How's that?

Water

Q. What makes Big Spring water taste so bad?
A. Big Spring's water often has an unpleasant taste because it picks up salt from the surrounding earth, said Jed Barker of the Texas Department of Health. There's nothing anyone can do about it, he said.

Angry teachers using Mark White as target

By JANET WARREN
Harte-Hanks Austin Bureau
AUSTIN — Students eager to know whether their teachers failed the competency test last month are helping kindle some fiery anger against Gov. Mark White. "Everyone seems to be asking teachers if they passed the test," said Annette Cootes, a Texas State Teachers Association spokeswoman. "Teachers are demoralized over the testing and they can't seem to forget it. Even those that feel like they passed it, they don't want to constantly be asked. Every one of the students asks," she said. The test, along with more paperwork and an underfunded system for rewarding top-notch teachers, has some teachers in a frenzy over 1984 education reform legislation. The target of their anger is Gov. Mark White, who is seeking re-election on the Democratic ticket. White treats as a show piece his signature on the multi-pronged education reform bill, which included the competency test and a record teacher pay hike. But he runs into angry teachers on the campaign trail and is the focus of some angry teacher rallies. "They're not concerned with anything except defeating Mark White," said James Butler, president of the Texas State Teachers Association, although he noted that not all teachers are furious with White. His group worked hard for White's victory over then-Gov. Bill Clements in 1982, Butler said. Teacher groups said White promised to make things better for them and improve their pay. "Then when the law was passed and things came down that teachers felt they couldn't live with, they got very upset," Butler said. But why blame the governor when Texas legislative leadership handed the legislation to White to sign or reject in an all-or-nothing proposition? "I don't think they understand the governor has limited power," said Susan Crocker of the Texas Classroom Teachers Association. "But the anger is directed at him because he has been the most visible in terms of taking credit for the reforms." White tells teachers that he couldn't pick and choose among the reforms once they were in the bill. In a recent campaign swing, an East Texas teacher told White that his explanation could help cool the teachers, who liked many of reforms. But Crocker said she doesn't believe that will help White since he is against changing the law. "I think most teachers feel it is kind of ludicrous to say any piece of legislation is perfect," Crocker said. Also, White's no-change stance casts teachers as traitors when they ask for modifications, said Mike Morrow, executive director of the Association of Texas Professional Educators. The bottom line is that "accountability does not stop and start at the classroom door. It extends to the governor's office," Morrow said. White, in a recent interview, was asked about taking blame for the reforms, particularly the test. "That's part of the deal," he said. "There was not going to be any pay raise. There would never have been any change in the education program without the test. That was the Legislature's prerogative,"

Storms bully West Texas

Staff and wire reports
Thunderstorms that produced grapefruit-size hail and high winds smashed windows and damaged some buildings and homes in West Texas after funnel clouds were sighted, authorities said. Parts of Big Spring were soaked by a brief but vigorous thunderstorm Saturday evening, but there was not enough rain to measure, said Red Thomas of 107 E. 13th St. and Tommy Hart of 1750 Purdue Ave.

"It just got the sidewalk wet," Hart said. "It appeared to move south of here. San Angelo may benefit from it." Skies remain partly cloudy, though, and a 20 percent chance of evening thunderstorms is forecast for today. Two twisters were sighted Friday about 10 miles west and four miles north of Roby, said a Fisher County Sheriff's Department dispatcher. The Howard County sheriff's department got a report of an unofficial sighting of a tornado that touched ground southeast of Coahoma, about 17 miles east of Big Spring at 4:30 p.m. Friday. The National Weather Service posted two tornado warnings Saturday night for Haskell and Stonewall counties in West Texas, but sheriff's dispatchers in both counties said no damage or injuries had been reported. In the Friday incidents, the sheriff's pickup truck was battered and his windows were broken out by "baseball" size hail near Rotan, the Fisher County dispatcher said. He said another sheriff's department employee told him that the Education far-reaching, says new board member

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer
Education is important for the community's survival and for the well-being of individuals, said Dock Voorhies, newest member of the Big Spring school board. The type of education available now determines what the community will be like 10 to 20 years from now, he said. Inadequate education results in increased crime and welfare dependence. The uneducated turn to crime or welfare to live because they don't have many other options when jobs get scarce," he said. As a social worker, he sees such problems often. For that reason, he hopes for increased input from parents, students and the community at large into public education. One of his goals is to increase public attendance at school board meetings. "I hope people would feel they could make a difference," he said. Voorhies said he is the first black official to be elected in Howard County. "That speaks well of the Big Spring community," he said. Indigent care on agenda for county

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer
Howard County commissioners will discuss an indigent health care plan when they meet at 9 a.m. Monday in the county courthouse. Jack Woodall, director of the Howard County Health Clinic, and James Luck, county sanitation supervisor, are on the agenda to discuss the recently passed state bill which requires counties to provide health care for indigents. "They want to set up a screening process" for patients who may qualify for treatment under the plan, said County Judge Milton Kirby. The health care bill, passed in the last Legislature, requires counties without public hospitals to absorb medical services for persons who are too poor to pay for health care. Counties such as Howard must provide care to indigents up to $30,000 per year per patient or 30-day hospital expenses — whichever is less. Kirby said the county must reach an agreement with the local health clinic regarding who qualifies for indigent health care. He said Luck and Woodall will present to commissioners a proposed screening process to meet

Englishman writes of Texian war

Journey through Texas

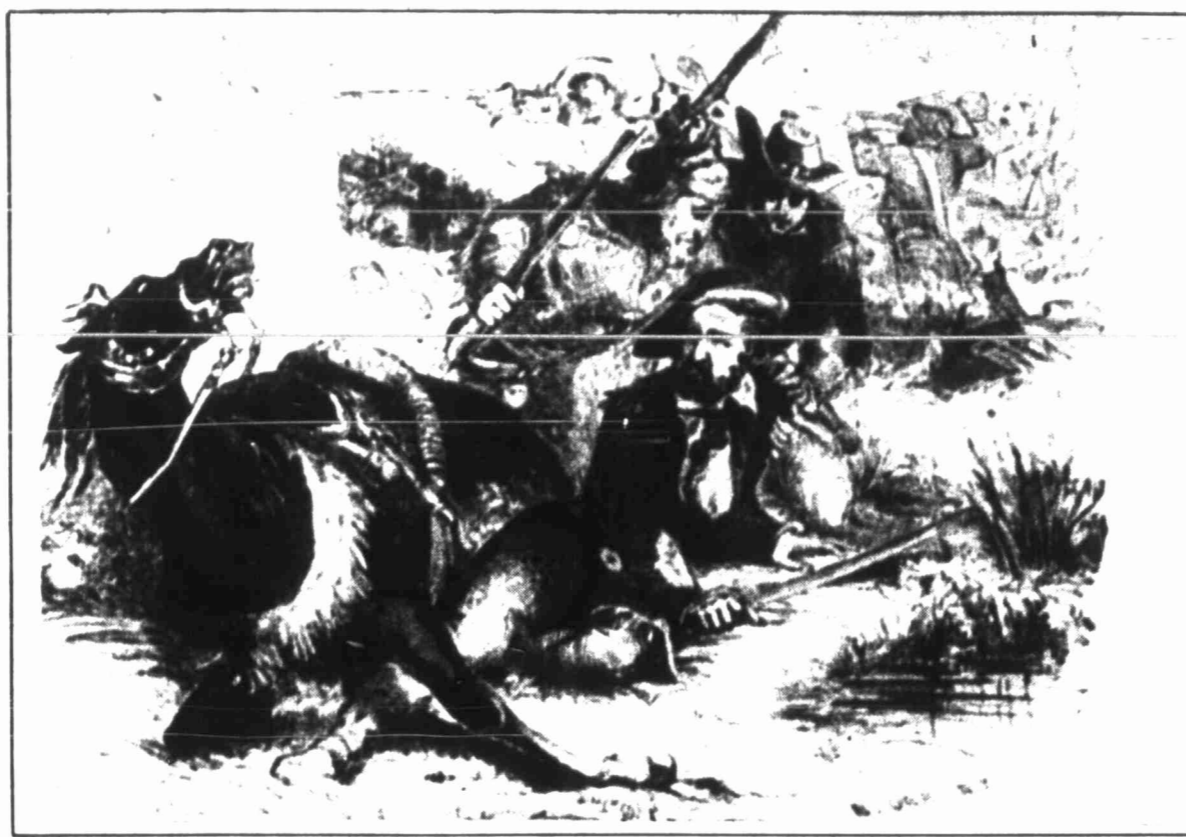

By WENDY ADAIR

He came to the United States of America in the early 1830s from Suffolk County, England, an itinerant salesman. His hopes for a good life in North Carolina, Alabama and Louisiana were met by hard times. So, like so many other disillusioned, broke and desperate men, George E. Fennell was lured by $8 per month and the promise of free land to join the Georgia Volunteers in the Texas war against Mexico.

He has barely escaped with his life, having quit the Georgia battalion just before it was wiped out with Col. James Fannin at Goliad, but his overriding desire to own a piece of this new land has led him to volunteer again, this time as part of General Sam Houston's army.

Life in the Texian Army is harsh and Fennell reports that, "...Provisionally for me, although (sic) exposed to all the inclemency of weather, walking sentry night and day, glad to obtain a little parched corn for food and for days and weeks on a forced march thro' the wilderness and wild prairies, with the burthen of my gun and accoutrements of at least 40 pounds weight — yet with all this I don't remember experiencing one hour of sickness."

He indeed, this time, has chosen his companions well. His six months' duty with General Houston culminates in the final battle of the War for Texas Independence, which Fennell calls the Battle of San Jacinto. "The struggle was ended for that campaign on the 21st April last by the Battle of San Jacinto, in which we were

Despite being wounded and unsaddled at the Battle of San Jacinto, Sam Houston and his army defeated the wily Santa Anna and assured the birth of a republic. The drawing is a gift of Frell Albright in the San Jacinto Collection at M.D. Anderson Library, University of Houston-University Park.

(singularly) successful — leaving nearly — 700 dead on the field and taking about as many more prisoners, including their President Gen. Santa Anna, Gen. Cos, Col. Almonte and many other distinguished officers."

In describing the battle in a letter home to his brother, Fennell writes that the Mexicans were well armed and superior to the Texians in discipline, but "so sudden was our change on their lines — that they instantly gave way — which accounts for the immense havoc made among them by our army — a little over 600 strong, in the course of 15 or 20 minutes." The Texians have few wounded, "10 or a dos. killd (sic) and I think about 20 wounded, among whom was our brave Gen. Houston himself, whose horse was shot under him..."

With the last major battle won, George Fennell can now count himself a true citizen of the Republic of Texas and a landowner with a third of a league of land plus another 320 acres for his service at San Jacinto. He only has two months before his discharge becomes final, then he can collect $24 for services as a private in Captain William S. Fisher's Company of Texas Volunteers.

Fennell may have joined the Texian Army for the chance to become a major landowner, but the postscript he adds to his brother shows he has caught the spark of Texas patriotism.

"P.S. I have the satisfaction to believe that Texas is approaching to the high standard of Republican Sovereignty, which I pray God — she may sustain — commissioners from the City of Mexico have been sent to the Government of Texas... as the liberation of Santa Anna is their object, the probability is we shall thro' the assistance of our very good friend Gen. Jackson, effect an understanding — with the Mexican Fly our force is always ready to take the field — and the moment they make the attempt, our men their gallant commanders, will set them at naught."

"Journey Through Texas" is a Sesquicentennial project of the University of Houston-University Park Office of Media Relations. This story is based on materials housed in the Special Collections Department of the university's M.D. Anderson Library.

Weather

Forecast

WEST TEXAS: Scattered thunderstorms. Highs Sunday mostly in the 70s and 80s, lows mostly in the 40s and 50s.

State

By The Associated Press
Showers and thunderstorms wet Northwest Texas and the western Red River Valley Saturday, while low- to upper-level cloudiness covered most of the rest of the state.

A low-pressure system over northwest Kansas and a high-pressure ridge over the southeast coastal states combined to bring a strong southerly wind flow over Texas, the National Weather Service reported.

Low clouds covered most of the eastern half of Texas, while middle- and upper-level cloudiness prevailed over the greater portion of West Texas. Parts of Central Texas and the Hill Country, however, had mostly sunny skies.

Temperatures were generally in the 80s. The extremes at 3 p.m. ranged from 73 degrees at Guadalupe Pass to 92 at Cotulla.

The forecast for North Texas calls for mostly cloudy skies and scattered thunderstorms Sunday, some possibly severe. Highs should be in the 80s and lows in the 50s and 60s. Skies should begin clearing Monday with highs in the 70s and 80s.

South Texas should be partly cloudy through Monday with widely scattered thunderstorms. Highs should be in the 80s and 90s and lows in the 60s and low 70s.

Voorhies believes in putting reason and principles above emotions, he said, and he hopes that attitude will have a positive effect on the school board, "so our goal will be what's in the best interests of the student and not a personal interest."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most Americans get an extra hour of light for sports, cookouts and other evening activities starting today, with the return of Daylight-Saving Time.

The change occurred officially at 2 a.m., with time springing forward an hour in most parts of the nation — except Hawaii, Arizona and parts of Indiana.

Teachers

White said. The Texas Federation of Teachers, which backed the bill although it didn't like the test, is trying to ride to White's rescue.

Teachers "have somehow got in their heads that he was responsible for that test," said TFT president John Cole, who claimed that less than a majority of teachers dislike White.

"The irony of all this is if they want to be angry at somebody over the reforms, which I think is a mistake, they are directing their anger in the wrong place. He is also the guy that stuck his neck out for us and got a tax increase to pay for the pay raise," Cole said.

"What we heard from the Legislature is that if they were going to sell a tax increase, they had to give the public something to justify it. There was tremendous support for testing teachers. They used that for the trade-off," Cole added.

But frustration is understandable, Cole said, since some school districts "blew" the extra state money on frills and did not sink it into higher teacher pay.

Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, who was instrumental in the reform bill passage, said with a touch of sarcasm that teachers are targeting White because no good turn goes unpunished. "It stands to reason that since the governor got teachers the biggest pay raise in history, that the teacher unions wouldn't like him."

Hobby said that anti-White teacher rallies, like the one at the Capitol last week, actually help White and the entire Democratic ticket. "People very strongly support education reform. I think displays like that do nothing but display the unreasonableness of those who oppose it. They are a distinct help," Hobby said.

Teacher group spokesmen had a variety of opinions how the teachers will react in the May party primaries and in the November general election if White faces his old Republican rival Clements, who was not considered a friend of teachers.

Only Crocker said she noticed many teachers moving to the Republican Party, while some other teacher group spokesmen didn't note a great change.

On the November general election, Morrow said: "Will they work for Mr. Clements? I don't know. Will they work against Mr. White? Probably. They really feel like (White) abandoned them at a time when they really needed him."

Crocker said she didn't think teachers would cut their own throats if they supported Clements. "He has always been consistent in his treatment of educators. When he says something he maintains that stance. He doesn't change his position. Mark White seems to have changed his position on education considerably."

Butler said it really is too early to tell what will happen in November, although there is a lot of hostility toward White right now.

However, Cole said, "Clements is a known quantity. When they contrast the two records, the teachers will want to support White."

qualification obligations.

According to eligibility information released from state Rep. Larry Don Shaw's office in August, minimum eligibility criteria for persons who require indigent health care will be similar to the current eligibility standards for Aid to Families with Dependent Children and Medicaid programs.

Those who will qualify for indigent health care include pregnant women, single-parent families and children of two-parent families. The bill also says persons who currently are not eligible for AFDC funding because they have no children will qualify for indigent health care services.

The indigent health care bill becomes effective Sept. 1.

Commissioners will also hold a closed session with Johnnie Walker to discuss a personnel matter, according to the agenda.

Western Co. in trouble

FORT WORTH — Western Co. of North America, beleaguered by the oil industry slump, suspended all payments of interest and principal on more than $400 million in bank debt for "an indefinite period."

Company officials attributed the move Friday to "continued deterioration of market conditions" affecting both Western's lines of business — onshore oil and gas well services and offshore contract drilling.

"The suspension of interest and principal payments was undertaken to conserve the company's cash position, which is currently in excess of $45 million," said Western Chairman H.E. "Eddie" Chiles.

Ex-airport chief charged

DALLAS — The former director of the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport has been charged with accepting more than $5,000 worth of free survey work from a company he supervised as the airport's chief executive.

Ernest E. Dean, who resigned as executive director last July, was named in an arrest warrant Friday, bringing to 31 the number of charges against people accused of various crimes involving work at the airport.

Those charged include nine former airport employees, the H.B. Zachry construction company and a former company employee.

Titan blast worried some LOMPOC, Calif. — Worried people seeking information when a Titan rocket exploded into a toxic cloud at Vandenberg Air Force Base got little help from local authorities, who charge the Air Force was slow to tell the public they were not in danger.

An Air Force general insists he did everything right, and one county supervisor says local officials must share responsibility for the confusion that immediately followed the April 18 explosion.

Most local officials said they were pretty sure there was no danger, but some said their concerns weren't laid to rest for an hour or more. A hospital administrator said it was three hours before he was informed.

Bell urges more choices

SALT LAKE CITY — Former U.S. Secretary of Education T.H. Bell says changes are coming to American education and he urges reformers to give parents more choices over the schools and classes their children attend.

The alternative, Bell said, is "to have action forced upon us. ... Whether you like it or not, parent choice is coming."

Bell spoke at a reunion of his National Commission on Excellence in Education, the blue-ribbon panel that helped trigger soul-searching among America's education establishment with a biting 1983 critique, "A Nation At Risk."

Terrorists strike several European targets

By The Associated Press

Terrorists struck in Spain, France, North Yemen and Austria on Friday, killing six people, wounding a U.S. Embassy employee and bombing an office of Saudi Arabia's state-run airline.

Early Saturday, an explosion rocked the American Express office in Lyon, France, touching off a fire and slightly wounding one person who was cut by flying glass.

On Friday, anonymous callers had claimed responsibility on behalf of an Arab group for the gunshot killing of a British employee of a U.S. firm in Lyon earlier in the day.

Officials, however, said they had not found any links in the attacks to the April 15 U.S. air raids against Libya.

The bloodiest of Friday's attacks occurred in Madrid, Spain, where five civil guardsmen were killed and four were wounded when a car bomb demolished their vehicle on Juan Bravo Street in the Salamanca district. Two pedestrians also were slightly injured.

Officials blamed the bombing on terrorists of ETA, the Basque separatist organization. In the Basque language, ETA stands for Basque Land and Liberty.

Witnesses said a parked car exploded as the guardsmen's Land-Rover drove past, and a young man had been sitting in the car minutes before the blast at 7:25 a.m.

Police said the car bomb was set off by remote control and contained 44 pounds of explosives and metal.

Thirteen people have died in political violence in Spain this year, and since 1968, 155 civil guardsmen have been killed in terrorist attacks, most of them claimed by ETA.

The victim in the Lyon shooting was Kenneth Marston, 43, a British businessman who was the top representative in France for the U.S.-owned Black & Decker Manufacturing Co.

Police said the killer, dressed in black and using a sawed-off shotgun, shot Marston twice in the chest as he was leaving his home at 8:30 a.m., and the victim died two hours later.

Police said they have not determined if the killer was a terrorist or common criminal. Marston's company said it knew of no threats and had no idea why he was killed.

Hours after the attack, British and French news agencies received telephone calls claiming an Arab group was responsible. The caller to the French agency said, "We are a small Arab group. We claim responsibility for the attack this morning against the director of Black and Decker in reprisal for (inaudible) American."

In the call to a British agency, the name of the group was inaudible except for the word "Arab," and the recorded voice said, "We will destroy all American and English imperialist interests in the world, wherever they are."

Britain had approved of the use of English air bases by the 18 U.S. Air Force F-111s that took part in the Libyan air raids, and various terrorist groups threatened to strike at both British and American targets. Libyan called for revenge attacks against Americans and U.S. installations.

Anti-terror unit proposed

Italian and West German Cabinet ministers, in advance of next week's Western summit in Tokyo, have proposed forming a multinational commando force that could be thrown into action in future terrorist emergencies.

The international anti-terrorist unit is one idea being discussed as the seven biggest industrial democracies prepare for their 12th annual summit, an economic conference overshadowed this year by the terrorist threat.

Past summits produced little more than joint declarations of war on terrorism, but this time President Reagan says a "grandiose statement" will not be enough.

Paper seeks Libya probe

TRIPOLI, Libya — An influential Libyan newspaper has called for an investigation into what Libya did wrong during the U.S. bombing raid — the first official acknowledgement that the country was poorly prepared.

It also criticized Libyan news media claims that more than 20 U.S. fighter-bombers were shot down, and urged more professional reporting at a time when "the whole world is listening to us."

Official propaganda had been describing the April 15 U.S. air raid as a failure and had praised Libyan air defenses for their performance.

Britain expels students

LONDON — Britain cracked down sharply on Libyan students last week, moving to force about 360 of them from the country. Most other West European countries began imposing cuts or restrictions on Libyan diplomatic missions.

The 12 Common Market nations decided last Monday to reduce the number of Libyan diplomats in their cities and restrict the movements of those remaining. Other Libyan entities, like airline or trade offices, were to be examined with a view to reducing the number of employees.

With the exception of Greece, most Common Market countries followed up by announcing a range of sanctions against the North African nation, which the United States and Common Market have said is involved in international terrorism.

Swaziland gets teen ruler

MBABANE, Swaziland — This landlocked kingdom's new teen-age ruler promised Saturday to serve his subjects and uphold tradition at a ceremony marked by a rare public gathering of both black African and South African leaders.

Observing diplomatic courtesies, the leaders shook each others' hands.

But Lesotho's King Moshoeshoe II referred indirectly in his speech to South Africa's policy of apartheid, or forced racial segregation, by calling on Swazi King Mswati III to join the struggle against "legalized and institutionalized" discrimination.

Hispanic portrait strains history

Across the state this year, most Texans surrendered to the usual fireworks and barbecues to celebrate the sesquicentennial. But a more human sesquicentennial story is being played out in the person of Steve Warren.

Space buffs may remember the name. Warren, a high school teacher in Austin, reached the finals in NASA's teacher-in-space program. But Warren at the moment is struggling with something of a more earthly danger: How to portray Mexican characters in a play he wrote for the sesquicentennial.

This story actually begins last year, when a friend called me on a warm spring evening to go with her to a reading of a play about the Alamo. Steve Warren is its playwright.

As it turned out, the Alamo provided only backdrop for Warren's play. In "Gone to Texas," Warren examines why figures such as William Barrett Travis, Davy Crockett and Jim Bowie ended up as the human knot in the Alamo, facing the onslaught of Mexico's army.

As a subplot, Warren wanted to make the point that many Mexican Texans — notably Juan Seguin of San Antonio — participated in the fight leading up to Texas' independence.

Warren's intents were noble. But, as the reading progressed that evening, I realized the play was an abysmal failure.

Seguin — a true believer in freedom and the Texas compatriot who led the charge against Santa Anna's forces at the conclusive Battle of San Jacinto — came off in the play and in the dramatic events unfolding in Texas no better than a fifth column or a Trojan horse at best.

The rest of the Mexicans were earlier versions of Cheech and Chong. The non-Mexican Texans, of course, were gallant adventurers and soldiers of fortune whom history had thrust forward to christen the new Texas.

The play truly offended me and missed the mark about Spain.

Only a moment passed into a planned critique period before a young woman — from Connecticut, I said — stood to say that if she were Mexican or Mexican-American, she would have been in-sulted by the play's degrading treatment of the Mexican characters.

The obvious having been said, I slipped out the door, confident Warren's play would never feel the heat of a stagelighting.

At home later that night, I pondered the stereotyping. Had Texas only travelled that far in 150 years?

The more I thought about it, the more I realized Warren and the actors reading their parts had no more intended their play to be insulting than the man on the moon. But there it was.

What Warren faced as he cast Mexican characters in the play was chance on its own. The use of Spanish generated insult because it was not handled properly. Any attempt at humor misfired because it was at the expense of a Mexican, usually.

Accents on stage, especially, can — and did — play off an actor badly. They can easily give the impression that fun is being poked at individuals whose pronunciation of English is not up to snuff.

That the Mexican characters and the villains are one and the same, necessarily, in the story magnified the problems Warren faced. They were, after all, the enemy.

Months passed with no announcement about a play about the Alamo. I concluded the play had sunk of its own weight.

Then, last week, my phone rang. Warren was on the phone. Not only was it not dead, the play, according to Warren, is in rehearsal — on the verge of a May production. Could I take a look at it, he asked.

My protestations that I was not qualified to review his play must have sounded hollow. They were. I was anxious to see what he had done to change the play.

What Warren has done is rewrite parts, hoping any racial overtones are removed. After reading the play, it is certain that only what the actors and the director do with Warren's writing will decide if any audience will be offended.

While the play still has problems, it's time to let the public make its own judgment.

Anyone with the courage to go up in space can certainly sustain public reaction — whatever it is.

And thank you, too, kids

By JOHN RICE
Managing Editor

I had the rare privilege to mingle with some of the city's real people, those who populate Wanda Buske's dominion at Goliad school for sixth graders. I was ostensibly there to instruct them on the benefits of becoming newspaper readers. That I tried to do with words and with the help of some photographs of national and international events that I brought with me.

I failed, however, in at least one major task — explaining how much newspaper carriers make for throwing the Big Spring Herald every day after school. I told them to call Chuck Benz to find out about that. He's our circulation director and knows about those things.

On Friday, a large package was delivered to the paper that, much to my surprise, contained thank you letters from the class. I thought they were relieved to see me leave. On second thought, maybe that's the reason for the "thank yous."

Here are some of the more enlightening messages:

From Vergil Garcia: "Thank you for coming Mr. John Rice and good luck. You are talented to come and talk about the editor." Vergil thinks I'm impersonating a newspaper editor.

From Cecilia Galindo: "Thank you for coming to our class and showing us all your pictures. I like the comics." Great newspaper readers all started with the comics, Cecilia. Keep it up.

From Joy Hildebrand: "... you are real talented..." My mother thanks you and I thank you. But would you tell my boss? Maybe he'll give me a raise.

From Yelisa Fennell: "... I really was interested in what we talked about." That's designed to reassure me in case I detected a level of boredom as I dwelt on satellite hookups and foreign news bureaus.

From Rosalinda Neinez: "Thank you for coming and visiting us. Your pictures were really exciting."

So much for the flattery. Now we get to the real stuff. "Mr. Rice, my favorite part of the newspaper is the comics and Dear Abby."

From Michael Munoz: "Thank you for coming to talk to our classroom about your work. I don't know any important and busy man who would take time off his work to talk, show pictures to us kids." I don't either, Michael.

From Rosemary Alvarez, a succinct and generous critique of my 45-minute ramble: "Nice job."

From Sophia Garcia, a note of concern and a little positive reinforcement: "Thank you for coming to visit us, and we hope you are happy with your business."

From Jennifer Velasquez: "Your newspapers are great." Sign this lady up!

From Elias Bihl: "Thanks for coming and making us miss 6th period for telling us about your job. I think I would like to be a managing editor." Anytime I can be of service, Elias.

By the way, I think you'd be a good managing editor some day.

Billy Graham

Woman wishes her cousin ill

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: My cousin has hurt me very much through some things she has said about me. Does the Bible really say we ought to pray for people who have hurt us, and even to forgive them for what they have done? Frankly, the only prayer I feel like praying is that God would make her miserable and punish her for what she has done. — Mrs. C.P.O.

DEAR MRS. C.P.O.: Jesus told us: "You have heard that it was said, 'Love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But I tell you: Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, that you may be sons of your Father in heaven" (Matthew 5:43-45). He went on to say: "If you do not forgive men their sins, your Father will not forgive your sins" (Matthew 6:15).

These and many other passages stress the importance of praying even for those who have hurt us, and forgiving them as well.

Our natural reaction is to strike back at those who hurt us. But there are at least two reasons why God tells us to forgive them. The first is because of what an unforgiving spirit will do to us.

If we refuse to forgive others, we only end up hurting ourselves by becoming bitter, suspicious people who are constantly angry at the world and unable to enjoy life. This is what could happen to you if you go through life with an unforgiving, hateful spirit toward your cousin — and God does not want that to happen, because He loves you.

In addition, when we learn to forgive others (even if they do not deserve it), we will learn what it means to have God offer His forgiveness to us. We don't deserve His love, because we have hurt Him far, far more than your cousin could ever hurt you.

But God still loves us and wants us to come to know Him and be part of His family. That is why Christ came. Open your heart to Him today, and then ask Him to help you.

Mixed drink sale necessary for city

To the editor:

With respect to the recent petitions signed by over 2,500 citizens of our county, asking for an election to make legal the sale of mixed beverages, the issue is not whether or not the sale of liquor should be legalized. It is already legal.

The vast majority of those who consume alcoholic beverages in our community accept the responsibility that goes along with the privilege of being permitted to purchase these beverages. We have laws to deal with those who abuse the privilege, and I feel that on the whole our citizens are just as responsible as those in Midland, Odessa, San Angelo, Abilene, Lubbock and the other cities in our State which permit the sale of mixed beverages.

Shall we continue to tell our own citizens and those who would like to come to Big Spring to visit and live that we don't think they can go to a restaurant and have a mixed drink with their meal without committing a violent crime?

How many prospective visitors and employers look right past Big Spring every year because of this attitude? We can't stand still as a city. We are either going to grow and provide more job opportunities for our citizens and their children, or we are going to get smaller and force our young people to look to other communities for their future.

The legalized sale of mixed drinks is only one of many things we need to accomplish if we want to influence companies to locate in our community and develop our tourist industry. But it is one and it is necessary.

"OK, PUT IN A QUART BUT NONE OF THAT LIBYAN TERRORIST STUFF"

Around The Rim

The greatest gift of all

By ROBIN WARD

Most people don't think twice about donating blood while they're alive — but only half of Americans say they're likely to want their own organs donated after they're dead.

And although two-thirds of Americans think organ donation at death is a good idea, only 19 percent have completed donor cards.

Those statistics, from a new Gallup poll, show that many people still have reservations, most based on misinformation, about donating organs.

Some area folks are trying to change all that. At least three groups at the Big Spring Health Fair Saturday were providing information about donating organs for transplants.

The Big Spring Lion's Club sponsored a "Gift of Sight" exhibit in conjunction with the District Lions Eye Bank of Midland, discussing donation of eyes for cornea or grafting transplants.

Representatives from the Southwest Organ Bank and the National Kidney Foundation of Texas were on hand answering questions on organ donations, including such aspects as determination of death, legal requirements and religious considerations.

U.S. Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen, who kicked off a nationwide public awareness campaign on the issue Monday, says more than 10,000 people remain on waiting lists for organ transplants.

A shortage of suitable organs is the chief problem, he told the Associated Press.

"With medical technology improving constantly, the need for organs and tissues for transplants continues to grow as well," he said. "To be successful, educating people about donation must be intensified."

Some people still have unwarranted fears of organ donation.

These people, said Bowen, must be assured they will not be denied medical care because they carry a donor card, that the body is not disfigured by organ donations and that the donor's family pays nothing for the surgery needed to remove organs.

Nearly 60,000 people received organ or tissue transplants last year, he said. They include nearly 10,000 people who were able to return to work or school after receiving organ transplants; 24,000 who received cornea transplants that restored their sight; and 25,000 who regained mobility or recovered from burn injuries because of transplanted bone or skin.

For these people, donated organs were truly a "gift of life."

Shriver, Schwarzenegger wed surrounded by fans

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — Maria Shriver and Arnold Schwarzenegger exchanged wedding vows Saturday while hundreds of cheering onlookers, drawn by the celebrity of the couple and her Kennedy family ties, crowded streets outside the church in this Cape Cod resort.

Tight security allowed only the invited to view the traditional Roman Catholic ceremony for the "CBS Morning News" anchorwoman and the body-builder-turned-actor.

Among the 500 guests inside St. Francis Xavier Church were actresses Susan St. James Ebersol and Cathy Lee Crosby, pop singer Andy Williams, tennis star Arthur Ashe, columnists Art Buchwald and Abigail "Dear Abby" Van Buren, television personalities Barbara Walters and Tom Brokaw and Austrian Ambassador Thomas Klestil.

They were joined by a heavy turnout of Kennedy family members, including Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., his former wife, Joan, and their children, Ted Jr. and Kara; Ethel Kennedy, the wife of slain Sen. Robert Kennedy, D-N.Y., and her son, Joseph P. Kennedy II, a candidate for the 8th Congressional District seat, and Jacqueline Onassis, the widow of slain President John F. Kennedy. Family matriarch Rose Kennedy, who suffered a stroke two years ago, did not attend the ceremony scheduled for 11 a.m.

The white clapboard church was ringed by off-duty police officers hired by the Shriver family to keep back the crowd which began to gather under leaden skies before 7:30 a.m.

"Can you imagine getting married and having all these people line up outside?" asked Peg Curry of Sandwich. "We're starved for entertainment down here."

Some spectators climbed trees along the residential street for a better view, while others sat on roofs and second-floor porches.

Reporters and photographers jammed into risers set up across the street in the driveway of a rooming house.

Guests began arriving in buses and limousines about 9:30 a.m. Many went unrecognized, but those with famous faces drew cheers and applause.

The crowd gave its loudest response to Mrs. Onassis, who wore a navy suit with a white triangular inset.

Schwarzenegger, wearing a traditional gray tuxedo, disappointed his fans by slipping out of a limousine and into a back door.

The bride, who will use the name Shriver Schwarzenegger, wore a snow-white V-neck gown with an 11-foot train. She arrived 15 minutes late, accompanied by her top-hatted father, former U.S. ambassador to France, R. Sargent Shriver.

Far more tardy were actress Grace Jones, wearing a skin-tight, emerald green evening gown topped by a black mink stole, and artist Andy Warhol, who showed up about 25 minutes after the bride.

The couple was married by a friend of the Shriver family, the Rev. John Riordan, pastor of St. John's Church in New York City, during a ceremony filled with many musical interludes, according to the Rev. Edward Duffy of St. Francis Xavier.

Caroline Kennedy, the cousin of the bride, was the maid of honor, and body-builder Franco Columbu was Schwarzenegger's best man.

Fireman's home burns

A fireman's house was heavily damaged by a blaze early Saturday morning.

The house on South Wasson Road, owned by fireman James Dubose, sustained an estimated $30,000 damage, fire department reports said.

The fire originated in the den area, but the cause is still under investigation, said Capt. Bob Myers of the fire department.

Myers said Dubose was in the house when the fire broke out, but his wife and children were out of town.

By LILA ESTES

Q: I am selling my home which is situated on a fairly good size piece of property. I've been told that I must have the property resurveyed before closing. Why is this necessary?

A: When a surveyor "recertifies" your property, he goes over the property to make sure everything is the same as when originally surveyed. This is important because if there has been a change in the buildings on the property, those changes will be reflected in the survey, and such a change could mean a violation of local zoning laws, or something unfavorable to the property which was not unfavorable before. The survey should also reveal easements and encroachments that public records do not reflect.

In The Word Seminar With Milton Green

Milton Green is proclaiming a message of righteousness, holiness, and truth to the church today — calling the church to repentance. Many know Milton as the carpet cleaner who prayed for James Robison when he was set free from the bondages which had plagued him for years.

— James Robison

I recommend his ministry without reservations. Every true believer, every God-hungry minister in this nation needs to hear what he is saying. You can listen to him in confidence. I promise you that a spiritual revelation will happen in your life; every idol will come down; and you will turn to Jesus Christ with the greatest love and adoration you've ever experienced. It happened to me!

— David Wilkerson

GOD ANSWERS PRAYERS

Answered prayers are responsible for the development & success of our own Son Shine Christian Bookstore. Owners, Susan Alexander & Kathy Pickett shared a dream & were brought together to accomplish their goals from very different backgrounds.

Kathy had a good job as a bookkeeper at a local oil company. She also enjoyed a strong Christian faith & a dream of owning a Christian bookstore.

Susan was a teacher. She also had used her faith & her teaching skills as a missionary in Mexico. Susan dreamed of owning a Christian bookstore too.

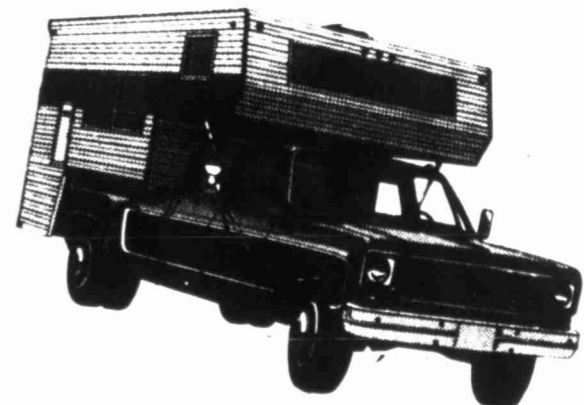

Once the shared dream was realized, these two neighbors from Forsan set out to make it happen. Through prayer, the knowledge & financing they needed materialized. Their vision for the store is stated in II Corinthians 4:6. "For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ."

Less than 2 years from the start Son Shine Christian Bookstore has prospered beyond either lady's expectations. Son Shine has a complete selection of Bibles, books, tapes, records, gifts, cards, toys & jewelry. A Christian alternative for everything!

This store is felt to be a ministry to Christians of all denominations. Everything in the store expresses someone's love for Jesus. Son Shine Christian Bookstore has also ministered to the community by providing a Vacation Bible School Workshop, book reviews, as well as sponsoring the upcoming CARMAN concert to be held June 7th in the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

You'll always feel welcomed in Son Shine Christian Bookstore by Becky Overby, Terri Chaney & Lisa McCoy. They're on staff to help you find what you're looking for or to help you special order books, both secular & nonsecular.

Because of the positive Christian attitude that has brought their success & inspires their neighboring merchants, Son Shine Christian Bookstore is the Business Of The Month at Highland Mall. Drop by & join us in congratulating their staff on this honor. Ask Susan & Kathy about their experiences on the power of prayer.

WHAT'S NEW (Under the Sun)

Have you ever heard of liquid sunglasses! Neither had I until a few weeks ago. It seems that we may be able, one day in the future, to shed our shades and instead, use eye drops made from an aloe plant extract that has ultra-violet screening ability. How about that! Until then, let me give you some tips on choosing your sunglasses. The most important feature to look for is lenses that protect your eyes from ultraviolet light. Why? Because ultraviolet light can burn your retina. Prolonged exposure over the years can promote the formation of cataracts and pterygia (flesh colored growths on the whites of the eyes). So, be sure your lenses have ultraviolet-screening ability. Tint of the lenses is a personal choice. Many people like gray tint best since it doesn't distort colors. Glass and plastic lenses are equally good ultraviolet filters. If you choose glass be sure they are shatterproof safety glass. If you like water sports you might consider polarizing sunglasses. They are excellent for reducing glare and they allow you to see through the surface of water... If you would like help in choosing the sunglasses best suited to your needs, come by and we'll be glad to help you.

Steers drop season finale to 'Cats, 9-7

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

The Big Spring Steers baseball exit from 4-5A competition was a memorable one. Although the Steers dropped a 9-7 decision to the San Angelo Central Bobcats, the season finale was without a dull moment and left the fans on the edge of their seats.

The contest proved to be a slugfest, in more ways than one. The Steers banged out 13 hits in their losing effort while the Bobcats collected 11 hits themselves. A far cry from Big Spring's last game when the Steers and Eagles combined for 10 hits in Abilene's 7-1 victory.

The game saw Big Spring literally run out of pitchers for two reasons. One was the Bobcats' hot bats and the other was the misfortune of two Steer relief pitchers. Freshman Timmy Guterrez went to a band concert and senior Mike Dodd became academically ineligible.

Steers coach John Velasquez used three pitchers. Sophomore Aaron Allen started the game and was relieved by Carey Fraser in the third with the Steers trailing 5-0. Frazier lasted only one and two-thirds innings before Velasquez gave him the hook with Central holding a 9-4 lead.

Finding his pitching cupboard bare, Velasquez went to first baseman Eli Torres. Ironically, Torres put in the best stint of the three as he pitched hitless ball over the last three innings.

"I decided to use Eli because he has pitched before," said Velasquez. He's pitched for us in batting practice so he's used to it. He did a real good job. It was either him or putting Aaron (Allen) back in the game, and I didn't want to bring him back so soon."

Central starter Bruce Andrews wasn't around at the end of the game either. His departure was a mixture of Big Spring's hitting and a hot temper. Central coach Rex Scofield sent Andrews to the showers when he got involved in a shoving match with Big Spring left fielder Felix Olivas on a close play at the plate in the fifth inning.

Andrews got the win while going five and two-thirds innings, yielding 10 hits and six runs. He was relieved by Chris Lowry.

Hitting was the name of the game and each team did its share. All of the scoring was done in the third and fifth innings. After Aaron got through the first two innings untouched, the Bobcats bats came alive in the third for five runs on five hits. Stacy Jones, Craig Nolen and Larry Montelongo singled in the inning and Lowry and Marty Daniel doubled. This chased Allen from the game and brought in Fraser.

"Aaron was just breezing through them the first two innings," said Velasquez. "Then they got used to his pitches and started to hit the ball hard. That's one reason I didn't want to bring him back in the game too soon. I was afraid he might be ineffective again."

Big Spring battled back for four runs in the bottom of the third. Torres started things off. He took Andrews' first offering to the power alley in left for a line drive homer, his third of the season. The other big blow in the inning was a two-run scoring double by catcher

Charley Ogle.

Ogle and Torres both had good games at the plate. Torres went two-for-four while Ogle was three-for-four.

Central added four more runs in the fifth; padding its lead to 9-4, thanks mainly to catcher Sam Sosa. Following singles by Daniel and Montelongo, Sosa drilled a home run over the left field fence. Three batters later Torres came on to retire the next two batters.

In the bottom of the fifth Big Spring scored three runs to cut the lead 9-7. Allen doubled and scored on a Randy Hayworth single. Olivas reached base on a fielder's choice and eventually scored from third on a wild pitch by Andrews. After Olivas slid in safe, a frustrated Andrews shoved him while he was down. This brought both coaches out of the dugout and Scofield promptly sent his pitcher to the showers.

Big Spring's last run came when Eric Thompson singled in pinch runner Jimmy Rogers.

Big Spring finished third in district play with a 7-7 record. The Steers were 10-11 overall in the first season with Velasquez at the helm.

Central ends the season 10-11-1 record.

Rockets span Nuggets

HOUSTON (AP) — Denver center Danny Schayes says the Nuggets are going to need some help if they're going to do a good job defending the Houston Rockets center Akeem Olujuwon.

"Akeem played great. We've got to help out more on defense against him," Schayes lamented after the Rockets defeated the Nuggets 126-119 Saturday in the opening game of the second round of the NBA Western Conference playoffs.

Game 2 of the best-of-7 NBA playoff series will be here Tuesday night.

Olujuwon finished with a game-high 38 points and pulled down 16 rebounds before fouling out with 45 seconds left.

"It's tough for Schayes and (Blair) Rasmussen to guard Akeem. We didn't make a good enough effort to block him out," Denver Coach Doug Moe said.

Moe credited Houston's 14-0 scoring surge early in the third quarter that gave the Rockets a 69-65 lead as a key in the game.

Olujuwon scored seven straight points midway through the fourth quarter to put Houston ahead 109-100 with 7:55 left to play. When Denver came within 115-113, Olujuwon again responded by scoring two baskets to increase Houston's lead to 119-114 with 1:28 to play.

Alex English led the Nuggets with 34 points, while Calvin Natt added 28.

Denver led 8-2 early in the game but neither team led by more than four again in the first quarter. The score was tied 11 times and was tied 32-32 after the opening 12 minutes.

Lewis Lloyd, who finished with 28 points, had 16 first-quarter points for the Rockets.

The game remained close in the second quarter until, with five minutes left, English scored 12 straight points to give Denver a 58-49 lead with 1:16 left in the first half. Houston cut the deficit to 61-55 at halftime.

Houston's 14-0 gave them the 69-65 lead with 8:24 to play in the quarter. Denver, playing without reserve defensive specialist Bill Hanzlik, who is suffering from a sore back, came back to tie the score 69-69 but Houston regained the lead 86-81 with three minutes left in the third quarter and led 94-91 entering the final period.

"Magic" Johnson on the bench. The Mavs, playing Mark Aguirre only nine minutes and Rolando Blackman 16 minutes, prevailed 127-104.

The Lakers outscored the Spurs by 95 points in the three games and outrebounded them by 69.

"We came for business," Johnson said of the Lakers' third victory. He contributed 48 assists to the Laker sweep, setting an NBA record for assists in a three-game series, breaking his mark of 42.

For the Lakers, who were playing a bit sluggishly in the final weeks of the regular season, the three-game whitewash served as a perfect tuneup.

"It's a real momentum-builder for us," said guard-forward Michael Cooper. "Our rebounding really came around, and if we can carry on from here, then this has been a really important series for us. Even so, this is just another step up the ladder for us."

Laker Coach Pat Riley said the defending NBA champs played a near flawless series against the Spurs.

"We didn't have any breakdowns," Riley said. "We accomplished the first goal and now we can move on to the next level."

That's good, because the first round simply wasn't a challenge for the winners of 62 regular-season games against 20 defeats.

Mavericks set for Lakers

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The formalities imposed on the Los Angeles Lakers — like the opening round of the NBA playoffs — can become so tedious sometimes.

The Lakers' heavy-handed, first-round dismissal of the San Antonio Spurs in three one-sided games definitely yielded more stifled yawns than playoff goosebumps.

"I was glad we could get it over with," said center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, who scored 29 points in 25 minutes in the Lakers' 114-94 romp Wednesday night that completed the sweep. "Now we can get ready for the next series."

Awaiting the Lakers in the Western Conference semifinals are the Dallas Mavericks, who dispatched the Utah Jazz in four games with a 117-113 victory Friday night in Salt Lake City.

Tipoff of Sunday's opening game of the best-of-seven series is at 12:30 p.m. PDT at the Forum.

And if the Mavericks aren't in high gear they will be tempting the same fate that befell the Spurs. They have been beaten by the Lakers in four of five regular-season meetings in each of the last two years.

The Mavericks' only victory over the Pacific Division champs this season came on the final day, while the Lakers kept Abdul-Jabbar and Earvin

Trio in Houston Open lead

THE WOODLANDS (AP) — Tom Watson bogeyed the last two holes to fall back into a three-way tie for the lead with Calvin Peete and Jay Haas after Saturday's third round of the Houston Open golf tournament.

Watson, who started the day two strokes off the 36-hole pace set by Peete, charged into the lead with five birdies in his first six holes. But bogeys on the last two holes gave him a round of 68 and a 54-hole score of 205, 11 under par. Haas had the day's best round among the leaders, a 67, and Peete finished with a 69 by sinking a 30-foot birdie putt on 18.

Two strokes back of the tri-leaders were Nick Faldo and Wayne Grady, who each had 2-under-par 70s for 207.

Watson was two strokes ahead of Peete and one shot ahead of Haas going into the final two holes of the par-72, 7,042-yard TPC course. But Watson drove into the rough on each hole and settled for bogeys.

The key to Watson's round was a 60-yard chip shot for a birdie after his second shot on the par-5, 530-yard 13th hole went into the water.

Watson started his round with five birdies in six holes to drop to 12 under par for the tournament. A bogie on No. 7 cooled his charge.

After his birdie at 13, Watson ran in a birdie putt at 15 before faltering.

After driving into the rough on 17, he sent his approach into the rough and, after chipping, missed a par-saving putt by six inches.

Watson went into the left rough on 18 and couldn't recover.

Peete, already a two-time winner on the PGA Tour this year, started the day with a two-shot lead, but he bogeyed the par-5, 515-yard first hole.

It was Peete's first bogey of the tournament. He played steadily through the rest of the front nine, running in a birdie on No. 8, and got back into contention with birdies on 11 and 12.

Haas, who started the third round at six under par, charged into contention with three birdies on his front nine, then added a birdie on 13 and an eagle on 15.

Hill rallies past Howard, 6-2

HILLSBORO — Hill College designated hitter Jeff Hawrylak's three-run scoring double in the bottom of the eighth inning propelled the Rebels to a 6-2 win over the Howard College Hawks Saturday afternoon in Region V baseball play.

Hawrylak's double, his second of the game, came with the score tied 2-2, the bases loaded and two outs. The Rebels added another run in the sixth off Howard loser Greg Landry.

Landry went the distance for Howard as he and Hill hurler

Steve Crawford hooked up in a pitcher's duel for the first seven innings. Crawford went the distance in gaining his sixth win in nine decisions.

Howard took a 1-0 lead in the top of the second. Richard Messer walked and scored on a single by Frank Medina. Hill tied the game up in the bottom of the second. Howard took a 2-1 lead in the fourth. Again Messer started things by walking. This time he scored on a single by Roland Gonzales. But Hill came back to tie the game in the bottom half of the inning, setting the stage for Hawrylak's eighth inning heroics.

Howard is now 4-14-1 in region play and 24-20-1 overall. Hill is 6-13 in region play. The two teams will square off in a double-header today starting at 1 p.m.

Hits — Howard: 8; Hill: 8; Errors: Howard: Chimelis, Keller, Landry; Hill: Groves, SB — Howard: Messer (2); DP — Howard 1, 2B — Hill: Groves, Hawrylak (2); WP — Crawford (6-3); LP — Landry (3-3).

Mets escape with 4-3 win over Cardinals

By The Associated Press
Sid Fernandez stayed in control against the St. Louis Cardinals. So did the New York Mets, barely. Fernandez had a one-hitter and a 4-1 lead after eight innings Saturday, but left after Willie McGee led off the ninth with a single. The Cardinals went on to rally for three hits off Roger McDowell, but Jesse Orosco managed to induce a sudden, game-ending double play that preserved New York's 4-3 victory.

In other National League games, Philadelphia beat Pittsburgh and Montreal tripped Chicago 4-2. Cleveland downed New York 3-2, Chicago edged Detroit 5-4 in 11 innings and Oakland defeated Seattle 5-3 in American League games.

In AL night games, it was Toronto at Baltimore, Boston at Kansas City, Milwaukee at Texas and California at Minnesota.

The Mets won their eighth straight game and improved to 10-3, the best start in their 25-year history. St. Louis lost its sixth straight game, its longest losing streak since April 1984.

"We didn't see him last year. Maybe that's one of the reasons we won (the National League East)," Herzog said. "He had good control today. I saw him two weeks ago on TV, and his control wasn't that good. He's got a deceptive motion."

Len Dykstra's leadoff home run, the second of his career, sparked New York's four-run first inning. The Mets roughed up Danny Cox, who was making his first start of the season after coming off the disabled list.

Fernandez, 2-0, was lifted after McGee singled up the middle to start the ninth.

Astros 1, Reds 0

At Houston pinch runner Billy Hatcher scored on a two-out passed ball by Cincinnati catcher Bo Diaz in the bottom of the ninth inning to give the Houston Astros a 1-0 victory over the Reds Saturday night.

Jose Cruz led off the ninth with a single to center, and was replaced by Hatcher, who stole second. After an out and an intentional walk to Kevin Bass, Denny Walling's ground ball forced Bass at second, with Hatcher moving to third on the play.

Losing pitcher Bill Gullickson 0-2, had a 3-1 count on Alan Ashby before Diaz' passed ball allowed Hatcher to score the winning run.

Mike Scott, 2-2, went the distance, giving up four hits while striking out five and walking one. Gullickson struck out one and walked three.

Phillies 6, Pirates 5
Rick Schu hit two solo home runs and Chris James hit a two-run homer to break a 1-1 tie in the seventh inning and lead Philadelphia past Pittsburgh.

James connected for his first major-league homer off Larry McWilliams.

Mike Schmidt added a two-run double later in the seventh. Schmidt became the Phillies' all-time RBI leader with 1,288, one more than Ed Delahanty.

Expos 4, Cubs 2

Mitch Webster singled home the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning, giving Montreal its victory over Chicago.

Tim Lincecum drew a one-out walk in the eighth from George Frazier, stole second and scored on Webster's hit.

Andre Dawson and Mike Fitzgerald homered for the Expos. Dawson hit his fifth of the season and Fitzgerald hit his first after being recalled from the minors

Friday.

Indians 3, Yankees 2
Pat Tabler continued his bases-loaded success with a two-run double during a three-run first inning and Cleveland broke New York's six-game winning streak. Tabler now has 23 hits in 37 career at-bats with the bases loaded for a .622 average and 56 RBI.

Don Schulze gave up one run on four hits in six innings and won his first decision of the season. Ernie Camacho got the final four outs for his fourth save.

A's 5, Mariners 3
Joaquin Andujar pitched his best game of the season, throwing six innings of one-hit ball that led Oakland past Seattle.

Andujar, 2-1, gave up one run, which came in the first inning without benefit of a hit. Andujar retired the last 11 batters he faced before leaving for the third straight game because of shoulder stiffness.

Andujar and relievers Steve Ontiveros and Jay Howell combined on a four-hitter.

Dusty Baker and Carney Lansford delivered RBI singles in the third against Milt Wilcox, 0-4.

Brewers 10, Rangers 2

In Arlington Robin Yount's two-run single capped a five-run Milwaukee fifth inning and rookie Billy Jo Robidoux hit a three-run homer, powering the Milwaukee Brewers to a 10-2 victory over the Texas Rangers Saturday night.

Tim Leary picked up his second victory in three decisions for the Brewers. He went six innings, giving up nine hits before he was relieved by Jaime Coanower.

Members of the Arkansas' 6,000 meter relay team gather after winning Saturday in 14:55.30 during the Penn Relays in Philadelphia.

TCU shines at Penn Relays

PHILADLPHIA (AP) — Texas Christian won the 800-meter relay at the 92nd annual Penn Relays Saturday in a world best time of one minute, 20.20 seconds.

It was the second major relay victory of the weekend for the Horned Frogs, who earlier won the 400 in meet record time.

The Texas Christian quartet of Roscoe Tatum, Andrew Smith, Leroy Reid and Greg Scholers lowered the 800 record of 1:20.26 set at Tempe, Ariz., in 1978 by Southern California.

The 800 time is not a world record because Reid and Smith are Jamaicans and all members of a team must be from the same country to be recognized as a world mark.

Scholars anchored the Horned Frogs which outran Southern Methodist, a fellow member of the Southwest Conference.

Defending champion Arkansas, with Gary Taylor breaking open the race on the third leg, won its second relay championship of the relays Saturday when the Razorbacks easily won the 6,000 meters.

Arkansas was clocked in 14:55.30, with Penn State second at 14:58.71 and Auburn third in 14:58.80.

Seton Hall's Andrew Valmon, Dave Jones, Barron Chambliss and Akanni Gbadamost, won the sprint medley, edging favored Texas.

Gbadamost ran a 1:46.4 anchor to overcome a 15-yard deficit and catch Texas anchor Pablo Squella. Seton Hall won in 3:13.67, while Texas was clocked in 3:13.68. Both lowered the old record of 3:13.9 by Florida in 1976.

TCU took the 400-meter relay in meet record time of 39.11 over North Carolina State. The Horned Frogs broke the marks of 39.48 (automatic) by Arkansas last year, and 39.4 (hand-timed) by Tennessee in 1976.

In the 400-meter shuttle hurdle relays, Pitt, runnerup last year, beat Penn State in 56.5. The Nit-tany Lions ran 57.0.

Tennessee won two field events, as Pat Reid took the shot put with a toss of 60 feet, 8 3/4 inches, and John Tillman the triple jump at 53-7 1/2. Texas' Dag Wennlund won the javelin with a throw of 252-3.

Arkansas was eighth in the 6,000 after Keith Iovine's opening leg, with Auburn and Penn State one-two.

But Gary Taylor ran a 3:35.5 second leg to give the Razorbacks a 15-yard lead over Villanova and Penn State.

Espen Borge, who ran the third leg, took the baton and quickly increased the lead to 30 yards.

Arkansas led by at least 30 yards when Borge completed a 3:45.7 leg and handed the baton to anchorman Doug Consiglio. Penn State was second and Auburn took third as Villanova faltered.

Consiglio, running a 3:44.8, increased the lead to better than 40 yards and finished almost eased up with a 30-yard advantage. Penn State finished second and Auburn third.

Arkansas successfully defended its distance medley relay Friday in world best time of 9:22.6.

Arkansas Coach John McDonnell said he felt Taylor was his fastest runner and decided to run him second "to break the race open."

NFL draft full of questions

NEW YORK (AP) — There are enough story lines in Tuesday's National Football League draft to fill a season of "Dynasty."

—Will Bo bypass the Bucs for baseball?

—Will Byars be bypassed because of his break?

—Will the NFL provide a home for the 57 prospective draftees who tested positive on their first pro football drug exam?

The annual round-robin session begins at 8 a.m. EST Tuesday at the Marriott Marquis Hotel in the heart of Times Square and will continue for 12 rounds and approximately 19 hours. The draft will be televised live by ESPN cable.

But the real action will be at 28 sites around the country that approximate battlefield command bunkers where generals (coaches and general managers) make life-or-death (career threatening) decisions based on information from intelligence staffs no less diligent than the CIA in separating fact from rumor.

This year, the decisions may be harder to make than usual. The draft is deep in running backs and offensive linemen and relatively thin everywhere else.

"It's the kind of draft where you may have to sacrifice position for quality," says Dallas Coach Tom Landry. "If the position we want isn't there when it's our turn to pick, we'll take quality even if it's where we're well stocked."

"I'd say there are six rounds of make-it players plus about 10 more," says Dick Steinberg, director of player development for the New England Patriots. "But at some positions, you can't find much at all. We need a tight end desperately, but there's no tight end worth a first-round pick."

There also is the question of the 57 players who tested positive for illegal substances during drug tests given after the Super Bowl by the NFL scouting combine. Most of those were for marijuana, but one player — a potential first-rounder — showed traces of cocaine in his urine.

Dan Reeves, coach of the Denver Broncos, says he won't draft any of the players on the list. But most other coaches probably will look at each case individually.

"You have to determine if there's a permanent problem," says Gene Stallings, coach of the St. Louis Cardinals. "Just because a guy made a mistake once doesn't mean he's going to do it again."

The first choice will be exercised by the Tampa Bay Bucs, who say they will take Bo Jackson, the Heisman Trophy winner from Auburn who is considered the best running back prospect since O.J. Simpson in 1969. But Jackson, like John Elway in 1983, has a hole card to use in the negotiations that already have begun — he's considered a top major-league baseball prospect.

The second choice goes to the Atlanta Falcons, who say they will take Tony Casillas, Oklahoma's can't-miss nose tackle.

The Houston Oilers draft third and for the third year in a row have the broker's position. They can trade — perhaps to one of the Los Angeles teams that covets a quarterback — or they can draft.

Taking Keith Byars is one of their options.

When he's healthy, Byars is considered in a class near Jackson among running backs. But he missed most of the 1986 season with a broken toe, then reinjured it again in the Florida Citrus Bowl. He reportedly has been certified healthy, but is he healthy? Half the teams in the NFL have examined him and there's no clear prognosis.

The team that drafts him has to be ready to let him sit out the season and hope to have him in 1987," says Bill Parcells, coach of the New York Giants, who pick 19th. "If he gets as far as us, it means he's not healthy."

After Houston comes Indianapolis, which moved up from the sixth spot to the fourth to guarantee it would get Purdue quarterback Jim Everett, who has risen above Chuck Long, Jack Trudeau and Robbie Bosco as the top quarterback available.

The Colts will be followed by St. Louis, New Orleans, Kansas City, Minnesota, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Detroit, then San Diego with two straight picks — its own plus one obtained from Green Bay for the rights to cornerback Mossy Cade.

Seattle has the 15th pick followed by Buffalo; Atlanta, which got Washington's pick in a trade for running back Joe Washington; San Francisco; the Giants; Dallas; Cincinnati from Denver for linebacker Ricky Hunley; the New York Jets; Los Angeles Rams; Los Angeles Raiders; Tampa Bay from Miami for linebacker Hugh Green; New England and Chicago.

There will be only 27 first-round picks. Buffalo, which would have had the first pick, forfeited it by giving Cleveland the first pick in last year's supplemental draft. The Browns used it to take quarterback Bernie Kosar. The Bills, however, have Cleveland's first pick this year as part of that deal.

As many as seven or eight of those 27 picks may be used for running backs.

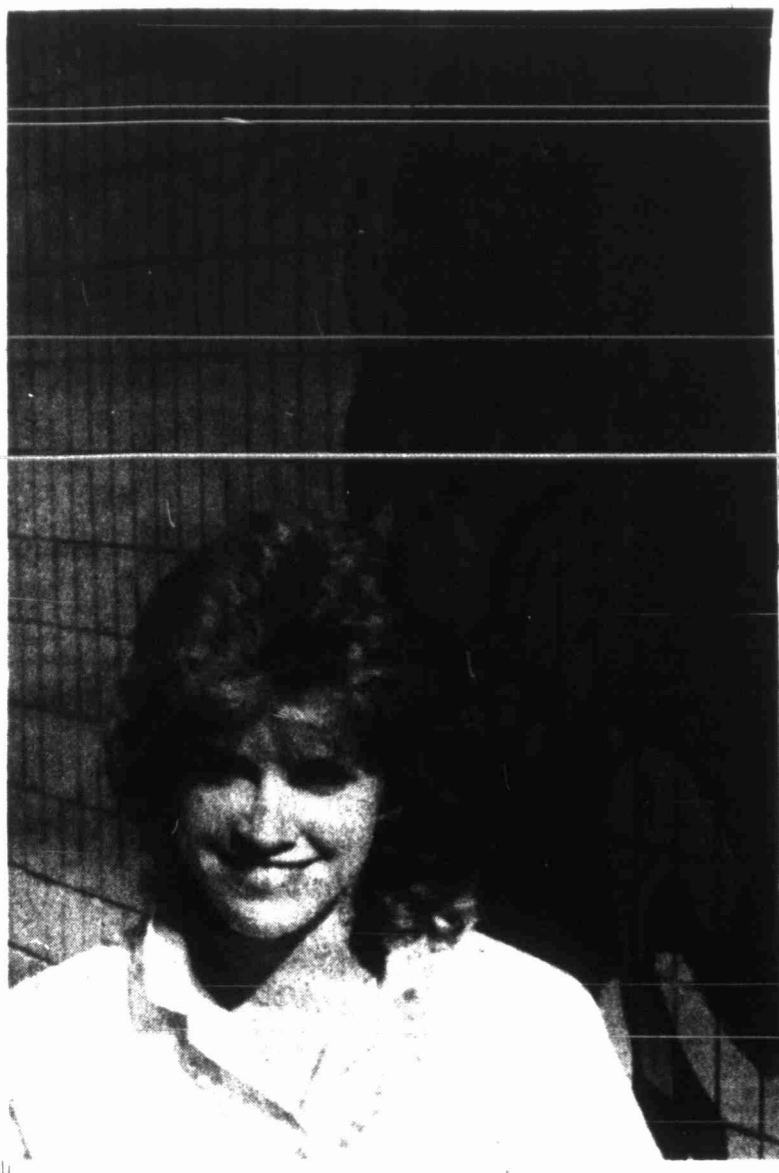

In addition to Jackson and Byars, potential first-rounders include Neal Anderson and John L. Williams of Florida, Garry James of LSU, Ronnie Harmon of Iowa; Reuben Mayes of Washington State; Reggie Dupard of SMU; Darryl Clack of Arizona State and Kenneth Davis, who was dropped from TCU's team last year after admitting he had accepted illegal payments from boosters.

The offensive line group is equally deep.

Brian Jozwiak of West Virginia and Jim Dombrowski of Virginia top most lists. But Doug Williams of Texas A&M, James FitzPatrick of Southern Cal and Joe Millinchik of North Carolina State could also go in the first round along with John Rienstra of Temple and Will Wolford of Vanderbilt.

But other positions are thin.

There are no tight ends or centers considered worthy of the first round and few defensive backs. One sleeper may be David Fulcher, made eligible two weeks ago after becoming scholastically ineligible at Arizona State. But he appears to have outgrown the position — he weighed in at 234 for one team and is now considered a middle-round outside linebacker.

Stanton sprinter very successful sophomore

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

STANTON — Call her a hard worker, overachiever or, multi-talented. But no matter what you call her, the bottom line is that Kody Newman is a winner.

At the present time the Stanton High School sophomore is winning in the track and field circles. She is one of many athletes who will be competing in the Region I-AA Track and Field Meet next weekend at Blankenship Field.

Newman will be competing in the 100 and 200 meter dashes. She and her coach Wilma Stirl both know that she has a good chance of reaching the state meet and reaping more success to a already successful career.

The diminutive speedster is more than a just a force in the cinder circles. She's a very successful cowgirl on the American Junior Rodeo Association and livestock exhibitor.

Two years ago she was the World Champion calf roper for the 13-15 age division in the AJRA circuit. In the same year she won the coveted "Triple Crown" in stockshows. She had Grand Champion Steers at the Ft. Worth, San Antonio and Houston stockshows. She also had the Grand Champion in Denver. In the process she earned $236,000 that year for her winnings.

She's also been a letterwoman on the basketball squad for the past two seasons as well as leading cheers for the Red and White. This year she made head cheerleader at SHS.

It's easy to see that Newman is not your ordinary high school sophomore. Nor is she your run-of-the-mill sprinter.

It seems she was destined for sprinting stardom when she first competed in junior high. In the seventh and eighth grades she only ran the 100, a race she never lost during those two years. She turned in a best of 13.2 in the junior high ranks, faster than alot of senior high sprinters.

The success didn't stop once she reached the high school ranks. During her freshman year Coach Stirl had her running the 100 until two weeks before the district meet, then she persuaded Newman to run the 200. It turned out to be a very smart move.

"She really should have been running the 200 all along," said Stirl. "But sometimes when you have young sprinters, you have a hard time getting them to run anything over 100 meters," she laughed. "I showed her she had a better chance of getting to regional in the 200."

Newman did indeed make it to regional in the 200. In fact she made the finals and placed seventh with a 27.40. That coupled with her time of 12.76 in the 100 were school records for the swift freshman.

This season Newman started off running the 100 and 200. Concentrating on getting a good start, she blazed to career-bests of 12.45 in the 100 and 26.45 in the 200. She's been tough to beat. Her only losses came to a Ft. Stockton runner and to Colorado City's Sandra Williams, a senior sprinter who has been to the state meet three consecutive years.

"She's improved on getting out fast and maintaining maximum speed longer," said Stirl. "For her to run her best she has to run a 6.9 for the first 50 meters in the 100 and a 14.4 or 14.5 for the first 100 meters in the 200."

At this year's district meet Newman blew the field away with her winning times of 12.46 and 26.65. When she takes the track at Blankenship Field, she'll be one of the favorites. Unlike last year, her best bet is in the 100, where she has the fastest qualifying time by one-tenth of a second.

In the 200, her 26.65 ranks second in a very close field. Hamlin's Cynthia Titus is in her class by herself. The junior has one of the best times in the state with a 23.84.

Having been to regional once is a big plus for the Stanton sophomore. "Last year I was in awe of it all," she said. "I didn't know what was going on. This year I'm more relaxed because I've been there."

"I think I can run faster. At regional I want to run at least a 12.3 and a 26.0. I must get out fast and stay on top."

"Kody's got a good chance," said Stirl. If she just relaxes and runs she could very well be on her way to Austin."

That would be another chapter to Newman's very successful sports biography.

Time to quit asking machines to make media decisions

Computers don't have all the answers. Cost per thousand is not a magic talisman. You have to factor in some imponderables, because what do machines know about human emotions like trust and believability? Asked in which medium they found the advertising most believable, more consumers said "newspapers" than the other four major media combined.*

Believe in newspapers. They can work marketing magic.

Tech golfer in SWC lead

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Texas Tech's Roque Baecker sunk a 7 iron for an eagle on his way to a second straight 72 and a share of the lead after 36 holes of the Southwest Conference golf tournament.

He was tied Saturday at even par 144 with SMU's John Sinovic, who had a 70, and TCU's Peter Jordan, who also had a 70. Jordan and Joe Beck, who shot the best round of the day, a 69, helped TCU close to within two shots of Houston in the team competition.

Houston, which started the day with a five shot lead on TCU and Texas A&M, ended the day at 585. TCU is at 587. Arkansas moved up a notch to third at 596, one shot ahead of A&M.

A&M's Jorge Coghlan and Houston's Mike Standly shared the first round lead at 71 but both shot 74 on Saturday. Also at 145 is Steve Jackson of Houston who had a 73 in the second round.

Coghlan got off to a rough start with a double bogey on No. 3 and a bogey on No. 4. Standly was even on the front nine, but bogeyed Nos. 10 and 12 and failed to birdie the short par five 18th when he hit his second shot in a trap.

Sinovic birdied both par fives on the front nine and had to make a difficult bogey on No. 9 to turn in 35. He said the turning point was when he made a par on No. 10 despite a couple of bad shots.

TWO YEARS WITH US CAN MAKE YOU A LOT MORE THAN PROUD.
 You'll be experienced in a skill, better prepared for college, and a bit richer than before. Not to mention having more adventures and meeting more people than most others do in ten years.
 The U.S. Army offers over thirty varied and interesting skills to women for two-year training. Skills like Radio Operator, Cargo Specialist, or Air Defense. They're all covered under The New GI Bill plus The New Army College Fund. Which means that up to $17,000 for college could be yours in just two years of service.
 As a soldier, you'll also receive good pay, food, lodging, and medical coverage. In the end, you'll feel great about yourself, and your country. It's called pride. Call your local Army Recruiter today to find out more.

Education programs help abuse problem

Rainbow Project takes action

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

Upwards of 1.7 million children are reported as being abused and at least that many cases go unreported each year, according to Victor Sedinger of the Rainbow Project, a local shelter for abused children.

Children can be abused in four ways: physically, sexually, emotionally, and by being neglected, says Marian Stohler, social worker and supervisor of the Rainbow Project.

- Physical — "always gets the headlines," Sedinger said. It is any non-accidental injury placed on a child from his caretaker.

- Sexual — use of a child by the caretaker for sexual gratification and stimulation.

- Emotional — when siblings are treated differently, or the child is ostracized, blamed or belittled.

- Neglect — the caretaker does not meet the needs of the child by providing food, clothing, shelter and medical attention.

"Not just adults are classified as abusers," Stohler said. "Sometimes abusers are other children."

"Parents need to teach their children not to be touched in their private parts," Stohler said. "The older generation thinks we're putting fear in our children, but we're living in a different age." The children's friends should also be getting the same reinforcement, so when they're in a group they will all know how to react to a stranger. It will be in their subconscious, Stohler said.

There are games, coloring books, videotapes, and cassettes on the market to help parents get the message across to their child. It's OK to Say No and Red Light, Green Light are two books that are out to help parents teach their children what to do just in case someone tries to solicit them. The Rainbow Project is also planning to present safety programs to children.

The Rainbow Project is taking assertive action to help the community in the detection and prevention of child abuse with in-service training for teachers, to help teachers identify different abuses. It is a state law that all teachers must have in-service training and anti-victimization training to identify different abuses. crease their awareness and responsibility of parenting.

"We do a great job of telling our children that they're going to grow up and be parents, but we don't teach them how to be good parents," Sedinger said. "Children only know how to be parents from the way their parents treated them. A battered child becomes a battered parent," he said. The person, even if he doesn't want to be abusive, responds out of reflex in a crisis and abuses his child, Sedinger said.

Child abuse can be detected by behavioral changes in the child. Some of them are: acting-out, aggression, overly compliant behavior, pseudomature behavior, withdrawal, bed wetting, hints about sexual abuse, persistent and inappropriate sexual play with peers or toys or with themselves, detailed and age-inappropriate understanding of sexual behavior, lack of trust to significant others, inability to concentrate in school, extraordinary fear of males (in cases of male perpetrator and female victim), seductive behavior with males, running away from home, clinical depression and suicidal feelings.

"We'd also like to see a Parents Anonymous start up in Big Spring," Sedinger said. It would provide a support group for parents who are at risk or prone to abusing their children. During a time of stress the parent would use the telephone instead of a baseball bat or something, he said.

The Rainbow Project, 2906 W. 13th St., helps "abused and neglected children when they're in a crisis," Stohler said. Sometimes a parent will place the child in the shelter or the Department of Human Services (DHS) will, she said. "But the DHS tries to keep the child in the family unit unless it's unsafe for the child to be there."

Since November 1983, 123 children have been placed in the Rainbow Project. There have been 55 boys and 68 girls; 10 children have been there two times and four children have been there three times, according to records at the shelter.

"We're getting more runaways and hard-to-handle kids," Stohler said. She reasons that this is because many of the cases of abuse have been going on for so long that the children just flee, or those who are neglected commit some kind of crime. The DHS doesn't pick up these kids even though they're neglected because it isn't a life-endangering situation, Stohler said, adding that the kids just go to court and end up on probation.

"If someone sees an abused child, they should call the Rainbow Shelter at 263-7671 or the Texas Hotline for the DHS at 1-800-252-5400," Stohler said.

The Rainbow Project is funded by local donations, contributions and foundation grants, Sedinger said. The parents of the child are only required to pay for placement of the child in the shelter, according to their financial status, Stohler said.

In recognition of the abused children, Governor White proclaimed April "Child Abuse Prevention Month" for Texas. "There is a lot of advertising being done in the Dallas, Fort Worth, Austin and Houston areas. Coalitions and networking is being done to get the word out to be good parents," Sedinger said.

The Rainbow Project will host an open house to allow tours of the shelter and to answer questions today from 2-5 p.m.

Texas fascinates Swiss editor

By CARLEEN EVERETT

Swiss editor Peter Buri is impressed by West Texas hospitality. "The people here are very open and hospitable. They get right to the point when they speak and I like that."

Buri is one of five businessmen visiting West Texas from Switzerland on a five-week study exchange program, sponsored by the international Rotary Foundation. "Texas is very fascinating to us," he said in an interview last week.

"We had never seen an oil well or an oil pump until we came here. We were like little children when we saw the pumps. We drove by them and had to stop to take a picture," he said. "We don't have oil in Switzerland."

The Swiss economy revolves around services: banking, transportation and tourist-related industries, steel and electronics make up 30 percent of their economy, and agriculture, Swiss cheese and chocolate "unlike the cliché" accounts for only 7 percent of their gross national product, Buri said.

"West Texas is very different from Switzerland. You can see miles and miles here. Switzerland has lots of trees, forests and valleys," he said.

Buri lives in Umiken, a village in the state of Aargau. The entire land mass of Switzerland is 150 x 220 miles with a population of 6½ million, he said. "It's smaller than the Panhandle of Texas." Aargau has 250,000 people. Buri's newspaper, Brugger Tagblatt, covers his entire state.

With all the people in such a small area, they live very close together in small villages, he said. "We also live in a lot of high rise buildings."

One of the things he has observed about Americans is that their lifestyle is very "flexible," he said. The Swiss stay in the same village all their lives. They don't travel from village to village like Americans do. "It's nothing for you to get in your car and move to California or Florida. But in Switzerland, 90 percent of the people stay in the same home all of their lives."

One reason is the language barrier of the country, Buri said. Four languages are spoken in the country of Switzerland: Swiss-German in the northwest, French in the west; Italian in the south; and Rumantsch (a kind of Latin) in the east. "You could drive five minutes and be in another language-speaking area," he said. Students are required to learn a second foreign language. The most popular language spoken is French, he said.

Housing is more expensive there than in West Texas, he said. "The Swiss pay $250,000 for an average home with five or six rooms." Their homes are made of brick and stone and are well insulated, he said. The temperatures range from minus 10 degrees Celsius to 75-90 degrees Fahrenheit in the summer, he said.

Buri says that Americans eat differently than the Swiss. "Our most important meal of the day is lunch. The normal Swiss family has a two-hour break from their jobs for this meal," he said. For breakfast and dinner the Swiss eat light foods and smaller proportions.

The American "selling system and shopping system" is also different, Buri says. In Switzerland, each village is set up the same. Each has its own bakery, butcher store, no-food store (like a drug store), and a fruit and vegetable store, he said. "The stores are all in walking distance because a lot of people don't have cars."

The Swiss schooling system differs from the American way in that Swiss children choose between college or a vocational education, Buri said. A college education consists of math, science and languages with "no practical training," he said. The vocational route to education is based on working in the field that the student wants to go into.

The Swiss are of only two religions: Catholic and Protestant, Buri said. "Our culture practices religion differently than here in the states. We don't attend church two or three times a day or even once a week. We go on special occasions. The important question is 'do you believe?' not going to church," he said.

Study shows today's adoptees give their parents good marks

By CAROL DEEGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's young people who were adopted are seeing themselves in a more positive way than has previously been the case, Dr. Richard Detweiler, professor of psychology at Drew University, said in a talk here.

He was the main speaker at a recent meeting of the New York auxiliary of the Edna Gladney Home, a private adoption agency based in Fort Worth, Texas.

Detweiler, who is also vice-president for planning and communication at the university in Madison, N.J., is the author of a study comparing the perceptions about themselves young people with adoptive parents have, with those young people with biological parents have.

The study, "Does Adopted Mean Different?" was based on a questionnaire completed by a group of adopted and non-adopted people between the ages of 13 and 21 in the northern New Jersey area.

Detweiler said the study had not been made in the context of adoption, but rather, in the context of self perception, asking the basic question, "What do you think about yourself?"

Those queried were asked what kind of parenting they were receiving; how much they felt in control of their lives; what their view of the world was.

Detweiler found that in response to his questionnaire adopted children said their parents were more nurturing, expressed a higher level of comforting, and provided more "helpful interference" in coping with problems than did non-adopted children.

In addition, the adopted children had a more positive world view: they saw others in a more positive way and had a higher level of confidence than non-adopted children, he said.

Interestingly, he said, the pattern of responses "did not confirm previous research literature which indicated that adopted persons felt they were not in control of themselves, had low self esteem, felt isolated and had a poor self image."

Detweiler says he believes there are at least three basic reasons for these new findings:

First, a majority of the previous studies were conducted in a clinical setting, where adopted children were undergoing some form of counseling, whereas his study was drawn from a normal community setting.

Second, in the past, people may have expected less desirable behavior from adopted children, and these societal expectations may have become, in a sense, self-fulfilling prophecies for adopted children.

Third, parents are less secretive about adoption, and adoption today is seen in a more positive light.

"We are beginning to tap what is happening in a more contemporary world," Detweiler said.

But, he added, there is a need for more open-minded research. "The bottom line is the notion that adoption is not abnormal, that adopted children are not predisposed to abnormality," Detweiler said.

"Adoption is a fact. We should accept it, not obsess about it, and be matter of fact, and we should have the same expectations toward adopted children as toward biological children."

Detweiler is completing a second, similar study, among adopted and non-adopted men and women between the ages of 21 and 76.

Dr. Donohue

72-year-old uses weights

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am using six-pound dumbbell weights for my exercise. As they are so light, is it necessary for me to skip a day, which is what they recommend with weightlifting and other heavy exercise? I am not tired when I finish my routine, which takes about 20 minutes to a half hour. My age is 72 and I'm in good health. I just had a physical. — W.C.G.

Your letter serves to answer some other older readers who always want to know if weightlifting is foolish for them to try. It isn't, and Mr. W.C.G. is a prime reason why not.

To your question: No, that kind of weight is not breaking down muscle tissue the way heavy weightlifting does. You don't have to follow the alternate-day rest schedule heavier training weights necessitate. Your light weights are only adding to the endurance part of your exercise, not to actual muscle-building.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 36-year-old male. I am 5 feet, 7 inches tall and I weigh 160 pounds. At the present time, I am jogging two and a half miles a day plus walking about five miles a day. This all takes me an hour. Approximately how many calories am I burning in a session? — R.C.F.

If you told me how much of that hour was spent jogging and how much walking, I could answer better. I'll give you some norms and you can figure out the calorie expenditure in the two exercises.

If you jog at the rate of a mile in nine minutes you burn 126 calories every mile. If you walk at a normal pace, you burn about six calories for every minute walked. Those figures are for your 160-pound body weight. They would be higher for a heavier person, lower for a lighter one.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am an 18-year-old male and have been lifting weights regularly for two years. So far, in those two years I have increased my maximum bench press by 130 pounds. My question is about vitamins. Is there any vitamin (or drug) that can be taken to get results similar to those which steroids produce without steroids' harmful effects? I have been on multivitamins for a year. I am 6 feet and weigh 210 pounds, a high school senior. — T.T.

Your progress is phenomenal. The short answer to your question is no, there is no safe drug or any vitamin that will enhance your progress. As far as I can tell, you have no need for chemical assistance, and you are a perfect example of success the "natural" way.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Should young children run long distances? — M.

Probably not. I know some parents and coaches who disagree. The important fact to be remembered is that children running long distances are more at risk of heat exhaustion and heat stroke than adults. Their ability to perspire is not as great and internal heat can more readily build to dangerous levels.

Dear Abby

Thieves take car on joy ride

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are retired. We had a second car that we no longer needed, so we decided to sell it.

I parked the car on our front lawn with a "For Sale" sign on the windshield. During the noon hour, a young man rang our doorbell and said he was looking for a second car for his wife. (She was waiting in their car, in our driveway.) I went out, unlocked the door and started the engine. He asked the price and seemed interested. Then he asked if he could drive it around the block. I said he could, so he motioned for his wife to come. He asked her if she would like to drive. She got under the wheel, and he got in on the passenger side. She backed the car into the street, and they drove away.

Thirty minutes later, they had not returned, so I called the police. A policeman came out and checked the car this couple had left behind. It had been stolen in Oklahoma City — some 35 miles away.

This happened three weeks ago and our car is still missing. How could this have been avoided?

C.A. HENLEY,
TECUMSEH, OKLA.

DEAR MR. HENLEY: When the prospective buyer asked for permission to drive your car around the block, you should have asked for his driver's license or some other identification to hold until he returned.

However, if you were dealing with professional car thieves — and you probably were — you would have been left holding some phony credentials, as well as the bag.

DEAR ABBY: A technique for helping persons one meets to remember a name:

In 1937 when I was a salesman for an Austin, Texas, new-car dealer, a fellow salesman, Lee Brasfield, took my arm, led me up to a tall, handsome man and said, "Lu, I'd like you to meet a friend of mine, Lyndon Johnson. He's just been elected to Congress from this district. This is Lu Lyman."

Every time I met Congressman Johnson in the next 23 months, I made a point of saying to him, "I'm Lu Lyman." This spared his racking his brain to remember who I was. Being a good politician, the future president always assured me that he remembered my name.

This has been standard procedure in my military, business and social career.

LUCIUS B. LYMAN, JR.,
KENT, OHIO

DEAR LUCIUS: Your "technique" may not help those you encounter to remember your name, but it will put them at ease immediately to know they don't have to.

To spare another the slightest possible discomfort is indeed the hallmark of a gentleman or a lady.

Tax & financial planning

TAX SHELTERS AND THE NOT SO RICH

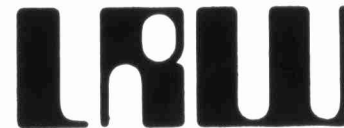

Many taxpayers feel that tax shelters were set up for the rich. The truth of the matter is that most taxpayers take advantage of one tax shelter or another. You're probably doing so right now even if you don't think so.

If you are buying a home, investing in property, or putting money into an Individual Retirement Account, you are using tax shelters. The term tax shelter is viewed by many to mean some elaborate scheme to avoid huge amounts of taxes. Tax shelters simply means that you're deferring the tax to a later time, reducing the tax by converting ordinary income to the preferred capital gains, or investing in certain bonds, the income from which is not taxable.

Your first concern in an investment should be its economic merit. The tax aspects are going to be of little importance to you if you're never going to get your original investment back. This means that you have to take it upon yourself or get the advice of some independent advisor before you invest in any program. Do not rely solely on the advice of the person selling a particular investment.

Some of the more exotic tax shelters involving limited partnerships, real estate, oil and gas, etc. should be looked at closely. The legitimate companies will appreciate your investigative questions. The more exotic the tax shelter, the more opportunity for you to be boondoggled by those who are high on salesmanship and low on performance. As a first step, check with your state securities department. Most investments are required to register with your state securities office before they can sell within your state. Such registration, however, is not an indication that the investment is economically sound.

There's no substitute for investing in those items which you know best. In the absence of first hand information, use an advisor that does not stand to profit if you buy the investment.

FOUNDATION MAKE-UP
 When planning an addition, consideration should be given to the foundation. Is a full basement desired or is a crawl space satisfactory? While the cost of a full basement is greater than a partial foundation wall, it does provide usable space. It may be needed if the original house is small. In many cases, however, an addition with a crawl space could be adequate. Much depends on the slope of the lot. If the slope away from the house is quite steep, it may be necessary to have a full-height foundation wall. If so, a full basement should be considered. When the slope of the ground is level, a concrete slab might be a solution. In fact, in many areas of the country, a concrete slab is the standard method of new house construction. If you build over a crawl space, use ample insulation. We'll be glad to advise you on what will work best at your location. At BOB'S CUSTOM WOODWORK, our skilled craftsmen can handle all kinds of home renovation projects. We design and build room additions, decks, porches, kitchens and baths. Developing a spending plan

When you know where your money is going, you are ready to design a spending plan. A spending plan is another tool to help you control unwise uses of your money.

The basic steps in a spending plan are:

1. Decide on goals (if you have not already done so);
2. Estimate family income;
3. List fixed expenses and payment due (rent or mortgage, insurance payments);
4. Plan an amount for savings;
5. Estimate variable expenses;

6. Rearrange planned expenses and savings until equal to estimated income.

As you put your plan into action, continue to keep records. At the end of each month, adjust your spending plan to keep it balanced and in line with needs and goals.

Your spending plan and record-keeping system are the two primary tools to help you control your money and be happy with its use. They can give your family an opportunity to plan together how money will be spent. If you think it looks like too much work, try it for a month to see if it might be worth the effort. Although it takes a few months to get the plan working smoothly, a month will allow you to learn the basics of the system and to see if it could help.

When you have added this month's expenses and adjusted your plan for next month, you have learned to use the most basic tools for successful money management. Congratulations.

A Successful Spending Plan

By this time you have probably become aware that managing a spending plan requires making decisions. Here are some other things you can do to ensure success:

- Decide what each person should do to control spending.
- Agree within the family that everyone will take turns getting what they want and even giving up something they want.
- Learn and practice sound decision making and shopping skills to get the most for your money.

• Make it a habit to save a small amount from each paycheck.

• Learn to live within your income and keep your use of credit within present limits.

Your goals now are to put your spending plan into action and to keep track of spending.

Use dwarf shrubs to reduce pruning needs

There are many small or dwarf type shrubs that can be used as accent plants, massed as a ground cover, or to delineate a use area. Too often larger plants are used and the natural shape of the plant is lost due to excessive pruning, thus creating an architectural feature rather than the soft graceful lines desired in most plants. The following list provides a brief description of some of the best small plants for much of Texas:

Dwarf Abelia (Abelia grandiflora postrata): shiny small leaves, red tinge, white flowers, grows in the sun.

Crimson Pigmy barberry (Berberis thunbergii atropurpurea nana): crimson foliage, small thorns, semi-deciduous, cannot tolerate water logged soil, grows in the sun.

Rock Cotoneaster (Cotoneaster horizontalis): small round leaves, pink flowers, red berries, can tolerate hot, dry condition, susceptible to fire blight, grows in the sun.

Boxleaf Euonymus (Euonymus pulchellus): variegated or dark green small leaves, susceptible to scale insect, grows in semi-shade or sun.

Dwarf Gardenia (Gardenia radicans): glossy green, white fragrant flowers, needs acid soils, grows in semi-shade or sun.

Dwarf Chinese Holly (Ilex cornuta rotunda): glossy green three spined holly foliage, dense growth, no berries, grows in semi-shade or sun.

Dwarf Burford Holly (Ilex cornuta rotunda burfordii): glossy green single-spined foliage, bright red berries, grows in semi-shade or sun.

Dwarf Yaupon Holly (Ilex vomitoria nana): small leaves, gray color, rarely berries, grows in semi-shade or sun.

Creeping Junipers (Juniperus species): prostrate growth, spreading foliage, can tolerate dry conditions, grows in sun.

Dwarf Tam Juniper (Juniperus sabina tamariscifolia): spreading vase-shaped, blue-green foliage, grows in sun.

Dwarf Nandina (Nandina domestica nana): compact rounded form, spring and summer foliage green, fall and winter color scarlet, cannot tolerate poor soil drainage, grows in sun.

Dwarf Nandina Compacta (Nandina domestica compacta): compact upright form, excellent color, cannot tolerate poor drainage, grows in sun.

Wheeler's Dwarf Pittosporum (Pittosporum tobira): like large pittosporum but has dwarf habit, excellent plant, suffers some freeze damage in severe winters, grows in semi-shade or sun. This plant is not hardy north of Denton.

Gray Santolina (Santolina chamaecyparissus): dense, aromatic whitish gray foliage, button-like gold flowers drier sites, grows in sun.

Green Santolina (Santolina virens): like gray santolina, but with deep green foliage.

Parents influence kids' success

WASHINGTON (AP) — Parents who know how to move through the school system can help their children become "smart students" who are "primed" for college, says David Baker, who believes that fostering effective parent involvement may be as important as lobbying for funds to improve education programs.

"Despite a child's abilities, college-educated mothers tend to know how to help a child get the most from school," adds Baker, a sociologist at The Catholic University of America's National Center for Family Studies. "Parents who oversee their children's academic careers are effective school career managers."

Baker and David Stevenson, a sociologist at Oberlin College, studied mothers from various educational backgrounds. They found that college-trained women knew more than other mothers about preparing and guiding their children toward higher education.

These mothers' experiences enabled them to manage crises, plan transitions and effectively move children through school, they explain.

"College-educated parents are better at managing the details of a child's school career than less educated ones, regardless of the child's talent," Baker says. "They are more active, know more about their child's school, grades and teachers, and are likely to initiate conferences with teachers."

Baker notes that mothers with college backgrounds may not have higher family incomes but are aware of the rewards of college degrees.

"Children are often set on the college-prep track in high school from the courses selected for them, either by school or parents," he pointed out. "In our study parents decided which courses their child would take. College-educated mothers are four times as likely to choose college preparatory courses for their children, even if the children's past performances have been below average."

Baker and Stevenson found that college-educated mothers were more skilled in finding out about their children's homework. They note that such women tend to be stricter, and deny privileges for academic reasons 13 times more often than other mothers.

Although educated mothers are not aware of more ways to find out about homework and encourage its completion than other mothers, they are better at implementing result-getting strategies, the sociologists say.

"Responding to academic and behavioral problems, mothers with more education have more contact with school personnel," Baker says.

"While we have always known that children from middle-class families tend to do better in school and later in the work force, the specifics have not been explored until now," he says.

Past studies show that family background transfers into a child's academic career, and Baker explains that researchers now can examine how different parenting styles are adapted to a child's needs and a school's constraints.

HELP!

Help for your child is still available April 28-May 2 at our Dyslexia Screening Clinic.

Dyslexia. It's a word most people don't understand. But, if your child is one of the millions who suffer from dyslexia, you understand the pain and frustration this disability can cause.

You know your child isn't lazy... stupid... or disobedient, as many have said. Although the strict definition of dyslexia is "a disturbance of the ability to read," you realize that it affects every aspect of your child's life.

utilize Dr. Carl A. Ferreri's dyslexia treatment method, having recently completed intensive training under Dr. Ferreri.

A doctor of chiropractic, Dr. Ferreri has practiced for 29 years and has developed a highly effective method for treating basic learning dysfunctions. The treatment involves no drugs or anesthesia, and centers around adjustments of the spinal and cranial structures, along with kinesiological and muscular balancing. In a majority of cases, a marked improvement has been achieved.

Now, our special Dyslexia Screening Clinic, affiliated with Dyslexia Centers of America, has been extended, offering you and your child hope for a normal life.

Call 684-5436 to schedule an appointment for your child's free screening and examination. The initial meeting determines whether your child will benefit from the procedure. In most cases, a correction is performed in conjunction with the free exam. If your child is diagnosed as receptive to future care, a reasonable one-time fee will cover all exams and treatments related to dyslexia. Treatment is covered by insurance in most cases.

So, call today to make an appointment for your child. Appointments may be scheduled Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Boyd Chiropractic Clinics of Midland.
