How's that?

Mosquitos

Q. Does the city plan to do any spraying for mosquitos?
 A. The city has been and will continue to spray for mosquitos, said public works director Tom Decell. This year they are especially bad, he said, because of the heavy rains. The most effective deterrent against the pests is to keep your neighborhood clean, getting rid of any standing water, where mosquitos breed, he said.

Juneteenth events set

Feasting and dancing will highlight this year's Juneteenth celebration in Big Spring. The holiday is Thursday, June 19, the anniversary of the day Texas slaves were freed in 1865. President Abraham Lincoln actually signed the Emancipation Proclamation Jan. 1, 1863, but Texas slaves weren't freed until after the Civil War. The Lions Club will have a Juneteenth barbecue Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Comanche Trail Park's second pavillion, said Tommy Domino, secretary/treasurer. Tickets are $4.50 per plate, available at the barbecue or from any club member. The After Five Social Club will have a Juneteenth disco dance Saturday at 8:30 p.m. at the Veterans of Foreign War hall. Admission is $1. Both events are open to the public.

Allen draws winning card

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
 Staff Writer

An 18-year-old American government student today selected incumbent Paul Allen as the Democratic nominee in the Howard County Precinct 2 county commissioner's race.

Michelle Oglethorpe, daughter of Mrs. Linda Licon, Route 3 Box 53, made the selection by drawing the tie-breaking card from a revolving drum.

About 60 spectators attended the event, including courthouse workers, news representatives and other members of Michelle's summer class at Big Spring High School.

The neck-to-neck primary race between challenger John Stanley and Allen, which began in January, was decided this morning by a casting of lots.

Both received 641 votes in the June 7 runoff election. The totals were verified last week by a recount, requested by both candidates.

They were forced into a runoff when neither candidate captured a majority of the votes in the May 3 primary — a three-way race that included Jack Shaffer. Stanley finished ahead of Allen by 35 votes, with 40.27 percent of the vote. Allen received 38.23 percent.

The 9 a.m. drawing was conducted by Democratic Chairman Slick Boatler, who said Stanley and Allen were allowed to choose the method for casting lots.

 ...commissioner candidate

The candidates agreed to have 12 sealed envelopes placed in the drum — six with cards listing Stanley's name and six with Allen's name. The first one to have four cards drawn would be the winner.

Michelle, a member of the summer class taught by Roland Atkins, drew the cards and read the names aloud.

Boatler said he selected Michelle "on a spur of the moment," saying he thought it would thrill the students.

Rehnquist may fill high court spot

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman and a liberal member of the Senate Judiciary Committee today foresaw untroubled Senate confirmations of Supreme Court Justice William Rehnquist as the nation's next chief justice and staunch conservative Judge Antonin Scalia to take Rehnquist's place.

"We anticipate no particular strong opposition," to Reagan's surprise nomination of Rehnquist to succeed Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Judiciary Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond said, anticipating hearings by the middle of next month.

A few Democrats expressed misgivings on ideological grounds — Rehnquist is often thought to be the court's most conservative member and Scalia fits the same mold — and Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., another Judiciary panelist, said questions would be raised about Rehnquist's health. The justice suffered psychological disorientation a few years ago and had to be hospitalized after being taken off a drug used to ease back pain.

"I think that's something that, when you hold a confirmation hearing, it would be a legitimate question, and I suspect Justice Rehnquist himself would want it answered," Leahy said. "I can't even believe he would even have accepted the president's appointment if he didn't think that was something that could be solved."

Thurmond said he did not anticipate roadblocks to Reagan's plan to elevate Scalia to the high court after the Senate acts on the Rehnquist nomination.

Scalia, 50, a legal scholar most of his life, has been a member of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals — considered the nation's No. 2 courtroom — since Reagan put him there in 1972. He would become the youngest justice and the first one of Italian-American descent.

Sen. Paul Simon, D-Ill., a Judiciary Committee liberal, went along with Thurmond's forecast of relatively easy confirmation proceedings on both nominations. Both appeared on the NBC "Today" show.

"Both men are quality people," said Simon.

An unmanned Mack truck carrying a tractor broke from its bearings Tuesday afternoon and rolled down the side of South Mountain, slamming into a residence on Goliad Street.

About $25,000 damage was done to the garage of Mr. and Mrs. Sonny Shroyer, 2910 Goliad. Mrs. Shroyer said she received the damage estimate this morning.

The truck, owned by Basin Construction Co., was parked on a dirt road at the end of Goliad Street when it rolled down the incline at 1:32 p.m. The truck was being used on local developer Chris Christopher's South Mountain project, according to police reports.

Big Spring police officer Steven Frontiero said the truck's driver, Johnny Brumley, was charged

Board OKs boiler repair bid

By SPENCER SANDOW
 Staff Writer

The Howard County Junior College District board of trustees approved a bid on boiler repairs but sent another project bid back to the drawing board at its meeting Tuesday.

Global Boiler & Mechanical Inc. of Abilene was awarded the bid for boiler repairs for $4,800. That is $5,180 lower than the next lowest bid.

The board did not award a bid on repairs to the Student Union Building's air conditioning, and hot and cold water piping system.

Only one bid was submitted, by Hester & Robinson of Big Spring, and it was $116,000 over the $275,000

the district budgeted for repairs, said Terry Hansen, business manager.

"The only thing to do is back the project down in size and re-advertise for bids," he said.

In other business, the board:

- Hired Steve Sylestine of San Antonio as assistant basketball coach and Janice Blessingame as a cosmetology instructor. The board also accepted the resignation of cosmetology instructor Lynn Thompson, who has taken a position with the state cosmetology board, Howard College President Bob Riley said.

- Announced enrollment for the summer semester is up 3.5 percent over last year, and the dormitories are full for next year. Riley said that is a good barometer of campus activity the college will have next year.

- Announced that a new director for SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf should be hired by Aug. 1. Riley said three men are being interviewed: Ron Brasel, coordinator of interpretive services at Gallaudet College for the Deaf in Washington, D.C.; Carl Earwood, Oregon state coordinator of services for the hearing impaired; and Steven Ray, coordinator of psychological services at Oklahoma School for the Deaf.

- Appointed the firm of Reynolds & Welch as a district auditor for a two-year period.

Twisters, funnel clouds spotted near Big Spring

A tornado was spotted about 8 miles west of Big Spring at 12:08 p.m. today, but no damage or injuries were reported as of 1 p.m., said a sheriff's department dispatcher.

The sighting was confirmed by local law officials, according to police and sheriff radio reports.

At 12:24 p.m., the National Weather Service notified the sheriff's department that Midland radar had picked up a tornado 8 miles south of Lenora headed toward Big Spring. However, patrolling law enforcement officials did not sight the twister.

Sirens were sounded at 12:14 p.m. and again just before 12:30, warning residents to take cover.

The twister sightings followed several reports of funnel clouds in the area.

A funnel was spotted at 11:41 a.m. 2 to 3 miles southwest of Ackerly, about 20 miles northwest of Big Spring, by the Lubbock County Sheriff's Department. Deputies sighted the

Accord made in strike

WASHINGTON — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and a union representing 155,000 AT&T employees say the tentative three-year labor contract ending the nation's largest strike since 1983 will enhance the future of both sides.

The accord was reached Tuesday — the 17th day of a nationwide walkout by the Communications Workers of America — and provides an immediate 2 percent wage increase for 155,000 of the company's 300,000 employees and includes what union president Morton Bahr called a "quantum leap" toward lifetime job security for its members.

Radio entertainer dies

RALEIGH, N.C. — Kate Smith touched the hearts of Americans and gave them a special pride with her sense of patriotism, said President Reagan in paying tribute to the woman who made "God Bless America" a second national anthem.

Miss Smith died Tuesday of respiratory arrest at the emergency room of Raleigh Community Hospital, where she was taken after being stricken at her home, said nursing supervisor Mike Leisey. She was 79.

Although she had no formal music training, Miss Smith was one of the most popular radio entertainers during the 1930s and 1940s. She called her voice a "God-given gift."

Economy slightly better

WASHINGTON — The economy grew at a moderate annual rate of 2.9 percent in the first three months of the year, a sharp downward revision from earlier estimates, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the performance of the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, was only slightly better than for all of last year and more than a percentage point below the Reagan administration's forecast for growth of 4 percent for all of 1986.

The new estimate also marked a big downward revision from just a month ago, when the Commerce Department reported that the economy had expanded at a 3.7 percent rate in the January-March quarter.

Tax bill near approval

WASHINGTON — The Senate is winding down action on sweeping tax-overhaul legislation with Democrats making a last-ditch effort at collecting more from wealthy taxpayers to increase the tax cut for middle-income people.

The tax bill, in its ninth day of debate today, is heading for overwhelming approval possibly by late tonight.

The measure compresses more than a dozen individual tax rates into two rates: 27 percent and 15 percent. The top individual rate is now 50 percent.

Mohammed Issa Abbas, 25, of Damascus, Syria, was handcuffed while entering the courtroom for the Achille Lauro hijacking trial today.

Ship hijackers

Trial for accused Palestinians opens today

GENOA, Italy (AP) — The trial of 14 men charged with hijacking the Achille Lauro cruise ship, killing a crippled American passenger, and holding more than 300 people hostage opened today under heavy security in a Genoa courtroom.

Only four of the defendants in the case are in custody. Ten others, including the alleged mastermind behind the Oct. 7 hijacking, Palestinian guerrilla leader Abul Abbas, are being tried in absentia.

The 14 defendants are charged with hijacking the ship, murdering 69-year-old New Yorker Leon Klinghoffer, and holding 194 passengers and 189 crew members who were on board when the ship was seized between Egyptian port calls.

Conviction on all the charges could result in life prison terms.

Sixteen men originally were indicted in the case, but Judge Lino Monteverde today ordered charges against two of them dropped for lack of evidence. They had been accused of playing minor roles.

However, the prosecution added a Greek man, Petros Flores, to the list of those on trial, alleging that his passport was used by one of the defendants to board the ship when it set sail from Genoa. Flores was indicted on the lesser charges of aiding and abetting.

A helicopter of the paramilitary police circled over the courthouse, and the public, primarily journalists, underwent X-ray screenings and metal detector searches before entering the courtroom.

Italian authorities assigned 600 police and paramilitary police to guard the court in this northern port city.

About two hours into the session, two men and two women were dragged out of the courtroom after shouting "we are for the Palestinian revolution." The judge ordered a temporary recess.

Defense attorney Gianfranco Pagano, in an interview Tuesday, said the defense would argue that the defendants are not terrorists, but fighters for the Palestinian cause, and that Klinghoffer's death was not part of their plan.

Pagano said the defense also will argue that only Youssef Magid al-Molqi, the hijacker accused of shooting Klinghoffer, should be tried for murder.

Al-Molqi, 23, who has said he led the hijackers, and two other alleged hijackers, Ibrahim Fatayer Abdelatif, 20, and Ahmed Marrouf al-Assadi, 24, are in custody.

Also in custody is Mohammed Issa Abbas, 24, who is accused of providing grenades and weapons used by the hijackers.

He is a cousin of Abul Abbas, whose real name also is Mohammed Abbas. He is a leader of the Palestine Liberation Front, a faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization.

The other hijacker, Bassam al-Ashker, will be tried separately because he was only 17 at the time of the hijacking.

Bodyguards open fire

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — A bodyguard assigned to U.S. Ambassador Gregory J. Newell opened fire on two armed men spotted near a terrace cocktail party at a villa where the diplomat was having dinner, police said today.

A Swedish policeman, one of two policemen assigned to protect Newell, "spotted and fired three bullets" at the two men Tuesday night outside the residence of a Swedish industrialist, said criminal superintendent Rune Rytters.

Newell, 36, and Ambassador Andres Rozenal of Mexico were among some 25 guests who gathered for a dinner party at the villa of Swedish industrialist Bo Axson Johnson in Varmdo, a secluded waterside area east of Stockholm.

Media protests ban

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The government today extended its news restrictions under the state of emergency to include a ban on reports of security force actions in tribal homelands. Major newspapers mounted new protests against the unprecedented muzzle.

President P.W. Botha in a proclamation published under last Thursday's state of emergency declaration, extended an already existing ban on reporting police activity to six of South Africa's 10 tribal homelands.

The ban on reporting police activity is one of the most far-reaching of the recent curbs on the news media, and means that most unrest and all arrests and detentions cannot be reported without official permission.

Vice president retires

MOSCOW — Pyotr N. Demichev, the conservative culture minister who enforced the Communist Party's rules for Soviet arts for 12 years, was removed today and named to the largely ceremonial position of vice president.

Demichev, 68, replaced 85-year-old First Deputy President Vasily V. Kuznetsov, the oldest man in the Soviet leadership, who retired for health reasons.

The shifts are part of Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev's efforts to replace the party's old guard. They were announced at a session of the national Parliament, the Supreme Soviet, which convened one of its semi-annual sessions to approve a new five-year economic plan.

Waistline spread is sign of health

Waistline spreading a bit? Not to worry, if you're middle-aged. It's normal to gain some weight as you get older. As a matter of fact, a certain amount of weight gain could be a sign of health and an indication of a long life. Paul Abernathy, head of Purdue University's Department of Food and Nutrition, says that recent studies show that almost any normal lean person can put on about one pound a year after age 20. The weight of an average man increases about 17 percent between his 20s and 40s, and women generally gain even more, Abernathy claims. "If you want to live a long time, your weight should increase as much as 20 percent as you get older," he said. Hip, hip, hooray! Let's hear it for Paul Abernathy.

Americans consume too many vitamins

When it comes to health, Americans apparently can't get enough or spend enough. According to medical estimates, between 5 and 10 percent of all Americans buy and gobble down "megadoses" of vitamins and minerals, far in excess of estimated daily requirements, hoping to ward off colds, cancers and other maladies. Another 10 percent of Americans, most of them women, regularly "go for the burn" as they bounce through aerobic exercise routines at tens of thousands of health clubs around the country. But if it's health they're after, doctors now say, they are getting too much of a good thing. The other day, a panel of medical researchers in Washington warned that more Americans seem to be getting sick from taking overdoses of vitamins, falsely promoted by companies and "snake-oil salesmen" as useful or necessary to good health. The same day, in New Orleans, the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists issued guidelines for aerobic exercise, warning that overzealous instructors were leading their classes in dangerous routines that send too many women to the doctor with damage to their joints, ligaments and muscles. All that sounds dangerous, and it probably is. But let the record show that the panel on the danger of vitamin and mineral supplements was sponsored by the National Dairy Board, and that the obstetricians are selling a videocassette, "Balanced Fitness Workout," to promote their views. There's not just health at stake here, but lots of money, too. Most Americans could probably stay healthy on a well-balanced diet and a brisk long walk every day. But what would happen to the economy?

Africa has too much aid

For decades, foreign aid programs have thrived on the assumption that what counts is good intentions, not good results. That idea underlies the United Nations' plan to rescue the nations of Africa from the economic disaster produced by their governments. Africa has not lacked for economic assistance from the industrialized nations. Since 1960, the gifts have added up to $80 billion. In sub-Saharan Africa, foreign aid accounts for more than half of all capital investment; in some countries it makes up half of the entire national income. Yet Africa is poorer now than before. Economic growth, which was pitifully slow in the 1970s, has become economic contraction. Per capita income, adjusted for inflation, has dropped by 15 percent since 1960. Africa is the only region in the world in which population is growing faster than food production. Infant mortality is twice as high as in other Third World nations. Africa's problem is not too little aid but too much. Its problems are the predictable result of government policies that exalt centralized control over economic freedom, discouraging work and investment and promoting wasteful politicization. Foreign aid has served mainly to subsidize these errors. It has paid for a slew of expensive but useless capital projects: an idle oil refinery in Togoland, a sugar mill in the Ivory Coast that closed after four years, a semi-automated bakery in Tanzania that has no flour, a factory in Mali that makes five tons of cement a year, instead of the 50,000 tons it was designed for. Africa's famine and malnutrition stem from programs that foster industrialization at the expense of agriculture. Even the World Bank, which depends on the continued flow of aid dollars, admits that "genuine mistakes and misfortunes cannot explain the excessive number of 'white elephants.' Too many projects have been selected either on the basis of political prestige or on the basis of inadequate regard for their likely economic and financial rate of return." In the proposal approved during last week's UN session, the first devoted solely to the problems of one region, Africa's governments paid lip service to reducing state involvement in economic affairs and nurturing the private sector. In exchange for this 180-degree reversal, the donor nations agreed to "make every effort to provide sufficient resources to support and supplement the African development effort." The amount requested by the Africans: $45 billion in direct aid, plus at least $35 billion in debt relief. But there is scant reason to expect these countries to change their ways. On the same day that they made their pledge, the president of Kenya — whose policies have been among the least bad on the continent — took the characteristically African step of vowing to reduce the ownership of private businesses by Asians and Europeans in favor of "indigenous Kenyans," which can only damage Kenya's economy. The promise of more aid, however, is supposed to stimulate more enlightened policies. In effect, the West is expected to bribe Africa into doing what is in its own interest. Looked at another way, these governments are demanding a ransom, with their own people held hostage. The surest incentive to change is being made to face reality. If African countries adopt wise policies, aid won't be needed, since private capital will be attracted by the healthier economic climate. If they don't, aid won't help, as Africa's recent history attests. African governments have shown great fortitude in pursuing policies that impoverish their own people. They have made clear that they won't reverse course unless they have no choice. Continued aid only postpones the day when necessity overthrows ideology.

U.S. blamed for growth of Yakuza criminal gangs

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — The infiltration of Japanese gangsters into the United States is a story we've been reporting for two years. Their success in terrorizing Japanese tourists and the Japanese-American community is causing increased concern among law enforcement authorities. Two veteran reporters associated with the Center for Investigative Reporting, David Kaplan and Alec Durbo, have now written a book describing in ominous detail the origins and growth of the Japanese criminal gangs — and the serious threat they pose to our society. The book is titled "Yakuza," the name given to the underworld gangs from the simple card game they played to while away the hours between missions of murder, extortion and other crimes. Our associate Donald Goldberg has reviewed an advance copy of the book, which is based on the largest file on Yakuza in this country. Here are some revelations of particular concern to Americans:

Jack Anderson

• Congress is indirectly responsible for the arming of the Japanese underworld, by virtue of its relaxed gun-control legislation. Until recently, Japan's strict gun controls had made the country virtually free of handguns and extremely low in the incidence of shooting fatalities. Recently, however, a multimillion-dollar gun trade between the United States and Japan has opened up, with thousands of American pistols flooding into Japan. The Yakuza are understandably in the vanguard of this lethal, lucrative and illegal trade. Handguns that cost $100 in this country fetch as much as $2,000 in Tokyo. The well-armed Yakuza gangs have been indulging in some of the bloodiest battles of their long history. Japanese Yakuza leaders told the authors they can no longer control their gang members.

• Roughly half the Yakuza's enormous illicit income is derived from drugs, with methamphetamines, or "speed," the drug of choice. As many as 600,000 Japanese are addicted to "shabu," as the drugs are called in Japan — a level proportionate to the number of heroin junkies in the United States. Thanks in large degree to the Yakuza, Japan's drug-abuse rate is now among the world's highest. Kaplan and Durbo conclude that the United States must shoulder a large share of blame for the resurgence of the Yakuza. The main responsibility rests on shortsighted U.S. officials, who — like their colleagues in postwar Germany — fancied they could use the worst elements of the occupied nations' society to bring stability and to combat communism. U.S. intelligence officials sowed the whirlwind when they revived the Yakuza after the war; now U.S. law enforcement authorities are reaping the whirlwind as the Japanese gangs expand their operations into this country.

HALL OF SHAME: Rep. Michael Bilirakis, R-Fla., has introduced a bill demanding that Philippines ex-president Ferdinand Marcos and his party repay the $207,000 tab they ran up at U.S. air bases in Guam and Hawaii during the first month of their exile. Despite the 21 kilos of gold bars Marcos brought with him, he and his group charged everything, including $20,000 in long-distance phone bills. The Marcoses owe the Air Force $147,899 for housing, meals and miscellaneous services. The $39,101 worth of merchandise they charged at post exchanges included lingerie, makeup, toilet water and hair dryers — and $1,424.93 worth of shoes.

DANGER? WHAT DANGER?: Congressional cost-cutters have taken aim at the "danger pay" currently authorized for Foreign Service personnel stationed at the embassy in San Salvador. The extra pay can be as much as 25 percent of the employee's base salary. Critics argue that El Salvador can't be so dangerous if diplomats' families are still living there, although Congress decreed a couple of years ago that the mere fact that families are allowed would not rule out "danger pay." There has been no visible rush by members of Congress to investigate the situation in person.

Long distance romancing is short on love, long on work

DEAR ABBY: I am a 67-year-old widow who just had her face lifted, but it wasn't that bad before. I have just become the "girlfriend" of an elderly gentleman who told me that he is leaving me one-third of all his assets, which are considerable.

Dear Abby

I'll tell it like it is: He is very tight! Entertaining his girlfriend with lavish dinners and giving her expensive gifts are not his style. I live in Southern California and he lives alone in a big house 120 miles north of here. I drive up to visit him every weekend, and as soon as I arrive, I find myself flinging the vacuum cleaner around and doing his laundry. Abby, at 67, you can't clean all day and be scintillating company in the evening, but I try.

assets — the other two-thirds will go to his married children who rarely come around.

His latest idea of a "good time" is flying to Seattle, staying in a middle-class motel and cooking fish! Can you think of anything more revolting?

He's in very good health for 84 and hopes to live forever. Do you think it's worth it? Sign me,

HIRED GIRL WHO TRAVELS
120 MILES A WEEK
WITHOUT CAR FARE
OR ALLOWANCE

DEAR GIRL: Before you swallow these promises hook, line and sinker, ask this penny-pinching "fish cook" to put his promises in writing. Otherwise, you are wasting precious time and energy.

DEAR ABBY: I made a beautiful needlepoint picture as a birthday gift for my husband's boss. (I'll call him Mr. K.) I worked very hard to finish it and have it framed in time for his party. I was very disappointed when Mr. K. didn't open his birthday presents during the party. The next day he told my husband our gift was "magnificent" and he would telephone me to thank me personally, which he never did.

A few months later we received a rather general printed "thank-you" card. That was it!

To make matters worse, my husband was at Mr. K's home recently, and our needlepoint picture had not been hung anywhere. This hurt me because of all the time I had put into it — and the expense was also considerable.

If Mr. K. doesn't like it and isn't going to hang it, we'd like to have it back. How should we ask him?

FRUSTRATED IN FRESNO
DEAR FRUSTRATED: When you gave the gift to Mr. K., it became his property — to hang, put away, give away, throw away or whatever. Moreover, in view of the boss-employee relationship, to ask him to return it would be awkward and ill-advised.

DEAR ABBY: I recently gave a birthday party for my husband. On the invitation, I had printed: Regrets Only (and my phone number). Six couples did not respond. Naturally I assumed that they were coming and included them in my count to my caterer. As you know, one pays the caterer for each expected guest. The going rate in this area is $7.50 per person, so $90 went out of my pocket for "friends" who did not take the trouble to let me know that they were not coming.

What should I say to these no-shows when I see them? Should I say, "Oh, that's all right," when I feel that it is not all right?

ANNOYED AND NAMELESS
DEAR ANNOYED: If they mention the party, say, "Since you didn't respond to my 'regrets only' invitation, we expected you." If they then apologize, tell them they missed a great party.

For those who do not know that if they do not call to regret a catered affair, the hostess must pay for their plate, they know it now.

Overuse of Maalox could be unhealthy

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I'm an 85-year-old woman, live alone, do my own housework, still drive my car, and stay active. I do hope you will answer me. My eyes are growing dim from watching the paper for your answer to questions I sent you a long time ago. Perhaps you thought they were unimportant, but Dr. Donohue, they are not to me.

Dr. Donohue

I take Maalox several times a day for heartburn. I have been told it will do damage to my system because of the aluminum in it. I have been taking it for years. I also have hiatal hernia. Can you comment on the Maalox? Even if you don't answer, I shall still read your column, as I enjoy it very much. — M.S.

To get right to the point, M.S., Maalox contains both aluminum and magnesium. It is a good antacid product, and many people use it safely for quite long periods.

But you have a good question, for there are cautions to observe. If a person's kidneys are not functioning up to snuff, aluminum blood levels can rise. If kidney function is normal, the amount of aluminum from such antacid use is not thought to be troublesome.

But there is another factor to consider. Overuse of such a product can cause a decrease in body phosphorous, and that can lead to calcium loss and bone weakening. But such considerations are for people who use aluminum products for very long periods in large doses and without direction.

Given your background of long and apparently copious dosage, I would advise a talk with your doctor. For one thing, he will want to look into the cause of this continuing need for antacid. You're treating a symptom blindly. I cannot say that the hiatal hernia you mentioned (in an edited part of your letter) is a factor. But there are other steps to take to reduce the stomach acid reflux (the heartburn), and your doctor can outline them for you.

And thank you for your loyalty. DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My husband has been having problems performing sexually. He is 55. He recently had X-rays that revealed kidney stones. His doctor says he has an enlarged prostate gland. Is there a specific test to determine if there is a physical reason for not being able to have and maintain an erection? I am too embarrassed to give my name. — Anon.

Impotence has two kinds of causes, psychological and physical. We used to assume that most impotence had psychogenic roots. That simply isn't accepted any more. Many, many physical illnesses can lead to impotence.

I cannot comment on those X-ray findings, as they may or may not relate to your husband's problem. But I can give you a couple of physical reasons that have been reported. Circulatory disturbance in the genital area can contribute to erectile difficulty. Nerve damage is another cause. If the pituitary gland produces too much of the hormone, prolactin, impotence can result. Diabetes is another possibility.

There are many tests, then, to pinpoint a specific cause of impotence. However, there is one single test that is often used to broadly determine whether the impotence is from psychological or physical causes. It involves use of a very simple expansion device worn at night by the male to monitor spontaneous erectile activity that occurs in the normal male during sleep. If the results show such activity, then the doctor can begin to conclude that the impotence is psychological and not related to illness.

The test is well-known to any physician, who can advise your husband further.

GENERAL NOTE FOR READERS: I frequently receive mail from readers inquiring about the validity of various medical devices they hear or read about. Many are outlandish fantasy items that have not the slightest relationship to health improvement. I cannot answer all these. Let me refer those of you with such questions to a new pamphlet published by the Food & Drug Administration, titled "Quackery." It is available free by writing to: Quackery, HFE 55, Rockville, MD 20857. It helps distinguish sound medical devices from the fraudulent.

Do you often have a "stomach ache?" If so, your stomach may not be the real trouble spot. The booklet, "Stomach and Other Abdominal Pains: A Checklist," tells you why. For a copy, write to Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 11210, Chicago, IL 60611, enclosing a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1.00.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

Texas' best beef recipes

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

Beef is a Texas favorite. And what could be better than making the best beef recipes in the state? In this weeks recipe exchange, I have included the 1986 Texas Beef Cook-Off winning recipes. The winner of the state cook-off was the Coventry Roast, by Jean Connor, of Palestine.

Recipe exchange

Add sour cream to liquid in the pan and stir on a low heat until the cream has blended into a smooth sauce. Pour sauce over steak. Makes 4 servings.

BEEF JULIENNE WITH CHUTNEY SAUCE OVER QUICK COUSCOUS

By Diane Bryant, of San Antonio
1½ lbs. beef top round steak, about ½-inch thick
7 tbsp. butter or margarine, divided
½ cup bottled mango-recipe chutney, chopped
¼ tsp. freshly ground black pepper
¼ tsp. garlic powder
1 large onion, thinly sliced, then quartered
¼ lb. fresh mushrooms, thinly sliced
2 tbsp. vegetable oil
1½ cups couscous
1½ cups boiling water
½ tsp. salt (add to boiling water)
1 tbsp. toasted silvered almonds

Melt 2 tbsp. butter in small saucepan over low heat. Stir in 2 tsp. lemon juice and chutney. Cover and simmer very slowly during preparation of beef julienne.

After placing round steak on cutting board, sprinkle both sides lightly with ½ tsp. lemon juice, then rub black pepper and garlic powder. Slice the beef into julienne strips (¼-inch wide by 1½-inches long). Set aside.

Melt 2 tbsp. butter in large, heavy skillet, over medium heat. Add onions and mushrooms and cook until tender, but not brown. Transfer contents of skillet to bowl.

the soaked bread. Add saltines which have been crushed. Shred the lettuce, cube the process cheese and add to the bread mixture. Add the eggs, salt, pepper and basil to the bread mixture and mix thoroughly. Add the yellow corn meal to tighten and mix thoroughly. Lightly sear each round steak in a large heavy roaster or dutch oven. Place ½ of the stuffing in a row down the middle of each steak. Bring the sides of each steak up together and toothpick or skewer the sides to each other. Place the stuffed steaks, seam side down in a 9 x 13 inch baking pan. Coat the stuffed steaks with a thin layer of the remaining stuffing. Cover the pan with foil and bake at 375 degrees for two hours. Remove the foil and bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes or until lightly browned and crusty.

Yield: 12 servings.

COVENTRY ROAST
By Jean Connor, of Palestine
3 lbs. boneless chuck roast, trimmed
2 tbsp. margarine
½ cup dry white wine
1 cup water
¾ cup finely-chopped chutney, divided
Mango slices, canned or fresh (optional)
Parsley

Melt margarine in heavy dutch oven. Sauté chuck roast on all sides until nicely browned. Pour off drippings.

In small bowl mix wine, water and half of chutney. Add to roast. Cover and simmer 2-2½ hours, or until tender. Save 1½ cups of the juices (if necessary, add to liquid to total 1½ cups.) Stir in remaining chutney.

When roast has cooled, slice and dollop each serving with chutney sauce. (May be reheated for serving for one minute on high microwave, or 10 minutes at 350 degrees in oven). Garnish with mango slices and parsley. Serves 6-8.

BRANDIED BEEF
By Cecil Beare, of Midland
2 pounds chuck steak
¼ cup butter or margarine
2 beef bouillon cubes
¾ cup water
½ cup apricot brandy
¼ cup sour cream
Parsley, optional
Canned apricot halves, optional

Melt butter in a skillet just to point where all butter is melted. Place chuck steak in skillet and brown meat on medium heat until medium rare.

While steak is cooking, dissolve bouillon cubes in water. When meat has browned on both sides, pour bouillon water into skillet and simmer 20-25 minutes, covered.

Add brandy and light. (CAUTION: Brandy will flare up.) When flame has died, turn steak and allow to simmer an additional 5-10 minutes covered. Remove steak and keep warm.

STUFFED STEAK
By Henry Vicari, II, of Henrietta
2 medium onions, minced
2 buttons garlic, minced
1 stalk celery, minced
½ stick butter
1 loaf French or Italian bread
2 cups milk
1 stack of saltine crackers
1 small head lettuce
¾ lb. process cheese
4 eggs
2 tsp. crushed basil
2 tsp. salt
1 tsp. black pepper
1 cup yellow corn meal
2-2½ lb. lean round steaks
Garnish: parsley and orange slices

Saute the minced onions, garlic and celery in the butter until they are tender. Tear bread into small pieces and soak in the milk in a larger mixing bowl. Add the sauteed onions, garlic and celery to

Man faces execution despite plea

HUNTSVILLE — A 37-year-old man convicted of killing a Houston convenience store manager in 1974 faces lethal injection early Thursday morning despite pleas from the victim's father and a prosecutor to have the sentence commuted to life in prison.

Kenneth Albert Brock of Houston was convicted in the May 21, 1974 shooting death of 31-year-old Michael Sedita, a manager of a 7-Eleven convenience store. If the execution is carried out, Brock will be the fifth Texas inmate to die by injection this year and the 15th since the death penalty was resumed in 1982.

The Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles on Tuesday refused, in a 4-2 vote, to commute Brock's capital murder conviction even though Sedita's father asked that Brock not be killed.

Policy to be made for AIDS student

LUBBOCK — After confirming that an elementary pupil has been diagnosed with AIDS, school officials said they plan to develop an attendance policy that will balance the safety and rights of the individual against those of other students.

Officials said Tuesday that the child's parents voluntarily removed their child from summer school after learning of the diagnosis.

"I think the key thing is that we are concerned about the safety of 30,000 school kids, likewise we are concerned about the safety and emotional stability of this one child," said Gary O. Boren, school board president.

Both school and health officials declined to say where the child attended classes, but Boren said the student was in a program for homebound students at the end of the 1985-86 school year and had attended summer school for two days before his parents removed him from classes.

The child contracted AIDS through blood injections, but the source of blood is not known, said Dr. Anthony Way, public health director.

Manufacturer discussing settlement

SPACE CENTER, Houston — Officials of rocket manufacturer Morton Thiokol Inc. are discussing a settlement of liability claims by a family of one of the seven astronauts killed in the Challenger accident, says a Houston attorney who is representing the family.

Ronald D. Krist, a Houston lawyer who once won a settlement for the widow of another astronaut, said he was in "crucial and candid" negotiations toward a settlement with "very high ranking officials" of Thiokol, the Utah firm that manufactured the solid rocket boosters on the space shuttle.

Krist declined to identify the family he is representing, but he said the discussions have been under way for two weeks.

"We're hoping to avoid (court action) if possible," Krist said in a telephone interview. "If we are unsuccessful in our efforts to resolve this matter out of court, you can certainly anticipate a court suit."

He declined to disclose any proposed amount of a settlement, but said there would be either an agreement or a lawsuit within two weeks.

Though he is representing only one family, Krist said family lawyers representing other Challenger families have called to ask if he is available "if their clients opted to initiate suit."

Texans willing to help farmers

By JAMES DYER and KATHY CASTEEL

Harte-Hanks News Service

As the Texas winter wheat harvest gets under way, a majority of Texans are saying they are willing to pay higher taxes to help farmers keep their farms, even though only about one-fourth say their communities are economically dependent on agriculture.

The spring Texas Poll, a statewide telephone survey of 1,001 Texans conducted May 4-18, shows that 58 percent of Texans said they would be willing to pay more in federal taxes to prevent farmers from losing their farms. One-third said they would not be willing to pay more in taxes, and 9 percent had no opinion.

Those figures are similar to a national New York Times-CBS News poll conducted last February, in which 55 percent of Americans said they would be willing to pay higher taxes to help farmers, and 38 percent said they would not.

In the Texas Poll, even those who don't perceive their communities as dependent on agriculture are equally willing to pay higher taxes to help farmers. Only 26 percent of Texans say their community is very dependent on agriculture, ranging from a high of 35 percent in South Texas to a low of 15 percent in the Gulf Coast region. In very large urban areas, where only 15 percent say their community is dependent on farming, 57 percent say they are willing to pay higher taxes to help farmers. In smaller metropolitan areas, 27 percent are dependent on farming, but 59 percent are willing to pay higher taxes. In rural areas, 47 percent are dependent on farming, and 58 percent are willing to pay higher taxes for agriculture.

Democrats (65 percent) are more willing than independents (59 percent) and Republicans (50 percent) to pay higher taxes for farmers. Likewise, those who make less than $30,000 a year (63 percent) are more willing to pay higher taxes for farmers than are those who make more (50 percent).

The Texas Poll is sponsored by Harte-Hanks Communications Inc. and conducted by the Public Policy Resources Laboratory at Texas A&M University. Results may vary by as much as 3 percentage points in either direction because of sampling error.

Firefighters to fill boots for MDA

The Big Spring Fire Department will help battle something besides blazes Saturday when "Firefighters Fill the Boot For MDA" at the Highland Mall.

The fire department joins the Mall Merchants Association in bringing this fund-raising event to Big Spring.

Fireman Paul Brown said the fund-raiser is coordinated with the regional director of the Muscular Dystrophy Association, and all money raised will be turned in during the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

Brown said about 30 firemen are expected to take part in events that include a barbecue, a dunking booth, a bucket brigade and a hose race.

Things get started Saturday at 10 a.m. and continue to 6 p.m.

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JUNE 19, 1986

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A great day for you to get into every facet connected with a campaign of action whereby you can go forward to a more well-rounded success in whatever your deepest interest happens to be.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Arrange new interests and decide upon the best path to follow in the future with your mate. State your aims clearly.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Cooperate with an associate who can be helpful in furthering a project you're working on. Greater success is in the future.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If you wish to continue with a pile of work ahead of you, schedule your time and activities well.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) You have a fine talent that can be profitable for you. If some form of recreation appeals to you, sign up for it now.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) A change may have to be made at home that will improve conditions there, so be clever in making it.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Study into interests that will last for a long time to come and add them to your present ones.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make plans that can bring you more prosperity and let them be long lasting. Retain an adviser who has been right in financial matters.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Plan to see those persons who have more or less the same interests as you. Today, you will gain some personal goal if you work at it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) By conversing with your family at length, you can plan the future more intelligently now. The evening will be delightful.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Communicating with allies can improve your dealings together. Gain more cooperation easily.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... He or she will never be one to act hastily, especially where important matters are concerned, but will plan any course of action very carefully in order to gain the desired objective. Teach to be a little more spontaneous at times and to lighten up on the outlook on life.

Board to consider bids

The Howard County Junior College District board will consider bids on boiler repairs, the hot and cold water piping system project, and air conditioning for the Student Union Building at its regular meeting at 12:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The board also will consider employment of an assistant basketball coach and a cosmetology instructor, appointment of a district auditor, wage rate tables for construction, and the small class report for the spring semester.

Also on the agenda is consideration of Howard College's official name. There has been some confusion over the years about what the college's official name is, said Mary Dudley, assistant to college president Bob Riley, and the state has requested clarification.

The college's official name is Howard College in Big Spring, she said, which is expected to be shortened to Howard College, the name by which it is commonly known, she said.

Most Texans do not favor Contra aid plan

By JAMES DYER and KATHY CASTREL
Harte-Hanks News Service

Almost all Texans say it is important to eliminate communism in Central America, but more than half are not willing to go along with President Reagan's plan to give $100 million in aid to the rebels fighting the leftist Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

According to the spring Texas Poll, 69 percent of Texans say it is very important to the security of the United States to eliminate communism in Central America, and another 25 percent say it is impor-telephone poll, 55 percent of Texans said they do not think the U.S. government should give $100 million in aid to the rebels, called contras, trying to overthrow the government in Nicaragua. Less than one-third (31 percent) think the contras should be given the money, and 14 percent had no opinion.

The president's proposed aid package for the contras passed the Senate but was narrowly rejected by the House in March. At the urging of House Republicans, a second vote on the aid package had been scheduled for this week.

This latest Texas Poll finding tracks a sentiment expressed by Texans last summer, when 55 percent said the United States should become much less involved in the internal affairs of Central American countries, while 25 percent said America should become more involved and 5 percent thought the situation should remain as it is.

In the spring poll, Texans stood in favor of aiding the contras are Republicans; 46 percent favor aid, compared to 32 percent of independents and 19 percent of Democrats. Conservatives also agree in greater numbers to Reagan's plan; 39 percent favor aid, compared to 27 percent of moderates and 28 percent of liberals. Texas men also favor aid to the contras much more than do women (41 percent to 23 percent).

Opposition to aiding the contras is highest among blacks; 76 percent oppose aid, compared to 54 percent of whites and 52 percent of Hispanics.

Blacks also are the least likely to think it is very important to eliminate communism from Central America; 49 percent say it's very important, compared to 60 percent of Anglos and 71 percent of Hispanics.

Ideologically, more than two-thirds of conservatives say it is very important to eliminate communism, while 59 percent of moderates and 54 percent of liberals agree.

Texas Poll interviewers surveyed 1,001 adult Texans May 4-18. The poll, sponsored by Harte-Hanks Communication Inc., is conducted by the Public Policy Resources Laboratory at Texas A&M University.

Important health concerns brought about by the mosquito

By DON RICHARDSON
County Extension Agent

Mosquitoes are one of the most important insect pests that affect the health and well-being of man and his domestic animals.

Because mosquitoes survive in a variety of environmental conditions, vast annoying populations occur in Texas.

Female mosquitoes produce a painful bite during feeding and can transmit a number of disease-causing organisms to man and animals.

Loss in property values and animals production efficiency often can be traced to mosquito occurrence and feeding.

For your garden

LIFE HISTORY — Mosquitoes pass through four distinct stages during their lifetime. The egg, larva and pupa stages occur in water, while the adult stage is free flying.

Mosquito eggs may be laid singly or in groups called rafts on the surface of water. Some species of mosquitoes lay eggs out of water, but in places subject to flooding or submersion by rising water.

Mosquito larvae, often called wigglers, hatch from eggs and require water for development. Most mosquito larvae breathe by projecting an air tube through the water surface.

Mosquito larvae commonly feed on small aquatic organisms and other plant and animal debris found in the water habitat.

After 4-10 days, mosquito larvae mature to the pupal stage. Mosquito pupae are characteristically comma shaped and, like the larvae stage, breathe through air tubes. Mosquito pupae are sometimes called tumbler because of their tumbling motion in water when distributed.

PUBLIC HEALTH IMPORTANCE — Mosquitoes are known to transmit several important disease-causing organisms to man and animals. Encephalitis, dengue, filariasis, yellow fever, and malaria have affected man in mosquito infested areas throughout history.

Encephalitis and occasional cases of malaria remain as important mosquito-borne diseases in Texas.

Heartworm in dog is also a common mosquito-borne disease in the humid eastern area and coastal plains of Texas. It has occurred with increased frequency in Texas.

Encephalitis is a viral inflammation of the brain and is caused by mosquitoes infected with the casual virus feeding on man, horses and mules. Birds serve as important natural hosts for the virus in the disease cycle. Public health officials often survey migrating bird populations to determine the incidence of virus and the potential for transmission the man and animal by feeding mosquitoes.

Three virus strains, Eastern and Western equine encephalitis and St. Louis encephalitis, are known to occur in Texas.

Symptoms in humans include high fever, convulsions, delirium and other characteristic central nervous system dysfunctions. Medical assistance should be obtained if symptoms occur.

Commercially available insecticide resin strips and aerosol bombs control adult mosquitoes in the home. Properly maintained window screening and use of insect repellents on the skin and clothing can provide considerable protection against mosquito bites.

When selecting sheet vinyl consider the mill it's made from

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

Putting new sheet vinyl in a bathroom or kitchen is one home improvement project where you have almost unlimited choices in patterns, colors, types, qualities, brands and price ranges.

Before buying a pattern because you love the color, or because it's on sale, you might want to consider the following.

The determining factor in the quality and cost of most sheet vinyls is the thickness of the "wear layer" — that's the clear, usually shiny vinyl that covers the pattern. Thickness of the wear layer can range from three mils to around 30 mils. A mil is .001 of an inch. Under normal wear conditions, you can expect about a year's wear per mil. Once you have considered the thickness of the wear layer, be aware of the different types of sheet vinyl.

Focus on family

Printed sheet vinyl has a rotogravure print on the backing which is covered with a wear layer. Both inexpensive and expensive products are manufactured this way. The difference is in the thickness of the wear layer.

Cushioned sheet vinyl is similar, but features a cushioning between the backing and the pattern. The cushioning adds warmth, quiet and comfort, but may be punctured fairly easily.

Inlaid sheet vinyl has a pattern which penetrates the entire depth of the sheet. It is more expensive but usually wears longer.

Finally, consider the flooring finish. Most sheet vinyl now has a no-wax finish composed of either a highly quality vinyl or urethane. Both keep their shine quite well, but urethane is harder and as a rule more durable.

Installing new sheet vinyl in the kitchen or bathroom may be within the range of your skills, if you have enough time and the right equipment. But also remember that one wrong cut on your newly purchased flooring can be very expensive.

Sheet vinyl is available in six-, nine-, and 15-foot widths. It's best to choose a pattern that comes in a width which will cover the room with no seams, since no matter how carefully the flooring is installed, problems will appear first at the seams. However, wide-width vinyls are difficult to install. So if you find you need one of the wider widths, you may need to hire a professional tradesperson after all.

FOURTH GENERATION CARPETS

One of the latest innovations in floor coverings are carpets tufted of "fourth generation" nylon and polyester. This refers to a fourth major breakthrough in fiber technology. The first three generations added special finishes, soil-hiding and antistatic properties to carpeting. The fourth generation makes it possible for manufacturers to apply soil-protection: fluorochemical finishes onto fibers while they're formed. That means the finish can be uniformly integrated throughout the structure of the yarn and it improves the performance of the carpet.

Committees, city work to beautify Big Spring

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

With its long stretches of blight, pockets of decay and littered streets, Big Spring is in search of an answer to a tough question. Can the town ever turn things around?

Some people think so. And they have pushed and prodded, badgered and battled for a cleaner, more attractive city.

Four committees — the Downtown Steering, Chamber of Commerce Beautification, Chamber CLEAN and Howard County Strategic Planning executive committee — along with City Hall are wrestling with the problem.

But are the efforts all spokes in the same wheel, or different wheels turning different ways?

The committees are not working together, says Downtown Coordinator Teri Quinones, a retail specialist brought in to restore vitality to downtown and the city's main thoroughfares. "We're tackling the goal in different directions," she says, adding that she thinks the effort needs to be streamlined. Specifically, she suggests that CLEAN and Beautification come under one committee.

Beautification Committee chairman Hayes Stripling III says he would like to find a way "to exchange information so that the committees are not all working separately."

"We've got too many study committees," he says. "We need an action committee. We need somebody who wants to take the bull by the horns."

Chamber vice president LeRoy Tillery says the committees are working toward the same goal. "They may be pulling a different string, but we're all pulling in the same direction."

As for an action committee, Tillery singled out the CLEAN (City Litter Eliminators Are Near) campaign headed by Councilman Johnny Rutherford as a horn grabber.

The program, funded by city and federal money, hires 15 high school and college students in the summer to clean trash from the town's main thoroughfares. Rutherford calls it "a catalyst for cleanliness in the entire city."

"There is a marked change in the way (the city) looks from the way it looked three years ago," he says.

Municipal Judge Melvin Daratt also has a plan to tidy the town. He would give youthful and minor offenders a chance to work off their 30-day sentence or fine by participating in community cleanup.

"We've got gobs of areas that need cleaning," Daratt says. "It would just give (the offenders) the opportunity to volunteer for duty with the city."

"Your traffic offenders are not criminals," he says. "I'd love to see it for some other reason than to put them in jail."

The big hitch in Daratt's plan is who will assume liability insurance for the work details.

"This is why the city doesn't get involved in this sort of thing," Daratt says. The plan, he says, was put before former City Manager Don Davis and former City Attorney Doyle Curtis who "felt like there was too much liability for the city."

Still, the plan has the support of Quinones and Stripling along with some pretty heavy hitters, namely Mayor Cotton Mize and Rutherford.

"I think it's a great idea," Mize says. But he, too, says the matter of liability insurance must be settled before a program could begin.

The city will spend almost $55,000 next fiscal year putting municipal muscle into enforcing its property code. The code bans weedy, unsightly and unsanitary lots; junked cars visible from a public street; and abandoned, dilapidated and unsafe buildings.

Code enforcement's lone ranger, Fire Marshal Jim Ryals, says once a complaint has been filed, the city takes steps to correct the problem.

First, the property is inspected by Ryals and the legal owner is determined, a tough task in cases where the owner is dead or long gone, which he says is true in the majority of violations.

Once identified, the property owner is sent a letter giving him 10 days to comply with city code.

After the letter has been delivered, the city waits 15 days before re-inspecting the property. If no action has been taken to comply with the code, the city goes to court.

If the person fails to show for court, or if a follow-up inspection shows continued non-compliance, bids are advertised to clean the property and a mechanics lien, a city claim to the property, is slapped on.

Ryals says most people cooperate before the court gets involved. Nonetheless, the city has executed 23 such liens already this year and is in the process of placing 10 more, says Public Works Director Tom Decell.

Through code enforcement, marked improvement has been made to west Third and Fourth Street, Ryals says. "I've pretty well got it cleaned up."

Stripling says the area looks somewhat better, "but I'd be lying if I said it looked a whole lot better."

Ramshackle buildings are still evident along those streets, and they're likely to be there awhile longer, says Ryals.

While saying he can have weedy lots and junked cars eliminated in six months, Ryals says it could be two years before such buildings are eliminated from Big Spring.

He explained the process of demolishing a building is more complicated than towing a car or cutting down weeds.

Perhaps another reason for the delay is that Ryals is tackling a giant problem by himself.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Miller's is experienced in home, business decorating

Miller's Crown Decorating can help you with your home or commercial decorating needs, says Darell, E.G. and Virginia Miller. The family-owned business offers residential and commercial floor coverings, window coverings and wall coverings, as well as installation, equipment and products to service them.

Miller's is Big Spring's only authorized Cook Paint dealer. The store shops around for reputable installers for everything it sells if the customer wants professional installation.

The owners take pride in not being wasteful with materials purchased by their customers. For example, when laying carpet, Miller's will figure how to install the 12-foot wide carpet in the house with as little waste as possible.

When quoting prices to customers, Miller's gives both the cost of materials for those who wish to do it themselves and the cost of materials plus labor for those who want professional installation. Often, the companies Miller's represents put products on sale. "We pass the sale on to the customer with the standard markup. The customer will realize more out of the sale than we do," says E.G.

Miller's also sells and installs commercial wall vinyl, commercial and residential ceramic tile, and custom-fitted mini-blinds. An example of their work can be seen on the second floor of Malone-Hogan Hospital, which was remodeled in January. The store installed the wall vinyl and carpet.

"We are a family store," says Virginia, wife of E.G. and mother of Darrell. The three Millers have owned and operated Miller's Crown Decorating six years.

E.G. has more than 35 years experience in painting, installing carpet and tile, and construction work. He taught his son the business of carpet laying, and it was Darrell's idea to open the home improvement business. "Darrell does the carpet laying, and his Dad and I run the store," Virginia says. E.G. also is a fireman.

"We try to have a store where the customer can come in and discuss his problem," E.G. says. The Millers and their customers will often work out solutions to problems over a cup of coffee.

"Come by and talk to us," says Virginia. "We can help you in all your decorating needs, from paint brushes to matching that special color you need." Miller's Crown Decorating is located at 1510 S. Gregg.

Le Cafe has French pastries

A trip to Le Cafe's authentic French bakery is like a trip to France's bakeries. There customers can experience the tastes and aromas of authentic French pastries and sandwiches.

Herve Goillandeau began offering the delicious treats last week. His specialty is the French croissant, which is made with pure butter and is crispier and flakier than the croissants most Americans are used to eating. Along with all the other treats, Herve recommends the croissant for special occasions as well as everyday eating. "It is very good," he says in his native French accent.

Other delectable treats he serves are: French Apple Pie ("A different apple pie. You'll love it."); Napoleons ("Try it one time and you'll come back"); Several flavors of fresh cheesecake (blueberry, strawberry, pecan, cherry, chocolate and amaretto); French donuts; French bread loaves; cinnamon bread; and rolls. He also serves whole quiches, make-it-yourself crepes and French pizza to go, and sandwiches on homemade bread. The sandwiches include: bacon, ham, tuna, turkey, and chicken.

Herve and wife Martha, an American, met in France. Although he was unable to speak English, Herve came to the United States five years ago. Today, he speaks fluent English with a French twist. "I'm still learning," he says.

FRENCH FOOD — Herve Goillandeau of Le Cafe is now serving French pastries at his restaurant.

Herve has been in the restaurant business most of his life. He has worked in French, American, Mexican and Chinese restaurants. He came to Big Spring when he was employed by Rosita's Fajitas; however, preparing French food is what Herve really enjoys, he says. "I like cooking." Martha also works at Le Cafe.

The bakery is located at Le Cafe, 504 Gregg. It's open from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday. Stop by and enjoy the taste and aroma of French pastries.
