Violent storm batters county

By SPENCER SANDOW
 Staff Writer

A violent storm of high winds, hail and more than three inches of rain whipped through Howard County Saturday night stranding motorists, flooding roads, damaging cars and knocking out power.

The city's emergency sirens wailed at approximately 8 p.m. and again at 9:51, warning people of the approaching storm.

Many roads in and out of Big Spring were closed to traffic as water up to a foot-and-a-half deep swamped the city's thoroughfares.

The sheriff's department reported at 10:50 p.m. that a car became stranded in high waters in a creek near Highway 350 and the old airport road. There was fear that a child was swept away by a torrent of flood water.

There were also reports of a home being flooded near Sandy Creek at Farm Road 700 and Interstate 20.

Tornadoes were spotted near the city throughout the evening, but no damage was reported.

One twister touched down twice 18-19 miles north of Big Spring and again 13 miles north between 9:30 and 10 p.m. Saturday, according to police radio reports.

Another tornado was reported by the National Weather Service at 9:36 p.m. four miles south of Stanton. The service also reported

Liquor issue sparks battle

By SPENCER SANDOW
 Staff Writer

Citizens fighting for liquor by the drink are concentrating on economics, while those fighting against the proposed ordinance are targeting religious beliefs.

The two sides will meet at the polls June 3 for a referendum called by a citizen's petition drive.

Spreading the word through the pulpit will be the most effective way to fight the liquor-by-the-drink effort, Citizens Against Legalized Liquor decided at a meeting Thursday night.

The group was organized Monday "to inform the public of the problems that will arise from the legalized sale of liquor by the drink," member Bobby Fuller said. Another meeting is planned for 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Chamber

Travelers weather storm in courthouse

By HANK MURPHY
 and JOHN RICE
 Staff Writers

Between 400 and 500 people, many of them holiday travelers, sought refuge from Saturday's violent storm in Howard County Courthouse, swapping tales of hail, heavy rains and high winds.

Joel Jordan and Isaac Hernandez were driving to Los Angeles when a hailstone smashed through the roof of the pickup truck's camper shell on Highway 87 north of town.

Steve Forhand of Uvalde was on his way to Levelland when "baseball-sized" hail knocked half his windshield out. His truck sustained "little dents" all over.

Joe Merideth was heading to Dallas from Rawls, N.M., when a gust of wind blew out the back window of his car. He was directed by a police officer to the courthouse, where his car sat out front filling with water. "Guess I'll have to do a little bailing," he said.

"I'm gonna wait here awhile and then when they say it's clear I'm still gonna wait awhile," he said.

A hailstorm that hit about 7 p.m. caught Michelle Schoolcraft, 25, her 2-year-old daughter Keegan and her sister Monica Adamek, 21, on Highway 87 about 13 miles north of the city. The three were traveling from Lubbock to San Angelo.

Hail that ranged from golf ball size to baseball size pummeled their car, shattering the front windshield. Seven cars were caught in the freak hailstorm, Schoolcraft said. A man who turned his car to protect another had the rear windshield broken out, she said.

The hail lasted "a long time, about an hour ... at least 45 minutes," she said. "It broke the windshield, shattered it. We were holding it in place with pillows."

Bernie Gardy, night manager of McDonald's restaurant on Lamesa Highway at Interstate 20, said about 45 people sought shelter there. "They just kept driving in," he said.

Robert Craner, a cook, said, the building sprung "at least 30 leaks. They were all over the place, in the bathrooms, the kitchen, back rooms, everywhere."

Gardy said the storm hurled "blowing, swirling rain, like a blizzard." But when the weather worsened, "We took everyone to the back where the wall is reinforced."

"You could watch out the window and there was a station wagon doing one of these numbers," Craner said, gesturing up and down with his hands. "It looked like it was going to blow away."

"We just tried to keep them calm," assistant manager Mike Jagers said. "We handed out sandwiches to the people." He said his employees worked to comfort people. When word came from police at about 9 p.m. to evacuate to the courthouse, McDonald's employees led the 14- to 16-car caravan so people from out of town would know how to get there.

Among those who caravaned slowly through the flooded streets were John and Vicki Brennan, whose trip home to Andrews from San Angelo brought them into the first wave of tornadic activity at about 7 p.m.

They were approaching Big Spring on Highway 87 when "we saw a wall cloud to the northwest beginning to form into a tornado. We pulled off, got out of the car and into a culvert," said John Brennan. They stayed there about 30 minutes, sharing the space with "a few

Police seek suspects in woman's murder

By HANK MURPHY
 Staff Writer

Police are searching for two young men suspected of murdering and sexually assaulting 81-year-old Ara Erline Bohannon at her home about 3 a.m. Friday morning.

Police found her body in a bedroom of her ransacked home at 1106 Howell St. at about 4:30 p.m. Friday bound by the feet and gagged, Lt. Jerry Edwards said. Edwards said it appeared she had been strangled with a piece of clothing. The murder was one of the most brutal he had ever investigated, he said.

The victim's home had been burglarized, and her 1973 red Ford Maverick, license plate BAH-778, was stolen, Edwards said.

Saturday, police conducted door-to-door searches for the suspects, one of whom is believed to be Hispanic, Edwards said. Police were uncertain of the other suspect's ethnic origin.

The killers are believed to have entered through the back of Bohannon's house in which she lived alone, Edwards said.

Local pathologist Dr. Robert Rember was scheduled to perform an autopsy Sunday ordered by Justice of the Peace

Helping 'Hands' make link today

Even though they'll have to make a 450-mile round trip to do it, Big Springers will be in the coast-to-coast network of fund raising for today's Hands Across America.

It's not USA for Africa, not FarmAid, not LiveAid, not even Rain Aid. Hands Across America is an exciting venture to help our nation's poor. This is for Americans to help Americans.

Participants give a donation to hold hands by the side of a road designated as part of the official coast-to-coast route. That joining of hands will symbolize a solidarity of willingness to help the poor of America. The money contributed will go toward alleviating poverty in America.

The route spans Interstate 40 and the Big Springers (one contingent is led by Jim Blackwell) will gather between mile markers 41 and 42 there.

Poverty is a blight on any nation, but particularly in a land of abundance such as ours. Poverty is a disease that afflicts white and black, young and old. It is curable, however: a helping hand begins the treatment. Today, at 2 p.m., Big Spring area citizens will assemble near Amarillo. If you leave early, there's still time to be a part of it.

U.S.-Mexico summit needed to restore flagging relations

Texas is taking a beating these days in the national press as our economy continues to soften. Recent Senate hearings on Mexico did little to improve Texas' national standing.

Any Texan who took delight in the pouncing Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina gave Mexico recently doesn't understand the potential ramifications on our state.

During one day of closed hearings and one public session, Helms' subcommittee became a runaway freight train. By the time they finished, subcommittee members had painted Mexico as this country's most serious threat and, in the process, U.S. Customs Commissioner William von Raab impounded the integrity of his president. Von Raab suggested that Mexican President de la Madrid's relatives trafficked in drugs.

This public blackjacking of Mexico may well come back to haunt the U.S., especially Texas. Serious thinking Texans — such as Treasury Secretary James Baker and U.S. Senator Lloyd Bentsen — should lobby President Reagan to meet with de la Madrid some time this summer to repair the damage done by Helms' subcommittee to U.S.-Mexico relations.

Unlike Helms' North Carolina, Texas is looking beyond the border to Mexico to diversify economically. It doesn't go unnoticed on many Texans that North Carolina is one of Texas' major rivals in the intensifying race for the high technology industry. Casting Texas as the next Miami Vice doesn't help.

Texans — many of them suspicious of Mexico because of our state's unique struggle with her — ought to treat the Helms subcommittee's findings with skepticism and not get caught up in an anti-Mexico frenzy.

There is plenty to be skeptical about, too.

One of the most ludicrous moments in the committee's hearings arrived when von Raab attempted to convince subcommittee members about the scope of drug money laundering in Texas. One bank, said von Raab, had become the sixth largest in the state on the strength of drug money deposits. Von Raab was wrong, as more than one newspaper in Texas pointed out.

In addition to this, he suggested that drug corruption in Mexico extended to de la Madrid's family.

Other administration officials scurried to contain the damage, but it was too late. Mexico filed a rare letter of protest with Secretary of State George Shultz, and relations fizzled.

Now, we in Texas will bear the brunt of the fallout.

The first casualty is the war on drugs itself. Mexico may now reconsider its decision only three weeks old to let the U.S. assist in drug eradication efforts in the interior. In addition, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency has as many as 300 informers working the dark passageways of the Mexican drug underworld who could need official protection in sticky situations.

The upshot may very well be that more, not less, drugs will course their way through Texas.

But the major casualty is Texas itself. With the state's already troubled economy and the border economy in even more dire straits, the image emerging of Texas is that of a "problem" state. Code words: Investors beware.

Besides that damage, Mexico may now drag its heels repaying its international debt — hurting Texas banks and further eroding the Texas economy.

Perhaps the Helms subcommittee will hold hearings in Texas to find out why the border's commerce may suddenly clog up with added inspections and unnecessary delays. Or why other projects, such as the clean up of the Rio Grande and the coastline below San Diego, may meet with uncooperative silence? Or why every small disagreement will become intractable and in need of Solomonian assistance.

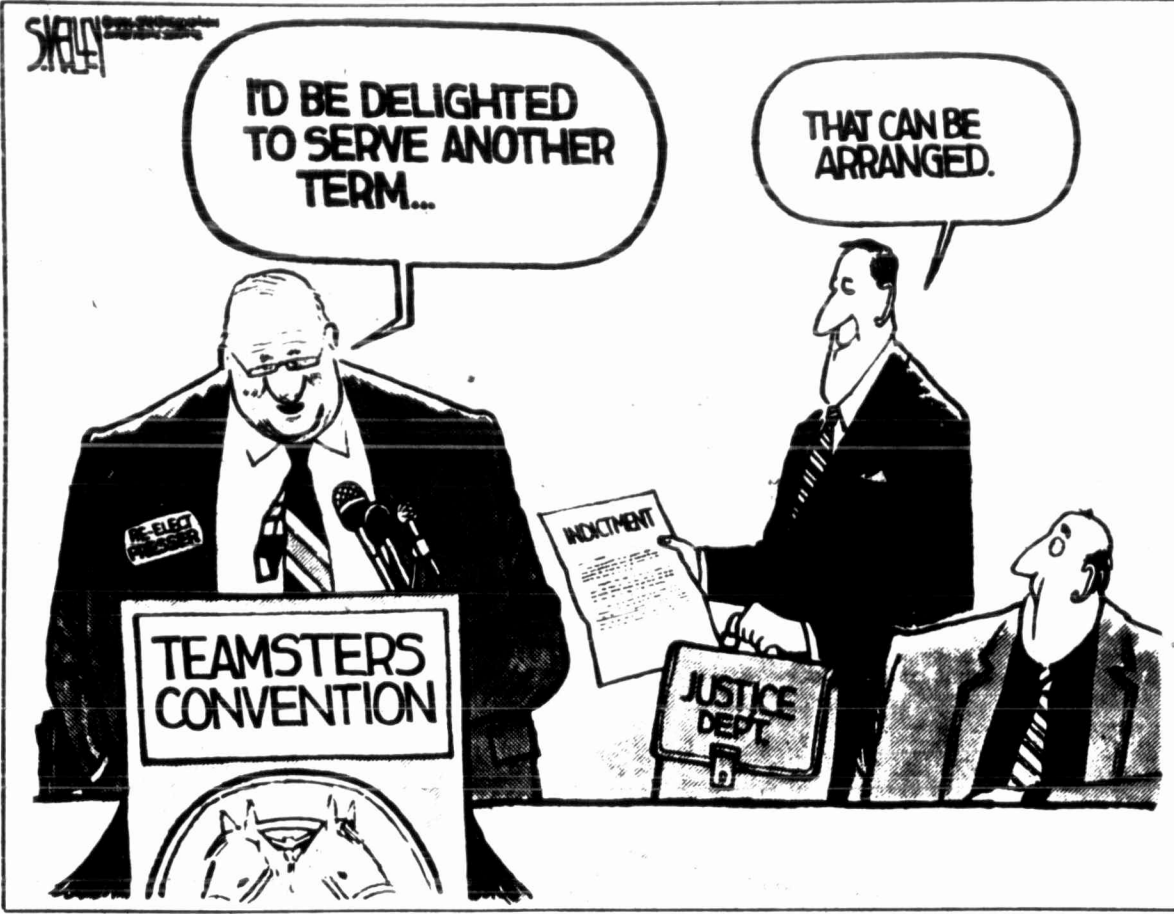

What all this boils down to is that the interests of the senior senator from North Carolina do not all coincide with those of Texas.

The U.S. — and Texas — should press Mexico to clean up its corruption act. No one denies corruption exists. And the fight against drugs must be intensified.

But for Texans to allow a Senate subcommittee to lacerate Mexico in public is short-sighted and counterproductive.

A Mexico-U.S. summit is in order. It could go a long way in putting relations between the U.S. and Mexico and Texas back on track and in the right direction.

Newspaper advisory group helped shape look, outlook

By JOHN RICE, Managing Editor

In eight short months, a group of dedicated newspaper readers have contributed their time and thoughtful guidance in helping shape the direction of this newspaper. For that, I say thanks.

At the May meeting of Friends of the Newspaper, the last one for this year, we reviewed some of the physical changes that are the direct result of the efforts of the advisory group. As I told the participants at the meeting, this "list" tells nothing of the intangible insights I've gleaned from interacting with the people in this group. Here's the list:

News coverage

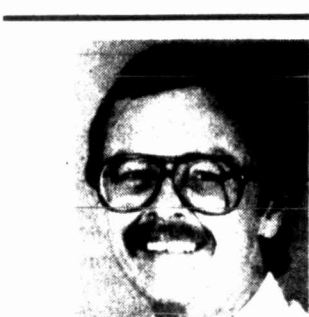

Faced with a newspaper often short on space but always long on stories, I felt it best to hold all stories to as brief a length as possible. That way, I reasoned, we could put more stories in the paper each day.

The Friends group let me know early on that they would rather see depth reporting on complex issues, even if it meant long, long stories and some repetition. And they were willing to sacrifice story count for detail on these issues.

We started doing that. The best recent example of the change is the way we reported the increase in fees for city recreational facilities. That story began way back in September during budget review.

We followed it from workshop session to council meeting to public hearing and back again. Finally, we reported the results a few weeks ago. I don't think anybody in town — who reads the newspaper — wasn't aware of every detail of what was about to transpire.

As a result of a request from the group, we began paying more attention to stories in advance of meetings, telling more detail about what was to be discussed, so that readers who wanted to get involved in government would have that opportunity. We also are careful to report which officials attend each meeting, and how they vote.

We increased our use of local feature photos, even at the expense of timeliness. If we don't have room for one of several photos from an event, we are more inclined now to hold the photo and run it the next day (or the day after). No one thus far has complained about our using untimely photos.

As a service to the relatives of deceased individuals, we began publishing the full date of a person's death in the obituary notice.

Entertainment

We created a weekly entertainment package on Saturdays. That page (or pages) offers local entertainment offerings, out-of-town entertainment, movie and book reviews, bestseller lists, etc. Friends group members say the new service is well-received.

Business

By increasing our use of "briefs," short stories about local business activities, we've been able to enhance our business coverage without using up a lot of additional space. Basically, we're doing more in less space.

We purchase a drilling report each week from a service that researches activities in the oil patch at the district offices of the Texas Railroad Commission in Midland and Abilene. It's not something we have staff to do ourselves, but as a service to our readers we're willing to pay to have someone else do it. That coverage is not only for Howard County, but for Martin, Mitchell, Glasscock and Borden counties as well.

Editorial page

I began more frequent use of "insight" stories from the Associated Press wire, and other sources to provide analysis of national and international news.

When City Councilman Johnny Rutherford was active in the Friends group earlier in the year, I responded to his request for space on the editorial page for use by councilmen, commissioners and any other elected official who wants to discuss an issue or shed light on a controversy. That offer still holds, but thus far there have been no takers.

Those are just some of the enhancements to the newspaper that came as a result of the efforts of 10 to 12 citizens who were willing to take their time to help us do a better job. I've run that list of members of the Friends of the Newspaper committee from time to time. But the most active members, the ones who deserve special thanks, are these:

Billy Graham

Talk to hubby of infidelity

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: We live in a small town, and recently a friend let it slip that everyone in town has been talking about my husband having an affair with another woman. I am crushed and embarrassed and I don't know what to do. I haven't confronted my husband with this, but do you think I should? I've even stopped going to church because I know people must be whispering about me. — Mrs. L.P.W.

DEAR MRS. L.P.W.: In the long run, you are not solving anything by not confronting your husband. It will not be easy, but you need to express your concern to him. He needs to know right from the first that you still love him — but he also needs to know that if he is involved with another woman he is hurting you and must face the sin of what he is doing.

But you also need to think beyond the immediate situation and do what you can to rebuild your relationship with your husband. In other words, don't just confront him, but stress your willingness to do whatever is necessary to get past this problem and strengthen your marriage. Perhaps it would be helpful for you both to seek counseling from your pastor or from another counselor (as long as that person has a biblical perspective on marriage. Do not seek help from a secular counselor who is not guided by God's principles.)

In addition, do all you can to be the best wife possible. For example, encourage your husband with your words, a critical, nagging wife will only hurt a marriage. By your actions, let him know also that you love him.

Most of all, put Christ first in your life and your marriage. You and your husband need His forgiveness, and you need His love and grace as you face the future. God wants to help you, and He will as you make Christ Lord of your lives.

Billy Graham's religious column is distributed by Tribune Media Services.

Today

By The Associated Press Today is Sunday, May 25, the 145th day of 1986. There are 220 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: Twenty-five years ago, on May 25, 1961, President John F. Kennedy said the United States "should commit itself to achieving the goal, before this decade is out, of landing a man on the moon, and returning him safely to the Earth." Apollo 11 accomplished the goal in 1969.

On this date: In 1787, the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia was convened.

In 1803, American essayist and poet Ralph Waldo Emerson was born in Boston.

In 1810, Argentina began its revolt against Spain.

In 1935, baseball great Babe Ruth hit the 714th and final home run of his career for the Boston Braves, against the Pittsburgh Pirates at Forbes Field.

In 1979, 275 people died in the United States' worst aviation disaster as an American Airlines DC-10 lost one of its engines on take-off and crashed at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport.

In 1979, convicted murderer John Spenkelink was executed in Florida's electric chair.

Ten years ago: Rep. Wayne L. Hays, D-Ohio, admitted having had a "personal relationship" with Elizabeth Ray, a committee staff member who claimed she received her job to be Hays' mistress.

Five years ago: Mario Andretti was declared the winner of the Indianapolis 500 after race stewards penalized first-place finisher Bobby Unser. (An appeals panel restored Unser's victory the following October.) And daredevil Daniel Goodwin scaled the outside of the Sears Tower in Chicago in 7½ hours.

One year ago: More than 11,000 people were killed as a hurricane and tidal wave devastated Bangladesh.

Today's birthdays: Actor Claude Akins is 68. Lyricist Hal David is 65.

Summer's first weekend: loaded with celebrations

By WILLIAM GILLEN
Associated Press Writer
Americans celebrated the beginning of Summer 1986 on Saturday with a Memorial Day weekend rodeo in Dallas, ethnic festivals in Michigan and a two-hour parade heralding the 70th running of the Indianapolis 500.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts in Murfreesboro, Tenn., placed American flags on the graves of more than 7,000 veterans in a national cemetery.

In his weekly radio address, President Reagan broadcast a good luck message Saturday to millions of volunteers who will join him Sunday in linking hands across the country.

The Hands Across America line, which will stretch across 16 states, promises to be the nation's longest party. Organizers of the event, which will benefit the nation's hungry and homeless, hoped that the president's participation would bring out more volunteers for the nationwide handshake.

In addition to saluting Americans' volunteer activities, Reagan also urged his listeners to "remember those who gave the greatest gift of all — the gift of their lives — so that we today might live in a nation of freedom."

On Monday, the president will observe Memorial Day by laying a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia, across the Potomac from Washington.

Thousands of local observances were planned to honor the nation's veterans on Monday.

A "living memorial" to Vietnam War veterans, the first of its kind placed on an active military post, will be dedicated Sunday at the Presidio of San Francisco. A total of 5,448 Californians died in Vietnam, including about 2,000 from the San Francisco area.

In Nashville, a $300,000 bronze statue, featuring three Vietnam-era infantrymen in battle poses, will be unveiled Monday on the plaza of Tennessee's Capitol.

Buoyed by lower gas prices, millions of Americans were expected to take to the highways for the three-day weekend, the unofficial beginning of the summer vacation season.

Between 400 and 500 people may die in traffic accidents over the Memorial Day weekend, the National Safety Council estimated. By Saturday afternoon, 70 people had died in accidents on the nation's highways, according to the council. The death toll for last year's Memorial Day weekend was 411.

State police in Texas, Tennessee, Utah, New York and Massachusetts said they had increased their patrols over the weekend to cut down on drunken driving and speeding.

The Tennessee Highway Patrol planned to log about 1,200 additional hours during the weekend, and the Utah Highway Patrol scheduled more than 200 overtime shifts.

Toll booth workers on the New York State Thruway handed out booklets telling the stories of five people who survived serious accidents because they wore seat belts.

Hundreds of thousands flocked to the Dallas Folk Festival, which began Thursday and ends Sunday. The downtown festival features crawfish racing, dozens of music and dance performances and a rodeo.

Pregnant girl ban protested by students

SAN PEDRO, Calif. (AP) — When Melissa Martinez finishes high school next month, she will leave with a record of straight A's, a college scholarship and memories of times when she was student body vice president and homecoming princess.

But there will be no cap and gown, no "Pomp and Circumstance." Melissa, 17, is six months' pregnant and officials at the Catholic school she attends, Mary Star of Sea in San Pedro, have barred her from the June 6 ceremony.

Some students refused to go to classes Friday when protests by supportive students failed to sway school officials to change their decision.

A crowd estimated at more than 200 gathered outside the school and chanted, "Lisa, Lisa."

"She has the support of the whole school," one student said.

The girl's father, Joseph Martinez, said his daughter is devastated by the school's decision. "She made a mistake and she's sorry, but she didn't want to get an abortion," Martinez said.

In a statement, high school Principal Carolyn Quijano said it was not the school's intention to punish Melissa, known to her classmates as Lisa.

"The school has tried to show forgiveness and support of Lisa in her decision to carry her baby, but forgiveness and empathy do not mean approval," Ms. Quijano said. "The school made every effort to ensure that her education was not impeded in any way, that she be able to receive scholarships and awards and that she would receive her diploma. This school has not been remiss in its responsibility to her."

Ms. Quijano added: "Lisa also has to be responsible for her decision and for the consequences of her decision, and the school must support the teachings of the church."

Workplace right-to-know rules start

WASHINGTON (AP) — Beginning this week, some 300,000 businesses across the nation can be fined by the government if they haven't told their estimated 13 million employees about hazardous materials where they work.

At an initial cost of more than $600 million, new regulations by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration taking effect Sunday provide a "right to know" to more than half the estimated 25 million workers who face potential exposure to hazardous chemicals in their jobs.

"This is the most significant action ever taken by OSHA," said Patrick Tyson, who resigned two weeks ago as acting head of the 15-year-old agency. "It requires that people who work with hazardous substances are aware of the dangers and are trained to effectively protect themselves."

Formally known as the hazard communications standard, the regulations were recommended more than a decade ago by a federal advisory committee to combat the annual 100,000 deaths and 340,000 disabling illnesses and injuries blamed on occupational diseases.

"In the past, if employees wanted to know what they were being exposed to on the job, there was no obligation by an employer to tell them," said Christopher Graybill, an OSHA spokesman. "That's the kind of situation this regulation is designed to address. It doesn't ban any substance or order reduced exposures; it's strictly an information standard."

Robert Moran, former chairman of the Occupational Safety and Health Review Commission and now a private attorney specializing in workplace safety and health issues, predicts the impact will be much greater.

Employers, he said, can expect a flood of lawsuits, such as when a chemical that was not judged as hazardous "is later thought to be the malefactor in some media story or genuine industrial accident."

"It's going to change the way everybody is doing business," Moran said. "Industry ultimately will be forced to find ways for making their products without using hazardous chemicals."

The regulations require a label on every container on the premises that includes any amount of some 2,300 hazardous substances. OSHA estimates there are 575,000 such chemical products in the workplace with more being introduced every day.

In addition, employers must have material safety data (MSD) sheets or technical bulletins for each product detailing its composition, health and safety hazards and precautions for safe handling and use. The sheets, usually two to four pages in length, must be readily accessible at all times.

And — in what has proven to be the most expensive part of the package — companies must conduct training programs for all potentially exposed workers.

OSHA estimates it is costing manufacturers about $43 per employee to provide that training and meet the other requirements. Just keeping up with new products and new workers is expected to add a cost of $160 million annually, or about $11 per employee.

As part of their routine inspections of manufacturing facilities, OSHA officials this week will start asking workers whether they have received that training.

The regulations went into effect six months ago for the chemical industry, which must supply customers with the safety data sheets, and its 1.4 million employees. From November through April, OSHA found 407 violations at 175 of the 762 chemical plants inspected, including one serious and one willful, warranting $1,000 and $10,000 fines respectively.

Now that the coverage is being expanded to all manufacturing and 10 times as many workers, officials expect the number of violations and fines to increase substantially.

Soviet dissident leaves an awed America behind

BOSTON (AP) — Yelena Bonner left the United States on Saturday, preparing to return to her husband, Andrei Sakharov, and their life in Soviet exile, leaving behind a family she may never see again and an America impressed by her strong spirit.

Mrs. Bonner, 64, who came to the West for medical treatment last December, left Boston's Logan International Airport at 7:30 p.m. after a final news conference. Three generations of family members, along with friends, waived goodbye as the plane taxied away.

"We feel very fearful it may be the last time we'll see or hear from her," said her daughter, Tatiana Yankelevich, who accompanied her mother on the first leg of her journey.

Mrs. Bonner said Sakharov wrote in a letter she received Saturday that he has washed the windows of their home and planted flowers in anticipation of her arrival.

"He can't wait for me to return," Mrs. Bonner said.

"I feel a great sadness parting with my mother, children and grandchildren," she said at a news conference at Logan International Airport. "I want to return to him, but it is extremely sad and extremely difficult for many reasons."

"I fear the isolation in which we have lived our last two years in Gorky. I fear life under constant supervision under the lenses of hidden cameras used everywhere," she said.

Mrs. Bonner arrived at the airport with her 86-year-old mother, two children, three grandchildren and at least 10 friends. She got a chuckle when she said she was bringing her husband back a radio-controlled Porsche model car.

"We have no such things in the Soviet Union, so he will be very excited to have it," she said.

Boston Mayor Raymond Flynn proclaimed May 28 as Yelena Bonner Day.

Mrs. Bonner will spend her final week in the West meeting European heads of state on behalf of her husband before returning to Gorky, the Soviet city where the couple lives in exile.

"It is hard to return to a life without freedom," she wrote in a letter to America for The Associated Press on the eve of her departure.

"It will be hard once again to accustom myself to a policeman at my door, to being openly followed on the street, to a life in which hidden cameras and microphones are trained on us."

The brash woman who chain-smoked and spoke in bursts of deep-voiced Russian when she arrived goes back to the Soviet Union free of her cigarette habit and assured of the devotion of scientists and congressmen she wooed.

"She is a hero," said Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., who has applied for a visa to accompany Mrs. Bonner to Moscow on June 2 with Rep. Dan Lungren, R-Calif. He expected to hear this week whether the visas had been granted.

"She is a great lady, I must say," said Sidney Dreil, deputy director of the Stanford Linear Accelerator Center in California. "When Yelena Bonner meets physicists — especially the newer generation of physicists — she sensitizes them as only another human being can sensitize."

Pickle packers pick honoree

ST. CHARLES, Ill. (AP) — The nation's pickle packers, grateful they aren't doing business in the "United States of Ferdinand," are honoring a former Italian pickle peddler-turned New World explorer: Amerigo Vespucci.

In conjunction with its celebration of Pickle Week, Pickle Packers International gave its all-time Pickle Popularity Award to Vespucci, whose name was chosen for this country.

The trade group's spokesman, William R. Moore, said Friday that few people know that before becoming a navigator and explorer, Vespucci was a merchant and pickle salesman.

Stunt plane crash kills 2

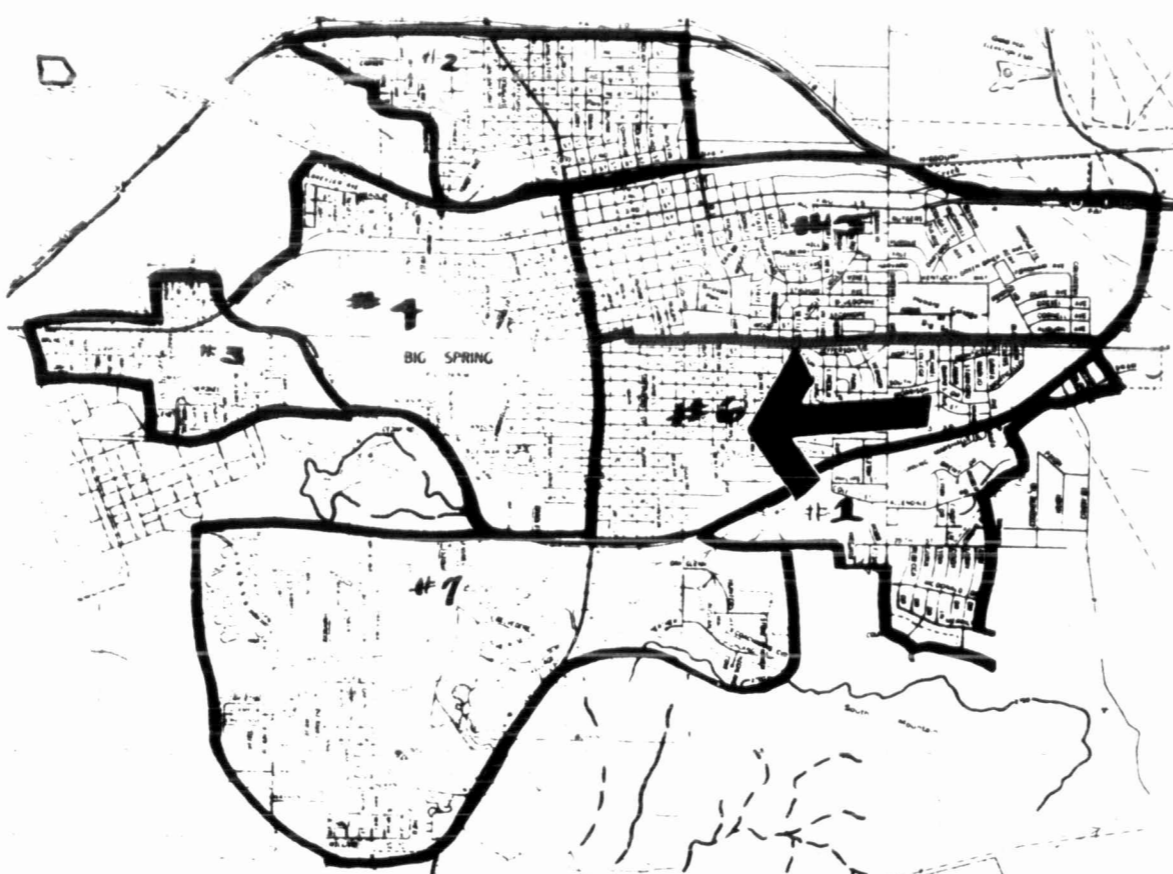

HOUSTON (AP) — A plane crash in the community of Santa Fe near Galveston killed two people on Saturday, according to a Texas Department of Public Safety spokeswoman.

The small stunt plane crashed just south of Highway 6 early Saturday afternoon, said Laura Woodriddle, spokeswoman for the Texas Department of Safety in Houston.

The dead were identified by the DPS as the 39-year-old pilot, James Ryan Simons of Houston; and a passenger, 33-year-old Stephen D. Thorn of Houston.

DPS spokesman Mike Cox said the Pitts stunt plane was performing maneuvers near Runge Park about 1 p.m. when it went into an inverted tailspin and crashed. Cox said DPS Trooper Allan Riddick investigated the mishap.

Details were sketchy as authorities continued to investigate the accident, she said. The Federal Aviation Administration was summoned to investigate, she added.

Deaf college opens doors to students who can hear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Declining enrollment has forced Gallaudet College, which has provided a liberal arts education to deaf students for more than a century, to open its doors to students with no hearing disability.

This fall, four students with no hearing problems will attend the college.

Since 1982, Gallaudet has steadily lost students as other colleges, complying with federal laws prohibiting discrimination against the handicapped, enrolled deaf students.

The decision to admit undergraduates with normal hearing was adopted by the university trustees last fall.

Gallaudet President Jerry C. Lee said Friday the number of undergraduates with normal hearing will be limited, at least for now.

City cleanup moves to Tuesday

The Spring Clean '86 campaign for pick-up of large items will continue Tuesday with Area 6.

The area is bounded on the north by 11th Place, south and east by Farm Road 700 and west by Gregg Street.

The cleanup usually takes place on Mondays, but was moved to Tuesday because of the Memorial Day holiday.

Crews will collect trash items such as tree branches, furniture pieces and appliances that are too large to place in dumpsters. Items to be discarded should be placed at the curb in front of residences and not in alleys.

The final pickup will be in Area 7 on June 2. That area includes Coronado Avenue, Highland Drive, Capehart and Douglas Street. It is bounded on the north by Farm Road 700, south and west by the city limits, and east by Highway 87.

Yellow Pages slip-up brings lawsuit

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — G.W. Thomas says his escort service is for trucks, not people, and he's suing the Yellow Pages for listing him with the wrong businesses.

Thomas and his wife, Anita, filed the lawsuit last week in district court against U.S. West Direct, the company that publishes the telephone Yellow Pages.

Thomas said his business, which he operates out of his residence and which provides highway escort service for over-sized vehicles, is listed in the Yellow Pages under the general heading of "Escort Services-Personal."

Big Spring man hurt in wreck

A Big Spring man suffered minor injuries in a two-car accident Friday evening at Warehouse Road and Simlar Street.

John L. Poulette, 44, of 408 Beli St., was treated and released from Malone-Hogan Hospital, a hospital spokesman said.

Poulette's 1977 Dodge station wagon was struck by a 1976 Pontiac Grand Prix driven by Robert Moreno Marquez, 17, of 4116 Dixon St., police reports said.

Poulette was eastbound on Warehouse Road and had stopped at a stop sign before continuing through the intersection, police reports said. Marquez was southbound on Simlar St. when the cars collided.

Marquez's car left a 147 1/2-foot skid mark before the collision point and a 42 1/2-foot mark after, the report said. Poulette's car spun into a gutter on the southeast corner of Simlar.

No citations were issued.

We do what's easier said than done.

Language may be the easiest, but it is not the only way to communicate. For instance, saying that we care is easy. Showing it takes true caring. The families who come to us have different backgrounds, customs, cultures, and religions. We show them we care by following their every instruction and preference when planning the funeral service.

Runnels

By AMBER STROUP

The Runnels band went to contest last Saturday in Snyder. The band brought back a sweepstakes trophy and 69 medals won by various soloists in the band. Congratulations to all band members for their fine performance.

The choir's spring pops concert will include the boys and girls performing the latest songs. Several solos will also be featured. (The latest rumor is that this will be the HOTTEST concert of the year!)

The applied music class will give their end-of-the-year concert this week. These students have been working all year under the direction of Mrs. Fishback. Parents are invited to attend the piano recital, which will be Tuesday in the choir room at 10:15 a.m.

The Runnels awards banquet was last Friday. Awards were given for academic, athletic and any other achievements made in the school year.

There are only four more days left in school. In closing, I have a final remark: Watch out, BSHS - HERE WE COME.

Commissioners to hear about downtown plans

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Howard County commissioners will be informed Tuesday morning of recent developments in the restoration of downtown Big Spring by the city's downtown development coordinator Teri Quinones.

The commissioner's court will meet at 9 a.m. Tuesday on the second floor of the county courthouse.

According to the agenda, commissioners will consider a contract drawn up by the downtown steering committee to hire downtown planner Robert J. Lima.

Commissioners in February voted to allocate $10,000 of county funds to the downtown steering committee, which used the funds to apply for a grant study conducted by the Texas Community Development Program.

their disapproval of the downtown steering committee's request for the funds.

Brown said he was upset that he had not been consulted when former city administrator Pat Hardy said a portion of the funds would be used to conduct a study of the North Highway 87 thoroughfare leading into downtown.

Kirby said his understanding of using county funds donated to the steering committee was that they be used for parks and historical markers.

Also scheduled for Monday's meeting is a purchase bid from Julian Rodriguez on Lots 7, 8, 9, and 10 of Block 16 in the Jones Valley Addition.

Dr. Jack Woodall and county sanitation supervisor James Luck will also continue their discussion with commissioners regarding the indigent health care bill, which goes into effect Sept. 1.

Commissioner O.L. Brown and County Judge Milton Kirby voiced

An estimated 200 seniors will graduate, said a spokeswoman in the high school office. Final figures will not be available until after final exams Monday and Tuesday.

Chemical fire prompts evacuation

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities on Saturday evacuated a heavily industrialized area in east Harris County following a sulfur dioxide leak and fire, according to a state Department of Public Safety spokeswoman.

No injuries or deaths were reported as of 5:45 p.m., said Bonnie Fisher of the Texas Department of Public Safety, reading from a public statement.

She said residents were not allowed to return to their homes and officials were still evacuating the area.

Details were still sketchy. Ms. Fisher said she did not know how many residents were evacuated or how many still needed to be moved.

The sulfur dioxide leak occurred at 16300 Peninsula Street in the Channelview area in east Harris County, she said.

She said her department issued its first report of the accident at 3 p.m.

Another DPS spokeswoman, Laura Woodridge, said the area was heavily industrialized with several chemical plants.

By The Associated Press
Mike Pagliarulo, whose two-out error allowed California to tie the score in the top of the ninth inning, wanted a chance to atone for his miscue.

He got that opportunity in the bottom of the ninth and came through with a two-out single, driving home the winning run Saturday and giving the New York Yankees a 7-6 victory over the Angels.

"I was glad to be able to get the hit because that error had tied the game up," said Pagliarulo, who made two of New York's six errors. "But I wasn't trying any harder than I was the other times up because if I do, I probably miss the ball entirely."

The victory was the fourth straight for the Yankees. California lost its fourth consecutive game.

In another American League game, Toronto beat Cleveland 9-6. Oakland played Detroit, Chicago was at Kansas City, Boston visited Texas, Milwaukee played Minnesota and Baltimore took on Seattle in night games.

In the National League, Montreal downed San Francisco 7-4 and Chicago defeated Houston 4-3. Cincinnati was at Pittsburgh, Atlanta took on St. Louis, Philadelphia played Los Angeles and New York visited San Diego in night games. The visiting Angels tied it in the top of the ninth with two runs against Dave Righetti, 4-1. Bobby Grich drew a two-out walk and scored on singles by George Hendrick, who had four hits, and Rick Burleson. Bob Boone then hit a grounder that Pagliarulo fumbled, allowing Hendrick to score.

But in the bottom of the ninth, Ken Griffey singled and was sacrificed to second. Griffey took third on a fly ball and scored when Pagliarulo grounded his single to right off Donnie Moore, 1-3.

Griffey hit a two-run, pinch-homer and Dave Winfield followed with a home run that rallied New York into a 6-4 lead in the seventh.

George Bell hit a three-run homer and Dennis Lamp and Mark Eichhorn combined for five innings of one-hit relief, leading Toronto past Cleveland.

Lloyd Moseby had a two-run double and a two-run single as Toronto ended the Indians' three-game winning streak. Bell's sixth homer of the season capped a four-run rally in the fifth inning that erased a 6-3 deficit.

Blue Jays starter Dave Stieb gave up six runs on six hits in four innings. But Lamp, 1-3, pitched 2

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Hot-hitting Hubie Brooks homered and drove in three runs, leading Montreal past San Francisco.

Andres Galarraga also hit a solo homer and Tim Wallach had two sacrifice flies as Montreal won its third straight game. The Expos have won 15 of their last 20 games.

Brooks, who went 2-for-5 and raised his average to .342, leads the National League with 38 runs batted in. He tied Los Angeles' Mike Marshall for the league lead with his 12th home run of the season.

Brooks' two-out homer in the third inning broke a 1-1 tie and put the Expos ahead to stay. He singled home a run in the seventh and added a run-scoring grounder in the ninth, giving him 31 RBIs in the last 22 games.

Cubs 4, Astros 3
Jerry Mumphy scored the tying run on Dave Smith's wild pitch and Leon Durham drove home the winning run with a groundout as Chicago rallied for two runs in the eighth inning to beat Houston.

It marked the first time this season the Astro bullpen had blown a save situation after 13 successes.

NBA finals on tap

BOSTON (AP) — Inside strength and outside shooting work for Boston. The Houston Rockets are about to discover if those same weapons will work against the Celtics.

The Rockets, a young copy of the Celtics' old masters, stunned the Los Angeles Lakers in the Western Conference finals and will try to shock Boston in the NBA championship series beginning Monday.

The Rockets' attack revolves around 7-foot Akeem Olajuwon and 7-4 Ralph Sampson. Boston likes to get the ball inside to 6-10 Kevin McHale and 7-foot Robert Parish.

If the inside game is shut down, they will pass the ball outside to some fine shooting guards — Danny Ainge and Dennis Johnson for Boston and Lewis Lloyd and Robert Reid for Houston.

guard. Perhaps most important of all, Boston has developed a style. When they play, you sense a higher force at work. You can feel their rhythms, understand their method. It was the same way with Laker teams before this season.

It is not yet that way with the Rockets. They win, but it's not so obvious why. I guess it's because they're bigger, stronger and younger. That won't be enough against Boston. Again, the Celtics in five or six.

Q.: We are going to be listing our home for sale as soon as possible and I want to make certain potential buyers realize the expensive chandelier in our dining room is not part of the real estate. What do I need to do?
A.: Assuming that the chandelier is installed, it is part of the real estate. However, it need not be part of the sale. Explain what you want to the broker you list your home with and the broker will specify in the listing contract that the chandelier will not be a part of the sale. If this isn't specified, the chandelier will generally be included in the real estate since it seems to satisfy the requirements, i.e., it is attached to the house, it is adapted to the use of the home and it is intended to be a part of the real estate.

ELECT AL VALDES
County Commissioner
Precinct 4

I have served 12 years on the Big Spring School Board. During that time I have seen times go from good to bad. I have seen our tax base erode drastically. I know from experience we must tighten our belts to get all the value from our taxes and keep them as low as possible. Your county commissioners court is a professional group with great responsibilities. I am a candidate for all the people, rural and urban, with an understanding of the needs of both groups. I have served as president and board member of the Cosden Credit Union, which has given me an even greater insight into sound financial management with a hand toward helping people I work with and serve. I am well qualified to manage your county tax dollars. I will be a full-time county commissioner with an open door and open mind.

THE ART OF ORIGAMI

Alisa Burns begins her creation of the crane used in traditional Origami art.

After she folds the paper in half, Alisa Burns continues to make folds that will soon depict a crane.

Deep in concentration, Alisa Burns is getting closer to the finished product while she makes smaller, detailed folds.

Ta-dah! The finished product! The crane was created by Alisa Burns in about three minutes.

There's a special kind of art called origami that allows total creativity. There's only one rule: You can't cut or use glue, says Alisa Burns, a sophomore majoring in Japanese and commercial art at Howard College.

Origami is the art of folding paper. The origin of this unique art form dates back thousands of years ago in Japan, Burns said. Origami has been a traditional finger craft for relaxation and is enjoyed by children and adults, she says.

Burns, 23, began practicing origami about two months ago. "I remember doing it in first grade, but I never thought much about it."

Recently, she and a friend saw the movie 'Bladerunner' and it had origami in it, she said. "My friend and I decided it would be fun to learn." Coincidentally, Burns ran into origami again when she visited Epcot Center in Florida. Epcot, located near Disneyworld, is a section where different countries set up pavilions to display native crafts and serve foods associated with their country, said Burns.

She bought some origami books there and started teaching herself how to do it, she said. Once "you get accustomed to origami," the actual process of folding the paper, "you can make your own creations," Burns says.

Traditionally origami was limited to making the crane and the crane in a basket, Burns says. "Modern origami is more creative and abstract. It includes more animal forms."

The type of paper used for the art is "special origami paper," Burns says, "which is square and thinner than regular paper." Colored and shaded origami paper is also on the market now, she said.

Burns has made many types of animals: camels, elephants, frogs, horn beetles, dogs, chickens, penguins, monkeys, gorillas, and crabs. She has even branched out her creativity and made flowers and masks. "There's also a special technique of how to wrap presents with the use of origami," Burns said. The average size of origami art is three to five inches, Burns says. "With practice, you can make one in five minutes depending upon the number of folds and how complicated the animal is."

Burns hopes some day to raise enough money to move to Japan where she would like to work as a commercial artist.

Group of friends celebrate years of friendship

By SARALYN FENNELL
Denton Record-Chronicle

DENTON, Texas (AP) — They can tell you about the time they dyed their hair red, made a pot of coffee without the coffee and thought the day of the test tube babies would never happen.

And in between passing photos around of earlier days and the 'Do you remember when?' Luetta Giles Foster, Marjorie Paschall Drennan, Mary Joyce Taliaferro, Alma Jo Mathews Barnett, Eloise Taliaferro Mordecai and Helen January Christensen can tell you also a good deal about friendship.

It is one subject that they have managed to do well in from junior high and Denton High School days to their college graduation from Texas Women's University.

For the first time in 50 years, all six of the Denton area women were able to get together recently for a short reunion of long ago memories.

"It started with a slumber party at my house," Mrs. Mordecai said explaining the beginning of the relationship. "We were always together after that and we've been friends ever since."

"We were just a group of girls having a good time," Mrs. Drennan said. "We would go to the movies on Tuesdays and get in for a dime. On Saturdays, we would sometimes pack a lunch and have a picnic. We'd go to Turner Falls and Galveston. Of course our parents would go with us. We all had a lot of fun."

"Eloise was our pianist. She'd play and we'd sing popular songs. She was our poet. She made up poems for our birthdays. My mother told me that we were selfish because the six of us were always together but we enjoyed each other," she said looking around the room at her friends who were nodding in agreement.

Each week there were meetings held to talk about "fun things" and "school girl" interests.

"We met every week and kept minutes. We had a secret name, G.Y.M., but I can't tell you what that meant," Mrs. Barnett said.

It became obvious that loyalty was an element in this friendship. No one else would divulge the secret behind the secret name either. "We were a support group for each other," Mrs. Mordecai said. "We were always frank with each other," Miss Taliaferro added. "That's why we all got along so well."

Jealousy, sometimes a common emotion between girls, was never a problem, according to this group.

"We didn't have anything to be jealous of," Mrs. Barnett said. "This was during the end of the Depression. We were all doing good to have what we had."

"We weren't jealous of each other. If anything, we learned tolerance of other people," Mrs. Foster said.

"We grew up in a time of innocence, a time when a little girl could walk down the street to a movie. You couldn't do that now," Mrs. Christensen said. "The only people I was scared of were Bonnie and Clyde."

"We used to walk to each other's home," Mrs. Mordecai added. "No one would bother you."

But times have changed a lot since then and the women believe their relationships might have been affected if indeed they had grown up in the 1980s.

"There are more pressures on kids now. Our lifestyles were different. We didn't feel as pressured because we had each other," Mrs. Barnett said.

Mrs. Christensen, a Ponder native who is now a resident of Vista, Calif., felt that small town living made a difference.

"Our parents were strong. They were like a support system and they weren't afraid to say no to us. We had good morals," Mrs. Christensen said. "We couldn't drink or smoke and you had to be in bed by 8. We didn't date as early as kids do now. I think our parents were so happy that we were together because we didn't give them any trouble. Our parents kept us on the right side of the tracks."

"I have thought, until the point of walking across that high school stage, I never knew what a problem was. I lived a protective life," she continued. "I never faced a problem."

Another change they noted in these modern times was college life at TWU.

"They're men going there now and the students have a four-day week," Mrs. Christensen said.

"We went to class six days a week," Mrs. Drennan pointed out. "And we had to wear uniforms. I've noticed that there are no students around on the weekend. Everyone goes out of town."

"When we were going to school, we lived at home since we were local students," she said.

"I think our subjects were harder too. I guess they did that to keep our minds off of boys. They were fun to look at," Mrs. Christensen said.

But looking at the boys didn't distract these students from their educational goals.

Retired from careers in business, home economics and English, the women probably would have found it difficult to maintain an old maid's home, their one-time childhood quest.

"I'm the oldest of the group,"

Mrs. Barnett said. "I finished (college) in 1936. It wasn't called TWU then. It was CIA (College Of Industrial Arts). I think they changed the name to TSCW (Texas State College for Women) that following September."

Marriage and children followed for five of the six women. Among them there are 13 children and 21 grandchildren.

"There haven't been too many groups like this," Mrs. Christensen said. "There's not one bitterness I can remember."

"We never got mad at each other and even if we had, we would have had the other one to turn to," Mrs. Barnett added.

"We never had a major disagreement," Mrs. Christensen said. "I'm real sentimental about our group."

"I think the main thing here is that there are six of us, all on our feet and still intact and our husbands are even tolerant of us," Mrs. Drennan said.

"We have fairly good minds," Mrs. Foster added.

"And we've been in reasonably good health," Mrs. Christensen said, who has written a book about how the times were when she and her friends were growing up.

"I called it (the book) 'A Glimpse of Innocence.' I tried to keep the flavor of the times," she explained. "It was a wonderful era."

And while the time was drawing near for the ending of this reunion, there was still some reminiscing to be done.

A photo book lying open on the table was evidence of the good times they had spoken about.

With their childhood memories expressed and their secrets undisturbed, the women made a promise to see each other again soon as they had probably done that night of the first slumber party.

"Let's get together again," Mrs. Christensen said. "I'm going to come back more often."

The feeling was unanimous.

How to choose a long distance service

By NAOMI HUNT

County Extension Agent
When the Bell system split up in January of 1984, there were some changes made that affect your long distance services.

South Western Bell now services parts of a 5-state area, including Texas. These states are divided into smaller areas called services areas.

South Western Bell handles your long distance within your service area when you dial 1+ this is why if your long distance service is AT&T you have some long distance calls on the SWB portion of your bill and some on the AT&T part of your bill.

Other long distance services besides AT&T are listed in the yellow pages.

There are different reasons that a consumer would choose another long distance phone service.

The main reason in the past has been cost. Before the breakup of the Bell system there was substantial savings in using other services. Eventually the rates of the other companies will be comparable to AT&T, because these companies will be connected with each local operating networks the same way that AT&T is now. As a result of this, the companies costs will go up and therefore their rates will be increased. However, the competition will continue to create pressure to keep rates low.

In this area alternative companies are still offering substantial savings over AT&T rates. The reason for this is "Equal Access" which has not yet been implemented in this area.

Equal Access, as ordered by the court, will allow you to have one primary long-distance carrier and as many secondary carriers as you choose. With Equal Access sometimes referred to as Easy Access, you will be able to use the long distance company of your choice while still only dialing "1+." Any secondary carriers will require use of a five digit access code. Why would you want to have more than one long distance services? It would depend on your needs. For ex. — if your primary carrier offers the best rates for calls made within the States but not for calls made abroad, you can enlist a secondary carrier to handle your overseas service.

Focus on the family

Also, with Equal Access it will no longer be necessary for you to have a touch tone phone as opposed to pulse or rotary to be able to use any long distance company.

At the present time you must have a touch-tone phone or in some cases the long distance company will add an attachment to your phone that will reduce the tones necessary.

You should watch your mail to know when Equal Access and other services will be available in this area. You will receive a "ballot" from your local phone company listing the companies servicing this area and you will be able to choose your primary carrier. You should notify the company that you choose. Then if you want service from a secondary carrier you must also contact them directly.

When you get your "ballot", if you do not choose a service you will randomly be assigned a long-distance service. If you then decide to change your primary carrier the local company will charge $5.00 to make the change.

Here are some questions you might consider when choosing a long distance service:

+Is the service available during the hours I will need it?

+Does the services allow me to call anywhere I want or only a specified area?

+Is there a sign up fee or a monthly usage fee?

+I am required to use the service a minimum amount each month or I will be charged?

+Does the services offer long distance directory assistance.

+Can I make calls from anywhere I choose? Is there an additional charge for making calls from home?

+Does the company charge by minute or portions of a minute?

+Is there a discount for in-volume calling?

+How does the service rate on quality?

Here are some tips to help you save money on long distance calls no matter what service you choose:

+Call during hours that rates are lowest

+Make operator-assisted calls only when necessary

+Use toll-free numbers
