High water whisks boy from mom

By HANK MURPHY and JOHN RICE
Staff Writers

A 1-year-old baby boy, swept from his mother's arms by a wall of water after the family was forced to abandon their vehicle, was the only casualty of Saturday night's violent storm.

"It's kind of a miracle we didn't have more deaths," Sheriff A.N. Standard said. The storm ripped through the county packing winds as strong as 56 mph, hail as large as baseballs and rains of up to 4 1/2 inches.

Another inch of rain fell early Monday as another line of thunderstorms moved through the area.

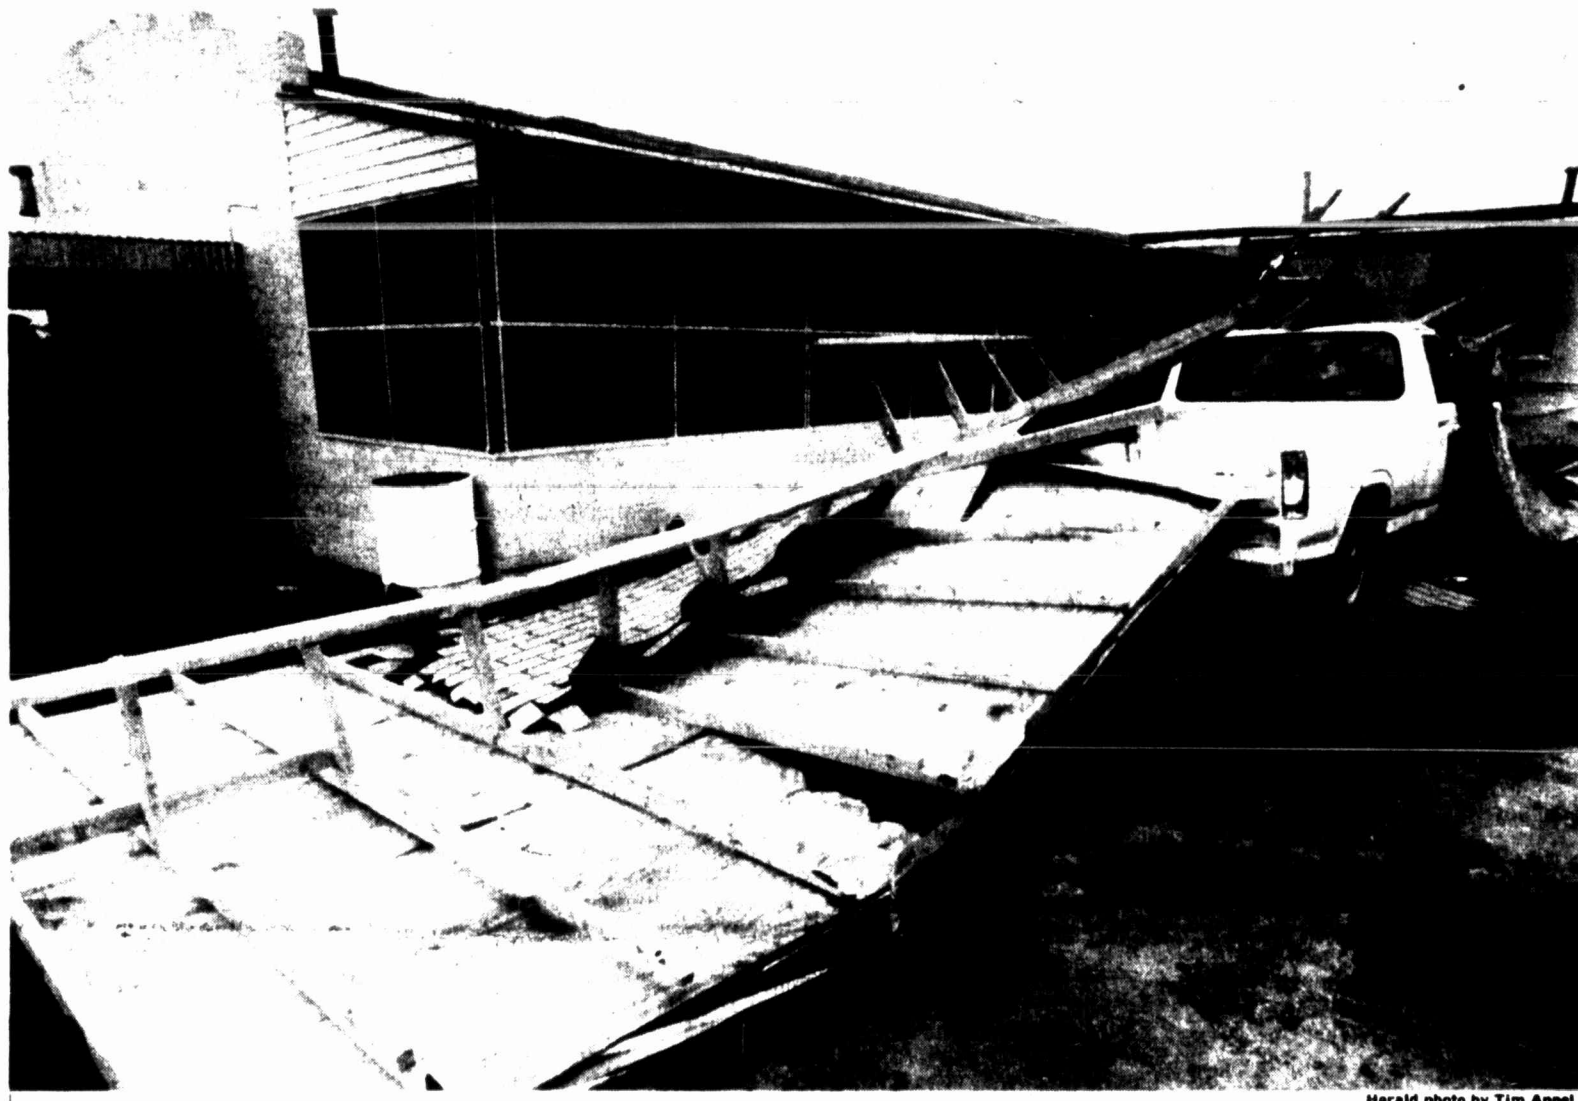

Joshua Cole Phillips of Salem Community was carried away by a torrent of water after his parents left their stalled pickup that had been washed off the road 1 1/2 miles west of Salem Road on Old Airport Road, according to a sheriff's department report.

"We could see a vehicle in the water," said Mary Sue Walker who along with her husband, Jerrold, tried to help out. "There was a couple clinging to a fence," she said. She said her husband went to get a tractor to try to help rescue the people but the Phillips crawled through the water to safety. "They were exhausted," she said. "We didn't realize that they had lost a baby" until moments later, Walker said.

The Walker's home was without electrical power, she said, when she phoned the police department. The police relayed the message to the sheriff's department and soon a search party of 150 people assembled including volunteers, sheriff's deputies, Big Spring police officers, the DPS and local volunteer fire departments, she said.

The child was reported lost at 10:10 p.m. and the search operation began at 10:15, lasting until 3 a.m. Sunday, Standard said. Another search was started at 7 a.m. and

Stanton damage put at $2 million

Staff and wire reports
STANTON — The weekend's devastating storms wreaked more than $2 million in damages as it destroyed six mobile homes, two metal barns and ripped through the high school football stadium, officials said.

A Memorial Day service scheduled at the cemetery today was moved to the museum in town because the cemetery road is under water, County Judge Bob Deavenport said today.

"This was a regular old paint peeler," Deavenport said of the storm. He said the visitors' bleachers at the stadium was "pulled up, concrete peers and all" and dumped onto the football field. The fieldhouse roof was damaged as were sheds and pens at the vocational agriculture department.

Despite the heavy weather, there were no reported injuries, Deavenport said.

Highway 137 south of the city is closed today and will be for two or three days, he said. "There are windows broken all over town."

Deavenport said the damage estimate does not include downed power lines owned by Texas Electric Service Company and Caprock Electric.

He said officials were worried that a drainage lake south of the railroad tracks in town might back up into homes. "It's brim full," he said.

A two-day rain total of "at least 5 inches" is reported, Deavenport said.

About 150 travelers and evacuees huddled in the Martin County Courthouse during the storm that ripped through Stanton, Big Spring and northern Howard County.

About 60 percent of the homes were damaged by golfball-sized hail and as much as 5 inches of rain fell here Saturday night, Martin County Sheriff Dan Saunders said.

He said insurance adjusters' initial damage estimates topped $2 million.

In Midland, fire department officials said as many as eight trailer houses were overturned along East Highway 80 between county roads 1130 and 1140.

High winds apparently were responsible for damage done to Man held in brutal murder

Police have arrested a man in connection with Friday's brutal murder of 81-year-old Eva Erline Bohannon, police Lt. Jerry Edwards said this morning.

Two young men are suspected in the murder of the woman, police said earlier.

Police are withholding information about the suspect arrested Sunday, pending further investigation.

Police have recovered Bohannon's red Ford Maverick, which was stolen after the murder.

Justice of the Peace Willie Grant set the time of the homicide at about 3 a.m. Friday morning. Bohannon's body was found about 4:30 p.m. Friday in a bedroom. Her home at 1106 Howell St., near Big Spring High School, had been ransacked.

Bohannon, whose body was found bound and gagged, had been sexually assaulted, police said. Edwards said the murder was one of the most gruesome he has ever investigated. Police said it appeared Bohannon had been strangled with a piece of cloth.

Stranded travelers and city residents crowd into the basement of the Howard County Courthouse Saturday night seeking refuge from a violent storm that moved through the area. Officials said between 400 and 500 people used the courthouse as a shelter.

The baby's body was found about 8:30 a.m. Sunday by Sammy Don Buchanan who was on horse back. Justice of the Peace China Long was called to the scene and pronounced the baby dead. Funeral services are scheduled for Tuesday. He was one-year-old on Thursday.

The worst of the first wave of violent weather hit to the north of Big Spring about 7 p.m., dropping hail that shattered car windshields on Highway 87 about 15 miles north.

A second line of severe weather hit the city about 8:30 p.m. Bill Fryrear, research leader at the U.S. Agricultural Research Service, said instruments clocked peak wind at 56 mph at 8:35 p.m. Saturday's rainfall totaled 3.91 inches.

At the time the winds peaked, Fryrear said direction gyrated wildly from the east and then switched to the north, west and south and then again from the north.

At about 9 p.m., "the barometer took a big dip" and then an abrupt rise indicating passage of a storm. He said the barometric pressure took a rapid drop again at about midnight.

A roof at the Salvation Army building, 308 Aylford, was ripped off and dropped onto a parked pickup truck, Capt. Carroll Braun of the Salvation Army said.

About 75 people had already been moved to the Army's chapel at 600 W. Fourth St., Braun said. However, high water seeped into the chapel building ruining carpeting and stored items.

Braun set damage at more than $10,000.

Nearly an inch of rain Monday about 1:30 a.m. brought the two-day official total to 4.86 inches. That brings the year-to-date total to 5.25 inches, Fryrear said. Normal for this time of year is 6.21 inches.

Saturday's rain was the first significant precipitation since October 17, 1985.

Other area rainfall totals were 2.8 inches at Lake J.B. Thomas Dam, said Joe Pickle of the Colorado River Municipal Water District. Lake Thomas has not gotten any runoff from the storms, but Lake Spence was "picking up some," Pickle said.

Beal's Creek was 10 feet above normal at bank full Sunday morning, Pickle said.

A water district rain gauge at the intersection of Snyder and Gail highways measured 4.3 inches of rain Saturday. A U.S. research station gauge on Highway 87 1 1/2 miles north of Interstate 20 measured about 4 1/2 inches Saturday night.

Fryrear said cotton which had been planted probably was washed out by the storms, but much of the county's cotton had not been planted because of dry conditions. "As soon as it dries, we'll see a lot of planters," he said. "Farmers are anxious."

mobile homes at Wallace Trailer Park, according to Midland County sheriff's department reports.

Another mobile home was overturned at Ranger Station near Greenwood, and the roof was blown off an airplane hangar near county road 60 east of Midland, a sheriff's department spokeswoman said. No injuries were reported.

Reports that four vehicles were discovered overturned as the result of high winds along Interstate 20 turned out to be false, a Department of Public Safety spokeswoman said.

Murder

On Saturday, police went door-to-door searching for clues.

The killers are believed to have entered through the back of the house. Bohannon lived alone.

Bohannon was a native of Alabama and former longtime resident of Colorado City. She had been a resident of Big Spring for 35 years. She was retired.

Reactor shuts down

WINTERSBURG, Ariz. (AP) — The second reactor at the Palo Verde Nuclear Generating Station near here was brought on-line early this morning after shutting itself off Sunday during a mishap that operators classified as an "unusual event," a plant spokesman said.

The reactor shut itself off when workers put too much steam into the second reactor's turbine as they prepared to perform a test, causing the reactor to automatically shut itself down, Arizona Nuclear Power Project spokesman Don Andrews said.

An "unusual event" was declared at 3:22 a.m. Sunday and terminated 48 minutes later, he said. Under U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission rules, an "unusual event" is the lowest of three emergency classifications. "At no time was the health and safety of either plant workers or the general public endangered," Andrews said. He said the unusual event was declared because "the plant's safety systems were activated."

Andrews said operators hoped to again try to perform their experiment today when the reactor reached 10 percent of capacity, and if the test was successful, they planned to bring the second reactor up to 30 percent of capacity and begin producing electricity with it.

ANPP operates Palo Verde for the seven Arizona, California, New Mexico and Texas utilities that own the plant located approximately 50 miles west of Phoenix.

Prison hostages released

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Two inmates at the Oklahoma State Penitentiary released two hostages today after authorities conducted 10 hours of face-to-face negotiations and agreed to consider their demands for a transfer.

Linda Morgan, administrative officer at the maximum-security prison, said inmates David Hammer and David Doyle, both 28, surrendered about 7:45 a.m. and released officer Aaron Duncan and prisoner Carl Wilson.

Ms. Morgan said there were no injuries, but the four were taken to the prison clinic for routine examinations.

"The institution is back to normal operation," she said.

The inmates of the prison, in east-central Oklahoma about 120 miles southeast of Oklahoma City, had demanded that their records be reviewed and that they be removed to a minimum- or lower-security state prison or to a federal institution, Ms. Morgan said.

"We agreed to review their records and will do so," she said. "They will be kept at Oklahoma State Penitentiary while that is done."

Ms. Morgan said Duncan was seized about 9:10 p.m. Sunday in the F cellhouse of the prison.

"We do not believe Wilson was involved in the hostage-taking," said prison spokesman Bob Jameson. "We believe that he was just caught up in events."

Jameson said the only weapon officers saw was a "flat piece of metal about 18 to 24 inches long."

F cellhouse is a five-story building where prisoners are kept if they've asked for protection from other inmates, Jameson said. He said he did not know why Hammer and Doyle were in that cellhouse.

Newborn found in trash bin

HOUSTON (AP) — A newborn girl abandoned in a trash bin was discovered early this morning after a teen-ager heard the child crying, police say.

The baby girl was found in north Houston about 2:30 a.m., said police Sgt. Mike Thomas. A 15-year-old girl who heard the child crying had asked two of her friends for help in finding the child, he said.

"They actually lifted a 19-inch portable TV off the child," Thomas said.

Thomas said the newborn appears to be Hispanic and was between four and six hours old.

A woman was heard screaming early today in the same area where the baby was found, and investigators believe it may have been the child's mother giving birth, Thomas said.

The baby was taken to Jefferson Davis hospital, where she was in good condition this morning, he said. The child will be placed in the custody of the Harris County Children's Protective Services, while police try to locate the mother.

Weather

Forecast

By The Associated Press
WEST TEXAS: Chance for thunderstorms. Highs in the 70s over much of West Texas east of the mountains, to near 90 in the far west. Lows tonight in the 50s and 60s.

State

A flash flood watch was in effect for the Texas hill country and much of South Central Texas today as torrential rains fell on already soggy ground.

A stationary front was over South Texas and extended northeast from near Laredo to Southeast Texas. Scattered showers and a few thunderstorms were over the Edwards Plateau and hill country early this morning.

Areas of light rain was observed over the western portion of North Central Texas, the western Panhandle, and over the Texas-Louisiana border.

Winds were northerly at 5 to 10 mph over North Texas and the northern portion of South Texas. East to northeast winds at 10 to 15 mph were reported over the South Plains, Edwards Plateau and the north portion of the Trans-Pecos. Light and variable winds were common elsewhere.

Nation

Rain dampened sections of the Midwest and South today and prompted a flash flood watch in Texas while fair weather prevailed in the Northeast and West.

Showers and thundershowers fell on the region from eastern Iowa and Missouri across southern Illinois and western Kentucky.

Rain was moving toward Indianapolis, where rain delayed the Indianapolis 500 on Sunday until today.

Diplomate after 44 years

EUGENE, Ore. — Michi Yasui Ando will finally get her diploma from the University of Oregon next month, 44 years after she fled Eugene in the middle of the night to avoid being sent to a World War II internment camp.

Mrs. Ando, now 65, fled the campus for Colorado in 1942 only days after military officials denied her request to attend graduation.

She says she can still vividly recall the fear and loneliness of her final days here before she escaped the military roundup for relocation of West Coast Japanese-Americans that took away her mother, father and three of her five brothers and sisters.

Hurricanes shed punch

WASHINGTON — If this year's hurricane names — beginning with Andrew, Bonnie and Charley — seem to lack the punch of such old-time designations as the Lighthouse Storm, September Gale or Racer's Storm, blame Clement Wragge.

This year's names, starting with Andrew for hurricanes on the East Coast and Agatha for storms in the Pacific Ocean, were announced Sunday by the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

It was Wragge, an Australian meteorologist nicknamed "Inclement," who started using people's names for big storms early this century.

Gas blast hits building

HOUSTON — Natural gas erupted like a "volcano" in a two-story downtown building, decimating the structure as it showered bricks and debris as far as a block away, officials say.

No injuries were immediately reported, but rescue workers were checking reports that two or three people were seen next to the building before the explosion and may have been buried under the rubble, police said.

Firefighters, called to check a report of smoke Sunday evening, arrived to see a three-foot hole blown out of one side of the building and heard the hissing noise of natural gas.

Minutes later, there was pandemonium. It took firefighters more than four hours to bring the gas-fed blaze under control, officer Tom Johnson said.

The explosion and resulting fire demolished the brick and stone building that housed two restaurants, an optometrist's office and a pharmacy.

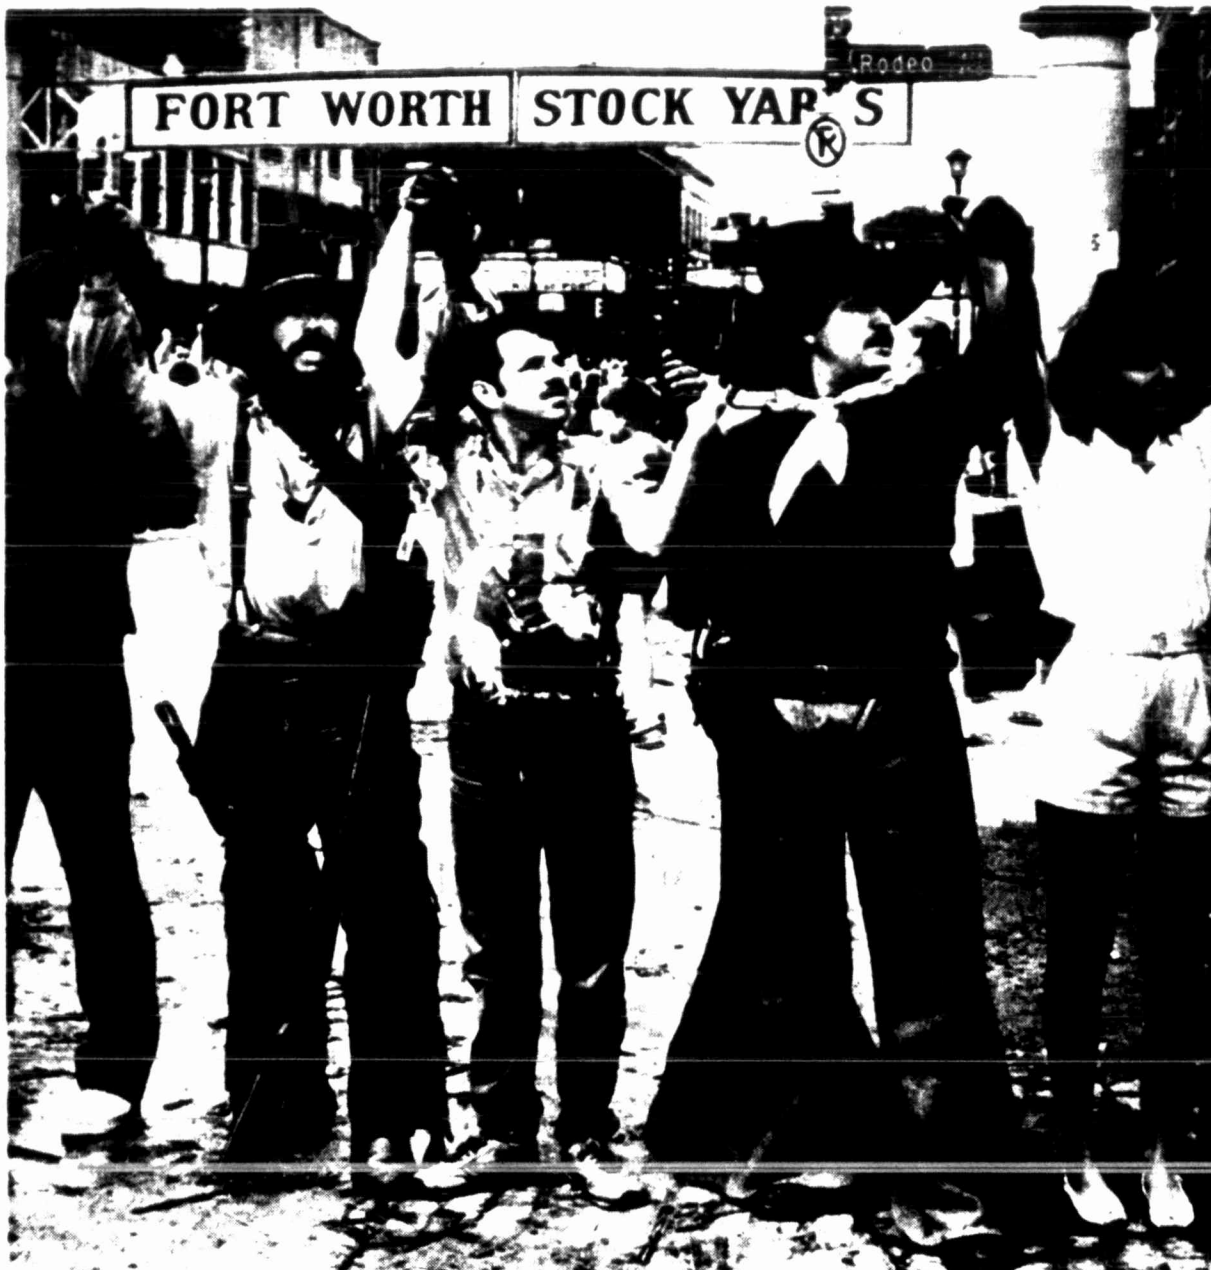

Weekend toll reaches 15

A fiery collision in the Houston suburb of Deer Park left four people dead, and a San Antonio accident killed two, raising to at least 15 Texas Memorial Day weekend death toll, officials say.

The death count, which began at 6 p.m. Friday, continues through midnight tonight.

Police in the Houston suburb of Deer Park have not released the names of the four victims killed early Sunday when their car burst into flames after being hit from behind at a stoplight.

The dead are said to include the driver, 30, and the front seat passenger, 27. A woman in her late 20s and a girl about 4 or 5 were killed in the back seat, police said.

Two cowboys join in the Hands Across America line Sunday outside the Fort Worth Stock Yards.

Charity chain

Texans join hands to fight hunger in U.S.

DALLAS (AP) — A 20-foot beaver, celebrities, and possibly more than 600,000 Texans showed up to hold hands, sing and sway in the biggest link of a coast-to-coast charity chain.

Organizers said most major cities along Texas' 621 miles of the nationwide 4,100-mile "Hands Across America" chain had more than one line running through their downtown areas on Sunday.

Ham radio operators monitoring the chain estimated about 620,000 people filled the line that started in Texarkana, moved west through Dallas and Fort Worth, headed northwest to Wichita Falls, then veered west to Amarillo and on to the Texas-New Mexico border.

Red, white and blue balloons soared into a sunny Lone Star sky in Dallas as hand-holders held their hands aloft at the 2 p.m. cue and sang the project's anthem — "Hands Across America," which was written for the event.

At Fair Park in Dallas, one participant brought along a 20-foot inflatable beaver emblazoned with the message, "Give A Dam."

A delegation of about 50 Waco residents chartered a bus, sponsored by the United Way, to hold hands along portions of two blocks in west Dallas. A troop of Brownie Girl Scouts were among the group who traveled more than 100 miles to join in the Hands Across America chain.

"We now can say we held the country together," joked Waco Boys Club program director Don Rhodes.

"It turned out better than I expected," said Dottie Wiernecke of Waco, who held hands with people from Laredo and Hillsboro. "I noticed when cars would go by, the people inside would clap and wave."

In the Dallas-Fort Worth area, rain had at first threatened the event that came less than 24 hours after the area was pounded by heavy storms. But the sun popped out shortly before 2 p.m. CDT, when the nationwide order was given to join hands.

There were reports of gaps outside the city as the line snaked through rural areas towards Fort Worth, Wichita Falls and Amarillo.

The vast prairie land west and east of Amarillo provided too much space to be bridged by Panhandle residents and visitors assigned to help in the sparsely populated region.

The Hands chain west of Amarillo transformed into miles and miles of bright red rope east of Bushland. At that point more people joined in.

Liberal wins in Colombia

BOGOTA, Colombia — Liberal Party candidate Virgilio Barco swept to victory in the presidential election, then issued an appeal to all Colombians to join with him to wipe out social ills and build a more just society.

Barco, 65, told enthusiastic supporters celebrating his victory on Sunday night that unity was necessary to enable his government to "put an end to absolute poverty, create employment, give security and improve the living conditions of all Colombians."

"To me, there are only Colombians, whatever may have been the political options they chose," the president-elect declared before a crowd of several thousand people gathered at the Bogota Hilton Hotel.

Communists kept out

MANILA, Philippines — President Corason Aquino offered five of the 50 seats on a commission that will write a new constitution to backers of Ferdinand E. Marcos, but kept prominent communists and leftists off the panel.

Mrs. Aquino, speaking Sunday at a huge rally celebrating her first three months in office, said she decided to allot the seats to members of Marcos' New Society Movement "in the spirit of reconciliation."

Marcos loyalists will have to decide among themselves who will join the commission. Marcos is living in exile in Hawaii.

Radiation still high

MOSCOW — Radiation levels around the stricken nuclear reactor at Chernobyl are still high, but two other reactors at the power plant will be operating again by the end of this year, the newspaper Pravda reported today.

The Communist Party newspaper said decontamination work in the evacuated 18-mile zone surrounding the damaged power station 80 miles north of Kiev is "entering an even course."

Radio Moscow declared "the situation is completely stabilized" at Chernobyl, and also noted that U.S. bone marrow specialist Dr. Robert P. Gale had returned to the Soviet Union on Sunday to continue treating victims of the April 26 accident.

Beirut bomb kills 2

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A bomb exploded in an east Beirut apartment building early today, killing a woman and her 6-year-old son. Six other people were reported injured.

It was the third bomb to explode in the Christian sector of the Lebanese capital in four days.

Officials identified the dead as 37-year-old Lila Allam and her 6-year-old son Khalil. Another son, Riyadh, 10, was among the wounded.

Police said the Allam boys were home at the time of the blast because of a strike being observed by schools throughout the Christian heartland to protest the slaying of a Maronite Catholic missionary in southern Lebanon.

The assassinated priest, Butros Abi Aki, 62, was head of the Kadmos missionary schools in the southern port of Tyre. He was shot dead by three masked gunmen in a predominantly Shiite Moslem area on the city's outskirts Saturday.

Tight security prevails for Assad's Greek visit

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Syrian President Hafez Assad, on his first trip to the West in nearly eight years, arrived today for an official visit that was seen as an effort to counter allegations his country sponsors terrorism.

The 55-year-old Syrian leader was welcomed at the airport by a government delegation including Greek President Christos Sartzetakis and Premier Andreas Papandreu.

Heavily armed troops with armored cars stood guard around the tarmac as Assad arrived. Greek newspapers said a force of 1,500 police were mustered to provide security for the visit and that extra guards had been posted around several foreign embassies, including those of Israel and some Arab countries.

Western diplomats, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they believed Assad would use the visit to counter allegations that Syria supports terrorism and to explain his country's position amid tension with Israel.

Hollywood has its serious side

It's encouraging to know everything coming out of Hollywood isn't all tinsel and glitter, with politically-conscious superstars and starlets periodically returning hom from overseas film junkets to spout the latest anti-American diatribe about U.S. involvement in Vietnam, Central America or wherever else.

As actor John Gavin, was winding up his tour of duty as U.S. Ambassador to Mexico, a footnote in the news pointed out his wife, Constance Towers, would continue her involvement with a special project for Mexican kids.

Apart from Connie Towers, Gavin's starring role on daytime TV's "Capitol," both she and her husband have been pretty much out of the media spotlight in recent months. Out of sight, perhaps, but not out of things to do. Following last September's devastating earthquake in Mexico City, Mrs. Gavin set up the Operation Connie project to aid the many children crippled by the quake. She has already brought several orphaned children to Los Angeles for eye operations and plastic surgery paid for by money she raised from private donors herself.

More power to her. Now's no time to abandon the kids, and to show them America's heart is sometimes big enough to reach far beyond its borders.

Congress can't distinguish our friends from our foes

When it proposed to sell $354 million worth of missiles to Saudi Arabia, the Reagan administration hoped to provide a sign of its support for an ally. But the House and Senate have voted to forbid the sale, by margins so lopsided that they may be able to override the threatened presidential veto. This provides a different message: that Congress has trouble distinguishing between friends and enemies.

Saudi Arabia is a nation of considerable size, few people and immense oil deposits — roughly a quarter of the world's known reserves. In addition to the persistent internal threat presented by the rise of militant Islamic fundamentalism, it is plagued by powerful and covetous neighbors.

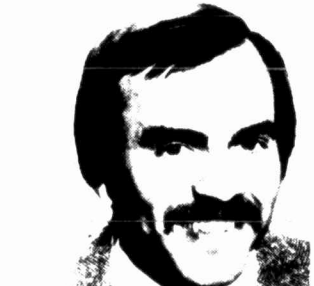

One is the Soviet Union. Another is Iran, whose success in its war with Iraq creates the danger of a direct challenge to moderate states in the Persian Gulf — and which lately has punished Riyadh's increased oil output with attacks on Saudi tankers.

The perils of the house of Saud are not irrelevant to the rest of the world. Whoever controls Arabia's oil commands considerable leverage over the industrialized democracies. That's why the United States, under presidents both Democratic and Republican, has consistently made a priority of keeping those fields out of the hands of its enemies.

The question of whether American interests would warrant direct military intervention to preserve access to Saudi oil makes for an interesting debate. Fortunately, the existence of a pro-American government in Riyadh makes it academic. The Saudis are happy to take considerable responsibility for defending themselves, asking only that the U.S. sell them the weapons needed to do so.

That alone ought to be enough to justify this sale, which is merely a resupply of weapons the Saudis already have. It is insignificant enough that neither Israeli nor pro-Israel lobbies in the U.S. have actively opposed the deal.) So should the fact that the Saudis, if necessary, can buy equivalent anti-aircraft and anti-ship missiles elsewhere, to the benefit of some economy besides our own. But bolstering the Riyadh regime serves another strategic interest: the security of Israel. The Saudis are no friend of the Jewish state, but neither do they pose any real threat to it.

The opponents of the sale insist otherwise, noting Saudi Arabia's aid to Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization. But this is more in the nature of protection money than enthusiastic support. The Saudis have also provided ample financial aid to Jordan's King Hussein, besides supporting his effort to open peace negotiations with Jerusalem.

But no one should expect daring initiatives of Saudi Arabia, whose combination of wealth and vulnerability is hazardous enough. As Henry Kissinger has written, it "aims above all to avoid open confrontation or unambiguous pronouncements, striving to advance its security without exposing itself to direct challenge ... (The Saudis) can acquiesce in what they are reluctant to advocate; they can be privately relieved at the thwarting of radical designs to which they have to pay lip service publicly."

Thus their criticism of our attack on Col. Khadafy, whom they detest but fear.

Congress thinks that a nation buying American arms ought to endorse American policies. But if we can't get the French to cooperate in fighting Khadafy, or prevent the Israelis from invading Lebanon, we shouldn't demand perfect loyalty from the Saudis.

If we were willing to use all our means to enforce obedience, we might indeed alter their foreign policy, at small gain to us and great risk to them. Becoming an American puppet would isolate the kingdom from most of the Arab world and invigorate its domestic opponents, heightening the chance of a more militant regime imposed from without or within.

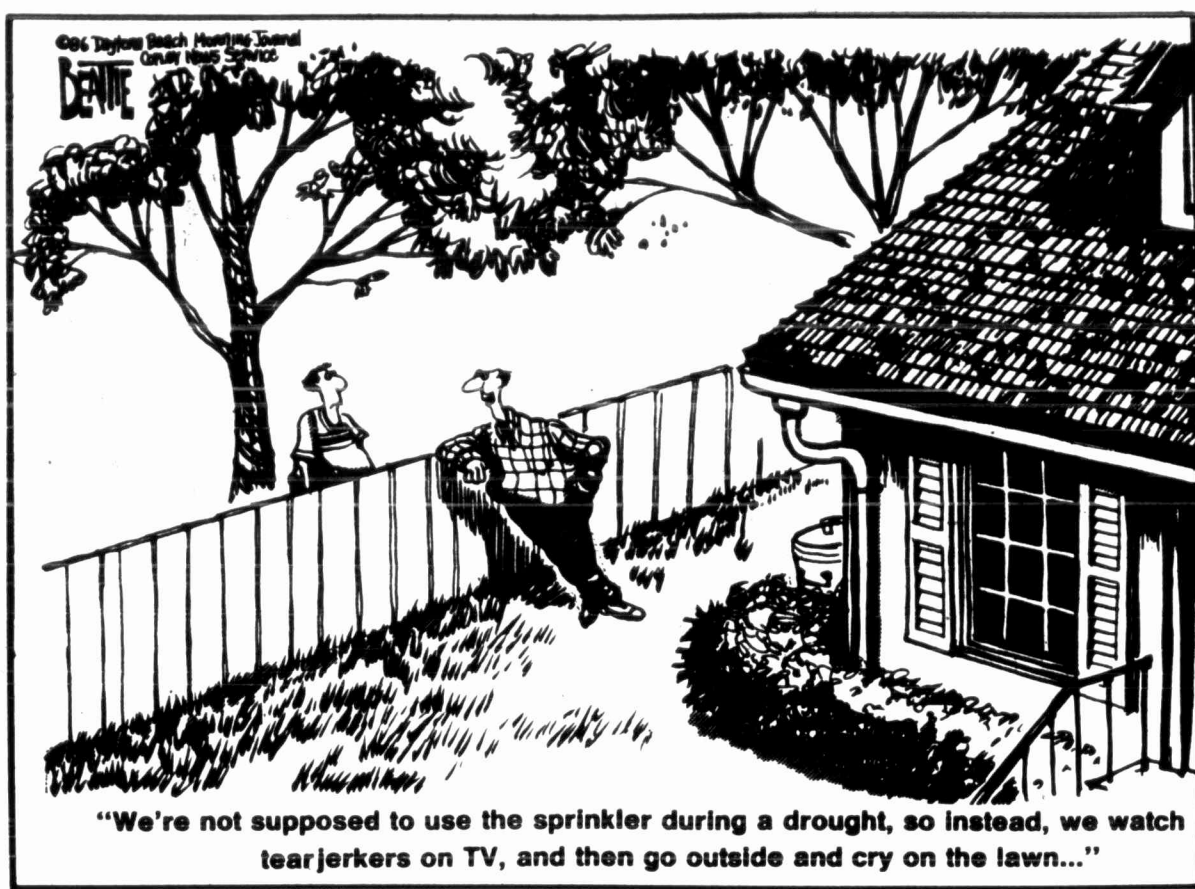

Utter humiliations like the one just carried out by Congress are no help either. They only advise Arab states that moderation will gain them nothing from the U.S., which is a good way to stimulate radicalism. In insisting that King Fahd emulate Sadat, Congress is more likely to produce more Khomeinis.

Pennsylvania residents fear U.S. hid nuke information

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — The United States has criticized the Soviet government's failure to give its people timely information on the Chernobyl nuclear disaster. But for 25 years the residents of Apollo, Pa., a small town about 20 miles northeast of Pittsburgh, have been wondering if their government has withheld information on radiation exposure they might have been subjected to from a pair of nuclear materials plants.

The plants, which process radioactive material for military and other use, made headlines in the 1960s when several hundred pounds of its weapons-grade uranium disappeared. Speculation was that it wound up in Israel.

But the missing uranium might have been dumped into a huge pit behind one of the plants. The trouble is, the Nuclear Regulatory Commission doesn't know.

Now the commission is considering a plan by the facility's current owners to make one plant the first commercial incinerator for radioactive wastes. The owners, Babcock and Wilcox, acknowledge that some radioactive particles will escape into the environment from the disposal method, but insist that the emissions will be at such a low level that they pose no health threat to the community.

But possible radiation in the past has residents just as worried as future emissions. The original owners, Nuclear Materials and Equipment Corp., sold the plants to Atlantic Richfield in the late 1960s; Babcock and Wilcox purchased them in the early 1970s. Federal officials claim the plants have been operated safely over the years, but federal documents obtained through the Freedom of Information Act by our associate Corky Johnson tell a different story. Here are just a few of Apollo's problems, culled from hundreds of reports:

• The Pit. In the 1960s, radioactive material was dumped in a 15-acre site only a few yards from several homes. The dumping was then legal, though federal law stopped such burials in 1970. The pit remains, and tests have shown dozens of "hot spots" in it, with radiation readings far above acceptable limits.

Some discarded uranium was

left in open containers. And both plant and state health agency documents indicated a problem with radioactive runoff into nearby streams.

• The River. One plant is in the middle of Apollo, less than half a mile from two schools and sitting on a river that feeds into the Allegheny a few miles upstream from Pittsburgh. Radioactive material and cancer-causing poisonous wastes have been discharged into the river by the plants. Incredibly, one regulatory commission report in the mid-1970s, said the high pollutant levels was nothing to get excited about because the river was already "dead" from pollution.

In one 12-month period, from June 1975 to May 1976, there were 30 occasions when high-level radioactive material was dumped into the sewage system. A former plant employee charged that thousands of gallons of radioactive wastes per day were dumped into the river in the 1960s.

When the plant began dumping chemical and radioactive pollutants into the river above the legal limit, the regulatory agency raised the limit.

• Emissions. Throughout most of the 1960s, the plants released unfiltered radioactive particles into the air; they were cited by federal inspectors for broken air monitors and faulty emissions equipment. A 1973 uranium leak was 20,000 times greater than acceptable limits. More than 60 cases of workers' overexposure to radiation have been reported.

In 1976, a state inspector wrote: "There seems to be some possibility that small amounts of radioactive dust are being emitted to the atmosphere, which disturbs (us). There are homes very close to this plant."

When the plants started emitting radioactive dust at higher levels than the regulations allowed, they were granted exemptions in 1969, allowing new levels 100 times higher than the old ones. The plants even exceeded the new levels.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: Syria, the perennial coddler of international terrorists, was itself the target of several bombings recently, with fatalities estimated at 100 or more. A group calling itself October 17 claimed responsibility. U.S. intelligence analysts are trying to figure which one of Syrian President Hafez Assad's myriad enemies was behind the coordinated bombing question. Possibilities include Palestinians, Lebanese Christians, the Moslem Brotherhood, Iraq and Israel. All of them, over the years, have been given reason to detest Assad, but none seems to have any reason to give significance to the date, Oct. 17.

FUDDLE FACTORY: Officials of the Mine Safety and Health Administration are furious that its updated inspection manual is unfinished and may remain so, after five years of delay and expenditure of thousands of dollars. Now the plans for the new manual have been put on hold, leaving field inspectors with obsolete manuals — and miners without knowledge of the protections the law gives them.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The last thing members of Congress need in an election year is encouragement to flood the mails with taxpayer-subsidized political propaganda. Unfortunately, the General Accounting Office did just that by ruling that the honorable members may send out as much as they want regardless of how much they appropriated to the Postal Service for this program ($96.7 million this year). If the agency runs in the red, of course, it could mean higher postal rates for the rest of us. So we urge that when the political big drops through your mail slot you read it — at least enough to remember the perpetrator's name on Election Day.

Police officers deserve respect

To the editor:

I can't believe what the so-called good people are doing to our law enforcement. What these people want is policemen they can keep in their back pockets. Example: If someone breaks into their house and steals everything they have worked for all their lives, who do they call? They want the police there right now, but if someone from their family or a close friend gets a traffic citation or a DWI or a number of other charges against them it becomes police harassment.

Are people blind to their own faults and those of their families? What about the families of our police officers; no one thinks about them. No one cares if they are harassed by the children they go to school with, by other people whom their spouses have to work with.

Most of the time when a police officer loses his job everyone thinks that's funny. Oh boy we got rid of that mean ole cop. Well people what would we do without those cops? We could live in a world where the biggest and the meanest take first what they want. What kind of world would that be?

The laws are written to include everyone. They do not exempt you because you are rich, or because you have an important job. The laws were written with everyone as an equal. If our police officers keep getting the harassment from the citizens one day there will be no law enforcement. Think about it people.

Busy person gets county job done

To the editor:

As concerned citizens of Howard County, Precinct 2, we would like to voice our support for Paul Allen in the upcoming runoff election for commissioner.

As the old saying goes, "If you want the job done, give it to a busy person." Paul gives many hours to community service through work with 4-H groups and the Howard County Jr. Livestock Show, as well as many other activities.

There has been some talk that Paul hasn't always attended meetings of the Commissioner's Court regularly. This is a complete fabrication. Anyone can check his attendance record and find it completely satisfactory.

For the past seven and one-half years, Paul Allen has served the citizens of Howard County honestly and with dedication. Paul has always been available to his constituents and willing to listen.

Please exercise your right to vote on June 7, 1986.

Council should review fire chief

To the editor:

On Tuesday May 20th, there was a hearing held in city council chambers by the three civil service commissioners. (The meeting was about) charges and a three shift suspension of a city firefighter charged with lack of moral character, intoxication while off duty and conduct prejudicial to good order, by the city fire chief.

After testimony by all witnesses, each of the three commissioners ruled unsubstantiated on each charge against fireman and ruled they had to pay him the three shifts he was suspended. My comment is that I didn't see any city councilman there to see what their fire chief was accusing (the) fireman for. I think city council should look into this case and maybe find evidence to replace the fire chief, as I, and many firemen don't believe he has interest of city, but only of his self by harassing firemen who he doesn't like.

Also the people of Big Spring should take a good look at their city, ever since the city council hired Don Davis and Rick Turner there has been trouble in city government. And the city has suffered. The people only have to look around to see all the vacant buildings and homes to know that the managers are not working for Big Spring but for themselves. I hope the people will think when next city council election comes up and vote for someone who is working to help the city.

Aphids are always with us Song of old-fashioned girl is praise for good ole days

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Aphids are sometimes referred to as "plant lice," but to many Texas gardeners they seem to be a season-long plague of tiny, living siphons which descend upon garden and landscape plants to rob them of their vigor. These are small, plump insects (adults are only 1/16 - 3/16 inches long) with pear-shaped bodies. When viewed with a magnifying glass, their long legs and antennae are noticeable. Also, they often have two projections (called cornicles) which resemble "tail pipes" sticking out of the rear portion of their bodies. Aphids come in a variety of colors from nearly butter-yellow, to brown, through all shades of green and even pinkish. These may be different types or species of aphids, or just varying color phases of one species.

Aphids are often born live, and they develop into adults within two weeks during the summer. Each female may produce 50 or more young in a rather short lifetime. Male aphids may not be present through most of the year, so females produce young without mating. Adult and immature aphids often occur on infested plants in large clusters, usually found on the undersides of the tender leaves and stem tissues at the growing tips of the plant. These areas are preferred because they are better supplied with plant sap which is rich in sugars. Aphids feed on these plant sugars by inserting their piercing-sucking mouthparts into the plant and withdrawing plant sap. Aphid populations seem to "explode" during the warm summer months, and they are often difficult for homeowners to control. This apparently hopeless situation results from the combination of factors of high numbers of offspring for each female, nearly all aphids are females and fast development from birth to adulthood. Also, while most aphids are wingless, winged forms are common in the spring and fall. Winged aphids may fly into your garden at any time during the growing season from weeds or other host plants close by, or from long distance. Thus, new infestations may begin very soon after control had been achieved.

Gardeners tend to overlook aphids on their plants until they build up to high numbers. At this point aphids are removing enough of the plant's sap that plant growth becomes stunted, thinned, and yellowed. Heavily infested plants often wilt easily and may not respond to watering. Vegetables will yield much less produce, which is usually stunted and of poor quality. Another sign of aphid infestation is the presence of dark, sooty deposits on the upper surfaces of lower leaves. This is caused by a sooty mold (or fungus) which is growing on the sugary, honeydew excrement of the many aphids feeding higher up on the plants. Inspect your vegetable, flower, and landscape plants frequently for the presence of aphids and remain alert for these other signs of aphid attack while you work in your yard or garden.

Aphids suffer from a number of parasites, predators, and diseases. However, these beneficial organisms are often unable to prevent aphids from building up to damaging numbers. Aphids are rather easy to control with insecticides. Spray applications must be very thorough, with particular attention paid to gaining good coverage on the undersides of all leaves. Sprays of diazinon and malathion will be effective in vegetable gardens when thoroughly applied. In small scale vegetable gardens or flower growing situations, an aerosol spray of pyrethrin or resmethrin (SBP-1382) may be used efficiently. On flowers or other ornamentals, sprays of Orthene, dimethoate (Cygon) or Metasystox-R can also be used. Do not use these latter three products on vegetables. Systemic insecticides such as Dysyston can be applied as granules to the soil and watered in. The insecticide is then taken up by the plant roots and moved in the plant with the sap flow. Most of the insecticide moves to the actively growing plant tips, which is primarily where the aphids are feeding.

DEAR ABBY: I loved the letter from "Millie," who was on the side of girls who held out for marriage. Her letter made my day, especially when she mentioned a song that was popular in the '20s titled "Just a Girl That Men Forget." When I was young, I used to play it over and over on our player piano.

In those days, music was first rate. The lyrics told a story without repeating a line — a far cry from the repetitious junk one hears today. In case you want to share all the lyrics with your readers, here they are.

JUANITA HAMMON,
LYNWOOD, CALIF.

DEAR JUANITA: I do; thanks for sharing:
My dear little girl, they call you a vamp.

A flapper with up-to-date ways
You may shine brightly, but just like a lamp,
You'll burn out one of these days.
Then your old-fashioned sister
Will come into view
With a husband and kiddies, but what about you?
You're the kind of a girl that men forget

Just a toy to enjoy for a while For when men settle down, they always get
An old-fashioned girl, with an old-fashioned smile
And you'll soon realize you're not so wise,
When the years bring you tears

Dear Abby

or regret
When they play, "Here Comes the Bride"
You'll stand outside, just a girl that men forget.

DEAR ABBY: "Holding Out" wrote to say that she is 27, unmarried, and has chosen to remain a virgin for a variety of reasons we have all heard many times: She will not have to worry about becoming pregnant or getting a disease. And she won't wonder if a guy really cares for her, or if he's just using her for sex.

It's funny how guys still want the girls they marry to be virgins, but if they sleep around, it's OK; they need the "experience."

"Holding Out" says she is keeping her virginity for marriage because she wants to give her husband a very special gift — something she has given to no one else. Goody, goody for her.

And what is he giving her? A secondhand organ?
LIBERATED IN LAUDERDALE

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing the letter from the 27-year-old girl who was "Holding Out" for marriage. Not to brag, but I'm a popular, good-looking, 18-year-old college student who is also holding out, and I'm proud of it. There is a lot of pressure for me to "conform," but so far no guy has ever succeeded in changing my mind — or my anatomy.

It's really not all that difficult. When a guy asks me to go to bed with him, I just say, "No, thank you, I'm not ready to go that route."

And if he says, "Everybody's doing it," I say, "Fine, then you should have no trouble finding somebody else."

UNTOUCHED IN MADISON, WIS.

DEAR LIBERATED AND UNTOUCHED: Now, let's hear it from a male:

DEAR ABBY: I am a recently married 32-year-old male and I would have seriously wondered about a woman who was still a virgin at 27. Although I slept with many women prior to marriage, I don't think I "used" anyone. I stopped seeing some (and some stopped seeing me), but sex was rarely the reason, and when sex did play a role, that role was not one of rejection because the woman was "giving in" (an interesting not inasmuch as it assumes that women don't enjoy sex).

Also, and I think I speak for many men, I wouldn't marry a woman I had not slept with. Why risk unhappiness and possible divorce by marrying someone who might have serious hang-ups about sex? (This, incidentally, is what I would wonder about a 27-year-old virgin.)

Finally, disease is a serious problem. These days no one should engage in intercourse outside of marriage without a condom. If you don't print this letter, please print those last two sentences — too many people are ignorant of that simple fact.

BIG SPRING TRAVEL TALK
by Mary Valli

DOWN UNDER AND OVER
Think of a beautiful green island that is 190 miles long and 180 miles wide. Cover it with lush rolling pasture and large tracts of virtually unexplored wilderness. Pamper excesses of heat and cold. Blend in a proud and viable British colonial history. Then, populate it with 424,600 Australians who prefer to be known as Tasmanians. Add clean water and air, good roads and uncrowded recreational areas. The result is the makings of what is, inexplicably, one of the most underrated, least known destinations in the entire southern hemisphere, Tasmania. Along with miles of empty coastline, it is rich with country inns, pubs and tidy little villages.
From "down under" to most anywhere else in the world, your travel dreams will become life's reality when you come to BIG SPRING TRAVEL, 608 Scurry. Our professional staff will help you plan your itinerary and provide the support service necessary so that the worries and trouble of travel are removed and your only task will be to enjoy yourself completely. With no immunity to rubella, woman fears her baby's health

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a 27-year-old woman, two and a half months pregnant with my second child. Upon results of a test my doctor informed me that I have no immunity against rubella. I am quite concerned about contracting it now since I do know the affects it can have on the embryo. What are my chances of getting rubella? Does contracting it after the first three months of pregnancy still pose a risk to the baby? I'm afraid to be around people. — Mrs. M.H.

I can't tell you what your chances are of contracting rubella. That depends on exposure to the virus in others. Your only recourse now is to avoid coming in contact with it. There are some comforting facts to consider, however. The chances of fetal malformations are greatest when the mother gets rubella in the very first month of pregnancy. If that happens, the chances are about 50 percent the fetus will become infected. The chances of fetal damage diminish sharply by the 20th week of pregnancy, to less than a 4 percent chance of fetal malformation. Mrs. E.L., who is in the same situation as you are, asks why the doctor doesn't immunize the woman who doesn't have the protection. The reason is that the vaccine contains live virus. And even though there has not been proof of fetal damage resulting from vaccination during pregnancy, the existence of the outside chance prompts the reluctance to immunize. I always welcome mail like yours, for it gives me an opportunity to warn all women of childbearing age, married or unmarried, to be sure their bodies are protected against the rubella virus. Their blood can be checked for presence of the protective antibodies. If they are not present, they need vaccination. Doctors continually harp on this subject. That's because it can never be certain that a woman your age is sufficiently protected. That has to do with uncertainty about immunity status caused by certain failings of the very early rubella immunity programs. After you women have your babies you should discuss vaccination with your doctors. You won't have to put up with your fears in future pregnancies. DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am on Minipress for blood pressure. I gain weight and I understand this is a side effect of the medicine. I asked my doctor about it, but he says nothing. Can you please give me an answer for this problem to keep me happy? — S.W.

Minipress can cause weight gain. Much of that is from fluid retention. If your doctor thinks it is appropriate, he might want to give you a diuretic in combination with the Minipress to get rid of any retained fluid.

Skin cancer on the rise

By REDBOOK
A Hearst Magazine

Skin cancer is on the rise in the United States and it has been predicted that one in seven Americans will be diagnosed as having the disease in his or her lifetime. More than 500,000 people contract skin cancer every year, according to an article in the May issue of Redbook, and medical experts estimate 90 percent of skin malignancies occur in people whose skin was subjected to frequent and prolonged sun exposure. "The vast majority of skin cancer is caused by lack of proper protection against the sun," said Dr. David Bickers, chairman of the department of dermatology at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland and chief of dermatology at University Hospital and the Veterans Administration Hospital there. "And the sun's damage to the skin is cumulative over a lifetime. That's the lethal thing."

There are three types of skin cancer — basal-cell carcinoma, the most common, least dangerous and easiest to treat; squamous-cell carcinoma, second in frequency and in danger of spreading, and melanoma, the deadliest form of skin cancer that strikes about 23,000 Americans every year, according to the American Cancer Society. It accounts for two-thirds of skin cancer deaths. The Skin Cancer Foundation estimates that 90 percent of skin malignancies are readily curable — and the cure rate would be even higher if people looked for changes in their skin and sought medical advice when they first found them. Moles can be an early warning sign of cancer — in 25 percent of melanoma cases, the cancer erupts in a pre-existing mole. Moles that first appear during adolescence are not usually associated with cancer. They are small, round, slightly raised and colored a single shade of light or medium brown. Birthmarks or moles that have been present from the first six months of life are more likely to become malignant, as are mole-like growths that appear in the adult years. These are the danger signs:

- A mole that is more than one shade of brown or black or that darkens or becomes red, white and blue.
- A change in the outline of a mole — uneven edges are another sign that a mole is cancerous. An asymmetrical mole is a danger signal. Normal moles are round.

Museum offers kid's classes

The Heritage Museum is offering three summer session classes on the history of Big Spring and West Texas for third-fifth grade students. The first session will be held June 3 and 4 and will feature natural history. Students will study dinosaurs, wildlife and plantlife. They will watch slide shows, take a nature walk and construct a bug box. Native Americans in West Texas will be the topic of the second session, June 10 and 11. Students will study native Americans as they watch slide shows, play Indian games, build a tepee and make a peace pipe and rattle. The third session, June 17 and 18 will highlight Howard County pioneers. Students will study cowboys and pioneers in Big Spring and Howard County. They will dress in period costumes, visit the Pottin House and dip candles. Slide shows will be presented. A registration fee is $6 per session per student to cover the cost of materials. Students may register for all three sessions at a reduced fee of $15. Registration forms are available at the Heritage Museum. For more information for registration call 267-8255 or write to 510 Seurry St.

Auxiliary presents program

The O'Neil-Kunkle Auxiliary of DAV Chapter 17 presented a patriotic program at the VFW Hall recently. The program began with a presentation of the original sesquicentennial flag, by Mrs. Mamie Lee Dodds, followed by a sesquicentennial program from Marcy School. The students, of Marcy School, performed Texas songs and folk dances which portrayed Texas history and folklore. Tokens of recognition were presented to "Mother True," a 90-year-old member of the auxiliary. Junior members who were recognized were Jennifer Lewis, 22 months, and Holley Elaine Gibbs, 19 months. The program was highlighted by Mr. Watson's presentation of "Old Glory Speaks."

Guild installs '86-'87 officers

Big Spring Symphony Guild officers were installed recently during their annual membership luncheon at St. Paul Lutheran Church. Officers for 1986-'87 are: Lisa Nichols, president; Kathryn Perry, first vice president; Barbra Webb, second vice president; Ruth Budke, secretary; and Phyllis Graumann, treasurer. Entertainment featured a presentation from Howard College Drama Department and a fashion show by Connie's and The Casual Shoppe. The guild is involved in a membership drive. Active membership is $15 per year and patron membership is $30. For more information call 267-6941.

HOW MUCH ADDITIONAL TAX REVENUE CAN A COMMUNITY EXPECT TO RECEIVE AFTER IT LEGALIZES THE SALE OF ALCOHOLIC DRINKS?
(See answer provided below by Texas Alcohol Narcotics Education, Inc.)

When citizens spend $10,000.00 for alcoholic drink purchases in a city, the city will receive as its share $100.00 ($150.00 for liquor by the drink.) If we hire one additional policeman (24 hours plus a patrol car), you would need to spend an additional $2,100,840.00 on liquor purchases alone just to pay for the additional cost of one policeman for that 24 hours.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR TUESDAY, MAY 27, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The best manner in which you can get things done as you wish is with a smile. A considerable amount of energy is released and you must be careful to not offend anyone.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make sure you keep poised since others are apt to rush you into doing things you do not approve of.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Don't be too much in a hurry to make radical changes since you could regret them later.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Before you and your companion spend all that money, study the situation further and avoid trouble. Better safe than sorry.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Instead of trying to run roughshod over an associate, be understanding and charming and get good results.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Improve the area where you are most active and then you can operate more efficiently. Show co-workers your appreciation.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You are energetic today and should be more helpful to your companion or other close ties. Let your finest abilities show.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Try to be very cheerful at home and establish more harmony there. Try to avoid an argumentative person.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Give praise to your associates and prevent arguments. Don't try to reconcile one co-worker with another.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Find some way of making your belongings more valuable and attractive. Keep active and you will be happier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Give yourself a treat by doing something to improve your appearance. Be tactful with persons who can help your career.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Find some way of improving your environment so that it becomes more charming and functional.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Let your friends see that you appreciate them and you will gain added goodwill and affection from them.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will have the ability to get along well with others by doing whatever is practical in nature, so see to it that subjects are added in school to make the most of this quality. There will be an excessive amount of energy here, so be sure to channel it into constructive directions.

French tennis starts

PARIS (AP) - Carling Bassett, returning to tournament tennis less than two weeks after her father's death, swept past Catherine Tanvier 7-5, 6-3, Monday on the opening day of the French Open.

The men's top seed, Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia, began action in a first-round match later in the day against Michael Westphal of West Germany.

Chris Evert Lloyd, the No. 2 seed among the women, also had a Center Court match against French junior champion Camille Calmette, an 18-year-old qualifier.

In other early matches on the red clay courts of Roland Garros Stadium, Czechoslovakian women posted a pair of victories.

Regina Marsikova defeated American Kathy Harvath 6-4, 6-1, and sixth-seeded Helena Sukova beat Sabina Simmonds of Italy 6-4, 6-2.

Darren Cahill of Australia became the first man to advance into the second round by downing Julio Goes of Brazil 4-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-0.

Bassett, a Canadian seeded 13th in the women's singles of this first Grand Slam event of the year, last played in a tournament at Hilton Head, S.C., in April, losing in the second round. A month later, her father, John Bassett, died after a long bout with cancer, and Bassett acknowledged Monday that her father's illness had hurt her performance in recent months.

"You think to yourself it doesn't affect you, but it's always there," she said.

Bassett said she was recommitting herself to tennis, partly to get her mind off her father's death.

"You've just gotta get out there," she said. "You can get depressed, or you can go on... I figure that's what my dad would want me to do."

Bassett came through a sloppy first set in which she and her French opponent held serve in just three of the 12 games. Bassett fittingly won the set on a service break, a forehand winner off a Tanvier lob.

Bassett received a huge boost early in the second set when, with the score 40-40 in the opening game, Tanvier lost concentration after a foot-fault against the Canadian was reversed by the umpire, sailing two shots long.

Bassett broke Tanvier's serve for a 3-1 lead, but Tanvier broke back to 3-2. Bassett then broke for a 4-2 lead and held serve from there, winning the match when Tanvier's shot was wide.

Bailey's double keys Astros

CHICAGO (AP) - Houston's Mike Scott is doing something different these days, especially when one glances at his strikeout ratio.

Scott didn't get the decision Sunday in Houston's 3-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs when catcher Mark Bailey broke a 1-for-24 slump with a two-run double in the 11th inning.

Scott departed after eight innings but not before he struck out a career high 10 batters to boost his National League-leading total to 87 in 80 1/3 innings pitched.

That's more than one strikeout an inning. Throughout his career, Scott has never averaged more than 4.9 strikeouts per nine innings.

"I've never been a strikeout pitcher in the past because I tried to strike out hitters with the ball down," said Scott, who has a 4-3 record this season after going 18-8 last year.

The Cubs had two men on with one out in both the sixth and eighth innings. Each time Scott closed the inning by striking out the last two batters.

"Mike Scott is tough," said Cub Manager Jim Frey. "But I think he's scuffing the ball. I don't know how much he does it, but I've seen balls that were scuffed."

A year ago, Frey and the Cubs accused Scott of scuffing the ball when they claimed they found a piece of sandpaper near the mound. It proved nothing although the umpires were ordered by the league to keep an eye on Scott.

Scott and Houston Manager Hal Lanier shrugged off Frey's charges but Lanier wonders when Scott will get another decision.

Scott didn't get a decision because the Cubs' Scott Sanderson was almost as tough, allowing five hits in the seven innings he worked.

The Astros scored a run in the second on singles by Dennis Walling and Kevin Bass and Bailey's infield ground out.

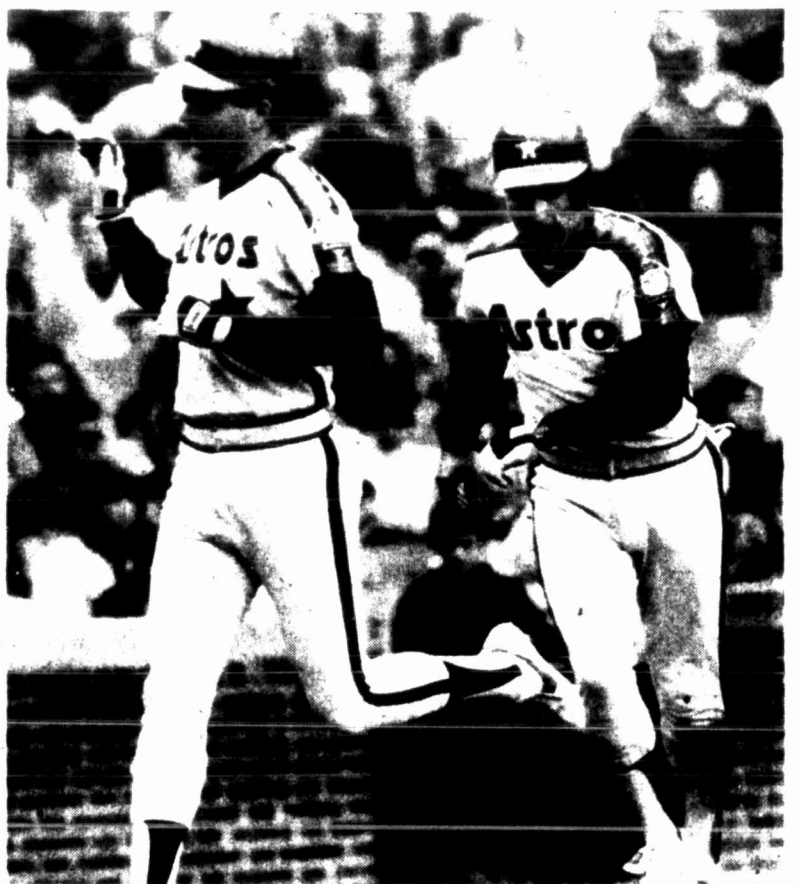

The Cubs tied it in the seventh on a walk to Chris Speier, a sacrifice and a two-out triple by Shannon Dunston. Scott left for a pinch batter in the ninth.

That's the way it stood until the 11th. Phil Garner walked and stole second. Bass struck out but loser Lee Smith, 2-4, walked Craig Reynolds intentionally to get to Bailey.

Bailey hammered Smith's first pitch into the gap for two runs.

"It's been a long time between hits," said Bailey. "I feel good at the plate but I haven't been getting any hits."

Bailey advanced to third on a ground out and then was embarrassed when Cub catcher Jody Davis picked him off third.

Houston Astros' Craig Reynolds, left, and Phil Garner cross the plate, scoring on a double by Mark Bailey in Chicago on Sunday. The 11th-inning runs won the game for the Astros, 3-1.

Yanks win; Rangers pace West

By The Associated Press
Mike Pagliarulo, whose two-out error allowed California to tie the score in the top of the ninth inning, wanted a chance to atone for his miscue.

He got that opportunity in the bottom of the ninth and came through with a two-out single, driving home the winning run Saturday and giving the New York Yankees a 7-6 victory over the Angels.

The victory was the fourth straight for the Yankees, while California lost its fourth consecutive game.

In the bottom of the ninth, Ken Griffey singled and was sacrificed to second. Griffey took third on a fly ball and scored when Pagliarulo singled off Donnie Moore.

Griffey hit a two-run pinch homer and Dave Winfield followed with a home run that rallied New York into a 6-4 lead in the seventh.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Rangers 3, Red Sox 2
Veteran Bobby Jones, called up from the minors earlier in the week, hit a two-run bases-loaded single with two out in the bottom of the ninth inning as Texas snapped Boston's six-game winning streak.

Bob Stanley relieved Joe Sabito after Pete O'Brien walked to start the Texas ninth. After striking out Pete Incaviglia, Stanley gave up a single to Gary Ward that sent O'Brien to third and walked Darrell Porter to load the bases. He retired George Wright on a short fly but Jones, batting for Geno Petralli, bounced a 2-2 pitch into right field for the tying and winning runs, negating Don Baylor's second two-run homer in as many nights.

The victory moved the Rangers into first place in the American League West, one-half game in front of California. The Red Sox' lead over the Yankees in the AL East was sliced to one-half game.

Orioles 5, Mariners 4
Cal Ripken hit a leadoff 10th-inning homer off Mark Husmann after Seattle's Gorman Thomas tied the score with a two-run homer off Don Aase in the bottom of the ninth.

The Orioles took a 4-0 lead off Billy Swift in the fourth inning. Larry Sheets led off with a double, Juan Beniquez singled and Mike Young drove in Sheets with a single. After Alan Wiggins singled to load the bases, Lee Lacy's grounder scored Beniquez and Fred Lynn walked to reload the bases. Eddie Murray, who has a .460 lifetime average with the bases loaded, singled to drive in Young and Wiggins.

Blue Jays 9, Indians 6
George Bell hit a three-run homer and Dennis Lamp and Mark Eichhorn combined for five innings of one-hit relief. Lloyd Moseby hit a two-run double and a two-run single as Toronto ended the Indians' three-game winning streak. Bell's sixth homer of the season capped a four-run rally in the fifth inning that erased a 6-3 deficit.

Toronto starter Dave Stieb gave up six runs on six hits in four innings.
Tigers 4, A's 1
Lance Parrish hit two homers and drove in three runs while Jack Morris pitched a three-hitter. John Grubb singled in the Detroit fourth and Parrish hit the first pitch from Chris Oddirol for his first homer of the game. Parrish homered again in the sixth and scored Detroit's final run in the eighth on a single by Dave Bergman.

Boston Red Sox pitcher Roger Clemens flashes the "Hook 'em Horns" victory sign from his college days at the University of Texas. He pitched a two-hit 7-1 win against the Texas Rangers Sunday afternoon in Arlington, Texas.

Royals 7, White Sox 6
George Brett raced home from first base on Jim Sundberg's ninth-inning pop fly double with two out after Chicago scored five runs in the eighth to tie the game.

With one out in the ninth, Bob James walked Brett. After Frank White struck out, Sundberg lifted a high fly ball between shortstop and center field. Brett, running with two out, scored easily.

Carlton Fisk's three-run homer capped Chicago's five-run eighth-inning rally. The Royals built a 6-1 lead with the help of home runs by White and Rudy Law.

Brewers 6, Twins 3
Ernest Riles' two-run homer snapped a 2-2 tie in the fifth inning. Of Riles' 20 RBI this season, eight have been game-winners. Rob Deer added a homer and a two-run triple in support of rookie Juan Nieves, who scattered eight hits, including Tim Lardner's two-run homer. The loser was Frank Viola, who hasn't beaten the Brewers since July 25, 1983.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Expos 7, Giants 4
Hubie Brooks homered and drove in three runs while Andres Galarraga also homered and Tim Wallach had two sacrifice flies. Brooks' two-out homer in the third inning broke a 1-1 tie and put the Expos ahead to stay. He singled home a run in the seventh and added a run-scoring grounder in the ninth, giving him 31 RBI in the last 22 games.

Mets 5, Padres 4
Rafael Santana hit a two-run double and Gary Carter had a pair of run-scoring singles after New York fell behind 3-0 on home runs by Kevin McReynolds and Graig Nettles in the second inning. McReynolds homered again in the sixth. Loser Mark Thurmond suffered his third consecutive bad outing as the Mets racked him for six hits and four runs in 3 2/3 innings. In his last three games, Thurmond is 0-3 and has allowed 16 hits and 14 runs in just 5 1/3 innings.

Dodgers 6, Phillies 0
Fernando Valenzuela pitched his second consecutive two-hitter and sixth of his career and Franklin Stubbs tripled home two runs in the seventh inning. Philadelphia's Fred Toliver matched Valenzuela until the seventh when he yielded one-out singles to Mike Marshall and Mike Scioscia.

Cardinals 9, Braves 5
Pitcher Ray Burris drove in four runs and hurled six strong innings. Burris has won both of his starts since coming up from the minors and in each one he helped himself with a three-run double in the second inning. Burris staked himself to a 3-0 lead after Ozzie Smith was intentionally walked in the second inning by David Palmer. He added an RBI-single in the fifth.

Reds 4, Pirates 2
Rookie Kurt Stillwell, who entered the game batting 167 with one RBI in 42 at-bats, drove in two runs with a triple and Bill Gullickson won his fourth straight decision with a seven-hitter. It was the Reds' third straight victory, their longest winning streak of the season. Stillwell's triple followed singles by Nick Esasky and Buddy Bell in the second inning against Mike Bielecki.

Rocket fans riot for tickets

HOUSTON (AP) - A full-scale riot almost developed when a crowd estimated at 6,000 people spent the night shoving and fighting for space in a line to buy tickets being made available to the Houston Rockets' NBA championship series with the Boston Celtics, police said.

The crowd had begun to gather at 6 p.m. Saturday in anticipation of the 8 a.m. Sunday sale of tickets to the fourth game of the Rockets-Boston Celtics NBA championship series June 3.

The sale was moved up to 6 a.m., and the 4,500 tickets available were sold within 90 minutes, Rockets officials said. Thousands of disappointed fans picked up their blankets, lawn chairs and coolers and quietly went home.

But people were stampeding, screaming, shoving and fighting for a place at the front of the line early Sunday morning. About 20 were arrested.

Of the 6,000 or more people who had settled down for the night sprawled along sidewalks, lawns and in a field, less than 1,000 got any of the tickets, police said.

At least 2,000 people who had waited hours in line were sent home after a timed sprinkler system triggered a sudden rush for the ticket office about 3 a.m. Sunday. Police used nightsticks and dogs to control the outraged crowd that cursed, fought and threw bottles at them.

The stampede disrupted the relative calm police had established in one of the two lines that formed on the east and west sides of The Summit.

No major injuries were reported, though many fans suffered bruises and scrapes. About 75 officers tried to keep order.

Those arrested were booked for offenses ranging from assault on an officer to public intoxication, said Deputy Police Chief Tommy Shane. Three men were arrested when they urinated on the ground near where they stood rather than lose their places in line, he said.

No restroom facilities were available.

Fans angrily criticized officers for rudeness, unfairness and unnecessary force. Several said they were shoved, hit and knocked to the ground for no reason. Over and over, crowd members decried what they called the dangerous lack of organization for the sales.

Others, however, praised police for doing their best in a near-impossible predicament.

"We had a bad situation is what we had," said Summit Operations Manager Henry Thomas.

Summit officials had first said fans could gather in a field owned by Century Development Co. at 2 a.m., form lines for tickets at 5 and begin purchasing tickets at 8. The crowd's unanticipated size and aggressiveness threw that plan into pandemonium.

"We expected a lot of people, but we didn't expect it to turn out like this," Thomas said. "Next time, it will be handled differently all the way around. The people won't have time to pile up on us like this."

Race fans in the grandstand at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway wait under various forms of rain protection Sunday as the 500 mile race was first delayed throughout the day and then postponed until today, weather permitting.

It's wet and doubtful at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - Indianapolis 500 fans aren't ready to go anywhere until they see the annual automobile race.

"We're getting a lot of calls," TWA sales agent Neil Young said Sunday night. "Every other call is about Indianapolis. They want to stay."

Officials at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway postponed the 70th running of the race Sunday after rain drenched the racing surface and made a quagmire of the infield at the 2.5-mile track.

The race was rescheduled for today, but a steady rain continued to fall on the track early today.

The National Weather Service this morning said periods of showers and scattered thunderstorms would continue through most of the day. There might be a break in the showers around mid-morning, but not long enough to get the track dry, the weather service said.

The postponement was the first since 1973, when rain forced a two-day delay.

Young said TWA was waiving its penalties for race fans failing to make return trips on restricted fares.

"We're letting them stay until Tuesday and then try to fly stand-by," he said.

Indianapolis hotels, which require three-day minimum stays for Friday through Sunday of race weekend, were getting an unexpected bonanza from the race postponement.

"We can handle most of them because Memorial Day's a holiday and businessmen don't travel," said Marion Fish, room division manager at the Hilton Hotel in downtown Indianapolis.

"We're going to deal with it one day at a time, and we'll roll with it," Fish said.

Police strolled the muddy infield of the race course today and directed a trickle of traffic into the infield parking areas.

"We'll come out each day until we get this thing done," said Indiana State Police Trooper John Wheeler. He said the weather led to fewer arrests this year.

Nation remembers its war heroes, veterans

By The Associated Press
The flag-waving, the fairs and the just plain fun of the first warm weather holiday weekend have been going strong for two days, but the nation paused today to honor and remember its war dead and its veterans.
President Reagan will lay a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery in Virginia, across the Potomac from Washington, while Vice President George Bush was to speak at Kennebunkport Square in Maine, where he has a vacation home.

Parades and memorials were scheduled across the nation and in Chillicothe, Mo., farmers planned a rally today to dramatize continuing agricultural problems.
"It's a shame we have to spend Memorial Day doing this instead of out with our families or out planting," said organizer Ed Marks of the Missouri Rural Crisis Center. "But we've got to show people that this crisis hasn't gone away."
On Sunday, the bells at the University of Kansas in Lawrence rang 55 times as a memorial was dedicated to the 55 alumni who died or are missing in the Vietnam War.

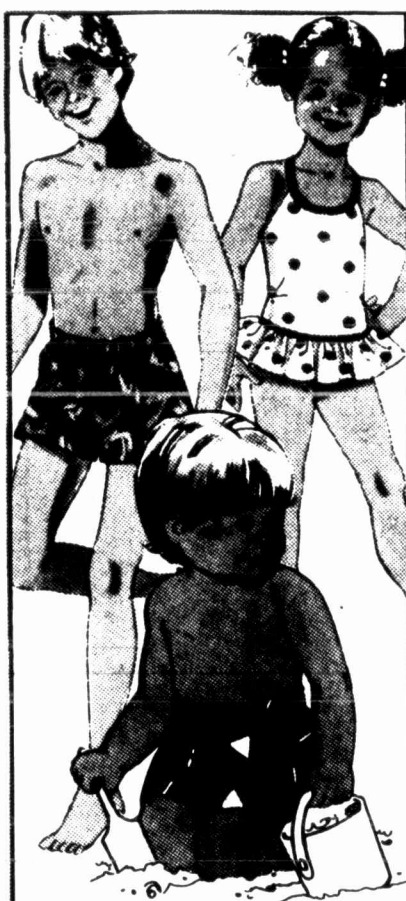

Families of some of the 55, whose names are etched on the 65-foot memorial, were among the 200 people at the dedication.
More than 150 flags lined a two-mile stretch of Main and Elm streets in Andover, Mass., Sunday, called the "Street of the Living Memorial." The flags were donated by relatives of veterans across the country.
About 200 people were at the Presidio of San Francisco for the dedication of another living memorial Sunday. The monument — "living" because it includes a semicircle of Italian cypress trees — is dedicated to Vietnam veterans.

"A lot of people saw Vietnam as a failure, but the real losers were the Vietnam veterans," said Col. Jerry Autry, Protestant chaplain at the Presidio post.
Sunday also was a day to remember those in need, with nearly 5 million Americans turning out for the Hands Across America celebration. Reagan was one of a host of celebrities who helped form a human chain across 16 states from California to New York.
But the weekend wasn't just for serious pursuits. Though spring still has nearly a month to go, summerlike weather Sunday in most areas brought out millions to enjoy summertime pleasures.

In Garden Grove, Calif., this is the weekend for the Strawberry Festival, while Mule Days are being held in Bishop, Calif. Laredo, Texas, is holding its Frontier Days this weekend, while the annual FunFest is on tap today in Amarillo, Texas.
If the people who jammed Southern California's beaches Sunday decided to form a city, it would be bigger than Boston and Pittsburgh combined. More than 1 million were out getting sand between their toes from San Diego to Topanga, officials said.

"It's packed," said Los Angeles County lifeguard Don Souther.
Less pleasant weather was the order of the day, however, in Indianapolis, where the annual Indianapolis 500 had to be postponed because of rain. The best race drivers in the country will attempt to run it again today, but the forecast called for showers and thunderstorms scattered across much of the nation's midsection as well as the southern Atlantic Coast and the Pacific Northwest.

Central American summit leaders set deadline for approving treaty

ESQUIPULAS, Guatemala (AP) — Presidents of five Central American countries say they are willing to sign the proposed Contadora peace treaty, but that they still have not resolved the thorny military questions it poses.

The presidents also announced at the end of a weekend summit meeting that they had agreed to create a Central American parliament that Guatemalan President Vinicio Cerezo said could be a successor to the Contadora group.

Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama comprise the Contadora group. Their officials began meeting more than three years ago in an effort to find a way to end Central America's conflicts.

Contadora's foreign ministers set a June 6 deadline for signing their proposed treaty, implying they would give up their efforts after that.

Cerezo said the five countries still hope to meet the deadline, "but we are conscious and clear that there are details to be completed on verification, armaments and control and, if we set June 6 as a definite date, we could kill Contadora before it gives results."

"What we don't want is to liquidate Contadora," Cerezo said.

The presidents issued a five-point statement, called the Declaration of Esquipulas.

Attending the meeting besides Cerezo were presidents Oscar Arias Sanchez of Costa Rica, Jose Azcona Hoyo of Honduras, Jose Napoleon Duarte of El Salvador and Daniel Ortega of Nicaragua.

The Contadora talks have been stalled on the issues of limiting foreign military maneuvers and weapons and ensuring compliance. Sunday's declaration said the presidents found the various proposals presented to be "sufficiently fertile and realistic to facilitate signing the act."

The declaration called Contadora still "the best political option Central America has so far to achieve peace and democracy."

The parliament is to be chosen in free, direct elections and will deal with social, economic, political and security problems of the region, the declaration said.

It called for a special commission to be set up within 30 days to prepare a charter for the parliament.

Ortega said he believed the meeting "shows that the will of the Central American nations should be taken into account by the United States, which insists on invading Nicaragua."

Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista regime claims that U.S. support for rebels fighting the Sandinista government and U.S.-Honduran military maneuvers in neighboring Honduras are a prelude to an invasion of Nicaragua.

The presidents also pledged to hold more summit meetings to analyze the more pressing problems of peace and development in the region.

They said peace in Central America can only be achieved in a pluralistic democratic system and noted "the right of all nations to determine freely and without external intervention of any kind, their economic, political and social model."

Esquipulas is located 135 miles east of Guatemala City near Guatemala's borders with El Salvador and Honduras. It is best known for religious pilgrimages to venerate the image of a "Black Christ," credited with curing illnesses and resolving peoples' financial problems.

INSURED TAX-FREE INCOME*
AAA RATED UNITS*
Insured Municipals Income Trust
An insured portfolio of municipal bonds

- *Tax-Free — no federal income tax.
- *Guaranteed — insured against default to guarantee principal and interest payments when due.
- *Diversified — a portfolio strongly diversified by type, location and purpose.
- *Affordable — units available in multiples of $1,000.
- *Flexible — monthly, quarterly or semi-annual income distributions, or automatic reinvestment.
- *Convenient — no call notices or clipping coupons.
- *Marketability — units may be liquidated at any time at the current market value.

This represents the net annual interest income after annual expenses, divided by the public offering price as of 5/21/78 (Series 104). It varies with changes in either amount and with the particular payment option. The terms of the insurance policy are more fully described in the prospectus, no representation is made as to the insurer's ability to meet its commitments. The AAA rating is due to an insurance policy issued by American Municipal Bond Assurance Corporation (AMBAC) and relates only to the units of the trust and not the bonds in the portfolio. The insurance does not remove the market risk since it does not guarantee the market value of the units. Portions of this return may be subject to state or local taxes. Due to future delivery of a portion of the portfolio, on deposit date, the actual first year return will be 10% lower than the normal annual current return. This difference will still be paid to the unit holder the first year but will be called a principal distribution rather than tax exempt interest.
