Presiding at Tuesday's hearing were Congressmen Charles Stenholm and Larry Combest, members of the House Small Business Subcommittee on Energy, Environment and Safety. A second hearing was set for today in Abilene.

"Our nation faces the pro-

Paper work hampering patrolmen

By HANK MURPHY Staff Writer

Police Chief Rick Turner told the City Council Monday that patrol officers are often bogged down in paper work, causing periodic lapses in adequate police coverage of the city.

Turner cited a study recommending nine patrol units per shift for a city the size of Big Spring. But he told the council he thought that estimate was far too high.

On average, four officers alone in sqaud cars patrol the city on each police shift, Turner said.

He said four officers patrolling in separate squad cars gives the town adequate police protection. However, throughout their shifts, officers are often called away from routine patrols to fill out reports and shuffle paper. It's the time police spend off their beat and at a desk that concerns Turner.

Four units guaranteed on patrol at all times would be sufficient policing of the city, he said.

When you have four people out there and you're not having much activity, everything is super," he said. But, "let's say they make three arrests that night, that's six blems is we put them in there and (make an arrest) for aggravated assault in the area. Well, it takes half a shift for the paper work," leaving a gap in police coverage there or somewhere else.

Turner said the bulk of the calls occur between 6 p.m. and 3 a.m., yet the department does not have extra police officers on duty during those times.

The problem is a manpower shortage, he said.

Turner also said he was not pleased with the quality of the department's police applicant. "The quality of applicant is very poor," he said. "We're getting the best of the worst."

The department needs officers with more experience, he said.

Because of the shortage of patrolmen, Turner asked the council to consider pruchasing electronic burglar alarms. He said the portable $600 devices would warn police via telephone of business break-ins.

Yet it was not so much property crime as mounting violence that Turner says he's concerned with now

Bush to warn Saudis of chaos

Dollars per barrel

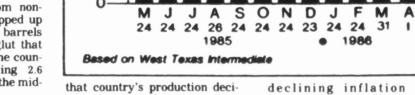

WASHINGTON (AP) - Vice President George Bush is ready to tell the world's most influential oil producer that plunging petroleum prices are threatening America's vital interests by causing chaos in the U.S. oil industry

Bush, who will arrive in Saudi Arabia on Saturday on the first leg of a four-nation visit to the Persian Gulf, said at a news conference Tuesday the oil market must stabilize

"I think it is essential that we talk about stability and that we not just have a continued free fall like a parachutist jumping out without a parachute, and that's what essentially has happened to the price of crude oil in recent months," Bush said. 'And it's caused some hardship.'

The Saudis, trying to gain control of the market from non-OPEC forces, have stepped up production to 4.4 million barrels a day, causing an oil glut that sent prices tumbling. The country had been producing 2.6 million barrels a day in the middle of 1985.

Saudi production is third after the USSR and the United States, but the vast Saudi reserves and highly productive wells give Monday, the Big Spring City Council passed on emergency reading a resolution backing the construction of the reservoir.

Congressman Charles Stenholm will head a list of several representatives who will appear, according to a water district news release. Others include Sen. John T. Montford of Lubbock, Sen. Former court justice indicted on bribery

HOUSTON (AP) — Less than two years after he was paroled from prison, former Texas Supreme Court Justice Don Yarbrough remains in jail today accused of bribing a banker in a money laundering scheme.

Yarbrough was arrested in the lobby of a downtown hotel as he allegedly arranged to launder money for undercover agents posing as drug dealers, Assistant U.S. Attorney John Lenoir said.

A federal indictment issued Tuesday charged Yarbrough, 44, and another Houston man, George Neeley, 50, a used car salesman, with four counts of conspiracy and bribery.

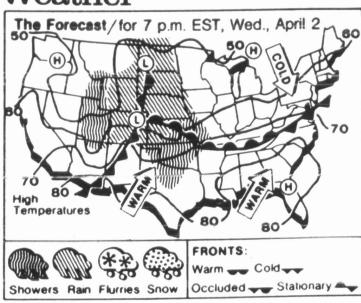

Yarbrough was ordered held without bond by U.S. Magistrate Karen Brown pending a hearing later this week.

Winning ticket's return nets man $850,000

MONTREAL (AP) - An unemployed man said he debated about two hours whether to seek out the rightful owner of a lottery ticket worth $5.5 million that he found on a Montreal street. When he finally did, the owner gave him a reward of about $850,000.

William Murphy, 28, said he is heading back to his hometown, Vancouver, British Colombia, with the reward given him by 51-yearold Jean-Guy Lavigueur.

Both men spoke to reporters Tuesday in Montreal.

Lavigueur, who also is unemployed, said he bought several lottery tickets with his three children and a brother-inlaw. He told reporters he was giving Murphy an equal share of the winnings.

The lottery ticket won $7,650,267 in Canadian money or about $5.5 million U.S. It was among several tickets in a wallet that Murphy found on a Montreal street Sunday morning.

Lavigueur gave him a $1.2 million share, or about $850,000 U.S. for returning the ticket. "One million for him," Lavigueur said. "It was worth it."

Murphy, who has been on welfare, said he checked the address in the wallet and mailed it to the owner, but kept the tickets. He said he "kept the tickets so I could check them out later. I figured it might be good for $10 or something.'

"About four hours later I was sitting down having a coffee, I'd bought a newspaper and was checking the tickets, and that's when I realized it was worth $7 million," he said.

He said he had only 56 cents and thought for about two hours "of keeping all the money to myself," but then decided he could not do it. He remembered the address from the wallet, but it took him two trips to the Lavigueur home in east Montreal before he succeeded in returning the tickets.

Jean-Guy Lavigueur kisses William Murphy at a news conference where they picked up a $5.5 million lottery prize in Montreal Tuesday. Murphy, a 28-year-old welfare recipient, found the ticket and returned it to Lavigueur who had lost his wallet.

Yves Lavigueur, 18, answered his knock at the oor Sunday night, but he spoke only French. Murphy speaks only English. He left, but returned Monday night with a bilingual friend.

'He came to our house and said, 'You're a millionaire,' '' said Lavigueur, who had lost the wallet as he got out of his car Saturday night, "I told him to come in, but I didn't believe him until I saw the ticket.

"And I said to him, 'I'm giving you $1 million.' How many honest people are there around these days? Well, we've just seen there are still some left," Lavigueur told reporters.

Lavigueur, who worked for United Bedding until the plant closed down 18 months ago, said he has been on unemployment insurance, but the benefits ran out last month and he was to receive his first welfare check this week.

He said his children had wanted him to buy a house in the country, and he probably would do that now.

Tutu risks arrest in call for sanctions JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Bishop Desmond Tutu today openly called for punitive economic sanctions against South Africa for the first time, risking a charge of treason. Tutu, the black Anglican bishop of

Johannesburg who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1984 for his antiapartheid campaign, said several months ago he would call for sanctions if the government did not take signifiant steps to dismantle racial segregation by the end of March.

burning and bleeding, and so I call on the international community to apply punitive sanctions against this government to help us establish a new South Africa - non-racial, democratic, participatory and just.'

Under apartheid, South Africa's legal system of racial segregation, 5 million whites dominate 24 million voteless blacks.

There was no immediate comment by the government Tutu declined to specify what types said. of sanctions he would like to see imposed, saying individual countries should decide for themselves. But he said sanctions should be "concerted and united" and imposed immediately. Lawyers disagree as to whether a call for economic sanctions violates South African laws. Tutu, asked about the prospect of arrest, said, "I don't think I am going to be deterred by that kind of consequence." The bishop prefaced his call by recounting his efforts over the past 10 years to persuade the country's white-Vote controlled government to improve the Saturday status of the voteless black majority. He said the government ignored four proposals he made in 1980 - to declare a common South African citizenship for all residents, to scrap the pass laws that limit blacks' movements, to halt forced removals of blacks from land sought by whites and to establish uniform education for all races.

"If the government had implemented them, we would have saved a great deal of anguish, bloodshed and the loss of property and an increase in bitterness and hatred and anger." he violence against apartheid began in September 1984. Most died at the hands of security forces, and others were killed by blacks who suspected them of collaborating with the government.

Mrs. Mandela, the wife of jailed antiapartheid leader Nelson Mandela, returned to her four-room home in Johannesburg's black township of 1.5 million people in the afternoon, embraced by neighbors and surrounded by school children.

Voices of reason in fee hike talks

4-A

The work of the City Council in wrestling with fee increases for the city's recreational facilities is worth a note of praise. Last summer, when the hard task of drawing a city budget was underway the council looked at two possibilities for general revenue increases: property taxes or "user" fees (fees charged for use of city facilities – mainly recreational facilities)

It would have been simpler, we suspect, to just raise taxes. There would have been a general hue and cry which eventually would have abated and the difficult job of raising revenues would have been done.

The more difficult approach was the one the council opted for: restructuring user fees. Here a multitude of special interests can be expected to apply individual pressure for the benefit of their own causes. Based on what was discussed Monday, members of the council will be hearing from golfers, tennis players, boaters, ball players and swimmers, to name a few

Goal of the council's work is to make fees realistic – neither an onerous burden nor a special interest giveaway. The city paid $28,000 for a professional study of the situation and sketched a plan of action based on findings that showed city subsidy for the golf course alone totals $86,000 a year. Other facilities, like the ball fields, are totally subsidized.

Most of what councilmen talked of doing appears reasonable. The stiffest fee hike, for annual golf membership fees, will affect only the most avid golfers, not the casual player or the one-time city visitor.

It's important, though, that the council keep a sense of perspective and not give in to those who would gut city recreational facilities with exorbitant increases. To do so would not serve the long-term interests of the city.

German immigrant reshaped the cities

In August 1938, a middle-aged German architect came to Chicago to escape Nazism and to accept a teaching position at what is now Illinois Institute of Technology. Ludwig Mies van der Rohe then began altering the face of this and every other American city. The master of the glass-and-steel skyscraper, born 100 years ago tomorrow, became the most influential American architect of the century. Unaided by any academic train-architecture comes out of the individual." When a student asked about "self-expression," Mies had her write her name, then said: "That's for self-expression. Now we get to work."

One reason was to accommodate the needs of the occupants. Because those needs would inevitably change, the building should be adaptable to changing uses. His ideal was S.R. Crown Hall at IIT, a space half as large as football field and lacking a single interior wall, subdivided by movable partitions. Less satisfying is the campus chapel, whose appearance gave so little guidance to its function that it had to be labeled 'Chapel.

Souped-up commercial jets might beat Stealth, save bucks

Jack Anderson

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA WASHINGTON - Could American taxpayers save billions of dollars if the Pentagon modified commercial jetliners instead of buying Stealth bombers? Analysis of a 1978 Air Force study suggests this is indeed possible.

The chief virtue of Stealth, if it ever gets off the ground and does what it's supposed to do, is that it will be invisible to Soviet radar. As we have warned, however, the Stealth bomber will be detectable to old-fashioned radars, which the frugal Soviets still have deployed.

Small cruise missiles would be much more effective; they could zip past Soviet radar fast as a flash. The radar would have more time to focus on the slower Stealth bomber. Cruise missiles are also less expensive.

That's what makes the Air Force report so interesting. The secret, 8-year-old report on "cruisemissile-carrying aircraft" reviewed a dozen different types of aircraft to find one that could get off the ground quickly at the first warning of incoming

Soviet missiles. The three top contenders were the

B-1 bomber and modified versions of two commer-

It's impossible to state exactly how much time it would take to get a Stealth bomber off the ground in a crisis, for the simple reason that the plane is still on the drawing board. But Stealth may be slower than the antique B-52s that make up most of our existing bomber force. A B-52 takes 216 seconds to reach the 12-mile point.

What it boils down to is that Stealth would be Tail-End Charlie among the five possibilities, while the B-1 appears to be the most likely to survive a Soviet attack and deliver a counterstrike (thus providing a credible deterrent to any Kremlin dreams of a first strike that would leave the Soviet Union unscathed).

Actually, though, the two commercial jets, suitably modified, would have an edge over the B-1. That's because each one has room for a compartment where the crew can relax, sleep and be ready for action. When the order came to take off, they could be in the air many seconds before a B-1 crew could "scramble" from its quarters to the plane.

What makes this few-seconds difference important is the Soviet's apparent intention to experiment with "depressed trajectory" missiles launched from submarines off the U.S. coast. As we reported in October 1983, this would decrease the time required to get a retaliatory force off the ground from around 15 minutes (for a high-trajectory missile) to six minutes.

ing in his field, this son of a stone mason spent his life showing the world how to use revolutionary new materials and building methods. A rationalist and product of the Bauhaus, which expected art and architecture to produce an earthly utopia, he regretted late in life that he had never built a cathedral. What he had built instead were cathedrals of commerce - office buildings that became the signature of capitalism ascendant.

To anyone who has ever seen a Mies building, the style is instantly recognizable: all straight lines and right angles, unadorned steel columns and planes of crystalline glass. His buildings were meant to express the logic of their structure and materials. He refused to graft old forms onto new structures.

In the past, the outer walls had to support the building, limiting its height. Steel columns and girders, by contrast, acted as a skeleton that made these walls mere membranes. And a membrane could be made of something as fragile as glass - even in the towering structures made possible by steel.

What Mies sought was an architecture refined to its essences, a simplicity unencumbered by irrelevancies and elevated by a fast fastidious attention to the smallest detail. No buttresses or turrets: no spires or arches. At its best, his style attains a spare, dignified elegance. At its worst, it communicates monotony, anonymity and what once critic called "frigid hauteur.

His buildings were anonymous and impersonal because they were meant to be. A building, he insisted, should not be the personal statement of the builder. Architecture is nothing less than "the will of an epoch translated into space." A dissenting architect. Paul Rudolph, could say that "creative

Sometimes, though, the preferences of the users had to be subordinated to the theory of the architect. In one apartment building, residents were forbidden to remove or replace the curtains Mies had chosen, lest they spoil the outward appearance. Enchanted by the idea of open interiors, he had to be prevailed upon to provide his apartments with separate, enclosed rooms

Mies was a rarity: a creator with a singular vision whose highest hope was to achieve anomymity. He designed so as to facilitate imitators, striving for "an architecture that anybody can do." That is the secret of his vast influence, though plenty of disciples have shown that not just anybody can do it well.

His ambition exceeded mere personal fame; he wanted to define an era. "Greek temples, Roman basilicas and medieval cathedrals are significant to us as creations of a whole epoch rather than as works of individual architects," he said. "Who asks for the names of these builders?'

Other architects have built more engaging buildings. None has done so much to shape the American skyline. It will be a long time before the world forgets the name or the buildings of Mies van der Rohe

MINI-EDITORIAL - We'd like to thank Morton H. Lieberman of Bridgeton, N.J., a constant reader and occasional critic, for today's editorial idea. He's concerned about the remains of the Challenger astraonauts, and proposes that "using the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier (with its 24-hour Honor Guard, ceremony and ritual) as an example, we establish the Tomb of the Seven Astronauts." We think the suggestion is at least worthy of public discussion.

What's behind the Summit maneuvers?

By BARRY SCHWEID WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's capital has moved splendidly into spring. The forsythia and daffodils are in bloom, and so are the precious Japanese cherry blossoms, a prime attraction for the tourists who have returned with their cameras, strollers and street maps

But as far as U.S.-Soviet relations are concerned, it might as well still be winter. Hopes raised at the "fireside summit" meeting in Geneva for a thaw are dwindling. If President Reagan is to host a second session with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev here in late June or late July, as the White House prefers, Moscow had better RSVP quickly.

"Time is getting close," Larry Speakes, the presidential spokesman, observed Monday. 'It is getting critical to begin to set a date where you can do effective planning for a summit.

Last November's meeting was an icebreaker, the first U.S.-Soviet summit in more than six years. Smiles and handshakes won't be enough to satisfy worldwide expectations this time. So, most analysts agree, it will take at least six weeks to reconsider the many conflicts between the superpowers and try to find solutions Reagan and Gorbachev could adopt

But Moscow still hasn't said it is coming. Arms control talks, meanwhile, are at a virtual standstill except for some movement toward reducing U.S. and Soviet mediumrange nuclear missiles in Europe. The Soviets do not want to talk about trimming their arsenal in Asia, and unless they do the Reagan administration is unlikely to agree to even an interim cutback in Europe.

Gorbachev tried last weekend to coax the president into another summit to ban underground nuclear tests. But the proposal was brushed aside. U.S. officials, evidently doubting the Soviet leader was sincere, grumbled the offer was never transmitted through diplomatic channels.

Rep. Les Aspin, the Democratic chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said even if Gorbachev was "demagoguing," Reagan should have called his bluff and seen if the Soviets were serious about a negotiated ban, U.S. and Soviet nuclear test blasts, except those conducted underground, were prohibited in a 1963 treaty. But the two sides have not moved from there to the comprehensive ban they committed themselves to seek 23 years ago

Secretary of State George Shultz and Paul Nitze, the president's senior arms control adviser, questioned whether a publicly announced proposal by Gorbachev was the way to conduct serious negotiations. Their skepticism is important since they probably are the two most influential members of the administration on arms control with the exception of the president himself.

Shultz lectured the Soviets to stop grandstanding. "We will get somewhere in our relationship with the Soviets when we're able to have some discussions that are relatively quiet and direct," he said.

That opportunity may come in a couple of weeks when former Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, who was promoted recently to a top Communist party post, returns for farewell calls

Shultz and Kenneth Adelman, the U.S. arms control director, indicated the United States would not make new proposals on either offensive weapons or space-based defense systems when the fifth round of talks opens May 8 in Geneva

The U.S. strategy is to stick with the American proposals already put on the table and wait for the Soviets to give ground. That could happen. When the Soviets broke off negotiations in late 1983 the U.S. side did not blink. Reagan waited. And the Soviets returned to the bargaining table in 1985.

Evidently, Reagan and his senior advisers are convinced the strategy will work again.

However, Soviet objections to the Strategic Defense Initiative remain intense. Even amid the warmth of the "fireside" summit, Gorbachev warned that the U.S. search for an antimissile shield threatens to take the nuclear arms competition into space.

Some analysts feel that, despite the rhetoric, the Kremlin has accepted "Star Wars" research as unstoppable. Still, this does not mean the Soviets stop using the issue as a roadblock to agreement on offensive weapons reductions

Whatever the pace of negotiations in Geneva, however, Gorbachev has made it clear he expects his next summit meeting with Reagan to produce more than a handshake. He seemed for a while to be demanding an arms control agreement as a precondition to accepting the president's invitiation to come to Washington.

Apparently, the Soviet leader was underscoring his interest in a substantive meeting with Reagan and not really insisting on an accord first. But his deliberate slowdown in setting a summit date clearly means there is sharp disagreement between the two capitals.

So while spring is here, bringing with it an annual revival of optimism, the sliding U.S.-Soviet relationship stands out as a disturbing exception

Deaf may enter science field

Brian Rasmus, biology instructor at SWCID, assisted by Mary Graham, interpreter and staff member, presented a program to the Business and Professional Women's Club recently.

Rasmus said there is no translation for communication in scientific language which makes it very difficult for deaf students to enter into the fields of biology, botany and genetics. With a $13,000 grant, Rasmus is developing a sign vocabulary which will enhance the opportunities for the deaf in the scientific fields.

Dear Abby

Right to be left alone is lonely for some

DEAR ABBY: To the reader who said, "A minister has the right to ignore a 'No Visitors' sign on a hospital door,'' you replied, "The right that supersedes all others is the right to be left alone." Abby, that is certainly true in American society today, but it is also the reason there are so many lonely people here.

Since we all have cars, we can easily get from one place to another without interacting with anyone on the street. We all have telephones, so no one need rudely drop by in person to visit us. We all have television sets, so we needn't be bothered by our fellow humans if we want to see a movie or learn the latest news. And still people clamor to be left alone. You would think Americans really hated each other.

I, for one, would love to have visitors drop by to see me unannounced and uninvited. But, of course, they don't. Americans haven't done that in 25 years. It's considered rude.

If I ever put a "No Visitors" sign on my door, please barge in and bring me to my senses. And hurrah for the minister who ignored that sign and tried to make contact.

ARTHUR F. IN BROOKLYN DEAR ARTHUR: You, are a most genial gentleman, generous, hospitable and kind. But you are also naive. Not all of us have cars. Neither do all of us have telephones and television sets. Your assumption calls to mind a remark attributed to the late Nelson Rockefeller: "Tuesday is not a good day for a national election. Everyone is out playing polo.

* * * DEAR ABBY: I am a grown woman with a problem that has been haunting me ever since puberty: perspiration! I sweat so much I can't wear pretty colored dresses or blouses because the wetness is so conspicuous.

What do models do? I see them modeling gorgeous clothes and some of them must sweat. Do they use some kind of preparation? I have never seen a model look sweaty. Can you please find out if they know something we ordinary women don't know? I would be ever so grateful!

Museum displays history projects

SWEATING IT OUT IN NEW YORK

DEAR SWEATING: I put your question to Eileen Ford, owner of one of the top modeling agencies in the country.

She said: "In the 40 years I've been in the business, we have had only one model who perspired so profusely she could not pursue a career in modeling.

"Your correspondent should see a dermatologist; I understand many of them recommend an especially strong anti-perspirant.

"The only other solution that I can offer would be the use of dress shields."

DEAR ABBY: Are you trying to catch the sleep-disorders medical community napping? The snoring remedy suggested by "Mrs. L.P. in L.A.'' — taping the snorer's mouth shut — would be laughable were it not so dangerous. You did suggest first checking with the family physician, but really, Abby, until the medical profession is 100 percent informed about serious sleep disorders, that may not be the best thing to do. Speaking as specialists, we think no one should try this remedy. And, Abby, if you're not convinced, please note that "Mrs. L.P." refers to her husband in the past tense.

Anyone who wants a list of sleep centers accredited by the Association of Sleep Disorders Centers should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Carol Westbrook, ASDC, 604 Second St. S.W., Rochester, Minn. 55902.

C is for Cat in this schoolroom

SUNBURG, Minn. (AP) -Like most schools, Sunburg Elementary has computers. But if you were to take a poll, the favorite learning tool of the pupils probably would be a big black-and-white tomcat named Boots.

The cat turned up at the school last fall, according to third-grade teacher and cat lover Elverna Johnson, and the children took an immediate liking to him.

First, they began sneaking cafeteria leftovers to him. Then they started letting him in the front door when nobody was looking.

Mrs. Johnson and her husband, Gerhard, the school's custodian, took it from there. The cat was neutered and given his shots and now has a home at the school. He is the Sunburg Elementary mascet Boots was "dirty, shabby --terrible," Johnson recalled. Mrs. Johnson said Boots was 'just a skinny cat." But she notes he has that problem licked and now weighs 12 pounds.

"Now he's like Garfield," said Randy Braaten, one of Boots' third-grade classmates. "Like in that commercial - he's a fat cat.'

In his boiler room home, Boots dines on three different kinds of cat food, with some raw meat every morning and grated cheese for between-meal snacks.

Mrs. Johnson says the children love Boots. "All the kids are so good to him, they've spoiled him," she said.

'Mrs. Johnson took a picture of him when we took our school pictures," said Heather Netland. Boots' official class portrait hangs near his own personalized desk, where he spends most of his days dozing in the sun. Once in a while, he'll yawn. stretch and mosey out to the corridor to survey his domain.

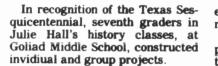

Boots spends vacations at the Johnson home with their two cats, but then it's back to Sunburg Elementary.

Mrs. Johnson says her students have learned something they might not have learned elsewhere — or from a computer.

"I don't think there's a harsh boy or girl left in school," she said.

Sprinkle. Incumbent Curtis Mullins is running for a seat in District 2. On this page are the candidates' written answers to a questionnaire developed by the Big Spring Herald. Answers to all questions were limited to 250 words.

Questionnaires completed by City Council, mayor and school board candidates were printed Sunday

2. CAPITAL NEEDS: What are the most pressing capital needs of Howard College and the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf? 3. BUDGET: How would you go about offsetting the expected shortfall

4. COORDINATION: Is it feasible to consolidate the college library with the Howard County Public Library? Is it desirable?

5. GENERAL: Feel free to address any issue not mentioned above or to explain why you are the most qualified candidate.

trimming non-essential areas of the budget, using zero-base budgeting procedures and decreasing the ratio of administrators and staff to faculty (a ratio which has significantly increased over recen years with no corresponding change in student enrollment.)

4. Consolidation of the Howard County and Howard College libraries, if carefully planned and executed, would eliminate costly duplication of holdings and make possible greatly expanded services to the community, Sprinkle thinks.

Senator warns against taking extremists lightly

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., says the two major American political parties would be committing a grave and potentially destructive error by taking lightly the candidacies of Lyndon LaRouche followers or other extremists.

Simon said Tuesday that the German people made such a mistake during the 1930s and set the stage for World War II.

"When extremist candidates emerge, they should be taken seriously," Simon commented in remarks prepared for delivery at Bradley University in Peoria, Ill.

Simon's speech centered on the importance of "self-restraint" in American politics. He said LaRouche followers, who scored unexpected political victories in the March 18 Illinois primary, typified "candidates on the extremities who do not show selfrestraint in their views and might not in their conduct ...

Absentee voting ends with 5 percent turnout

By SPENCER SANDOW Staff Writer

About 5 percent of the 11,417 registered voters in Big Spring cast absentee ballots for Saturday's election, said City Secretary Tom Ferguson.

Deadline for absentee voting was Tuesday. The election will fill places on the City Council, school board and junior college district board.

Absentee votes, not including mailed-in ballots, numbered 601 for mayor and 329 for District 2 city council position, said Ferguson.

He said he expects about 30 percent, or about 3,500 of the registered voters to vote Saturday. Usually absentee voting equals about 10 percent of the total election, which would be about 6,000 voters, he said, but he doesn't think turnout will be that high. Many people are out of town for Easter vacation, he said.

Howard County clerk Margaret Ray said 544 people cast absentee ballots in person for the Big Spring Independent School District board of trustees and 25 ballots were mailed out. Mail ballots are due by election day, she said.

The Howard County Junior College District board of trustees had 25 absentee votes cast for District 1 and one mailed ballot, which has not yet been returned, she said.

District 2 had 202 votes in person and three mailed ballots, one of which has been received.

WASHINGTON (AP) - Of the more than 100 million Americans who say they voted in the 1984 presidential election, one in four reports having heard a news media projection of the winner before entering the voting booth - even in cases when no projection had yet been made.

Residents of states in the Mountain time zone were most likely to report hearing a victory projection before they voted - 30 percent said they heard such a report - according to a new Census Bureau study released Tuesday. Residents of the Pacific zone were close behind at 29.6 percent; 25.3 percent of Easterners said they heard these reports and 23.2 percent in the Central region said they heard a projection.

Nationwide, 25.4 percent of all who said they voted reported hearing a projection of President Reagan's victory over Democrat Walter Mondale before casting a ballot, according to the study, "Voting and Registration in the Election of November 1984.

Crumbums no more

By HAL BOCK AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) - A year ago, Denny Crum's Louisville Cardinals were barely a .500 team, cast off to the Lake Woebegone of college basketball's postseason play, the National Invitation Tournament. The NIT once was a big deal with the glittering lights of New York's Madison Square Garden beckoning teams. Then the NCAA got smart and made attendance mandatory for schools invited to its party and expanded the guest list to 64 teams. Now, when you win the NIT, you can proudly proclaim, "We're No. 65."

Louisville made it to the NIT's Final Four last year - not quite the same as Destination Dallas this spring - before being blown away by Tennessee and finishing its season with a sorry 19-18 mark.

A cruel critic might have gone so far as to call them, well, Crumbums

It was, you may have noticed, a distinctly temporary condition. Louisville is back on top of college basketball today, proving that you can turn things around in a hurry in this sport with the right mix of upper classman and freshmen recruits and the sense to get them tournament tough, no matter what the price in wins and losses.

Crum brought in a hotshot freshman class headed by "Never Nervous" Pervis Ellison, Tony Kimbro and redshirted guard Kevin Walls. And he had the courage to play these kids, establishing depth on his team. So when seniors Milt Wagner and Billy Thompson each picked up a fourth foul with 12 minutes to go in the NCAA Tournament title game against Duke the other night, it was no problem for the long bench of the Cards.

Crum's team also played the toughest non-conference schedule in the country for the second year in a row. That's how the Cards happened to lose seven games. It's also how they happened to reach such a fine edge when it came time for the NCAAs.

Some schools like to load up their schedule on powder puffs, creating impressive won-loss records. Consider the other Final Four teams. Duke's non-ACC opponents this season included Lamar, William &

Mary, East Carolina, Appalachian State, Harvard and Stetson. Can you imagine Johnny Dawkins against Stetson?

Kansas' non-Big Eight schedule included Southern Illinois-Edwardsville and Western Carolina.

Danny Manning against SIU-E?

Outside the SEC, Louisiana State played Hardin Simmons, Oral Roberts and had a gruelling four-game road trip against Brigham Young-Hawaii, Hawaii-Pacific, Hawaii-Loa and Hawaii-Hilo.

There was none of that soft stuff on Louisville's schedule. Crum, armed with the security of a 10-year contract, doesn't need to impress people with cosmetic, inflated records. He needs instead to prepare his team for the tough tournament road. Anybody who saw Louisville knows that the Cardinals were ready.

The selection committee played hard ball with Crum's club, using it as one of a fistful of East teams sent West to dress up that region. The Cards were in a bracket that required getting past 32-2 Bradley, 28-5 North Carolina and 22-10 Auburn following the first round game against 19-11 Drexel. Louisville won each of those games handily, none by less than eight points.

When LSU had the Cards eight points down at halftime in the national semifinals, they merely switched into overdrive in a 17-1 run that buried the Tigers.

Against Duke, they never lost their poise, even when Dawkins' magic threatened to put them away. Instead, they hung tough, waiting for an opening. Then, when the Blue Devils seemed to forget in the last 10 minutes that they had the best guard in the country, Louisville boldly grabbed the opportunity to claim the national championship.

It was their second title and it came in their fourth trip in the last seven years to the NCAA Final Four. They are the first team in this decade of parity to win the championship twice. And they are Crumbums no more.

Steers continue to roll

SAN ANGELO - The Big Spring Ontiveros. The junior banged out a Steers scored five runs with two outs in the fifth inning, then stymied a San Angelo Central Bobcats rally in the bottom of the seventh, to hold on for a 8-6 baseball victory yesterday at Nathan Donsky Field.

The win is the resurgent Steers' third in-a-row and makes the district race a very close affair. Coach John Velasquez's squad is now saddled in a four-way tie for third with a 3-4 record, two games out of second place.

The Steers made an impressive move to win the game in the top half of the fifth inning. Winning 5-3, Central and pitcher Larry Hook seemed in control of things as the first two Steers were put out.

But starting pitcher Aaron Allen started the Big Spring rally off with a single. Next third basemen Randy Hayworth walked and Felix Olivas was hit by a pitch, loading the bases for shortstop Raymond single, scoring Allen and Hayworth, tying the game at 5-5. Next second baseman Chad Wash ripped off another single, driving in Olivas and Ontiveros with runs 6 and 7. After Matt Garrett walked, first baseman Eli Torres singled, scoring Wash with Big Spring's final run of the contest.

The Steers kept their composure and got a little luck in the bottom of the seventh as Central tried to rally for the win Leading 8-6, reliever Mike Dodd, who came on for Allen in the fourth inning, got the first two batters out. But Central pinch hitter Jim Childress singled. Ricky Alamager came on to run for Childress.

Cougars hire coach

By The Associated Press Pat Foster is headed from Lamar to Houston, Dallas high school coach Jimmy Gales will be at North Texas State, and Kevin Wall has been promoted to the top job at Pan American.

It was a busy day for the hiring of college basketball coaches in Texas Tuesday.

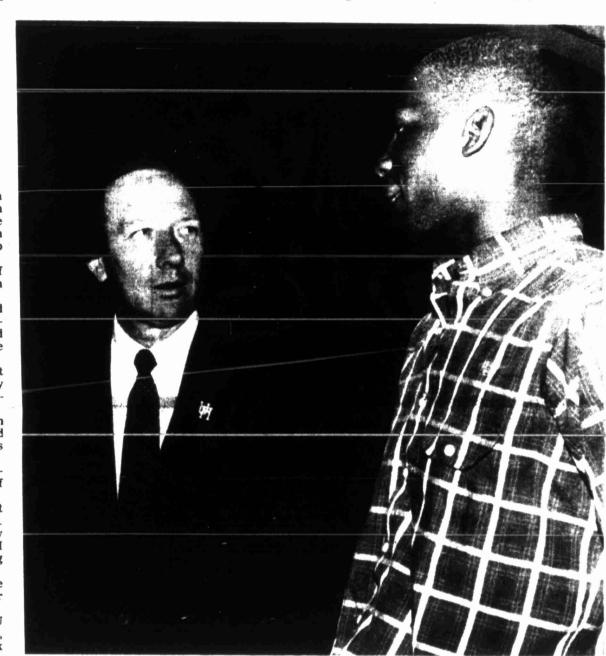

Foster, who earlier had withdrawn his name from consideration, accepted the head coaching job at Houston to replace the retiring Guy V. Lewis.

Gales was named head coach at North Texas to replace Tommy Newman, who resigned for personal reasons.

And Wall was made head coach 15 days after Lon Kruger resigned the Pan Am job to go to Kansas State.

Foster is the third head basketball coach in the 41-year history of Cougar athletics.

> Cowboys reserve guarterback Steve Pelluer has been promoted to the No. 2 quarterback spot behind Danny White because backup quarterback Gary Hogeboom wants to be traded, the team's offensive passing coordinator says.

The promotion came after Pelluer had practiced only a few hours Tuesday at the Cowboys mini-camp.

'Steve is our No. 2 quarterback," said Paul Hackett, Cowboys' offensive passing coordinator. "No question, he has a shot at No. 1. But it would be difficult to unscat experience. A young guy can learn a lot from (starting quarterback) White."

Pelluer was the third-string quarterback behind White and Hogeboom last season, but because Hogeboom has requested a trade, Hackett chose to make Pelluer No. 2 pretty good situation. said Pelluer, who met Hackett for the first time Tuesday morning. "I'm not worried about what happens and I'm not looking to get a break. I'm just trying to improve as much as I can and I've learned a lot from both (White and Hogeboom).'

Pelluer, entering his third year with the Cowboys, has played in just one regular-season game other than 1984 when he was a field-goal holder in one game).

Last season against the New York Giants, a game that clinched the National Football Conference East title for the Cowboys, Pelluer took the field after White sustained a shoulder injury and Hogeboom went down with a concussion.

Pelluer led the Cowboys to a touchdown and a 28-21 victory. He finished the season completing five of eight passes for 47 yards.

Foster said he may keep the university's current assistants or bring his Lamar staff to Houston.

Gales, 44, who coached at NTSU under Bill Blakely from 1975-1983, has been head coach at South Oak Cliff High School for the past three years. During that time, his teams posted a mark of 89-12.

This season, the Golden Bears were 29-3 and reached the regional tournament championship game. Last season, the team was 38-2 and two seasons ago was 27-7.

During his eight years as an assistant at North Texas, the Eagles posted a 134-85 record, including three 20-win seasons.

Gales also coached at South Oak Cliff from 1972-75, finishing with a record of 104-15.
