Senate urges oil workers aid

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The U.S. Senate has approved a resolution introduced by U.S. Sen. J. Bennett Johnston urging the Reagan administration to make oil and gas workers eligible for benefits under a federal relief program, Johnston says.

The Trade Adjustment Assistance Act gives financial help and job training to workers who've lost their jobs because of foreign imports. However, most workers in petroleum production are not eligible because, under the terms of the program, they are service workers, not manufacturers.

"The administration is narrowly interpreting the act so as to exclude employees of the oil and gas industry and related service industries from receiving benefits," Johnston said in a news release issued by his Washington office.

It is unlikely the resolution will cause the White House to expand the program. The administration favored eliminating the 24-year-old program, which cost about $100 million in fiscal 1985, on the grounds that trade-displaced workers should not be treated differently from those who lose their jobs for other reasons.

"While expansion of the act will not immediately improve the economy of import-depressed regions," Johnston said, "it is a small price to pay to assist affected workers as they retrain and search for alternative employment."

An aide to the senator said Johnston will push legislation to force a broader interpretation of the program if the administration doesn't act immediately on the resolution.

The act says an eligible worker is one who has lost his job due to "increased imports of articles like or directly competitive with those produced by the worker's firm."

A Labor Department spokesman said the Office of Trade Adjustment considers workers' petitions for relief on a case-by-case basis.

Generally, he said, workers from a company that operates only drilling rigs are considered part of the service sector and, therefore, are ineligible for benefits under the program.

However, he said workers from some sectors of the petroleum industry received benefits.

Man to re-enact first flight over Atlantic

By HANK MURPHY
 Staff Writer

Question: Who flew the first flight across the Atlantic Ocean?

Answer: Not Lindbergh.

Man's first trans-Atlantic flight — by a Navy pilot eight years earlier than Charles Lindbergh — will be re-enacted May 15 with Big Spring's Connie Edwards at the helm of a mammoth PBY-6 flying boat, a craft similar to the first airplane to make the journey.

Edwards, 52, of the Edwards Ranch near Garden City Highway, leaves Friday to begin his voyage.

The re-enactment is sponsored by the Naval Aviation Museum Foundation to commemorate the 75th anniversary of naval aviation.

Edwards, who owns dozens of vintage planes at his huge spread west of town, volunteered for the trip. "Connie came from," said Navy Lt. Commander of Public Affairs John Roach. The Navy was "casting around for some civic-minded, philanthropic individual" who owned a PBY and found Edwards, Roach said.

"I wanted to know how much I could withstand and now I'm going to find out," Edwards said with a laugh.

Edwards will serve as flight commander on the 25,000-mile trip. "Lindbergh I'm not. Can you imagine sitting in this thing for 20 hours by yourself? ... We have four other very qualified pilots going with us."

In all, nine or ten men, including Cable News Network correspondent Chuck de Caro, will make the journey.

Edwards will take off from his ranch airstrip and stop Friday afternoon in Corpus Christi. From there, it's on to Pensacola, Fla., Washington D.C., Rockway, N.Y., Weymouth, Mass., Chatham, Mass., Halifax, Nova Scotia, and finally to Trepassey, Newfoundland, where the maiden flight lifted off.

From Newfoundland the PBY will fly to the Azore Islands, a Portuguese territory about two-thirds of the way across the Atlantic.

Then the craft will head for Lisbon, Spain, where Albert Read in his naval NC-4 landed to the sound of church bells after becoming the first man to fly across the Atlantic in 1919. It would be 1927 before Charles Lindbergh made the flight non-stop.

Shultz: Soviets reject help offer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has rejected the U.S. offer of assistance in dealing with the nuclear disaster in Chernobyl, and casualties from the accident are higher "by a good measure" than the Kremlin has acknowledged, Secretary of State George Shultz said today.

See related stories 9A

"They did reply that they appreciated the offer (of assistance) and they don't sense any need for it at this point," said Shultz in Bali, Indonesia, where he is accompanying President Reagan on his 13-day Far East trip.

He said the Soviets "felt they had what they needed to deal with the problem."

The Soviet decision was relayed to officials in Washington, Shultz said. He said he did not know when it was received, but that he learned of it this morning.

The Soviet Union has said that two people were killed in the accident and that 197 were injured. Shultz said "the scope of the accident is certainly a major one" and that "the casualty rates are higher

Negligence claim filed against city

By HANK MURPHY
 Staff Writer

A $10 million claim has been filed against the city of Big Spring citing police negligence in the Easter Day shootings of Raymond Calderon and his brother Enrique at Comanche Trail Park.

Acting City Manager Hal Boyd said this morning the city received the claim Wednesday afternoon from the Lubbock law firm of Garza and Hernandez.

"They're claiming the police didn't provide proper protection," Boyd said. Police Chief Rick Turner was unavailable for comment this morning and police Lt. Jerry Edwards said he could not discuss the claim because of pending litigation. He referred questions to City Attorney Doyle Curtis, who was also unavailable today for comment.

However, the Calderons' attorney, Jorge Hernandez, said the primary basis of the claim is that police failed in their duty to protect the victims, especially after police were warned that Pedro Cantu, the suspect in shooting, had been threatening them.

Hernandez said on several occasions. LAWSUIT page 2A

Faulty rocket joint cited

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — NASA now has solid evidence that the Challenger explosion was caused by a failed joint in the right booster rocket, according to the director of the shuttle salvage fleet.

Lt. Col. Edward O'Connor told reporters Wednesday the proof came from a newly recovered piece of the right booster that contains the lower part of the joint.

But O'Connor said the chunk of wreckage will not tell investigators exactly what went wrong because synthetic rubber O-rings and other key parts of the joint were vaporized when flame shot through the seam and triggered the shuttle explosion on Jan. 28.

NASA announced Tuesday that the piece with the lower half of the suspect joint had been recovered from the floor of the ocean floor. A section with the top half of the joint was found several weeks ago.

Educator resigns job

INDIANOLA, Miss. — A white educator has resigned as superintendent, officials said, a month after his appointment as chief of a mostly black school system sparked protests by blacks and boycotts against white-owned businesses.

W.A. Grissom, appointed superintendent March 25 after a school board vote split 3-2 along racial lines, handed in his resignation at a special meeting of the board, which unanimously accepted it, said board president Walter Gregory.

Offshore bids plunge

NEW ORLEANS — Only $146 million was bid for drilling rights on submerged government lands in the Gulf of Mexico because of the worldwide problem of plunging oil prices.

The total for high bids Wednesday was far lower than the sale last May when $1.1 billion was put up for tracts in the same area.

Rogers Pearcy, regional director of the Interior Department's minerals management service here, said, "I'm not surprised. It's about what I thought it would bring."

Elderly care costly

WASHINGTON — Nursing home care, not unexpected illness, is the financial burden that will drive millions of elderly Americans into poverty before their deaths, and few healthy older people realize their jeopardy, an administration task force was told.

Witnesses testifying Wednesday before the presidentially established panel said most elderly people believe wrongly that they're already covered for eventual nursing home care by Medicare or by private supplemental insurance, usually called "medigap" policies.

Too often, witnesses said, it is only when the time comes that an aging person must seek long-term care that they find they have no coverage except Medicaid, the federal-state program for the poor.

Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev waves from atop the Lenin mausoleum in Red Square Thursday during May Day celebrations. The celebrations seemed unaffected by the news of the disastrous nuclear accident near Kiev.

May Day

Disaster does not deter Soviet observance

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev and other Politburo members assembled atop Lenin's tomb today as workers trooped across Red Square in a May Day celebration that seemed unaffected by a disastrous nuclear accident near Kiev.

National television and radio broadcast live coverage of the precision march by hundreds of thousands of participants, and major newspapers also devoted much of their space to the officially sanctioned workers' holiday.

The newspapers festooning their front pages with banner headlines in red ink proclaiming "happy holiday comrades," drawings of the Kremlin and other festive decorations.

They paid scant attention to the nuclear disaster at Chernobyl in the Ukraine, running a day-old government statement on their inside pages.

But in keeping with Gorbachev's style, the celebration did lack some of the adulation traditionally given Kremlin leaders.

For the first time in recent memory, the Soviets did not erect portraits of the members of the Politburo, the Communist Party's policy-making body, around the capital.

Gorbachev led the Politburo members and other leading officials onto the top of the mausoleum that contains the remains of Vladimir I. Lenin, founder of the Soviet state, just before the demonstration began.

They waved to the crowd and received flowers from a column of schoolboys and girls who scampered up the monument's steps.

The marching workers carried flowers, banners, placards and balloons that turned Red Square into a sea of red. The balloons, which were shepherded into the square along Moscow's main streets by hundreds of civilian organizers and police, and kept in neat ranks inside the square.

Television coverage showed all of the Moscow-based Politburo members were on hand for the parade, including President Andrei A. Gromyko, reported to have been hospitalized briefly in late April.

Gromyko, 76, the Politburo's senior member and former Soviet foreign minister, appeared fit as he chatted with Gorbachev.

Portraits of Politburo members were carried in the mass of humanity that surged across Red Square between the soaring walls of the Kremlin and the huge GUM department store, which was decorated with a four-story-high May Day poster.

On past May Day and Nov. 7 Revolution Day holidays, the leaders' pictures were hung on several buildings in Moscow, along with Lenin's portrait. Three-story-high portraits were put on metal stands on Kutuzovskiy Prospekt, a major thoroughfare in central Moscow.

But since coming to power in March 1985, Gorbachev has cut back on some of the trappings of public adulation of the leadership, and now the Kremlin apparently has decided to end the holiday tradition of color portraits as well.

Many of the placards carried through Red Square focused on Soviet proposals for disarmament and the Kremlin's call for a ban on space weapons. Billboards on city streets also reflected these themes.

TV and radio reporters interviewed Soviets and foreign guests on the square who said they supported Soviet arms control policy.

One worker interviewed said the Soviet Union was trying to end the arms race through cooperation to thwart policies of peace and disarmament.

Reactor design blamed

JERUSALEM — The disaster at the Soviet Union's Chernobyl nuclear power plant could be repeated at any of the Soviets' estimated 44 other reactors because of shoddy design and poor management, said an engineer who helped build the Chernobyl plant.

Boris Tokarasky, who emigrated to Israel in 1978, also said in an interview broadcast today on Israel's Armed Forces Radio that the fire raging in at least one of Chernobyl's four reactors could continue "until the material runs out. ... It could be months or even years."

Tokarasky, 49, was a quality engineer with the Soviet Union's Institute for Reactor and Power Station Construction, and said he was involved with the construction of the Chernobyl plant before he emigrated.

Reagan voices concern

BALI, Indonesia — President Reagan today expressed great disappointment that Vietnam has broken off talks on "the last vestige" of the Vietnam war, the search for Americans still listed as missing in action.

Hanoi cut off discussions with the United States two weeks ago, saying the April 14 bombing of Libya in reprisal for terrorist attacks on Americans had poisoned the atmosphere for further discussions.

Reagan, addressing a meeting of Southeast Asian officials, said he wanted "to mention a humanitarian issue of great personal concern to me, my administration and the American people."

U.K. inmates riot

LONDON — Enraged inmates rioted at seven prisons and destroyed one of them with fire to protest restrictions imposed after most of Britain's 18,500 prison guards refused to work overtime.

At least nine people, five prisoners and four guards were reported hurt in the violence. Forty-two prisoners who escaped in the confusion Wednesday remained at large today.

Blacks stage protest

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Millions of blacks stayed away from jobs and schools today in what appeared to be the largest anti-apartheid protest in South Africa's history.

The Association of Chambers of Commerce of South Africa, the nation's largest business federation, reported a "massive absence from work" across the country, varying between 70 and 100 percent in almost all urban centers.

Usually crowded commuter trains and buses arriving in Johannesburg, Cape Town, Pretoria and other cities from outlying black townships were virtually empty.

The campaign was organized by labor unions and political groups to demand that May Day be made a public holiday and to call for an end to apartheid, the government's policy of racial segregation that empowers 5 million whites to rule 24 million voteless blacks.

Supporters of Marcos, Aquino clash

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Scores of President Corazon Aquino's supporters clashed in the streets today with people still loyal to ousted ruler Ferdinand E. Marcos, and at least six people were injured.

A policeman fired his gun into the air to break up youths throwing rocks and bottles as riot police moved in to clear the area on the outskirts of a government Labor Day rally, where Mrs. Aquino was waiting to speak.

Hospitals reported several people admitted to emergency rooms, but police said they did not know the number injured. Reporters saw at least a half-dozen people bleeding from injuries in Manila's narrow streets.

Military officials said 2,800 police and military personnel were deployed around the rally area.

Candidate wants to fill void

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer
Texas Supreme Court candidate Jay Gibson of Odessa says if he's elected, he will be the only official from West Texas on any statewide court.

The court needs a West Texan to provide a "different kind of thinking," he said on a campaign stop in Big Spring Wednesday.

Gibson has been on the state legislature for six years. He said he carried the bill allowing revenue bonds to be used for Stacy Dam. "The case sat in court for two years because no one was there to push it through," he said.

He was named one of the 10 Best Legislators by Texas Monthly magazine, who called him "the closest thing to a hero the 68th legislature produced" in July, 1983, for cutting $472 million of waste from the state's budget, he said. He also sponsored legislation to make assault on senior citizens a felony and the sale of narcotics to children a crime punishable by life in prison.

Gibson said his campaign contributions came from nearly every segment of the community, except for political action committees. He refused money from all PACs, he said. Gibson criticized his chief opponent, incumbent Raul Gonzales, because he had accepted more than $200,000 from insurance company lawyers, their clients and PACs. He also charged Gonzales with violating ethical standards by using his judicial position as a forum for his personal opinions.

Gonzales, appointed to the position in 1984 by Gov. Mark White, will be the only Hispanic to ever win a statewide race, if elected.

Gibson's other opponents are John E. Humphreys and David M. Ivy, both Dallas lawyers.

Dancer Jimmy Turner of Austin, who is deaf, performs with an African flavor. He will be in Big Spring Friday as part of SWCID-Fest.

Deaf Austin dancer to perform in city

Jimmy Turner is a professional dancer who cannot hear music. Deaf since the birth, he relies on his visual perception of movement for choreography. The Austin performer will be in Big Spring Friday as part of SWCID-Fest, sponsored by the SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf. He will perform at 8 p.m. at St. Mary's Episcopal School. Admission is $3 for adults, and $2 for students and senior citizens. Turner has toured with the National Theater of the Deaf and has been a member and solo artist of the Chuck Davis Dance Company in New York City and the American Deaf Dance Company in Austin, said Liz Wolter, SWCID drama instructor. His dances have an African flavor. He has taught dance and gymnastics in schools and summer theater workshops and has appeared on several television shows, including "Sesame Street." He won a Special Tony Award for "conspicuous achievement in American theater," according to his resume. Wolter said she doesn't know if he uses music in his performance. But the deaf can feel the vibrations of music through the floor, she said, adding that she used to teach very young deaf children about music by letting them feel the vibrations through a balloon. SWCID-Fest will continue Saturday with a fun run beginning at 8:30 a.m. at SWCID and a softball tournament at 10 a.m. at Johnny Stone Park. For more information on any of these events, call 267-2511.

The wagon train, which is journeying 3,000 miles around the state, will travel on FM 828 to Klondike from a Saturday overnight camp north of Midland on State Highway 349. Jesus said, "You shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:31,32). He also said to God, "Your word is truth", and "We are purified by that truth" (John 17:17,19). It is then a misunderstanding of what God's Bible truth is to hold to the idea that truth can be diluted with the addition of mere human doctrine or tradition, or to disregard or take from it and the end result be still pleasing to God (cf Revelation 22:18,19; Galatians 1:6-12). It needs no "help" to make it what it ought to be, it is already what it ought to be. It is also a misunderstanding of truth to hold to the concept that it is not the exclusive means to salvation from sin's guilt. The Bible makes it clear that those who both believe and obey the truth will be saved (1 Peter 1:22), this is not said of human Creeds, Disciplines or Traditions. It is also a misunderstanding of truth to think that the truth can rightly be regarded as true by one person and false by another and both of them be right. Every precisely stated proposition in God's Word is either true or it is false, it can not be both. When God says it, that settles it.

Dr. Donohue

Infection can cause problems at night

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am an elderly woman. I don't have any sag of my bladder of any childbirth-related conditions to account for my urination problems. I don't know where to turn. Lately, I am having to get up several times during an eight-hour bedtime to urinate. I heard on television that yeast can be the cause of this. Thanks for your help. — B.C.M.

Let me suggest a couple of other possibilities. You may be having this problem because you are making an abnormal quantity of urine. Or you may have a chronically bladder unable to contain the normal nighttime urine production.

Diabetes and heart failure are two conditions that can cause a person to produce too much urine. The person who spoke on TV about the problem was undoubtedly referring to the fact that bladder infections can cause inflammation, and that can shrink a bladder.

A yeast infection might be behind it, but it's not the commonest kind. Usually, some other organism is involved. The way to find out is to take a urine specimen in and have a laboratory examine it. They can tell whether the infection is from yeast or from bacteria, or if there is no infection at all.

I should mention that the same problem in men is usually due to an obstruction of the urinary passage (urethra) from an enlarged prostate gland. There is inability to void completely and some urine is left in the bladder to produce the nighttime urges. That symptom should be a warning to prompt a doctor's visit for a prostate checkup.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Please describe cluster headache. Is this one of the vascular headaches you mentioned? — J.H.

Yes, like migraine, a cluster headache results from changes occurring in arteries serving the head. They first constrict, then widen, with the rush of blood the immediate cause of the pain.

Cluster headache is most common in men in their 40s. The pain from them is all but unbearable, driving the person to desperate straits, leaving him roaming the room in agony. That's a description I got from a patient who had them.

The only thing close to good news about cluster headaches is that they are relatively brief — much less than a half hour usually, although sometimes lasting hours. With the ache there can be eye-tearing and nasal congestion.

They get their name from their pattern of occurrence — in clusters. The patient may have such headaches daily for several weeks or even months, then have a respite for months, even years, only to meet up with the agonizing aches again. The clusters themselves can be several in a 24-hour period. Given their potential length, they can sometimes all but incapacitate the sufferer.

Ergotamine helps abort a headache. Its drawback is that it sometimes takes as long to work as the length of the headache itself, so you never know when it has actually helped. The headache may have ended on its own. So, for severe cluster headache with unacceptable patterns of occurrence, prevention is used. Medicines like indomethacin (Indocin), methysergide (Sansert), and propranolol (Inderal) are used for prevention. See the booklet "Headache: Causes-Symptoms-Cures," which other readers may order by writing me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00.

Vaginitis can strike any woman at any time in her life. You can read about the causes — and cures — for this troublesome complaint in the booklet, "Vaginitis: The Hidden Ailment." To get a copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.
Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Dear Abby

Beloved cat's banishment has tenant ready to yowl

DEAR ABBY: This may sound insignificant to you, but it means the world to me. I've lived in this apartment for three years. When I moved in, I had a female, spayed cat. She's 8 years old now and sleeps all day. I bathe her, clip her nails and brush her teeth. Now the owner says, "By June 1, either the cat goes, or you do."

Other tenants have abused the landlord's generosity: some have had two and three animals.

I can understand his point of view, but I have mine, too. I lost my son eight years ago in a terrible accident, and soon after his death, my 6-year-old daughter brought this stray cat home. She filled the gap and helped to heal my broken heart. She's too spoiled and attached to us to live with anyone else. We'd have to put her to sleep.

I offered to pay a little extra rent for her, but the landlord doesn't want it. He considered it once, but changed his mind. I have never met him and it's hard to get past his secretaries. I love this apartment and can't afford to move. Please help me.

HURTING
DEAR HURTING: There are exceptions to almost every rule, and I think your case merits an exception.

Mail this to your landlord, and sign it with your cat's pawprint (as you did in your letter to me). Enclose your telephone number and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for his reply.

You have nothing to lose but a 22-cent postage stamp. Good luck.

DEAR ABBY: Our 31-year-old son is being married soon. I am sure our 35-year-old unmarried daughter will be asked that stupid question: "And when are you getting married?"

There will be aunts, uncles, cousins, grandparents and various other relatives attending the wedding, and this is bound to happen. I want to spare my daughter any embarrassment I can.

Can you give me a snappy comeback?

DREADING THE DAY
DEAR DREADING: Please don't dread your son's wedding day in anticipation of "stupid" questions or hurtful comments from insensitive people. In the first place, don't assume that your daughter needs your protection; she may be well able to take care of herself. Also, a smile and quick getaway without answering a stupid question is preferable to a snappy comeback that could provoke more stupid questions.

DEAR ABBY: My sister just called to ask me to split the cost of a party for our parents' 40th wedding anniversary.

I took out a loan 15 years ago to pay for my parents' 25th wedding anniversary party, which took place shortly after I was married. My sister was a teen-ager then, so I certainly didn't expect her to pitch in. Now "Sis" is in her 30s, has a good paying job (with benefits), savings and investments, and she is single!

I have a wife and three children and I'm living from paycheck to paycheck. I think that since I paid last time, this one should be on my sister. I would be happy to split the cost of the 50th.

STRUGGLING SON
DEAR SON: I don't believe anyone should go into debt to finance a party. I also don't believe that you should expect your sister to pay for your parents' 40th because you paid for their 25th. By the way, no one handed Sis her job, her savings, or made her investments for her. She worked for what she has, single or not.

If you can't afford to split the cost of the 40th, tell your sister the truth. And don't make any commitments for 10 years from now.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (39 cents) self-addressed envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 3022, Hollywood, Calif. 90028.)

Soviet secrecy assailed

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — North and West European countries, confronted with drifting radioactivity, have sharply attacked Soviet secrecy about the nuclear reactor accident in the Ukraine.

"Soviet society is far too primitive to use such a sophisticated technique as nuclear power," wrote the daily Svenska Dagbladet newspaper in Stockholm, Sweden.

Radiation in Sweden from the accident at the Chernobyl reactor was disclosed hours before the Soviet Union admitted anything had gone wrong.

Svenska Dagbladet said Soviet authorities "showed a nonchalance bordering on the unbelievable" by failing to warn other countries.

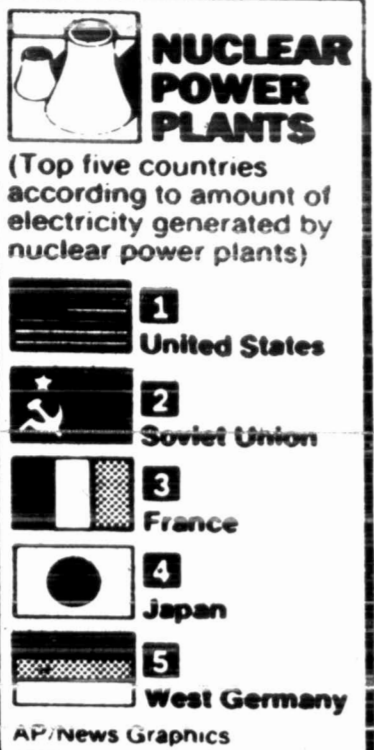

"What kind of people govern the Soviet Union?" asked the conservative newspaper Die Welt in West Germany. "What happened in the Ukraine is not a tragedy. It is a crime."

West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, attending a meeting of ministers of seven West European nations in Venice, Italy, demanded that all similar Soviet power plants be closed until the cause of the Chernobyl accident was known.

"There is no question of national sovereignty in this field," said Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti of Italy, who was at the same meeting. "There are no frontiers to stop atomic radiation."

Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe of Britain said the meeting's participants "expressed deep concern at the Soviets' failure of giving early warning or intimation — a serious lapse in European good-neighborliness."

As winds shifted Wednesday, the radioactivity was reported to have stopped drifting into Scandinavia and to have begun appearing in Austria and Switzerland.

Kiev." Even in Finland, which has a delicate political relationship with the neighboring Soviet Union, newspapers criticized Moscow's handling of the accident.

Finland's biggest newspaper, the Helsingin Sanomat, said it was "likely the Soviet Union would have tried to keep quiet about the accident altogether if the radiation had not reached Scandinavia."

The Finnish government was restrained in its response to the incident, but said it was sending a plane to evacuate about 100 Finns from Kiev.

Soviet ambassadors assured the Swedish, Norwegian and Danish governments Wednesday that the situation had stabilized, but Scandinavian officials said they were told little not already contained in sparse Soviet news reports.

The office of Norwegian Prime Minister Kaare Willoch said it had given Soviet Ambassador Dmitry S. Polyanskiy a list of questions the government wanted answered.

There also were critical reactions in West European countries not affected by the radioactivity.

In Italy, lawmakers used a special session of the legislature to condemn Soviet handling of the incident. A Communist senator, Andrea Margheri, said Moscow's silence on the accident was "a black hole in Soviet information of utmost gravity."

In London, the environmental group Greenpeace predicted that the accident would cause 10,000 cases of cancer in the Soviet Union over the next 20 years and up to 4,000 in Sweden over the next 30 years.

In Paris, the leftist newspaper Liberation said, "Communists make electricity like they make war — without worrying too much about victims and by eliminating observers."

Severe radiation affects bone

NEW YORK (AP) — Severe radiation poisoning can produce blistering of the skin, nausea, vomiting, hemorrhaging and bleeding all over the body. Death usually occurs within a few weeks.

Lower doses of radiation produce no immediately visible effects but can lead to cancer and birth defects years later.

The bone marrow and the intestines are the organs most sensitive to radiation, says Alan Nelson of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a specialist on the health effects of radiation.

Damage to the bone marrow is likely to be the first result of severe radiation exposure. Nausea and vomiting develop, along with a haunting sense of malaise, Nelson writes in "The Nuclear Almanac," a book compiled by professors at MIT.

After a short period, the effects of bone marrow damage disappear. The victim feels fine. Two or three weeks later, however, more serious complications appear. The bone marrow is unable to make blood cells called platelets, which are essential to clotting. Bleeding begins throughout the body. Victims become disoriented and lose equilibrium.

The blood can become infected with bacteria. Death follows three or four weeks after the exposure.

Treatment after exposure to radioactive iodine can still help reduce the radiation dose to the thyroid, doctors say.

Larger doses of radiation damage the intestines, causing symptoms like those of cholera — nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and loss of appetite. Very few victims survive intestinal damage, says Nelson. If they do, they are likely to succumb later to bone marrow disorders.

In extreme doses, a mysterious condition occurs in which the entire nervous system is somehow shortened out. Disorientation, irritability, hyperactivity, convulsions and coma can occur within minutes.

If the coma is survived, a period of calm can ensue. Minutes later, however, tremors begin, blood pressure rises "and eyes may become deep red with hemorrhage," says Nelson. Death occurs within a few hours.

Lower doses of radiation are known to produce genetic damage and cancer.

Scientists at Finland's National Institute of Radiation protection in Helsinki pour a sample of super cooled air into a test bottle for analysis of tritium content. Intensive monitoring of radio activity has been carried out since the announcement of the nuclear plant accident in Chernobyl, Russia.

Concern voiced about Cuba's nuclear reactor safeguards

MIAMI (AP) — Fidel Castro's repeated boasts that Cuba's nuclear reactors are being built with the best of Soviet technology is cause for worry in nearby Florida following the Chernobyl disaster.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, said he asked the State Department and the Organization of American States on Tuesday to press Cuba for verification that necessary safeguards are in place.

"Unless this is done, the plant could pose a threat not only to the United States, particularly to Florida, but to the Caribbean and Central America as well, and equally, to the citizens of Cuba themselves," Fascell said.

"If there were an accident of major variety (in Cuba), we would be in bad shape around here," said Dr. Baehram Kursunoglu, who heads the University of Miami's Center for Theoretical Research.

Four reactors are under construction near the southern Cuba city of Cienfuegos, less than 200 miles from Key West, and Castro has emphasized their safety features.

Dave Joliffe, a spokesman for the American Nuclear Society, said available information indicates that retaining walls are being built around the reactors and that pressurized water will be used to moderate chain reactions.

Water is used in U.S. plants, while the Chernobyl plant used graphite and apparently had no protective containing walls such as those that surround most U.S. plants.

Kursunoglu has been invited to a scientific forum planning committee in Moscow this September to set an agenda for a 1987 forum of 20 international experts on nuclear energy. He said a major priority of such groups now will be improving nuclear safety.

He added that he will call for international inspections of all nuclear power plants.

Designed by Soviet specialists and being built by Cuban and Bulgarian workers, the four reactors in Cuba are scheduled to begin operations in 1989.

Last month, a Cuban television interview with Vladimir Roche, identified as the head of the 300 Soviet specialists working on the project, said the reactor construction was on schedule. Roche said the Soviets involved had extensive experience in building nuclear power plants at home.

U.S. interest in the project since it was announced in 1980 has centered around the possibility of military use, but the State Department has said there is no evidence that the reactors could be used to produce nuclear weapons.

In a July 26, 1984, speech at Cienfuegos celebrating his revolution's 25th anniversary, Castro said thick concrete retaining walls would prevent any danger to the population and also would keep the reactors safe from crashing airplanes, hurricanes or earthquakes.

U.N. agency a mere spectator

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The U.N. agency that is the world's nuclear watchdog has virtually no role in a disaster like the Soviet accident at Chernobyl because countries can set their own limits on cooperating with the agency.

Set up in 1957, the International Atomic Energy Agency tries to promote peaceful uses of nuclear power and to stop the spread of nuclear weapons. It offers safety recommendations, if asked, but countries may ignore them.

Its 1,000 employees operate at the glass-and-steel U.N. tower overlooking the Danube River. One hundred and eighty agency inspectors travel the world to keep tabs on the nuclear fuel that moves among reactors, waste dumps and processing plants.

Others man computer banks to correlate the reams of data.

"Ninety-eight percent of the facilities in the world, among the non-nuclear weapons states, fall under safeguards," said Hans-Friedrich Meyer, the agency's chief spokesman. In agency jargon, safeguards mean checks to ensure that uranium and plutonium are not being taken from power plants to build warheads.

"It means giving the alarm in case of violations of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty," said Meyer. Inspectors set up cameras, place seals on containers, go over inventories and set up dosimeters to trace the movement of fuel and equipment.

Lakers make run in stretch to overcome Mavs, 116-112

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — The Dallas-Los Angeles playoff series has heated up, said Lakers' Coach Pat Riley, and that's the way he wants it.
"I like it this way. I like it intense," Riley said following the Lakers' 117-113 victory over the Mavericks on Wednesday night.
"Now I want us to split in Dallas."
Defending NBA champion Los Angeles breezed through the opening round of the playoffs, trouncing San Antonio in three games. The Lakers then opened the Western Conference best-of-seven semifinals with a front-running, 130-116 decision over the Mavericks last Sunday.

But Dallas came back strong in Game 2, leading most of the way until Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Earvin "Magic" Johnson took over in the waning minutes to give their team the victory and a 2-0 lead in the series.
"Nobody yawned through that one," Riley said. "It was an uphill battle for us all the way. This is what the playoffs are all about. This was a great game."

"Dallas has to be very confident going home because of the way they played in this one."

The third and fourth games of the series are scheduled Friday night and Sunday in Dallas.

Tonight, the Philadelphia 76ers are at Milwaukee, where they beat the Bucks in Game 1 on Tuesday night.

Friday, Boston visits Atlanta, with the Celtics leading 2-0, and Houston is at Denver, with the Rockets ahead 2-0.

"It was good for us to play a tough game because that's going to be the nature of things the farther we go," said Abdul-Jabbar, who scored eight points in the final 4½ minutes, 12 in the final quarter, and 26 in the game.
"Give Dallas credit. They played very well, and they'll come out and play us tough again next time."

"It was anybody's game down the stretch, but I think our experience and poise took over and won the game," said Johnson, who had 10 points in the closing period and 21 for the evening.

The Lakers' victory overshadowed a fine outing by Derek Harper of Dallas, who had 19 points, 16 assists and seven steals.

"Losing hurts, but now we realize we can play with these guys," Harper said. "I really think we have the advantage going back to Dallas."

Mark Aguirre led the Mavericks' scoring with 28 points, but he fouled out with 5:33 left and the game tied at 102.

The Lakers, who had trailed since midway in the second quarter, tied the contest at 100-all with 6:11 remaining.

The clubs then traded baskets until the Lakers made it 114-110 with 1:31 left on a hook by Abdul-Jabbar and a pair of free throws by Johnson.

Another Abdul-Jabbar hook and a free throw by James Worthy in the final minute gave the Lakers a four-point advantage.

Hurrah

"I haven't really gutted it out yet so I don't know what I'm capable of. I think I can get back in the 59's though."

If its one event Fite shouldn't be successful in, it's the high jump. The main reason is because she approaches from the wrong side. Most right handed jumpers approach the bar from the right side, Fite approaches from the left. A 5-2 jump is proof that everything does not have to be done by the book.

"I started coming from the left in the eighth grade. I had some success with it so the coaches decided not to bother my form. My goal is 5-4 at regional. I almost cleared it a district by I knocked the bar off with my calf."

One would think that a well-seasoned veteran like Fite would not get nervous after three trips to regionals. She has almost conquered the feeling. "Really the only event I get nervous in is the 400, because I think that's the toughest race you can run."

But she admits there is some added pressure because this is the end of the road.

"I've thought and prayed about it alot. The one thing that keeps going through my mind is that's its my last chance and I want to make good of it."
