However, a report by the Joint Economic Committee (JEC) indicates that a long-term economic benefit to the nation may not be as great as some had hoped. "Real GNP this year will rise less than one percentage point due to lower oil and energy prices," said the report, released by Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who is a member of the JEC.

"That means that inflation still is not fully stopped. You'll have about a 3 percent increase in inflation,"

"Nearly 80 percent of the impact of falling energy prices will be offset by eroding revenues to the domestic energy sector and resulting ripple effects," the report added. "The dramatically weaker domestic energy sector will result in reduced levels of capital invest-OIL page 2-A

Present, past Herald staffers win awards

WICHITA FALLS — Robin Ward, city editor of the Big Spring Herald, won first place for a series of stories on youth suicide in statewide writing competition.

The 1985 Texas Associated Press Managing Editors awards were announced Saturday at the group's annual conference here.

Ward's series was published in the Abilene Reporter-News while she was on the staff there. She has been in Big Spring since July.

A first place award also went to the Big Spring Herald in the short features category. The story on Little League baseball was written by Keith Briscoe. former city editor of the Herald and now news editor of the Odessa American.

Ward's stories won in the AAA category for newspapers with 25,000-99,999 circulation. Judge Joe Fenley, managing editor of the Dayton Daily News, said of the series, "An excellent subject with substantive reporting. A good balance of hard reporting and human drama elements."

Bricoe's story, entered in the AA category for papers with 10,000-24,999 circulation, was titled "Like hot dogs, apple pie and baseball."

Judge was Dale Walton, managing editor of the Tucson Citizen, who said Briscoe "captured the mood that engulfs the youngsters when Little League season rolls around. A great approach to a phenomenon that most sports departments yawn about. The competition was among member daily newspapers of the Associated Press wire service. About 100 papers in four size categories were eligible to

EPA warns company

WASHINGTON — The Enviornmental Protection Agency plans to take action against a California company for violating regulations against releasing genetically altered farm chemicals into the environment, a spokesman said Saturday.

The action stems from testing conducted by Advanced Genetic Sciences, which injected fruit trees with a genetically altered susbstance outside its greenhouse on the roof of a building in Oakland.

The company had received permission last November to conduct outside experiments of the substance, the first of its kind, which is designed to prevent frost from forming on plants in sub-freezing temperatures.

Birthday is death day

DALLAS — A judge said he wanted to get the attention of a man sentenced to die for killing a police officer — so he set his execution date for the victim's birthday.

Stephen Ray Nethery, 25, was sentenced to die May 28 for the 1981 slaying of Dallas patrolman John Thomas McCarthy, 24. McCarthy was shot once in the head when he and his partner approached a parked car occupied by Nethery.

Retired State District Judge Tom Ryan set the execution date Friday after denying a request by a defense attorney to set aside the conviction because of several alleged errors in his trial.

Students suspended

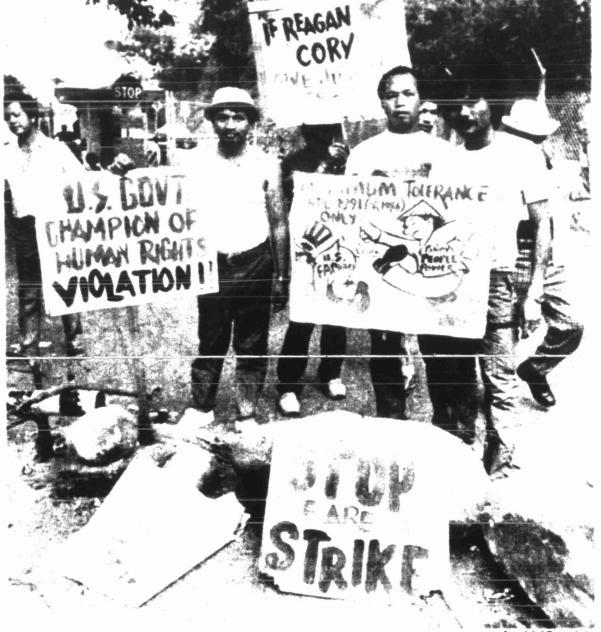

LOS ANGELES — Saying they disgraced the school, the University of Southern California president suspended a fraternity and sorority for chanting anti-Semitic remarks and painting "Jew Week" near a mostly Jewish fraternity that won a campus contest.

USC President James H. Zumberge ordered Kappa Sigma fraternity and Pi Beta Phi sorority temporarily banned from campus activities and from pledging new members pending an investigation by a disciplinary panel of school faculty, administrators and students.

Filipino workers demand severance pay

SUBIC NAVAL BASE, Philippines (AP) — U.S. servicemen clashed Saturday for the second straight day with striking Filipino workers who set up barricades around this U.S. base.

At least one serviceman and a striker were reported hurt, bringing to 12 the number of people reported injured since Friday night.

The strike began Friday at Subic over severance pay demands and spread Saturday to Clark Air Force Base, about 50 miles away, when union leaders there broke off negotiations with U.S. officials.

The walkouts involved about 22,000 Filipino workers

Asnor Santonth, a union officer at Subic, said about 15 U.S. servicemen tried Saturday to cross barricades of rocks and logs set up by strikers at Subic's three gates. Santonil said the military men clashed with about 40 strikersand two servicemen were seriously injured. He said a picketer was hospitalized with minor injuries after being struck in the head with a rock.

However, Navy Chief Petty Officer Jack Leigh said only one U.S. serviceman was hurt. The serviceman was hit in the head with a rock and was hospitalized in Leigh said five servicemen suffered minor injuries Friday night when they tried to enter the base and fought with pickets.

He said he did have the servicemen's identities.

"They could have been sailors, Marines, or people from DOD (the U.S. Department of Defense)," he said. Dr. Roberto Deleon, a surgeon at Olangopo City General Hospital in Olangopo near the base, said five strikers were stabbed Friday night. He said he treated four of them, including one who was seriously hurt.

"The Marines started saying bad words, they were saying anything, and the Filipinos got angry and started hitting them," said Dominador Arpojia, a welder at Subic and one of the wounded strikers.

Remigio Sembillo, president of the Clark Union of Filipino Civilian Employees, met Saturday with James Morse, a civilian labor administrator at Clark. Sembillo said that Clark workers were following the example of their colleagues at Subic and setting up barricades around the air base.

However, he said the Clark picketers will allow military personnel and their dependents to pass freely.

Terrorist roots traced

PARIS — A Lebanese man killed in the bombing of a shopping arcade on the Champs Elysees had links to a Lebanese terrorist group, police sources said Saturday.

The sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the man, identified as Nabil Dagher, 27, knew Georges Ibrahim Abdallah, suspected of being the leader of the Lebanese Armed, Revolutionary Factions terrorist group, The group has claimed the killings of U.S. and Israeli diplomats in France.

Haiti bus strike ends

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — A two-day strike by bus drivers that disrupted life in the capital ended Saturday after a government shake-up ousted three officials linked to the rule of deposed President Jean-Claude Duvalier.

The commercial district returned to normal, its streets jammed with shoppers and the colorful "tap tap" minibuses most people use to get around this city of 1 million.

U.S. airlines had canceled flights to Haiti Friday, although other international flights arrived at the airport.

Turks told of aid cuts

ISTANBUL, Turkey — Citing U.S. budget cuts, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Saturday the United States will have trouble satisfying Turkish pleas for more aid and trade under an agreement on U.S. military base rights.

Shultz arrived for four days of talks with Turkish leaders. He is trying to further negotiations on the bases, which NATO deems vital to the security of its southern flank.

He told reporters on his flight from Paris that America's ability to increase aid to Turkey is limited.

OPEC unity at stake

GENEVA — A week of OPEC oil talks has done little to raise the cartel's hopes of pushing prices much higher. But it spotlights the internal tensions that leave OPEC almost powerless to act.

They are the same sources of friction that have dogged the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries since the world oil glut began chipping away at prices and confounding OPEC in early 1982.

They help explain why many oil industry analysts see little chance that OPEC can muster the unity to decide in Geneva on common action to lift oil prices back above $20 a barrel.

Allegations refuted

VIENNA, Austria — Kurt Waldheim has denied allegations he belonged to Nazi groups before World War II, but his past has become a political issue in his campaign for the presidency of Austria.

Political opponents have accused the former secretary-general of the United Nations of trying to deceive the public.

During campaign appearances last week the 67-year-old Waldheim worked the crowd with zest — pausing to pat a child's head and exchange a joke with a grandmother and signing his name for mobs of autograph hunters.

Bill spells setback to Hispanic jobs

News that President Reagan will come in full-weight behind the Simpson-Rodino immigration bill pending in the House signals the end of the fight Hispanics have waged against the bill.

But it may signal, too, the beginning of a difficult period for Hispanics because it will open the your to discrimination against Hispanics seeking employment.

Hispanic organizations will attempt to derail the bill again but the writing on the wall could not be clearer. Only two months ago it seemed the President's Council of Economic Advisors had fired a mortal salvo at the legislation when the council issued its report concluding that, on the whole, immigration was an economic gain for the country.

But, if news reports are accurate, President Reagan has decided that only his direct help will get the bill to his desk for signature.

Despite its expected passage, thoughts remain clouded as to the wisdom of the bill.

Objections against the bill are well known. Hispanics fear employers will generally chose not to hire persons of Hispanic appearance on the chance they may be in this country illegally. That way, businessmen would decrease the chances that their businesses would pay the fines and sanctions established by the bill.

Supporters of the bill say fines against employers who hire illegal alien workers is the only way to stave off immigration's harmful

After four years of fighting the bill, originally known as Simpson-Mazzoli, the Hispanic argument against the bill has merit, and Texans should listen to their fellow Mexican-American Texans.

Consider for the moment that President Reagan's intent to push politically for the bill gives it the momentum it needs to pass it in House and that the net effect is exactly that which Hispanics fear: Hispanics feel the sting of discrimination and job rejection.

What results is that Mexican-Americans, for whom Texas has been home since the days before the republic, would be viewed as a suspect class - not fully Americans, not fully Texans. They would be the only class in Texas required at anytime to produce documents proving their legality and, more importantly, their

In asking them to prove their identity, a quick, powerful moment of realization reinforces their ethnicity, not their status as Americans and Texans.

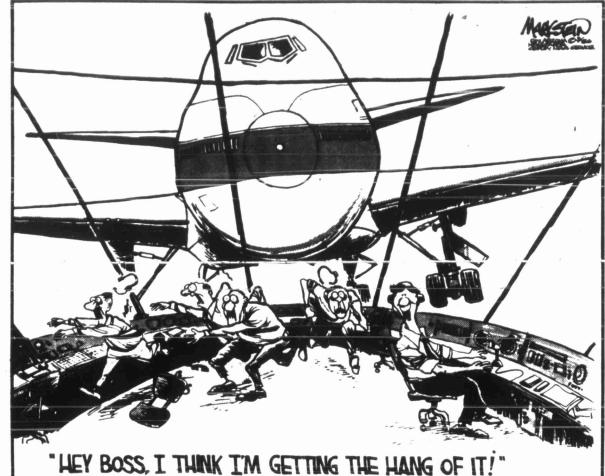

What would have begun as a cure for a valid concern over immigration would then begin to take a toll on the social progress being made by Mexican-Americans in Texas and the entire Southwest. It is the social fabric being cut by the most cruel of circumstances, grinding down the process by which Mexican-Americans become full partners in society.

This type of social-political division has long historical roots, but its modern-day application is apparent. All Hispanic members of Congress have stood solidly against the bill, in sharp contrast to their colleagues.

This disagreement is not just a disagreement among gentlemen; it goes to the core of what this state and this country stand for - fair and equal treatment under the law.

The whole Simpson-Rodino affair can become a rather distressing period for the entire Southwest, for at the most superficial layer under our collective social skins is 150 years of history Simpson-Rodino

Brazilian mayor is ambitious

By STAN LEHMAN

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — The controversial Janio Quadros, the last man to be popularly elected as a president of Brazil, is now the mayor of its largest city. Some politicians maintain he's using the office as a stepping stone back to the presidency.

Quadros vehemently denies that is his goal and has ordered out of his office news reporters who have raised the question.

He was elected president in a landslide in 1960, took office in January 1961 and resigned seven months later without ever fully explaining why, except to say "occult forces" were to blame.

Quadros' resignation left the presidency in the hands of Joao Goulart, his leftist vice president. With the country in political and economic disarray in 1964, Goulart was overthrown in a coup that kept the military in power for 21 years. Quadros is one of the few political holdovers from the free-wheeling, post-dictatorship era of President Getulio Vargas, who committed suicide in 1954. Political parties abounded and Brazil, under President Juscelino Kubitschek, was building its new capital, Brasilia, and launching a drive toward

As Kubitschek's successor, Quadros was as controversial as he is now as mayor of Sao Paulo, a financial and industrial center of 11 million people He was variously described then as he is now demagogic, honest; petty, a savior of the middle

"He is the savior of the middle class because he will restore law and order and wipe out corruption in Sao Paulo," says Welson Goncalves Barbosa, one of Quadros' top aides. "He is Brazil's most honest politician.

'He is a petty demagogue who is more interested in seeing his name in the newspapers than in administering this city," charges Marcos Mendonca, resident of the city's municipal legislature and one

Quadros' harshest critics. A populist who played on middle-class concerns with the high cost of living and rising crime, Quadros seen by some as a threat to the centrist government of President Jose Sarney, Brazil's first civilian chief since Goulart. During his mayoral campaign and after his election, Quadros called for the restoration of direct presidential elections this year, while Sarney has said it would be better for the country if they were held in 1988.

Quadros returned to the political scene with an upset win in the Nov. 15 elections for big-city

Since taking office Jan. 1, Quadros "has been more conserned with trivialities and has ignored some of the more important and urgent problems such as housing, education, health and transportation," Mendonca charged in an interview.

As mayor, Quadros has ordered the closing of newsstands that didn't conform to legal size limits as well as automatic bank-teller machines that violated zoning laws. He also has cracked down on unlicensed Mondonca cited what he called Quadros' "obsession" with potholes, clean streets and parks, the upkeep of cemeteries and stray dogs.

Saying that dogs "deserve more clemency than most bipeds," Quadros recently ordered the Health Department to wait five instead of three days before putting unclaimed dogs to sleep.

'Right now, the mayor wants to bring some order to this chaotic city where no one seems interested in what the law says," aide Barbosa said in an interview. "And I don't think that's being trivial."

He denied Quadros has ignored major problems. 'It's just that he hasn't gotten around to them. After all, he has only been in office a few months and is still adapting himself to his job. His construction phase will start soon.

Barbosa mentioned plans to build health centers, hospitals, schools, a sewage treatment center, gutters, bus shelters and theaters

The funds for these projects will come from budgetary cuts and from money saved with the dismissal of 20,000 of the city's 105,000 employees, Barbosa added.

According to Mendonca, everything "Quadros does or says is surrounded by a lot of pomposity because he wants to keep himself in the public eye. He wants the public to be always aware of him because he wants to be president again. In addition to his denials of that Quadros has taped a sign his office wall: "The mayor is not a candidate to any other elective office. This is his last mandate and the subject is not a matter for conversation.

The mayor's former personal secretary, Ricardo Farabulini, told The Associated Press, however, that Quadros "is not the kind of politician to be content with being mayor. I'm sure he'll go for the presidency.

Farabulini described Quadros as "a strict moralist and an excellent administrator who is perhaps the brightest politician in Brazil.'

However, Farabulini recently quit the mayor's inner circle "because I disagreed with his close ties with the same right-wing political forces responsible for 20 years of military dictatorship and for plunging the nation into economic chaos.

According to Farabulini, Quadros remains as much an admirer of Abraham Lincoln as he had been as president 25 years ago "His admiration is so strong that he has memorized several of Lincoln's speeches, including the Gettysburg Address, and has Lincoln statues and busts in his office and home," Farabulini said.

For his inauguration as mayor, Quadros grew a Lincolnesque beard. He has since shaved it off, his wife, Eloa, didn't like it

Receive Christ into your heart

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Both of my children were born with serious medical problems. Is God punishing me by letting this happen? I admit I have not paid much attention to God, and I am not married, so I wonder if He is getgting back at me for not being a good person. — B.C.

DEAR B.C.: I have known couples who were very committed to Christ and yet were also parents of children with serious medical or emotional problems. We must be cautious about declaring that such things are a punishment from God. We cannot fully understand why or how God permits such things, and we should not blame Him or become bitter at Him if our situation is not what we wish it were. Jesus said that God "causes his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous" (Matthew 5:45). What we can say with confidence, however, is that God loves us and wants to help us when we face difficulties

God wants to use this situation to show you your need of Him. All your life you have been looking for love and security - and yet your letter makes it clear you have not found them. And as long as you continue to turn your back on God and His perfect plan for your life, you will never find them. You need God's forgiveness for what you have done, and you need His guidance to keep you from making wreck of your life. In addition, the greatest gift you can give your children is the example of a firm and joyous faith in God.

Jesus Christ calls you to follow Him. Is there any reason to neglect His call any longer? By a simple prayer of faith you can confess your sins to Him and receive Him into your heart. When you do, you will know the joy of His presence, and He will help you not only deal with the difficulties you face as a single parent but will give you hope and guidance for the future.

The hand wringing and wailing seem to be intensifying these days as the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit reduction law takes effect. A cutback in hours at the Library

Library goers, irate that the government would cut into their study time by shutting off the lights early, have staged sit-ins in the stately library only to be dragged into police vehicles and whisked away to be booked. Congressional offices have not gone untouched, either. Although many on Capitol Hill have been preoccupied with discussing the impact of the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings law outside Washington, congressional staffers are feeling the pinch. Unfilled staff positions in several Texas congressmen's offices are remaining vacant for

For the 31 inmates who live at 406 N. Texas Ave., the center is the last stop before prison, a last chance to abide by the rules or live behind bars. Ector County's chief probation officer, Mike Neely, said Thursday.

Thieves, forgers, burglars and other "low-risk" offenders who have violated probation agreements make up the center's population, he said.

They are under 24-hour supervision, leaving the center only to see a doctor, perform volunteer duties or go to work. Their paychecks are turned over the center for distribution to their families and victims and to cover court costs and legal expenses, Neely said.

They sleep three to a room, check in and out with staffers and can receive visits. But they cannot return home to see their families,

Drug and alcohol abusers are not accepted because the inmate's use of either could prompt further criminal behavior, Neely siad.

Five inmates have been sent to prison, only one for committing a new crime of stealing a truck, Neely said. The others violated house rules and the rules of their probation, such as leaving without checking out, Neely said.

"Little bitty things like that are serious to us," he said. "I live in the community. I believe in the community, and I'm not a bleeding But the focus of the program is to get the inmates to pay their debt to society — in cash, he said. Last year, the first year the center was open, the imates earned about $154,000. About $15,000 was returned to crime victims, another $100,000 went for room and board, and the remainder paid inmate's fines, family support and court and attorney fees, Neely said. This year's payments to victims could double, he said.

"The principal purpose of this place is to give victims their money," he said. "This year's going much better as far as restitu-

The average annual salary for the inmates, who work as construction workers, electricians, janitors, oil field workers and in other fields, is about $20,000 a year.

In addition to money, the inmates contributed more than 3,000 hours in community service for Ector County and non-profit organizations during the last year, Neely Judge Gene Ater, who presides over Ector County's 70th District Court, said that he helped bring the restitution center to Odessa, and he considers it a success.

"I have had some that failed and gone on to the penitentiary," Ater said. "A majority of the cases I nave piaced there have done well. Although victim compensation is an important part of the center's purpose, teaching responsibility to inmates and keeping them from ending up in prison are the center's major focus, Ater said.

'I think we're trying to give these people an opportunity to make changes and stay in society,"

"If I send a kid to the penitentiary — a 17- or 18-year-old — I've got a hardened criminal," Ater said. "I've got another place to put them.

Money to support the center, which had a $216,000 budget for its partial first fiscal year, Feb. 12 to Sept. 1, 1985 — comes from the state, Neely said.

Inmates are required to live at the center at least six monts, and they can stay up to a year, Neely

During that time, they must work, earn a high school degree if they don't already have one and submit to urine testing for drug use, Neely said.

A reward system, which grants inmates rooms with private bathrooms and fewer roommates helps motivate residents, Neely said. But the fear of prison keeps most in line, he said.

As residents are released from the center, they are placed under intensive supervision for two months, he said. They also are required to check weekly with a probation officer and receive a weekly visit from the officer, he said.

wealth strives to weather storm

BRECKENRIDGE (AP) — On the crown of Mayor Roger Wootton's cowboy hat is a stereotypical symbol of Texas prosperity - a tiny gold pin in the shape of an oil derrick.

It is but one of many reminders of the mineral that helped build this former boom town. There are paintings of derricks on the walls of many offices, pumpjacks cranking sporadically throughout the city and a museum dedicated to the history of the oil discovery in Stephens County.

"Right here in Breckenridge, we could afford $3-a-gallon gasoline," the mayor said, if only the price of oil were back to normal levels.

But with the spot price down to $11, residents in this town that once billed itself the "world's greatest oil field" are cutting jobs, slashing salaries and refiguring budgets, just like the rest of the state.

C.J. Myrick, who runs a small oil field service company, has cut salaries by 10 percent for him and his 14 employees and has redone his budget using $15 a barrel as a benchmark through 1990.

"It's not going to be short-lived," he forecast gloomily.

"We had to renegotiate all of our rig prices," said Myrick, who grew up in the oil fields around Big Spring where his father was a

Behind his office was a truckbed holding a dismantled drilling rig. He said half-joking that by the end of the day, there would probably be another rig added to the truck.

Fred Dueser, president of Breck Operating Corp., which operates or has an interest in 5,200 wells across the country, is hoping the price won't fall below $10 a barrel.

"I think you're going to see prices below $15 for the rest of the year," he predicted, adding that 10 percent of the office staff in his own company could lose their jobs this month if the price doesn't improve.

Like the rest of the town, the Breckenridge Independent School District has profited over the years from the fat property tax revenues, paying cash for a new administration building, a new agriculture building, new track, elementary classroom additions and complete overhaul of the football stadium. said board president Ron Payne.

Breckenridge schools even get royalty checks from two wells on school property, which in the past year earned about $30,000.

But sliding oil prices forced one school tax hike last year, Payne said, and this year's even deeper decline is likely to require another.

The school district's property tax income will be affected by lowered values of oil-producing lands, said superintendent Wayne Bingham.

If the 1985 appraisal for the county sets the value of oil at $20 a barrel, for example, "that translates into a $700,000 net loss to the school district for 1986-87," Bingham said. That represents almost 12 percent of a $6 million budget.

For the city, the falling prices threaten sales tax revenues and has retailers concerned

Forrest Stafford, who has been in the local retail business for 23 years, said sales at his men's clothing store have been off 30 to 40 percent for the past year and a half as oil prices declined.

"We need some more small industries in our town," he said, instead of relying so completely on

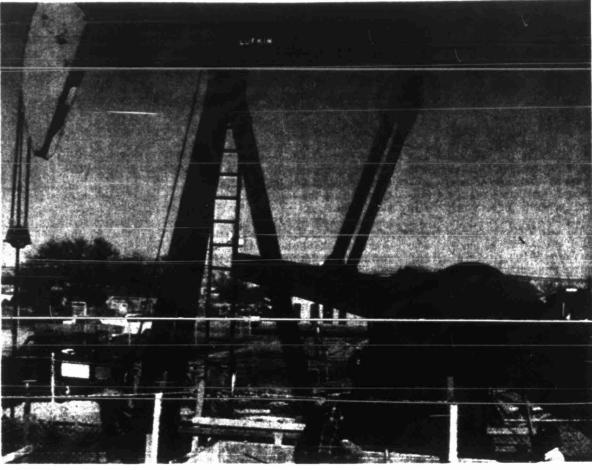

"If it gets too bad, these husbands losing jobs and cutting salaries, naturally, Mama don't have the money," said dress shop manager Kathleen Gove.

But she said that in her 14 years as store manager in Breckenridge, she has always met her sales quota and has never had to lay off any of her workers.

In this town, whose population once totaled 20,000 after the "big ushers" in 1918, there is a stead fast belief that oil is a commodity that will be required for years to

The blessings of black gold are extolled in the J.D. Sandefer Oil Annex of the Swenson Memorial Museum and they are sung in a poem about the town, described as home to multi-millionaires

"I don't care what they say. (Oil's) going to be here another 25 to 30 years," said Payne, the school board president, who was forced to cut half his motel housekeeping staff over the business's decline.

New space shuttle plan studied

SPACE CENTER (AP) — Officials at the Johnson Space Center and at Rockwell International are making tentative plans to build a new space shuttle to replace the destroyed Challenger, and most believe it will be the pride of the fleet - the safest, "cleanest" spacecraft ever built.

Congress has not approved the construction of a new orbiter, but experts have estimated the cost at about $2.8 billion and the time it would take to build at about three years. And they have suggested a name - Challenger II.

"That's the one I like," said Richard Colonna, manager of the space shuttle projects office at the Johnson Space Center

Colonna said no firm plans have been made as yet, but preliminary, informal studies have shown that of the assembly line and the needs assembly lines to start building a new shuttle could be organized quickly.

"The first thing we would do is to try to assess what we are going to need and what is available," he said. "Those parts that are short are the ones we would move on

NASA was in the process of building up spare parts for the four-orbiter fleet of shuttles when Challenger exploded just after its launch Jan. 28. Many of those spare parts could be used in the construction of new orbiter, but the parts, in turn, would have to be replaced to keep the fleet flying.

Colonna said building a new shuttle would require a delicate balancing act between the parts demands of shuttles that are flying. Flights are suspended now, but are expected to resume before a new shuttle could be completed.

"The needs of the factory versus those of the field would have to be balanced over the next three years. The flight program always takes

EYE INJURIES

According to the National Society to Prevent Blindness the following should be treated as medical emergencies - requiring immediate attention at a hospital or by an eye doctor: •Blurred vision that does not clear with blinking. ·Loss of all or part of the visual field.

•Sharp stabbing or deep throbbing pain.

Double vision. Something on the cornea the transparent membrane that covers the pupil and the colored portion of the eye).

•Cut or torn eyelid. Cut, scratched, or punc-

·Layer of blood between the cornea and iris. If a blow to the eye produces none of the symptoms above, if the eye moves freely and without pain in all directions, and if the person's vision has been found normal by the use of a test card, you can assume that only a "black eye" may result. Place a cold compress or ice bag over the eye to slow any swelling and have the eye checked by an eye doctor within 24 hours.

Architect to brief commissioners on progress of county building

By SCOTT FITZGERALD

Staff Writer Architect John Gary of Big Spring will update Howard County commissioners Monday morning on the progress of remodeling the county annex building at Fourth and Main.

The new item is among several on the agenda for discussion when commissioners meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the county courthouse.

Gary said Saturday the working drawings are not complete, but he wants to let commissioners "preview" his progress since he last met with the court.

The drawings he will discuss with commissioners, Gary said, incorporate the needs of offices that were tentatively approved to be relocated in the new

Those offices, he said, are: adult and juvenile probation offices, the tax appraisal office, and the county tax assessor and collector's office.

Commissioners also will discuss with County Librarian Judith Gray estimates for electrical work for the circulation system microcomputer and printer to be installed in the county library.

The court last month approved Gray's request that the new equipment be purchased to improve services. The new equipment also includes security system hardware to curb thefts from the library

Jeweler on credit watch

DALLAS (AP) - Standrd & Poor's Corp. has put Dallas-based Zale Corp., the nation's largest jewelry retailer, on its creditwatch list because of "deteriorating pro-fitability," officials said.

The New York-based credit rating agency also put Carter Hawley Hale Stores, parent company of Neiman-Marcus, on the list of companies under close watch pending possible changes in their credit-worthiness.

A Zale spokesman declined comment on the listing, which was announced Friday and affects about $100 million of Zale senior debt in notes rated BBB plus and commercial paper rated A-2.

Since Zale profit peaked at $54 million in 1980, the company's return on capital has averaged less than 9 percent per year, the report said.

Management launched a new merchandising strategy to cope with changing market conditions, but the current fiscal year ending March 31 "is expected to show a further decline," S&P said.

The rating agency said it put Carter Hawley Hale on the creditwatch list because the Californiabased retailer's 1985 earnings of $48 million from continuing operations, while higher than the previous year's, were "well below S&P expectations.

The fallen Hawks

The Howard College men's basketball program is in a state of disrepair and the recent resignation of head coach Ed Sparling certainly didn't help the Hawks hardwood

It has only been two short seasons ago that the Hawks were the toast of the tough Western Junior College Athletic Conference after winning the 1983-84 regular season title and coming within a basket of the national tournament before Western Texas College shattered the dream season with a 56-55 upset in the Region V championship game.

That fateful WTC jumper was the first nail in the coffin built during the past two seasons to house the once proud Hawk basketball tradition.

After a spring and summer of relative euphoria, basking in the glow of a tainted, but impressive 27-4 record, Big Spr ing was ready for another banner season from the Hawks Then came the next nail, of the ten penny variety.

For no apparent reason, which probably means there was a very serious one not privy to the public, Howard's WJCAC Coach of the Year, Mike Mitchell, accepted a job with Fiberflex and moved back to his old stomping grounds in Oklahoma City. The 1984-85 season was to open in just over a month. So, to say the Howard College administration was in a bind, would be putting it mildly.

Enter Ed Sparling, a respected coach on the junior college and small-division university level with a lifetime record of 458-160 and four national tournament bids. Pretty heady numbers for an emergency replacement.

But Sparling was a relatively unknown entity after spending four years as the Athletics Director for the Texas Department of Corrections in Palestine. But HC officials did not have the time to conduct a full-scale search for a replacement. They signed Sparling, no questions asked Mike Porter was the only returning letterman off the previous championship team and the 1984-85 Hawks finished at 14-16. They were the fifth place team in the Western Junior Athletic Conference and qualified for the WJCAC tournament with a 7-11 record.

The Hawks avenged their loss to Western Texas in the opening round of the tournament before falling to Amarillo College in the semifinals.

Under the circumstances a fine season.

Sparling was rewarded with another one-year contract and told he would have an adequate recruiting budget to round up his own ballclub.

Utilizing his own contacts from around the country, Sparling assembled a cast of players that was nearly ideal. First, and most importantly to the Big Spring fans, he signed a local player, Tim Cope, from Klondike High School. Other Texas recruits from the Class of '85 included Mike Duran the El Paso Player of the Year, and future starters Mike McCall of El Paso and Trey Hughes of Tyler. A solid crew of forwards and guards from the area. Sparling then hit the national scene and came through with a bevy of talented backcourt players, including Walter Walker from Statesville, N.C., Nate Archibald from Long Island, N.Y., Mitch Porter from Hattiesburg, MS., and Vernard Goode from Cincinnati.

The one conspicuous absentee from Sparling's first recruiting class? The dominant big man.

The 1985-86 Hawks would have gone from nearly ideal to title contenders had either of two legitimate big men, 7-2 Billy Joe Maxwell from Canada, or 6-10 Mike Yarborough, a possible transfer from Murray State (Ky.), reneged on their verbal commitments when time came to sign a scholarship.

But such is life in the wild, WJCAC. So the Hawks were forced to use returning starter Walter Reynolds, a 6-7 natural forward, at low post. A considerable disadvantage against the bigger and deeper first division teams in the conference. Even so, the smallish, defensive minded Hawks were well on their way to qualifying for the Region V tournament after posting a 2-1 conference record before the Christmas break.

Then disaster struck. All-Region forward and team captain Bruce Kimble failed out of school. Without Kimble, the Hawks regressed from a poised and improving team, to a gaggle of wide-eyed, ten-

But Sparling's troops gamely faced the remainder of a rugged 13-game conference schedule without their top scorer, second leading rebounder and on-off court leader.

Result? Mission Impossible. The Hawks went on the basketball equivalent of the Bataan "Death March", losing nine straight WJCAC games in exactly one month, January 13 through February 13. During that dark, winless seige you could almost see the panic spread from the players, to the coach, and finally the

By the time the Hawks broke the losing skein, it was too late. Too late to make the post-season playoffs and too late to save Sparling's job. One that he surely would not have lost had Kimble returned for the winter semester.

There were plenty of explanations given to justify the decision by Howard College Athletic Director Bill Griffin, president Bob Riley and the college board of trustees not to renew Sparling's contract. No big man. No experience. No community support. What it all boiled down to was no patience. Sparling did not produce as expected in 1985-86. But what about next year? But enough speculation and on to the bottom line.

Ed Sparling knew the bottom line. "You gotta win baby You gotta win. There is truly no substitute." That's all he had to say about the whole sloppy mess.

Wonder if the next coach will face the same ultimatum while he tries to dig up that red and grey coffin full of past

Cards, Tigers in Final Four

By The Associated Press

Strong inside games in the closing minutes by freshman center Pervis Ellison of Louisville and sophomore forward Ricky Blanton of Louisiana State carried the Cardinals and Tigers into a Final Four meeting next Saturday in the NCAA basketball championships.

Ellison scored 15 points and blocked a couple of key shots to dominate play in the last nine minutes as Louisville defeated Auburn 84-76 in the West Regional final on Saturday. Then Blanton scored eight of LSU's last 12 points as the unranked Tigers claimed the Southeast Regional title by upsetting third-ranked Kentucky 59-57. On Sunday, top-ranked Duke plays No. 17 Navy in the East Regional title game at East Rutherford, N.J., and No. 2 Kansas plays unranked North Carolina State for the Midwest championship at Kansas City, Mo. The winners of those two games will play in the other Final Four semifinal in Dallas' Reunion Arena. LSU, taking a 26-11 record into the Final Four, trailed 51-47 when Blanton and Don Redden went to work. Blanton scored on a layup with 5:31 to play, then tied it on a pass from Redden with 4:34 left.

Redden hit a jumper with 3:30 to play and, after Kentucky's James Blackmon tied it 53-53. Blanton gave the Tigers the lead for good, hitting two free throws with 2:31 to

Redden stretched the lead to 57-53 on a layup with 1:31 remaining before Kenny Walker, who scored 16 of his 20 points in the first half, put in two free throws for

Kentucky. Blanton, again on a perfect feed from Redden, scored with 15 seconds left and Kentucky's Roger Harden was given an uncontested layup with five seconds left. Redden finished with 16 points and Blanton scored 12. Kentucky which won the Southeastern Con ference regular-season and tournament title and had beaten LSU three times earlier this season, wound up the season 32-4. Seventh-ranked Louisville will be making its seventh Final Four appearance, taking a 30-7 record into the national semifinals. Unranked Auburn, which was playing its first regional final, finished its season at 22-11.

Herbert Crooks scored 20 points to lead Louisville, but it was Ellison's play on both ends of the court that beat back Auburn.

Ellison's three-point play with 8:42 to go gave Louisville a 69-67 lead, his tip-in with 2:14 remaining put the Cardinals ahead 73-70, then he blocked two of Chuck Person's shots and Louisville converted backup clock, to avoid the embarthem into four points. Person scored 23 for the Tigers.

clock operator was unaware the clock had malfunctioned until Heathcote rushed to the scorer's table. And since the timer was unaware how much time should have expired, Ferrin said, it was "not a correctable error."

But he added that the timer "probably should have called the the coaches together and arrive at a mutually agreeable adjustment of the clock.

Because of "a bug in the system we will have a standby clock operated by an official for Sunday's game," Ferrin said. Kansas Coach Larry Brown said the furor over the clock "ruined the whole

HC rodeo team to showcase talents for home folks

By CHARLIE ALCORN Sports Writer

There are a group of athletes competing for Howard College few people have heard of and probably only a handful have seen. Perhaps it has to do with their feats of athletic prowess; bull riding, calf roping or goat tying. Not the traditional spectator sports.

But folks, y'all just don't know what you're missing. Come April 3, 4, 5 and 6 everybody will have a chance to see the finest in collegiate rodeo at the Howard College/Frank Phillips College Rodeo at the Howard County Rodeo Bowl.

Howard College rodeo coach Dusty Johnson has assembled the Southwest Region's most outstanding group of freshmen, 22 in all, along with seven sophomore veterans who have shown the ability to lead the Hawks to their first Regional championship since 1979.

The Hawk cowboys and cowgirls season got underway with four team rodeos in the fall and since the Christmas break have competed in one other rodeo, the Odessa College event at the Ector County Coliseum.

Johnson's young team had a less than spectacular fall season, but seemed to turn the corner with some fine individual performances and a third place team finish in Odessa. "We had some kids that I the fall just going on their reputations out of high school, but the first semester is always kind of tough on freshmen."

As a result of their slow start, the Hawk men and women's team are both currently standing sixth out of 15 teams in the Southwest region. But this is not nearly as big a handicap as in years past when perenial power Sul Ross jumped out to a big lead in the fall and never looked back.

'We've been kind of fortunate this year in that the slow start didn't really hurt us," Johnson explained. "Three teams, Tarleton State, Western Texas and Eastern New Mexico, are the top teams in the Southwest Region so far but they're not ahead of us by much. Including the Howard College rodeo, we've got four more to go and they only count the team's top five scores so I feel like we're in pretty good shape.

Leading the way for the men, have been freshman bareback rider Bill Berry from Carlsbad, New Mexico and freshman bull rider Gary Snokhous of West. Berry is currently ranked tenth in the region in the bareback competition. Snokhous is ranked fourth in the region in bull riding.

Sophomore Graves Wallace broke into the top ten in the region after winning the Odessa rodeo

Howard College cowboy David Mc-Cain, who is now roping for Midland College as a third-year student

For the women, freshman Karen Snodgrass of Texico, New Mexico is the top individual performer with a third place ranking in the barrel racing competition. Sophomore Lisa Berry, sister of Bill, is among the region's leaders in breakaway roping with a sixth place ranking.

Snodgrass had her season-best performance in Odessa, finishing second overall in barrel racing.

Freshman Karan Cochran of Aspermont, who won the National High School breakaway roping title last year, is currently ranked fifth in the region in her specialty. After a slow fall, Cochran came back to win the All-Around Cowgirl title in Odessa with high finishes in both breakaway roping and goat tying. Ironically, Cochran amassed enough points by herself (over 150) to win the team title in Odessa but since she was not one of the two point girls designated by Johnson before the competition her points could not be counted in the team total.

"Karan had been one of the point girls all through the fall, and really wasn't producing as well as some of the other girls, so I decided to take her off the point team. I think thought might have done better in team roping title with former she was a little upset, and sure enough she goes and wins the All-Around title. My strategy kind of backfired, but I think it was what she needed in the long run," Johnson said with a laugh.

The Howard College rodeo could not have come at a better time for the Hawks and Queens, who can use the familiar surrounding of the Rodeo Bowl to make their move up the Southwest Region's team leader board. "I pretty confident about our chances of finishing in the top two and qualifying for nationals, particularly with the girls," said Johnson. "Both teams are performing with more consistentcy and with four more rodeos to go we can get some individuals in position for a shot at the nationals as well.

Q.: We are in the process of buying a new home and are in a position to make a sizable down payment. Should we?

A.: The biggest and most definite advantage to a large mortgage is in the tax deductions you will realize on mortgage interest. Other advantages can be realized due to repayment in cheaper, inflated dollars. Also future resale might be easier since a potential buyer will only need a small down payment, and will not have to meet a sizable equity. The primary disadvantage to a large mortgage is in the large monthly payments you may incur. The best course is to sit down, with pencil in hand, and figure your long term benefit. The family of JOHN NUTT

In the midst of our sorrows, we wish to express our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to relatives, friends and neighbors for all the kindness shown to us in the loss of our beloved husband, father, grandfather and great-grandfather John Nutt. A special thanks to Dr. Griffin and the fourth floor nursing staff at Malone and Hogan Hospital for their loving care of us, as well as for John. And the Rev. Claude Craven and Rev. Logan Peterson, both of whom were always there with consoling words. The pallbearers, all the many donors of the beautiful floral arrangements, food, cards, letters and calls of sympathy. It's wonderful to have such friends.

Smart Shoppers go coupon crazy

By CARLEEN EVERETT Lifestyle Editor

oupons are in newspapers, magazines, grocery sacks, on products and in products. They're everywhere. But what do most people do with them? They throw them away because they're too much trouble.

That may be true for some people, but not for the Smart Shoppers Coupon Club. Smart Shoppers is a new organization formed in an attempt to save the shopper money and to make the shopper "smart," Darlene Reid, local member of the club, said.

"People need to realize that it isn't too much trouble. As the economy gets tougher — coupons mean money," Reid said. "My husband is a farmer. The farm economy is bad and people gripe and gripe, but they won't use coupons. They just don't want to mess with them and they throw them away."Your trash becomes of value to you," she said.

The trick, according to smart shopper Anne Lucero, is to organize the coupons and carry them with you all the time.

Coupons range from 10 cents to $3.75. "If you saw a dime or quarter on the ground you'd pick it up, so why not use the coupon? It's money, too," Lucero said.

"Using coupons saves about 25 to 30 percent on grocery bills," said Burton Mason, another member.

Each member spends $20 for a packet of coupons valued at $60. The member goes through the packet and decides what coupons she would like to use. The unused coupons can be utilized in two ways. She can either trade the coupons with another club member for a product she uses or she can save up her coupons and when she acquires 300 she can send them back to the company and receive a gift certificate for the shopper's

"You can't lose money," Reid said. "All you can do is gain.'

Reid tells of one of her coupon shopping experiences: "I had a $1 coupon for Selsun Blue, which was price marked for $2, then went to K-Mart on double coupon day and got it free."

Reid says that she has learned where to shop and how to shop. "You need to go to the store and look for the sales. We also watch the for the ads and my husband buys other newspapers just for the ads," she said.

Reid cautions "not to buy things just because of the coupon unless you're experimenting and want to try the product. Otherwise you'll end up spending more money."

"You have to quit being so brand conscious for items such as papertowels," Reid said. "I still use generic brand products even though they don't have coupons. They save money," Lucero said.

Smart Shoppers, based in El Paso, began in November 1985. By the end of December 6,000 members had joined the club and by the end of February more than 45,000 members had joined. It's now in the 50 states and even in Germany, Lucero said.

The club isn't just for housewives who have nothing better to do, Reid said. Reid's father is also in the club. "You don't have to be just in Smart Shoppers," smart shopper Ollie Mae Henry, said, "I'm also a M a r y K a y representative.

"This is my way of saving money for my family," Lucero said.

Saving coupons "gets to be an obsession." Lucero said. "It irritates me when I see a full page ad with out a coupon," Reid said.

One of the club's immediate interests is to get manufacturers to put out coupons that they've never made before, like cigarette coupons, Reid said.

Novelist interviews local women

By CARLEEN EVERETT Lifestyle Editor

Big Spring native Nona Blanchard, now of Austin, visited here recently to interview local women on traits and characteristics of a West Texas woman for her new book

She plans to write a fictional book set in the '50s with a central figure being a minister's wife. "It all started with something I saw," she said. "I drove by a small church in the outskirts of Austin and on the door was a sign that said 'the pastor's wife.' It triggered something in me."

Blanchard is an administrator at the University of Austin and says the most difficult part of writing is that she doesn't have the time and has to hold her writing back.

Her most recent publications Scenes from a West Texas Childhood, published by the Willmont Press, is set in Howard County and her three collections of poems are available at the Howard County Library. "I feel my writing is influenced by my early childhood. I give credit to the beautiful setting on the farm and my loving family," she said.

Born to the Puckett family in 1936, Blanchard grew up in Luther Community with an outhouse and no running water, she said. She graduated from high school in Andrews in 1954. She attended the University of Texas and received a BA degree in natural sciences and psychology of human development and family relationships.

Nona Blanchard is shown telling of her West Texan days and how they've influenced her writing. West Texas will is the setting of the book she's currently writing.

Blanchard began writing poetry as a child and is now venturing into writing fiction. She says her literature influences have been Theodor Dostoevsky, Charles Dickens and Carl Sandberg.

"One of my mentors says that I'm a wordsmith. I paint pictures with words," she said

"I have written 100 pages of the book so far. It will be a lot of light-hearted fun with deep messages. I don't want to go into it with pre-conceived notions, I want the book to reveal itself to me," she said.

The book is timely, Blanchard said. "A lot has been written about Texas, but no one has captured West Texas.

Getting ready for aerobics

From BETTER HOMES AND GARDENS

Stop! Before you dive in the pool or hop on your bicycle, take the time to learn how aerobic exercise helps you burn those calories and become more fit.

Pay attention, too, to the guidelines for determining your readiness for aerobic exercise and taking your target heart rate. Both are essential before you begin your workout, advises Better Homes and

Your body holds you accountable for every calorie you eat. About 15 calories per pound of body weight are required to maintain your present weight. For example, if you weigh 150 pounds, your daily food intake must average 2,250 calories to maintain that weight. If you overeat or are inactive, excess calories are stored in the fat cells for future use.

To lose one pound of body fat you need to create a calorie deficit of 3,500 calories. If you reduce calories, your body will use fat stores to supply basic metabolic demands. Add aerobic exercise and you will further deplete excess fat.

Take the example of a 150-pound woman who maintains her weight by consuming 2,250 calories per day but who does not exercise. If she reduces calories to 1,200 per day, that creates a deficit of 1,050 calories of 7,390 calories per week. If she adds an aerobic workout three days a week, she creates an additional calorie expenditure of 600 calories per week and may be able to lose slightly more than 2

Another important benefit of aerobic exercise is that it can help you reach a healthy balance between your lean body weight (the muscles, bones, ligaments and tendons) and fat body weight. Men should ideally carry only 16 percent of their body weight as fat; women should carry no more than 20 percent body fat. That's something the scales can't measure. For example, a 100-pound person can carry too much fat, yet a 140-pound person can have an ideal distribution of muscle and fat. The easiest indicator of too much fat is the "pinch an inch" test. Grab a fold of skin and fat on your side just above either hip bone using your thumb and forefinger More than an inch suggest too much body fat.

Dieting without exercise reduces both lean and fat body tissue. The combination of dieting and exercise reduces body fat while it increases lean body tissue sand muscle tone. Thus, exercising helps you improve your fat-to-lean body weight ratio and makes you look trimmer, too.

Perhaps the greatest benefit of aerobic exercise is in developing your cardiovascular endurance - the working efficiency of your heart, lungs and vascular system. Recent studies have indicated regular aerobic exercise can reduce your chances of heart disease, lower your blood pressure and cholesterol and triglyceride levels, and help you manage stress

How do you know if you're in good enough shape to begin an aerobic program? Consult your doctor if you have any doubts, but there are certain medical conditions that require approval for exercising. If you have relatives who have had premature heart disease or if you are 40 or older and have not exercised for many years, you will also need an updated medical evaluation.

Because aerobic exercise is designed to give your heart, lungs and muscles a good workout, you'll want to begin exercising gradually if you're out of shape. A slow approach will minimize potential injury as well as muscle soreness Exercise at least three days per week. Any less than this may be more harmful than helpful.

Don't worry about the intensity (achieving and maintaining your target heart rate) at the beginning. As you exercise, you should be able to carry on a reasonable conversation. If you are not comfortable, slow down. It's more important to concentrate on exercising regularly and consistently

Once you start getting in shape, you will want to monitor your exercise intensity. To determine your target heart rate, use the formula recommended by the American College of Sports Medicine. Subtract your age in years from 220 and take 70 percent of that number. The resulting number will roughly approximate your recommended target heart rate. For example, the target heart rate for a 40-year-old is approximately 126 beats per minute or 21 beats in 10

For maximum aerobic benefit, you need to maintain your target heart rate for 15 to 20 minutes at each exercise session

Whirlpool baths made their start as hydro-therapy equipment in hospitals and athletic training rooms. Today, they are making their way into private homes at an astounding rate. They are designed to dramatically change spartan bathing rituals into luxurious happenings. The values of hydro-therapy, traced to the ancient Egyptians and Greeks. hold true for people of all ages. Hydro-massage helps to relieve the pain of bursitis, arthritis, aching back and sore muscles. Some whirlpool spas are sold as a complete package with no extra fittings to purchase. Others permit a selection of conventional faucets and controls. The number of hydrojets varies from model to model, as does their placement.

Whirlpools are available in various shapes and sizes including extra long and extra deep tubs. They add a luxurious touch to the bath. Former resident gets seeing eye dog

By CARLEEN EVERETT Lifestyle Editor

Big Spring native and 40-year resident, JIMMIE DAYLONG, now of Turlock, Ca., was the topic for a recent article there. Daylong, who is now legally blind, received a seeing eye dog after an intensive 28-day training program. The retriever, Sam, is "like having eyeballs," Daylong said in the article. According to the article when the pair crosses a street, Daylong listens for traffic. If he doesn't hear any, he orders Sam "forward." The canine is trained to refuse to obey if his master errs and there

Local relatives here in Big Spring are his brother A.P. "Bull" Daylong, 1317 Park, and sister Mrs. M.S. Draper of Midland.

WINNELLE KAVANAUGH-PORTER, formerly of Big Spring, passed away March 12 at age 69. Buried services were held in Kingman, Arizona. She is survived by two daughter, two sons, grandchildren and brother D.C. Kavanaugh.

Dear Abby

Mules' bad image bothers woman

DEAR ABBY: I am fed up with all these offended bach lors who resent being compared with mules. What's wrong with mules? I am a regional representative of the American Donkey and Mule Society, and believe me, donkeys and mules are the finest beasts on earth, so if any human calls you a mule or even a jackass, he is paying you a compliment! Donkeys and mules are honest, affectionate, gentle, intelligent and fun-loving, so how did mules and jackasses get such a bad name?

SUE ANN WEAVER, BLUESTONE BRAYERSZ DEAR SUE ANN: It eludes me, but over the years the consensus has been tht mules are stubborn and jackasses are stupid. Unfortunately, these degrading myths have been perpetuated until they are accepted as facts.

What donkeys and jackasses neer is some high-powered public relations firm to improve the images of these noble beasts. Any takers?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for six years and we are very happy. The only thing that ever comes between us is that I never receive gifts from him on special occasions

Although he can't afford to buy expensive presents, he doesn't understand how much I would like to get at least a card on Christmas, our anniversary and my birthday.

Last Valentine's Day, I bought myself a sexy nightie, had it giftwrapped real nice and I showed it to my bridge club, saying it was from my husband. I know it wasn't honest, but I was ashamed that he didn't even give me card.

Is there something wrong with me? Or is it him?

DEAR ELLIE: Nothing is "wrong" with you or him. But there is something wrong with your communication. Let him know how much it means to you to be remembered — even if you have to remind him as the date grows near. And do it with a sense of humor. For example, one week before your birthday, tape a note up on his bathroom mirror: SEVEN DAYS BEFORE ELLIE'S BIRTHDAY; the next day, ONLY SIX DAYS BEFORE ELLIE'S BIRTHDAY, perform, do it at the reception. etc. Get the idea? Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: My fiance and I your help in settling a disagreement. We are both music lovers (classical) and talented per-tormers as well. I am a planist and Dennis has a beautiful singing

It would give me great pleasure to play a few numbers immediately following the marriage ceremony. (I wouldn't do anything inappropriate like a jarring Prokofiev.) Dennis' song to me would be an appropriate selection in keeping with the occasion. He says the logistics of my moving from the altar to the piano in my long, flowing wedding gown would be awkward and disruptive — that I should be a bride and nothing more. And he should do no singing.

I think it would be a shame to engage outsiders to provide the music when we could deliver music at its best. (We have already agreed on an organist for the prelude, march and recessional.) Please help me. Dennis' mother is siding with Dennis.

MUSIC LOVER DEAR LOVER: I'm also siding with Dennie. Sorry. But if you must

Athletes' good night sleep

"good night's sleep" for an athlete? I am a swimming coach and have to schedule several out-of-town meets at fairly distant locations. Sometimes these kids have to get up in the wee hours to dress, eat and get over to the bus for the trip. I have tried to get them to the destination a full day before so they can sleen that night in preparation for the meet the next day.

Dr. Donohue

The school board is now talking about stopping this because of the expense. Should I fight for the extra

My files are pretty thin on this subject, and those I spoke with could not give me really conclusive evidence one way or the other. Of course, there have been studies done, as you can imagine. I can cite a

In one, it was shown that sleep-deprived runners (not swimmers) performed as well minus sleep as with it. They reported the exercise was more difficult, but measurement of their body functions showed them performing up to fully-rested evels. On the other side of the coin is a study that finds the athlete's body temperature control adversely affected by sleep deprivation. They don't sweat as readily and body temperature builds. There are apparent gaps in our knowledge of non-sleep effects. Apparently, no one has studied the effect of sleep loss on fine-muscle performance, as when hitting a baseball. I don't know if I've been of any help to you. I suppose your team's comparative record (the old travel program versus the new) would be revealing. The studies apparently do not take into account the rigors of prolonged bus rides in the middle of the night, either, and I think you have to consider that.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a regular reader of your column and enjoy it very much. Perhaps you can help me with a problem I've had for some time. I am 40, have always been physically active, and play mensely, but find I have two problems.

(1) After exercise, I'm starved, and (2) I have difficulty getting to sleep at night afterward. I should explain that becuse of my work schedule I have to exercise late in the evening. I would appreciate any suggestions to help me keep my weight down and still get the proper amount of sleep at night. — J.J.Exercise always stimulates the body. That's why people who can get in a bit of noontime find they don't get afternoon blahs. At night, that can work against the exerciser. You feel to peppy to get sleep. You can try taking a glass or two of skimmed milk at bedtime. The tryptophan in it may induce sleep. The post-exercise hunger phenomenon, while not unversal, has been reported by some athletes, while others find their appetites actually depressed after a workout. Go ahead and satisfy this hunger, but do it with low-calorie, high-fiber food, like popcorn (unbuttered and unstaled). For more on the sleep subject, look over the booklet I'm sending, "Why Can't You Sleep?" It offers some tips. Other readers can order a copy by writing me in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed envelope

A Big Spring Success Story

Eleven years ago, Mary Ellen Walls pegan her first retail venture with The Cottage high fashion ladies & juniors shop. Through many ups & downs in our local economy The Cottage has thrived. It could be "good luck" but chances are the reason for success is friendly, attentive service and an excellent inventory of the latest designs in fashions that you might not expect to find outside of Dallas or New York.

The attention you receive from Maleah, Julie, and Amy assures you will be comfortable shopping in The Cottage, and the styles you choose from are fresh, flattering and fun to wear. Maleah, Julie, and Amy take pride in helping well-dressed young women build their wardrobes from swimwear to prom dresses. They'll even help you accessorize your outfit from a bold selection of striking ewelry designs.

Big Spring can be proud of Mary Ellen Walls, owner. She has kept her store up-to-date with major market fashion trends by representing three manufacturer's lines at the Apparel Market, as well as traveling in fashion sales to other boutiques throughout West Texas and southern New Mexico. Mary Ellen made her success by filling a fashion need, and she and her husband, Randy, continue to grow with their soon to open new store "The Guy Next Door." The Guy Next Door will be a young men's store carrying equally fashionable men's sportswear. Watch for the opening by or before July 1st next door to The Cottage in Highland Mall.

Because The Cottage has been adding flair to Big Spring's most fashionable young women for over a decade and continues to grow by pleasing you, Highland Mall is proud to salute their staff as Business Of The Month. Drop by The Cottage and see what's new for Spring & Easter (While you're in The Cottage, ask Mary Ellen about her good news.)
