Private school rules opposed

By SCOTT ROTHSCHILD
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — In a mix of protest and politics, several hundred persons, including some from Big Spring, gathered in a light rain early Thursday morning to oppose proposed new rules for private, parochial and home schools.

Bill Clements, former governor and a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination this year, told the crowd that the state proposal to monitor private and home schools is the "same song, second verse" of the 1979 showdown between the state and the Lester Roloff homes.

Clements took credit as governor for heading off attempts by the state to license the evangelist's children's homes in South Texas. "What I want to remind you of is who stopped it. I did. I did," he said to applause.

Clements said he stopped Department of Public Safety buses that were headed to Corpus Christi in 1979 to pick up students so the school should be closed. "I caught them midway, stopped the parade, so to speak, and sent those bureaucrats back home." After a lengthy but losing court fight, the homes founded by Roloff, who died in a 1982 plane crash, transferred their students to facilities in other states.

Clements blamed Gov. Mark White, Attorney General Jim Mattox and the State Board of Education for trying to write laws that would define private, parochial and home schools. The proposed rules would allow children to attend private, parochial or home schools if the schools were accredited by a state-recognized standard, or if the schools met health and safety regulations and provided local school districts with plans of instruction comparable to accredited schools.

Electricity users to receive refund manager-public communications of TESCO.

The Public Utility Commission today approved Texas Utilities Electric Co.'s request to refund a total of $140.3 million to its customers, the amount overcollected through Jan. 31.

New, lower fixed fuel charges went into effect in March. Customers are expected to save about 5 percent on their bills with the lower charges, which will amount to about $243 million annually, he said.

TESCO is an subsidiary of TUEC.

The declining cost of natural gas has allowed the company to buy lower priced fuel, he said. Gas is used to make a little more than half the electricity used by TUEC's more than two million Texas customers, Hendrick said.

Customers will receive the refund in the form of a credit on their May bills, said George Hendrick, TUEC.

Personnel Director Emma Bogard said Wednesday the City Council will begin in about a week a process of reviewing resumes and narrowing the field of candidates.

After selling the two Big Spring businesses, he moved to his hometown of Seguin and purchased a Montgomery Wards Catalog Sales Agency, which closed Dec. 24 because of the company's decision to discontinue its catalog business nationwide, he stated in the resume.

The last day the city will take resumes is May 15, she said. Salary has been left open in the city's advertisement for the position, she said.

While Nagel was city manager, he worked to combine the city, county and college tax offices and was instrumental in bringing about the county and city landfill, his resume shows.

Gas price decontrol pressed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Removal of remaining price controls on natural gas would mean a $22 billion boost to the economy, the Reagan administration contended today.

Court order stalls judges' subpoenas

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A state district judge issued a restraining order to stall the legislative subpoenas issued to bring two Texas Supreme Court justices to a House committee on Friday.

Kilgarlin's briefing attorneys. "It is my hope they will respond just like any other citizen," Tejada said Wednesday.

Earlier, a state lawmaker had said if Associate Justices C.L. Ray and William Kilgarlin failed to show up to testify at the committee investigating alleged misconduct on the court, the panel could cite them for contempt or force them to appear under arrest.

On Tuesday, Ray and Kilgarlin sent a letter to Tejada, who chairs the House committee, saying they would not honor subpoenas to testify.

In Austin late Wednesday, 200th District Judge Paul Davis issued the temporary order after hearing constitutional arguments by attorney Randall "Buck" Wood, who was retained by both justices.

In the letter, the associate justices suggested the investigation is politically motivated.

"The restraining order was issued for the purpose of slowing this down, to do the necessary research to avoid a confrontation," Davis said today.

But Tejada, who is running against state Rep. Tommy Adkisson for a Senate seat, denied the charge.

Davis said he scheduled a hearing April 18 on whether the temporary restraining order will be extended through an injunction.

"There are no politics involved," said Tejada, D-San Antonio. "I take my job and oath of office very seriously."

State Rep. Frank Tejada said earlier he hoped the House Committee on Judicial Affairs wouldn't have to cite Ray and Kilgarlin for contempt.

Tejada said the justices are not above the law and his committee is "on solid legal ground" in subpoenaing them.

The committee is investigating alleged improprieties by Ray and is looking into actions by two of Arguments by the justices that they are protected from such subpoenas because of the constitutional separation of powers are "a smoke screen, a red herring and (don't) hold water," Tejada said.

If the judges don't show up at the committee meeting, Tejada said they "could be held in contempt of the legislature."

Also, he said, "We as a committee could issue a writ of attachment and have them brought physically to the committee."

Gun bill vote today

WASHINGTON — In the wake of overwhelming victories on two crucial test votes, the sponsor of House legislation to weaken the 1968 Gun Control Act says "it's all over" for handgun control forces.

Rep. Harold L. Volkmer, D-Mo., carrying the ball for the National Rifle Association, was brimming with confidence after the preliminary votes Wednesday and said he expected victory on final passage today.

A House-passed gun bill would go to the Senate, which last year approved a measure that is similar but not identical to Volkmer's bill. Senators could accept the House version or send the issue to a conference.

Reagan pushes aid plan

WASHINGTON — President Reagan says his $100 million military aid package for Nicaraguan rebels is vital to save Central America from becoming "a communist enclave," but a House panel is demanding a full audit to ensure that earlier funds were spent properly.

In a nationally televised news conference Wednesday, Reagan urged the Democratic-controlled House to reconsider its earlier rejection of the aid to show Nicaragua's leftist rulers that they "cannot crush their opponents" and must accept negotiations with the U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

Marcos less depressed

NEW YORK — Former Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos says he is less bitter about being ousted, and though he no longer wants to be in politics he would like to return to his homeland to be one of the "anonymous public."

Marcos said in an interview published today in The New York Times that he was getting over a period of depression, bitterness and nightmares that troubled him after he fled his country six weeks ago.

The deposed president even joked at his present home in Honolulu that if all else failed he could open a second-hand shoe store with the 3,000 pairs of his wife's shoes found in his palace in Manila.

Judge weds ex-convict

DENVER — A Denver County judge has married a man who spent time in prison on armed robbery charges.

Randy Charles Nees is "a wonderful person," said Judge Teresa Brake. "I love him very much, and I think he's made me a better person."

Brake, 34, met Nees when she was defending him in 1976 on charges of federal bank extortion.

Nees, 41, was accused of telephoning the First National Bank of Durango and saying a bomb planted there would explode unless $20,000 was delivered. No bomb was found.

President Reagan takes a question from a reporter during a nationally televised news conference at the White House Wednesday night. Reagan said his administration was seeking sufficient evidence to link Libya's Moammar Khadafy to the TWA airliner and Berlin nightclub bombings.

Mad dog

Reagan says Khadafy is definitely suspect

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is calling Moammar Khadafy names but says he isn't yet ready to blame the Libyan strongman for the latest terrorist attacks on Americans.

"We're gathering evidence as fast as we can," Reagan told a nationally broadcast news conference Wednesday night. And he told a group of editors earlier in the day Khadafy "is definitely a suspect" in the fatal bombings aboard a TWA jetliner over Greece and in a West Berlin nightclub.

But he said, "We're continuing with our intelligence work and gathering evidence on these most recent attacks, and we're not ready yet to speak on that."

Reagan nonetheless called Khadafy "this mad dog of the Middle East," a line he said he got from a television news report. Vice President George Bush had used the "mad dog" description earlier in the day when speaking to American sailors aboard an aircraft carrier in the Gulf of Oman.

When a reporter quoted former President Jimmy Carter as calling Khadafy a polecat, Reagan said, "Everyone is entitled to call him whatever animal they want, but I think he's more than a bad smell."

In American usage, a polecat is a skunk.

Asked about reports that he already had decided to retaliate, Reagan said to answer that would be "like talking about battle plans or something" — which he doesn't discuss. But he said his policy has been "that if and when we could specifically identify someone responsible for one of these acts, we would respond."

If he can identify those responsible for the Berlin bombing, in which an American Army sergeant was killed and some 50 Americans were wounded, Reagan said, "then I think we respond."

Earlier in the day, Reagan told the American Society of Newspaper Editors the United States is "not going to just sit here and hold still" amid mounting threats against Americans.

Reagan said he isn't overlooking the possibility Khadafy might try to strike at targets inside the United States, adding, "We're going to be on the alert and on guard for anything he might do."

Peres faces crisis

TEL AVIV, Israel — The coalition government appeared to be on the verge of collapse today as right-wing ministers refused to accept Prime Minister Shimon Peres' plan to fire the finance minister.

Peres, who heads the left-leaning Labor Party, demanded the resignation of Finance Minister Yitzhak Modai for comments critical of Peres reported by Israeli newspapers. Modai said Wednesday he is willing to resign, but his Likud bloc colleagues vowed to quit with him if he leaves his Cabinet post.

Likud, a right-wing political bloc that is Labor's main political rival, also became a partner with Peres' party in a tense coalition government that was formed after inconclusive elections in 1984.

Pilot suspects blasts

MEXICO CITY — Mexican airline pilots suspect one or more explosions caused a Mexicana Airlines plane to crash March 31, killing all 166 aboard, a spokesman for the pilots said.

Jaime Luis Gonzalez Navarro, spokesman for the Mexican Airline Pilots Association, said Wednesday the crash of the Boeing 727 jet 90 miles north of Mexico City was still under investigation.

"But we, as individual pilots, have our hypotheses," he told a news conference Wednesday.

Mexico gets four loans

MEXICO CITY — The World Bank has agreed to give Mexico four loans worth $574 million, mostly to help it recover from last fall's devastating earthquakes, the government announced.

The Treasury Department, in a statement released late Wednesday, said Treasury Secretary Jesus Silva Herzog signed an agreement for the money with officials of the World Bank in Washington, D.C.

The loans are the result of negotiations Mexico has begun to try to win at least $4 billion in fresh money from outside sources this year to help ease its financial woes.

Bush stresses peace

SALALAH, Oman — Vice President George Bush said today the Reagan administration has not abandoned the Middle East peace process, but the United States cannot force other nations to the negotiating table.

Bush met with Sultan Qaboos bin Said in Salalah, a coastal town on the Gulf of Oman. The sultan conferred earlier in the week with Jordan's King Hussein, a key figure in efforts to get Arab-Israeli negotiations under way.

"The vice president told reporters the sultan did not give him any message from Hussein."

Bush said of Middle East peace prospects, "We can't impose negotiations. We can't mandate specific actions. But we have tried to be a catalyst in the peace process."

Mayor's election had strong vote

Voting in Saturday's municipal election was even stronger than the hefty absentee polling indicated it might be. That translates into a vote that saw a mayor elected by a sizeable — and therefore representative — portion of the population.

Based on an absentee vote total of 600, City Secretary Tom Ferguson had forecast a turnout of 30 percent, or about 3,500 of the 11,417 registered voters in the city. But despite a holiday season, Big Springers came out in droves to cast their ballots. When the day was done, more than 4,000 people had voted, about 35 percent of those eligible. Compare that with, for instance, Midland's mayoral election in which only 17 percent of the voters decided the outcome.

In that strong turnout, Cotton Mize emerged a clear victor in the mayor's race with a 400-vote margin over candidate Troy Fraser. Both men waged a clean, issue-oriented race. The mandate of the voters is with Mize, and we wish him and the other newly elected officials well as they begin their terms of office.

Lawyer paid back in his own coin

It had to happen sooner or later. Lawyer Dobbins was wheeled into the emergency room on a stretcher, rolling his head in agony. Doctor Green came over to see him.

"Dobbins," he said. "What an honor. The last time I saw you was in court when you accused me of malpractice."

"Doc, Doc. My side is on fire. The pain is right here. What could it be?"

"How would I know?" You told the jury I wasn't fit to be a doctor."

"I was only kidding, Doc. When you represent a client you don't know what you're saying. Could I be passing a kidney stone?"

"Your diagnosis is as good as mine."

"What are you talking about?"

"When you questioned me on the stand you indicated you knew everything there was to know about the practice of medicine."

"Doc, I'm climbing the wall. Give me something."

"Let's say I give you something for a kidney stone and it turns out to be a gallstone. Who is going to pay for my court costs?"

"I'll sign a paper that I won't sue."

"Can I read to you from the transcript of the trial? Lawyer Dobbins: Why were you so sure my client had tennis elbow? Dr. Green: I've treated hundreds of people with tennis elbow, and I know it when I see it. Dobbins: It never occurred to you my client could have an Excedrin headache? Green: No, sir. There were no signs of an Excedrin headache. Dobbins: You and your ilk make me sick."

"Why are you reading that to me?"

"Because, Dobbins, since the trial I've lost confidence in making a diagnosis. A lady came in the other day limping ..."

"Please, Doc, I don't want to hear it now. Give me some Demerol."

"You said during the suit that I dispensed drugs like a drunken sailor. I've changed my ways, Dobbins. I don't prescribe drugs anymore."

"Then get me another doctor."

"There are no other doctors on duty. The reason I'm here is that after the malpractice suit the sheriff seized everything in my office. This is the only place I can practice."

"If you give me something to relieve the pain I'll personally appeal your case to a higher court."

"You know, Dobbins, I was sure you would someday be wheeled in on a stretcher."

"How did you know that?"

"At the trial I made a mental note that you were a prime candidate for a kidney stone."

"You can't tell a man is a candidate for a kidney stone by just looking at him."

"That's what you think, Dobbins. You had so much acid in you when you addressed the jury I knew some of it eventually had to crystallize into stones. Remember on the third day when you called me the 'Butcher of Operating Room 6?' That afternoon I said to my wife, 'That man is going to be in a lot of pain.'"

"Okay, Doc, you've had your ounce of flesh. Can I now have my ounce of Demerol?"

"I better check you out first."

"Don't check me out, just give me the dope."

"But in court the first question you asked me was if I had examined the patient completely. It would be negligent of me if I didn't do it now. Do you mind getting on the scale?"

"What for?"

"To find out your height. I have to be prepared in case I get sued again and the lawyer asks me if I knew how tall you were."

"I'm not going to sue you."

"You say that now. But how can I be sure you won't file a writ after you pass the kidney stone?"

Report uncovers officials' role in narcotics traffic

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — The obscene profits in big-time dope traffic have led to the kind of corruption among some government officials that most Americans tend to consider an affliction of poverty-stricken Third World countries. The lure of affluence is turning cops into crooks on an alarming scale.

The evidence of this development is contained in an internal Justice Department report prepared last year at the request of Thomas J. O'Malley, then the acting chief of the narcotics and dangerous drugs section. O'Malley told our associate Donald Goldberg the report was a survey of various law enforcement agencies and associations.

The report covered the period from about 1980 through the end of 1984, and it lists 142 government employees or officials who were caught dealing in some phase of illicit drug activity.

The list includes four judges, 12 other elected or appointed officials, 48 police officers, 38 sheriffs or deputies and a variety of other persons at all levels of government.

Here are some examples of the cases cited:

- Joseph Price, a former special agent of the Customs Service assigned to the Vice President's Drug Task Force, was convicted on several charges after he tried to recruit an informant as the middleman on a sale of hashish oil. Price is in jail awaiting the results of his appeal.
- Harold Lawrence, a Drug Enforcement Administration special agent with 30 years' experience as a narcotics officer, pleaded guilty to conspiracy in a drug-smuggling operation.
- Frank Robin Jr., a former Justice Department attorney, was convicted of bribery and obstruction of justice after a drug-related investigation. According to the report: "The prosecution ... compared Robin's crime of that of treason during time of war."
- Customs Patrol Officer Linda Osterman was convicted of stealing classified surveillance information and selling it to a drug dealer. She was sentenced to six months in prison and five years' probation. She lost an appeal.
- William C. Page, a special district judge in Oklahoma County, Okla., was convicted of providing protection to an operation dealing in cocaine, marijuana and Qualudes. He was sentenced to 14 years in prison. He has appealed.

The list goes on and on.

Perhaps the most disturbing part of the Justice Department report is the "What — me worry?" attitude some agencies take regarding corruption in their own ranks.

For example, the Drug Enforcement Administration's "marijuana desk" informed Justice that it had "no readily available information concerning law enforcement officials in drug trafficking." Why not? "In any given year less than 25 police officers are implicated in illegal drug activity," the DEA explained. "For this reason, drug offenses committed by law enforcement officials are considered too insignificant to be given special treatment."

Nor did the International Association of Chiefs of Police show much concern. "In the opinion of the IACP, illegal drug trafficking by law enforcement officials is such a rare occurrence that it is not significant enough to keep separate statistics," the Justice Department report notes.

Even ignoring the fact that lawmen go bad contribute far more to the breakdown of law and order than ordinary criminals do, there is evidence that the actual number of cases prosecuted represents only the tip of the iceberg.

In fact, Kevin Zeese of the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws has identified more than 300 public officials involved in drug trafficking from 1983 to 1985, including dozens of cases of federal officials implicated since the Justice Department's report.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Muammar Khadafy's exotic taste in fancy Western clothes has been imitated by Libyan men, but the desert dictator is facing a quiet rebellion from an unexpected quarter: Libyan women who mourn the loss of traditional Moslem virtues in Khadafy's secular revolutionary state. Like their fundamentalist counterparts in Iran, these Libyan women are voluntarily donning veils and chadors, in a silent, unpunishable rebuke to Khadafy.

UNDER THE DOME: House Democrats are furious at the Reagan administration for going ahead with an underground nuclear test last month despite the Soviets' voluntary moratorium on testing. Pentagon officials insist the test was necessary to make sure that safety devices on the bombs were adequate. But insiders say that's like firing a pistol with live rounds to see if the safety catch works. Ever-suspicious Democrats, who had asked the White House to call off the test, are muttering that they were overruled out of spite over their rejection of military aid to the contras.

Parents' must keep control

By SPENCER SANDOW
Last week I wrote that the state government shouldn't meddle in private affairs by regulating private schools.

Regulations recently approved by the state board of education would require teachers to have degrees from accredited schools and to teach certain basic classes. They would require private schools to give their students standardized tests to prove they are being properly taught.

Opponents to the regulations complain they would infringe on their religious freedom.

But apparently there's more to the story.

An area school superintendent said last week that part of the proposed legislation is to interpret the compulsory school attendance law. An increasing number of people want to put their children in home schools, he said, but the state has no way of determining if the home school is legitimate.

School districts are facing a growing problem with kids returning to school who have fallen behind in their education after their parents enrolled them in a temporary home school, he said. Some parents will legitimately teach the kids at home, but others won't really do it, he said, and that's the problem.

"The (debated) rule was recommended by Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby because the current exemption to the compulsory attendance requirement is being challenged in court as being unconstitutionally vague" in defining what a school is, said literature from the Texas Association of School Boards. "In addition, school districts and law enforcement agencies have asked for guidance in enforcing" the law, it said.

Insuring kids in home schools are being properly taught is necessary. However, citizens must beware of regulations that could limit their freedom to choose how they want their children taught. Parents must maintain their right to teach kids at home when they believe it is necessary.

Today is Thursday, April 10, the 100th day of 1986. There are 265 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On April 10, 1945, during World War II, American soldiers liberated the notorious Nazi concentration camp Buchenwald in what is now East Germany.

On this date:
In 1849, Walter Hunt of New York patented the safety pin.
In 1886, the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was incorporated.
In 1963, the first feature length 3-D movie in color, "House of Wax," premiered in New York.
In 1963, the nuclear-powered submarine USS Thresher failed to surface off Cape Cod, Mass. The disaster claimed 129 lives.

In 1972, the United States and the Soviet Union joined some 70 nations in signing an agreement banning biological warfare.

In 1974, Golda Meir announced her resignation as prime minister of Israel.

Ten years ago: Lebanon's parliament approved a constitutional amendment making possible the selection of a successor to President Suleiman Franjeh.

Stargazers position for view of Halley

By RICHARD BOUDREAUX
PISCO ELQUI, Chile (AP) — Every day at dawn and again at dusk, as ceremonial fires burn on rose-colored hillsides, voices rise in Sanskrit hymns to draw heavenly energy down to Earth.

But as night falls, the highest hill in this valley comes to life with its own cosmic ritual. Astronomers awaken, switch on flashlights and enter the dark interiors of eight white domes, where giant telescopes draw heavenly images onto computer screens.

And now, in the spectacular clarity of the valley's night, astronomers and mystic hymn singers are prepared for Halley's comet on Friday to make its closest approach to Earth, which is here in the Southern Hemisphere.

The scientists of Cerro Tololo Observatory and the mystics of such nearby communes as the School of Light of the New Age have little contact with each other and less regard for each others' ways of thinking about the universe.

Prophecy attracts the mystics; scientific research brings the astronomers. And some of the local people seek profit from both.

Scientist and mystic are drawn by the hundreds to a common mecca, the Valley of Elqui, where a stable confluence of air currents from the Pacific Ocean, the Andes Mountains and the Atacama Desert produces at least 300 cloudless nights a year.

"The stars are so bright that on moonless nights you can see shadows up here," says Arturo Gomez, an astronomer at Tololo, 7,200 feet above sea level. "Sometimes you can even see man-made satellites with the naked eye."

The valley is now an international attraction for amateur stargazers seeking the ideal view of Halley's comet, which enters the solar system only once every 76 years.

About 2,150 comet-watching visitors, including 800 North Americans, began lodging in the valley on Easter Sunday, according to Saul Osorio of the regional tourism bureau in La Serena.

While both gurus and astronomers hope these visitors will let them contemplate the comet in solitude, entrepreneurs like Edith Miranda de Hevia welcome their business.

Mrs. Hevia, retired headmistress of the Pisco Elqui public school, was busy recently converting the two-story house, where she reared five sons, into an eight-room hotel with stained-glass windows. It was booked solid.

Like most grape growers who make this town Chile's chief source of pisco, an Andean alcoholic spirit, she and her husband fell into debt when grape prices slumped a few years back. Now they see a bright opportunity in the sky.

"I hope Halley leaves us some earnings," she said. "But the tourists had better like this place enough to come back soon. We cannot wait another 76 years to pay off the investment."

Until two decades ago, Elquinos were content to have the 100-mile-long valley to themselves, growing fruit, raising sheep and digging for gold.

"It has everything man could ask of a land to live in it," wrote the late Gabriela Mistral, a native poet who won the Nobel Prize for literature in 1945.

A follower of both Christ and Buddha, Mistral was a spiritual forerunner of the outsiders who began setting up esoteric communes here in the 1960s, when the astronomers also arrived.

The esoterics were guided by the prophecy of Raynaud de la Ferrier, a French aristocrat who announced that the Earth's center of spiritual magnetism is shifting from the Himalayas in Asia to the Andes, at 30 degrees south latitude, as the Age of Aquarius approaches.

They also attribute mystical powers to Halley's comet.

"The comet is coming to define man's characteristics," declares Bernardo Blanchard, 60, who went broke as a mining entrepreneur and became Brother Pacho, guru of the White Brotherhood of the Seventh Ray.

From the heights of Tololo, astronomers look down on such theories.

"Astrology hasn't advanced in the 1,800 years since Ptolemy, while astronomy has branched off to become a sophisticated science," says Tololo's Jose Maza.

The U.S.-run observatory's four-meter telescope, largest in the Southern Hemisphere, is expanding the map of the universe. Its astronomers have catalogued most of the known quasars, including a hamburger-shaped stellar formation that Arturo Gomez dubbed "the Big Mac." In scientific journals, it is "the Gomez Object."

Like Tololo, two of Elqui's five existing esoteric communes have opened their adobe monasteries to visitors in recent years, although only the initiated may use the telescopes or chant in the oriental Agnihotra fire ceremony.

Terrorists are bound by some common traits

EDITOR'S NOTE — "Even if you have to blow up half a continent, have no qualms," German radical Karl Heinzen assured his followers. A century later, experts have only begun to map the terrorist mind. This is the fourth of a five-part series.

By CHARLES J. HANLEY
Associated Press Writer
ROME (AP) — A long-haired German construction worker. A sociology professor from Florence. A Belgian printer. A laid-off Yugoslav factory hand.

Each took "Der Sprung" — "The Leap" — as the Germans call it, going underground to plot, bomb and kill with the radical bands waging terror wars across Europe. Social scientists are trying to discover why.

"If we want to stop terrorism," says University of Rome psychiatrist Franco Ferracuti, "we must understand terrorists." Ferracuti and other investigators, undertaking independent studies of the terrorist mind, have found common traits: They frequently are loners, have lost parents while young, were failing professionally or educationally. They usually are middle-class, with above-average schooling. Guilt feelings often burden them.

Although frightened citizens may consider them deranged, "the studies have found conclusively that the large majority of terrorists are not psychotics," Washington-based behavioral scientist Jerrold Post, who has studied terrorists for the U.S. government, noted in a telephone interview.

Law-enforcement officials agree.

"Their 'fanaticism' is extremely overrated," Raymond E. Kendall, chief of the Interpol police network, said in a Paris interview. "... They prepare their operations very carefully. If I were a professional criminal going to rob a bank, I would behave in the same way. It is a criminal approach."

The range of personalities and political causes makes generalizations difficult. But Post categorizes terrorists according to their feelings toward their parents. "Anarchic ideologues," such as West Germany's Red Army Faction and Italy's Red Brigades, are disloyal to parents who are loyal to the existing system, Post says. "Nationalist separatists," such as the Palestinian guerrillas and Irish Republican Army, are loyal to families disloyal to the regime. With the support of family and ethnic community, the nationalists are usually better "adjusted" and may operate relatively openly.

Ferracuti, in an interview in his Rome office, noted that the Palestinians, for example, have achievable, non-utopian goals, "and that makes it easy to recruit members."

But Western Europe's far-left terrorists "are trying to impose a utopian dream on a world saying, 'Leave us alone,'" and therefore must lead clandestine lives, the 58-year-old psychiatrist said.

Ferracuti, who has written widely cited studies of Red Brigades members, Puerto Rican separatists and other radicals, traces the European terrorist movement to the student upheavals of the late 1960s, when university graduates could not find jobs and the Vietnam War was radicalizing Western youth.

Among Italian and West German terrorists, he said, half attended universities and an above-average number were unemployed before going underground.

"For a young man in post-adolescent crisis at the end of the 1960s in Italy ... terrorism was a way to express political involvement," Ferracuti said.

By devoting their lives to an ideology — usually Marxist — they may have filled an "existential vacuum" that drove others into the drug culture or simple drifting, Ferracuti theorizes.

"These are people who are misfits, with a poor family life. A member of the family is usually missing...."

"But," he concluded, "I can find no psychopathology."

A Palestinian woman holds up a helmet reportedly worn by Christian militiamen who massacred hundreds of Palestinians in the Sabra and Shatilla refugee camps in Beirut which were under Israeli army control in 1982. The camps, a traditional breeding ground for terrorists, has produced some of the perpetrators of the latest terrorist atrocities.

Post believes that terrorists justify personal failures by blaming the system — "The idea that 'It is not us, it's them.'" In a sense, the terrorist group is the first real family they have found, he said.

More darkly, some psychologists also detect an urge toward patricide — or, if not to kill, at least to "outdo" a father who, in many cases, is blamed by the son for taking no action against fascism in the 1940s.

The psychologists — and security officials who know terrorists well — agree that the conversion process is slow, step-by-step. But occasionally a critical event occurs.

Ex-Red Army Faction member Michael Baumann wrote in an autobiography that when West Berlin police shot and killed a friend during a 1967 demonstration, Baumann had a "tremendous flash" that eventually convinced him "we must now fight without mercy."

Many other terrorists also feel they are on the defensive against a powerful aggressor state, the specialists say. Ferracuti describes it as a "fantasy war." The terrorists' terminology reflects it — they are "armies" and parent belief that general panic will bring on the authoritarianism they want.

"It's the Reds and the Blacks. If you are not a member of their group, you are an 'untermensch' — a non-human," Ferracuti said.

But they are not uniformly ruthless. The specialists say terrorists have disclosed in interviews that each escalation of violence stirs dissent in their ranks. Eventually the more violent prevail.

In another "confessional" book, ex-Red Brigades assassin Patrizio Peci says he began to lose his detachment one day when one of his victims, pleading futilely for mercy, suddenly struck him as a human being like himself.

In the search for causes, physiologists are even trying to identify body chemicals that stimulate terrorist acts. But some experts caution against emphasizing the scientific approach over the political.

Brian M. Jenkins, a leading American theorist on terrorism, says looking for mental illness among terrorists "might have great appeal to those who would prefer not to face the fact of social, economic or political injustices in the world."

Ferracuti contends, however, that more comprehensive studies ultimately might help control terrorist violence. "We are barely scratching the surface," he said.

NEXT — Part V: The Future

Target Terror

"brigades" that engage in "military operations" and demand "prisoner of war" status when captured.

"These people lose their sense of reality," said Hans-Werner Kuehn, a top West German anti-terrorist police official. "In their writings, they see themselves as if they could fight and defeat the 'imperialist' system — a blatant misjudgment of their own capabilities."

They also are found to have little remorse about killing people they view as agents of "the system" — whether policemen, industrialists, labor leaders or others. Italy's right-wing terrorists have killed indiscriminately, exploding large bombs in public places in the ap-

Candidate says Hobby fails to 'represent the people'

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Republican candidate for lieutenant governor Virgil Mulanax said Wednesday that current Democratic Lt. Governor William Hobby has locked the people out of the legislative process.

Mulanax, who is 115th District judge, was in Big Spring Wednesday campaigning for the state office.

"Mr. Hobby in his 14 years (in office) has established a relationship with the existing powers that be and no longer represents the people in the legislative process," he said.

Mulanax claims that Hobby, as presiding officer of the Senate, can control up to 16 state senators and determine what legislation is passed by allowing for voice votes and controlling many committee assignments.

"What I want to do as lieutenant governor is to return the accountability of the senators to the people who elected them," Mulanax said. "I wouldn't allow them to hide behind voice votes, hide behind legislation lost in committee."

...disagrees with Hobby

Despite an ambition to hold the Senate reins, Mulanax said he does not want "to be a power broker in control of the Senate."

What he wants to do, he said, is "make sure the voice of all the people through their senators is represented and given a chance to be voted on."

One voice that fell on deaf Senate ears was that of the state's teachers, he said.

Hobby "showed that he lost contact with the people who should be involved in legislation" by not seeking more teachers' input into House Bill 72.

As a result of educators being shut out, unpopular and unworkable programs such as career ladder and teacher competency testing passed in the Legislature, he said.

Of competency testing, he said: "We've wasted $4 million to $7 million, and I think we'll see in a few months that we didn't get a thing for it."

He was no more charitable in assessing the career ladder portion of the education reform bill. Career ladder has "caused dissension among teachers that has made it a counterproductive effort," he said.

Besides education, Mulanax discussed the state's budget squeeze brought on by lost oil revenue. The crunch can be softened by cutting expenditures across the board and by boosting by a penny the state sales tax, he said.

Summer term registration scheduled

LUBBOCK — Registration for the first summer term at South Plains College's Lubbock campus, 1302 Main St., will be June 2 from 9 a.m. to noon, 2 to 4 p.m. and 6 to 8 p.m.

Classes begin June 3.

Enrollment for classes at Reese Air Force Base, offered through the college's Continuing Education Division, will be May 28.

Registration will take place from 1:30 to 7:30 p.m. in Bldg. 920 for military personnel, their departments and government employees. Enrollment for the general public will be 1:30 to 7:30 p.m. May 29. Classes begin June 2.

For more information, contact the college at Lubbock at (806) 747-0576, or at Reese Air Force Base at 885-3048.

Theater groups to contest

Six Texas high school theater groups will be in Big Spring Saturday to compete in the Area 2 University Interscholastic League AAAAA One-Act Play contest.

The event is open to the public, but guests are asked not to enter in the middle of a play so the contest won't be disrupted, said contest director Tim Haynes.

The contest starts at 12:30 p.m. in the Big Spring High School auditorium, and each play will probably begin on the hour, Haynes said. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1 for students and senior citizens. They are available at the door.

Presentations will be "The Corn Is Green" by Abilene High School; "A Company of Wayward Saints" by Round Rock High School; "Children of a Lesser God" by Tascosa High School in Amarillo; "Separate Tables — Table No. 7" by Monterrey High School in Lubbock; "Isn't It Romantic" by Midland High School; and scenes from "Tom Jones" by Westwood High School in Austin.

The high schools competing are those that have won in district contests. Winners Saturday will go on to regional competition. Awards will be presented after the last play.

The critic-judge will be Royal R. Brantley, head of the theater department at West Texas State University.

What is the one Bible word that designates the result of sin and the punishment of sin? What was the obstacle in the Divine Mind of God that hindered pardon and restoration of the guilty sinner that was satisfied in the cross of Jesus? Why was it important for Jesus to die on the cross? These questions call attention to the horror of sin and the beauty of the death of Jesus Christ. Holiness and justice within the Being of God must make penalty follow sin (sin is a transgression of the law of God.), that is the nature of sin. Love within God desires to share that penalty. The death of Jesus satisfied holiness, love, and justice within God. God alone sits in the position to determine the penalty due sin because he is the one who has been sinned against, his law is what is violated, and he has been personally offended by sin. Whatever some person on earth thinks the penalty of sin ought to be is neither the standard nor the method by which God determines what is due sin as punishment. What Jesus did was that which was absolutely necessary to meet the demands of holiness, justice, love and punishment of sin. Read Romans 3 & 6

Candidate wants recount

GAIL — A recount of votes cast at Saturday's Borden Independent School District board race has been requested by a candidate who tied for a position in the at-large election.

Joel Dennis of the North Gail Community requested a recount be conducted Friday morning in the school district office, said Superintendent James McLeroy.

According to vote counts conducted by the school board, Dennis finished in a tie for third place with Guy Zant of Vealmoor. Each candidate had 177 votes, said McLeroy.

Other winners in the school board race were Steve Hess of the Plains Community, with 193 votes, and Tom Ed Vestal of the Plains Community with 192 votes.

McLeroy said if the recount results in a tie, a May 5 special runoff election would be called by the school district.

Results of the recount should be available by noon Friday, he said.

Dear Abby

Adoptive parents don't want to hear of 'having your own'

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are about to adopt a baby in the near future. When we tell friends and family this, the response is invariably the same: "Oh, that is wonderful! But I am sure you will have your own baby right after your receive the adopted one." This comment is absolutely devastating to prospective adoptive parents.

We understand that people mean well and are trying to say something supportive, but there are two reasons why this particular statement should never be made:

1. The subtle implication is that adopted babies are not as good as "your own," meaning one you bore yourself. My wife and I have many fears and apprehensions about adoption, the raising of an adopted child, and how that child will be viewed by others. This insensitive comment brings all of our fears to the surface.

2. Second, and even more important, friends and family often do not consider that the mother in question may not ever be able to bear a child of her own. My wife has been through many miscarriages, a tubal pregnancy, multiple surgeries, and she may never be able to bear our own child. We have many friends with similar tragic infertility problems and where the woman has no tubes, ovaries or uterus. Imagine the effect of this comment on them!

Please tell your readers that adoptive parents need to be reassured that their child is just as valued as the one they had hoped to bear themselves. Also, please avoid thoughtless and insensitive comments about "having your own" or "getting pregnant soon." They are brutal. I am a surgeon at a prominent medical school, but sign me...

EXPECTANT FATHER

DEAR ABBY: I dread going into public places any more because almost everywhere I go, video cameras are trained on me. I walked into a store the other day and was immediately confronted with myself on TV, and a large message that said, "Smile, You're on Video Camera. Shoplifters Will Be Prosecuted With Videotaped Evidence."

Abby, I will never set foot in that store again! Am I abnormal for feeling uncomfortable for having every move I make recorded and shown on a TV screen? Do other people feel as I do, and what do you think of this idea?

MRS. L.M.S.,
MECHANICSVILLE, MD.

DEAR MRS. S.: I think it's a shame this method of discouraging shoplifting is used, but look at it this way: Although it is an invasion of privacy, stores that use this method are able to offer their merchandise at a lower cost because they will have fewer shoplifters. And shoplifters cost you and me money!

DEAR ABBY: I have a small but important problem. Our school's big dance is coming up. It's the only dance of the year so it's a big deal. I like to carry a purse with me in case I need money to call someone, or if I need to reapply eye makeup. What do I do with my purse when I dance? Give it to my friend? Put it down and risk losing it? Should I shove the stuff in my pocket and forget the purse? Or dance with the purse on my shoulder?

R. IN LEVERETT, MASS.

DEAR R.: Carry the absolute minimum, and shove it in your pocket.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about sex, drugs and how to be happy. State hospital insures patients' rights

The Public Responsibility Committee, a mandatory project of the Big Spring State Hospital, is designed to insure patients' rights, Kathy Viccinelli, public information officer of the hospital, said.

Each member of the committee, made up of Lucille Petty, chairman, Dotsie Jones, Dolores Norred, Jackie Knight, Doris Day, Hazel Duggan, Polly Mays, Gene Harrington, Gypsy Guiley and Marilyn Newsom, is assigned one unit they visit each week. They meet with patients and receive complaints, comments or suggestions and investigate the patients' problems, Viccinelli said.

Each month the committee discusses problems they've received from the patients and try to solve them, she said. In some cases, the committee has changed policies or just taken the time to explain why a policy can't be changed, Viccinelli said.

"The patients have come to regard these PRC representatives as their friends; someone they can depend on to see about their needs," she said.

Auxiliary donates to special causes

The American Legion Auxiliary Unit 506 made donations to the special olympics, cancer research and the heart fund at a recent meeting.

Two members, Mrs. Nell Tippie and Lois Johnson, elected delegate and alternate, and Annie Bransom, Irene Maxwell and Lila Holland attended the 19th district convention in Brownfield April 5-6.

Unit 506 was awarded a citation, two year planning book and blue ribbon for achieving its membership goal by Mrs. June Long, membership chairman. Bransom also presented the unit with a citation and $5.

Coming conventions are the Fourth Division Convention May 16-18 in Amarillo and a department convention in July.

Next meeting is May 5.

Leek elected deputy of Rebekah

Mary Leek was elected as deputy for the Big Spring Rebekah Lodge at a recent meeting with Lila Holl, noble grand, presiding.

Plans were discussed for Social Night, April 29, which will include games, a silent auction and pot luck supper beginning at 7 p.m.

Next meeting will be April 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Odd Fellow Hall at 9th and San Antonio.

Dr. Donohue

Millions more seen as hypertensive

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: It was recently reported that there has been a great rise in the number of people with high blood pressure. It was described as a relative rise. Can you explain this? There are supposed to be 20 million more people with high blood pressure than several years ago. — W.Y.

It's done with numbers. Here's what happened:

The previous hypertension threshold was set at 160/95, the first figure representing the blood pressure in the systolic (pumping phase) and the 95 the pressure at the resting (diastolic phase). People with readings that high were candidates for treatment to lower the numbers.

But it was always felt that perhaps those numbers were too high, that a lot of those with lower numbers were at great risk for developing higher readings, and in a sense were "falling through the cracks" of treatment. So in its latest evaluation, the Joint National Committee on Detection, Evaluation, and Treatment of High Blood Pressure agreed that new acceptable high levels should be 140/90.

This meant that all figures associated with the previous standards also had to be revised. It meant that now there were an additional 20 million people who could technically fall into the hypertension category, people who probably would not realize it and who would not be seeking treatment for it.

It's felt that about 20 percent of people with those lower readings will eventually develop significantly higher levels within five years.

The idea is to prevent that from happening by reaching these people and giving them early warning and possible treatment.

It was done with numbers but the facts the numbers represent are very real.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I just wondered if my having a severe case of shingles could have caused me to have a heartbeat which is out of rhythm. And secondly, can the out-of-rhythm beat be treated. — O.H.S.

I could stretch matters and make a case for such a connection, but it would be unfair and mostly likely incorrect. There's no direct connection that I know of between an irregular heart and shingles.

Out-of-rhythm heartbeats are like a shelf of Heinz catsup — with at least 57 ingredients (or varieties.) In any event, there are many different out-of-rhythm beats, and just about each has its own degree of seriousness and type of treatment. We have electrocardiograms to tell us which kind we're dealing with and how serious it is. You see what I'm getting at?

I don't think you can blame your symptom on your shingles, no matter how serious that was. My short answer is that almost all of these irregularities can be controlled, sometimes with drugs, sometimes with tiny jolts of electric current. Some are so harmless they need no treatment at all. The shingles booklet is still in print. You may get some hints about that subject from it. Other readers can order by writing me enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and 50 cents.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am one of your insulin-dependent diabetics (Type I, as you call it). I am hoping that sooner or later I will be able to use the insulin pump, which seems to make things so easy for people like me. How does it work? Who can use it? — M.M.

The pump is an automated implanted syringe under the skin operated by a tiny battery. A built-in memory permits programmed infusion of insulin through a day.

When the insulin reservoir is emptied the patient simply attaches a refill to its small pump unit (on the outside). In this way the diabetic can get a small trickle of insulin delivered regularly throughout a 24-hour day rather than having to depend on large-dose injections at set times.

Candidates are those who are unable to control sugar levels through conventional injection. The patient has to be skilled in the reading of blood insulin levels with the various kits available. I hope you can qualify soon. It's a great idea.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Official says Challenger cabin hit sea intact

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Challenger's crew cabin hit the surface of the Atlantic Ocean intact inside the nose section of the space shuttle after the spacecraft blew apart on Jan. 28, a federal safety inspector reported today.

When the nose section "struck the water, it had some mass inside it; that mass was the crew module," said Terry Armentrout, director of the National Transportation Safety Board's bureau of accident investigation.

However, most experts do not believe the astronauts survived the nine-mile plunge to the ocean. They believe the seven probably were killed instantly from the shock of the explosion or from aerodynamic forces as the nose section and enclosed cabin tumbled from the sky.

Armentrout said Challenger broke apart more from aerodynamic forces and water impact than from the force of the explosion.

In fact, he said, there was no large explosion. He said the cloud of smoke and flame resulted more from the breaking up of the large external fuel tank and the fires that resulted when its liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen propellant mixed and burned.

Armentrout talked with reporters as he led them through two hangars where the shuttle debris is laid out over a pattern of 4-foot-square grids. It was the first public viewing of the wreckage.

NASA called on the safety board the day after the accident to help it learn what caused the disaster by using its expertise in investigating aircraft accidents.

An estimated 14 to 16 percent of the shuttle has been recovered. Some was found floating in the days after the accident; the rest has been retrieved from the ocean floor.

Wreckage of the orbiter itself is laid out in one hangar. Much of it is in small pieces, but there are large chunks of the right wing, of the payload bay doors and of the fuselage.

The debris of the external fuel tank, two of the three main engines and the forward sections of the two solid-fuel rocket boosters are laid out in a portable hangar. Most of the boosters are in a secure building because they still contain hazardous propellant.

Only the tail section of the orbiter shows evidence of flame damage, and Armentrout said this indicates the shuttle was thrown free of the fireball.

He said the nose section containing the crew cabin came away from the rest of the orbiter "with a clean break."

Standing in front of sections of the nose section that have been assembled atop sawhorses, Armentrout said, "We don't see any evidence of a burn-up or a blow-up. It either broke up aerodynamically or when it hit the water."

He estimated chunks of Challenger struck the water at speeds ranging from 140 to 180 mph. Damage could have resulted from aerodynamic forces because Challenger was moving at supersonic speeds when it came apart, he said.

The nose section was relatively intact, although it had been battered by the impact with the water;

"There is evidence in this outer shell that the damage we see from past experience indicates we had some mass within this outer shell when it struck the water," he said.

Couple held for abuse

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A teenage couple wanted for questioning in the slayings of a Missouri couple were in the Cameron County jail Wednesday on charges of credit card abuse, authorities said.

Federico Rivera, 18, and Tammy Rivera, 17, were returned from North Olmstead, Ohio, Tuesday night and were taken before Justice of the Peace Eloy Cano who set bond at $250,000 each on five charges of credit card abuse.

They are wanted for questioning in the slayings of Keith Nordyke, 56, and his wife, Jean, 53. Their bodies were discovered in the Rio Grande near Brownsville on April 3, a week after they were last seen.

The couple had been stabbed several times.

Authorities said the Rivera couple used the Nordykes' Sears credit card in Brownsville. The Riveras were arrested in the parking lot of a shopping mall in the Cleveland suburb on Saturday. They waived extradition proceedings.

Forsan linebacker Bruce Stricklin has recently received another award for his play on the gridiron.

The 6-1, 205-pounder has been selected to play in the Texas High School Coaches Association All-Star Football Game. The contest, which features the best players in the Lone Star State, will be played July 31 in the Houston Astrodome.

The Big Spring Red Sox opened their season with a double-header win over the Sterling City Braves last Sunday.

Tony Ontiveros was the winning pitcher in the Red Sox's 13-3 opening game win. Henry Holguin and Ron Finnell each got three hits for the Red Sox. One of Holguin's hits was a homer.

Luis Rodriguez picked up the win in the 17-4 second game romp. Adam Yanez and Mechie Sarmiento each got three hits in the game.

Joycee Davis and Mark Sanders won the doubles competition in the 16th Annual Mixed Handicap Bowling Tournament held last week at Big Spring Bowl-A-Rama. The duo's score of 1472 was too much for the second place team of Wanda Lockhart and Walter Little, who rolled a 1420.

Tawanna Bailey and J.M. Ringener finished third with a score of 1344. Sanders had the high score with a 831.

American Aquatex won the team series with a total score 2529. Team members were Cecil Burnett, Dorothy Summers, Dora Court and Valtacar Rodriguez. Half and Half finished second and The Trouble Makers placed third.

The Snyder Bass Club will be hosting the First Annual Bass Tournament at Lake Spence this Saturday.

The tournament is open to all bass fishermen. Entry fee is $30 per fishermen with an optional $5 in the Big Bass Pot. Entries will be accepted at Wildcat Marina from 5 p.m. to midnight Friday and from 4:30 to 6:30 a.m. on Saturday.

While on the subject of fishing, there were some good catches turned in this past week at Lake Spence and Lake Thomas.

The catch of the week occurred at Lake Thomas. Maxi Chaney of Ira caught a 11-pound white drum (gaspergue) off a trotline. Rickie Owens of San Angelo landed a 7.2 pound black bass.

At Lake Spence, Carl and Carol Wyrick of Big Spring caught a 9-pound striper.

Masters field begins play

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — The 50th Masters Golf Tournament, featuring foreign favorites Seve Ballesteros and defending champion Bernhard Langer, opened today in cool, sunny weather on the lush grounds of the Augusta National Golf Club.

The temperature was in the mid-50s when two greats of another golfing era, Gene Sarazen and Sam Snead, served as the honorary starters at 8:15 a.m. EST to get the international field of 88 under way.

The forecast called for a high in the upper 60s, with sunny skies throughout the day. The only weather snag could be tricky winds that traditionally make club selection difficult, with northwest breezes expected to range from 10-20 mph.

A gallery expected to reach 30,000 at its peak began arriving early to take up prime vantage points on the 6,905-yard, par 72 layout. Most wore sweaters and windbreakers to fight off the morning chill.

Ballesteros, who has played only 2½ rounds of competitive golf this year because of his suspension from the PGA Tour for failing to make enough appearances last season, expressed confidence at a news conference Wednesday that he could capture the season's first major golf event for the third time in seven years.

The dashing Spaniard claimed his first Masters championship in 1980 and won again in 1983.

Langer, a West German, blossomed into an international star last year when he took advantage of a late collapse by Curtis Strange to win the event by two shots over Strange, Ballesteros and 1976 champion Ray Floyd.

The first of the 44 twosomes in the championship hunt to begin play were PGA Tour winners Donnie Hammond and Dan Forsman, both in their fourth pro seasons. They started at 8:30 a.m.

Hammond, 29, won the Bob Hope Chrysler Classic in January and Forsman, 27, made the Hertz-Bay Hill Classic his second career victory last month.

Langer, paired with U.S. Amateur champion Sam Randolph, and Ballesteros, paired with Hal Sutton, had later starts.

Among the early starters was Calvin Peete, the tour's only two-time winner this year, and Ben Crenshaw, the 1984 Masters champion.

Sam Snead hits one of his first shots early Thursday morning as he and Gene Sarazen, honorary starters, got the 1986 Masters underway.

Hole by Hole

Here's a description of the Augusta National Golf Club course, site of the 50th Masters, April 10-13:

No. 1, 400 yards, par 4: Straight-away hole, with drive over a valley. Large fairway bunker on the right. Woods on the right provide most potential trouble. Bunker at left-front of green.

No. 2, 555 yards, par 5: Slight dogleg left. Woods on left make a hooked drive deadly. Long hitters can reach green with big drive to top of hill. 3-wood or long iron to green guarded by two bunkers.

No. 3, 366 yards, par 4: Four fairway bunkers clustered on the left, about 245 yards out. A huge pine tree behind fourth tee is used to line up short-iron second shot to small green.

No. 4, 285 yards, par 3: Two bunkers, left and right, guard front of green. Like all Augusta pars 3s, winds tend to swirl through pines, making tee-shot deceptive.

No. 5, 435 yards, par 4: Dogleg left required big, hooked drive around fairway bunkers on left. Ridge running through green gives importance to proper placement of second shot.

No. 6, 180 yards, par 3: Tee is elevated, 2-level green sloping to a deep bunker in front.

No. 7, 360 yards, par 4: A fairway wood or long iron off the tee leaves a short-iron uphill second shot to small, shallow green guarded by five bunkers.

No. 8, 535 yards, par 5: Depending on winds, big hitters can drive over fairway bunker on right, opening the possibility to go for the elongated green with run-up second shot.

No. 9, 435 yards, par 4: Dogleg left. Slightly hooked drive will run to bottom of valley for short-iron approach. Drive to right will stay on top of hill and set up long-iron second shot. Elevated green slopes severely to front.

No. 10, 485 yards, par 4: Dogleg left with tee shot downhill. Drive to left will catch slope. Huge bunker short of narrow green.

No. 11, 455 yards, par 4: Long second shot to green guarded front-right by pond. Clump of trees behind green provide target for center of green.

No. 12, 155 yards, par 3: Shallow green sitting at angle to tee, bunkers front and back with Rae's Creek in front. Stay away from right. Swirling winds best judged by trees back right of green.

No. 13, 465 yards, par 5: Severe dogleg left. Drive around corner to top of hill. Distance for second shot deceptive. Four bunkers back of green.

Rae's Creek in front challenges second attempt to reach in two.

No. 14, 405 yards, par 4: Slight dogleg left. Depending on winds, second shot anything from 210-9-iron to green sloping severely right.

No. 15, 500 yards, par 5: Straight-away. If drive reaches top of hill, possible to reach green, guarded by pond in front, in two. Rule of thumb for second shot: "If you can see water, go."

No. 16, 170 yards, par 3: Carry entirely over water, with pond front and left of elongated green, bunkers front right, back left and right.

Holmes makes apology to Nevada judges

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Larry Holmes, admitting that "maybe I got a big mouth," apologized for claiming Nevada fight judges drank before bouts and accepted payoffs.

But Holmes said Wednesday that the matter isn't relevant anyway because he plans to take the judges out of his April 19 rematch against champion Michael Spinks by ending the fight before its 15-round limit.

"It has to be a knockout. Either they carry me out or they carry Michael out," Holmes said. "The only thing on my mind is to take Michael Spinks out."

Nevada State Athletic Commission members called on Holmes to apologize at a pre-fight press conference Wednesday or face a hearing on whether he should be licensed for his fight against Spinks.

Holmes didn't admit making the disparaging comments, aired in a television interview last week, but said he wanted to apologize and put the matter behind him.

"Maybe I talk too much, maybe I got a big mouth," he said. "But I'm sorry if I offended the commission."

Commissioner Duane Ford said he would accept the apology on behalf of the commission.

"I'm happy there's no foundation to this and as a result it will be dropped," said Ford, who earlier said he might ask the attorney general's office to question Holmes to determine whether there was any validity to his accusations.

Holmes, who lost a unanimous 15-round decision to Spinks last Sept. 21, was subdued at the press conference, leaving before Spinks got a chance to talk. But he promised the public would see a different fighter in the ring than the one who lost after 49 straight professional victories.

"If he runs like he ran the first time I'm going to put on my shoulder pads and I'm going to do some tackling," Holmes promised. "I will tackle him in the ring if he tries that. I will have to be warned several times by the referee."

Holmes, who has refused to speak to the press except at the pre-fight press conferences, admitted he continues to hold a grudge against Spinks and the media for what he claims has been unfair treatment of him.

"I'm mad every day now," said the 35-year-old former champion. "I'm using a lot of energy in the gym getting my body back to where it was when I was 25, 26 years old."

Holmes predicted Spinks would see a lot of his right hand this time around, unlike the last fight where he cocked the right but seldom threw it.

"I had a mental block last time and throwing my right hand bothered me," he said. "Larry Holmes will go right-hand crazy this time."

Spinks was unperturbed by the claims.

"If he wants me like he says, he's going to make some mistakes and he'll pay for them," said Spinks, who made history by becoming the first light heavyweight champion to win the heavyweight title. "His body will not react anymore to what he wants it to do."

Spinks said he felt he had something to prove in the first fight, particularly when Holmes made disparaging remarks about his brother, Leon, and other members of his training camp.

"All the things he said, I beat him for all the people, that's how I feel," he said. "I shut him up, I beat him like nobody else has beaten him. I made him look like he couldn't fight a lick."

Spurs make playoffs

By The Associated Press
According to the record book, Mike Giminski had a career night against the Boston Celtics. Boston Coach K.C. Jones begged to differ. And it was just a good night for the San Antonio Spurs in general. The Spurs clinched the final playoff spot in the West with their 114-102 win over the Phoenix Suns.

The win means that Texas will have three teams in the playoffs. San Antonio joins fellow state teams Houston and Dallas.

Giminski scored 41 points and grabbed 22 rebounds, career highs in both categories for the sixth-year center out of Duke, as New Jersey beat the Boston Celtics 108-98 in the NBA Wednesday night. The Nets thus joined the Philadelphia 76ers as the only clubs to hold more than one victory over the Celtics this season.

"As an athlete you go out there and sometimes feel you can't do anything wrong," Giminski said. "Things were flowing tonight. It's such a great feeling to have a game like this against a team like them." The real "them" didn't show up, according to Jones.

Evans blasts 'Sox past Tigers, 6-5

By The Associated Press
 After leading the American League last year with 40 home runs, Darrell Evans thinks he should play every day. So far, he has — but the season is only two games old.
 "See, to me, I've played two games that have counted. This is my environment. Nobody can take that away from me when I'm out there on that field," said Evans, who is hitting .624 after Wednesday's 4-for-5 performance, which included two homers, four RBIs and a game-tying single in the bottom of the 10th inning as the Detroit Tigers edged the Boston Red Sox

AL

Brewers 4, White Sox 3
 Robin Yount had four singles, scored once and drove in a run while Tim Leary held Chicago to five hits and two runs in seven innings as the Brewers won their second straight. Chicago starter Richard Dotson, sidelined most of last season, was tagged for five hits and four runs in six innings.
Milwaukee took a 3-0 lead in the fourth in on Rob Deer's bases-loaded grounder and Paul Householder's two-run double. The Brewers scored the decisive run in the seventh on singles by Jim Gantner, Mike Felder and Yount. Chicago's rookie John Cangelosi hit his first major-league homer.

Twins 5, A's 4
 Kent Hrbek broke a 3-3 tie with a run-scoring eighth-inning double off Oakland relief ace Jay Howell. Hrbek, who also had the game-winning RBI in the season opener, doubled to score Kirby Puckett, who singled and was sacrificed to second. Hrbek scored on a single by Roy Smalley. Mike Smithson went the distance for Minnesota, allowing eight hits and retiring 16 consecutive batters at one stretch.

 George Brett hit two solo home runs and Steve Farr pitched 4 2-3 innings of near-perfect relief. Brett's first homer led off the third inning against Ed Whitson, snapped a 2-2 tie and ignited a three-run uprising. It was the 194th home run of Brett's career, breaking the club record he shared with Amos Otis. Brett also homered off Bob Shirley in the seventh.
 Farr relieved a shaky Charlie Leibrandt with one out in the fourth and retired every batter he faced except for Ken Griffey's eighth-inning single.

Blue Jays 3, Rangers 1
 Doyle Alexander scattered seven hits in 8 1-3 innings for his 150th major-league victory. Tony Fernandez doubled home two runs in the fifth against 19-year-old Edwin Correa, the youngest player in the big leagues. Alexander took a five-hit shutout into the ninth but Pete O'Brien ruined the shutout bid with a home run.

Orioles 4, Indians 3
 Pinch-hitter Juan Bonilla hit a two-run double off the right-field wall with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning off rookie Scott Bailes, making his major-league debut. Cleveland had taken a 3-2 lead with two runs in the fifth against Mike Boddicker on Joe Carter's homer, Andy Allanson's single, Brett Butler's grounder and Tony Bernazard's single. Don Aase earned the victory with two innings of hitless relief.

San Francisco Giants shortstop Jose Uribe takes a tumble over Houston Astro Craig Reynolds as Reynolds was tagged out at second but foiled a double play attempt.

Surprising Giants win again

By The Associated Press
 Nobody's claiming any championships or predicting an unbeaten year. On the other hand, things are noticeably different around the San Francisco Giants.
 For one, the record is a perfect 2-0. Certainly, that's nothing spectacular. But it sure beats a 100-loss pace, which the Giants went on early last season, the first year a Giants' team ever lost 100 games.
 Rookie Will Clark and Bob Melvin each had run-scoring doubles and Jeff Leonard singled twice and scored two runs Wednesday night to lead the Giants to a 4-1 victory over the Houston Astros. The Giants, who had won only three of 15 previous games in the Astrodome, have taken the first two contests of the season there.
 "I don't think the attitude is different, I know it," said Leonard. "Attitude and confidence, that's that pounded into our heads."

 Manager Roger Craig, who finished the 1985 season at the team's helm, has insisted the Giants play fundamentally sound and aggressive ball.
 "We are the same players but it's a different mental attitude," Leonard noted. "People say you have the same players as last year so how can you be any better?"
 "But it's the power of the mind. That's the difference. We're not stronger or faster."
 Elsewhere Wednesday, it was Los Angeles 1, San Diego 0 on Bob Welch's three-hitter, and Philadelphia 5, Cincinnati 3 in 11 innings.
Giants 4, Astros 1
 Scott Garrelts, who made the All-Star Game as a reliever last season, blanked the Astros on two hits through five innings. He lost the shutout in the sixth on a double by Dickie Thon and a run-scoring single by Craig Reynolds.

Clark doubled to right field in the third inning, scoring Dan Gladden. Leonard singled to open the fourth inning, stole second and scored on a double by Melvin. Leonard led off the sixth with an infield single, advanced to third on singles by Chris Brown and Melvin and came home on a double play.

Garrelts had had to make a major adjustment from relieving to starting.
 "I worked on three or four windups during the spring," Garrelts said. "I haven't felt real comfortable but I went out there tonight and it all fell into place. I was worried before the game throwing out of the windup, but after the first couple of innings I felt comfortable."

Dodgers 1, Padres 0
 Welch allowed three singles in the series finale. All three games were low-scoring, one-run affairs — Los Angeles won the opener 2-1 behind Fernando Valenzuela's complete game; Dave Dravecky's three-hitter beat the Dodgers in Game 2, then Welch edged Andy Hawkins and the Padres.

Phillies 5, Reds 3
 A four-run 11th inning gave Philadelphia the victory. John Russell's two-run homer capped the rally off Reds relief star Ted Power. Singles by Garry Maddox and Juan Samuel and Glenn Wilson's sacrifice fly broke a 1-1 tie. Third baseman Buddy Bell booted a grounder by Von Hayes to let in another run, and Russell provided the winning runs.

Garvey turns author

LOS ANGELES AP) — Like many other athletes in recent years, the Garv has written a book. But this one's different, if for no other reason than you won't find one cuss word in the 225 pages.
 "I didn't have to use a lot of racy words or racy stories to tell a story," first baseman Steve Garvey of the San Diego Padres said. "Besides, I've got a junior high named after me (in Lindsay, Calif.) and I want it in their library."
 Garvey, 37, tells a story, all right. It's not entirely a happy one but, as he said at Dodger Stadium the other night before the Padres faced the Los Angeles Dodgers, there's more to life than just happiness.
 "It tells about the education of a person, the sociology of a person," he said. "I think it was a learning experience, both the writing of it and the living of it. I wanted to tell the story and give reasons why I acted as I did, said what I said.

"Writing the book probably gave me a greater understanding of why some things happened. And I wanted a book that would stand the test of time itself. A lot of kiss-and-tell books don't. I wanted to make sure I made a positive statement.

 like this," he said. "We're set for the rest of the season. We have the best record in the league. We didn't need it. The only reason we played it was because it was scheduled and we had to."

In other games Wednesday night, it was Sacramento 113, Utah 106; San Antonio 114, Phoenix 102; and the Los Angeles Clippers 132, Denver 127.

Kings 113, Jazz 108
 Otis Thorpe scored 10 points in the fourth quarter, including seven in a row in the final four minutes, as Sacramento spoiled a 45-point performance by Utah's Adrian Dantley.

Dantley pulled ahead of Atlanta's Dominique Wilkins in the NBA scoring race, building his average to 29.99 points per game. Wilkins is at 29.93. Each has two games to play.

Utah led 101-99 with four minutes remaining, but Thorpe scored seven straight points as the Kings outscored the Jazz 14-7 in the final four minutes.

Eddie Johnson led the Kings with 26 points, Reggie Theus added 21 and Mike Woodson 18. Thorpe's 10 points in the fourth quarter gave him 12 for the game.

Thurl Bailey added 17 points for the Jazz and Karl Malone had 15 points and 14 rebounds.

Spurs 114, Suns 102
 Mike Mitchell scored 22 points and Artis Gilmore 20, including eight in the fourth quarter as the Spurs claimed the eighth and final playoff berth in the NBA's Western Conference.

The loss means Phoenix will miss the playoffs for the first time in nine seasons.

San Antonio, playoff-bound despite the worst record in its franchise history at 34-47, took the lead for good in the second quarter.

Steve Johnson, who had seven of his 19 points in the period, triggered a late 10-2 run for a 60-53 Spurs' halftime lead.

Mitchell's eight third-period points put San Antonio ahead 86-76. Gilmore's layin and two free throws, Mitchell's three-point play and back-to-back hook shots by Gilmore pushed the San Antonio advantage to 111-97 with 2:45 to play.

The Suns lost their fourth in a row despite 23 points from Walter Davis and 20 from Mike Sanders.

Clippers 132, Nuggets 127
 Marques Johnson scored 32 points for Los Angeles, but the Clippers still were eliminated from a possible playoff berth by San Antonio's victory at Phoenix.

The Clippers led 87-80 with six minutes left in the third quarter when a public-address announcement told them of their fate.

Los Angeles went into the final period holding a 101-94 edge, but the Nuggets pulled within 121-118 with 3:13 left. Johnson and Cedric Maxwell scored four points apiece to seal the Clipper victory.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Opportunities are present all day and evening for some unusually productive ideas that can be reduced to a workable course to increase your present abundance.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Find a better way of handling assets and liabilities so that your life can be richer and fuller.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You can gain your personal desires through the good auspices of fine friends today. Show that you are a clever person.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Look to an important person who can show you the right direction to gain your finest ambitions. Be more thoughtful to this person.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Those who admire you and are successful are eager to see you get ahead faster so accept their help willingly.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Seek out a well-known expert and find out how you can get all of your affairs working on a more satisfactory basis.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Your associates have much expertise and can help you to gain some ambition that intrigues you now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Study some frustration you may have and turn it into a stepping stone for advancement.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A charming person can easily make peace between you and an associate who is in the mood for a fight.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You need the aid of kin to make a big success of whatever it is you are working on.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Get out in the bustling world of activity and make big headway, be it only for pleasure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you are more concerned with the needs of your family, you can gain greater respect and affection from your closest ties.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can have greater profits by adding worthwhile and reliable allies to your staff. Be more frank in stating your aims.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be of a very practical nature and be very interested in whatever is modern and inventive through which a greater success can be realized. Be sure to add psychology to the education so that your son or daughter can better understand the motives of others.

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF RATE CHANGE REQUEST AND STATEMENT OF INTENT
Notice is hereby given that CAP ROCK ELECTRIC COOPERATIVE, INC. (the "Utility") intends to change rates for electric utility service effective April 25, 1986. Based upon a test year ending June 30, 1985 the increase requested over actual test year revenues is $1,394,534 or 5.2%. The changes are applicable to all areas and all customers served by the Utility. The classes and numbers of Utility customers affected are as follows:

General Service	9,070
Irrigation	2,178
Commercial	4,770
Industrial	528
Lighting	2,868

The Utility intends to change its service rules and regulations including rules relating to obtaining service, line extension and line extension charges, the provision of electric service, service fees, and discontinuance of service. Implementation of the proposed changes is subject to approval by the appropriate regulatory authority. A statement of intent including the proposed revisions of tariff and schedules and a statement specifying in detail each proposed change is available at the general office of the Utility located at West Highway 80, Stanton, Texas.
Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 456-0223 or (512) 456-0227, or (512) 456-0221 teletypewriter for the deaf.
