and illness, making the Tigers a stronger club.

"They're together. They play hard," Cremins said. "I like their chemistry, the way they do things."

LSU head coach Dale Brown said the Tigers must concentrate on Mark Price, Georgia Tech's explosive guard, and his backcourt mate, Bruce Dalrymple. Brown said he is concerned about Dalrymple's ability to crash the boards.

"We hope he gets confused. We're now going into what we call freak defenses," Brown said. "Maybe instead of having the freedom of crashing the boards, he won't know."

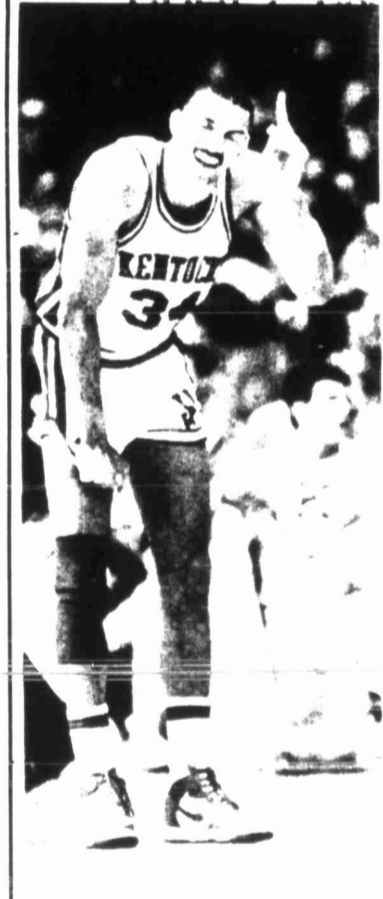

Coach Wimp Sanderson of 24-8 Alabama says the Crimson Tide can forget their three losses to the Wildcats.

Southeast

"I don't really think there's anything we can learn from those three games," Sanderson said. "Each game's a separate game in a separate week."

"In two of those games, we were really in 'em," said Alabama guard Jim Farmer. "We didn't get some free throws in one game. That hurt us. Kentucky did some things down the stretch and won."

"They've played good, steady basketball in the first half and the second half of their games," Farmer added. "That may be where we've slipped up."

Louisville to battle Carolina

HOUSTON (AP) — Louisville Coach Denny Crum wants it understood that regular season winning streaks do not win national championships.

"When we won the championship (in 1980), we weren't better than the other teams, we just played better on that night," said Crum, whose No. 7 Cardinals will take a 13-game winning streak into tonight's NCAA West Regional basketball semifinal game against North Carolina.

"Anything can happen at this level," Crum said. Eighth-ranked North Carolina won its first 21 games this season but lost five of their last 10 regular season games.

West

The Louisville-North Carolina game starts at 8:10 p.m. CST at The Summit.

Nevada-Las Vegas, the only survivor from the western states, will face Auburn in the other semifinal game starting at 5:37 p.m.

The winners will meet Saturday for a berth in the NCAA Final Four in Dallas March 29-31.

Louisville, 28-7, struggled early in the season before surging into the playoffs. It was a planned move, Crum said.

"I think we have an obligation to our fans and to the team to be our best at the end of the year," Crum said. "You don't learn anything unless you play against the very best."

The Tar Heels were ranked No. 1 in the nation with a 21-0 record when injuries slowed the team. But leading scorer Brad Daugherty said North Carolina, 28-5, aren't worried about unbeaten records.

"A run like that doesn't matter when it gets to the nitty-gritty," Daugherty said. "Now it's who rebounds the best and who is the most intense. It's who does the little things right."

The 6-foot-11 Daugherty leads the Tar Heels with a 20.2 scoring average and 8.8 rebounds per game.

The Cardinals will try to counteract Daugherty with outstanding freshmen Purvis Ellison who is averaging 12.9 points and 7.9 rebounds.

"I've never had a freshman that was more consistent," Crum said. "He's given us a new dimension."

Auburn, 21-10, upset St. John's, the West's No. 1 seeded team, to reach tonight's matchup against No. 11 Nevada-Las Vegas, 33-4.

"Last year we were the Cinderella team playing on emotion," Auburn senior forward Chuck Person said. "This year we are playing on all five cylinders. We're not sneaking up on anybody and we're not letting anybody sneak up on us."

Auburn Coach Sonny Smith promised a running game.

"We don't take into consideration what they do best," Smith said. "We play better at the quick tempo. We get in the wrong lanes and make some bad passes but we play better running, so we'll run."

Nevada-Las Vegas is known as the Runnin' Rebels and Coach Jerry Tarkanian hopes his team lives up to its name but he's concerned.

Celts set home mark; win 22nd in-a-row

By The Associated Press
There isn't much the Boston Celtics haven't done over the years in dominating the NBA.

But they never won 22 consecutive home games — at least not until Wednesday night when they defeated the Indiana Pacers 127-108 to set a franchise record for success at home.

Larry Bird scored 21 points, to go with nine rebounds and six assists, but was only the Celtics' fourth highest scorer for a change. Robert Parish scored a season-high 28 points — and grabbed 17 rebounds — while Kevin McHale had 24 points and Danny Ainge 22. Bird did, however, get the first two baskets of the game and Boston never trailed in boosting its home record to 31-1.

"We're a better team when it (the scoring) is distributed around," said Ainge. "I think sometimes we get in trouble looking for Larry too much."

Elsewhere, it was San Antonio 115, Atlanta 112; Los Angeles Clippers 115, L.A. Lakers 114; Philadelphia 118, Chicago 112; Denver 114, Detroit 98; Phoenix 108, Sacramento 104.

The Celtics' victory was their sixth in a row — Bird averaged 36.5 points, 10.2 rebounds and 5.8 assists during the last six games — and reduced to one their magic number for clinching the Atlantic Division title. Leading 56-49, Bird had two three-point plays in a 10-4 surge that made the score 66-53. Boston led by at least nine the rest of the way.

"I thought we did a good job on Bird, considering the way he's been playing lately," Indiana Coach George Irvine said after the Pacers limited him to just 14 shots. "No one gives up the ball as well as Bird. When he passes, the man who gets the ball has an easy shot."

Indiana, trying to overtake Cleveland for the eighth and final Eastern Conference playoff berth, had its three-game winning streak snapped. The Pacers were led by Herb Williams with 24 points.

Spurs 115, Hawks 112
Alvin Robertson soared over two Atlanta defenders for a slam-dunk with three seconds left after Dominique Wilkins put the Hawks ahead 112-111 with 12 seconds left when he hit a turnaround jump shot over three Spurs. The basket gave Wilkins 38 points. Robertson's dunk gave San Antonio a 113-112 lead and Wes Matthews added two free throws at the buzzer.

"We had a defensive breakdown which we normally wouldn't have," said Wilkins. "We certainly didn't expect Alvin to get a dunk at the end of the game."

Clippers 115, Lakers 114
Benoit Benjamin scored 28 points and reserves Franklin Edwards and Rory White combined for 21 points in the fourth quarter. With the Clippers trailing 94-80 after three periods, Edwards scored eight straight points during a 12-2 run at the start of the fourth quarter. He later finished a 6-0 run with a 20-footer to cut the lead to 108-107 with 3:43 remaining.

76ers 118, Bulls 112
Julius Erving scored a season-high 29 points and made a key steal and slam-dunk in the final minute. Moses Malone also scored 29 points and Maurice Cheeks added 20 points and 13 assists.

The Bulls led 98-95 with 7½ minutes to play but Malone scored seven straight points and Erving made a three-point play, giving Philadelphia a 105-98 lead with 5:53 left. George Gervin led Chicago with 20 points.

Nuggets 114, Pistons 98
NBA scoring leader Alex English had 35 points and sparked a Denver surge that turned back Detroit's final rally. Detroit, which lost its third straight game, trailed by 15 points after three quarters but outscored the Nuggets 11-4 to close within 92-84. English then scored six points in 34 seconds to help Denver open a safe 102-84 bulge with 6:02 to play.

Suns 108, Kings 104
Walter Davis scored 18 of his 26 points in the fourth quarter. Down 80-73 entering the final period, the Suns used eight points from Davis to take a 95-91 lead with 4:54 remaining. Sacramento tied the score 95-95 before rookie Ed Pinckney's free throw with 3:36 to go put Phoenix ahead to stay 96-95 and Mike Sanders added a layup 28 seconds later. When the Kings cut the deficit to 106-104, Davis sank two free throws at the buzzer for the final margin of victory.

Top-ranked Odessa, 33-0, sailed into the final rounds by blasting Ellsworth, Iowa, 96-59, on Wednesday, joining 29-0 Northeast Mississippi in final eight.

In other Wednesday games, Whitney Beckett scored a game-high 29 points and Crowder held off a late rally by DuPage, Ill., for an 89-75 victory.

Gadsden advanced by defeating

Sinclair of Ohio 72-69 as Loretta Weston tallied 28 points, and Hea Ju Moon scored eight points in the final minute and a half to lift Florida Junior College to an 84-75 victory over Lees College, Ky. Michelle Bryant poured in 26 points and Emmanuel, Ga., rolled to an 84-74 victory over Lake Region, N.D.

No. 1 ranked Odessa had little trouble in gaining the quarterfinals. Doreatha Conwell lead Odessa with 28 points. Renay Daughery contributed 15 points while Donna Wilson and LaTonya Barnes scored 10 each.

For Ellsworth, Michelle Jones scored 22 points and Melani Greiner 16. Odessa jumped to a 48-24 halftime lead. Ellsworth closed with a 26-7 mark.

Thomas takes WFS lead over East German favorite

GENEVA (AP) — Debi Thomas, who three months ago was considered a longshot for even a U.S. title, is suddenly within range of a world figure skating title that had all but been conceded to East German's Katarina Witt.

While Witt, the two-time defending champion, was dropping to fourth place after stumbling on the jump combination Wednesday night, Thomas was taking the lead after two-thirds of the competition by skating a dynamic routine to the disco number "Relax" by Frankie Goes To Hollywood.

The 18-year-old premed student at Stanford University moved up from a second-place finish in the compulsory figures. She'll skate for the title on Friday night.

On the men's side, meanwhile, six-time Canadian champion and Olympic silver medalist Brian Orser will be looking to move up from his third-place position in the men's event that concludes Thursday night.

Orser needs some help. The Soviet Union's Alexander Fadeev, the defending champion, is in the same position as Thomas — first after the compulsory figures and short program. Orser must win the long program while Fadeev must be third or lower.

Orser won the men's short program on Tuesday, but Fadeev was second. Czechoslovakia's Jozef Sabovcik, who beat Fadeev in last month's Europeans, is currently in second overall.

Thomas has a total of 1.6 factored placements going into the final portion. Kira Ivanova of the Soviet Union, the leader after the compulsories, dropped to second while a revitalized Tiffany Chin of Toluca Lake, Calif., the 1985 U.S. champion, is in third with 3.2 placements while Witt has 3.4.

"That's sort of been my theme for the year and it's worked so far," Thomas said of the number she used in her routine.

"Whatever happens, at least I can say I was in first for a while even if I do mess up. I can say I was the best in the world for figures and short program combined."

But she hopes for more. Thomas said she's not afraid of the charming Witt, who can still win the title if she captures the long program and Thomas finishes lower than second.

"My biggest competition will be myself," said Thomas, following her two-minute performance with seven required moves. "I'm not the defending champion. I was fifth last year."

"If I do my program, I don't have to worry about anyone else. I can always look back and say 'I did it before at nationals and you can do it again,'" said Thomas.

How will she spend her off-day today?

"It'll be a training day to try and put together everything and do the best we can," said Thomas, who would become the first black world champion if she wins.
