Sidewalk

Q. I am having trouble getting the city to maintain the sidewalk in front of my house. Is it true that the city owns the property eight feet from the street, including the sidewalk?

A. Generally, the city owns the sidewalks, said public works director Tom Decell. If you are having trouble with your sidewalk or if you have a complaint, you can call Decell at City Hall, he said.

Changes loom for downtown

Newly hired city planner seeks input from citizen groups

By HANK MURPHY
Staff Writer

A city planner from Lubbock, hired to design redevelopment of downtown Big Spring and the city's main thoroughfare, met with several groups of citizens Thursday to seek input on his plan.

Robert Lima, president of Lima Planning Associates Inc. and associate professor of architecture at Texas Tech University, began work Thursday after signing a contract with the Downtown Steering Committee to provide a master plan for renovation.

"I don't like to do things that are unsuccessful," Lima said. "I don't like to do things that sit on shelves. I'm very concerned with the plan being implemented and doing a job that the city of Big Spring can use in promoting the downtown area."

Lima, who was instrumental in planning changes in Levelland, will be paid from a $180,000 fund raised by the Downtown Steering Committee to help push revitalization,

"If any plan is going to work, it needs the support and consensus of the public."

— Robert Lima

said Downtown Steering Committee Chairman Troy Fraser.

Teri Quinones told commissioners May 26 that $18,000 had been earmarked from the fund to pay the city planner.

Earlier this year, Lima submitted a six-phase plan for redevelopment that includes documenting and identifying the district's needs and resources, and finding ways to put resources to work.

The plan calls for Lima to make recommendations for redevelopment, restoration and growth of the Main Street district, and draft sketches of how downtown and primary corridors might look.

Also, Lima will provide a district brochure geared to state and national businesses that might choose to locate in Big Spring, he said.

Finally, he'll outline a strategy for implementing the plan.

"I would not want to create a plan or set of strategies that the city cannot follow through on and not have the resources ... to implement," he said.

Lima held meetings Thursday with more than 15 groups representing business, property owners and interested citizens. He said he wanted to solicit ideas about downtown.

"If any plan is going to work, it needs the support and consensus of the public," he explained.

He heard from one group that said downtown was deteriorating, with bad streets, curbs and sidewalks, and poor drainage. Unkept buildings further spoil the environment, he was told.

Former LULAC president Pat DeAnda said citizens have a poor image of Big Spring, adding that apathy is strong here.

"People need to realize that nobody's going to do it for them," she said. "Everyone waits for someone else to take the lead."

Some people said prices are too high here. Shoppers do better going to Midland or Odessa where prices are better and selections are broader, they said.

County Commissioner O.L. "Louie" Brown said there is damaging ethnic friction here. "We should promote brotherhood. Let this ethnic stuff go out the window until we get this town turned around."

Lima said the local perception of Big Spring is more negative than that of outsiders.

"For myself and a good portion of the people I know professionally, Big Spring is a very attractive place ... It's one of the few 'oases' that exist in West Texas that has

FBI foils Soviet attempt to steal U.S. documents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI said today it had detained the Soviet Embassy's air attaché after he allegedly picked up classified documents left by a U.S. Air Force officer working with the FBI.

Col. Vladimir M. Izmaylov, 43, the highest-ranking Soviet Air Force officer attached to the embassy, was arrested Thursday night after a scuffle in nearby Fort Washington, Md., the FBI said.

The material was confiscated by the FBI as Izmaylov was removing it from a "dead drop" near a wooded area, the release said. It said the material "consisted of classified U.S. national defense documents."

Among documents Izmaylov allegedly sought, said the FBI's Dana Caro, were ones dealing with the Reagan Administration's Star Wars effort, the cruise missile program and the radar-evading Stealth technology.

Izmaylov was later released to Soviet officials after they "verified Izmaylov's diplomatic immunity status," the FBI said in a news release.

The State Department is considering possible further steps, the release said.

It quoted FBI Director William Webster as saying the U.S. government will not tolerate those who would steal American secrets "and while those individuals may hold diplomatic immunity, that will not stop the FBI from investigating and pursuing all legal avenues available when the situation warrants such action."

A State Department official, speaking only on condition he not be named, said the normal procedure when a diplomat is caught

"red-handed" is to order his expulsion. However, no decision has been made in the current case, he said.

In addition to his position as air attaché, the Soviet colonel "is also a known Soviet military intelligence officer," the FBI said.

Its announcement said that for several months Izmaylov had been meeting with the Air Force officer, who has access to classified information, trying to "arrange for him to function as a clandestine agent of the Soviet Union and to obtain via that officer classified United States defense documents."

However, the U.S. officer, who was not named, was working with both the U.S. Air Force office of special investigations and the FBI, the release said.

As part of the investigation, on Wednesday the U.S. officer "deposited the classified documents at the prescribed location per the instruction of Izmaylov," who had promised him $20,000, the FBI said.

After Izmaylov was detained at the site, he was taken to the FBI's Washington field office, the agency said. The FBI notified State Department officials, who in turn called the Soviet Embassy.

Izmaylov was first assigned to the Soviet military office, an adjunct of the Soviet Embassy in Washington, as assistant air attaché from late 1976 through 1980. His current tour of duty began in October 1984, when he returned as assistant air attaché.

He was recently promoted to air attaché, making him the senior Soviet Air Force officer assigned to the military office, the FBI said.

State still faces tough times

AUSTIN (AP) — Hard times for many Texans will not begin to improve until 1988, says Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock's latest economic forecast Thursday said the state's economy will continue to decline during the rest of this year and 1987.

Whether it starts up again in 1988 depends largely on stabilization of oil prices, Bullock said.

"If oil and gas prices and drilling continue to decline after 1988, the Texas economy would remain sluggish until the end of the decade," Bullock said.

Bullock said his overall forecast is that Texas will underperform the national economy through 1987 as it has done since 1984.

"In 1988, Texas will catch up to the U.S. economic growth and begin to outperform the national economy as oil prices stabilize and drilling activity picks up," Bullock predicted.

Bullock's forecast said Texas will lose 55,000 nonfarm jobs this year — fewer than in 1983 when falling oil prices cost the state 72,000 jobs.

He said the decline in jobs would be confined to 1986, but there would be little improvement in 1987.

Through 1988, Texas goods-producing industries — mining, manufacturing and construction lumped together — will lose 43,000 jobs.

In 1986, the energy industry will lose 46,700 jobs.

"Unlike job losses in 1983, highly paid, white-collar professionals will account for a big portion of these losses," the comptroller said.

Manufacturing will lose 33,300 jobs in 1986, the forecast said, then continue to grow at a rate of two to three percent in 1987 and 1988.

"Overbuilding and a slowdown in population and income growth will continue to depress residential and non-residential construction in

Consumer price slump has ended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The longest, sharpest consumer price plunge in almost four decades ended last month as rebounding gasoline prices pushed consumers' costs up 0.2 percent, the government said today.

Despite the May gain, the first in four months, most analysts still expect prices for all of 1986 to rise no more than 2 percent, virtually half of last year's 3.8 percent gain.

Indeed, even with last month's increase, prices so far this year have declined at an annual rate of 1.4 percent.

By far, most of the increase in May was accounted for by a 2.5 percent hike in gasoline prices.

Names in the news

SIOUX CITY, Iowa — This weekend's 50th reunion at Central High School is attracting a lot of attention because the Class of 1936 includes twins Eppie and Po-Po, who later became known as ANN LANDERS and DEAR ABBY.

Reporters from several newspapers have already made reservations, said Charles Lindsay, the classmate in charge of organizing the reunion. CBS' "60 Minutes" wanted permission to film the event, but was turned down.

The advice columnists, who were born Pauline and Esther Friedman on July 4, 1918, in Sioux City, went through high school known as Po-Po and Eppie, respectively.

Esther became Ann Landers after she started her advice column in Chicago in 1955. Pauline began writing her "Dear Abby" column for a San Francisco newspaper the following year.

The presence of the sisters will not overshadow the reunion, Lindsay said.

"This is not the twins' homecoming," he said. "This is the 50th reunion of the Class of 1936, and the twins are members."

LOS ANGELES — Comedian JOAN RIVERS, who underwent surgery for a hysterectomy, decided to have a tummy tuck at the same time, a spokesman said.

"She figured as long as she's under and having it done, she might as well beautify America," said spokesman Richard Grant.

Miss Rivers, 53, underwent both procedures Thursday at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center. The reason for the hysterectomy was not disclosed. The tummy tuck will help eradicate the scar from the hysterectomy, Grant said.

After recovering in the hospital for a week, Miss Rivers will stay at her Beverly Hills home before flying to London on July 20 to cover the wedding of Prince Andrew for ABC-TV's "Good Morning America."

The comedian will begin acting this fall as host on her own live late night television talk show, pitting her against former mentor Johnny Carson and his "Tonight Show," for which she served as substitute host.

NEW YORK — ELLA FITZGERALD takes the stage at Avery Fisher Hall tonight to open the JVC Jazz Festival, the latest incarnation of what was formerly known as the Newport and then the Kool jazz festival.

Also on the bill for the nine-day festival are Sarah Vaughan, Billy Eckstine, Mel Torme, George Shearing, B.B. King and Andrae Crouch.

From a younger generation, Spyro Gyra will headline a show, and OTB, a band of recent college graduates who play bebop, will perform with Herbie Hancock.

The Ganelin Trio, a jazz group from the Soviet Union, will play with Lester Bowie's Brass Fantasy.

In addition to the shows in New York, there will also be performances at Saratoga Springs and at Waterloo Village in Stanhope, N.J.

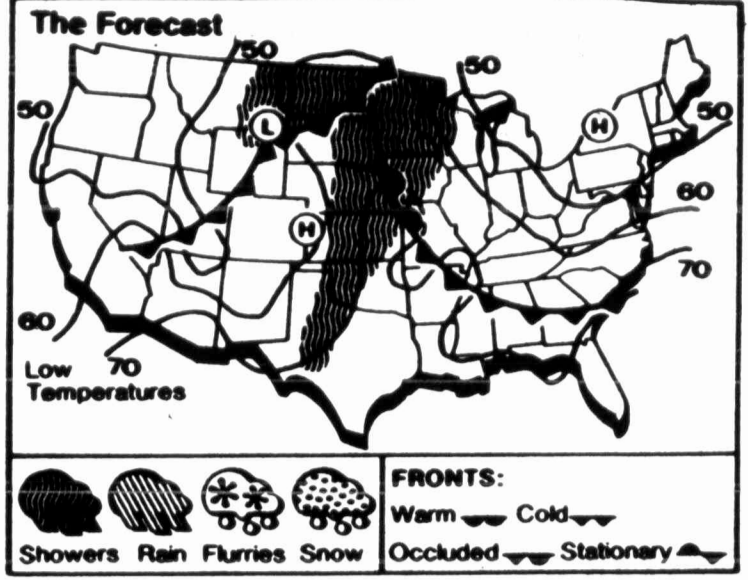

LOS ANGELES — UCLA bone-marrow specialist Dr. ROBERT GALE, who led a team of doctors helping victims of the Chernobyl nuclear plant disaster, was awarded the city's Humanitarian Award from Mayor Tom Bradley.

Joining Gale in a ceremony Thursday was Occidental Petroleum Corp. chairman Armand Hammer, who used his influence with the Soviet Union to get Soviet officials to accept Gale's help in performing bone-marrow transplants.

Fatal bone-marrow destruction occurs when humans are exposed to high levels of radiation.

"In accepting the mayor's award, I am really accepting it on behalf of the international community of physicians who aided the victims of the disaster," Gale said. "Although I was highly visible, physicians from more than 20 countries assisted in these efforts."

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were expected over most sections of the state tonight and Saturday, but forecasters said some areas would have only widely scattered to isolated shower activity.

According to a police report, Heady's car missed a curve while heading east on Highway 176 approaching the intersection of I-20. His car left the highway, went through a vacant lot, hit the curb along the north service road of I-20 and flipped on its top.

The car skidded wheels-up across the service road and rolled back on its wheels after striking the curb again. It then plowed into the guard rail along I-20.

 which had fallen 5.9 percent in February, 12 percent in March and 11.3 percent in April.

Food prices also rose, by only 0.4 percent after gains on 0.1 percent in March and 0.3 percent in April. Grocery store prices themselves rose 0.4 percent, while restaurant meal costs gained 0.5 percent.

The largest food price gain was posted for fruit and vegetables, which saw a 1.9 percent increase. But that was down from a 3.6 percent hike in April.

Energy prices other than gasoline showed continued declines, with heating oil and coal prices falling 4.4 percent. Natural gas and electricity prices fell 0.6 percent.

The overall May increase in the Labor Department calculation amounted to an annual rate of 2.2 percent.

As of May, the Consumer Price Index stood at 326.3, meaning that a market basket of goods that cost $10 in the base year of 1967 cost $32.63 in May — or 50 cents above what the same basket would have cost in May 1985.

The index itself is not adjusted by the government to remove the affect of seasonal factors, whereas other key figures in the report — including the monthly percentage change in all categories — do reflect such adjustments.

Both private and government analysts said price declines appear to have run their course.

With the May figures, "the index has turned around. We are now seeing small increases again," noted department analyst Patrick Jackman.

"The best of the deflation news is over. But how could it not be?" said Allen Sinai, chief economist for done.

 "There are potential resources in Big Spring to optimize or compensate for (unsightly areas), he said.

"In many cases some of the things that may currently appear as disadvantages to business location and growth may in fact, with minor investment or minor policy changes, become real economic potentials."

He added that he does not anticipate a return of significant inflation. "Basically the U.S. and world economies remain sluggish, weak, especially on the industrial side, and there are ample supplies of basic commodities relative to demand. So there is no reason to expect a rebound in inflation."

The turnaround had been evident in last week's wholesale price report, which said that costs one stop short of the retail level had risen 0.6 percent in May, the first hike in that computation this year.

In other details on May price activity, the Labor Department said:

- New automobile prices increased 0.9 percent after an increase of 0.5 percent in April, while used car prices fell 1.9 percent after dropping 0.8 percent.

- Medical care costs were up 0.6 percent, matching the April gain.

- Clothing costs fell 0.2 percent after a 0.3 percent rise in April.

- Overall housing costs were down 0.1 percent in May after rising 0.3 percent in April.

Prices overall had declined 0.3 percent dip in April and 0.4 percent declines in February and March.

Many analysts suggest the rate of inflation at the consumer level will return to the range of 3.5 percent to 4.0 percent, where it was before the oil price dip.

Under existing law, Social Security cost-of-living increases are suspended if the CPI drops below 3 percent — as measured by the change from September of one year to September of the next.

If this happens, Congress seems likely to vote to waive the 3 percent threshold. And President Reagan's budget director, James C. Miller III, said recently the administration won't fight such an effort.

Phone rates will not change

AUSTIN — Basic local telephone rates will not change as part of Southwestern Bell's $35.4 million rate hike, the Public Utility Commission decided today.

The commission approved a series of specific rate increases and decreases that will add up to the total increase it had tentatively approved.

Among the increases are new charges for operator assistance. Customers will have to pay $1.35 for operator help in determining if a line is in use, and $2.20 for operator help in interrupting a telephone conversation. Both of those services now are free.

The commission also voted to allow only three free directory assistance calls a month, down from the current five. They also increased the price of additional directory assistance calls to 35 cents. Those calls now cost 25 cents.

Also approved was a 2½ percent late payment penalty for business customers. There currently is no late payment penalty.

The commission, which voted 2-1 for a $35.4 million hike last Friday, rejected its staff recommendation for a nicker-a-month decrease in basic home phone service rates.

Southwestern Bell wanted a $277 million rate hike package that would include increases of up to $2 a month for basic home service.

The PUC staff proposal for a nickel decrease added up to $4.5 million a year less in revenues for the phone company.

The PUC staff proposal also included a $29.7 million cut in the fees paid to Bell by long distance companies that use the telephone network and a $6.2 million cut in Bell's intrastate long distance rates.

Condo board says Thatcher can stay

DALLAS (AP) — The board of directors of a high-rise condominium building has rejected the suggestion of several tenants that Mark Thatcher, son of British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, be forced to leave because of the threat of a terrorist attack.

In notices sent out to all units Thursday, the board said tenants have no legal right to seek his ouster and said Thatcher is free to stay.

FBI agent convicted

LOS ANGELES — Richard W. Miller, the only FBI agent ever convicted of espionage, faces possible life in prison but cheerfully anticipated an appeal of the guilty verdict in his second trial.

Miller, a 20-year veteran who worked in the counterintelligence section of the FBI's Los Angeles office, was convicted of spying for the Soviet Union. U.S. District Judge David Kenyon set sentencing for July 14.

Jurors said Miller's own admissions to FBI inquisitors before his arrest Oct. 2, 1984, had clinched the case against him. They rejected his claim that his affair with a Soviet woman, Svetlana Ogorodnikov, was part of his plan to become a double agent and infiltrate the Soviet KGB for the FBI.

Democrats urge Senate

WASHINGTON — Leading Senate Democrats are urging the Republican-dominated chamber to follow the lead of the House and quickly pass legislation requiring the total withdrawal of U.S. business interests from South Africa.

And they said the House-passed measure, far from being the poison pill claimed by House Republicans, will place the Senate under enormous pressure to adopt its own tough sanctions legislation.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., and two other senators introduced legislation identical to the total divestment, total trade embargo bill that was sponsored in the Democratic-led House by Rep. Ronald Dellums, D-Calif.

Tax overhaul bill near end

WASHINGTON — A weary Senate was within striking distance today of giving its overwhelming approval to landmark tax-overhaul legislation that promises to cut the tax bills of millions of Americans.

"The end is near," Majority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., said today before the Senate began its 11th day of debate on the measure.

Senators have agreed to take a final vote at 4 p.m. Tuesday on the sweeping measure drafted by the Senate Finance Committee. Amendments were being considered today, Monday and Tuesday.

The wreckage of the De Havilland Twin Otter four plane and the Bell Jet Ranger four helicopter still was smoldering Thursday when an eight-man team began removing the bodies of the victims, most of them foreign tourists.

Currents sweep boat to Trinity River Dam

FORT WORTH — Fourteen preschoolers and four adult chaperones on a field trip were rescued from a paddle boat that teetered precariously on the edge of a dam by firefighters riding in small boats.

"They're all safe," said Fire Department spokesman T.R. Ryan. "Not a one of them are hurt."

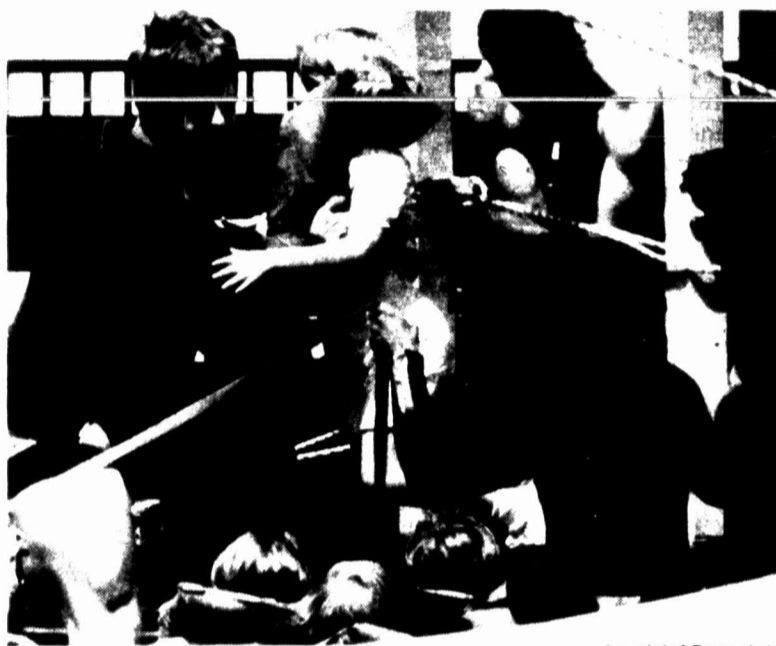

About 100 people gathered along the river about two miles west of downtown Fort Worth Thursday to watch the rescue, which was completed by noon, nearly two hours after the paddle boat cast off on a one-mile trip downstream.

"Gee, this is fun!" said 5-year-old Palmer Trillson, among the first to be pulled to safety. "It was exciting," he said as a firefighter carried him to a waiting bus.

The Luv Boat was on a church field trip when its engine malfunctioned and the fast-flowing Trinity River turned it sideways and swept it toward the dam, officials said.

Firefighter R.T. Forrester swam to the boat and attached four ropes to keep it from plunging 15 feet into the river. Fellow firefighters pulled the children off the paddle boat, took them up a steep embankment and put them in the bus.

Officials have not determined how to retrieve the craft, Ryan said. "There was a lot of danger of Ralph Heckathorne, the boat's operator, said the craft was stuck on the dam for about an hour and 20 minutes. He said he tried to tie up once but could not find anything to tie to. Heckathorne said he tried to nose the boat onto the bank but that maneuver knocked out the motor, and he lost control.

Hijacking trial continues

GENOA, Italy — A defendant in the Achille Lauro hijacking trial today recanted a pre-trial statement in which he said a fellow Palestinian admitted killing a crippled 69-year-old American.

Ibrahim Fatayer Abdelatif, 20, said none of the hijackers killed Leon Klinghoffer, a wheelchair-bound New Yorker whose body, shot twice, washed ashore in Syria.

Youssef Magid al-Molqi, 23, is charged with shooting Klinghoffer in the chest and head. On Thursday, Molqi retracted a confession given prosecutors a month after the October hijacking and claimed the murder charge "was a frame-up between the Americans and the Syrians."

Americans shipwrecked

SUVA, Fiji — An American couple whose yacht was wrecked on a reef are recovering on a southern Fiji island after spending eight days drifting in a rubber dinghy without food and with only a quart of water, the yacht's skipper said today.

Lowell Ellington Hendrickson, in a telephone call from Fulaga island, said he and his wife, Asipan, were in good condition after the ordeal.

The couple, from Portland, Ore., was picked up Monday by an island trading boat after drifting in a liferaft southeast of the Fiji group.

Man sentenced to death

MOSCOW (AP) — Convicted of treason and mass murder, former U.S. resident Fyodor Fedorenko has been sentenced to death in connection with his wartime activities as a guard at the Nazis' Treblinka death camp.

The 78-year-old Fedorenko, the first person deported to the Soviet Union from the United States on Nazi war crimes charges, was convicted and sentenced Thursday by a court in the Crimean capital of Simferopol, about 115 miles south of his hometown of Dzhankoye.

The official news agency Tass, which announced the verdict and sentence, did not say when the sentence might be carried out or whether Fedorenko will appeal.

Policeman gunned down

REYNOSA, Mexico — A policeman investigating the slaying of a newspaper publisher was gunned down as he tried to question possible suspects, authorities said.

Presiliano Garcia, 33, a veteran of the Tamaulipas State Judicial Police, died Thursday afternoon en route to the government hospital.

He had been shot with .45-caliber weapon as he and rookie officer Manuel Ornela stopped a car while they were investigating the slaying of Dr. Jorge Brenes, said Israel Pena Lucero, commandant of the State Judicial Police in Reynosa.

Trade barriers hurting Mexico

Mexico is in deep trouble. An economy that seemed to improve in early 1984, after two years of severe recession and a 40 percent drop in real wages, has been overwhelmed by plummeting oil prices.

The oil price decline is threatening to derail what precarious progress had been achieved on structural reforms designed to make the economy more efficient.

Mexico may soon run out of dollars for servicing its foreign debt, which amounts to more than $96 billion. Its payments to foreign banks amount to about $1 billion a month.

The link between economics and politics is clear. Mexico can either default on debt payments, with grave consequences for the finances of U.S. banks holding $26 billion in loans to Mexico, or it can unleash a new wave of austerity at home, thus risking dangerous social unrest.

Unrest in Mexico would most certainly affect this country; a precipitous increase in illegal immigration is but one inevitable result.

Clearly, this is not a time for another round of Mexico-bashing from Sen. Jesse Helms' Senate committee or anyone else in Washington. It is a time for cooperative approaches to solving Mexico's debt crisis.

It is also a time for recognizing that the debt crisis is not merely a question of dollars and cents between banks and debtors, as Mexico Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda reminded a gathering of journalists and academicians at UC San Diego.

It is a political challenge of the utmost difficulty. But as Sepulveda noted, "The political handling of the debt problem, repeatedly demanded by the Latin American governments, has not yet found a proper answer from the United States."

That answer must be forthcoming. Mexico itself must make some difficult economic decisions — paring back its budget, relaxing restrictions on foreign investment, loosening tariffs and quotas, denationalizing some enterprises — but it's up to us to avoid making a bad situation worse.

Sepulveda noted, for example, that most Latin American economies, including Mexico, suffer the impact of trade barriers that make it difficult to export goods to the United States.

"This protectionism," he said, "restrains foreign exchange earnings for our countries and therefore the financial resources required to expand our productive sectors and to create enough jobs."

Coahoma thanks cemetery helpers

To the editor:
A very special thanks goes to all those who helped to make needed repairs to the Coahoma Cemetery on June 14. There was also a very necessary kitchen crew on the spot without whom the workers might have withered away.

Hospital recalls neighborly help

To the editor:
The emergency is perhaps over, yet the memory of assorted water trucks pulling into the loading dock at Malone-Hogan Hospital during the recent water crisis still lingers. So does the memory of the nameless faces of those who drove the trucks and the city and county employees who stood by. Their actions were visible signs of neighborly concern for our hospital's situation during the emergency.

Since there's no way to know all the names of those who came to our rescue, please allow me to use this column to express our appreciation. For the water and other assistance, we are grateful. For the neighborliness, we stand in awe.

On behalf of our doctors, our patients, and our employees, we thank you all.

U.S. boondoggle in Egypt swallows millions in taxes

By JACK ANDERSON and DALE VAN ATTA
WASHINGTON — In Egypt, land of the pyramids, lavish construction projects certainly are nothing new. But the U.S. government's extravagant 20-year effort to provide a suitably posh residence for the American ambassador would make a pharaoh blush.

So far, the boondoggle has swallowed $6 million of taxpayers' money like so much dishwater poured onto the sands of the Sahara — and with about as much effect. There is still no residence.

Here's the story, as gleaned by our associate Lucette Lagnado from internal State Department documents, including an inspector general's report and a General Accounting Office study requested by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Texas:

In 1966, the State Department purchased an elegant villa in the ritzy Cairo suburb of Giza, near the Pyramids. The house dated back to the British colonial era and was magnificently situated on the banks of the Nile. All it seemed to need was some refurbishing to transform it into an impressive ambassadorial residence.

But this modest undertaking was stopped cold when Egypt broke off diplomatic relations after its disastrous defeat by Israel in the 1967 war.

When relations were resumed in 1974, the State Department raised the residential ante with a two-pronged approach: Renovation of the Giza property would resume, while a second mansion was purchased to house the ambassador in the meantime.

The new property, purchased in 1975, was a mansion in the suburb of Maadi. It cost $1.8 million, and an additional $1 million was spent fixing it. That was accomplished in only four years.

But when it was ready for occupancy, the ambassador, Hermann Eilts, refused to move in. He complained that it was too far from the embassy in downtown Cairo, and grumbled that no other ambassadors were living in the neighborhood. He also faulted the security arrangements.

So the ambassador pre-empted the home of the charge d'affaires, a relatively modest place in the

Jack Anderson

Zamalek suburb. The fancy digs in Maadi were left unoccupied.

Meanwhile, then-President Anwar Sadat decided he wanted the Giza property — the first site, remember? — for his own use. So the State Department turned it over to him, and demolition crews leveled the old colonial residence on the Nile.

Then Sadat changed his mind and returned the bulldozed site to the State Department, which hired a Washington architectural company to design a new residence.

There were some problems — including a cost overrun of more than 100 percent of the original $180,000 contract — but eventually the design was accepted despite the misgivings, and an Egyptian construction company was contracted to build the house.

"Apparently, no attempt was made to conduct a pre-award survey to determine if it (the builder) was financially or technically qualified," the inspector general noted.

In fact, the contractor previously had done inferior work for the embassy, the inspector general noted.

The results were predictable. As the years — and the millions — rolled on, the project became a shambles. A former embassy official informed Washington by letter that it "is the most poorly constructed project I have ever seen," and said one observer "described it as looking like Swiss cheese."

A special investigating team from Washington reported the building "can be made functional only at great effort and expense and can never be brought up to the level of quality originally intended."

The expensive wreck now at Giza sits vacant. "For Sale" signs are posted on it and the Maadi home. So far, there have been no takers.

CONFIDENTIAL FILE: The Argentine armed forces may not have performed so brilliantly with their modern weapons of war, but they're experts in selling them, according to State Department sources. And politics doesn't play much of a role.

For instance, Argentina and Israel have been involved in joint weapons development and production of jet trainers, tanks and other armored vehicles. But the Argentine government also has sold sophisticated weapons to Arab states, notably Iraq. And it exports arms and agricultural products to Persian Gulf countries, including Iran, as well as grain and technology to Algeria.

EYE ON THE PENTAGON: Defense Department investigators quietly are complaining that the CIA and the Justice Department are obstructing their attempts to learn about possible kickbacks from U.S. contractors to Philippine ex-President Ferdinand Marcos.

Specifically, they say, they have been unable to obtain records on a contractor that were taken from Marcos when he arrived in Hawaii to go into exile.

The company is the target of a grand jury probe, according to Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y. But the Pentagon investigators say that's no reason to hinder their work on the same subject.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Is there no endeavor of the federal government so intrinsically worthwhile that it can't be perverted into yet another wasteful boondoggle?

Apparently not. Recent reports from the President's Council on Management Improvement say the government spent $250 million and 5,800 staff years in 1984 identifying areas of potential waste, fraud and abuse — but the great bulk of the areas already has been identified in routine internal checks by the agencies involved.

It's fine to watch waste, but who's watching the waste watchers?

Around the rim

El Paso gives formula for development

By SCOTT FITZGERALD
Comparing it to other major cities in the Sun Belt, El Paso ranks small in scale against the likes of Dallas, Atlanta or San Diego.

Keeping this in mind, El Paso's challenge to compete with those cities economically is much like Big Spring trying to keep afloat amongst larger Texas cities.

Whether it be major cities competing or towns like Big Spring trying to lure people, money and development, the trend is to redevelop blighted downtown areas. The goal is to attract people to the downtown.

It's being done by focusing on cultural, entertainment and retail activities.

The game plan starts with a hotel. The idea is to locate a national historical landmark such as the former Paso Del Norte on S. El Paso St.

The grand old hotel, which opened Thanksgiving Day in 1912, was destined for the wrecker ball a few years back.

The next move is to interest a smart investment group like Franklin Land & Resources, a wholly owned subsidiary of El Paso Electric, which bought the old hotel in 1981.

Then the game plan calls for shopping around to display the purchase to major hotel companies — just as Franklin Land and Resources did.

Franklin eventually contracted with Westin Hotels whose major aim is to lure and cater to the convention crowd.

Nancy Stone of Westin Del Norte said the hotel already has booked 50 conventions. The grand opening date is June 24, when more than 600 persons are scheduled to attend, she said.

During a tour of the magnificent restored hotel last weekend, I felt like a little kid again when my parents told me to dress up because "we're going to the Del Norte."

It was especially satisfying to see talk turn into action and results.

We heard a lot of talk in 1985 from a San Antonio developer who purchased Hotel Settles here in downtown Big Spring.

But after all the talk about his plans for the hotel, Gil Cuadra changed his tune to: "I'm going to sit on my investment."

He's done a very good job of it.

Today

By The Associated Press
Today is Friday, June 20, the 171st day of 1986. There are 194 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:
On June 20, 1782, Congress approved the Great Seal of the United States.

On this date:
In 1632, the English Crown granted the second Lord Baltimore settlement rights to an area surrounding Chesapeake Bay, most of which would later become Maryland.

In 1756, in India, a group of British soldiers was captured and imprisoned in a suffocating cell that became known as the Black Hole of Calcutta. Most of the men died.

In 1837, Queen Victoria ascended to the British throne upon the death of her uncle, King William IV.

In 1863, West Virginia became the 35th state admitted to the Union.

In 1893, a jury in New Bedford, Mass. found Lizzie Borden innocent of the ax murders of her father and stepmother.

In 1948, the variety series "Toast of the Town," hosted by Ed Sullivan, premiered on CBS television.

In 1963, the United States and Soviet Union signed an agreement to set up a so-called hot line.

Ten years ago: The U.S. military quietly closed its last two major installations in Thailand, which had seen a large U.S. military presence during the Vietnam War.

More tainted capsules found

SEATTLE (AP) — As many as six deaths are being reinvestigated because of the deaths of two people from cyanide poisoning and the discovery of three bottles of tainted Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules, authorities said.

One of the two who died, Bruce Nickell, 52, was initially thought to have died on June 5 of natural causes, but toxicology tests revealed the cause as cyanide poisoning, Dr. Corinne Fligner of the King County medical examiner's office said Thursday.

Because of that, she said, medical examiners would reopen the cases of the other deaths to see if there was any connection.

Nickell and the other victim, Elizabeth Sue Snow, 40, who died last week, lived about five miles from each other in suburban Auburn and could have shopped at the same store, said police spokesman Jim Detrick of the Auburn Police Department.

Cyanide-tainted capsules of Excedrin were found in bottles recovered from their homes.

Tests on Thursday revealed cyanide-tainted capsules in a bottle sent to investigators earlier by a food store in Kent, a few miles away, said Kent police Lt. Dave Everett.

In announcing that Nickell died of cyanide poisoning, Ms. Fligner said: "We assume that he took Extra-Strength Excedrin that had cyanide in it. But I can't say that because I wasn't there, and I didn't see what he swallowed. We assume the two things are related."

The Food and Drug Administration on Wednesday warned against the use of the Extra-Strength Excedrin capsules, and manufacturer Bristol-Myers followed that with a nationwide recall of the medication.

Of the 56 capsules left inside the 60-capsule bottle in Ms. Snow's home, three contained significant amounts of cyanide, while one cyanide-laced capsule was found in the bottle from the Nickell home, FDA officials said.

The bottles are being examined for fingerprints and evidence of tampering in an FBI laboratory, said FBI special agent Don Tokunaga. He said there were no reports of tampering elsewhere in the country.

The bottles carried the lot number 5-H102, with an August 1988 expiration date.

The Extra-Strength Excedrin bottle found in Kent had the same lot number, said Jack Martin, FDA spokesman in Washington.

"They were part of a general stock removal from the Kent store handling that particular product," he said. "One bottle appears to contain cyanide and we have turned that over to the FBI."

The FDA said more than 73,000 capsules from the Northwest have been analyzed chemically or by X-rays.

Paul Webking, Ms. Snow's husband, said the FDA has not sufficiently instructed consumers how to be on the lookout for tampering.

"Sue was a careful, aware, intelligent, methodical person. She was not able to detect the problem, so the tampering has to be perfect," he said. "People can't just rely on the fact that they're going to visually inspect these products and determine whether they're safe."

Just where the capsules with the lot number 5-H102 and expiration date of August 1988 were distributed was unknown, said FDA spokeswoman Ellen Miller.

Bristol-Myers asked all consumers who have Excedrin capsules to return them for Excedrin tablets or a cash refund to P.O. Box 1000, Baltimore, Md., 21268.

Patient dies from radiation

By The Associated Press
TYLER—An East Texas Cancer Center patient died three weeks after excessive radiation exposure from a cancer treatment machine that malfunctioned, officials disclosed.

Another patient was also overexposed during radiation therapy the previous month and use of the Therac 25 linear equipment has been discontinued, said Dick Higginbotham, East Texas Cancer Center administrator.

A patient was injured at the Kennestone Regional Oncology Center in Marietta, Ga., a Georgia attorney says.

In Marietta, an identical Therac 25 at the Kennestone center unleashed a huge radiation dose to the chest of Katie Yarborough, 61, who was undergoing treatment for breast cancer, according to attorney Bill Bird of Atlanta.

Bird said the woman immediately felt pain and irritation below the collarbone in a spot that over several weeks developed into a deep, discolored hole "between the size of a quarter and a half-dollar."

Like the others, Yarborough suffered nerve damage — the radiation injury destroyed a vital nerve center and robbed her of the use of her left arm, Bird said.

Military jet fighters crash

MORGAN MILL—Investigators today inspected debris from two Marine Corps F-4 Phantom jet fighters that crashed Thursday afternoon on a North Central Texas ranch, apparently after colliding during routine training flights, the Navy said.

Four crew members parachuted safely from the planes and escaped serious injury, according to Petty Officer D.W. Beasley, who is based at the Dallas Naval Air Station.

The crew members were taken

Thursday to the Naval Air Station Medical Center, but the Navy declined to identify them or comment on the extent of their injuries.

The jets crashed about 5:40 p.m. Thursday in Erath County, about five miles west of Morgan Mill, said Frank Ratterman, a spokesman for the Dallas Naval Air Station, where the planes were based. Morgan Mill is about 10 miles north of Stephenville and about 60 miles southwest of Fort Worth.

Bank president found guilty

MIDLAND—A former Bank of the West president said he will appeal guilty verdicts of embezzlement, misapplication of bank funds and making false entries in bank records.

Bill Tapp, who remained free on bond, heard a jury return guilty verdicts on 10 of 12 counts after more than three hours of deliberations Thursday.

Sentencing is scheduled for July 16 before U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland. Tapp faces prison and $50,000 in fines, assistant U.S. attorney Jim Blankinship said.

Prosecutors portrayed the former Odessa banker as a man whose alleged criminal actions betrayed bank customers' trust, while defense attorneys tried to show the banker himself was a victim of misplaced trust in a friend.

Three bank directors, including former Odessa Mayor Bob Brvant, testified Wednesday that their initials approving a $34,000 loan handled by Tapp had not been signed.

Boy shot with 'toy' gun

FORT WORTH—A 7-year-old boy shot and killed an 11-year-old playmate with a .22-caliber derringer he thought was a toy, authorities said.

LaSunya Niko Mosley of Fort Worth was pronounced dead at John Peter Smith Hospital Thursday, police said.

According to police, the 7-year-old boy and his 11-year-old sister said they found the gun in an unattended car Thursday morning, but thought it was a toy. The boy pulled the hammer back and it slipped from under his thumb and fired the cartridge. Mosley was hit once in the chest.

Area couples feted at 4-H Roundup

COLLEGE STATION—A Knott couple and an Ackerly couple were singled out for state honors at the 1986 Texas 4-H Roundup at Texas A&M University June 11.

Lloyd and Sue Robinson, former 4-H members who farm as well as own and operate the Knott Store and Cooperative Station northwest of Big Spring, were presented the 1986 Texas 4-H Alumni Award.

Pearl and Howard Armstrong of Ackerly were among 28 4-H leaders in the state recognized as the top adult volunteer leaders in the Far West District of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The extension service is the parent organization of 4-H.

The Robinsons were active in livestock projects as 4-H members in Howard County. They have farmed in the Knott community since 1956 and have operated the store, which serves as a community meeting place, since 1979.

Three of the couple's son have been involved in 4-H, all winners of the 4-H Gold Star Award. The Robinsons also have been 4-H organization and projects leaders, playing major roles in such activities as omelet suppers, junior rodeos, livestock shows and invitational livestock judging contests.

Lloyd and Sue Robinson

Pearl and Howard Armstrong

Sue Robinson served on a special task force to write the 4-H history of Howard County. She also has judged record books at the county and district levels.

Lloyd Robinson is on the local school board and on the board of directors of the Farm Bureau and the Caprock Rural Electric Association.

Pearl Armstrong, a secretary, has been a 4-H leader for 10 years. Howard Armstrong, a farmer, has been a club leader for 13 years. Both serve the Knott 4-H Club.

Pearl Armstrong has provided leadership in such areas of foods and livestock. She also has been involved in fund-raising activities and was treasurer of the Howard County 4-H Adult Leader Association.

She was instrumental in the reorganization of the Junior Rodeo Committee of the adult leaders association. That change increased the rodeo's profit from less than $500 in 1984 to more than $12,000 in 1985, according to the Texas Agriculture Service at College Station.

She also assisted with the Howard County Fair and the Community Health Fair.

She has been secretary of the annual Howard County Junior Livestock Show.

Howard Armstrong has provided keen leadership to 4-H members, with particular emphasis on livestock production, which includes proper feeding and grooming livestock while preparing them for show, according to the extension service.

He serves on many 4-H committees and is active in the Howard County 4-H Adult Leaders Association.

He also has served on the board of the junior livestock show and was instrumental in the building of a new livestock show barn.

Armstrong has served on both the Crops Committee and Livestock Committee of the Howard County Building Committee and has cooperated in cotton result demonstrations on his farm for the past 13 years. He also helped organize the Texas Calf Association.

Cheese firm head jailed

BELFLOWER, Calif. (AP)—The president of a firm that manufactured Mexican-style cheese must serve 30 days in jail for offenses stemming from California's largest food-poisoning epidemic, in which tainted cheese caused at least 40 deaths.

In Los Cerritos Municipal Court, Judge James Pearce also ordered two years' probation and an $18,800 fine for Gary McPherson, 45, president of Jalisco Mexican Products Inc.

McPherson's attorney, Roger Rosen, argued that as a corporate officer in charge of business, his client was not aware of the actual food manufacturing process.

"He didn't know what was going on," Pearce said, "but he had a duty to know what was going on."

McPherson was ordered to report to jail Aug. 1.

Jalisco — which still exists as a corporation even though its factory in the Los Angeles suburb of Artesia is closed — was ordered to pay a $20,500 fine and placed on probation for three years, which means it could be fined again for any further violations.

McPherson, Jalisco and the company's chief cheese maker, Jose Luis Medina, had been named in March in a 60-count misdemeanor complaint accusing them of violations of California's agricultural, health and safety codes, including food adulteration and operating an unsanitary food establishment.

In subsequent plea bargain agreements, McPherson pleaded no contest to 10 counts, Jalisco to 11 counts and Medina to 12 counts. Medina received a 60-day jail sentence and was fined $9,300 in May.

Jalisco's factory was shut and its cheeses recalled on June 13, 1985.

Aspirin may prevent migraine headaches

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am a healthy 29-year-old female who suffers from migraine headaches during every menstruation period. My doctor has prescribed various medicines, including Inderal. It works for a couple of months, then loses effectiveness for me. I also take ergotamine. I cannot take birth control pills because my migraines are more frequent when I do. Also, a couple of years ago, I worked out with weights and during that time my migraines were less frequent. Is there any connection between working out and migraine alleviation? — S.W.

Let me extract some of your questions one by one, then get to the medication problem.

Menstrual migraines are recognized. They come on particularly before the onset of bleeding, when levels of estrogen are falling.

Migraines can happen to women on birth control pills, especially on the off days, the days of the cycle when the woman stops taking the Pill. Nevertheless, some women with menstrual migraine are helped by oral contraceptives.

As to the exercise connection, vigorous exercise has been known to lessen migraine attacks in some. It might not be a bad idea to get back with some similar program. If it worked before, there's every reason to believe it would again.

Now, to medication. You can't tolerate the Pill, so we have to concentrate on the others. Carry ergotamine with you at all times. Take it at the first inkling that a headache is about to strike. Adn you do tell me (another part of your letter) that you have scotoma, the vision disturbance that can precede an attack. If you take the medicine soon enough at that warning you can abort the headache.

If the beta blocker (Inderal) isn't helping, there are other beta blockers to try. Methysergide is another medicine used to prevent migraine. You may want to read the next item (from T.L. about aspirin).

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: My brother's wife has migraines. He told me the other day that her doctor prescribes aspirin to prevent them. Aspirin. For migraines, yet? Please comment. — T.L.

It's for real. Aspirin can be a preventative as well as a reliever of the headaches.

The rationale lies in aspirin's well-known anti-platelet action.

Dr. Donohue

Platelets, as you know, are those blood cells that form clots to seal off leaks in vessels. The migraine sufferer's platelets are a bit different than usual. When they stick together, they release a chemical. That chemical causes vessels to constrict. It is the subsequent expansion of the vessels that causes the migraine pain when brain arteries are involved. Thus, some have found that taking an aspirin a day provides just the amount of anti-platelet action to prevent migraines from occurring.

Your sister-in-law should know soon whether the therapy is helping her.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: Is there a difference between rheumatic fever and a leaky heart valve? — A.R.S.

Rheumatic fever is one cause of a leaky heart valve. In children, sometimes an out-of-control strep germ infection can affect other parts of the body, including the heart. If that happens, a leaky valve results. That is called a rheumatic heart, a heart with a leaky valve from the effects of rheumatic fever.

But rheumatic fever is only one cause of a leaky valve. Valves can leak because of the way they formed during fetal life. Or some other kind of infection can weaken them at any point. A heart attack can leave a leaky valve.

DEAR DR. DONOHUE: I am 80. What is the flu shot made of? I have heard of people getting sick from it. — Mrs. R.

The flu shot is made of killed flu viruses. It's impossible to get flu from them. The arm may be a bit sore. You may have a slight fever for a day or two. I advise you to get flu shots. In fact, I advise this for all elderly people in whom flu can be a most serious illness.

Gift requires few dollars, lots of sense

DEAR ABBY: I hope you print this real soon so we can get the response from other people. I know you probably won't agree with me, but I am being realistic. It's June, the time for wedding gifts. I think it is a very good estimate that about half of the gifts will never be used.

I have decided that unless I know what a couple needs, I am going to send money. It may be only $5, but it can be put toward something the newlyweds need and will use.

I will never send another gift out of town because it usually doesn't get there on time, and it is too much trouble to wrap and mail.

A card with a check in it is much easier, and will be appreciated just as much — maybe more. This may sound like a tacky idea to some people, but most couples I've talked to agree with me.

So, Abby, tell your readers if they want to give a gift that will be definitely used, to send money.

SMART GIFT GIVER
DEAR SMART: Much would depend upon the circumstances of the giver, and the recipients. Common sense should be the key. To give a struggling young couple who are trying to make ends meet a sterling silver pickle fork seems thoughtless to me. But to assume that all young couples are devoid of sentiment and prefer cash is presumptuous.

Moreover, it's the privilege of the givers to give whatever they wish. Some are more comfortable buying a $10 gift that looks like $25 than sending the couple $10.

DEAR ABBY: I have a very fine son who is married to a lovely girl. For 15 years she called me nothing. When she addressed me, she merely looked at me and made her statement. About a month ago, she started calling me "Shirley" — my given name.

I am not comfortable with this kind of familiarity. I am her mother-in-law — not her girlfriend. Though I care for her deeply, I feel that she is showing me no respect when she calls me Shirley. I do not like it. I never really liked it when she called me nothing, but I like it even less now that she's calling me Shirley. I prefer that she go back to calling me nothing.

I must tell her before it gets to be a habit she can't break, as it is rubbing me the wrong way. Would I be wrong to tell her?

CALL ME NOTHING
DEAR CALL ME: You would be wrong not to tell her. But tell her soon — and in a friendly, non-critical way. It will require some gumption on your part, but it beats being rubbed the wrong way.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 and a long, stamped (30 cents) envelope to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38823, Hollywood, Calif. 90008.)

American League Astros catcher Jason Ogle listens to some late inning advice from manager Alton Fields during a time out in last night's game.

Panthers earn way into city semi-finals

By EDDIE CURRAN
Staff Writer

Jeromian Gonzalez put the cuffs on the International League Panthers, allowing just two hits and no earned runs in pitching his American League Astros past the Panthers 8-1 in Thursday night's game at International League Park.

Gonzalez's effort advanced the Astros into tonight's city playoffs semi-final game against the National League Lions at American League Park. The National League Rangers and the American League Colts also won last night, and will play the other semi-final game tonight at National League Park.

Shortstop Pat Martinez got the Astros rolling in the top half of the first with a stand-up double off Panther hurler Mike Gambia, and crossed the plate one batter later when Brant Laster connected with an RBI single. Gambia struck out the next batter, but Laster advanced to second on a steal.

The Panthers then bobbed Gonzalez's infield chopper, allowing Laster to score what would prove to be the winning run. One out later, Brandon Rogers drew a walk, advancing Gonzalez to second. Second baseman Adrian Cahro's single scored Gonzalez, and closed out the scoring for the Astros first at bat with three runs worth of damage.

Gonzalez opened the bottom half by striking out Panther lead-off batter Paul McKinney for his first of nine K's. Smooth fielding brought down the next two batters to make it one-two-three for the Astros.

Panther hurler Mike Gambia settled down in the second, striking out two and not allowing an Astro base-runner.

In the Panther half of the second, Randy Hernandez reached first on a bad-hop single, and stole second a batter later. Hernandez walked Mark Wilson, and Panther catcher Richard Martin came to the plate with two on and two out. Hernandez struck him out, thus closing out one of his few uncomfortable innings.

Gambia struck out two Astros in the third, and seemed to be taking control of the Astros with four KO's of the last seven batters.

The Panthers scored their lone run in the third after Jamie Olivarez reached first on an error, and scored on a two-out error two batters later. At the end of three, it was 3-1 for the Astros, who appeared to have a big edge on the smaller Panthers in size and power.

Ricky Grimsley and Jason Ogle led off the Astros half of the fourth with singles, and Pat Martinez made it bases loaded when his bat was interfered with by the Panther catcher's mit. With three on and no outs, Brant Laster stroked a two-run double, and with Gonzalez pitching the way he was, it seemed to be only a matter of time and outs.

The Astros added another in the fourth with a Gonzalez sacrifice RBI.

In the Panther fourth, Hernandez slammed a Gonzalez offering into right field for a double, his second hit of the game, and the only solidly-hit ball the Panthers could manage on the night. Gonzalez struck-out the next two, quieting Panther hopes.

The Astros put the icing on the cake in the top of the sixth with two runs by Laster and Rodgers. Gambia struck out the next three, ending a fine, nine-strike-out complete game effort.

Panther Mark Wilson walked with two out in the bottom of the sixth, but the game ended one batter later on a throw to first that beat Richard Martin.

RANGERS 11, TIGERS 3

Shane Myrick proved to be the hero for the National League Rangers as they squeaked by the Texas League Tigers 4-3 last night at the Texas League Field.

Myrick went the distance while getting the win, scored the game winning run in the fifth and ended the game with by getting a double play.

The Rangers scored three runs in the top of the third on singles by Clay Katt and David Parks. Michah Epley added a double in the inning.

The Tigers rallied back with two runs in the bottom of the third, cutting the lead to 3-2.

Myrick then came across with the winning run in the top of the fifth as he hurdled over the catcher to score on a passed ball from third. The Tigers added a run in the bottom of the inning, but it was too little, too late.

LIONS 11, CARDINALS 1

The National League Lions got a strong pitching performance from Joe Conaway as they defeated the National League Cardinals 11-1 last night.

Conaway went the distance for the Lions while scattering six hits, fanning eight and walking three. Mike Ramirez was the losing pitcher for the Cardinals. He was relieved by Chris Alexander after four innings.

A nine-run third inning keyed the Lions win. The Lions banged eight hits in the inning. The big blow was a three-run homer by Conaway. Joey Franco, Gerald Cobos, Oscar Cervantes, Dennis Paulette and Kenneth McCalister all singled in the inning. Cobos added two base hits in the stanza.

The Cardinals only score came in the third inning. Sammy Vierra and Abel Hilarrio singled, Vierra scored on a single by Ross Roberts.

The Lions will face the American League Astros at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the American League field.

Steers coach injured in accident

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

GIDDINGS — Big Spring High School football coach Scott Knippa was reported in satisfactory condition this morning at Lee Memorial Hospital following a two car accident that claimed the life of his 59-year-old father, Edwin Knippa.

Knippa suffered broken bones, lacerations and severe bruises. His father was pronounced dead on the scene by Lee County Justice of Peace Louis Iselt. The elder Knippa died from internal injuries.

The accident occurred Wednesday night at 8:40 on Texas Highway 21, six miles northwest of Giddings, which is located 40 miles east of Austin.

According to the Department of Public Safety report, Knippa, the driver, and his father were westbound on South Highway 21 in a 1982 Buick sedan. He turned left on Farm Market 2440, into the path of a 1983 Chevrolet pickup driven by Robert Jackson, 29, of New Braunfels, which was heading east.

The two vehicles collided, with Jackson's truck smashing into the driver's side of Knippa's vehicle. None of the people involved were wearing seat belts, said DPS trooper Bob Thrope.

Jackson escaped the accident without injury. Knippa, 32, is the offensive coordinator for the Big Spring Steers. He has been coaching at Big Spring for the past two seasons. He came to Big Spring from Lockett High School, where he served as assistant football coach.

Big Spring athletic director Ron Logback said the news of the accident came as a big shock to him. "I found out about it yesterday and it was a big blow," he said. "It was a very tragic thing, him losing his father, but I'm glad he wasn't hurt any worse than he was. It's not really much you can say about a thing like that."

Bias may have used coke prior to death

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — While a stunned sports world awaited the result of an autopsy on Len Bias, reports indicated the University of Maryland basketball All-American may have used cocaine before he died of an apparent heart attack.

Bias, 22, collapsed in his dormitory room Thursday morning, less than two days after the NBA champion Boston Celtics made him the No. 2 overall pick in the annual league draft.

The Boston Globe, in today's editions, quoted Celtics President Red Auerbach as saying Maryland Coach Lefty Driesell told him Bias probably used cocaine Thursday morning. The Baltimore Sun quoted medical and legal authorities as saying Bias may have had drugs — perhaps cocaine — in his system when he died.

The 6-foot-8 forward was pronounced dead at 8:50 a.m., EDT, at Leland Memorial Hospital in near-by Riverdale, after two hours of unsuccessful attempts to revive him. His body was shipped to the Maryland medical examiner's office in Baltimore for an autopsy.

Dr. John Smialek, the chief state medical examiner, estimated a complete report would take several days and said his office would not release a preliminary finding. But Dr. Yale Kaplan, a toxicologist with the office, said: "we may know something" by noon today.

Kaplan told the Associated Press that "cocaine has multiple mechanisms that can cause death, either cardiac (heart) or pulmonary (lung) events, but it would not cause heart tissue damage."

Dr. Edward Wilson, chief of emergency services at Leland, said there was "major damage" to Bias' heart but "we don't know what caused the damage."

The Sun quoted Arthur A. Marshall Jr., the Prince George's County State's Attorney, and Dr. John Rogers, the deputy medical examiner for Prince George's and Montgomery counties, as saying that drugs, possibly cocaine, may have been found in Bias' system during the emergency rescue efforts at the hospital.

Marshall said a drug screen conducted on the body "indicates there may have been drugs," while Rogers was quoted as saying urine tests showed "a trace" of a by-product of a drug that could have been cocaine.

Bob Law, a spokesman for Prince George's County police, said authorities were awaiting the autopsy results to determine the cause of death and whether drugs were involved. He said it could take as long as a week to determine the exact cause of death.

The Globe quoted Auerbach as saying Driesell told him that Bias probably used cocaine, perhaps for the first time, at a party Thursday morning.

Auerbach said Driesell called him Thursday afternoon to say authorities told him there were traces of cocaine in Bias' urine.

"He (Driesell) understood that Bias was out someplace, had a couple of beers with his friends and came back to the dormitory," Auerbach was quoted as saying. "Some guy, another student, joined the party and allegedly said, 'Come on, let's have a real celebration.'"

With that, the Globe said, the student allegedly produced the cocaine.

Late Thursday night, in an interview with radio talk show host Larry King, Auerbach refused to discuss the cocaine aspect, "because I don't know anything about it."

Driesell answered no questions during an emotional news conference, but Athletic Director Dick Dull, when asked about the reports of cocaine use by Bias, said: "I don't believe in unnamed sources. It would be premature to speculate."

Dull said the school had performed routine drug tests on Bias and other members of the team and "we've never had absolutely any kind of indication that there was excess of alcohol or any kind of drug involvement by Lenny Bias."

Chris Patton, one of two Maryland basketball players who died within a month of one another a decade ago — of a rupture of the aorta — was diagnosed as having Marfan syndrome, a congenital disease that weakens the body's connective tissue. That affliction, which also killed U.S. Olympic volleyball star Flo Hyman earlier this year, is most often found in tall, thin people. The 6-8 Bias weighed 195 pounds.

Astros and Rangers now kings of the wests

By The Associated Press
Going on the theory that when you're hot, you're hot, the San Diego Padres put Graig Nettles to work for the second time in less than 24 hours.

The 41-year-old third baseman, who usually sits out (1) a day game after a night game and (2) against left-handed pitchers, was surprised to see his name in the starting lineup Thursday afternoon. But he made Manager Steve Boros look like a genius with (1) a tie-breaking two-run homer off rookie lefty Terry Mulholland in the fourth inning and (2) another two-run shot in the eighth, this one off right-hander Bill Laskay, to power the Padres to an 8-3 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

"I was kind of surprised, but I was happy, too, because when I get in one of these streaks I like to play against anybody and everybody," said Nettles, who has a seven-game hitting streak during which he is 12-for-24 with four homers and nine RBIs. "I have a lot of confidence when I go up to the plate these days."

Nettles' two homers gave him 12 for the season and 380 for his career, moving him past Orlando Cepeda into 25th place on the all-time list. Winner Eric Show pitched seven innings and gave up five hits and six walks but only two runs.

Between Nettles' homers, the first of which gave the Padres a 4-2 lead, Garry Templeton hit a two-run triple in the sixth inning with Nettles on base via a walk. Templeton has 10 RBIs in his last eight games. Joel Youngblood and Randy Kutcher, playing in his first major-league game, homered for San Francisco.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Astros 6, Reds 2
Houston increased its lead in the NL West to 2½ games over San Francisco, as Glenn Davis' two-run homer sparked a 15-hit attack. Davis' 14th homer capped a three-run first inning against Mario Soto after Bill Doran led off with a double and scored on a single by Jose Cruz. Jim Deshaies won his third consecutive decision, giving up eight hits in seven innings, including Tracy Jones' solo homer.

Dodgers 9, Braves 4
Steve Sax had three hits, drove in two runs and scored twice while Franklin Stubbs and Alex Trevino homered in the Dodgers' 15-hit attack. Winning pitcher Orel Hershiser survived a shaky start and scattered nine hits, including Bob Horner's 200th career homer, for his first victory since May 25.

Pirates 4, Expos 2
Barry Bonds homered and Joe Orsulak rapped three hits while winner Bob Kipper gave up four hits before leaving the game after the fifth inning with tenderness in his left elbow. Kipper also hit a run-scoring single in the top of the fifth that broke a 2-2 tie.

Montreal's Bryn Smith retired the first nine Pittsburgh batters before Bonds led off the fourth inning with his fifth homer. Orsulak followed with a single to center and scored on Johnny Ray's double. The Expos tied the game in the bottom of the fourth on Mike Fitzgerald's RBI single.

Phillies 5, Cardinals 3
Pitcher Kevin Gross' second career homer, a three-run shot, keyed a four-run fifth inning and Mike Schmidt also homered for Philadelphia. Gross gave up six hits in 8 2-3 innings.

The Phillies snapped a scoreless tie in the fifth. Glenn Wilson walked, Darren Daulton topped a single down the third-base line and Steve Jeltz hit an RBI double. Gross then homered on the first pitch from St. Louis starter Ray Burris. Mike LaValliere hit his first major-league homer for St. Louis.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Rangers 3, A's 2
Rookie Edwin Correa pitched a four-hitter and Steve Buechele and Oddibe McDowell homered as Texas ended a five-game losing streak and retained undisputed possession of first place in the AL West. The victory increased Texas' division lead to one game over the idle California Angels.

The Rangers scored off Eric Plunk in the third inning on Curtis Wilkerson's sacrifice fly. Buechele and McDowell hit their home runs in the seventh, Buechele's ninth and McDowell's 10th. Correa lost his shutout bid in the eighth on Alfredo Griffin's bunt and Oakland rookie Jose Canseco hit his 17th homer with two out in the ninth.

Blue Jays 10, Yankees 9
Damaso Garcia doubled home the winning run in the 10th inning. Willie Upshaw, who hadn't homered since the third game of the season but hit a three-run shot in the second inning, started the 10th with a single off Yankee relief ace Dave Righetti. Buck Martinez's sacrifice bunt was fielded by first baseman Don Mattingly, whose throw to second was late. Garcia then drilled his game-winning hit over the head of center fielder Rickey Henderson, sending the Yankees to their fifth straight loss.

George Bell and Jesse Barfield also homered for Toronto while Henderson and Mike Pagliarulo connected for the Yankees. Pagliarulo's leadoff homer off Tom Henke in the ninth tied the score.

White Sox 9, Twins 8

Carlton Fisk and Ron Kittle hit solo homers and Chicago scored six runs in the sixth inning and held on. The White Sox entered the sixth trailing 5-3 but Bobby Bonilla doubled home one run, a second scored on an infield out and Wayne Tolleson singled home the go-ahead run. Joel Skinner had an RBI single.

Indians 8, Mariners 1

Tony Bernazard, Joe Carter and Mel Hall all homered in the first inning and Tom Candiotti pitched a five-hitter. Bernazard and Carter hit consecutive home runs with one out in the first off Mike Moore. After Andre Thornton walked, Hall hit a two-run shot for a 4-0 lead. Candiotti lost his shutout bid when Bob Kearney homered in the eighth.

Church has new education minister

By CARLEEN EVERETT
Lifestyle Editor

Bruce McCarver, the new minister of education at First Baptist Church, felt God's calling while in basic training.

Raised in Gatesville, McCarver attended Baylor University at Waco and graduated with a physical education teaching degree, McCarver said.

It was 1971 and he was ready to jump into his teaching career.

"In October 1971, the army drafted me," he said.

While serving in the United States Army, McCarver worked in the Installation Communication Electronics Office, known as the ice house to army men, he said.

"At 23, I made the commitment to be involved in the church," McCarver said.

After serving in the army for the the minimum required term, 21 months, he attended Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary at Fort Worth.

In December 1976, he graduated

BRUCE MCCARVER
...new to First Baptist with a Master of Divinity degree. "While in the seminary, I felt a need for education in the church," which is why he chose to be a minister of education, McCarver said.

First Baptist Church here is McCarver's fifth position. He has served in churches at Crawford, Magnolia, De Soto and Highlands prior to coming to Big Spring June 1.

"I plan to stay here for awhile. I'm excited about my opportunities here," McCarver says.

And while he's here, he has set some goals.

"I want to strengthen Sunday school and aid in its growth, strengthen Christian lives and the mission program."

He also plans to establish a training program for members and those in leadership positions, he said.

"My basic responsibility is to be a resource person," McCarver said.

His job entails being in charge of all education programs in the church, Sunday school training, mission organization, and outreach — "reaching out to non-members who don't know Jesus Christ," he said.

This will involve making personal contacts to members and non-members, he added.

But first on his list of priorities is to "meet with the directors and develop a personal relationship with everyone in the church," McCarver said.

"It's basically a 24-hour job," he said. "I'm kind of on call."

"I really like the church and the community. I like the First Baptist people and their approach to life in Christ — and their friendliness. I feel at home here."

McCarver, who is an amateur photographer, enjoys taking family portraits and outdoor scenes.

He is also an avid sports fan and collects old religious books.

Jean, McCarver's wife, is a certified aerobics instructor but stays at home with the four children: Jeremy, 10; Larissa, 8; Carrie, 3; and Joshua, 18 months.

Religion roundup

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A spokesman for Roman Catholic bishops says the U.S. Supreme Court decision striking down a Pennsylvania law putting some limits on abortion enlists the court in "outright pro-abortion advocacy."

"The ruling empties of substance the court's claim to recognize a state's valid interests in informed consent and the life of the viable child," says the Rev. Edward M. Bryce, head of the bishops' pro-life activities committee.

He also sharply criticized another high court decision overturning federal regulations demanding medical treatment for severely handicapped newborn babies and ruling that what care is given such infants is up to parents.

A United Methodist executive, Beverly Roberson Jackson, said the court decisions leave the "moral decision-making" up to individuals, not the state.

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. — The Church of the Redeemer, a new Vietnamese congregation of the Episcopal Church, has lost nearly all of its equipment in a series of thefts, but the national church has extended some redeeming help.

"Almost everything we need for our program was taken from us," says the vicar, the Rev. Duc X. Nguyen, including computers, fans, vestments, clocks and diskettes containing the denomination's Book of Common Prayer in Vietnamese.

Los Angeles Suffragan Bishop Oliver B. Garver Jr. of Los Angeles called the succession of burglaries a "very painful and emotional trauma for this new Vietnamese congregation." In New York, the Presiding Bishop's Fund for World Relief authorized an emergency grant of $5,000 to help ease the loss.

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Evangelist Leighton Ford has left the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association with which he served for 31 years and has launched a new organization, Leighton Ford Ministries, to concentrate on developing younger Christian leaders.

Ford, a Presbyterian and son-in-law of Graham, told a news conference that in an "increasingly younger world," often preoccupied with material possessions, young leaders are needed to hold up Christ's cause.

He said he would like to see "yuppies" — young urban professionals — turn into "yummies" — young urban missionaries.

BALTIMORE — Rabbis suffer greater role-related stress than that measured in recent research on Vietnam veterans, says a yearlong study of Orthodox rabbis. Clinical psychologist Leslie Freedman of the City University of New York reported his findings to the convention of the Rabbinical Council of America, representing Orthodox rabbis.

He said samplings show nearly all rabbis suffer varying degrees of stress, with only 3.2 percent saying their work is "not stressful."

NEW YORK — Heads of major Protestant and Eastern Orthodox insisted the songs were favorites and wanted them sung.

The hymnal revision office in Nashville says it received more than 4,000 letters and hundreds of phone calls about the matter. Also, 12 regional conferences of the church have taken formal action calling for keeping the hymns.

Job said the special meeting was "extremely critical...We want all voting members to have an opportunity to speak."

All of the committee recommendations on content of the hymnbook remain subject to approval by the denomination's governing general conference in the spring of 1988.

The Rev. Carlton Young of Nashville, editor for the hymnal, said the "concerns of grass-roots Methodists" have been sought throughout the revision process and they generally have been supportive until the decision on the two martial-style hymns.

However, the reaction about them, Young said, has been, "How could you do this?"

In voting to delete the two hymns, committee members had said they employ imagery incompatible with the church's stand for peace and are not biblically balanced, calling for the church to be an army of zealots, stamping out undefined evil.

The Rev. Beryl Ingram-Ward of Bellevue, Wash., had said "Onward, Christian Soldiers" puts "Christ in the role of supreme field commander. I see Christ more as a peacemaker than one who is gathering an army to slay a foe."

Despite such assessments of the two hymns, Young said the committee had not adopted a wholesale policy of removing all hymns referring to soldiers, blood, war or battle. He noted that hymns retained include "Am I a Soldier of the Cross" and "Soldiers of Christ Arise."

On other matters, Young said church membership generally has supported planned revisions, even on sometimes controversial efforts to make language about God and people more racially and gender-inclusive.

churches have deplored South Africa's state-of-emergency crackdown on dissent and urged President Reagan to impose mandatory sanctions against that country.

"This is essential to halt the increasing flow of blood and growing anger and despair in South Africa," the 21 church leaders said in a telegram to Reagan.

Also Roman Catholic bishops through their president, Bishop James Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, charged "repression by police and armed forces" in South Africa, an urged prayers for peace.

The bishops' social-concerns officer, the Rev. J. Bryan Hehir, appealed to the State Department to use "all possible influence" to restrain reported "inhumane police activity" there violating human rights.

The Protestant and Orthodox church leaders, including officials of their interdenominational National Council of Churches, said restrictions under South Africa's re-imposed state of emergency "can only mean an escalation in violence and bloodshed."

The leaders termed sanctions necessary "if the U.S. is to regain credibility among South Africans... and before the world."
