Bill may speed up Stacy Dam

By PHILLIP SWANN
Harte-Hanks Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON -- Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, next week are expected to introduce legislation to breakthrough a federal logjam threatening to block construction of Stacy Dam.

The bill would require the federal government to decide by Nov. 30 whether to issue a permit for the reservoir, which would provide water for West Texas.

But U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officials have proposed placing the Concho Water Snake, which is restricted to sections of the Concho and Colorado Rivers in west central Texas, on its endangered species list.

If the snake is granted that status, its environment would be protected under the Endangered Species Act of 1973. The snake's habitat includes areas targeted for the reservoir and dam in Concho, Runnels and Coleman counties.

The Fish and Wildlife Service is expected to make a final decision on its proposal this year, and construction of the dam is not expected to begin until May 1987.

But the Texas lawmakers are concerned that federal red tape, which could include several environmental studies, could hold up the Stacy Dam indefinitely.

The Stenholm-Bentsen bill, which is expected to be introduced Tuesday, would force the Secretary of Army to decide by Nov. 30 whether to issue the permit.

The snake is endangered because of impoundments altering its free-flowing stream and habitat, Fish and Wildlife Service officials said.

High drug use rate revealed

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Since opening in early January, the new chemical abuse center at Malone-Hogan Hospital has seen some surprises.

Touted as both an alcohol and drug recovery unit, 27 of the 30 persons admitted so far have been for polydrug dependency, or dependency on a combination of drugs.

Hospital director for social services, Dan Wise, said he was surprised by the high number of drug patients compared to just three alcoholics enrolled in the 28-day recovery program. Also surprising is that eight out of 10 people who use the center's hotline call concerning heroin use, he said.

But be it heroin, cocaine, amphetamine, barbituate or alcohol dependency, treatment experts concur that an individual's therapy is incomplete unless woven with family counseling.

In that spirit, more than 50 people ranging from mental health professionals to clergymen met Friday at Howard College to hear and learn more about the family dynamics of drug and alcohol dependency.

A seminar on "The Chemically Dependent Family: In Sickness and In Health" was presented by alcohol and drug abuse expert Bruce Carruth of Little Rock, Ark., and sponsored by the Crossroads Recovery Program at Malone-Hogan Hospital. ABUSE page 2A

Botha to revise policy on races

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government said Friday it will stop enforcing pass laws, the hated cornerstones of apartheid that keep blacks out of white areas, and will release people jailed for violating them.

President P.W. Botha told Parliament a moratorium on pass-law arrests will begin Wednesday, when he proposes a new law providing common identity documents for all races. He said anyone in jail for pass-law offenses would be freed and all pending charges would be dropped.

The laws, formally called "influx control," are one of the sorest points in the official race policy with which South Africa's 5 million whites maintain supremacy over the 24 million voteless blacks. More than 2.5 million blacks have been arrested in the past decade for being outside tribal homelands without the right stamp in their passes.

Critics of apartheid applauded the suspension of enforcement but said they feared Botha might produce an alternative form of control.

A scene from "The Oldest Living Graduate" portrays Don Boughton, left, as Floyd Kinkaid and Logan Houston as Col. J. C. Kinkaid. The play will be staged in the Municipal Auditorium at 8 p.m. Monday. Tickets are on sale today through Monday at Furr's Cafeteria and at the Chamber of Commerce on Monday.

Play centers around plot of land

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Renowned drama director Paul Baker says those who attend Monday night's performance of "The Oldest Living Graduate" will have "the best time they've had in years with a play."

Performance time is 8 p.m. in the Municipal Auditorium. Tickets are on sale today through Monday at Furr's Cafeteria in the Highland Shopping Mall and at the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce on Monday. Tickets are $7.50, $10 and $12.50 and $20. VIP tickets for $20 allow holders to attend a special party after the play.

Baker, a member of the Southwest Theater Conference College of Fellows, said the play should delight the Big Spring audience because Big Spring itself is mentioned several times throughout the performance.

"The people in Big Spring will understand every word," the Dallas director said. The drama set in the early 1960s unfolds in a town called Bradleyville, which is in fact Colorado City, he said.

The play revolves around a wealthy but shell-shocked World War I veteran known as the Colonel. He is a West Texas landowner who eventually turns over most of his property to his son except for a small piece situated on the lake front.

The plot, Baker said, centers around the fess between the son and the Colonel over the remaining lot of land.

"It sounds like a dull plot, but it's very beautifully worked out," Baker said.

The late playwright Preston Jones, who wrote "The Oldest Living Graduate," was a former resident of Colorado City, Baker said.

BIRTHDAYS GALORE

St. Mary's Episcopal Church and Texas are both celebrating birthdays this year, so St. Mary's School tied the two events together Friday at the school grounds to celebrate the school's 100th birthday. Students, dressed in frontier attire, and guests had the opportunity to see such things as a branding exhibition, spinning wheel and a live bison. Above from left to right, Sieglinda Robinson, Brian Johnson and Christopher Mitchell watch Nancy Payton and the finer art of using a spinning wheel. At left, Jenni McLaughlin listens as St. Mary's librarian Ruth Edmonson, right, explains how to use a butter churn.

Annual Fiesta opens in San Antonio

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Ten days of parades, pageantry, exotic foods and revelry kicked off Friday as the annual Fiesta celebration began.

The festivities, expected to draw 4 million people, are San Antonio's celebration of Texas' 150 years of independence from Mexico.

"Today, independence is a state of mind. ... Texans are still exploring frontiers," said Gov. Mark White at opening ceremonies at Alamo Plaza. "The most fitting place for such a celebration is in front of the Alamo, where our forefathers paid in blood."

White told hundreds of spectators Fiesta would fill the "streets with people, the air with music and the sky with balloons."

At least 150 events, including four parades, are scheduled. More than 50,000 volunteers representing 95 organizations have worked since the close of Fiesta 1985 planning events for this year.

"Fiesta is special," said Marleen Pedroza, Fiesta executive vice president. "We belong to the International Festivals Association and I firmly believe Fiesta is a favorite. I attribute this to community involvement."

Officials say they expect the celebration to pump $90 million into San Antonio's economy.

Volunteers have predicted they will serve at least 25,000 fajita tacos, 37,000 tamales and 16,000 tortillas during the events.

Fiesta began in 1891 when people decorated carriages with fresh flowers for the first Battle of Flowers Parade.

The procession honored a visit by President Benjamin Harrison.

San Antonio will be transformed into a wonderland of pageantry with the launching of Fiesta 1986. The next ten days will include parties, parades, investitures of kings, coronation of a queen and carnival rides and games.

Lonnie Lott of 805 Ohio St. was with Lang at the time of the stabbing and was assaulted by another man who hit him with a fist, according to police.

The men responsible for the assaults fled the scene before police arrived at 2:53 p.m., according to police reports.

An investigation of the assaults is being conducted, but police Lt. Jerry Edwards said, "The way it looks now, we're not anticipating any arrests."

Richard Atkins of 101 Lincoln St. told police Friday morning that someone caused $100 damage to a metal lamp post outside his home between 10:30 p.m. Thursday and 7 a.m. Friday.

Time capsule found

AUSTIN (AP) — During the 97 years the Goddess of Liberty stood atop the Capitol, her left hand held up a hollow star that apparently contained an 1888 time capsule, Capitol Architect Roy Graham said Friday.

But he said it will take at least several weeks to determine what actually was in the star.

"The remnants appear to be decomposed paper fragments and a decayed paper mass resembling a rolled-up newspaper in a paper wrapper," Graham said.

Graham said the remnants were discovered April 14 in St. Louis by Pat Rice of Washington University Technology Associates, the firm responsible for restoring and recreating the Goddess.

The new Goddess, of cast aluminum, will be placed atop the Capitol in early June.

Graham said when Rice removed the lower point of the five-pointed star, the time-capsule contents were released. The remnants were sealed in plastic bags and delivered to Graham Wednesday.

Graham said that all material removed from the star was then sent to the Conservation Division of the Humanities Research Center at the University of Texas.

the tedious process of analyzing and restoring the decayed documents. Graham said it would be at least three weeks before the condition or legibility of the documents can be determined.

"Based on our discussion with (IT) officials, we are quite hopeful that these documents can be restored," Graham said. "Not only are they of high value in their own right, but they might also provide more of the still-incomplete story of how the Goddess was fabricated and put in place on top of the dome."

Research by Graham's office indicates the fabricator of the Goddess invited an Austin businessman to select something for permanent placement within the star at the time it was made in 1888.

According to oral-history reports, Edward Schutze of Austin placed inside the star his own business card, as well as a copy of the German newspaper, the Texas Vorwaerts, published in Austin. Schutze was business manager of the paper.

Woman honored

Betty Lou Campbell of Abilene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E.L. Jones of 800 Marcy No. 19, has been named to the Outstanding Young Women of America. The honor is awarded for civic activities that benefit the community. She was nominated for the award in 1971, she said.

For the record

Phillip McClendon, former pastor of Hillcrest Baptist Church, will lead revival services at Baptist Temple April 20-25. The location of the revival was incorrectly listed in Friday's paper.

Abuse

Hogan. Carruth, a private practice social worker who specializes in working with families in recovery of chemical dependency illness, said the family of a chemical dependent is a weave of assumed roles influenced by the needs and demands of the substance abuser.

And the person who allows the family to remain whole, to stay together and function is the "enabler."

"They're great at taking care of people," he said. But they lack inner value as people; their function is to look after others, he said.

Along with the "enabler" in this web of relationships is the "family hero." The "hero" is a lot like the enabler and is at his best when called on to help during a family crisis. The "hero" often operates outside the family unit pursuing goals with a narrow single-mindedness, Carruth said.

Others besides the enabler and hero who interact in a chemical dependent's family are the "lost child," the "delinquent" and the "mascot," he said. The "lost child" is a loner whose "main objective in life is to remain invisible," he said. This person often lives in a fantasy world thus shutting out the turmoil around him, Carruth explained.

The delinquent is the family rebel who copes by "acting out" his anger, frustration and pain, he said.

Often the youngest child becomes the family "mascot." This individual gets the most attention and thrives on it, he said.

In many families, these roles are often blended in people, he said.

Becoming aware of these roles, how they interact, how they affect families is a key part of a recovering person's therapy, Carruth said.

He said because these roles become so intensely meshed, anyone who stays from his role has a profound impact on the entire family, causing shifts in the behavior of others.

Because of these interlocking roles, the freedom of individuals to break out of a dependency is sharply reduced, he said.

Play

"He lived in Colorado City in 1958, 1959, 1960 — somewhere around there," Baker said.

Jones, he said, worked for the road department, got married in Colorado City and also "worked the cows" on his father's ranch.

The acclaimed playwright, enrolled in Baylor University's graduate theater program under the direction of Baker in 1961. Baker at that time also founded, managed and directed artistic creation at the Dallas Theater Center, which quickly became known nationwide for its professional productions and training its members received.

Baker said Jones initially came to Baylor to earn a master's thesis in theater. He was an actor and undertook technical work at the center from 1961 to 1972.

"He began writing plays in 1972," Baker said about his protege.

The director stumbled across "The Oldest Living Graduate" one night from an unread stack of manuscripts.

"He (Jones) gave me an old tattered copy that was printed by hand in a notebook. I said to myself, 'Oh hell — another play to read.'"

The old tattered copy remained untouched for three weeks before Baker picked it up and gave it a read.

"It was a very good play," Baker said.

What particularly caught the director's attention was the dialogue.

"It's right out of the mouth of a West Texan," Baker said. "Preston had a total recall of things said. The dialogue is brilliant."

The play became part of Jones' Texas Trilogy, which also includes "The Last Meeting of the Knights of the White Magnolia" and "Lu Ann Hampton Laverly Oberlander."

The trilogy was initially performed in 1973 under Baker's direction at the Center. It gained the attention of critics nationwide and eventually found bookings at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts in Washington D.C. and the Broadhurst Theater on Broadway in New York.

A drama critic for the The Washington Post wrote in a 1976 column that "The Oldest Living Graduate" ranked right up there with such classics like Arthur Miller's "Death of a Salesman."

A Baltimore Sun writer said Jones was one of the most promising playwrights to surface since Tennessee Williams.

Jones unexpectedly died at the height of his career in 1979 at the age of 43.

Baker had directed "The Oldest Living Graduate" numerous times since its 1973 inception. Each time he directs the play, it expands his appreciation even more of Jones' creation.

"I have a better understanding and appreciate the depth of it more than I did the first time," he says. "I think this play is a wonderful play."

Nursing home settles lawsuit with families

HOUSTON (AP) — A nursing home accused of negligence by the families of three former patients has agreed to a $4.5 million settlement in the lawsuit, a lawyer said Friday.

"One of the things I hope this does is send a message to the nursing home companies that the residents of the nursing homes really do mean something," said Ed McAninch, an attorney for the families. "I'm very happy and proud of the result."

The lawsuit was filed in 1982 on behalf of Joseph Valley, Jeanne Jones and William McKinnon, McAninch said. All three nursing home patients died in 1982. The bulk of the settlement, about $3.9 million, will go to Valley's family, McAninch said. The other two families each will receive $300,000.

"This is a record as far as I know," McAninch said.

Valley was 77 years old when he was transferred to the Blacklock North nursing home, now called Northway Nursing Home, in Houston, said Harry R. Belinger, spokesman for ARA in Philadelphia, the parent company of the nursing home.

McAninch said Valley, who was at the nursing home 38 days before he died, suffered bedsores and blood poisoning. The suit claimed gross negligence on the part of the nursing home, he said.

Frisco quake recalled

SAN FRANCISCO — Survivors of the 1906 earthquake and fire that devastated San Francisco commemorated its 80th anniversary Friday and recalled the city's push to rebuild.

Survivors gathered for the annual repainting of Lotta's Fountain, the only fire hydrant to function after the quake.

Those who remembered the disaster Friday said the painting of the hydrant reflected the spirit of community as quake victims began piecing their lives back together after the disaster.

Discount rate cut

WASHINGTON — The Federal Reserve Board said Friday it is cutting its discount rate to 6.5 percent, the lowest level for this key lending rate in eight years. The move was expected to add further momentum to a dramatic plunge in other interest rates.

It was the second time in six weeks the Fed has cut its discount rate, the interest it charges to make loans to financial institutions. A cut in the discount rate is the most dramatic signal the central bank can send that it intends to push interest rates lower.

Titan rocket explodes

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. — A Titan rocket exploded in a huge orange cloud seconds after launch Friday, the second such incident in eight months. A military reconnaissance expert said the rocket carried a spy satellite.

No injuries were reported and the National Weather Service said there was no danger to civilians because the cloud was floating to sea. Air Force officials would not say exactly what the cloud was. But schoolchildren were told to stay inside, and the National Park Service ordered the evacuation of campers and tourists from Anacapa Island.

Plant opening delayed

DALLAS — The Comanche Peak Nuclear Plant will not begin operating by mid-1987 because of needed repairs to parts of the plant, Texas Utilities said Friday.

Company officials said Unit No. 1 would be in operation by mid-1987 and Unit No. 2 would start up six months later. But a reinspection of the plant and needed corrective repairs have extended the planned completion date, company officials said in a statement.

The construction is expected to be completed on Unit No. 1 before the end of 1986. But officials said because of "uncertainties regarding further reinspection and rework" and the licensing process, "the company cannot predict exactly when the units will be in full-power operation."

Hostage nightmare

U.S. librarian confirmed killed in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A 62-year-old university librarian, Peter Kilburn, has become the first American confirmed killed in the Lebanese nightmare of kidnapping, threat and murder.

Kilburn was one of three Western hostages found shot to death in retaliation for the U.S. bombing of Libya, officials at the American University Hospital said Friday.

The other slain hostages, both Britons, were identified shortly after the bodies were found Thursday on a mountain highway east of Beirut. The third man initially was thought to be British, but on Friday colleagues at the American University of Beirut identified him as Kilburn.

He disappeared Dec. 3, 1984. No group claimed to have kidnapped him and nothing had been heard from or about him. He had worked as a librarian at the American University of Beirut for 20 years and was to have retired in several months.

Dr. Farid Fleihan, an old friend, identified his body, said hospital spokesman Camille Touma and Ghosn Ghosn.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said three of Kilburn's colleagues had made the identification, but it had not yet been confirmed with forensic data.

A note found near the three bodies on Thursday said the Arab Revolutionary Cells killed the hostages in reprisal for Tuesday's American air raid on Libya. Well-placed Palestinian sources say the group is believed to have links to Palestinian terrorist Abu Nidal, whom the United States claims has Libyan support.

The slain Britons were Leigh Douglas, 34, of Stalham, Norfolk, a political science professor at the American University; and Philip Padfield, 40, of Bideford, Devon, a director of an international language center in Moslem west Beirut. They disappeared March 28 after being seen in a west Beirut nightspot.

Also Friday, an anonymous caller to the Christian-controlled Voice of Lebanon radio station claimed the Arab Revolutionary Cells had killed another British hostage, television cameraman John McCarthy. Police found no body and said the call apparently was a hoax.

Kilburn was the first American kidnapped in Lebanon whose death has been confirmed. There have been claims that another American, U.S. Embassy political officer William Buckley, was killed, but his body has not been found.

Besides Buckley, four other kidnapped Americans still are missing in Lebanon. An extremist Shiite Moslem group, Islamic Jihad, has said it killed Buckley last October and is holding the other four.

Kilburn's body was falsely identified Thursday by an Irish Embassy staffer as that of British journalist Alec Collett, 64, who was kidnapped March 25, 1985.

But Collett's daughter, Suzie Grant, told the British Broadcasting Corp. in London Friday that her father had a finger removed in an operation some years ago. The body had 10 fingers.

U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew called an emergency staff meeting at his headquarters in the Christian suburb of Aukar after Kilburn's identification was reported.

Embassy political officer Cameron Hume said, "We have not seen the body but the people who have examined him said that it was Kilburn."

In addition to Buckley, the kidnapped Americans are the Rev. Lawrence Jenco, a Roman Catholic priest; Terry Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press; David Jacobsen, director of the American University Hospital; and Thomas Sutherland, dean of agriculture at the university.

All four signed letters sent last year to their families, President Reagan and Archbishop of Canterbury Robert Runcie.

In London, an Anglican Church envoy who made three trips to Beirut last year in an effort to free the hostages said the U.S. attack on Libya "increased enormously" the danger for the remaining hostages.

World

Arab plot uncovered

LONDON — The Arab terrorist who gave his pregnant Irish girlfriend a bomb and sent her to board an El Al airliner led her to believe she was flying to Israel to marry him, police and the woman's family said Friday.

Twenty-four hours after El Al guards found the explosives in the false bottom of her hand luggage, Scotland Yard said it continued to believe that Anne-Marie Murphy didn't know she was being used in a plot to blow up an Israeli airliner.

Police say the bomb would have gone off in the Tel Aviv-bound Boeing 747 jumbo jet during the flight, killing her and the other 369 passengers and 18 crew.

Police foil attack

ANKARA, Turkey — Police thwarted an attack on a U.S. military officer's club Friday when they detained two foreigners carrying a bag packed with explosives, the semi-official Anatolia news agency reported.

The agency quoted the Ankara police chief, who did not disclose the nationalities of the two foreigners detained.

Anatolia said police tightened security around the club after receiving a warning at 7:45 p.m. that an attack would be launched against it.

The news agency quoted unidentified security officials as saying that at 9 p.m., they spotted two suspicious looking men approaching the club with a bag and ordered them to stop.

Envoy to visit Lebanon

LONDON — Anglican church envoy Terry Waite, who made three trips to Lebanon last year in an effort to free Western hostages, said today the U.S. air raid on Libya put the captives in far greater danger.

"The fact that America took the action that it did in relationship to Libya has made it even more difficult now for me to ask for restraint by the terrorists," Waite said in a radio interview with the London Broadcasting Co.

The envoy said he hoped to return to Beirut soon to resume his efforts to free the hostages, and said, "If there is any way in which the situation can be defused and can be cooled and I can play a part in that, then I will try and do it."

Britain assails Libya

LONDON — Britain accused Libya on Friday of direct involvement in the kidnap and murder of two Britons in Lebanon and said their deaths are an example of "Libyan state-directed terrorism."

Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe indicated evidence of Libyan involvement contributed to the government's decision to allow British bases to be used as a launching pad for U.S. bombing raids on Libya. Libya has denied it was involved in the hostages' deaths.

Reagan policy 'blackmail'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega says Nicaragua wants peace with the United States, but he believes President Reagan has decided to destroy the Sandinista regime by military means.

He accused Reagan of "blackmail policy" in supporting Contra rebels who are fighting his government.

"I see no reason to maintain a policy of confrontation," Ortega said in an interview with The Associated Press. "Nicaragua is willing to overcome this situation, but the United States must stop its policy of aggression."

Ortega gave the interview late Wednesday night in an office at his official residence, dressed in a black army T-shirt and fatigue pants. The 40-year-old leader focused his remarks on relations with the superpower to the north.

The fact that Congress is debating Reagan's plan to give $100 million in aid to the rebels shows a "lack of respect" by the United States for another sovereign nation, he said.

"Regardless of the vote's outcome, there is a political decision to destroy our revolution, the attitude of the U.S. Congress does not fall within the framework of relations between states ... whether they approve 10, 30 or a 100 million dollars. This is a blackmail policy. They are committed to a military solution."

NEW ADULT BOOKS

The Skeptics Handbook of Parapsychology edited by Paul Kurtz
Many books and collections of essays on parapsychology have been published over the years, written and edited by those who support belief in psychic phenomena so this first comprehensive collection by the world's leading skeptics is a significant event. It combines a detailed history of parapsychology and psychic research with a broad view of the current status of the field.

Never Bring Her Roses by Susan Marie For Melody, her new home in Hickory Bend, Wisconsin, seemed the perfect choice, an ideal setting where her natural high spirits could run free, and where her considerable talents as a potter would flourish. She becomes involved with two volatile men and has to choose between upper-crust Warren who can offer security and glamor and Alexander who is remote and mysterious.

Eagle's Blood by Douglas Scott
This gripping story of adventure and self-sacrifice is based on real-life episodes when lives of thousands hung in the balance until the fate of the Italian aircraft-carrier, Aquila, was decided. Two former shipmates must try to prevent the Aquila from sailing. They are spirited into occupied Europe to persuade a third shipmate, now an Italian human torpedo squadron commander, to defect to the Allied side. The operation goes wrong, stranding the three in desperate situations.

Sleeping Dog by Dick Lochte

Fine restaurant service to be discussed Sunday

The Big Spring Restaurant Association will sponsor a food and beverage seminar for motivational management Sunday at 2:30 p.m. in the Big Spring Country Club ballroom.

Lonnie Simmons, president of Motivational Management Inc., will conduct the seminar. Anyone may attend. The fee is $10 per person. To register, call the Chamber of Commerce at 263-7641.

Lonnie Simmons

Simmons will speak on the finer points of making customers happy. Discussed will be wine service, how to set a table properly, serving exclusive guests at home and how to make customers want to give larger tips, said Annette Clendenen of the association.

He will teach participants how to break the routine of the everyday job, she said.

"He has helped a lot of restaurants increase their business," she said. "He's a real motivational expert."

Local restaurants may also get a surprise critique this weekend. Simmons has a habit of going to different restaurants to observe the service anonymously. Clendenen said, and he plans to do that here.

Those who attend the seminar can receive a reference and credit in a food and beverage career, she said.

Simmons has 20 years of club management experience. He is a past president of the Texas chapter of the Club Managers Association of America and member of the 500 Honor Society. He was the Club Management Staff and Training officer for the Air Force club program, according to a news release.

A retirement reception will be held for Irene Long, secretary to Martin County Judge Bob Davenport, Wednesday from 4 to 6 p.m. in the commissioners courtroom. She has been secretary to five Martin County judges, spanning 24 years: B.F. White, Jim McCoy, Carroll Yater, Jimmy Mathis and Davenport.

Larson Lloyd has been named manager of Big Spring Cable, replacing Paul Thoman, who was transferred to the company's office in Nacogdoches.

Larson Lloyd

He said the cable television business is changing rapidly due to expanding technology, which may allow systems to add more channels. His biggest challenge, he said, is to continue to add more subscribers at a time when the economy is not good. But he said the cable business has done well in the past when other industries were failing.

R.C. Hill, chief executive officer of Big Spring T&P Federal Credit Union, attended the Credit Union League's annual meeting April 10-12 in San Antonio. The convention featured educational seminars on economics, government and financial management, and speakers such as former Dallas Cowboys quarterback Roger Staubach, now a Dallas businessman.

Candy Kay Overton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J.L. Overton of Garden City, has recently returned from a Texas State Florists' Association conference, where she received a Texas Master Florist certificate and pin. This marks her completion of a series of 12 master florist courses, six pertaining to design production and six to management, according to a news release.

Hunan's Chinese restaurant has opened on Gregg Street near 12th Street. Paul Ng of Big Spring is the manager. No grand opening date has been set yet, according to the Chamber of Commerce.

There were 58 rigs actually making holes in District 8, West Texas, including Howard County, as of April 14, according to Hughes Tool Co. This compares to 82 rigs April 7, 79 rigs March 17 and 110 rigs April 15, 1985.

Next Saturday, April 26, is The Great Texas Trash-Off, sponsored by the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation and by the Big Spring Board of Realtors. Texans are encouraged to keep trash off roads, creeks and parks and put it in a trash can.

"Our goal is to demonstrate that keeping trash off the side of the road isn't that hard," said Janelle Britton, president of the local board. "Once they've tried using a trash can, we hope it'll be easier to get them to break the litter habit."

Food service operators and buyers from West Texas will be attending a food show today from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Midland Center, 105 N. Main in Midland. In conjunction, there will be a food service operators seminar from 9 a.m. to noon. Topics are food cost control, menu development and "Making Your Kitchen Work for You." Admission to both events is free.

Word-of-mouth best advertising

By TOM PETERS

Buying a personal computer or a new washing machine? Getting your car fixed? Need a real estate broker or financial adviser? Or looking for a new phone system for your office?

Where are you likely to go for counsel? Certainly you don't sit in front of the TV waiting for an ad to appear. You are not likely to "let your fingers do the walking." You probably ask a respected friend, neighbor or colleague who's been down the same route recently.

Now switch sides. If you were the would-be seller of a service or product, how could you tie into that network of friends and experts who advise potential buyers? Most sales — especially of services, complex products and new products — come via word of mouth. As a seller you need not passively sit by. You can be just as organized, thoughtful and systematic about "word of mouth advertising" as about media buys on network TV or in your local paper.

However, marketers, especially in smaller businesses, tend to over-rely on media advertising and under-rely on the careful development of reputational campaigns, says Silicon Valley marketing expert Regis McKenna.

Professor Ev Rogers of Stanford University is an expert in a field called "diffusion of innovation." It examines how new ideas and products spread, such as birth control techniques and agricultural technology. It looks at the reasons for typical 30- and 40-year delays in widespread dissemination of innovations with crystal clear, decisive advantages.

Study after study reviewed by Rogers revealed that (1) an innovation takes off after "interpersonal networks have become activated in spreading subjective evaluations" and (2) "success is related to the extent that the change agent — or marketer works through opinion leaders."

I write, I must add, with the zeal of a true believer. My first book, "In Search of Excellence," was launched by an unsystematic (but, in retrospect, thorough) word-of-mouth campaign. A speech and 35-millimeter slide presentation of what became the book's principal findings first was bound in 1980, two years before the book was published. The 125-page presentation circulated surreptitiously among business executives. Thus, within days of the book's launch, excellent reviews appeared and the network of 15,000 (plus at least an equal number of photocopied knock-offs) raced to buy the real thing, often in bulk for their subordinates. We could not have more effectively marketed the first book if we had planned this process meticulously. In fact, Nancy Austin (co-author of my second book) and I, did just that with the launch of "A Passion of Excellence."

The important point is that the process can be systematized. Careful maps of official opinion leaders can be made. Disproportionate selling time can and should be aimed at highly-reputable, would-be early adopters of new products and services. Devices, such as insider (current user) newsletters and testimonials, can be planned and executed meticulously. Events that pair happy customers with their ready-to-sign-on peers can be executed on both a one-shot and on-going basis.

Are you devoting the bulk of your marketing effort, dollars and energy to activating a word-of-mouth network? Are all your salespersons devoting a specific — and sizeable — share of time to user network development and expansion? Is every employee a conscientious network developer, among his or her colleagues? If you answer "no" to any of these questions, you may be turning your back on your highest-leverage market-development activity.

Torres leading hot Steer team

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Writer

The more the Steers play, the more first baseman Eli Torres has been coming up with the clutch hits.

The senior first sacker for the Steers has come into his own this season both as a hitter and fielder. He has been one of the main reasons the Steers have won six of their last seven district contests.

Take for instance in Tuesday's 5-3 win over Midland Lee. Torres, who went three-for-four in the game, drove in the two winning runs with a double in the sixth inning. Another good example is Big Spring's 8-6 win over San Angelo Central when he drove in the winning run in the fifth inning.

Torres also had two clutch hits in the Steers 3-2 upset win over second place Midland High last week. To say he has been on a tear would be putting it lightly. Since district play he has raised his batting average almost 70 points to a hefty .371. A big improvement over his .265 batting average last season.

The key to his success is simple. "I've been watching the ball better," he said. "Last year I was putting too much pressure on myself to do well. This year I'm relaxing more."

This is only the second season in the Steer baseball program for Torres. He and his family moved here from Lubbock, where he played baseball for Lubbock Coronado. Torres, who bats from the right side and throws with his left, was used primarily as a pitcher.

Last year under Coach Roland Atkins, he pitched only a couple innings and was used at first base. This year under coach John Velasquez he has played nothing but first base. "I wouldn't mind pitching," he said hesitantly. "In fact, I wish I was still pitching. But as long as I'm playing that's fine."

"I'm satisfied with playing first base. There are a couple of things I need to work on like keeping my glove down or moving in front of the ball quicker."

Coach Velasquez says that Torres has held his own defensively at the position. "His defense has improved from last year. He's been pretty consistent around the bag." Torres' .846 fielding average is one of the highest on the team.

When it comes to his bat, Velasquez shells out more praise. "Eli started out slow but has come on strong," he said of the player that leads his team in extra base hits with 10. "He's been hitting the ball real hard since the Midland High game. There's been some games that he's gone hitless, but he's still made good hard contact with the

the district's top hitters lately. He and his Big Spring teammates will take on Odessa High today in Odessa at 2 p.m.

way Big Spring is taking this game lightly. "We can't let up that for sure," said Torres. "Odessa High has been sneaking up on people lately. As far as I'm concerned this game is against Abilene Cooper." (first

Spinks, Holmes set for title encounter

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Mckie Shilstone is back in town with Michael Spinks, but nobody is laughing this time.

Shilstone came here last September as the author of a nutrition-conditioning plan that would help Michael Spinks, then the undisputed light heavyweight (175-pound) champion, beat unbeaten Larry Holmes for the International Boxing Federation heavyweight title.

There were smirks, winks and knowing nods among the boxing crowd.

There were some guffaws when Spinks weighed in at 200 pounds. Too heavy, critics said. No way he could handle that much added weight.

Spinks not only handled the weight, he handled Holmes, winning a 15-round unanimous decision and becoming the first light heavyweight champion to win a heavyweight title.

Mackie Shilstone, all 5 feet, 8½ inches and 137 pounds of him, knew what he was about.

This time Shilstone came to town for the rematch with Holmes Saturday night at the Las Vegas Hilton with a bigger version of Spinks. The 6-2½ champion is much thicker through the thighs.

"I trained as a heavyweight this time," Spinks said Thursday. "I should be much stronger."

Spinks went into training for the first fight weighing about 188 pounds. He was close to 200 pounds when he opened camp six weeks ago, and Shilstone expects him to weigh between 200 and 205 Saturday night. Holmes probably will weigh close to his first-fight weight of 221½ pounds.

The official weigh-in was scheduled for noon PST today.

"The basics are the same as last time," Shilstone said of his diet-conditioning program for Spinks. "But in our evaluation we did away with the shorter runs."

Shilstone has had Spinks running 440, 880 and 1,320 yards. Sometimes the fighter walks for one-minute intervals between runs and sometimes he jogs.

Shilstone, a New Orleans resident who calls himself "a wellness consultant" also has had Spinks on a weight program and doing something called plyometric training.

"That teaches him motor skills and to react explosively," Shilstone said.

In plyometric training, Spinks steps down off a 24-inch box into his fighting stance, then jumps up on to a 42-inch box and so on.

It's enough to make oldtime boxing guys shake their heads.

But Spinks believes in Shilstone's methods, and some traditional trainers are taking a hard look at them.

One well-known trainer-manager, Lou Duva, has been in touch with Shilstone.

Shilstone goes through all the phases of the conditioning program with Spinks — "It not what I say, it's what I do." Then he turns the fighter over to his trainers for the traditional sparring, shadow-boxing, rope-skipping and bag-punching.

But he did appear in the ring after Spinks' victory over Holmes last Sept. 21.

"Thank you," Spinks told Shilstone. "I was conditioned."

And Spinks looks conditioned again, but the smart money guys feel that the 36-year-old Holmes still has enough skill to win.

Holmes was a 7½-5 favorite.

CINCINNATI (AP) — Phil Garner and Alan Ashby rocked Mario Soto with home runs Friday night as the Houston Astros took advantage of the right-hander's inconsistency to forge a 6-4 victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pete O'Brien, Steve Buechele and Pete Incaviglia hit home runs as the Texas Rangers broke open a close game in the middle innings and romped to an 12-3 victory over the Baltimore Orioles Friday night.

O'Brien hit a three-run shot in the Rangers' six-run fifth to chase Orioles starter Scott McGregor, 1-1. Buechele opened the sixth with his third homer in as many games, and later that inning, Incaviglia hit his second of the season with two men on.

Mavs get by Jazz; Bullets upset 76ers

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas guard Rolando Blackman took charge late in the second quarter and scored 25 points Friday night to carry the Mavericks to a 101-93 victory over the Utah Jazz in the opener of their best-of-5 NBA playoff series.

Blackman was scoreless until he went on a tear with 5:55 left in the first half, scoring 12 of the Mavericks' last 16 points.

He scored eight points in the third quarter and made Dallas' first field goal in the fourth period after a drought of almost six minutes when the Mavs were living off free throws. Blackman also made three free throws and contributed a steal late in the fourth period.

Utah, playing without leading scorer Adrian Dantley, who is out with back spasms, was paced by rookie Karl Malone with 23 points and Bobby Hansen with 15.

Mark Aguirre added 15 points for Dallas and Sam Perkins had 15 rebounds.

Dallas hit 28 of 30 free throws before the sellout crowd of 17,007 fans.

NBA

Bullets 95, 76ers 94
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Dudley Bradley was the improbable hero of an even more improbable comeback Friday night.

Bradley, statistically the worst shooter (34.9 percent) in the NBA this season, banked in a 25-foot shot at the buzzer, capping an 18-0 Washington rally that gave the Bullets a 95-94 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers in the opening game of their first-round playoff series. "I practice three-pointers a lot and it sure paid off," said Bradley, who hit another three-pointer as the Bullets rallied from a 94-77 deficit in the last 3½ minutes. "I just spun around and shot it. When it left my hand, I thought it was going in. I was really happy because I knew that was it."

The rally appeared destined to fall short in the final seconds when, with the 76ers leading 94-92, Terry Catledge grabbed an offensive rebound with seven seconds to go to allow Philadelphia to maintain possession.

Julius Erving was fouled with three seconds left. But he missed three free throws, the last after a Washington lane violation gave him another chance.

Bucks 119, Nets 107
MILWAUKEE (AP) — Craig Hodges scored 22 of his 25 points in the first half and Paul Pressey scored 15 of his 17 points in the second half as Milwaukee defeated the New Jersey Nets 119-107 in the opening game of a first-round NBA playoff series Friday.

The Bucks opened the fourth quarter with a 10-2 streak to go ahead 96-86 with 8:05 left on two foul shots by Pressey.

The Nets never got closer than five points after that as the Bucks' defense forced crucial New Jersey turnovers.

Alton Lister came off the bench to add 17 for Milwaukee.

Buck Williams led New Jersey with 27 points, Otis Birdsong had 24 and Albert King had 19 points.

The Bucks and Nets were tied 58-58 at intermission.
