Staff Writer William "Bill" Shankles, who won Saturday's Democratic primary runoff for justice of the peace in Precinct 1 Place 2, will begin filling the position this month. County commissioners approved a motion this morning appointing him to the vacancy created when Lewis Heflin died Shankles is assured the job after the November general election, because he faces no opposition on the Republican The motion to appoint Shankles was made by Commissioner William Crooker. Commissioner O.H. "Louie" Brown cast the only dissenting vote.

Brown said during pre-vote discussion that he thought Linda Arsiaga, who submitted a resume to the court, should be appointed to the vacancy.

McCann and Arsiaga were among five persons who submitted resumes for the job. Others were Sammie McMullan, Eddie Owen and Jerry Roach. McCann told commissioners this morning she was qualified for the job because she attended a justice of the peace training seminar in San Angelo last month. She also asked commissioners to consider the ethical issue of "protecting the voting rights" of the public. She cited state statutes that say the winner of the general election does not take office until Jan. 1.

However, County Attorney Tim Yeats told commissioners no statute existed prohibiting the appointment of a primary winner

Kirby told McCann she was trying "to burden the commissioner's court" by bringing up voter's rights. "It's not our (the commissioner's court) job to read the future," he said.

5 students kidnapped, assaulted

SAN ANGELO (AP) - Two masked men kidnapped and sexually assaulted five Angelo State University students at gunpoint in a secluded area near Lake Nasworthy, authorities said.

The students, three women and two men, were systematically assaulted for three hours Sunday near the location of a similar, unsolved crime that occured nearly three years ago, sheriff's deputies

They said an attempted robbery was reported in the area Thursday

"It appears that it was very well organized," said Lt. Bill McCloud of the Tom Green County Sheriff's Office. "I don't think they were in mind as particular victims. It would have been anyone who was out there .... No one was within five miles to hear them.

The men confronted the students about 2 a.m. as they were visiting around a picnic table on a hill overlooking San Angelo and near the spillway at Twin Buttes Reservoir, said McCloud and Lt. Lou Hargraves, both criminal sheriff's investigators.

Brandishing guns and wearing ski masks and gloves, the men ordered the students to lie face down on the ground. Two of the women and one of the men were handcuffed and the others had their hands tied behind their backs with ropes, the investigators said.

The kidnappers drove the victims in the students' two vehicles through the brush to a secluded clearing about one-half mile closer to the lake, the investigators said.

They said the women, all in their 20s, were raped repeatedly and were forced at gunpoint to perform oral sex acts on their male companions, both in their 20s, and on the two kidnappers.

The investigators said one suspect held a knife to a woman's throat. No descriptions are available except the kidnappers 'talked like ol' West Texas country boys," McCloud said. The kidnappers took one of the male students with them as they drove from the clearing in the student's pickup truck. They released him about one-half mile from the assault scene The student returned to his companions and unbound them. The victims drove in their other car to telephone police from a nearby convenience store. The women were examined at Angelo Community Hospital and interviewed by authorities. Authorities found the pickup truck within 100 yards from where a pickup truck was abandoned July 10, 1983, after a similar crime,

Derailed tank car continues to burn

SAN ANTONIO - A fire continued to burn today in one railroad tank car following a derailment and explosion at a flood-weakened bridge that injured five people and forced evacuations of as many as 2,000, said authorities.

Officials said the fire could continue to burn for days.

Most residents within a twomile radius of the Salado Creek bridge had returned to their homes after five tankers caught fire Sunday in the derailment of 32 cars from a Missouri Pacific freight train. Railroad crews constructed dams on the muddy creekbed to contain any spills from the burning car, which contained the flammable gas butadiene, and the other tankers. But authorities decided to let the fire burn itself out. 'The decision to let it burn is the right decision," said Mayor Henry Cisneros, because pouring water on it would only flush chemicals into the creek.

The car containing the chemical used to make syn thetic rubber, plastics and other chemicals exploded in flames and the fire spread to four other cars on the 80-car train, authorities said.

One of the other tank cars also contains butadiene, while a third holds formaldehyde. Joe Candelario, the city's emergency management coordinator, said today the content of the other two cars was unknown, but all could be leaking chemicals. He said a 2.500-foot radius around the tank cars remained off limits to crews and residents

"They are just going to let it die out because they don't want to put water on it," said a spokesman at the city emergency management office who declined to be identified. "It has died down quite a bit, though. I guess it is in the final stages.

The derailment occurred about 500 yards from a runway at the San Antonio International

Atom smasher meeting set in Garden City

Booster problems began in 1973

WASHINGTON (AP) -Presidential investigators reported today that neither the astronauts nor ground controllers "had any warning of impending danger" as the shuttle Challenger struggled futilely against forces that were tearing it apart.

Even if there had been warning, there was no way the seven astronauts could have escaped the explosion that destroyed the shuttle 73 seconds after liftoff, according to the report of a presidential commission.

The commission said it was "an accident rooted in history" that began in 1973 with a poorly designed rocket joint, followed by the failure of NASA and its contractors to recognize it as a problem, their failure to fix it and their conclusion it was an acceptable flight risk.

The report concludes that the Jan. 28 explosion was caused by the failure of a pressure seal in a joint on the right booster rocket.

Among the factors which the commission said contributed to the failure was the effect of cold temperatures on synthetic O-rings designed to seal the joint and keep hot gases from escaping. Challenger was launched when the temperature was 38 degrees, 15 degrees colder than on any of 24 earlier flights.

The cold robbed the O-rings of resilency, reducing their ability to contain the gases, the panel said.

There was plenty of warning from lower-level engineers that the joints were badly designed, including one report that said they could cause a catastrophe that would destroy the shuttle and its crew, the report said.

But it said these warnings went unheeded by top officials of both the space agency and the manufacturer, Morton Thiokol.

Up to the moment of launch. some Morton Thiokol engineers argued against launching in the cold. They pointed out that all four of an $800 million contract on Nov. flights launched below 61 degrees had significant O-ring erosion. On the 20 launched in warmer temperatures, only four joints showed such stress.

The report also said the joints were unacceptably sensitive to launch pressures such as those built up on ignition and by highaltitude winds, questionable materials, the possibility of damage during manufacture and segment stacking and the effects of reusing the segments, which expand with each launch. The report traces the history of the booster rockets from the award

20, 1973, to Morton Thiokol to develop them.

Three companies competed with Morton Thiokol for the contract and a NASA evaulation rated Morton Thiokol second, but the company was selected because "cost advantages were substantial.

NASA officials decided Morton Thiokol's technical flaws were correctable, and they liked the selection of a design based on the Air Force's reliable Titan 3 solid rocket But, the commission said, the Officials said parts of the bridge and an undetermined number of cars on the 80-car Missouri Pacific freight train plunged to the creekbed.

The concrete bridge appeared to have collapsed as the train rumbled onto it just after 1 p.m., which triggered the explosion and fire, said Assistant City Manager Rolando Bono.

But Candelario said authorities are unsure whether the bridge collapsed or how the derailment began.

Acting City Manager Lou Fox

said the bridge had been weakened by high waters from heavy rains that flooded San Antonio last week.

Two witnesses. Victor and

Judy Blackburn of Ingram, told the San Antonio Light they were sure the bridge did not collapse. 'The boxcar was tearing up the trackbed. It was not the bridge; it was the train that caused the trouble," Blackburn said.

Railroad officials Sunday night unhooked 24 undamaged cars from the train. Union Pacific spokesman Mark W. Davis said the air brakes on those cars could possibly bleed off, causing them to roll downhill into the burning car.

The commission said Thiokol engineers did not believe this would cause significant problems and scheduled no additional tests. But some Marshall engineers objected by memo to the design.

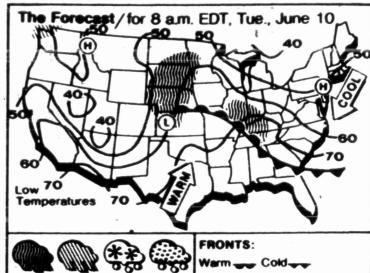

Although such memos emerged over several years, they had no significant impact on top manage-

In December 1982, the Marshall center determined in tests that the secondary O-ring no longer worked after the joints rotated. Officials concluded the secondary O-ring did not provide redundancy and changed the joint to a "criticality 1

SALT LAKE CITY - Water kept pouring today through a dike breached by the recordhigh Great Salt Lake, and authorities said ponds used by a chemical extraction plant were flooded.

The inland sea, at its highest recorded level, burst the earthen AMAX Magnesium Corp. dike late Saturday and threatened to surge toward two interstates and Union Pacific Railroad tracks.

By late Sunday, the water was flowing over secondary dike and moving toward one highway. Interstate 15, and the tracks.

However, Francine Giani, an aide to Gov. Norm Bangerter, said a dike protecting the highway and railroad appeared to be strong enough to hold back the floodwaters.

Early birds get to the front of the line as some 50,000 Baptists arrive in Atlanta for the 1986 convention

'Half a hallelujah'

Campaign heats up at Baptist convention

ATLANTA (AP) — The Rev. Adrian Rogers, running for president of the Southern Baptist Convention, told delegates he rejects the "monkey mythology" of evolution and "wouldn't give half a hallelujah" for the heavenly chances of anyone doubting the virgin birth.

Rogers, supported by the denomination's strictfundamentalist wing in Tuesday's election, blasted religious liberalism and praised "the conservative gospel" in a Sunday night sermon to thousands of pastors and other delegates at the Georgia World Congress Center

His rival, the Rev. W. Winfred Moore, supported by moderates, got much less exposure, preaching on evangelism at a church in Chamblee, outside Atlanta, as allies arranged for his remarks to be taped and shown on local television.

The denomination's convention officially begins Tuesday, hours before about 50,000 delegates vote in the presidential election that is the centerpiece of a continuing factional struggle.

Also Sunday at the convention center, a group of laymen, while declaring they wanted to avoid politics, distributed results of an opinion poll indicating most members of the 14.5-million-member denomination generally favor the moderates' views

The poll, conducted for the laymen by the Louisville, Ky., research firm, Wilkerson and Associates, found 81 percent of respondents agreeing with a statement that "not all Baptists have to think and act the same way. Seventy-five percent found convincing the idea that "Baptists should have the individual freedom to interpret the Bible for themselves and be tolerant of differing interpretations.

Rogers, however, took a sharply different view in his sermon on the biblical story that Jesus was born of a

He said a survey showing that many seminary students didn't accept that story literally was "the legacy of modern liberalism.

"If you don't believe that as literal truth, you have some real problems," he told his audience of several thousand. "I wouldn't give you half a hallelujah for your hope of heaven. At another point, Rogers, 54, pastor of Bellevue Baptist Church in Memphis, Tenn., said, "I reject with all the unction, function and emotion of my soul that monkey mythology that tells us that man evolved.

New trade policy is economic folly

Watching Congress deliberate on trade policy is like watching Inspector Clouseau at work on a case. You can never guess what will happen next, but you know it will be disastrous. Unlike Clouseau's misadventures, the mammoth trade bill approved by the House of Representatives lacks the redeeming trait of comedy

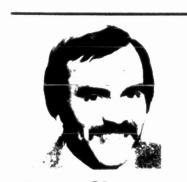

House Democrats, weary of being tarred as protectionist, now call themselves "promotionist." Well, if words could change reality, then Xaviera Hollander might be a virgin. They insist their goal is not to shut out our imports, but to expand our exports. Their bill requires that any nation engaging in unfair trade practices which has an "excessive" trade surplus with the U.S. be slapped with strict limits on its sales here

This is mere camouflage. It sounds better to say Americans can't compete against unfair rivals than to say we can't compete, period. But there are no freetraders in the foxholes. When the U.S. auto industry was in trouble, Congress and the administration couldn't have cared less whether the flood of Japanese imports was due to fair or unfair methods. All they cared about was saving auto workers' jobs, regardless of the cost in higher consumer prices or lost jobs in other industries.

Actually, for the industries and unions supporting the bill, nothing would be worse than to see other countries end all unfair practices, since that would leave them exposed to open competition. Does anyone seriously believe that if this bill passes and the textile or steel or timber industry still can't compete with foreign producers, it will quietly accept its fate?

The House is correct when it accuses foreign governments of erecting obstacles to American companies and providing subsidies to their own exports. But the U.S., though it undoubtedly is more open to trade than most countries, is not without sin, either

The Washington Post notes that in the various international trade bodies, more complaints of "dumping" (selling below cost abroad) are filed against this country than sumers and damage the American ducements authorized by Congress against any other. The European Economic Committee has compilranging American" laws for government procurement to extra fuel taxes for foreign airlines to copyright laws that shut out foreign book publishers. The House's answer Do as we say, not as we do.

Steve Chapman

The presumption of American rectitude is not the only myth at work here. Another is the charge that our open trade policies have been disastrous for American industry and workers. Nothing could be further from the truth.

No one disputes that American consumers have reaped immense benefits from their access to foreign-made goods. But the rest of the economy has profited, too. The U.S. has added some 20 million jobs since 1975, while trading partners like France, Britain and West Germany have suffered declining employment. During that period the American economy has created jobs at nearly double the rate of Japan's. And foreign competition has contributed to the drop in our as well as consumers.

Although the auditors scrupulously avoided judgments, one way or the other, on the various benefits and allowances, they presented a "legislative history" of most of them that explained when and why Congresses dating back to 1901 had seen fit to provide the various perquisites. Here is a sampling of the more than 100 allowances, which the GAO broke down into 65 categories:

• Danger pay. This is granted to 'employees serving at a post where civil insurrection, civil war or warlike conditions exist" and may not exceed 25 percent of the employee's base pay.  Government housing. Foreign Service personnel stationed abroad "may be furnished without cost" quarters in U.S.-owned or rented buildings. Furniture, equipment and maintenance are provided. When government quarters aren't available, the employees receive a housing allowance.

According to the GAO's legislative history, this practice began in 1901, in a deliberate attempt to make Foreign Service careers possible to "men of merit who were not wealthy." It recounted congressional visitors who were dismayed to find American diplomats living in "dingy rooms" or "in places where an American visitor would be humiliated to find his country's representative.'

 Layette shipment. When a Foreign Service employee has a baby overseas, "shipment of a newborn's clothing, equipment and furniture may be authorized in an amount not to exceed 250 pounds if American or other suitable layettes are unavailable at the post assigned." Lacking specific congressional authorization for this allowance, the State Department "believes such shipments may be made under its general authority to ship household effects," the GAO report notes

Footnote: Informed of the GAO fact sheet, Gerald Lamberty. president of the American Foreign Service Association, pointed out that "in spite of these supposed benefits, the department still has to put pressure on Foreign Service Officers to serve overseas these days." Before the rise of the terrorism, he said, most Foreign Service people preferred foreign duty to a Washington posting. UNDER THE DOME: Usually it's Congress that's sticking its recognition of the current epidemic nose into the activities of the executive branch, but the roles were reversed the other day. An aide to Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y. recently had lunch with a duly accredited diplomat from a Soviet bloc country, thinking nothing of it. But an FBI agent turned up later at the congressman's office and tattled on the staffer, telling Solarz when and where the luncheon had taken place and how long it lasted. The staff aide was outraged.

Bible reading requires plan

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I know you think it is a good idea to read something from the Bible each day, but I have tried and I never seem to keep going with it for very long. Do you have any suggestions? - Mrs. J.D.

gest four points that will help you. First, have a purpose. Many people never read the Bible because they don't see why it is important.

DEAR MRS. J.D.: Let me sug-

Why should you spend time reading the Bible? Because it is God's Word, and God wants to use it to guide you and shape your life so you become more like Christ. "All Scripture is God-breathed and is useful for teaching, rebuking, correcting and training in righteousness, so that the man of God may be thoroughly equipped for every good work" (2 Timothy Second, have a plan. Don't read at random, but choose a book and study it chapter by chapter (although you may read only a paragraph or so a day). If you are not familiar with the Bible, perhaps start with the little book of 1 John (which tells of God's love for us) or the Gospel of John (which tells of Jesus' ministry and how we are to believe in Him). Don't try to do everything at once, but have a plan and stick to it. Third, have a practical program.

By that, I mean know what you need to do to understand a passage: Ask questions as you read, such as "What is the main point of this passage? What does it teach me about God, or about myself, or about Jesus and His will for me? Is there a command or example for me to follow?" Use an accurate, modern Bible translation that helps you understand the passage.

Fourth, put it into practice. For example, you might be reading 1 John 3:11: "We should love one another." Are there others you have a hard time loving? Then ask God to help you put that passage into practice without delay

Killer gets lethal injection

HUNTSVILLE - Convicted killer Rudy Esquivel, telling his friends to "Be Cool!" as they read him Bible passages, was executed early today for the shooting death eight years ago of a Houston narcotics officer Esquivel took six deep breaths and appeared to be snoring. His eyes closed and there was no further movement. Death came at 12:21 a.m. CDT, prison officials said.

Esquivel, a Hispanic, was the first minority prisoner to be executed since the Supreme Court ruled in a Kentucky case in April that jurors could not be improperly excluded merely on the basis of Attorney General Jim Mattox, however, said there was no evidence to show any jurors in Esquivel's case were so excluded. Mattox witnessed the execution. "Therefore, it did not apply,"

Mattox said. The Supreme Court had cleared the way Sunday for Esquivel's lethal injection, voting 7-2 to deny his request for a stay. Esquivel, 50, whose criminal record dates back to 1953 when he received a 99-year term for participating in a gang rape, had three earlier death dates postponed.

Esquivel was on parole from the rape conviction on June 8, 1978, when authorities said he shot and killed Timothy Hearn, 28, a Houston police narcotics officer. He also had been paroled from California after serving time for assaulting a police officer and

Boating accident kills one

AUSTIN — One man was killed and two other people were injured when their motorboat, which was towing a water-skier, ran into a private boat dock on Lake Austin, according to authorities.

The dead man was identified as Jack Haley of Palestine, police said. He died of a fractured skull when he was thrown from the boat and struck his head against the dock, authorities said Sunday.

The injured were identified as the driver of the boat. Mike Carroll, 36, and Karen Leuty, 23, both of Austin. They were treated for minor injuries.

The accident was reported about 8 p.m. Saturday.

Sgt. Norman Yeomans, supervisor of the City Park Police boat patrol, said the boat carried five passengers in addition to the water-skier.

Chancellor resigns day after election

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Chancellor Fred Sinowatz, a Socialist, resigned and was replaced by a member of his Cabinet today, a day after conservative Kurt Waldheim scored a decisive victory in the presidential election.

Sinowatz, who headed the Socialist government for more than three years, will be succeeded as chancellor by Finance Minister Franz Vranitzky, 49. Sinowatz announced his resignation in a brief statement to reporters.

"I do not rule out other changes in the government," said Vranitzky, who spoke after Sinowatz stepped down.

Vranitzky said he will be sworn in as chancellor latertoday by outgoing President Rudolf Kirchschlaeger. Waldheim, who was elected to a six-year term, will be sworn into office July 8.

The chancellor holds a powerful office in Austria, while the president fulfills largely ceremonial functions.

Sinowatz' resignation came after a brief session by the Socialist Party leadership. The party has controlled the government for 16 years. Parliamentary elections are scheduled for the spring.

Waldheim, 67, was backed by the conservative People's Party. The former U.N. secretarygeneral collected 2,464,598 votes, or 53.9 percent of the ballots cast in Sunday's runoff. to 2,107,317 votes, or 46.1 percent, for Socialist candidate Kurt Steyrer.

Waldheim received widespread support from the environmentalist Greens and Socialists disenchanted with the work of the Vienna government and the party's involvement in a series of scandals.

Since early March, Waldheim's campaign had been dogged by charges from the New York-based World Jewish Congress that he was involved in war crimes in the Balkans. where he served during World War II as a lieutenant in the German army.

Waldheim repeatedly denied any wrongdoing, but he was forced to concede that he had kept silent for almost four decades on his whereabouts during three crucial wartime years.

Following his victory, Waldheim told a television audience, "The result showed that the Austrian people are not prepared to accept these accusations that have been made against me."

Investigate with a travel agent every possible honeymoon destination that will suit your tastes. One even may be able to take advantage of one's honeymoon status. Some hotels offer special weekend or week-long rates that may include such treats as champagne breakfasts in bed. Taking advantage of such bonuses requires that the knowledge and experience of the travel agent be brought into play. The travel agent may know of some things that you may never have dreamed of.

Woman who fled husband's abuse says 'don't go back'

DEAR ABBY: In March I read a letter in your column from a parent whose daughter had actually been beaten to death by her boyfriend.

I am enclosing photos of myself following the brutal beating I received from my husband of 111/2 years. It was the first time he had physically harmed me, although he had threatend me with a knife several times. These last five years I lived in terror of him, but didn't know how to get away without getting myself and my three children

The assault occurred in a public place at 3:30 p.m. I asked him to meet me there because I was going to tell him I was leaving him, and I thought it would be safe. I was to exceed 10 years. He must serve wrong. He nearly killed me. In ad- 120 days at a correction facility, dition to severe body pummeling, I suffered a broken nose, a blow-out fracture of my right cheek, severe eye damage, broken teeth, contusions and numerous hematomas on my head, which became swollen three times its normal size!

Your advice, to file charges and run as though your life depended on it, was good.

I ran to a shelter provided by the Women's Advocates — a rape crisis and intervention group. I also pressed charges. He was sentenced to an indefinite term not where he will be evaluated; then there's a possibility that he will be released.

He offered to give me everything I wanted in the divorce if I would drop the charges against him. I refused. I am glad I stood my ground because now it has been publicly validated that wife beating is unacceptable.

Abby, you have my permission to use my name and publish these pictures. Do whatever is necessary to let women everywhere know that they do not have to tolerate physical abuse! Urge them to contact the Women's Advocates or other local crisis intervention groups

Don't back off, and above all, never go back! RAE BRENNAN.

AMERICAN FALLS, IDAHO DEAR RAE: I canot publish your pictures, but I can tell you that I and my staff were horrifid by them. The damage to your face and body defies description.

Thank you for sharing your story and reinforcing my advice to "run from an abusive mate as though your life depended on it — because it does."

Now, a word to all girls: Under no cicumstances should you tolerate a rough shove, a punch, a slap, a twisted arm or any kind of physical abuse from a boyfriend. It's a clear signal that his uncontrolled anger could eventually escalate into more severe punishment.

Most women remain in abusive relationships because they are financially dependent. So, girls, complete your education — learn a trade or a profession so you can support yourselves and will never be forced to tolerate abuse because you can't afford to leave.

Iron absorption problem gets new attention

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My faher had diabetes, also athritis. He tried to control these ailments and managed to fairly well. When he pased away (at 58) we were told he had another illness. hemochromatosis, a rare ailment. I would really like to know more about it. Is it inherited? Please explain how it is treated. — Mrs. T.O.

Hemochromatosis is not so rare. As many as 3,000 people out of every million may have it. Most are probably unaware of the fact. We are learning more and more about it, thanks to the work of such groups as the Hemochromatosis Research Foundation. I'll give the address later.

As you may know already, hemochromatosis is an iron absorption condition. Too much iron is absorbed into the blood and become deposited in the tissue of various organs — liver, pancreas, heart, even joints. This damages the structures.

Sometimes when we look behind varous organ-related illnesses, like diabetes, we may find hemochromatosis lurking as a cusative factor. You mention depostion in the pancreas can affect that organ's insulin-making capacity and cause the blood sugar problem. In others, it might lie behind an unexpland liver cirrhosis. Or it may invade joints and cause athritis.

When we diagnose hemochromatosis (by simple bood test) we know what to do about it. Simply removing blood periodically removes the excess iron with it. That prevents the consequences.

diabetes in your father's life. Iron should have the test done. The foundation's address is P.O. Box 8569, Alany, N.Y. 12208. They will welcome your interest and put you on their mailing list.

Celtics crush Rockets 114-97 for title

Boston Celtic Larry Bird, guarded by Houston Rocket Akeem Olajuwon, sets for the hook in first period action Sunday at the Boston Garden where the Celtics defeated the Rockets 114-97 to win the NBA title. Bird was later BOSON (AP) — The Boston Celtics got humiliated. Then they got mad. Then they got their 16th NBA title.

Angered by one of their worst performances of the season in losing the fifth game of the NBA championship series, the Celtics charged back Sunday with one of their best games of the playoffs, trampling the Houston Rockets 114-97 to complete a 4-2 victory in the best-of-7-games final round.

'Go ahead. Kick our tails. See what happens," a grinning Kevin McHale yelled during the celebration in Boston's locker room.

The Rockets booted the Celtics 111-96 in Thursday night's fifth game at Houston. Boston's play was sloppy, its shooting touch, hustle and inside defense missing. And 7-foot-4 Houston forward Ralph Sampson punched 6-1 Boston guard Jerry Sichting.

The Celtics gave a new twist to the "don't get mad, get even" approach. They did get mad but Sunday's game was hardly even.

'Today,'' Boston guard Dennis Johnson said, "we played the way we wanted to."

Sampson didn't. He made just one of eight shots in the first half and four of 12 for the game. He scored only eight points.

"I just played bad. I was not unnerved by the crowd," said Sampson, who was booed nearly every time he touched the ball. "If I played well, I think we would have

"We were mad," McHale said. "They hurt our pride the way they beat us in Houston.

Boston, which had just a pair of two-game losing streaks all season, changed its tactics as well as its emotions in going from a 15-point loss to a 17-point victory.

Jones shifted defensive ace Johnson to Rockets guard Robert Reid, who had 17 assists Thursday night but just six Sunday. The coach emphasized boxing out, especially on the defensive boards, after Houston had 19 more rebounds than the Celtics Thursday night. On Sunday, Boston outrebounded Houston for only the second time in the series.

A raucous home crowd energized the Celtics on a humid afternoon in non-air-conditioned Boston Garden. They won their 38th straight game in the building where they were 48-1 for the season, losing only to Portland on Dec. 6, 121-103. Including playoffs, the Celtics won an NBA-record 82 games this season and lost just 18

"It would have been tough to come in here and win," Rockets' Coach Bill Fitch said after Boston boosted its home playoff mark to

It would have been easier had Houston not gotten subpar performances out of most of its players. Olaiuwon led the Rockets with 19 points, nearly seven below his average for the series. Mitchell Wiggins and Jim Petersen, key bench performers earlier in the series, combined to make just three of 13 shots and had just four and three points, respectively. Rodney McCray had 16 points and Reid and Lewis Lloyd 12 each.

McHale and series most valuable player Larry Bird led Boston with 29 points each, Danny Ainge added 19, Robert Parish 11 and Johnson and Bill Walton 10 each.

"There was little doubt we had to take control early," said McHale, who got the game's first two baskets off his own offensive rebound and a steal by Bird.

Boston never trailed and bolted to a 22-10 lead. But Houston got the next 11 points, five by Olajuwon. It was the Rockets' only run of more than three points in the first three quarters

The Celtics responded with seven of the last nine points of the first quarter to grab a 29-23 lead. Houston cut it to 31-28 before Boston went on a 24-10 tear that made the score 55-38 at halftime. McHale had 13 points and Bird had nine points and three assists in the surge that broke the game open.

In the first three quarters, 21 of Boston's 30 field goals came on layups, tips, dunks or goaltending calls. The Celtics' lead ranged from 14 to 30 in the second half.

Reid said that when Sampson and Olajuwon were double teamed. "they passed it (the ball) outside and our shots didn't fall."

Houston hit just 42.7 percent of its field-goal attempts and didn't sink more than 48.5 percent in any of the six games.

'Nobody played great (Sunday) but we played well as a team," said Bird, who had 11 rebounds and 12 assists for his second triple-double of the series. "We wanted this game over by the (start of the) fourth quarter and that's what happened."

The Rockets entered the series with hopes of knocking off the heavily favored Celtics. After falling behind 3-1, they hoped to become the first team to overcome that deficit in a championship series. Now, they are looking

"This is one of those steps getting to the top," Sampson said. "We are on our way to being the best."

For now, that honor clearly belongs to the Celtics.

'What a great year," said club president Red Auerbach, who has been with the Celtics for each of their 16 titles. "It's one of the greatest and probably the greatest team I've ever been associated with. They just produced every time they had to.

Tway birdies 18th for win

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — There was just a bit of sadness in Bob Tway's voice as he talked about winning the $600,000 Westchester Golf Classic, because the golfer he beat by a single stroke was his friend and former Oklahoma State teammate Willie Wood.

"I feel bad for Willie, but that's the way golf is," said Tway, who fired a 4-under-par 67 Sunday in the closing round for a 272 total. "I wish he could win, too, but that's not the way golf works."

Wood had moved into a tie for the lead, 11-under-par, when he birdied the par-5 18th, narrowly missing an eagle when his 40-foot putt curled around the cup.

saw the scoreboard and knew what he had to do

He was 110 yards from the pin at that point, and used a sand wedge to get to within two feet. From the round.

Tway won his first tournament last February, beating Bernhard Langer in a playoff at the Andy Williams-San Diego Open. He became the fifth golfer this year to Tway said he was about to make win two tournaments, joining his third shot at the 18th, when he Calvin Peete, Fuzzy Zoeller, Andy Tway and Wood were college golfers of the year at Oklahoma State, where they were teammates there he rolled in his fifth birdie of for two years. Tway led the Cowboys to two NCAA titles and won Wood's admiration for his "confidence level," an admiration that has carried over to the PGA

That was apparent Sunday, which began with Tway tied for the lead at 205 with Ray Floyd and while Floyd was victimized by a collapse that saw him make seven bogeys and shoot a 6-over-par 77 that dropped him back to a 282

Lack of goals mars World Cup

MONTERREY, Mexico (AP) -The World Cup organizers feared the heat and humidity of this north Mexican city might create problems. They didn't reckon on a goal

So far, the four games have produced only two goals. If the trend continues, the Group F standings will be thrown into such confusion that some teams may have to draw lots to decide who qualifies for the second stage.

The situation means that England, currently at the bottom of the group with one point and without a single goal, could wind up topping the standings by beating Poland by two goals next one prepared to entertain," said Wednesday.

Morocco could even qualify without scoring a goal if it holds Portugal to a scoreless draw the same day.

In the only games where goals were scored, Portugal beat England 1-0 and then lost to Poland by the same score.

Morocco has tied with both Poland and England.

It's hardly soccer with a smile and the fans reckon they're getting a raw deal

"We've come a long way and spent a lot of money to watch these games. And all they (the teams) can give us is negative play with no

Londoner Jim Schofield.

Polish fan Gregor Janasz said the lack of goals was expected. "It's partly because of the heat, but mostly because the three European teams are so closely matched and Morocco has proved better than expected," Janasz said. Bob Harris, an author and sports writer who is helping England Manager Bobby Robson write his autobiography, was more critical of the negative tactics adopted by some of the Group F teams.

"The negative play by some of the teams has led to this ludicrous situation, where all four teams can wind up level on points and goals,' he said Because there is no playoff system, the competition rules state that when teams finish even on points and goal difference, the result of their group game against each other decides who goes through. But if England beats Poland 1-0 and Morocco gains its third straight tie, three or even all four teams could wind up even in points and goal differential.

Each of the teams which had posted a victory could claim preference over the other, while Morocco could contend it should not be eliminated because it had not lost to anyone.

Lendl buries Pernfors in final

Czech wins his second French Open, third Grand Slam event

PARIS (AP) — Ivan Lendl had been there before. He did not want the scene repeated.

Standing on center court in the French Open men's championship match Sunday, with two sets in hand and the third sitting tantalizingly close, Lendl suddenly was transported back in time.

It was 1984 all over again, Lendl trailed John McEnroe 3-6, 2-6 in that French championship. But Lendl went on to win the last three sets 6-4, 7-5, 7-5 for his first Grand Slam title.

"I thought about it," Lendl said when the 1984 turnaround was brought up. "I thought it had better not happen. It is nice to win like that but not to lose like that."

Lendl, the top seed from Czechoslovakia, held on to beat unseeded Mikael Pernfors of Sweden 6-3, 6-2, 6-4 for his second French Open and third Grand Slam

On Saturday, Chris Evert Lloyd sfully defended her women's des championship, beating top-ied Martina Navratilova 2-6, 3. 6-3. It was Lloyd's seventh French open singles championship. From 0-2 in the second set to 3-0 in the third. Lendl won nine games in a row and looked a cinch to take the match. Then Pernfors came

"I thought I could make it look a little better," said Pernfors, who admitted he wanted to "go sit in the stands" in the midst of Lendl's run. "He kind of lost his momentum there for a little while.

Pernfors charged back. He held for 1-3, broke for 2-3, held for 3-3 and broke again for a 4-3 lead. "I got a little tired," Lendl said.

"It took a lot out of me." The top seed held serve for 5-4. then broke for the ninth time on the
