Four Libyan patrol boats hit

Congress backs Reagan's order of returning fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — With few exceptions, the leaders of Congress — Democrats and Republicans alike — say President Reagan was on the right course when he ordered U.S. ships off Libya to shoot back if attacked by the forces of Col. Moammar Khadafy.

But Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., vice chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, today likened the three-carrier U.S. forces to "a 900-pound gorilla," and said he feared that when Khadafy "determines that he is no match for us militarily, ... (he will go) off on his own playing field, which is the playing field of terrorism."

"That's where, if he is going to retaliate, and I suspect he will, ... then he's going to retaliate in the terrorist area," Leahy said on CBS-TV's "CBS Morning News."

"And it could be anywhere in the world, including in the United States."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., appearing today on NBC-TV's "Today" show, took a similar stance.

Khadafy, Cranston said, is "really a wild man, totally unpredictable. We will have to anticipate that there will now be very unpleasant actions against Americans launched due to all of this."

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., suggested that "now that we've made our point, perhaps this is the time to pull back."

Soviets condemn 'military actions'

MOSCOW (AP) — A Foreign Ministry spokesman said today the Soviet Union "resolutely condemns" U.S. military actions against Libya.

Vladimir Lomeiko, head of the ministry's press department, said at a news conference that the American military exercises off Libya's coast were designed to provoke Libya.

His comments came on the second day of clashes between United States and Libyan forces in the disputed Gulf of Sidra. On Monday and today, Libya fired missiles at U.S. warplanes over the gulf, and the United States retaliated against Libyan patrol boats and installation on shore.

"It is clear that we are dealing here with an attempt to make legitimate their (U.S.) attempts to interfere anywhere in the world," Lomeiko said of the United States.

"We consider that all peace-loving nations have a duty to take steps to support the sovereign Libyan state," he said. He did not elaborate.

"The Soviet people and the Soviet state resolutely condemn" the U.S. actions, Lomeiko added.

Asked if the Libyan missiles came from Soviet-installed bases, he said, "SAM-5 missiles are not birds that can be marked. Whether it was them or other installations is difficult to say."

Lomeiko also said, in response to a question, that the Soviet Union has "no difficulty" with Libya's claim to the Gulf of Sidra.

Americans report no casualties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today continued to attack Libyan naval and land-based missile forces in retaliation for Libya's firing on U.S. warplanes over the disputed Gulf of Sidra, administration officials said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said missile-firing jets from the U.S. 6th Fleet had struck at least four Libyan patrol boats over the last two days, sinking two, disabling another and damaging a fourth that returned to port. About 150 crewmen were believed aboard the Libyan vessels.

The spokesman said there were no reported U.S. casualties or damage.

Speakes also said the United States struck again at a Soviet-built Libyan missile site at Sirte that had been reported knocked out in the initial retaliatory strike on Monday.

The first strike came after six anti-aircraft missiles were fired at — but missed — U.S. warplanes crossing Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy's "line of death" at the mouth of the Gulf of Sidra.

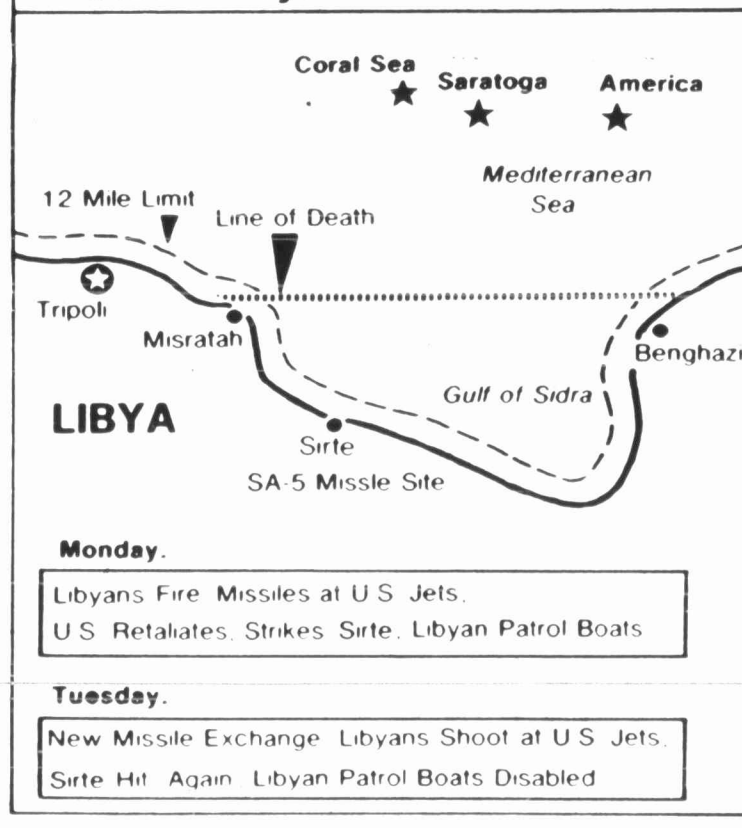

Early today, the Pentagon reported that the renewed U.S. attacks on at least two patrol boats and the missile site came after Libya fired six more missiles at carrier-based warplanes operating over the gulf.

But Speakes later said the United States could confirm only six missiles had been fired in all and suggested the new reports may have duplicated those announced earlier. He added that although the site's radar was knocked out by radar-chasing missiles on Monday, the Libyans probably had multiple radars used to aim their missiles from the site because the fleet detected renewed radar signals during the night before ordering a renewed attack.

"An hour ago, it was down and not operating," the spokesman said about 10:30 a.m. EST. "It had been up and down through the night"

Commissioners pass new overtime policy

By SCOTT FITZGERALD Staff Writer

County law enforcement officers not acting in supervisory or executive levels will now record their employee hours on 28-day working day cycles, county commissioners decided Monday.

Commissioners voted unanimously Monday afternoon to adopt the policy after discussion with Sheriff A.N. Standard, County Attorney Tim Yeats and County Treasurer Bonnie Franklin.

The motion also included keeping county officials who are neither elected nor appointed on 40-hour workweeks.

Law enforcement officers will be asked to use compensatory time for overtime hours they accrue and will have four months in which to use the comp time, the motion stated.

Commissioner David Barr asked Yeats about the possibility of putting law enforcement officers on an hourly wage which would raise the total amount of working hours they could accrue without requesting overtime or comp time.

Yeats said he was unsure of whether that policy would be acceptable under the guidelines and mandates of the federal Fair Labor and Standards Act which becomes effective April 1.

"There haven't been many regulations," Yeats said about his understanding of the new act, "and I'm going to inquire with the federal board to find out how many hours they (deputies) can work without paying overtime."

Consumer prices take record dip

WASHINGTON (AP) — Tumbling gasoline and food costs pushed consumer prices down 0.4 percent last month, their steepest drop in more than three decades, the government said today.

The February decline was the largest since a 0.4 percent drop in November 1953, and was bested only by a 0.9 percent decline in July 1949. The new decline is the first decrease since December 1982, when consumer prices inched down by 0.1 percent.

The drop in the Consumer Price Index followed a modest 0.3 percent rise in January.

The major factor in the February decrease in the cost of living was the continuing dramatic drop in petroleum prices. Gasoline prices fell 5.9 percent in February, after a 0.1 percent increase the month before. Home heating oil costs dropped 10.1 percent, after dropping 1.1 percent in January.

January's decline, if continued for 12 straight months, would be equal to an annual decrease of 4.6 percent, said the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Food prices also declined in February, 0.7 percent, after increasing 0.2 percent the month before.

The decline in food prices was led by a 7.5 percent drop in the price of vegetables and fruits and a 1.4 percent decrease in the price of meats, poultry and fish.

Partially offsetting the declines in food prices was an increase in the price of coffee. Ground coffee increased 26.7

percent and instant coffee 15.1 percent, reflecting a continued drought in Brazil.

Apart from food and energy, consumer prices rose an overall 0.2 percent in February.

Gasoline price drops had already shown up in wholesale prices.

The producer price index for February, released earlier this month, showed a drop of 1.6 percent — the largest ever recorded — and equivalent to an annual decline of 17.1 percent.

Economists said they anticipated that oil and gasoline prices would continue to decline before leveling off. Gasoline prices have already fallen below $1 a gallon in many parts of the country.

Juvenile detained in shooting death

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

Police have detained a 16-year-old boy as a suspect in the Saturday morning shooting death of Albert Gonzalez, 23, of 1205 Mulberry.

The suspect is formerly of Big Spring but was on juvenile probation in Snyder after a shooting incident involving another man last fall in Big Spring, Sgt. Ray Meek said.

Meek said a detention hearing for the suspect was held Monday by County Judge Milton Kirby and the youth was ordered held at the Taylor County Youth Center in Abilene.

Gonzalez was killed by a gunshot wound to the face, police Lt. Jerry Edwards said. He was found by police outside a car at 610 N.W. Eighth St.

Meek said this morning the shot appears to have been fired from a 9 mm gun, based on shell casings found at the scene.

No motive has been determined in the killing, but police speculate the shooting may have stemmed from a feud between families, Police Chief Rick Turner said Monday. However, police do not yet know if the victim and suspect knew each other, Meek said.

Acting on a tip from a witness to the shooting, police were sent Mon-

'Africa' sweeps seven Oscars

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Out of Africa," the romantic epic of a woman's passion set against the landscape of colonial Kenya, turned an Academy Awards race with no clear starter into a rout, capturing seven Oscars while the top-nominated "The Color Purple" was shut out.

William Hurt, the homosexual prisoner obsessed with movies in "Kiss of the Spider Woman," and Geraldine Page, as the ailing widow determined to return to her childhood home in "The Trip to Bountiful," took the top acting awards in Monday night's presentation of the 58th Academy Awards.

Sentimental favorite Don Ameche, 77, was named best supporting actor for playing the retiree who found the fountain of youth with the help of visitors from outer space in "Cocoon." Anjelica Huston, the vengeful Mafia princess in "Prizzi's Honor," won as best supporting actress.

In addition to best picture, "Out of Africa" won for director, screenplay, score, sound, art direction and cinematography, but failed to win Meryl Streep an Oscar for best actress or for Klaus Maria Brandauer as best supporting actor.

"I could not have made this movie without Meryl Streep," director Sydney Pollack said in accepting his award. "She is astounding — personally, professionally, all ways."

Miss Streep had been favored to claim her third Oscar for her role as the strong-willed Danish author, Isak Dinesen.

Instead, the award became a long-awaited triumph for the 61-year-old Miss Page, who failed in seven previous nominations dating to 1953 despite her belief that she would win each time.

"I have thought so every time," she confided backstage. "I was so wonderful. I'm my biggest fan."

Rushing to the stage after a bear hug from his Brazilian director, Hector Babenco, he clutched his heart and exclaimed: "Baboom, baboom, baboom it's incredible!"

"I share this with Raul," Hurt said, referring to Raul Julia, who played the Brazilian political prisoner who shared his cell.

As the evening wore on, a wipeout for "The Color Purple" became evident. It had been engulfed in controversy since its release, with complaints that the movie based on Alice Walker's Pulitzer Prize-winning novel reinforced black stereotypes.

Barbra Streisand hugs Sydney Pollack as he accepts award for best director for "Out of Africa" on the stage of the Music Center in Los Angeles Monday night. Pollack also produced the film which was named best picture of the year.

Of its 11 nominations, none was for director Steven Spielberg.

Whoopi Goldberg, in the running for best actress as the oppressed black woman struggling for her own identity, had spoken out angrily about the snub.

"It's a small bunch of people with small minds who chose to ignore the obvious," she said — a comment which may have helped clinch her own loss.

Robert Wise, president of the Academy, said after the ceremonies he couldn't explain the outcome "except that maybe it was a reaction of the academy at large over questioning the integrity of the director's branch," which nominates directors.

"Perhaps the voters felt that the academy's reputation had been maligned," he said.

had ever gained as many nominations and failed to win an Oscar, but Quincy Jones who produced "The Color Purple" and created its musical score, was philosophical: "The picture got 11 nominations. It did $78 million as of today. I mean, how greedy can you get?"

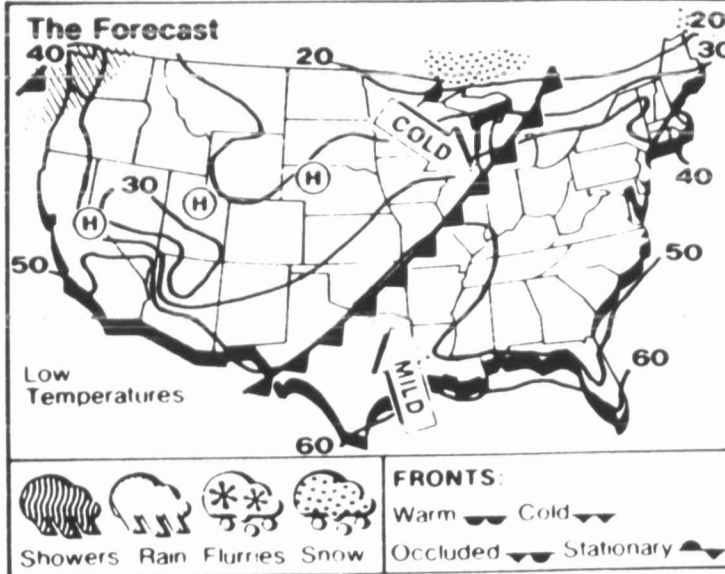

Miss Huston's victory made hers a three-generation Oscar family. It was 37 years to the day since John Huston, her father, won Oscars for his writing and directing of "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," and his father, Walter, was named best supporting actor for his role in the film.

"This means a lot to me since it comes from a role in which I was directed by my father, and I know it means a lot to him," Miss Huston, 34, said onstage.

"I feel like a dynasty," she exclaimed backstage.

Ameche drew a standing ovation when his award was announced.

City may alter budget at tonight's meeting

City Council will consider revising the city budget at its regular meeting today at 6:30 p.m.

The revised budget includes a $174,000 increase in expenditures and projected $293,000 increase in revenues.

Budget items up for approval by the council include a 3 percent across the board pay raise for all city employees, fire department equipment, computer software, warning sirens, police pagers, a new boat and motor for Moss Lake, lawn mowers for the parks department and a word processor for code enforcement.

Along with first reading on the revised budget ordinance, the council will act on a first reading of an ordinance making the purchaser of a hotel liable for the city hotel tax owed by the seller of the hotel.

In a city memo, City Attorney Doyle Curtis said passage of the ordinance is necessary to protect the city in the event a hotel is sold and the owner has not paid the hotel tax due the city. Curtis said he was notified by City Secretary Tom Ferguson that the former owner of the Homestead Inn sold the hotel without paying the tax owed to the city.

City fathers will also act on a first reading resolution accepting a $12,500 user fee study conducted by Griffith and Associates. Results of the study provide the basis for user fee increases being mulled by the council.

Councilmen will consider another first reading resolution authorizing the mayor to execute an agreement with First Southwest Company for financial advisory services. The Abilene company has been a consultant in conducting city bond sales for the past five years.

Other items the council will consider are:

- Awarding a bid for the retrofit of the waste water treatment plant. Bids were opened Thursday and Public Works Director Tom Decell is expected to recommend the city award a $289,000 bid to a Lubbock firm.
- Approval of specifications and permission to advertise for bids for air conditioners.

Speakes refused to say when the U.S. "freedom-of-navigation exercise" to test Khadafy's claim that the gulf is Libyan territory would end, although he pointed out the notice issued to mariners and aircraft advising them of the operation would expire on Sunday.

Defense Department sources, meantime, said the United States might conclude the maneuvers off the Libyan coast before the end of the week.

"If they stop shooting at us, we'll probably stop soon," said one source.

But, in Ankara, Turkey, Secretary of State George Shultz said the exercise would continue as planned. He did not say when they would end.

Robert Sims, the Defense Department's chief spokesman, said in Washington that one Libyan boat was left in flames and that debris was spotted after the other was hit by an American missile. That brought to at least four the number of Libyan boats attacked by U.S. planes.

Sims indicated this morning that up to 12 SA-5 and SA-2 missiles had been directed at American ships and planes since the first two were fired Monday.

Junta leader jailed

MIAMI — A member of Suriname's ruling junta was in jail today on charges he offered cocaine smugglers military protection and a safe refueling haven in his small South American country for $1 million a load, authorities said.

Capt. Etienne Boerenveen, who said he was Suriname's No. 2 leader and "spoke for the highest levels of government," was arrested Monday with two countrymen by undercover U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agents who posed as smugglers, said DEA spokesman Frank Chellino.

Marcos moves house

HONOLULU — Deposed Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos and his wife, Imelda, have traded the Hickam Air Force Base officers' quarters for new, "nice and quiet" surroundings — the $1.5 million beachfront home of an auto dealer.

The Marcoses and about 20 of their followers moved from the base Monday evening, but it was unclear how many of the entourage remained with them, said a Secret Service agent at the gate, who declined to give his name.

Reward is not enough

PHILADELPHIA — A man claiming to have poisoned three over-the-counter medications called a Philadelphia television station and said the reward money wasn't enough to capture him.

The call was made to WCAU on Monday after the Proprietary Association, a group of drug manufacturers, raised to $900,000 the reward for information leading to convictions of people who tamper with drugs.

Tougher standards set

DALLAS — Admissions requirements for high school graduates entering 10 of Texas' public universities next fall will be tougher, officials say.

The Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, said Monday that several of the schools previously had open admissions — anyone could attend — and most of the rest had relatively low requirements.

Reagan pushes treaties

WASHINGTON — President Reagan wants the Senate to ratify treaties aimed at encouraging U.S. investment in six countries, the office of U.S. Trade Representative Clayton Yeutter says.

The treaties, which Reagan wants to ask the Senate today to ratify, have been signed by the United States with Turkey, Panama, Haiti, Senegal, Zaire and Morocco.

A fireman checks under the car from which a homemade rocket was fired at the American Embassy Tuesday in Tokyo. Police said the rocket was launched from the trunk of the vehicle parked some 100 meters away from the embassy building. Police suspect the attack was an act by leftists opposed to the May 4-6 Tokyo summit of seven industrialized nations.

Radical wrath

Rockets hurled at U.S. embassy in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Homemade rockets were launched today at the U.S. Embassy and the Imperial Palace in central Tokyo in nearly simultaneous attacks, but no injuries or damage were reported. Police said leftists apparently were to blame.

The rockets in both incidents were fired from vacant automobiles, apparently by remote control or with timing devices, police said.

There were no immediate claims of responsibility for the attacks, but police said they thought the rockets were the work of leftist radicals. Leftists in recent weeks have said they will try to disrupt the May 4-7 Tokyo Summit which will bring the leaders of seven industrialized nations, including President Reagan, to Tokyo.

Homemade rockets are a favorite device of Japan's best-known radical group, the leftist Chukaku-ha, or Middle Core Faction, that has claimed responsibility over the years for guerrilla attacks against the New Tokyo International Airport at Narita and other targets.

The embassy, in a statement, said "three incendiary devices were launched at the U.S. Embassy from approximately 100 meters (328 feet) outside the embassy. There were no injuries or damage inside the embassy ground."

Kyodo News Service, whose office is across the street, said one of the homemade cylindrical devices landed on the roof of the 11-story embassy and another fell in the embassy garden, where it burst into flames that were extinguished by embassy personnel.

Police and embassy personnel did not confirm those reports.

An eyewitness said he saw a "missile launched from the trunk of a car," and later saw U.S. Marine guards at the embassy extinguish a fire on the steps of the building.

Japan Broadcasting Corp. said one of the missiles hit a window of the embassy and bounced off, landing in the garden.

Kyodo said two cars were used in the embassy attack, one parked outside the Kyodo building and another on a street nearby, just opposite the embassy's main gate, which is manned by Japanese security guards.

An embassy spokeswoman, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said U.S. Ambassador Mike Mansfield was in the building today, but refused to say whether he was there at the time of the attack.

Americans George Pendleton, 26, of Washington, D.C., and Tom Edwards, 22, of Los Angeles, said they were walking on the street outside the embassy when the attack occurred.

Assembly abolished

MANILA, Philippines — President Corazon Aquino signed an interim "freedom constitution" today that abolishes the National Assembly, protects human rights, and gives her power to make laws until voters ratify a new constitution.

Mrs. Aquino, who announced her action on nationwide radio and television, took on nearly the same powers that deposed President Ferdinand E. Marcos assumed when he declared martial law in 1972.

OPEC to meet in April

GENEVA — One of the longest meetings in OPEC history was a double disappointment for a cartel staggered by plummeting oil prices.

At the close Monday of nine straight days of negotiations in a Geneva hotel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announced only that its oil ministers would meet again on April 15.

Contra rebels chased

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — Military sources said about 1,000 Nicaraguan soldiers chased hundreds of U.S.-backed Contra rebels into southern Honduras, and were camped on a mountain about 12 miles inside the Honduran border.

The sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said the Sandinista soldiers were on Mount Capire, about 12 miles from the Nicaraguan border.

Crash causes studied

GANDER, Newfoundland — Investigators have not been able to decide what caused the Arrow Air crash that killed 256 people last December, but will consider sabotage among the possible causes when it holds an inquiry next month, the head of the probe said.

Bernard Deschenes, chairman of the Canadian Aviation Safety Board, told reporters Monday that an explosive device would be among many possible causes still under study.

Chile gets message

SANTIAGO, Chile — The collapse of the Marcos regime across the Pacific has sent ripples of insecurity through Chile's military government, in power for 12½ years and scheduled to stay there until 1989.

Last month, after a popular uprising drove President Ferdinand E. Marcos from the Philippines, Chile's ambassador in Manila was quoted by a Santiago newspaper as saying how happy he was to see Philippine troops abandon their tanks in the face of thousands of Filipinos carrying flowers.

OPEC indecision may bring oil prices further down

NEW YORK (AP) — Crude oil prices may level off in the $10- to $12-a-barrel range, at least until OPEC devises a way to restrain production and reduce the world oil glut — and that could take years, industry analysts say.

Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries oil ministers broke off a nine-day attempt at that goal Monday, triggering a nosedive in prices of crude and refined products.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for May delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude, closed at $12.13, down from Friday's $13.94 close, but up from the low of $11 a barrel earlier Monday.

April contracts for unleaded gasoline slid from Friday's close of 44 cents a gallon to 40 cents; regular gas dropped to 39.55 cents from 44.24 cents; and heating oil closed at 47.69 cents, down more than a nickel from Friday's 52.83 close.

Analysts said that if crude oil prices fell below $10 to $12 a barrel, demand would eventually force those prices back up.

At the end of their Geneva conference, the OPEC ministers said they would meet again April 15.

In Los Angeles, the chairman of Chevron Corp., George Keller, predicted OPEC "will reach some sort of agreement on prices" by summer, and that crude would cost about $20 per barrel by year-end.

Several analysts, however, expressed doubt that an early resolution of the issue was likely.

"We could have $11, $12 oil for 1986 and 1987 — perhaps into 1988," said economist John Lichtblau, head of the Petroleum Industry

Research Foundation in New York.

In Washington, Philip Verleger, an analyst with Charles River Associates, a consulting firm, said he expected crude oil prices to range between $10 and $12 for a while, which he said would bring some cutbacks in production.

"In particular, I think we may see a reduction in output from Alaska, which will no longer be competitive on the U.S. Gulf Coast," he said.

Oil prices have fallen dramatically since late November, when crude oil traded at $30.01 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Prices of refined products have begun reflecting the plunge in crude oil prices.

Mariah is riding wind of success

A tip of the hat to Big Spring's Mariah, the Color Guard with pizzazz, on its first place win in state competition over the weekend. Mariah is a perennial powerhouse among its peers, but this year bettered last year's mark by one notch: first place instead of second.

Not only did the 24-member guard win, it won convincingly, some 20 points higher than the second place team.

Young people from Big Spring High School, Snyder High School, Texas Tech University and Howard College — ranging in age from 15 to 20 — work long hours in night and weekend practice to achieve their well-deserved success. They run through their routines under the watchful eyes of coaches Tracy Burch, Victor Mellinger and Gregg Hartfield.

Winning for Mariah is a logical result of "discipline and commitment" on the members' part, says adviser Cheri Sparks of Howard College. Come to think of it, that's a recipe for success in most of life's endeavors. On April 4, Mariah competes in national preliminary competition in Dayton, Ohio. We hope they blow through their routine like the wind they call ... Mariah.

Spy vs. spy: a tale of two budget cuts

The American order directing the Soviets to reduce their U.N. mission from 250 to 170 citizens has caused a furor in Moscow. The Kremlin has accused the United States of directly damaging Soviet-U.S. relations.

What the Russians don't know is that the State Department could not go back on its directive even if it wanted to.

It is no secret that Soviet U.N. diplomats spend a minimal amount of time on United Nations business and the majority of their time spying for the KGB. It is also no secret that the FBI keeps tabs on the Soviet diplomats 24 hours a day.

Everyone was happy with the arrangement until the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings bill was passed dictating severe cuts in the government budget. Even the FBI was hit hard and told to cut down on its services.

Bill Webster, the chief of the bureau, went over to the Office of Management and Budget and protested he would not be responsible for the security of the nation if he lost his funds. He cited FBI surveillance of Soviet U.N. personnel as a typical example of the type of work that could not be performed if the cuts went into effect.

The OMB chief suggested that in order to balance the budget the FBI follow the Russians only 60 percent of the time. But Webster said it wouldn't work. Once they were aware of the cutbacks the KGB would use 40 percent of the time they weren't followed to do their dirty work, and 60 percent to lead the FBI on a wild goose chase.

The OMB then suggested that since they were Soviet U.N. spies, the surveillance money might come out of the State Department budget. George Shultz had a problem when Webster called, and said he didn't have enough money to make a call to the Soviet mission, much less tap a Russian telephone line. Shultz told Webster that because of Gramm-Rudman the State Department is so broke it is seriously considering closing the United States Embassy in London and having whatever U.S. business we do with Great Britain conducted by our American ambassador in Portugal.

Rejected by State, the CIA was a natural place for Webster to go next and ask for funds to cover the Soviet U.N. scoundrels. But Bill Casey wasn't buying. He told Webster, "Any money we can get our hands on goes to lobby Congress for covert funds for Nicaragua."

Webster went back to his office and wrestled with his problem. The thought occurred to him that as an economy he might assign one FBI agent to follow two Russians. But it was pointed out to him that the plan could fall apart if one KGB man took a bus to the Bronx and the other boarded the ferry for Staten Island.

The FBI director was doodling in disgust when the big idea came to him. What would happen if the United States tossed out 100 U.N. Soviet spooks? Then his agents would only have to follow half as many spugs.

Webster called up Shultz and asked him if it was legal. The Secretary said Webster could throw out as many Russians as he needed to meet his Gramm-Rudman budget quota. When asked what the reaction of the Soviets might be, Shultz said in his opinion there would be no objection as long as Webster laid off the same number of FBI agents as Russian employees kicked out of the U.S.

Thus legally cleared, the announcement was made and the Soviet U.N. personnel were told bluntly to go home.

Well, the Soviets screamed bloody murder — but here is the part nobody knows about. There was joy in KGB headquarters in Moscow when the U.N. mission cut was announced.

It appears that the Soviet Union has the equivalent of a Gramm-Rudman bill of its own, and the KGB had been ordered, for budget reasons, to cut back on its spies in the U.S. They were just about to do it when the U.S. moved first and ordered the 100 Russian agents to leave New York. So now the KGB has the best of both worlds. It can blame the U.S. for the forced removal of their spies and meet their Gramm-Rudman-Rudinsky budget cuts at the same time.

Is the new tank on track?

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR
WASHINGTON — The Army's new M-1 Abrams tank has been mired in controversy ever since it left the drawing board. Critics have charged that it is subject to frequent breakdowns, has an unquenchable thirst for fuel and requires maintenance that is too complex to be done in the field.

The Army will eventually have 7,000 of the $2.2 billion behemoths, and the overall cost will top $20 billion. Its fans call it the finest tank ever made; the critics say it's an overpriced clunker that is already obsolete.

Internal Army safety reports, which record every incident involving the tank since its introduction in January 1981 to November 1985, provide good news and bad news. The good news is that the tank, named for the late Gen. Creighton Abrams, U.S. troop commander in Vietnam after Gen. William Westmoreland and later Army chief of staff, has demonstrated no major safety defects so far. In thousands of hours of training exercises, only three deaths were recorded. None were caused by the tank's design — and one occurred when an allegedly drunk soldier drove his car into the path of an M-1.

The only bad news involves minor design glitches that are a headache for the crews, particularly those who aren't fully alert to the tank's state-of-the-art features. Our associate Donald Goldberg has winnowed these incidents from the voluminous safety reports:

• The knee-level switch for the ammunition storage compartment is a frequent cause of injuries. It allows the loader to get to the ammo with the touch of his knee — but the switch is also activated when bumped accidentally during rough rides. The automatic door can be risky to an unwary or forgetful loader's fingers. One soldier bumped the knee switch and tried to stop the door from closing with his hand. "The weight of the door was too much and it severed the fingers prior to stopping," the report noted.

• The tank's braking system doesn't always keep the M-1 stationary, unless it is parked where it can't slip or slide — something not always possible in combat. And once a parked tank starts to slide, there's not much the driver can do about it, because it takes "a significant period of time" to restart the engine.

In one incident, an M-1 slid into another tank, causing no injuries but toppling a tree and damaging both tanks. In another, the driver jumped for his life.

Bell's improbable term as education secretary

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
WASHINGTON — Terrel H. Bell has faded into the relative obscurity of academic life in Ogden, Utah, but his experience as a member of President Reagan's Cabinet deserves to be remembered.

Bell recently described his four years as secretary of education and the account sounded like he might have had some inspiration from Lewis Carroll, who chronicled Alice's Adventures in Wonderland.

To begin with, Bell came to Washington to take command of a department the president wanted abolished.

"I'm not certain why I was selected by the president," he wrote in an article in the education magazine, Phi Delta Kappan. After all, he noted, he had once testified in support of creation of the Education Department.

Bell's account offers insights into Reagan's laid-back management style as well as into the tactics of movement conservatives who flooded into the capital with the new administration, though not always as part of it.

The former education secretary described battles with "proponents of the doctrines of the extreme right." He called their ideas "radical and off-the-wall."

Bell's targets retorted that his comments were "a rather pathetic exercise" and "sour grapes."

Beyond the squabble between the secretary of the movement conservatives, there emerges a fascinating account of how the president operates, particularly how he balanced the requirements of governing with the demands of the ideologues who laid claim to the heart of his presidency.

From the earliest days of the Reagan presidency, there was discontent on the right over the new president's willingness to turn to people from the moderate wing of the party to take key administration posts. The principal target was James A. Baker III, who was named White House chief of staff.

Bell was another of the appointees with a moderate taint and he soon found himself involved in bureaucratic guerrilla warfare. He discovered that the enemy were not entrenched holdovers from the previous Democratic administration.

"Acts of insubordination and disloyalty to me forced me, on several occasions, to insist that some presidentially appointed senior staff members with impeccable conservative credentials be removed from positions of power in the department," wrote Bell.

The reaction from some senior White House aides was to make "it known to me that they felt I should be removed and the able conservatives retained."

But it turned out Bell had a powerful ally in the White House. His name was Ronald Reagan.

"The president supported his Cabinet tenaciously, whether they were under attack from the right or the left," wrote Bell. When the education secretary tried to get rid of subordinates he felt were undercutting him,

Juvenile detention is top county issue

To the editor:

It appears to me that we have wrapped our justice system up in politics. County commissioners controlled the decision on provision for a juvenile detention center. The present commission did not do their homework. Our county is currently operating under emergency provisions for detention of juvenile law offenders.

It has been the delay of the commissioners in coming up with a solution during the years given for each county to provide adequate separate detention for juveniles indicates a lack of interest in compliance.

Our juvenile probation officers were and still are handicapped in dealing with juveniles who break the law. I appreciate the two update articles in the Big Spring Herald by Hank Murphy on our juvenile offenders and what is being done to lead them into productive lives.

To detain a juvenile under our present system requires transporting them out of our community. When the center in the county annex building is completed detention for our juveniles will be improved. Since our County Commissioners Court controls the future of our county by determining how money is spent, it behooves us to find out where our candidates for office stand on human resource issues like detention of juveniles.

The candidate forum presented by the League of Women Voters this month presented our city official candidates in excellent fashion. The meeting was so well planned that harmony prevailed and there was a real opportunity for learning about the issues. I anticipate the League of Women Voters' future presentation of the candidates for county offices.

Dear Abby

Man with invalid wife is torn by loneliness and guilt

DEAR ABBY: I am 67 years old. My wife has Alzheimer's disease. I took care of her at home for four years, then she became violent, unable to recognize anyone, unable to speak and she lost all control of her bodily functions, so I had to put her in a home. She's been in a home for six years, so altogether I have been without a wife for 10 years.

It has been very lonely for me, Abby. I know a lady whose husband died two years ago. She is 64 and lonely, too, so I invited her to lunch. We poured out our hearts to each other as her husband had a long illness before he died, and she knew how I felt. She invited me to dinner at her apartment and I enjoyed her company so much I want to spend more time with her.

Now the problem: I feel guilty. I'm still a married man, Catholic, and want the respect of my children and friends, but life is lonely without some kind of companionship. Is this wrong?

I would also like some thoughts on this from priests, ministers and rabbis.

LONESOME

DEAR LONESOME: As I see it, you and the lady have suffered a great deal, and my heart goes out to both of you. I see no reason why you can't enjoy each other's company without feeling guilty. Talk to your priest.

DEAR ABBY: A friend of mine wrote an article that I thought might be helpful to your readers. You have her permission to use it if you wish.

MARGARET IN JAMESTOWN, N.Y.

DEAR MARGARET: I wish to, and I thank you. Here's the article, with minor editing.

WHAT NOT TO SAY TO A WIDOW OR WIDOWER

by Joan D. Freudy, Freeport, N.Y.

• "Are you keeping the house? Don't you find it too big now?"

• "Wouldn't you be much better off in an apartment? A condominium?"

• "Have you considered moving to Florida?"

• "What do you do with yourself these days?"

• "You stay home too much."

• "You need to be with people."

• "You really should get out and join some groups."

• "You have to pick yourself up and do things."

• "We'll be in touch."

• "You must come over sometime."

AND WHAT TO SAY INSTEAD

• "Come along with us. We'll pick you up."

• "We'd love for you to come to dinner. How about next Thursday?"

• "How about a walk in the park so we can have a chance to talk?"

• "We're going with a group to the museum next Sunday. Would you like to join us?"

• "I belong to a group (). Would you like to be a member, too? We could go to the meetings together."

Never refer to a widow or widower as "recent." Loss is forever, and all losses are recent to those who must bear them.

DEAR ABBY: I read in your column about a man who was "turned off" because his wife was fat. How I pity his wife because of his seirismness, his lack of insight and his unknowing of love!

My wife is fat. So am I. We love each other. When I look at her, I do not see a fat old lady; I see a nymph on the beach in the moonlight. I shed my clothes and chase her. In close embrace we drop to the moist sand. With morning, we arrange our clothes and meet the day.

One night soon now we will drop naked to the sand — but we will not stir with the morning light. Our children will arrange our clothes and spade the moist sand. Our love will stay with our children. We will be with the sun.

Master cells key to allergy reactions

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: In a recent column you referred to urticaria as a fancy name for hives. I have been diagnosed as having urticaria pigmentosa, which a dermatologist referred to as mastocytosis. Subsequently, biopsies were taken and blood tests conducted to check for organ and bone involvement. They found no reason for concern in any of those areas. Yet there has been no mention made of hives. Can you comment on my situation? — E.C.

Mastocytosis is a reference to an abundance of mast cells, and that will need some explanation.

Throughout the body, but especially in the skin, are certain cells, called mast cells. Wherever these cells are they become potential focal points for allergic reactions. They contain rich supplies of enzymes and chemicals that are released when provoked by an allergic substance.

In urticaria pigmentosa (also called mastocytosis) the skin has too many of those special cells and they release their material even when they aren't provoked by allergy. The skin flushes and the hives appear.

The same thing can happen in other parts of the body. If, for example, there are too many mast cells in the digestive tract, the release of the enzymes and chemicals can cause nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea.

I know your unasked question: Why this overabundance of mast cells to begin with? I can't tell you why. No one knows.

I hope you are doing well in attempts to control things. Antihistamines sometimes help people with your problem. So do a class of drugs called non-steroidal anti-inflammatory agents, indomethacin being a prominent example. They work by stopping mast cell chemical production, the cause of the hives.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband was told his blood pressure is 140/80. I believe that is good. He's 76. But the note also said he had "C.O.P.D.," whatever that is. Can you tell me what it means? — Mrs. S.P.

The blood pressure's fine. The C.O.P.D. (chronic obstructive pulmonary disease) is not so good.

There are three C.O.P.D. diseases — asthma, bronchitis, and emphysema. I will guess and say your husband has either bronchitis or emphysema, most likely both, for they usually come together.

Those two problems can't be reversed, but they can be helped through breathing exercises and medicine, also avoidance of any factors that often contribute, like smoking.

I have to clear up one fine point in all this. There are two kinds of bronchitis. One is the kind you get from an infection of the airways. You can get over that kind as soon as you end the infection causing it. The C.O.P.D., as the "chronic" part of it implies, is a permanent condition from constant irritation of the air passages. With that you have to learn to make the best of things through the control measures I mentioned. The booklet "Emphysema-Bronchitis: The Twin Problems" may be helpful. Other readers can obtain a copy by writing me enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00. Emphysema is lung damage, and the answer there, likewise, is control.

Board members are calling on businesses and individuals in the Big Spring area to contribute to the $11,000 goal set for the 1986-'87 symphony season.

In other business, the board of directors elected new officers. Officers are Suzanne Haney, president; Tommy Churchwell, president-elect; Gregg Brooks, vice president; Anita Cline, secretary; and Phyllis Graumann, treasurer.

The final concert of the season is scheduled for Saturday, April 12 at 8 p.m. in the Big Spring Municipal Auditorium. The Big Spring Symphony will perform an "All Gershwin" program under the direction of symphony conductor, Dr. Marianna Gabbi.

Sampson released by Boston hospital

BOSTON (AP) — Ralph Sampson walked out of a hospital early today with a sore back and a stiff neck four hours after a doctor raised the possibility that Houston's All-Star center had broken his back.

"I feel pretty good," Sampson said as he left Massachusetts General Hospital where X-rays on his head, neck and back were negative. "We'll take a couple of days and get the stiffness out, get the soreness out."

The 7-foot-4 Sampson was injured Monday night with 2:19 left in the second quarter of Boston's 114-107 NBA victory over the Rockets.

While jumping for an offensive rebound, he fell backward and hit his head and back on the floor without apparent hard contact from any other players. He initially lost feeling and motion in his right leg, Celtics' team physician Thomas Silva said through club spokesman Jeff Twiss.

He was carried off the court on a stretcher.

A half hour later, he was taken on another stretcher out of Boston's locker room and into an ambulance.

Soon after, Twiss quoted Silva as saying there was "a possibility of a mid-back fracture."

But an examination at the hospital showed the injury wasn't nearly that serious.

"I have a sore back and a stiff neck," Sampson, who has played in all 72 of Houston's games this season, said as he left the hospital for the team's hotel.

Houston trainer Dick Vandervoort, who accompanied Sampson to the hospital, said the earlier loss of feeling and motion "was just from the jar and the shock. ... He has the feeling back in his leg."

He said Sampson never lost consciousness.

Asked whether Sampson's playing status would be determined on a day-to-day basis,

RALPH SAMPSON
... X-rays tests negative

Vandervoort said, "We'll see how he feels. We don't play (Tuesday)."

Houston's next game is Wednesday night at Indiana.

Rockets' Coach Bill Fitch, who coached the Celtics from 1979 to the end of the 1982-83 season, said the Sampson incident reminded him of the demolition several years ago of the Hotel Madison, down the street from Boston Garden.

"When they tore down the hotel over here, that was the last time I saw something fall that hard," he said.

Boston forward Scott Wedman, who was standing beside Sampson when he fell, said, "It seemed like he tried to take a shot while he was falling down."

"He went up for a two-handed rebound," said Houston forward Robert Reid. "He seemed to skid on the floor."

"He was scared," Reid added. "The only thing he was saying was, 'Oh, my God. Oh, my God.'"

He had scored 17 points and had five rebounds in 22 minutes and left with the Rockets leading 53-51. They trailed 61-57 at halftime.

Celts batter ailing Rockets

By The Associated Press

It was a bad night all around for the Houston Rockets, who lost a big game and got a big scare at Boston Garden.

"There was nothing Ralph could do to stop that fall, that's what was so scary about it," Houston Coach Bill Fitch said Monday night following a 114-107 NBA loss to the Boston Celtics that cost him the services of 7-foot-4 Ralph Sampson for an indefinite period.

"I tend to look away at times like that," Celtics center Bill Walton said of the moment Sampson was taken off the court on a stretcher. "These type of things tend to cast a pallor over the game."

According to Dr. Thomas Silva, the Celtics' team physician, Sampson's fall initially "resulted in a definite loss of the right neurological process in his right leg."

The Celtics won their eighth straight game and increased their club record for consecutive home victories to 24, three shy of the single-season league mark set by the Minneapolis Lakers 36 years ago.

Elsewhere, the Los Angeles Lakers clinched their seventh straight Western Conference title with a 124-102 victory over the San Antonio Spurs. In other NBA games, it was Washington 100, Philadelphia 93; Dallas 126, Indiana 120, and Utah 116, Seattle 108.

Scott Wedman broke a 97-97 tie with the first of two consecutive jumpers to key the Celtics' victory in the game between division leaders. The baskets by Wedman, who had 11 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter, kicked off an 11-3 surge that gave Boston a 108-100 lead with 3:34 remaining.

"Some nights it goes like that," said Wedman, who sank nine of 10 shots in 18 minutes. "Once you hit a few like that, the coaches call a few plays for you and your teammates start looking for you."

The defeat reduced first-place Houston's lead to one game over Denver in the Midwest Division.

Lakers 124, Spurs 102
Kareem-Abdul Jabbar scored 20 points to lead the Lakers, who had clinched a tie for the conference title earlier Monday night when the Rockets lost to the Celtics.

The Lakers led 90-83 after three quarters and outscored the Spurs 16-4 in the first four minutes of the final period to break the game open.

James Worthy added 18 points as eight Lakers scored in double figures. Earvin "Magic" Johnson contributed 16 points and 12 assists. Reserve center Petur Gudmondsson, in his first appearance since signing a 10-day contract with the Lakers, scored 14 points and grabbed nine rebounds.

Alvin Robertson scored 18 points and Artis Gilmore added 17 for San Antonio.

Bullets 100, 76ers 93

Jeff Malone scored 29 points and led an 8-0 run in the fourth period that enabled Washington to draw away from Philadelphia.

With the 76ers leading 77-74 early in the final period, Malone scored four points in the run and Cliff Robinson and Gus Williams two each. The Bullets led the rest of the way.

The Bullets have won two straight games and two of three under new Coach Kevin Loughery. The loss was only the second in the last 10 games for the 76ers, who came into the game riding a four-game winning streak.

Robinson scored 28 points for the Bullets, and Williams contributed 21. Philadelphia, which played without All-Star center Moses Malone, was led by Charles Barkley's career-high 36 points.

Mavericks 126, Pacers 120

Mark Aguirre scored 25 points to lead Dallas over Indiana. Aguirre's rebound jump shot with 10:50 left in the game ignited a 16-1 scoring spurt for the Mavericks.

Rolando Blackman contributed 23 points to the victory, while Brad Davis and Jay Vincent had 22 each for Dallas.

Ron Anderson had a career-high 28 points for Indiana and tied his career high with 13 rebounds.

It was the eighth consecutive Dallas victory over Indiana — a streak that dates back to March 7, 1982 when the Pacers recorded a 108-106 victory. The Mavericks haven't lost at Market Square Arena since Jan. 24, 1981.

Jazz 116, SuperSonics 108

Adrian Dantley scored 32 points and Mark Eaton scored 20, including 10 in the final period, as Utah downed Seattle.

Eaton hit all six of his shots from the field and went 8-for-8 from the free throw line. The 7-foot-4 center also pulled down 12 rebounds and blocked three shots. Thurl Bailey contributed 17 points for the Jazz.

ABC fires Namath; reassigns Simpson

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Namath's career as a football analyst at ABC is over.

Namath, the Hall of Fame quarterback with the New York Jets who joined Monday Night Football as an analyst last year, has been dismissed by ABC, a network source said early today.

Ironically, Namath's first telecast for ABC was last summer on the day he was inducted into the Hall.

Capital Cities, which now owns ABC and is in the midst of cost-cutting measures, bought out Namath's contract for "less than $1 million but more than $800,000," said the source, who asked not to be named. In 1985, Namath signed a two-year contract worth approximately $1 million a year.

The release of Namath was not the only change ABC made in its Monday Night Football lineup.

O.J. Simpson was offered a position as analyst on college football and, the source said, will accept it. Frank Gifford, who did the play-by-play on the series every year since 1971 — Keith Jackson handled those duties in the series' debut year of 1970 — has been offered the analysis spot on Monday Night Football.

Al Michaels, currently ABC's top baseball announcer, who also does play-by-play on some college football games, will take over as the NFL play-by-play announcer for the network.

Simpson, who worked three years on Monday Night Football, had been contacted by CBS and NBC about working NFL games. But, instead of leaving ABC, the source said he will join Jackson on CFA telecasts, replacing Frank Broyles.

Only Broyles could be reached for comment and the athletic director at Arkansas told USA Today: "The reorganization by the new owners at ABC is understandable. A new broom sweeps clean."

Though it was not known if Gifford would accept the switch in assignments, he did begin his football broadcasting career as a color analyst at CBS.

Though Monday Night Football's ratings soared last year, the network's sports operations lost between $30 million and $50 million a year. Capital Cities apparently felt Namath and Simpson had nothing to do with those improved ratings.

ABC is planning to go with only two announcers for Monday Night Football for the first time. Ever since the series began, with Jackson, Howard Cosell and Don Meredith in the booth, there have been three voices doing the games.

ABC also is making some announcing changes on its baseball telecasts, with Jackson returning to Monday night games.

SWC basketball hits bottom in '85-86

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — That elevator ride to the penthouse of the national basketball elite just ended in a plunge down the elevator shaft for the Southwest Conference.

Where have you gone Eddie Sutton, Abe Lemons and Guy V. Lewis?

They've escaped to Kentucky, Oklahoma City and fishing, respectively.

Sutton at Arkansas, Lemons at Texas and freshly retired Lewis at Houston brought SWC basketball out of football's towering oval shadow in the 1970s.

Joining forces with SWC coaching settlers Shelby Metcalf of Texas A&M and Gerald Myers of Texas Tech, the league began making national thump-thumpers take notice.

There was Arkansas upsetting UCLA and beating Notre Dame for third place in the consolation game of The Final Four after losing narrowly to Kentucky.

There was Texas capturing the National Invitational Tournament with a dazzling victory over North Carolina State.

There was Texas A&M beating North Carolina in double overtime in a second round NCAA playoff game and making the Midwest Regional only to lose to Louisville in overtime.

There was Houston making The Final Four for three consecutive years only to lose emotional championship games to North Carolina State and Georgetown.

There were national television dates with big payoffs and coast-to-coast newspaper publicity.

Beginning in 1977, the SWC had at least two teams in the NCAA playoffs and sometimes three. Before 1977, it had never had multiple teams at the NCAA party.

Now, the SWC is back to where its back was in the beginning — up against the NCAA selection committee's wall.

When the SWC failed to get an at-large bid — although it had two teams with 20 victory seasons (A&M and TCU) and TCU Athletic Director Frank Windeger on the committee — it was like not getting a Christmas card from a good buddy.

For eight good years the SWC may not have been the big hit of the NCAA playoff party, but it certainly was an appreciated and honored guest.

The SWC is now being treated like a mechanic in greasy covered overalls who wandered into the punch line at a debutante's party.

SWC Tournament champion Texas Tech was served up to powerful Georgetown by the NCAA like happy hour nachos.

"Turn out the lights, the party's over."

"They say that all good things must end."

"And tomorrow starts the same old thing again."

Improved Jayhawks face top-ranked Blue Devils in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — One of the reasons Duke is ranked No. 1 and 35-3 Kansas No. 2 heading into Saturday's NCAA semifinal showdown in Dallas is because when they met back in December, Duke came out No. 1 and Kansas No. 2.

"We're a much better team, but so are they," says Danny Manning, Kansas' 6-foot-11 sophomore and Player of the Year in the Big Eight Conference.

And, adds the hero of Kansas' 75-67 victory over North Carolina State in the Midwest Regional final, the Jayhawks will lose again to the Atlantic Coast Conference champions — No. 1 Louisville faces LSU in the first semifinal — if they play with the same lack of intensity as they did in the earlier game.

"It was like they wanted to win more than we did," Manning said, recalling the championship game of the Big Apple NIT Tournament.

"The thing I remember about that game is all the loose balls we didn't get and all the rebounds they got and we didn't get. They have a great team and they beat us, but we really weren't very aggressive that night."

Senior forward Ron Kellogg also has bitter memories of that game.

"I remember the man I was guarding, David Henderson, scoring 30 points against us," he said.

"It's the most points anybody ever scored against me. He was making his first start of the year and I didn't have any idea of what to expect."

Coach (Larry) Brown told me to be careful because he was a tough player. He was. He penetrated hard to the basket and went right past me. That's one of the things we're going to have to correct."

Brown agreed that the Jayhawks have improved.

"I know as a coach I'm more comfortable with this team today than back in December," he said.

"I want the kids to be proud of what they accomplished in getting to the Final Four. But I don't want them to be content. Not yet. We still have a goal of a national championship. That's within our grasp."

And it is certainly within Duke's grasp, even though Coach Mike Krzyzewski doesn't necessarily agree with the Blue Devils' role as favorite.

"I think we're Cinderella. The dance is just longer," Krzyzewski said.

But don't get the idea that Duke lacks for confidence. Since the Blue Devils became No. 1 in the Associated Press poll on Feb. 25, the college basketball world has been waiting for them to stumble.

"Teams come into games thinking they can beat us," Krzyzewski said. "We match up well with Duke. I've heard that for 38 games."

Of course, if the Blue Devils don't play tough defense, forget it.

"I've given them a lot of freedom on offense, but we're strict on defense," Krzyzewski said. "On defense, they are supposed to be at a proper place at a proper time. If they don't, we get beat."

Unranked LSU is the surprise team of the Final Four, having knocked off Purdue, Memphis

State, Georgia Tech and Kentucky to get to Dallas. A national championship will come as no surprise to senior forward Don Redden.

"Everybody is hungry now," said Redden, who scored 27 points against Georgia Tech and 15 against Kentucky in the Southeast Regional. "Once we get five players clicking at the same time, we should win the national championship."

After a 14-0 start, the Tigers were crippled first by the loss of leading scorer Nikita Wilson to grades and then by an outbreak of chicken pox that weakened John Williams and precipitated a string of three defeats in five days.

"We had to get down a little before we started to pull together," said guard Derrick Taylor.

Coach Dale Brown said he hopes to confuse Louisville with his "freak" defense, which held Kentucky star Kenny Walker to four points in the second half.

"It's not a change-up and it's not a match-up. It's both of those and a little more," Brown explained. "It's very difficult to figure out. If we can't surprise them and confuse them a little, we're in trouble. We don't have the firepower they have."

Louisville Coach Denny Crum has made five previous trips to the Final Four and is concerned that "it gets to be a zoo, more so for the players than me. I can control who I see. But everywhere they walk on campus, everyone wants a piece of them. Everywhere they go, fans want to talk, to inflate their ego. I've been through it so much, I know how to handle it."

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Crystal-Vend features purified water at 3 locations 24 hours a day

Crystal Vend brings new meaning to the words "convenience" and "affordability." Twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, you can get delicious, crystal clear drinking water for only 25 cents a gallon at three convenient locations in Big Spring.

Crystal Vend features Purified Water for salt free diets, along with their Crystal Clear drinking water.

Advance technology is Crystal Vend's secret to clear drinking water. The blue cabinet houses a miniature, precision water purification system. Municipal water is first filtered to remove sediment particles and suspended dirt and sand followed by carbon filtration which removes unpalatable chlorine and dissolved organic impurities.

The filtered water is then demineralized to remove harsh dissolved metallic salts and then exposed to ultraviolet light for bacteriostatic control producing a purified water (99.9 percent pure) for doctor ordered salt-free diets and all distilled water uses.

A trace of the minerals are retained in the Crystal Clear drinking water for taste.

The Crystal Vend machines are based on state-of-the-art technology and as such, exceed capabilities of all other machines of this type.

Whether your need is for Purified Water for a salt-free diet or Crystal Clear drinking water, you will enjoy the convenience of Crystal Vend. All you have to do is take your container by one of the convenient locations: Safeway at 1300 S. Gregg, Safeway at College Park Shopping Center, or Don Newsom's at 1910 S. Gregg.

Each machine is coin operated and is designed to accommodate containers of any size from one gallon to five gallons. All you have to do is position your container on the adjustable shelf, insert your coins and push the green button for Crystal Clear drinking water or push the blue button for Purified Water for those salt-free diets and distilled water uses.

Crystal clear water doesn't have to be expensive, so try Crystal Vend this week for 25 cents a gallon.

PURE WATER — Customers can enjoy the convenience and affordability of Crystal Vend's pure water. For 25 cents a gallon you can choose from tasty drinking water or purified water suitable for distilled water uses.
