City water situation is 'critical'

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

The water situation in the city is "critical at this point" and will probably remain that way for the next several days, Public Works Director Tom Decell said this morning.

"It is absolutely critical that people use water for only the most essential purposes," acting City Manager Hal Boyd said.

Decell said he hoped water for "hygiene purposes" could be restored to the city this afternoon. At about 10:30 a.m. the plant began pumping water on a limited basis to two water reservoirs, and another pump was expected to go on line before noon, he said.

See related stories, 2A

Most of Big Spring was without water today as a result of a flood at the Roy C. Hester water treatment plant Sunday. The electric motors that drive the massive pumps at the plant became submerged in water and put out of commission, Decell said.

"I don't have any water in the reservoirs," Decell said this morning. The aging pumps that push water to the city's seven storage reservoir tanks were knocked out Sunday. Even when mechanical difficulties are resolved, it will be several days before the water supply is back to normal, he said.

Decell urged homes with water to use it for only hygiene purposes. Residents must cut back dramatically on consumption to CRITICAL page 2A

Maintenance men at the water treatment center install a pump motor on loan from the Colorado River Municipal Water District. The motor was compatible with city units, and the pump it drives went on line shortly after 10:30.

Sanitation problems a concern

By JOHN RICE
Managing Editor

Restaurants are being asked to close down because of inability to properly clean cooking articles, James Luck, Howard County sanitarian, said this morning.

In addition, state and local officials have ordered water used for cooking or drinking to be boiled because of possible contamination.

The sanitation actions will remain in effect while the city's problems with water delivery continue, officials said.

"I recommend that restaurant owners would take the initiative, until the crisis passes, to stop service to the public," Luck said. The recommendation is based on inability to keep dishes clean.

He added that if restaurants do stay open they should boil water for consumption and use disposable eating utensils. Even for restaurants with adequate water pressure "the city would appreciate it that they not use dishwashers at this time," Luck said.

The health department stopped short of ordering restaurants closed, he said, because "we don't have the manpower to enforce" it.

The boil order is because of potential "back siphonage," according to Jed Barker, sanitarian for the state health department district office in Midland. Concern is over contaminants that could get into the water system in the absence of water pressure.

For example, a person might leave a water hose lying in a flower bed, Barker said. "When the flow drops, you'll be sucking dirt" into the water system. Barker was planning to travel to Big Spring this morning to monitor the situation.

There is no possibility of contamination from city sewage treatment facilities, Barker said.

"The city of Big Spring is currently experiencing extremely low or non-existent water pressures. When water pressure falls below 20 psi (pounds per square inch), backflow and back siphonage can occur, possibly contaminating the water distribution system," a news release stated.

The boil water order was signed by Dr. Jack Woodall, director of the Howard County-Big Spring Health Unit and Dr. Albert G. Randall of El Paso, director of Region 3-12 of the Texas Department of Health.

The state and city "are notifying the public to boil all water used for drinking purposes. A boiling period of 1 to 5 minutes should be sufficient to eliminate any harmful

It's breakfast as usual with or without water

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Co-owner Opal Wilkerson said the breakfast crowd was a little bigger than usual, and the restrooms were closed, but otherwise it was business as usual at Herman's Restaurant this morning.

The restaurant, at 1601 Gregg St., was open despite problems at the water treatment plant that left most of Big Spring with little or no water since Tuesday. Wilkerson said restaurant workers were keeping dishes clean with water hauled in from her son's house.

"It stinks," said customer

Robert Penner of 2 Highland. He wasn't talking about his breakfast. "The extent of this shutdown shows a great lack of planning," he said.

Johnny Martin, manager of Pizza Inn, was eating breakfast with his family and wondering what he was going to do with yesterday's dishes at his own restaurant. "It is very difficult to wash dishes without water. But we will be open, one way or the other," he said.

Johnny Martin, of 1105 East 12th Street, said he came home from work Tuesday and discovered wheezing, dry faucets. "None at all," he said.

Hospitals weather water shortages

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Hospitals remain open today, but elective surgery has been postponed until water service is restored.

Malone-Hogan Hospital is having water hauled in from outside of town, said administrator Wayne Brannon. A 6,000 gallon truck was due to arrive there this morning, he said, and will stay until the situation returns to normal. The 6,000 gallons will last about a day, he said, but the truck can be refilled from wells at night.

"We can go for an indefinite period of time because we have well water available to us," he said. "It's just a big inconvenience."

The water is being used for bathing, toilets and emergencies, he said. Little water is needed for surgery, he said, only enough to allow the doctors and nurses to scrub and to sterilize instruments.

Instruments for surgery were taken Tuesday to the Veterans Administration Medical Center to be sterilized.

The VA had water Tuesday, but today has only about a half-day's supply in storage, said spokesman Tom Balderach.

The hospital was planning to contact Dyess and Goodfellow Air Force bases in Abilene and San Angelo and "try to work it out" for them to supply water, he said.

Meanwhile, water is being carefully rationed. Paper plates are being used to eliminate dishwashing, he said, and elective surgery has been cancelled.

The Big Spring State Hospital has about 70,000 gallons of water in a storage tank and, with conservation, could go for up to four days without hauling any in, said administrator A.K. Smith.

The hospital is conserving water by shutting down the boiler and laundry services and limiting linen changes and bathing, he said. Water will be limited to essential sanitary and health needs, he said. Plastic dishes are being used for meals.

People on the hospital wards have been asked to limit flushing toilets as much as possible "to the extent that it's tolerable," he said.

Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital had no water this morning, said administrator Charles Weeg, but a 1,000 gallon tank is being brought in today. The water will have to be carried in by hand, he said. The tank will remain there in case of future emergencies.

Until water service is restored, the water at hand will be strictly conserved, he said.

Second suspect in assault, slaying arrested

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Police have arrested a second suspect in the sexual assault and slaying of 81-year-old Ara Erlene Bohannon, who was found bound and gagged Friday morning in her house at 1106 Howell Lane.

Andy Guzman, 20, of 1501 Stadium Ave. was arrested at 9 a.m. Tuesday morning by Sgt. Ray Meek and Detective John Sautter, said district parole officer David Harman. On Saturday, police arrested Joseph Gilbert Garcia, 18, of 510 Donley St. and charged him with capital murder, burglary of a habitation and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, according to police.

Guzman was charged with the same offenses. He was on parole from the Texas Department of Corrections at the time of his arrest, Harman said.

An emergency parole violation warrant for Guzman's arrest was issued Tuesday morning "stemming from the capital murder charges being investigated," Harman said.

Guzman gave an 11-page statement to Detective Tony Chavez at about 7 p.m. Tuesday night regarding the assault, Harman said.

The suspect was arraigned before Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt, who set bonds at $85,000 for murder, $5,000 for burglary of a habitation, and $1,500 for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle.

"However, a parole violation warrant is non-bondable," Harman said, so Guzman will remain in city jail pending an investigation by police.

Guzman was sentenced to prison in December 1983 for aggravated assault and delivery of marijuana in Howard County, Harman said.

Each charge carried five-year terms to be served concurrently. He was released on parole Aug. 6, 1985, after serving 20 months, Harman said.

On Nov. 6, 1985, three months after his release, Guzman was arrested for unauthorized use of a motor vehicle belonging to Amana Allcorn of 1104 W. Third St. On March 25, 1986, Allcorn dropped the stolen car charge against Guzman "and no longer wanted to prosecute," Harman said.

Water stores say business is brisk

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer

Business was brisker than usual Tuesday night and this morning as Big Spring residents attempted to stock their personal water supply. "We had a real good day yesterday," said William Sanders, manager of The Water Store on 1600 E. Fourth St. He refused, however, to say how many gallons of water the store had sold. He said when the store closed at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, the water supply stock was down to about 50 gallons. The Water Store uses city water, which it purifies with filters in a process called reverse osmosis. He said the store was still receiving water from city lines though the pressure had decreased significantly. A store spigot, which usually releases 1.2 gallons of water a minute, was down to less than 1/2 a gallon a minute this morning, he said. Sanders planned to open the store at 1 p.m. today, he said, and he expected the first receivable water to be somewhat "dirty." He said he would curb the problem by "changing filters pretty often." The filter process "squeezes all the solids out of the water, cleans it up and purifies it," Sanders said. At Safeway, 1300 Gregg St., the bottled water supply of 70 to 85 cases Tuesday night decreased to about 20 cases this morning, said Frank Brooks, store manager. Brooks said a case contains six gallons of water, which is sold in one- or five-gallon quantities. "I'm trying to get some more this morning from our warehouse in Dallas," Brooks said. Safeway also purchases water from Ozark Water Supply in Midland, Brooks said. The temporary water cutoff will not alter the store's regular sanitation procedures, he said. Bottled water will substitute as the agent used to keep the counters clean and the vegetables "a little crisper."

Charlie Clark puts water containers on former empty water racks at Winn Dixie. Clark, an employee at Gandy's, said this morning the 10 cases he brought into Winn Dixie were the last 10 cases Gandy's had on hand.

Fountain recirculates water

Motorists passing the active Colorado River Municipal Water District fountain need not be concerned that the district is wasting precious water. Joe Pickle, secretary of district's board of directors, said the fountain recirculates water from a container tank at the bottom of the fountain. "We're only drawing a negligible amount that we have to use for replacement. Otherwise, it's just recirculating the same water," he said.

Schools close due to lack of water

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Most Big Spring students are getting a holiday today, just a day before school ends for the summer. The high school remained open this morning, but elementary and junior high schools were closed because of the lack of water, said Superintendent Lynn Hise. If water is restored by Thursday, schools will open as usual, he said. If not restored, the district plans to open schools for half a day, he said, and the cafeterias will not serve meals. Hise said he got word from Austin this morning that students will not have to make up the day missed. State education officials told him no penalty would be leveled against the district, he said. Problems with hygiene are the major concern with keeping schools open, he said. Toilets cannot be flushed, there's no drinking water, and no way to wash dishes in the cafeteria. Also, air conditioners cannot be operated because of the lack of water pressure, he said.

The Big Spring Federal Prison Camp has offered to haul water to the schools from National Guard trucks, he said, so toilets will be flushed out. High school students must attend school because they are taking final exams today and Thursday, Hise said, but exam periods are being shortened and school will be dismissed by 12:30 p.m. "If we concentrate our efforts there (at the high school), we can probably open the cafeteria," he said. "The older students can probably handle themselves as far as restrooms and so forth." The restrooms can be used, he said, but "it's not a real sanitary condition." Hise said high school Principal Murray Murphy would let students go home for a while if necessary. The high school cafeteria had enough water this morning to prepare lunch, he said. Kentwood and Marcy Elementary Schools had no water Tuesday, but the schools were open, he said. Lunches at Marcy were served on disposable dishes.

Critical

allow the reservoirs to refill, he said. Under no circumstances should people water lawns, wash cars or fill swimming pools until the situation is restored to normal later this week, Boyd said. Fire Chief Carl Dorton said the fire department has enough water to fight fires as long there is nothing he termed "major." Dorton said the lack of tap water poses a serious fire risk for anyone without water who has not turned off his water heater. At worst, bare heating elements could ignite a fire or cause serious damage to the unit, he said. The cities of Midland and Odessa have offered assistance to Big Spring, and all local electrical firms have offered to help, Boyd said. The water emergency was triggered Sunday when a pump at the water plant malfunctioned. The failure isolated the low side of the water routing system, Decell said. Then, while attempting to repair a 30-year-old valve on another pump, a valve still under water pressure, a component slipped and water began rushing into the plant, he said. Seven feet of water "flooded the entire pump and filter galley," Decell said. "We then had a small fire in one of pieces of switch gear...the stream coming out of the valve got into the switch gear and we had a small flash fire." The fire department was called to extinguish the blaze. The water flooding the plant was pumped out by fire department equipment, he said. "Then we started shutting the entire city down," he said. "All of the pumps, all of the switches and motors were completely submerged," he said. Caldwell Electric was called in early Monday morning, Decell said. The motors were taken to back to the company where they were put in bake ovens to dry. Two pumps were re-installed Tuesday afternoon, but one pump failed to work and the other worked only momentarily, Decell said. "We were turning it on to check the rotation and it rotated correctly. We all breathed a sigh of relief, and then I turned my back and heard an explosion." Two of the plants four pumps were shipped to Odessa while the other two were taken to Lubbock to be rewound, a 24- to 36-hour job, Decell said. At 8 a.m., workers were installing a motor on loan from the Colorado River Municipal Water District and at 9 a.m. a motor was on its way back to Odessa. Decell said he hoped two pumps could be on line by noon to provide the city with water for basic hygiene this afternoon. The city is rerouting water from the municipal golf course to the city park reservoir with the use of fire department pumps. Also, water from the O'Barr well fields, about 20 miles from town, is being channeled into the city water supply, adding about a million gallons a day, Decell said. The city uses an average of 5 million gallons of water a day fed to the system by two to three pumps. On peak demand, residents use 12 million gallons a day, routed by four pumps, Decell explained.

restrooms and so forth." The restrooms can be used, he said, but "it's not a real sanitary condition." Hise said high school Principal Murray Murphy would let students go home for a while if necessary. The high school cafeteria had enough water this morning to prepare lunch, he said. Kentwood and Marcy Elementary Schools had no water Tuesday, but the schools were open, he said. Lunches at Marcy were served on disposable dishes. (which would indicate fecal pollution)," the news release said. Barker said the public would be notified when it's safe to drink the water without boiling. Officials said bottled water and well water are safe alternatives to the city water supply. Woodall said well water from Comanche Trail Park is safe. Hermans Continued from page 1A "Can't wash, can't bathe; it's very inconvenient. The city is funny. I've never seen anything like it. It looks like they'd let you know when you might get it back." Lois Thomas, who lives off Thorpe Road, hasn't had running water since Monday night, she said. "It's terrible, living in the primitive ages. We've used all our bottled water, which is expensive. "But we did go to City Park to get some water," she said. "We brought it back in cans, to flush the commodes." Scott Sledge of 2507 Albrock Road was one of the many who showered in Hermans'. He thinks he knows when Big Spring will get its water back. "You figure when people get to smelling bad they'll fix the water," he said.

Council finally approves hike in recreational fees

The City Council passed into law the long-expected recreational fee increases at their regular meeting Tuesday night.

The new fees are expected to go into effect immediately.

The council also passed on first reading an ordinance prohibiting parking on the north side of Kentucky Way from Birdwell Lane east to the west line of the alley east of Tulane Street.

Homeowners along the proposed no parking zone had complained to the council that cars blocked their driveways and people littered their yards during event at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Councilman Russ McEwen opposed the measure.

In other business the council: Passed on first reading a resolution authorizing the mayor to submit an application for Phase IV of a Texas Department of Community Affairs grant.

The city is seeking the $300,000 grant for making street and drainage improvements to the north side of town. The grant will be matched by $150,000 in city capital improvement funds.

Approved on first reading a resolution calling for additions to the city personnel policy concerning standards and acceptability of driving records, and parks and recreational privileges. The resolution allows city employees and their families to use city recreational facilities free on a daily basis as part of their compensation.

Passed on emergency reading a resolution approving official notice of sale, official bid forms, and official statements in an authorized announcement on the sale of $2.7 million in general obligation bonds.

The sale of the bonds, to take place in early June, will finance large-scale improvements to the city's water and sewage systems.

Re-appointed John Currie and Jim Little to the Colorado River Municipal Water District board of directors.

Heard a request by businessman Mike Hughes to give a more precise explanation for the forced resignation of former police chief Rick Turner.

"Really and truly, we just felt it was time for a change," said Mayor Cotton Mize.

Hughes, however, was not satisfied with the Mize's explanation and pressed further, only to get the same explanation from Councilmen Johnny Rutherford and Gary Don Carey.

Rutherford said in personnel matters the council has the right to keep certain things from the public.

Local restaurants close doors or haul in water

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Big Spring restaurants are either hauling water or closing today, for some the second day without water. Carlos' Restaurant, 308 N.W. Third St., has water, although the pressure is low, owner David Gomez said this morning. "It's still A-OK," he said. "We still have enough to get by on. I keep enough bottled water anyway in case of an emergency." He said he has enough bottled water on hand to last a couple of days, and he would be able to haul in water if necessary.

Business has been a little better than normal, he said. Many customers called in to see if the restaurant had water and then came to eat because they had no water at home, he said. Whataburger at 1110 Gregg St. had no water this morning, but employees got some from the city pump, and the Midland and Odessa offices are hauling some in, said assistant manager Francie Adams. Although Whataburger serves its food in disposable paper containers, some dishes must still be washed, she said. "This is a crisis and we have got to bear with it," she said. Herman's Restaurant was also open this morning. Co-owner Opal Wilkerson said water was being hauled in. "Everything's under control," she said. Water is being heated on the stove to sanitize dishes, bathrooms are closed, and the staff is making the coffee at home, she said.

Police make 4 drug arrests

Four persons were arrested Tuesday for drug-related offenses. Vicki Darlene Weiss, 30, of 1014 Runnels St. was arrested at 1202 E. Third St. on suspicion of delivering heroin and possession of drug paraphernalia.

Democratic ballot for the runoffs, she said. Friday is the final day for voters in Howard County Justice of the Peace Precinct 1 to cast their absentee ballots for the June 3 liquor-by-the-drink election. As of the morning, 313 absentee ballots had been cast for the liquor-by-the-drink election.

Reagan may ignore limits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan says he will disregard limits set by a 1979 treaty on U.S. and Soviet nuclear weapons unless he is convinced by the end of the year that alleged Soviet cheating has stopped.

In a decision announced Tuesday the president condemned the unratified SALT II accord as "fundamentally flawed" and said he will update American military forces according to U.S. "strategic needs."

It was the first time the United States asserted a readiness to break out of the Strategic Arms Limitation Treaty signed by President Carter and the late Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev at their Vienna summit, but never ratified by the Senate.

The U.S. could surpass treaty limits at the end of the year, when enough B-52s are equipped with air-launched cruise missiles to exceed one of the treaty's principal provisions.

Tapes played in trial

BALTIMORE (AP) — A former National Security Agency employee telephoned Soviet officials and arranged a night meeting to sell them secrets about U.S. spying on Russia, evidence indicated on the first day of his espionage trial.

Tape recordings entered as evidence Tuesday in the trial of Ronald W. Pelton indicated he arranged his meeting with Soviet embassy officials in telephone calls on Jan. 14-15, 1980. The tapes were played to the jury but not to reporters covering the trial.

In a transcript of the Jan. 14 conversation, edited before it was released to reporters, a voice described as that of Pelton told Soviet official Vladimir Sorokin that, "I have something I would like to discuss with you I think would be very interesting to you."

Former beret denied bail

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A former Green Beret major accused of masterminding the sale of 18 explosive devices to undercover federal agents posing as terrorists has been denied bail.

Magistrate Jamie C. Boyd Tuesday arraigned Albert James Paxton, 43; his wife, Frances "Frankie" Marion Paxton, 35; and David Thomas Nicewander, 33, on charges of conspiring to manufacture, possess and transfer unregistered explosive devices.

Albert Paxton was arrested Saturday in the parking lot of a San Antonio mall as he delivered what investigators with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms described as sophisticated explosive devices.

As Albert Paxton was arrested in San Antonio, other federal agents arrested his wife and Nicewander, who agents said served with Albert Paxton in the military, at the Paxtons' home in Round Rock.

Robert Rowe, resident agent in charge of the San Antonio office of the federal agency, said his investigator posed as a Mexican terrorist.

Police beat members of a large group of black women who went to Kempton Park (east of Johannesburg) magistrates court on Wednesday to protest against restrictions placed on a funeral for unrest victims in Tembisa township. Police gave women a few minutes to disperse before beating them with rubber whips.

Women's protest

Police beat up march with rubber whips

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police today used rubber whips to break up a group of black women marching to protest restrictions on riot victims' funerals, police said.

The clash in Kempton Park, a white town just east of Johannesburg, occurred when the women refused orders to disperse as they marched to a court to see the chief magistrate.

Elsewhere, police reported four more blacks slain in scattered unrest around the country. Two were burned to death by other blacks, and two were shot dead by police when a crowd attacked a foot patrol, police headquarters in Pretoria said.

At the Crossroads shanty city near Cape Town, government crews resumed clearing the rubble of shacks destroyed last week in fierce battles between rival groups of squatters.

Thousands of homes were razed in the fighting, leaving between 25,000 and 50,000 blacks homeless. There were conflicting reports of the number of fatalities in the four-day battle. Police had put the figure at 44, but a spokesman in Cape Town said it appeared the actual number might be 33, with the confusion possibly resulting from duplication of death reports.

In Kempton Park, a reporter estimated that about 300 women from the nearby Tembisa black township took part in the march, but a police spokesman in Pretoria put the number at 70.

He said the women twice refused orders to leave, and then police dispersed the group with whips — rubber whips.

Some women, including a number with babies strapped to their backs, suffered bruises but none appeared seriously injured, the reporter said.

The women were objecting to court restrictions on and bannings of funerals for those killed in unrest in black townships. Some in the crowd said such bannings merely anger black communities and lead to more bloodshed when mourners try to gather anyway and police react.

They carried placards declaring, "Stop Shooting Our Children," and "Stop Restrictions on Funerals." The group was about 500 yards from the court when confronted by a cordon of police.

A funeral for five Tembisa residents killed this month was banned twice, and permitted to take place on Thursday only after residents won a Supreme Court interdict saying the service could take place.

The court order limited the number of mourners to 1,300 — well below the usual turnout for such funerals, but much higher than the limits of 50 or 100 mourners often imposed for funerals.

With most other forms of political protest banned, funerals for riot victims often become mass anti-apartheid rallies, and restrictions against political speeches and the display of placards and banners are usually defied.

Under apartheid, South Africa's 5 million whites rule the nation's 24 million voteless blacks. More than 1,500 people, mostly blacks, have died in racial violence since September 1984.

In Crossroads, bulldozers plowed flat an area of 60 acres that housed tens of thousands of people just two weeks ago, but was devastated in the clashes between conservative black vigilantes and militant black squatters.

Gromyko, Khaddam meet

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Andrei A. Gromyko met with the Syrian vice president today in what Western diplomats have speculated is a Kremlin attempt to unite its criticism of U.S. and Israeli policies with that of its Arab allies.

The visit to Moscow by the Syrian official, Abdel Halim Khaddam, coincides with discussions between Soviet leaders and the Libyan government's No. 2 man, Abdel Salam Jalloud.

Jalloud was reported to have met Defense Minister Marshal Sergei L. Sokolov today, but the official Soviet news agency Tass did not say whether the two had agreed on new Soviet arms deliveries to Libya.

Tass gave no details of Gromyko's meeting with the Syrian vice president, and official media have not said how long either he or the deputy to Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafy will stay in Moscow.

Jalloud was received by Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev and Premier Nikolai I. Ryzhkov on Tuesday.

Assad ends visit to Athens

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Syrian President Hafez Assad returned to Damascus today after telling his Greek hosts that Syrians are not terrorists. But he vowed never to allow "injustice to be imposed upon us."

The Syrian leader, who arrived Monday on his first official visit to the West in eight years, was seen off at Athens Airport by President Christos Sartzetakis and Premier Andreas Papandreu.

Western diplomats said Assad's visit appeared designed to seek Greek help in mustering European support to counter charges that his government backs terrorists.

Armenians assassinated

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Assassins using silencer-equipped guns murdered two Armenians in west Beirut today, police said, and Shiite Moslems and Palestinians battled for a 10th day on the city's southern flank.

The slain Armenians were identified as Vahe Kassarjian, a dentist, and Krikor Ohannes, a photographer known as "Koko." Their deaths brought the number of Lebanese Armenians killed in Beirut's Moslem sector within the past two days to four.

Police said gunmen walked into Kassarjian's clinic near the American University Hospital, shot him dead and walked down two flights of stairs to escape in a waiting car at 11 a.m.

An hour earlier, a lone assassin entered Ohannes' studio near the offices of an-Nahar newspaper in west Beirut's Hamra commercial thoroughfare and killed him with one pistol shot to the head, police said.

They said they have no clue as to the motive behind the killings of the four Armenians. An Armenian tailor and a 75-year-old shopowner were murdered, also with silencer-equipped weapons, at their place of work on Tuesday, police said.

Union Carbide gets approval to increase discharged water

AUSTIN — The Union Carbide Corp. plant near Big Spring received approval Tuesday to increase the amount of water discharged from its cooling tower after dust storms.

The Texas Water Commission boosted the company's cooling tower discharge limit from 45,000 gallons to 80,000 gallons per day.

A commission engineer said the change will allow the company to replace dirty water in the cooling tower after dust storms that occur from time to time. The air separation plant is located next to Cosden Oil Refinery.

Journalists have active part in refurbishing Nixon image

Dark news for the country but bright news for journalists: Richard Nixon is back. Newsweek magazine, noting his role as an informal adviser to the Reagan administration, his success in writing books and articles and his growing acceptance by the public, says he "has rehabilitated himself," quoting John Dean's jibe: "He's running for the office of ex-president — and he's won."

Steve Chapman

You know as well as I do that this means a new onslaught of newspaper editorials, magazine stories and hastily-printed books about the Tricky One. We'll all get to relive the Hiss-Chambers case, the Checkers speech, the secret bombing of Cambodia, the Agnew resignation. And, of course, we'll all get to enjoy another wallow in Watergate.

Well, I'm sorry, but this is just too much. This latest development leaves me no choice but to reveal what all journalists know but for decades have concealed from their readers. Richard Nixon doesn't exist. Never did. He was created late one night some 40 years ago by a group of badly-dressed political reporters in a seedy East Coast bar, who had the crazy idea of inventing a politician so malevolent, creepy, mysterious and just plain weird that he would generate irresistible copy week in and week out.

Having concocted this answer to a newspaperman's dreams, the cabal decided to amuse themselves by running him for Congress, never imagining that such an unlikely candidate would win. Once their fictional politician had been elected, the journalists were obliged to perpetuate the charade, lest they be exposed as juvenile pranksters and sentenced to serve out their careers covering the budget hearings of suburban sewer commissions.

The only problem was how to produce this Congressman when a public appearance was required. Adapting a primitive robot, they equipped it with a cheap Halloween mask, a blue suit and a hidden tape player that enabled "Nixon" to bore his audience with a programmed speech, some stilted gestures and a few stock responses to questions, such as "Let me make this perfectly clear." The robot wasn't very appealing, but that was fine, since the group hoped it would bring a speedy end to a joke gone out of control.

But the longer they persisted, the worse things got. First, Nixon was picked to run with Dwight Eisenhower, who had gotten wind of the hoax and figured that an imaginary vice president was as good as no vice president at all. Then John Kennedy, tipped off by a friendly reporter, threatened to reveal everything unless the conspirators arranged for their invention to be his Republican opponent in the 1960 presidential election, thus guaranteeing his own victory. After getting him beat again in a race for California governor, they tried to dispose of him for good with that "you won't have Nixon to kick around anymore" press conference. But Republicans, by now inexplicably attached to this person they assumed was real, wouldn't give him up. And in 1968, they somehow elected him president.

Each step of the way, the creators tried harder and harder to destroy the creation, reviling him mercilessly and getting him into one fictional mess after another. Finally, by dreaming up the elaborate farce that became known as the Watergate scandal, they managed to remove Nixon from public life. But when they finally succeeded, they discovered an alarming fact: they couldn't live without him.

For three decades, their invention had not only enriched the news media, whose audience could never get enough of this bizarre character, but made their lives worth living. Where would Wile E. Coyote be without the Roadrunner? That's where the press found itself after forcing Nixon into premature retirement. So for 12 long years, we journalists have kept him around, gradually refurbishing his image, waiting for just the right moment to resurrect him.

And now, happy day, he's back, providing interviews, generating headlines, provoking controversy — and, not least important, occasionally enabling topic-hungry pundits to produce enough words to fill their allotted column space. Like so.

People need to be alerted to the dangers of alcohol

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: How can we learn to deal with disappointment and tragedy? Our teenage daughter was a beautiful, intelligent young woman with a promising future, but all that changed when a drunk driver hit her car. Now she is severely handicapped for the rest of her life. — C.A.

Billy Graham

DEAR C.A.: Every day I receive dozens of letters from people whose lives have been broken or scarred by alcohol — either by alcoholism or by the sort of tragedy you have experienced. It is no wonder the Bible warns, "Who has woe? Who has sorrow? Who has strife? ... Those who linger over wine ... In the end it bites like a snake and poisons like a viper" (Proverbs 23:29, 30, 32). We need to do more to alert people — particularly young people — about the dangers of alcohol.

one thing, He will help you adjust your life so you can not only give your daughter the help she needs, but you will find joy and peace in doing it. "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control" (Galatians 5:22-23).

Then Christ will also give you hope — both in this life and for eternity. God has a perfect plan for you and your daughter, and even if she is limited in her physical abilities she will be a success in God's eyes as she walks daily with Him and allows Christ to shape her character.

Whistleblowers get raw deal at the hands of bureaucrats

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA

WASHINGTON — Despite all the "protections" the government boasts about, whistleblowers who report wrongdoing by their bosses are having a tougher time than ever.

Consider the vengeance wreaked by the bureaucratic establishment on Elaine Mittleman, a Treasury Department lawyer whose only sin was trying to do the job she was being paid for. She was fired a few years back after a bitter dispute with her supervisors over Chrysler Corp.'s failure to make periodic reports to Congress, as required because of the federal bailout of the auto company.

Mittleman suspected that her firing was in reprisal for her strict enforcement of the bailout legislation. She took her case to the Office of Special Counsel, which was established, in part, to protect whistleblowers from retribution. But the office declined to help her and Mittleman left for a job in the private sector.

Recently, when Mittleman applied to the Office of Personnel Management for another government job, she learned just how difficult it is for whistleblowers these days. In a telephone call to the Office of Special Counsel, an investigator for the personnel agency was told that Mittleman had been suspected of leaking information to Congress and The New York Times while she was at the Treasury.

Mittleman insists she did neither, but the accusation has effectively blackballed her from government jobs. "The Office (of Special Counsel) is a Trojan horse," said Tom Devine, an attorney with the Government Accountability Project, a group dedicated to helping whistleblowers.

As a spokesman for the Office of Special Counsel explained, the official who relayed the charge against Mittleman was required by law to answer inquiries from the personnel agency; Special Counsel attorneys and their clients do not have to confidentiality that covers other attorney-client relationships.

Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., has introduced legislation that would remedy that crucial flaw, but she told our associate Stewart Harris she doesn't expect it to pass the Senate.

Meanwhile, according to a government survey, a growing number of potential whistleblowers are clamming up for fear of reprisals. Some of those who courageously blew the whistle have suffered for protecting the taxpayers. The number seeking help from the Government Accountability Project has almost tripled in the last two years. Here are some other cases from its files:

● Joseph D. Whitson, a chemist at an Air Force laboratory in Texas, found that drug testing of recruits was sloppy, and the results could be misleading if the subject had just eaten anything with poppy seeds — like a fast-food sandwich on a poppy-seed roll. After he testified to this effect in a court case, Whitson began getting unsatisfactory performance ratings and was shunted to a dead-end job where he spends his days "dusting the file cabinets in the basement where he has a desk."

● Hobart Bartley, an Agriculture Department meat inspector, was suspended after he declared 90,000 pounds of poultry tainted. His decision was overruled; he protested and was suspended for showing "disrespect" to the meat packing company.

● Postal employees David Patterson and Alvin D'Andrea told postal inspectors about an improper hiring scheme in Prince Georges County, Md. They were demoted, and even though the inspectors confirmed 43 illegal hirings, the two whistleblowers have yet to get their old jobs back.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: The U.S. Postal Service has been dumped by a fellow federal agency: the U.S. Mint. Officials decided they could save money by shipping collectors' editions of coins by United Parcel Service. "The savings were astounding," amounting to hundreds of thousands of dollars, a Mint official told us. Furthermore, private delivery services will make good on lost or stolen collections, which the Postal Service won't. Gold and silver collections are still sent by registered mail, however.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: The Red Army has another headache in Afghanistan: increasing evidence of collusion between Afghan army personnel and the mujahideen rebels. In one case, Afghan freedom fighters obtained identity cards issued by the Reconnaissance Directorate — the Afghan army's intelligence service — and used the cards to gain access to Kabul Airport and launch attacks on aircraft. Several intelligence officers, including the directorate's deputy chief, have been arrested for embezzlement and collaboration. Standing orders now forbid disclosure to any Afghan national of Soviet troop movements more than four hours in advance.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The nation's financially powerful insurance industry claims that it faces beggary and bankruptcy if Congress doesn't do something to "cap" sky-high jury awards in personal injury suits. Meanwhile, the industry moguls have raised their malpractice and other liability premiums to unconscionable heights. But for all its anguished caterwauling, the insurance industry has yet to open its books to prove its claimed suffering. We'd like to suggest that the insurers put up or shut up. For starters, we'd like to know how, as federal auditors found, the liability companies paid no income taxes on 10-year profits of $75 million.

Disasters test city's mettle

By HANK MURPHY

The recent Memorial Day weekend in Big Spring will long be remembered as one of the most bizarre three days in the city's history.

Shortly after 4 p.m. Friday, a 7,000 gallon oil tanker separated at the head of one of the city's two main thoroughfares and began pouring thousands of gallons of flammable crude down the streets.

Then Saturday night, a storm packing 56 mile per hour winds and about 5 inches of rain walloped the city. Streets became streams and jumbo hailstones pummeled cars in and around the city.

Finally on Sunday, a pump at the city's water treatment plant broke down, starting a series of events that ultimately shut off water throughout much of town. City officials could only shake their heads and wonder what calamity would strike next.

The jury's still out on how the city handled the pump malfunction, but as for the other two emergencies, the people in charge deserve thanks from the citizens of Big Spring for a job well done.

Had it not been for the quick actions Friday afternoon of the Big Spring Police Department, Public Utilities Director Tom Decell, Fire Chief Carl Dorton and their men, the rippling streams of oil flooding streets on the northside could have done enormous environmental damage to Beal's Creek, killing plant and animal life for miles. The flow of crude was stopped by a sand dike just a few hundred feet from a storm drain that would have put thousands of gallons of crude into the creek.

Furthermore, the river of volatile crude posed the potential for a catastrophic fire on the north end. Police moved quickly to seal the area from automobiles, as a spark from a catalytic converter could have ignited a blaze.

City officials were tested again during Saturday's torrential rains. The city's new warning system wailed twice, telling people of the punch packed by the storm while police, the sheriff's department and firefighters braved outside responding to emergencies and tracking funnel clouds.

The agencies and personnel involved in the twin efforts served the area with courage, dedication and true professionalism.

West Texas needs state officeholder

To the editor: Not a single statewide elected officeholder is from West Texas. The only opportunity for a West Texan to fill a statewide office would be the election of Jay Gibson to the Texas Supreme Court.

We need someone with our viewpoints and our values providing input at the statewide level. At the present time, every major statewide issue is being decided by people from the other areas.

On June 7th, in the Democratic run-off, Jay Gibson will need our support. If we allow this opportunity to go by, we would only have ourselves to blame for not taking advantage of the opportunity to help a "fellow West Texan" get on the November ballot.

Jay Gibson was named by Texas Monthly as one of the "ten outstanding legislators," and he has proven over the years to be an effective state representative for our West Texas area. Absentee balloting begins May 28th through June 3rd, with the run-off election set for June 7, 1986.

Husband wants old marriage altered

DEAR ABBY: I was divorced three years ago, after a six-year marriage. My husband has remarried, and his new wife is a Catholic. My ex-husband and I were both brought up in the Lutheran church. I heard from him recently; he tells me that in order for his wife to take communion, his marriage to me must be annulled. (Is that true?)

Abby, I kept my married name for the sake of convenience. If my marriage is annulled, will the legality of all the documents I've signed with my married name be questioned? And how can an annulment be initiated when an individual has already been divorced? I always thought an annulment declared the marriage to be non-existent, and a divorce acknowledges the fact that it existed but is dissolved.

Is this a process that involves only the church, or does it have legal ramifications as well? There are no children involved. My husband is sending me some "forms" to fill out and I need the above questions answered first.

NO NAME OR TOWN
DEAR NO NAME: Your ex-husband's Catholic wife cannot go to communion since she married a divorced man — that is why your ex is trying to get his marriage to you annulled.

Unless you had your maiden name restored in the divorce decree, you're entitled to use your married name. There's no way any effective question could be raised about the legality of documents you've signed since your divorce.

As for the annulment and the "forms" your husband is sending you, watch out! Annulment and divorce are entirely different. Inasmuch as you were divorced, there must have been a valid marriage that was dissolved by a divorce decree. A valid marriage cannot be annulled. A final word of advice: Do not sign anything that is not true, and see your lawyer.

DEAR ABBY: Recently a friend's husband passed away. The obituary notice read, "No calling hours."

Should I have called? I did not, but I have since learned that others friends did. Please clear this up for me.

PUZZLED IN NEW YORK
DEAR PUZZLED: The obituary notice was confusing. It should have read, "No specific calling hours," which would indicate that those who wished to call could do so at their convenience. "No calling hours" could be interpreted to mean "No callers at any hour."

Dear Abby to be honored at 30th anniversary gala

NEW YORK — "Dear Abby...With Love," a gala tribute honoring Abigail Van Buren for her 30 years as America's favorite advice columnist, will be held Friday. The gala will benefit The Suicide Prevention Center of Los Angeles and will be held at the Century Plaza Hotel.

Erma Bombeck will preside over the dinner dance as Mistress of Ceremonies. Marvin Hamlisch will perform in concert with the Wayne Foster Orchestra.

"Abby will be the first recipient of The Suicide Prevention Center's 'Distinguished Service Award' in recognition of her continuing contributions in the fields of suicide prevention and crisis intervention," said Dr. Joseph A. Shannon, director of The Suicide Prevention Center.

"For over 30 years, Abby's columns have provided a wealth of carefully researched information that has helped millions facing the problems of suicide and other forms of self-destructive behavior," said Shannon. "She is truly a national treasure."

Abigail Van Buren wrote her first advice column for the San Francisco Chronicle in 1956 — and three months later she was nationally syndicated. Her column has grown more popular over the years and today "Dear Abby" is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate to over 1,200 newspapers in the U.S. and abroad.

The Institute for Studies of Destructive Behaviors and The Suicide Prevention Center, incorporated in 1961, is a non-profit organization providing crisis intervention and follow-up therapy to clients. Proceeds from the gala will benefit the Center's research and treatment programs in suicide, alcohol and drug abuse rehabilitation, and other forms of self-destructive behavior.

Valve prolapse seldom a concern

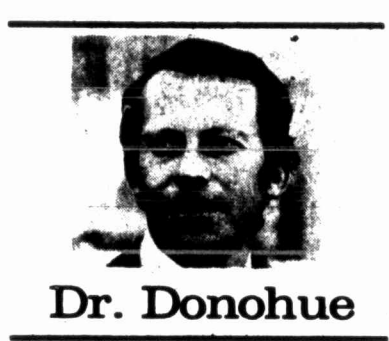

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is mitral valve prolapse serious or non-serious? Does it mean I have a bad heart? I can't tell you the terrible feeling I've had since being told about this problem that affects so many women. Please discuss it. — Mrs. G.M.

I wish I had a dime for every letter I've had over the years about mitral valve prolapse. I guess, first of all, we should let other readers in on just what it is.

The mitral valve is a heart valve, the one that controls blood flow from the upper left heart chamber to the left ventricle (lower chamber). It gets the name from those tall, peaked liturgical head-dresses worn by bishops and other important church leaders — miters. Normally, it flips open and closed with each beat of the heart so that just the right amount of blood gets to the ventricle, and then out to the body.

We all have a mitral valve. In some (as it turns out in quite a few of us) this valve tends to get a bit floppy. It balloons slightly back into the upper chamber during beats. This is a prolapsed mitral valve. The finding today is more of an incidental one than an indication of illness. At least 5 percent of the population have one. Women are, as you say, more prone to it than are men.

The commonplace nature of a condition does not make it more or less serious. We think of mitral valve prolapse as non-serious because it most often presents no future health problems. In a study of 5,000 people it was found that the floppy valve didn't seem to be a factor in heart irregularities. Those who had prolapsed mitral valve were as healthy as those who didn't have it.

Treatment for the condition is needed only when it is associated with other heart irregularities, like actual regurgitation of ventricle blood up into the upper chamber, or when other symptoms can be traced to it.

If you have prolapsed mitral valve and have been told not to worry about it, you can forget about it as well.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Does marijuana actually cause impairment of motor skills? — Mrs. T.S.L.
Yes. A study shows that motor skills can be impaired a full day after use without the person being aware of any present effect from the drug.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Ice cream used in creative summertime desserts

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

Ice cream is a summertime favorite, especially when it's "dressed up" for a special occasion. In today's Recipe Exchange, I have listed several creative ways to serve ice cream, whether it's a slice of chocolate coffee pie or a banana skyscraper.

If you would like to share a recipe with the Recipe Exchange, send it to The Herald Recipe Exchange, in care of the Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720.

Cover with remaining chocolate topping and nuts. Freeze until firm. Spread remaining coffee ice cream over frozen mixture. Freeze several hours or overnight. Combine whipping cream, sugar and cocoa. Chill 30 minutes. Whip cream mixture until stiff. Swirl over top of pie. Freeze until whipped cream is firm, at least 1 hour. To serve, place in refrigerator about 20 minutes; cut into small wedges. Place banana quarters upright with pointed ends up. Add 1 scoop chocolate ice cream. Drizzle with 2 tablespoons fudge sauce. Top with whipped cream and cherry. Makes 1 serving.

Continue beating while sprinkling sugar, a tablespoon at a time, over egg whites. Beat until stiff peaks form; fold in vanilla. Spread over pie, sealing edges. Return to freezer for 1 to 2 hours. Place pie on a wooden board. Bake in a preheated 475 degree oven until meringue is delicately browned, about 3 minutes. Serve immediately. Makes one 9-inch pie.

1 pound cake (10 1/2 ounce frozen or 12 ounce packaged)
1 pint chocolate ice cream, softened
1 pint raspberry sherbet, softened
1 1/2 cups whipping cream, whipped and sweetened
1/2 tsp. almond extract
Cut cake lengthwise into 4 equal layers. Spread chocolate ice cream on 2 layers; spread raspberry sherbet on remaining 2 layers. Stack layers on serving plate, alternating ice cream and sherbet layers. Freeze several hours. If freezing longer, wrap in plastic wrap after cake is firm. About 1 hour before serving, whip cream and fold in extract. Frost sides of cake with whipped cream. Decorate top and bottom edges of cake with whipped cream piped through a pastry tube. Return to freezer for up to 1 hour before serving. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

German teen continues winning streak

PARIS (AP) - Steffi Graf continued her winning streak Wednesday, beating American Gretchen Rush, while Ivan Lendl eased past Jakob Hlasek of Switzerland in the second round of the French Open.

On a day in which all but one of the women's seeds and half of the men's were set to begin the second round, Graf, the third-seeded 16-year-old West German, opened center court with a quick 6-1, 6-1 dismissal of Rush, from Mount Lebanon, Pa.

Lendl, the men's top seed from Czechoslovakia, followed with a 6-3, 6-3, 6-3 victory over Hlasek.

"Now it's round three," Lendl said. "All I really wanted to do today is win."

The lone American among the men's seeds, No. 13 Johan Kriek, beat Milan Srejber of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3. Jimmy Arias of the United States, who had been seeded 15th, pulled out Tuesday with a badly sprained ankle.

Also advancing was 13th-seeded Carling Bassett of Canada, rallying to beat Pascale Etchemendy of France 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

It is Bassett's first tournament since her father died of cancer two weeks ago, and she says she has rededicated herself to tennis to try to cope with the personal loss.

Other leading matches included No. 4 Yannick Noah of France against Sammy Giammalva of the United States; the women's No. 1, Martina Navratilova, against Larissa Savchenko of the Soviet Union, and No. 2 Chris Evert Lloyd against Nathalie Heremans of France.

Graf's victory over Rush was her 22nd in a row, stretching back over championships in four tournaments.

"At the beginning of the year I said my goal was to win a tournament and stay in the top 10," she said. "I think I've changed my mind on that."

The victory over Rush took 53 minutes — a marathon compared with the 34 minutes she needed to beat Andrea Betzner in the first round.

"I wasn't really concentrating on every point," Graf said. "It was difficult to play some of the balls because of the wind, and she wasn't playing that badly. She was running well."

Navratilova advanced easily Tuesday in her opening match, 6-3, 6-3 over Sandra Cecchini of Italy. At one point Navratilova missed a shot and Cecchini muttered: "She's not a god."

Winning among the men's seeds were No. 2 Mats Wilander, 6-0, 4-6, 6-1, 6-1, over Riccardo Acuna of Peru; No. 11 Martin Jaite of Argentina, 6-1, 3-6, 0-6, 6-2, 6-4 over Ronald Agenor of Haiti; and the French pair of No. 8 Henry Leconte over Spain's David de Miguel 6-3, 6-1, 6-3, and No. 10 Thierry Tulasne over Italy's Francesco Cancellotti 4-6, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2, 6-4.

Unseeded Frenchman Guy Forget, struggling in recent months, also won on center court, beating Pablo Arraya of Peru 6-3, 6-4, 3-6, 7-6.

Women's seeds to advance, besides Navratilova, included No. 5 Hana Mandlikova, rallying to beat Yugoslavia's Sabrina Goles 6-7, 6-3, 6-3. No. 4 Claudia Kohde Kilsch beat American Lori McNeil 6-4, 6-2. No. 10 Zina Garrison of the United States defeated Romania's Gabriela Dinu 6-2, 6-3; and No. 7 Kathy Rinaldi defeated Hu Na 6-1 6-1, in a match of Americans.

Three seeds were eliminated Tuesday.

Anne White of the United States, the women's 15th seed, lost to Laura Gildemeistr of Peru 6-1, 6-3; Paul McNamee of Australia beat No. 6 Swede Joakim Nyström 1-6, 6-3, 6-3, 6-0, and West Germany's Damir Keretic ousted 16th-seeded Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland 4-6, 6-2, 4-7, 6-8.

Noah was at the center of a big day for French players Tuesday.

In the best match of the tournament's first two days, he beat countryman Tarik Benhabiles 6-3, 6-4, 6-7, 6-7, 6-4, turning the crowd at center court into two distinct cheering sections.

"Yah-neek! Yah-neek!" half the crowd chanted. "Tah-reek! Tahreek!" the other half replied.

After 3 hours, 47 minutes, Noah's 16th ace ended his afternoon of frustration and Benhabiles' dreams of history.

"I went to a different state of mind," Noah said. At one point, he had the first two sets in hand and was serving with a 3-0 lead in the third. "I played sloppily. I thought I would win it quickly. ...

George Foster swung hard and hit a pitch from Tim Lincecum for a grand slam. After the next pitch, Ray Knight swung hard and hit Lincecum.

"I charged the mound. He tried to tackle me. I swung at him. Then I hit the ground — people were scratching at my face, so I started swinging again," Knight said, recalling a six-run, fight-interrupted sixth inning Tuesday night that led the New York Mets over the Los Angeles Dodgers 8-1.

The bench-clearing brawl came just after Foster had greeted Lincecum with his 13th career grand slam, capping the big inning and giving the Mets a 7-1 lead.

Lincecum stood glaring on the mound as Foster rounded the bases, and then hit Knight in the elbow with his next pitch.

"I felt sure he threw at me," Knight said. "I've always had the philosophy that I would never charge the mound unless I knew for sure."

Lincecum, who had marks around both his eyes, said the pitch to Foster, "was not where I wanted it to be, and neither was the one to Knight. ... I wanted the pitch to Knight to be up and in."

With runners on first and second and one out, Dickie Thon hit a grounder to the mound. Todd Worrell fielded the ball and threw to Smith for a forceout at second base, but Smith's throw back to first was wide.

It was the fourth error in 41 games this season for Smith, a six-time Gold Glove winner.

The host Cardinals scored three times in the seventh, two on Tommy Herr's homer, for a 3-1 lead.

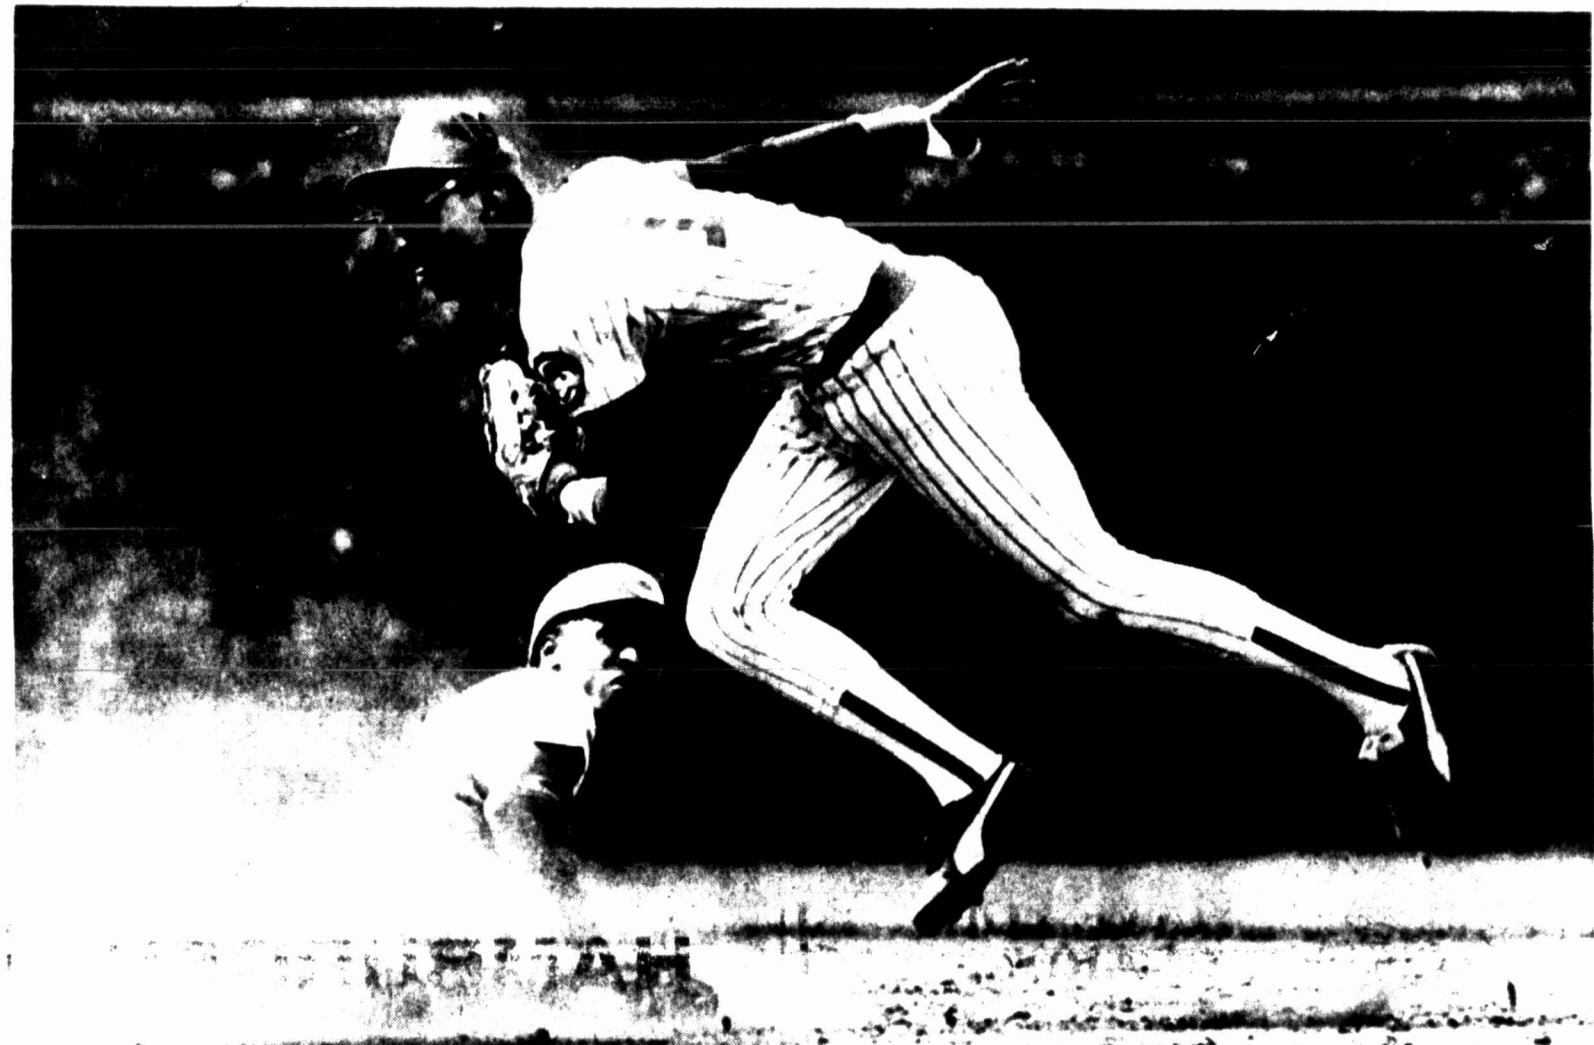

Dave Smith, 1-2, got the win, while Ken Dayley, 0-3, was the loser.

Celtics after home sweep

BOSTON (AP) — With three straight games at the Houston Summit next week, the Boston Celtics believe that Thursday's second game in Boston Garden is the most important of the NBA finals.

"We have to win this one, no question about it," said Larry Bird, who had 21 points, 13 assists and eight rebounds Monday as Boston won the best-of-seven series opener 112-100. "If we win, we know that the worst thing that can happen is that we'll get back to Boston for the last two games."

Bird recalled that the Celtics won last year's championship series opener 148-114 over the Los Angeles Lakers, then lost the second game in Boston 109-102 before losing the series in six games.

"We would have won the series last year if we had won Game 2," Bird said. "If we win on Thursday, we feel like we'll be in complete control."

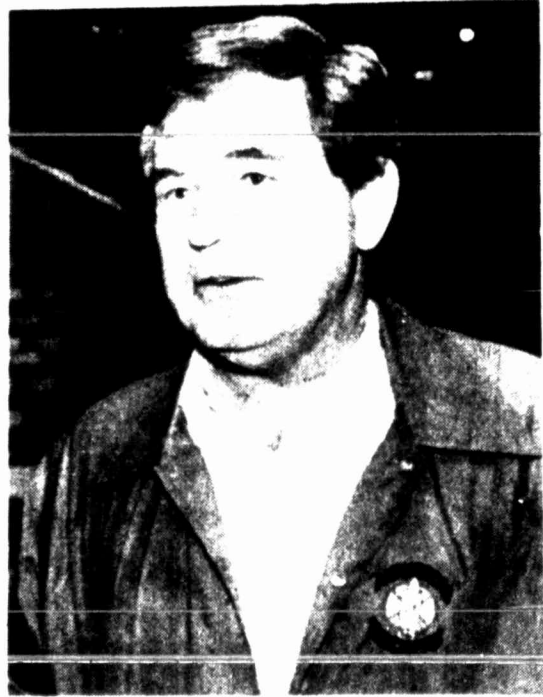

Boston Coach K.C. Jones, who has complained about the 2-3-2 homecourt format in the finals since last year, agreed with Bird about the significance of Thursday's game.

"The second game is the most important," Jones said. "We have to win to keep the homecourt advantage. The Rockets need a win here to have a chance to go home and win three."

The Celtics lost only one home game all season, and a Boston victory Thursday would give the Celtics 40 consecutive home victories. Still, they say they are not overconfident.

"You feel invincible after you win at home, but before the next game starts you remember a lot of times when the games were close, that you could have lost," Bird said. "You realize that you should be happy to get the win and not be cocky about it."

"We don't have a sense of invincibility at home," Jones said. "The first game was a good indication of that. We had to scratch it out. We had 10-point leads twice and they came back both times to win by one."

The Celtics led 24-14 in the first quarter and 38-28 early in the second period, but the Rockets rallied on both occasions. They also led 65-64 in the third period before a 27-11 streak put Boston in control.

"What bothers you the most is that you know what they're going to do and they're good enough to do it," said Houston Coach Bill Fitch, who coached the Celtics to the NBA championship in 1981 against Houston. "We couldn't always do that when I was here."

Spurs hire new mentor

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — New San Antonio Spurs coach Bobby Weiss promises a return to "old-time Spurs basketball."

But Weiss, who replaced the fired Cotton Fitzsimmons Tuesday to become the seventh head coach in the franchise's 13-year existence in San Antonio, admitted the rebuilding task won't happen overnight.

"We doubt it will be a one-year process," said Weiss, a Dallas Mavericks assistant coach for the last six seasons. "It could take several years."

One of the highest-paid assistant coaches in the NBA, Weiss earned approximately $95,000 this past season. His contract with the Spurs is a multi-year deal, believed to be in excess of $125,000 per year, although the actual length and amount were not disclosed.

Assistants Allan Bristow of Denver and Mike Schuler of Milwaukee also were candidates for the job.

Spurs General Manager Bob Bass said the Spurs did not interview unemployed San Antonio resident Stan Albeck, the winningest coach (62.2 percent) in franchise history. Albeck lost his job in Chicago last week and had phoned the Spurs during the interview process.

"Angelo (Drossos) never considered him as an applicant," Bass said. "Stan called him in the first place. Remember, Stan left here (in 1983). He was not fired. I was surprised he ever called Angelo."

The Spurs' coaching position became available when Fitzsimmons was fired April 28 after a 35-47 season, which included a last-place finish in the Midwest Division and a three-game playoff loss to the Los Angeles Lakers.

"I hope the slide has stopped. I hope it has bottomed out," Weiss said. "We're not looking for the division championship next year, but you never know what can happen."

Weiss' first order of business is a trip to Chicago to evaluate prospective draftees.

Current San Antonio assistants Don Buse and Gary Fitzsimmons, the son of Cotton Fitzsimmons, will be considered for continued service. Weiss, however, said he already had at least one other candidate in mind.

Weiss' background as a player and a three-hour meeting with Bass last Wednesday on basketball philosophy were two of the factors that helped Weiss land the job, Bass said.

"I'm really happy to get an ex-player," Bass said. "We've only had one here before, Doug Moe. He (Weiss) has a good first-hand knowledge of what the players go through."

One of his players, All-Star guard Alvin Robertson, is looking forward to playing for Weiss.

"I'm sure he's happy to be the coach. I'm happy to play for him," Robertson said. "I know I want to do everything I can to help the Spurs win."

An alumnus of Penn State, Weiss was drafted by the Philadelphia 76ers in 1965 and spent the next 12 years playing for six NBA teams.

His best years were with the Chicago Bulls, where he played under current Mavericks coach Dick Motta in the early 1970s. A 6-3 left-handed guard, Weiss teamed with Jerry Sloan and Norm Van Lier as aggressive defensive specialists.

Weiss' active career ended in 1977, three years after a six-season streak of playing in 538 consecutive games.

Weiss was a San Diego assistant for before coaching in Dallas.

Promising to instill a wide-open running game reminiscent of the Spurs' glory years, Weiss predicted fans would enjoy the new look.

"We will open up the offense, we will run, and our style will look like the Spurs in their heyday. We will regain the magic the Spurs once held for their fans," he said.

San Jacinto escapes with extra inning victory

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP) — Bookdale, N.J., battled back furiously Tuesday night, scoring three runs in the ninth inning and six in the 10th to lead defending champion San Jacinto, Texas, 11-5 going into the bottom of the 10th inning.

Then Brookdale, quite simply, gave the game to San Jacinto.

"It was the twilight zone," said San Jacinto Coach Wayne Graham. "You saw it. We played a good ballgame except for one inning. Then we stunk up the place," said Brookdale Coach Paul MacLaughlin. "Now we have to forget about it and come back tomorrow."

In the 10th, three Brookdale pitchers walked in three runs, wild pitched another in, hit a batter for another charity run and walked another batter to load the bases for San Jac's Mike Simon to win the game with a two-run, one-out double.

That gave the Gators a 12-11 victory, sending them into Wednesday night's winners' bracket game against Brevard, Fla., the only other unbeaten team left in the tournament.

"You've always got a chance here as long as the game isn't over," Graham said.

At the same time, the eight errors committed by the Gators "were the most one of my teams has ever had in one ballgame," he said.

Brookdale, 37-8, drops to the loser's bracket to play Nassau, N.Y., which eliminated Spartanburg, S.C., 9-1 on Tuesday.

Yavapai, Ariz., an 8-7 victor over Southern Idaho in the loser's bracket Tuesday, gets a bye

Wednesday and will play the San Jacinto-Brevard winner on Thursday.

San Jacinto's Joe Don Bourque hit a two-run homer in the seventh to break a 2-2 pitchers' duel, and the Gators, 50-12, made it 5-2 in the eighth on Dave Vasquez's RBI single.

The Jersey Blues stormed back in the ninth, scoring three runs to tie the game on Tracy Pankoski's double to deep left-center field.

In the 10th, Brookdale scored six runs, with Tony Bellavia hitting a triple and Jeff Kipila slamming a three-run homer, to lead 11-5.

Then Brookdale gave it all away. Mark Schuster, who had relieved starter Vic Aronson in the seventh, gave up a double to Vasquez; a walk, a Texas League single to Ken Griffin and walked in a run before being pulled for Kipila.

Kipila promptly threw a wild pitch to allow another run, hit batter Don Wright to push in the third Gator run of the inning and walked in yet another run as Brookdale's lead shrunk to 11-9.

Dave Supsie came on in relief and coaxed Jeff Miller into a pop-up. But then he walked in the fifth give-away run of the inning and Simon hit his game-winning double to right-center field.

Earlier, Southern Idaho's Kevin Lofthus hit three consecutive home runs, one a grand slam, but Yavapai hung on to win 8-7 and eliminate the Golden Eagles.

Yavapai drew first blood, scoring six unearned runs in the third inning with homers by Brad Hebert and Kelly Clairmont.

Yavapai scored two more in the fifth, with catcher Brian Deak clubbing a solo home run.

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, MAY 29, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day when you are nearly driven to put into motion an unusual course of action, but first organize your efforts to make everything work smoothly under present conditions.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Calm down a good friend who wants to act too hastily where some joint venture is concerned.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Plan how to advance in interests that mean much to you. Don't try to force an important person to act too soon.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Study every phase of a new course of action you have set up for yourself and be sure of every item connected with it.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You now understand how to make all of your affairs run more smoothly, so get busy on that.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Don't be forceful in trying to get an unusual person to go along with your plans, so use diplomacy and all will be fine.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Schedule your time more sensibly and you can handle all of your activities more wisely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) During spare hours enjoy amusements you like with congenials and feel happier. Be happy at home with your companion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Don't argue at home but establish more harmony there instead. Get your home in better order.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You want to accomplish a good deal in the outside world and can do so if you plan your time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Not a good day to make any big changes in financial or property affairs. Set up a more sensible budget.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You desire to have new outlets in personal life, so plan just how to get into them in the near future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Get into the privacy of your study and think out how to make the future brighter for yourself.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be capable of rightly arranging his or her life according to current trends, but must learn to plan more intelligently. Education in such things as computers, electronics, and the like can be very helpful in expressing the fine talents here.

"The Stars impel; they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

sive replacement, hit a grand slam with two outs in the 12th that lifted Atlanta over Pittsburgh.

Expos 5, Padres 4

Hubie Brooks' RBI groundout broke a 4-4 tie in the seventh inning and gave Montreal its victory over visiting San Diego.

Mitch Webster, who had three hits, opened the seventh by reaching base on an error by Tim Stoddard, 1-2. Webster stole second, took third on a fly ball and scored when Brooks grounded out to third baseman Graig Nettles, who was unable to throw home.

Reds 5, Cubs 4

Dave Parker singled four times, including a drive off the right-field wall that snapped a 2-2 in the fifth inning and sent Cincinnati past Chicago.

Red Sox 2, Indians 0

Now you see it, now you don't. Boston center fielder Tony Armas saw Mel Hall's fly ball emerge from the fog that shrouded Cleveland Stadium just in time to catch it for the final out of the Red Sox' 2-0 victory over the Indians on Tuesday night.

The final out, however, came in the bottom of the sixth inning. Armas' adventure forced a halt in the game for the second time, and 1 1/2 hours later the umpires called it off.

Rangers 6, White Sox 3

Oddibe McDowell doubled, homered and scored three runs to back the four-hit pitching of knuckleballer Charlie Hough as Texas upped its lead in the AL West to one game over California. Two of the hits off Hough were home runs by Tim Lulett and Greg Walker.

With Chicago leading 2-1, McDowell, who homered off Richard Dotson in the third inning, ignited a two-run rally in the fifth with a leadoff double. Scott Fletcher was hit by a pitch and both runners advanced on Pete O'Brien's fly ball. McDowell scored as Pete Incaviglia grounded out and Gary Ward gave the Rangers the lead with an RBI double.

Brewers 9, Royals 1

Charlie Moore had a bases-loaded triple, Rob Deer hit two home runs and the Milwaukee Brewers scored seven unearned runs to back the seven-hit pitching of Teddy Higuera. Fielding miscues in the first and third innings by shortstop Angel Salazar, who earlier this season set a Royals team record with 35 consecutive errorless games, led to the seven unearned runs.

Twins 7, Blue Jays 6

Tim Laudner's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the 11th inning enabled Minnesota to beat Toronto for the second night in a row, something the Twins hadn't accomplished since September, 1983. With one out in the 11th, Kent Herbek drew a walk from Tom Henke and Tom Brunansky doubled him to third. After Gary Gaetti was walked intentionally, Jim Ackler relieved Henke and Laudner hit his sacrifice fly.

Commissioners to hear about downtown plans

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Staff Writer
Howard County commissioners will be informed Tuesday morning of recent developments in the restoration of downtown Big Spring by the city's downtown development coordinator Teri Quinones.

The commissioner's court will meet at 9 a.m. Tuesday on the second floor of the county courthouse.

According to the agenda, commissioners will consider a contract drawn up by the downtown steering committee to hire downtown planner Robert J. Lima.

Commissioners in February voted to allocate $10,000 of county funds to the downtown steering committee, which used the funds to apply for a grant study conducted by the Texas Community Development Program.

Commissioner O.L. Brown and County Judge Milton Kirby voiced their disapproval of the downtown steering committee's request for the funds.

Brown said he was upset that he had not been consulted when former city administrator Pat Hardy said a portion of the funds would be used to conduct a study of the North Highway 87 thoroughfare leading into downtown.

Kirby said his understanding of using county funds donated to the steering committee was that they be used for parks and historical markers.

Also scheduled for Monday's meeting is a purchase bid from Julian Rodriguez on Lots 7, 8, 9, and 10 of Block 16 in the Jones Valley Addition.

Dr. Jack Woodall and county sanitation supervisor James Luck will also continue their discussion with commissioners regarding the indigent health care bill, which goes into effect Sept. 1.

INSURED MUNICIPALS
INCOME TRUST

This prospectus represents the net annual interest income after annual expenses, divided by the public offering price as of 5/22/86 (Series 184). It varies with changes in either amount and with the particular payment option. The terms of the insurance policy are more fully described in the prospectus. No representation is made as to the insurer's ability to meet its commitments. The AAA rating is due to an insurance policy issued by American Municipal Bond Assurance Corporation (AMBAC) and relates only to the units of the trust and not the bonds in the portfolio. The insurance does not remove the market risk since it does not guarantee the market value of the units. Portions of this return may be subject to state or local taxes. Due to future delivery of a portion of the portfolio, on deposit date, the actual first year return will be 1/8% lower than the annual interest current return. This difference will still be paid to the unit holder the first year but will be called a principal distribution rather than tax-exempt interest.

Skydivers' wedding falls through

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

An elaborately planned wedding to have taken place some 9,000 feet above Big Spring Saturday was cancelled minutes before the ceremony after the bride and groom had a spat.

Stacy Kates and Bill Rothe of Andrews were to have wed in a DC-3 cargo plane and the entire wedding party planned to parachute down to earth Saturday at Big Spring Airpark.

"SWOOP," the Southwest Organization of Parachutists; is having its southwest conference championship meet at the airpark through Monday.

The bride planned to wear a white skydiver's jumpsuit, with her bridesmaid Tracy Durbin in a mauve jumpsuit. Rothe and his best man Bruce Harrington were to wear tuxedos under the parachutes strapped to their backs, Kates said. Competition judges said the wedding was cancelled when the bride and groom argued after the groom's tuxedo didn't arrive as scheduled before the ceremony.

The wedding party was to jump from the plane together after the ceremony and form a small circle in the air, Kates said Friday. Up to 20 skydivers then would jump from the plane one by one and swoop in to join the circle, symbolizing the wedding ring. Wedding invitations had a picture of the maneuver and said, "May the circle be unbroken."

The skydivers planned to remain in the circle for about a minute and 20 seconds before breaking off and opening their parachutes, she said. "It would be something different, something to remember," Rothe said Friday.

"It just seemed to fit, since (Rothe) makes his living through aviation," Kates said. Rothe, a pilot, owns Andrews Aircraft Maintenance. "The shoe fits for us.

Everyone else thinks we're crazy." The bride and groom met at Andrews Aircraft Maintenance's 75th wedding anniversary, when Kates and Durbin were contracted to do a skydiving show.

"I knew she was with Westex (skydiving club in Stanton), and I found myself going there every weekend," Rothe said. That was when he took up skydiving.

Kates had been jumping since 1977, when she joined the Army. She was a parachute rigger, one who packs parachutes correctly and makes sure equipment is in order.

Liquor issue sparks battle

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

Citizens fighting for liquor by the drink are concentrating on economics, while those fighting against the proposed ordinance are targeting religious beliefs.

The two sides will meet at the polls June 3 for a referendum called by a citizen's petition drive.

Spreading the word through the pulpit will be the most effective way to fight the liquor-by-the-drink effort, Citizens Against Legalized Liquor decided at a meeting Thursday night.

The group was organized Monday to inform the public of the problems that will arise from the legalized sale of liquor by the drink," member Bobby Fuller said. Another meeting is planned for 7 p.m. Tuesday at the Chamber of Commerce office.

About 17 people attended Thursday's meeting, representing Baptist, Church of Christ and Catholic churches, members said.

The group plans to contact pastors at Big Spring's more than 50 churches and influence them to urge their parishioners to vote against liquor by the drink.

Church buses from the E. Fourth

Street Baptist Church, First Baptist Church, College Baptist Church and possibly others will be available to take people to the polls who need a ride on election day or for absentee voting, said Fuller. Absentee voting continues through May 30.

The group voted overwhelmingly not to grant interviews with the press and turned down a request by a local radio station for a debate against the ordinance.

Instead, it will run advertisements "focusing on the tragical things that will happen to our families" if the law is enacted, Fuller said. The ads will also show statistics to prove false the opposition's argument that the move would be good for Big Spring's economy, he said.

"It won't cause Big Spring to flourish; it'll cost us," he said. However, the group would not release to the press the statistics in question.

But attorney Ben Bancroft, who favors the ordinance, says liquor by the drink is primarily an economic issue. Bancroft organized and helped push through a petition to get the matter on the ballot.

Legalizing liquor by the drink would help Big Spring grow, he said. The city would collect taxes on the drinks, and it would improve the tourist industry, he said. It would also attract more restaurants and conventions to Big Spring, he said.

"Just about every major city has liquor by the drink," he said.

Bancroft said having mixed drinks would not cause crime to rise because "you can already buy liquor by the fifth."

"It doesn't make any sense to be able to buy liquor by the case" but not one drink at a time, he said.

Absentee voting on the issues continues until May 30 in the county clerk's office.

As of Friday morning, 224 votes had been cast absentee in the election, County Clerk Margaret Ray said.

She said a number of voters had expressed confusion over who is eligible to vote in the election. The election covers Justice of the Peace Precinct 1, she said, not Commissioner's Precinct 1.

Violent storm batters county

By SPENCER SANDOW
Staff Writer

A violent storm of high winds, hail and more than three inches of rain whipped through Howard County Saturday night stranding motorists, flooding roads, damaging cars and knocking out power.

The city's emergency sirens wailed at approximately 8 p.m. and again at 9:51, warning people of the approaching storm.

Many roads in and out of Big Spring were closed to traffic as water up to a foot-and-a-half deep swamped the city's thoroughfares.

The sheriff's department reported at 10:50 p.m. that a car became stranded in high waters in a creek near Highway 350 and the old airport road. There was fear that a child was swept away by a torrent of flood water.

There were also reports of a home being flooded near Sandy Creek at Farm Road 700 and Interstate 20.

Tornadoes were spotted near the city throughout the evening, but no damage was reported.

One twister touched down twice

18-19 miles north of Big Spring and again 13 miles north between 9:30 and 10 p.m. Saturday, according to police radio reports.

Another tornado was reported by the National Weather Service at 9:36 p.m. four miles south of Stanton. The service also reported possible tornadoes six miles east of Coahoma and 10 miles west of Westbrook between 9:30 and 9:45 p.m.

Funnel clouds were reported by police east of Midway Road, near Coahoma, and west of Big Spring during that time.

Although no tornadoes were reported in Big Spring, there were reports of extremely high winds, that damaged the roof at the Salvation Army on Aylford Street, rattled windows and pushed out car windshields.

Flooding also was reported, especially heavy on the north side of town. Snyder and Lamesa Highways were reported flooded, as well as E. Second Street, E.

Third Street, N.W. 12th Street and N. Lancaster Street.

Heavy lightning was reported west of Big Spring by police radio, and intense electrical activity was observed northwest, northeast and east of Big Spring. Heavy winds blew power lines in a deadly arc on west Highway 80, police said.

Lightning struck Sid Richardson's carbon plant, but no fire was reported, according to a police radio transmission.

Power was out several parts of Big Spring between 8:30 and about 9 p.m. Saturday.

Malone-Hogan Hospital sustained a brief power failure and went on its emergency generator system, a spokeswoman there said.

BIG SPRING TRAVEL TALK
by Mary Valli

DOWN UNDER AND OVER

Think of a beautiful green island that is 190 miles long and 180 miles wide. Cover it with lush rolling pasture and large tracts of virtually unexplored wilderness. Pamper excesses of heat and cold. Blend in a proud and viable British colonial history. Then, populate it with 424,600 Australians who prefer to be known as Tasmanians. Add clean water and air, good roads and uncrowded recreational areas. The result is the makings of what is, inexplicably, one of the most underrated, least known destinations in the entire southern hemisphere, Tasmania. Along with miles of empty coastline, it is rich with country inns, pubs and tidy little villages.

From "down under" to most anywhere else in the world, your travel dreams will become life's reality when you come to BIG SPRING TRAVEL, 608 Scurry. Our professional staff will help you plan your itinerary and provide the support service necessary so that the worries and trouble of travel are removed and your only task will be to enjoy yourself completely. Police seek suspects in woman's murder

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

Police are searching for two young men suspected of murdering and sexually assaulting 81-year-old Ara Erline Bohannon at her home about 3 a.m. Friday morning.

Police found her body in a bedroom of her ransacked home at 1106 Howell St. at about 4:30 p.m. Friday bound by the feet and gagged, Lt. Jerry Edwards said. Edwards said it appeared she had been strangled with a piece of clothing. The murder was one of the most brutal he had ever investigated, he said.

The victim's home had been burglarized, and her 1973 red Ford Maverick, license plate BAH-778, was stolen, Edwards said.

Saturday, police conducted door-to-door searches for the suspects, one of whom is believed to be Hispanic. Edwards said police were uncertain of the other suspect's ethnic origin.

The killers are believed to have entered through the back of Bohannon's house in which she lived alone, Edwards said.

Local pathologist Dr. Robert Rember was scheduled to perform an autopsy Sunday ordered by Justice of the Peace Willie Grant.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Sun Country's plan can help sell your home

Sun Country Realtors, Inc. has a plan of action for selling your home.

1. Turn into Multiple Listing Service as soon as possible.
2. Newspaper advertising.
3. Yard sign. An excellent marketing tool.
4. Qualify buyers.
5. Control appointments and key.
6. Preview of your home by our agents as soon as possible.
7. Set up showing MLS agents.

8. Prepare Market Analysis if requested.

9. Provide financial counseling.
10. Picture and description of your home in MLS book.
11. Loan follow-through.
12. Set up closing of sale.
13. Open house when requested.
14. Relocation information.
15. Status reports on your home.
16. Market status report.
17. House selling tips.
18. Maintenance when necessary.

Now there is something the staff at Sun Country Realtors will not do for you. They won't tell you they will buy your home if they don't sell it, because they don't believe in using gimmicks and come ons to get your business. They believe in a sincere, honest approach.

It is Sun Country's practice to avoid high pressure tactics. Just like the Golden Rule, the staff's objective is to treat all their clients and customers like they would like to be treated. That is why Sun Country's motto is "Professional service with a personal touch."

Sun Country's staff includes:

PATTI HORTON — co-owner and broker, graduate of the Real Estate Institute (GRI), certified residential specialist (CRS), and a candidate for the Residential Member designation, American Institute of Real Estate Appraisals.

JANELLE DAVIS — co-owner and broker, graduate of the Real Estate Institute (GRI).

JANELLE BRITTON — co-owner and broker.

LINDA WILLIAMS — broker, graduate of the Real Estate Institute (GRI).

KATIE GRIMES — broker. Come see the staff at Sun Country Realtors about selling or buying a home. Sun Country is located at 2000 S. Gregg.

BUSY WORKERS — At Sun Country Realtors, Inc., coffee cups are the only things that sit around! Sun Country has the best iced coffee around. They order coffee one day and it just sits around for several days and gets real cold. The staff doesn't have time to sit around with it; they are too busy doing their job — selling homes.
