Mexicans mark war victory

The oath taken by 32,170 draftees in the city's main Constitution Plaza was repeated by 92,000 other 18-year-olds around the country, all beginning their year of mandatory news agency Notimex said. Government offices were closed for the Cinco de Mayo, although most stores remained open.

Mexicans mark the day as the anniversary of their nation's most important military triumph, although Puebla fell to the French one year and 15 days later when Mexican defenders ran out of ammunition and surrendered as prisoners of war.

It is one of the most popular holidays celebrated by Mexican-Americans in the U.S. Southwest. Vice President George Bush attended a celebration in Santa Ana, Calif.

With de la Madrid and his cabinet looking on here, Brig. Gen. Juan Pablo Silva told the draftees in the Constitution Plaza that the world's most powerful democracies ended a three-day "smooth summit" today, calling for a new round of trade talks, adopting a major revision in monetary policy and dodging the touchy subject of agricultural subsidies.

As the annual session closed, the dollar plunged to another post-World War II low against the yen, a disappointment to Japanese businessmen whose exports become less competitive against a falling dollar.

In the final communique of their 12th economic summit, the leaders of the seven industrial democracies patted themselves on the back for the recent decline in oil prices while recognizing the need for long-term stability in the

The leaders declared their three days of meetings a success

'We have achieved our objectives - in short, mission accomplished," British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said. "It was a smooth summit," said U.S. Treasury Secretary James Baker III, who spearheaded the currency and trade initiatives for President Reagan.

One of the most notable and unresolved disputes involved farm subsidies. The Reagan administration has been cutting subsidies at home and would like to see a com-

TOKYO (AP) — Leaders of the mitment from European nations to do the same. The Europeans are cool to the proposal and the leaders agreed only to study the issue.

The "smooth summit" was marred somewhat by the audacity of Japanese saboteurs. Smoke bombs packed with firecrackers exploded in subway and train stations around Tokyo. The incident was interpreted as a harassing tactic by Japanese radicals intent on embarrassing the largest, most intensive scurity force ever assembled to protect a summit.

No one was injured, and no serious damage was reported, but rush-hour traffic and mass transit were snarled for a time in this city of 11 million as people returned to work at the end of a three-day holiday.

The issue of terrorism, which has dominated the summit, was underscored by a threat from Palestinian radical Abul Abbas, in broadcast report, to target America for terrorist attacks.

"Let him try," President Reagan declared, responding to reporters' questions.

While summit leaders approved a tough anti-terrorist statement, branding Libya as a sponsor of terrorism, Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone emphasized there was no mention of sanctions.

"There is no change in our (Japan's) Middle East policy,' Nakasone told a news conference.

"This (summit statement) is intended to defend us from terrorism and does not mean we would adopt economic and other sanctions.'

Italian Prime Minister Bettino Craxi said the leaders agreed there would be consultations among allies before any new U.S. air strikes against Libya.

Mrs. Thatcher said the summit declaration will not stop terrorism but will tell Libya that the seven summit nations are prepared to take counter-actions "and there will be further action" as a deterrent. "I believe the measures adopted will be a considerable deterrent to state-sponsored terrorism," she told reporters.

The final summit gathering was a state banquet given by Emperor Hirohito at the Imperial Palace. For many of the leaders, it was their first opportunity to meet his eldest son and eventual successor, Crown Prince Akinito.

Between summit sessions today, Reagan met with French President Francois Mitterrand, a Socialist, and Jacques Chirac, the new Gaullist French premier.

In an elliptical reference to France's refusal to permit U.S. warplanes to fly over French territory to attack Libya in the April 14 reprisal raids, Reagan was quoted as saying, "In every happy marriage there are

Pioneers recall first manned space flight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Space flight has always been dangerous, even 25 years ago when Alan Shepard became America's first man in space.

Shepard and four of his Mercury program colleagues were reunited Monday to commemorate the 25th anniversary of America's first manned space flight.

"It's been dangerous for 25 years. We have to cope with it every single day," he said when asked if space flight was riskier now than before. It was May 5, 1961, when

Shepard became the first American in space aboard Freedom 7 and acknowledged his accomplishment with a cool, "Boy, what a ride!"

Fellow Mercury astronauts Scott Carpenter, Gordon Cooper, Wally Schirra and Donald K. "Deke" Slayton attended wonday's black-tie timner at the California Museum of Science and Industry to honor Shepard and his 15-minute suborbital flight.

Slayton said America had become accustomed to success in the space program.

"This kind of gets people's thinking straightened out a little bit," said Slayton of recent launch failures, including the Jan. 28 Challenger disaster.

"You realize we aren't ever going to build a perfect system and they are subject to failure," he said.

Shepard responded curtly when asked what he would tell voung people who might now be fearful of space because of the explosion of the Challenger, which killed all seven aboard.

"If they can't see beyond what's happening, if they can't see beyond the risk, I can't tell them anything," he said. 'They've got to see that going

"There was a lot of doubt and cynicism about flying in space" when he went up in 1961, Shepard noted.

The $150-a-plate dinner benefited the Mercury Seven Foundation, which was formed two years ago to award scholarships to outstanding students. More than 200 people attended, said organizer Pat Neal. A number of tables were bought by aerospace firms, including Rockwell International, TRW and McDonnell Douglas.

The proceeds from the evening will fund the foundation's first seven scholarships, yet to be announced.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, the seventh Mercury astronaut, canceled plans to attend because of a Senate session, said foundation spokesman Bret principles for which the defenders of Puebla fought 124 years ago were still in force. He urged the new generation of soldiers to preserve Mexico's identity.

Ceremonies in the capital were also held at a monument to Gen. Ignacio Zaragoza, who led the Mexican troops at Puebla, and at the tomb of Gen. Miguel Negrete, another hero of the battle.

In Puebla, about 80 miles (120 km) southeast of Mexico City, ceremonies were held at the Guadalupe and Loreto forts from which Zaragoza's troops had pushed back the French troops.

Emperor Napoleon III ordered the invasion after the Mexican Congress declared a two-year moratorium on payment of the public debt. At the time, according to an extensive historical report in El Nacional on Monday, Mexico owed a total 82 million pesos to France, Britain and Spain, its three principle creditors.

court concerning compliance.

Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation officials have had problems complying with the requirements. Instead, they have used a controversial formula that allows non-attendants to be counted in the worker-patient ratios in order to save money.

However, the state on Monday asked Sanders to eliminate those staff-patient ratio requirements that were imposed after a 12-year legal battle on behalf of mentally ill patients at the eight state mental hospitals.

The state's request from the attorney general's office noted that the ratios should be eliminated because the number of patients at the hospitals has dropped since 1984, while the number of workers has increased.

In 1984, the hospitals had 181 workers per 100 patients and on Feb. 28, 1986, there were 228.3 staff members per 100 patients, the state's legal brief said. "This dramatic change in circumstances is a basis" for the request.

The review committee, however, called on Sanders to forbid the use of licensed-vocational nurses and therapy technicians for direct paratios, it does want the court to continue allowing hospitals long-term flexibility in redistributing staff positions based on patient needs.

The panel also called on the judge to force the hiring of an adequate number of mental health workers: to order the redistribution of staff from hospital with an oversupply of staff to those understaffed; and to prohibit the laying off of licensed-vocational nurses (LVNs), therapy technicians, registered nurses or other professional staff because of budget problems caused by hiring more mental health workers.

According to the report, Big Spring has two LVNs and one therapist and has used all of them on a regular basis. Of the 49 LVNs available at Wichita Palls for direct patient care, the facility has used about 20 to meet the staffing ratio requirements, Vernon State Hospital has 26 LVNs available but has used none.

Based on a Jan. 13 report to the MHMR central offices in Austin, the panel said, staffing levels are such that the Big Spring facility would need to hire an additional 18 mental health workers. The Vernon facility could reduce its mental health weeker-pecitions by bro-

However, Wichita Falls would need 11 new staff members, while Kerrville would need five and San Antonio, 25, the panel added.

If all LVNs and therapy technicians who could be moved from one mental ward to another were used are making long-term staffing Vernon could cut its staff by 28 and Wichita Falls could drop 18 The committee added that employees. High-tech spurs growth

WASHINGTON — New England, enjoying a boom in high-tech industry, had the fastest personal income growth of any region last -year, with the poorest performance coming in states dependent on energy production, the government reports.

Nationwide, Americans' personal income climbed 5.3 percent to an average of $13,451 for every person in the country last year, the Commerce Department said Monday.

The increase was substantially below the giant 9.3 percent rise enjoyed in 1984 and reflected the fact that the economy performed much more sluggishly last year.

The discovery of radioactivity "barely above" normal background levels in the air off the Pacific Northwest coast over the weekend means - since it was carried by the west-to-east jet stream — that rain in the Midwest and on the West Coast likely carried at least some particles to the ground.

The victim provided a description of Penry to authorities before dying in a hospital emergency room.

Pravda reports of atomic reactor blow-up

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party newspaper Pravda today gave Soviets their first detailed account of the Chernobyl disaster, saying a non-nuclear explosion 10 days ago blew apart the building housing an atomic reactor and shot flames nearly 100 feet high.

Pravda said the situation remained "complicated" because water and chemicals were useless in extinguishing the fire, but did not say whether the reactor fire 80 miles north of Kiev still was burning.

Western scientists have said reactor graphite cores, each about 20 feet long and weighing abot 1,000 tons, are like pieces of charcoal that can smolder for a long

The reactor fire created a cloud of radioactivity that has been blown over much of Europe by shifting winds and has reached the western United States, Canada and Japan. In Moscow, a news conference got under way today with Deputy Premier Boris Shcherbina, head of the government commission investigating the accident. The news conference was opened by Deputy Foreign Minister Anatoly Kovalev, who made a long statement defending the Soviet handling of the disaster and saying that it pointed up the importance of halting the nuclear arms race. Soviet officials traveling abroad have provided some information on the accident, but the Pravda account was the first detailed report to the Soviet public.

In a statement issued Monday, the Soviet government indicated for the first time that radioactivity had spread beyond an 18-mile zone evacuation zone. The government also indicated that contamination threatened a river that feeds a major reservoir north of Kiev, the Ukrainian capital of 2.4 million people.

Pravda did not discuss how much radioactivity was released in the accident or give current emission readings. It did not explain the cause of the explosion, but said it was not a nuclear one.

An explosion destroyed structural elements of the building housing the reactor and a fire broke out," it said. "That happened at night. After the explosion the engine room coating took fire. The firemen were fighting the blaze at a height of 30 meters (100 feet)." 'Their boots stuck in bitumen that melted because of high temperature, soot and smoke made it difficult to breathe, but the brave, bold men kept fighting the blaze courageously," it said.

It did not say whether firefighters were among those injured in the disaster.

The youth newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda said today that all evacuees were taken to Kiev. Boris Yeltsin, the Moscow Communist Party chief, has said about 49,000 people had been eyacuated from around

Libya praises radicals

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Libya's official radio today rejected what it called vague charges of terrorism leveled at Libya by Western leaders meeting in Tokyo, and quoted Col. Moammar Khadafy as praising Japanese extremists for "wrecking" the Tokyo summit.

The praise from Khadafy apparently was in reference to Sunday's firing of rockets by Japanese terrorists during the summit's opening ceremonies. The rockets missed their target and exploded without hurting anyone.

European rockets on go

PARIS - While the U.S. space program is suffering through a string of failures that began with the January space shuttle explosion, Europe's Ariane rocket program is booked nearly solid through 1989 with contracts worth $1.23 billion.

'We are currently the only commercial company able to put satellites into orbit." said Charles Bigot, director of Arianespace.

'It's a high-risk business,'' Arianespace spokesman Claude Sanchez said Monday. "But we are confident in the American rocket. They (the Americans) have a failure rate higher than foreseen, but they're just going through a bad period."

Soviet heavy hand cited

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan - Soviet forces disarmed many Afghan soldiers and surrounded the capital city of Kabul in the days just prior to the resignation of Afghanistan's communist leader Babrak Karmal, Western diplomatic sources said today.

Citing extensive reports from Kabul, the sources said Afghan secret police quickly broke up pro-Karmal demonstrations by women, students and others.

The extraordinary Soviet security measures apparently were intended to guard against any backlash from Karmal's supporters or the Afghan armed forces.

Three suspects arrested

BERLIN-A newspaper said today that West Berlin police had arrested three more people in connection with last month's nightclub bombing that killed two people and injured 230 others.

The Berlin Morgenpost identified one of the three as Farouk Salameh, who it said is married to a German woman. It did not identify the other two people.

Police declined to confirm the newspaper's report, but scheduled a news conference for later in the day.

Reagan sets deadline for oil firms to pull out

TOKYO (AP) — The Reagan administration, amid indications the number of Americans in Libya is increasing, has set a June 30 deadline for five U.S. oil companies to pull out of Col. Moammar Khadafy's country, even if they must leave assets behind.

The continuing presence of the oil companies, five months after President Reagan ordered a trade embargo and called virtually all Americans home, limits U.S. appeals to Italy and other West European countries to stop buying Li-

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III reinforced the warning. 'I think it is appropriate at some point to say to U.S. companies that are still there, 'You have had sufficient time," Baker said. "We've tried to be as lenient as possible."

Five U.S. oil firms that are re maining in Libya are Conoco, W.R. Grace, Amerada Hess, Marathon and Occidental. There are also six oil-related service firms in operation.

At the same time, though, the number of Americans working in Libya appears to be rising. A U.S. official, who demanded anonymity, said there were 500 to 800 working in the country despite the U.S. sanctions and threat of punishment, some of them for the five oil

It is difficult to estimate the American work force since the U.S. embassy in Tripoli is closed. However, only a few months ago, the State Department estimated about 100 Americans were in the country, most of them spouses of Libyan citizens.

Baker conceded it was hard to persuade Western European allies to quit buying oil from Khadafy as long as U.S. companies were still persuade Western European allies operating in Libya.

"I think the United States has to be able to make the point to its allies, if we're asking them to take action, that there are no longer United States' companies operating in Libya with the consent of the U.S. government," he said.

Human wisdom and gasoline won't mix

When the price of oil was $33 a harrel, a tribunal of energy experts told me it was my fault.

They called me on the carpet and said, "Shame on you. You are consuming too much gasoline and making us hostage to the OPEC nations. If you continue down this slothful path you will dry up the world oil reserves by the year

"What do you want me to do?" I asked them.

The members of the tribunal looked down sternly and said, "Buy a smaller car. Use it only for essential trips. Stop joy riding. Keep the heat in the house at 60 degrees. Replace oil heaters with coal. Cut out air conditioning. Use mass transportation as often as you can. Drive 55 miles per hour, and have your engine cleaned by Mr. Goodwrench

"If I do all that will the price of oil go down?'

'No. The price of oil will never go down in your lifetime or ours. All we want you to do is keep it from rising any higher.

'Why will it continue to soar?" I asked one of the wise men.

"Because the OPEC nations will make sure petroleum is always in short supply so they can drive up the price.

Can anyone break this stranglehold?'

'Not in your time, boychick," he said. "Expect to pay $50 a barrel and be grateful they will sell it to you. Now get out of here and conserve every cup of oil you can.'

I did as I was instructed. I sold teh big car and bought a foreign midget. I insulated the house. Instead of gas or oil I burned wood in my stoves. The kids, without any prodding from me, sold their snowmobiles and began riding the

Then for no reason the price of oil dropped — first by a few pennies then by nickles and dimes, and finally by big petro-bucks.

The tribunal of oil wise men called me in. I thought they were going to congratulate me for my conservation. But they were angry.

"You've made fools of us. We predicted the price of oil would go up, but it has gone down.

'I had nothing to do with it. "Hah! Your conservation methods have caused an oil glut. More oil is being produced than is being sold, and there is anarchy in the marketplace."

"One person can't cause an oil glut.' "Not you alone, but everyone like you who cut back on consumption. Because of a lot of cheap people, oil may hit $5 a barrel.

'You told me OPEC would never let that happen.

"They double-crossed each other by drilling more oil than they had agreed to. This forced everyone to open up their spigots and start a price war. The consumer is now in charge."

"Anything wrong with that?" "The first rule of any business is to never let the consumer be in charge. 'So tell me, wise ones, how do I make the oil nations well?"

"Double your consumption of lighter fluid. Buy a diesel motorboat. Give each one of your kids a Porsche. Use heating oil to barbecue your steaks. Replace your electric lights with gas ones. Take an Exxon executive to lunch. Can you do it?'

"I guess so. But I sort of enjoy paying 70 cents for gasoline. It hasn't shaken me up as much as I thought it would."

'Don't think of yourself. Think of all the banks that have made loans to the petroleum industry. Remember, every time the price of oil drops 50 cents a barrel, a bank executive gets sick to his stomach.

Libya isn't liked in Mideast

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR WASHINGTON — In the weeks before the U.S. air strike against Libya, Moammar Khadafy vainly tried to find an Arab intermediary willing to intercede in his behalf with the Reagan administration.

It is a measure of the Libyan dictator's low standing in the Arab world that he tried everyone, but only Morocco, which is allied in a paper "union" with Libya, responded. The Moroccans dutifully made the requested overture to the State Department and were rejected out of hand.

In explanation, a State Department official said of Khadafy: "We do not trust him."

Khadafy also importuned Algeria and Saudi Arabia to belo him open up a dialogue with President Reagan. The Libyan leader may have tried to enlist the brokerage services of other Arab countries as

State Department sources told our associate Lucette Lagnado that Khadafy has been trying for ears to open negotiations with Reagan, but the White House considers the Libyan totally untrustworthy. The State Department official said Khadafy is an expert at "getting people lulled to sleep" with talk of peace and reasonable behavior and then "doing whatever he pleases."

For that reason, the official explained. "We have made it very clear: We have not allowed anyone to act as intermediary.

In fact, Morocco's attempt to do so cost it a few friends in Washington. In fairness it should be noted that Morocco has gained some solid economic benefits from the "union" with Libya, and therefore felt obliged to make the effort.

Khadafy's earlier attempt to get Algeria's help was in January. In an almost unprecedented display of courtesy, Khadafy flew to a remote part of Algeria for a secret meeting with President Chadli Bendedid, hoping to get him to intercede for Libya in Washington.

The Algerian, unwilling to get too close to Khadafy, refused his request and reportedly asked the Libyan leader: "Why not try the Moroccans?"

Sources say Khadafy also approached the Saudis. As administration officials had hoped, several Arab nations have delivered perfunctory denunciations of the U.S. raid on Libya — while privately expressing congratulations and regretting only that Khadafy was not killed or overthrown in the raid's aftermath.

In fact, State Department sources note with satisfaction, two Arab governments hadn't even issued pro forma complaints about the U.S. military action. They are Iraq and Tunisia.

The Iraqis have resented for years Libya's support for Iran in the exhausting Persian Gulf war, and rejected a recent effort by the Saudis to bring Libya and Iraq together "in the name of Arab unity.

The Tunisians — who were themselves hit by a similar air strike by Israel for harboring the Palestine Liberation Organization — were positively gleeful over the U.S. action. "Why did you not get Khadafy?" a Tunisian diplomat asked a State Department official after the raid.

Tumsia, or course, was nearly invaded by Libyan troops last summer. Only threats of retaliation by Algeria, and a reported mutiny and attempted coup by his own military officers, led Khadafy to call off the invasion.

SAY 'AH!': Cursory as they sometimes are, the physical examinations given to military recruits are painstaking compared to the exams conducted after military personnel return from disease-infested countries. A group of Vietnan veterans has learned this the hard way. They returned to the United States without a checkup and were carrying a parasitical disease called filariasis, spread by mosquito bites. The larvae enter the bloodstream and find their way to the lymph glands, where they grow undetected, possibly for years. In extreme cases, the disease can be fatal. Unlike other federal agencies, the Pentagon doesn't test its people for filariasis.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Haven't the American Indians been dumped on enough? We certainly think so, yet here come Washington's bureaucrats, ready to sock it to the Native Americans again. By an amazing coincidence, five of the 12 sites throughout the entire country that have been designated as possible dumping grounds for nuclear wastes are on Indian reservations. This, of course, reflects the shameful fact that when the Indians were kicked off their fertile tribal lands by treaties a century or more ago, they were given virtual wastelands in return. Now a faithless federal government wants to ruin even those hard-scrabble homes.

Around The Rim

Superiority ...to what?

By EDDIE CURRAN

For better or worse, the reaction of the American people to the bombing of Libya will go a long way in determining Reagan's foreign policy for the remainder of his term. Because as recent events indicate, the approval of other governments, allied or unallied, is not of great consequence to the Reagan administration. What is important to the reagan administration is the renewal of American pride — the particular pride of the Big Stick.

And because our self-image is of higher priority than world peace, we are perceived, increasingly so, as selfish and callous in the eyes of the world. More than ever, it is important for us. as Americans, to decide if we are comfortable with this direction our government is taking, and with where it will take us.

Reagan's foreign policy has revealed two similarly pathed undercurrents. First, as exemplified by the bombing of Libya and earlier, the raid on Grenada, Reagan has shown he is not afraid to take military action where he feels it necessary.

Second, the Reagan Administration's push for aid to the Contras shows no respect for the view that the U.S. should not have entered the Vietnam conflict. If the American people would stand for it, indications are that Reagan would lead us into a Nicaraguan war. With a mandate from the public, he would win; that is the lesson Reagan would have learned from Vietnam. But is Nicaragua worth going to war for? And in light of such a victory, on what grounds could the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan be condemned?

The immediate concern is that, as it stands, we are at war with Libya. We cannot realistically expect Khadafy to halt his promotion of terrorism, and Reagan has said he will attack again "if necessary." For this reason the more likely to accelerate than slow terrorism. If this does turn out to be the case, what will we have accomplished?

We will have boldly shown the world that to provoke the United States is to pay the consequences. Now we must continue down our present course or appear weakwilled. This is the primary concern of the European countries who were so quick to denounce the attack. They are opposed to Khadafy as well, but they are aware that most terrorism occurs in Europe, and they wonder where it will end. So support for the attack will for the most part be limited to American support for American

For many, a show of military force by our government requires no explanation. If this is so, we must accept that our nation's need for self-respect has gotten in the way of, and is not compatible with, our historically assumed moral superiority.

When provoked by the likes of Khadafy, we are in an unenviable position. We should know better.

States spurs the arms race and cannot be BY ANDREW ROSENTHAL

MOSCOW (AP) — The Chernobyl nuclear accident disrupted the Kremlin's courting of Western support for arms control, and the Soviets now seem anxious to mitigate damage to their international credibility. Beset by Western protests over the paucity of data on the accident. Soviet officials have been giving out more information abroad than at home, including an unusual series of interviews in West Germany. The Soviets also are seeking to deflect

Western criticism about how they handled the crisis by accusing the West of creating a propaganda show to deflect attention from Kremlin arms proposals and U.S. nuclear

For months, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev has been leading a public relations campaign to eliminate nuclear weapons, ban nuclear tests, convene regional security conferences and establish nuclear-free zones. The Soviets have insisted they were open to on-site verification plans.

At the same time, they peppered the United States with charges of militarism, especially after the bombing raid on Libya, and portrayed themselves as the champion of small nations victimized by a superpower A key ingredient in the campaign was the assertion that the Soviet Union stands for peace and can be trusted, while the United trusted.

Disaster deals Soviet diplomacy setback

Then came Chernobyl. The Kremlin clamped down its secrecy curtain and after months of taking the public relations offensive, Moscow was back in the spotlight of international criticism.

Neighboring states protested that they weren't informed until radiation was already over their territories, and Western governments continue to object to the lack of data on For some Western politicians like British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, the Soviet handling of Chernobyl raised questions about whether the Kremlin could be trusted to be open to Western observance of arms control agreements or a test ban.

Ulrich Hundt, a spokesman for the West German Defense Ministry, added: "It's a very bad signal of what the Soviets are willing to

The Soviets, who have insisted their reactors are practically accident-proof, could find themselves the focus of new anti-nuclear protests

Political damage from Chernobyl could be particularly acute in Scandinavia, where radioactive fallout hit first and where the Kremlin has been seeking support for its proposals for arms control and a nuclear-free zone in northern Europe

"A neighboring country must immediately give information after an accident," complained Swedish Prime Minister Ingvar Carisson, who just two weeks before the accident was warmly received at the Kremlin.

So far, Gorbachev has avoided public involvement in the discussion of what happened at Chernobyl. He has made no statement on what happened at the plant, about 80 miles north of Kiev.

But he sent his two chief lieutenants, ideology secretary Yegor K. Ligachev and Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov, to the Chernobyl area in a sign of the importance he attaches to the crisis.

It took three days for the Soviet Union to report the accident itself. But its response to outside press coverage was immediate and that reporting instead of the accident itself has become the media's focus.

"By artificially turning up an outcry, (U.S. officials) are clearly out to draw world attention from the barbarity and disgraces of recent U.S. aggression against Libya, from the nuclear blasts in Nevada which have outraged all mankind and from the militarist Star Wars program," the Communist Party daily Pravda said Sunday.

Antibiotics surprise woman on the pill

DEAR ABBY: Please warn women who rely on birth control pills that if they take antibiotics, the effectiveness of the pill may be greatly reduced.

My grandson and his lovely wife are soon to be parents — thanks to the antibiotics she had taken for a brief time due to an infection in her ear! She was more than a little surprised to learn she was pregnant. Thank heavens, they can afford this unplanned pregnancy — many young couples can't.

PHILIP BATEMAN, DECATUR, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: I have a message for "Smart and Confused," who felt superior. Feeling superior is not all that rare. I also have always felt superior to most of my contemporaries. Oddly enough, I kept running into people who felt exactly the same way. To paraphrase Ambrose Bierce: "An egoist is someone who thinks more of himself than he does of me."

Feeling superior is an arrested state of development. Compassion, not intelligence, is the greatest human attribute. An ounce of kindness is worth a pound of cleverness. It's nice to be intelligent, but it's intelligent to be

Numbness can be a part of arthritis

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Can arthritis cause a kind of numbness in joint or limb? — H.E.G.

It can if the arthritis inflammation has narrowed one of the passages through which nerves sometimes pass. Many times, nerves must pass through such tunnels in joint areas.

The numbness resulting from pinching of the nerve would not have to be limited to the immediate joint area, but might be felt along the length of the limb or to wherever that nerve extends.

An example is impingement on the ulnar nerve at the elbow, which frequently causes numbness at the hand. People who have a habit of crossing their legs when seated can interfere with the peroneal nerve under the knee. That can cause foot numbness, a phenomenon noted by some after sitting in such a position at a movie, for example. Arthritis there might elicit the same sensation or exaggerate such a problem.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Does alcohol ingestion bring on gout attacks? How? — Mr. & Mrs. E.Q.

Alcohol ingestion can bring on a gout attack. Some may tolerate moderate amounts of alcohol without having an attack. By moderate use I mean one or two cocktails. Others are quite sensitive to alcohol and must forego its use entirely.

Alcohol causes attacks by increasing uric acid production. Uric acid accumulates within joints to cause the gout pain. I've discussed gout frequently, so I want to refer you to some printed material for answers to some of you other questions about it (edited from your letter). Zinc may be secret to good tree foliage from office.

Beautiful pecan trees and regular harvests of high quality pecans begin each spring with frequent zinc sprays. Good foliage is the secret to optimum growth, healthy trees and regular production.

Mature pecan trees can have double the amount of foliage with three of four zinc sprays in April and May. Leaves on mature trees are full grown by June, so spray early and frequently. Young pecan trees can grow six feet instead of six inches in one year if zinc is sprayed onto the foliage every two to three weeks from April until August. This is of course in combination with good management program.

There are three types of zinc which can be used in Texas, zinc sulfate, NZS or NZN. Each is effective. Commercial pecan producers have used zinc sulfate with good results for over 40 years. Caution will need to be used however because zinc sulfate can kill many types of plants, so spray it only onto pecan foliage.

NZN is a new type of zinc which is a liquid. It was developed by Dr. J. Benton Storey of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. NZN is highlyn soluble, less toxic to other vegetation and readily available at The commercial rates zinc for spraying pecan foliage in Texas are two pounds of zinc sulfate, two pounds of NZS or 114 quarts of NZN per 100 gallon of water. The homeowner should use two teaspoons of zipc sulfate. NZS or NZN in one gallon of water. Other forms of zinc, such as zinc chelates or tree injectors, have been tested but have not been found to be an effective source of zinc for pecans

Zinc is utilized by pecan foliage for the manufacture of a growth hormone called indole-acetic-acid. Without zinc and indole-acetic-acid pe growth is greatly reduced. The leaves will be small and the shoots will be short and in clusters forming what is commonly called "zinc rosette". important cultural requirement.

Zinc is not readily translocated from shoot to shoot; consequently, frequent zinc sprays are needed if new growth is to receive zinc. This is also why good coverage is important. Since aerial application does not give complete tree coverage, commercial growers have to depend on ground sprayers for zinc applications.

There are over 600,000 acres of native pecan trees in Texas. Yet, strange as it may seem, pecans are one of the few plants that cannot absorb zinc from the soil. Texas soils frequently contain very high levels of zinc, but, because of the high pH nature of alkaline soils, a high percentage of the soil zinc is not soluble in the soil water and is thus unavailable to the pecan. Applications of zinc to the soil are of no significant value to Relative humidity has a great effect on foliar absorption of zinc. In far lest Texas extreme difficulty can be encountered in getting the zinc into the leaf: Along the Gulf Coast, absorption can be extremely easy. Zinc should not be concentrated to 2X or 4X rates because foliage burn can result during periods of high humidity. The use of spreaders are not recommended because they can result in accelerated drying and reduced zinc absorption.

A pecan grower can determine if his zinc sprays are effective by obsering the amount of terminal growth the trees make during the year. Mature trees should make five to 10 inches of shoot growth annually Nonbeafing trees should make 24 inches of shoot growth each year.

In addition, leaves collected in July can be analyzed in a chemical laboratory to determine the concentration of zinc in the leaves. A levelof 75 ppm is considered a minimum and 125 ppm is optimum. It is important to have the leaves washed before analysis to prevent measuring the zinc that may remain on the surface of the leaf.

Zinc alone is not the answer to the perfect pecan. It is however a very

National Nurses' Day is today

"For competent, cost-effective care, choose a nurse," is the theme for National Nurses Day today. The Texas State Nurses' Association joins the American Nurses' Association (ANA) and our nation's nearly 1.9 registered nurses in marking the event, according to a release from the Texas Nurses Association.

Registered nurses care for patients in their homes, in community clinics, nursing homes, hospitals, corporate health centers, and health maintenance crganizations. Today more and more consumers choose the services of registered nurses for quality health care at prices they can afford, according to the release.
"The public's vote of confidence in nursing has caused us to redouble our efforts to eliminate barriers to nursing practice," said ANA President Eunice Cole, R.N. "We are working to get outdated policies off the books so that all consumers can choose a nurse for quality health care services at af-fordable prices."

Sports Mayfield, Jones top BSHS athletes

Brian Mayfield and Monique Jones were the centers of attention at the annual Spring Sports Ban-quet hosted by the Big Spring All-Sports Booster Club Monday night at the Big Spring High School

Jones and Mayfield won the Wanda Ferguson and Obie Bristow Award for the Outstanding Athletes for the season. They were just two of many athletes honored at the event which was highlighted by guest speaker Spencer Johnson. Public Relations Manager for the Shooting Stars, Meadowlark Lemon's travelling basketball

Johnson, a native and resident of Maryland, spoke to the crowd of 340 about striving for success. He spoke specifically to the athletes and told them, "Always let your pride outweigh disapointments." You can be anything you want to be,"said the 5-3 ex-Geneva College basketball All-American.

He also warned against drugs. You must always be a good Christian athlete. Drugs and alcohol lead to a lonely road. It's a loser's

In the April 22 territorial draft, the USFL divided up the negotiating rights of many of the top collegians, thus diluting the field available today.

Of the 27 players taken by NFL teams in the first round of its draft a week ago, 15 already had been taken in the USFL's territorial draft. That included Heisman Trophy-winning Auburn tailback Bo Jackson, picked by Birmingham. He was selected by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the

After the Renegades picked Haight the Arizona Outlaws used up four of their allotted 10 minutes and selected Oklahoma nose tackle Tony Casillas, the first-round selection of the Atlanta Falcons and No. 2 behind Jackson in the NFL draft. "Money's a big consideration," Casillas said by phone. "It doesn't make a difference what league I play in. I'm looking for security for myself and

The Jacksonville Bulls, picking third, took less than a minute to choose Youngstown State wide Philadelphia Eagles made him a sixth-round pick, the 142nd player taken in the NFL draft. The Tampa Bay Bandits were one of those teams missing choices because of trades with folded franchises. The Bandits, up fourth, were without a first-round pick, the result of a trade with the Denver Gold for defensive back Bret Clark

Purdue quarterback Jim Everett was selected by Memphis. He had been No. 3 in the NFL draft, taken by the Houston Oilers. Will Lewis and Mike Kelly were less than awesome as the Showboats' quarterbacks in 1985, the last of the USFL's spring-summer seasons before the league switched to the fall this year.

The New Jersey Generals took James Pruitt, Cal-State Fullerton's No. 2 all-time receiver. Pruitt was the Miami Dolphins' fourth-round pick, No. 107 in the NFL draft.

The Generals have on their roster Richard Johnson, who caught more than 200 passes each of the past two seasons for Houston. The Gamblers' and Generals' rosters were merged after the 1985 season

Birmingham took Couthern Methodist running back Reggie Dupard, who had been picked No. 1 by New England with the 26th pick in the NFL draft.

The USFL champions, the Baltimore Stars, took nose tackle Erik Howard from Washington State, a second-round pick by the NFL's New York Giants.

The Bandits acquired the eighth and final pick in the first round from Memphis by trading defensive tackle Ron Simmons to the Showhoats

Rangers outplay Canadians; still lose in overtime, 4-3

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Rangers outshot, outskated and generally outplayed the Montreal Canadiens. Outscoring them was something else, however.

We had them on the ropes and they came back," Rangers goaltender John Vanbiesbrouck said after Monday night's 4-3 overtime loss to the Canadiens in the NHL's Stanley Cup playoffs. "I don't feel we lost that game - we were just out-lucked.

While the Rangers got most of the shots, holding a 47-29 advantage over Montreal, the Canadiens got the breaks, including a beauty at the end that left the Rangers virtually defenseless and finally down 3-0 in this best-of-seven Wales Conference final.

The Canadiens can wrap up the series in Game 4 Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden and go on to the Stanley Cup final against the winner of the Campbell Conference final between Calgary and St. Louis. That series is tied 1-1 with the Blues hosting the Flames in Game 3 tonight

The Rangers didn't figure on the kind of performance that the Canadiens got from rookie goaltender Patrick Roy.

"It was one of the best goaltending games I have ever opposed,' said an admiring Vanbiesbrouck. "What can I say? I'm very Roy called it one of his best efforts in the playoffs.

"I knew I would have to challenge the Rangers," Roy said. "We knew they needed this game and would try to get off a lot of shots. I figured on facing at least 35 shots in the game. However, I was really aggressive and confident and the defense played well in front of the net.'

The Rangers took a 1-0 lead on Kelly Miller's goal at 3:15 of the first period, a 20-footer from the edge of the left faceoff circle. Montreal tied it at 6:00 when Stephane Richer, one of the NHL's top rookies this season, scored on a power play, a 20-footer from an almost impossible angle after coming from behind the net.

The Rangers made it 2-1 with a goal by Mike Ridley at 14:57 of the second period. The Canadiens tied it 2-2 at 5:06 of the third period on a breakaway by Mats Naslund, who took a nice pass from veteran defenseman Larry Robinson and beat Vanbiesbrouck on the glove

Bob Brooke gave New York a 3-2 lead at 12:54 of the third period, scoring from the lower left faceoff circle after taking a pass from behind the Montreal net from Wilf Paiement. But the Canadiens tied it on a power-play goal by Bobby Smith with just 2:04 remaining in regulation, putting a backhander past Vanbiesbrouck.

The stage was set for Lemieux's frantic game-winner then McDhoo saw the opportunity open up when Huber fanned on the puck

"I went around him, he grabbed me and hooked me," McPhee said of Huber. "But I managed to get away from him and bring the puck down ice. Lemieux was screaming for it in front of the net "

The puck sailed over Vanbiesbrouck's glove.

"I had a lot of space high, so I went there," Lemieux said. "I got a perfect pass."

The biggest reason that the Canadiens won, however, was Roy.

because the New York Yankees only 12 percentages points behind defeated the slump-ridden Chicago White Sox 4-1.

With the bases loaded and with one out in the bottom of the 10th insingle off the chest of second baseman Frank White.

"That's a nice spot for Tabler." Cleveland Manager Pat Corrales said in what was an understatement. Tabler is now 24-for-38 (.632) in bases-loaded situations for Cleveland.

The score was tied 4-4 when the Indians loaded the bases in the 10th inning against Kansas City's ace capped a six-run outburst in the reliever, Dan Quisenberry.

Customer service is main concern at Carroll Coates'

Selling cars and coming away with satisfied customers is the main concern at Carroll Coates' Auto Sales, says General Manager A.C. Neighbors.

The firm is an automobile financing outlet and a growing business. It offers a selection of used cars and motorcycles and finances its Carroll Coates' Auto Sales has rapidly grown in the last three years from two small office buildings to adding a shop and a dealership in San Angelo. The staff at Carroll Coates' represents many years experience in buying, selling and maintaining cars. Owner Carroll Coates has been in the car business for about 24 years, Neighbors said.

Carroll Coates' Auto Sales believes in an honest relationship with its customers. The salespeople inform customers of all they know about a car so the customer knows as much about the car go the firm does when they leave.

Customers may receive on-thespot financing with no credit checks. Special prices are given for cash sales. The firm also has a fulltime mechanic to service the cars they sell and their customer's cars. Employed at Carroll Coates' are work they need from minor Saturday
