Drunk driving

Q. Does the city have any plans to put a stop to drunk driving around the swimming pool at Comanche Trail Park?

A. Big Spring Police Capt. Lonnie Smith said police have not noticed a problem with drunk driving in that particular area more than elsewhere in the city. However, additional officers are patrolling the area both on foot and in cars "due to the shootings in that area," he said. "We work as diligently there as we do on the streets," he said. "We don't believe drunk drivers should be allowed to drive anywhere."

U.S. fleet nears Libyan waters

Allies hesitant to support military action against Khadafy

By The Associated Press
West Germany on Saturday said NATO backs the United States in its conflict with Libya, but there were signs Washington would not have unanimous allied approval if U.S. forces attack Libya for allegedly supporting terrorism.

Tensions between Libya and the United States have heightened since the bombings of a TWA jetliner on April 2 and a West Berlin discotheque on April 5. Five Americans died in the two incidents.

President Reagan said Libyan links were suspected but had not been proven. However, the U.S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean continued to sail closer to Libyan waters.

Libyan leader Moammar

Khadafy has threatened to strike at North Atlantic Treaty Organization bases in Italy, Spain and elsewhere in Europe if the United States attacks Libya.

Common Market foreign ministers are to hold an urgent meeting Monday in the Hague, Netherlands, to discuss a coordinated response to terrorism in Western Europe and tensions in the Mediterranean.

On Saturday, Vernon Walters, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, met with Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher in London amid increasing speculation that the United States might be considering using its F-111 fighter-bombers based in Britain to attack Libya.

Mrs. Thatcher and Walters discussed the U.S.-Libyan conflict, but neither would disclose specifics of their talks.

Walters arrived in London Friday night to begin a swing through Western Europe that will also include talks with leaders in West Germany, France and Italy.

Spring cleaning

Residents chip in to chuck out junk

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Everything from busted glass to dried-up cactus was chucked in a truck Saturday by as many 150 Big Springers who came with rakes, chainsaws and the determination to clean up the town's namesake.

And clean it they did.

When the last rake was put to rest and the last trash bag filled, a gleaming polish had been put on the city's prize jewel as more than 55 cubic yards of debris was ferreted from the spring area. Another massive container overflowed with plant overgrowth removed by chainsaws, muscles and a machetti.

Saturday's spit shine was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce Beautification Committee.

Committee chairman Hayes Stripling III said the spring cleaning was the idea of Clyde McMahon Jr., another committee member.

Besides cleaning the Big Spring, Stripling said he would like to see

Cancer Society plans Gong Show

John Richard Sparks, sporting a chicken outfit, will be emcee at the American Cancer Society gong show April 24 at the Big Spring Country Club.

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Big Springers have the chance to see a home-grown Gong Show April 24 when the American Cancer Society has its annual spring benefit.

The show will be at the Big Spring Country Club at 7:30 p.m. Cocktails will be served at 6:30 p.m.

"It's going to be a pretty big production," said Paula Talbot, co-chairman of the society.

The show will be a re-enactment of the Gong Show television show, with Richard Sparks as the emcee.

Acts include "Jean Jean the dancing machine," a dog that sings "Happy Birthday" and others that will be a surprise to everyone, Talbot said.

ClayDesta Communications will have an act, as will Pat Porter, Tommy McCann, Johnnie Lou Avery, state representative candidate Rich Anderson, and the Unknown Comic, she said.

A panel of four judges will rate the acts or give them the gong.

"We've been running tapes" of the television show, which airs weekday mornings, she said. "It was a riot."

This is the society's first gong show, she said. Last year's benefit was a western dance, and previous year's were wine and cheese parties.

Businessmen unite to combat burglars

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Concerned with the escalating number of business break-ins in the city, a group of area merchants are banding together in a "PAC."

People Against Crime, an embryonic anti-crime organization conceived by businessmen James Hughes and John Preston, will hold its first meeting at the Branding Iron Monday at 2 p.m.

Hughes and Preston, whose businesses have been stung hard by burglars, have been out drumming up support for PAC and report a lot of interest in the concept.

Hughes said he knows of about 20 business owners who are prospective PAC-men.

The enthusiasm these businesses have shown for PAC no doubt correlates with their enthusiasm for keeping crooks out of their buildings after hours.

So far this year there have been 105 business burglaries in Big Spring, according to police records; that's more than one every day.

Hughes, who along with his brother Mike, operates Hughes Rental and Repo Rental in west Big Spring, said his businesses have been hit by burglars eight times in the past six months. He said he has lost thousands of dollars to thieves.

Preston's Gold Designers on 11th Place was recently broken into by someone who smashed through the building's cinder block wall with a sledge hammer. He lost a "substantial amount" of property, he said.

Hughes said nothing definite has been hashed out on how PAC intends to fight back against burglars, but Preston said a PAC patrol is expected to evolve.

His idea is to have a member equipped with walkie-talkie patrol area businesses and relay anything suspicious to another member who will call police.

Preston stressed the group will work within the law and will at no time take the law into its own hands.

"This is no kind of vigilante group"; the law will be strictly observed, he said.

Hughes said PAC is not blaming burglary problems on anyone but the criminals. Preston concurred, but added the number of police officers patrolling the city is insufficient during peak times of criminal activity.

He indicated PAC will be speaking more about this to the City Council.

He also said PAC will follow up on business break-ins to see what steps police have taken in clearing cases.

Last week, Police Chief Rick Turner and Lt. Jerry Edwards presented to City Council a plan to place a number of $800 heat-sensing burglar alarms in businesses in an attempt to beef up police protection.

Turner told the council the plan consist of rotating as many as six devices among area businesses.

the whole city tidied up. Tuesday, he asked City Council to consider an ordinance targeting the widespread littering of town with glass and plastic beverage containers.

Stipling said a state law zeroing in on the litter menace is down the pipe. He sees no reason for Big Spring to wait for an edict from Austin to change things here, he said.

"Why not be a leader?" he asked. "Why not be a model for something that's right."

Stripling singled out the efforts of Public Utilities Director Tom Decell and the city for supplying a garbage truck and manpower to the effort.

Of Decell he said: "I respect him more and more when I work on this kind of stuff."

Decell, a member of the beautification committee, said he was "super happy with the turn out today. I'd like to see more of this go on all over the city."

Also lending a hand in purifying the legendary watering hole was the northside community service group ALSA.

Organization vice president and cleaning crew spokesman Larry Lara put the group's Saturday aim succinctly: "We're just trying to help the community."

A few weeks back the club hauled in $220 with a car wash at "Rain Aid" and gave it all to the Texas Little League.

"Folks need to cooperate," said one member. "We're always willing to help out," said another.

Members of ALSA said they recognize the litter problem throughout Big Spring and would like to see various segments targeted for trash extraction every month.

Other groups and individuals who chipped in some time and elbow grease include new Mayor

Thousands expected at Folk Festival

DALLAS (AP) — A three-day folk festival over the Memorial Day weekend could attract about 220,000 people in a celebration of Texas' heritage with music, arts, crafts and a rodeo, officials said.

The Central Dallas Association is sponsoring the Dallas Folk Festival on May 23-25. Officials said the festival could be the biggest event ever held downtown.

The nonprofit merchants' association and the city of Dallas planned the festival to commemorate Texas' Sesquicentennial. Officials said all costs for the event will be covered by private donations.

Festival spokeswoman Cindy Casey said the event, patterned after the National Folk Festival held annually in Washington, D.C., will feature the largest display ever of the state's regional cultures in a two square-block area around City Hall.

"The whole reason for the folk festival is to allow people to educate themselves about Texas and its heritage," said Ms. Casey.

"When people typically think of Texas, they think of the cowboy and Indian. They don't think of our diverse cultural backgrounds. We hope to educate them."

She said artists, craftsmen and musicians from the state's five general "cultural regions" will show their work. The regions are the Gulf Coast, Big Bend and East, West and North Texas.

prime minister, on Saturday called Khadafy's threats "unacceptable and intolerable."

But Guerra, speaking in Sevilla, also indicated Spain would not allow U.S.-Spanish bases to be part of military action against Libya, and said the U.S.-Libyan tension "does not benefit the southern European countries."

"The Spanish government is not inclined to (let) the bases be used" if there is military action, he said.

The United States has 12,500 military personnel on four joint-use bases leased from the Spanish government. The bases are controlled by the Spanish armed forces.

Meanwhile, West Germany's interior minister said Saturday that the United States has the backing of its NATO allies, and recommended Khadafy stop making threats.

"I would like to say that there is no person in the world who can give such statements, and I advise him to stop them because America will not be standing alone," Friedrich Zimmermann told reporters on a visit to Cairo, Egypt.

"America has the NATO countries behind it," he said. But Zimmermann refused to say specifically whether West Germany would support a U.S. military strike against Libya, replying, "I cannot answer a hypothetical question."

Elsewhere, Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek told reporters Saturday that "we prefer diplomatic to military action."

On Friday, Italian Defense Minister Giovanni Spadolini said that "only a political response from Europe (to terrorism) can reduce or eliminate the risk of unilateral American military action."

Italian Premier Bettino Craxi told reporters Saturday in Milan: "It is a damnably intricate situation."

He added: "I don't believe there will be a military intervention there (Libya) before Monday," the day of the Common Market meeting.

An anonymous phone call to the Italian news agency ANSA on Saturday threatened retaliatory action against Italy if "a single bomb" or "a single bullet" were used against Libya, ANSA reported.

Storm gets blame for two fatalities

DALLAS (AP) — Authorities blamed heavy rain and large hail that pelted North Texas late Friday and early Saturday for at least two fatalities, including the death of a pilot who was flying to the Dallas area for his girlfriend's birthday.

Dallas police said a single-engine plane went out of control during a hailstorm as the plane approached an airport in the suburb of Addison. The plane crashed in a private driveway shortly before 1 a.m. Saturday, said police Lt. John Sullivan.

The victim was identified as Mark Steven Mayer of Gallup, N.M., who was flying from Albuquerque to Addison Airport, said Justice of the Peace Kenneth Bangs. Bangs said the man had flown to Texas to attend his girlfriend's birthday party.

In Kilgore, winds tore the roof from a grocery store downtown, overturned mobile homes in a trailer park and caused one mobile home to catch fire. The storm downed power lines and felled trees.

A 14-year-old girl died when a tree fell on her mobile home east of Kilgore in the Monroe-New Hope community off Farm to Market Road 1249, said Rusk County sheriff's dispatcher Elaine Mitchell.

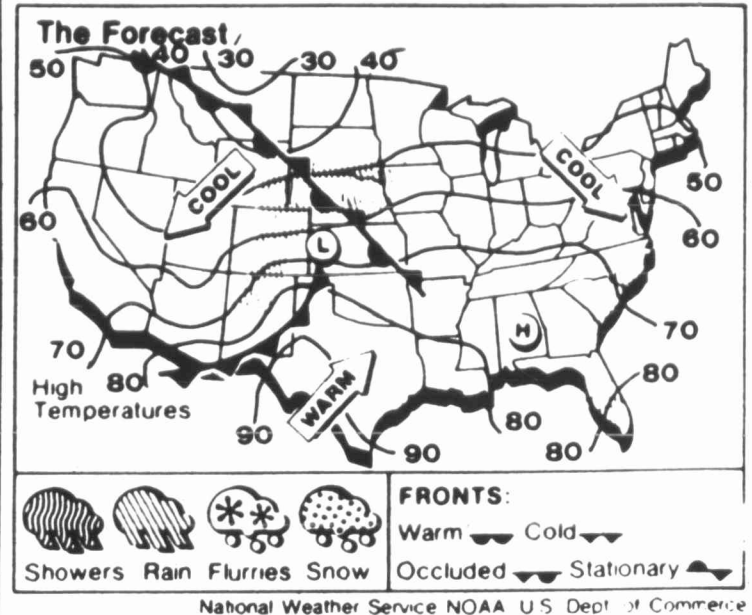

The victim was Patricia Ann Jameson, according to Chris Toler, an employee with Rader Funeral Home in Longview.

And in White Oak, a 14-year-old girl narrowly escaped injury from a blown-out window and a rancher near Big Sandy said high winds, possibly a tornado, tore past his house.

Kelly Nelson said she ran from her bedroom when she heard a barking dog. Glass from the window was scattered over her bed minutes later.

The storm also blew part of the roof off a White Oak beauty salon, said resident Liz Rogers.

Meanwhile, a weak cool front across the Central Panhandle held temperatures in the 60s across the northern Panhandle, making Dalhart the cool spot at 3 p.m. with 66 degrees.

Dry, warm air spread from the Trans-Pecos area down along the Rio Grande into the lower Valley. Temperatures in the 90s spread from the Big Bend across South Texas into the coastal bend and lower Valley. At 3 p.m. Laredo had a 100-degree reading after reaching 101 at 2 p.m.

Florida fears terrorists

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. — Florida's islands, beaches and sparsely populated inland regions make it a mecca for tourists and drug dealers, and they also could invite terrorists, says Gov. Bob Graham, who has proposed a $2 million bureau to protect the state from attack.

"We've seen how vulnerable we are to invasion by illegal drugs and illegal refugees," Graham said Thursday. "The same small boat or plane that today is bringing in cocaine could be bringing in terrorists with bombs." Florida legislators, who began their annual 60-day session Tuesday in Tallahassee, will consider a bill that would train existing Special Weapons and Tactics teams in terrorism response rather than create a special force, as Graham suggests.

FBI-killers said 'ruthless'

MIAMI — Two slain robbery suspects who killed two FBI agents and wounded five others during a fierce gunbattle were suspected in the ruthless shootings of at least four other people and may have had ties to extremist groups, authorities said.

The heavily armed suspects have been linked to at least a half-dozen bank and armored car robberies in Dade County during the last year, according to law enforcement officials. "In the holdups the group would be waiting for the guards and would just shoot them. They were ruthless. They were dangerous," said Al Carballosa, a Metro-Dade police spokesman.

Who'll pay for shuttle?

WASHINGTON — President Reagan probably will propose that a replacement space shuttle be built for the destroyed Challenger, but his recommendation to Congress has been delayed by an administration argument over how to pay for it, according to congressional sources.

An interagency task force report last week recommended that the NASA build a new shuttle but budget director James Miller and John Poindexter, the president's national security adviser, rejected the report it recommended adding money to the NASA budget to pay for it.

One congressional aide said there was little fat in the NASA budget, particularly in light of the Jan. 28 Challenger disaster. "The cost of recovering from this accident is somewhere between $3 billion and $5 billion, including fixing the hardware, replacing the orbiter and paying for the accident analysis," he said. "NASA's total annual budget is $7 billion. Clearly, $3 billion to $5 billion all can't come out of their budget."

Solidarity

Supporters from 19 states back strikers

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Thousands of striking meatpackers and supporters from at least 19 states marched through the streets Saturday, one day after a demonstration at a Hormel plant was broken up by police and 17 people were arrested.

Shouting "They say give back — We say fight back," the marchers carried placards and U.S. flags, then nearly filled the 4,500-seat Austin arena to support the strike against the Geo. A. Hormel & Co. by Local P-9 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union.

"We're (here) to help our brothers and sisters," said Marilyn Thornton, an officer with Local 335 of the Amalgamated Clothing and Textile Workers Union in Chicago. "This company is making millions of dollars and they're not giving it back to workers."

Supporters came to this southern Minnesota community from Texas, Illinois, California, New York, Massachusetts, Alabama, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Florida, Minnesota, Washington state, Maine, Pennsylvania, Maryland, New Jersey, Kansas, Wyoming and Missouri.

"We stand for freedom, we stand for fairness. We will continue to fight against this company with an all-out boycott of Hormel products," Jim Guyette, president of the local, told the rally.

"It certainly is a major labor struggle, and with the help of everyone here, we intend to win," he said.

"The people in Austin give courage to the people out there," actor David Soul, who also has supported labor disputes in Pittsburgh, said before addressing the rally. He said the strike "is a moral issue. It's not a question of procedures, but a question of morals."

The Rev. Jesse Jackson was to address the rally by telephone, but a hook-up through the public address system failed. Jackson was scheduled to arrive in Austin on Sunday morning for separate meetings with both sides, and Guyette said the civil rights leader would address an afternoon rally.

"His suggestions, any suggestions, would be most welcome."

A man wearing a gas mask and representing a St. Louis union was among thousands who marched in Austin, Minn., Saturday in support of striking meatpackers.

said Hormel Vice President Chuck Nyberg said. "A pure mediation role, we don't think, would be positive."

Eight police officers suffered head and eye injuries during Friday's demonstration when protesters threw rocks and sprayed Mace and other chemicals in their faces, said Police Chief Donald Hoffman. He called the violence a riot.

There were no reports of injuries to demonstrators. The 17 arrested were to be charged with felony riot, Hoffman said.

Guyette argued that Friday's demonstration was peaceful until it was "turned into a riot by the Hormel company in partnership with the city, county and state law enforcement officials."

A warrant was issued Friday charging Guyette with two felonies and three misdemeanors, including aiding and abetting a riot and unlawful assembly, said Mower County Attorney Fred Kraft.

A lawyer for Guyette, Ken Tilsen, said Saturday that authorities have agreed not to serve the warrant until 7 a.m. Monday.

County Sheriff Wayne Goodnature said Saturday he suspected authorities would make "numerous arrests" next week after they had reviewed video tapes of the demonstration.

About 1,500 P-9 members walked off their jobs at Hormel's Austin plant Aug. 17 in a dispute over wage cuts.

Bombs rock eight sites

LIMA, Peru — Bombs exploded overnight at eight places around the capital, including a U.S. Embassy warehouse, a branch of Citibank and the residence of the Venezuelan ambassador, police said Saturday.

No one was injured in the blasts, which authorities blamed on leftist insurgents. The other targets included a privately owned bank, the Lima office of Diners Club, a film store, a computer store and the Summe Linguistics Institute, a U.S.-funded organization that does missionary work and linguistic studies among primitive tribes in the jungle.

April in Paris ... is brisk

PARIS — Snow fell in northern and central France for the second straight day Saturday, and the French Meteorological Office said it was the coldest April in Paris for more than a century.

An almost stationary anti-cyclone over the North Atlantic sent masses of polar air across northern Europe, and many French cities reported the lowest April temperatures ever recorded.

Day 4 passes: no word

DUBLIN, Ireland — Armed police raided the homes of dozens of known criminals and drug dealers in the Dublin area Saturday as the hunt for kidnapped socialite Jennifer Guinness shifted away from IRA terrorists, police sources said.

But the sources, who insisted on anonymity, said no arrests were made.

"We're visiting a number of houses, both occupied and unoccupied — that's part of the operation," said police spokesman Pat Kiely. He refused to go into detail.

Moscow doubts motives

MOSCOW — The Communist Party daily Pravda claimed Saturday that the United States was using the issue of terrorism to distract world attention from its own nuclear testing.

"With the world being swept by strong protests against the April 10 nuclear blast in Nevada, Washington would like to switch attention to developments in another part of the world," the newspaper said.

"It was no happenstance that the barrage of charges that Libya was supporting terrorists became particularly heavy on the days when preparations were being completed for the underground nuclear test," Pravda said.

The Soviet Union announced Friday it was ending an eight-month, self-imposed moratorium on nuclear testing because of continued U.S. tests.

Thanks!

I would like to take this opportunity to thank each and every voter who went to the polls on Saturday, April 5th. It was very encouraging to see our citizens expressing themselves in record numbers. I am a firm believer in the old adage, "if you don't vote - don't gripe!"

I want to thank all the people who not only supported me with your vote, but with your kind words of encouragement. Your loyalty and friendship will always be remembered. To those of you who called, wrote cards, knocked on doors, helped with yard signs, stood all day in the hot sun, prayed with me, cried with me, and laughed with me - I just want you to know I could not have accomplished this without you - Thanks!

To my very worthy opponent and all who supported him, I want to personally express my appreciation for a very clean mayoral race. I think both Troy and I can be very proud of this. I challenge you to join us with your support in helping to solve the many problems facing our community. I pledge to you that I will do all in my power to be a mayor who represents all the people.

To those of you who did not vote, I challenge you to become a part of the solution rather than a part of the problem. Only through united, positive efforts can we achieve our goals.

Now that the mayoral race is over, it is time for us all to roll up our sleeves and go to work united in the common goal of making Big Spring a better place in which to live.

Sincerely

Mixed drink list is worth signing

Despite collecting 2,655 signatures last summer, Citizens for a Choice fell shy of the magic number needed to call a liquor-by-the-drink election in Howard County Precinct 1, including Big Spring. That election would determine whether mixed drinks would be available in public establishments in addition to beer and wine. Such an election is destined for Big Spring; it might as well be decided now.

Last summer's petition drive failed because, first of all, it is tremendously difficult to collect 2,421 signatures from 12,000 registered voters. The 2,421 figure is based on state law which requires 35 percent of the voting strength of the last gubernatorial election to sign a liquor-by-the-drink petition. Second, it fell short because even legitimate signatures were rejected from the petitions. State law governing alcohol-related initiatives is very specific in its directive: names on petitions must appear exactly as they do on the voter registration card, right down to crossing the "t" and dotting the "i".

Anything less than that is automatically rejected. A new petition effort is underway and organizers have learned from past mistakes. They are submitting the petitions for review by the Howard County Tax Assessor-Collector's office as the signatures are collected. That way, if a name is rejected for faulty signature a worker in the campaign can return it to the voter for a new John Hancock.

Nearly 1,800 signatures have been certified already. This liquor initiative should succeed. It should succeed because it does not address a new issue, it merely considers a new aspect of an old one. Alcohol is legally and readily available in Big Spring. Liquor, wine and beer are sold in liquor stores. Wine and beer is sold in convenience outlets and in eating establishments. Mixed drinks are sold in clubs accessible to anyone of legal drinking age who is willing to pay a modest fee as a "club" member.

About the only people who are excluded from imbibing are the occasional drinkers who would enjoy a cocktail with a meal at a restaurant and those who are visiting our city, such as conventioners.

The biggest hurdle to the mixed drink advocates is just getting the election off the ground. The only way they can do that is by signing up enough people who are willing to see a democratic vote decide the issue here. We urge anyone who has not signed the liquor-by-the-drink petition to do so.

White writers feed suspicion

I cannot pinpoint when it started, but I sense it nonetheless: There is a growing suspicion about the Hispanic population and its impact on society. It is leading critics to "lindly — and dangerously — lump Hispanics and Hispanic-related issues into a convenient mass. Perhaps it began last year, when U.S. News & World Report set the tone other writers are picking up. A mid-August cover story, "The Disappearing Border," begins: "Now sounds the march of new conquistadores in the American Southwest. The heirs of Cortes and Coronado are rising again in the land their forebears took from the Indians and lost to the Americans."

In a story ostensibly about illegal immigration, the magazine by the seventh paragraph look up the growth rates of the Hispanic population. In these first crucial paragraphs, by lumping together the entire Hispanic population — legal and illegal — the magazine cast the growth of the Hispanic population as a suspect event for the future of the country.

This kind of cultural generalization of Hispanics in the Southwest is happening with astounding regularity.

If writers and columnists persist in suggesting a "Hispanic problem" is arising, we will indeed have a Hispanic problem.

The leap of association seen recently in the national and local press renders a terrible disservice to Texas. The public is forming a rather disturbing perception about Hispanics, specifically, the Mexican-American population of the Southwest.

An otherwise innocent introduction to a National Geographic Society commemorative sesquicentennial map of Texas makes the same categorization, and ends

"Hispanics wield new political power and, 150 years after Texas cast off Mexican rule, the Lone Star State faces new challenges as a borderland of Spanish-speaking North America."

The clear implication, like in the U.S. News story, is that the border is under siege by a Spanish-speaking population on both sides of the Rio Grande.

The genesis of this line of thinking springs from the peculiar evolution of Texas society. But its modern-day application began several years ago when a Washington Post writer coined the phrase "MexAmerica." Not only are Hispanics growing in number, they are doing so upon a certain cultural and geographic stage, he wrote.

Using literary devices to paint images of a new phenomenon is fine enough, but the result can be counterproductive.

The most unusual commentary to date, however, appeared in George Anne Geyer's nationally syndicated column. Mexican and Hispanic-American Catholics could be ideologically confused, she wrote, and the "deculturalization and the disintegration" of the borderlands by illegal immigration is in the works.

One can only conclude she thinks that something is destroying and replacing U.S. society.

There is no question that the geopolitical problems in the Southwest are immense. But her column struck directly at U.S. Hispanics' loyalty.

Hispanics — and Spanish — will be always a part of the Southwest. But the only people saying they are going to be a different part of U.S. society are non-Hispanic writers.

Jesse Trevino, a former Big Spring resident, is a self-syndicated columnist who writes on Hispanic issues.

Coming soon... Calendar II

The popularity of the newspaper's front page calendar of events sometimes is a curse instead of a blessing.

I'm happy that so many people look to Calendar as their guide to community activities. It's distressing, however, that space limitations and newsworthiness considerations prohibit us from publishing everything that's nominated for the schedule. Occasionally that results in hurt feelings by representatives of organizations. And that in turn makes us unhappy.

I think we've got a solution, though, in what we are now planning — a Calendar II, if you will.

The problem is that we simply can't put as much into Calendar as people would like us to. There's only so much room on Page 1, and the How's That question and answer, Tops on TV and weather all must be included with Calendar in Springboard.

Just this past week I got two calls about items that had been submitted for Calendar but had not appeared in print. One concerned a Saturday event. The other was for Monday (tomorrow).

Both had been dutifully recorded in the newsroom's computer system by a reporter who helps coordinate Calendar items. But because the space on the front page column is limited, Calendar usually ends up each day in an abbreviated form.

The Calendar covers a week's span. When we have a lot of items, we reduce the length by cutting the events that will take place farthest in the future.

Last week we had so much that in Wednesday's paper, we were only able to publish Thursday events.

Two people who had given us news for Saturday and Monday events called to ask a logical question: What happened to our announcements?

Answer: We haven't had room for them yet.

Solution: Limit the items that appear in the front page Calendar.

Next Sunday, we hope to inaugurate Bulletin Board, a weekly listing on Page 2 of our newspaper that will focus on meetings and other organizational events in the upcoming week.

Right now, our guideline for the front page Calendar is only that the meeting be open to the public. There are just too many such meetings to practically serve them in the front page Calendar.

The items we really want to focus on for front page are non-regular events of a broad interest in the community. Some that come to mind quickly are: symphony concerts, the historic spring clean-up (which was Saturday), the annual registration for Bauer Magnet School (which is Monday, by the way, from 9 a.m. to noon), special events that benefit charity, and so on.

The meeting notices of organizations will go to the weekly calendar, which interested individuals can retain for reference (much as parents now do with the weekly school cafeteria menus we publish on Sundays).

The Sunday Bulletin Board will be accessible by groups holding meetings that are both general and special interest, open to the public or only to members — as long as our space on Page 2 holds out.

We'll get a form printed this week for use in submitting Bulletin Board items. Representatives from the organizations wishing to use Bulletin Board should use the forms to ensure all information about their group is correct and complete.

With "Calendar II," the new Bulletin Board, we can serve the dual purpose of giving organizations notice of their meetings and return to giving better notice of upcoming events in our front page calendar.

Around The Rim

The city that wouldn't die

By ROBIN WARD

More than six months since the devastating earthquakes shook Mexico, the country's reputation as a major tourist attraction remains tarnished — and unjustly so.

The week I recently spent in Mexico City was one of the most enjoyable vacations I've had.

The massive city, with its wealth of museums, pre-Columbian ruins and tree-lined boulevards and parks, was hardest hit by the Sept. 19-20 earthquakes. The tremors left more than 7,000 dead and an estimated 3,000 buildings destroyed or severely damaged.

Roberto Zapata, president of the Mexico City Hotel and Motel Association, was quoted in local newspapers as saying the tourism industry lost some $400 million in Mexico City alone since the quakes.

He attributed the weakness to lingering concern about the quakes, the popularity of beach resorts and poor promotion by both private and government officials.

Signs of the destruction are still evident in parts of Mexico City, but the major tourist areas, including museums, parks and pyramids, were unscathed.

Admittedly, some aspects of seeing the capital have changed since the quake. On a tour, the guide is likely to point out the sites of the Hotels Continental and Regis, recently demolished with explosives because they suffered extensive damage in the quakes.

Or he may show you where Placido Domingo was seen on international television searching for relatives trapped in rubble.

You may pass a corner plaza covered with small tents, which are serving as temporary housing for residents who lost their homes in the quakes.

But the beauty and excitement of the city remain intact. Residents are hard at work rebuilding, both to recover from the quakes and in preparation of soccer's foremost event, the World Cup, which Mexico City will host this summer.

The spirit of the city is still very much alive.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Sunday, April 13th, the 103rd day of 1986. There are 262 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On April 13, 1970, the astronauts aboard Apollo 13, four-fifths of the way to the moon, radioed Mission Control: "We've got a problem here." A tank containing liquid oxygen had burst, crippling the spacecraft and jeopardizing the astronauts' lives. The story ended happily four days later when the crew splashed down safely in the Pacific.

In 1598, King Henry IV of France signed the Edict of Nantes, which granted rights to the Protestant Huguenots.

In 1743, Thomas Jefferson, the third president of the United States, was born in what is now Albemarle County, Virginia.

Public meetings, private meetings

AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court sent a message to public officials across the state this past week. Unfortunately, the message is not crisp and clear, but at least it's out.

At issue is how candid officials must be with the public about what they are doing behind closed doors.

Texas has an open meetings law that sounds great if read by a layman. It stresses the need for openness in government and says public bodies may meet in secret only under extremely restricted circumstances.

That sounds good, but laws are written in words and words are subject to interpretations. Some officials and the lawyers who represent them have chosen to look at the open meetings law with an eye for loopholes rather than for compliance.

They have found those loopholes, and, unfortunately, many have chosen to use them. From a practical standpoint, it's hard to blame them. It's almost always easier to conduct business in private than in the open, but it's seldom good for the citizens who pay the bills.

The Texas Supreme Court's action came in a lengthy legal battle between the Austin American-Statesman and the Austin Indepen- dent School District.

The newspaper sued the school district five years ago, claiming that board members had violated the open meetings law. A key issue was the manner in which the board selected a new school superintendent in 1980.

Issues included whether the public received proper notice of the board's closed meetings and whether the board improperly hired the new superintendent in closed session.

The law allows closed meetings to discuss "personnel matters," and the hiring of the superintendent obviously comes under that general heading. But the law also requires governmental bodies to post public notices of all meetings, including ones that have been legally closed.

In the Austin case, the board simply announced it was going behind closed doors to discuss personnel matters and later voted in open session to hire John Ellis as superintendent.

The newspaper contended that the law requires governmental units to be more specific in describing the reason for a closed session. It also contended that the board selected Ellis in closed session and voted on him in public only as a formality.

Five years later, after various rulings in lower courts, the Supreme Court agreed with the newspaper on the posting requirement. The court told governmental bodies that they must be more specific about the subject to be considered behind closed doors. That's an important ruling on the side of freedom of information in Texas.

Unfortunately, the court agreed with a lower court ruling that said decisions could be made in secret as long as they are not final. This opens the way for officials to legally make informal decisions in private and only rubber-stamp them in public. And this is a blow to the freedom of information in Texas.

It means that officials can continue deciding important issues behind closed doors and casting pre-decided votes in public. That won't be a problem for most people until they suddenly become interested in the fate of a football coach or involved in some other controversial subject.

They won't know when they see a vote taken whether it's for real or a formality. But at least now they will know in advance what the officials have been talking about behind those solid closed doors.

Jim Davis is business chief for Harte-Hanks newspapers in Austin.

Reagan urges action on budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan said Saturday that Congress, bogged down in its attempts to fashion a fiscal 1987 budget, is endangering the economic recovery and "all that we've worked so hard to achieve" by its inaction.

"Isn't it time the Congress got government out of the way — and let the good times roll?" Reagan asked in his weekly radio address, broadcast from the presidential retreat at Camp David, Md.

"As the April 15th deadline approaches — the deadline American taxpayers must meet whether we want to or not — the budget resolution the Congress must put together is nowhere near completion," he said.

Reagan prodded Congress to meet its self-imposed April 15 deadline to approve a budget, but he did not indicate any willingness to compromise on a budget alternative. The White House rejected out of hand a bipartisan alternative passed by the Senate Budget Committee almost a month ago.

On Thursday, an impatient, Republican-led Senate passed a resolution that puts Reagan's tax overhaul plan on hold until a budget agreement is reached.

In his address, Reagan said once again that he would veto any budget plan that includes a tax increase.

"My veto pen is inked up and ready to go," he said. "Sometimes a president just has to spell relief v-e-t-o. We submitted a budget to the Congress last February that meets the deficit-shrinking requirements set by the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings act and does so while avoiding a tax hike."

He said those in Congress who support a tax increase are misguided.

"Many don't understand that the real trouble isn't just the federal deficit itself, but government overspending. You see, the more the government spends, the more resources it takes from the private sector, the greater the upward pressure on interest rates and the lower the rate of economic growth," he said.

"Whether the government obtains its funds through taxation or borrowing, the root problem remains the same — government use of spending to take over more and more of the economic life of our nation."

Wedding on ice

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — The wedding of Lisa Ann Stapp and Gary Scharphorn drew 4,705 people — paid attendance.

The couple exchanged vows Friday at center ice of L.C. Walker Arena before face-off of an International Hockey League game between the Muskegon Lumberjacks and the Fort Wayne (Ind.) Komets.

After the brief ceremony, the couple walked beneath an arch of crossed hockey sticks held by 17 members of each squad. The Rev. Ben Johnson performed the ceremony and told the new Mr. and Mrs. Scharphorn: "I'm sure you won't have any trouble remembering your wedding."

Disposable Contact Lenses

At last! The news you (and I) have been waiting for — disposable contact lenses. Our office has been selected as one of the few Texas locations for a new innovative program called the Fresh Lens Pro-Care System. This long-awaited pilot program is a simple, affordable program of phased lens replacement (a new pair of soft contact lenses every three months) and periodic exams. Your contact lenses will keep performing like new because every three months they are new.

In recent months there has been considerable national publicity concerning eye infections as related to soft contact lenses. The primary cause of the trouble has been from the continued wearing of dirty contact lenses and the lack of proper follow-up exams. The Fresh Lens Program is ideal in addressing this problem. The program is affordable and, in most cases, no more expensive than regular yearly costs. In my opinion, this is an excellent plan. If you would like more information, just call or come by our office.

Study gives bleak picture of students' writing

BALTIMORE (AP) — A federally financed survey released Saturday found that 62 percent to 80 percent of American 17-year-olds demonstrated unsatisfactory writing skills, depending on the type of writing tested.

Despite some recent improvements, the 10-year study, which also tested 9- and 13-year-olds, concluded that American students' writing skills remain in dismal shape.

The study, released at a national convention of education writers, said there is "clear cause for concern about the writing proficiency of the nation's students."

"Despite an increased emphasis on writing at all grade levels during the decade, students in 1984 appeared to be only just regaining their 1974 levels of proficiency," it said.

The report was issued by the National Assessment of Educational Progress, established by Congress 17 years ago to test how well the nation's schools are doing in various subjects. For 21½ years, NAEP studies have been administered by the private, non-profit Educational Testing Service in Princeton, N.J., but the studies remain federally funded.

The latest survey tested 15,000 9-, 13- and 17-year-olds from around the country in 1984. It compared performance in three kinds of writing — persuasive, informative and imaginative — with students similarly tested in 1979 and 1974. A total of 95,000 students took part in the three assessment years.

Their writing was judged on two levels: first, whether the student accomplished the basic task — that is, was persuasive writing convincing, was descriptive writing vivid enough, and did imaginative writing evoke thinking or feelings. Second, the writing was evaluated for organization, content, grammar and usage, spelling, punctuation and choice of words.

Among the findings:
 • 76 percent of 17-year-olds, 83 percent of 13-year-olds and 95 percent of 9-year-olds could not write an adequate imaginative piece of writing.

• 62 percent of 17-year-olds, 81 percent of 13-year-olds and 97 percent of 9-year-olds wrote unsatisfactory informative prose.

• 80 percent of 17-year-olds, 90 percent of 13-year-olds, and two-thirds of 9-year-olds could not write a persuasive letter.

"For advantaged and disadvantaged students alike, the proportion of competent writers remains distressingly small," it said.

"On the bad news side, American youngsters aren't writing any better than they were 10 years ago, despite an increased emphasis on writing by schools," Archie LaPointe, executive director of NAEP, said in a telephone interview.

"But the good news is that from 1979 to 1984, the trend lines are up. If we continue in that direction, there is a chance for solid growth," he said.

In Washington, Education Secretary William J. Bennett said, "This important report shows that the second of the three R's is in appalling poor shape among American young people. The reform movement that has begun to show real progress in reading had best now begin to pay some close attention to writing."

The report said schools seemed to be giving more attention to writing instruction in 1984 than in 1974. Still, about one-third of 17-year-olds and 40 percent of 13-year-olds reported receiving little or no writing instruction.

The report urged that elementary schools stress informative and persuasive writing tasks, and that older children be assigned more creative and imaginative assignments.

As an example of what tasks students were tested on, 9-year-olds were asked to write a persuasive letter to their imaginary Aunt May persuading her to allow the youngster to travel alone to visit her.

One letter rated unsatisfactory read:

"Dear Aunt May, 'I know everybody say I to little to travel but I'm not if you sometimes give kids a chance to prove something to you Maybe it won't be so bad. Maybe we can help you to give kids a chance. Yours truly, your nice."

Said LaPointe: "There is cause for concern both about the lack of progress and generally low level of writing proficiency."

Alamo defenders brace for battle

Journey through Texas

By BRIAN A. WILSON
As dawn broke today, March 3, 1836, the 182 patriots in the Alamo could only watch as the last courier left the Alamo, taking with him a few letters — and the last hope for survival.

The Alamo and all of San Antonio has belonged to Texas for the last three months, since Ben Milam routed Mexico's General Cos from the city in a fine battle. But now General Cos' brother-in-law, General Santa Anna, has come to take back the Alamo. He's got 6,000 soldiers and no desire to take prisoners.

If Col. William Travis had followed orders, the Alamo would now be rubble. Gen. Sam Houston told him to blow up the fort and retreat to Goliad to solidify Texas' forces. But Travis wouldn't have it. He and 150 men decided to hold the fort. Only 32 men from nearby Gonzales have answered his call for reinforcements, but surely more will come.

Yesterday the politicians signed the Texas Declaration of Independence in Washington-on-the-Brazos, but it seems independence will have to be earned here at the old mission.

Col. William Bonham has just hightailed it through the whole Mexican army outside the Alamo! He's come to tell Col. Travis that Fannin's men can't make it. No more men will be coming to the Alamo.

That leaves 182 Texas

As Colonel Travis stands at attention, the men of the Alamo cross the line to do battle for Texas' independence ... and to meet their fates. This drawing is from the Barker Texas History Collection at the University of Texas-Austin.

fighters to face 6,000 heavily armed Mexican troops.

Days ago, when things began to look bad, Santa Anna had offered surrender and Col. Travis had considered it. But when the Mexican said, "You must surrender at discretion, without any guarantee of life, which traitors do not deserve!" Travis decided it was better to fight.

The last bag of mail has gone out. Col. Travis sent a letter to the government at Washington-on-the-Brazos, telling them why everyone is still here, being bombarded for the 11th day of Mexican artillery.

"The power of Santa Anna is to be met here by the colonies," says the colonel. "We had better meet it here than to suffer a war of desolation to rage in our settlements. They have declared us rebels and demanded that we surrender at discretion or this garrison shall be put to the sword. Their threats have no influence on me or my men, but to make all fight with desperation and to die in defense of his country's liberty and his own honor. God and Texas! Victory or Death!"

That same letter pouch holds the last note from one Alamo defender, Isaac Millsaps, to his blind wife and six children in Gonzales.

"I hope help comes soon 'cause we can't fight them all," Millsaps writes. "If we fail here, get to the river with the children; all Texas will be before the enemy. If any men come through there, tell them to hurry with powder for it is short. I hope you get this and know — I love you all. I don't know what else to say. They is calling for all letters. Kiss the dear children for me and believe as I do that all will be well and God protects us all." — Isaac.

Now it is afternoon and Col. Travis gives the men one last chance to leave. With his sword, he draws a long, straight line in the dirt, right in front of the whole bunch of defenders of the Alamo. "Those who wish to stay and die, cross that line. Who'll be first — march!" Travis shouts. After they carry Jim Bowie across in his sick bed, only Moses Rose takes the chance to leave, making him the last white man to escape the battle of the Alamo.

White pledges to fix Hispanic dropout rate

By JANET WARREN
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Gov. Mark White told Hispanic leaders Friday that he will work with state education officials to correct a sizable dropout rate among Texas Hispanic students.

A delegation from the League of United Latin American Citizens, which held a conference on the problem Thursday, gave White recommendations to stem the tide of dropouts.

"If we don't educate our people, then Texas will see nothing but tougher times," said Jose A. Botello, state LULAC director.

White has started an "education revolution" with school reforms adopted in 1984, Botello said.

"But still 20 percent of the Texas population is frozen out of the process because of ignorance and racism on the part of school boards and administrators. The teachers and the kids are the victims," Botello said.

Botello said an exact rate on Hispanic dropouts can't be calculated because of a lack of information. But figures run from 30 to 80 percent, depending on the school district, he said.

The group's proposals include a better system for pinpointing who has dropped out of school, dropout prevention programs, which currently are rare to non-existent, and a state conference for school administrators and trustees to focus on the alarming Hispanic dropout rate.

The Hispanic leaders also asked that the Texas Education Agency require school board members to attend training seminars on Hispanic educational concerns.

The group wants the agency to make schools offer parental training programs, emphasizing parents as partners in education.

"I am looking forward to working with TEA toward their implementation," White said of the suggestions.

Old goat is baa-ad candidate

LAJITAS (AP) — Residents of this unincorporated Big Bend community have put up with more than their usual share of political bleating lately.

In fact, they have just cause to complain that one of their mayoral candidates is making a goat of himself.

Some might say that Clay Henry's candidacy is nothing but a baa-ad joke. Clay Henry, however, happens to be a billy goat.

Bill Ivey, his campaign manager, said Clay Henry is not trying to pull the wool over anyone's eyes and is clearly a better candidate for the honorary office than incumbent Tommy Steele, a construction company owner from Houston.

Lajitas, about 230 miles southeast of El Paso, is between Terlingua and Presidio. About 100 people and 20 goats live there.

"First of all, Clay Henry is a local, and Lajitas would rather have someone local than someone who lives in Houston, of all places," Ivey said.

He described Clay Henry's position on the political spectrum as being somewhere between Pope John Paul II and Pat Paulsen.

Surprisingly, the candidate is touting his drinking record.

"Unashamed and without assistance, he has drunk as much as a case of beer a day to the delight and amazement of those who have visited Lajitas," Ivey announced in a recent press release.

Steele was elected under questionable circumstances in February 1985, Ivey said, after the death of the previous mayor, Buster, who was a dog.

That election occurred during a freak snowstorm in which a group of Lajitas and an army of out-of-towners were trapped in the town's saloon and a brief one-issue campaign ensued.

"Mr. Steele was elected that night by saying he was going to get snow moving equipment for Lajitas," Ivey said. "We don't agree with that."

Ivey charges that Steele stole that election and is likely to steal the next one unless the eligible voters who are not from Houston rally to the cause.

Q.: We're considering taking back a mortgage on the sale of our home. What should we know for making a wise decision in this?

A.: Most experts in the field of mortgage finance agree sellers considering taking back a mortgage should only do so if the buyer has 20% or more in equity in the house. This provides an adequate buffer in the event of foreclosure. Secondly, always request a credit report on the prospective buyer. They're inexpensive and easily obtained. Always use professional loan documents. And, always consult your attorney. And, don't place the interest rate too low. A much lower than-market rate will reduce the return if you retain the loan, and will affect the resale value if you sell it.

Former oilfield welder Alton Rae, 31, of Odessa sits in his Medical Lab Technology class at Odessa College recently, explaining his reasons for leaving the oil patch and changing careers.

Oil industry workers train for new careers

ODESSA (AP) — Alton Rae said he grew up in Odessa thinking he would spend his life working in the oil fields.

That's before he was laid off from his welding job.

Now, he's in his second year of training at Odessa College for a new career as a medical technician.

A college administrator said he expects many people who lose jobs in the current economic downturn to train in new fields.

"People try to go back to school to get their job skills up," said Roger Coomer, Odessa College vice president for finance. "We're hoping for that, as long as people don't leave the area."

When the economy soured in 1983, "that following semester (Fall 1984) we had our biggest enrollment ever," Coomer said.

Rae, 30, said he was laid off in 1983.

"Back in '83 when the bust hit, the welding shops closed down," he recalled. Rae said his wife encouraged him to train for another type of work.

"I didn't want to follow work around. I'd rather have a steady job," he said. "People are going to have to retrain or follow the work around."

He decided to study to become a medical technician, work that he thought he would enjoy and that would give him the stability he sought.

"I've had a lot of people asking me about ... what it was like to have to retrain," Rae said.

He said he expects others in oil-related professions will follow his example. But Rae said when he started working, he thought the rest of his life would revolve around the petroleum industry.

"I had all intentions of staying in to it, until it fell apart," Rae recalled. "I was making good money and moving up."

"But this will be more rewarding," he said while sitting in a medical technology lab at Odessa College.

Coomer said few people nowadays can select a field and stay in it for the rest of their lives.

"People need more than one career," he said. Most people will retrain four to six times during their working lives, Coomer said.

And in a rapidly changing economy, having more than one skill proves useful, he said.

"You never know what's going to be hot and what's going to be out for a while," he said.

Film fights sexism in the medical world

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fade in.

Several female medical students sit in class and pass around a picture of a nude male, much to the embarrassment of two men in the room. Suddenly, one woman decides to tack the centerfold on the blackboard.

"Hey, not bad," says the female professor when she comes in and sees the beefcake shot. "I think I'll take this home and make a slide for my next lecture."

Fade out. The skit is one of five in "Turning Around: Sexism in Medicine," a movie that shows sexism with a smile by depicting men in medical school as victims of chauvinism rather than women.

"Humor is the best way to reach people," said Dr. Maureen Longworth, who made the film when she was a medical student at the University of California-San Francisco.

"I think it's really ineffective to change anything as insidious as sexism by attacking people. By allowing people to laugh at themselves, it strikes home in a much more powerful way," she said.

Longworth, 35, is a second-year resident in family practice at San Francisco General Hospital. She made the 18-minute color film in 1984.

"Turning Around" has since been used by several organizations and schools to point out sexist behavior. At UCSF, it is required viewing for the clinical faculty, she said.

Longworth's fellow medical students performed and filmed the skits at a cost of about $1,000, donated by UCSF and a few pharmaceutical companies.

Every skit is based on an actual incident. In other highlights, a male lecturer is jeered and ignored and a medical school applicant is asked by a female interviewer whether he plans to marry and how he could be a good father as a doctor.

Women are encouraged to become surgeons, while men are told to take up the piano because of their "beautiful hands." A woman doctor orders a complete checkup for a woman with a headache, while a man with a severe head injury is prescribed Valium for "hysteria."

"What we are socialized with is a lack of respect for women," which is transferred to female patients, Longworth said. "Men patients are treated much more seriously than women patients."

Longworth has been involved in women's issues for several years. While in medical school, she helped found the San Francisco Women's Medical Student Association and the Women in Medicine Retreat.

She said the idea for the film came when the skits were enthusiastically received after live campus performances. Longworth decided a film would make it possible to point out sexist behavior in other medical schools.

Longworth feels it's important because the number of women entering medical school is growing. According to the American Medical Association, there were 9,786 women in medical school in 1975 — 18 percent of the total. For the 1984-85 school year, the number jumped to 21,287 women — about 32 percent.

But she says that individuality was not encouraged for women when she was growing up in Southern California's San Fernando Valley. She excelled in science, but no one ever suggested medical school. She earned a psychology degree at Loyola Marymount University instead.

After college, she moved to Berkeley and worked for a women's health collective. It was there that she first seriously considered medicine, after meeting her first female doctor at the age of

28. "It's hard to imagine that someone who once called herself a 'Valley chick' made a film about sexism," she said.

CARING is helping control costs.

We do more than say, "We care." We show it. One way is by making sure the funeral service is meaningful and dignified. Another important consideration is cost. Certainly we understand the family's need to control cost. In caring concern, we offer every available option to do so. (The cost does not affect the dignified quality of our service.)

Bogeys drop Ballesteros into second

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Seve Ballesteros backed away with a bogey-bogey finish and handed Greg Norman the third-round lead Saturday in the 50th Masters golf tournament.

"It's a surprise," said Norman, the craggy-faced Australian known as "the Great White Shark."

"You don't expect Seve to finish like that. But that's golf," he said, "And that's Augusta National."

South African Nick Price played it as if it were some other course, some minor municipal layout instead of one of the most revered courses in the world.

Price took advantage of the absence of winds and slower, softer greens to compile a 9-under-par 63, a course record on Augusta National, and move to within one stroke of the top spot after three rounds of play.

The one-time Rhodesian airman scattered 10 birdies across his card and broke the course record of 64 set in 1940 by Lloyd Mangrum.

It put him into a 4-way tie for second with Ballesteros, defending champion Bernhard Langer of West Germany and Donnie Hammond, a former gallery guard at this foreign-dominated tournament and the only American among the top five.

They're at 211, one back of Norman's 6-under-par lead.

"It's a nice feeling," said Norman, who reeled off consecutive birdies on Nos. 11, 12 and 13 — the famed Amen Corner at Augusta National — and shot a 68 in the mild, windless weather.

"I'm looking forward to tomorrow and my big chance," he said.

But then, so are Ballesteros, the Spanish star who owns two Masters titles and a couple of British Open crowns, Langer and Hammond.

"Looks like a very exciting finish," said Langer, said the light-haired West German who had a 69. "You simply try to put yourself in position to win."

"I like my position — but not the way I finished," said Ballesteros, who could do no better than a round of par 72. "I'm happy, confident and playing very well. Maybe I was just saving my putts for tomorrow."

"I'm second, one shot out of the lead," said Hammond, who closed with a 67. "I didn't make a bogey. If my putter stays hot, I have a chance."

So do some others.

The group at 212, two strokes back, included Tom Kite and Tom Watson and still another foreign star, Tommy Nakajima of Japan.

Kite and Watson, playing together before a massive, shouting gallery, each had 68s and Nakajima managed a 71.

Not quite out of it at four strokes back, but with a large number of players in front of him, was Jack Nicklaus the 46-year-old Golden Bear who won this title five times.

"Usually, it's not how many shots behind you are, it's how many players are in front of you," Nicklaus said after a 69 that lifted him to 214.

"I assume I'm in it," he said. "They did something to the greens, watered them or something. They were softer and you could take a run at the putts," Nicklaus said.

But it didn't help Bill Kratzert, the journeyman who had been in contention through the first 36 holes. He took a 76 and was well back at 216.

"It was an easy day. There was

Arnold Palmer (left) and members of "Arnie's Army", a large group of the gallery that follows him, keep a close eye on one of his shots in a earlier round of the Masters. Palmer, who has won four Masters, failed to make Saturday's cut.

no guesswork because there was no wind," said Watson, a 5-time British Open champion trying to fight his way out of a two-year, non-winning string.

But it was not easy for the frustrated Ballesteros, who simply could not make a putt and lost the lead on a bogey-bogey finish.

Spewing Spanish at his brother-caddy, Vicente, he 3-putted the 17th and failed to get up and down from a bunker on the 18th.

"I had 15 putts inside of 20 feet and I didn't make any of them. That's the key," Ballesteros said. "I'm happy, confident and playing well."

"I like my position — but not my finish," he said.

That finish allowed a host of contenders, with eight men now locked within two strokes going into the final 18 holes.

Price, for the last three seasons a regular on the American tour, didn't require any favors. He stormed into contention on the greatest charge ever seen on these rolling hills.

"It's the kind of course that when you get it going, you can really get it going," said the man who lists his home as South Africa, carries a British passport and anticipates a move to America.

And he got it going better than anyone ever has, better than any of the greats who have played here in more than a half-century, better than Nicklaus and Palmer and Player, better than Hogan and Snead and Nelson, better than Hagen and Sarazen and Bobby Jones himself.

Not only did he set the Augusta National record, he matched the lowest score ever compiled in any of the Big Four events, which also include the U.S. and British Opens and the PGA.

And he did it with a bogey on the first hole, where he drove into a bunker and couldn't reach the green.

High jumper sets new mark

MIDLAND — Brian Mayfield was the "attention getter" for the Big Spring High School tracksters Saturday at the Tall City Relays.

The sophomore high jumper set a new meet record of 6-10 in his specialty. It was also a personal and school record for the defending District 4-5A champion.

"Brian did a super job," said Steers coach Randy Britton. "He didn't miss until he tried 6-10. When he cleared 6-10 he went over about 4-5 inches. He cleared 7-0 with his back but didn't have enough speed to go over it."

Mayfield was one of the few bright spots the Steers had as they finished in sixth place with 33 points. San Angelo Central won the meet with 121 points. Home favorite Midland Lee was second with 113 points. Odessa High and Abilene High tied for third with 81 points.

The other Steer to finish in the top three was half-miler Dax McCracken. The senior finished third in the 800 meters with a personal-best 1:59.30, the first time he has dipped under the two minute barrier.

The Steers ran a season best 42.90 in the 400 relay, good for sixth place. Brian Reid dipped under the 40 second barrier in the 300 hurdles for the first time in his career. His 39.40 was good for fourth.

The Steers ran a 3:25.20 in the 1600 relay to finish sixth, three second off their best. "I'm extremely mad at them," said Britton of his 1600 relay team. "They haven't run up to their potential yet. We get a good leadoff leg by Cedrick Banks (50.5) and the others don't run like they can. They'll have to check and see how bad they want it next week at district."

The Big Spring Lady Steers finished in sixth with 39 points. Midland Lee nosed out Odessa Permian 134-130 for the team championship.

Big Spring brightest performance was turned in by freshman distance runner Susan Garza. Garza won the 3200 in a school-record 13:30.90. She also

Landry pitches gem; Hawks bop Ranger

RANGER — The Howard College Hawks got a masterful pitching performance from freshman Greg Landry as they turned back the second place Ranger Rangers 10-2 Saturday afternoon in Region V action.

Landry turned in perhaps his brightest performance of the season as he stifled a Ranger batting attack that simply dominated Howard in the first three-game series between the two teams.

The Abbeville, LA native went the full nine innings while scattering 10 hits, striking out five and walking four. He pitched seven innings of scoreless ball while picking up his third win in five decisions.

But Landry did get plenty of support from his teammates, who banged out 16 hits, including four homers. Joel Chimelis, Richard Messer, Roland Gonzales and Kevin Hays all had round-trippers for the Hawks.

Howard took a 3-0 lead in the third inning when Chimelis hit a three run shot. His shot drove in Gonzales and Fred Lopez, who had singled.

Howard added two more runs the next inning. Frank Medina singled and Gonzales cleared the bases with a round-tripper.

The Hawks got three more insurance runs in the ninth. Hays led off with a homer. Next Chimelis singled and Messer banded out a home run.

The Hawks will face Ranger in a double-header today starting at 1 p.m. Howard is now 23-18-1 overall and 3-12-1 in region play.

Breland stops Anderson

TOTOWA, N.J. (AP) — For a few moments before he went into the ring to fight Daryl Anthony on Saturday, Mark Breland closed his eyes and recalled an amateur bout five years ago in which he was beaten by Anthony for the only loss of his career.

"I had to get that picture out of my mind," said Breland, who quickly opened his eyes and then went out and opened the eyes of any doubters who may remain about his future as a professional fighter.

Using a punishing left jab to perfection, Breland cut up Anthony and stopped him in the third round to avenge the only defeat he had suffered in 111 amateur fights and 11 pro bouts.

"This was the fight to get me over the hump," said the 22-year-old Breland, who knocked down Anthony with a crashing right to the jaw just seconds before a ringside physician halted the scheduled 10-round welterweight match at 2:14 of the third.

"Some of my friends said to be me, 'Do you think you can beat this guy?'" Breland said.

Breland dominated the 27-year-old Anthony of St. Louis who had 200-15 record as amateur and is 22-2-2 with 15 knockouts as pro.

"There's a big difference in looking at him on television and being in there with him," Anthony said. Anthony also found out there was a big difference between Breland as a 17-year-old amateur and as a maturing pro who seems to improve with every fight.

"He's more sure of himself now," Anthony said. "The combinations are coming faster and more accurately."

Breland, the 1984 Olympic welterweight champion who scored his sixth knockout as a pro, said, "I felt my left jab was my most effective punch."

Breland's jab found its mark from the outset and set up his right hand to the head. The 6-foot-2 Breland also did not ignore Anthony's body.

Breland, of New York who weighed 147¹/₄, cut Anthony, 143³/₄, over the left eye with a right hand in the first round of the bout, watched by a crowd of 1,089 at the 3,000-seat Ice World arena and an ABC-TV audience.

"When the blood was running down my face, I was losing all track of what I was trying to do," Anthony said. "I worried about how bad it was."

The doctor decided in the third round that the cut was bad enough to halt the fight, but Breland would have ended it on his own if the ring doctor had not stopped it.

Breland was landing punches to the head at will in the third round, when with about one minute left, feinted with his left and crashed a right to Anthony's jaw. Anthony, who had knocked down Breland in three-round amateur bout in which he won a 3-2 decision, got up at a count of three. Referee Tony Orlando then summoned the doctor.

"I think he's championship material," Anthony said Breland. Promoter Dan Duva said Breland's next bout would be in May. He did not name an opponent.

"I think Mark is ready for anybody in the world," Duva said. Added trainer Joey Fariello, "You've only seen the tip of the iceberg of Mark as a fighter."

Bearing down on bad guys

Sgt. Pace checks the position of the gun and my stance as I prepare to shoot.

All alone late at night. The sound of footsteps reach my door. A knock. I ask who it is, but no one replies. I ask again, still no reply. A cough. A deep, husky cough. It must be a man. Voices. One says, "There's a woman in there. I'll drive around the block and come back." Oh my God! What do I do? Call the police. I can't. The telephone isn't hooked up yet; we just moved in. There's no other exit, only one door. Oh my God! Stay calm. Think straight. Get the gun! I don't have one. I peek out the window. He's gone. I grab my coat and run down the stairs. Hop in the van. Oh, please God, let the van start. It starts. I made it!

After feeling so scared and so helpless, I wanted to do something to make me feel more secure. So, my fiance went out and got a gun to keep at home. The only problem was I didn't really know what to do with it. My limited experience with guns had been isolated to target practice with rifles and BB guns on camping trips with my family. In fact, I don't recall even loading a gun by myself; my dad and brothers always did it for me.

So when I heard about a firearms workshop sponsored by the crime prevention unit of the Big Spring Police department under the direction of police Sgt. Fred Pace, Sgt. John Leubner and Lt. Jerry Edwards. I thought it would be a good learning experience — just in case.

When I arrived at the workshop early Saturday morning, I was surprised to see that so many of the participants were over 40. I thought there would be a range of ages represented. During the class the officers spoke about safety procedures, showed us the technique of loading and unloading guns and shared information regarding the legalities of carrying and using weapons. We looked at the guns and practiced our stances for shooting. Then it was on to the firing range.

At the firing range, we dealt with the reality of shooting a weapon. Here we handled, loaded, unloaded and shot the pistols. It was an eerie feeling to shoot a gun knowing I was learning the technique not only for fun, but possibly for use against another human being.

"Everyone must make the decision themselves," said Sgt. Leubner. "Could you pull a trigger knowing that you could end a person's life?"

I didn't imagine how heavy a little pistol would be or how much strength is required in your fingers to pull the trigger and in your arms to hold the gun steady. When I pulled the trigger, a shiver went down my spine. But I was immediately curious to see how well I had shot.

The police department has been running the firearm workshop for several years, according to JoAnne Guitar, owner of a local gun shop. "It's a wonderful program," she said. "There are a lot of elderly women who live alone and are afraid. The program stresses safety."

"We have the program for safety purposes," Sgt. Pace said. "We just want the women to learn to load and unload the gun properly."

Among the participants at the workshop were widows and crime victims. For all, there was concern about crime and the need for self-defense.

The most recent crime statistics show major crimes in the state up 9 percent and the local crime rate up 16 percent. In 1985, Big Spring had 2 murders, 24 robberies, 289 aggravated assaults, 561 burglaries, 1,213 thefts, and 84 vehicle thefts, according to statistics gathered by the state Department of Public Safety.

Here are some of the reasons why women took the gun course:

Juanita Davis, 23, said, "Someone tried to break into my house. I called the police, but he had already left. I didn't have a gun then. The next day I went out and purchased one. I was scared! I have a little girl and I want to protect her. I will shoot if anyone comes in my house. He should know the consequences of breaking in."

Teri Pace signed up for the workshop "to learn more about guns." Pam Pace wonders "if she'll freeze up" if she is confronted by an intruder.

One woman, 56, who asked that her name not be used, said, "My husband was on the PD (police department) for 25 years. I'm a widow, have a gun and I want to know how to use it. I hope I'll defend myself. I have a sound alarm, so I'd rather keep them out. I don't know if I could use a gun on a person."

Joy Decker, 54, said "I know nothing about guns and I want to learn about them. If I had to shoot someone to protect myself, I would."

A 52-year-old widow, said, "I've been around guns all my life, but I need to know about them. I wouldn't leave home without my gun. And I wouldn't hesitate to shoot anyone. I would think about my safety first and the legalities later."

Another woman, 75, said, "Because I've recently had to live alone I wanted to learn about guns. I'm not afraid to go to sleep at night, but I have enough sense to know that it's happening all over town. People are breaking in, stealing and shooting others. I want to be able to protect myself. If someone came in my house and if I had time I'd warn them first. I'd tell them to leave. If I didn't have time, I'd shoot and I'd shoot to kill. It wouldn't even hassle my conscience. I'd put my life before theirs."

"I assure you, no one wants to fire the gun," Guitar said.

But the point here isn't what a woman — or any person — wants to do, but what she is prepared to do if a situation arises.

In the workshop, Sgt. Leubner spoke of the legalities of using a gun. "Legally, if you have a way out, you must take it," he said. But when faced in a situation with no way out, Leubner said to shoot for the biggest target to stop the aggressor.

Leubner told the women that in Texas, a permit is not required to have a hand gun in the house. "But, you cannot carry a hand gun on yourself or in a vehicle unless you travel non-stop over three counties. You can carry an unloaded hand gun in your trunk if you're going to the firing range," Sgt. Pace, said.

Many women are concerned about what type of gun to buy. Leubner suggested getting a quality brand name like Ruger, Smith or Colt. "If you're not comfortable with a gun, get one that feels good," he said. "And take someone with you who knows guns when you go shopping for a gun."

Leubner reiterated "safety" time and again. "We are not here to advocate shooting people, we want you to know how to use a gun properly." He also reminded the group that "25 percent of police officers are shot with their own guns — and they are trained extensively in the use of guns."

As I aim for the bullseye, I steady my arms and zero in on the target.

The women took turns target practicing in groups of four. My group is waiting for the officers to signal OK before firing.

After shooting all of the rounds in the pistols, we got to see how well we shot. Here I point to my best shot.

Dear Abby

Teens with no control must use birth control

DEAR ABBY: I have been reading your column since I was 10 years old. I am nearly 15 now and I'm going steady with a boy who is 16. We love each other very much and have been having sex two or three times a week for the last four months.

I have been lucky enough not to get pregnant, but the problem is we don't trust condoms as a method of birth control, and the pill is too expensive.

We want to know if there is some method of birth control that's safe and not too expensive. If you print this, you will be helping many other kids in our situation.

IN LOVE

DEAR IN LOVE: The only method of birth control that is 100 percent safe doesn't cost a dime. It is called self-control. It is used by young men who care so much for a young woman that they would never put her in the position of feeling guilty, having to lie and sneak around or worry about getting pregnant. And it is also used by young women who want no worries about unplanned pregnancies.

However, since the sex drive can be overwhelming in teenagers, it is better to use birth control in case your passions overrule your heads. Young people who are old enough to have sex but not old enough to handle the responsibility of parenthood should be thoroughly briefed in all methods of birth control. Family planning clinics are the place to go. They charge only what you can afford to pay. Some schools now make information as well as contraceptives available to students who want them.

Providing teen-agers with contraceptives does not necessarily mean that premarital sex is OK — it is not OK. But it is preferable to children having children they neither want nor are equipped to care for.

DEAR ABBY: Your response to "Worried," who was concerned about getting AIDS, prompts me to take pen in hand: Did you really mean it when you wrote: "The best way to minimize the risk of getting AIDS is to use a condom religiously?"

Abby, how does one use a condom "religiously"? Put it on and pray? Or use it only on Sundays?

AMUSED

DEAR AMUSED: An unfortunate choice of words. Better to have used scrupulously, conscientiously or faithfully.

DEAR ABBY: I'll get right to the point. If a couple have lived together for about a year, are they entitled to a big wedding?

NEEDS TO KNOW

DEAR NEEDS: They are entitled to any kind of wedding they can afford.

CONFIDENTIAL TO EVERYBODY: For some good advice on how to live, ask someone who knows he's dying.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38823, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

STANTON — MRS. H.R. (DAISY) CAFFEY, of Stanton, was honored in her home April 7 for her 93rd birthday. Caffey is the last survivor of 12 children born to the late James Philip and Joan Smith, who were pioneer residents of Howard County.

NOBODY BECOMES AN ALCOHOLIC ALONE.

It takes a protector who always comes to the rescue in a crisis. A boss who'll see that the work gets done and the job saved. Someone who'll straighten out anything that goes wrong at home. When the painful consequences of drinking and dependency on drugs are suffered by others, drinking and abuse of drugs becomes a problem-solving device for the abuser — they continue to drink, knowing their immediate needs will be met by others as long as they remain helpless. If you're playing the victim, call Crossroads Recovery Program. We treat these diseases with an effective, reasonably priced program that deals with the realities of alcoholism, including its four victims.

Our Program isn't easy. But it works.

FAMILY BUSINESS TRANSACTIONS

What happens when you hire your children as employees? What tax treatment are you allowed on business transactions with related parties? Since transactions between related parties can be an area of abuse in terms of shifting income to reduce taxes, the tax code provides special treatment in certain family and related-party transactions.

- The tax law prohibits a taxpayer from deducting interest or expenses which are owed but not yet paid to certain related parties. At the time the payment is actually includable in the recipient's income, it is deductible by the paying party.
- The law prohibits a deduction for a loss on sales if the buyer is a "family member" of the taxpayer. Generally speaking, a family member is a son, daughter, brother, sister, spouse, an ancestor, or a lineal descendant. For tax purposes you can be a "related person" to individuals, corporations, trusts, exempt organizations, etc.
- One spouse working for another and children under the age of 21 working for their parents are exempt from Social Security (FICA) contributions and from Federal Unemployment (FUTA) tax. This is not optional; if you have made FICA or FUTA contributions under these circumstances, you should apply for a refund since these family members are not entitled to benefits when it is time to draw them.
- One spouse working for another is entitled to make contributions to his or her own individual retirement account (IRA). If a wife working for her husband makes at least $2,000 for the year, she's entitled to make a full $2,000 contribution to her IRA account.

Many small businesses have family members as employees. Make sure you're getting the tax treatment most beneficial to you and that the tax return treatment of your financial transactions will hold up under audit. Consult your accountant for assistance in specific application of these rules.

Weddings

McDiffitt-Forshee

Mary McDiffitt, Sterling City Route, and Michael Forshee, 1310 Lexington, exchanged wedding vows April 12 at the Baptist Temple Church with Pastor Logan Peterson, officiating.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. John A. McDiffitt Sr., of Big Spring. Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Stephen E. Forshee, of Big Spring.

The couple stood before an altar featured with a brass archway, heart-shaped candelabra and a brass spiral candelabra decorated with pink, red and white carnations.

Wedding music was provided by Donna Thurman, pianist and Pepper Sullivan, organist. Vocalists were Bob and Marlina Beasley.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of white taffeta with imported French aleon lace. The Sabrina neckline featured lace and pearls. Bishop sleeves covered with lace and illusion complemented the V'd back with a flounce of ruffles forming a bustle effect. Lace also decorated a full sweeping skirt and cathedral-length train. She also wore a veil made of a soft wreath of white silk flowers and pearls which curved around her face with three tiers of waltz-length illusion.

She carried a bouquet of white roses, gardenias, stephanotis, and baby's breath with a cascade of stephanotis and greenery.

Matron of honor was Joyce McQuary, sister of the bride.

MRS. MICHAEL FORSHEE
...formerly Mary McDiffitt

Bridesmaids were Kathy McDiffitt, sister-in-law of the bride and Jamie Findley. Flower girls were Megan McDiffitt, niece of the bride and Lindsey Lockhart. Ring Bearer was B.J. McDiffitt, nephew of the bride.

Best man was Dean Spencer, brother of the bridegroom. Groomsman were Kent Spencer, brother of the bridegroom, and Pat Chesworth, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Ushers were Shane Clanton, nephew of the bridegroom, Shane Slaton and Chris Logan. Candlelighters were Trisha Reynolds, cousin of the bride, of Breckenridge and Chris Spencer, nephew of the bridegroom, of Midland.

A reception followed at the Baptist Temple Fellowship Hall. The bride's table, draped with a white table cloth overlaid with white lace, featured a three-tiered double white cake with white icing and fresh red and pink flowers. A stairway connected to each side of the cake with a water fountain under it. The bridegroom's table, draped with a red cloth, featured a double layer German chocolate cake with chocolate roses. The attendant's bouquets served as centerpieces.

After the reception a horse and carriage, decorated with red and pink flowers and bows featured a horseshoe on the back of the carriage with a sign that read "Just Married," took the bride and bridegroom to an unknown destination.

The bride is a graduate of Forsan High School and is employed at Zales Jewelers.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Big Spring High School and is in service with the United States Navy.

After a wedding trip to the Grand Cayman Island, the couple will make their home in San Diego, Calif. in May.

Dr. Donohue

Swimmer might have inside tennis elbow

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Your article on tennis elbow caught my eye. I have inside tennis elbow, I think. I have pain in my inside elbow and wonder if my swimming could be the reason. I swim 50-60 laps four or five times a week. Could I be overdoing? I am 61. — M.A.M.

I can't say whether or not you are overdoing. That relates to problems other than tennis elbow — your heart, etc.

But let me turn to the tennis elbow. I haven't heard of swimmers getting this problem, but it might be something related to lap turns that places strain on the muscles and tendons involved.

So we don't lose other readers, I should explain that inside tennis elbow is pain on the side of the elbow closest to your body, the side closest when you hold your hand down straight with the palm facing forward.

Now, either kind of tennis elbow, inner or outer, represents a tearing of tendon fibers that attach forearm muscles to the elbow. The inside elbow muscles are the ones that run down the palm side of the forearm.

These are the muscles that bend the wrist and allow you to twist it in a thumb-to-little finger motion (clockwise for the right wrist). I am not sure, but there may be some swim strokes that call for this kind of motion. Or, as I said, it could be from some action done when making lap turns against the pool edge.

What to do for this kind of tennis elbow? Rest and aspirin are needed along with heat (after the first few days of pain). When the pain leaves totally you have to stretch and strengthen the forearm muscles.

Here's a good forearm stretcher. Stand in front of a wall. Place your fingertips against the wall surface with your wrists flexed. Push against the wall with pressure and hold in that position for half a minute. You increase the amount of pressure as long as it does not cause pain. If it causes pain, stop.

But please, abide by this qualification: Be sure that what you have really is tennis elbow. We may both be barking up the wrong tree. A doctor can determine in a minute if you have tennis elbow.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a

51-year-old male and a consistent long distance runner. It is imperative that I seek out and practice every available health habit with which I am familiar. My question involves amino acids. I take a multiple amino acid tablet twice daily. It consists of eight essential and 10 non-essential amino acids. Is it true that with age our bodies tend to lose ability to manufacture the amino acids? — R.W.

I saw one study that said elderly people (you aren't in that category, of course) may have increased need for one or more of the essential amino acids. But at least two other reports have found that the elderly can get by on the same amount of amino acids as the young.

If your diet is balanced in all the food groups you get plenty of amino acids, both essential and non-essential.

Maybe it's time to let other readers in on our esoteric phraseology. We are really speaking of protein needs. Amino acids are building blocks of protein molecules. The essential amino acids are those in food that the body cannot make by itself. Yet, amino acid supplements are rarely needed and of doubtful effect when they are taken by those who don't need them.

I hope your approach to fitness is really not as grim as your note implies.

FOR "WONDERING" — My off-the-top-of-the-head evaluation is that your program is safe and sound. Nevertheless, fatigue is not to be ignored, it's a signal that you are overdoing. Or it may be a signal that right now your health is not up to snuff.

First, check your health status. You haven't done that for years, and at your age it's time to do so. Then if you get the go-ahead, you can start again at a reduced level of exercise (running).

And listen to what your body tells you. It's the best barometer of overexercise.

How to get rid of leg cramps and foot pains? The answer may be simple — write to Dr. Donohue, in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, for a copy of the booklet, "How to Stop Leg Cramps and Foot Pains." Enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Malcolm Forbes adds new 'toy' to boat collection

By MOTOR BOATING & SAILING

Publisher Malcolm Forbes owns the world's largest collection of toy boats — 500 of them — but his latest toy is a 151-foot yacht that can almost steer itself.

The new Forbes yacht is named Highlander. Forbes, 66, publisher of Forbes magazine and the Social Register, and an avid motorcyclist, hot-air balloonist and partygiver, has joked that he sold the previous Highlander "because the ashtrays were full."

Forbes holds at least three events a week for up to 100 people aboard his yacht from May to October. Guests have included Mick Jagger, Nancy Reagan, Prince Charles, King Hussein, Princess Margaret, Donald Regan, Henry Kissinger and some of America's top corporate executives. There are TV-VCR sets, stereos and telephones in nearly every room, potted plants, antiques, fine paintings, and mementoes that include framed clippings of the Titanic.

Below are quarters for a crew of 10, plus four double guest staterooms with private baths and a huge master stateroom with dressing room and bathroom that has a Jacuzzi and all-marble steam room big enough for a party of 20.

There's even a temperature-controlled wine cellar, complete with vintages such as a 1987 Chateau Lafitte Rothschild.

Atop the ship there is a convertible cinema-solarium, sundeck salon and space for two tenders — a 21-foot Donzi and a 20-foot Cigarette, and two Harley Davidsons. The helicopter pad is above the sundeck salon.

Help is waiting for your child April 21-25 at a special Dyslexia Screening Clinic.

Dyslexia. It's a word most people don't understand. But, if your child is one of the millions who suffer from dyslexia, you understand the pain and frustration this disability can cause.

You know your child isn't lazy... stupid... or disobedient, as many have said. Although the strict definition of dyslexia is "a disturbance of the ability to read," you realize that it affects every aspect of your child's life.

Aside from difficulty with reading and composition, your child shies away from sports involving eye/hand coordination. He has trouble following directions and is often clumsy and insecure. These are just a few of the symptoms that can make the life of a dyslexic child confusing and miserable.

Now, a special Dyslexia Screening Clinic, affiliated with Dyslexia Centers of America, offers you and your child hope for a normal life.

Sponsored by Boyd Chiropractic Clinics of Midland, who have served the health care needs of West Texans for over 40 years, the clinic will feature Dr. Carl A. Ferreri, a world renowned expert in the treatment of dyslexia.

A doctor of chiropractic, Dr. Ferreri has practiced for 29 years and has developed a highly effective method for treating basic learning dysfunctions. During the Clinic, Dr. Ferreri will instruct other professionals in his treatment methods which involve no drugs or anesthesia. The treatment, which centers around adjustments of the spinal and cranial structures, along with kinesiological and muscular whether your child will benefit from the procedure. In most cases, a correction is performed in conjunction with the free exam. If your child is diagnosed as receptive to future care, a reasonable one-time fee will cover all exams and treatments related to dyslexia. Treatment is covered by insurance in most cases.

For convenience and accessibility, the Clinic will be held at the Holiday Inn — Country Villa in Midland. Appointments may be scheduled Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

HOTLINE (915) 684-5436

Local cookbook authors coming soon

Janel Franklin and Sue Vaughn, co-authors of Calif Fries to Caviar will host a cooking school April 17 at 7 p.m. in Garrett Hall at the First United Methodist Church, 400 Scurry, sponsored by the Junior Women's Club. They will feature recipes from the party food section of their cookbook.

The party recipes can be used "for those special Sesquicentennial activities," Julie Bailey, club member, said.

"When it comes to recipes, Sue and Janel pretty much know what to expect. But their experience with the book publishing business has been one of continual trial and error. When the two West Texas women decided to compile their cookbook, they envisioned a two-month project. It took two years," Bailey said.

After the cookbooks were printed, they hoped to get rid of the first 5,000 copies in three years, she said. "It took about 3½ months." The book has only been out for about a year and a half and it has already sold more than 10,000 copies, she said.

"But you can forgive their ignorance," Bailey said, since they never intended to write a cookbook anyway. They were just trying to put together some recipes for their children. "We wanted to get our recipe organized, you know, get them off the backs of checks and napkins," Sue Vaughn, author, said. Vaughn is the wife of a Lamesa farmer, has two sons, two daughters and six grandsons, Bailey said.

Most of the recipes in the book are quick and easy because that's how they figured people live, Bailey said. Most people don't have a lot of time to spend in the kitchen, she said. "Since the book was initially intended for their sons, the recipes are written in a step-by-step process and the foods are pretty basic, Janel Franklin, author, wife of a Tahoka farmer and oil producer and mother of two.

Sue Vaughn, left, and Janel Franklin, co-authors of Calif Fries to Caviar will be in Big Spring April 17 to host a cooking school featuring recipes from their cookbook.

"There are no gourmet dishes in there," Franklin said, "and the recipes are very easy for the inexperienced cook to follow."

The book contains around 600 recipes grouped into 10 categories: party food-beverages, breakfast-brunch, breads, soups-sandwiches, salads, main dishes, Tex-Mex, vegetables, cakes-pies, desserts, potpourri, and "yes it contains recipes for calf fries and caviar," Bailey said.

Tickets for the school can be purchased for $5 at the Kopper Kettle or at the door that night.

"Cookbooks will be for sale and the authors will also be autographing copies," Bailey said.

GAINING AN ENTRY

Guests receive their first impression of a home's interior in the entry. Its treatment sets the tone for the other rooms. Because the boundaries of entries vary, it is difficult to set remodeling guidelines. An entry door can open into the main living area, a hall or into a self-contained reception room. Entries also can regulate traffic. It can be slowed down, speeded up, diverted to an anteroom or pointed directly to the living room. Some entry areas, especially long halls, take on added interest when used as art galleries. In any case, good lighting should be provided and stairs should be easily seen.

Your entry should be designed to keep the weather out. It should also include a closet or other place to leave outdoor clothing belonging to guests and family. AT BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK, we do all kinds of remodeling and rebuilding including room additions, carports, decks, and sun porches. Come to 613 North Warehouse Road in the Industrial Park. Tel. 267-5611. Open M-F, 8-12, 1-5 or by appt.
